More inflation on its way, prices indicate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices overall did not rise in July, the first month without an increase in more than 13 years. But a new burst of food price increases signaled that more inflation is on the way.

The Labor Department reported Friday that the Consumer Price Index held steady in July, mainly because the cost of buying a home dropped for the first time in seven years. Food prices shot up by 0.9 percent — the biggest increase since March — and a dramatic rise in wholesale food costs in July has yet to work its way to consumers.

When mortgages and the cost of homes are excluded, prices rose 0.6 percent during the month, a rate that if continued for 12 months would mean annual inflation of 7.4 percent. Overall consumer prices increased 13.3 percent in 1979 and at an annual rate of 12.6 percent during the first seven months of this year.

The index in July stood at 247.8 before seasonal adjustment. That means goods and services that could be bought in 1967 for $100 cost $247.80 last month. The 1967 dollar is now worth 40.4 cents.

The Labor Department reported also that average take-home pay was virtually unchanged from June to July — the first month without a decline in more than a year. Weekly take-home pay for a typical worker with three dependents was $204.62 — or 7.4 percent below the level in July 1979.

Consumer prices had soared by a full 1 percent in June, and Labor Department analysts said the sharp decline in July was almost without precedent. Before July, prices had risen by at least 0.9 percent a month for 18 straight months.

The last time the CPI did not rise was in March 1967. It has not declined since August 1965.

Alfred E. Kahn, President Carter's chief anti-inflation adviser, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee that inflation will remain considerably under 10 percent for the next several months but "still is a clear and present danger."

Kahn said economic policy must continue to be aimed at preventing a resurgence, cautioning that a new round of price increases would push up interest rates and kill hopes of a recovery from the recession.

He said the financial markets "may shrug off" July's improvement because so much was attributable to one factor — mortgage costs. He said suggestions that the administration ask banks to hold down interest increases as a "patriotic" gesture might be counterproductive.

Kahn said the administration feels interest rate levels are best left to the forces of supply and demand.

Martin Anderson, a senior adviser to Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, said in a statement that "for anyone to get the impression from today's CPI numbers that inflation is coming down would be as dangerous and tragic as somebody who is in the calm eye of the hurricane thinking the worst is over."

The Joint Economic Committee's chairman, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said, "Today's figures are an indication that the measures taken by the president during the past year are finally having some effect on inflation."

But he, too, warned, "We are not out of the woods."

"With food prices rising again, productivity falling and unit labor costs going up, the underlying rate of inflation is still too high."

For several months many economists have been arguing that the monthly CPI figures made inflation seem worse than it really was because that index places too much emphasis on housing costs.

Night of politics and prayer

Reagan, Murray close two-day meeting

By SHARON HERBAUGH

DALLAS (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan charged Friday night that the federal government seems to have forgotten "that old-time religion and that old-time constitution."

Reagan praised a foot-stomping, flag-waving crowd of about 16,000 attending the National Affairs Briefing for giving "new energy and new direction to our public life."

"Religious America is awakening, perhaps just in time for our country's sake. I have seen the impact of your dedication. I know the sincerity of your intent," he said.

The former California governor was joined on the red-white-and-blue platform by U.S. Sens. Bill Armstrong, R-Colo. and Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

The trio urged the evangelical Christians to mobilize, take an active role in the political process this fall and rally behind conservative causes.

U.S. Rep. Phillip Crane, R-Ill., concluded the 2-day non-denominational conference Friday night.

President Carter and independent candidate John Anderson had been invited to speak to the gathering, but declined, said a spokesman for the Roundtable, a non-partisan, informational group based in Washington, D.C.

Earlier in the day, Bill Murray, son of atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, told the crowd that God belonged back in the classroom "to defeat anti-God and anti-moral issues."

Reagan, who recently acknowledged he is a born-again Christian, made a brief 6-hour visit to this conservative city just for the rally. He told the enthusiastic, predominately white audience he is shocked when he hears the First Amendment used as a reason to keep traditional moral values out of policy-making.

"If we have come to a time in the United States when the attempt to see traditional moral values reflected in public policy leaves one open to irresponsible charges then the structure of our free society is under attack and the foundation of our freedom is threatened."

Reagan noted the First Amendment was written "not to protect the people and their laws from religious values, but to protect those values from government tyranny."

"This is what the state legislators met when they ratified it. And this is what a long line of Supreme Court decisions have meant. But over the last two or three decades, the federal government seems to have forgotten both that old-time religion and that old-time constitution."

He also noted that about four billion laws have been passed by man throughout history, but in all that time "we haven't improved by one iota on the Ten Commandments."

Helms and Armstrong preceded the GOP nominee and blasted the policies of the federal government, weakening U.S. military strength, abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment and pornography.

Both urged the audience to infuse a "degree of hope" into the decision-making process.

"It is easy to understand why pessimism in this country is so easily justified," Armstrong said.

However, he added, "God permits us to play a part in his plan. That tells me there's hope."

Helms echoed the Colorado Republican's sentiments that God was giving the nation "one more chance and we'd better take advantage of it."

"The American people have not given up hope, not abandoned ideals, not abandoned the search for strong and moral leadership."

"They are fed up with politics as usual, they have become increasingly distrustful of politics. Every poll shows that every election shows that. They have a right to expect better... We've got to stick to our principles."

Bill Murray, son of atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, said removal of prayers from schools was the first stepping stone to the moral crisis now facing the United States.

Murray told a crowd of 10,000 gathered for a 2-day conference urging Christians to mobilize against policies of liberal politicians that one family — his family — had set out 20 years ago to change the face of America.

Candidates in separate courts

By The Associated Press

President Carter asserted Friday that American voters "are too intelligent to fall for" what he called the fallacies in Ronald Reagan's proposals to cut taxes, increase military spending and balance the budget.

Campaigning before an audience of teachers, Carter said he is eager to expose his Republican rival's flaws in a series of debates this fall.

While Carter wooed teachers, Reagan courted preachers, and independent candidate John Anderson played coy over his choice of a vice presidential running mate.

Campaign sources said Anderson will ask former Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey to join him on the ticket, and Lucey is expected to accept. Lucey was Carter's ambassador to Mexico until resigning last October to become deputy national campaign manager for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination.

At a news conference, Anderson declined to say whether the choice has been made though he confirmed that he spoke with Lucey late Thursday night. Sources said the formal announcement of a running mate will be made early next week.

In Detroit, Carter won the endorsement of the American Federation of Teachers, which had supported Kennedy during the primary campaign. The 2,300 delegates to the union's national convention had cheered Kennedy lustily when he addressed them Thursday.

The reception for Carter was at first merely polite, but warmed to enthusiastic applause as he attacked Reagan point by point.

"There is no place in American life for pie in the sky, but there's a new math that's being propounded in different proposals," Carter said of Reagan.

"One of them is that in this election year there can be a massive tax cut for the rich equivalent to a trillion dollars in the years ahead, that at the same time we can have a massive increase in defense commitments, including a reinstitution of the nuclear arms race."

Carter continued, "This is obviously a fallacy, and the American people are too intelligent to fall for it. But the facts must be presented for the American people to understand the fallacious nature of this proposal."

He said he is eager to do just that in a series of debates with Reagan. He said he also is willing to debate Anderson separately.

Reagan, in Dallas for a conference of born-again Christian preachers, argued that church leaders must become active in politics to restore morality to government.

The bets are down

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The bets are down on the University of Texas-Arkansas nationally televised football game Sept. 1, Gov. Bill Clements said Friday.

"After lengthy negotiations," Clements told a news conference, "Gov. Bill Clinton and I have made our bets on the game. I am wagering one Texas javelina against one Arkansas razorback."

Clements said Clinton at first wanted Texas to wager a long-horn steer but Clements substituted the wild pig instead.

"When we win the game," Clements said, "we'll put the razorback in the Tyler zoo along with the Oklahoma buffalo (won from the Oklahoma governor on a similar bet in 1979)."

Billy concedes that 'recollections unclear'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Carter conceded Friday he might have told Justice Department investigators in June that $20,000 he received from Libya was reimbursement for expenses instead of a loan installment as he now claims it was.

"My recollections (of the June interview) may not be entirely accurate or clear," the president's younger brother told a special Senate subcommittee investigating his ties with the Libyan government.

Pressed later as to whether it would be incorrect to say he had told the investigators the money was an expense reimbursement, Billy Carter said only that he stood by his statement that his recollections might not have been clear.

In a memorandum dated June 11, Joel S. Lisker, chief of the registration unit of the Justice Department, said Carter had told him and Mark Richard, a deputy assistant attorney general, that the $20,000 was partial reimbursement for expenses. He said Carter told them the expenses were incurred while he was host to a Libyan delegation in January 1979.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., questioned the younger Carter on Friday morning about Lisker's memorandum.

"If Lisker testified that, would he be telling the truth?" Leahy asked.

"He would not," Carter said.

In the afternoon session, Carter was questioned further about the Lisker memorandum by Philip W. Tone, the subcommittee's special counsel.

After conferring with his attorneys, Carter read a statement saying he went to the June interview without a lawyer, although he was advised of his right to have one, and did not take notes.

He said he had tried to respond to questions truthfully, but "my recollections may not be entirely accurate or clear."

Leahy asked him again if it would be incorrect to say he had told the investigators the money was for expenses.

"I stand on my statement," Carter said.

Earlier, Billy Carter told the senators they would have to take his word that the $220,000 he ultimately got from Libya was a loan to help him out of a financial hole and not a payoff to use his influence with President Carter.

The president's younger brother was asked twice what proof he had that the money constituted installments on a $500,000 loan as he contends.

"Just my word," he replied both times.

Avoid bloodshed, Polish workers told

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishop of this strike-paralyzed port city appealed to workers Friday to avoid bloodshed, and five arrested dissidents were freed, but defiant strikers gave no sign of yielding.

Panic buying of foodstuffs and gasoline spread to Warsaw, but a general strike reportedly called for the capital failed to materialize.

Bishop Lech Kaczmarek issued a statement expressing "understanding for the strikers who make efforts toward improving living conditions," but also saying "prolonged laying down of work, eventual riots or the shedding of brotherly blood are against the good of the community." It appealed to the workers for "wise and reasonable action."

Dissident sources said five of the 24 activists arrested in midweek in Warsaw and other cities had been released without charges. Still held without charge were Jacek Kuron and other leaders of the dissidents' Committee for Social Self-Defense, known as KOR.

They had been providing journalists with information about Poland's worst labor crisis since the bloody strikes 10 years ago that brought down Communist Party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka.

Dissidents claim strikes have shut down more than 400 factories since workers left their jobs at the huge Lenin shipyard here Aug. 14 — at least 100 more than reported a day earlier — but have given no estimate of how many workers are on strike since the figure 130,000 was issued Thursday.

Warsaw residents, fearful of reports of a general strike, picked store shelves clean of canned goods, sugar and bread and waited in lines nearly a mile long to buy gasoline.

Sources in Warsaw said police had been increasingly in evidence on the streets in recent days, and tensions seemed unusually high.

The walkouts began with demands for wage hikes to cover food price increases caused by withdrawal of subsidies the government felt Poland's stumbling, debt-ridden economy no longer could afford. Poland owes nearly $20 billion to Western creditors, and a consortium of international banks agreed Friday to lend it $325 million more.

As the strikes spread the demands expanded, and they now include freedom of the press, economic and other reforms, and independent labor unions.

Dissident sources said the government has made "only small concessions" on wage demands, but shows no sign of giving in on the direct challenge to its authority over unions.

As in other Soviet bloc countries, labor unions in Poland are controlled by the Communist Party, and strikes are illegal.

In his attempts to end the strikes, party leader Edward Gierak personally has acknowledged that "mistakes" were made in managing the economy, promised economic concessions and changed his negotiator.

Woman, 85, still delivers newspapers

By BOB SECTER
The Los Angeles Times

MOUNTAIN HOME, Ark. — In today's sophisticated world of communications satellites, minicams and two-way television, many people in this Ozark community still rely on a little old lady in tennis shoes for their news.

At 85, Nellie Mitchell does not just deliver newspapers; her doorstep service also includes twinkling blue eyes, a warm Southern graciousness and a sense of hope and security. If brought by Nellie, the news cannot be all bad.

Every day for nearly four decades, she has walked the early-morning streets of Mountain Home, clutching morning editions trucked in from Little Rock and Springfield, Mo., and depositing them neatly at people's front doors.

Nellie has not had a vacation or called in sick since she took over the route in 1943 from one of her six children. Only once, during a snowstorm, did she fail to make her deliveries. "It got so bad the trucks couldn't reach town to bring me the papers," she explained.

Nellie was delivering papers a decade before the only local radio station went on the air. There still is no daily newspaper, and the weekly paper, the Baxter Bulletin, provides only local and state news. Only recently has cable TV brought in stations from such far-flung locations as Little Rock, Springfield and Chicago.

Nellie is as much a part of the morning here as sunrise, which occurs long after her daily 5 a.m. arrival at her newsstand to sort papers trucked in overnight from publishing plants. Then, while her daughter, Betty, tends the stand, Nellie, clad in an old, flowered dress and worn, dew-drenched sneakers, loads her arms with papers and begins her journey, returning to the stand only for another arm load.

For the next three to four hours she crisscrosses the central part of town, cutting through yards, walking down the center of streets, ambling across busy state highways. Customers rise early to greet Nellie as she makes her rounds.

Counting sales at the newsstand, which is wedged into a four-foot-wide space formerly occupied by a stairwell and on her delivery route, Nellie estimates that she distributes between 500 and 600 papers a day. That is about as precise as she gets about her business, an operation laid out largely in her head.

