Soviets defy Japanese Nuclear sub hazard protested

TOKYO (AP) — Soviet ships defied Japanese authorities Saturday and towed a disabled nuclear submarine through Japan's territorial waters. Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki called the violation an "unfriendly act" and said a strong protest would be lodged with the Soviets.

Japan, whose relations with the Soviets already are strained, had ordered the submarine to stay clear of its claimed 12-mile limit unless the Soviets could assure them the sub was neither leaking radioactive material nor carrying nuclear weapons.

Tests by specially-equipped Japanese ships did not detect unusual amounts of radiation in the sub's wake. But with the memory of the nuclear devastation of Hiroshima and Nagasaki still very much alive, the Japanese remain extremely wary of all nuclear weaponry.

A Soviet Embassy official told the Foreign Ministry in Tokyo on Saturday there was no danger of a radiation leak and asked permission for the submarine to pass through a 20-mile-wide strait in the Ryukyu island chain.

Japanese officials, evidently unsatisfied by the explanation, refused.

But a few hours later the submarine and its escorting vessels, including a sub tender and a tanker, passed through the channel between Okinoerabu and Yoron islands, ignoring warnings from a Japanese patrol boat.

The Maritime Safety Agency, Japan's coast guard, said the Soviets informed the patrol boat "the Japanese government approved the Soviet passage through the Japanese waters," and refused to change course.

A Japanese destroyer, several patrol boats including one equipped with radiation detection gear, and a patrol plane watched the Soviet ships but took no action.

Polish officials agree to talks with strikers

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — In a dramatic concession, Polish government negotiators held face-to-face talks Saturday night with leaders of striking workers in their strike headquarters at the huge Lenin shipyard.

A communique issued at the end of 2½ hours of negotiations in the shipyard assembly hall said both sides agreed to meet again, but no time was set. Leaders of the strike that involves some 150,000 workers along the Baltic coast said the revolt would continue.

The often heated discussions were carried by loudspeakers to about 5,000 strikers milling around the shipyard entrance.

Arguing their positions were First Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski, chief negotiator for the government Communist Party leader Edward Gierek, and Leszek Walesa, chairman of the Inter-Factory Strike Committee.

At one point it appeared the talks might collapse when Walesa accused the government of breaking "promises" to restore normal communications between the strike-paralyzed zone and the rest of the country. The government has disrupted telephone and telecommunication in the area and the state-controlled news media has carried only cautious accounts of the crisis.

Jagielski hinted state radio might carry more strike news, but Walesa replied, "All Poland must hear this."

In another conciliatory move, the deputy premier said, "I understand that our trade unions don't suit the workers, that the workers should have more influence." But that fell far short of the strikers' demand for free trade unions to replace the state-controlled unions.

Referring to the demands for pay raises and more meat, Jagielski said economic arrangements would be made, "but this takes time." He rejected as "unrealistic" the demand for monthly raises of about $67. The average worker now gets about $170 per month.

The government will import more meat, he said, but exports of top-quality Polish meats must remain high to earn desperately needed hard currency.

Another government negotiator, provincial Communist Party Secretary Tadeusz Fiszbach, urged the strikers to restore bus service "so the children may go to school."

Walesa told him there would be no end to the strikes until the government meets all of the 21 demands.

It was the first direct confrontation between the government and strikers, and Jagielski encountered stony silence when he walked into the assembly hall at the shipyard that has been the nerve center for the strikers since Aug. 14.

Walesa received cheers from about 800 strikers gathered in the hall.

"Leszek, Leszek," the workers roared for the 36-year-old father of six who has been thrust into the leadership of the revolt that climaxed weeks of unrest over rising meat prices, low wages, and erratic food supplies.

More than 400 factories and other firms have been closed by the strikes.

Jagielski had held a preliminary meeting Friday night with a three-man delegation from the Inter-Factory Strike Committee.

Chicago Polish-Americans support strikers

CHICAGO (AP) — Up to 10,000 cheering members of the city's Polish American community jammed into a downtown plaza Saturday, waving red and white Polish flags and singing the country's national anthem in support of striking workers in Poland.

Nearby, about 500 demonstrators kept vigil at the Polish consulate, carrying signs supporting the strike. Chicago has a Polish population of 600,000 — the largest outside of Poland.

In New York City on Saturday, 400 demonstrators waved anti-Soviet placards in front of the Polish consulate to demonstrate support for the striking workers. "Poland Citadel of Christianity," "Better Dead Than Red" and "Lithuanians Support Poland," read some of the signs.

U.S. Senate candidate Bess Myerson, a Democrat, said in New York that she had sent a telegram to U.S. Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie calling on the United States to demand release of jailed Polish strikers and to condemn Poland's "violations of human rights, guaranteed by the Helsinki accords.

Thousands of workers in Poland have stayed away from their jobs seeking wage increases, free trade unions and rollback of government-imposed price increases.

At the Chicago rally, Stephen Aiello, President Carter's special assistant for ethnic affairs, read a statement from Muskie expressing U.S. concern for the Polish workers.

"We are looking forward to a resolution of the problem based on the president's firm belief in human rights... without any outside interference by any power," Aiello said.

Aloysius A. Mazewski, president of the Polish American Congress, said the strike is not a matter of concern only to Polish people.

"The struggle for a measure of human rights in Poland... is not an internal matter," he said. And when those rights are violated, he added, those who have abused them should be "called to account before world opinion."

Chicago Mayor Jane M. Byrne, Illinois Gov. James Thompson, U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., labor leaders and members of various ethnic groups also gave messages of support for Polish workers.

Voice of America said it would broadcast news of the rally to Poland and the rest of Eastern Europe.

U.S. officials have charged that the Soviet Union recently resumed jamming broadcasts of VOA and Radio Free Europe to conceal news of the strike from Eastern bloc listeners.

Percy said the Polish people have certain rights that are being denied — "They should have a right to have free labor unions," he said.

County to hold tax hearing Monday

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County's proposed $6.68 million budget for 1980-81 will be reviewed by the commissioners' court when it meets at 1:30 p.m. Monday in a public hearing in the courtroom on the second floor of the courthouse.

The proposed budget is a 17 percent increase over 1980's estimated budget of $5.69 million. If it meets the commissioners' approval, the budget will be adopted at Monday's meeting.

