Many Midlanders have been reacting with shock and anger this summer after receiving their summer utility bills. The great Heat Wave of the Summer of 1980 has suddenly hit them where it hurts most — in the pocketbook. (Photo illustration by Brian Hendershot)

Utility bills skyrocket

Keeping cool now a major expense

By SUSAN BAKER
Staff Writer

As a merciless heat wave blazes on and takes its toll in lives and agricultural losses in many areas of Texas, most Midlanders agree that it's been pretty darn hot. But they also realize this area has been lucky.

At least, until they open their utility bills. Then, they begin to sing another tune.

And while Midlanders are learning that the price of keeping cool is becoming a major living expense, officials with all three utilities — gas, electricity and water — are reporting record consumption rates for the year. And all admit that the excess has resulted from necessity rather than extravagant use.

Electric bills have been the biggest "shockers" to many Midland consumers, some of whom have noticed as much as a 60 percent increase in their bills for June service. A sizable majority of Midland air conditioning systems are electric-powered.

"WHILE RESIDENTIAL sales for the average household in June 1979 totaled only 788 kilowatt hours, this June's total was 1073 kilowatt hours. That represents a 35 percent increase in consumption," said Shug Bowlin of Texas Electric Service Co. An appliance that uses 1000 watts of power in one hour registers on the meter as one kilowatt hour, he said. To show consumption rates for the whole system, he used figures expressed in megawatts, or million watt units.

"To illustrate how much more we've been using this summer, the last record we set for the highest number of megawatts ever used during the peak hour of a single day was 3,802 in 1978. On June 18 of this year, we used 3,914 megawatts during the peak hour. That's a lot of watts," Bowlin said.

The record continued to be broken on June 23, 24, 25, and 26. These dates coincide with the hottest day Midland has had yet this summer, when the mercury rose to the 106 degree mark on June 27 and set a new record high.

Megawatt records were still broken on July 1 and July 2, when total megawatts recorded during the peak hour were 4251.

"IT'S NOT A matter of conservation," said Bowlin. "People have been running their air conditioners excessively out of sheer necessity."

And nobody appreciates this excess more than TESCO

Red Square blaze could have been self-immolation

MOSCOW (AP) — A fire flared suddenly Saturday on the pavement of Red Square and a witness was quoted as saying a person appeared to be in the midst of the flames.

It could not be determined whether the incident was a self-immolation. The witness, Irish Olympic team coach Padraig Griffin, said the apparent body was taken away quickly by police, team spokesman John McGouran told reporters.

Griffin was standing in the square at about 1 p.m. when two columns of flame shot up 10 feet away, and he spotted what appeared to be a human body in a straw hat in the fire, McGouran said. He tried to raise his camera but was knocked to the ground — apparently by Soviet security officers — and by the time he got to his feet two minutes later, the body had already been taken away, McGouran said.

Scores of police who converged on the spot, between Lenin's Tomb and the Spassky Gate to the Kremlin, seized and exposed the film of nearby tourists, and the area was quickly cordoned off, McGouran said.

A Danish newsmen who reached the square after the apparent body was removed said police put out the blaze with fire extinguishers. He said it apparently was caused by some kind of kerosene or other oily substance spilled onto the paving stones.

Photographs of the incident received by The Associated Press showed a white-haired man being hustled by police into a patrol car near the fire. But the person was seized by officers some distance from the blaze, and the reason he was taken away could not be determined.

The photographs showed thick black smoke billowing from flames in the center of the square, but left unclear what was burning.

Motorcycle, pickup collide, killing two Odessa persons

Two Odessans died Saturday of injuries received late Friday night in a motorcycle-pickup accident eight miles west of Midland on U.S. Highway 80.

The accident occurred at 10:31 p.m.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Anthony R. Beam of Odessa was westbound on U.S. 80 on the motorcycle. Martha Sue Sailer of Odessa was a passenger on the motorcycle. Phillip S. York of Midland was driving a pickup eastbound on the north service road of U.S. 80, turning on to the highway at the cross-over. The two vehicles collided at the intersection and Beam and Ms. Sailer were thrown from the motorcycle.

Beam died at Odessa Medical Center at 1:10 a.m. Saturday. Ms. Sailer died at 2:40 p.m. Saturday, also at Odessa Medical Center.

White House makes public more cables

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House made public Saturday another State Department cable from the U.S. embassy in Libya on a visit by Billy Carter to the North African nation.

The two-sentence, unclassified message merely reports that the president's brother arrived in Libya for a Sept. 1, 1979 parade. He also had visited Libya a year earlier.

Also released were copies of two confidential letters from William L. Eagleton Jr., the charge d'affaires in Tripoli, to the State Department reporting on Billy Carter's "low profile" behavior.

One of those letters said Billy remained in Tripoli for about two weeks as the result of "a suggestion that Qadhafi will receive him." That was a reference to Col. Moammar Khadafy, the Libyan leader. There has been no subsequent indication, however, that the two ever met.

Eagleton wrote at the time that the president's brother "is quite apolitical and would not be useful as a conduit to Qadhafi on specific substance."

The 1979 visit was the younger Carter's second trip to Libya. Seven cables about his first trip, in 1978, were made public on Thursday.

On Friday night, the White House disclosed that the president had sent one of the cables about the 1978 trip to his brother.

The timing of that disclosure guaranteed minimum immediate exposure, since it came shortly before 9 p.m., well after network news shows and past the early deadlines for many

Saturday morning newspapers. On the cable mailed to Billy, the president had penned the note: "You did a good job under the 'dry' circumstances. Jimmy."

One of the letters made public on Saturday stated that the president's brother, known for his beer-drinking before undergoing treatment for alcoholism, was "strictly on the wagon and in good physical form" while in Libya, which bans alcohol.

The cable made public on Saturday, from Eagleton to then-Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance on Aug. 31, 1979, stated:

"Billy Carter and party flew direct from Rome to Benghazi where they have reportedly visited university etc. Do not know whether they will be coming to Tripoli after Sept. 1 parade in Benghazi."

In one letter, written Aug. 29, the charge d'affaires told W. Alan Roy, the State Department desk officer for Libya, that the Libyans wanted to delay Billy Carter's arrival because hotel space was short. Eagleton said he hoped this effort to delay the visit did not signal that the Libyan leader, Col. Moammar Khadafy, "has something particularly bitter for the U.S. that he did not want to deliver before the president's brother."

A subsequent letter on Sept. 12 said that Billy Carter "has been so low profiled that I have not felt it necessary to report anything by telegram."

Billy promises financial data

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Billy Carter on Saturday promised to provide reporters with a description of debts secured by his property in Marion and Sumter counties, including a $220,000 loan from the Libyan government.

After being questioned at length Saturday about his pledging of collateral for various loans, the president's brother told reporters he would have his accountant brief them on his personal finances sometime this week.

Carter did say that no formal agreement was signed with the Libyans for the $220,000 loan, which he received in two installments in December and April.

"It was a formal agreement but it was not formalized," said Carter. He said he pledged his home and surrounding property near Buena Vista in Marion County for the loan, which is being investigated by a Senate subcommittee.

At issue is whether the $220,000 represents a "business loan," as Billy Carter has characterized it, or a payment for services. Carter has denied interceding with the administration on behalf of the Libyans and only registered as a foreign agent for the North African government under protest after the Justice Department confirmed he had received the money.

As for his disagreement with the Justice Department over the nature of the transaction, Billy Carter said, "The Justice Department and I disagree on a lot of things. I guess it will all come out in court."

The Marion County property also has been placed in security with the Internal Revenue Service for tax payments. The IRS says it is owed by the president's brother.

Meanwhile, The New York Times, in its Sunday editions, quoted an associate of Billy Carter's as saying the prospect of a lucrative oil contract for Carter was proposed by Libyan political leaders in an apparent effort to enlist the president's brother's help in promoting Libyan interests in the United States.

Jack E. McGregor, a longtime friend and business adviser, said the oil dealings were viewed in Libya as a political rather than a commercial matter, the Times said.

Carter and Libyan officials have maintained that discussions about an oil transaction involving Carter and the Charter Oil Co. of Jacksonville, Fla., were purely a business matter, the newspaper said. An oil deal between the Libyans and Charter was never consummated.

In an interview outside a motel here, Carter said he has not talked with the president or anyone else at the White House since July 1 and has "no plans to talk with anyone" there in the foreseeable future.

The president's brother also said he has not been contacted by the Senate subcommittee, which opens hearings Monday on his dealings with the Libyan government.

Carter has been conducting daily impromptu discussions with reporters gathered in this small southwestern Georgia community since Thursday, when he emerged from seclusion after returning home from a trip to New York.

He has spent his afternoons playing golf at an isolated nine hole course. Friday evening, he invited reporters to his home for a poolside supper.

The most detailed interview Carter has granted came Friday morning in nearby Plains, following an appearance by his wife, Sybil, on NBC-TV's "Today" program.

SAN SIMEON — A Senate committee has been meeting behind closed doors this past week to see if it can reach a successful compromise on the administration's bill that would restrict the use of 128 million acres of prime forest land in Alaska — an area one and a half times the size of California.

It is of major concern to the residents of the lower 48 states, for the federal government is eyeing choice locations in many other states for seizure, to convert into national parks or untouchable wilderness areas. Prominent among those states selected for this special treatment are California, Idaho, Colorado, Texas and Washington. The 95,000 miles of coastal land in the U.S. is also being regarded covetously by the federal environmentalists, led by President Carter. The chief executive has said he considers his Alaska land-freeze

The bill may be reported out during the week for full vote by the Senate. If it is not sent out for a vote, this last piece of important legislation to be taken up in the dwindling days of the current session of congress will be shelved until a new congress is formed in January.

Cost squeeze also takes toll on city budget

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a three-part series examining the proposed city budget for 1980-81.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

No matter how you look at it, the screw just keeps turning tighter. Cost of food, housing, gas and utilities climb skyward with inflation behind to give those costs an extra push. Now the taxpayers are getting another turn of the screw as the city prepares to raise its tax rate. But the city of Midland is in the same pinch as the taxpayers. The saying that "no one gets a free lunch" applies to running a city. When utilities and gasoline go up, the city isn't exempted: It has to pay more, too.

The city of Midland's 1980-81 budget, released recently for public review, is taking a 22 percent jump, which is higher than the budget increases combined for the two previous years.

AS A RESULT, the tax rate — which has dropped over the past 10 years — is going up to bring in the needed income for funding the budget.

The budget for 1978-79 had an 11 percent hike while the budget for 1979-80 only called for a 10 percent increase.

Budgets usually don't lend themselves as stimulating topics for table conversation. Explaining how the city is going to spend a record $27.7

million next year can be an unwieldy task. But when separated into three mini-budgets, it becomes almost understandable.

The city budget is divided into three areas: general fund, water fund and airport fund. The latter two charge fees and are self-sustaining. Monies for the general fund come in large part from ad valorem taxes, state sales tax rebates and various fees.

BY THE TIME mini-budgets for each of the three categories are figured and then added together, the city is expecting to take in $28,698,399 to pay for budgeted costs of $27,749,299.

Revenues from the airport and water funds should top expenses by almost $1 million. But that surplus stays in those budgets, not to be used for items unrelated to those areas.

Estimates for the airport budget show $2,629,920 in revenues and $2,170,219 in expenses, giving a $459,000 surplus. This aviation fund "covers everything at Midland Regional Airport and Midland Air Park," said Assistant City Manager Fred Poe.

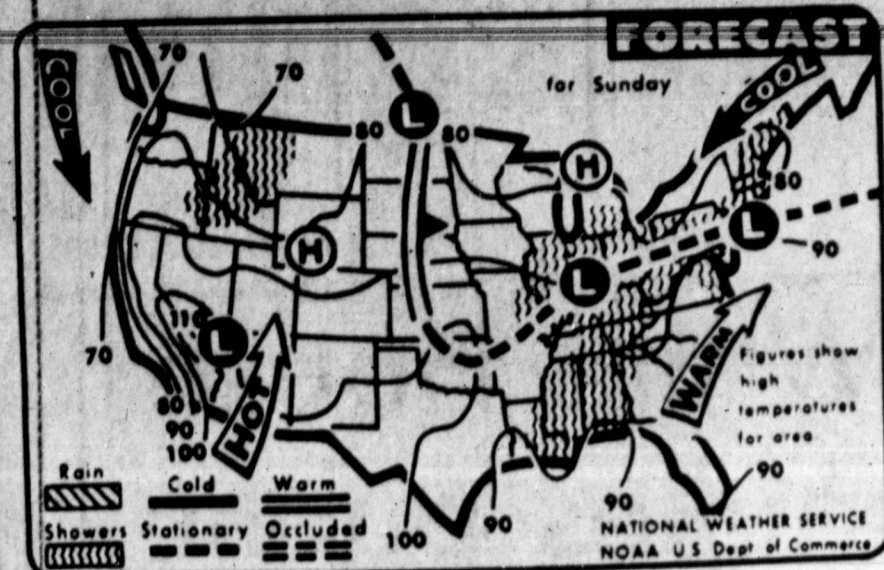

Revenues for the fund come from leases with fixed-base operators, landing fees, leases with major airlines and rental car agencies, a percentage from the restaurant and parking lot fees.

"We put no tax dollars into this fund," said Poe. "When you buy an airline ticket, you support the airport. Landing fees help pay for keeping up runways."

WEATHER SUMMARY

Allen may be first hurricane

MIAMI (AP)—Tropical Storm Allen, the first named storm of the 1980 Atlantic hurricane season, gathered energy Saturday and appeared to be building toward full hurricane strength, forecasters said.

At 6 p.m. EDT, Allen was in the central Atlantic, centered at latitude 12.5 north and longitude 50.0 west, or about 600 miles east of Barbados in the Windward Islands, on the eastern fringe of the Caribbean Sea.

Forecaster John Hope at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said the storm had maximum sustained winds of 70 mph and was moving toward the west at about 20 mph. He said it was expected to turn toward the west-northwest late Saturday or early Sunday.

Conditions appear favorable for the storm to increase to full hurricane strength within the next 24 hours," Hope said.

Allen started out as a weak tropical depression in the eastern Atlantic. The storm system's sustained winds topped 39 mph — the tropical-storm threshold — late Friday and it received a name.

Suit moved to Midland

A $1.7 million wrongful death suit filed two years ago in 112th State District Court in Ozone by the father of a 19-year-old roustabout fatally injured on the job has been transferred to Midland's 142nd State District Court.

The petition, filed by Joe S. Moran, alleges that his son, Joe Thomas Moran, 19, was fatally injured on March 25, 1978, when a pipe broke and fell on the man and inflicted "crushing injuries" to the abdomen, chest, back, head, legs and arms.

Co-defendants in the suit are Delta Drilling Co. of Tyler and Resources Investment Corp. of Dallas.

The father is seeking $1 million in exemplary damages due alleged negligence on part of the defendants; $500,000 damages due to suffering; and $200,000 in actual damages.

Young Moran was working for C.O. Spencer Welding & Construction Inc. at time of the mishap.

The son was "very generous" in financial assistance to his father and to his (the son's) brothers and sisters, the petition claims, and "contributed regularly and substantially" toward household expenses. The son had planned to help his father put the brothers and sisters through school.

Two Odessans and a Midlander were taken to Midland Memorial Hospital after a two-vehicle head-on collision at 5:10 p.m. Saturday on the north service road to Interstate Highway 20 by Warfield Truck Terminal. Carmon Koonce, 40, and her

12-year-old son, Larry, of Odessa were in satisfactory condition with facial lacerations. Brian Dale Stone, 17, of Midland, driver of the other car, also was in satisfactory condition with facial lacerations. (Staff Photo by Kay Crites)

Much of the eastern part of the nation from the Gulf Coast to Maine and into the Great Lakes area is expected to receive showers Sunday. Showers are also forecast in portions of Idaho, Montana and Oregon Sunday. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Editor's Report

doors it is boiling down to a battle between the participating conservationists, the residents of Alaska versus arm chair and extreme environmentalists in the "lower 48."

Alaskans, even newcomers, are the most conscientious conservationists and environmentalists in the nation. They, more than the self-styled "experts" in the lower 48, appreciate the value of their unspoiled land.

Alaska has a bit different legal status than the other states being, as it was, totally-owned federal territory. Under the 1858 Alaska Statehood Act, congress promised the new state about one-third of the 367-million acre territory. Conveyance of that land was held up until the claims of native Alaskans — Eskimos and Indians, mostly — were settled in 1972. By that time, environmentalists were proposing that increasingly large portions of Alaska be set aside as federal wilderness areas.

It must be borne in mind that wilderness areas are banned to all timber harvesting and are forbidden to explorers for oil and other essential minerals. Even planes are asked not to fly too low over such areas. The wilderness areas are inaccessible to all but that handful of hikers who don't need campgrounds or trails or, presumably, even a compass.

Most of the proposed wilderness area has never been explored. Geologists believe that underneath the rock surface, there may be the largest oil field on the continent, perhaps the largest in the world. They also believe that beneath the surface of the unsurveyed areas, there may also be some of the richest mineral deposits in the world.

Now the government is trying to fix it so they will never find out if they are right or wrong. As long as we can buy oil from the Arabs, the attitude seems to be, why do we need to know whether or not Alaska has one of the richest oil fields on earth?

Scientific exploration has never determined how much oil, natural gas, coal, chrome, uranium molybdenum, iron ore, etc., lie beneath the state's surface.

Alaskans believe their future lies in the Arctic Wildlife Range in the northeast quadrant of the state, where there is believed to exist more oil and gas than at Prudhoe Bay. Yet, the government would seal that off to all but selected exploration.

It would allow seismic drilling at selected spots, an inaccurate means of searching for oil, but one which will not disturb the caribou.

Even if oil and natural gas are discovered it is left up to future congresses to decide whether to allow development.

It is easy to recall those countries which failed to exploit their own resources. They are all Third World nations now, and we buy their resources for our own use: chrome from Rhodesia and the Philippines; copper from Peru; tin from Bolivia; bauxite for aluminum from Jamaica.

If we don't continue to explore for and exploit the riches of our own land, we may be heading for Third World status faster than we think. The U.S. Geological Survey estimates that federal land, much of it in Alaska, contains 40 percent of the nation's undiscovered oil, 47 percent of the undiscovered natural gas and 40 percent of the total coal reserve.

The federal government owns more than a third of all the land in the U.S., about 760 million acres, and it is steadily and increasingly buying more land. In Alaska, the federal government doesn't have to pay, for it already owns the land. This is not so elsewhere, but the government has billions of dollars to spend in the various other states.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund, established by congress in 1965, has billions to spend. It picks up about $900 million a year from offshore mineral lease sales, recreation fee collections, and taxes on motor boat fuel sales. The LWCF people plan to spend billions in the years just ahead — $4 billion for federal land purchases and at least $6 billion for state long, city officials are looking at plans for expansion. Poe said the parking lot could be enlarged and at least two, if not four, jetways need to be added to the concourse.

Cost squeeze takes its toll on city budget

"WE'RE TRYING to accumulate money ahead to pay for those so we won't have to raise taxes. When we have some big expenditures, we'll have the cash available," Poe said.

The airports are operated like a business, he explained. "We try to make a good business deal with the people so we can make a profit without gouging the other guy."

Increased expenses in the airport fund will go for employees' salaries, electric bills, runway maintenance, payment of bond indebtedness and transfer of the Industrial Park to the aviation department.

Proposed budget for the water fund reflects $6,470,600 in revenues over $5,951,201 in expenses next year, giving a surplus of $489,399. Out of this budget comes all water and sewer related expenses, said Poe.

This includes money to operate the water and sewer plants, payments to the Colorado River Municipal Water District, pumping charges for the

Forecast unchanged

There's good news and there's bad news. The bad news is there's still no rain and the temperatures are going to remain hot.

Now, the good news is you won't have to get out of the pool because of lightning.

The forecast continues to call for generally clear skies through Monday with hot afternoons. The high today and Monday are expected to be near 100. The overnight low should be in the upper 60s. Winds should be south to southwesterly at 10 to 15 mph today.

Record high for Saturday is 106 degrees set in 1944. The record low for today is 60 degrees set in 1971. Saturday's high was a relatively cool 100. The overnight low was 64.

CRMWD users shatter records

BIG SPRING — Cities served by the Colorado River Municipal Water District shattered records for a single month's consumption during July. Total deliveries to municipalities amounted to 2,113,902,000 gallons, according to O.H. Ivie, general manager. The aggregate of all deliveries will not set a record, however, for in 1974 oil companies, which since have been cut off of surface water and otherwise curtailed, were using half a billion gallons a month. Now that figure is under 150,000,000 gallons. Midland, which is restricted to a contract quantity, used 425,919,000 gallons in July, but Odessa eclipsed its old record of 881,612,000 gallons by using a total of 1,074,725,000 gallons, the first time a city had taken a billion gallons in a month from the district. Big Spring used 414,256,000 gallons, only five million short of its record of 419,490,000 in 1974 when Webb Air Force Base and Cabot Carbon were customers. Snyder soared past its old record of 131,395,000 gallons by using 170,942,000 gallons. Stanton also established a record with its 16,579,000, and Robert Lee, the other municipal customer, used 10,495,000 gallons. Ivie had high praise for the CRMWD production and maintenance workers who made the record possible despite one substantial supply line break. In order to protect Odessa reserves, CRMWD went to on-peak pumping electric power rates in July at an additional cost of $50,000 for the year, but this enabled it to recover some 30 million gallons of lost reserves by the end of the month. The district, he said, is in excellent condition to meet all demands in August despite the continuing heat wave and drought.

Electric bills getting customers hot

Staff Writer

Nobody enjoys getting bills, especially at the price of a little cool air. And coping with 100-degree heat is not any easier when that $200 electric bill comes in the mail — it's a classic case of adding insult to injury. As Harold Smith, customer service supervisor for Texas Electric Service Co., can testify, Midlanders tend to react accordingly. Emotions range from anger, sarcasm and requests for energy-saving ideas to, occasionally, praise for a job well done in the midst of a difficult situation. Smith is directly responsible for handling comments and criticism written by customers on the "comments" sections of their bills as they make their payments. "This is highway robbery," and "This is ridiculous" are two favorite replies," Smith said. "We got one the other day that simply said, 'IT'S HOT!'"

Some comments are the result of misunderstanding, and some are just plain ludicrous. "Why are our bills so much higher in the summer when the days are supposed to be longer?" wrote one customer on his bill. One person failed to realize that the bill's total balance due is broken into two parts: the amount of fuel used to produce the electricity the customer used that month as well as the month's charge for electric service. "Why do we have to pay for electricity and fuel both?" he asked. Occasionally, the company receives comments praising its efforts. "You are still a great company, because you serve and exist in spite of the government and not on account of it," one comment read. "Most people really do appreciate the service we offer," said Smith. "For example, we get a lot of good comments after we restore service promptly following a storm or power outage." But the bulk of customers' comments are requests for suggestions on how to conserve energy and control their skyrocketing bills. "They ask about a lot of things — thermostat settings, caulking and insulation, how to put in storm windows, and how often to change air conditioning filters," Smith said. "We mail out pamphlets containing such information several times a year, and we offer our Operation Tighten-Up workshops to keep customers informed on the latest in energy conservation ideas. He said members of his staff follow up on every comment they receive, constructive or not, and try to resolve whatever problems exist. They contact customers personally, either in writing or by telephone. "If there's a question of whether or not a bill was fair, we try to sit down with the customer and go over what he could have done to run up his bill. They usually realize where all the electricity went — it adds up faster than you think sometimes," Smith said.

the summer. He said although summer is a peak time for electricity usage, winter consumption is down because of the dependency of most heating systems on gas rather than electricity. "Consequently, most of the complaints we get about high bills are in the summer," he said. "SOME DON'T SEEM to realize that our rates are no more than they ever were; people are just using more juice," Bowlin said. "They also don't realize that electric power here is cheaper than almost anywhere else in the United States, except in cities that have their own hydroelectric generating facilities. 750 kilowatt hours in New York City is twice as expensive as it is here." Midland has about 2,000 gas-controlled air conditioners, according to Pioneer Natural Gas Co.'s Marvin Nash. The city's gas supply is provided by Pioneer. "Our daily rate of consumption is about 15 to 20 percent higher than last year's rate about this time," he said. "And it's all because of the heat. We know people are really trying to conserve, but it's been so hot that the air conditioning is something they've just had to have. "Anyone who's acquainted with the climate of Midland knows that June is not usually a really hot month here. Things start warming up in July, and August is usually our peak month. "BUT THIS YEAR, we've had temperatures that have been pretty consistently in the 100s since the first of June," he said. The story is the same for water usage, according to John Lowe, director of utilities for the city of Midland. "We're running at a record pace, far above what we're used to for this time of year," he said. Midlanders have been using about 31 million gallons of water daily, which is five million gallons higher than the normal rate of consumption for the month of July, Lowe said. But complaints about high bills have not been any more numerous than usual, said a spokesperson for the city's customer service department.

"We've gotten several complaints, but nothing out of the ordinary," she said. "I guess people just know to expect a higher bill when they've been watering their lawns more."

Officials hope to convince Bureau to up count

By BILL MODISSETT
Staff Writer

Shock, disappointment, disbelief. Permian Basin area city and county officials have reacted differently to preliminary census counts released to them by the Bureau of the Census. In no instance, however, has the reaction been favorable.

The officials were springing into action this week, hoping to provide evidence to the Census Bureau that would result in their particular city or county's population count being upped.

The Census Bureau is stressing that the figures are preliminary and subject to change, but that isn't dampening the uproar of disbelief. A disclaimer attached to the census forms states: "The Bureau of the Census considers these counts as unofficial working figures for local review purposes only. The policy of the Bureau of the Census is not to release these counts to persons not participating in the local review program."

Various officials did, however, release a portion of their figures to The Reporter-Telegram.

MIDLAND'S POPULATION for 1980 was tabulated at 66,998, an 11 percent increase over the '70 figure of 59,463. The count for Midland County was 77,700, compared to the '70 figure of 65,433. That was a 12.4 percent increase in population.

Mayor G. Thane Akins and County Judge Bill Ahlers registered disbelief, saying they would "do something" in the 10-day period which the Census Bureau allows for local review and challenge.

Census Bureau officials have said in the past that cities must be able to provide some type of convincing evidence that a portion of a city or county was not canvassed in order for a recount to be ordered. Most of the cities and counties in this area apparently are trying to put together just that type of evidence.

Odessa grew to 85,842 from the '70 figure of 78,380, a 9.5 percent increase. And Ector County went from 92,660 to 109,345, a more significant 18 percent jump.

Of 11 cities and 10 counties in the immediate area contacted by The Reporter-Telegram, only seven cities and six counties registered increases in population during the decade, according to the census counts. The others all lost population.

By far, Reagan County and Big Lake, that county's county seat, recorded the largest city and county decade, according to census figures. The city of Andrews' population went from 8,625 in '70 to 10,522 currently, or a 22 percent growth rate.

Andrews County, on the other hand, grew from 10,372 in 1970 to 12,600 currently, a 21.5 percent growth population increases between 1970 and 1980, the census figures show.

BIG LAKE SUPPOSEDLY went from 2,489 population in 1970 to 3,319 in 1980 — an increase of 33.3 percent. Reagan County, meanwhile, jumped from 3,239 in '70 to 3,986, a 23.1 percent rise. Officials, however, say the census counts, while recording tremendous growth, still are low.

"We feel like our count's a little bit low," said Big Lake City Manager Bobby Gay. "But we really don't have any concrete figures to go on right now."

He said no decision has been made on whether to challenge the figures.

A secretary in the Reagan County judge's office said local officials had estimated the county's population would be about 5,200. Officials, she said, feel the figure quoted is "very low."

Asked if the county will file a challenge to the figures, she said, "We are going to contest them. I don't know how, but we are."

Andrews was another West Texas city and county experiencing more than ordinary growth during the last decade, according to census figures.

COUNTY OFFICIALS at Andrews said they believe the housing vacancy rate listed by the Census Bureau — 262 vacant houses in the county and 196 in the city — is too high. Officials are working to see if they can get the population figure adjusted upward.

Big Spring in Howard County is one of those communities that expected to show a decline in population because of the closure of Webb Air Force Base. It didn't expect to lose as many people as the Census Bureau figures indicate, however.

Those figures indicate that between 1970 and 1980 Big Spring dropped from 28,735 population to 24,208, or a 15.8 percent decline. Howard County supposedly went from 37,796 to 32,299, a 14.5 percent drop.

Generally, the mood of the Big Spring City Council is one of "disappointment" following release of the figures, said City Manager Don Davis.

According to the Census Bureau, Big Spring's number of houses grew by 3 percent during the decade, "but they show us to have a 15 percent vacancy rate."

A recent Postal Service survey in Big Spring indicated 600 vacant houses exist there, Davis noted, in contrast to the 1,600 vacant houses claimed by the Census Bureau. Davis said no decision has been made on whether to challenge the figures.

Stanton and Martin County have something of a unique situation and both governmental entities are taking positive action.

THE CENSUS PLACED Stanton's population for 1980 at 2,192, a 3.5 percent increase over the 1970 figure of 2,117. But Martin County's population supposedly went from 4,774 to 4,448, a 6.8 percent decline.

County Judge Jimmy Mathis said he is now working on filing a challenge to the census figures. He noted that a special census count conducted last year for inclusion in a lawsuit showed the county to have 4,601 residents.

"I'd say there's no way we could have dropped that much in a year," Judge Mathis commented.

'Hot' gas released at plant

SOUTH HAVEN, Mich. (AP) — A "small amount" of radioactive gas was accidentally released from the Palisades nuclear power plant near South Haven, a plant spokesman said Saturday.

The release Friday night posed no threat to health or safety, said Robert Wischmeyer, spokesman for Consumers Power Co., which owns the plant. The gas escaped about 10 p.m. because of a "seal failure" on a gas compressor in the plant's auxiliary building, he said.

The gas was contained within the plant's ventilation system, where the most harmful particulates were filtered out before its release into the air, Wischmeyer said.

Fish kills in Texas lakes spur twin investigations

By The Associated Press

A fish kill at Martin Lake Reservoir in Rusk County and suspected lethal contamination at Lake Tawakoni spurred two separate Texas Parks and Wildlife Department investigations Friday.

Parks and Wildlife officers enlisted the assistance of colleagues from the Department of Water Resources in checking the potential problems at Lake Tawakoni, part of the City of Dallas water supply, and asked for help from Texas Utilities Generating Co. to investigate the kill at Martin Lake.

The state officials were collecting fish from Tawakoni so the state health department could test for contamination from arsenic or a pair of powerful herbicides used for vegetation control at the lake. The Sabine River Authority, a state agency that manages the lake, has admitting spraying herbicides containing 2-4-5-T and 2-4-D beginning in 1972.

Both chemical are contained in the controversial herbicide Agent Orange.

Investigators last week removed 15 drums of toxic chemicals buried near the lake in 1978. Federal inspectors said it will take about three weeks to finish tests that will determine whether any of the chemicals leaked into the lake and contaminated the water or the fish.

The Martin Lake investigation was begun after about 500 fish, primarily bream, died and floated to the surface Wednesday. In 1978 almost every fish in the lake died, and state officials filed suit blaming TUGCO, operators of a coal-fired electric plant that discharges into the lake.

The state's lawsuit contended the plant dumped selenium, a poisonous metal produced when lignite coal is burned, into the water and caused the kill.

Texas Utilities spokesman Steve Blankenship said the company did its own tests at the lake Thursday. He said testers found the water temperature was extremely high, 95 to 100 degrees at the surface, and that there was almost no dissolved oxygen in the water at a depth of 30 feet.

"The fish look for cooler water and dive down and there's no oxygen there," he said. "It's a natural thing."

Parks and Wildlife spokesmen said the results of their Friday tests may be available next week.

Building permits for new homes alone exceed $2 million for week

Building permits for new homes and businesses in Midland amounted to over $2 million last week, according to records at the city's inspections and permits department.

In all, permits for commercial and non-commercial construction for the week totaled $2,690,189. That figure brought the dollar amount for new and additional construction permits to $29,931,468 for the month of July.

The year to date total for Midland's construction is $113,736,402.

New residential construction last week officially recorded $2,062,289 in permits. Additions to residential property permits totaled $72,700 for the week.

New commercial permits totaled only $80,000 for the week, while commercial alterations amounted to $461,000.

Permits for swimming pools figured only $14,200 of the week's total.

New residential permits were issued to:

A swimming pool building permit was issued to Jerry McCarver, 1416 Mogford St., $14,200.

Temperamental bantam uses courthouse as home

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) — In Jackson, the answer to the riddle, "Why did the chicken cross the road?" isn't "To get to the other side."

The answer is, "To roost on the courthouse lawn."

Nobody's figured out why the temperamental bantam hen decided to take up residence at the Madison County Courthouse.

