Sawed-off shotgun forced retreat, officers testify

Two Midland lawmen who testified that they entered the J.L. "Jack" Nichols home on the afternoon of May 27 with drawn pistols to serve a search warrant said they were compelled to retreat after Nichols confronted them with a 12-gauge sawed-

"He told me to drop my weapon or he would shoot me," testified Midland police undercover narcotics officer Mike Mann, who said he was holding his pistol in his right hand and his police badge, identification, and the search warrant in his left hand.

Mann, under examination by prosecutor Jim Rex and cross-examination by defense attorney Jimmie D. Oglesby in a jury trial in the 238th State District Court on Tuesday, said he declined to drop his weapon, which, he said, was held in a down position. "I told him (Nichols) I didn't want anyone to get hurt," said the officer.

'He told me again to drop my weapon," said Mann. "I refused to do so. I was in fear that I was about to be killed.

MANN SAID he felt there was a "great possibility" that Nichols would kill him as well as Midland County Deputy Constable Tom McGinnis, who had accompanied Mann to serve the search warrant just outside the southern outskirts of the Midland city limits. Neither Mann nor McGinnis was in uniform.

Again, Mann said, Nichols threatened him and McGinnis.

'Get out of my house, or I'll kill you," Mann said Nichols screamed. Mann said he returned his pistol to his waist band and dropped the search warrant on the floor, as Nichols had demanded; McGinnis said he re-holstered his sidearm. And both backed out of the house, walked to Mann's white, unmarked car, but sped away, they said, after Nichols' wife, Beverly Ann, 32, came out of the house with a handgun and the 28year-old Nichols came out with the shotgun.

Later that day, Mr. and Mrs. Nichols were arrested, jailed and charged with assaulting the two law-

Before they found themselves facing Nichols and the shotgun, Mann said he was trying to serve the warrant at the front door of the Nichols house and McGinnis said he was "securing" the back of the house.

BOTH LAWMEN said that they identified themselves as law enforcement officers. But Mann said Nichols 'slammed the door' on him, and McGinnis said Nichols did the same thing to him at back of the house. Mann, who sports a beard and long hair, said he was dressed in his customary casual work clothes - blue jeans and a sports shirt - as an undercover officer. McGinnis said he was dressed in Western attire and was wearing his deputy constable's badge. McGinnis is clean shaven and wears a short, conservative, hair-

The police narcotics officer admitted that he "did not look like a regular police officer on the street" when he served the warrant.

"You were trying to not look like a police officer?" Oglesby asked.
"Yes, sir," Mann said. "I have never seen a narcotics officer in uniform in the execution of a search warrant." Oglesby suggested that the wearing of a police uniform would tend to eliminate any misunderstanding or confusion about the officer being a bona fide lawman who was serving a search warrant.

"I haven't done it (wear a uniform) in the past and will not do it in the future, unless I'm instructed to do so," Mann said. Mann and McGinnis were the only two witnesses called by District Attorney Vern Martin and his assistant prosecutor, Jim Rex. Oglesby, who was assisted by Bill Ward, called none, and elected to not have the defendant testify. Since his arrest, the slender 6-foot-0 Nichols has shaved his beard but kept his moustache and has ceased shaving his head.

MANN SAID that he had picked up a search warrant from Peace Justice John Biggs earlier on May 27 after he and Midland police Sgt. Joe Carr had driven out to the Nichols residence, did not trespass, but did spot 'six, eight, or 10" plants of what appeared to be marijuana growing in a flower bed. Mann said the plants, which he supposed to be marijuana, would be a "very small" amount and, if marijuana, would be tantamount to a "misdemeansor bust." Once dried out, the leaves would weigh out to a "half ounce" or less of the contraband, Mann said under cross-examination by Oglesby. He said that he and Sgt. Carr had gone out to the Nichols place on the morning of May 27 after a "confidential informer" had said marijuana was growing out on the Nichols'

Radio reports some accord among Poles

GDANSK, Poland (AP) - The state radio said today government negotiators and representatives of some of Poland's tens of thousands of striking workers had reached a "common position" on strikers' demands.

The Gdansk Radio report did not specify which of the demands were tentatively settled. It said 17 individual strike committees were involved in the talks, but it was unclear just how many of the workers were represent-

The report said the negotiators' agreement was passed on to higher levels of the communist government, and the government's decisions would be presented to the workers later

"A common position was reached in demands concerning the work force in these enterprises," the Gdansk Radio report said.

An estimated 175 enterprises employing more than 100,000 workers have been idled since last Thursday by the strikes.

The negotiations are apparently part of a "divide-and-conquer" strategy in which the government negotiating commission asserted it would meet only with individual strike committees, not with an umbrella conmittee that sought to represent all the striking workers.

Jan Szydlak, chairman of the government-sponsored trade union organization, whose abolition has been among the unified strike committee's central demands, was party to the talks, the radio said.

Meanwhile, the Polish strike wave rippled briefly across the country to the steel mills in the south, but workers there were reported back on the job. Both government officials and dissident sources said many of the 40,000 workers walked off the job Tuesday at Nowa Huta, the showcase steel center near Krakow, some 300 miles south of Gdansk.

But they said the first shift came to work today because some sort of agreement had been reached with the government. It was not known whether the workers made the same demands as their colleagues in the restive Baltic area.

The government was still not using force in the Baltic region to end the serious challenge to it, now in its seventh day, and a spokesman said police and troops would not occupy the strikebound plants. But the chief of state, Henryk Jablonski, warned that the "fate of the nation" was at

The strike in the Gdansk-Gdynia-Sopot area of northern Poland's central Baltic coast spread to the major port of Szczecin, 180 miles to the west on the East German horder, and to Elblag, 40 miles east of Gdansk, the official PAP news agency reported.

Dissident sources said there were at least 20,000 strikers in Szczecin, in-cluding shipyard workers and municipal bus drivers, and at least 10,000 at the Zamech turbine works in Elblag. More than 100,000 strikers have been reported in the Gdansk area.

mate, which would give him the 40,719 needed to get on the ballot. Strake also said similar checks of petitions gave the Libertarian Party a place on the ballot but denied a ballot spot to the Socialist Workers Party and the Citizens Party.

June Middlebrooks, deputy director of the Texas Democratic Party headquarters, said Anderson's petitions were being run through the Democrats' computer. If enough Democratic names show up to affect Strake's decision, then the party may sue.

Strake said most of the names removed from the Anderson petitons were either illegible or were those of voters in May 3 Republican presidential primary. "We did not remove any names of those who voted in the Democratic presidential primary," Strake

Strake has contended that Republican voters could not sign Anderson petitions but Democrats could, because the GOP primary was binding in selection of national convention delegates while the Democratic poll was a "beauty contest."

Attorney General Mark White issued an opinion saying persons who voted in the Democratic primary also were prohibited from signing presidential nominating petitions.

Strake said Anderson submitted almost 80,000 signatures on petitions. He said his staff verified one percent of the signatures, just as White, his predecessor, had done. The sample was tested in the 80 counties where the signaturs were collected. Strake said the 800 signatures tested showed that 585, or about 73 percent, were legal.

"We feel every optimistic about our current decision," said Strake.

When asked if he expected a lawsuit, he said "If I were them, I wouldn't do it. I think it would be an expensive losing ordeal. Ms. Middlebrooks said the Democrats will attempt to determine in comparing Anderson's signatures with their own computer files of registered Democratic voters on May 3 whether the petitions approved by Strake contain enough Democratic signatures to keep Anderson from being certified.

Corporate profits picture means spending cutbacks,

WASHINGTON (AP) - The sharp drop in corporate profits from April through June means that companies will continue to cut back their spending and lay off more workers in coming months, private economists

The squeeze on companies is tightened further by suddenly rising interest rates that discourage borrowing for new plants and equipment, these economists explain.

Moreover, a revival of rampant inflation last month will add to the cost of new business investment and dampen any prospect of a rapid resurgence in consumer demand — a force that should exist if companies are going to risk heavy spending.

These trends — which would ensure a very sluggish recovery from the current recession - were painted in interviews Tuesday with economists from three of the nation's leading private forecasting firms. The economists agreed that the decline in corporate profits — while not unexpected — virtually guarantees that companies will further cut back activity and lay off more workers. "This is a trigger for cutting employment," said Sandra Shaber, senior economist of Chase Econometrics Associates in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. 'This is inescapable." Chase Econometrics, Data Resources Inc., and Evans Economics

all predicted a sustained shrinkage of corporate profits through this year as the recession continues — although at an easing pace. On Tuesday, the Commerce Department reported that corporate profits fell steeply from the first quarter to the second quarter. This occurred while the nation's entire economy plunged 9 percent from April through June as the full force of the recession took hold. Pre-tax profits from April through June fell 19.8 percent from the first quarter, while after-tax profits declined 18.2 percent. Corporate profits from current production — a measure that adjusts for depreciation and the replacement of inventory - fell nearly 11 percent from first quarter to second quarter. Companies did manage to retain more of their total earnings during the second quarter than in the first quarter. However, these retained, profits were 13 percent below levels set during the same three-month period in 1979, Commerce Department figures show "If retained earnings are shrinking, and interest rates are up, business investment will be choked off in coming months," said Ms. ShPber.

Otto Eckstein, head of Data Resources of Lexington, Mass., said the falloff in capital spending — once concentrated in the auto industry — 'now is diffused throughout the entire economy.' Ms. Shaber said that while individual companies knew before Tuesday that their own profits were down, they were not aware of the total picture for all companies. "Now, they will look at the aggregate trend and base plans on this," she cautioned. "Profits are a psychological trigger." The nation's unemployment rate shot up swiftly from 6.2 percent to 7.8

percent between March and May. But since then, it has remained Despite this stability, all three private forecasters expect joblessness to rise to about 8.5 percent by year's end, a prediction recently adopted by the Carter administration "With profits declining, there is growing pressure to lay off workers,"

Future business spending is considered a crucial means to grease the recovery from recession, Ernst stressed. That's because consumers won't be in a position to spend heavily in coming months, he said. Wages and salaries fell in July as people were pummeled by the painful mix of high unemployment and double-digit inflation. Moreover, after easing for several months, wholesale prices rocketed by 1.7 percent in July. That represents an annual rate above 22 "With higher costs, people will have to cut back spending, particularly for conswmer durables like appliances," said Ms. Shaber. "This is not a very favorable sign; particularly if business is cutting back too," she said.

Interest rates are climbing again

Chase Manhattan hikes prime rate to 11.25 percent

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates on business loans and home mortgages are climbing again, and analysts say further increases are likely in the next several weeks.

The upward spiral was underscored Tuesday when Chase Manhattan Bank raised its prime rate a quarter of a percent to 11.25 percent and two major California mortgage lenders boosted their rates to 13.5 percent.

Chase, the nation's third-largest commercial bank, said its action was in response to rising costs in lending. Wall Street analysts predicted other customers - parallels changes in open-market interest rates such as the federal funds rate. Those rates have soared in recent days, raising banks' lending costs.

The upturn in rates was particularly evident at the Treasury Depart-ment's latest auction of short-term bills. The rate on 26-week Treasury bills rose from last week's 8.891 percent to 9.765 percent, the highest since last April. The higher Treasury bill rates mean banks will be paying higher interest rates on the popular sixmonth money market certificates starting Thursday.

Bank officials say they expect interest rates to continue rising in the next several weeks before tapering off in late October or early November. The prime rate does not apply to consumer loans, but is considered a key barometer of trends in all kinds of interest rates, including those on auto and home loans.

Home mortgage rates in California have been rising steadily over the last four weeks. On Tuesday, Great Western Savings & Loan Association of Beverly Hills, Calif., boosted its rat to 13.5 percent from 13 percent.

New park plans cut to bones

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Plans for two parks that are being constructed partially with funds from community groups have been slashed to the bare bones, but the blame for the cuts has gone to the contractors whose bids have been far above the estimates.

The Parks and Recreation Commission, meeting in a regular session Tuesday, was told the contractor already has started work on Tumbleweed Neighborhood Park, located south of Wadley Avenue and west of A Street, but the city only had $74,000 to develop it. Basic ground work is being done at Kiwanis Park, but there aren't enough funds to finish it according to the original Junior League of Midland has donated money for Tumbleweed Park while the Kiwanis have put out money for Kiwanis park on Haynes Avenue.

For $74,000, the city is managing to get the earth work done and a sprinkler system installed at Tumbleweed, according to George Logan, parks superintendent. City crews will plant trees and grass and install playground equipment that has already been pur-

BUT WAYNE KOHOUT, director of parks and recreation, pointed out that some trees, nighttime lighting, sidewalks and fountains have been eliminated from the original plans and will have to be put in later.

Of the $74,000, Kohout said $54,000 is going primarily for earth work, which means moving the dirt, surveying and putting in utility lines for lights and water fountains.

"You mean we're paying $54,000 just to move dirt around," said an incredulous commission member.

"The architect himself couldn't figure out the high costs," Kohout said of the unusually high bids. As a result, the City Council took the park plan and accepted the lowest bids on a piecemeal basis.

"What type of Astroturf is this you're putting in," quipped commission member Mark Philpy.
"We're putting in our own grass," Kohout replied.

"We're reaching the point we can't afford to have parks," remarked another board member, Nada Baulch.

Kohout explained the high costs on bids are not limited only to parks, but to all facets of the city.

"Bids and estimates are having a tremendous spread, as much as 100 percent. It's difficult to get a handle on it. Building costs here are about the highest in the state. Their (contractor) attitude is 'if you want to take the estimate, fine; if not, fine,' " he said.

The higher building costs might be limited to governmental entities, alluded board member Kent Sloan of Commercial Bank &

He explained that a customer was wanting to build a softball field and Sloan checked with contractors on a price.

"I WAS TOLD by one firm that if it was for the city, the bid would be three times as high," Sloan recalled, "Why?" questioned a puzzled Philpy. "The city of Midland has a good bond rating. It pays its bills."

After finding out that Rose & Sons is the general contractor for Tumbleweed Park, Philpy said he would call the company "and find out why the hell it costs so much to build a park.

Because of these skyrocketing costs for capital improvements in parks, the City Council is considering instituting a plan to set up a voluntary donation system whereby the money would go into a

The Parks and Recreation Commission voted to adopt the plan and a list of priorities.

The commission decided that it is the city's responsibility to buy park land and to maintain parks. The extra money would go to constructing parks.

The formal statement going to the City Council calls for the money "to improve and construct existing and newly-acquired parks and recreational facilities."

Heading the list of priorities is finishing Kiwanis and Tumbleweed parks. Also on the list were lighted softball fields, additional work on Hogan Park Golf Course, installation of sprinkler systems in some parks and interior furnishings for the Senior Citizens Center.

THIS VOLUNTARY monthly donation of $1 will be printed on the water bills, but it will be several months before the city's computers can be reprogrammed. Meanwhile, the commission suggested stuffing the water bills with a notice about the donafor the capital improvements. Residents surrounding Tumbleweed Park are being asked for their ideas about the park, said Kohout. He explained that some residents don't want a park, others want some changes made and the remainder are agreeable to the plans.

New fees and charges for 1980-81 were approved by the commission. The list will go before the City Council to be adopted. The major change was in the yearly golf course fee which went from $200 up to $220.

Logan pointed out that parks crews have been installing sprinkler systems in several city parks and haven't had time to mow the areas. With the recent rains, "they are beginning to look a little ratty," said Logan, but assured the commission the work

School officials defend budget

One method the school district uses in recognize good instructors, Trustee President Edward Bunyan explained. is the Performance Base Salary Supiement program.

Teachers who are identified as exceptional receive a salary supplenent each time they qualify, according to the plan.

ALSO, TEACHERS are required to to through an evaluation process. New teachers are evaluated once each year for three years. After that period, the instructor is reviewed mee every three years, explained Dr. James Mailey, superintendent.

Administraturs are reviewed every year by the superintendent and the superintendent by the board of trustees, he noted

Fran Bulawa questioned the board's prerogative to give raises above the federal inflation guidelines., He noted that in the private enterprise sector, the government regulated such salary increases.

"We are certainly not governed by any other governmental bodies," said Trustee Parker Humes regarding the possible state influence on salaries.

But in other areas of the state, there have been salary increases anywhere between 15 to 18 percent this

THE 15 PERCENT teacher raise. Humes continued, was an attempt to stay competitive with other school districts.

Trustee Johnny Warren defended the school board's decision on the pay raises, noting the loss of teachers to private enterprise.

Teachers can't afford not to work for the oil companies because they pay a better salary than we can.

'A lot of our teachers are not teaching because of the money," he added, "but because they love to hand to the door.

What we are trying to achieve is a decent local wage." Midland's growth in building con-struction should have widened the tax base and brought the tax rate down, contended Doyle Snow.

HOWEVER, THE current tax rate of $1.26 per $100 assessed valuation was dropped to the proposed 89 cents, said Mailey. This drop is a reflection of the widening tax base, he stated.

Trustees explained that the district may have to pick up more of the schools tab because of reduced funding from the state.

At one time, Runyan recalled, the district and the state split the cost of education 50-50. If the district wanted to pay the state minimum, Runyan noted they would have to raise salaries only 5.1 percent. But, the district wanted to do better and so local resources had to fund the 32 percent above the state minimum

Also, trustees pointed to inflation creating several increases. Gasoline custs went up over 100 percent from last year and the cost of utilities continue to increase.

OTHER INCREASES IN the school budget were a result of new programs, such as the Bunche Early Childhood Center, and the expansion of other programs, such as fifth graders being included in the Hoffman reading program.

Trustees again repeated their promise to the taxpayer to review each program the district is currently agerating and evaluate it with emphasis toward cost and educational affactiveness.

The public is invited to participate and give input regarding the programs, Runyan said, "Encourage your friends to look at the programs.

If this community tells us to cut out a program, we'll cut it out," he

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following interview took place Monday after-noon, the day before the trial of Jack Nichols began.

Lawmen's suggestions that Jack and Beverly Ann Nichols are "dangerous revolutionaries" is a bunch of bunk. Mrs. Nichols' said on the eve of her husband's trial.

Nichols is indicted for allegedly assaulting two plainciothed peace offcers with a sawed-off shotgun on the Nichols' homestead about a mile south of Midland in late afternoon of May 27.

But Nichols' wife, in an interview with The Reporter-Telegram, said that she and her spouse are strongwilled, non-conformists and have their own political ideas. And, she said, her husband's vows to secede from the Union to escape harassment and to turn his plot of land into an independent Nichols' state was "just that she and her husband did not aim any firearms after Mann and McGinnis had fled earlier that day.