The commissioners also are to set the 1981 tax rate at 95 cents per $100 valuation based on 32 percent of the fair market value.

"Nobody is getting ripped off," said Frances Shuffield, chief deputy clerk in the tax assessor-collector's office. "It shouldn't alter their (taxpayers') tax bill one iota."

The tax rate will be on par with that of 1980.

Except for new and improved buildings, businesses and residences and for a sharp rise in mineral valuations, overall valuations — like county taxes — essentially will remain unchanged.

The increased budget is due to hikes in salaries and to inflation — spiraling costs in goods and services.

"At this budget hearing," County Judge Bill Ahders said in a notice, "the citizens of Midland County will have the right to provide written and oral comments and ask questions concerning the entire budget and the relationship of the use of Revenue Sharing Funds to the entire budget."

Highlights of the proposed budget include:

—Executive: The 1981 proposed budget for County Judge Bill Ahders' office is $61,613. Last year's budget was $51,403. The budget includes $35,- 392 for the judge's salary.

—Judicial: The proposed budget for the judiciary is about $1.05 million. Last year's budget approached $860,000. Included in the 1981 budget is the $37,500 salary for the judge of the county court-at-law; $18,480 salary for the constable; $23,510 in salary for each of the two justices of the peace; $30,128 for the county attorney; and $26,868 for the district clerk.

Proposed budget for district clerk's office is $230,037; the 1980 budget is $207,755. The county attorney's office budget is a proposed $151,566; the current budget is $119,635.

Salaries for the three district judges and the district attorney are paid by the state, though the county supplements those salaries. The district attorney's proposed budget for 1981 is $220,292; the current year's budget is an estimated $163,388.

—Law-enforcement: The sheriff's department 1981 budget of $1,009 million includes $792,068 in salaries, including $26,448 for the sheriff.

—Corrections: The 1981 budget for the jail operations is $208,140.

—Financial Aid: The county auditor's proposed budget is $86,262, including a $27,106 salary for the auditor. The office's 1980 budget is $79,160.

—Treasurer: The proposed budget here is $76,350, including a $27,588 salary for the treasurer. The 1980 budget is $55,302.

—County Clerk: This office's proposed budget is $365,372, including $28,188 for the county clerk's salary. The 1980 budget is $307,287.

—Tax Office: The tax assessor-collector's proposed budget is for $463,876; the current year's budget is pegged at $418,042. Suggested salary for the tax assessor-collector is $27,048.

—Road-and-Bridge: The proposed 1981 budget for this department is $1 million; the 1980 budget is $876,500. The proposed budget includes $19,550 in pay for each of the four commissioners.

—Library: Budget for the Midland County Public Library is $409,064, including $60,000 for books, $0,000 for periodicals, and $316,734 for salaries. The library 1980 budget is $423,781.

In their Monday budget hearing, the commissioners are to consider proposed uses of the $177,000 in Revenue Sharing funds. Uses include $145,300 for capital expenditures, including $5,000 for health and $140,300 for multi-purpose and general government; and $31,700 for welfare, including $11,700 for Meals-on-Wheels; $15,000 for ambulance service, and $5,000 for the elderly nutrition program.

Firm foreign policy

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH
HEARST JR.
Editor-in-Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

SAN FRANCISCO — Despite the shock it caused some professional politicians of both parties, Gov. Ronald Reagan's declaration that the Vietnam War was a "noble cause" and his call for a military realignment that would put us on par with the Soviets was the first rung in establishing a firm foreign policy. That is something we have been lacking for four years.

Many found it distasteful to bring the Vietnam issue out from under the rug where it has been hidden away for the last four years. After all, that war involved four administrations, two Republican and two Democratic — those of Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon — and its conclusion left us without a foreign policy.

It is nice to hear a clear and decisive voice — even if some of you disagree with Gov. Reagan's premise — instead of the waffling that has come from the White House and State Department since the Carter presidency began. I suspect that my disenchanted friend Cy Vance, who quit as secretary of state, would have a lot to say, if his professionalism did not keep him mute at this time.

Three-cent gas tax hike seen

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock says Texas legislators probably will be asked to add three cents per gallon to the state gasoline tax when they meet in January.

Texans now pay five cents a gallon tax, the lowest in the nation. Revenue from that tax has dropped as cars have become more efficient.

"I look for the Legislature to attempt to increase the gasoline tax. How much it will be, whether it will be one cent, two cents, or three cents, I don't know. But as a general rule Texas is about three cents lower than any other state in the country," Bullock said on State Capitol Dateline, a production of the Wendell Mayes Radio Stations.

He said a request for a three-cent hike seems likely.

Other state revenues have also dropped in recent months, but Bullock said Texas is still faring well.

"If you gauge the economy of Texas by the amount of tax money brought in, you find that Texas is in better shape than any other state in the country," Bullock said.

"Sales tax is a pretty good barometer of our economy. It has not taken a large dip as it has in other states. The last two months were 20 percent above what it was a year ago," he said.

Drops have been noticed in motor vehicle sales tax, with 49 new car dealers folding in the state this year. About one-third of the cars now sold in Texas are foreign-made, probably costing less than domestic cars and therefore bringing in less tax, according to the comptroller.

Utility tax income has also dropped as homes become more efficient.

"It's less tax money to the state yet it's to the good of the state," he said.

Bullock said the latest estimate shows the Legislature will have a $500 million state surplus to allocate when it meets in January, but that money might not go a long way.

"State employees have received the blessings of the governor on their pay increase. That's over $100 million right there. And teachers are very definitely going to get some pay raise. Then the governor says he wants to give back to the people a billion dollars in taxes. When you put your pencil to it, it just doesn't all add up," he said.

Bullock said he plans to expand his department's efforts to collect taxes from out-of-state companies that do business in Texas. The comptroller's office will open branches in Los Angeles, New York and Chicago in the coming months.

"We hope over next the four years we will audit every company in Texas and every company out of Texas does business in Texas if they gross $300,000 or more a year. I think that is going to bring in quite a sum of money," he said.