She has no precise delivery schedule, mixing her route up "according to how heavy the papers are." She is not sure, offhand, how many miles she walks each day, although it is several, and she does not know how many papers she delivers, although there are dozens.

Customers may go months or years before receiving a bill. "I don't know why," she said when asked about her erratic billing procedures. "Sometimes I just say I'll figure the bills out tomorrow, and tomorrow never comes." How good a living does she make? "I just pay my bills and eat, that's all I know," she replies.

Nellie's family moved to Mountain Home in 1897. She still lives in the same home her father bought in 1911. She married, had six children, and then left her husband and brought up all the youngsters herself.

Scientists discover great quakes fault

By BOB FICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rift in the earth's crust that caused some of the most violent earthquakes in U.S. history has finally been pinpointed by a team of government scientists.

The U.S. Geological Survey team found a deep geologic fault, more than a mile beneath the earth's surface and running at least 55 miles from northeastern Arkansas into Missouri.

The fault is said to be the source of the great New Madrid earthquakes of 1811 and 1812. Those three earthquakes, named for the small Missouri town they destroyed, were felt from Canada to the Gulf Coast and as far east as the Atlantic Seaboard.

The quakes caused the Mississippi River to flow upstream for awhile, and changes in the earth's surface were recorded over as much as 50,000 square miles. Casualties and damage were relatively light, however, because the region hardest hit by the tremors was sparsely populated.

"People always felt it (the fault) should be there, but this is the first hard evidence for it," said Robert Hamilton, a member of the research team from the survey's Office of Earthquake Studies.

The Geological Survey team said discovery of the fault is important for the evaluation of earthquake hazards in the central and eastern United States.

"For the first time, New Madrid seismicity can be linked to specific structural features that have been reactivated through geologic time," the team said in reporting its findings in the current issue of Science magazine.

Hamilton said the discovery gives engineers a better basis in zoning the region for earthquake risks so structures such as nuclear reactors can be designed to withstand future quakes.

Using sophisticated deep-sounding equipment developed by the oil industry, the team found a "rift where the earth is actually tearing apart" that runs some 55 miles northeast from Marked Tree in northeastern Arkansas to the Mississippi River town of Caruthersville in the Missouri bootheel. There are shifts of 3,000 feet in the rock formation more than a mile underground.

More than 200 quakes have occurred in the New Madrid area in the past two centuries. Just last month, an earthquake hit northern Kentucky, northeast of the New Madrid fault zone. That tremor was felt as far north as Ontario, Canada.

Innkeepers thwart freeloading heron

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP) — The keepers of a Mackinac Island inn have turned out a freeloading heron who prefers imported Perrier water to lake water and who squawked in displeasure if his fresh-caught whitefish dinner was served late.

Amelia Musser, wife of the owner of the Grand Hotel, said she took the heron in last weekend when she saw the bird on the hotel's boardwalk. She thought it had an injured wing and couldn't fly.

But her sympathy faded as the finicky heron settled in and started hopping from chair to chair in the hotel.

"We finally decided he was freeloading and there wasn't really much wrong with him," said Mrs. Musser. "So we sent him over to Bois Blanc Island where he can rough it."

Charley wins air battle

NORWOOD, Mass. (AP) — Charley Saraca is putting away his air purifier and his fan.

The 62-year-old emphysema victim can breathe freely now that his colleagues on the Norwood school committee have quit puffing at their meetings.

"Hopefully, I won't have to use them again," Saraca said of the fan and purifier he brought to school committee meetings to blow away the thick cigarette smoke.

Saraca, who has lost one lung, had threatened to quit the board after 16 years because he had trouble breathing at the smoke-filled sessions.

"It was delightful," Saraca said after the heavy-smoking majority of four on the seven-member committee voluntarily abstained from the weed during Wednesday night's 2½-hour meeting.

"I felt better. The room was clean. And I think they were proud of what they did. They did it on their own, and I know at least two of them hadn't been without a cigarette that long in years."

The four previously had voted against a smoking ban. So, Saraca showed up at the meeting with the purifier and fan to blow back the smoke.

Without advance notice, the smokers last week failed to light up, taking a five-minute smoking break instead in the corridor outside.

"If Charley is having trouble breathing, we'll simply take our cigarette breaks outside," said member Rudith Berkowitz after the meeting. A week ago, she said there was no way she could go without a smoke during a meeting.

"I can't speak for the other smokers, but all I know is that I will not make Charley sick," she said. "I gather the others felt the same way. Had we realized how terribly sick he was, we would have stopped long ago. I hope this issue is closed."

"I hope it will set an example for committees around the state," said Saraca. "It will be a good example for the children, too."

"I told them I knew what they went through," added Saraca, a retired shoe store owner who said he was a pack-a-day smoker until illness forced him to quit six years ago, "and said 'God bless them.'"

Saraca said as the result of the publicity over the smoking controversy, he received calls from as far as Texas and Alaska. He said he had no plans now to quit the committee.

Aid sought for flood area

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

Flash floods and storm rains renewed an assault on mountain communities of West Virginia and neighboring Kentucky, and authorities appealed to Washington for help Friday, saying, "We can't take any more."

Gov. Jay Rockefeller asked President Carter to declare 17 West Virginia counties a federal disaster area, following a week of severe flooding that has devastated entire communities.

The governor said preliminary estimates of the damage already have topped $8.5 million, and that the $300,000 in available state emergency funds is not nearly enough to pay for temporary housing and assistance for hundreds left homeless.

In neighboring Ohio, Gov. James A. Rhodes on Friday requested Carter to declare five counties in the eastern part of the state a major disaster as a result of flooding earlier this month that left damage estimated at about $6.9 million.

On Tuesday, Carter approved a request from Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh for federal assistance in cleaning up after recent flooding that caused an estimated $42 million in damage and killed nine people in that state.

No deaths or serious injuries have been attributed to the latest storms.

The overnight rains brought fresh flooding to parts of Kanawha, Putnam and Roane counties in West Virginia and much of neighboring southeastern Kentucky, where the National Weather Service said 3 to 4 inches fell in a two-hour period. Light rain continued into the day in parts of both states.

"We can't take any more," Gary Morris of the West Virginia Emergency Services Office said as the storms returned Thursday night. "We already have more damage than we thought."

In eastern Kentucky, a six-foot wall of water surged down normally gentle Buck creek during the night, pushing aside everything in its path, according to residents of Marcum Hollow.

"Everybody said it came so fast they had never seen anything like it," said Homer Marcum, editor of a weekly newspaper in Martin County. "There are houses and cars in the creek."

"There's one house sitting right in the middle of Big Elk Road and an elderly lady rode it down there. The woman went to the back door when she saw the water coming in and as she walked to the front door, the house started moving with her. She had to stay with in until the family could get to her."

Marcum said a man named Luster Hickman was treated for shock at a local hospital after he was pulled from the floodwaters.

"He was barely saved by some neighbors as he was hanging onto a pole in swift water," Marcum said.

Dan DePasquale, whose trailer home was destroyed Thursday in Kenna, W.Va., said, "As soon as the insurance man comes, we're packing up and leaving. What's sad is that there are a lot of elderly couples who lost everything and have no insurance. There are many families with nothing left at all."

Ricky Howerton, a 27-year-old truck driver, ran from his home in Goldtown, W.Va., with his wife and two young children in tow when the water rushed in. The house was swept down a stream and came to rest on state Route 21.

"It just picked it up and turned it around," Howerton said, pointing to the swollen stream. "We heard it crash into those trees. We ain't got nothing left but a lawnmower and a car."

Rena Moore of Kenna carried what little was salvageable from her crumpled trailer and said, "I got my dog, I got my car, and by the time I got them across the road it just came up on us."

In Charleston, W.Va., where 2.46 inches of rain fell in less than two hours and winds were clocked at 61 mph Thursday night, windows in downtown buildings were shattered and numerous roads were blocked as water poured out of the surrounding hills.

In Roane County to the north, authorities reported extensive damage near Spencer, but there were no reports of injuries.

A rain gauge at the Kentucky State Police post at Pikeville indicated 2.58 inches of rain in a 48-minute span late Thursday.

Small flames still lick tanker

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Firefighters on Friday extinguished the major fires sweeping a gasoline tanker snagged on an oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico, but flames still licked at small storage tanks.

"The main fire seems to be out," said Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Bob Brown. "There is still a small fire in the forward port side tank — visible through a 30 by 10-foot hole in the bow."

Brown said the main fire, which had lofted flames 150 to 250 feet in the air, was put out after burning out of control almost 30 hours.

The 565-foot tanker Texaco North Dakota, laden with more than 2 1/2 million gallons of gasoline, rammed the partly-constructed rig about 150 miles south of New Orleans.

The foredeck of the big tanker exploded in flames, and the 39-man crew abandoned ship in lifeboats. They were rescued by nearby vessels.

One crewman, David Roman, 34, of Rio Grande, Puerto Rico, suffered first- and second-degree burns, but Texaco officials said he would be discharged soon.

Texaco spokesman Max Hebert said salvage operations would begin even before the hull had cooled.

"When and if the fire is out, the next step would be to send divers down with video equipment to survey the damage," Hebert said. "Then we can determine the best way to get the ship off the rig." Fireboats poured thousands of gallons of water on the ship through the night. They were joined Friday by a tug with two 65-foot firefighting towers. At the same time, wild well fighters Boots and Coots, Inc. of Houston set up a firefighting barge with high-capacity pumps capable of producing a heavy mist spray.

Texaco spokesman Mike McDermott said there was no sign of pollution from the accident.

"The gasoline would tend to evaporate before it could get ashore," McDermott said. "Yesterday there were some reports of a sheen on the water, but it has dissipated."

Two pre-registration days remain for MC fall students

Only two days remain for pre-registration by students planning to attend Midland College this fall.

The first two weeks of pre-registration brought out more than 1,700 students, which is about 400 more than had pre-registered at the same time last year.

Midland College's all-time enrollment record of 2,550 students was set in the 1979 fall term.

Pre-registration is taking place in the Office of Student Services, Administration Building, Monday and Tuesday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. including the noon hour.

Formal registration is slated for Wednesday and Thursday in the Physical Education Building from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. both days.

Those students who have pre-registered were issued permits for specific times to report for registration. Registrar Dee Windsor pointed out that 50 permits were issued for each 15-minute period of registration.

"We would encourage all persons considering registration to pre-register, rather than waiting until after classes begin," Windsor said.

"If we know how many students will be attending classes, it helps us plan various class sections and prevents us from canceling classes which late-registering students might want to take."

Windsor also requested that students unable to pre-register come to the Physical Education Building between 5:30 and 7 p.m. Thursday. They will be processed as quickly as possible.

There will be no registration on Friday. Midland College will be closed Sept. 1 in observance of Labor Day. Both daytime and nighttime classes begin Sept. 2.

Information about pre-registration and courses being offered at Midland College this fall may be obtained by visiting the Office of Student Services or by calling 684-7851, extensions 166 or 251.

Jane Seymour portrays troubled Kate in ABC adaptation of 'East of Eden'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kate murdered her parents, turned to prostitution and then perversion, shot her husband, walked away from her wedlock-born twins, and died an arthritis-crippled paranoid. Jane Seymour will attempt to portray Kate as a human being.

Kate is the riveting female lead in John Steinbeck's epic "East of Eden," which will be shown in seven blood-curdling hours this fall on ABC. The character will be played by Miss Seymour, a stunning Englishwoman who strives against all odds "to make her vulnerable enough that the audience would actually care about what she did."

Early in life, Kate focused on the world with a troubled mind. As a teen-ager, she killed her parents by setting fire to their house, then ran away and became a prostitute. Nearly beaten to death by her pimp, she is rescued by Adam and quickly gets him to marry her.

That plan goes awry when she becomes pregnant by Adam's brother, Charles. She tries unsuccessfully to kill her unborn children, then breaks away from the family by shooting Adam. She returns to prostitution, murders her madam, takes over the house and turns it into a den of a sexual depravity. In the end, the monster in her has squelched every human trait, and pushes her to suicide.

Miss Seymour, mostly unknown in America despite a glittering list of credits, looks on Kate as "the best piece of work I've ever done in my life. It's the best role that I have ever read, ever, in any medium. To play a character that is so many different people, and also not even human, is fantastic."

Among the other stars of the $10 million project are Timothy Bottoms as Adam, Bruce Boxleitner as Charles, Lloyd Bridges as Samuel Hamilton and Sam Bottoms as Cal, one of Kate's twin sons.

Shooting was crammed into a 78-day schedule on location in Savannah, Ga., Los Angeles and the Steinbeck Country near Salinas, Calif. The Salinas portion was especially meaningful for Miss Seymour.

"A stained glass window had just been put up in honor of the woman that I was playing," the actress recalled. "She was a real person. And there's a real person living in Salinas who is Cal. Everyone knows, but no one admits to it, because the man owns the bank."

"In fact, there was a mixture of pride about Steinbeck and a sort of embarrassment about people's families being talked about so openly."

The segments were shot mostly in sequence, which meant that for several weeks Miss Seymour had to portray a dying Kate.

"The last few weeks I was playing a woman who was locking herself up in what amounted to a coffin (a windowless room), who was crippled by arthritis and was paranoid and suspicious and hateful of everything and everyone around her, even the light of day."

"There was quite a period of coming down from that," she explained. "I have a tendency, I'm kind of tough on real life, especially when you're playing a monster."

It is perhaps this ability to lose herself, physically and emotionally, in a character that has cost Miss Seymour the attention lavished on actresses with lesser talents.