THE COUPLE was arrested and jailed that night after they had held Midland police, sheriff's deputies, and Department of Public Safety troopers "at bay" for about three hours. Mrs. Nichols termed it a "socalled siege" that appeared to have political overtones.

The next day, when they were charged, "we were strapped, chained and handcuffed," she said.

Since his arrest, Nichols, 28, had been confined to Midland City Jail in lieu of posting bond. But on Monday he was transferred to the fourth-floor jail in Midland County Courthouse On the floor below, he is being tried before a four-man, eight-woman jury in Judge Vann Culp's 238th State District Court.

His wife, 12, was released from jail about three weeks following the May 27 arrest after posting a property Neither Mann nor McGinnis was outfitted in uniforms when they drove up on the Nichols' homestead to serve the search warrant, claimed Mrs. Nichols. Mann was wearing wearing blue jeans and a sports shirt. McGinnis generally wears a civilian-type Western outfit - a suit - which bears no resemblance to the sheriff's deputies' tan uniforms.

MRS. NICHOLS SAID that after the two men had fled, she and her husband called the Midland County sheriff's office for help but none came. She maintained that the men were tres-

"They won't let us press charges (of trespassing)," she said. "They never showed my husband a search warrant. They threatened my kids." Their children are son Nicky, 10, and daughter Devalon, 12.

Mrs. Nichols said the incident began on the afternoon of May 27 when she had answered a knock on the door by a bearded man donned in a blue jeans and a sports shirt.

"He was saying he was going to break the door down," she said. "Open this door or I'll break it

" she claimed the man, later identified as Mann, had said. She said he had identified himself as a police officer, but she was in "I DON'T KNOW for sure. We've got a lot of drunks and wacky people out here. I felt they (Mann and McGinnis) were trespassers."

Shortly afterward, the two men broke into the house with drawn pistois, she said. By then, her busband had gotten the sawed-off shotgun, which she described as "cute as a bug's ear and, with its pistol grip. looks like a toy - almost. The shotgun, she said, belongs to a friend who had asked Nichols to 'blue" the gun. Sometime before that, she said, a police officer had borrowed the gun to use in a criminal "case" and returned it intact to the tified friend of Nich said the officer made no allusion to the gun being illegal.

While Nichols was ordering the two men out of his house, Mrs. Nichols was fetching a 38-caliber revolver from underneath a bed. But by then, the two "intruding" men were retreating and speeding away. That was when the Nichols called the sheriff's office for help, the wife said. No "help" arrived; instead, the platoon of lawmen converged on the Nichols' homestead. The stand-off and arrests followed.

"I'll tell you." Mrs. Nichols said. the whole thing was screwy. My husband and I ain't trouble-makers. We don't go to bars and stuff."

HOWEVER, the Nichols' trouble seemed to begin after they had put out a 4-by-8 plywood sign with political overtones: "De-Elect Sheriff Dallas Smith." The sign went up a fews months ago after Nichols had a run-in with the sheriff and his deputies following the issuance of a traffic ticket. "I don't trust Dallas Smith and his men," she said. And that basic mistrust was the reason why Mr. and Mrs. Nichols requested confinement in the city jail rather than in the county jail. Smith, a Republican, is running for re-election in the Nov. 4 general elec-

Not long after the Nichols' anti-Smith sign went up, Joe Carr, a Midland police narcotics sergeant who is running for sheriff on the Democratic Party's ticket, telephoned Nichols and requested that another sign - to elect Joe Carr - be set up opposite the De-Elect Dallas Smith sign, Mrs. Nichols said. But, she said, her husband declined the offer after discussing politics. They could not agree on the legalization of marijuana and "other points of law." she said. "Joe Carr got upset," Mrs. Nichols said. "Joe Carr picked on us because of the sign in our front yard," she charged. Then, either on the day the Nichols'

Midland man injured in motorcycle-car crash

A Midland man was listed in satisfactory condition this morning in Midland Memorial Hospital after being involved in a motorcycle-car accident early this morning.

About 1:62 a.m. Jarrett Lawrence McFarland III, 1000 S. Midkiff Road, was riding his motorcycle southbound on the Andrews Highway. A car driven by David Michael King, 1700 Shell, was on the southside of Andrews Highway, pulling into traffic. The two vehicles collided at the intersection of Andrews Highway and Cessna

A 28-year-old man was in City Jail this morning on charges of public intoxication and possession of a controlled substance

At 2:25 a.m. today a patrolling officer noticed a man wandering around a vacant service station, shining a flashlight through the windows. The officer arrested the man for public intoxication and during the arrest, removed a prescription bottle from the man's hand. The bottle contained pills other than those on the prescription label, according to reports.

James Harvey told officers that someone entered his car between 10: 30 p.m. Sunday and 6: 30 p.m. Monday and removed a stereo power booster and stereo speakers. The items were valued at about $200. The car was parked at 600 N. Big Spring St. when the reported burglary occurred.

A wrecked car parked behind 4606 Brookdale Drive was the target of vandals sometime between 8 p.m. Monday and 6 p.m. Tuesday.

According to Bill Brittin, the owner, he had parked the car there until it could be repaired. Tuesday, he discovered the front windshield, driver's window, and tail lights broken and multiple dents and paint scratches on the body of the car.

Damage was estimated at $349. A rag near a stove's pilot light caused a trash can to catch fire late Tuesday night.

Firemen were dispatched to the blaze at 1803 /2 Kentucky Ave. about 10:30 p.m. They found the can smoldering upon their arrival and took about a half hour to extinguish the

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) - Authorities say they don't know what caused an amusement park ride called the Yo-Yo to break and drop its riders to the asphalt below. "The only thing I can give you as far as what caused it was just a malfunction of the ride," said one Caddo Parish sheriff's deputy. At least 11 children and teen-agers were injured - none of them seriously - in the accident, which reportedly occurred during a private party given by Shreveport radio station KRMD at Hamel's Park. Shortly afterwards, a ride next to the Yo-Yo broke, leaving cars holding eight children hanging in mid-air Firemen climbed ladders to rescue those children and no one was injured, officials said.

The Yo-Yo has 16 two-person seats at the end of long chains suspended from arms that move up and down while the whole machine spins. Every seat was full when the ride broke, said park owner Milton Hamel.

"Mothers and dads ran from every direction," said Ethel Welch, who saw Fire Chief L.G. Lewing said he had a list of 20 people injured in the 7:15 p.m. accident. But a nursing supervisor at Willis-Knighton Hospital said only 11 were treated there.

Those treated at the hospital included seven children age 12 or under, three teen-agers and one adult, officials said.

Hamel said the accident was the worst in the park's 10-year history.

The former assistant manager of Sundown Market at 711 E. Front Ave. has been charged with theft over $10,-000 from the store over a period of seven months beginning on Jan. 7. Charged was Albert Lee Thornton

Newsome, 44, who is alleged by store co-owner Pat Powell to have taken the funds from the grocery store's cash registers between Jan. 7 and early August, when he reportedly resigned. Newsome was being held in Midland City Jail today in lieu of posting a $20,000 bond set by Peace Justice John Biggs. He was charged with taking cash from three cash registers on 39 days during the seven months.

In his complaint, Powell alleges that hand-written daily and weekly tally sheets prepared by Newsome "reflect inaccurate figures." Powell claims that cash register receipts s indicated that more money was taken than what Newsome's tally sheets

The Anderson column

Last weekend much of the usually dignified and prestigious news media indulged in self-righteous folly.

It all centered around a series of articles written by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, whose column appears on this page six days a week.

In the columns, Anderson alluded to evidence his staff had acquired supposedly indicating a plot is under way in the Carter Administration to invade Iran this October. Reason for the invasion. ostensibly, is to create a national crisis shortly before the November general election, causing voters to rally behind the president and, thus, aid if not ensure his re-election.

Most newspapers elected to print the series of columns, although some - including the Washington Post, New York Daily News, Atlanta Constitution and Arkansas Democrat — chose to withhold the columns.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown denied the report, which had been picked up by the wire services and was quickly making headlines around the country. On Monday the White House issued a denial of the alleged facts included in the Anderson column that day.

We believe our readers might like to know our reasons for publishing the series when some other newspapers did not.

To acknowledge to readers that a story exists, via Associated Press reports, but to withhold the material in question seems, to us, to amount to mere folly.

Fact of the matter is by withholding the columns selected newspapers actually were encouraging readers to seek the story in other sources and they were turning an editorial page column into a larger news event than it really should have been. The real gist of the column was nearly lost in the hubbub surrounding it. That point, of course, is whether an incumbent president was willing to risk war merely to improve his own political chances. Readers will have to answer that question. Why did we run the columns? Jack Anderson is a controversial columnist. That's why he has such a wide readership in close to 1,000 newspapers. He has written information that later was deemed not totally accurate. But his batting average overall is pretty good. He has taken some long shots before and come out on top and we had no reason to question this particular column.

When the column itself became a news item nationwide, we felt it necessary to publish it and the follow-up articles to give readers the benefit of knowing what the furor was all about.

We do not want our readers to have to go elsewhere for their news. Anderson's column was news whether he should or should not have written it, and we ran it in the public interest.

Whether the controversial writer has a hit or a miss on his hands this time remains to be seen. But to withhold the story itself, while publishing Associated Press news accounts about it, isn't journalistic integrity. It's self-righteousness which serves neither the country nor the reader.

Camp Waldorf agreement can't wipe away smile

NEW YORK - The story of how Teddy Kennedy agreed to appear on the podium with President Jimmy Carter last Thursday night is now leaking out in dribs and drabs.

It is a tale of all-night negotiations, frayed tempers, pleas for unity and sometimes bitter recrimination.

The negotiators met soon after Teddy's speech on Tuesday night, when the Carter people realized that if Kennedy did not appear on Thursday evening the Democratic Party would be torn asunder. Top aides from the Carter and Kennedy factions closeted themselves in a tent at Camp Waldorf on Park Avenue.

Teddy's people knew they were dealing from strength. His chief negotiator said, "Our boy is going back to Cape Cod unless he gets his $12 billion jobs program in the next bud-

Carter's top aide said, "He's got it. But he has to be in Madison Square Garden, out of sight, while the president makes his acceptance speech."

"No way," the Kennedy man said. "Teddy stays in his hotel suite until the speech is over."

"Okay, as long as he gets to the Garden before the applause for Carter starts. But we want Teddy when he arrives on the podium to embrace Carter just like Menachem Begin does all the time.'

Circus-lovers expecting more fun, games after Labor Day

NEW YORK - One earnest speak er, seized in passion, swept his eyes across the vast convention floor, and referred to the confetti of people there as "this crazy Democratic Party of ours."

The assessment is correct, but that doesn't necessarily mean that Democrats are unfit to govern. Many an unruly group winds up creating and producing, just as disorganized persons do. Poise, logic and efficiency don't guarantee getting the job done.

And yet, Jimmy Carter and his Democrats ask much of the citizen who might vote this fall. Where is this party on economics? Among the tasty bones tossed to Sen. Edward Kennedy was submission to his demand for a plank calling for a $12 billion "jobs program." Carter has no use for this profligacy, but his softer nature allowed it in the platform.

He waivered, too, on the Jacobins' insistence that the administration take no action which "will cause significantly greater unemployment. Thus, any effort that Carter wanted to make to cut inflation could be overridden by the dictates of the Democratic platform. It is also amusing to realize that Jimmy Carter, whose foreign policy and defense signals were so dovish and confusing in his first two years in office, issued copies of a handwritten letter, on White House stationery, to all delegates, pleading with them to reject the anti-MX missile resolution. The official-appearing letter ("As Commander in Chief") plastered the hall, a supplement to the pro-MX speeches of Defense Secretary Harold Brown and others.

Consistency isn't considered a virtue by Democrats anyway. At one point, San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein argued that once the game is over - meaning Carter won the nomination in the primaries — the rules shouldn't be changed to extend it. I doubt whether Mayor Feinstein would apply that logic to the question of giving ERA extra years beyond its long-passed deadline for ratification.

And I wonder how Catholics, the largest single religious group in the Democratic Party, take the strong pro-abortion planks in this platform. Anyway, the Department of Bombast was by far the most amusing aspect of this sweaty ordeal. Though

Kennedy sparked more yelling, Mondale matched him in whooping it up, and we can expect amplified volume from the vice president in the campaign. He is Carter's best shoveler of rhetoric, and stole Hubert Humphrey's old format (used on Barry Goldwater) to tar Reagan. Mondale is like the strapping high school boy who vastly prefers cheerleading to grinding out touchdowns. Kennedy, of course, easily won the ribbon for creating the most noise. But hours after the last hurrah resounded through the convention hall, reporters discovered that the troubled Iowa farmer whom Kennedy wept over owns land, machinery and buildings valued at $1 million, and is only seeking to protect his holdings with a tax-shelter - a device Kennedy terms infernal. And that West Virginian father of 10 whom Kennedy claimed lost his job and pension? Well, the fellow found a new job months ago, and is getting his pension. Oh well. Carter deserves credit, too. It's clear that just as Lyndon B. Johnson hung the nuclear noose around Goldwater in 1964, Carter intends to entwine Reagan in movie film. Although the president, in delivering his overly long speech (nearly one hour, enough to turn cheers into yawns), often sounded like a fundamentalist preacher from some fresh-water province, he stuck the knife in pretty Hollywood and network television have indeed given us the unreal and mind-distracting. We've had Fantasia and "Fantasy Island," and now Carter tells us that Reagan's Republicanism is "Fantasy World."

Regrettably, the Democrats must have stirred the rest of Herbert Hoover. First, Kennedy charged that Jimmy Carter was another Herbert Hoover. Then Carter claimed that it was Reagan who was another Herbert Hoover. What about poor Hoover?

Actually, he was long regarded as a humanitarian, and when he ran against Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932, his program was clearly the more liberal. Leave Hoover sleep.

Teens held in kidnapping

SCOTCH PLAINS, N.J. (AP) — Five boys and one girl, ranging in age from 12 to 17, have been charged with kidnapping in the abduction of a 10-year-old boy who was held for $12,000 ransom, police say.

Lt. John Powers said authorities were surprised by the age of those involved in the apparent conspiracy. "I've never seen anything like it in my career," Powers said.

The arrests came Tuesday after the parents of Thomas Beattie paid the ransom and were reunited with the boy, who was not harmed during his 18-hour ordeal. The $12,000 was later recovered from a car by detectives armed with a search warrant.

The boy was abducted about 7:30 p.m. Monday while collecting money on his sister's newspaper route, Union County Prosecutor John H. Stamler said Tuesday. Patricia Beattie, 17, was not with her brother at the time.

The prosecutor, who said the boy was pushed into a car after he refused a ride, was held in an apartment and a garage in Plainfield with his hands and feet bound and his face covered with a ski mask.

Beattie was found sitting on the steps of the Netherwood Train Station in Plainfield by police, where a 15-year-old female and a 17-year-old male were apprehended, said Stamler.

Another 17-year-old boy was arrested in Plainfield about an hour later, said Sgt. Richard Berman of the Plainfield Police Department. And three other boys, aged 12, 13 and 17, were arrested later in the evening, officials said.

The names of the youths were not released because of their ages.

The abductors contacted the Beatties on Monday night, telling them that their son would not be hurt if $12,000 in small bills was left beneath a mailbox in Plainfield on Tuesday afternoon, said Scotch Plains Detective

Capt. Robert Luce.
When the boy's father — a research chemist for Merck & Co. in Rahway — went to drop off the money as instructed, an FBI plane and helicopter hovered above. Police from Scotch Plains, Plainfield and North Plainfield and 15 FBI agents from Newark also were on the scene.

Stamler said the suspects also stole $12 the boy had collected from customers on the paper route for The Courier News of Bridgewater.

Authorities said the suspects probably did not know the youngster, and his father agreed. "It's clear to me that Tommy just happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time," said Thomas Beattie.

Labor divided on endorsement

CHICAGO (AP) — Leaders of the AFL-CIO are gathered here with the intention of endorsing President Carter for re-election, but a number of disgruntled unions are fighting to postpone a vote of support because of their displeasure with the president.

In what appeared to be a clear sign of organized labor's less-than-enthusiastic feelings about Carter, leaders of several unions planned to suggest at today's executive council meeting that the AFL-CIO leadership body postpone recommending an endorsement of Carter until either Thursday or perhaps until Sept. 4, when all the AFL-CIO presidents are to meet.

As the union leaders convened here Tuesday night, several indicated they want an endorsement postponed so that each union could try to negotiate concessions from the administration on issues of special concern to them.

"We're all going to eventually endorse Carter," said one union official who favored postponing an endorsement. "The only question is when," said the official, who did not want to be identified.

AFL-CIO president Lane Kirkland had planned to schedule a quick vote today with the 34-member council recommending an endorsement to its general board, which is composed of leaders of all 104 affiliated unions.

But the reluctant unions, numbering more than a half-dozen, said that enough of a groundswell might develop for a postponement, which would represent at least a partial repudiation of the president.

Among the unions whose presidents have expressed reluctance about an immediate endorsement are the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, American Federation of Teachers, Airline Pilots Association, Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, and the American Federation of Government Employees. Many of those union leaders had supported Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the Democratic nomina-

In past elections, with the exception of 1972, the executive council has recommended endorsing the Democratic presidential candidate right after the convention, and the general board made it official several weeks later.

Although the AFL-CIO may delay the process this time, it apparently does not want another stand of neutrality similar to 1972, when it remained neutral in the contest between Richard Nixon and George McGo-

William W. Winpisinger, president of the International Association of Machinists, is the only council member who has stated flatly that he will not support Carter for re-election because of the president's economic and energy policies.

A few other leaders of AFL-CIO unions that had backed Kennedy in the Democratic primaries have threatened to stay neutral rather than back Carter, but their colleagues expect them to endorse Carter eventual-

The AFL-CIO also is concerned that a poor Carter showing could hurt the entire Democratic ticket, allowing Republicans to take control of the Senate for the first time in 25 years and score big gains in the House.

As in 1976, when organized labor lined up solidly behind Jimmy Carter despite deep misgivings about him, labor leaders are returning to a candidate who has irked them repeatedly over economic issues but who seems clearly preferable to the Republican candidate.

"The world doesn't always give you the best choices," said one AFL-CIO official, who did not want to be named. But once the differences between Carter and Reagan become obvious, he said, "I think support for Carter will build within the labor movement" and union political organizations will work energetically for the president.

Whether support at the top can be translated into rank-and-file votes for Carter this fall is another matter,

In 1976, according to the AFL-CIO, union members voted 2-1 for Carter, helping him to a slim victory over former President Gerald R. Ford.