Bicyclists and motorists are sharing the roadways more and more these days, and both groups need to recognize the other's rights and responsibilities. Traffic codes recog-

More bicyclists make safety more vital

By KAY CRITES
Staff Writer

"Bicycles are here and they're here to stay," Officer Tom Moore, safety education officer with the Midland Police Department traffic division, said recently.

And he's right. With climbing prices of gasoline, more and more people are taking to the two-wheelers as an economical means of transportation and fun. And with school starting, the number of bicycles on the roads will increase dramatically — so will the opportunities for injuries.

Perhaps the biggest hazard for cyclists is the motorist with whom they share the roadway.

When a 30-pound bike is pitted against a 1,200 pound car, it doesn't take psychic powers to pick the loser. And it doesn't take much to seriously injure a biker. Although serious bikers are now wearing helmets and gloves, many cyclists just going to work or school wear no protective clothing at all.

Through unwitting actions by motorists or cyclists or even through occasional malicious acts towards cyclists, riders on the bicycles can be hurt or even killed.

MALICIOUSNESS SEEMS to be a growing problem in Midland, according to cyclists.

"There are a lot of people who just don't know that a bicycle is supposed to be on the road traveling with traffic, following all the traffic regulations," said Steve Robichaud who rides his bike to work and for fun.

Just last week, he was the victim of what he termed maliciousness.

"Have you been down Louisiana recently? The condition of the road is pretty bad, and for a bicycle that's bad by itself. But what's made it worse is that a lot of the roads parallel and perpendicular to Louisiana have been re-tarred and gravelled, and it's coming out on to Louisiana," he said.

"That makes it impossible for a bicycle to travel on the far right side of the road. It's funny; prior to the incident, I was moving over for other cars as necessary, but they didn't seem to be having a rough time."

Usually someone on a bicycle can hear a car coming up behind him, said Robichaud, but one day the only thing he heard was a car horn blaring in his ear.

"There are a lot of people who don't believe beeping at a bicycle is bad. A blaring horn is enough to cause a bicycle to wreck. And if it's (the bike) going fast enough, it could cause death," Robichaud said.

"To say the least, his horn startled me quite a bit and it seemed to me he was being malicious about it. He apparently didn't think

I was supposed to be where I was."

Robichaud and his wife, Chris, said they have had everything from ice or cups to full bottles of beer thrown at them.

ANOTHER COUPLE who was cycling on the east side of Midland recalls the day they were brushed by a vehicle. The man on one of the bicycles yelled at the driver. The vehicle turned around and, while cruising by the cyclists, the driver struck the man and woman with a bull whip.

Officer Moore said, "What we try to tell the kids — and even some parents don't know this — is that the laws for bicycles apply the same as to cars.

Bicyclists should ride with traffic as near the right curb as possible, no more than two abreast, and obey all traffic signs and street lights."

He also said that bikes being ridden at night must be equipped with lights and reflectors and horns.

"So many people are just used to the old law that you could ride them anywhere and nobody cared. But they have had so many people hurt that the legislature decided they had to have some laws governing bicycles," Moore said.

IGNORANCE OF these laws by cyclists and drivers pose serious hazards.

Moore recalled a wreck last year involving a car and bicycle. The accident occurred before dawn and the bike, he said, was at fault because it was not equipped with lights. "The car just didn't see him."

The biker was hospitalized for about a week. Robichaud gave an instance of a hazard caused by a motorist.

An acquaintance told Robichaud of the time in which he — on a bicycle — was trying to make a left-hand turn from a turning lane. A vehicle was coming directly at him in the turning lane from the other direction — with the driver having full knowledge he was there and not yielding at all. The car forced him (the cyclist) into the on-coming traffic.

Robichaud found himself in the same situation on Midland Drive one day.

"Some whacked-out woman was coming straight at me. I didn't go into the on-coming traffic," he said. "I just froze and fell over on my bike. Maybe she was just confused at seeing a bicycle where she didn't think it should be."

To avoid problems with cars and heavy traffic, Robichaud now takes less-traveled roads to go to and from work. He wears a helmet and when necessary he moves as close to the curb as possible to allow cars to pass.

"Not only because it's right, but because it's safer."

Troops stationed at power plants

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The government stationed troops in El Salvador's five electrical power plants Saturday and arrested eight labor leaders in an effort to avoid another blackout caused by disgruntled workers.

Authorities said the 23-hour power outage, which ended when national guardsmen occupied the plants Friday, created a national emergency.

They estimated 95 percent of the country's industry was shut down and said perishable food spoiled and hospitals lost blood, vaccines and other items requiring refrigeration.

The Salvadoran Association of Industrialists estimated the loss to the nation at $40 million.

Labor leaders arrested included Jose Arnulfo Grande, secretary-general of the electrical workers' union, and Hector Bernabe, secretary-general of FENASTRAS, a left-wing labor alliance of 35 unions including the electrical workers.

FENESTRAS is part of the Democratic Revolutionary Front, a coalition of organizations with the goal of establishing a Marxist government. Union members seized the plants and cut power after 39 workers who took part in a general strike last week were fired from their jobs. The 39 were accused of violating an emergency decree passed in June banning strikes.

The government announced it would rehire the dismissed workers and pay them back wages, but would not give in to "political" demands of the plant workers, including withdrawing the ban on strikes.

Troops kept a strong presence in this capital of 800,000 Saturday although full power was restored.

El Salvador has been under a state of siege declared seven months ago by the civilian-military junta that was installed after a coup removed the conservative government of President Carlos Humberto Romero.

Firemen reported dynamite blasts at a store, a bank, and the labor and tourism ministries Saturday, but said there were no injuries.

The struggle for power between the left- and right-wing extremists and the government of this tiny Central American country has claimed an estimated 6,000 lives in the past year, according to statistics compiled by human rights organizations.

Israeli settlement again shelled

METULLA, Israel (AP) — Palestinian gunners shelled this northernmost Israeli settlement for the third time in a week Saturday in apparent reprisal for a big Israeli raid on guerrilla strongholds in southern Lebanon. There were no reports of injuries or damage in the rocket attack.

An Israeli military spokesman said the army did not return the fire, as it had Wednesday, but he made it clear the attack would not go unanswered. "We shall choose the time and place for the best answer to shelling," he said.

Lebanon's state radio reported from Beirut, however, that Palestinian-controlled areas came under new artillery attacks Saturday.