"She's been around here for about two months," said Blake Anderson, administrative assistant to the county executive.

The hen eats with the pigeons and squirrels and sometimes roosts in a tree on the south lawn of the courthouse.

During the heat of the day, she opts for a small coop a courthouse work-

Grand Canyon Park running short of water

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. (AP) — Visitors and nearby residents have been asked to conserve water because of a shortage in Grand Canyon National Park, superintendent Richard W. Marks said Saturday.

The park receives all of its water from a large spring on the North Rim of the Grand Canyon. It is delivered to the South Rim, where most of the visitors go, by a 15.5-mile pipeline.

Marks said the Grand Canyon park is averaging about 200,000 visitors a day and the water usage is about 700,000 gallons a day. He said that is 200,000 gallons less than the water system can deliver to a storage system that began the summer season filled to its capacity of 13 million gallons.

Melvin Maurice Kimbell, 29, 4606 Pasadena St., died unexpectedly at his home Saturday.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Glenn Shoemaker, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Kimbell was born May 27, 1951, in Dalhart. He was reared at Amarillo, where he graduated from high school. He was a welder and at the time of his death was associated with Baker Oil Tools for 4½ years. He was a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Glenda; four sons, Keith DeWayne Kimbell and Christopher L. Kimbell, both of Amarillo, and Jeremy Oscar Lane Kimbell and Kevin Lyn Allen, both of Midland; a daughter, Christy Lee Allen of Midland; his mother, Fern Kimbell of Amarillo; his grandmother, Ruby Gulley of Amarillo; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M.F. Jenkins of Tecumseh, Okla.; two brothers, Raymond Kimbell of Amarillo and Roger Bingham of Lubbock; and a sister, Joan Morrison of Amarillo.

Fay Baker

Fay Baker, 87, of rural Midland died Friday in a Midland nursing home following a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Monday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Ross Payne of Cottonflat Baptist Church officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Mrs. Baker was born March 19, 1893, in Mphawk, Tenn. She was reared in Kansas and New Mexico. She married Arnold Baker in Farwell, N.M., in 1924. They moved to Midland in 1935. He died in 1947. She was a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include three sons, Arnold Baker of Richardson and B.A. Baker and Carl Baker, both of Midland; two daughters, Alice McNeese of Andrews and Geraldine Wilson of Midland; 15 grandchildren, and 11 great-grandchildren. Pallbearers will be grandsons.

Elisabeth Harris

Services for Elisabeth Ann Harris, 3-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Wayne Harris, will be at 4 p.m. Monday in Kelvion Heights Baptist Church with the Rev. Frank Johnson, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park, directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

The infant died Friday in a Dallas hospital. She had been ill since birth. She was born April 15, 1980, in Midland.

Survivors include her parents; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Upchurch of Midland; and two great-grandmothers, Hattie Kelly of Hobbs, N.M., and Viola Cockerham of Itasca.

Karyn Gotcher

Services are pending at the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home for Karyn Lynn Gotcher, 29, of San Diego, Calif., and formerly of Midland, who died at her home Friday afternoon.

Born in San Angelo Oct. 16, 1950, Miss Gotcher later moved to El Paso where she graduated from high school and attended the University of Texas at El Paso. She moved to Midland six years ago and to California four years ago.

Survivors include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joel C. Gotcher of Midland; a brother, Joel C. Gotcher Jr. of Midland; two sisters, Christy Hambrick of Midland and Jody Wymore of San Jose, Calif.; a grandmother, Annis Braezel of San Angelo; and a grandfather, Lee Gotcher of Lampasas, Texas.

17,000 acres destroyed in Oregon fires

By The Associated Press
A 10,000-acre brush fire burned in central Oregon on Saturday, while a 1,560-acre forest fire in southern Oregon was contained. The two fires and four others have charred at least 17,000 acres in Oregon.

The forest fire, about 25 miles northeast of Klamath Falls, burned about 1,560 acres, including areas of harvestable ponderosa pine, according to Linda Gabrielson, state Department of Forestry spokeswoman.

In Arizona, a brushfire on Crossland Peak extended to 4,000 acres Saturday with no containment in sight, the Bureau of Land Management said. Bureau spokesman Art Wirtz said 250 firefighters were on the scene.

Smoke from the fire, which has not threatened any building, was visible in Lake Havasu City about five miles away.

Fire officials in Oregon said there were 350 firefighters at the six locations.

Blast kills 72 in rail station

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — A thunderous explosion tore through the crowded waiting rooms and restaurant of Bologna's main railway station Saturday, killing at least 72 people, city officials reported. Authorities were investigating the possibility that it was a terrorist bombing.

Local police said 76 were killed. The blast injured an additional 180 people — many in critical condition with second- and third-degree burns. Rescue workers feared others were still trapped under tons of brick and twisted steel. A large section of the building was leveled.

City government spokeswoman Miriam Ridolfi said the death toll, earlier reported at 55, climbed to at least 72 when more bodies were recovered and several persons died in hospitals of their injuries.

If it was a bombing, it would be the bloodiest terror attack in post-war Italy.

Two Americans, brothers from Provo, Utah, were among the injured. Jeff Davis, 19, suffered leg wounds and William S. Davis, 22, received a kidney wound. Hospital officials said they were in stable condition.

"All of a sudden I heard a blast," William Davis said in an interview with The Associated Press. "It knocked me down to my knees. I tried to help my brother. His leg was hurt pretty bad."

"I took off my shirt and wrapped it around his leg. I don't know if it helped much. We were really lucky. If we had been ten feet closer, we would have been killed."

Two anonymous callers to newspapers claimed responsibility for the blast in the names of right-wing and left-wing terrorist groups. Police dismissed the leftist claim, but Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni told a news conference authorities were investigating whether extreme right-wingers planted a bomb.

A man speaking in the name of the neo-fascist Armed Revolutionary Nuclei told a newspaper the explosion was connected with a Bologna judge's decision announced earlier Saturday morning to put eight persons on trial for the Aug. 4, 1974, bombing of a passenger train inside a tunnel between Bologna and Florence. Twelve persons were killed and 35 injured in that bombing, one of Italy's bloodiest terrorist strikes.

But another caller claiming to represent the Armed Revolutionary Nuclei denied that the organization was responsible, according to the Turin office of the Italian news agency Italia which received the call.

Authorities ruled out one initial theory in Saturday's explosion — that the station boiler had exploded. But the exact cause is not expected to be known for several days, until the rubble is cleared and specialists can examine the evidence.

Some witnesses to Saturday's blast said they had smelled gas, others explosive powder.

Hours after the late-morning explosion, soldiers and police were still digging grimly through the rubble, forming a chain and passing bricks down the line from hand to hand in sweltering 86-degree heat.

Epilepsy misunderstood 'handicap' for 7,000

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

West Texans share a lot. From a heritage of sagebrush, oil and cattle to the dry, hot summer sunshine, West-Texans know the feeling of a sharing community.

About 7,000 West Texans share a different kind of heritage — one of the nation's most misunderstood "handicaps" and the nation's second largest medical disorder.

It is a fearful problem that can affect a person's opportunity to get a job, a driver's license, medical insurance, enlistment in the armed services or social acceptance.

It's frequently regarded as a shameful problem and even today most victims of this disorder are hidden away — or they, themselves, hide their ailment.

Funds for research, field development and program and agency support groups are almost non-existent. Equal opportunity and financial relief laws in relation to this problem have not changed in over a century. And neither has the community's acceptance and understanding of this problem.

UNFORTUNATELY, anyone can fall victim to this disorder — no matter how healthy — at any time in life.

It is estimated that between two and four million people nationally suffer from epilepsy. But general recognition of the problem and aid to the victims of the disorder is limited.

Second only to mental retardation, the occurrence of epilepsy is more frequent than any other neurological disorder, including Parkinson's Disease, Cerebral Palsy, Multiple Sclerosis, Muscular Dystrophy, Huntington's Disease and Myasthenia Gravis.

In Texas, there are only four epilepsy associations. The newest of them is the West Texas Epilepsy Association, located at 3610 W. Wall Ave., Suite 114, in the Miller Oil Building in Midland.

Incorporated on Feb. 22 of this year, the office officially began representing a 17-county area of West Texas on June 1. Set up to provide information, referral and program implementation, WTEA serves the following counties: Andrews, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Reeves, Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winkler.

ALTHOUGH EPILEPSY is generally feared as a contagious disease, John Relaford, executive director of WTEA, said epilepsy is more often an acquired, non-contagious "symptom" of a disorder of the central nervous system.

"Epilepsy is not a disease or disorder," Relaford said. "It is a symptom just as if you have the flu and you get a fever."

The "symptom" in the case of epilepsy is a seizure. Epileptic seizures can be large or small; visible or non-visible, sporadic or relatively calm.

Generally, it is believed the epileptic seizure is caused by abnormal electrical activity in the brain.

Simply, Relaford explained, "brain damage or neurological damage results in a loss of control or a sporadic release of neurons (in the brain) that cause a seizure."

THE DISORDER OF the central nervous system results from brain cells creating more electrical discharges than the brain can tolerate which results in the seizure.

Generally, there are three common types of seizures: the grand mal, the petit mal and the focal, or psychomotor, Relaford said.

The grand mal seizure is the most recognizable type as it generally includes convulsions and loss of consciousness. Relaford said it's the "falling-down-and-shaking-all-over-type seizure."

However, even the grand mal seizure is relatively short — usually about 10 minutes. In these instances, it is best to remove dangerous objects from around the convulsing person and lie him on the floor, tilting his head to the side to allow the excessive saliva to drain from his mouth. It is important, Relaford said, not to stick anything in the person's mouth — such as a spoon or a tongue depressor — as it will not help and could possibly hurt the individual.

AS FOR THE petit mal seizures, they usually occur in children between 6 and 14 years old. The petit mal is a momentary loss of consciousness — usually only a few seconds. It can occur at any time, often appearing as a temporary "black out" to the child.

The third type, focal seizures, usually cause the person to perform some type of unordinary action. Frequently, these actions are movements — getting up and walking around, turning light switch on and off, picking at clothing, etc.

Just about anyone can get brain damage. Whether received prenatally or during birth, or as the result of an accident, poisoning, blood sugar alteration, brain tumor, infection, alcoholism, vitamin deficiencies, stroke, virus, disease or a head injury, brain damage can result in epileptic seizures.

Some of the seizures are controllable, Relaford said. Some 50 percent of all epileptics can gain complete control of seizures — most with the use of some 16 anti-convulsant drugs currently approved by the Food and Drug Administration. Another 30 percent of all cases can result in varying degrees of control. The remaining 20 percent are not affected by treatment.

Other than drug therapy, some epileptic individuals can gain control of their seizures through dietary control or brain surgery. However, most epileptics are treated with drugs.

THE DRUGS CAN be very expensive, Relaford said. He estimated even with a program discount for epileptics, the average medication cost is $215 a year. Nationwide the expenditure for anti-epileptic drugs is estimated at $110 million or more annually.

What is a bigger problem for people with epilepsy, Relaford said, is the stigma associated with the disorder.

"Epilepsy itself is not a problem," Relaford said. "The problem is a lack of knowledge for people."

WTEA is designed to combat that general ignorance and misinformation, he said.

The office can be reached by calling 697-7901.

Cars from the Dublin to Cork express train lay along the track near Buttevant, Ireland Friday after the train jumped the track. Seventeen bodies have been removed from the wreckage as authorities continue to search for victims. (AP Laserphoto)

American relives Irish train wreck

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The 4,000-horsepower express train was rumbling up to the Buttevant station. The passengers, mostly Irish families heading for summer vacations on the south coast, were in a holiday mood. Some sang or played guitars, others sat quietly and read.

Then came the first bump. "I knew we were off the tracks and my wife, Sharon, who was sitting opposite me, came flying across on top of me," said Bob Hartman, 32, a social worker from San Diego who was on a cycling tour of Ireland.

"A whistle sounded and the train seemed to drop off to the right. Two people died in front of me and two were trapped. The mangled wreckage was so bad it was almost unimaginable."

The cars filled with the screams of the injured in Ireland's worst train crash.

By Saturday the death toll in Friday's wreck of the 12-car Dublin-to-Cork express stood at 17. The grim job of identifying the bodies continued in the tiny County Cork village of Buttevant.

Police disclosed that one of the dead was carrying an American passport, but his identity was not immediately reported.

Firemen cut through the wreckage with torches in a search for two or three more bodies believed trapped inside the wreckage.

Fifty-nine other passengers were injured, and nine were reported in critical condition.

Officials of the government-run Irish National Transport Co. said the cause of the wreck was still undetermined. A witness reported that the signalman at the Buttevant switch-control house screamed and waved frantically in the moments before the train catapulted off the tracks.

Railway officials said the engine jumped the tracks when it reached a switching point, smashing into a string of ballast-loaded hopper cars parked on a siding. The dining and passenger carriages behind it telescoped into each other or jack-knifed off the tracks. The roofs of the first four carriages, including two packed dining cars, were sheared off like the tops of sardine cans.

Lunch may have saved the lives of the Hartmans, who were in a car behind the dining cars and first-class carriage.

The tall, bearded Californian, who escaped with only facial cuts, said most of the dead appeared to be passengers in the dining car.

"Sharon and I ate our lunch in our carriage," he said. "You make your own luck."

"We were pitched around and I wound up on top of most people in the carriage," Hartman recalled. He said his wife suffered a head injury and lost consciousness and he knew he had to get her out.

He did it by pushing them both through a hole in the roof. Then he set about trying to help the other passengers.

Help needed at festival fight

MOLE LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Fights broke out early Saturday among some 300 motorcycle club members and others attending a rock music festival, and state officials said other law enforcement officers were sent to aid local deputies.

William Krause, communications coordinator for Gov. Lee S. Dreyfus, said in Madison that state officials were told "basically a bunch of motorcycle clubs tearing up the place" at the northern Wisconsin festival, which drew upwards of 43,000 people.

There were unconfirmed reports of some injuries, but a spokesman for the Forest County sheriff's office said only that its 12 deputies were busy and could not provide details immediately.

Krause said the state emergency office exercised a mutual assistance pact under which neighboring counties sent deputies and making state troopers available to help restore order. The precise number of officers involved was not immediately available.

The fighting reportedly involved motorcycle club members and others attending the fifth annual Great Northern Blue Grass Festival, held at the Mole Lake Indian Reservation. There were reports of campers' tents being slashed and equipment broken.

The sheriff's office in neighboring Langlade County said it sent deputies to help Forest County officials with a disturbance at about 2:30 a.m., and they believed the situation had calmed.

A spokesman for the Forest County sheriff's office said officials were told there were 41,000 tickets sold for the weekend festival, and that attendance apparently exceeded 43,000.

"With only 12 of us, we are sort of outnumbered, so we notified the governor's office," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

Krause said the governor's office had also been asked about the possible use of the National Guard, adding he assumed the mutual aid order would provide all the needed help. The guard would be a measure of last resort, he said.

Answer Line

By Franchelle Moore

P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702

My son wrote a letter to his friend, who recently moved to Oregon.

He forgot to put a picture of the Kermi sinkhole in it; so he tore into the envelope, as it had been ready to mail.

We taped the stamp (windmill stamp — the real new one) onto the second envelope.

We got the letter back today with VOID written across the stamp and POSTAGE DUE on the envelope.

Would you please find out why this came back; as I have taped stamps on before? We are now out 30 cents for one letter.

Thank you. — Mrs. B.P.

ANSWER: The Main Post Office says the problem of envelopes with "taped on" stamps is with the cancellation machine.

Some taped on stamps will be "cleared," if they are only taped at the corners.

You might try gluing the "used" stamps on the envelopes.

I live on a rural route with the mail boxes in front of each house. WHY doesn't the mailman deliver the packages to the door?

Instead, we have to come into town to pick them up at the main post office. The mailman in town delivers packages to the door.

Also, WHY aren't the route and box numbers of rural residents in the telephone book?

We are listed as living on Rankin Highway, which we don't. Aren't we entitled to the same service as in town? — C.A.W.

ANSWER: Tom Collingsworth, who is with the Main Post Office, says that if packages for rural routes are certified mail or an insured parcel, the mailman attempts to deliver the item to the door, "provided the resident resides within one-half mile of the route mailbox."

In other cases, when the rural route mailman has a "regular package, he sounds the horn of his truck to notify residents he has a package for them."

Collingsworth also said there are permission forms at the Main Post Office, which you may fill out. This authorizes the carrier to "hang" the parcel on the rural mailbox.

I would like a recipe for the culture for Sourdough Bread. Do you have one? — Mrs. C.B.

ANSWER: The Midland County Extension Office offers the following recipe for the "starter" for Sourdough Bread.

The ingredients are one package of dry yeast, one-half cup warm water, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon salt, two cups warm water.

Sprinkle dry yeast into one-half cup warm water; let dissolve.

Stir well. In a large bowl, put the yeast mixture, and add the other ingredients. Mix well. Cover and let stand at room temperature three days. Stir daily.

To replenish the culture, add one cup warm water, one-half cup flour and one teaspoon sugar. Let "stand" and stir daily.

I'm eight months pregnant and have been living with a man for over two years.

We've often been introduced as husband and wife, and I have used both his and my last name.

When I go to the hospital to have my baby, will the baby have my last name or his? Will the baby be legitimate? — Ms. S.R.

ANSWER: Common law marriage is recognized as a valid marriage in Texas, and you have created common law marriage in Texas if you intend to be married, you live together for a period of time, and you represent yourselves as husband and wife, says the State Bar of Texas.

Your baby will be considered the legitimate child of both of you.

You should enter the hospital using the father's last name and give the child the same surname. This would assist you in registering the child's birth as legitimate.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Emphysema needs prompt treatment

Dear Dr. Solomon: After many unsuccessful attempts, I have finally decided to give up smoking — but only after my doctor told me I have emphysema. I would appreciate it if you would discuss the condition, particularly what can be accomplished with treatment. — Tim.

Dear Tim: Emphysema comes from a Greek word meaning "inflation" — not the kind that is reflected in rising prices, but enlargement of the lungs and a consequent lessening of their ability to exchange oxygen for carbon dioxide. It can be a serious disease that can damage the heart as well as the lungs, and calls for prompt medical attention.

While we still have a great deal to learn about emphysema, cigarette smoking is definitely known to be a cause. Air pollution, a factor not within the power of most of us to change, also contributes to the condition.

The onset of emphysema usually is very gradual, possibly beginning with some slight inconvenience in breathing. The patient may have experienced a number of very bad colds over the course of several winters, eventually developing a chronic cough. A decision to seek medical attention often is prompted by concern over shortness of breath.

Even slight physical effort may eventually lead to an attack of breathlessness until, over a period of time, breathing itself requires a great deal of effort. Many patients who seek medical attention believe they may be suffering from asthma or heart disease.

The majority of emphysema patients are men between 50 and 70 years of age, most of whom have been heavy smokers. Some individuals at birth lack a substance called alpha one antitrypsin, which makes them more susceptible to emphysema and at an earlier age. The condition cannot be cured but it can be treated.

The disease is believed to be a late effect of chronic infection or irritation of the bronchial tubes (bronchi), which connect the windpipe with the lungs. Each of these tubes, which resemble the branches of a tree, ends in a cluster of tiny air spaces (alveoli) in the lung. When a person breathes in, oxygen from these tiny spaces enters the blood, when the person breathes out, carbon dioxide is removed from the lungs.

Irritation of the bronchi may lead to obstruction of the airways, resulting in air being trapped in the lung beyond them. A continuation of the irritation or infection, with the consequent destruction of the walls of the alveoli, adversely affects the efficiency with which the lungs exchange oxygen for carbon dioxide. The changes brought about by emphysema also interfere with the passage of blood through the small vessels of the lung, causing the heart to work harder and, occasionally, resulting in heart failure.

Most patients can be helped to avoid the attacks of breathlessness and thus live more comfortably. Treatment, including the use of antibiotics, must be geared to the needs of the individual patient. Giving up smoking in an effort to avoid further irritation of the bronchi is essential.

Other remedies include breathing retraining, selected exercises and help in keeping lungs clear of excess fluids, enabling patients to make optimal use of their breathing capacity.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Midland school system sets fall pre-registration schedules

Pre-registration schedules for both secondary and elementary schools have been announced by Payton Cook, pupil and community services director for the Midland public schools.

Secondary school pre-registration is scheduled from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. beginning Aug. 4 and continuing until school opens Aug. 27.

Aug. 18 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. has been set as pre-registration day for all elementary schools for students new to a school campus. A student is new to a campus if any of the following conditions apply:

—The student is beginning school for the first time either as a first grader or kindergarten student.

—The student is transferring from another Midland school or from a private school after having completed kindergarten or first grade.

For example, a student who attended Emerson Elementary School as a kindergartener last year whose family has moved into the Bowie Elementary School area should pre-register Aug. 18 at Bowie.

Another example is a child who attended a private school as a first grader last year and is enrolling in Houston Elementary this fall. The pupil needs to pre-register Aug. 18 at Houston.

—The student has moved to Midland during the summer from another school district and will be enrolling for the first time this school year in Midland. The students needs to pre-register in his area school.

Any elementary student who cannot pre-register Aug. 18 should pre-register Aug. 19 or sometime before school opens Aug. 27.

A student new to the campus who has moved from outside Midland or had transferred from a private school must have a report card or a birth certificate if he has not previously attended school, and a certificate of immunization.

The required immunizations are DPT, with one shot having been given after the fourth birthday; polio, measles and rubella. Mumps immunization is required for pupils aged 5 to 7 entering grades K, 1 or 2. By Texas law, immunizations must be current or in progress before a pupil may enroll in school.

New secondary students may pre-register beginning Aug. 4. Counselors will be on duty at the city's three junior high schools, two freshman schools and two high schools beginning Aug. 1.

Secondary students who are moving to Midland or transferring from a private school should pre-register to ensure a schedule of classes when school opens Aug. 27.

Since secondary class schedules are computerized, those pupils who register late may not receive a class schedule the first days of school, said Cook. The parent or student should call the office of the counselor where the pupil will attend secondary school to make an appointment to pre-register as soon as possible, he said.

We want to express our thankfulness and gratitude to our many friends, neighbors, and customers for their special acts of kindness and sympathy during the loss of our Britt.

A special thanks to the employees of Fluid Engineering, the paramedics, and the Doctors and Nurses who worked so hard trying to save him; and a thanks to all the wonderful people who helped, that we were not aware of.

Norwegian to play Dietrich

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Norwegian actress Torill will play Marlene Dietrich in the three-hour NBC movie "The Day the Bubble Burst."

She will make her American film debut in a re-creation of the famous Music Hall scenes from "Blue Angel," Joseph Hardy directs from a screenplay by Stanley R. Greenberg, based on the book by Gordon Thomas and Max Gordon Witts.

Hope to star in 'Winchell'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Hope will star in "The Walter Winchell Story" for NBC, his first television movie.

Winchell during his lifetime was a newspaper columnist. He was the "father" of the gossip column.

The movie is part of Hope's new deal with NBC, a long-term contract for specials and the development of series by Hope's company.

Gless stars in 'Revenge'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sharon Gless stars in "The Revenge of the Stepford Wives," a NBC sequel to the theatrical motion picture.

The movie also stars Julie Kavner, Don Johnson, Arthur Hill, Audra Lindley and Mason Adams.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Lemmon, Robby Benson and Lee Remick star in "Tribute," the movie adaptation of Bernard Slade's hit play.

The film, which opens at Christmas, completed photography in New York and Toronto.

'Benson' future causing concern

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC has come close to dismantling one of its few new successes, "Benson," in a dispute with series star Robert Guillaume.

Guillaume has refused to show up for work on the series, which is now idled anyway by the Screen Actors Guild and American Federation of TV and Radio Artists strike. He is angry, his agent says, because of the "treatment he has been getting" from ABC and Witt-Thomas-Harris Productions, which makes "Benson."

Although money is part of the dispute, says agent Phil Margo, "it is largely a question of treatment. All we are after is parity and what's fair. We aren't asking for something other people don't get... just certain things that a man who's reached the point Robert has should have."

Margo would not elaborate. But it is said that Guillaume asked ABC for a movie package, a benefit often given by grateful networks to stars of successful series.

"But they (ABC) would like you to think it's just a marginal show," says Margo.

Indeed, "Benson" was not a Top 10 show for ABC last season, but few of that network's series were. In a season in which ABC saw its prime time dominance evaporate, "Benson" was a solid performer, finishing in the top one-third of the Nielsen ratings.

Only two of the series introduced by ABC last fall are on the 1980-81 schedule — "Hart to Hart" and "Benson."

Neither ABC nor Witt-Thomas-Harris would comment on the Guillaume situation.

There is supposedly a search for a new "Benson" being conducted, with Ben Vereen and Louis Gossett Jr. being mentioned as possible replacements for Guillaume. But it's not likely that Guillaume will be replaced.

Hoyt Axton likes freedom

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

With no hard sell, no high pressure people separating him from the audience, Hoyt Axton is offstage as he appears onstage — a nice guy. But, he's not a pushover. Underneath his laid-back friendly charm is a man who knows what he wants and pursues it.

For a performer who has written as many songs as Hoyt, all the way from co-authoring "Greenback Dollar" recorded by the Kingston Trio, "The No No Song" for Ringo Starr, "Jeremiah Was A Bull Frog" for Three Dog Night to "The Pusher," which wound up on the sound track of "Easy Rider," he has remained a virtual unknown to the general public. And although he has appeared in segments of Bonanza and McCloud plus playing a Nashville Scrooge in the movie "Skinflint," what brought him to the attention of music lovers, specifically country western connoisseurs, are the songs he wrote and recorded, such as "Bony Fingers," "Wild Bull Rider," "Rusty Ole Halo," and his latest, "Della and The Dealer."

"I've had chances through the years to become a big shot by working for other people, but I always figured I'd rather do it at my own speed so I could enjoy it and I really have," Axton said following his Wednesday night performance at the Midland Stardust.

When talking with him it's hard to imagine that anything could rile him. But, it can. "If anybody tries to take my freedom away from me they can figure I'm armed and dangerous when it comes to that. I do like my freedom."

"I like the out-of-doors. I ride motorcycles and I drive fast sometimes. And I've always loved pretty women," he said, grinning that big bear grin of his.

His hectic schedule involves touring six months out of the year, recording for another two and then spending the rest of his time acting and writing songs.

He credits his dad with having a lot to do with his adaptability.

"My dad's favorite saying was, 'Women rule the world, a cowboy hat'll blow off in a high wind and things change.' I try to give the people what I think they might like. It's not hard to do because I like it all."

But his greatest enjoyment professionally comes from song writing which he has been doing since he was 15.

"It was the first thing I did and I've loved it ever since. My words come from hopes, dreams, ambitions, desires, reality... just everywhere. I don't question it and I don't push it. When it's not happening, I don't worry about it."

When he appeared at the Midland Stardust Wednesday night his group had just spent 25 hours on the road, coming straight from Los Angeles to perform. When their Midland gig was finished they headed for Big Spring for a taping session and then on to Corpus Christi for a Thursday night performance.

His road philosophy is "I try to perform every night. That keeps everybody active and an edge on the music, plus I make more money."

"Just like my song says ('Wild Bull Rider'), 'I'll ride that bull to hell and back for the money and the show.'"

He does have a real concern that he please his audience. His main concern Wednesday night was that he hadn't sung on key because the sound system was off. He and the members of the band couldn't hear on stage.

But the 900-plus fans who came to hear him perform and dance to his music weren't concerned. The dance floor was packed the entire performance. And after the two hour concert, autograph seekers keep him busy for another hour.

Afterwards he explained that "it was a little bit rough up there, but so what, as long as the people had a good time."

And they did.

Hoyt Axton performs for 900-plus fans Wednesday night at the Midland Stardust. His performance of "Della and The Dealer" drew such resounding applause from the crowd, who wanted to hear it again, that near the end of the two-hour concert he performed it one more time. He signed autographs for about an hour after the concert before he and his group climbed into their bus. The Honeysuckle Rose, and left for Corpus Christi. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

Tom Jones plans comeback on TV

By LAURINDA KEYS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Tom Jones, whose "This Is Tom Jones" was a ratings success from 1969 to 1971, says today's variety shows are old-fashioned. He's not sure what they're missing, but when he figures it out, he'll be back on weekly television.

"I love watching TV and I think that the show as it stood wouldn't work today because I've watched other variety shows and they seem to be old-fashioned," Jones said between rehearsals for a Linda Carter variety special to be broadcast by CBS this fall.

"You need an uplift," Jones said. "You need some kind of idea. I don't know what it would be or I would do it. But something a little different, with music involved, but not just a straight variety show. Then I would do it again."

Since "This Is Tom Jones" went off the air, the 40-year-old singer has continued to break up his grinding 10-month tour with appearances on variety specials. But, he said, "They haven't sort of moved forward at all since I did my show, as far as variety is concerned."

"But I think there is a way to work music in, but with some kind of story line or something going through it."

On the Carter special, Jones will sing two songs from his new country-pop album, still being produced in Nashville.

Jones and Miss Carter also will sing a duet, "With You I'm Born Again," a current hit by Billy Preston and Syreeta.

"When I was doing my shows, everybody that came on TV, I did a duet with them," Jones said. He never got the feeling anyone was trying to upstage him. "I think it's because I have a loud voice," he said. "I have a very big range and a strong voice. I've always felt I had to come back a little, underplay a little."

Jones said audiences like to see duets involving people who usually sing alone, just for the change. "But it's a little restricting because when you sing by yourself you have a lot of freedom. You can do what you want. If you have a phrase you can change it just before it comes up, but in a duet you've got to stick to what you're rehearsing."

Jones said he can adapt easier to what his partner wants to sing because he likes so many different kinds of music.

But duets are nothing new to variety shows, and neither are the little chats between the host and the guest. Miss Carter, Jones said, "likes to do a chat, but the only thing they wanted to find out from me was what I was interested in, so she's got something to talk to me about. But it's not going to be written."

And what did Jones say he was interested in? "Mostly music. But I used to read a lot of history at one time. British history mostly, that's what I used to read about, and American history, because it's a sort of an offshoot from the British history."

But Jones said he doesn't read much anymore. "If you want to relax you switch on the television, you don't go for a book," he said. "In England, I used to read more because the TV's not on that long. After midnight, it's off. If I stayed up late at night, I'd have to read."

Also in the works for Jones is a feature movie based on the book, "The Gospel Singer," an "Elmer Gantry" with music. He and his long-time manager, Gordon Mills, bought the screen rights two years ago, and they're still trying to get the right script.

Meanwhile, he's keeping his eye open for possible co-stars.

"There's a part for a black actor, a good part, and there's quite a lot of good black actors around. And then there's a part for his (the gospel singer's) girlfriend from his home town. She's a shapely little Southern girl with blond hair. I've seen a lot of little girls around. I think maybe that kid off 'Dallas' (Charlene Tilton) would be good for the girlfriend. But she might be too young though, because she's got to be my girlfriend and I'm not a teen-ager."

Neither is Miss Tilton, although she plays one on CBS' "Dallas."

In November, 1978, Jones appeared in his only film, a TV movie called "Paradise Cove," about a fantasy resort, complete with cocaine smugglers who led Jones' playboy character astray.

Since then, he's received offers to play the same sort of role in ABC's "Fantasy Island" and "Love Boat," he said. Jones doesn't object to the typecasting, but he said none of the parts submitted to his manager has "been that outstanding."

Roy Ritchey, a Big Spring roustabout who was cast as an alien in the science-fiction film

"Hangar 18," signs autographs for a couple of fans after the film's debut in Big Spring. The

Big Spring turns out for premiere

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — "Hangar 18," a somewhat believable science-fiction movie filmed mostly in Big Spring, unraveled here Friday before a full-house in the old Ritz Theatre.

Most of the moviegoers, who paid $5 a head to get in for the premiere showing here, seemed lightly entertained and amused by the suspenseful Sunn Classic film.

Others were spasmodically thrilled by "Hangar 18." And at least one found it stifling.

"It was sort of boring to me," said a gray-haired woman. Apparently, she wasn't entranced by the chase scenes, wasn't intrigued by the unidentified flying object (UFO) and by the aliens, wasn't put on edge by the UFO cover-up by an ambitious president seeking reelection, and apparently wasn't at all that impressed with scenes of Big Spring, Midland and the West Texas highways, ranchland, oilfields, air base and local characters in the movie. She was in the minority...apparently.

"IT WAS REAL GOOD, at least it kept you excited," movie-goer Bob Miller said of the two-hour show.

Denise Smith, 19, paid $10 for her and her sister, Dawn, 10, to see the UFO film.

"I thought it was really good. I thought it was well made," she said.

Roy Ritchey, a 26-year-old Big Spring oil field roustabout who played one of two dead aliens in the film, said the movie was "pretty good; it was all right."