This year, labor leaders believe that if the election were held now, a majority of their members would vote for Reagan because of frustration

SHOP DILLARD'S MONDAY THRU SATURDAY 10-9; MIDLAND PARK MALL

over Carter's handling of economic problems and a perception that the United States has fallen behind the Soviet Union in military strength.

Union leaders also have been unhappy with Carter's policies — his anti-inflation wage guidelines, his drive to balance the federal budget with spending cuts in social programs, his support for lifting price controls from oil, his reluctance to fight the recession with a multibilion-dollar job-creation program and his positions on foreign affairs.

Now, those leaders appear willing to put those complaints aside and work to portray Carter as the best choice for the average working man and woman.

PAGE 8A Texas made own luck with Allen, says disaster chief

By GARTH JONES

Associated Press Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There's 'nothing "lucky" about Texas escaping a big death toll from Hurricane Allen, says Frank Cox.

"Public and official awareness is what pulled off this evacuation from the Texas Gulf coast, along with lots of help from the news media," says the head of Texas' Disaster Emergency Services.

"That was the key to getting 250,000 persons to move out of their homes on the coast. If that had not happened, we could have had 1,000 dead in North Beach (Corpus Christi) alone," said

"I am pleased with the operation and the cooperation of the people of Texas but I am not satisfied," Cox said following the busy days of Hurri-

"All this planning that has gone into preparedness paid off," said Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, who sponsosred the first emergency council statute in 1973 and was co-sponsor of the Texas Disaster Act in 1975. "We have come a long way. I can remember the day when highway patrol troopers in their cars could not talk with Texas Parks and Wildlife

"We were not only not prepared but all we had was the National Guard to go in and patrol the roads and count the bodies. At the instigation of Schwartz, who is chairman of the Texas Coastal and Marine Council, there will be a conference on emergency preparedness for hurricanes in Aransas Pass on

School trustees voted Tuesday to give the outdoor learning center a four-month trial run before adopting it as part of the district's science program.

The center, named the Barton H. Warnock Nature Trail, could give students a good learning tool provided it meets trustee satisfaction.

So far, the school district, city and Midland Soil and Water Conservation District have expressed an interest in the center's operation.

Located near Hogan Park, students would be bused to the site with the school district paying the cost.
Students would spend a half day traveling over a 2,800-foot trail with 35 stops. Twenty of the stops would include an extensive explanation of plants and animals in that area.

If adopted, the program would cost the school district about $34,100. Trustees were told that the center did not have enough bathroom facilities, drinking fountains or shelters to accommodate large numbers of stu-

Hance pushes bill in House to stop taxes on savings

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance successfully pushed legislation through the House of Representatives late Tuesday which stops the federal government from withholding taxes from interest on savings accounts and dividends.

The action came in the form of an amendment to the appropriations bill for the Department of Treasury which was being debated on the House floor. The amendment passed by a 401-4 margin.

"At a time when we need to be encouraging people to save, it does not make good sense to require the withholding taxes on interest earned on savings accounts," Hance said during the floor debate of the amendment. Hance represents the 19th Congressional District which includes Midland.

The congressman offered his amendment as a response to a proposal made several months ago by the Treasury Department. The proposal, if enacted, would have required all financial institutions to withhold taxes from individual savings accounts and dividends.

The Texas congressman's amendment, in effect, stops government officials from studying or implementing such a proposal. Hance said his legislation didn't affect current law which requires such withholdings for people who are not citizens of the United States or for people who request withholdings.

Dr. Farr says U.S. system educates wider range than any other nation some suggestions which would make their child a better reader before he

By DAVID CAMPBELL

American public education is not such a bad kid after all, according to Dr. Roger Farr, past president of the International Reading Association.

Despite the negative publicity it has received from the media, Farr claims America's educational system has educated a wider range of people than any other nation.

"Children in the lower economic range are achieving more than any other nation," the reading specialist said. This is because Americans feel that everyone should be given a chance to progress as far as one wants to go.

Farr made these comments to a small but receptive audience Tuesday night in the San Jacinto Junior High School auditorium.

Most people today claim that students 30 years ago scored better on the Scholastic Aptitude Tests than their modern counterparts, he reported. However, Farr cited several studies that have proven the opposite because of some important differ-

The SAT is used by some educators as an indicator of success in public education

During the late '30s and early '40s, only the better educated students were permitted to take the SAT, Farr explained. This class of people represented about the top 7 percent of America's students.

If one compares today's 7 per-cent of the best educated students, he said this student would beat out his 1940 counterpart.

Black students during the early '40s were not permitted to take the SAT, Farr said. But he pointed out that most black students are taking the test now and are definitely better educated.

However, the amazing statistic regarding today's student is that more students have obtained perfect scores on the SAT which is an indication of success for America's education sys-

In 1940, less than half of the population completed high school whereas in 1970 more than 95 percent of the students have completed high school.

Another indicator Farr pointed to regarding the success of education in the U.S. is the number of American Nobel prize winners. American-educated individuals have won more than twice as many awards than have all the nations put together, he said.

The prominence of the United States in the world is due to the work of U.S. schools, he stated. In the area of reading, Farr gave

Carter courting veterans

Rocky relationship revisited

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (AP) - In his first act as president on his first day in office, Jimmy Carter antagonized the powerful organizations which claim to speak for America's 31 million veterans. His relationship with veterans has been rocky ever since.

This week, the first post-convention week of the election campaign, Carter is trying to patch matters up with veterans' groups; Ronald Reagan, his Republican rival, is capitalizing on their coolness toward the White House.

Reagan addressed the VFW convention Monday in Chicago and was to speak before the American Legion convention in Boston today. Carter flies to Boston to address the Legion on Thursday. Independent candidate John B. Anderson went before the Legionnaires Tuesday.

In his prepared remarks to the Legion today, Reagan said the United States has slipped to second place in military strength. He accused Carter of making 'untruthful' and 'largely phony' claims about Americas defenses. He repeated earlier promises to raise the pay of American servicemen but declined to say by how much or when.

Back on Jan. 21, 1977, the Veterans of Foreign Wars called Carter's inaugural day "probably one of the saddest days in the history of our country" because the new president, fulfilling a campaign promise, in his firt act pardoned almost all Vietnam draft evaders.

On Monday, the VFW, having since found additional grievances with Carter, handed out its first political endorsement. In backing Reagan, the VFW ended an 80-year history of political Reagan, accepting the endorsement, went on the attack. He told the VFW, "This anti-veteran administration has stacked the deck against you.'

Veterans Administrator Max Cleland, who lost both legs and his right forearm in Vietnam, replied: "I am surprised and alarmed atwovernor Reagan's distortion of the facts about our nation's veterans. Once again his rhetoric has overtaken realilack of sensitivity to the problems of veterans, particularly in comparison with the priorities the administration has put forward in regard to other interest groups. We feel veterans should be No. 1," says Robert Lyngh, director of veterans affairs for the 2.6 million-member Legion.

Cleland himself comes under criticism when officials of veterans groups speak on a not-to-be-quoted basis.

They say they cannot deny Cleland's value as a symbol of the sacrifices of war. But they portray him as a weak manager who is unwilling to carry the veterans' battle into the White House. And, since much of the leadership of the traditional veterans' groups remains in the hands of the World War II generation, there is resentment at Cleland's efforts to replace old VA hands with a new generation of Vietnam veterans.

They say Cleland has rooted out the old guard so thoroughly as to leave VA posts inadequately managed. Cleland is a former Georgia state senator and a Carter supporter from early on. He attested to his personal loyalty to Carter last week at the Democratic National Convention. On the record, the Legion's Lyngh will say only this: "Max Cleland is an excellent symbol of the war disabled. He is well-intentioned. He demonstrates a lack of sensitivity to the problems of old veterans. His management effectiveness is

Veterans' groups still smart over the administration's effort to remove or water down the automatic preference given veterans seeking civil service jobs.

Women's rights groups fought to eliminate veterans' preference on the grounds that most veterans are male and the system gives them an unfair edge in competing for government jobs. The administration agreed with the women, but the the veterans won in Congress and veterans' preferences remained in a bill reform-

'We went to the wall against them on that," says Lyngh. "It was a classic case of a lack of sensitivity. We never did forgive

But the chief grievance concerns money. Veterans groups charge that the administration has grudgingly gone along with increases in pensions, educational benefits and payments to disabled veterans.

They decry a cutback in the number of beds in the nation's VA hospitals. In 1965, before mllions of Vietnam veterans had been discharged, there were 125,000 beds; now there are 84,000. Cleland replies that what the critics miss is a change inAmerican medicine about 10 years ago when "the medical profession began to realize that hospitalization and institutionalization quite often were unnecessary and even counterproductive to the healing

San Francisco voters scrap district election of supervisors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - All 11 members of San Francisco's Board of Supervisors must stand for re-election in November after voters opted to choose their supervisors citywide rather than by districts.

In a special election Tuesday, a proposition to scrap the four-year-old district system in favor of at-large voting barely won with 50.57 percent of the vote. With all precincts counted, the totals showed 69,632 votes for Proposition A, and 68,036 against.

The election marked the fourth time since 1976 that voters have decided the issue

Less than 35 percent of the city's 404,000 registered voters cast ballots in one of the lightest turnouts in city Board member Carol Ruth Silver called the special election a "trick" played by proponents of the at-large "To put on a special election in the middle of the summer, in the middle of vacation season is a poor thing to do, and the city of San Francisco... has now had 35 percent of the electorate decide to make a major change in the charter of the city," she said.

She was planning to try to put the district election issue before voters again in November.

But registrar of Voters Jay Patterson said it is probably too late for a signature campaign to qualify an initiative for the November ballot.

Tuesday's election, held at a cost of $484,000 to the city, angered some city residents who said the issue could have been on the November ballot at no extra cost.

But proposition sponsors won a court fight to have the special election in August after arguing that if voters approved at-large supervisors they would have to elect a new board in

Supporters of Proposition A included the city's chamber of commerce, former at-large supervisors and conservative property owners. They claimed present supervisors are not accountable to the city as a whole because they are subject to pressure from small neighborhood groups. Opponents of the proposition said the district system is better because it keeps supervisors from being unduly influenced by downtown business interests that contribute heavily to

The board now includes five women, two blacks and one gay, in sharp contrast to old boards composed mostly of white conservative males who often had close ties with wealthy downtown businesses.

American compacts safer, tests show

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crash tests indicate that American-made small cars are generally structurally stronger and safer than most foreign compacts, the Transportation Department reports.

Ten of 11 foreign cars failed the most recent tests in which cars carrying dummies were crashed at 35 miles an hour into a fixed barrier. The only one which passed was an Italian-made Fiat Strada. A Chevrolet Chevette, the only domestic car included in the latest tests, also

Joan Claybrook, head of the department's National Highway Traffic Safety injuries. Administration, told a news conference Tuesday the tests show that U.S. compacts have a safety edge over most small imports and said a major reason is generally stronger structures. She was especially critical of Japanese models, and particularly cited two Toyota cars, the Tercel and the Celica, which she said would have to be redesigned structurally in order to pass NHTSA's frontal crash test.

"The structure of the Japanese small cars are not as substantial as the American car," Ms. Claybrook said. "They have just not put their attention into Starting in 1982, many cars will have to pass 30 mph crash tests before they upsurge in sales of these fuel-efficient vehicles. Sixty-four percent of all 1980 models sold in this country have been compacts, and they now represent 38 percent of all cars now on the road.

"These tests clearly illustrate the emerging safety problem faced by consumers who are shifting to smaller cars to conserve fuel," Ms. Claybrook said. "We know that the small cars currently being produced are less safe than large cars in collisions between these vehicles. But our tests also show that small cars are less safe themselves, even in single vehicle collisions and in collisions between small cars.

Microwave ovens offer another cooking appliance option to supplement conventional cooking appliances. Fast cooking has been the main advantage. Cooking on older models is completely time-controlled. Features on newer models allow both time-and temperature-controlled cooking. Microwave ovens are available in counter-top models, built-in models that may include dual ovens and range top, and the all-in-one combination oven that combines microwave and conventional heat in one oven.

Microwaves are high frequency waves of energy, much like radio and television waves. Microwaves are non-ionizing, a form of energy that causes a rise in temperature rather than a chemical change.

Microwaves are generated by a magnetron tube and sent to the oven cavity through a wave guide. A stirrer or similar device is used to distribute the waves evenly. Some ovens use a turntable to rotate food within the oven. As microwave energy is absorbed by food, moisture and fat molecules in the food begin to move rapidly. This friction causes heat. Because microwaves create heat within food, the controls regulate the length of time that microwaves are produced rather than the temperature of the oven cavity. Some controls are labeled with familiar cooking terms such as bake, simmer, roast, etc., or high, medium and low power. Each of these settings cycle the magnetron tube off and on for a certain number of seconds of each minute of cooking time or reduce the power output of the magnetron tube.

LIMITATIONS OF MICROWAVE COOKING

Microwaves do not brown food. Foods such as meat that contain fat will brown some when heated by mi-crowaves. Appliances such as a toaster or conventional oven may be used to brown foods. Some microwave models include a browning element and others provide browning trays. These trays have a special finish on the bottom surface to absorb microwaves and sear or brown food. Pastries, pie shells and some meats may be given a brown appearance by brushing them with vanilla extract or brown seasoning sauces.

The microwave appliance will not produce crispy coatings on foods. Steam produced when the food is heated moistens the coating. A microwave appliance will not fry or broil. It can grill and toast if a browning tray or browning element is included

ENERGY CONSUMPTION

Microwave cooking usually saves energy because most foods can be cooked in about one-fourth of the time necessary to cook them by conventional heat. Some portable appliances such as electric skillets and coffeemakers prepare some foods more efficiently than a mirowave appliance. Research on the energy efficiency of microwave cooking indicated that foods containing large quantities (more than one quart) of liquid or vegetables can be cooked more efficiently on a range surface unit than in a microwave oven. These foods include stews, soups and other foods that need to simmer.

MIROWAVE APPLIANCE SAFETY

Microwave appliances are produced with the safety of the consumer in mind. Regulations protect the user from unnecessary exposure to microwave energy. Microwave appliance must be equipped with at least two operating safety interlocks that will automoatically turn off power to the matnetron tube when the oven door is

Look for the seal of the Underwriters' Laboratories. They test microwave appliances for leakage as well as for the effects of shipment damage.

Operating the microwave oven according to the manufacturer's instructions is important. Proper use of the microwave appliance assures maximum safety to the user.

Follow these basic recommendations established by the Bureau of Radiological Health: -Examine for evidence of shipping

-Never insert objects (for example, a wire) through the door grill or around door seal.

-Never tamper with or inactivate the oven safety interlocks. -Never operate oven when it is Frequently clean cooking cavity, door, seals and filter with water and mild detergent. Do not use scouring pads, steel wool or other abrasives. -Have appliance checked regularly by a qualified serviceman for signs of wear, damage or tampering. Every 18 to 24 months is advisable.

-It is important to keep the door seal -Switch control to "off" before opening the door. -Stay at least an arm's length away from the front of the appliance while -If you wear a pacemaker, consult a physician before purchasing a microwave appliance. For more information on microwave cooking, plan to attend the special program scheduled for Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St. An error in last week's column had the address right, but the church name incorrect.

Although only 14 years old, Paula Boggs, a new Midland resident, has probably set some sort of a record for winning beauty and similar contests. Paula, daughter of Mrs. Tommie Boggs of Crossett, Ark., has won 37 beauty and talent awards in the last six years. Her latest trophy was re-ceived recently at the First Annual Summer Festival Pageant at Warren, Ark. She won the pageant's photogenic contest and placed as one of five finalists in the beauty contest.

Last month at Monticello, Ark., she won two second alternate positions in the first annual "Royal Miss" Pageant there. Her awards in that pag-eant were for beauty and talent. She earned the talent award with her performance of a tap dance to the musical theme of the movie, "All That

Previous to that, she won honors in a fall review pageant in Monticello last year and was second alternate in a Valentine pageant at Pine Bluff early this year. She has been competing in beauty pageants since she was five years old.

Her first trophy came with her first entry in the Our Little Miss pageant at Little Rock, Ark. She has taken dance lessons for eight lessons. Paula has recently moved to Midland where she will reside with her brother, Jim Schl'esier, also a new resident who has moved here to take a position as manager of Sambo's.

DJAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) -The government of Indonesia has received a loan of $35 million from the World Bank, a United Nations financial institution, to expand its familyplanning program. The project is aimed at cutting the 1971 fertility rate in half by 1990.

The funds will be used for the construction of population centers, ware-houses for the storage of contraceptives, the provision of audio-visual materials, and the training of health assistants. This is the third World Bank loan to Indonesia for its familyplanning programs.

If you buy inexpensive clothes, like most people you will probably splurge once in a while on something expensive. But if you always buy expensive clothes even though you live on an average budget, then you will have to be very careful in your selection.

Check what the clothing is made of (as most fabrics are required by law to be correctly identified). This check will also give you an indication of flammability, as well as quality. In a healthy life, full of physical exertion, nature makes sure you take in plenty of air. In fact, you may have noticed that most people who work outdoors in clean air have a glowing skin. That's because 7 percent of the body's oxygen supply is used by the skin to eliminate wastes and carry out cell division. You might even say that every 14th breath you take is for the beauty of your skin.

Work that necessitates inactivity, sitting, stooping or bending is apt to produce apathy of the nerves and muscles that control breathing. The result? You take little breaths off the top of your lungs, leaving a large residue of carbon dioxide behind. And this 'used" air, which should have been expelled, is sucked even more deeply

In addition, good breathing is not just dependent on how much air you take in, but whether or not you inhale through your nose. Nature intended that the nose act as the medium of air passage, yet a lot of people breathe chiefly through the mouth. DEAR ABBY

No room for girl in men's locker room

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old man. Yesterday I went swimming at a local pool, and while I was in the locker room changing into my swimming trunks, I turned around to find a little girl who appeared to be 4 or 5 years old staring at me! I later learned she had been brought there by her father, who was calmly drying himself after showering.

The locker room was crowded with men in various stages of undress. Some were completely naked. ALL were unaware that they were being observed by a wide-eyed girl.