From vantage points in Metulla Saturday night, artillery fire appeared to be coming from Palestinian positions at Nabatiyeh, 10 miles northwest of the border, and hitting a string of Lebanese Christian villages just north of the border. The Christians were seen in distant bases returning the fire.

Israel's deputy defense minister, Mordecai Zippori, has threatened that continued rocket attacks on northern settlements would lead to another Israeli raid on guerrilla artillery positions across the border.

"I think that if the citizens of Israel will have to live in bomb shelters, the Palestinians won't have any life in southern Lebanon," he told Israel Radio.

The Palestine Liberation Organization has described the latest Israeli raid as a prelude to an all-out effort to wipe out the Palestinian resistance movement in southern Lebanon.

Late Monday night, combined Israeli air and land forces launched an attack against five Palestinian bases. Israel claimed to have killed about 50 guerrillas and said three of its commandos died in the operation.

The guerrillas responded Tuesday by firing Soviet-made Katyusha rockets at Jewish settlements along the northern Galilee panhandle for the first time since July 14.

So far the shelling has merely disrupted life in the north. Residents spent one night this week sleeping in fortified shelters and a Bar Mitzvah party on Saturday near where one shell fell was halted briefly.

The latest hostilities coincide with a continued stalemate over autonomy for the 1.2 million Palestinians who live on Israeli occupied lands on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza strip.

In Egypt, President Anwar Sadat said President Carter is mistaken in thinking the suspended autonomy talks can resume while Israel insists on annexing the Jerusalem and maintaining its West Bank settlements.

"President Carter holds the idea that despite all this we can continue," Sadat told The Associated Press in an interview at a new urban center west of Cairo. "But I see that these (obstacles) should be removed from the way before continuing the negotiations."

Sadat, who told an Israeli newspaper on Thursday that he and Carter have "sharp differences of opinion," has called for a summit meeting by the leaders of Egypt, Israel and the United States after the November elections.

Carter has been urging Sadat to get the Washington-sponsored peace initiative started again before the U.S. presidential elections.

Sadat suspended the negotiations for a second time late last month after Israel passed a law formally declaring a unified Jerusalem its permanent capital. Israel captured predominantly-Arab East Jerusalem from Jordan during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

In New Delhi on Saturday, the Indian government joined a host of countries in condemning the annexation of East Jerusalem, which contains shrines sacred to Christians, Jews and Moslems.

In another Middle East development, Syrian peacekeeping forces converged on Lebanon's northern port city of Tripoli on Saturday in an effort to halt street battles between rival leftist Moslem militias, according to reports reaching Beirut.

A spokesman for the Tripoli governor said in a telephone interview that 10 combatants were killed and 20 wounded in the past 24 hours.

When you've arrived... Meadowpark

What is Meadowpark?
Meadowpark, a project of Citizens Savings & Loan Association, is a Planned Unit Development of attractive patio home and townhome clusters. Meadowpark will consist of up to 200 attached and detached patio homes and attached townhomes on nearly 60 acres in north Midland. The development is inside the city of Midland and receives all municipal services, including police and fire protection, and water and sewer services.

Meadowpark Owners' Association
Common recreation facilities and park areas are managed by the Meadowpark Owners' Association. Purchasing a patio home or townhome on your own lot automatically makes you a member of the Meadowpark Owners' Association. The Association provides management and maintenance of the common park areas, playgrounds, tennis courts, and swimming pool with cabana, bathhouse and deck area. Homeowners are assessed a monthly maintenance fee.

A low density development.
Meadowpark residents will enjoy a great deal of room and privacy because of the very low density of the development. A low density of 2.5 residences per gross acre allows for privacy. (Many fine residential developments average more than four residences per gross acre.)
The cluster arrangement of Meadowpark restricts traffic flow on residential streets. On-street parking is prohibited, so that streets become areas for family activities.

Patio Homes and Townhomes
Meadowpark residences range in size from a two-bedroom townhome with 1,576 square feet, up to a four-bedroom patio home with 3,600 square feet livable. A total of 17 floor plans are available in one and two story designs, or a buyer may employ his own architect/builder.

As a Meadowpark homeowner, you own the lot on which your home is located, all of the improvements on the lot, and an interest in the common areas and facilities.

off of FM 868 (proposed Loop 250) and North "A" Street, berms for noise and visual barriers, trees, ground cover and grass. Clusters of live oaks and red oaks will be used throughout, and poplar and flowering trees will be used at various locations.
Each Meadowpark residence is designed as an energy efficient home and will meet Texas Electric Service Company's strict "E-OK" rating.

What does it cost?
Patio homes and townhomes start in the low eighties and range up to $150,000. Of course, you may request additional features in planning with your builder which may affect the final sales price.
Meadowpark homes offer two or more enclosed patios, affording a relaxed, suburban lifestyle. General landscaping includes entrances Citizens Savings & Loan Association serves as both developer and permanent lender, and you may wish to visit with one of our loan officers about interim financing and permanent mortgage for your Meadowpark home. We will be pleased to supply a list of reputable builders who will execute your selected Meadowpark plan.

Where is Meadowpark?
Meadowpark is located on 59.91 acres northeast of the intersection of North "A" Street and FM 868 (proposed Loop 250). Nearby are newly developing shopping centers and a regional mall, Midland College, schools and Midland Air Park. Country clubs are close by as well.

Troops from East Germany likely would lead invasion of Poland

By HUBERT J. ERB

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Russians decide to invade Poland, the lead troops would likely come from East Germany — just as they did in the 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia.

In an essentially bloodless action, the Russians were accompanied by East German, Bulgarian, Hungarian and Polish units. An allied intelligence study after the invasion disclosed the Soviets did not have to move their units across Soviet frontiers.

Divers record underwater damage to oil rig, tanker

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Divers with television cameras moved in Saturday to survey the underwater damage to a gasoline tanker that snagged on an oil rig and burst into flames.

Raw gasoline in a forward tank compartment burned out of control for a day and a half, sending flames as high as 200 feet in the air.

Senators unhappy with answers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite two days of unflappable testimony by Billy Carter on his Libya dealings, several investigating senators say they are not satisfied.

The president's brother told a Senate investigating subcommittee Thursday and Friday that his relations with Libya did not hurt President Carter or the country — just Billy Carter.