But he was disappointed that neither he nor Dee Foster, another roustabout who played an alien role, were not given credit lines in the film.

But Ritchey suddenly seemed to give the film an even higher rating after two of his friends, Ed Nanny, 27, and Deborah Smith, 22, drove up in front of the Ritz in a blue pickup truck just after the Big Spring debut of the film was over and the 700 moviegoers were exiting the moviehouse.

They asked for Ritchey's autograph. The "alien" obliged.

"He's one of our national heroes, local heroes," Nanny said.

"So, you're a movie star, uh, Roy?" said Ms. Smith. "Let me shake your hand."

The "alien" wrote on the autographed card: "It ('Hangar 18') was great. You should have been there."

The aliens were portrayed as "light years ahead of our (earthlings) intelligence" but were killed because of "some stupid accident."

THE MOVIE DID NOT feature any award-winning Oscar stars, but it did cast such notables as Robert Vaughn of "The Man from U.N.C.L.E.," fame; Gary Collins and James Hampton, who played space shuttle astronauts in the film; Darren McGavin, the lead actor in the "Night Stalker" television series, who was cast as the head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA); and Joseph Campanella. The moviegoers cheered, clapped and ahhhh-ed when movie sequences depicted scenes from Big Spring and environs or when local residents made passing appearances. And, just like enthusiastic fans of old cowboys-and-Indians and lawmen-and-outlaws moving-picture shows, many of the moviegoers cheered and applauded when the good guys (Collins and Hampton) came out ahead in chase scenes or when the president's bad guys — the hit men — were killed in a catch-and-kill-'em scenes.

Lelan Warren, 18, suggested that he liked the film, which Sunn Classic is billing as a bizarre and suspenseful thriller. "It was pretty good," he said. "It was neat to watch Big Spring."

Sunn Classic, which is based in Utah, spent about four months and $4 million in Big Spring earlier this year in preparing for, shooting the movie and in tearing down the main sets, which were on the old Webb Air Force Base, now Big Spring Municipal Airport.

LINDA BOND of Midland was cast for a bit role in the film, but her appearance was axed in the movie editors' cutting room.

"I thought it was an exciting evening," she said with a touch of the dramatic after viewing the show, "and (was) right up there with the great epic space films." Dorothy Lusk of Big Spring viewed the film as sheer "fun."

"I liked it," she said.

Can't enforce new ordinance

British photos shown

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has told the city of Fort Worth it cannot, for the time being, enforce its new ordinance banning possession, sale or use of drug paraphernalia.

U.S. District Judge David Belew issued a temporary restraining order Thursday, prohibiting enforcement of the new law, until he can conduct a hearing on its constitutionality Aug. 11.

The ordinance was to have taken effect Thursday, and was designed to shut down so-called "head shops," stores which sell such items as opium pipes, cocaine holders, clips for marijuana cigarette butts, hypodermic needles and other items police say are commonly associated with drug use.

NEW ORLEANS, La. — The New Orleans Museum of Art is showing through Aug. 31 a collection of 100 photographs selected from over 30,000 19th and early 20th century prints and negatives from the British Royal Photographic Society.

Also showing through Aug. 31 is the exhibition, "Art of Sri Lanka: Contemporary Works on Paper." This exhibit, which was organized by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service, marks the first time a Sri Lankan exhibition of modern printmakers and watercolorists has been shown in this country.

Vehicles from bygone days reappear as part of West Texas Auto Tour

By DAVID CAMPBELL Staff Writer

Henry Ford made 'em to last. About 80 antique automobiles, with vintage beginning about 1912, sauntered through the streets of the Tall City last week.

During bygone days, these vehicles rumbled through Midland's streets when the best roads were dry dirt pavements.

Although the cars were the stars that stole the show, their owners proved to be just as colorful.

The occasion for the mechanical reunion was the 18th West Texas Antique Automobile Tour held at the Holiday.

Once every five years the tour is held in Midland, said Bruce Hart, tour master for the event. Host places for the event rotates among other West Texas towns, he added.

MOST OF THE vehicles were Ford's Model A's or Model T's. However, there were several Packards — the Cadillacs of their time — and Hudsons, just to name a few.

There are two reasons why a person will go through the trouble and expense of renovating old autos, Hart said. "Love of the automobile attracts many people to owning a Model T or a Model A or whatever."

The machine is also considered an investment. "A person can buy a Model A for $1,000 and after he's finished repairing and repainting, the car could sell for $10,000 to $12,000."

"The older guys who got into it earlier got a pretty good deal," Hart

"A person can buy a Model A for $1,000 and after he's finished repairing and repainting, the car could sell for $10,000 to $12,000."

said.

AND THERE ARE the more unusual reasons for collecting the machines.

"I was kinda coerced into collecting antique autos," he said, recalling his boyhood days when his uncle took him to several tours.

"I met my wife at one tour and ended up being married into it."

The most visible car in the tour was the Model A because of the availability of parts to repair it.

In Florida, Hart noted, there is a man who builds Model A parts and makes the cars for a living.

One of the rarer autos in the tour was a 1929 Model A station wagon with wood siding owned by Troy Roberts of Midland. According to Hart, Roberts bought the vehicle for $50 when the wood paneling was, for all practical purposes, destroyed.

HOWEVER, ROBERTS was able to find patterns to make the wooden sidings and took the car to Houston to have the siding made, Hart recalled. The station wagon has ing the wind and throwing the driver out of the vehicle," Hart said.

ACCESSORIES FOR most of the antiques ranged from tied-down Hudson mirrors on the spare tires to a suspicious-looking glass jug with a corn-cob plug.

One crusty-looking Model A with mattress springs and a chair tied to its roof appeared to be a remnant from the dust bowl days when folks tied their belongings to the roof and traversed to California looking for better times.

While many of the restored vehicles looked like they belong to the rich, the owners actually are part of the "well-to-do-I-think" middle class.

And each owner had his own tale. Red Runkle of El Paso recalled the time when he "drove T's and ate wild buffalo meat" during a tour to Catalina Island, 20 miles off the California coast.

While being toted across the ocean on a barge, the salt water collected on his Model T, Runkle said, recalling the number of hours he spent trying to wash off the caked-on salt.

The meal of wild buffalo meat was a result of movie producers transporting buffaloes to the island to make a movie and leaving the beasts behind to populate.

"IT WAS CHEAPER and easier for the movie companies to leave the buffaloes behind on the island than to haul 'em up on a barge and transport them across the water," Runkle said.

The Midland tour is composed of contests which test the car's performance and judges how close the machine is rebuilt to resemble its original condition, Hart said.

This year, ribbons and trophies will be presented to winners, he said. Owners display an unusual amount of loyalty to their brand of car. Some owners boast only of Model A's or Model T's.

But one owner displayed quite an affection for his car when it came time to sell the vehicle. The advertisement in the newspaper read "No hill too steep. No sand too deep."

It was a message that would have made Henry, Ford proud.

Self-proclaimed antique car nut Monty Montour and his wife Dorothy drove their 1935 Chrysler 300 (that 300 stands for horsepower) from Albuquerque, N.M., for the 18th West Texas Antique Automobile Tour. The car won first place in several national contests. (Staff Photos by Edward McCain)

Freeway killer suspect to be returned today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The third man charged in the Freeway Killer case, 19-year-old James M. Munro, is to arrive in Los Angeles from Michigan Sunday, police said Saturday.

Munro was arrested in Fort Huron, Mich., on a warrant charging him with the murder of Stephen Jay Wells, one of 44 young men police have said were killed in the case. Munro waived extradition Friday, officials said.

Munro worked for a short time at Dependable Driveaway Co. trucking company as William Bonin, who has been charged with 14 murders in the case. Bonin was arrested on June 12.

Houston's J.R. Richard
Richard improved following surgery

HOUSTON (AP) — J.R. Richard, who had a blood clot removed from an artery in his neck earlier this week, was sitting up and taking fluids Saturday, said Dr. Harold Brelsford, the Houston Astros' team physician.

Brelsford said doctors now have determined that a circulatory ailment that plagued Richard much of the season is responsible for the blood clot that threatened the fast-baller's life and caused him to collapse during a workout Wednesday.

A team spokesman said a news conference was scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday in the Astrodome to give more information on Richard's condition. The spokesman also said a decision on Richard's pitching future this season might be announced Monday.

Cowboys lose
Randy Hughes

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboy starting free safety Randy Hughes dislocated his right shoulder during Saturday's annual intra-squad scrimmage at training camp here.

A six-year veteran from Oklahoma, Hughes was scheduled to return to Dallas for examination by team physician Dr. Marvin Knight Sunday. Knight will determine if the shoulder requires surgery, a team spokesman said.

The 27-year-old free agent, who has replaced retired Cliff Harris, dislocated the same shoulder last Dec. 8 in a game against the Philadelphia Eagles. He missed the following game but returned in the Dec. 30 playoff game against Los Angeles.

The injury occurred early in the scrimmage when Hughes collided with wide receiver Butch Johnson on an incomplete pass, spokesman Doug Todd said Saturday night.

Based on a complicated scoring system, the defense defeated the offense 29-26.

The defense capitalized on two interceptions and a fumble recovery. Veteran linebacker Mike Hegman and rookie safety Don McCall of Washington State each came up with interceptions on passes thrown by No. 2 quarterback Glenn Carano.

Rookie cornerback Mike Jones of North Texas State recovered the fumble by fellow rookie James Jones of Mississippi State.

The offense was held without a touchdown, but scored on a pair of field goals 26 yards by rookie John Roveto of S.W. Louisiana and 45 yards by rookie Skip Nernon of New Mexico State.

Jones led the rushers with 37 37 yards on nine carries. Tony Dorsett had 34 yards on 10 carries.

Carano led passers with seven completions in 16 attempts for 116 yards. Starter Danny White completed four of seven for 52 yards.

Olympic Games close
Soviets reap golden harvest

MOSCOW (AP) — The Games of the XXII Olympiad, the first held in a communist country, draw to a close today with the Soviet team reaping a golden harvest that will always be somewhat tarnished by the boycott that weakened the Games.

As a major international sports competition, the summer Games were not ruined by the boycott. Thirty-six world records were set, two more than at Montreal in 1976. Teams came from 81 countries and the Russians put on a good, if somewhat overbearing, show.

But a constant refrain among Muscovites throughout the Games was, "What a shame the Americans are not here."

One tourist guide, bidding good-bye to a group of Americans who came to the Games, said, "I am sad that your compatriots did not come. But they say time heals all wounds and I hope I will see you again."

The Soviet team smashed the existing records for most gold medals and most total medals won at an Olympics.

By mid-day Saturday, with only a few events left, the Soviets had won a total of 195 medals, including 80 gold. The old records were the 125 total they won at Montreal in 1976 and the 50 golds the Soviet team won at Munich in 1972.

But when those records appear in the books they will most likely be followed by a small asterisk that will footnote a series of major problems: The Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, President Carter's call for a boycott and the absence of teams from 36 nations.

After all the high-level international dealing that went on with one side trying to put together a boycott and the other trying to salvage the Games, the Olympics were reasonably free of controversy.

Perhaps the thorniest question that arose was whether the American flag would be raised at Sunday's closing ceremonies.

The International Olympic Committee, along with the local organizing committee, has sole responsibility for the conduct of the Games. And the IOC is a stickler for its own protocols.

An IOC rule calls for three flags to fly at the closing ceremony — the flag of Greece, birthplace of the ancient Games, the flag of the host country and the flag of the country to host the next Games.

But the boycott seriously weakened the number of foreigners who came to the Games. Overall estimates of the number of visitors who came and where they came from vary widely.

But the number of tourists from the United States was cut from a pre-boycott total of 18,500 who planned to go to about 3,000 who actually came. One estimate had it that the boycott cost the Soviets about $200 million in badly needed foreign currency.

And the boycott cut heavily into the coverage the Games were given around the world. The triumph of socialism the Soviets had hoped for was not seen in the United States because NBC cropped its coverage plans when the United States Olympic Committee voted to go along with the boycott and similar situations occurred in other boycotting nations.

And the Soviets were not always happy with the coverage they did receive. More than once Soviet spokesmen lambasted what they regarded as "non-sports" reporting by Western correspondents about the heavy-handed security, shortages of goods, political incidents and other unfavorable aspects.

But the boycott clearly didn't deter the Soviets from their military venture in Afghanistan. Most reports indicate that the Russians are settling in for a long, determined campaign to break the anti-government resistance there.

The Soviets had hoped that their Games would go down in history as the most impressive ever staged, that the world would come away profoundly impressed with the achievements of the first socialist state.

Many visitors, athletes and journalists — especially those from Third World countries — will no doubt return home with positive memories of a glittering capital, modern facilities and smoothly organized Games.

Boston blanks Rangers, 1-0

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Rookie left-hander Bob Ojeda won his first major league game Saturday night, combining with Bob Stanley for an eight-hit 1-0 shutout over the Texas Rangers.

Ojeda, 1-1, went six innings, allowing five hits, striking out four and walking one. He gave up a leadoff bunt single to Mickey Rivers in the first inning and a pair of singles in the second before retiring the next 11 batters.

Bump Wills and Al Oliver singled with one out in the Texas sixth but Buddy Bell grounded into a double play to end the threat. Stanley allowed three hits over the final three innings for his second save.

Ed Figueroa, making his first appearance since being purchased last Monday from the New York Yankees, was the loser. Figueroa, 3-4, struck out three, walked one and gave up seven hits before leaving in the eighth inning with a blister on his pitching hand.

Jim Rice doubled in the second inning and scored on Jim Dwyer's single for the game's only run.

Boston Manager Don Zimmer was ejected in the fourth inning after a prolonged protest of a double play call. Rice walked with one out but first base umpire John Shulock ruled he was doubled off first after Carlton Fisk's long fly to left-center.

Texas Teen-Age Senior Baseball meet opens in Tall City Monday

By BOB DILLON
Sports Writer

The Texas Teen-Age Senior Baseball Tournament opens here Monday night at Simon Field with six teams entered in the double elimination meet.

Midland's Elcor Chemical Chems are the host team with other teams coming to the Tall City from Victoria, Waco, Mineola, Killeen and Sweetwater.

A special dinner meeting is on tap at 7 p.m. today at the Western Sizzlin Steak House for all managers, coaches and tournament officials in order to go over the birth certificates along with drawing up the bracket for the four-day tourney.

Two teams will draw first round byes with two games set for Monday, the first being at 6 p.m. and the 8:30 p.m. feature game will have Elcor taking on one of the five other teams.

The Elcor roster includes

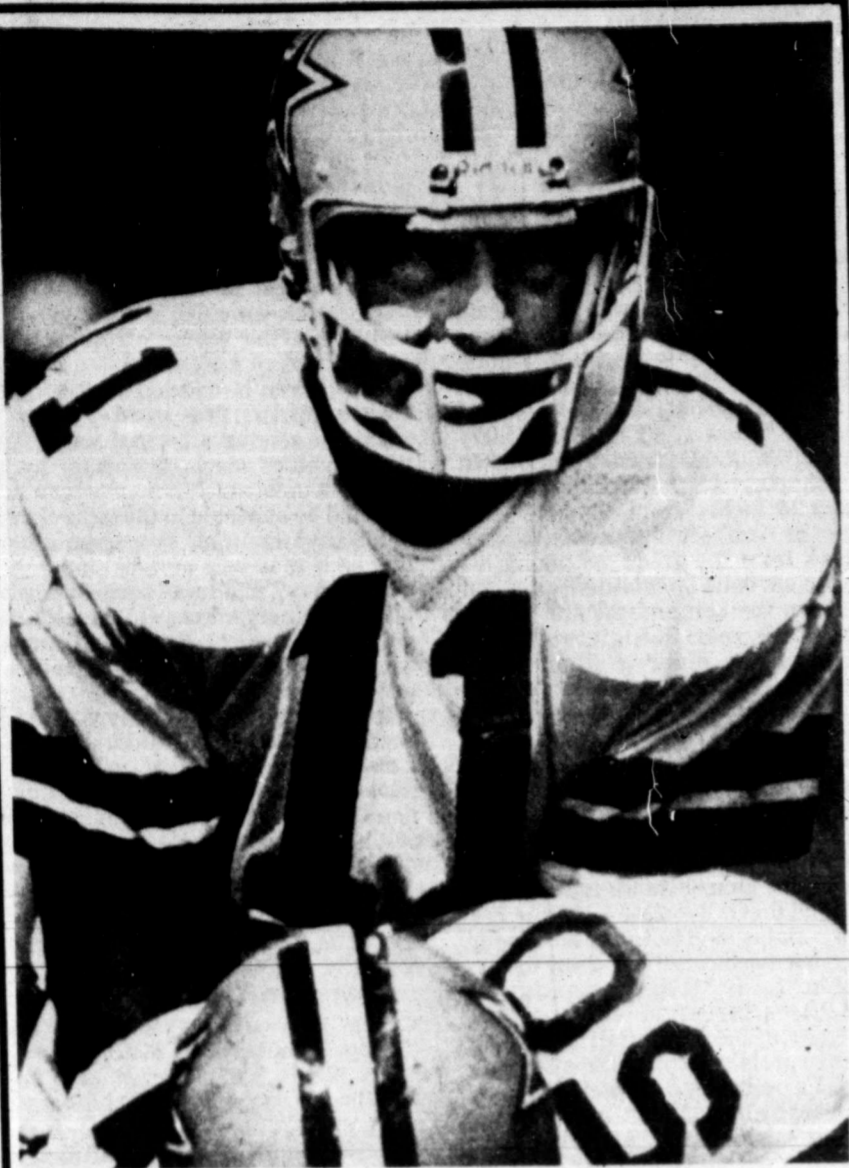

Deric Enis, Barry Corley, Ronnie Smedley, Mike Young, Randy Velarde, Billy Gilliland, Clay Bateman, Ricky Wright, Mark Hewitt, Paul Cox, Scott Collins, Alan Koonce, Tom Morrison, Jay Doehling, Jeff Hicks, Bill Dern, Terry Willis and Michael Williams.

Elcor racked up a 10-2 record in winning its league and the host spot in this year's tourney.

The coaches are Bob Dern and Jerald Koonce along with the manager, Harold Williams.

Members of the TTAB Senior Tournament Committee include Bob Dern, Bill Rigney, Jr., Al Hewitt, Bill Ford, Paul Thorpe, Willis Dubose, Ernie Johnson, Tim Whalen, Frances Williams, Bob Stovall and Bill Bateman.

Besides Elcor, there are the Waco Cen-Tex Sports, Victoria, Sweetwater Tigers, Killeen Furniture Factory Outlet Eagles and the Mineola Bombers in the tourney which winds up on Thursday night.

Dallas' Danny White anxious to start season

Danny White has no illusions about his role

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Danny White has no illusions about his role with the Dallas Cowboys in 1980. He recognizes if the offense fails to click, the blame will be placed squarely on his shoulders.

White has inherited the quarterback job from the legendary Roger Staubach, who retired after 11 highly successful seasons with Dallas.

"But really, I don't believe in all that pressure talk," said White between practice sessions at the Cowboy training camp at California Lutheran College. "If I were to take over at quarterback on a mediocre team, it would be different. In that case the fans and media would be looking for me to turn the situation around."

THE 28-YEAR-OLD product of Arizona State University and the defunct World Football League approaches his new job with the team concept in mind.

"No one man is responsible for the Cowboy season," maintains the quietly confident White, who enjoyed all-star status in college and the NFL. "Certainly, my role as quarterback is most important, but don't forget I will be getting an awful lot of help from everyone on the offensive unit. We will all have to pick up the slack caused by Roger's retirement."

Don't look for much difference in the White-led Cowboys. The offensive concepts remain the same as in the Staubach era.

"We will be doing the same things everyone associates with us," said White. "You don't change a successful system just because one man retires."

Nevertheless, it is difficult to ignore Staubach's statistics. He led the National Football League in passing four times, including both 1978 and 1979. In his final season, Staubach completed 267 passes for 3,586 yards and 27 touchdowns with only 11 interceptions. Under the complicated rating system endorsed by the league, Staubach achieved 92.4 points, best in his career.

MORE IMPORTANTLY, with Staubach at quarterback, the Cowboys missed the playoffs only once, won two Superbowls, four NFC titles and the NFC East six times.

"I have no doubt that Danny will be an effective quarterback for the Cowboys," declared Coach Tom Landry. "He has been preparing for this opportunity for five years. He is ready to take over."

While collecting bench splinters, White was thinking seriously of leaving the Cowboys.

"NOBODY LIKES TO sit on the bench," he said. "But I really didn't want to go to another team. To ask for a trade to me seems like a copout. Nevertheless, the time had come for me to play regularly. If Roger had returned, I may very well have asked for the trade."

White credits his father, Wilford "Whizzer" White, for steering him in the right direction athletically. The elder White was an All-American scabbard at Arizona State in 1950 and later a pro with the Chicago Bears.

"Dad had everything to do with my athletic success," recalls Danny fondly. "He always had the time to play catch or shoot pool. That's where it all started."

Mets topple Astros, 5-3
with big rally in eighth

NEW YORK (AP) — An RBI double by Alex Trevino and a run-scoring single by Frank Taveras highlighted a two-run eighth inning and capped a New York comeback Saturday night, giving the Mets a 5-3 triumph over the Houston Astros.

The Mets, who rallied from a 4-0 deficit for a 5-4 victory in the series opener Friday night, scored two runs in both the seventh and eighth innings to duplicate the feat Saturday.

Trevino's double drove in Steve Henderson and snapped a 3-3 tie. Henderson opened the eighth with a double off Joe Niekro, 11-9.

Joe Sambito relieved Niekro and struck out Mike Jorgensen before Trevino's double delivered Henderson. With two out, Joel Youngblood was walked intentionally and Taveras singled home Trevino.

Neil Allen, 5-6, pitched hitless relief for the final two innings.

The Mets tied it in the seventh with the aid of two passed balls by Alan Ashby. Doug Flynn and pinch-hitter Joel Youngblood singled before a passed ball by Ashby moved the runners to second and third.

Taveras grounded out, then another Niekro pitch got past Ashby and Flynn scored. Maddox then tied it 3-3 with a sacrifice fly.

The Mets scored a run in the third when Flynn singled, took third on Taveras' double and scored Lee Mazzilli's sacrifice fly.

Texas shooting for win
in 43rd Oil Bowl battle

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — While Oklahoma shoots for two in a row, Texas will be scrambling to regain its dominance of Oil Bowl games when the 43rd annual match kicks off here Friday night.

Oklahoma won 14-6 in last year's traditional battle between high school all-stars from north and south of the Red River. But Texas has won 26 of the 34 outings between the two states and Oklahoma only seven. One game ended in a tie.

The bowl game matched teams from different areas of Texas in the first seven years, but in 1945 became an interstate rivalry. Texas and Oklahoma have met in Wichita Falls every year but one since then.

This year, Texas will be led by Waco Richfield's blue chip quarterback Alfred Anderson.

The foursome of Al Boudreaux, Larry Snyder, Ted Ferguson and Dean Strack fired a 64 Saturday for a 128 total and owns the second round lead in championship flight play of Ranchland Hills Country Club's annual Blowout golf tournament.

One shot back are two teams — Jake Broyles, Jerry Staggs, Tim Peden, Bill Holsey; and Wayne Roye, Craig Campbell, C.E. Boyd, Jamie Winkel which blistered the course for a best ball 62.

In first flight, three teams are bunched at 133 — Don Osborne, Pat Weaver, Mike Weaver, Ronny Broadrick; Ken Sewell, Ron Leverich, Graham Mackey, Robert Caudle; and Larry Freeman, Jim Featherston, Alan Williams, Ron Cunningham.

In second flight, O.D. Huckabee, Dub Huckabee, Gerald Burnett, David Burnett set the pace with 136 and two teams were at 137.

In third flight, Dan Brown, Gary Mills, Vince Vius, Tom Perry were at 138 with Mal Donelson, Howard Crenshaw, Pop Kidd, John Boren at 139.

In fourth flight, A.A. Jones, Bob L. Johnson, James H. Walker, Jack Lieber led with 142. Two teams were at 145.

In fifth flight, Jay Davis, Jeff Moses, Jim Underwood, Harold Bethancourt led with 147. The next closest team was at 152.

TEE TIME Unusual golf rules

John Burleson suggested this past weekend that we cover some of the unusual or unclear rules of golf. John's first question was — what all can you do as you take your stance when your ball is beside Mesquite bush or tree...Rule 17-1 decision 52-9 example and decision of the U.S.G.A. are as follows...STANCE: Fairly Taking Stance Defined Question: In match play A's ball comes to rest about 16 inches from a young tree, three or four feet high, some 15 or 20 inches from the green. In taking his stance, A finds it expedient to stand between the ball and the tree — the tree at his rear. Being crowded for space and in order to attain more swinging freedom, he also finds it expedient to press backward against the tree and in consequence, the tree is bent several degrees from its normal position. Opponent B objects to this procedure on the theory that A in shifting backward and bending the tree is acquiring a more favorable stance for himself in an unfair manner, and that is a violation of Rule 17-1 which states in effect that the player may not bend anything growing except to "fairly" take his stance.

In the course of taking a reasonable stance, for example, the player might bend growing objects, such as tall grass, and as a consequence the line of play might be affected. The rule excuses this provided it occurs as an incident in the course of taking the stance.

The player is entitled to take his stance fairly. The word "fairly" should be read in a normal sense. To put it in other words, the player may take a stance which is as reasonable as could be expected in the light of the ball's situation. This is no guarantee that he is to have a perfect stance; if that were so, the rules might permit players to carry axes and sickles to cut down bushes, grass and trees which happened to interfere with a perfect stance.

In short, the quality of the stance is bound to be affected by the general situation and the player must accommodate himself to that general situation. He may not bend and twist it to suit his convenience.

In the circumstances described, A could have taken his stance fairly without bending the young tree. "A" should be considered to have violated Rule 17-1 and to have lost the hole.

REMINDER — The Midland Reporter-Telegram Men's City Golf Championships will be held Aug. 8-9. Entry fee is $20 per man and the deadline for entry in Thursday, Aug. 7 at 6 p.m.

The 5th annual Buffalo Trail Council Boy Scouts Pro-Am will be held on Monday, Aug. 18. The entry fee is $25 and the deadline is Aug. 11. Tee times will be from 8:30 a.m. until 10:30 a.m. and from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The nine-hole division of the Hogan Park Women's Golf Association held a Blind Five event this past Thursday with Jean Connor winning the title and Rosa Lee Neiberger finishing in second place.

Aug. 7 will be Trophy Day for the nine-hole division with the following pairings...Rosa Lee Neiberger, Rosa Lee Cook and Ginny Piette; Jeanne Allen, Dorothy Koons and Peggy Parkins; Mary Davis, Frances Stahl and Leah Sutcliffe; Lois Guthrie, Nancy Cox and Carol Gillette; Joan Dunn, Rosa Legg and Betty Cope; Ruby Pennington, Peggy Mattina and Gerry Fesmire; Wilma Allenson, Dorothy Huchton and Margaret Moore; Jean Connor, Marge Caldwell and Rita Boe; Barbara Larsen, Margaret Rhea, Jane Gill and Betty Williams.

Bad weather halts first exhibition

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Rolf Benirschke of San Diego and Green Bay's Tim Birney missed second-half field goals Saturday before an electrical storm terminated the annual Pro Football Hall of Fame preseason game. The contest ended in a 0-0 tie.

National Football League officials called a halt to play at 6:13 p.m. EDT and called off the game seven minutes after the Chargers and Packers had gone to their dressing rooms.

Benirschke, a four-year veteran from California-Davis, missed his field goal try from 39 yards out with 29 seconds left in the third quarter. The ball hit the left upright and bounced back onto the field.

Birney, a second-year pro from Michigan State, muffed his opportunity from 40 yards out. His attempt sailed wide to the left with 11:41 remaining in the game.

The Packers had driven to the Chargers' 3-yard line before San Diego cornerback Hal Stringer sacked Packers quarterback Bill Troup for a 9-yard loss at the 13.

Earlier in the day, Bob Lilly, Jim Otto, Herb Adderley and David "Deacon" Jones were inducted into the Hall of Fame, bringing its membership to 106.

With rookie Ed Luther quarterbacking, San Diego threatened to pull the game out amid lightning, heavy rain and winds. Luther, from San Jose State, directed the Chargers from their own 44 to the Packers' 25.

San Diego was set to try a field goal attempt when game officials suspended play. A Fawcett Stadium capacity crowd of 19,972, the second largest in the history of the game that traditionally opens the NFL preseason, booed lustily.

San Diego Coach Don Coryell used first-string quarterback Dan Fouts for only the first series of plays. Mike Kirkland and Luther went the rest of the way for the defending AFC West champions.

Green Bay Coach Bart Starr used his regular quarterback, Lynn Dickey, for most of the first half before calling on second-stringer David Whitethurst and Troup.

Seales captures easy unanimous boxing win

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Middleweight Sugar Ray Seales of Tacoma, Wash., pushed his professional boxing record to 55-6-4 on Saturday with a 10-round decision over Jamie Thomas of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Light-heavyweight Michael Spinks, brother of former heavyweight champion Leon Spinks, faced Dave Conthe in the main event of the evening.

Seales put Thomas on the mat in the fourth and 10th rounds and staggered him with hard left hooks several times during the bout.

Thomas was aggressive, though wild, and managed to swell Seales' right eye and bloody his mouth.

Thomas, 25-6, weighed in at 166 while Seales fought at 161.

Armstrong knocks out Flores in first round

DETROIT (AP) — Davey Armstrong of Detroit knocked out Miguel Flores of Mexico at 1:43 of the first round of a scheduled six-round lightweight bout Saturday night at the Joe Louis Arena.

Armstrong pressed the attack from the opening bell and landed three rights to Flores' head followed by a right-left-right combination that put the Mexican away.

Vikings leave

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — Jimmy Edwards, who ranked second in the NFL in kickoff returns last year, and defensive tackle Ken Novak left the Minnesota Vikings training camp Saturday.

The two reportedly told Coach Bud Grant they were retiring.

Edwards, 28, joined the club last year. He returned 44 kickoffs for a 25.1-yard average, tops in the NFC.

Orioles topple Twins behind Dauer's timely hitting

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rich Dauer drove in two runs as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins 9-2 Saturday night for their ninth victory in the last 11 games.

A throwing error by Minnesota first baseman Ron Jackson led to three unearned runs during a four-run Baltimore sixth, with the last two scoring when left fielder Hosken Powell dropped Ken Singleton's two-out fly ball.

The Orioles also scored on a wild pitch behind Fernando Arroyo, 2-4, a balk by John Verhoeven and a foul sacrifice fly by Doug DeCinces when the throw from Powell struck Pat Kelly on the helmet as he raced toward the plate.

Scott McGregor, 12-5, pitched a seven-hitter and beat the Twins for the sixth consecutive time. He has won 11 of his last 14 decisions, including three in a row.

Sai Butera singled to open the Minnesota third and continued to third base when the ball got past right fielder Singleton for a two-base error and scored on Ken Landreaux's grounder.

Singles by Rick Sefeld and Butera plus a double play grounder by Roy Smalley produced a Minnesota run in the fifth. After that, McGregor allowed only one more hit.

Mark Belanger contributed three hits to Baltimore's 10-hit attack as his average climbed above the .200 mark for the first time since May 11.

Reds trip Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike LaCoss pitched a seven-hitter and outdueled Steve Carlton Saturday night while Ray Knight and Dan Driessen collected run-scoring singles to give the Cincinnati Reds a 2-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Carlton, 16-6, struck out 10, walked five and gave up seven hits in eight innings.

Hector Cruz led off the seventh with a single to left. After LaCoss popped out while trying to sacrifice, Dave Collins walked. Then Knight hit a sharp grounder behind second on which shortstop Ramon Aviles made a diving stop. But Cruz, running all the way, scored when Aviles was slow getting the ball to second baseman Manny Trillo for the relay home.

Dave Concepcion tripled and scored in the eighth on Driessen's single for the other Cincinnati run.

Kenty takes victory

DETROIT (AP) — Hilmer Kenty of Detroit successfully defended his World Boxing Association lightweight title Saturday night, stopping Korean challenger Young Ho Oh at 2:15 of the ninth round at the Joe Louis Arena.

Kenty, who had a 6-inch height advantage and a 5 1/2-inch reach over Oh, pressed the fight from the opening bell.

The champion stung Oh repeatedly with lightning quick left hands and easily out-pointed the challenger in the opening three rounds.

Expos top Braves, 5-1

MONTREAL (AP) — Ellis Valentine collected three hits, including a two-run first-inning homer, and Fred Norman scattered six hits as the Montreal Expos defeated the Atlanta Braves 5-1 Saturday night for their fifth consecutive victory.