I found the pool manager and complained. He got hold of the father and asked him not to bring the child into the men's locker room again. The father blew up and said he had no one to leave his little girl with, and he wasn't about to let her wait for him outside alone. When the father was informed that the other men in the locker room might not appeciate being observed by a young girl, he said, "Any man who is embarrased to be seen naked in front of a 4-year-old girl must have something wrong with

Abby, I'd like your opinion. Who has something "wrong with him"? Me? Or a man who would bring his daughter into a men's locker room?-WON-

DEAR WONDERING: The father used poor judgment in bringing his daughter into the men's locker room because in doing so he violated the privacy of others who may not have felt comfortable under the circumstances. If he had no one to leave the child with, he could have skipped the swim. He was obviously all wet to

DEAR ABBY: You suggested that 'older people' should mark the backs of family pictures while they can still remember who's who, where the pictures were taken and the approximate dates. But why only "older people?" That's something everybody should do as soon as a snapshot

For years I was too busy (or lazy) to do it, and now that I'm retired and have plenty of time, I can't remember

DEAR ABBY: For your survey on how women over 50 feel about sex: I agree with TIRED. I am not a loose woman, but anything gets boring with the same person after 25 years.

Scientists discover air pollutant inhibits growth of cancer cells

WASHINGTON (AP) - Scientists have discovered that a common air pollutant called ozone inhibits the growth of cancer cells, a finding that they say could point to future applications in cancer therapy.

Researchers at Washington University Medical School in St. Louis said Monday that continuous exposure to ozone of a variety of cancer cells slowed their growth much more than the gas affected normal cells.

Dr. Frederick Sweet, a biochemist who led the research effort, said it was too early to tell if the surprise finding eventually would have human therapeutic applications.

But as a first step in finding out, the researchers have begun exposing mice with lung cancer to air rich in ozone. Lung cancer is the easiest to expose to ozone because the gas is breathed in with normal air, he said. If ozone proves to be of any value combination with more conventional therapies, such as radiation and drugs, the researcher said. But more testing is necessary before any use of the potentially toxic gas can be recommended, he stressed. Sweet said in a telephone interview that cancer experts at the university find the discovery interesting, but point out that ozone's effectiveness as a therapy may depend upon how well it penetrates layers of cells. Its effects may not go too deeply, and that could limit its usefulness

Sweet said. "But that's what we'll have to find out.

"In any case, the work shows another difference between normal and cancer cells," he continued. "It shows another weakness in the defense mechanisms of cancer cells that someone may be able to exploit."

Ozone is a form of oxygen made by electical sparks or ultraviolet light reacting with air or gases containing oxygen. At ground level, air normally contains much less than one part per million (ppm) of ozone. Strong concentrations of ozone irritate the eyes and nose, and can cause breathing difficulties and chest discomfort, particularly for those with asthma and respiratory problems.

Camp bridges gap

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's a most unusual camp," says Dr. Yoosuf Haveliwala, psychiatrist and director of Creedmoor Psychiatric Center in Queens,

The campers are mentally ill men and women who, after years of treatment in a psychiatric center, are awaiting discharge. Camp Frontier, named by the campers themselves, was designed to bridge the gap between hospital routine and community life.

The director believes the camp will help prepare patients for life outside the hospital through emphasis on sports as a present-day social fixture and as a taste of the competitive nature of life "on the outside." Activities fit the abilities and attention spans of the 50 participants.

Sports is a part of our society," Haveliwala points "To be ignorant of sports is to be further alienated; these patients don't need that strike against them. Also, we are able to moderate the level of competition here, so they can adjust without losing the emotional support system.

Voyagers leave port; First round talks fail

PARIS (AP) - The last of some 6,000 British voyagers marooned in the Normandy port of Cherbourg by a fishermen's blockade sailed home today, but the opening round of negotiations to settle the dispute appeared to have failed.

Talks among representatives of the government, fishermen and unions were expected to resume later in the day. Official spokesmen said little had been expected of the first fourhour session.

The strike by fishermen protesting the high price of boat fuel and the threat of unemployment in their recession-hit industry is costing the French economy millions of dollars a

The government has said it is willing to negotiate on every point except the fuel issue, arguing that to subsidize prices any further would violate the European Common Market's rules on fair competition.

The tourists trapped in Cherbourg were allowed to leave after the fishermen lifted their blockade for a day as a humanitarian gesture. The picket line of fishing trawlers and steel hawsers was to go back into action at 11 a.m. local time.

A number of smaller ports were freed of the blockade for brief periods to ease the plight of passengers who came here for their August holiday and suddenly found themselves unable to sail home.

But except for these brief respites, all harbors on the English Channel and most of those on the Atlantic and Mediterranean remained blocked.

The Brittany port of Roscoff, which had been the only one on the English Channel still functioning, went under blockade Wednesday, cutting off the sole maritime export point for Brit-

Meanwhile, a separate dispute prompted Air Inter, the French domestic carrier, to suspend its three flights a day between Paris and Brest on the western edge of the Brittany peninsula.

Cruise ship floating powerless in Caribbean

MIAMI (AP) — The 1,600 passengers of the world's largest cruise ship were served free beer and were "in good spirits" as the ship drifted in the Caribbean after generators failed and power was lost for more than a day, company officials said.

h + 4.4 -

The generators on the giant SS Norway were restarted late Tuesday and the propellers were to begin turning again today, allowing the ship to continue its journey to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, officials said.

A Coast Guard spokesman in Miami said the crew hoped to have the Norway under way this morning, possibly as early as 8 a.m.

"The situation is uncomfortable, but not dangerous," said Ric Widmer, a Miami-based vice-president of marketing for Norweigan Caribbean Lines, the company that owns the ship. "The passengers are in good spirits."

"We have been serving them cold meals, of course ... and soft drinks and beer," said cruise line spokeswoman Maggie Dukes.

The Norway, which at 1,035 feet is larger than the Queen Elizabeth II, was stranded about 150 miles north of Caicos Island in the southern Bahamas at 1 a.m. Tuesday, company marketing manager Maggie Dukes said in Miami.

It was carrying about 2,440 people, including 862 crew members, officials said.

"The SS Norway experienced a loss of power due to an unspecified breakdown in the electrical system on board," said Joe Ewart, director of marketing services for the cruise marketing services for the creations.

Officials said the power failure left the ship without electricity or air conditioning.

conditioning.

"We have been feeding (the passengers) cold meals due to the lack of cooking facilities," said Ewart.

"There was absolutely no danger to the safety of the passengers."

the safety of the passengers."

Crew members restarted the ship's huge generators late Tuesday.

The ship left Miami on a one-week cruise Sunday and also was to stop at Little San Salvador in the Bahamas, 145 company officials said.

Since it began sailing from Miami June 1, the Norway has flunked two U.S. Public Health Service inspections, but officials said the problems were not serious.

NCL bought the ship, formerly the SS France, several years ago and ordered a multimillion-dollar refiting before rechristening it the Norway and beginning cruises out of Miami this year.

Man seriously injured rescuing woman from car

DALLAS (AP) — An unemployed oil field worker who rescued a woman from a burning car remained in serious condition at a Dallas hospital early today while police searched for the hit-and-run driver that ran him

Michael Boyd, 22, was struck by the same vehicle that plowed into the rear of an overturned car, setting it on fire about midnight Friday. Boyd pulled 20-year-old Lori Adams out of the flaming wreckage and was hit when the fleeing driver sped away.

The impact tossed Boyd 20 feet into the air. He landed face down and slide about 60 feet along the pavement.

Police said Tuesday night they still were looking for the driver who fled on foot after hitting a second car on Dallas' Stemmons Freeway in his escape attempt.

Investigators said they obtained a name and address from license plate numbers, but that the man has not returned home or to work since the accident.

"I'd like to take him (the suspect) up here and just show him," said Boyd's wife, Johnna. She brought the couple's 13-day-old son, Michael Lee, to stay with relatives in Lewisville during her vigil at Parkland Memori-

Hospital.
"Both of his legs are broke and his jaw is broke in two places. All of his front teeth are knocked out, his right arm is broke and his right wrist is crushed," said Boyd's sister, Claire Robinson.

"The doctor, she doesn't think he'll ever use his right wrist like he did before," Mrs. Robinson said. "His right knee was crushed. His head, it's like a closed wound. His brain is pressing on the inside. His lungs are full of fluid."

Relatives nodded numbly and wondered how Boyd would pay his medical bills as friends told them he "
"saved that girl's life."
Boyd was traveling from Lewis-ville, north of Dallas, with his brother Terry and friend Brian Christy when they came upon the woman's overturned car.

Terry Boyd began directing traffic.

Terry Boyd began directing traffic from behind her car when the hit-and-run driver approached and hit the car from behind.

The three men pulled Ms. Adams out of the car, seconds before it exploded, she said.

"The guy that ran into the back of me put it into reverse and floorboarded it to try and leave the scene. He pulled around the side of the car and that's when he hit Mike. He must have been going faster than 60 miles and

Reagan, in American Legion remarks, says U.S. military strength slipping

BOSTON (AP) - Accusing President Carter of "untruthful" and "largely phony" claims about America's defenses, Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan said today the United States has slipped to second in military strength.

In remarks prepared for delivery to the American Legion annual convention, Reagan said the security of the United States has been "placed in jeopardy" by the Carter administra-

Hitting repeatedly at what he described as "the deterioration of American military strength" under Carter, Reagan repeated his own "peace through strength" campaign slogan, but did not define exactly what he meant in either dollars or specific military programs Reagan recited a long list of military spending cuts imposed by

President Carter, but again he did not say which cuts he might restore as president or which new military programs he might It was Reagan's second major speech this week attacking the Democratic president's military policies. Carter will get his chance to argue his case before the Legion convention on

In an address before the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention Monday, Reagan accused Carter of "shabby" treatment of veterans and of neglect of the nation's defenses.

Reagan sounded the same theme before the American Legion and promised to boost military spending "in the face overwhelming growth in Soviet military capabilities.

"Every single analysis of which I am aware directly contra dicts this administration's smug assertion that the United States is and will remain militarily superior (to the Soviet Union) or at least 'second to none.' We are already second to one," Reagan

He described America's defense situation as "grave but...not irretrievable. We must provide the defense spending and programs necessary to correct immediate and short-term vulnerabilities" as well as long-term defense programs

In apparent reference to Carter's claim in his speech last week accepting the Democratic presidential nomination that he has been "rebuilding our military strength" after years of relative decline under Republican presidents, Reagan questioned Carter's truthfulness.

"By such untruthful devices as manipulating inflation factors, shifting the base from authority to outlays, changing base years and even ordering planned defense spending this year reduced so it would look as if he had met his promised percentage increase for next year, the Carter administration tries to manufacture increases that in fact are largely phony," Reagan said. He said Carter had canceled, cut back or delayed the B-1 bomber, Minuteman III, the MX missile and the Trident missile

"In short, the carefully balanced defense program which he inherited from the last Republican administration has been undercut and our security placed in jeopardy," Reagan said.

"Carter has slashed the Navy shipbuilding program in half and has provided for...a 11/2 ocean Navy for a three-ocean globalrequirement. The situation is equally dismal in all the other areas of our military strength," he said.

Reagan also repeated earlier promises to raise the pay of American servicemen, but he didn't say by how much or when. Although Reagan repeated his support of what he calls "essential equivalence," with the Soviet Union, a term favored by moderates, he also echoed the conservative call for American military superiority.

Cater's vacation concludes

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is back from vacation early, working on a new economic program and denying that the United States will invade Iran.

The president cut short a post-convention break at Camp David, Md., and returned to the White House on Tuesday.

Carter, said press secretary Jody Powell, also planned to work on a speech scheduled Thursday to the American Legion convention. Carter may use the occasion to rebut charges made by his opponent, Ronald Carter, as he returned to the White House, was asked about a report by columnist Jack Anderson that the administration planned to invade Iran in mid-October, shortly before the Nov. 4 presidential election.

Asked if the column were accurate, the president replied, "No. He very seldom writes an accurate column.

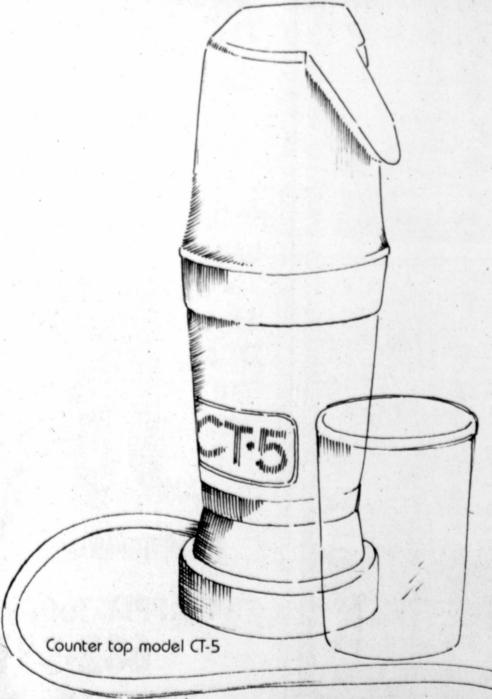

Anderson, in response said former President Richard Nixon had the same complaint about a number of my columns. They turned out to be right. He turned out to be wrong."

Meantime, Powell said the president's new economic program probably will be announced next week. It is still being formulated.

Though details were unknown, the press sec-retary said the plan would attempt to help the economy out of recession but avoid fueling inflation or unemployment.

"We are looking forward to a program which can be amply debated during the fall campaign," Powell said.

Each fall millions of college-bound high school students and their parents turn their thoughts to college admission. Sometimes referred to as the great sorting process, college choice and college admission involves countless little and big decisions on the part of students and colleges, all aimed at making a good match between the student's interests and abilities and a college's educational programs and

According to a major survey of college admissions officers conducted by the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers and the College Board, college may be easier to get into than many people think.

The survey showed, for example, that public two-year colleges reported accepting as freshmen approximately 91 percent of those who applied. Even private four-year colleges, which most people think of as being very selective, accepted more than 77 percent of applicants. Public fouryear colleges and private two-year colleges accepted 79 percent and 86 percent, respectively.

"The public perception that most colleges accept only a small percentage of people who apply is simply not true," says James Nelson, College Board vice president for student as-

Man gets part of Brink's loot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A San Francisco man has received a mailed package containing $20,000 of the $1.85 million taken from a Brink's armored truck, according to the sistance services. "The problem may be that the public mostly hears about only a few very select, prestigious colleges. In fact, the vast majority of colleges - four-year and two-year, public and private - are not that hard to get into.

While there's probably a place for everyone who wants to go to college these days, finding the right college takes time, careful planning, and good decision-making.

First, students should decide why they are going, what interests and needs they have, and what they want to get out of college. Preparation for a career? An opportunity to meet new people from different backgrounds? A chance to live in a different part of the country, in a city, in a rural area? An opportunity to participate in theater productions? Large classes? Individualized instruction? A diversified education in the liberal arts?

Second, they should seek information about various colleges. "The College Handbook, 1980-81," for example, lists more than 2,500 colleges and includes information about size, location, curriculum, admissions requirements, student life, financial aid, and much more. A companion book, "The Index of Majors, 1980-81," can help students locate colleges in each state that offer programs in 384 fields.

Students should keep their options open. When they take the Scholastic Aptitude Test they should elect to participate in the Student Search Service of the College Board so they can receive information from colleges they might not hear from otherwise.

And, they should consult high school counselors, alumni from the colleges they are considering, friends and parents; attend college nights and college fairs where they can talk to representatives of various colleges; and write for college catalogs.

Third, students should think seriously about their chances of getting in and succeeding at a particular college. One of the most important considerations for college admissions officers is whether or not a student will be able to make it through aca-

In admissions information, colleges often report on grade point averages, class ranks or test scores of the previous year's entering class. Prospective students can use this data to measure their qualifications against those of students usually admitted.

In the long run, choosing and get-ting into college is a two-way street, with students and colleges sharing in the decision-making. Some resources that can help students make informed decisions are listed below:

"The College Handbook, 1980-81" (No. 001281) and "Index of Majors, 1980-81" (No. 001303) are available separately or in combination. The Handbook alone is $11.50; the Index is $9.50. Coleman says relations with Libya just business

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a direct conflict with White House statements, an associate of Billy Carter says he does not recall asking about C-130 cargo planes for Libya or getting political briefings on that country.

The associate, Henry "Randy" Coleman, that Senate investigators Tuesday that his and the president's brother's relations with Libya were primarily business and "nothing political.'

Under oath, Coleman denied a re-port that he called White House aide Phillip Wise to ask the status of eight C-130 cargo planes President Carter's administration refuses to release to Libya because of that country's support of international terrorisms. The planes were bought by Libya.

'I just feel certain I would not have called anyone in the White House to ask about that," Coleman told the special Senate judiciary subcommit-

He also said he is sure the White House did not brief him and Billy before their first trip to Libya in 1978 because Billy was trying to keep the trip secret for fear the government would stop it.

But Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the investigating subcommittee, read Coleman a statement by National Security Council aide William B. Quandt which contradicted Coleman's testimony on both counts.

Quandt's statement said: "I was asked by someone in the White House - either Mr. Inderfurth (Carl F. Inderfurth, a former NSC official) or Mr. Wise, to the best of my recollection - to arrange a briefing on the status of the Libyan C-130s for Mr.

Quandt also says in the statement that he called Coleman two or three times, urging him and Billy Carter to delay their September 1978 trip to Libya until after the Camp David summit talks because the Libyans might try to use him to embarrass summit leaders from Egypt and Isra-

During one conversation, Quandt said, Billy Carter came on the line and said "something like 'I know more Libyans than all of you people at the State Department put together."

Coleman said he could not remember any of those calls. He said he could not swear they were not made but said he is sure they were not made before the Libyan trip because Billy thought he had succeeded in keeping the trip secret from the government.

In addition to Quandt's statement, the report President Carter sent to the Senate subcommittee Aug. 4 said Quandt had another NSC aide telephone Billy Carter in January 1979 to brief him on the C-130s. But it said Coleman answered the telephone so Coleman was briefed.

Bayh told reporters Quandt will be called before the subcommittee to testify under oath in an effort to resolve the conflict.

"It's difficult for me to understand how somebody could not remember three conversations and a briefing,' Bayh said. "That would go, of course, to the veracity of Mr. Coleman on that one particular point.

Earlier, during a blistering exchange at the hearing, Bayh accused Coleman of overselling himself and Billy as country businessmen trying to draw trade with Libya with no interests in politics.

"I think we're rather naive," Bayh said, for a president's brother not to believe that dealing with "a terrorist regime can cause serious embarrassment not just on the brother (President Carter) but on our whole coun-

Former official says head count simple to adjust

DETROIT (AP) - The U.S. Census Bureau could do its job more accurately by adjusting its traditional head count with the aid of scientific sampling methods, a former bureau official says.

"The census as a head count is a myth," Philip Houser testified Tuesday in a federal lawsuit filed by the city of Detroit in a challenge of the 1980 census. "The census is a heroic effort to get a count, but ends up as an estimate because the elements change from day to day," testified the 71-year-old former deputy director of the Census Bureau, now a professor of sociology and demographics at the University

The city contends thousands of its citizens, particularly blacks, were missed in the head count begun April 1. That discrepancy, Detroit argues, will deprive the city and the state of federal aid and representation in Congress.