He testified he got $220,000 in loans directly from the Libyan government and recounted his unsuccessful wheeling and dealing to become a Libyan oil broker.

But he told the panel Libya got no U.S. influence in return.

He swore under oath that the Libyans never asked him to ask President Carter for anything, he never did ask his brother for anything, and the president would not have done anything if he had.

Unimpressed, some of the senators publicly castigated him for getting involved with the radical nation at all and several said they are not satisfied they have the full story yet on his Libyan ties.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., issued a statement Saturday saying "the deeper we get, the more we turn up."

Dole said the Senate investigation has yet to determine whether Billy was involved "in any other Libyan deals such as C-130s, military trucks or other arms."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., told President Carter's brother during the hearings he was "skeptical" of Carter's denial that he had been a Libyan foreign agent.

And Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., told Carter he had been used by the Libyans whether he knew it or not.

"Frankly I am very very disturbed that Libya had a policy of trying to use you to gain influence," Leahy told Carter. "And I'm very disturbed that you let them do that."

Meanwhile, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the Senate panel, told a news conference in French Lick, Ind., that the subcommittee will make a preliminary report of their findings by Oct. 4.

He said he believes all witnesses will have completed their testimony by Sept. 12. He said he did not know whether President Carter would testify but that the president's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, and Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, definitely would testify.

Two days of grilling by the senators did not shake Billy's basic story — but he conceded late Friday he might have made conflicting statements on some of the details.

After flatly denying under oath that he ever told Justice Department investigators that $20,000 of the Libya money was not a loan, Carter conceded he might have told them that.

Reading a statement hastily written by his lawyers, Carter said it is also possible he made some other statements to the Justice Department investigators that he refuted to the Senate subcommittee.

"My reflections on my statements (to the Justice investigators) may not be entirely accurately clear," he said in the statement.

The Justice Department concluded the entire $220,000 was Libya's payment to Billy for promoting its image in America — not a loan — and forced him to register as a foreign agent for Libya.

In a report dated June 11, 1980, Joel S. Lisker, chief of the Justice Department's foreign agent registration unit, says Carter at first denied in a June 11, 1980, interview that he had gotten any money from Libya.

But when Justice Department investigators told him they had evidence of payments, according to Lisker's report, Carter told them he had received a $200,000 loan and $20,000 reimbursement for his expenses hosting a Libyan delegation in Georgia in January 1979.

Carter testified Friday morning that that is "a false statement."

But Friday afternoon he read the subcommittee the statement saying his memory could be wrong on what he told the Justice investigators.

Even so, he said he regarded the entire $220,000 to be advance payments on a $500,000 Libyan government loan which has since fallen through.

The Justice Department report says Carter also originally refused to say whether he had tried to influence the Carter administration to release eight C-130 cargo planes Libya wants.

But Carter denied under oath to the Senate subcommittee that he ever tried to influence release of the planes.

He said he had his associate, Henry "Randy" Coleman, call the White House for a briefing on the planes but did nothing with the information it got.

Libya has already paid for the planes but the Carter administration has refused to release them under a law prohibiting arms sales to countries that support international terrorism.

Meanwhile, the Atlanta Journal and Constitution said in its Sunday edition that Billy Carter has been subpoenaed to appear Tuesday before a federal grand jury in New York that is looking into an alleged scheme by Libya to bribe administration officials into releasing the C-130s.

Billy Carter was quoted by the newspaper as saying, "I don't know what it's about. It has to do with this Vesco thing. But I don't know anything about Vesco."

Fugitive financier Robert Vesco's name recently has been linked with Libya in reports that a Senate subcommittee has tape recordings, made by a convicted felon, that suggest Libyan officials, working through Vesco, considered paying $15 million in bribes to try to gain the release of the cargo planes.

Mount Pleasant hitchhiker wounded in robbery attempt

BIG SPRING — A 62-year old Mount Pleasant hitchhiker was shot in the leg Saturday night when he refused to turn over his luggage to a would-be robber near here, according to a spokesman in the Howard County Sheriff's Department.

The man pulled the car off the highway and told Logan he wanted all his money.

The Mount Pleasant man told the driver he did not have any money and started to get his luggage from the back seat. But the driver told Logan to leave his luggage in the car or he would kill him.

When Logan left the car, the man fired two shots at him with only one bullet hitting Logan in the leg, the spokesman said.

Law enforcement officials said the suspect was traveling east on I-20.

Harold Logan is in Veteran's Administration Hospital here awaiting surgery on his leg Monday to remove a small caliber bullet, according to the spokesman.

The man was picked up and transported to the Salvation Army by a motorcyclist after Logan was shot by a white man driving a bluish-gray vehicle, the spokesman said.

Logan was hitchhiking on Interstate 20 outside of Midland when he was picked up, according to reports.

When Logan and the man approached Big Spring, the official said, at the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Chicago, said that "world peace must be our Number One priority...but it must not be peace at any price; it must not be a peace of humiliation and gradual surrender" as the Soviet pressures against peace are built up.

The time has come, he said, for the U.S. to reassert its advantage in military strength to preserve world peace — such as it is — and to shake its "Vietnam syndrome" and recognize that intervention against the power spread of the Russian-backed North Vietnamese communists was a "noble cause."

And then he delivered his uppercut: "Let us tell those who fought in that (Vietnamese) war that we will never again ask young men to fight and possibly die in a war that our government is afraid to let them win."

There has never been a person whose judgment I respected, including my own father, who was not a firm believer in the fact that a strong military force, backed by a firm foreign policy, was the only way to secure world peace. No dictator is going to start a war if he knows he is certain to get hell beat out of him.

In Washington, presidential press secretary Jody Powell said that Reagan is trying to have it both ways of proposing massive tax cuts and a balanced budget, as well as increased veterans' benefits.

The White House also wants things "both ways." President Carter helicoptered aboard the giant carrier Nimitz to congratulate the men on completion of their arduous mission in the Middle East.

He heard the men complain that they were unable to perform at top proficiency because of personal money worries. Their spouses had to work, they said. Their families were on food stamps. Their children could not have all the things required for a normal life. As a consequence, they worried about their loved ones while away on sea duty.