Norman, 2-1, making only his second start of the season, did not allow a runner past second base until pinch hitter Bill Nahorodny and Jerry Royster cracked consecutive doubles to account for the Braves' run in the eighth. Norman walked one and struck out five.

After Ron LeFlore grounded out leading off the Montreal first, Rodney Scott tripled off the right field fence off Doyle Alexander, 9-6, and one out later Valentine smashed his 10th homer far beyond the left field fence.

The Expos got another run after loading the bases with none out in the third. Andre Dawson legged out an infield single, extending his hitting streak to 17 games, two short of the club record. He went to third on Valentine's double and, after after a walk to Warren Cromartie, Gary Carter got his 77th RBI with a sacrifice fly.

The Expos made it 4-0 in the fourth when LeFlore belted a pitch from Alexander 15 rows into the left field bleachers for his third homer.

LeFlore scored the Expos' final run in the sixth after drawing a walk and stealing his 64th base. He went to third on Scott's infield hit and came home on Dawson's grounder.

Unser wins pole slot

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Al Unser won the pole position Saturday in a rain-shortened qualifying session for today's Watkins Glen 150-mile race for Indianapolis championship-type cars.

Rain washed out the time allocated in the afternoon for the normal trials, cutting the qualifying session from one hour, 50 minutes to only 20 minutes.

Unser turned his pole-winning lap in the final minutes of the session, finishing in 1:06.085, 132.266 miles per hour on the 2.43-mile Watkins Glen Grand Prix "short" circuit.

Pryor scores knockout victory over Cervantes

CINCINNATI (AP) — Aaron Pryor knocked out titleholder Antonio Cervantes at 2:47 of the fourth round Saturday to capture the World Boxing Association's junior welterweight championship.

Pryor, 24, fighting before a noisy hometown crowd, was trailing on the cards of the two ringside judges when he nailed Cervantes in the champion's corner and put him away.

Pryor again pressed the action and one minute into the third round opened a one-inch gash over Cervantes' right eye.

As the fourth round started, Pryor took Cervantes into the champion's corner and delivered a flurry of blows that gave him the WBA championship.

Pryor is now unbeaten in 25 professional fights. It was Cervantes' 99th bout, and 19th title defense. His record is 86-10-3.

At Saturday morning's weigh-in, Pryor weighed 138 1/4 while Cervantes was 139 1/4 and had a four-inch height and reach advantage over the challenger.

The bout was televised nationally by CBS-TV, but blacked out in a 100-mile radius of Cincinnati.

In a preliminary bout, Tony Tubbs of Cincinnati, 2-0, knocked out Jerry Hunter of Louisville, Ky., 0-2-1 in :54 in the fourth round. Tubbs is a former national AAU and World Cup Champion.

Mike Blunt of Dayton, 11-2, scored a third round knockout over Johnny Copeland, 32-38, of Fort Worth, Texas, in their welterweight bout.

Jeff McCracken of Akron, 4-1, knocked out J.W. Stewart, in the second round of their middleweight bout.

Mike Schiebelhood, 9-1, of Akron, scored a unanimous six-round decision in his heavyweight bout with Baker Tinsley, 10-13, of Louisville, Ky.

In the final preliminary bout, featherweight Daniel Avery, 2-0, of Cambridge, Mass., won a unanimous four round decision over Benny Silva, 2-4 of Mexico.

Holton handcuffs Cubs as Dodgers win, 5-3

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio's Brian Holton handcuffed the Midland Cubs Saturday night, going the distance while allowing seven hits and lading the Dodgers to a 5-3 Texas League victory.

Gary Krug collected two hits to pace Midland, which scored one run in the second and two in the sixth.

But it wasn't enough to make up for the pitching of Midland's Henry Mack. Mack was shelled for all the Dodgers runs in the first three innings.

Vinnie Valentini pitched five scoreless innings of relief work for the Bruins, but Holton proved too much.

Jim Marshall, the Dodgers talented pitcher, pitched to one batter in the sixth and seventh innings and the Yankees capitalized on all of them to score five unearned runs.

Eric Soderholm lined a two-run single and scored the go-ahead run on a double by Rick Cerone in a four-run sixth as the Yankees rallied for a 5-3 victory.

Rudy May, 8-5, and Rich Gossage, who relieved in the seventh, scattered eight Milwaukee hits as the Yankees charged from a 3-0 deficit to retain their 7 1/2 game lead over second-place Baltimore in the American League East.

The Brewers, in their worst slump in the 2 1/2 year managerial reign of George Bamberger, fell 11 games behind with their fourth defeat in a row and sixth in their last seven games.

Yankees down Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The New York Yankees weren't overpowering Saturday night, but they didn't have to be.

The Milwaukee Brewers helped by committing four errors in the sixth and seventh innings and the Yankees capitalized on all of them to score five unearned runs.

Eric Soderholm lined a two-run single and scored the go-ahead run on a double by Rick Cerone in a four-run sixth as the Yankees rallied for a 5-3 victory.

Rudy May, 8-5, and Rich Gossage, who relieved in the seventh, scattered eight Milwaukee hits as the Yankees charged from a 3-0 deficit to retain their 7 1/2 game lead over second-place Baltimore in the American League East.

Conner in Philly lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Conner, hardly a household name on the pro golf tour, took a one-stroke lead after 54 holes of the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic by firing a 5-under par 66 in Saturday's third round for an 11 under par 202 total.

Howard Twitty, who led for the first two rounds, had his game fall apart in the third round, posting seven bogeys. He shot a 77 in the round and virtually dropped out of contention with a 207 total.

Twitty had previous rounds of 64 and 66 in this tournament and for the past 3 1/2 weeks had been the hottest player in golf.

He won last Sunday at Hartford, and had played in the 60s 13 of 14 rounds, was 57 under par for his previous 158 holes, and hadn't lost a stroke to par in 36 holes.

Conner, 34, a self-styled golf hustler in the mold of his friend and tutor, Lee Trevino, with his rounds of 70-66-66, had a one-stroke lead over defending champion Lou Graham, and Tom Kite and John Cook.

Graham, playing for the first time since June 22 because of a bad back, had his second consecutive 69 Saturday; Kite, the one-time University of Texas phenom, fired a 65; and Cook, the only rookie in contention, shot a 66, for their 203s.

Another stroke back are Ben Crenshaw, who has been second seven times in the last 12 months; David Graham, the transplanted Australian; and Jack Renner, a one-time tour winner from San Diego.

Crenshaw shot a 69 Saturday, and Renner a 71. Conner, who was born in Vienna, Austria, where his father was an Army man, actually started his athletic career as a tennis pro but turned to golf because he felt there was more money to be won.

His best since qualifying for the tour in 1974 was a second at New Orleans last year, sharpened his skills in Asian events and mini tournaments in this country.

Conner, who admitted that he loved playing golf, even practice rounds, as long as there was a dollar at stake, came on Saturday with four straight birdies starting at the sixth hole. He canned putts of an inch, 15 feet twice and four feet.

On the back nine, Conner matched par until 14, when he rolled in a three-footer after a sand wedge and holed a four-footer at 16.

Fin & Feather

It seems like we should be talking about fishing, but fishing is slow on these hot, dry days, so until it picks up, we'll hopefully get prepared for the hunting seasons.

Look before you lease—It happens every year. Some unsuspecting or first-time hunters look for a deer hunting lease, see something that looks like a good deal and pay their money, but may never see a single deer on the property. It's a scenario that occurs to a surprising number of Texans every year, partly because of the shortage of hunting leases.

Really prime leases are scarce, although it is easy to get on the fringe area. Some fringes have good deer populations, others marginal and some never have any. Investigate the property thoroughly. If possible, walk the lease and look for evidence of deer and adequate food.

Ask why the lease is available. Often it is because the previous lessee was dissatisfied and found something better. If the turnover is 100 per cent from year-to-year, be wary.

There is no way to guarantee a good lease. Many factors, such as the acorn supply, are influential and some vary as much as 50 per cent in a year.

In addition to inspection, check the landowner's references and talk to previous people who have had leases.

For hunters who don't know of leases or where to find a good one, talk to friends and try to locate a group that needs an extra hunter. Or place an ad in the newspaper classified section in areas where a lease is sought. The ad should state whether the hunter prefers a year-round lease or one limited to deer season. It should also mention whether there is an interest in obtaining doe permits. In some areas, chambers of commerce provide lists of landowners who accommodate hunters.

Contracts important—A hunter should not assume he can hunt the same place he hunted the year before without a written lease. A hunting lease, simply defined, is an agreement between a landowner and hunter whereby the right to hunt under certain conditions on a specified piece of property is granted for a certain time and fee.

There are four types of agreements: year-round, limited duration, day hunting and guided hunt for a few days.

Year round leases usually include privileges on all species and are made by a group of hunters.

Day hunting accommodates large numbers of hunters unable to devote extensive time to the sport and is most common in areas which can stand high hunting pressure. Guided hunts are usually specialized ones for big game, but also include other species.

For mutual protection of owners and hunters, a written agreement spells out the conditions and prevents misunderstandings. It should state what is leased, the name and address of the landowner or his authorized agent and include a description of the tract, size and boundaries, and maps are helpful.

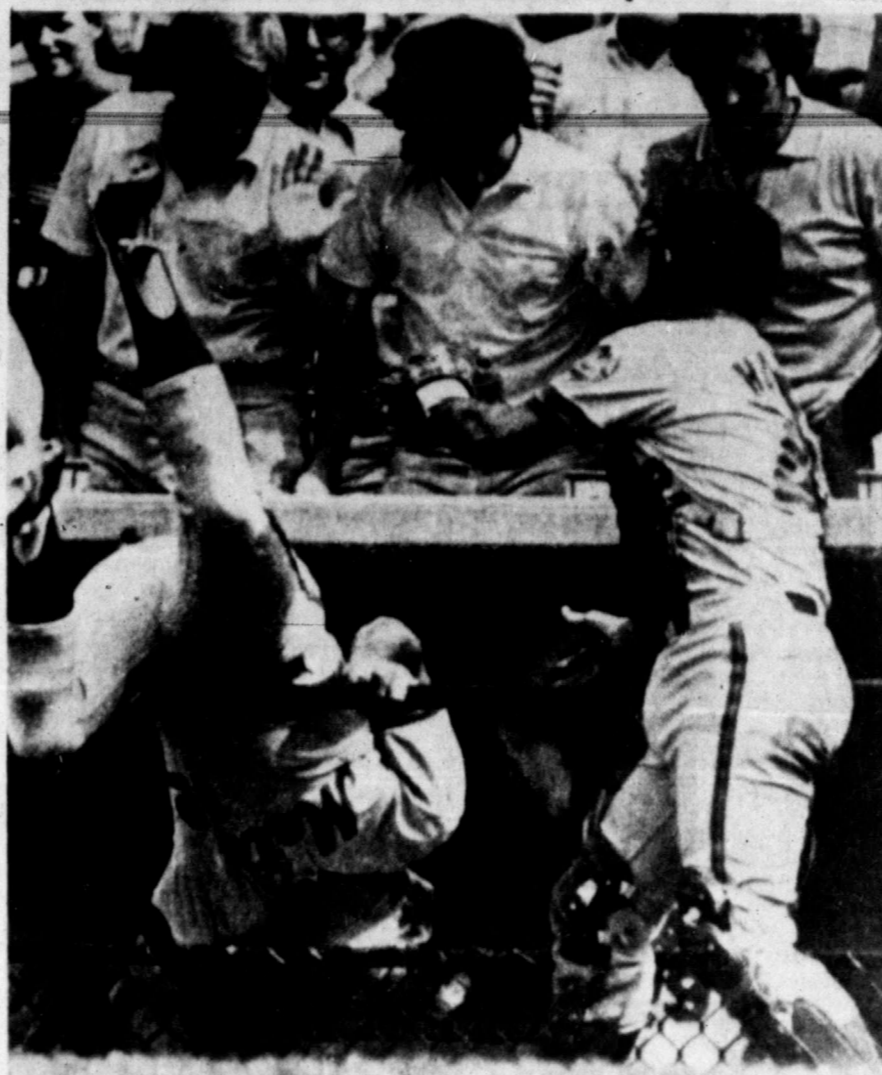

It should also cover payments, terms and deadlines. The contract should specify in detail how many hunters will be allowed on the property and in some cases the hunters' names. The owner may wish to reserve hunting privileges for his family and friends and this should be covered in the agreement.

If the land is limited to certain species or if the bag is restricted to less than that of current laws, be sure it's spelled out. The document should cover any game reports required by the landowner.

In some instances, the landowner may furnish extras like cabins, electricity, water, vehicles, blinds, guides or other services. This should be in the contract along with special privileges such as fishing, picnicking or visiting with nonhunters.

The final paragraph should outline the procedures for amending the contract after it has been signed. A written lease when properly acknowledged can be recorded in county records and is binding on the landowner should he decide to sell his property.

For information concerning the proper legal form contact an attorney. The fee charged will be worth the hours of enjoyable hunting. To carry protection a step further, an agreement should be made with other hunters on the lease. This need not be a document, but it should set rules and guidelines for the safety of the group and conservation of wildlife.

Couture grabs first round lead in Quad Cities Open Bowling meet

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Pete Couture averaged 242 for his first six games Saturday afternoon to grab the first round lead by 12 pins in the $85,000 Quad Cities Open on the Professional Bowlers Association tour.

Couture of Windsor Locks, Conn., bowled 1,448 overall, highlighted by back-to-back games of 278 midway through the round. Couture's two-game spurt was nearly matched by second-place Greg Shields, a rookie from Kansas City, Mo., who bowled successive games of 277 enroute to a 1,436 total.

Another rookie, Ed Wallace of Tulare, Calif., is third with 1,431 followed by Dave Beckmann of Bellevue, Wash., with 1,422 and Mal Acosta of Hayward, Calif., with 1,409.

Couture has two PBA championships, the latest coming in the PBA Doubles Classic two months ago with partner Tommy Hudson of Akron, Ohio.

Couture, 35, currently ranks 17th on the PBA's 1980 money standings with $33,696.

Two more rounds of qualifying remained for the 180-bowler field before the cut is made to the top 24 for match play. After three more sessions and 42 games in all, the leading five bowlers will be seeded into the finals Tuesday where the winner will receive $10,000.

San Francisco downs Chicago

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Run-scoring singles by Rennie Stennett and Terry Whitfield and a two-run double by rookie Joe Pettini sparked a four-run seventh-inning rally that lifted the San Francisco Giants to an 8-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Trailing 5-2, the Giants started their comeback with two runs in the sixth on a two-out single by Mike Sadek, Whitfield's ground-rule double and a two-run single by Billy

North. A one-out walk by pinch-hitter Roger Metzger off loser Dick Tidrow, 2-2, started the Giants' winning rally in

Austin nabs win over Margolin

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tracy Austin overpowered Stacy Margolin 6-0, 6-1 and Wendy Turnbull beat Ann Kiyomura 6-0, 6-3 in Saturday's semifinal matches of a $100,000 women's tennis tournament at the San Diego Sports Arena.

Austin, the top-ranked female player in the world, continued to breeze through the tournament. Austin, 17, of Rolling Hills, Calif., who topped $1-million-in-career earnings earlier in the week, extended her streak of consecutive games won to 29 when she took the first 11 off Margolin, 21, of Beverly Hills, Calif.

the seventh. Metzger took third on Mike Ivie's single and scored on Stennett's base hit to produce a 5-5 tie and the Giants went ahead on Whitfield's two-out single.

North was walked intentionally to load the bases and Pettini, who had four hits, grounded a two-run double to left off the glove of third baseman Lenny Randle.

Jack Clark's two-run homer, his 20th, gave the Giants a 2-0 lead in the first. Steve Dillard belted a two-run homer in the third and a two-run triple in the sixth as the Cubs took a 5-2 lead off Vida Blue, who was making his first appearance since June 27. Tom Griffin, 3-1, was the winner in relief and Greg Minton earned his 10th save.

U.S. swimmers better than those in Moscow

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Six of the eight qualifiers Saturday for the finals in the men's 100-meter butterfly at the United States Swimming Championships bettered the gold medal winning time of the 1980 Olympics.

Par Arvidsson of Sweden, who attends the University of California, swam 54.92 at the Olympics.

In the qualifying at the Heritage Park Aquatic Complex, American record holder Joe Bottom led the list with 54.54.

Following the American record holder from Walnut Creek were Jim Halliburton, Cincinnati, 54.62; Steve Smith, Gainesville, Fla., 54.77; Joe's brother, Mike, from Santa Ana Calif., 54.83, Matt Gribble, Florida high school champ from Miami, 54.85; and Bill Paulus, Austin, Tex., 54.90.

Joe Bottom, 25, a University of Southern California graduate who won a silver medal at the 1976 Olympics, will be swimming in the finals Saturday night with Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan in the audience.

Reagan was scheduled to present trophies to the winners of both the men's and women's butterfly event and give a short talk.

Joe seemed more interested that his brother reached the finals, saying, "I'm really pleased."

When the United States boycotted the Olympic Games in Moscow because of Russia's intervention in Afghanistan, these championships took on added importance. One group of winners will earn a trip to China and other top finishers will compete in Hawaii.

Mary T. Meagher, the 15-year-old world record holder from Cincinnati, qualified third for the finals in the women's 100 butterfly but was unperformed. Already having lowered her world record in the 200, she said this time:

"I didn't go for a record. I didn't do anything spectacular, I just went out to swim."

Had the United States men and women, most of them teenagers, swum the times at Moscow that they have here, they would have won 8 golds, 11 silvers and 4 bronze.

One of the most amazing silver medal breaking times came in the men's 800-meter freestyle relay where the Florida Aquatic team of Gainesville, Fla., lowered its meet record to 7:26.67. At Moscow, the Russians won in 7:23.50 but East Germany took the silver in 7:28.60.

So a U.S. club team, with only two swimmers who would have been on the national team, bettered the time of a strong swimming nation's best. On the Florida quartet were Rowdy Gaines, David Larson, Steve Wood and Bill Forrester.

Gaines and Forrester both are on the honorary U.S. Olympic team off their performances here.

Spinks undefeated

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Light-heavyweight Michael Spinks, brother of former heavyweight champion Leon Spinks, pushed his professional boxing record to 13-0 Saturday, stopping European fighter Dave Conteh in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the Baton Rouge Centreplex.

The fight was stopped after the 1976 Olympic gold medal winner from St. Louis, Mo., sent Conteh to the mat with a left-right-left combination. Conteh got to his feet but Spinks continued to punch the stubborn fighter at will.

Spinks, at 177, had a height and reach advantage over the shorter, stockier Conteh, 185. Conteh was a tough opponent, however, and pressed the fight throughout the match despite Spinks' stinging left jab.

California in 5-4 win

TORONTO (AP) — Bob Clark's two-run single in the eighth inning gave the California Angels a 5-4 comeback victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Saturday as Dave LaRoche pitched the first complete game of his 11-year major league career.

LaRoche, 2-2, a long-time reliever making a rare start, scattered five hits, struck out nine and walked three. Until Saturday, the most innings worked by LaRoche in a starting performance was 5 2-3 innings for the Chicago Cubs against the New York Mets in 1974.

Saints top Miami in scrimmage

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rookie quarterback Steve Ensminger passed for one touchdown and ran for another to lead the New Orleans Saints to a 24-21 victory over the Miami Dolphins in a full-roster, two-field controlled scrimmage of National Football League teams Saturday.

Kicker Russell Erklebent booted a 24-yard field goal to provide the margin of victory for the Saints, and rookie Jimmy Rogers of Oklahoma scored on a 5-yard run for New Orleans.

Miami's scores came on a 28-yard pass from quarterback Don Stock to wide receiver Duriel Harris, and two touchdowns engineered by Ensminger's LSU teammate quarterback David Woodley.

Woodley hit wide receiver Elmer Bailey with a 2-yard pass for one touchdown and handed the ball off for a 2-yard touchdown run by Nick Giaminto.

Area near fed's speed standard

By KAY CRITES
Staff Writer

Midland, and its surrounding counties, are almost within grasping distance of the required 40 percent compliance with the 55 mph speed limit required by the federal government.

The Department of Public Safety Midland district, consisting of 24 counties in southwest Texas, has 33 percent compliance, according to a survey conducted in April and June.

The average speed of all the cars measured was 56.9. Close, but not close enough for the feds. There's no such word as "leeway" as far as the federal government is concerned.

The State of Texas must have 40 percent of its driving population driving at 55 mph by September or lose millions of dollars in federal aid.

Capt. B.F. Wade, deputy commander of the Midland Highway Patrol district, believes there's a good chance of making the deadline. Texas came close last year with slightly more than 29 percent compliance in an effort to reach the necessary 30 percent. Discussions are continuing as to whether the state should be penalized or "sanctioned" for the missing tenths of a percent.

Wade pointed out that, according to a February speed survey, only 17 percent of drivers in the Midland district were complying with the speed limit. In only a few months, that figure has risen to 33 percent — only 7 percent away from the magic number.

"I think we'll make it because the people realize that we have to have this compliance or we're going to be sanctioned, and that's you and me paying tax dollars. Eight million dollars (not a true figure) out of the Highway Department funds has to come from somewhere."

Capt. Wade, however, has been rather pleased with the latest survey results, even though the average is over the 55 mph limit.

"I feel pretty good in the Midland district because we have more of an opportunity out here to run faster because of our wide open roads, less troopers scattered through West Texas, long, straight stretches of road and less traffic."

"We may not have gained compliance with the 55 mph speed limit like the federal government requires, but we have cut speeds down and reduced the severity of the accidents."

The number of injuries in accidents so far this year compared to the same time last year is lower by 52. Last year, at this time, there were 860 accident-related injuries. So far this year there have been 808. The number of fatal accidents also is down, although there have been more deaths this year. Last year for the first seven months there were 50 fatal accidents with 59 deaths, compared to 48 accidents this year and 60 deaths.

The DPS has been using a multitude of tactics to gain either voluntary or non-voluntary compliance with the speed limit. In February, Col. James D. Adams, director of the DPS, authorized the use of unmarked cars in the battle against the "professional speeder," although Capt. Wade says unmarked cars will only stop vehicles when the officer in the car is in full uniform and the unmarked car is being used in daylight hours. Otherwise, unmarked cars will be used in conjunction with marked black and white patrol units.

"It's an on-going emphasis program," he said of the various tactics employed to stop speeders, "but there will be constant changes in the type of operations because as the motoring population acquaints itself with our type of operation then we must change it to be effective."

"It's a game. For instance, radar came along and then Fuzzbusters (radar detectors) came along. We got kill switches on the radar and then CBs came along."

"But we must get control of our traffic because the lower compliance by this September, the more you must overcome by the next year." The federal government is expected to require 50 percent compliance in 1981.

Study to check on air quality inside the home

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Winterize your home! Zip it up so tight that next to none of the warmth produced by precious petroleum can escape. That's been the word since the price of oil skyrocketed.

Now, New York is trying to find out if some homeowners have plugged up their abodes so well that the air inside becomes a health hazard. The answer will cost $313,000.

The problem, some authorities say, is that tight houses, while locking in hot air, also trap cigarette smoke, dust from ceilings and insulation, germs and foul odors from last week's fried trout.

"We suspect that if the EPA (the Environmental Protection Agency) was monitoring some of the homes like it does the air outside it'd be going after them (for violations) too," said Arthur Melville of the Rochester Gas & Electric Co.

The utility and the state Energy Research and Development Authority thought up the study, which is being done on 60 Rochester area homes by University of California researchers. The U.S. Department of Energy is picking up most of the cost.

The plan is to test the "air infiltration" capabilities of the homes, all built within the last 10 years. Using fans, researchers will record the pressure in the homes. Then "tracer" gases will be injected into the homes to find leaks. So far, Melville said, about 25 homes have undergone the first phase of the study, which he said is the largest of its kind ever conducted.

In older homes, Melville said researchers expect to find infiltration wasting energy by replacing the air supply in a home as many as two or three times an hour.

But in newer homes, Melville said researchers might find an air exchange only once every five hours or longer.

He said the study might prompt a recommendation that owners of "tight" houses install a so-called "air-to-air heat exchanger" which allows fresh air entering a house to be warmed by outgoing air.

But Melville said it's doubtful any homes, except those built with a sharp eye for energy savings, would be excessively stuffy. He said condensation on windows and lingering aromas are warning signs that a house might be too tight.

"I just don't know what we'll find," Melville said, adding: "But we already have two or three different solutions to the problem. That is, if there is a problem."

Clean-up continues after major spill

SHELL BEACH, La. (AP) — The Coast Guard reported slow but steady progress Saturday in the cleanup of a major PCP spill caused by a ship collision in a Mississippi River shipping channel.

The Coast Guard on Saturday closed one access to the Mississippi River Gulf Outlet — site of the ship collision 11 days ago — to prevent the PCP from reaching rich seafood-producing waters nearby.

CAN YOU MANAGE A FUTURE ON $1500+/MONTH?

That's your starting salary as manager of a prestigious VIDEO CONCEPTS Store. You'll also earn commissions and bonuses plus full company benefits when you join our management team.

VIDEO CONCEPTS Stores are being brought to the "best" malls in every major retail market in the U.S. The stores themselves are specially created to make shopping for sophisticated electronics highly appealing.

You can be a leader in the business of home electronics. Your line of high technology products will include large screen televisions, home home electronics, video games, video tape recorders, calculators and other home electronics. These are the home entertainment products of the next decade. You'll manage a high quality store in the first nationally recognized chain.

We'll start you with management training at our Colorado headquarters. You'll immediately enjoy full corporate support and benefits, yet have enough flexibility to manage your VIDEO CONCEPTS Store.

WOULDN'T YOU REALLY RATHER HAVE A BUICK?

SKYLARK
Regal
Century

Why you would want a Buick.
1. We presently have the largest inventory we have had all year.
2. Prices will never be lower, and the 1981 models will be higher.
3. You can have Buick's quality for as low as "the low price 3".
4. Buick has excellent EPA ratings. Our Skylark has 24 city and 38 hwy.
5. We have the largest selection of V6's available on the American Market.
6. We offer a full service dealership on what we sell, there is no long waiting for service.

Now Ramcon has it in Midland

Nothing Down V.A. $2,450 Down F.H.A., I
$678 Total Monthly $631 Total Monthly

Midland schools, with the Elementary just blocks away, have greatly contributed to the success of the already popular Wilshire Park neighborhood. Because of the recent passage of important federal housing legislation, RAMCON can now offer the new FHA "MINI"-PAYMENTS which lowers dramatically the monthly payment. Scores of homeowners are buying the RAMCON FHA "MINI"-PAYMENT way right now. Our record-breaking sales in the past year are dramatic proof that TOP QUALITY at an affordable monthly payment is what informed buyers demand.

He flies a 'plastic' plane

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Jerry Dietrick flies "plastic airplanes" and reckons that there are none better for the money. "This thing is engineered right down to a gnat's whiskers," said Dietrick, as he was flying the single-engine, Midland-bred Windecker Eagle at 200 mph across the West Texas sky. "I've got 7,000 hours (piloting) and half of them in plastic airplanes."

Even when it's not airborne, the aircraft appears to be breezily clipping through the unseen air; it's that sleek, that aerodynamically graceful and innovative.

Unlike other business aircraft of today, Dietrick's Windecker Eagle was formed from molded fiberglass, which gives the aircraft its innate structural strength and integrity, and was bonded with epoxy resin. The wing has re-inforcing spars but no ribs. The fuselage is a hull, except for the cockpit and engine compartment; the aircraft strength is in its skin.

Though the business craft is not certified for aerobatics, it has the ability to withstand a force of 6.6-plus Gs and 2.6-minus Gs. The aircraft has withstood 8.1-Gs in stress tests.

DIETRICK, a former World War II pilot who flew photo-reconnaissance missions in the Lockheed P-38 Lightning — the Fork-Tail Devil — has paced the Eagle through stressful maneuvers. And, for Dietrick says, it's less breakable and not as nearly fragile as comparable aircraft made with aluminum — the primary material used today in aircraft manufacturing. "There's no corrosion and far less fatigue in fiberglass than in aluminum," Dietrick said earlier, just after he had landed the low-wing aircraft with the tri-cycle under-carriage at Midland Air Park. "It's a whole damn new way of building airplanes."

In his eight years of flying and promoting the Eagle, Dietrick has found the flying machine faultless. But the plane does have at least one disadvantage, which Dietrick is trying to overcome: It's a matter of image.

"THE PRINCIPAL disadvantage is getting the advantages across to the public," the veteran pilot said, as he was midway in a cross-country trip to promote the Windecker and to attract buyers. "That's the only disadvantage I've seen so far."

Dietrick is so impressed with the strength, durability and lightness of fiberglass in business aircraft that he foresees it as the material of the future in aviation.

"It's hard," he conceded, though, "to get people to understand that the ideal way to build airplanes is with fiberglass." In the main, aircraft manufacturers have long since put aside spruce, fiber and wire in aircraft construction and for decades have opted for aluminum. Dietrick is banking on all that changing. So have others, such as Piper and Wassner, but both earlier efforts foundered. Dietrick is a die-hard.

His commitment to fiberglass began about 1973, when he sought out Dr. Leo Windecker, a Midland aircraft designer who picked up his engineering background in dentistry rather than in aerodynamic engineering. Dentistry, after all, is half engineering and half medicine.

DR. WINDECKER and his wife, Dr. Fairfax Windecker, flung themselves headlong into fiberglass-reinforced designed aircraft in 1958. Their premise was as basic as the relative lightness and strength of the human skeletal structure, including teeth. Dr. Leo Windecker specialized in dentistry; his wife's specialty was prosthodontics.

The Windeckers had built a successful dentistry practice in Houston and decided to do something challenging and worthwhile as an investment. They lit into aviation.

In 1967, Dr. Windecker formed Windecker Research Inc. in Midland and with the aid of investors, his Eagle got into limited production.

The prototype, the Windecker Eagle X-7, flew on Oct. 7, 1967, under the power of a 290 hp Lycoming engine; it had fixed gear. But in 1968, X-7 was removed from service and was parked in full exposure of the elements in order to monitor the degree of "enhanced strength" which aging would do to the composite material, which Windecker had patented under the name "Fibaloxy." Today, the retired aircraft is parked at Austin in full exposure of the elements. Dietrick has concluded that aging strengthens the composite material.

The second prototype, AC-7, equipped with retractable gear, was undergoing Federal Aviation Administration's type certification process but was destroyed while in spinning test on April 19, 1969; the test pilot, Bill Robinson, parachuted to safety.

The third prototype first flew on Sept. 29, 1969, under went strenuous FAA testing and was type certified in December 1969.

PRODUCTION OF THE Windecker Eagle I, backed by Midland investors, started in 1970.

"The attraction of the Eagle," reported Air-Britain Digest magazine, "was its high performance, attractive lines and structural integrity." The aircraft in 1970 was priced at $41,500 and was competitive with such other luxury-business aircraft as the Beechcraft Bonanza, Mooney Mark, Bellanca Viking, Rockwell Commander, and luxury Cessna and Piper business aircraft. Five production Eagles were produced and sold in the early 1970s.

But late in 1970, Windecker Research started to stall. Backers could no longer support the company, which already had sunk some $7 million into Eagle research and development. Investors had vain hope for a return on their investment. The nation was in an economic slump.

The Eagle had hit Dead Pan Alley.

Then along came Dietrick, a businessman-engineer out of Kentucky. He was looking for a replacement for his Mooney and for a business aircraft that would afford speed, dependability, heavy payload, more room and comfort.

He discovered those qualities in the Eagle, did some serious dickering with Windecker Research and acquired Windecker assets, blueprints and, most importantly, the expertise of Windecker's chief engineer, George A. Alther of Midland, and the counsel of Leo and Fairfax Windecker.

Essentially, Dietrick bought rights to the Windecker Eagle on the courthouse steps. He bought it for the debts.

Now, with blueprints, the Dow Chemical Co. fiberglass formula, molds and Windecker Eagle expertise in hand, the 55-year-old Dietrick is looking for about 250 buyers of the Eagle, which now is priced in excess of $100,000; he is requiring $10,000 down. The Eagle is to be manufactured somewhere in the Southwest, possibly in Midland, by Dietrick's Composition Aircraft Corp. Production is planned for early in the 1980s.

Dietrick's chief engineer, Alther, said the Windeckers are vital to the development of the Eagle. All are pilots.

"THEY'VE GOT SO much knowledge in their heads as far as the chemistry of the airplane...that they're a vital part of this airplane," Alther said of the Windeckers.

Alther said the especially-developed fiberglass used in building the aircraft is continuous stranded "for high strength" and that epoxy resin chemically bonds the composite material. "There was extensive use of novel and ingenious construction techniques developed by the Windeckers."

The Eagle is aimed toward the business market. "Cost is secondary to what the airplane can do," Alther said. What's important to the businessman-pilot is "what the airplane can do for him as a business tool."