Similar suits have been filed in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Newark, N.J.

In opening arguments Monday, the U.S. Justice Department said adjusting census figures would undermine the "actual enumeration of the population" and perhaps conflict with the Constitution.

The census bureau has acknowledged missing about 5.3 million people across the nation in its 1970

Studies have shown that four times as many blacks are missed as whites in the decennial census. In Detroit, blacks account for more than 60 percent of the population, which was pegged at 1.5 million after the 1970 census.

"Detroit undoubtedly suffered from a disparate under-count" during the 1970 tally, Hauser told U.S. District Judge Horace Gilmore during the first day

There would also be an undercount in 1980 if the pattern of under-count continues - it's a matter of simple arithmetic.

New Mexico confirms seventh case of plague

- New Mexico's seventh case of bubonic plague this year has been confirmed in an 8-year-old Indian boy whose brother contracted the disease earlier, state health authorities say.

Dr. Jonathan Mann, assistant director for health promotion and disease prevention in the state Health and Envirgnment Department, said Tuesday the 8-yearold Navajo, a resident of the Alamo Reservation, has recovered from a mild case of the disease.

The child was the brother of a 5-year-old boy who was earlier confirmed as this year's third buboric plague case, Mann said Tues-

Skid Row playground brings pleasure to kids

By ELIZABETH MEHREN The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - Good news travels fast in the children's under-

When the Catholic Workers opened Skid Row's first playground next to the Hospitality Kitchen one recent morning, kids - boys and girls wearing hopeful expressions and heartshaped name tags — were sizing up the swings, the slides and the sand-

Only an hour later, their number had doubled. Nearly 40 4-to-8-yearolds were chasing each other)through the lot that six weeks ago housed empty wooden boxes, painting on butcher paper pinned to the cyclone fence, stringing beads of colored macaroni pieces, and sitting down to a midmorning snack of fresh, juicy watermelon slices. Against the asphalt and the dingy brick walls, the squeals of children at play mixed with the usual sounds of Skid Row.

"IT'S KIND of obvious," said Monica Santos, one of the three Los Angeles grammar school teachers who volunteered to staff the playground for the summer, "that the kids went home and got their brothers and their sisters and their cousins and their

It was also obvious that the logic behind this latest brainchild of the Catholic Workers was being proved with every smile and every shriek of youthful glee: Give these kids a playground, and they'll play. 'We noticed about three years ago that more and more families were beginning to move into the Skid Row area," said Jeff Dietrich, manager of the Hospitality Kitchen and a 10-year veteran of Catholic Workers' projects in Skid Row. "We started working with them then, taking them on field trips, throwing ice cream parties for them, stuff like that."

WHAT THEY observed, working with children from infants to teenagers, "100 percent Mexican and mostly undocumented," Dietrich said, was that "these kids didn't have any place to go. If they weren't locked in their rooms or playing on their fire escapes, they were playing in the streets. The older ones were doing things like setting fires and beating up the winos." Dietrich sighed. "These kids are like all kids. They've just got all this energy — and no place

Dietrich elaborated: "These kids were completely forgotten. Nobody thinks of families actually living on Skid Row. These people come up from Mexico, they work mostly in the garment industry, they move into a little 10-by-10 hotel room. They call it an apartamiento. That means there's a stove and a refrigerator in the room. They can pack a lo there." The Catholic Workers estimate, in fact, that at least 1,000 Mexi-

WITH THE closest children's park and the closest school, some two miles from the Skid Row area, Dietrich said the Catholic Workers were painfully aware of the need for recreational facilities for the growing number of children in that area. "But remember," he said, "these are not people who are eligible for any official services. And it was clear to us that there were no agencies that were going to make the transition" and do some-

The Catholic Workers themselves decided to do something when the lot adjacent to their Hospitality Kitchen and Free Clinic suddenly became available for rent. So when the 50 by 150-foot space became available for $150 a month last November, Dietrich said, "We snatched it up." While Dietrich set about soliciting funds for the play-ground (mainly from local Catholic parishes), his Catholic Worker comrades sought a design for the park from the Southern California School of Architecture.

AND IT WAS Catholic Worker Greg Johnson, 24, who took over from there. "There were a lot of volunteers," Dietrich said, "but Greg has to take about 90 percent of the credit for building this thing." The entire project, Dietrich said, cost about $6,-000 - or one-tenth of an annual Catholic Workers' budget that includes running the free kitchen, the free clinic, an at-cost foodstore, two workers' houses and putting out a newspaper, the Agitator.

Pushing a triple-tiered tire swing laden with laughing preschoolers, Johnson explained that "our intent was to make a place that would be fun, safe and virtually indestructible." As for the fun part, Johnson said, "well, they've been climbing over the fence for weeks now." The safety was built into the design. 'Andas for being indestructible, well, that remains to be seen."

Johnson paused for a moment, and suddenly found himself serving as a 6-foot-plus climbing structure. "Kids were meant to get out and run around," he said. "They need to develop their muscles. I think a place like this can only do them good."

Primary, secondary deficiencies defined

Dear Dr. Solomon: I often see peo-ple buying bags of "greens." What is meant by "greens" and how should they be prepared? —Ms. C.L.

Dear Ms. L.: "Greens" refers to green leaves and stems of plants, such as spinach. They differ from salad plants, which generally are eaten raw. Although greens, too, can be eaten raw if they are very tender. Usually, however, they are boiled first. Although greens lose some of their nutrients when cooked, they often are easier to digest than a raw

In preparing greens, use as little water as possible and cook only long enough to make them tender. The liquid that remains contains nutrients and can be used as part of a sauce for the cooked greens.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is the difference between a primary and secondary vitamin deficiency? —

Dear Hal: A vitamin deficiency is said to be primary when it results from an inadequate diet. It is secondary when it is caused by some exter-nal factor, despite an adequate di-etary intake by the individual.

For example, a primary vitamin deficiency may be caused by poverty, which restricts the kinds of foods one may pruchase, or adherence to a fad diet that does not provide essential nutrients. A secondary deficiency may result from decreased absorption or increased excretion of a vitamin, as occurs in the case of chronic

Secondary deficiencies are more common than primary deficiencies in the United States and other affluent societies; primary deficiencies are mord common in the developing areas of the world, as well as in some sections of the United States.

Dear Dr. Solomon: As a new moth-er with all the anxieties that role implies, I would like to become more knowledgeable about nutrition. I assume that vitamin requirements change as an infant grows and ma-tures. Would strict adherence to the recommended daily allowances pre-clude a vitamin deficiency? — Mrs.

Dear Mrs. L.: As you suggest, the need for vitamins is greater during a period of growth, since they are need. ed to maintain existing tissue as well as to grow new tissue. However, the daily requirements for vitamins also may change in response to environmental factors.

For example, surgery can lead to excessive losses of vitamins, min-erals, protein and other essential nutrients. Similarly, chronic infection may result in decreased absorption and increased excretion of a number of vitamins, while pregnancy and lac-tation increase the need for all vita-mins and other essential nutrients.

Because of these external factors, vitamin deficiencies may occur even in individuals who get the daily allow-ances recommended by the National Academy of Sciences and the National al Research Council.

Automakers' slump: Western Europeans also feeling pinch

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Last spring it hit Detroit. Now the slump in automo-bile sales has Western European manufacturers deeply worried and layoffs are increasing. Like their U.S counterparts, the Europeans are being hit by recession, inflation, high gasoline prices — and Japanese imports. But also of concern is what might be in store from Detroit. Here is a report.) is a report.)

By ROBERT McCARTNEY

ROME (AP) — The giant Mirafiori car production plant in Turin has closed this August vacation season for five weeks instead of the usual four. Many of its workers now fear that they may lose their jobs when they return.

The extended shutdown at the 38,500-worker plant reflects the growing troubles of its owner, Fiat, as well as of the entire West European auto industry.

"Certainly I'm worried by the rumors that we could be fired," said a 40-year-old Sicilian father of two children who operates one of Fiat's metal-stamping machines. Another employee who makes chassis said he was putting aside money "for the hard times ahead.'

out Western Europe fear that a sales slump in most major markets in the first half of this year could deepen into an industry-wide recession similar to the one that hit Detroit in the

"The market is very weak and we cannot keep up the high level of production that we planned for 1980," Hans Thoernqvist, an executive at Swedish manufacturer Saab-Scania, said in an interview.

Top auto firms in Britain, France and West Germany have laid off employees or trimmed working hours.

Fiat hasn't yet reached the plight of Chrysler, which needed a loan from the U.S. government to survive, but it is the largest private auto company in Europe facing major financial difficulties. It lost money on its car and truck operations last year and laid off two-thirds of its blue-collar workers for up to seven days in June and July. Vice Chairman Umberto Agnelli, whose family controls Fiat, says "massive" firings — the first in the company's history - will be necessary in the autumn.

THE PROBLEMS in Europe are almost exactly the same as the ones plaguing U.S. auto companies.

Consumers are shunning showrooms because of sharply higher gasoline prices and the eroding effect of inflation on the purchasing power of their wages and salaries, according to industry economists. Many potential buyers are waiting for new scaled-down models, which save on fuel.

In addition, an onslaught of Japanese imports has taken 10 percent of the West German market and a record 18 percent, despite quotas, in Britain. Italy and France also restrict purchases of Japanese cars.

Even without these factors, auto executives admit that it would have been hard to match last year's 10 percent gain in sales volume in Europe. But sales in the first six months of 1980 plummeted in Britain by 16 percent and in West Germany by 12 percent. Sales of new cars dropped 6.1 percent in France.

INVENTORIES OF unsold cars have soared. Fiat, which exports half its cars to other European countries, has more than 70,000 in parking lots. Peugeot of France announced layoffs and offered a 250-franc ($65) bonus to any worker bringing in a customer. Adam Opel, the West German subsidiary of General Motors, introduced financial incentives leading 9,000 workers to retire early. BL of Britain, the former British Leyland, laid off 5,000 personnel.

The industry has placed much of the blame on Japan. The Japanese sold 600,000 cars in the European Common Market in 1979 and bought slightly under 40,000 from the nine member nations. They are anxious to penetrate Europe further and Nissan and Toyota are seeking permission to build plants in Italy and Spain.

The Japanese have benefited from improvements in their technology and productivity and what is generally admitted to be brilliant marketing. They design their models to suit European tastes and include elaborate accessories.

ECONOMISTS NOTE that Japan also has enjoyed a great advantage from the steady slide of the yen on foreign exchange markets, which reduces the cost of Japanese products for foreign consumers. British union leaders have called cerned about the threat of tough competition from U.S. companies.

GENERAL MOTORS is building plants in Austria and Spain and Ford is already well-entrenched in Europe. Both companies are designing "world cars," or single models using stan-dardized parts produced all over the globe. That efficiency will be hard to match and could force a shakeout in Europe.

Fatalities traced to transmissions

By ILONA ROSS

NEW YORK (AP) - Mary D. Merenda parked her 1978 Mercury Monarch in front of her children's school, switched off the engine and removed the keys, leaving two of her four children in the car.

Five minutes later, nuns standing near classroom windows saw the car start rolling backwards. Fiveyear-old Marcie apparently tried to get out from the back seat, but her foot caught in the door and she was dragged about 20 yards, says her father, St. Louis, Mo., orthopedic surgeon Frank Merenda.

When the car crashed to a halt in a fence, Marcie was dead.

As a result of this and at least 97 other fatalities over the last decade allegedly traced to transmissions that shift from park to reverse under slight pressure, Ford Motor Co. may be facing the largest auto recall in U.S. history.
In June, the U.S. Department of Transportation issued preliminary findings that 16 million Ford cars and light trucks apparently have transmission defects. The potential recall covers all Fords sold after August 1972 and manufactured before October 1979 and equipped with one of the following types of automatic transmissions: C-3, C-4, C-6, FMX and

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said it had received reports that defective Ford automatic transmissions h ,000 accidents, 98 deaths and 1,710 injuries.

Most of the accidents involved runaway cars whose gears shifted from park to reverse after being left unattended, engines running. Ford claims the deaths were due to driver error, not design defect.

The automaker, which says the NHTSA figures are gears properly, failure to apply emergency brakes, based "on faulty analysis and inaccurate and inadequate information," will rebut the charges at a public hearing beginning today in Washington before the agency decides whether to order a recall. The agency said it had received more than 23,000 complaints from Ford product owners about incidents in which vehicles slipped from park to reverse. Its report says the frequency of transmission slippage is 90 per 1,000 Ford vehicles, compared with 2.2 per 1,000 General Motors vehicles, based on owner complaints. However, Charles Gumushian, Ford government relations associate, says the statistics are biased agaist Ford due to adverse publicity and because some groups have solicited complaints from Ford

The NHTSA also said investigators found one or two apparent design errors in several different Ford transmission designs.

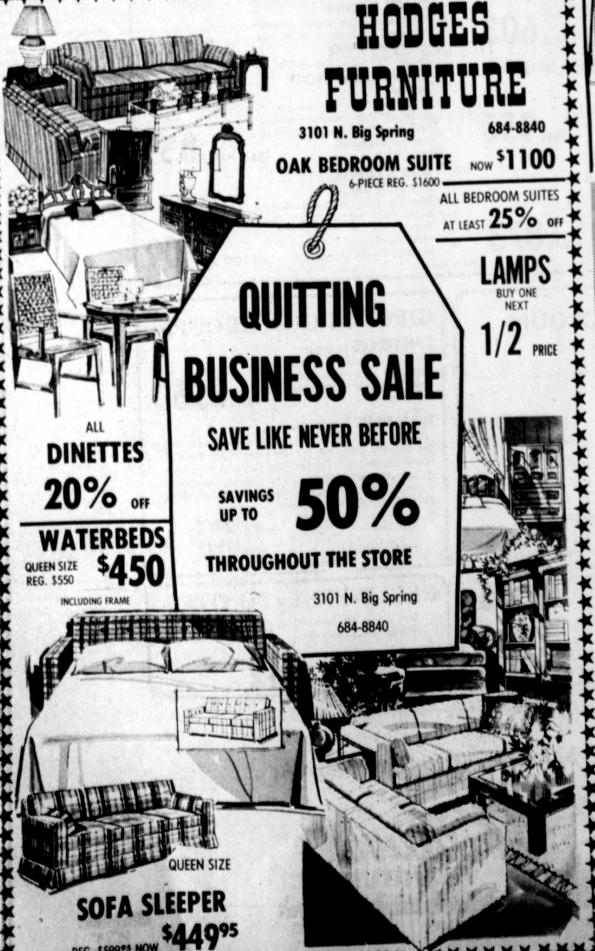

The company modified its 1980 and 1981 transmissions. No complaints of slippage in these models have been reported. '

Gumushian says the modifications "were not directly related to the investigation. "They're very subtle," he said. "The average consumer couldn't tell the difference. They ensured positive engagement into the park gear - not that it wasn't there before. "It assured that the driver would not inadvertently put the gear in between park and reverse, then added that "there is no guarantee" against driver error in positioning the gears. Gumushian cites three driver errors that Ford says are responsible for slippage: failure to position

Carter's 'recovery' indicated

...but, politically, he isn't 'cured'

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Right on schedule, the first symptoms of political recovery are showing on President Carter's chart - but he's not well yet.

Carter and his strategists had said all along that their poll ratings against Ronald Reagan would improve markedly once the Democratic National Convention renominated him.

Until then, it was a two-man show among Democrats, while Reagan had the Republican billing all to himself. Now Carter heads the Democratic ticket and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is supporting him, although it isn't yet clear how active he'll be in the campaign ahead.

The president has indeed narrowed the pollsters' gap, just as former President Gerald R. Ford did against Carter four years ago. Lopsided pre-convention margins for Carter in those polls proved illusory; once Ford had defeated Reagan and gained the GOP nomination, the race was a tight one. An Associated Press survey showed a surge in

The new poll, completed on Saturday, shows Reagan the preferred candidate of 39 percent of likely voters questioned. Carter was chosen by 32 percent, Rep. John B. Anderson, the independent, by 13 percent. The rest were undecided or favored minor party candidates. Ten days earlier, before the Democratic show, it was Reagan 47 percent, Carter 22 percent, Anderson In both those surveys, the margin of error was 4 percentage points, meaning the candidates' actual support could be higher or lower by that margin.

Robert S. Strauss, Carter's campaign chairman, weeks before the election. And Carter insists he'll will the one that carrely a state will be an even handier guide in the weeks ahead.

Strauss says the polls will show a dead even race.

had said the president surely would gain ground once his contest with Kennedy was settled.

"I just know that we're picking up," Strauss said during the convention. "I'm a pretty good judge of this — I'm the complaint department, with damn little authority to make refunds."

Strauss, who spends much of his time with a telephone in his hand, said he was getting those readings from Democrats around the country as he sought to orchestrate harmony behind the Carter

The national surveys set benchmarks of popular sentiment. Except in runaway campaigns, they tend to get closer at election day nears.

But a presidential election is not a single, nationwide contest. It is 51 contests, for the electoral votes of each state and the District of Columbia. The question is not only how many votes, but where. A runaway in one state counts for no more than a narrow victory in another; winner takes all the electoral votes.

And Democrats from states like Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, even some Deep South states, left New York nervous, or pessimistic, about Carter's standing with their voters. The president can't afford to lose states like those.

He won them all last time to gain 297 electoral votes, and the White House, while Ford was sweep-ing the West. Reagan looks solid in the West, too, and his people talk of carving into Carter's Southern

The national polls will become more solid benchmarks of strength once the general election campaign is under way in earnest, and the impact of the national conventions is forgotten. And the surveys that assess the chances of the candidates state-by-

Strauss says the polls will show a dead even race weeks before the election. And Carter insists he'll win the one that counts, on Nov. 4.

The new AP survey, and others to come before Labor Day, may spell serious trouble for Anderson. The League of Women Voters had said it will invite

The League of Women Voters had said it will invite candidates who are gaining at least 15 percent in the national polls, and are competing for enough electoral votes to win, to participate in the first of the presidential campaign debates next month.

Anderson wants in, badly. He said it will be "a damaging blow" to his campaign if he cannot confront Carter and Reagan in debate. And the first of the three debates is crucial to the independent. If he's on the platform in Baltimore, the likelihood is that his poll ratings will exceed the 15 percent level in later surveys, keeping him in the debate lineup.

The AP poll shows him 2 points short of the target. He doesn't have a national convention to boost his

He doesn't have a national convention to boost his standing. So his campaign is launching a television advertising campaign, and he'll be naming a vice presidential running mate in the next week or so.