President Carter promised he would do something about getting higher pay scales in the military services, jumped back into the helicopter, and was barely seated at his White House desk when he ordered a freeze on military spending.

The tumultuous and inherently explosive situation in Poland is not to be taken lightly. Embattled Polish workers, unquestionably at the risk of their lives and backed by nearly all their countrymen, are on strike at the ports and industrial centers, demanding "bread and justice."

They defy communist authority, forcibly installed in a devoutly Catholic nation by Stalin and the Red Army after World War II. The system imposed on them by force and terror has led 35 million Poles to force puppet regimes to collapse twice.

Now the third confrontation is at hand. We must ask ourselves: What kind of a "socialist system" is this that is incapable of feeding its own people and which has been supported by Western loans and credits the last 10 years to the tune of $30 billion?

The Polish rag-tag government of Edward Giersek can't even pay interest and principal due on its loans this year.

Bernard D. Kaplan, Hearst European correspondent who has spent considerable time in Poland, reported the dilemma facing France and Germany this way:

The two big Western continental countries, reports Kaplan, are trying to work out collective loans and credits to Poland for around $3 billion at low interest.

That would enable the communist regime to satisfy the legitimate grievances of the strikers and help restore some economic order in the have-not nation.

Both Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and President Giscard d'Estaing are fearful lest the Poles explode with the dire consequences that could follow from direct Soviet intervention. Remember, World War II followed the German invasion of Poland. It isn't alarmist to predict that something similar could occur with the U.S.S.R. savagely trying to repress rebellious Poles who have a long history of fighting oppression against long odds.

Polish-born Pope John Paul II, breaking his silence on the unrest in his homeland, was ever-mindful of Polish resistance against oppression, his carefully chosen words to a throng in St. Peter's Square were most solemn and compassionate.

"We here in Rome are united with our fellow Poles," declared the Pontiff who then prayed to the Virgin Mary to protect Poland.

At this stage, the administration in Washington stays mum with the terse explanation that it will say and do nothing because American official views could trigger the Russians to a massive and savage intervention in the heart of Europe.

Soviet tactics haven't paid off in any satellite state, or with client regimes. Being quiet in the circumstances that currently convulse Poland is like being inert.

For better or worse, Ronald Reagan is putting together a specific foreign policy. Jimmy Carter has not done so in four years as president. Perhaps the upcoming election will spawn a new and firm foreign policy. It had better.

More women in college than men, Census Bureau says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of women attending college in the United States has surpassed that of men for the first time since World War II, the Census Bureau reported Saturday.

The biggest change, said the bureau, was the large number of women aged 35 and over attending college. Among people under 35 the number of men and women enrolled is almost equal.

Laws prohibiting discrimination against women in enrollment and the pressure for extra education to compete for jobs were cited as major reasons for the increase by Jane Wells-Schooley, vice president of the National Organization for Women.

The figures are included in the bureau's report on the social and economic characteristics of school enrollment in 1979, the most current statistics available.

According to that report, there were 5.90 million women of all ages enrolled fulltime in colleges in 1979, compared to 5.48 million men. Fulltime students aged 34 or younger included 4.99 million men and 4.98 million women.

That compares to 5.22 million men and only 3.87 million women under 35 enrolled in colleges in 1972, when the Higher Education Act went into effect outlawing discrimination against women in college admissions.

The increase "is explained by the fact that even though they are not terribly strong, present laws help," commented Ms. Wells-Schooley.

Among students aged 35 and over, women outnumbered men

914,000 to 487,000, the census report said.

The NOW vice president termed that statistic "a phenomenon of the time."

"We are in a two wage-earner economy, frankly, I think, to keep the country from depression," she said. She added that she feels that the 39 percent added income from women working in a family is the reason "we are experiencing a recession instead of a depression ..."

"A recent survey by the Commission on Civil Rights showed that for the same job women must have greater skills or educational accomplishment than males," said Ms. Wells-Schooley, meaning that they need to seek additional education to compete for jobs with men.

Dillard's SHOP DILLARDS MONDAY THRU SATURDAY 10-8 MIDLAND PARK MALL

Former NOW volunteer vows to fight conviction

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A former National Organization for Women volunteer vowed Saturday that she will fight her bribery conviction for trying to persuade an Illinois legislator to vote in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment.

"I feel like fighting," Wanda Brandstetter of Chicago said after the verdict was returned late Friday night. "I will never give up."

Mrs. Brandstetter, 55, faces a possible sentence of seven years in prison and a $10,000 fine. She was convicted of offering Republican Rep. Nord Swanstrom a $1,000 campaign donation last May 14 if he would vote in favor of the ERA.

A jury of eight women and four men deliberated more than seven hours before returning with the guilty verdict about 11:30 p.m. But the jury acquitted Mrs. Brandstetter on a lesser charge of soliciting Swanstrom to commit official misconduct. Jurors later refused comment on their decisions.

"The jury has spoken," Swanstrom, 31, said by phone early Saturday from his home in Pocatonia. "They considered all the evidence, and decided the case upon its merits."

But brother-sister defense attorneys John and Sheila Murphy were outraged by what they called the "inconsistent" split verdict and infuriated by what they called "prosecutorial misconduct" by State's Attorney J. William Roberts.

Mrs. Murphy's voice quivered as she asked Circuit Judge Jeanne Scott in a midnight hearing to throw out the bribery conviction. Ms. Scott refused and said nerves were too frayed to hold a full-fledged post-trial hearing at that time.

The judge scheduled a hearing for

Oct. 10. If she then refuses to set aside the conviction, sentencing would be Nov. 7.

The Murphys contended that in legal terms it was impossible for someone to try to bribe a lawmaker, but not solicit him to commit official misconduct. They said that if Mrs. Brandstetter was innocent on one count, she should be innocent on both.

"The jury obviously compromised," Murphy said later. "That's all it was, a compromise."

Assistant State's Attorney Stuart Shiffman said it's legal for an Illinois jury to return verdicts that "appear inconsistent on their face." But he said they were not inconsistent because bribery and solicitation were "two separate acts."

The Murphys also claimed Roberts overstepped his bounds in his final arguments when he told jurors: "We're not asking for blood in this. We're not asking for prison. We're asking for a conviction."