Veteran pilot Jack Morgan of San Angelo said he was extremely impressed with the Windecker Eagle.

"IT'S A FANTASTIC little airplane," Morgan said between flights of the Eagle. "It's solid. It's stable. It's one of the most honest airplanes I've ever flown. You have good control throughout all phases of flight."

To demonstrate the worth of the Windecker to the world of aviation, Dietrick twice flew the Eagle across the Atlantic Ocean and set five records.

This year, he flew the Eagle non-stop from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Munich, West Germany, in 24 hours and 26 minutes at an average speed of 189 mph. His speed from New York to Munich was 191 mph, which broke the previous record of 156.51 mph.

In 1979, he piloted the same aircraft the 4,168 miles from New York to Paris in 21 hours and 58 minutes at a speed of 194.31 mph. The previous record for aircraft weighing between 3,800 and 6,600 pounds was set in 1967 by an American piloting a Beechcraft Bonanza, which averaged 181 mph. The records were certified by Federation International D'Aviation. Charles A. Lindbergh in 1927 made the world's first nonstop solo flight from New York to Paris' LeBourget Field in his famed Spirit of St. Louis.

Dietrick's aim in both transoceanic flights was to prove his contention that fiberglass airplanes are topflight.

"WHEN YOU'RE FLYING, you're just in a whole different world," Dietrick had said after he had landed at LeBourget Field for the 1979 international air show. "You can just sit there and seriously think out problems. I make some of my best business decisions up in the air."

The Eagle which recently flew to Midland in Dietrick's cross-country trip was the same aircraft in which he twice flew solo over the Atlantic Ocean. It's equipped with sophisticated navigational gear.

Dietrick, who owns two Eagles and leases a third, also owns a water-filtration equipment plant at Florence, Ky. He has found the airplane to be essential in his business operation.

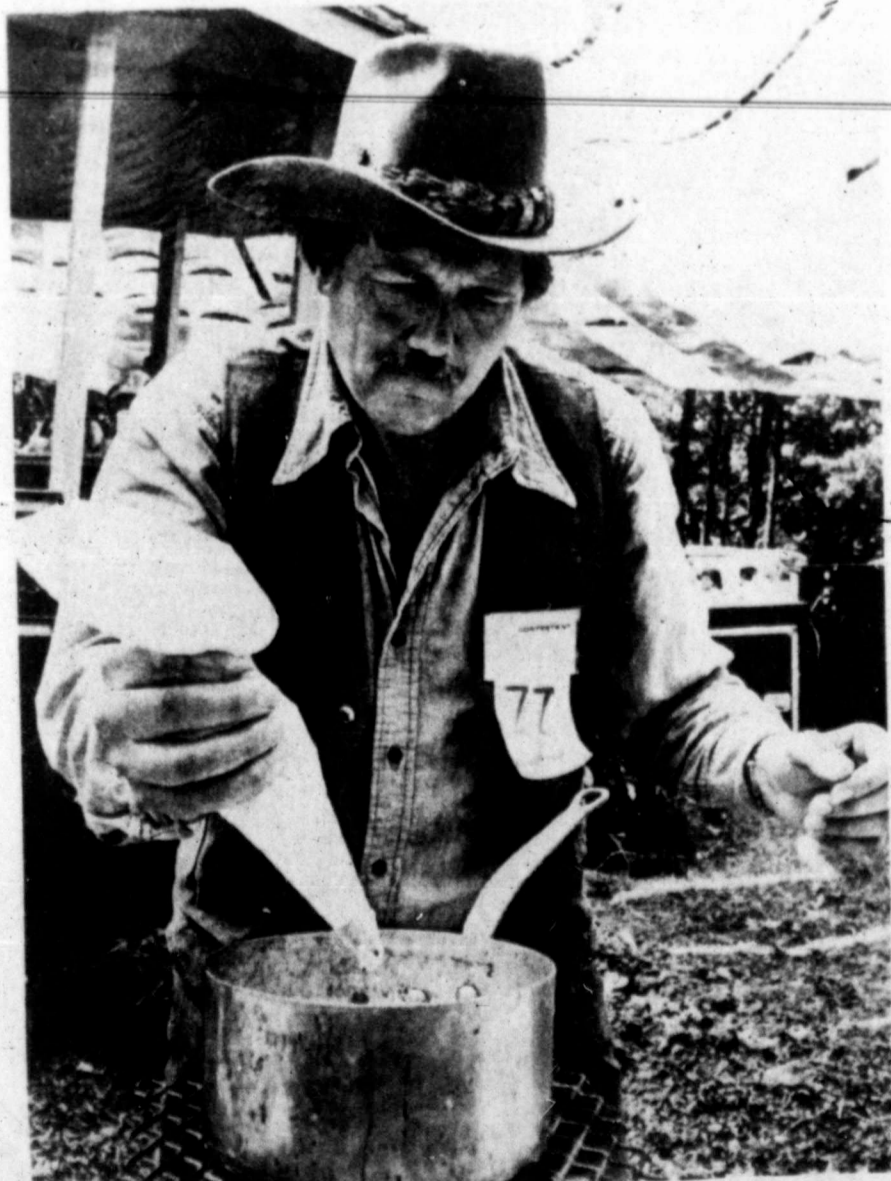

"I started out as just a businessman-pilot," he said, "and I wanted a new airplane and wanted a little faster airplane and more room than the Mooney," which, like the Eagle, is a four-place single-engine aircraft.

After Dietrick had the capital to put the aircraft into production, he plans on designing a turbo-prop version of the Eagle, a fiberglass trainer, agricultural aircraft and a float plane. Due to the inherent strength of fiberglass and to its non-corrosive quality, airplanes made from fiberglass would make for "fantastic" agricultural and float planes, he ventured.

"I'm just as serious as hell about this thing," he said.

Dietrick revels in flying the Windecker Eagle and is proud of how he "engineered" himself into piloting the Eagle for business, for pleasure, for the sheer delight of flying and for promoting the "plastic" aircraft.

"The best engineering job I ever did was to engineer myself into this job."

Parker Folse, winner of the ninth annual Southern Hushpuppy Olympics in Lufkin, disclosed the "secret ingredient" of his hushpuppy recipe that helped him win the title for the fourth time. It's sugar.

Gourmet cook wins Southern Hushpuppy Olympics fourth time

LUFKIN — Nearly 4,000 Texas residents gathered in the piney woods of Lufkin recently to celebrate the ninth annual Southern Hushpuppy Olympics. At stake was $1,000 grand prize and the distinction of being crowned "The South's Greatest Hushpuppy Cook."

Competition in the 1980 Olympics was fierce with 20 Texas cooks, including four past champions, competing for the crown. This year's Olympics was won by Dallas architect and gourmet cook, Parker Folse, who received his fourth gold medal since the competition began in 1972.

Folse, who also won first place in 1975, 1976 and 1979, outscored his challengers, including second place winner, Bill Lawhorn of Dallas, and two-time winner, Cecil Davis of Wichita Falls, who came in third.

Folse, whose recipe includes shrimp, crabmeat and crayfish admitted after the judging that he didn't change the recipe that won him the 1979 championship. But he did disclose the "secret ingredient" that helped him win in 1979 and 1980—he just didn't tell anyone about it. "I used a heaping teaspoon of sugar. The sugar makes the hushpuppies take on a golden color. I've used sugar in my hushpuppy recipe for nine years, the grand champion said softly, "but I've never revealed it. I guess it's time I did. And in doing so, Folse revealed his entire 1980 prize-winning hushpuppy recipe:

Parker Folse's Olympic Hushpuppies

- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup corn meal
- 1 heaping teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1/2 teaspoon creole seasoning or chili powder
- 1 heaping tablespoon chopped parsley

- 1 heaping tablespoon chopped pimento
- 1 heaping tablespoon chopped green onion
- 1 heaping tablespoon chopped boiled shrimp
- 1 heaping tablespoon chopped lump crabmeat
- 1 heaping tablespoon chopped fresh cooked crayfish tails
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup milk

Stir all ingredients together in a bowl adding enough milk to moisten batter. Place in pastry bag fitted with a large star-shaped tip and then swirl batter onto 365 degrees cooking oil. Turn hushpuppies once and cook until golden color. Remove, drain and salt to taste. The recipe, which can be doubled, makes 2 large hushpuppies.

Parker Folse's recipe has come a long way since this traditional culinary art became part of the culture and heritage of the Southern United States. Hushpuppy cooking is colorful and falls in the same class as chili making. There is a breed of people who practice hushpuppy cooking with the same devotion that a West Texan cooks chili or a Mexican-American cooks tamales.

Some cooks, particularly those who specialize in fish take great pride in their ability to make a tasty hushpuppy. Many, including Parker Folse, have their own special recipe and secret ingredient and talk enthusiastically of the qualities of their prize hushpuppies.

The word hushpuppy itself is colorful. It conjures nostalgic visions of a Southern meal, a hunter's cookout, and the aroma of frying catfish over a lakeside fire. According to legend—and there seems to be more than just a few versions of the legend—the hushpuppy got its name in the early 1800's when Southern hunters huddled around camp fires tossed leftover corn patties to their hungry howling, restless dogs saying, "Hush puppy!"

...Virginia Gilbert and granddaughter Paige Humes flew to Dallas recently where they joined a group from Wichita, Kan., for a 23 day tour of Europe.

They flew to London, arriving on a Sunday, and attended worship services at Central Hall Methodist Church, located across the street from Westminster Abbey.

They toured London and saw the changing of the guards at Buckingham Palace. They traveled by rail to Dover, crossed the Channel by steamer and joined a motorcoach from Belgium through Holland. This included a caral cruise where they saw the Dutch Master collection and a diamond cutter at work.

They then flew to Germany where they toured old castles and rode along the fringe of the Black Forest to Switzerland. They saw the Passion Play, traveled on to Venice, Italy, where they went on a gondola trip, and on to Bologna and Florence. They also visited Monte Carlo and saw the home of Princess Grace, famous casinos and the opera house, and went on to Paris, France, where they saw the Eiffel Tower and Mirror Hall.

Return trip to London was by steamer and Mrs. Gilbert reports that the white cliffs of Dover were beautiful.

Strike is over, but sneakers still in

By ERMA BOMBECK

The dull thing about men's fashions is that they're always so "practical."

They always put zippers and buttons in the front of their clothes where they can see to fasten them. They never let their ankles see daylight. They always have a jacket handy to slip into and cover their stomachs after they eat.

It was rather predictable that during a recent transit strike in New York, men started to wear sneakers with their "serious suits" to work just to be comfortable when they walked long distances.

However, the real shocker is that the strike is over and men are still wearing their sneakers. I never thought I'd live to see the day when Prof. Irwin Corey and my husband would be trend-setters.

With Prof. Corey, it's an act. With my husband, it's a statement against style. He started wearing gym shoes ten years ago when he began to jog. "Healthy feet are my life," he would say dramatically. I went shopping with him just once for a pair of running shoes. With three more days, he could have created a world. We saw the inner sole dissected...the construction blueprint of the heel...the stress areas diagrammed. We looked at them in mirrors, in a crouching position and under an X-ray machine. He paid more for them than our wedding pictures. He never takes them off.

It's like traveling with Woody Allen. He walks into a room and just in case no one notices he's wearing blue sneakers with an 18-inch optic yellow cushioned tongue and grip-fast shoestrings with a star on each heel with a dress suit, he calls attention to it. "Yes, these little babies have carried these legs over the finish line at Boston, San Diego and Phoenix," etc.

I think there's more to it than just "comfort." I think "conservatives" are once again flexing their muscles and saying, "I'm sick of being told by my mother, my wife and my employer to wear 'hard' shoes. I'm sick of being told I have to wear a tie to be dressed up or a coat to be allowed to eat dinner in a restaurant with valet parking. From here on in, I wear what I want, when I want, and where I want.

As my hostess welcomed my husband the other night, she whispered,

"What's he supposed to be?"

"Simple. From the ankles up, he's Ivy League. From the ankles down, Little League."

Test may result in aborting healthy fetuses, say experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The possible widespread use of a simple prenatal test to detect severe birth defects is being questioned because of social, economic and medical implications, and its role in abortions.

Doctors, lawyers and consumer advocates said Wednesday that the test being considered for routine use could do more harm than good if it is simply made available without careful planning of long-term effects.

Dr. Stuart L. Nightingale of the Food and Drug Administration said his agency will propose regulations this year to permit routine use of the alpha-fetoprotein (AFP) test, but only when specific conditions are met.

The agency considered approving the laboratory test two years ago, but held off because of questions raised by health care planners and consumers.

AT THE MEETING sponsored by the FDA and the National Center for Health Care Technology, experts said the brain and spinal cord defects the test detects are incurable and virtually untreatable.

These so-called neural tube disorders, which afflict about one out of every 1,000 infants, can lead to early death, physical impairment and mental retardation. The test specifically is used to screen for anencephaly, a fatal condition in which the brain is absent or underdeveloped, and open spina bifida, in which the spine has failed to close and part of the cord protrudes.

After diagnosis, the options given a family essentially are to have a defective child or an abortion. And those opposed to abortion question the worth of tests that force people to face this choice.

Dr. David J.H. Brock of Western General Hospital in Scotland said the AFP test was pioneered in Britain in the early 1970s and is used routinely there.

IN THE UNITED States, thousands of women are receiving AFP screening tests in experimental programs but other doctors cannot send blood samples to regular laboratories for the tests.

Brock said the test detects the chemical in a blood sample taken from the mother between her 16th and 20th week of pregnancy. Some AFP is always produced by a fetus, but increased amounts appear when neural defects are present.

But since other conditions also can increase AFP levels, the test isn't definitive in itself, he noted. Other tests then are needed to narrow down the diagnosis.

These tests include using ultrasonic scans to check the fetus' size and to look for signs of brain and spinal defects, as well as amniocentesis to check the fluid inside the womb.

Experts at the meeting said AFP tests should not become routine in this country unless doctors and patients understand that they are not final and that further testing is needed before a diagnosis. Otherwise, the result could be the abortion of healthy fetuses, they said.

Portrait of a lady big picture of Paris couture fashion for winter

PARIS (AP) — A portrait of a lady — that's the big picture of Paris couture fashion for next winter.

The artists of clothes design here turned back to history for the most opulent evening clothes in years, whether Renaissance with huge puffed sleeves and billowing skirts, or Edwardian with ruffles and ribbons.

As for day wear, you won't have to worry about your skirt length, even if you care about Paris fashion. This time around there were superb and structured minis from Cardin, and also plants hoops in his short skirts. There were also very elegant long and fancy outfits from Ungaro and Scherrer.

On Thursday, the last day of the collections, Scherrer won a prize for creativity, the "Golden Thimble," though one wonders about creativity this season. He's a great designer, but his beautiful Russian ladies, from the Czarist period in their heavily furred and embroidered outfits, were strongly reminiscent of past couture.

DAYTIME LOOKS ELSEWHERE were usually dresses and suits cut just below the knee, practical and flattering. Toppers for these usually had strongly-shaped shoulders, and were either short and boxy or long and blousy, as at Saint Laurent who did them in hip-length, cuffed suede over narrow leather skirts.

Coats may be gently fitted or boxy, but it's chic to wear them slightly shorter than your skirt. Besides fitted jersey, cashmere or challis day dresses, there are many loose dresses in chemise. They are most frequently ruffled or flounced in keeping with Paris's romantic mood.

Pants are not popular in the couture scene, but that does not mean they are going out. Designers usually put them into the ready-to-wear.

The romantic mood was dominant from day to evening. Givenchy expressed it in ruffles; Madame Gres, with draped capes. Ungaro presented ladies in beautifully ornamented versions of military cloaks with frog buttons, or swathed in luminous shades of silk and lace.

The sleeve is all-important for next winter, and the most popular look is rather puffy at the top and narrowed at the wrist — call it a carrot shape, or modified leg of mutton.

THIS GOES INTO the huge ballooning puff sleeve for evening on Renaissance or eighteenth-century dresses with belled-out skirts and tight, low bodices.

But the romance of details and décolletés also appears in short black velvet cocktail dresses, excellent sparkling sheaths, slithery sequin dresses, elaborate but usually in good taste, as only Paris knows how to do it.

For both daytime and evening the designers are tuned into black for next winter, and black and white furs, especially dyed fox or astrakhan. But there is also a subtle color palette, with newest looks in the jewel tones of amethyst, emerald, ruby and sapphire, also teal green and blue and iridescent brass gold.

They like the smokier tones for daytime like mauve and deep midnight blue, plus a range of autumn greens and rusts, and a few touches of bright red.

No matter what length of dress you choose to wear, remember Paris and opt for dark patterned tights or sheer smoky shades in stockings worn with pumps.

NEWEST AND UNDOUBTEDLY a joy to walk in are the little patent dancing slippers with small, triangular heels, perhaps a perky bow ornament. Ungaro showed some fitted suede boots with high heels — a la 19th century. But most designers don't really give a fig about what to wear on your feet during a Chicago winter.

Hardly anybody wears hats these days, but the designers always think they are a vital touch to these expensive couture outfits. This year, they showed huge velvet Rembrandt berets, or "buccaneer" hats with the brim turned back, a favorite all over — especially when topped with a plume a la Cyrano de Bergerac. But don't discard your old mink toque. Just adorn it with a big brooch as Jean-Louis Scherrer does.

Most coiffures were really strict, with little knot chignons, sometimes beaded or jeweled for the Renaissance effect. Or the hair was softly rolled back at the nape of the neck, in most appropriate simplicity and a nice change from the Bo Derek braids and the huge frizzled manes some women have been wearing.

For with this year's fashions, they only distract from the clothes.

They also found that cervicovaginal hood, a doughnut-shaped ridge encircling the cervix, was present in 123 of the women examined. But the condition diminished in 63 women and disappeared in 35.

"There is a change, and the change is toward normal," said Burke.

He also said researchers plan a report on improvements occurring at the microscopic or cellular level, indicating a "real" regression of the pathology.

Because of the disappearing symptoms, women born during the time the drug was in use should question their mothers about possible DES exposure, and greater efforts should be made to examine the medical records, he said.

Doctors estimate that between three and four million women took diethylstilbestrol starting in the 1940s to as late as 1971, in hopes of preventing miscarriages.

In the early 1970s, a Harvard research team reported that if a woman took DES during pregnancy, her daughters ran a greater risk of getting a rare form of vaginal cancer. More recent studies, however, found that the cancer risk is extremely rare, with only 450 cases found to date.

The Beth Israel study, published in Friday's American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology, examined cervical ectopy and cervicovaginal hood abnormalities in DES-exposed women.

Researchers found cervical ectopy — the presence of glandular material instead of normal smooth lining on the area of the cervix at the top of the vagina — in 121 of 175 women examined. The condition decreased in 91 of the women and disappeared for 38 women during the follow-up period.

During the same period, however, several nations were able to report decreases in their crime rate. Against this background, the U.N. is scheduled to hold its Sixth Congress on the Prevention of Crime and Treatment of Offenders. The meeting will open in Caracas, Venezuela, at the end of August.

NEW YORK (AP) — A recent United Nations' survey of world crime showed that during a five-year period beginning in 1970, intentional homicide rose by 20 percent, robbery by 197 percent, drug abuse by 114 percent, while crime overall increased by 15 percent.

During the same period, however, several nations were able to report decreases in their crime rate. Against this background, the U.N. is scheduled to hold its Sixth Congress on the Prevention of Crime and Treatment of Offenders. The meeting will open in Caracas, Venezuela, at the end of August.

Teacher says walking style can communicate self-esteem

CHICAGO (AP) — A walking style can intentionally or unintentionally communicate mood and self-esteem. "Subconsciously, we learn quickly to evaluate others on the basis of posture, gait and other telltale signs," adds Maurita Robarge, professor of physical education and kinesiology at the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse, and fitness consultant for Scholl here.

"A basic walking style is set early in life, formed by family or peer-group copying, personality and, possibly, structural problems," the expert notes. "But, a walk also varies according to the situation, and can be a barometer of feelings, attitudes and moods."

Ms. Robarge offers some clues to help sharpen awareness of your own and other people's walking styles.

—Posture: A slump may indicate feeling of inadequacy, if it's a normal part of a person's walk. An occasional slumping posture may just mean the person is facing a temporary "slump" in business or personal life.

—Stride: A slow, ambling stroll can be a sign of aimlessness, but a brisk, forceful walk indicates purpose.

—Head Angle: The "executive go-getter" type often walks with the upper body at a forward angle, a fast, purposeful pace. This type is willing to meet problems head-on. But walkers who keep their heads buried in their chests are in a meditative mood, and do not invite conversation.

—Arm Swing: A good arm swing expresses an open, receptive mood. When arms are limp and hands are tucked into pockets, the walker probably wants to be alone.

Dancers and gymnasts are easy to spot: They walk with a bouncy, up-down movement, sometimes called the "jock walk," Ms. Robarge says. It's a springy step that comes from well-conditioned foot and leg muscles.

Some people show off as they walk: The "macho man" often walks with an attempted swagger; his feet swing out and around from the hip joint with each step, causing a slight rocking of the upper body. He's trying to impress you with his masculinity, she says.

And, she adds, some people try to turn attention away from themselves: People who "hug the walls" as they walk may be keeping themselves out of the mainstream of life's activities. Similarly, a person who walks with the torso turned slightly aside may be trying to deflect conflicts with oncomers.

A walk may also be used as a "come-on," with a forward thrust of the pelvis, or an exaggerated side-to-side pelvic movement.

To assess a walker's state of mind, Ms. Robarge suggests, try to assess the situation:

—People who can't stand still at a bus stop or train depot may have an overflow of energy from a high-powered nervous system. Or, they may just be impatient to get moving.

Intentional homicide up 20 percent in five years

NEW YORK (AP) — A recent United Nations' survey of world crime showed that during a five-year period beginning in 1970, intentional homicide rose by 20 percent, robbery by 197 percent, drug abuse by 114 percent, while crime overall increased by 15 percent.

Pro athletes being used to probe DMSO mystery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is enlisting the aid of professional athletes to probe the mystery of DMSO — a controversial chemical used by thousands of Americans to treat pain, but so far denied the federal stamp of approval.

Darryl Lamonica, a former Oakland Raiders quarterback who turned to DMSO to relieve painful swelling from football injuries, was among several sports figures testifying Thursday before the Senate subcommittee on health and scientific research chaired by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

DMSO, or dimethyl sulfoxide, is an inexpensive by-product of paper manufacturing. When used as a painkiller or to treat skin ailments, it is applied in liquid or ointment form and absorbed through the skin.

The substance, recently the focus of CBS' "60 Minutes," was spotlighted again a few weeks ago when former Alabama Gov. George Wallace traveled to the University of Oregon's medical school in Portland to be treated for pains associated with his leg paralysis. In Oregon and Florida, state laws permit doctors to prescribe DMSO for general use.

Dr. Stanley Jacob, associate professor of surgery at the Oregon medical school, discovered 16 years ago that DMSO, in some cases, seems to ease the pain of arthritis, the crippling skin disease scleroderma and ailments of the muscles and joints.

The drug has long been used in veterinary medicine to treat pain. But the Food and Drug Administration has steadfastly refused to approve its use as a painkiller for humans on the grounds that no reliable scientific tests have proven its worth or explored the possibility of harmful side effects.

The FDA allows DMSO to be used for the bladder disease interstitial cystitis, however.

Kennedy's staff estimates that about 100,000 people use the drug for pain, swelling and other ailments, despite the FDA's refusal to approve such use.

The senator, a long-shot contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, has said he wants to find out if DMSO has any negative side effects and why the federal government has been reluctant to license the drug.

Ground water may be threatened

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The one million cubic miles of ground water, stored one-half mile from the earth's surface, is the most recently identified natural resource that may be threatened by pollution.

Out-of-sight and unseen oil, gasoline and other hydrocarbons can seep into this vital resource that supplies at least half the U.S.'s drinking water, according to Hugh Peters, manager of detection systems for Emhart's Mallory group here.

Peters says recent government surveys show there are water-supply problems in 21 water-resource regions and in nearly all of the 106 sub-regions.

Slide program set at PBGC

The "See the World" slide program offered by the Permian Basin Graduate Center will cover Southern England and Australia Tuesday and Thursday.

Classes will meet in the PBGC building, 105 W. Illinois St., from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Southern England will be presented by Leonard Caryl on Tuesday. He will include the cities and towns of London, Salisbury, Bath, Gloucester, Oxford and Cambridge in his lecture.

Erma Underwood's talk on Thursday will cover the cities of Canberra, Melbourne and Sydney.

Fee per session is $5. For registration and further information dial 563-2311.

Special section to be published

As a service to Midland club women, The Reporter-Telegram is planning a special supplement noting the achievements of the Tall City's women's clubs.

Although there are more women's groups in the city than the ones which will be featured in the section, we will include the local clubs which fit the traditional scope of women's clubs—service, social, study, garden and auxiliary groups.

The section, to be called "Women With a Purpose," will not include teen clubs or ad hoc fund-raising groups.

Club presidents are encouraged to submit commercial studio photographs for consideration, with acceptance at the discretion of The Reporter-Telegram. Any president whose photo is on file at the newspaper should notify the Lifestyle Department who will use that picture in the special section.

The Reporter-Telegram staff has set aside specific periods when the presidents of participating clubs may have their photographs made at the newspaper office, 201 E. Illinois Ave.

Those times are from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 5, through Friday, Aug. 8.

Each club president should make an appointment to have her picture made during one of those times by phoning the Lifestyle Department at 682-5311.

Appointments will be necessary to avoid long waiting time. Special arrangements have been made to make these particular photographs during the days listed above. It will not be possible for the photo staff to handle photos at a later date.

In addition, the president of each club will need to complete a form outlining her club's history, special projects and current officers.

The forms should be picked up and returned no later than time of photographic appointment. Forms are available in Lifestyle Department anytime between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"Women With a Purpose" will be published as a tabloid supplement to The Reporter-Telegram's Sunday edition Sept. 21.

Doctors work outside of origin

GENEVA (AP) — An estimated 140,000 physicians, about 6 percent of the world's total, are working outside their countries of origin or training, according to a recent study.

Citing statistics from the early 1970s, the report indicates that there were about 77,000 migrant doctors in the United States, 21,000 in Great Britain, and 11,000 in Canada.

The No. 1 "donor" country today of physicians is India, with an estimated 15,000 doctors abroad. The figure represents 13 percent of the country's total. The Philippines is the second largest donor with more than 9,500 doctors working overseas.

Some retarded children not guaranteed education

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Severely retarded children are not guaranteed free educations in New Jersey, the state Supreme Court says.

In a 4-1 decision this week, the court ruled that the state constitutional provision for a free "thorough and efficient" education applies only to people who can be expected to function in society.

"It takes education back 20 years," said Deputy Public Advocate Herbert Hinkle, who represented the public interest in the case.

Solomon and Marilyn Levine, parents of Maxwell, 10, and Robert Guempel, father of Linda, 19. They had pressed separate cases in efforts to stop the state from collecting payments for caring for and educating their children, both of whom are institutionalized and classified as "subtrainable."

Dissenting Justice Morris Pashman said the majority "leaves these children to the dubious protection of what it calls 'humanitarian and compassionate instincts' and what others call political expediency."

Kathryn Brock, an attorney for the New Jersey Association for Retarded Citizens, said the majority ruling does leave "a glimmer of hope" by saying state efforts to collect payments may violate federal or state laws and regulations.

Court records show that payments are based on parents' incomes, with payments increasing as income level increases. A small rebate for educational services is deducted from the billing, based on ability to pay.

the rebates do not reflect actual educational costs and argued they are denied equal protection because retarded children at home receive totally free schooling, said David Rutherford of Fair Lawn, attorney for the Levines.

The following are suggested guidelines for publication of stories in the Lifestyle Department of The Midland Reporter-Telegram:
Information for our Sunday pages must be in our office by 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday; or two days before publication in a daily paper.
Engagement announcements must appear at least four weeks before the wedding date. Wedding stories must be submitted within a week of the event.
Engagements, weddings, anniversaries and club notices must be submitted in writing. All materials should include the name and telephone number of the person submitting them. The Reporter-Telegram has forms for engagement and wedding announcement stories.
We cannot mail pictures or forms to persons living within Midland. Pictures must be picked up in the Lifestyle office within one month after publication.
Only the bride's picture will be used with both the engagement and wedding announcement.
Pictures should be black and white, preferably glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but they may reproduce poorly. Good reproduction cannot be assured when color prints are used. In general, snapshots are not acceptable.
There is no charge for publication of pictures and stories.

The wedding will be Aug. 23 at 8 p.m. in the Macon Baptist Church in Mount Vernon.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Mount Vernon High School and a freshman student at East Texas Baptist College in Marshall.

She is also working this summer as a summer missionary student, as an interpreter for the hearing impaired and speech handicapped persons in Oregon.

Her fiancé is a Lee High School graduate and a junior at East Texas Baptist College where he is a student in ministry.

He is the summer associate pastor for Cheniere Baptist Church of Grande Isle, La.

Before becoming a licensed Baptist minister, he worked as a machinist for CBS in Midland.

Toothbrush and dental floss still top dental defense tools

Copley News Service

Yes, vaccines are being developed to combat tooth decay and gum disease.

And teeth can be coated with super-hard plastic or treated with fluoride to resist cavities.

But the toothbrush, the dental floss and regular dental checkups can still be expected to remain the front line of defense against dental problems.

That's the word from Dr. Fred Magaziner, a Baltimore dentist and executive director of the Maryland chapter of the Academy of General Dentistry.

Magaziner says that while future developments in preventive dental care seem exciting, self-care will continue to be the primary source of good dental health.

By that he means thorough brushing to clean the teeth and stimulate the gums and regular flossing to clean between the teeth.

DEAR ABBY

Heavy wife needs husband's lighter touch

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Why would an intelligent, good-looking, loving man encourage his 300-pound wife to overeat?

He appears to adore her, and she seems eager to lose weight, yet between his adoration and her good intentions she has become one whale of a gal!

When they go to a movie, he buys her candy and popcorn. After the movie he treats her to pizza. At potluck suppers, he brings her several pieces of pie!

This dear lady is my sister. She can't tie her own shoelaces, and I know relatives who hesitate to invite her to their homes for fear the springs in their chairs and sofas won't hold.

There is something funny going on here. I would like your evaluation of this situation.—CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Unless one knows what is in the heart and head of her husband, it is impossible to evaluate the situation accurately. But one thing is certain: Offering fattening foods to a 300-pounder is tantamount to giving alcohol to an alcoholic or sugar to a diabetic. Your sister's husband is neither intelligent nor loving.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 29, male and unattached. For the last three months I've been talking on the telephone with a young lady whose firm does business with our firm. I really dig her voice and manner of speaking. She says she's 27 and single, and she sounds bright, sharp and witty.

I would really like to meet this chick and am considering asking her for a date.

The guy who lives with me says I'm crazy to take a chance—that she'll probably turn out to be a dog.

What do you say?—INTRIGUED IN CHICAGO

DEAR INTRIGUED: Ask her anyway. If she's willing to date you sight unseen, she's risking as much as you. But don't get your hopes up. She may not dig YOU!

DEAR ABBY: How can conscientious parents keep children who are old enough to read from reading all those trashy girlie magazines they pick up at newsstands?

Our son is not quite 15, and some of the magazines we find in his room are pretty racy for a lad his age.

Any suggestions will be greatly appreciated.—KANSAS CITY DAD

TO PUT THE WANT ADS TO WORK Dial 682-6222

DEAR DAD: All adolescents have a normal curiosity that is satisfied in this way. A healthy, well-adjusted boy will pass through this stage unharmed in spite of the trash he reads. And so will your son.

Don't make a big deal out of it. Just make sure you have plenty of good reading material available.

Then keep your eyes open. If your son appears to be overly preoccupied with trash to the exclusion of everything else, and his taste doesn't improve with maturity, he may need professional help.

CONFIDENTIAL TO PARENTS: None one said it better than Phillip Wylie in his essay, "Why a Child Is Important": "To give a child material things and withhold discipline is more cruel than to strangle it. For such a child is headed for a lifetime of emotional strangulations—a walk-

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My beloved wife of 42 years recently died after a long and painful terminal illness. I feel that she was kept alive much too long after it became obvious that there was no hope for her recovery. If you had ever watched a beautiful 130-pound woman reduced to a 79-pound skeleton, you would understand my feelings. She begged for months to die, and we who loved her suffered with her. Her hospital bill alone was over $28,000. Thank God we could afford it, but what do poor people do?

How I wish my dear wife had signed the Living Will you mentioned in your column. When I told my doctor I wanted to obtain a Living Will instructing all those who loved me that they were not to keep me alive should I fall victim to a terminal illness and there was no reasonable hope for my recovery, he said, "You don't need one because California is one of the 10 states that have the Natural Death Act."