This year, in addition to Kate, she plays a beautiful turn-of-the-century actress opposite Christopher Reeve in "Somewhere in Time" and the unsuspecting straight guy for Jenie in "Oh, Heavenly Dog." In past years, she has ranged from Shakespeare to "Battlestar Galactica," from a pioneer woman in "The Awakening Land" to an alcoholic dress designer in "Seventh Avenue" and the virginal card-reader Solitaire in "Live and Let Die."

"The point is, no one has actually categorized me. It's the best thing that can happen to an actor, but it's the worst thing that can happen to someone who wants to be a star. Stars play themselves and the public buys them, not the package. No one quite knows who the real Jane Seymour is."

The real Jane Seymour is a one-time ballet dancer who was forced to give up "my real ambition" because of cartilage damage in her knees — "the same thing that happens to soccer players."

Academy Award-winner Maggie Smith took the frustrated dancer aside one day and mentioned the possibility of an acting career. "She was the one who sewed the seed," Miss Seymour said.

After years of playing anything she could find in England, Miss Seymour abandoned her native shores for the jungle of Hollywood.

"I came to America with no job, no work permit, no agent. It was pretty crazy the first six weeks or so, and then I started being offered really good work."

Most of the work was on television, a medium that she would just as soon forsake for the creative liberty of cinema. She finds it ironic that her meatiest part to date, therefore, is a TV production.

"I'd rather do it in a feature film," she admitted, "but you couldn't play that character, that range, in a two-hour movie. TV gave me seven hours, and I consider it a great gift."

Shelley Winters' book on bestseller list

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "My writer friends are all mad at me. They want to know how I dare to do this to them. What right do I have to be on the bestseller list?"

This was Shelley Winters responding as she has most of her life, with a mixture of guilt and small-girl delight. Odd and exciting and sometimes tragic things have happened to her with astounding consistency, and she has written about many of them in "Shelley, Also Known as Shirley" (Morrow; $14.95), which some critics have praised as the best Hollywood memoir since "Lauren Bacall: By Myself."

The sinkable Shelley was spending a few days here at her Coldwater Canyon home, appearing on some TV talk shows and sitting out the actors' strike. The role of bestselling author obviously pleases her, despite sour grapes of writer friends who resent a tyro's success.

"Shelley Also Known as Shirley" (her real name: Shirley Schiff) did not come easily. She started with one publisher, sat down to write and found herself wordless — a Winters first. She abandoned the idea, then conquered her mental block about reviewing her life. For the new publisher the reminiscence flowed like Niagara: 1-250 typed pages.

"I started to get it under control by filing stories in folders," said Winters. "That helped me organize the chapters, and everything fell into place. To help my memory, I had an outline of the pictures I had made. Also I kept diaries in 1950, and I had my appointment books from 1939, so I could see whom I met and where. Savings accounts I had since 1944 helped me see how much money came in and went out."

Unlike most celebrity authors who claim "I did it all myself," Winters admits to heavy editing. She acknowledges in a foreword: friends Jan and Robert Lowell, who helped in the early stages; editor Ellis Amburn, whom she nicknames "Bloody Stumps"; associate Helen Darvall.

"I tried to improve my use of language after my (working) association with Charles Laughton," the actress said.

"Then Christopher Isherwood and Budd Schulberg told me what books to read. Even so, I'm no good at spelling and grammar, and that is where I needed the most help. Ellis Amburn told me not to try to be literary. He said: 'You lived it; all you have to do is make the reader be there.'"

Were some of the memories painful? "Oh, yes. Especially the part with my first husband and with Vittorio (Gassman, husband No. 2). Also the breakup with Burt (Lancaster). I think I tried to commit suicide afterward. All I know is I drank a bottle of brandy and swallowed a handful of pills."

Her book has aroused talk because of her frank accounts of dalliances with famous stars.

"There were some I now wish I had left out. Like Bill Holden. He was a rather wild young man when I first knew him —

Some of magazine's bomb article declassified

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal energy official says the government has declassified certain "compromised" information that was published in a controversial article on the hydrogen bomb.

Duane C. Sewell, assistant secretary for defense programs at the Energy Department, confirmed before a House subcommittee Thursday that he declassified the material Dec. 27, 1979.

Sewell said he took the action because the information had been widely disseminated in articles and was needed so the courts could evaluate it in a case involving Progressive Magazine.

The magazine, based in Madison, Wis., printed an article on construction of the hydrogen bomb in November 1979.

Locals won't bite at Moon tourney

By JOE QUINLAN

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Followers of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon have $100,000 waiting for fishermen who haul in winning catches in a super-rich tuna tournament. But folks in this crusty old New England fishing town aren't exactly hooked on the idea.

"I believe in Jesus Christ," snorts Kerry Jones. "I don't believe in the Moon." Jones, a 29-year-old scallop fisherman, says he won't enter the World Tuna Tournament despite a kitty far richer than most such events, where purses can dip as low as $200.

Furthermore, Jones adds, he doesn't know anyone who will be aboard for the seven-day competition that begins Sunday.

"If I knew one," he says, "we wouldn't be friends."

Tournament Chairman Paul Werner just smiles placidly.

"We don't have any problems," he says. "Everything is fine."

Werner says about 70 boats had paid the $100 registration fee by Thursday, but he wasn't sure how many of the boats were locally owned.

Werner, 52, says the tournament was inspired by Moon, who seeks to "revitalize the fishing industry" as a means to feed the world. "But that's as far as it (church affiliation) goes," he adds.

The competition is sponsored by three Unification Church-affiliated seafood businesses, and all fish caught during the tournament are to be sold to the sponsors.

For the people of Gloucester, the issue here runs far deeper than just catching fish. Moon's followers have bought into Gloucester in a big way over the past couple years, and local officials have protested bitterly.

A church-owned fence was smeared with obscenities. A Unification Church seafood restaurant was vandalized. Recently someone altered a billboard containing a politician's promise to "make Congress work for you." Now the message reads: "Rev. Moon makes slob work for you."

"There is no one in this city who is not against him," says Mayor Leo Alper. "If there's anything to prevent them from growing ... I'll do anything I can."

But grow they have. Unification Church members used an apparent go-between to buy the former Cardinal Cushing Villa, a retreat for Catholic nuns, in West Gloucester.

They also own a 14-room house, purchased in 1978 for $1 from a New Hampshire couple, believed to be church sympathizers, who had paid $45,000 for the house five months earlier. A vacant parcel of land along ocean marshes was bought and earmarked as the site of a maritime academy for the church.

And Alper says the oceanfront property that now houses the seafood restaurant and tourney headquarters was bought at auction by Moon followers for $650,000, a bid almost $200,000 higher than a local offer.

The mayor says he has a lawyer exploring ways to resist the church, such as making it difficult for the organization to obtain licenses to operate its properties or lining up blocks of local buyers when property is available for sale.

But he conceded that the church would come out on top in any bidding war.

"Everything he wants in Gloucester won't come easy. The city will only take so much, and then there's going to be a revolt."

"Here we have a closeness," the mayor said, describing a community of 28,000 where going down to the sea in ships has been a way of life for generations.

Big defense breakthrough announced

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown announced Friday the United States has achieved a major technological breakthrough that will neutralize any Soviet air defenses against American bombers, cruise missiles or fighter-bombers.

"This alters the military balance significantly," Brown told a news conference at which he formally confirmed reports of the new technology called "Stealth," which would prevent Soviet radar or other sensors from spotting American manned and unmanned aircraft until it was too late to knock them down.

HE SAID this technology — whose specific details he refused to discuss — "enables the United States to build manned and unmanned aircraft that cannot be successfully intercepted" by any Soviet air defense now in existence or being developed for the future.

At the same time, he described the development, evolving from at least three years of concentrated effort, as "a formidable instrument of peace."

"It can contribute to the maintenance of peace by posing a new and significant offset to the Soviet Union's attempt to gain military ascendancy by weight of numbers," Brown said. He stressed that "Stealth" will "provide us capabilities that are wholly consistent with our pursuit of verifiable arms control agreements, especially the strategic arms limitation agreement."

"We have demonstrated to our satisfaction that the technology works," he said. "We are vigorously applying this technology to develop a number of military aircraft and these programs are showing very great promise," he added.

DR. WILLIAM PERRY, the Pentagon's research chief, said the new technology would not make aircraft invisible, but that Soviet radar would be able to see it only "too late to intercept."

While withholding specific technological details, obviously to retard any Soviet counter efforts, Brown did say that it "extends beyond radar" in countering various types of sensors used to detect aircraft and cruise missiles penetrating Soviet airspace.

The defense secretary would not indicate when "Stealth" will become operational. So far, he said, the United States has no evidence that the Russians are engaged in any "comparable effort" to develop this penetration technology, which he said has "extraordinary military significance."

Brown said he is "sure the Soviets are already looking hard at this technology and scratching their heads."

THE DEFENSE secretary rejected a suggestion that the announcement was intended to help counter Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan's claims that the Carter administration has allowed U.S. military strength to slip into second place behind Russia's.

"That was not the purpose of our action at this time," Brown said. "We would have preferred to keep the secret longer," he added, but this was impossible because of a spate of news reports about the development and because "the circle of people knowledgeable about the program has widened, partly because of the increased size of the effort, and partly because of the debate under way in the Congress on new bomber proposals."

However, Brown took the opportunity to crack back at Reagan, saying that it is "a serious matter to claim that the Soviets surpass us in all respects." Brown suggested this is a dangerous charge that might embolden the Russians.

MILITARY AND scientific sources have said the new technology involves a variety of techniques, including the use of radar-absorbing materials that would, in effect, prevent Soviet anti-aircraft missile batteries and jet interceptors from spotting U.S. aircraft.

These sources have said the concept involves revolutionary changes in aircraft body design. These changes would cause radar beams to be deflected from U.S. aircraft into the air, rather than rebounding back to detection equipment.

There also have been reports that the concept includes reducing the infra-red "signature" given off by engine heat, which would defeat the ability of sensors to detect aircraft or vehicles in deepest darkness.

Brown said the Russians have been spending tens of billions of dollars on improving their air defense system, including more sophisticated missiles and "look-down" radar to guard against bombers and cruise missiles traveling near the ground.

These sources have said the concept involves revolutionary changes in aircraft body design. These changes would cause radar beams to be deflected from U.S. aircraft into the air, rather than rebounding back to detection equipment.

CBS schedule mostly reruns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS on Friday announced its program schedule for the traditional mid-September start of TV's new fall season but, because of the actors' strike, the lineup consists largely of reruns.

The network revealed only its schedule for the week beginning Monday, Sept. 15, the week NBC begins its fall season with many new shows, all completed prior to the walkout almost five weeks ago that shut down most fall television production.

ABC's schedule for that week also is loaded with reruns because of the strike by 67,000 members of the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists. Both NBC and ABC announced their schedules earlier this week.

The only original shows in the CBS lineup for the week beginning Sept. 15 are the season premieres of "The Tim Conway Show" on Saturday and "60 Minutes" on Sunday, plus a Lynda Carter special, a new television movie, and two theatrical movies.

Lynda Carter will star in her second special for CBS on Tuesday, following the rerun of a two-hour "Dukes of Hazard" movie. The new TV movie is "Rodeo Girls," starring Katharine Ross and Bo Hopkins. It will air on Wednesday, following a rerun of the Carol Burnett-Dolly Parton special.

Two theatrical films new to CBS are "Foul Play," set for Monday, and "A Piece of the Action," set for Thursday. A third theatrical movie, previously seen on CBS, is "Chinatown," set for Saturday.

The Friday and Sunday schedules consist entirely of reruns of regular programming.

Members of SAG and AFTRA struck major Hollywood studios July 21 in a dispute over the right of actors to share in the profits that producers make from pay-TV, videocassettes and videodiscs.

Shark released

SAUSALITO, Calif. (AP) — A female great white shark, the darling of a San Francisco aquarium since its capture earlier this week, was taken Friday about 30 miles off the California coastline Friday to be freed.

The shark's release, scheduled for late afternoon off the Farallon Islands west of San Francisco, was an attempt to save her life, said John McCosker, director of the Steinhart Aquarium.

"Looking for something good to read? "Want to read about the world? Your own neighborhood? Sports? Movies? How about music, travel, economics—even the weather? "Well, you don't need a shelf full of books to find all those good things. "They're all right here in these pages, fresh every day in your local newspaper. "I'm Ed Asner—and I think there's something for everyone in the newspaper. It's even got television listings—so you'll never miss the best shows—like 'Lou Grant.'"

The paper. It's good reading.

Gierek facing challenge much like that of his predecessor

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

Edward Gierek, a coalminer's son who rose as a friend of the worker to become boss of Poland's Communist Party, is facing the same kind of defiant labor unrest that swept away his predecessor a decade ago. It is his gravest challenge as the nation's top leader.

The husky, crewcut Gierek, 67, who himself worked in the mines and spent much of his formative years in Belgium and France, has built a reputation for hard work and a degree of tolerance rare among Soviet-bloc leaders.

Now Gierek, with the Soviets looking over his shoulder to see if any danger comes to Poland's communist system, is struggling to find a way out of his nation's spreading wildcat strikes without resorting to the kind of force used by his predecessor, Wladyslaw Gomulka.

Gomulka's decision to dispatch troops and tanks to end strikes in Gdansk and Szczecin in December 1970 triggered bloodshed that left at least 45 people dead and 1,165 injured.

That forced Gomulka's resignation as party chief and prompted the party's Central Committee to turn to Gierek, a provincial party chief from Silesia who was untainted by political infighting and the furor surrounding Gdansk in 1970.