CHICAGO (AP) - Expensive racehorses that never earned their keep and some poorly forged checks are among the clues perplexing investigators assigned to solve the $21 million puzzle of why heiress Helen Vorhees Brach vanished.

Mrs. Brach's attorney, John Menk, says the three-year-old trail is "as cold as yesterday's pancakes," but her brother believes there's still hope of finding out what happened and wants a judge to hire a private investigator to look for her.

Unless the mystery is solved, her estate, estimated at $21 million, will remain in limbo for four more years. Under state law, missing people are not declared legally dead until seven years after their disappearances and their estates cannot be distributed until then.

Mrs. Brach, who is 62 if she is still alive, was a Miami Beach club hostess when she married Frank Brach of the Brach Candy Co. He died in 1970 at the age of 80, and she lived quietly afterward on a seven-acre estate in Glenview, north of Chicago.

On Feb. 17, 1977, Mrs. Brach left the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where she had a routine check-up and bought a few trifles at a specialty shop. A clerk at the store is the last person who remembers seeing her, other than her long-time houseman, John Mat-

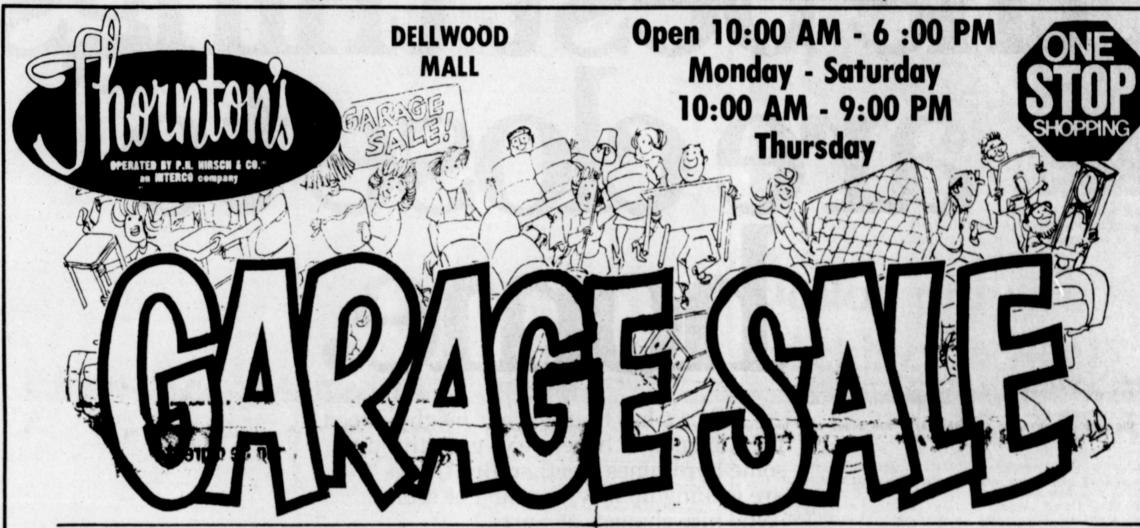

Matlick said she caught a flight back to Chicago that day and he picked her up at the airport. He said she stayed at home for the next four days and then he drove her to the airport for a trip to Florida. He said that was the last time he saw her.

Police said Mrs. Brach had no reservation on a Florida-bound plane that day and never boarded Matlick cashed seven checks worth $15,000 written on Mrs. Brach's account on Feb. 17 and 18. He said they were compensation for household expenses. Police said the checks were forged and the signature didn't even resemble Mrs. Brach's. No charges were filed.

Matlick later cited his Fifth Amendment right not to incriminate himself in refusing to answer questions about the inci-

Police investigators said they also examined ties between Mrs. Brach and two horsemen, Richard Bailey and his brother, Paul Bailey. Mrs. Brach dated Richard, and Paul sold her $300,000 worth of racehorses that lost about $120,000 in their first year of running.

Chambers cut by Tampa Bay

By The Associated Preess

Wally Chambers and Ken MacAfee were glad the burden had been lifted. The same can't be said for the Detroit Lions, Washington Redskins, Los Angeles Rams and New England Patriots, who were forced to place their burdens somewhere else - the National Football League's reserve and special exemption lists.

Chambers and MacAfee were the most notable players to be cut as the NFL's 28 franchises reduced their rosters to the mandatory — but not always accurate — 60-man limit

You see, there are exceptions for some clubs. Or is that exemptions? You know, the ones that NFL teams can count on, but don't count.

THE NAMES are very impressive too. Defensive end Jack Youngblood, linebacker Jim Youngblood and defensive tackle Larry Brooks - all of the Rams — Redskins fullback John Riggins and Lions defensive tackle Bubba Baker, just to name a few.

MacAfee and Chambers are not in that category. They were among the countless players who were told they weren't good enough to play for their respective teams. But they weren't among the surprised ones.

Chambers, the wily defensive end who helped stabilize the line of Tampa Bay, was placed on waivers by the Bucs, who were upset over his tendency for missing practices.

"I have no grudges," said Cham-bers, who added he knew his days were numbered when he didn't play in the Bucs two preseason games. "I don't feel bad. I leave good friendships. Now I want an opportunity to play somewhere else."

SO DOES MacAfee.

The All-American from Notre Dame, the seventh player taken in the 1978 NFL draft, was waived by the San Francisco 49ers.

"To be perfectly honest, I'm glad it's this early," MacAfee said, adding he will return to dental school at the University of Pennsylvania if he is not

"They don't have any interest in me anymore, so it's kind of saddening," the tight end added. "But that's something I'll live with. It's not like I'm going to go back and work in a coal

A lot of NFL veterans like the Youngbloods, Riggins, Baker etc., are not going to the coal mines either. But they are also staying away from the NFL pits unless there's more gold, or dollars down there.

And that's something team owners have been avoiding, especially when it means renegotiating a contract.

That's where the reserve and exemption lists come in. It's a way for teams to maintain their rights to star players who are staying away from training camps over contract prob-

THE RAMS lead the league in that category with four starters! - the Youngbloods, Brooks and guard Dennis Harrah, on the reserve-did not report list. Detroit is a close second with three key starters - Doug English, who is sitting out the season because of business interests, Baker and kicker Benny Ricardo on the reserve list.

The Patriots have veteran tight end Al Chandler, who has not reported to camp, on the retired reserve list while the NFL office granted the Redskins a special exemption for Riggins, who left the Redskins camp in salary dis-

Once a player is taken off the reserve or exemption list, another must be cut from the team's roster. But it does give teams more time to look at rookies and free agents while they settle contract disputes.

The job propects of many rookies and veterans were settled Tuesday.

THE KANSAS CITY Chiefs loped 14 players off their roster and placed running back Alois Blackwell on the injured reserve list. The Patriots and Atlanta Falcons were also among the leading unemployers, cutting 13 players each. New England also placed veteran defensive back Jimmy Stewart on the injured reserve list while Atlanta put backup quarterback June Jones there, the result of a motorcycle accident that cracked three bones in his foot.

The Bears also utilized the injured reserve list, placing cornerback Virgil Livers and rookie safety Bill Perrin there. Chicago also waived six players including center Tom Ardizzone, and acquired linebacker Terry Tautolo from Philadelphia for an un-disclosed draft pick. The Eagles, meanwhile, waived seven players, including fifth-round draft pick Nate Rivers, a fullback from South Caro-

Houston made news getting rid of seven players including rookie lineback Tim Campbell, brother of Oilers running back Earl Campbell.

Burrough out for 3 weeks

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - The Houston Oilers are getting one wide receiver back just as another is going to the sidelines for three weeks.

Ken Burrough suffered stretched ligaments in Sunday's 20-17 exhibition victory over New Orleans in a game that also included a 15-yard touch-down catch by Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, returning for the second year from knee surgery.

Johnson will move into the starting lineup Saturday night when the Oilers play the Dallas Cowboys in Texas Stadium. Quarterback Gifford Nielsen also will miss the Dallas game with a shoulder injury suffered in the preseason opener against Tampa Bay.

Rookie linebacker Tim Campbell, brother of Oiler running back Earl Campbell, was the most recognizable name among seven players cut Tuesday as the Oilers got down to the National Football League 60-player

Campbell, a 5-10, 200 linebacker-defensive end candidate from the University of Texas, was co Texas A&M running back Alvin Bowers; Cal State-Fullerton kicker John Choukair; defensive backs Rickie Harr of Colorado State and Richard Moore of Angelo State; Texas-El Paso defensive end Ralph Rushing and Nevada-Las Vegas linebacker Doug Smith.

The Oilers will have another 10 players to cut by Tuesday and must be down to the regular season limit of 45 players in two weeks.

The defending Super Bowl cham-pion Pittsburgh Steelers placed veteran offensive lineman Thom Dornbrook and rookie safety Bill Hurley on the injured reserve list and cut seven rookies, including ninth-round draft choice Ron McCall, a wide receiver from Arkansas.

Miami bolstered its ailing offensive line by acquiring veteran Burton Lawless, a starter on Dallas' 1975 Super Bowl champions, from the Cowboys in a contingency deal. Dallas will get a draft choice from the Dolphins if Lawless makes the team. David Humm, the former Nebraska

All NFL rosters must be reduced to 50-players by next Tuesday.

David Humm, the former Nebraska signal-caller, was among nine players dropped by Oakland. The Raiders also cut wide receivers Joe Stewart and Ernie Pough and placed six players on the injured reserve list.

The San Diego Chargers said they signed All-Pro offensive tackle Russ Washington, who missed 38 days of training camp.

"I'm happy to be joining the team and getting on with the season at training camp. All I want to do now is play some football.'

He was released at the start of the 1978-79 season, a move that sparked bitter feelings at the time. But Van Lier now says that's all

"I won't say I left on a good note, but that's all behind me," he said. "I welcome the chance at a new profession, and I'll try to be professional

Van Lier was picked up by the Milwaukee Bucks when the Bulls dropped him but was released in January 199. More recently, he has lived in Seattle, where he became involved in musical promotions.

owner Joseph Robbie seems irreconcilable, leaving two second-year fullbacks who didn't gain 100 yards between them last season. Barring a late trade, the Dolphins running game will hinge around Delvin Williams. Williams gained 1,000 yards in his first 10 games as a Dolphin in 1978, but injuries have slowed him since. He's healthy this year, and Shula says, "We're looking forward to him giving us the kind of year he gave in Backing Williams are second-year player Tony Nathan and veteran reserve Gary Davis.

Shula is also undecided about his quarterbacks. Bob Griese, 35, seemed to be past his peak last year, but came back strong in the final three games to lead Miami to the division title. Don Strock, Griese's backup for seven years, promising third-year pro Guy Benjamin and rookie sensation David Woodley give Shula a surplus quarterback who could be used as trade bait. The offensive line situation looked bleak after the retirements of center Jim Langer, guards Larry Little and Bob Kuechenberg and tackle Mike Current and injury to tackle Jon Giesler, but Little and Kuechenberg have returned and the Dolphins Tuesday lured former Dallas Cowboy guard Burton Lawless out of retire-

San Antonio edges El Paso, 5-4

Tom Beyers singled home the winning run in the ninth inning Tuesday night as the San Antonio Dodgers took a 5-4 Texas League baseball victory over the El Paso Diablos. In other Texas League games, Jackson shut out Shreveport, 1-0, Amarillo beat Midland, 5-2, and Tulsa and Arkansas split a doubleheader.

Arkansas won the first game, 10-8, and Arkansas took the second, 7-1. Beyers, who had 2 hits in 5 trips to the plate and drove in 3 runs, slammed a single up the middle, driving home Dave Richards from second with the winning run. Richards walked and was balked to second

Tom Brunansky had three hits in five trips, including a two-run double, for El Paso.

Stone records 20th mound win over California

By The Associated Press Steve Stone is at 20 victories and counting but 30 meant the end of George Brett's hitting

While Stone became the first 20-game winner this season as the Orioles downed the California Angels 5-2, Brett saw his 30-game hitting streak come to an end thanks to a fine fielding play by Texas first baseman Pat Putnam in the ninth inning of the Royals' 4-3 victory over the Rangers.

"I feel terrific," said Stone, 20-4, who flirted with a no-hitter until Bert Campaneris singled with one out in the eighth inning. "I've never even been close to 20 wins before. I brought this bottle of champagne with me from Baltimore and I didn't want to take it more than one city.'

"I'm disappointed I was 0-for-3 but I'm relieved we won the ballgame," said Brett. "I would have liked to have gotten at least 32 straight (Minnesota's Ken Landreaux hit in 31 consecutive games earlier in the the season) but I'm going to start another streak tomorrow.

Although he flied out, ground-ed out twice and walked, Brett is still batting .401 in his bid to become the first .400 hitter since Ted Williams in 1941.

In other American League action, the New York Yankees shaded the Seattle Mariners 3-1, the Detroit Tigers trounced the Milwaukee Brewers 6-2, the Boston Red Sox downed the Oakland A's 7-5, the Cleveland Indians defeated the Chicago White Sox 8-5 and the Toronto Blue Jays nipped the Minnesota

While Stone was mowing the Angels down to boost his record to 20-4, Eddie Murray, Doug De-Cinces and Dan Graham backed him with solo homers as the Orioles remained 21/2-games behind the Yankees in the AL

"I've never even been close to 20 wins before," said Stone, a 33-year-old right-hander whose previous high was 15 victories and who started 1980 with an over-all 78-79 mark. "I never thought much about winning 20 games before. I didn't know if I'd ever get the chance. I was

"You don't go 20-4 pitching overpowering games every time out. I've only got one shutout, so I get just enough runs to win. It's the ballclub. I saw that big zero in the hit column from the second inning on. I got a pitch out over the plate and Campy hit it good."

Stone went 71-3 innings, allowing two runs - one unearned on two hits. The victory made him the earliest 20-game winner in Baltimore history, surpassing Dave McNally, won his 20th game of 1970 on Aug. 25. His last outing was a two-hitter against the Yankees in which he finished with 42-3 hitless innings, giving him 12 consecutive no-hit innings before Campaneris' sin-

Royals 4, Rangers 3 Kansas City had only four hits off Jon Matlack and trailed 3-1 going into the ninth inning when U.L. Washington reached on an error by Texas shortstop Dave Roberts, bringing up Brett with his hitting streak on the line.

He hit a hard grounder but Putnam knocked it down with a dive and crawled on his hands and knees to beat Brett to the bag. However, Hal McRae's double made it 3-2 and Amos Otis greeted Danny Darwin with a single that tied the score. After John Wathan singled, team," said Brett.

Tom Underwood and Rich Gossage combined on a five-hitter and Bob Watson and Reggie Jackson hit home runs. Underwood gave up four hits before Gossage came on with the bases loaded and two out in the seventh and struck out Dan Meyer on three pitches. Watson, deprived of a home run in the first inning when his towering fly ball struck a speaker hanging from the roof of the Seattle Kingdome and fell for a double, homered in the fourth to put New York on top 2-1. Jackson broke an 0-for15 slump with his 34th homer in the eighth. Tigers 6, Brewers 2

Richie Hebner's two-run triple sparked a four-run third inning as Detroit, which lost six in a row, snapped Millwaukee's seven-game winning streak Dan Schatzeder scattered seven hits to break a personal fourgame losing streak. Singles by Lou Whitaker, Rick Peters and Alan Trammell accounted for the first run. Hebner tripled and scored on Champ Summers' sacrifice fly gave the Tigers a 4-0 lead against Moose Haas.

Red Sox 7, A's 5

Tony Perez began a Boston comeback with his 21st home run of the season in the seventh inning and later doubled and scored the tie-breaking run on Carl Yastrzemski's single in the ninth. Perez led off the ninth with his third hit of the game, a double off Craig Minetto. He went to third on a wild pitch as Carlton Fisk walked and Yastrzemski singled him home. Later in the inning, Rick Burleson walked with the bases loaded to force in another run.

Indians 8, White Sox 5 Mike Hargrove collected four singles and Ron Hassey's two-run single highlighted a four-run first inning that triggered Cleveland over Chicago. Winner Ross Grimsley yielded eight hits in 82-3 innings before needing lastout help from Sid Monge. Cleveland jumped on Richard Dotson for four runs in the first inning. Hargrove singled the first run home, Toby Harrah followed with an infield hit and, after an error, Hassey scored both runners with a single. Alan Bannister's RBI-double made it 4-0.

Blue Jays 4, Twins 3

Steve Braun's pinch double in the top of the ninth inning gave Toronto the winning run and snapped the Blue Jays' fivegame losing streak. Braun's hit off Doug Corbett scored Al Woods, who hit into a forceout following a single by Roy Howell. The Blue Jays erased a 3-1 deficit in the sixth when Otto Velez walked, Damaso Garcia doubled and both runners scored when Howell also doubled.

Berardi captures third PBA title with strikes

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) - Joe Berardi emerged Tuesday night with his third career Professional Bowlers Association title in the $85,000 Greater

The right-hander from Pearl River, N.Y., fired four straight strikes midway through the championship game Tuesday night to take a 48-pin lead, and avoided open frames at the end to shag the $10,000 top prize with a 223-198 upset of top-seeded Guppy

Berardi totaled 649 points for three

Third-seeded Berardi had beaten Mark Roth of Little Silver, N.J., 203-149, and George Pappas of Charlotte, N.C., 223-203, in the semifinal game at Thruway Lanes. The win secured a spot in the 1980 Firestone Tournament of Champions for Berardi, who, after winning two titles including the U.S. Open in 1979, dropped his touring pro status for Berardi sat out the first match between Roth and Tommy Hudson of Akron, Ohio. Hudson, needing a spare in the 10th frame, missed the 2-4-5 spare to lose 226-223.

Roth, the PBA's leading money winner for the past three seasons, now has earned $84,350 in 1980 the benefit of a title.

Troup earned $6,000 for the second place finish. The 30-year-old righthander from Jacksonville, Fla., fired strikes in the seventh, eighth, and ninth frames in a gallant comeback

Pappas made $5,000 for third place.

ATLANTA (AP) - Second-seeded Eddie Dibbs and No.3 seed Eliot Teltscher, the defending champion, advanced to the second round of the Atlanta Open tennis tournament with victories Tuesday, but neither had an easy time of it.

Dibbs overcame a challenge from Byron Bertram of South Africa to win 6-4, 5-7, 7-6, and Teltscher beat Blaine Willenborg 6-4, 6-2.

The first round winds up today when top-seeded John McEnroe takes on Tracy Austin's brother, John.

Bertram's strong forehand and powerful serve threatened Dibbs in a close second set. But Dibbs jumped to a decisive 5-2 lead in the tiebreaker and was never headed although Bertram pulled within one point with a pair of aces.