Is this true?—PLANNING AHEAD IN MODESTO

DEAR PLANNING: No. You need a document SPECIFICALLY prepared for the state in which you live because the law in each state differs slightly.

The 10 states that have the Natural Death Act are: Arkansas, California, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon, Texas and Washington.

The society for the Right to Die, 250 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019, has prepared forms and guidelines specifically designed for each of the above states. It will send you the proper form on request. There is no charge for the document, but the society is a non-profit organization, so please send a few dollars to cover the cost of the document and mailing.

If you live in one of the other 40 states (Many of which now have bills pending), you will be sent a Living Will declaration to sign as evidence of your wishes. Meanwhile your name will be recorded and the society will send you a proper form if and when the law is enacted in your state.

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen a problem like mine in your column, and it's a tough one. For the last two years my fiancé and I have lived together, so it is assumed by everyone who knows us that we will be married. (We probably will, although no date has been set.)

The problem is his kid sister. More than once she has said, "When are you two getting married? I can't wait to be a bridesmaid."

Abby, how do I let her know that I am not planning to ask her to be in my wedding party? I hate to come right out and tell her because I don't want to hurt her feelings.

Thanks for a snappy comeback.—J. IN TORONTO

DEAR J.: More than a "snappy" comeback, you need a gentle and diplomatic way of letting the "kid sister" down. It's unfair to let her assume that she'll be in the wedding party if she's not going to be.

The next time she mentions it, tell her the truth. The longer you put it off, the more disappointed she'll be.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and very much in love for the first time in my life. Michael is 21, and a more honest and decent guy I've never met. He doesn't drink or smoke and he's working to put himself through college.

So what's the problem? My father doesn't like Michael. And why doesn't he like him? Because Michael doesn't look you straight in the eye when he talks to you.

Abby, Michael is shy and it's hard for him to look people in the eye, but that doesn't mean he doesn't have good character.

Don't you think my father is wrong for holding this against Michael?—LOVES MICHAEL

DEAR LOVES: Yes! The world is full of charming crooks who can look you in the eye and lie through their teeth if there's something to be gained by it.

Do you wish you had more friends?

Researchers successfully grow cells that produce pure human antibodies

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Researchers say they have achieved a scientific breakthrough by successfully growing cells that produce pure human antibodies, the body's first line of defense against disease.

The development at Stanford University Medical School could have far-reaching implications for the diagnosis, treatment and study of human viral and bacterial infections and cancer, the scientists said Tuesday.

"In principle, this method should permit generation of human monoclonal (pure) antibodies against a broad spectrum of predefined antigens," said Dr. Henry Kaplan, who along with Dr. Lennart Olsson developed the technique.

Antibodies are highly specific proteins produced in the body in response to specific foreign substances. Previously, scientists had succeeded in artificially producing only mouse antibodies.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Plastic lids real scrapers

DEAR HELOISE:
I owned two rubber scrapers — one of them melted in the dishwasher, the other was chopped up in the blender.

I forgot to buy one each time I went to the store. One day, when I was mixing a cake and got ready to scrape the batter into the cake pans — no scraper!

So, I got a plastic lid (the kind that comes on coffee cans, margarine tubs, etc.) and cut one edge off so I had a flat smooth side and this turned out to be the most useful thing in my gadget drawer.

It scrapes the batter out of a bowl so thoroughly there isn't any left for the children to lick.

I use it to scrape leftovers into containers. Now, I don't waste sauce, mashed potatoes, etc. I even use one to scrape off food that is stuck to the pan.

These little scrapers are free. When one gets old, throw it away. There's always more! — Fay C. Donroe

The last time I char-coaled a brisket it was so tough we couldn't eat it. When I bought the next one, I asked the butcher how to cook it and he gave me the following tip:

Put it in a cooking bag, pour barbecue sauce over it and add other seasonings as desired. Cook it in a low oven until tender.

Then, take it out of the bag, and, if you can wait, place the brisket over hot coals for about 10 minutes on each side.

Court rules woman can sue spouse for negligence

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts Supreme Court says a woman can sue her husband if she slips and falls on an icy sidewalk that he has failed to shovel and sand.

The unanimous ruling Wednesday sent the case of Shirley Brown vs. William P. Brown back for trial in a lower court where it was dismissed last year.

At that time, Superior Court Judge George J. Hayer had dismissed the suit on grounds that the old common law rule prohibiting husbands and wives from suing each other applied in Mrs. Brown's claim.

But the high court said it was time to change the "antidiluvian assumptions concerning the role and status of women in marriage" which led to the development of the legal principle that husband and wife were one person and could not sue each other.

The court said its own 1976 decision allowing a woman to sue her husband for injuries suffered in an auto accident had opened the way for the first time in Massachusetts for lawsuits between spouses.

Noting that other states allow spouses to sue each other in certain types of accident claims, the court said Mrs. Brown should at least get a chance to prove her case in court.

exchange last week with William F. Judd of Midland, president of Texas American Energy. The company is headquartered in Midland.

Texas American stock trades begin

William F. Judd, president of Texas American Energy Corp. of Midland, announced that the American Stock Exchange last week has admitted to trading 6,496,725 common shares of Texas American stock.

Trading under ticker symbol TAE, the newly-listed issue opened Monday on 100 shares at 13 1/4.

Texas American Energy is engaged in the exploration, development and production of crude oil and natural gas.

The company's development drilling during 1979 included participation in 205 wells primarily in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. The company participated in 17 exploratory wells in the Rocky Mountain area, concentrating in the Big Horn Basin of Wyoming.

At the end of 1979, the company's proved oil and gas reserves were 6.4 billion barrels of oil and 38.4 billion cubic feet of gas.

Texas American Energy owns and operates a 12,500-barrel-per-day refinery in West Branch, Mich., where it markets gasoline, distillates and residual fuel oils.

The firm recently announced an agreement in principle to acquire Western Kentucky Gas Co., an intrastate distributor of gas.

For the three months ended March 31, Texas American Energy reported net income of $686,000 on revenues of $33 million compared with net income of $217,000 on revenues of $22.5 million reported for the same period of the previous year.

Texas American Energy's drilling, production and refining activities are operated through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Texas American Oil Corp.

NWF criticizes fuel plant

WASHINGTON (AP)—The world's first commercial-size plant to produce liquid fuel directly from coal was criticized Friday by two conservation groups as "an environmental disaster."

The National Wildlife Federation and the Natural Resources Defense Council charged that the government had given the go-ahead for the plant based on an "inadequate and superficial" environmental impact statement.

The $1.4 billion plant, to be built near Morgantown, W.Va., will produce 20,000 barrels of synthetic oil daily from 6,000 tons of coal when completed in 1984. It is being financed jointly by the United States, West Germany and Japan.

President Carter signed an agreement with ambassadors of the other two countries Thursday at an elaborate ceremony in the White House Rose Garden.

"We are shocked that President Carter rushed into this ceremony and made this huge commitment just one day after the period ended for comments on the draft environmental impact statement," said Patrick Parenteau, an attorney with the wildlife federation.

The conservation groups charged that the environmental statement reveals that the plant will violate clean air standards and that plans have not yet been developed for treating polluted water discharged from the plant or handling toxic chemical spills.

The environmental groups said a pilot plant demonstrating the feasibility of the process had a 2,300-gallon spill last December which the Energy Department is spending $500,000 to clean up. The pilot plant is located on an Army base at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Deputy Energy Secretary John Sahl said Thursday that the pilot plant had been built to old specifications that did not include containment features for spills which will be included in the West Virginia plant. But Parenteau said the new plant "is setting the tone for our entire $20 billion synfuels (synthetic fuels) program. In its rush to push this international agreement through, the Energy Department seems to be thumbing its nose at any sound environmental management program for synthetic fuels development."

Gas groups organized

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Alaskan North Slope gas producers and U.S. pipeline sponsors of the Alaskan Natural Gas Transportation System have established a Design and Engineering Board and advisory committees for the joint entity created June 19 for design and engineering of the Alaska gas pipeline and conditioning plant.

John G. McMillan, chief executive officer of Northwest Alaskan Pipeline Co., the pipeline's principal U.S. sponsor, is chairman of the new board.

Others elected to the board are: Kenneth E. Kalen, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., co-chairman; E. M. Benson Jr., Atlantic Richfield Co., vice chairman; Harry L. Lepape, Pacific Interstate Transmission Co., secretary.

Also serving on the board are: Fred C. Ackman, Exxon Co., U.S.A.; Frank E. Mosier, The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio); Gordon Severa, InterNorth, Inc.; D. Lamar Smith, United Gas Pipe Line Co.; John A. Sproul, Pacific Gas & Electric Co.; and James J. Trebilcock, American Natural Resources Co.

Alaska is represented on the board in a non-voting capacity by Lt. Governor Terry Miller.

O&GJ predicts 59,107 wells in 1980

TULSA, Okla. — The oil and gas industry will drill a record 59,107 wells in the U.S. this year, surpassing a 24-year-old high mark, the Oil & Gas Journal predicts in its July 28 issue.

The old record, set in 1956 was 58,160 wells.

Oil production will rise a little more than one percent after a decline last year. And oil imports will fall sharply, reflecting a narrowed gap between domestic supply and demand.

The Journal's projection of a record pace of drilling this year is based on its annual midyear survey of the U.S. Petroleum industry.

Main reason for increased drilling, the Journal says, is the phaseout of price controls on oil and gas and the resulting higher prices for the industry.

Those higher prices and a slowdown in overall economic activity will lead U.S. consumers to price-induced conservation. Oil demand during the year, including exports, will average 17.69 million barrels a day, down 6.4 percent from the 1979 level, the week-

The 1980 drilling rate represents an increase of 7,844 wells or 15.3 percent from the final tally of 51,263 wells drilled in 1979.

Along with the high for total well completions, the industry this year will set records for total footage, development wells, gas wells, and completions by major oil and gas companies.

The Journal predicts that industry will drill 273 million feet of hole, surpassing by 30 million feet the previous record set only last year.

Development wells this year will total 46,731 vs. the previous record of 45,126 in 1956.

Gas well completions should amount to 15,306, up 625 from the former record of 14,681 set just last year. But of all wells drilled during the year 61 percent will be oil wells.

The 20 largest U.S. oil and gas companies plan to drill 11,106 wells, 23.4 percent more than in 1979 and the largest increase ever recorded for this group by the Journal.

Increased mileage per gallon, along with higher prices, will rein demand for motor gasoline, the largest single item among U.S. petroleum products.

The Journal estimates that consumption of motor gasoline during the year will average 6.64 million barrels a day, down 5.5 percent from 1979.

Total oil supply for the U.S. in 1980 is estimated at 17.85 million barrels a day. This includes U.S. crude production of 8.64 million barrels a day, 1.58 million barrels a day of natural gas liquids, imports of 7.08 million barrels a day, and about 550,000 barrels a day from refinery processing gains.

Imports during the year will average 5.52 million barrels a day of crude oil, down about 14 percent from last year, and 1.56 million barrels a day of products, down 19 percent.

With demand at 17.69 million barrels a day and supply at 17.85 million barrels a day, about 160,000 barrels a day or 58 million barrels during the year will be put in storage.

The Journal says the stock buildup will continue through the third quarter, with no significant drawdown until the fourth quarter.

Huge investment big reason for U.S. to keep eye on gas

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Dr. Bernard S. Lee says a $100 billion investment ranks at the top of a number of important reasons why the United States should maintain the role of gas in its energy mix.

Lee is a Nanjing, China, native who now is president of the Institute of Gas Technology, a not-for-profit membership organization founded in 1941 to conduct research into a variety of energy conversion processes.

For many years, the major coal gasification research and development efforts in the United States have been carried out by the Chicago-based Institute and by the U.S. Bureau of Mines. Lee has had primary responsibility for the development of the Institute's Hygas process for producing pipeline quality gas from coal.

Natural gas now provides about 25 percent of the nation's total primary energy needs, including 41 percent of residential and commercial energy requirements and 36 percent of its industrial fuel.

Lee says conservation is a major tool for reducing dependency on foreign oil supplies but adds that the nation must have production from its own supplemental resources.

"There is now a world surplus of oil but we are still importing 7 million barrels a day and we are still in a heck of a hole," he said.

"If we want to back down imports further, we must look at synthetics."

Existing and developing technology, he said, will permit synthetics to help maintain the major role now held by gas in meeting the nation's energy demands.

Lee, who recently visited in China, said the Chinese have vast quantities of natural gas but no distribution system.

"Once you have a distribution system, gas is economical and that is why gas is a natural thing for the United States," he said.

"The United States is covered with a gas transmission and distribution network which cost $50 billion to build and which is literally irreplaceable today. An additional $50 billion has been invested by gas customers in gas burning equipment."

Lee said maximizing the use of the system and equipment will provide continuing economic benefits to gas consumers.

"Maintenance of adequate gas supplies is necessary to permit customers to benefit from their investment," he said.

"Substitute natural gas from coal can play a major role in meeting future gas requirements."

Lee said the nation's energy requirements, although mitigated somewhat by conservation, will continue to rise.

"Energy analysts project energy requirements by the year 2000 will be in the range of 95-110 quadrillion British thermal units per year, compared with the current primary energy consumption of about 80 quadrillion Btu per year," he said.

Lee said the gas industry can maintain or even increase its current contribution to energy requirements by

Pictorial history set

A distinguished historian, Walter Rundell Jr. of the University of Maryland, has begun work on a pictorial history of Permian Basin oil. The project is being sponsored by Midland's Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame.

Rundell's book will be published in 1982. Publication arrangements, including date of release, will be announced later, according to the museum.

In 1977 Rundell completed work on Early Texas Oil: A Photographic History, 1866-1936, which was published by Texas A&M University Press. He is the author of "Black Market Money", 1964; "In Pursuit of American History", 1970; and "Military Money", 1980, among other works.

He was awarded the B.S. and B.J. degrees by the University of Texas and the Ph.D. from American University. He taught at Del Mar College, Texas Woman's University, the University of Oklahoma, and Iowa State University before joining the history faculty at the University of Maryland.

Rundell's planned work will cover in pictures the history of one of the most colorful of the world's oil provinces: West Texas and southeastern New Mexico. The Permian Basin, named for an ancient sea that once covered the area, came to life as a major energy source in 1923 and remains active.

Archives of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, including its photograph collection, are being researched now by the author. He expects to supplement the Midland collection with subsequent work at Austin and other locations.

The resulting book will be issued in hard covers and be of "lasting quality," the museum said in its statement.

developing a number of alternate supply sources to supplement conventional gas supplies.

"We firmly believe we can provide up to 30 trillion cubic feet per year of gas, both natural and synthetic, by the year 2000 compared to our present production of 19.5 trillion cubic feet per year of natural gas," he said.

"These supplies will come from a number of sources -- conventional production, pipeline imports from Canada and Mexico, Alaskan gas, imported liquefied natural gas, and gas from the tight sands of the west, the Devonian shales of the east, coal seams, geopressured zones, oil shale, coal, peat and biomass."

Lee said the capital cost of a coal gasification plant can exceed a billion dollars but high and medium-Btu gas from coal can be processed in the range of $4 to $6 per million Btu.

"We are already paying $4.50 for gas imported from Canada," he said. "Gas from Alaska will cost at least $6 per million at the Canadian border. Some unregulated deep natural gas is now being sold under contract for more than $6 per million."

But, he added, the true basis for comparison is the cost of imported oil.

"Gas, both natural and synthetic, can displace foreign oil imports in many applications," Lee said.

"Imported oil at $35 per barrel is about $6 per million Btu."

Adams test rates big flow

Adams Exploration Inc. of Midland reported a good flow of gas on a drillstem test in the Morrow at its No. 1-16 State, a Lea County, N.M., project 3/4 mile northeast of the Osudo, North (Morrow) field.

The drillstem test was taken in the interval from 10,792 to 11,145 feet. The tool was open 17 minutes and gas surfaced immediately and flowed at the rate of 17.5 million cubic feet per day, through a 3/4-inch choke.

Recovery was 10,700 feet of gas from drillpipe and 40 feet of condensate. No water was found in the recovery.

Flowing pressure varied from 2,130 to 3,112 pounds, and the initial and final shut-in pressures were 5,216 pounds.

Operator is moving off rig after setting 4.5-inch casing at 11,047 feet. The project is six miles southwest of Monument and 1,650 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 16-20s-36e.

The closest Morrow producer is Jake L. Hamon No. 1 Amerada-Federal which was completed for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 27 million cubic feet of gas per day through perforations from 11,120 to 11,133 feet.

LPG fuel gets approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to promote development of liquefied natural gas as a vehicle fuel was unanimously approved last week by the House Science and Technology Committee.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., provides $13 million in federal funds to finance 50 LNG demonstration projects involving farm equipment and fleet vehicles like those used by police departments, taxicab companies and delivery operators. The government would make grants or loans covering up to half the cost of a three-year project starting in late 1981.

Glickman said the program could ultimately lead to a reduction in America's daily oil consumption of about 6 percent. The development program is focused on fleet operations because fleets are centrally serviced, minimizing the need for development of an extensive LNG distribution system.

Despite a tight schedule before Congress adjourns this year, Glickman said he remains optimistic about the program's chances.

According to the American Gas Association, about 6,000 of the nation's 6.5 million fleet vehicles are currently being operated on LNG or compressed natural gas. The association says its own research shows LNG to be higher in octane, lower in pollution and double the miles-per-gallon equivalent of gasoline at about half the price.

Cash set for synthetics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department put another $300 million on the table Friday to encourage industry and local governments to get into the synthetic fuel business.

The department announced it was accepting proposals for awards of up to $25 million for projects to turn coal, shale rock and a host of other products into synthetic fuels.

The money is part of the $20 billion which Congress has appropriated to get the country involved in a big way in producing synthetic fuels and thereby cutting the nation's dependence on foreign oil.

The first $200 million in grants were awarded in July to 110 companies and local governments out of 971 applicants. The awards went to persons in 46 states and the District of Columbia.

Applicants not successful in the first round were invited to apply again for the new grant money. Applicants can receive up to $4 million for feasibility studies and up to $25 million for cooperative agreements to finance pre-construction work.

Deputy Energy Secretary Ruth Davis also announced that the department planned to begin accepting applications in September for $4.7 billion in loan guarantees and purchase agreements. She said it was hoped that money could be awarded before June of next year.

The department was authorized by Congress to hand out money until the Synthetic Fuels Corporation is set up. That seven-member corporation will be responsible for funding enough projects to produce 500,000 barrels of synthetic fuels daily by 1992 and 2 million barrels daily by 1992. Congress has said it will fund the corporation with up to $88 billion in proceeds from the oil "windfall profits" tax.

Reed rotary rig survey shows drop of 10 units

Following a week in which Permian Basin oil and gas operators set a 1980 record for number of rotary rigs making hole, the Reed Rock Bit Co. reported a drop in 10 units on its Friday survey of Permian Basin rotary operations.

The latest count showed 329 rotaries making hole compared to 339 a week earlier, a record so far in 1980. One year ago there were 247 rotary units drilling.

Lea County, N.M., the Basin's leader for several months, held steady at 46, while Eddy County, N.M., continued to hold second place with 33, also identical to the week-earlier count.

Pecos County, West Texas' most active county from the standpoint of rotary rig operations, showed a loss of two rigs. The county showed 23 units making hole Friday.

Other West Texas counties with 10 or more rigs working on the Friday survey included Andrews 14, a gain of one; Crockett 12, a loss of one; Garza 10, showing no gain or loss; Glasscock 10, a gain of two, and Ward 11, a drop of two.

Company to sell skyscraper

NEW YORK (AP) — Pan American World Airways, which reported record losses in the first two quarters of 1980, is selling its towering share of the Manhattan skyline for about $400 million.

The 59-story building topped by the blue Pan Am logo will be bought by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., which is putting up $350 million in cash in what Pan Am terms "the largest real-estate financial transaction for a single building in history."

The insurance company, which said the building name would not change, also will take over a $50 million low-interest mortgage from Pan Am, which will continue to make the building its headquarters.

Pan Am had a first-quarter deficit of $74.9 million and a second-quarter loss of $66.3 million.

"I would say we're a troubled company," said William T. Seawell, chairman and chief executive officer of the airline. "I would say we're a troubled industry; 1980 is trouble for the airline industry."

Pan Am said its losses reflect fuel costs that jumped 81 percent in the quarter ending June 30, its inability to raise fares on international routes and a softening market.

Sale of the skyscraper and the land it sits on will be completed about Jan. 1. Pan Am will rent at least 350,000 square feet of the building, Seawell said.

He said the company would use part of the proceeds from the sale of the building, which cost $115 million to construct, to retire part of its debt. A Pan Am spokesman estimated current liabilities at $874 million.

Pan Am has not decided how to invest the rest, Seawell said, but he added, "I wouldn't plan to run out and buy any more airplanes."

The skyscraper, which is fully occupied, has been a "marginal" property for the airline, he said.

U.S. Steel earnings down

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steel maker, says the sagging economy pulled its second-quarter earnings down nearly 26 percent from the same period in 1979.

The dip in earnings follows similar announcements by other producers, including National Steel, Inland Steel, Republic Steel and Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel. All blamed the economic slowdown.

U.S. Steel said Tuesday it earned $111.5 million, or $1.28 a share, on sales of $3.1 billion in the latest quarter. During that period last year, the company said it earned $150.4 million, or $1.75 a share, on sales of $3.6 billion.

Company Chairman David Roderick said steel shipments for the half-year were down by 24 percent compared with that period in 1979.

Despite the drop in earnings and the adverse effect of lower volumes, he said all segments of the industry reported second-quarter operating profits.

WHEN YOU NEED A COMMERCIAL LOAN, WE WON'T TIE YOUR HANDS.

In today's business economy, there can be a lot of strings attached to doing business with your bank: your hands may be tied by too small a lending limit for company growth. A lack of corporate financing expertise may create snarls. Or your loan approval may become tangled in endless delays, tying up your company's progress, or creating some knotty cash flow problems.

At Midland National Bank, our highly trained officers will cut you loose from the red tape. With the proper information from you, we'll have an answer on your loan almost immediately.

We can also give you quick answers on short-term working capital loans, lines of credit, international letters of credit, computerized financial planning projections, and many other commercial financing considerations.

Just give us a call: 683-2751.

It takes more than just another big bank to untie your hands.

WE'RE MORE THAN JUST ANOTHER BIG BANK.

Permian Basin Briefs

Texaco Inc. has announced the retirements of two men in its Producing Department — West U.S. in Midland. They were effective Saturday.

William H. Warren, who was operations assistant (Gas) in the Midland Division office, retired after 38 years with the company.

Warren

He started his Texaco career in Tulsa, Okla., in 1942 as a roustabout. Subsequently, he served as stillman and gasoline plant operator in Tulsa; head operator, head roustabout and process foreman at Snyder; gasoline plant foreman and plant foreman in Lamesa, and plant foreman in Lovington, N.M., Kermit and Midland.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren will make their retirement home at May.

L. V. Holley, who worked for Texaco 27 years, retired as a pumper. He was assigned to the Drilling and Production Department — Midland District of Texaco U.S.A.

A native of Lamesa, he joined Seaboard Oil Co. in 1953 as a roustabout. That concern later was merged into Texaco.

Subsequently, he served as a pumper at Spraberry, Lamesa, Vealmoore and Penwell. He became a pumper in the Warfield area in Midland County in 1974.

Mr. and Mrs. Holley will make their retirement home in Midland.

Texas Oil & Gas Corp., with headquarters in Dallas, has announced the addition of two men to its West Texas District staff in Midland.

Ronald E. Widmayer joined the staff as a geologist.

Widmayer

He received an M.S. degree in Geology from Michigan State University.

A. Michael Unphress also joined the district staff as a geologist.

He previously was with Gulf Oil Corp. in Houston where he served as a senior geologist.

Unphress received his B.S. and M.S. degrees in Geology from The University of Texas at Arlington.

Harold "Louie" O'Conner has joined the Gas Products Division of CRA, Inc., in Midland as a gas acquisition representative.

O'Conner

O'Conner transferred from the company's Refining Division in Coffeyville, Kan., where he had been the chief analytical chemist at the Coffeyville Refinery.

He is responsible for gas purchasing in the Rocky Mountain Region.

Gene W. Butts, president of the recently formed American Well Servicing Co. of San Angelo and Forsan, has announced the acquisition of B&T Well Servicing Co. of San Angelo.

Wallace Norman, previous owner of B&T, along with his management team, will continue to operate the company.

American Well Servicing is a joint partnership owned by Loch Exploration Co. of Gainesville and Shannon Oil & Gas Corp. of Dallas.

American Well Servicing now has more than 100 employees and operates 15 rigs.

The company was formed in May by Butts, a long-time Pool Well Servicing Co. Employee.

At the time American Well Servicing was organized, the company purchased Damson Petro Services Co. of Forsan. Gilbert Turner is district manager for American Well Servicing at Forsan.

The company maintains an area office at Sterling City.

Samedan Oil Corp. of Houston has announced the addition of a petroleum engineer to its West Texas Division staff in Midland.

Pitts

He is Greg Pitts who was graduated from Texas A&M University in 1977 with a B.S. degree in Petroleum Engineering.

He worked for Gulf Oil Corp. in Odessa and Hobbs, N.M., before joining Samedan.

William J. Mock has been promoted to district sales manager in Centrilift, Inc.'s Western District, Southwest Region office in Midland.

Mock

He has been a sales engineer with Centrilift since June 1979. He holds a degree in Marketing from The University of Texas at Austin and is a member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME.

W. J. Kolechta has been appointed financial control manager for the Orlloff Corp. in Midland. He is responsible for corporate financial analysis, developing and implementing internal control systems, and insuring compliance with corporate policy.

Kolechta

Prior to his employment with Orlloff, Kolechta was financial systems manager for Delta Steamship Lines and was employed by Westinghouse Electric Corp. eight years in a variety of accounting and accounting management positions. He also worked for Aluminum Company of America as a senior systems analyst three years.

The Oil Well Equipment Division of Sargent Industries, Inc., of Los Angeles, Calif., announced the sale of the division's domestic line of downhole pumps to the Highland Pump Co. of Midland.

Tim C. Thompson, Oil Well Equipment Division president, said the existing network of Sargent-owned pump shops and the company's specialized pump manufacturing facility in Longview also will be acquired and operated by Highland Pump.

He said Sargent will continue to supply downhole pumps to its international markets.

The Sargent Oil Well Equipment Division also will continue to concentrate on domestic and international applications of its line of Econo-Pak drive systems, charger valves and other proprietary products with high engineering content, Thompson said.

Sargent will maintain its Oil Well Equipment Division headquarters in Odessa and its engineering field offices in Santa Fe Springs and Ventura, Calif.; Denver, Colo.; Oklahoma City, Midland and Houston.

Larry Jeter has been named general manager and associate publisher of Drill Bit magazine, a monthly trade publication which serves the oil and gas industry in the Permian Basin and North Central Texas, reports Donald Hart, editor and publisher.

Jeter

Jeter, who recently completed a 9-month management internship in which he was actively involved in all phases of the publication's operations, will direct the overall activities of Drill Bit from its office in Midland.

Before joining the firm in 1979, Jeter spent five years with San Antonio-based Harte Hanks Communications, most recently as general manager of Basin Weekly in Odessa. Before that, he spent four years in advertising and sales with the Abilene Reporter News.

He holds a B.A. degree in Business Administration from McMurry College in Abilene.

Warton Drilling Co. of Odessa, a WellSource Co., has purchased Rig No. 1 from Alta West Drilling Co. The rig, operating in Eddy County, N.M., brings the number of rigs operated by Warton to eight.

WellSource of Houston purchased Warton Drilling in May.

B. E. Burton and N. J. Halfacre, long-time Warton employees, were elected president and vice president/operations manager, respectively, of Warton Drilling.

The firm was owned by Jerry Warton who served as president.

Steve Spyras has been promoted to district supervisor in the Tex-Mex Region in Hobbs, N.M., by Milchem Inc.

He was technical service representative prior to his promotion.

R. T. Kelly of Odessa has been elected to the board of directors of El Paso Products Co. He is president of El Paso Polyolefins Co., a subsidiary of Products.

The remarks in a televised interview on KERA-TV, a Dallas Public Broadcasting station.

Nugent said 25 percent of the revenues from the Windfall Profits Tax have been earmarked for energy assistance to low-income families. These will be allocated to the states according to a formula involving residential energy costs, standards of living and "heating degree days," a measure of cold weather.

"The problem with this formula," Nugent said, "is that it emphasizes cold weather much more than hot weather."

"Our current heat wave shows more clearly than anything else that the imbalance must be corrected."

"Our citizens suffer from high fuel costs just as much as New Yorkers

Overthrust play spreading

TULSA, Okla. — The dazzling Overthrust Belt play in the western U.S. is moving every direction but straight up, the Oil & Gas Journal says in its July 28 issue.

Explorations are testing features all along the geologically complex area extending from the Canadian Rockies through the U.S. and into Mexico. And drilling remains feverish in the 70-by-20 mile fairway in southwest Wyoming and northeast Utah.

More and more, the fairway is shaping up as a huge gas area. Except for Hogback Ridge field in Utah's northeastern corner, existing fields align along two major thrusts — Tump and Absaroka — with oil fields generally east of the gas trend.

Significant deep Paleozoic strikes within the past year indicate some of the gas fields may link up. Key wells planned or under way along the gas trend—from Carter Creek and Whitney Canyon fields in the north to Anschutz Ranch field in the south — will provide important answers during the next year.

And action along the oil trend is far from over, the Journal says. There's still plenty that isn't known about the Jurassic Nugget, main producing formation in the Ryeckman Creek-Clear Creek Reserve-Painter reservoir area.

"That play isn't dead," said one explorationist. "There's a lot of work to be done."

Amoco Production Co.'s 1 Bountiful Livestock strike in Summit County, Utah, late last year triggered a flurry of deep Nugget tests east of Anschutz Ranch field and north of the fairway's three southern oil fields.

Further east, Exxon Co. U.S.A. tested oil in its 1 Mill Creek. It was the first oil found on the fairway portion of the Darby Thrust—the next main thrust east of the Absaroka.

Outside the fairway, drilling stretches from Williams Exploration Co.'s Two Medicine Creek play in northern Montana through the Hingeline area south of the fairway to a rank, deep wildcat being drilled in Final County, Ariz., by Anschutz and Texoma Production Co. Centers of attention are central and eastern Utah, the thrust area north of the fairway in Wyoming and Idaho, and Montana south of the Williams action.

Spurring the play are rising oil and gas prices, rapidly improving seismic acquisition and interpretation techniques, plans for major gas and products pipelines and gas treating plants, and burgeoning success.

The Journal said another lure to the explorationist is the multiply feature of the region. At least 11 formations are productive in the Overthrust Belt.

But risks in the Overthrust Belt are enormous, a product of the tangled geology of the area. Explorationists declare that a 1/2-mile step-out in the Overthrust Belt is like a rank wildcat elsewhere.

"The belt is simultaneously an explorationist's dream and nightmare, with a multiplicity of potential traps and objective reservoirs," said one explorationist.

The Overthrust Belt's history is rife with discoveries drilled within a stone's throw of dry holes and, conversely, dry holes ringing big strikes.

One oil company official estimates that the Overthrust Belt discovered resource is 4 to 5 trillion cubic feet of gas and 500 million barrels of oil.

And for all its glamor, the Overthrust Belt isn't without other problems. Like elsewhere in the U.S. West, the federal government is the biggest landowner. Oil operators apparently can live with rugged terrain, 57-million wildcats, and $25,000 per line-mile seismic surveys. But they bristle at land withdrawals and long permitting delays.

Nugent criticizes assistance

DALLAS — Railroad Commissioner James E. Nugent said Friday that a "crass imbalance" exists in the treatment of Texans under the federal Home Energy Assistance Act, a portion of the Windfall Profits Tax.

According to Railroad Commission estimates, Texas oil producers will pay $126 billion — or 55 percent — of the nationwide levy under the Windfall Profits Tax, Nugent reported.

"But when it comes to returning those funds to the states in the form of energy assistance," Nugent continued, "we stand to get back just three percent of the money distributed."

"This crass imbalance is typical of the treatment our citizens have been getting on energy matters in Washington," Nugent said. He made the remarks in a televised interview on KERA-TV, a Dallas Public Broadcasting station.

Nugent said 25 percent of the revenues from the Windfall Profits Tax have been earmarked for energy assistance to low-income families. These will be allocated to the states according to a formula involving residential energy costs, standards of living and "heating degree days," a measure of cold weather.

"The problem with this formula," Nugent said, "is that it emphasizes cold weather much more than hot weather."

"Our current heat wave shows more clearly than anything else that the imbalance must be corrected."