Up to now, Gierek's tactic has been to negotiate. He has dispatched a commission to the Baltic coast strike area to meet with workers but has not inflamed the situation by visible shows of force, although police and military reinforcements have been reported sent quietly to the Baltic area. He has also promised pay raises and other economic concessions.

Gierek followed the same tactic in 1970 after assuming the party leadership, launching a number of programs to improve the living standards of Poland's workers. Wages were increased, and stores were stocked with more consumer goods.

The regime also sought peace with the Roman Catholic Church, which claims the allegiance of 90 percent of the country's 35 million people.

Gierek visited Pope Paul VI in the Vatican in 1977 and two years later permitted Polish-born Pope John Paul II to visit the country for a highly publicized pilgrimage to a communist land.

In a drive to improve conditions for Poland's consumers, Gierek expanded trade with the West and joined other Soviet-bloc countries in obtaining large-scale credit to expand domestic industry.

But Gierek's regime overcommitted itself more than any other Eastern European country, winding up nearly $20 billion in debt to Western creditors by 1980.

A Western-financed industrial base that was supposed to have been producing goods for a better life at home wound up serving an export market whose earnings went to repay the country's debts.

Gierek's programs have also fallen short of calls by the church, intellectuals and workers for more democracy.

Edward Gierek

Battle centered on propaganda

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Striking shipyard workers and Poland's communist government are fighting an uneven propaganda battle to try and gain the support of the country's 35 million people.

It's a David-and-Goliath struggle, pitting the government and Communist Party with their radio, television, press and even airplanes against the strikers' loudspeakers and old mimeograph machines.

Shortly after the strike began Aug. 21 at the huge Lenin shipyard here, telephone communications were cut with the rest of the country, leaving residents with the censored press, foreign broadcasts and word-of-mouth as their information sources.

One sunny afternoon a small plane flew over the gabled buildings of the old inner city, and pamphlets fluttered down into the cobbled streets below. Workers at the nearby entrance to the shipyard gave shrill whistles of disapproval.

"Residents of Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot. Open your eyes before it is too late," the sheets read. "We must not let this situation come to such a point that our children have to ask for bread and milk and the sick don't have any care. Citizens of the triple city — whether it comes to such a state, it all depends on you."

The leaflets were signed by the mayors of the three close-by cities on the Baltic Sea.

Party leader Edward Gierek, Premier Edward Babuch and Vice Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski have addressed the nation on television and radio, appealing to the workers to return to their jobs and warning the country's security is at stake. Radio Gdansk, heard only in the northern coastal area, carries several reports daily on the situation, giving the government view.

A Sopot student, who is able to listen to broadcasts by the British Broadcasting Corp., said the Gdansk station "is carrying on a very deliberate and vicious campaign" to break the strike.

The indefinite postponement of the fall opening of elementary schools was announced in one sentence on the front page of Gdansk's local newspaper. It said the reason was "commu-

Soviet newspaper Pravda makes no direct mention of strikes in Poland

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda, sticking to its cautious reporting of Polish labor unrest, said Friday that Polish miners produced a large amount of coal this month. Pravda made no direct mention of the strikes crippling northern Poland.

Polish dissidents claim striking workers have closed more than 400 plants in nine days.

The Soviet news media has referred only once to work "stoppages" and has given no indication of the strikes' scale.

Friday's Pravda article quoted reports from the Polish Communist party newspaper Trybuna Ludu praising coal miners for producing 11 million tons of coal in 20 days this month. It also said the Polish Daily noted "the importance of rhythmic, successful work, which is a basic condition for solving social and economic problems and ending the difficulties that have arisen in the country."

To counter the government campaign and censorship, the central strike committee has mounted loudspeakers at the shipyard gates and in the city's central square. They boom out speeches and announcements to the thousands of blue-overalled workers gathered at the entrance.

Inside a small printing office of the occupied shipyard, workers with ink past their elbows use a mimeograph machine manufactured in 1906 to crank out by hand strike literature.

Banking syndicate agrees to loan

LONDON (AP) — An international syndicate of banks headed by the Bankamerica International group agreed Friday to loan Poland's Bank Handlowy Warszawa $325 million to help finance that country's 1980 economic programs.

Northern Poland currently is gripped by widespread strikes touched off by increases in meat prices that have been indirectly blamed on Poland's heavy debt.

Bush seems less than successful in talks with Chinese leaders

PEKING (AP) — Republican vice presidential nominee George Bush wound up talks with Chinese leaders Friday aimed at convincing them that Chinese-American relations would not worsen under a Ronald Reagan presidency. He apparently was less than successful.

Bush told senior Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping, the man who wields the greatest influence here, that a Republican U.S. administration could not legally establish a government liaison office on the Nationalist Chinese-governed island of Taiwan and had no intention of doing so even if it could.

Bush added in a talk to the American community later that a Republican administration would have "no government relations in the diplomatic sense" with Taiwan.

He apparently referred to the Taiwan relations act passed by Congress in March 1979 that basically upheld a unilateral declaration issued by the U.S. government when diplomatic relations were established with China in Jan. 1, 1979. The declaration said the United States would maintain commercial and cultural relations with Taiwan but without official government representation or diplomatic relations.

Although he drew on the considerable goodwill built up during his days as U.S. envoy here during the Nixon and Ford administrations, Bush was not able to say afterward he had convinced the doctory 76-year-old Deng.

Asked this by a reporter following a speech at the American Club, Bush shrugged and said, "I don't know the answer."

Bush has no official functions before leaving here Saturday. He arrived Wednesday on a mission that seemed designed to demonstrate the foreign policy know-how of the Reagan-Bush team.

The mission got off to a sour start when Reagan, seeing Bush off at the Los Angeles airport, reiterated his hope that a government liaison office could be set up in Taipei while maintaining the U.S. Embassy here.

That touched off a flurry of Chinese reaction, including a bitter commentary in the official press accusing Reagan of trying to revive America's discarded "two Chinas" policy. On Thursday, Foreign Minister Huang Hua lectured Bush on the need to avoid backsliding in Chinese-American relations.

Apparently stung by the criticism, Reagan said later Thursday in Los Angeles that the Peking leaders eventually will realize they have a common interest with "the people on Taiwan" against the Soviet Union. He did not repeat his proposal for a liaison office in Taipei.

When Bush saw Deng at the Great Hall of the People on Friday, there were no lectures, only a warm handshake and a comment by Deng that they were old friends.

The official Xinhua news agency carried a brief report of Bush's meeting with Deng, saying there had been "a serious and frank exchange" of views. That phrasing usually means there were areas of disagreement.

Bush took pains to explain to the American Club audience why Reagan continues to use "Republic of China" in describing the Taiwan-based government. This implies recognition.

Kremlin rejects Iran's allegation

By The Associated Press

Iran's ambassador to the Soviet Union said Friday the Kremlin had rejected an allegation by Tehran that the Soviet Union was "no less satanic than the United States" in dealing with the revolutionary Islamic regime.

The ambassador, Mohammad Mokri, told a news conference in Moscow he had met with the Soviet Union's first deputy foreign minister about a letter to Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko written by Iran's foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, containing that accusation and others.

Mokri said, "I can tell you that the Soviet Union has not accepted these charges." He said Iran continues to seek "friendly, good-neighborly relations" with Moscow.

In another development, a Lebanese radio report claiming that five American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran had been killed in an escape attempt was denied by the Iranian Foreign Ministry. A State Department spokesman in Washington said, "We have no reason to believe that any element of the story is true."

The broadcast, by the Beirut radio station of the Lebanese Christian Phalange Party, quoted unidentified "Arab diplomatic sources."

Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman A. Hashemi, reached by telephone by The Associated Press from Nicosia, Cyprus, said: "I have contacted the students at the embassy and I am authorized to say there is no truth to this report." Tehran Radio quoted a ministry spokesman as saying the report "is devoid of any truth."

The 52 Americans held hostage in Iran spent their 293rd day in captivity Friday. Since militants took over the embassy Nov. 4, there have been numerous rumors and unsubstantiated reports that hostages had been killed.

More rebel activity reported

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Afghanistan's government radio acknowledged Friday there is increased rebel activity in the western province of Herat, claiming at least 19 insurgents were killed and scores captured in battles with army units.

Sixteen "terrorists, bandits, and mercenaries of foreign agents" were killed in two separate encounters with government forces in the Iran-bordering province's Engeel county, according to a broadcast heard here. It did not say when the clashes occurred, but said many rebels were captured and foreign weapons and currency notes were seized.

The Soviet Union sent an estimated 100,000 troops into Afghanistan in December.

El Salvador's power blackout extended as protest continues

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Hospitals used emergency generators to warm newborn babies and cool blood supplies, and market vendors threw away spoiled meat and fish Friday after electrical workers extended a power blackout to the entire country.

Disgruntled workers occupied all five of the country's power generating plants Thursday afternoon and shut off power to about half of this troubled Central American nation of 5 million to protest the firing of 35 fellow workers.

They later extended it to all the nation in retaliation for what they claimed was a false statement by Christian Democrat leader Jose Napoleon Duarte on the government radio that blamed the power outage on the electrical workers' union. They did not explain their claim about his statement. There were rumors of mass killings and other violence in this capital city that has known political turmoil almost daily since a civilian-military junta took power last fall. The rumors could not be confirmed.

Power returned to the country for about 20 minutes Friday afternoon, then was cut again. There was no immediate explanation.

Francisco Granadino, head of the Rio Lempa Commission, which produces and distributes this country's electricity, said the army had taken over one power plant, but this could not be confirmed.

Government patrols were out in force. The government set deadlines of 6 p.m. Thursday and 10 a.m. Friday for the workers to restore power and leave the plant but the deadlines passed with no federal action. Talks continued Friday.

At least two persons reported injured in coordinated bombings in Manila

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A series of apparently coordinated bomb attacks Friday rocked government and private buildings, including a U.S. bank, police said. Two persons were reported injured.

The midafternoon explosions, which occurred within an hour of each other in widespread sectors of Manila and two suburbs, touched off panic among hundreds of employees who jammed elevators and climbed down towers.

No one claimed responsibility. The bombs were detonated a few hours after President Ferdinand Marcos said in a speech he "should be able" to lift martial law "very soon" if government efforts at reforms succeed. He did not specify which reforms he meant.

Police said many of the explosions were from battery-ignited gasoline bombs, some planted in toilets and some in empty rooms. One exploded in an unoccupied guardhouse of the government's housing agency.

While the bombs were going off around the capital, about 300 students staged a peaceful demonstration at the suburban University of the Philippines to protest recent arrests of student leaders opposed to martial law.

The explosions followed unprecedented publicity given by Manila's heavily censored press to alleged opposition threats of urban terror unless Marcos ends martial law soon.

The official Philippine News Agency said the explosions "fit into the pattern of a scenario of terrorism and bombings" of an underground opposition group the government has accused of plotting to assassinate Marcos and overthrow his martial law regime.

Second grand jury probe of death studied

MIAMI (AP) - The U.S. Justice Department may convene a second grand jury to investigate the slaying of a young black man by a white Hialeah policeman last September.

U.S. Attorney Atlee Wampler is studying federal regulations to see whether a second jury could be impaneled to investigate the case.

A federal grand jury on Wednesday decided not to indict Larry Shockley in the shooting death of Randy Heath, 21.

If Wampler decides a legal basis exists for a new grand jury investigation, he would need approval from the Justice Department in Washington, the paper said.

Shockley's lawyer, Larry Katz, said such a move would be "unfair and unwarranted, it's a total miscarriage of justice."

It was the second time a grand jury found no reason to indict Shockley in the case. A Dade County grand jury in April decided not to indict him but said he should be removed from the force.

Shockley initially said that while he was working off-duty as a security guard, he found Heath trying to burglarize a warehouse and shot him during a struggle.

But Heath's sister, Theresa, who witnessed the shooting, said there was no struggle and that Heath had walked over to the warehouse to urinate. Shockley later said he shot Heath by accident and the two did not struggle.

Church Calendar

Today your boy's world is a wonderful place of trees and blue sky, puppy dogs and best friends. Perhaps his greatest decision is which tree to climb and how high to go.

But it won't always be so. As he grows, his choices must grow in scope and seriousness also.

Just as you today can't choose for him which tree to climb and how high; so also, as he grows in wisdom and stature, you cannot choose for him the proper values and goals for his life. But you can guide and direct him in the ways you have found to be good and right.

Attend the church or synagogue of your choice and take your child with you.

Man's dream is slowly but surely coming true

By ANDREA WEISGERBER
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Mike Riley's dream of a statewide Christian broadcast network is slowly but surely coming true.

The idea came to Riley, a private jet pilot, four years ago when he volunteered for special counseling work at the Fairfield School for Boys. He said he saw then how caring made a difference to the boys, and felt frustrated that he and the other volunteers couldn't reach more people.

With a borrowed camera and high hopes, he and his wife, Jan, turned to cable TV. That worked for a while, he said, but their goal was to be able to broadcast from their own studios with their own transmitter.

This March, part of Riley's dream came true when WSFJ, licensed in Newark, switched on its transmitter. The low-cost, low-power, energy-efficient transmitter cost $120,000, hundreds of thousands of dollars less than a commercial station would pay for a high-powered transmitter.

The manufacturer — Electronics, Missiles and Communications, Inc., of Pennsylvania — estimated the cost of electricity consumption for the transmitter at 31 cents an hour. Commercial stations pay up to $13 an hour.

The signal doesn't go far, but WSFJ is carried in Columbus and the surrounding area by cable television systems.

The station runs syndicated Christian programs such as the "PTL Club" from the PTL Television Network in Charlotte, N.C., but Riley's tastes also lean toward what he calls community programming.