Teltscher was leading 5-1 in the first set when Willenborg suddenly began a rally that narrowed the count to 5-4. Teltscher had to struggle hard to win 6-4 and it wasn't until three games later that his superior experience ended Willenborg's challenge at 6-2.

Dibbs gains tennis victory at Atlanta "No matter if you are just one point away from a win, you have to continue concentrating," Teltscher said.
"And when I got to 5-1, I think I stopped doing that. But I did serve well when the score got to 5-4. I had just as soon the first match hadn't been so tough. The guy may not be in the top 200, buut he played pretty

"I like to think I have a chance to repeat as champion," Teltscher said. "I have always played well here and I hope to continue.

Fifth-seeded Butch Walts was also pushed to the limit, dropping the first set to Steve Krulevitz before recovering for a 1-6, 6-4, 6-4 victory.

In other singles play, Australian David Carter defeated Amand Amritaj of India 6-1, 6-3, and fourth-seeded Buster Mottram of Great Britain got past Joao Soares of Brazil 6-2. 6-3.

Golf tryouts for MHS boys set for Hogan

John Ford, Midland High's new boys golf coach, has announced that all MHS boys wishing to play golf during the 1980-81 season must attend a tryout session at Hogan Park Golf Course both Monday and Tuesday.

The tryouts are for sophomores through seniors. Registration will be held Monday at the course at 8 a.m. and a round of golf will be played, beginning at 8:30 a.m. Since I am new to Midland High, I feel it is best for everyone to tryout this year. This policy may change in the future and there may be some exemptions next year from trying out. But I would at this time like to get to know those who wish to play golf," Ford said.

Ford comes to Midland High from Lubbock Dunbar where he was track coach. Ford will also coach the MHS cross country team. He replaces Ed Nixon, who became assistant athletic director for the Midland Independent School District last winter.

Gamble pays off for Pancho Carter SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Bobby Olivero gambled on his tires - and lost. Pancho Carter gambled on the track - and won the USAC Tony Bettenhausen Memorial 100 dirt car Carter gambled that the little-used ruts high on the track's final turn would give him the edge, and shot past Olivero on the last lap to win Tuesday's accident-marred, rain-plagued race.

"I took a gamble and ran up there. I was faster up there. It paid off," said Carter, 30, of Brownsburg, Ind. "I knew Bobby had changed to softer tires, and they were blistering. I could afford to get my tires hotter up high in the ruts."

The race was stopped for about 40 minutes after a spectacular, three-car pileup on the 74th lap sent three drivers to a local hospital, two of them just for observation.

All three were conscious and "doing fine," officials said.

Bill Puterbaugh, of Speedway, Ind., had the most serious injuries. Memorial Medical Center officials were working Tuesday night to determine if he had suffered fractures in a hand and shoulder.

Robert Smith of Gibsonton, Fla. suffered a sprained shoulder, USAC

officials said. Mack McClellan was doused with fuel when his car's tank burst, and was being held for obser-

All three cars were flipped upside down and heavily damaged in the crash. USAC observer Carl McCormack said Peterbaugh's car apparently slowed, and the other two drivers plowed into him. "Man, those others hit him, and they all just started flipping," said

McCormack. Olivero, the defending champion, took advantage of the red flag to change to softer tires to increase his car's traction and speed. He knew he was gambling that they would last the final 26 laps in the muggy, 95-degree

"The tires started blistering on the last lap, and that slowed me down," said Olivero. "It was a gamble on our part. It would have worked if the race had been two laps shorter." Carter had led only two laps before his finale. Pole-sitter Larry Rice of Brownsburg, Ind. led through lap No.18 and blew an engine on the 66th

Tom Bigelow of Whitewater, Wis. led from the 19th lap until his drive shaft broke only moments after the three-car pileup.

NEW YORK (AP) -The North American Soccer League is prepared to sit at the bargaining table and "negotiate in good faith" with the players union that critics say has been virtually ignored. That promise was made Tuesday by the legal counsel for the league's owners, who lost a court battle earlier in the day. A federal judge ruled that the league had violated its collective bargaining obligation to the NASL Players Association, and would have to come to terms with that group.

"I think they'll get serious for the first time in three years," Ed Garvey, executive director of the players association, said in a statement from his Washington office. "I think the owners will now realize that it makes much more sense to sit down and bargain than to fight the inevita-

The league's attorney, Robert Rolnick, issued a similar statement from his Washington office, in which he guaranteed the good-faith bargaining.

'The NASL is currently involved in active negotiations with the players association," Rolnick said. "The league believes those negotiations will produce an agreement If they don't the league's plan for a second season of winter indoor soccer could be scrapped. Part of the decision by U.S. District Court Judge Constance Baker Motley relieved the players of the obligation to play such a sched-

The judge ruled that the league could not enforce provisions of any contracts beyond those provisions which bind players to their teams because it had failed to negotiate collective bargaining issues with the NASLPA. Her restraining order would force the league to bargain with the union over several changes made without its consultation or ap-

Rolnick's words of optimism may be more than a signal that the league will seriously negotiate. It wants to save the indoor season.

Niekro gets win in relief role By The Associated Press et the age of 41, Phil Niekro has learned to expect just about anything when he comes to the ballpark. So after Atlanta used four other pitchers, Niekro wasn't shocked when Braves Manager Bobby Cox waved him in from the bullpen in the 11th inning against the Chicago Cubs Tuesday night.

"I always come to the park ready to pitch," said Niekro, who set the Cubs down on one hit in the top of the 11th and then got the victory when Glenn Hubbard doubled home the winning run in the bottom half of the inning as the Braves beat the Cubs 5-4.

"I broke in as a relief pitcher, so it's nothing new to me," said Niekro, 10-14, who has appeared in 30 games this season and started 28 of them. But his two relief stints have been productive ones - the victory over the Cubs and a save earlier this sea-

In other National League games, the Houston Astros beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2, the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the San Diego Padres 7-4, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Montreal Expos 3-2, the Cincinnati Reds trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 and the San Francisco Giants nipped the New York Mets 5-4. The win was Atlanta's ninth in the Art Howe and Cesar Cedeno drove in two runs apiece as the Astros won their fifth in a row to remain one game ahead of Cincinnati and two ahead of Los Angeles in the N.L. West. Despite the loss, Pittsburgh remained two games in front of Montreal and 21/2 ahead of Philadelphia in the East.

Astros starter Nolan Ryan struck out seven in 72-3 innings to even his record at 8-8. Joe Sambito finished up for his 12th save.

Ryan, who signed as a free agent for approximately $1 million a year last winter, has been under fire for not living up to his reputation, criticism he feels is unfair.

"I don't think I've pitched that badly," he said. "I've kept us in most of the games I've pitched. Tonight I had to rely somewhat on the fastball, but nobody pitches very long in the major leagues with just one pitch."

Ryan's seven strikeout gave him 142 for the season, second in the league behind Steve Carlton's 211.

Phillies 7, Padres 4 Philadelphia won its sixth in a row and eighth in the last nine games to pull closer to Pittsburgh.

Manny Trillo tied the game 4-4 with a fifth-inning homer, then Garry Maddox and Larry Bowa produced the go-ahead run with consecutive

Los Angeles got its winning run in the ninth inning when Steve Yeager led off with a single, moved to second on a single by Derrell Thomas and scored when Davey Lopes singled past the outstretched glove of shortstop Chris Speier.

Cincinnati pitcher Mike LaCoss broke an 0-for-36 string at the plate with a run-scoring single in the fourth inning to break a 2-2 tie.

"I can't remeber the last hit I had," said LaCoss. Then he added, "It doen't matter. I'm not paid to hit."

LaCoss, 7-9, scattered seven hits over seven innings before giving way to Doug Bair. Dave Collins and Joe Nolan slammed solo homers for the Reds off Silvio Martinez, 4-7.

"It was a funny game," said Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog. "They get two homers and not by their power guys. Then the pitcher gets that hit.'

Kentucky team young

LEXINGTON, Ky (AP) — If a few good freshmen can be found, reports that Kentucky's football team has no depth will have been greatly exaggerated, says sophomore defensive lineman Kevin Kearns.

"We've got a young team and, if we can just stay healthy, maybe get some of these freshmen coming in to help us out, I think depthwise we won't have that much problem," Kearns said.

"We're going to have, I think, one of the strongest defensive lines in the country. Our defensive backs are going to be tough. We'll be young in linebackers, but I think we'll be all right."

Injuries, aches and pains took their toll last season as the young Wildcats finished 5-6.

Of Kearns' cohorts on the defensive line, Tim Gooch, Chuck Jones and All-Southeastern Conference noseguard Richard Jaffe nursed assorted injuries. Heralded freshman Richard Abraham suffered a collapsed lung in preseason drills and logged just 34 plays for the year.

"We didn't have nobody" when the injuries struck, Kearns said.

Long-distance pigeon racing is national sport in Belgium

Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Belgium has about 10 million people and 6 million to 8 million pigeons — 106,000 of which are officially registered as active racers. Where others bet on horses, Belgians bet on pigeons.

"This country truly is the cradle of pigeon racing," said Andre Vancoppenolle, head of the Royal Belgian Pigeon Amateurs Federation.

A pigeon race is a contest against the clock that exploits the uncanny ability of carrier or homing pigeons to fly hundreds of miles and find their

At one recent race, 25,000 Belgian pigeons, were released near Orleans in neighboring France and returned to their coops 250 miles to the north in a matter of hours. The winning bird clocked an average speed of 58.5 miles per hour.

"That's a pretty average speed for a race of this distance," said Vancop-penolle, who owns 120 pigeons himself. "Some birds are known to have reached speeds of up to 120 kilometers (75 miles) per hour."

The racing season runs from April to September. Pigeon racing is known in various European nations but in Belgium the sport is big enough for the state radio network to run hourly newscasts every weekend — when most races are held — about weather conditions and release times at far-away starting points.

Typically, the pigeons are loaded into special baskets on Thursdays or Fridays and transported away for weekend races that can start in southern France or even Spain.

Each bird has a special ring on one of its legs bearing a number. The rings are slipped into sealed timing boxes by the owners as soon as the pigeons arrive home. Race officials later open the boxes to check the time each bird punched in.

Owners may enter as many birds as they want.

"In any given race I may fly as many as 50 pigeons," said Vancoppenolle in an interview.

Pigeons have a lifespan of about 20 years but racers are retired when they reach 10 or so.

As in other sports, the history of pigeon racing has its success stories. In 1977, for instance, one pigeon was sold for the equivalent of almost $27,-000 at a Brussels sale.

"This was, of course, an exceptional price," said Vancoppenolle, "and the bird is used for breeding only." The more normal price for a good breeding pigeon is $1,000 to $1,330.

Pigeon racing is a growing sport both here and abroad. "In Belgium people are betting on the sport and it is not unusual to see a bet of, say, 10,000 francs ($333) on a particular bird," Vancoppenolle said. Last year, more than 20,000 homing pigeons were exported from Belgium for breeding purposes, including 565 to the United States.

Homing pigeons have a history few other birds can match.

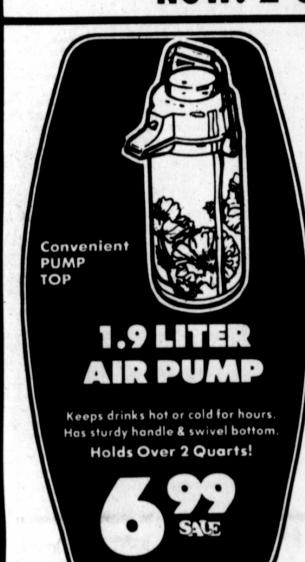

Starting with the Romans, they were used as a reliable tool of communication during times of war. Brutus used pigeons in 40 B.C. during the siege of Madeira as did Wellington in 1815 at Waterloo. U.S. forces used them to relay messages in both world wars and even decorated one of them for saving American

In the center of Brussels stands a little-noticed statue of a semi-nude woman draped in classical Greek garb holding a pigeon in an out-stretched hand. The monument is a sort of memorial to the Unknown Pigeon that commemorates the contribution of carrier pigeons in the defense of Belgium during the two world wars.

Government sees no need for ban on sodium nitrite

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government said today that based on "an extensive review" of scientific evidence there is no need to order a ban on sodium nitrite as a food additive on grounds it may cause cancer.

Nitrite, used as a preservative in bacon, ham and many other meat and poultry products, was cited in a 1978 study by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as a possible cause of cancer, based on tests among 2,000 laboratory rats.

In a joint statement, the Food and Drug Administration and the Agriculture Department said the MIT study was reviewed by a group of independent pathologists who found "a much lower incidence" of lymph cancers among laboratory rats than was originally reported.

The statement was attributed to

Jere E. Goyan, FDA commissioner, and Carol Tucker Foreman, an assistant secretary of agriculture who oversees food and consumer services

Meat industry officials, farm groups and others have questioned methods used in the MIT study and have pressured the government not to ban nitrite until further evidence could be reviewed.

C. Manly Molpus, president of the American Meat Institute, hailed the findings "as no surprise" among those who have critizied the 1978 MIT report, including the Council on Agricultural Science and Technology, members of Congress, the General Accounting Office and the Library of Molpus, whose organization is financed by the meat industry, said,

"The American consumer is the real beneficiary" of the government's announcement on nitrite.

The MIT study was conducted by Paul Newberne, a leading expert in the field of nutrition-induced disease, under contract with the Food and Drug Administration.

After Newberne's report was released, FDA and Agriculture "reached the tentative conclusion that nitrite might cause cancer" and considered steps that would lead to its ban as a food additive.

The agencies, under pressure from farm groups and others who were skeptical of the MIT study, also set up a review process to go over the scien-tific information and come up with a determination.

Further, it said, a committee of scientists from federal agencies including FDA, Agriculture, National Cancer Institute and the National In-stitute of Environmental Health Sci-ences — reviewed the pathologists'

The committee "concluded that in-sufficient evidence exists to support a conclusion that nitrite induced cancer in the rats, based on the MIT study."

However, it said federal agencies will continue efforts to eliminate

"preformed nitrosamines" from foods. Those are chemicals formed when nitrite combines with naturallyoccurring substances known as

"Nitrosamines are known carcino-gens," the statement said. "Efforts to eliminate or reduce nitrosamines from such disparate products as bacon and beer have been highly suc-

BOSTON (AP) - A terminally ill patient, nurses, Ann L. Capute of body ravaged by cancer and face contorted in agony, cries out for relief from relentless pain. The doctors and nurses in attendance are helpless; additional drugs could mean death.

What can the medical staff do? What are the rights of the patient, the patient's family?

The questions of drug treatment for the seriously ill were raised last week when three nurses were charged with murder in the death of a woman cancer patient at the Morton Hospital in Taunton, Mass.

A Bristol County grand jury charged the three intentionally injected 51year-old Norma Leanues with an overdose of morphine sulphate, one of the most powerful weapons in medicine's arsenal against pain.

District Attorney Ronald Pina, who will prosecute the case, said the trial could set precedents for the ways doctors and hospitals care for terminal patients.

"A painless state is very important," he says. "It alters the anxiety of the patient, it gives them a feeling of euphoria.

There are other procedures if drugs fail. Surgery can sever nerves transmitting pain to the brain. But sometimes nothing helps.

"There are cases where there is nothing you can do, so you become helpless. You can knock out the patient entirely," says Mukhopad-hyay. "It is then a regrettable choice between pain or enough drugs that will leave patients in a semiconscious state. "Ultimately, in terminal cases, the pain only ends with death." Glantz says the ethical question of using drugs to quench pain is a particularly touchy problem in this country.

"The fact that there is a limitation on drugs speaks to that," he says. "Heroin is a very good drug, to kill pain, that is

Orkin, Berdis didn't have to do selling job to land spot on show

LOS ANGELES (AP)
- Dick and Bert didn't have to do a selling job to land a spot on "The Tim Conway Show."

"They just called us up. It was as simple as that," said Dick Orkin, who with partner Bert Berdis are the creators of some of radio's funniest commercials.

"Tim's a great fan of radio and of comedy commercials. When we arrived, there he was, reciting lines from our commercials. He asked if we'd like to do something. It was difficult to choose between television and our commercials. So he offered us an opportunity to do both."

Orkin and Berdis now are established as regular members of the cast on Conway's CBS comedy-variety show, which was shortened from an hour to a half-hour for the fall season.

Dick and Bert - that's how they are known professionally - are no longer turning out radio spots for Time magazine, probably their most famous commercials. But they do have spots out for Agree Shampoo, K-Mart Stores, National Semi-Conductor digital watches, GMAC and Caterpillar lift trucks, plus those for numerous local and regional sponsors.

Orkin said they had no difficulty changing their comedy writing from the spoken word of radio to the visual aspect of television.

"Bert came out of advertising and most of my experience was in the theater," he said. "So we'd had a lot of visual experience. In fact, people have told us one of the reasons our commer- We're trying to quit, but cials are so successful is the announcer just keeps

Orkin's early experience was in radio, but he studied the classics at Yale University's Graduate School of Drama. He returned to radio and in Chicago he wrote, produced and starred in what was to become a radio classic, "Chickenman: Battler of Crime and-or Evil."

Berdis took another route. He tried performing and then was a writer for Jackie Gleason. When Gleason went to Miami and left him behind, Berdis returned to college and got his master's degree. Afterward, he worked his way up the ladder in numerous advertising agencies until he and Orkin got togeth-

The two have made other efforts to get into television. A few years ago, NBC asked them to write a treatment for a kind of "That Was the Week that Was." Then NBC changed its mind.

More recently, they completed writing a pilot for CBS in which they would star.

"We haven't turned it over to them yet," said Berdis. "They were the first people to give us our head. They told us to do something from our viewpoint. They thought we had a fresh outlook."

Negotiations to resume Thursday on strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) Negotiations between the film and television industry and two unions representing 67,000 striking actors will resume Thursday, the first talks in more than two weeks, officials say. Members of the Motion Picture and Television Producers Negotiating Committee agreed to a resumption of negotiations Monday. The Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, representing the actors, already had agreed to the talks. Meanwhile, as the strike entered its fifth week, SAG issued an 'open invitation" to individual producers to sign permanent three-year contracts instead of the interim agreements awarded earlier in the

SAG spokeswoman Kim Fellner called it a

"divide-and-conquer" tactic and said it was intended to win "defectors" from the producers' ranks. SAG had already signed interim agreements allowing production to continue on 35 feature films and 18 TV movies despite the strike. But most were for individual projects produced by independent companies and provide for the acceptance of whatever terms are eventually worked out with the producers' comer.