The defense objected. Ms. Scott admonished Roberts and told the jury that only she had the power to set the sentence if there was a conviction.

The government alleged Mrs.

Brandstetter offered Swanstrom a bribe on May 14 amid heated lobbying by hundreds of ERA supporters who had descended on the State Capitol for a planned vote on the proposed constitutional amendment outlawing sex discrimination.

Mrs. Brandstetter testified Friday that she was offering legal campaign help, and never intended the hand-written offer on the back of a NOW business card to be a bribe.

She wrote on the card: "Mr. Swanstrom on the offer for help in your election (plus) $1,000 for your campaign for pro-ERA vote."

Schools' route 'back to basics' a two way street

Teachers' group points out parents' role in education

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

A common theme emphasized by parents regarding education is the "back to basics" approach.

Yet, many parents fail to realize that this approach requires a two-way street between instructors and parents.

Although teachers are regarded by these parents as the sole instrument in a child's education, parents play an equally important role in learning, noted Connie Ladd, a teacher and public relations director for the Midland Educators Association.

There are several basics Midland instructors ask parents to do in helping their children's education, she said. And most of them are simple, but very important.

Emphasizing a positive attitude at home about the importance of education goes a long way in how well a child learns, Mrs. Ladd said. Negative attitudes give children the idea that education is not important and that attitude hinders the learning process.

If parents disagree with certain procedures, Mrs. Ladd stressed several contacts should be made first with the teacher, then the principals and finally with school administrators.

Sometimes parents feel that going to the top will get them immediate satisfaction. However, school officials at the top may refer them back down the chain of command.

Faster results may be obtained, she said, if parents confront the problem at the level where it started.

Completing class assignments on time and to the best of their ability are the students' responsibilities. Should there be questions regarding the assignments, parents should encourage their children to talk with the teachers.

Everyone knows the only way to learn anything is to ask questions, Mrs. Ladd commented, when something is hard to understand. "Parents should remind their children the longer he or she puts this (understanding a lesson) off, the more difficult it will become to keep up with other assignments."

Developing a working relationship between the student and instructor helps alleviate any feelings of intimidation.

"Teachers do not try to intimidate students. If it happens, this is because instructors are trying hard to get information across to their students," Mrs. Ladd said.

Students, not parents, should ask the instructor about assignments they do not understand. "This is part of the maturity process and it helps students develop self-confidence when they ask questions."

Bringing the proper texts and basic materials needed for an assignment to the classroom may sound simple and picky; however, it is important in the learning process, she said.

Being prepared in all aspects of school is a basic lesson that children will be expected to learn and use in life, she commented.

Parents should stress to their children the importance of getting to school on time and regular attendance. Although that, too, may sound simplistic, she added it is a basic lesson in life.

In the business world, employers expect their employees to be on time and complete missed work due to absences.

Once a student misses class, it becomes his responsibility to meet with the individual instructor and complete the late assignments.

Extracurricular activities are an important part of a student's life,

Mrs. Ladd noted, yet there is also the responsibility of keeping up with academics.

Another item which is basic but sometimes overlooked by parents and students is respecting the rights of others, property, rules and those in authority.

If an instructor does a good job or there is something parents are pleased with a school, Mrs. Ladd suggested parents should contact the school and express their satisfaction.

"We would like to know what activities are worthwhile, work well and should be continued," she said regarding feedback from parents.

Parents interested in contributing their time and talents to their student's school should get involved with that school's Parent-Teacher Association.

Maintaining open lines of communication with a child's teacher, school and their children is an important step in a parent's participation in education, she said.

"The best education possible for your child is dependent on mutual cooperation," Mrs. Ladd said.

Need for evacuation plan underscored

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Hurricane Allen dealt a comparatively light blow to insured property in South Texas, causing an estimated $53.1 million in damages, but the storm underscored the need for a coastal evacuation plan, two legislative subcommittees were told Saturday.

"There is no plan by state agencies for the evacuation of any coastal cities," said Sen. A.R. Schwartz of Galveston. "No one knows what they're doing or where they're going."

Schwartz, a Democrat, was among subcommittee members from the House Insurance Committee and Senate Natural Resources Committee conducting a joint hearing on the storm's damages.

Figures released by the Texas insurance industry show the eight counties hit hardest by the storm two weeks ago suffered $53.1 million in insured property losses.

Those figures were $10 million higher than earlier estimates, said Frank Lewis of the American Insurance Association property disaster services.

The damage report covered Cameron, Hidalgo, Willacy, Jim Wells, Aransas, Kleberg, Nueces and San Patricio counties. The estimate covers dwellings, mobile homes, vehicles and private boats but does not include flood damage or losses to commercial vessels, offshore oil rigs or crops.

The total compares to $300 million in insured property losses from Hurricane Celia in 1970.

Allen threatened to be the worst storm of the century with winds of 170 mph expected at landfall. The storm weakened before it struck the Texas coast but sent an estimated 200,000 coastal residents scurrying inland.

Many evacuated voluntarily when the communities of Galveston, South Padre Island and Port Isabel ordered everyone to higher ground.

Schwartz said state agencies and local police should have authority to coordinate traffic control along evacuation routes.

Many Corpus Christi residents headed for San Antonio, where there were shelters available, but what is usually a 2 1/2-hour trip took 6 to 7 hours, said Sen. Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi.

"There was a 15-mile stretch of U.S. 281 that was a 15-mile-long parking lot," Schwartz said.

The Texas Highway Department and the Department of Public Safety need legislative power to order sheriffs and police chiefs to mobilize personnel along escape paths, Schwartz said.

Hurricane Charley, season's third, born off Virginia coast

MIAMI (AP) — An Air Force reconnaissance plane Saturday found that a low pressure area off Virginia unexpectedly had built winds of 80 mph and given birth to the season's third major Atlantic storm, Hurricane Charley.

The hurricane hunters discovered a full-fledged hurricane when they flew into the storm about 550 miles east of Norfolk, Va. The depression had been churning in the Atlantic for several days.

Forecasters said Charley posed no immediate danger to land. The storm was not expected to strengthen significantly through Sunday.

At 6 p.m. EDT Saturday, Charley was centered near latitude 38.0 north, longitude 65.0 west, or about 600 miles east of Norfolk. Forecasters said the storm was drifting slowly eastward and was likely to continue that course well into Sunday.