For instance, there's "Good News," a nightly newscast produced by WSFJ that reports what the name suggests.

On Saturdays, there's a morning of non-violent shows for kids, and on weekdays, "Westbrook Hospital" challenges the network soaps with what the producers call fast-moving drama with a solid Christian message.

Riley said he hopes to step up the station's local programming from its current two hours a day to 10. In the early stages now is a talk show aimed at farmers. Riley said he wants to have similar programs for many other occupations.

The station is paid by syndicators for carrying their programs, and receives additional income from advertising and donations. Riley said the station doesn't have a budget: "We just pay the bills as they come in."

The station relies heavily on community support. One of its videotape machines, for instance, is on loan until the station can pay the dealer. A school teacher donated $40,000, and a doctor bought the transmitter and leases it to WSFJ.

Even the building, a former half-way house for juvenile offenders, was leased by a local church to WSFJ for $1 a year. The station is making arrangements to buy it.

All of that progress has been gratifying to Riley, but he said there's more to be done. He said he envisions joining other Christian television stations, and using the cable to form a statewide network.

With such a network, Riley said cities can draw on each other for fund-raising and programming.

'Superstar' ends London run after eight years

LONDON (AP) — "Jesus Christ Superstar," the musical whose worldwide success surprised even its two young British creators, finally comes to a close in London's West End after a money-spinning run of eight years.

The show ends Aug. 23 at the Palace Theater after 3,357 performances, making it the longest-running musical ever on the London stage.

"In theory, I suppose we could have let it run for another five years," said the show's lyricist, Tim Rice.

"But after a while, you don't score many points for running indefinitely," he said in an interview. "Besides, last winter the show had a rough time by its own standards," with too many empty seats.

Because of a contract between the Palace Theater and the Robert Stigwood Organization, the show's producers, "Superstar" could not play elsewhere in the British Isles as long as it remained at the Palace.

"We have been inundated with requests over the years," Rice said from his home outside the university town of Oxford. "We felt we just had to take the show into the provinces where it will gain a whole new audience."

An extensive British tour is planned for next March.

The show first opened on Broadway, then was launched in London on Aug. 9, 1972. When Rice was just 27 years old and the composer, Andrew Lloyd-Webber, three years younger. Since then it has grossed more than $237 million worldwide.

Only one other musical has run longer in London — "The Black and White Minstrel Show," which opened in 1962 and ran for 10 years. But as Rice pointed out, that was a revue, not a dramatic musical. "Superstar" has a definite plot," he stressed.

Two million people have seen it in London alone, and box office takings total more than $16.6 million. News of the closing has brought a surge in bookings.

"Superstar" has been translated into 11 languages and performed in 22 countries. Its success is all the more remarkable because of the trouble Rice and Lloyd-Webber had selling the original idea.

Impressarios were nervous about such a grandiose production with a religious subject, Rice explained. In the end, the show's popularity and acceptance by Roman Catholics and other denominations went well beyond Rice's expectations.

Rice would not disclose how much he has earned in royalties, other than saying the income "could not keep me going indefinitely."

"Evita," based on the life of former Argentine ruler Eva Peron, is grossing even more money for Rice and Lloyd-Webber.

Currently in its third year, "Evita" is doing better than "Superstar" at the same point in their histories, said Rice, although it hasn't sold as many LP records.

"I suppose it might be that 'Superstar' appealed more at the time to the young record-buying public," he said.

Sect to stay in booth at fair

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A U.S. District Judge has ordered members of Krishna Consciousness, a religious sect, to remain in booths if they solicit money at the West Texas State Fair, adding the fair is not a government institution.

The Krishnas contended since the fair was operated by a government institution — the county — confining their activities to a booth infringed on their religious freedom under the First Amendment.

Federal Judge Hal Woodward struck down the Krishnas' request to roam the fairgrounds in a ruling late Tuesday.

"Although a Texas statute authorizes a county to operate a fair, such a fair cannot be construed as one of the traditional governmental functions such as levying taxes, health, fire and police protection," Woodward said.

Carter looks forward to debate

DETROIT (AP) — President Carter said Friday he looks forward to a fair, two-man debate with Ronald Reagan as the forum where he will expose the Republican presidential nominee's proposals as "pie in the sky."

Carter underscored the importance of the fall debates in his campaign strategy during an appearance before 2,300 delegates to the national convention of the American Federation of Teachers, a union which had supported Sen. Edward M. Kennedy during the Democratic presidential nomination contest and which cheered Carter less lustily than it had Kennedy a day earlier.

Nonetheless, Albert Shanker, president of the 550,000 member union promised his "enthusiastic" support to Carter. But he warned the president, "We intend to keep on watching what goes on in the White House." The president won cheers from his audience of school teachers when he reminded them that he had sent Amy to the public schools of Washington and asked for an opportunity to send her to the same schools for another four years.

Carter said he looks forward "to several debates with the Republican nominee in different parts of the country" and said he is also willing to debate independent candidate John B. Anderson separately.

But as Carter was getting into his car after his speech for the ride to the airport and the flight back to Washington, he was asked if he was committed to participating in all three debates being planned by the League of Women Voters. "I don't know," he replied.

He said these debates would point out the substantial differences between himself and Reagan in an election in which he said the differences between the candidates is as clear cut as any in his lifetime except perhaps the 1964 duel between Democratic President Lyndon Johnson and Republican Barry Goldwater.

In that match, the Democrats portrayed Goldwater as irresponsible, unpredictable and out of the mainstream and Carter turned the same strategy against Reagan. "There is no place in American life for pie in the sky, but there's a new math that's being propounded in different proposals," the president said of Reagan. "One of them is that in this election year there can be a massive tax cut for the rich equivalent to a trillion dollars in the years ahead; that at the same time we can have a massive increase in defense commitments, including a reinitiation of a nuclear arms race; that we can balance the budget at the same time and still provide social services and adequate education and other needs of the American people."

Anderson to pick Lucey?

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson will ask Patrick J. Lucey to become his vice presidential running mate and the former Wisconsin governor is expected to accept, knowledgeable sources said Friday.

Anderson declined to confirm that Lucey will almost certainly fill the No. 2 spot on his ticket, but said at a news conference that he had spoken with Lucey in Wisconsin late Thursday night.

Sources said Keke Anderson, the Republican congressman's wife, planned to meet with Lucey and his wife Jean in Madison, Wis., on Friday.

In Minneapolis, Anderson was asked to comment hypothetically on Lucey's value to his independent ticket.

Anderson said the former governor is a competent Democratic former public official from a Midwestern state and that he has wide experience in government.

Lucey, a liberal Democrat who held a senior post in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's failed campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, was first contacted by Anderson's campaign aides about a month ago, said the sources, who asked not to be named.

While a number of other potential candidates were being considered, including Boston Mayor Kevin White and former Texas congresswoman Barbara Jordan, attempts to court Lucey continued up until the Democratic National Convention, held in New York City last week.

When it became clear that President Carter would win renomination over Kennedy, Lucey resigned from the Wisconsin delegation to the convention and then held a highly publicized meeting with Anderson across Manhattan the next day.

Meanwhile, Lucey reviewed Anderson's positions on campaign issues and through intermediaries, including Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., the former governor was told this week that he was first on Anderson's list.

on the Court of Civil Appeals has prepared me to serve on the state's highest court."

"My record speaks for itself," he said. "I have written more than 300 decisions, of which 127 have been appealed and only seven have been overturned."

He said three of the reversals were during his first year on the court.

If elected, Ray said, he has plans for changing some of the rules under which civil trials are held in Texas. His goal, he explained, is to speed up the movement of cases and eliminate delays.

Supreme court candidate charges conflict of interest

ODESSA — C.L. Ray, Democratic candidate for the Texas Supreme Court in the November general election, charged Friday his opponent's vast stock holdings present a conflict of interest.

Ray, from Texarkana, said his Republican opponent, Will Garwood, owns about $75 million worth of stock in major corporations.

"This," Ray said at an Odessa press conference, "creates a moral if not a legal conflict of interest."

"My opponent is supported by millionaires who own stock in the same companies that he does. Do you think he can look those folks in the eye and tell them he just decided a case before the court that was going to cost them $100 million?" he asked.

"The question that those holdings raise is how will John Q. Texan like it when he goes to court against one of those major companies knowing that his case will be decided by a judge who owns stock in that firm?"

Ray, a court of Civil Appeals judge for the past 10 years, says he owns no stock.

"I sold my stock, at a loss I might add, when I first sought public office as a judge. I thought it was the right thing to do," Ray explained.

A former East Texas county judge and former state legislator, Ray said his campaign is picking up support throughout Texas.

The 49-year-old lawyer said he decided to challenge Garwood, who was appointed last November by the governor, "because I think my 10 years

Carter needs black vote, says NAACP executive director

AUSTIN, TEXAS (AP) — President Carter cannot win re-election without sizeable black support, the executive director of the NAACP said Friday.

"If he does not receive a top-heavy percentage of the black vote, he will not be re-elected," Benjamin Hooks said in a news conference at the Lyndon B. Johnson Library.

Hooks heads the social justice and civil rights panel of The President's Commission on a National Agenda for the Eighties, which will report to the president and Congress in December.

The panel presented a series of speakers, including Arthur Flemming, chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Flemming said those who oppose busing for school desegregation are part of a "regressive movement" that pays lip service to civil rights but works actively against measures to achieve equal education and equal job opportunity.

An example, he said, was the Republican platform, which condemns busing while saying it wants a quality education for all children.

"I hope the commission (on the 1980s) will take a vigorous stand for desegregation, ...including the utilization of all those instruments that must be used if the rhetoric of equal education is to become a reality," Flemming said.

Austin starts its first cross-town busing of both white and black children next Wednesday under a court order issued by U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts.

Hooks told reporters the black vote is "vital" to Carter's re-election.

"Personally, I don't think President Carter has done all he could have done or should have done.... But we are not living in an ideal world. We don't have the option of resurrecting Lyndon Johnson from the grave or picking up John F. Kennedy," Hooks said.

One reason the election of Carter is important to black people, he said, was the likelihood that the next president might appoint three to five justices of the U.S. Supreme Court.

"That is very important to the black community," said Hooks.

Reagan appears to dispute Bush

DALLAS (AP) — Contradicting his running mate, Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan on Friday refused to back away from his proposal to establish an official government relationship with Taiwan if elected president in November.

"I support what I have supported from the first," said Reagan, who had advocated that an official government office be set up on Taiwan to replace the private institute that now represents U.S. interests on the island. Pressed for a "yes" or "no" answer on whether he still backs an official government office, Reagan said, "I guess it's a yes."

Reagan's position has angered Chinese leaders, and his running mate, George Bush, has spent this week in Peking trying to ease fears that a Reagan presidency would not undercut the relations between China and the United States.

Bush told the American community in China Friday that a GOP administration could not legally establish a government liaison office on Taiwan and had no intention of doing so even if it could.

Reagan said he wanted to defer responding to detailed questions about his proposals for Peking and Taiwan until Monday when he meets with Bush and the two men hold a news conference.

Reagan spoke to reporters before addressing a convention of evangelists. He told the church leaders they have a duty to be politically active to help ensure that traditional values are used in shaping government policy.

In his address to the evangelists, he said, "Religious America is awakening, perhaps just in time for our country's sake." The conference is designed to mobilize the political muscle of conservative Christians. Earlier, the candidate told a news conference that he considered himself to be a born-again Christian. At his news conference, Reagan was dogged by questions about his policy toward Taiwan. He seemed to dispute Bush's assertion that a government liaison office could not be legally established under the 1979 Taiwan Relations Act under which the Carter administration switched diplomatic recognition from Taipei to Peking.

Asked if he interpreted the act to mean a president could institute some form of official relationship with Taiwan, Reagan said it would be "making it a little more open and less hypocritical than what exists today."

"I support what I have supported from the first, that is the full implementation of the Taiwan Relations Act that was passed by Congress," said Reagan.

Reagan insisted he was "not talking (about) a two-China policy" and said he would try to continue strengthening relations with the Peking government.

On another point, Reagan said he had serious doubts about the theory of evolution, and said that if it were taught in schools, then students should also learn about the biblical theory of creation.

Judge gravely concerned with Brilab investigation

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor Friday declined to dismiss charges against four Brilab defendants, but said he was "gravely concerned about some aspects of the way the investigation was handled."

"I do not see any way clear to dismiss the case," O'Connor said. "I do not feel the precedence sighted would allow me to dismiss this case."

O'Connor made his surprise ruling as defense and prosecution attorneys were arguing motions to dismiss the charges against Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton, Deer Park labor leader L.G. Moore, and Austin attorneys Donald W. Ray and Randall B. Wood.

The four were charged June 12 by a federal grand jury with racketeering, extortion, conspiracy and fraud.

Defense attorneys argued and sought to have the charges dismissed on the grounds that federal prosecutors manufactured federal jurisdiction and that government agents acted improperly during their 10-month investigation.

Earlier in the hearing, defense attorneys argued that undercover FBI agents and informant Joseph Hauser maneuvered Clayton into the investigation by offering him a $5,000 campaign contribution.

Clayton's attorney, Roy Minton, portrayed Hauser as a man who would go to great lengths to help the conditions of a plea-bargaining arrangement struck with the government in February of 1979.

"I'm confident that Hauser could steal this building if we'd just give him a few minutes to do it," Minton said. "He's steal anything that's not nailed down."

He said Hauser "got a kiss" for involving Clayton in the Brilab investigation.