"We had a falling-out, the three of us," he says, matter-of-factly. Ironically, his first stage triumph here, in 1972, was as the star of David Rabe's "Sticks and Bones," a surreal, caustic play about a blind Vietnam vet whose family encourages him to commit suicide. He went from that to

Some players are so enchanted with falsecarding that they constantly try to deceive the enemy. They should learn that an illconceived lie can be more revealing than the truth.

When this hand was played recently at a duplicate tournament, three no trump by South was the popular contract. Note North's decision to jump to game at his second turn. He was not interested in slam and saw no reason why the hand should be played in diamonds, so he did not waste his time with a jump to three diamonds-that might serve only to lead partner astray. At one table where we watched, declarer exhibited fine technique. He won the opening lead of the queen of hearts with the king, crossed to dummy with the ace of diamonds and led a low club from the table. Had East carelessly played low. declarer would have scooted for home with nine tricks. But East was aware that declarer was trying to steal a trick, so he rose with the ace of clubs. Now, he had to decide whether to continue hearts-obviously the correct thing to do if partner's suit were headed by the acequeen-jack-or shift to spades. With nothing to guide him, he elected to continue hearts and declarer was home with three overtricks.

We watched this hand at another table, where declarer attempted a bit of skullduggery, fooling no one, by winning the opening lead with the ace of hearts, and then slyly running the eight of clubs.

East won the ace and he could now count nine tricks for declarer - South had to have the king of hearts, for East would not have led the queen from a sequence headed by the king. Thus, the only hope to defeat the contract was to try for four spade tricks. At trick three East brilliantly shifted to the jack of spades! Whether declarer covered or ducked, the defenders were bound to score four spade tricks to defeat the game.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market continued lower today amid continued worries over the economic impact of rising interest rates. Oil, technology and mining issues were higher, however. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 2.05 at 937.80 at noon after a 26.87-point drop Monday and Tuesday. Losers held a 6-5 edge over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange as Big Board noon volume rose to 16.70 million shares from 19.23 million a day before.

The NYSE's composite index fell 0.05 to 70.27; the American Stock Exchange market value index was up 0.75 at 318.29.

American Telephone & Telegraph fell ¼ to 52% after announcing a sweeping reorganization of its corporate structure. Sears, Roebuck was unchanged at 18, but K mart was off 11/2 at 23%. Both retailers reported lower quarterly earnings.

An actively traded International Business Machines gained 1/2 to 661/2. Dome Mines rose 31/2 to 107 as gold prices jumped.

Among oil issues, Occidental Petroleum gained 1/8 to 27 1/8, and Mobil rose 1/2 to 71 1/2. Mobil's Canadian subsidiary expressed optimism over prospects for natural gas in an area the company is exploring off the coast of Nova Scotia.

American Petrofina class A shares, up nearly 8 points on the Amex Tuesday before a trading halt, fell 31/4 to 51 after the company said following the market close it made an offer for Esmark Inc.'s Transocean Oil subsid-

Lockheed was off ¾ at 31¼. The Saudi Arabian press agency said 265 people were killed when a Lockheed Tristar jumbo jet burst into flames following its takeoff from the Saudi city of Riyadh.

The past several days' market declines came amidst a quarter-point increase in Chase Manhattan Bank's prime lending rate to 11.25 percent and as mortgage interest rates moved as high as 13.5 percent.

Embargo hurts, Bergland says

WASHINGTON (AP) - Facing mounting criticism from farmers, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland today defended the administration's grain embargo on the Soviet Union.

Disputing both of the arguments made by agricultural groups and farm-state senators, Bergland said the embargo is hurting the Soviet Union and has had little effect on U.S.

Bergland said President Carter's Jan. 4 decision to embargo grain shipments to the Soviet Union in response to its invasion of Afghanistan was "a hard one.

"Yet, we cannot say that (U.S.) agricultural producers would have been better off in the long run if the President had not acted as he did. Our farm exports will far exceed any prior years' records and will ap-proach $40 billion in value this fascal year," the secretary testified to the Senate Banking Committee.

"It must be a sobering experience for the Soviet leadership to reflect on how long their citizens will be willing to wait for meat on their tables which their counterparts in Eastern Europe are already enjoying. It is noteworthy that in Poland, where meat consumption is 28 percent higher than in the USSR, a wave of strikes and work stoppages over increased meat prices is sweeping the land," he said.

Also defending the Carter policy was Richard N. Cooper, under secretary of state. "We believe it is essential that we and our allies maintain pressure on the Soviets to let them know they cannot selectively carry out a policy of reduced tensions in one sphere, beneficial to them, while they commit naked acts of aggression in another. We will continue to insist upon a satisfactory political resolu-tion of the crisis which the Soviets have created through their interven-tion in Afghanistan," Cooper said.

Livestock report

The Southwest Livestock Auction Co. ran through 860 head of cattle Tuesday.

The market was steady to $1.50 higher on feeder cattle. Packer cows and bulls were steady.

Breeder cows were $25 to $45 higher. Cow and calf pairs were steady to $50 higher. Top hogs, 200 to 250 pounds sold for $44.50 to $45 per hundredweight. Sows were auctioned for $33 to $35.25. There were not enough boars to test the market. Steers weighing 600 to 700 pounds sold for $72.50 to $73.50 per hundred-weight; 500 to 600, $73 to $76; 400 to 500, $75 to $78; 300 to 400, $82.50 and $86; and under 300 pounds, $86 to $105 per hundredweight. Heifers weighing 600 to 700 pounds went for $63.50 to $65 per hundred-weight; 500 to 600, $64 to $67; 400 to 500, $67 to $69; 300 to 400, $69 to $71; and under 300 pounds, $72.50 to $90 per hundredweight.

Cows utility were sold for $48.50 to $52.50 per hundredweight. Canner and cutter cows went for $43 to $44.50 per hundredweight.

Bulls yielding grade 1 and 2 were auctioned for $55 to $50 per hundredweight.

Breed cows were sold for $475 to $615 per head. Cow and calf pairs went for $625 to $725 per pair.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Bankers look for reasons not to lend in tough times

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Executives of small companies, family concerns and other closely-held business operations know that when times get tough and money gets tight, bankers look for reasons not to lend them money. That list can be long, inclusive and even inventive, because if a bank doesn't want to lend it simply doesn't. It is hard to turn down General Motors; it is quite easy to deny funds to Smith's Machine Shop. Still, says Sy Jones, it pays for a smaller company to know and avoid the red flags. And so he compiled a list for clients of his company, Coopers & Lybrand, the big accounting

-1. Large growth in sales volume with little, if any, bottomline growth. "The typical entrepreneur is market oriented," says Jones, who heads the firm's Emerging Business Services Group. "Only infrequently is he a financial person."

Because of the entrepreneur's peculiar mental set, said Jones, "he tends to seek bigger and bigger sales, hoping that the bottom line also will rise. He often gets caught in a liquidity squeeze."

—2. Inventory expanding at a faster pace than sales.

Small businesses often are run by venturers who accept risks that larger companies would avoid, says Jones. Some think the worst thing possible is to lose a sale because an item wasn't in stock.

The result: As business declines, inventories swell. Says Jones: "Inventory is the most difficult asset to manage, and among the most difficult to audit." Needlessly big inventories are flapping flags.

-3. Accounting controls not considered vey important by manage-ment; control that are in place appear to have a high potential for management override.

Too often, says Jones, smaller businesses are run by people who rely on gut feelings. It's dangerous, he says. They should have automatic, built-in warning systems. Lenders feel more confident with them.

—4. Hanging on to an outdated inventory with the forlorn hope of selling it some day. Lack of inventory records.

"Without these records or a physical inventory, the owner, at best, can only estimate what is on hand and its value," says Jones. "Some don't know how they're doing until the end of the year."

6. Poor inventory turnover. "In addition to items going stale, the carrying charges can be stagger-ing at today's interest costs," says Jones. More companies are using computers he concedes by for bill

Jones. More companies are using computers, he concedes, but for billing rather than inventory.

——7. Company is highly leveraged, thinly capitalized.

Unfortunately, this is sometimes a necessary condition when a venture is attacking up. However, to the lender it. starting up. However, to the lender it is a hurricane flag if the leveraging isn't accompanied by a healthy stream of profits.

-8. Viability of company rests on one person or a small group.

The situation is common, says Jones, in companies that have grown very fast in a short time, without a chance for developing and training middle managers.

-9. Lack of management tools needed to analyze sales by customer, product, product line and plant profitability. Management style apt to be

When a company has reached a certain size the owner is surprised that systems and procedures that have been serving him adequately have lost their effectiveness," says

Jones. It makes lenders wary.

—10. Management not always open in discussing maters with its bank or in making the most effective use of its auditors or other advisers.

A very bad sign, says Jones, who believes that a sound company "goes with its professionals," meaning that it discusses and listens to accountants, bankers and others who possess special knowledge.

"If you come to a bank in advance of problems you oftn can work them out," he says. But if you wait until a crisis has developed you can hurt yourself and the banker too. It puts nim on the spot, says Jones.

——11. No monthly or quarterly financial statements; annual reports not available until several months after year-end.

"Timely financials of one kind or another are among the first things lenders look for, initially and on a continuing basis," he says. "Without statements, it is very hard to get money.

To which you might add another observation, one that can be verified by small-business people: Statements or not, in times like these it is often hard to get money — unless your company doesn't need it.

Purolator driver, guard to get lie detector tests was outside when the three robbers

KILLINGLY, Conn. (AP) - Two armored van guards who were held up while taking a lunch break will be given lie detector tests as authorities investigate the armed robbery of $486,000 in gold compounds and cash, officials say.

The Purolator Security Inc. driver and guard told investigators they were ambushed Tuesday by three hooded, armed bandits on a side road about one mile from the Rhode Island state line, according to officials.

Stolen was a shipment of $450,000 worth of gold salts and $36,400 in cash. The shipment was being moved from Cranston, R.I., to Carlisle, Pa., although the truck's initial destination was Hartford.

The gold was in the form of a poisonous mixture of gold and cyanide salts, weighing 200 to 300 pounds. The compound, which is used for industrial gold plating, can be lethal within minutes if inhaled, according

The board voted July 15 to give Bradford the contract, replacing Perot's National Heritage Insurance Corp. But after Perot's visits, the board reopened the matter on July 29 and said it would make a final decision on Aug. 25.
Del Col said he had hired Austin stands to lose $5 million to $10 million in profits if it loses the contract.

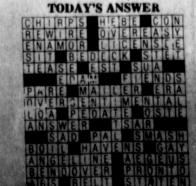

In a long memorandum filed with the board, he said Perot's private talks with each board member violated provisions of the Texas Administrative Procedure Act.

Del Col said "any change in the board's position would necessarily appear to be grounded in these (one-on-one) communications.' The board's public decision to reopen the contract issue followed a closed-door meeting with Morton Meyerson, president of the Perot company. Del Col suggested this also was illegal.

"Although an executive session may be convened to discuss matters properly handled in private, (Meyerson's) communications may have addressed matters not properly pre-sented in an executive session. This would constitute a violation of the Texas Open Meetings Act," Del Col's memorandum said. The board's original decision to give the contract to Bradford was based on findings of staff members and consultants that Bradford would save the state $20 million to $60 million over four years.

Carter scoffs at talk about 'uphill battle'

By WALTER R. MEARS

NEW YORK (AP) - For the Democrats, it seemed, all roads from Manhattan led uphill. That's the way the route ahead of President Carter looked to his supporters and to Democrats still skeptical about the ticket they sent into the can about the ticket they sent into the campaign against Ronald Reagan and independent John B. Anderson.

"An uphill battle," Gov. Hugh Carey of New York called it. Gov.

Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California said much the same thing.

But Carter scoffed at the polls that showed him lagging far behind Reagan, and had the record with him when he added: "I have always been underestimated as a candidate."

AT TIMES, that has worked to his advantage. It certainly did when he began, almost unnoticed, the campaign that carried him to his first nomination, at the same Madison Square Garden convention hall in which he was renominated. By the time rival Democrats started to take him seriously, Carter had that campaign just about won.

But as the 1976 Democratic nominee, he had an advantage he doesn't have now: he was the fresh face, the outsider, the candidate come to challenge the Washington establishment. Now he and his people are the Washington establishment.

In that campaign, he was for change. Now he has a four-year record to defend, and it is a troubled one. Economic woes persist, the American hostages are still captive in Iran and Carter's brief expression of concern at their plight was the only mention of that situation during the four days of the Democratic National Con-

Carter claimed that the national convention adjourned in unity and achievement which "guarantees that we have turned the corner." But its sendoff to the renominated ticket was lukewarm by comparison with those of conventions past.

Convention cheers are no gauge of election odds. But a candidate whose people have to work at stirring ovations among conventioneers who normally like to whoop it up is a candidate with a job ahead of him. Carter has the promised support of the party hierarchy, including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, but there still is some dis-

FOR ALL THAT, Carter and his people clearly figure that Reagan is the best thing they have going for them. Carter's climactic address to the convention on Thursday night was one designed to raise doubts about Reagan, to depict him as a radical and to suggest that he'd be a risky man to entrust with foreign and defense policy in a nuclear age.

On Friday, he spelled out the strategy even more clearly, saying that "there never has been a sharper distinction" between candidates with the possible exception of the 1964 election, in which President Lyndon B. Johnson trounced Sen. Barry Goldwater.

The Johnson Democrats spent much of their campaign trying to paint Goldwater into a right-wing corner, calling him radical, reckless and dangerous. Carter hasn't gone that far yet. But he's just getting started.

But Goldwater was a careless candidate, whose offhand comments often armed his opponents. Reagan is a cautious one, despite some misstatements and mistakes during his primary campaign. Since he leads comfortably in the polls, his strategists will try to play it safe.

"I NEVER HAVE worried too much about the polls," said Carter. His campaign chairman, Robert S. Strauss, said they are bound to turn up now that the president has been renominated. That's been the case in the past. Strauss said the polls will show Carter and Reagan running even by mid-October.

But even allies who dutifully forecast a Carter victory warn of a tough campaign.

Brown, for example, while endorsing the ticket and saying he'd campaign for it, added that Carter must show "an aura of competence" in the contest ahead. That suggests something missing in te past four years.

Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas took the convention platform on losing night with some blunt words:

"THOSE WHO are alienated from us ... want to know why, if they do vote, they should return a president who has led at a time of inflation and unemployment.' He said Carter should answer that the economy has been deterioriating for a decade, and that Republicans would make it worse. The decade includes four years of Carter, making the case for the defense a bit more

"It's going to be tough," said Sen. Robert Morgan of North Carolina. "But it's not going to be impossi-

Greece has fewer tourists who are spending much less

By GILLIAN WHITTAKER

ATHENS, Greece (AP) - Although Greece has enjoyed its perennial fine summer weather, fewer tourists enjoyed soaking up the sun. Industry spokesmen report bookings were down even for the high season, and said this year's visitors were more economy-minded than

Official figures for the first four months of 1980, based on the number of arrivals in Greece, showed an 11.2 percent decrease, and hotel owners say the overall seasonal figure will show an even further drop.

A total of 858,124 tourists arrived here in the January-April period this year against 954,233 in the same peri-

Nondas Solaunias, president of the Greek Federation of Hotel Owners, estimated that the decrease in tourists could reach 15 percent by the end of the year. He added, however, that higher prices should keep the industry's income at around the same level as in 1979, when it earned $1.6 billion, Greece's leading source of foreign exchange.

Solaunias attributed the drop in tourists to a general decline in world travel this year. Americans for many years have headed the list of foreign tourists visiting this country, but their number also dropped considerably.

According to tour agencies dealing exclusively with the U.S. market, the number of Americans is down this year by about 35 percent. One of the reasons cited is the unease generated by the events in Iran and Afghanistan, which apparently has caused many to think twice about vacationing abroad.

Don Gilliland, a manager for the luxury American tour company Maupintours, said nearly half the firm's tours in Greece had been canceled. 'But at least at this deluxe level of the industry we are suffering much less than other tour operators. I can't complain; I'm working." Gilliland said tourists were also spending noticeably less on extras such as side tours and souvenir buying. "We find that people will still take a trip, but instead of the more luxurious, relaxed, two-day tour, will try to cram everything into one day,' he said. The figures for Greece's tourist income over the January-April period of 1980 show an increase of 19 percent over the same period last year, from $249 million to $307 million. However, with a year-to-year inflation rate that reached almost 25 percent in April, the earnings are down on the real level of the 1979 figures.

Solounias, also president of the Hoteliers Federation of Rhodes, said that, despite the overall drop, that south Aegean island had chalked up a 10 percent increase in tourists in the first four months of the year in comparison to the same period in 1979.

He attributed this to the fact that Rhodes hotel owners did not increase their prices to the maximum level permitted by the National Tourist Organization, thus being in a position to offer cheaper packages than other

Spy resigns from academy

LONDON (AP) - Self-confessed spy Anthony Blunt has resigned from the British Academy after four leading members quit in protest over his continued presence in the nation's top academic institution for the arts.

In a statement published Monday, Blunt, 73, an eminent art historian and former art adviser to Queen Elizabeth II, declared: "Resignation seemed the only way by which I could lessen the dissension which my continued membership has caused."

The move is the latest mark of public disgrace for Blunt, who was stripped of his knighthood last November after Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons he spied for the Soviet Union during World War II.

Brown warns of Soviet threat to missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense Secretary Harold Brown said today the Russians either have, or are on the verge of attaining, the capability to destroy U.S. land-based missiles in their underground launch bases.

Brown said this in warning that Soviet military advances in weapons power, numbers and technology could in the future "threaten the survivability of each component of our strategic forces," including 1,000 Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles, the bomber forces and missile-firing submarines.

"For our ICBMs, that potential has been realized, or close to it," Brown said in a speech prepared for the Naval War College at Newport, R.I. "The Soviets are now deploying thousands of ICBM warheads accurate enough to threaten our fixed Minuteman silos.

"For our bombers, the threats are more remote, and for submarinelaunched ballistic missiles, more hypothetical."

At that time, Brown predicted that "within a year or two we can expect them (the Soviets) to obtain the necessary combination of ICBM numbers, reliability, accuracy and warhead yield" to put most U.S. land-based missiles in jeopardy in the event of an attack.

At the same time, however, Brown expressed confidence that the United States can maintain what he called "essential equivalence" with the Soviet Union and effectively deter a Russian attack by modernizing its strategic forces with the mobile MX missile, bombers armed with cruise missiles, and giant new Trident submarines with more potent and accurate weapons.

Brown stressed that the controversial plan for 200 MX missiles, which would be shuttled among about 4,600 shelters in remote western valleys, "is highly important for preserving the long-term strategic balance."