"Our citizens suffer from high fuel costs just as much as New Yorkers of Pennsylvanians, and protection from the heat is just as necessary as protection from the cold," Nugent stated.

Nugent said the federal Department of Human and Health Resources — formerly part of HEW — calculates the state allocations. Their calculations, according to Nugent, would allocate Texas just $67 million of the initial $2.2 billion to be distributed.

95 oil, gas strikes reported

AUSTIN—Texas operators reported 76 gas and 19 oil discoveries during the July 1-15, 1980, period, the Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division announced today.

In the year-earlier period, 81 gas and 24 oil discoveries were filed with the state's energy regulator agency.

Through the first six and a half months of 1980, operators have reported 785 gas and 390 oil discoveries, against 709 gas and 247 oil discoveries in the year-earlier period. Successful exploratory and field completions in the six and a half months of 1980 total 6,325 oil and 3,021 gas, against 4,260 oil and 3,075 gas completions in the same period last year.

Gas discoveries in the first half of July included 26 in Southeast Texas, 14 in the Refugio area, 1 in deep South Texas, seven in West Central Texas, five in the Panhandle area, four each in the San Antonio and San Angelo areas, two each in East Texas and the Midland area, and one in East Central Texas.

Oil discoveries included six in West Central Texas, three in the San Antonio area, and two each in Southeast Texas, North Texas and the San Angelo and Midland areas and one each in the Refugio and Panhandle areas.

Irons

He has attended the Intermediate School of Banking at Southern Methodist University. Prior to joining First National, Irons was affiliated with banks in Austin, Lubbock, and Las Cruces, N.M.

Tommy Newsom recently joined the staff of The Desk Top Placement Service as a placement consultant specializing in areas of finance and accounting. Newsom has been an oil and gas accountant with a major oil and gas company and an independent.

Newsom

He is a native of West Texas and was graduated from Angelo State University with a B.B.A. degree in Accounting.

Ernest C. Lynch of Odessa, a life insurance agent representing Southwestern Life Insurance Co., has been elected president of the Texas Leaders Round Table, an honor organization affiliated with the Texas Association of Life Underwriters.

Lynch succeeds Robert S. Rogers of Lubbock. TLRT is an honor group of the 730 most successful life insurance representatives in Texas. The membership represents the top 10 percent of Texas' life insurance agents.

Life underwriters in Midland who are members of the Texas Leaders Round Table are Hugh B. Gilmour, George F. Harley, Richard Harvey, Jesse W. Hauptrief, William H. Jowell, M. Neal Meares, Carvel Mills. And, Margaret F. Moore, John F. Murphy, Jack J. Pollard, J. Woodford Sale, Robert S. Sturr, Donald Ray Thresher, and Robert L. Todd Jr.

The Midland and Odessa offices of Manpower Inc., a temporary services firm, has been chosen as a recipient of the 1980 Power Award for professional excellence.

The Midland and Odessa offices are owned by Wally Richman. The offices had received two previous Power Awards, in 1969 and 1976.

W. L. Barnes, president of The Orloff Corp. in Midland, announced completion of construction for a major hard chrome plating facility in Lufkin for Chromium Corp. of Texas, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Elcor Corp. which is headquartered in Midland.

Chromium Corp. is a plater of hard chrome finishes for original equipment and recycled diesel engine cylinder liners for the railroad and marine industries. The Lufkin facility is equipped to hard chrome plate large cylinder liners for stationary power and compression applications for the energy industries.

Bill Rogers of National Car Rental in Midland was presented with an airport penetration award at National Car Rental's recent international convention in Minneapolis, Minn.

He received the award for maintaining 20 percent of the car rental business done at the airport, based on revenue reported to the airport commission by car rental companies at the Midland Regional Airport.

Permian Airways of Midland has signed a letter of intent with the Beech Aircraft Corp. for the purchase of six new aircraft, four of which will be C-99 Airliners, and two Commuter 1900 Airliners.

The C-19 is a 15-passenger aircraft, and the 1900 series is a 19-passenger full-pressurized aircraft. The requested delivery dates are 1981 for the C99's and 1983 for the 1900 series aircraft.

Tipperary Corp. of Midland reported record earnings from operations for the nine months ended June 30.

Income from continuing operations was $4,895,000 on revenues of $58,957,000 compared to $1,307,000 on revenues of $39,314,000 for the same 1979 period.

Net income was $5,560,000 or $1.07 per share, compared to $2,644,000 or 52 cents per share for the nine months ended June 30, 1979.

LaDoyce Lamber of Odessa has been promoted to senior vice president and senior trust officer at American Bank, reports Derrell Henry, chairman of the board.

Lamber is a former managing editor of The Midland Reporter-Telegram. He joined American Bank in September 1979 as officer in charge of the trust department.

Prior to going to Odessa, Lamber was a vice president and trust officer of The First National Bank of Midland.

Buy-sell ratio about even, latest information shows

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest figures on U.S. trade showed a marked improvement in this country's ability to sell as much as it buys abroad.

The amount spent to buy foreign products still outstrips the amount earned from selling U.S. goods abroad. But the U.S. deficit on merchandise trade improved by a dramatic 40 percent between the first and second quarters.

It fell to $8.1 billion in the April-June period from $13.5 billion in the first three months of the year. The second-quarter deficit was the smallest trade gap since late 1978.

That improvement doesn't mean that U.S. trade will avoid ending up in the red for the fifth consecutive year. In fact, many economists believe that it will be a bit worse than last year's $37 billion deficit.

The high cost of imported oil, which has more than doubled price in the past 18 months, continues to be the biggest burden in the import bill, despite a decrease in quantities the United States imports.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., in a recent report, estimated that the cost of imported oil this year will reach $85 billion, about double the 1978 bill before oil prices soared.

But some economists still find encouraging signs amid all that red ink.

Manufacturers Hanover Trust economists pointed out in a report, for instance, that the level of U.S. exports has managed since 1977 to grow faster than the level of imports even though they do not yet offset import costs.

In 1977, exports rose 5 percent from a year earlier, but gained 18 and 26 percent in the next two years. Imports in 1977 grew 22 percent from the previous year and 16 and 22 percent in 1978 and 1979.

In the first half of 1980, exports were up 19 percent from the 1979 total and imports were 18 percent higher. If they continued at that rate for a year, exports would total $215.8 billion and imports $259 billion this year.

The bank report suggests several reasons for the relative improvement in exports. The decline in the value of the dollar relative to other currencies over the past several years helped make U.S. exports more attractive.

And the weakness of the U.S. economy relative to economies of trading partners has helped the trade situation. The recession has not only reduced the demand for imported oil, autos and other goods but encouraged U.S. companies to seek sales abroad to offset problems in the domestic market.

The outlook for the trade picture this year becomes even more optimistic when measured on the broader current accounts basis. That calculation adds to trade of merchandise, the value of service transactions such as travel, transportation, insurance and certain other transfers of money, including earnings from foreign investments.

On that basis, Morgan Guaranty argues that the $10 billion trade deficit in the first quarter "almost certainly swung toward a balance during the second quarter of the year." Current account figures for the quarter won't be released until late this month.

Along with a weaker U.S. economy and dollar, Morgan Guaranty's report cites sharply higher earnings from overseas subsidiaries of U.S. oil companies as a major reason for the expected improvement in the current accounts balance.

But economists at both banks caution that the long-term outlook for continued improvement is clouded.

"Much depends on the extent to which oil prices are increased this year," say economists at Manufacturers Hanover. If higher oil prices reduce the ability of our trading partners to buy other imports, the U.S. export growth may falter, the report says.

Morgan Guaranty points to another aspect of the same problem. Once the U.S. economy begins to recover from the current recession, our oil imports may increase again.

"With oil prices as high as they are today, a 1 percent increase in energy consumption that is met by increased oil imports will add $5 billion to the annual bill for imported oil.

"As a consequence, the success in holding the line on oil imports may well be a key determinant of how long the United States continues its good trade performance."

In other business developments this past week:

—The ailing Chrysler Corp. said it lost $336 million in the second quarter of the year, a record loss in the auto industry. General Motors Corp. reported a $412 million loss in the quarter ended June 30. Those reports, issued this past week, brought the combined losses of U.S. automakers to $1.5 billion for the quarter. Earlier Ford reported a $468 million quarterly deficit and American Motors lost $85 million.

Bank reports first dividend

John Billingsley, chairman of the board of Western State Bank of Midland, announced that a cash dividend has been declared for shareholders of record at 5 p.m. July 22.

The dividend of $1.50 per share was voted by the board of directors at its July 23 meeting, and is the first such dividend to be declared in the history of the bank.

Stock market continues upward trend

By FLOYD NORRIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street, which waited for years for the recession to begin, is starting to act like the economic downturn is just about over.

Even as companies report that their profits in the second quarter were lower than last year, the stock market has continued a rally that has pushed up the Dow Jones industrial average to its highest levels in three years.

And on the other side of the street, where bond traders think recessions are good news because they bring down interest rates, bond prices have been sliding in part because of fears of rekindled inflation as the economic recovery begins.

This past week provided plenty of evidence for those looking for a recovery. The government's index of leading economic indicators — which is supposed to forecast the future and

Center slates stress seminar

A one-day seminar, "Managing Stress," will be sponsored by the Permian Basin Graduate Center from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 12 in its headquarters at 105 W. Illinois St., Midland.

The seminar will be conducted by Bob Avary, management consultant, and Dr. Sam Hooper, a practicing psychologist and a graduate of Baylor University.

Avary has been a training consultant in the Permian Basin the last 11 years.

The course is designed to aid individuals in identifying the patterns within that set up stress — then how to cope with the problems by changing the patterns.

sometimes does — rose in June for the first time in a year.

And the number of people with jobs in the United States actually rose in July, for the first time in five months, although the total unemployment rate edged up to 7.8 percent as more persons entered the workforce.

"The seedlings of future economic recovery are popping up now in the wake of the devastation wrought by the second quarter's deep drop in economic activity," said Irwin Kellner, a senior vice president of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, whose record as an economic prognosticator is mediocre at best, said the recession is "bottoming out" and said the administration thinks the recovery will begin in the fourth quarter.

But for every sign of an impending recovery, there seems to be one that points to more problems for the economy. Consumer spending seems to be picking up, but businesses are still hesitant. Many have cut back capital spending.

In the stock market, the result has been a lot of nervousness and speculation on how long the rally can last. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks set new records in mid-week and then bounced around.

The Dow average finished the week up 13.39 to 931.48, an average volume on the Big Board hit 47.86 million shares, compared to 43.91 million the week before. July ended up as the second busiest month on record for the NYSE.

The NYSE's composite average rose .34 to 69.44, while the American Stock Exchange market value index dropped 2.75 to 313.72.

Economists predicted a recession for two years before this one finally began. Now that it unquestionably has arrived, there is plenty of disagreement on when it will end, and on how fast the economy will recover.

Maury N. Harris, an economist with Paine Webber, is one who thinks this recession has plenty of life left in it. He says business still has to go through an inventory correction, although the inventory problems this time are not nearly as severe as during the last recession.

Nation's money supply decreases

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply fell $1.1 billion in the week ended July 23, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York said Friday.

Analysts were divided, however, on whether the reported decline and a rise in interest rates this week represented a new tightening of credit by the nation's central bank.

The New York Fed said M1A, comprising cash in circulation and checking accounts at commercial banks, fell to a seasonally adjusted average of $373.5 billion from $374.6 billion in the week ended July 16.

M1B, a broader measure comprising M1A and funds in checking-type accounts at savings banks and other financial institutions, slipped $1.1 billion to $394.4 billion.

The New York Fed said commercial and industrial loans at major U.S. banks fell $105 million to $153.23 billion in the week. Business lending fell $554 million the previous week.

Garlic strikers defied

GILROY, Calif. (AP) — This weekend's annual garlic festival was to go on despite a farmworkers' strike that has halted harvesting of the $50 million garlic crop and other produce, promoters said.

The United Farm Workers, which has won elections at three major garlic farms, planned to send pickets, vigils by worker children and a strike queen to the garlic festival.

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

Requests for Texas locations running high

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — While inquiries from domestic companies have slackened with the current recession, requests to the Texas Industrial Commission regarding Texas locations for foreign companies are running 27 percent higher than a year ago.

"Everything else is a little flat," reports International Trade Division Manager Frank Alagna, "but those calls are inundating us."

Last year, he reports, there were 570 such inquiries during the year — but it appears that number will be eclipsed by 1980.

To increase interest even further, the TIC is planning a seminar Nov. 18-19 in London for prospects from all over Europe, with some representatives of African nations also expected.

Alagna notes Texas is the only state with an office in Mexico, (and was invited to present information on its Mexico City office to a hearing in Washington on international trade for that reason) — but is one of only 10 states which lacks an office in Europe. TIC attempted in 1979 (as it has done before) to sell the idea of an office in Europe to the Legislature, but had no success.

The Mexico City office, opened in 1971, accounted for at least $42 million in direct business between Texas and Mexico last year in the private sector — not including large amounts of trade with such agencies as PEMEX, the national oil company, Alagna says.

He adds that figures are hard to come by in some cases, because businesses are reluctant to give out information which might be helpful to competitors.

Alagna says he expects 1980 to be another good year, with the new representative, Jeremy Wooliever, having "higher visibility with the embassy people, and also being very active in the international trade committee of the Mexican-American Chamber of Commerce."

Alagna is hopeful that the Legislature will approve funds for a new European office with the next biennial appropriation. Alagna also comments that addition of another person to the Mexico City office would allow more travel through Mexico and Central America on behalf of Texas business interests.

That idea also has been promoted recently by Abelardo L. Valdez, a Texan named last September by President Jimmy Carter as U.S. chief of protocol.

Valdez, speaking to trade and business organizations in Dallas, argued Texas' future is tied, more than any other state, to developing markets in Latin America.

But with increased competition from Japanese and European traders, Texas is going to have to work hard, including by enlisting its ethnic communities, in efforts to benefit from those markets, Valdez said.

Texas Automobile Dealers Association and Texas Bankers Association have asked the State Board of Insurance for a rehearing on the SBI's adoption of new credit insurance rules, which effectively lower premium rates and commissions.

The groups contend that the board erred in not having the hearing conducted as a contested case, saying the subject was "primarily the making of rates, setting of commissions and generally...the legal rights" of the associations.

The motion also contends that the board, by the rules it adopted, is attempting to fix commissions paid to agents — by establishing a "presumptively reasonable" rate on commissions — which the associations argue the board lacks power to do.

If the request for rehearing is denied, as is expected, the matter may go to the court-house.

The SBI's order amounts to an estimated $20-40 million in savings for consumers in premiums over the next three years, and is to go into effect Oct. 1.

Attorney General Mark White has ruled that the Industrial Accident Board may not release information "other than non-identifying statistical information" on worker's compensation claim files to state and federal agencies, or anyone else, unless the IAB determines that "fraud

Drought, heat create problems in West Texas

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

The agricultural situation has deteriorated markedly in the Midland area the last 10 days. The damage to crops being done by extremely dry, hot weather was compounded by insect problems. An unusual upsurge in cotton bollworm numbers coupled with a sharp drop in beneficial insect populations resulted in square and boll damage of up to 80 percent of total fruit load in many fields. Rangelands are burned dry and losing nutritive value rapidly. Some livestock producers are marketing calves early in an attempt to lighten grazing pressure on their ranges.

THE MIDLAND PECAN GROWERS Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Midland Room, Midland National Bank. The program will include a discussion of August drop and insects to be on the watch for during the balance of the month. Also, committee reports concerning the progress of planning and arrangements for the Midland County Pecan Show and Queen's Pageant will be heard. David Harris, president, urges all members and interested persons to attend.

FIVE MINUTES of standing out in the August sun would give any gardener a clearer understanding of what summer stress is all about. Although plants are considerably more tolerant of summer's heat than people are, make no mistake about it, they do suffer from the heat and dry weather.

Summer can be a difficult time for plants in the urban environment. Ornamental plants in urban areas are more susceptible to summer stress than the same plants growing in their natural environments. This is due to the presence of more paved areas, concrete and asphalt, higher temperatures, soil compactions, restricted root zones and even air pollution.

YOU AND I stay cool in the hot summer by perspiring. Our plants do about the same thing, but we call it transpiration. Plant leaves, like our skin, are covered by thousands of tiny pores. These leaf areas, like the pores of our skin, allow water to evaporate and cool the surface of the plant foliage.

On hot summer days, plants lose many gallons of water through their leaves by transpiration. A large tree, for example, can lose as much as 200 gallons of water a day. Some trees are much more efficient than others when it comes to absorbing water from the soil and holding it in their leaves. Thus, some trees give up water at a slower rate.

When soil moisture becomes depleted and plants are losing water faster than they can replace it, the plant will wilt and suffer. If a plant is allowed to stay in a wilted condition, or if vital plant activities are slowed down for too long due to high temperatures and water loss, the plant will show signs of summer stress.

DROUGHT STRESS does not always occur merely because the soil is not watered. It may be that the functional root system is insufficient to absorb suitable quantities of water, even though the soil may appear moist. I suspect that we West Texans, as conscious of plant water needs as we are, may often cause problems by giving too much tender, loving care. In other words, we may water so often in the establishment phase of lawns, trees and shrubs that we do not encourage root systems to spread out and down. We make it so easy for the plants to get a "drink" that they do not have to develop extensive root systems. This works fine in mild seasons, but when the going gets tough the plants may not be able to cope.

Trees and shrubs may respond to summer stress in a number of ways. High moisture-requiring trees, such as sycamore or cottonwood, may shed their leaves, much as in autumn. Others may hold their leaves, but the leaf margins may become dry, brittle and brown. We call this leaf scorch. Lots of sycamore, cottonwood and maple trees are plagued by this condition following the unusually not, dry June and July we have experienced.

WHAT'S THE CURE for summer stress? It's about the same as it is for people. Air conditioners can't do much to help plants, but a nice, long, cool drink of water from your hose can. Remember sandy soils do not hold but about one inch of available water per foot of depth. So, you need to water on a closer interval than if in a clay loam soil. About one and one-half inches of water twice a week will do it on most soils of two or three feet in depth. If you have a shallower soil or plants with limited root systems, you will have to water more often.

Festival sponsors import shade to combat heat

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Because of the record hot temperatures this summer, officials are importing three miles of shade to try to keep up to 100,000 visitors cool during the 1980 Texas Folklife Festival.

"It's going to be real shady," said publicist Sandra Mintz as she prepared for the official opening of the four-day granddaddy of Texas festivals at 5 p.m. Thursday. "There are about three miles of shade, burlap and camouflage."

The giant outdoor celebration — a sampling of the best of the various state festivals put on by representatives of 31 ethnic and cultural groups — used to be plagued with rain when it was held in September.

But now that it was shifted to escape the rainy weather and allow vacationing school children to attend, the heat is a problem.

"It's always something," Mrs. Mintz lamented.

The 6,000 people from throughout the state who put on the festival are planning on making visitors as comfortable as one can be in 100-degree weather.

The massive gathering features Texas food, music, dances, arts and crafts.

The ninth version of the festival is being built around the theme of a younger Texas when settlers did not have air conditioning, automatic ice makers, or even fans to keep them cool.

Early Texans had to rely on their ingenuity during the hot summer months, and that is what the folklife festival participants will be doing on the grounds surrounding the sponsoring Institute of Texan Cultures.

For example, storytellers are planning to spin their yarns under shade trees where listeners can sprawl and sip a tall glass of Lebanese mint tea.

The British pub reports it will feature Shandy Gaff, a thirst-quenching beer cooler, while icy sangria will be served at the Spanish booth.

Other cooling items available at 34 food booths will include cold potato salad at the soul food booth, guacamole chalupas at the Mexican Market, German pickles, India-Asian spiced fruits and Italian spumoni, a sweet snow cone.

Your horoscope
 By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, August 3, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Those born on this date are ambitious and hard working, and usually rise rapidly in their chosen careers. Guard against a tendency to become too set in your ways! New ideas and discoveries are announced every day, and you could lose a lot by closing your mind to them. A fondness for glamour and glitter could lead you down the primrose path this year, so beware of involvement with a stranger in late fall. An unusual chance to build up a nest egg presents itself in December. A cherished loved one desires more freedom.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Mix business with pleasure whenever you feel comfortable in doing so. Self-confidence could inspire you to reveal a new plan to loved ones. Romantic partner is supportive, enthusiastic.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Empathize with friend without becoming mired in his or her depression. The light touch would not be quite right in this situation, but do offer words of encouragement. Relative may share some surprising news.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An excellent day for decision-making. Move to another city or residence could result in a step up the ladder of success. Ponder options carefully and be analytical about aspirations, desires.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make the first move in mending a quarrel. Reflect on loved one's good points rather than dwelling on any weaknesses. Group activities are favored in afternoon.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Glamorous friend can have an unusual idea of the best way to spend a Sunday. Someone who has expressed an interest in your ideas may hope to form a new partnership. Look at proposal from all angles.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Change in plans could occur at last minute. Friends behave more predictably than mate, family members. Set aside some time to go over personal finances. Greater savings are possible if you will become more of a bargain hunter!
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Seek quiet surroundings in which to discuss a domestic problem. Differences with loved ones should be patched up without delay. Suggest doing something out of the ordinary to celebrate a new agreement.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The emphasis is on letting others set the pace. Entertaining an influential associate at home could pay off handsomely! Someone you hope to impress has a sharp eye for details.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Share a happy Sunday with good friends. Attending lecture or sermon in resort area could result in new insights. If visiting another's home, be a considerate guest.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Not a good day to ask for special favors, concessions. Be flexible. Plans are subject to last-minute changes. Family member who sometimes appears overly cautious may now take a reckless step.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Have some definite plans for the day, or you could be feeling a bit let down and bored by evening. Entertaining, gardening and visiting enjoy favorable influences. If mate, spouse wants to sit around home, strike out on your own!
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spend the day in pursuit of quiet pleasures, and encourage loved ones to do the same. A busy week lies ahead, so catch up on any needed sleep, rest. A phone call or spur-of-the-moment invitation to close relative is sure to please.

Monday, August 4, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: In the next few months, look forward to new progress and satisfaction at place of employment. Higher-up may step aside, giving you the chance to bound up several rungs of the ladder of success at one time. Hasty alliances will not be successful, so be very careful if choosing a new partner in romance or business. An opportunity exists to marry into money, but this may not be desirable. Both independent and sentimental, you seek true love! Encourage family members to cooperate with each other and holidays will be a time of great joy.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take steps to develop a natural artistic or creative talent. Youngsters need firm but gentle handling. Lay down certain ground rules and enforce them.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lay a strong financial base for future security. Investments could be more lucrative if turned over to experts. Romance takes an unexpected turn. In love relationships, be sure to do your share of giving.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good things begin to happen and some old worries evaporate! Be the person that others depend on in times of crisis. Refuse to let down anyone who joins your team.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Business, career matters may move more slowly than you would like. Use spare time to work on pet projects. Heed friend's advice on how to save time, money.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Set new goals, and back words with deeds. To preserve a reputation for reliability, meet all deadlines. Someone who professes admiration may actually be quite jealous. Be discreet about personal matters.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The time to launch a new project, self-improvement activities. Analyze a romantic situation. Someone new is due to come into your life very soon.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You handle a variety of tasks quickly, efficiently. New project should show considerable progress by week's end. Love relationship could reach the stage where a proposal is forthcoming.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Where money and relatives are involved, use intuitive knowledge wisely. Associate may show a new facet of his personality. Treat sensitive people with extra tact, diplomacy. Guard against making impulsive statements, critical comments.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Push ahead with business activities, operations launched last week. Someone who has been inaccessible can now be approached. Romance should be happy, but refuse to make promises that cannot be kept.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Try not to rush a romance along too quickly. Someone else's financial problems are none of your business, so refuse to add to any gossip going around! All types of gambling should be avoided this week.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Favorable financial conditions should prevail. Bankers, and others who can lend money, are sympathetic now. Haste could upset delicate negotiations, so go slow.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Follow through on any new ideas, instructions. Superiors are fair, but very firm. Short trips are unlikely to be worth their expense. Handle as much business as possible by phone.

Chinese opera star's life mixture of ups, downs
 HONG KONG (AP) — Hung Sin-nui or Red String Girl, twice-disgraced and twice-rehabilitated Cantonese opera star, has made a triumphant return from China, taking this colony by storm.
 Miss Hung, 53, a near-legendary figure in Cantonese opera, went to China in 1955, where she was humiliated by radical Red Guards, restored to a high position by their leader, Jiang Qing, and sacked on charges of working for the "Gang of Four."
 However, she has been given a clean bill of health after investigations.
 Daughter of a restaurant owner, Red String Girl arrived from Canton for the first time in 25 years recently with a 28-member troupe for a month-long performance.
 Days before her arrival, tickets for her operas were snapped up and upon arrival, she was mobbed at the railway station by fans, friends and former colleagues.
 Miss Hung's life has been laced with high praises and condemnation, glory and humiliation.
 Neglected by her parents, she started her film and opera career at 15, touring interior China during World War II, and came to Hong Kong in 1947 to establish herself as the undisputed No. 1 Cantonese female opera singer.
 Her return to China in 1955 created a political outcry with pro-Communist publications hailing her as a patriotic artist and anti-Communist ones described her as a traitor.

Feather for chamber

Just this week the Midland Chamber of Commerce began distributing to various mortgage bankers, real estate developers and industrial firms a new, upbeat informational newsletter called "Midland Update."

The newsletter contains various articles detailing construction in the city, new plant and business announcements and expansions, transportation information and so forth.

Chamber executive vice-president Fred Tyler said of the newsletter: "It's kind of an educational tool to tell what's going on in Midland."

The initial mailing list for "Midland Update" enumerates some 500 recipients, but there's little doubt that number will increase significantly in the future.

"Midland Update" is a fine addition to the chamber's already outstanding list of services. It obviously will provide a valuable service to its recipients.

But the newsletter also is merely interesting, reflective reading. Like this newspaper, it mirrors the growth of a vital, vibrant city in the Permian Basin. Uniquely, it captures the essence of this community's business sector.

Midland is growing, developing, spreading its wings and gaining confidence. The city has become known nationally for its extremely low unemployment levels, its extremely high per capita income and its stable and expanding economic base.

That doesn't mean, of course, that Midland is free of problems; the city suffers its share of misfortunes. But all-in-all Midland is an unusually successful community, in large part due to the oil and gas industry currently so vital.

Any community's economic strength is tied inseparably to its business and industrial base. It is through the dissemination of information that those businesses and industries are able to expand, grow and stay successful. The news media play a major role in this.

Now, the Midland Chamber of Commerce has provided another source through which that information may be distributed. "Midland Update" truly is a valuable educational tool, as Tyler noted, to keep its recipients abreast of what of consequence is happening in the Tall City.

It's another feather in the chamber of commerce's hat.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Aug. 3, the 216th day of 1980. There are 150 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Aug. 3, 1492, Christopher Columbus set sail from Spain on an expedition that led to the discovery of America.

On this date: In 1780, Benedict Arnold was put in command of the fortifications at West Point, N.Y., during the American revolution.

In 1951, it was disclosed that 90 cadets at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point had been dismissed for cheating in examinations.

In 1958, the atomic powered submarine "Nautilus" made the first undersea crossing of the North Pole.

In 1973, the Justice Department ordered a new investigation into the deaths of four Kent State University students who were shot and killed three years earlier by Ohio National Guardsmen.

Ten years ago, hurricane "Celia" pounded Corpus Christi, Texas, with 145-mile-an-hour winds that wrecked much of the city.

Five years ago, a chartered airliner crashed in Agadir, Morocco, killing 188 people.

Last year, the government warned that frequent smoking of marijuana sprayed with the weed killer paraquat can cause serious and sometimes irreversible lung damage.

Today's birthdays: Singer Tony Bennett is 54 years old. Actor Martin Sheen is 40.

Thought for today: Life is like an onion; you peel it off one layer at a time, and sometimes you weep. — Carl Sandburg (1878-1967).

'Billygate' tomfoolery nothing but a big waste of time

WASHINGTON — Is this Republic to be held hostage to the ineane activities of one William A. (Billy) Carter of Buena Vista, P.O. Box 234, Georgia? Is there so little business for the U.S. government to conduct that his buffoonery must now occupy our every waking moment?

The solemn asses of this town will now gather in claques and investigative sessions — flood-lighted, klieg-lighted and swarmed over by all manner of sweating louts purportedly pursuing the truth as God only knows it.

I would think that the Divine Being would first laugh, and then become bored with what surely will be called the great probe of "Billygate." The Billy Carter affair is destined to be a large exercise in time-wasting. The Republic is in no danger.

To begin with, the Libyan regime is one of the stupidest on earth. However Col. Muammar Kadafi has succeeded in feeding, watering, housing and clothing his subjects, revolutionary socialism is preposterous, and so is all his rhetoric.

To learn that this pistol-packing leader had expectations that his investment in Billy Carter would pay off in some sort of Middle Eastern-type favoritism from the United States government is to realize how vain and foolish Kadafi is. Only this week, Kadafi, still lusting for those cold-storage Boeing and Lockheed airplanes he made a down payment on, threw another dead cat our way. He honored us by tactfully proclaiming the U.S. "the great devil of our planet."

To mull over Kadafi's estimate, and to review the tale of Billy's involvement and escapades with the Libyans — a beer-belly brotherhood without beer, the buzzahs of mutual praise, the giant banquet in Atlanta with hooting in the galleries, and Billy's various epithets for his tormentors — is to understand the low state of Libyan foreign policy. It is also to understand why Egypt's Anwar Sadat must keep a wary eye on the cuckoo's nest next door.

Washington, being a breeding ground for pecksniffs and fustidians, will be wide-eyed and jabber-mouthed for weeks over the Billy Carter story. There will be scrutiny of minutiae, extraordinary hair-splitting, tedious accounts of who said what to whom at what time and after what was said to whom by who, and perhaps even exquisite parsing of

"IT'S BIGGER THAN BOTH OF US"

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Uranium sale to Gandhi sparks grumbling

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's cave-in to the government of Indira Gandhi by approving the sale of uranium to India without the safeguards enacted into law by Congress, has been the subject of grumbling on Capitol Hill.

But the extent of Carter's capitulation has not been made public. U.S. Ambassador to India Robert Goheen secretly briefed the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the matter in June. His testimony indicated that the Carter administration's reasons for giving India free rein to use American nuclear fuel for atomic bombs are either disingenuous or self-deluding.

The public argument the administration has made is that refusal to sell the uranium to India would mean the end of U.S. influence over India's nuclear development. But in a top-secret memorandum uncovered by my associate Dale Van Atta, Ambassador Goheen admits there is virtually no U.S. control over India and its use of nuclear technology.

The Carter administration knows this, of course. But what is far more important, the Indian government knows it — and every nation that buys nuclear fuel from the United States does not really mean it when he piously proclaims his determination to discourage the spread of nuclear weapons capability.

Under the Nuclear Nonproliferation Act of 1978, any nation seeking to buy uranium from the United States must either sign the international treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons or agree to open its atomic facilities to international inspection, the purpose of which is to prove that plutonium from spent nuclear fuel is not being diverted to nuclear weapons.

Jack Anderson

Ironically, the Indians' detonation of a nuclear device in 1974 was what moved Congress to pass the legislation. Yet India steadfastly refuses either to sign the non-proliferation treaty or to agree to open its nuclear plants for outside inspection. And barring a veto by majority votes in both House and Senate, Carter is prepared to let the Indians get away with it.

The State Department — and India — justify the sale of 38 tons of enriched uranium under a 1963 treaty by which the United States agreed to supply the fuel necessary to keep an American-built nuclear power plant operating at Tarapur. They argue, with legalistic nicety, that the congressional restrictions didn't take effect until last March, and thus should not apply to a prior agreement.

According to a Senate summary of a secret cable India sent last March 7, "India stated that it would continue to abide by its obligations under the (1963) cooperation agreement so long as exports for Tarapur are received on a timely basis, but that India could not accept continued delay and uncertainty."

This thinly veiled threat to take its nuclear fuel business elsewhere was enough to bluff the Carter administration. Ambassador Goheen tried to

ART BUCHWALD

Living up to stereotype not easy for college man

Art Buchwald

It's very hard for many college students to live up to the roles they have been given by the mass media. What newspapers, magazines, and television networks expect from students is more than most of them can deliver. I discovered this when I was speaking at a Midwestern campus not long ago.

A student, whom I shall call Ronald Hoffman, seemed very troubled, and I asked him what the problem was.

"My parents are coming up next week, and I don't know what to do."

"Why?"

"Well, you see, I told them I was living off campus with this coed in an apartment. But the truth is that I'm living in the dormitory."

"That shouldn't really disturb them."