The Austin attorney, whose hour-long argument held the attention of the spectators and journalists packed in the courtroom, said Clayton was a man who was completely unaware that anything illegal was transpiring.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald Woods defended the government's handling of the investigation.

"We merely went along to see" what would occur after Clayton's name was mentioned in a Sept. 20 meeting between Moore and Hauser, Woods said. The prosecutor rejected Clayton's statement that he intended to return the $5,000.

"The fact you keep money and you don't intend to keep it—that's incredible," Woods said.

Speaking of Moore's role in the investigation, Woods said: "L.G. Moore went wild. L.G. Moore took over and we didn't need Hauser any more. He said he could wire the state of Texas through the speaker," Woods said.

After asking the court for a separate trial for his client, Moore's attorney, Mike Ramsey, termed the prosecution's position a "doctrine of dupes" and a "Disney creation."

After the ruling, both Clayton and Minton said they were "pleased" with O'Connor's decision.

"The speaker needs to be acquitted by a jury," Minton said.

He said he was not upset about the ruling because if the charges had been dismissed, a government appeal might take "two or three years" and that would be "politically disastrous" to Clayton.

Clayton said he felt his political future "will still be on the track if we can finish this by early fall," and repeated his desire for a speedy trial.

A dismissal of the charges "would have left us under a cloud," the speaker said. "I'm ready to go to trial. Really, I've got to go to trial. I'm happy with the week's proceedings because we got a lot of things out in the open."

But a speedy trial could be derailed by conflicting court dates, Ramsey and Woods are both scheduled to try another case on Sept. 8, the date the Brilab trial will start.

O'Connor indicated he will make a decision on the conflicting trial dates Monday, when he hears more testimony on the remaining defense motions.

The judge hinted at his reluctance to dismiss the charges earlier Friday when he said that there are "a lot of factual matters in this case that would be better decided by a jury."

In their arguments, defense attorneys spotlighted Hauser's activities during the investigation, characterizing him as a man who would do anything to lighten his sentence on bribery convictions.

Clements says he's 'neutral'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he's not taking sides in the controversy over a multi-million dollar Medicaid contract for the State Board of Human Resources.

"I have no position in the matter," Clements told a news conference Friday. "It is strictly up to Hilmar Moore (chairman) and his board."

Clements also said the fact he spoke Thursday night to a Dallas conference of evangelical Christians urging participation in politics does not mean he has abandoned his stand for separation of church and state.

Clements said that H. Ross Perot, "a good friend for many years," called him recently about the $400 million Medicaid contract that will be considered Monday by the Human Resources board. He said Perot said he merely wanted to tell Clements that Perot was going to talk to members of the board about the contract that the board voted to deny Perot's company and give to Bradford National Corp.

"He said he was confident a big fuss was about to start and he wanted to inform me," Clements said of his talk with Perot.

Cubs win 5-3 to share lead

BY TED BATTLES

Sometimes if it weren't for the little things that go unnoticed, the big things on which empires rise and fall and baseball games, and maybe pennants, are won and lost, would never get a chance to happen.

game-winning double into the dark left field corner and Scott Fletcher made it official with a triple to right-center.

Ordinarily, a 5-3 lead as early as the third inning isn't such substantial stuff at Cubs Stadium, but with Paul...

Small going, it proved to be more than adequate as Midland moved into a first place tie in the Texas League West with a 5-3 win over El Paso before 1,265 fans Friday.

SAN ANTONIO had beaten Amarillo, 3-0, as Fernando Valenzuela fanned 16 Gold Sox earlier to move within three games of the Cubs and Sox.

The late season drama continues tonight with Manager Randy Hundley hanging his hopes on Vinny Valentini, 1-5, while Jim Saul will start Rick Steirer, 5-10, in the third game of a series that is all tied up.

Small got relief help, strong relief help, from Herlan Segelke in the ninth, who picked up his ninth save, leaving after Daryl Sconiers singled for his 179th hit of the season, an El Paso record. The South San Francisco came in to get Brian Harper on a double play grounder to Owen at short and then whiffed Brandt Humphry to nail down Semall's ninth win of the season.

"I've done a lot better in relief than as a starter," understated Herman. In his last eight games, he has compiled an earned-run-average of 1.53 over 17 2/3 innings, notched a win and saved four games.

As for Semall, it was a case of welcome home. "Yes, I guess I was back in the groove tonight," he admitted after giving up only six hits in the first eight innings, "that nine-day layoff didn't do me any good," he added referring to his vacation with the Chicago Cubs.

While most pitchers shudder at the thought of pitching in windy Cubs Stadium, not Semall. "I'll pitch in this park any time," exuding the kind of confidence it takes to be successful here.

"DEFINITELY, a big play," said Hundley of Owen's steal. "The ball was there, but I think the fielder thought he would slide into the tag."

Instead, "I slid around it. It was a good throw," Owen added.

Martin, who had opened the game with a triple and then languished uncourted on third base, followed with the double off Brown, who slipped to 14-11 despite a complete game nine-hitter.

El Paso got to Semall in the first when Adams singled, stole second, took third on the overthrow and scored on a hit by Mike Bishop. The Cubs tied it in the second as Randy La Vigne singled, J.W. Mitchell double into the left field corner for the rbi and then took third as the throw on Owen's bunt was too late. Mike Shepston then singled and after a Martin sacrifice, Owen scored on an infield out by Fletcher.

El Paso, officially and mathematically exiled from the second half race with this defeat, tied it in the fourth. Tom Brunansky walked, Bishop singled and then Sconiers broke the Diablos hit record with a single, scoring Bruno from second. A wild pitch then let Bishop score for a 3-3 game.

Cardinal lineman out

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Starting right guard Terry Steve is expected to be lost for the season after suffering cartilage damage in the left knee, the St. Louis Cardinals said Friday.

Third-year veteran George Collins will take over Steve's right guard position.

Steve will be operated on Monday, said Dr. James Ellsasser, team physician.

THE ANNUAL MEETING features some fierce collisions and the players become involved with all the enthusiasm of a regular season game.

"This isn't an exhibition game for Houston," said Cowboys cornerback Aaron Mitchell. "The Oilers always get up for us because they feel they have something to prove. And so do we."

"I know I personally look forward to playing someone who is the caliber of Campbell."

The oddsmakers rate the Cowboys a two-point favorite.

AMONG THE 62,000 fans who will jam Texas Stadium for the annual rivalry will be numerous Oilers fans with their "Luv Ya Blue" placards and Cowboys fans waving their blue and white bandannas.

The series began in 1967 and the Cowboys, who tried for years to maintain an image as the "Texas" team, always have received a stern test from the Oilers.

The Cowboys have managed a 9-4 record in these heated preseason matchups and stand 2-1 in the regular season, with a loss last week to the Oilers on Thanksgiving Day.

The game has been sold out for weeks. In fact, it's the earliest preseason sellout in the Cowboys' 20-year history.

The game will feature replacement quarterbacks who now are guiding the Cowboys and Oilers under new leadership.

Kenny Stabler, who was traded by Oakland to the Oilers in exchange for Dan Pastorini, already has won the hearts of Houston fans and was particularly effective last week in a victory over New Orleans.

Danny White is No. 1 now for Dallas since Roger Staubach retired and was very crisp in the Cowboys' victory last Saturday night over Los Angeles.

And each team has highly glamorized running backs. The Oilers have Earl Campbell, a unanimous All-Pro who gained more than 1,600 yards rushing last year, and the Cowboys have Tony Dorsett, who has gained more than 1,000 yards in each of his three years as a pro.

Dorsett only this week settled a contract dispute with the Cowboys after threatening to walk out of camp. A happy Dorsett is a must to Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who is gearing his entire offense around the former Heisman Trophy winner now that Staubach is gone.

Stalder captures five-stroke lead in World Series

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — With the two biggest guns in the game—Tom Watson and Jack Nicklaus—falling back, Craig Stadler rode his no-bogey, 2-under-par 68 into the second round lead Friday in the 400,000 World Series of Golf.

Stadler, a chunky guy called "the Walrus" by his fellow touring pros, put together a 36-hole total of 135, five under par for two trips over the rain-soaked Firestone Country Club course.

The course was so saturated by heavy, overnight rains that officials were forced to allow the elite, international field of 32 to lift, clean and place balls in the fairway.

"It's not something we like to do, but it was either tee it up or play a double round on Sunday," said Clyde Mangum, deputy commissioner of the PGA Tour.

But the ability to get their hands on the ball in the fairways didn't seem to help Watson and Nicklaus.

Watson, a 2-stroke leader at the start of the day, struggled to a 75 that left the British Open champion at 140, five strokes back. Nicklaus, winner of the U.S. Open and the PGA, also was at par 140 after a 72.

"I drove the ball in the rough four times and I played those four holes over par," Nicklaus said. "Obviously, that hurt. I just didn't save anything."

And, he said, he tends to "lose fire" when the field is allowed to lift, clean and place the ball.

"I'm not criticizing our field staff for the decision," he said. "I just don't like to put my hands on the ball. I prefer to play golf."

Jerry Pate, who tied the tournament record with a 6-under-par 64 that included a gaudy array of nine "3's" on his card, and Ben Crenshaw shared second at 136, a single shot back of Stadler. Crenshaw had a 69.

Ray Floyd and defending champion Lon Hinkle were another stroke behind at 137. Floyd had a solid 68 and Hinkle a 69.

Lee Trevino, who is challenging Watson for the Vardon Trophy, which goes to the man with the low stroke average for the year, and skinny Mike Reid were at 138. Trevino had another 69 and Reid matched par 70 in the mild, hazy, cloudy weather.

Stadler, winner of the Bob Hope Desert Classic and the Greensboro Open, was characteristically low-key about his performance.

"I didn't make many mistakes," he said. "And when you don't make any bogeys on this golf course, you're gonna have a low score."

He reached the par-5 second hole in two and 2-putted for birdie, dropped a 20-footer for birdie on the ninth and parred the other 16. He missed only two greens, the 12th and 14th, but but saved par there.

Crenshaw birdied the second and third holes and, at that point, had the lead alone. But he bogeyed the next two and had to rally with a 34 on the back to stay close.

Pate hit short irons close to the hole for four of his birdies, made a couple of long putts for two others and highlighted his round by holing a 30-yard sand shot for birdie.

Motocross event set by Westside Optimists

The Westside Optimist Club will hold a motorcycle motocross event tonight at 7:15 p.m. at their course two miles west on Highway 80.

Practice begins at 6 p.m. and the schedule will feature all classes from mini bike competition to the open division riders. The admission fee is $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Cowboys, Oilers set to battle for Texas title

By The Associated Press

It hasn't quite come to this yet, but the way things are going in Dallas, Cowboy Coach Tom Landry might have to ask for volunteers to man his defensive secondary.

Landry hopes to stop counting casualties when the Cowboys face the Houston Oilers tonight night in a National Football League preseason game that carries with it bragging rights for the state of Texas. Kickoff is set for 8 p.m. on national television.

ELSEWHERE ON TODAY'S heavy exhibition schedule, Atlanta plays at San Diego, Cincinnati visits Tampa Bay, Cleveland is at Chicago, Green Bay plays at Buffalo, Kansas City goes against St. Louis, Los Angeles is at Denver, Minnesota visits Miami, New Orleans plays at Detroit, the New York Jets are at Pittsburgh, Oakland goes to Washington and Seattle is at San Francisco.

In Sunday's only game, Philadelphia plays at New England. Dallas' secondary problems started a year ago when strong safety Charlie Waters tore up his right knee and was sidelined all season. Landry welcomed Waters back this year, especially after free safety Cliff Harris announced his retirement.

Now Waters is limping around again after twisting the same knee a week ago in Dallas' second straight preseason victory. The injury is not believed serious, and he is expected to play against the Oilers, 1-1.

HARRIS' REPLACEMENT at the other safety spot is Randy Hughes, but he dislocated his right shoulder for the second time this month and the Cowboys are considering surgery which could sideline him from eight to 12 weeks.

"The question is whether he's going to be part of your team or whether you operate on him," said Landry. "He may go five or six games or he may go the whole way without it happening again."

The other important geographical showdown tonight night is the Kansas City-St. Louis contest. The Chiefs own the NFL's most impressive exhibition record with two victories in which they've scored 66 points and allowed only 10. St. Louis is 1-1 under new Coach Jim Hanifan.

Besides the Cowboys and Chiefs, other NFL unbeaten heading into the third week of preseason games are Philadelphia, Washington and San Francisco in the NFC and Miami and Pittsburgh in the AFC. Buffalo, the New York Jets, Cleveland and San Diego in the AFC and Green Bay, Atlanta and Los Angeles in the NFC are seeking their first victories.

The Houston-Dallas game is no mere National Football League exhibition. It's for 1980 bragging rights in Texas for two factions of the NFL's most devoted fans.

AMONG THE 62,000 fans who will jam Texas Stadium for the annual rivalry will be numerous Oilers fans with their "Luv Ya Blue" placards and Cowboys fans waving their blue and white bandannas.

The series began in 1967 and the Cowboys, who tried for years to maintain an image as the "Texas" team, always have received a stern test from the Oilers.

Akers happy with Longhorns Defensive unit needing to be rebuilt

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Coach Fred Akers of Texas said Friday he is "happy" with the Longhorn offense and, although the defense must be rebuilt, the linebacking corps is the best he has had at Texas.

"We're not as good as we're capable of being by mid-season. We're not a top football team right now, but we can be," Akers told sports writers on a tour of Southwest Conference schools.

AKERS SAID his squad, generally ranked third or fourth in the SWC, reported for fall practice in "excellent condition, except for one or two guys."

He said this may be a result of the nationally televised opener against Arkansas on Sept. 1, the first major college football game of the 1980s.

"Our workouts have been excellent," said Akers. "Personnel-wise, we're not very deep, except at running back."

"I'm confident our offense will be noticeably improved," he said.

Told that he sounded "goose-bump happy" over the offense, Akers responded, "I am happy with our offense. We only have one senior but they have been playing together for two years. We're at a point where we expect them to really get it done. They've been working their rear ends off and are looking good."

THE KEY is quarterback, and Akers said junior Donnie Little is No. 1, ahead of sophomore Rick McIvor.

"Both have unusual ability that can be used," said Akers. "Those two really try to outdo each other."

Asked why Little was first team, Akers said, "I don't have to flip a coin." He added that they were evaluated after each practice.

Akers touted tight end Lawrence Sampleton, 6-foot-6 and 225 pounds, as "the best tight end in the conference. I wouldn't trade him for anyone."

Offensive tackle Terry Tausch, 6-4 and 281, and linebacker Robin Sendlein, 6-5 and 224, have made some pre-season All-American teams, and Akers noted that halfback A.J. "Jam" Jones appears healthy and stronger after a knee-injury last November.

JONES RAN for 918 yards in eight games last season, and Akers said he could be "one of the better backs in the country. He's passed every test so far (in workouts)."

At the other halfback is Rodney Tate, who has gained 17 pounds to 192 and "has not lost any speed," said Akers.

Jones guides Colts to 37-20 win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bert Jones tossed four touchdown passes, two to rookie wide receiver Ray Butler, leading the Baltimore Colts to a 37-20 victory over the New York Giants in a National Football League exhibition game Friday night.

Jones, healthy again after playing only seven games in the past two seasons because of shoulder injuries, completed 14 of 20 attempts for 323 yards in less than three quarters of action.

Baltimore, now 2-1 in preseason play, rolled to a 17-0 first-quarter lead as Jones completed a 12-yard scoring

Akers. "He's our fastest back." Akers said the 1979 Texas defense was "the best I've seen ... and we're in a rebuilding stage, especially on defense, but I do think the defense will be good."

BRUCE SCHOLTZ, 6-6 and 233, and Doug Shankle, 6-0 and 220, join Sendlein at linebacker, and Akers also singled out tackles Kenneth Sims and Steve Massey. They played last year behind Steve McMichael and Bill Ackler, who were drafted by the pros.

Vance Bedford is the lone experienced defensive back, but Bobby Johnson and Mike Hatchett, the brothers of two players chosen by the pros in the first round, also are listed as starters.

"They've been waiting their turn and want a chance to play football," said Akers.

New York, now 1-2, scored its first touchdown of the exhibition season on a 14-yard pass from Phil Simms to Billy Taylor late in the second quarter. But the Colts scored on each of their third-period possessions to go ahead 37-13.

Jones completed TD passes of 55 yards to Brian DeRoo and seven yards to Butler before Greg Landry took over and tossed a 39-yarder to DePoo.

Tony Dorsett grabs pass in practice

Tony Dorsett completely satisfied with contract

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett says he is "completely satisfied" with his new contract agreement, reached with a new agent and an all-night negotiating session.

"Now I'm happy. Management's happy. We can concentrate on winning the next two preseason games and opening the season in Washington," Dorsett said. "...I started my career here, and it looks like I'll end it here."

Dorsett had sought a salary increase for the 1980 and 1981 seasons remaining on his original contract plus a five-year extension. The contract extension was hammered out by sports agent Mike Trope and Cowboys' Vice President Gil Brandt at 4 a.m. Thursday.

A confidentiality clause prevented the parties from discussing terms of an extension, but "look at what Tony was requesting and you pretty well know" the terms, Trope said. The agent earlier had said Dorsett would earn between $300,000 and $500,000 annually, in line with some other National Football League running backs.

Pittsburgh attorney Steve Sokol, who was replaced by Trope, had revealed Dorsett was to earn $230,000 in 1980 — $130,000 of which was in deferred payments.

Brandt said the new agreement is "primarily an extension of his contract and the moving around of some money."

"I'm glad it's over," Dorsett said. "It's something that could have been resolved without being a public issue. But it happened that way, unfortunately."

"...There probably are guys making more money, but I'm happy with the money I'm getting. I wasn't trying to be the highest paid player in the NFL."

Trope said Dorsett and Sokol had only a verbal agreement that the attorney was to act as Dorsett's agent. Dorsett then put in writing that Trope was empowered to negotiate in his behalf.

"Tony advised us by letter that Trope was doing his negotiating," Brandt said. "We never received anything from Tony saying Sokol was representing him."

Trope also leveled some criticism at Sokol: "You don't have to blackmail and brainwash people. What we wound up with was a rational negotiation rather than allowing someone to be a stool of a publicity hound who shot first and asked questions later."

Coach Tom Landry called the settlement "about the best thing that could have happened... I think Tony got caught in a little thing that was not too good. He came out of it, though, and that's what is important."

All that is left for Dorsett to decide is whether the agent's commission should be given to Trope or Sokol.

But Trope said Dorsett could donate to his favorite charity as far as he was concerned because the "experience for me was gratifying enough for moral purposes."

Astros topple Cubs in 12th

HOUSTON (AP) — Cesar Cedeno and came home on Alan Ashby's infield out.

The Cubs went ahead 2-1 in the sixth with the aid of two Houston errors. Buckner singled with one out and moved to second when Cliff Johnson reached on an Enos Cabell error. Craig Reynolds then mishandled a Scott Thompson grounder to load the bases and Jerry Martin's infield hit scored Buckner.

Houston got to Chicago's ace reliever Bruce Sutter for one run in the eighth. Morgan led off with a walk and moved to third on a single by Cabell and scored on an infield hit by Cruz.

Houston broke the old Volunteer 500 mark of 110.958 mph set in 1978 over the high-banked Bristol International Raceway track by Lennie Pond, but fell short of the track mark of 111.688 he set himself in qualifying last spring for the South-eastern 500.

The Friday night pole victory left Yarborough only two short of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing record for a season. The record of 12 was set in 1972 by Bobby Allison when he was driving for Junior Johnson, for whom Yarborough now drives.

Harry Gant of Taylorsville, N.C., was second at 110.702 mph, Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., third at 110.219 mph and Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn., fourth at 110.036 mph.

The first 10 qualifiers drove Chevrolets with Bobby Allison breaking the string by taking the 11th spot in a Ford.

Fifteen drivers qualified for the race tonight, with the other 15 starting to be determined this afternoon.

Taking the fifth through 10th spots were D.K. Ulrich of Harrisburg, N.C.; Benny Parsons of Ellettsville, N.C.; Dale Earnhardt of Kannapolis, N.C.; Terry Labonte of Corpus Christi, Texas; Ricky Rudd of Chesapeake, Va.; and Dave Marcis of Wausau, Wis.

Yarborough wins pole

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Cale Yarborough hit an event-record 110.958 mph Friday night as he won the pole position for tonight's Volunteer 500 Grand National stock car race—the 10th time this year he will start in the No.1 spot.

Yarborough broke the old Volunteer 500 mark of 110.958 mph set in 1978 over the high-banked Bristol International Raceway track by Lennie Pond, but fell short of the track mark of 111.688 he set himself in qualifying last spring for the South-eastern 500.

Horse ruled out of derby

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Denim N Diamonds was ruled ineligible for Sunday's $1-431,850 All-American Derby because a urine sample taken after her Aug. 15 time trial victory showed the presence of illegal medication, Ruidoso Downs officials said Friday.

Denim N Diamonds, a filly with career earnings over $156,000, won the sixth division of the Derby time trials and posted the third fastest qualifying time to the 440-yard finale for 3-year-old quarterhorses.

However, a report from the state racing chemist said the drug Sublimaze, or a derivative, was found in her post-race urine sample, track officials said.

The Ruidoso Downs stewards, upon receiving the report, withheld payment of first place money and suspended trainer H. Don Farris. His case was referred to the New Mexico State Racing Commission and all horses owned or trained by Farris were denied entry to the grounds, pending transfer to a trainer or trainers approved by the stewards.

Early Friday all of Farris' horses were entered under trainer Debra Branum.

The stewards' ruling also said Denim N Diamonds will be reinstated only upon written report from the track veterinarian that she is capable of racing without medication.

Denim N Diamonds would have been one of the early favorites for Sunday's race. She had set the fastest qualifying time to both the $222,150 Kansas Derby and $560,180 Rainbow Derby this summer only to finish second and third, respectively. Her career record is 8-3-1 in 14 starts.

Rangers split two

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Cecil Cooper drove in a pair of runs with a single and his second homer of the night as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Texas Rangers 8-3 for a split of their doubleheader Friday night.

Al Oliver went 4-for-5, driving in four runs and scoring twice in Texas' 12-6 victory in the opener.

Brewers starter Paul Mitchell, 4-2, won the second game over Doc Medich, 10-8. Reliever Dave Rajsich, 1-1, won the first game over Milwaukee starter Reggie Cleveland, 8-7.

Fourteen pitchers saw action in the two games and gave up a total of 58 hits. Texas had 17 hits in the first game and 13 in the second, while Milwaukee had 14 hits in both games.

Milwaukee took a 3-0 lead in the second inning of the first game, only to see two-run homers by Oliver and Jim Sundberg spur a Texas comeback.

The Brewers also scored early off Medich in the second game but held off Texas rallies in the sixth and seventh.

Robin Yount tripled and scored on Gorman Thomas' single for a 1-0

Indians top Royals, 4-1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Alan Bannister collected three hits and drove in two runs as the Cleveland Indians, aided by four Kansas City errors, defeated the Royals 4-1 Friday night.

It was only the eighth loss in 33 games for the Royals and marked the first time they have dropped two in a row since June 30-July 1.

George Brett singled in four at bats and his average slipped to .402.

Three Kansas City errors helped the Indians push ahead two runs in the fifth. Jorge Orta and Mike Hargrove singled but Orta was thrown out trying for third and Hargrove went to second on the throw.

Gary Alexander lifted a fly ball to right which Clint Hurdle dropped. Hargrove scored and catcher Darrell Porter was given an error when he dropped the ball as Hargrove rolled into him as Alexander took third.

Expos snap loss string

MONTREAL (AP) — Larry Parrish doubled home a pair of runs and Ron LeFlore, Andre Dawson and Warren Cromartie had other run-scoring hits in a five-run fourth inning as the Montreal Expos snapped a three-game losing streak with a 6-2 victory over the San Diego Padres Friday night.

The Expos coasted following their fourth-inning outburst on a seven-hitter by Fred Norman, 4-3, who walked three and struck out five. Montreal sent 10 men to the plate and chased starter Randy Jones, 5-13, in the fourth with its biggest inning since Aug. 10.

Chris Speier triggered the rally by leading off with a bunt single. After he was sacrificed to second by Norman, LeFlore delivered an RBI double to snap a 1-1 tie.

Rodney Scott, who stole four bases in the game to tie a club record, followed with a single ahead of Parrish's two-run double. Dawson greeted reliever Eric Rasmussen with a double to produce another run. Cromartie then brought in the fifth run of the inning when he singled to score Dawson.

The Padres had taken a 1-0 lead in the first. Luis Salazar and Dave Winfield singled before moving up a base on Willie Montanez's infield out. Norman then batted, allowing Salazar to score.

Montreal tied the score in the second when Cromartie doubled and came home on Speier's single.

Winfield's 16th homer of the season provided the Expos with their final run in the ninth.

Mets down Dodgers

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray Burris and Neil Allen combined on a nine-hitter and Claudiell Washington keyed a two-run sixth inning to help the New York Mets to a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night.

Burris, 7-7, scattered four hits over the first six innings before allowing both Dodger runs in the seventh. Allen allowed one hit in the last two innings and recorded his 22nd save.

Washington's RBI single scored Bill Almon, who opened the sixth with a single off Bob Welch, 10-9. After Almon's hit, Welch walked Lee Mazzilli and Washington singled, sending Mazzilli to third. Steve Henderson grounded into a double play as Mazzilli scored.

New York had taken a 1-0 lead in the second when Henderson singled, moved to third on Mike Jorgensen's single and scored when Alex Trevino grounded out.

The Mets bunched singles by Almon, Washington and Steve Henderson for their final run in the eighth.

Pirates win

CINCINNATI (AP) — John Milner drove in three runs with a homer and double as the Pittsburgh Pirates snapped a four-game losing streak with a 4-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Friday night.

Winner Don Robinson, 5-6, gave up the Reds' runs on Ken Griffey's two-run homer in the eighth, when he needed Kent Tekulve's relief help. Tekulve gained his 19th save.

The Pirates threatened to break the game open in the second inning after Bill Madlock reached first after being hit with a pitch by starter Paul Moskau, 8-5.

Stroke brings new attitude

By JOE STEIN
Copley News Service

In the aftermath of J.R. Richard's tragic stroke, there has been a split in the media.

On one side are the writers and broadcasters who have been walloping in guilt for ever having doubted the Houston Astro right-hander when he said he was feeling poorly.

Then there are the finger-pointers, the righteously indignant members of the media who, in perfect hindsight, can't understand why Richard's word ever was questioned.

Thomas Boswell of The Washington Post captured the mood when he wrote: "Shamefaced apologies began to flow into the Astro offices. ... Both a radio and a TV sportscaster made public retractions on their shows for previous criticisms. 'A lot of people are eating crow,' said Beverly Ray in the Houston information office. A Post headline screamed: 'Malingering' Richard Vindicated, but at Cost of Stroke."