"Oh, but it will. They're very proud of me, and they think I should have a mind of my own. When my dad heard I was living off campus with a coed, he doubled my allowance because, as he put it, 'Anyone who is willing to split in the eye of conformity deserves his father's support.' I don't know what he's going to say when he finds out I used the money to buy books."

"It'll hurt him," I agreed. "What will your mother say?"

"I don't know. She's been crying a lot since I wrote her about living with this coed, and Dad's been arguing with her that her trouble is she doesn't understand youth. Mom's likely to get pretty sore when she discovers she's been crying for nothing."

"Not to mention how silly your father will look for making her cry."

Ronald shook his head sadly. "The trouble with parents these days is they believe everything they read. Time magazine, in a 'Sex on the Campus' article, made it sound so easy to find a coed who won't even do the dishes."

"Then all this talk of students living out of wedlock is exaggerated?"

"Exaggerated? When I got here, I asked 10 girls if they wanted to live with me. The first one said she didn't come to college to iron shirts for the wrong guy, four told me frankly that it would hurt their chances of finding a husband, four told me to drop dead, and one reported me to the campus police. I was lucky to get a room in the dormitory."

"I guess it's no fun for a young man to pretend he's a swinger."

"You can say that again. Every time I go home, everybody wants to know about the pot parties and orgies I go to at school. The only thing that's saved me is that I've seen 'Caligula' twice."

"You have to depend on your imagination?"

"What college boy doesn't?" Ronald said. "There are more conscientious objectors among coeds in the sexual revolution than any modern sociologist would dare admit."

"It's enough to destroy your faith in People magazine," I said.

"Look, I'm not complaining," Ronald said. "I'm just trying to figure out how to explain it to my father. He's living his fantasies through me, and I hate to let him down."

"Why don't you tell him the reason you can't introduce the coed you're living with is that she's going to have a baby?"

"Hey," Ronald said, "that's a great idea. It might cause Mom to cry again, but it will make Dad awfully proud."

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

At this point, we don't know who is more embarrassed — Jimmy at Billy's actions or Billy at Jimmy's actions.

With all of Carter's family squabbles, if Walter Mondale's brother turned out to be Jack the Ripper, nobody would notice.

Miss Lillian hasn't criticized Billy's Libyan connection perhaps because she's been quietly making her own deal with Outer Mongolia.

I knew Billy was up to something when he replaced the nude calendar in his gas station with a portrait of Qaddafi.

However, we mustn't be too quick to judge Billy until we hear testimony from his two character witnesses — Bert Lance and Robert Vesco.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Dedicated funds bring problems, and creating new ones compounds them

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — When highway officials reported they'll need $360 million — maybe even $485 million — from the General Revenue Fund for fiscal 1981, Gov. Bill Clements' jaw dropped a bit. Clements left little doubt that the request was unwelcome news, phrasing his response more in the language of the oilfield roughneck than that of the bureaucrat. What has happened, Department of Highways and Public Transportation explained to the Highway Cost Index Committee (composed of Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Comptroller Bob Bullock), is that collections from motor fuel taxes and vehicle registration fees have dropped. Texans, DHPT says, are driving less and buying smaller cars — reducing income to the State Highway Fund.

Under a 1977 law, promoted strongly by then Gov. Dolph Briscoe and now Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, the Legislature set $750 million annually as the amount required to be spent for highways in Texas, with provisions for the Highway Cost Index Committee to adjust the amount annually for inflation, with any deficit from gasoline and auto license revenues coming out of the General Revenue Fund. And that's why highway officials are planning a $1 billion construction program, and are asking that over one-third of it come from the General Revenue Fund. The situation points up some of the problems with dedicated funds, an area the Legislature has struggled with over the years. Dedicated funds are used to assure continuation of programs, often through fees generated by those who benefit from or are involved in those programs, and try to "de-politicize" the appropriations process. But another side, pointed to by opponents, is that such funds can allow programs to escape legislative oversight, and to continue operating for years with little or no control by elected officials. One of the better decisions by Texas politicians involved creation of the Permanent University Fund, which has allowed The University of Texas and the Texas A&M systems to develop (critics say over-develop) their campuses. That fund created, in effect, a trust, the income of which provides money for university collections. Most also lack the ability, built into the highway program legislation, to reach over into other funding sources; neither do they contain required spending levels. In the last session of the Legislature, lawmakers eliminated the state ad valorem tax, which had been dedicated to construction at those state-supported universities not under the Permanent University Fund. Efforts were made to create a new dedicated fund for those schools, and efforts are continuing, with increases in tuition viewed as a new funding source. Some lawmakers continue to argue that any new construction requests from the schools should come to the Legislature — which would be better able then to prevent overbuilding while fulfilling legitimate needs. Efforts also are being made to channel increased tuition revenue into improved faculty salaries — a position endorsed by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System. Thus, it appears an effort will be made to sell the idea of increased tuition as part of a new dedicated fund for higher education, for construction, and/or salaries. It would be well, however, for legislators to look closely at locking in any additional funds to specific purposes. One of the frequent complaints during the appropriations process has been that too many programs are set by statute, with lawmakers having too little discretion. And between spending required as the result of federal programs, and appropriations required by state statutes, agencies and legislators frequently find they can do little but shove additional dollars into a system which they feel less and less able to control. The system can be controlled, but dedicated funds create additional problems in doing that — particularly at a time when state revenues generally aren't showing the rate of growth they have in past years (and in some cases are declining.) The 1981 Legislature is going to have its share — more than its share — of requests for spending, and very likely will have to pass new tax measures to meet those needs. While assuring continuation of a good highway system is a laudable goal, the spectacle of highway officials, like Oliver Twist, appearing annually to beg for more from the General Revenue Fund is one that doesn't need to be repeated with other agencies. An increase in the gasoline tax has been suggested to help solve the highway funding problem — at least in the short term. But experience suggests that problems with dedicated funds are going to increase, and creating new dedicated funds may compound future problems, when lawmakers are forced to try to dismantle part of the money-eating machinery they've helped erect, or else see the public's pocketbook mangled by it.

Wants details

To The Editor: Where can I get one of those Illegal Alien identification cards (they're green, I think)? I want to sign up to be an Illegal as soon as possible. Your recent editorial said that Illegals don't pay any taxes (to educate their children) and I want to get in on this no-tax deal right now! I don't really understand how the program works, though — could your editorial staff take a moment to explain it? In the check-out line, do the Illegals show their cards so as not to be charged sales tax? With no state income tax, and schools financed by property taxes (and "refunds" of federal taxes), I presume landlords tell the tax collector when they rent to Illegals and are forgiven all property taxes (which savings they pass on to renters.) How does the federal income tax part of the deal work? Employers withhold the income tax and Social Security tax, but Illegals don't always file tax returns for their refunds, and might not tell the truth when asked how many dependents they brought with them. How do they get all those taxes back? I confess that I don't have any idea at all how the Illegals avoid all the other taxes I now pay, such as gasoline taxes, excise taxes and so forth. Please publish complete instructions as soon as possible. Joe Hathaway Midland

As a contrast he then launched into a story about the second quarter profits of the oil companies. As usual, NBC displayed the percentage change in profits of this last quarter over the profits earned in the same period last year for four major oil companies (i.e. Mobil +65%, Gulf +27%, etc.) Chancellor did not give any relative profitability investment, or return on shareholder's equity figures — only the percentage increases in profits which are meaningless without any background investment information. Although I am not sure of the exact wording, Chancellor then said something to the effect of, "Those 'profit margins' (direct quote) are quite handsome." For Chancellor and NBC News to label those percentage changes in profits as "profit margins" is an irresponsible misuse of the facts. I can only assume that NBC has been misleading the public for so long with respect to the oil companies and their profits that now they have begun to believe their own misinformation. John R. your alley.) Help some old folks in their yard, surprise the neighbors who are on vacation, or pull some for people who just couldn't care less. It's an excellent way to punish misbehavior, too, because it is hard work. Men, or retired folks just sitting around, or feeling angry, bored or depressed? Go out and clean your own yard, or the nearest vacant lot and don't tell anybody you did it. Then see how proud you are the next time you drive by. Come on Midlanders, let's make Midland beautiful! Coin's other side

To The Editor: The reluctance of the American people to accept the Susan B. Dingbat dollar poses a problem for the Carter Administration. To allow this rejection to fester is to admit an embarrassing defeat. The problem: The coin is too confusing with other coins...both size and shape are too similar to the quarter. Coupled with an unpopular image on the face, the people refuse to use it. But a solution is at hand: a new coin, larger than the quarter, smaller than the half-dollar, and in the shape of an eleven or thirteen-sided polygon. This would allow the coin to operate vending machines, yet be distinctive to the touch. And it should bear the likeness of a recognizable American, someone more widely noted in the history of our country. One individual who might be considered is Jack Benny, a pleasant philosopher and humorist long noted for his frugality and his appreciation of the value of money. And to go with this emphasis of a sound economic coin, the reverse might bear that long-revered American business slogan, the Caveat Emptor, let the buyer beware. Think about it: you'd always have "Jack" in your pocket, a "Benny" would elate your spirits, and the Dingbat would again be relegated to the kitchen cabinets! Hugh G. White Midland

Wage weed war

To The Editor: Now, while weeds are fewer because of the drought, let's get rid of weeds, especially tumbleweeds. Each one that dries up and blows down an alley or street makes a billion new ones come up when it rains. Ladies! Can't afford a spa? Dig up 24 tumbleweeds while it's still cool in the morning every day for a week — bet you'll lose an inch at least. Do it while it's 100 degrees and you'll lose a pound at least. Children getting bored, restless, need something to do or extra money? Let them pull weeds, clean the alley (any alley — if you live in Midland, it's

Irresponsible

To The Editor: The NBC Nightly News broadcast of Thursday, July 24 was a classic case of irresponsible journalism. John Chancellor reported the second quarter record losses of two of the three major American automobile manufacturers.

Police friend

To The Editor: I have heard our policemen called many things: Cops, The Fuzz, The Do Right Boys plus ugly names, but to me they are named "friend." My husband has completely lost the use of his legs and I desperately needed help to get him into the car. I spoke to Mr. Gideon, our chief of police, and he told me it would be their pleasure to help me — to call them when I was ready for the help. Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock I called them and a man was here in a very few minutes. He was kind and gentle and helpful in every way. If you need help, they will be your "friend" too. Mrs. Clyde Davidson Midland

Honest teen-ager

To The Editor: Last week while shopping I lost a valuable article which I especially prized for sentimental reasons. The article was found in a store and turned in by a teen-age boy, who did not leave his name, expecting no reward. It is a pleasure to me to give credit where credit is due to our teen-agers, and I commend him for his honesty. We hear much more of the bad than we do of the good things. Let's look more for the worthwhile things that our teen-agers do instead of being so generous with our criticism. Mrs. Harry Krist Midland

Derelict initiatives

To The Editor: From Washington come complaints that the U.N. emergency resolution on Palestine is an Arab attempt to torpedo the Camp David initiatives. Since our president is, like myself, ex-navy, I would like to offer what I consider a more apt simile. I would equate it to the employment of naval gun fire in sinking a derelict which is beyond salvage and constitutes a serious hazard to navigation. Gordon S. Clark Eastland, TX

Patience needed

To The Editor: Approximately one year ago, my husband and I were fortunate in purchasing and becoming owners of a home which all of Midland has admired and loved for many years — the Hill house. We, too, have admired and respected the beautiful home. Very seldom did I drive down Illinois without taking a look at the stately and peacefully landscaped picture. Even now I look and miss something although the school system has replaced it with a luscious expanse of green lawn. I am aware of the interest and concern of most Midland residents for their home. We will probably never feel it is ours, and rightly so. Too much history is involved. It is and always has been our intention to restore the Hill house as nearly as possible to its former setting. Its move was painful, and its recovery will take time and patience. However, the prognosis is good. The house has suffered through injuries, thefts and vandals, but the Hill house will make it. Yes, there has been vandalism and theft. A locked door was broken open, and the stained glass windows were stolen but returned the next day. Windows have been broken. Shovels, all the copper tubing, yard ornaments, outside light fixtures, even the heater and air conditioner are items taken by some people who did not have the respect for the house it deserves. It has been expensive and discouraging. Due to the age of the trees and shrubs, we were advised not to move them. We listened but attempted to move the shrubs anyway. The time from digging and until the house was moved and set down on location plus summer heat took their toll and all were lost. We are glad we did not attempt to move the trees. However, there are other trees and shrubs, and all will be replaced in the location where the old trees and shrubs flourished. We will all have a Hill house we can be proud of — but not soon. Have patience. Mrs. Ralph (Jane) Viney Midland

Wants change

To The Editor: When sleeping at night my dreams are shattered by whispers — "Some more of the last four" — and I awaken in a cold sweat. There must be a change from the international political puppeteering, Mother Goose solutions to nightmarish realities and "bats in the belfry" diplomacies that have covered this country like a blanket over a pea. First, the release of our hostages should have been secured a long time ago! Perhaps had we not lost so much of our international respect and prestige the situation would have never developed (for fear of certain retaliation.) The irony of the administration's obvious futility is that we don't know for sure if they will ever be released unharmed and, if they are, what their mental/physical condition might be. Secondly, I believe that if the Soviet Union had the least suspicion that our current administration had even a remote idea as to what they were doing, they would have never entered Afghanistan. However, since they obviously knew the former wasn't true, they moved right in, taking advantage of the perpetual confusion in the White House. Thirdly, our military power has gotten to a point of toy soldiers, wooden guns and tinkertoy tanks. We need a change. J.W. Roth Midland

POSITIVE THINKING

Forget it all, and 'press toward the mark....'

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

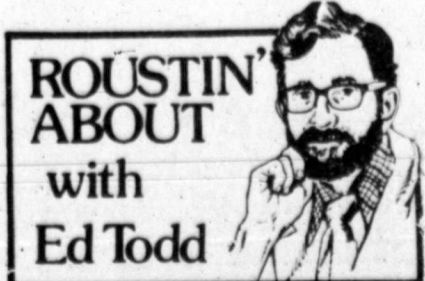

One of the most important skills you can cultivate is the ability to forget. It has been said that man is what he thinks or what he eats. He is also what he forgets. If you really want to move away from failures and unpleasant experiences, you've got to be able to say, "OK, I've had it — now I'll forget it." Memory is one of our greatest faculties. The ability to retain mentally is of vital importance. Without it one cannot develop. But it is equally important to be able to cast from the mind, or at least from a dominating place in our thoughts, the failures, unhappy experiences and unpleasant occurrences that should be forgotten. Extract from them all the know-how they may have to offer even if it's only the knowledge of how to avoid similar mistakes next time. Then forget it all and move forward. If you don't do this you are likely to become a victim of frustration and self-pity. They you will be through for sure, and no fooling.

My wife tells of attending a church convention in North Dakota a few years back. There had been a severe drought and the resulting crop failures had brought much privation to farmers in that area. At luncheon Mrs. Peale sat across the table from a hard-bitten, weathered farmer. He was a huge man with big, rough hands and a face tanned like leather. He was obviously shy and did not enter into the conversation. My wife tried to draw him out by asking, "How are the crops this year?" She drew him out all right! In fact, this inquiry elucidated one of the greatest rewards I personally have ever heard. "The crops," he replied, "I guess there ain't any crop this year, ma'am." "No crops?" she asked in surprise. "Why is that?" "Well," he said, "It's like this. First, we had grasshoppers which ate up nearly everything. Then along came a big dust storm which lasted for two days and destroyed about everything the grasshoppers had missed. But I was pretty lucky. I saved five percent of my crop. My brother who lives near me lost everything." Mrs. Peale was aghast at this simple, factual recital of devastating loss. The farmer sat quiet and composed. "How do you feel about such a tragic loss?" she inquired. "Oh," replied the farmer, "I don't think about it anymore. You see, I aimed to forget it. I just started working for next time." If you should list the really worthwhile remarks you have heard or read in your lifetime, I will venture to guess that no matter how profound some of them may have been, you will have to put that statement by the Dakota farmer right up at the top. "I aimed to forget it. I just started working for next time." Where did this man acquire such a substantial philosophy? Where did he get that kind of control over frustration? What was the source of his urbane acceptance and his sturdy undefeatibility? The answer to those questions was in his religious attitude toward life. He had not enjoyed the benefit of much schooling, and his advantages generally were limited. But every Sunday out there on the plains he went to church. The church was a plain wooden structure around which the wind surged and the snow piled high in winter. Rain beat against its spring and fall, and it was seared by the burning heat of summer. It had only rough wooden benches and plain windows and worn hymn books. But on the pulpit lay a book and the book was full wisdom. And the old farmer drank in the words until they molded and conditioned his character and developed his soul. Among the wise thoughts which fell upon his ears out of the old book were the immortal words of St. Paul, "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark...."

Earth's wonders cannot be duplicated, re-created

If faith is blind loyalty, then many church-goers, who perceive themselves as enlightened thinkers, are misled. Faith — true faith — is not without reason. Belief begs proof. Do you look unto the heavens or into the delicacy of a fragile flower and declare "There is a God; there is a Power omnipotent; I believe" without first sensing the finiteness of man and the intricacy and perfection in nature? Surely not. Man can alter things in nature, but he cannot create or destroy in total. Man is finite. The wonders that are on earth are marvels; they can be beheld, scrutinized, torn asunder, altered but not duplicated or re-created. They are not quirks, not accidents, not happenstances, not helpless products of evolution. To suggest that mere luck — mindless happenings — was the beginning of creation is absurd. Such a beginning would be, to paraphrase another, tantamount to turning out a Webster's Unabridged Dictionary by setting off an explosion in a print shop. To think otherwise is to believe in the magic of the improbable. It is a belief that all who enter the Irish Sweepstakes will emerge as grand-prize winners. Science does not get enlightenment from ignorance, though certainly the quest of knowledge is due to man's ignorance of the unknown. Spirituality does not grow from nothingness.

That grand but humble intellect, Albert Einstein, believed in more than that which he could not see or feel. He perceived. "Science without religion is lame," he said. "Religion without science is blind." Religion, perhaps, gives justification to the world that man does not fully comprehend. It gives reason for his beginning, his existence, his death and his hope for life anew. Religion, then, may be a philosophy. It may be a panacea. But, firstly, it recognizes that there is a Power beyond the mortal beings. There is a Supremacy beyond comprehension. There is more to life than the mind can comprehend. The proof is in existence, in the manifold intricacies of nature and the infinite universe.

Summer drought may trigger new interest in 'Big Ditch'

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — If water is ever imported to moisture-poor states like Texas it will be the result of political decisions, a top Texas water planner says, and water shortages could help sensitize Americans to the issue.

Accordingly, this summer's drought could be a disguised blessing for West Texas farmers whose fondest dream is a "Big Ditch" bringing water from other states.

"The analogy is the experience consumers have had with gasoline shortages...The drought calls people's attention to water first-hand, personally," says Herbert Grubb of the Texas Department of Water Resources. Grubb is the state's chief technician on the $6 million High Plains Ogallala Study, which Congress wants finished by 1982. The Ogallala Aquifer supplies water for a 225,000-square-mile farming area but is slowly being pumped dry.

An aquifer is a water-bearing bed or stratum of permeable rock, sand or gravel capable of yielding large quantities of water to underground wells or springs. Most aquifers, including those in Texas, are recharged by rainfall.

But during a drought, water often-times is pumped out of the aquifer more quickly than it can be recharged. Consequently, the water level of the aquifer drops.

The Ogallala irrigates six million acres in Texas. By 2000, unless new water sources are found or farmers learn to make do with less water, "the Ogallala will be capable of irrigating only 55 to 60 percent of the Texas acreage it now irrigates," Grubb said in an interview.

That's a critically short time as far as water planners are concerned. "In the annals of water development, when it takes 15 to 18 years to build an ordinary reservoir, therein lies the urgency," said Grubb.

The High Plains Study Council, appointed by governors of Texas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kansas, New Mexico and Colorado, decided in April to explore four possible water import routes:

— From the Missouri River at Fort Randall Dam in eastern Nebraska southwestward to eastern Colorado, then south to Bull Lake, near Littlefield, Texas.

— From the Missouri River at St. Joseph, Mo., across Kansas and the Oklahoma Panhandle to the Canadian River near Canadian, Texas, and Bull Lake.

— From the White, Arkansas, Ouachita and Red Rivers in Arkansas and the Sulphur and Sabine Rivers in Texas, westward through Texas to New Mexico, with storage at Bull Lake.

— From the White, Arkansas, Ouachita and Red Rivers in Arkansas, westward across Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle to New Mexico.

Grubb said his best guess was that any surplus water in the Missouri River system could be used entirely within Nebraska and Kansas.

That would leave Arkansas, with which Texas has negotiated for surplus water for several years.

Grubb said Arkansas water planners recently told the High Plains Study Council's research contractor they believed Arkansas would have surplus water available for export.

One possibility lies in the fact that some water flowing through eastern Oklahoma is dedicated to Arkansas by interstate river compacts, Grubb said.

"We are hopeful this is a potential source of water that is closer, at a higher elevation, if we can work out a mutually acceptable development plan for Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and New Mexico," he said.

Texas, meanwhile, has joined the Ozark Regional Commission, which works for economic development of an area that lies largely in Arkansas.

No state would be expected to give away its water, and somebody would have to pay the huge construction and energy costs involved in importing water from a lower elevation to the High Plains.

It cost California $2.3 billion to construct its 440-mile system of lakes, pipelines and canals in the 1960s and 1970s.

The 1979 Legislature authorized creation, with voter approval, of multi-county water import authorities that would levy taxes and impose water user charges.

Grubb believes the energy crisis will contribute to a future water crisis unless cheaper forms of power for pumping water are found.

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint for those lucky folks whose children have hamsters, gerbils or mice as pets. We've spent many a sleepless night listening to those nocturnal little critters running around on those squeaky metal "treadmill" wheels.

Finally, I thought of using a little vegetable oil on the wheels and the silence was beautiful!

Now I keep a small pill bottle (clearly labeled, "hamster wheel oil") filled with the vegetable oil which won't hurt the little fellows. I keep a cotton swab in the bottle also and just dab a little on the squeaky areas when necessary.

Now our house is quiet as a mouse should be at night.

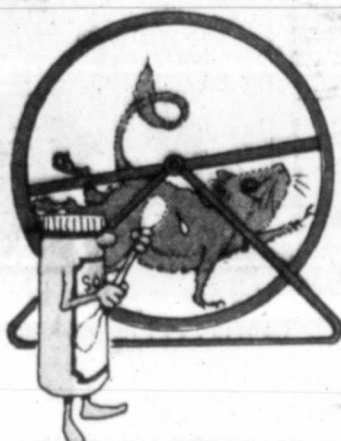

Marlene
I'm delighted you didn't keep quiet about your clever little problem solver. Good old American homemaker ingenuity at work again!

Thanks a bunch and give those children a big hug from me.

Love, Heloise

'YOU'RE SPECIAL'

DEAR HELOISE:
Instead of buying stickers to use on backs of the envelopes when sending notes to friends, I cut up old catalogs of one sort or another, using appropriate pictures as seals.

These can also be pasted on small folders for gift enclosures or on plain stationery to dress it up, saying "You are special to me."

Maybe this is not a new idea, but one which brightens up our world a bit with love and caring.

Martha Lawson

NO DUCK FOR HIM!

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband bought a plastic siphoning hose (for less than a dollar).

Upon seeing it, my 3-year-old son claimed it for his bathtime play.

He thinks it's the best water toy he's ever had.

Norma Hock

BEDTIME STORY!

DEAR HELOISE:

Each night before my three daughters (ages 4, 9 and 11) go to bed, I help them select the clothes they are going to wear the next morning.

These clothes are laid out on their chests of drawers and no morning hassle hunting matching socks or underwear.

JOE BAGS A GOOD IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

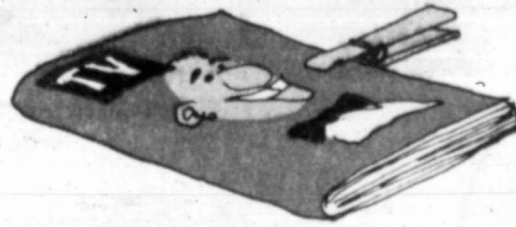

This hint is for other kids (and grown-ups too) who like to bake.

I find that when a recipe calls for greasing a pan, I just get a sandwich bag and put my hand in it.

Rub the pan with the grease, then turn the bag inside out and throw it away.

A WAY TO KEEP YOUR PLACE

DEAR HELOISE:

I don't know about you, but at our house we're always losing our place in our TV program.

One day I was just fooling around with a clothespin and it came to me!

I put the clothespin on the side of the TV magazine and it worked like a charm.

This way, it keeps your place and stays out of the way, too.

TRICK OF THE WEEK

DEAR HELOISE:

How do you keep your scarves in easy reach when selecting your outfits?

I took a cardboard box and cut a long strip about five inches wide and made the shape of a hanger at one end so it could be hung over my closet rod.

Then I cut small holes down the strip of the cardboard just large enough for one end of the scarf to be pulled through. If you try this, stagger the holes so each scarf will be more visible.

You can make the board as long or as wide as you like. This makes a gadget on which all your scarves can be hung neatly in your closet next to your clothes.

This also saves space in the drawer where they seem to get lost among all your other articles.

PATTERN PATER

DEAR HELOISE:

Over the years, I have collected many patterns for afghans, sweaters, infant wear, etc. giving directions for knitting or crocheting.

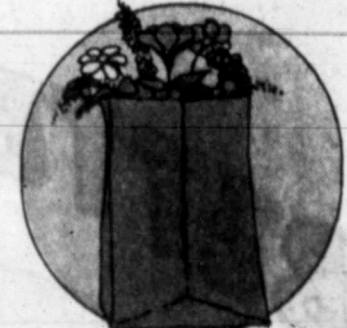

Usually I have to leaf through a lot of books to find what I want. So the other day I decided I was going to do something about it.

I purchased several looseleaf notebooks and am in the process of putting all the patterns into categories in each notebook and putting an index inside the front cover.

Now if I want to make an item for a baby, for instance, all I will need to do is pick up that particular notebook and all the patterns will be together.

THE TIP-OFF!

DEAR HELOISE:

They say necessity is the mother of invention and I have just discovered the greatest method of transporting a flower arrangement in my car.

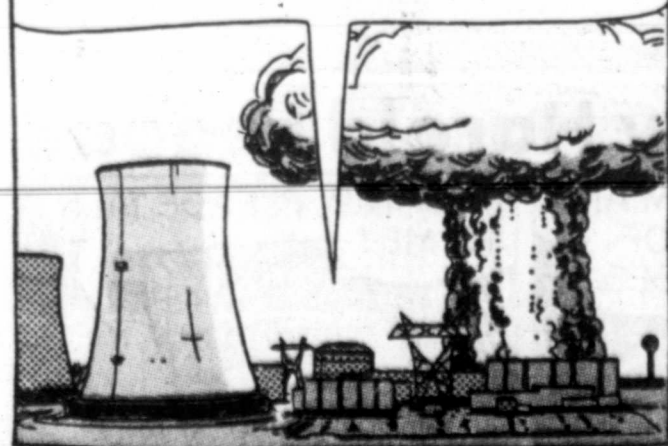

Place an old catalog (or similar heavy book) in the bottom of a large grocery paper sack. Set your flower arrangement in the sack.

The weight in the bottom keeps the sack from tipping over. Place in the floor or trunk of your car and be on your way.

FUNKY WINKERBEAN

BEFORE I TAKE ANY QUESTIONS FROM THE PRESS...

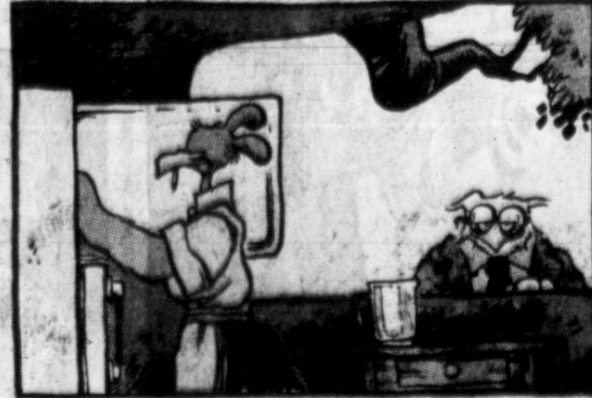

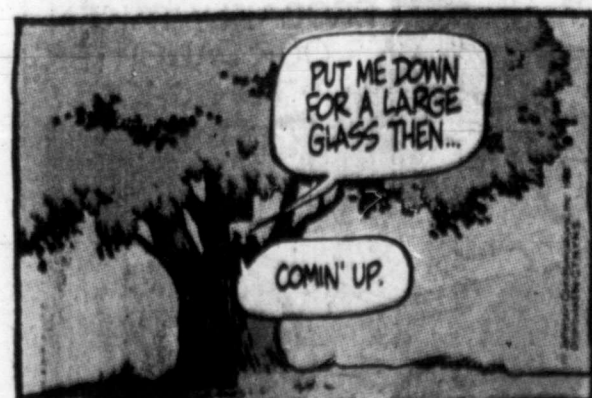

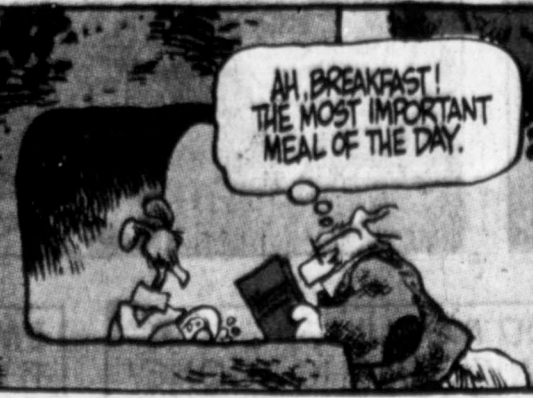

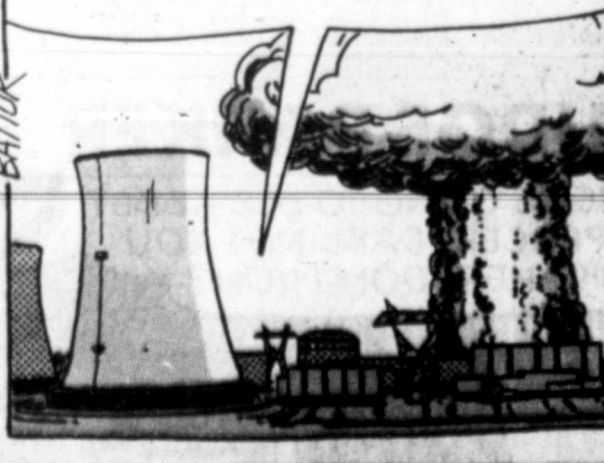

I'D LIKE TO STATE AGAIN THAT NOTHING IN THIS MORNING'S UNSCHEDULED SHUT-DOWN VIOLATED ANY OF THE REGULATIONS SET DOWN BY THE NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION.

WHAT ABOUT THE NUCLEAR TEST BAN TREATY?

WE'RE STILL LOOKING INTO THAT!

Our Story:
THE NEWS OF KING ARTHUR'S DEATH WILL BE THE SIGNAL FOR MORDRED AND HIS HENCHMEN TO BEGIN THEIR SLAUGHTER. A PAGE THROWS OPEN THE DOOR.

"THE KING!" HE SHOUTS IN FRIGHT AS MORDRED'S NOBLE THUGS GRIP THEIR HILTS. "THE KING IS GONE BERSERK." MORDRED RELAXES. "THE THINGS THESE POISONS DO." HE SMILES. "HOW PLEASANT THE DEATH SCENE SHOULD BE QUITE CONVINCING."

BUT NOW HE PRICKS HIS EARS. "OUT OF MY WAY" RUMBLES A FAMILIAR VOICE. "IT IS MY CROWN. I MAY GIVE IT TO WHOM I PLEASE." ARTHUR STRIDES INTO THE HALL, EVERY INCH A MADMAN. HE TURNS HIS GAZE ON MORDRED.

"MY LORD IS NOT WELL." MORDRED MUMBLES NERVOUSLY. "FIT AS A FIDDLE." ARTHUR LEERS. "BUT YOU LOOK A LITTLE PALE, BROTHER. HERE, MY MEDICINE WILL DO YOU GOOD. DRINK IT, AND MY CROWN IS YOURS."

THE KING KNOWS! HE DID NOT TAKE THE POISON AFTER ALL. MORDRED'S FACE TWITCHES IN FEAR. "SIRE, HAVE MERCY..."

"MERCY?" ARTHUR SCOFFS. "DID YOU SHOW MERCY TO OLD LORD TRUEHEART? OR TO THE SIMPLETON ODO? NO, MORDRED, MERCY DOES NOT WORK WITH YOU. GAWAIN, HAVE THE BELLS RUNG. SUMMON THE PEOPLE OF CAMELOT."