A friend and teammate, Astro third baseman Enos Cabell, is incensed over the treatment Richard received: "People did J.R. so bad that it's ridiculous.

"But the world will remember all the lies that were written and said about him. The same people who cut him up so bad and said he is joking or having a nervous breakdown. ... It's like they're down in a hole today with their shoulders hunched so low that you can barely see them."

Before Richard suffered the stroke, several factors led to the widespread feeling that his problems were imaginary or motivated by a desire to renegotiate his contract.

First of all, Richard's behavior was so erratic that even members of the Astro family doubted him when he complained that his arm kept going dead. The team doctor, Harold Brelsford, who couldn't find anything to substantiate the pitcher's laments, said he felt the problem was emotional to at least some extent.

Immediately, when Richard began to pull himself out of games, complaining of a mysterious ailment, suspicions grew that the 6-8 right-hander was trying to force Houston management to bring his contract into line with Ryan's.

That is the rule, not the exception, these days in pro sports. Not only are free agents such as Ryan commanding fat contracts, athletes who already are signed up to long-term deals are demanding that their bosses sweeten the pot. You see it in football (the Los Angeles Ram walkout, for instance), basketball (remember George Gervin and Lloyd Free?) and baseball, of course.

The times, more than anything else, were the reason it was thought that Richard was crying wolf.

We are living in an era when an athlete's word — his signature on a contract — has come to have little meaning.

To say one is sad isn't nearly enough. Richard was wronged. He was an innocent bystander, a seemingly indestructible giant of a man lumped in with the athletes who have played the renegotiation game. How frustrating it must have been for him when he couldn't make people believe him.

The next time an athlete complains of mysterious physical problems, we won't automatically jump to the conclusion that he is faking. We will think of J.R. Richard.

But we still will have our doubts.

Yankees recall Doyle

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees recalled infielder Brian Doyle from their Columbus farm team Friday and placed utility infielder Fred Stanley on the 15-day disabled list, the American League club announced.

It is the third time this season that Doyle has been on the Yankees' roster. In his previous two stints, he batted .208 in 17 games with five runs batted in and hit his first and only major league home run.

In three stints in Columbus, Doyle hit .225 in 47 games.

Stanley sprained his left knee in a game Aug. 19. He was placed on the disabled list effective Aug. 20.

Daniel, Post sharing lead in LPGA play

DENVER (AP) — Lanky Beth Daniel fired a 6-under-par 66 Friday, tying veteran Sandra Post for the second-round lead at the $150,000 Denver Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Columbine Country Club.

Post shot a second-round 67, and both golfers had 7-under totals of 137. Jane Blalock was 2 strokes off the lead after shooting a 69 Friday.

Patty Sheehan, 23, of Reno, Nev., who qualified for the LPGA tour just last month, carded her second straight 2-under 70 and was another shot back at 140.

Pat Bradley, who shared the first-round lead with two other golfers at 68, went to 141 after slipping to a 73 Friday.

The other first-round leaders, Mary Dwyer and newcomer Gall Hirata, also encountered problems on Columbine's 6,467-yard layout. Dwyer at one time was 7-under for the tournament, but lost five shots to par on the back side and skidded to a 2-over 74 for a 142 total.

Hirata suffered through a 77 and was at 151.

Daniel, of Seabrook Island, S.C., blistered the front side, registering six birdies, including four in a row, for a 30. She equaled par on the back side for her 66.

"I feel like I turned a 62 into a 66," Daniel said afterward. "I'm pleased, but I could have had a super round. I had a lot of opportunities."

Last year's LPGA Rookie of the Year said her putter "went stone cold on the back nine," where she played every hole in regulation except the par-5 13th, where she three putted from the fringe.

Post, a 13-year veteran, got started with an eagle-3 on the second hole, hitting a 4-wood just 3 feet from the hole.

"The greens were holding much better today," she said, "and that made it easier than yesterday."

Blalock was 6-under at one stage but, unnerved by a threat of a slow-play penalty, lost her tempo near the end and bogeyed 17. "My timing got a little quick," she said. "We were behind the group ahead of us and I got a little paranoid."

Donna Caponi Young, the tour's leading money winner, added a 3-under 69 to her opening-round 73 for a 142 total.

Swan on disabled list

NEW YORK (AP) — Right-hander Craig Swan, who signed a multi-million dollar contract with the New York Mets last winter, will be lost for the balance of the season, the club said Friday.

Swan, 5-9, with a 3.29 earned run average for his 21 starts this season, suffered a slight tear in the tendon and the capsule in the back of his right shoulder. He becomes the sixth Mets player on the disabled list.

Dr. James Parkes, team physician, said the defect was so small that it was only detectable by X-ray after a period of exercise. Swan will be sent to Los Angeles next week for an examination by Dr. Frank Jobe, a noted orthopedic specialist.

"At this time I do not anticipate surgery," said Dr. Parkes. "We plan to take the conservative approach and see if the tear will heal by itself."

Mets Manager Joe Torre said he did not anticipate any roster moves.

ABC hits Monday night grid jackpot

An AP Sports Analysis
By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

The National Football League may be attempting to achieve parity with balanced schedules for its teams, but there is no such equality for its three television networks. Looking toward the 1980 season, opening in two weeks, ABC has the strongest schedule, CBS the weakest with NBC somewhere in the middle.

Strong teams make strong schedules, and in 19 of ABC's 20 prime-time games, at least one of the teams made the playoffs last year. Only the Oakland-Seattle matchup Nov. 17 involves two non-playoff teams, and that game, on paper, certainly isn't a clincher.

Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh is on ABC three times, and so are Houston, Dallas, San Diego, Los Angeles, Miami, New England, Denver and Oakland. The 11th season of the popular Monday night series — can you imagine an entertainment show holding down the same slot for so long? — kicks off with arch-rivals Dallas and Washington Sept. 8.

THERE ARE no late-season slouches, either. ABC's final five games are Denver-Oakland Dec. 1; Pittsburgh-Houston Dec. 4; New England-Miami Dec. 8; Dallas-Los Angeles Dec. 15, and Pittsburgh-San Diego Dec. 22.

ABC says it deserves being dealt all these aces after suffering through several jokers last season and dropping a bit in the ratings. ABC pays more money to the NFL than the other two networks for its exclusive prime-time exposure and it doesn't expect to have to pump up lifeless games.

And when ABC gets a deadbeat game, it really hurts because prime-time competition on the other two networks is stiff. No matter what you think of Don Meredith's singing, Frank Gifford's looks or Howard Cosell's vocabulary, you would be hard-pressed to stay tuned during a run-away game or poorly played contest between a pair of dog teams.

"In their hearts, I think they knew they owed us one," said Chet Forte, director of "Monday Night Football" who did a lot of bad-mouthing of ABC's 1979 schedule.

THE NFL doesn't admit to playing catch-up with ABC's schedule, nor to tossing ABC a negotiating bone for the next TV contract when the current four-year agreement expires following the 1981 season.

"On paper, ABC's 1980 schedule is better than '79 and close to '78," said Val Pinchbeck, the NFL's director of broadcasting. "What we tried to do was keep in mind the fact that we can't make adjustments with Monday Night Football."

The NFL, which sent angry telegrams to CBS demanding it cease and desist this practice, says no such punitive frame of mind exists; CBS just got some bad bounces this year.

Caldwell takes commanding lead in Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Rex Caldwell matched his opening day performance and moved a step closer to his first PGA tour victory Friday with a 6-under-par second-round score of 66 to lead at the halfway mark of the $250,000 Buick Open at 12-under 132.

The sparkling effort by Caldwell, a 6-foot-2, 177-pound native of Everett, Wash. who now make his home in Tallahassee, Fla., gave him a commanding 5-stroke lead over Tom Weiskopf, the 1968 Buick Open champion, and Tom Kite, a two-time titlist on the PGA tour.

Caldwell, a six-year tour veteran who didn't start to play golf until his 14th birthday, had seven birdies and one bogey Friday, going out in 32 and carding a 34 on the back nine.

It was Caldwell's strongest showing since the 1979 PGA Championship at Oakland Hills, just a few miles from here.

"Today I kept working at it," Caldwell said, conceding he has a tendency to get lackadaisical when he's playing well. "If you're going to lead, lead by 100. It sure makes Sunday a lot easier."

"I thought that at the PGA last year I could just shoot par and win, but those other guys (David Graham, who defeated Ben Crenshaw in a playoff) forgot where they were and they said, 'See you later Rexy boy.'"

Despite his failure to win, Caldwell, 30, has managed a fair living on the tour. He has been among the top 50 PGA money-winners the last two years and was 65th on the list before the Buick Open with $46,763 in earnings this year.

Barney Thompson, who shared the first-round lead with Caldwell, fired an even-par 72 over the 7,001-yard Warwick Hills course Friday to fall into a three-way tie at 6-under 138 with Mark Lye and Wayne Levi.

Veteran Tom Purtzer tied a Buick Open record Friday with a 7-under 65 and joined four other golfers at 139 or 5-under for the tournament.

Seventy-seven players from the original field of 156 golfers remained when the field was cut at 1-over 145 for the final two rounds.

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors crushed Ivan Lendl, and third-seeded Harold Solomon defeated Roscoe Tanner in quarter-final matches Friday in the $200,000 Association of Tennis Professionals Championships.

Connors defeated Lendl, who was seeded fifth, 6-2, 6-0, and said he felt he was getting stronger with every match. In today's semifinal, he'll face Francisco Gonzalez, who ousted Christophe Rager-Vassel in 6-3, 6-3.

"I was hitting the ball very well and moving the ball around very well and didn't really give him a chance to get into the kind of rhythm, the kind of game that he enjoys," Connors said.

"I'm hitting the ball better and better every match. I probably moved better than I have all week, which got me to the ball a little faster."

Connors said he was playing well because he was concentrating on this tournament and not next week's U.S. Open.

"I don't even want to know what's going on next week because of the fact I'm here, not there," Connors said. "Everybody wants to play well next week, but what they forget is that they're playing a tournament here."

Solomon, a 6-4, 6-3 winner, said he was better able to handle the serve from the sixth-seeded Tanner because of his earlier matches.

"Tim Gullikson served very well at the beginning when I played him, then Victor Amaya," Solomon said. "It's gotten me ready, gotten me moving very well. It sharpens your reflexes — you've got to move, got to react."

While Tanner was erratic with his serve, Solomon was not. He said he felt he was hitting all his shots especially well.

"Everything was going well; I couldn't think of anything that wasn't right," Solomon said. "I couldn't imagine hitting the ball too much better. It's just a matter of maintaining it."

Chisox are sold to businessman

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox's board of directors agreed to sell the American League team Friday to Ohio businessman Edward J. DeBartolo Sr. and his daughter, a team spokesman said.

Andy McKenna, one of the team's 12 directors and chairman of the committee that evaluated offers for the franchise, said the sale price was $20 million.

The sale will be subject to approval by the team's stockholders. A meeting to consider the sale has not been scheduled, McKenna said.

McKenna said the vote in favor of selling the team was unanimous.

"We will expend every effort to revive the hopes of Chicagoans in redeveloping a vital, pennant-seeking baseball team," the announcement said.

DeBartolo said he frequently that he hopes to put a major league baseball team into the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans — a $163 million stadium that is without a permanent tenant except for football seasons.

His announcement, however, indicated that he intends to leave the White Sox in Chicago.

No details of the sale were included in the four-paragraph announcement. It said, simply, that he and Marie Denise DeBartolo York of Youngstown, Ohio, "announce that they have been successful in their negotiations to obtain the Chicago White Sox of the American League."

Mrs. York is DeBartolo's daughter.

DeBartolo was in Shreveport to review the invitation list for the $500,000 Super Derby he has scheduled at Louisiana Downs for Oct. 18. He is hoping to attract the nation's top 3-year-old thoroughbred race horses to the race.

Three days ago, one of the nation's largest stockbrokers bowed out of the bidding for the Sox.

Bill Clark, a spokesman for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, said the firm decided Monday that it would not bid for the American League team.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported Wednesday that DeBartolo had been outbid by Charles Dolan of New York, a cable television executive.

The newspaper said the price was unknown but was believed to be in the neighborhood of $20 million.

Vince Bartimo, president and general manager at Louisiana Downs, said he expected approval of the sale by the American League to be all but automatic.

Ogilvie, Bear in agreement

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Major Ogilvie is in complete agreement with Coach Bear Bryant's opinion that it will take a miracle for Alabama to win a third consecutive national collegiate football championship.

"Yes, I agree with him," Ogilvie said Friday as the Southeastern Conference Skywriters Tour made its stop at the Crimson Tide's camp.

"We've just got so much to do," Ogilvie said. "Everything looks stacked up against us."

Ogilvie, concerned over the Tide's loss of nine starting offensive performers from last year, offered last spring to relinquish his scholarship so that Bryant might be able to sign another player.

"I had saved up some money and just thought I should do it," Ogilvie said. "He just said he appreciated it, but he doubted he'd take me up on it."

Bryant recently said the gesture almost made him cry. "That never happened to me before," Bryant said Friday. "I doubt if it's ever happened before in college football. Of course I said no."

Ogilvie, a 187-pound senior halfback, led the Crimson Tide in rushing last year with 512 yards, averaging just over five yards per carry.

He was a second-team All-SEC performer, and was named the most valuable player in the Sugar Bowl after leading the Tide to victory over Arkansas, one that gave Alabama its second national title in a row.

Although Alabama has played in three straight Sugar Bowls, Ogilvie says he doesn't care where the team makes its post-season appearance "just as long as we're playing for the national title."

He said he isn't concerned about preseason ratings, but "I'd rather