If the hurricane were centered 100 miles farther north, the water would be too cold to sustain a whirling tropical cyclone, forecaster John Hope said.

"Hurricanes get their energy from warm water," Hope said. "If they lose that energy source, when they go over land or over cold water, they typically diminish."

"If it moved 100 miles or so north, the water would be a lot cooler and it wouldn't develop any further."

Hope said the storm, which did not develop in the tropics, was "not a pure classic tropical system yet, but it's getting there."

A true tropical cyclone whirls tightly around the center, he said, while "these cold storms up North don't have their strong winds concentrated so close around the center."

Gale-force winds and rough seas reported by ships crossing through the system prompted Saturday's reconnaissance flight, Hope said.

So far this hurricane season, Hurricane Allen hit the south Texas coast and Hurricane Bonnie dissipated in the North Atlantic.

I wonder if it is possible to learn the sex of an unborn child? — Mrs. F.M.

ANSWER: Yes, it's possible to learn the sex of an unborn child. But don't try it unless there is a more important reason than curiosity, says the Health Insurance Institute.

The procedure is called amniocentesis and is at the stage where some physicians say it may soon be offered in private office settings.

Usually performed when a woman is 14 to 16 weeks pregnant, the technique uses ultrasound to determine the position of the fetus, and a long needle to withdraw amniotic fluid.

Most physicians, however, are opposed to using amniocentesis simply to discover the baby's sex in advance because it can, in fact, be dangerous.

"I feel strongly that it is not an appropriate use of the test," says Dr. Haig Kazazjian, director of genetics and professor of pediatrics at Children's Medical and Surgical Center at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

It is, however, invaluable in detecting Down's Syndrome for couples who already have had a child with it, neural tube defects, metabolic disorders or sickle cell anemia.

I would like to know the origin of the song "High Hopes." Was it written for a musical, or what? — Mrs. T.B.

ANSWER: Theatre Midland reports the song was composed for a film, "A Hole in the Head," which starred Frank Sinatra.

Explain why the temperature of Big Spring can be 8 to 10 degrees higher than the temperature in Midland, with Big Spring being only 40 miles away?

This temperature difference has occurred several times this summer. P.S. I have enjoyed your column. — Jeff Cole

ANSWER: You will love this one. The National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal says there is no specific reason, "this is just the way it is." Maybe we will have better luck on another question.

I would like the names of halfway houses in the Midland-Odessa area for people coming out of prison. Thank you. — L.M.H.

ANSWER: In Midland, there is Park Place, and there is Clover House in Odessa.

I have a friend in Canada who would like a recipe for Pickled Jalapeno Peppers. I have tried several sources and have been unsuccessful. Would you try? — Mrs. V.H.

ANSWER: Pauline McWilliams, former Midland County home extension agent, has a recipe for you. She says this is not in the recipe, but using rubber gloves will protect the hands.

Wash the peppers. Pack tightly in hot jars. For each cup of vinegar, use 1/4 cup of water, 1/4 cup of olive oil, one teaspoon of salt and one teaspoon of pickling spices.

Heat mixture to boiling. Pour over peppers to cover. Close jars.

Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath. Start to count processing time as soon as water in canner returns to boiling.

Ms. McWilliams says if you want skinned peppers (this is not official) put them in a slow oven and heat until the skins loosen, and pull the skins off.

Lauri Dianna Brock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P.J. Brock of Midland, is the recipient of a Presidential Award Academic scholarship and a choir scholarship to Angelo State University. Miss Brock is a 1980 Lee High School graduate.

Midland College slates orientation sessions Monday, Friday mornings

Orientation for new students at Midland College will be held in two sessions this week, according to Dean of Students, C.C. Dakil.

Incoming students may attend orientation on either Monday or Friday. Both sessions start at 8 a.m. in the lecture hall of the Allison Fine Arts Building.

"Orientation is designed to assist students new to Midland College in learning the significant facts about the college, its administration, policies, and basic requirements for satisfactorily completing academic and vocational courses," said Dakil.

"It also lets students know about the counseling assistance, the student activities, and other special features which are available to students."

Orientation, which carries one-hour credit for satisfactory completion, includes talks by administration, faculty, and student representatives, a tour of the campus, led by members of the MC Student Senate, testing for reading skills and a quiz.

Students may attend either of the two orientation sessions. Those unable to attend may pick up copies of orientation information and quiz from the Director of Student Activities. Homework must be turned in by Oct. 31 in order to receive a grade for orientation.

Today's tip on energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is today's energy-saving suggestion from the Department of Energy:

Find out about R-values before you buy your home insulation materials. Then buy the thickness of insulation that will give you the R-value you should have.

R-values or numbers are insulation efficiency ratings. The "R" stands for resistance to winter heat loss or summer heat gain. The higher the R-number, the more effective the insulation.

The numbers should appear on packages of all insulation materials. If the insulation you buy doesn't have the R-value written on the package, ask the salesperson to write the R-value on your receipt for future reference.

Voyager 1 sails toward Saturn

It will be 'looking at a totally new place'

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 1, the spaceship that unveiled the colorful mysteries of Jupiter last year, turned its cameras Saturday on yet another mysterious world — golden Saturn and its shimmering nest of rings.

"There's kind of a before-the-curtain-goes-up sort of feeling" at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory's mission headquarters, said Voyager scientist Torrence V. Johnson. "We really are going in and looking at a totally new place."

The spacecraft was described this week as healthy though a bit battered after covering 1.26 billion miles since beginning its roundabout tour of the solar system nearly three years ago.

"There doesn't seem to be anything that's going to cause a compromise to the mission," said deputy project manager Raymond L. Heacock of JPL. "It looks like we'll get everything we planned out of the Saturn encounter."

Voyager 1, still 66 million miles from Saturn and racing along at 45,650 mph, is to sail within 78,000 miles of the ringed planet Nov. 12.

The ship's collection of cameras and instruments began systematically studying Saturn on Saturday as the $500 million mission moved officially into its "observatory phase." Photographs of the planet will begin trickling into the JPL sometime Saturday, officials said.

Voyager is following a trail blazed by the smaller Pioneer 11, which collected an impressive pile of data when it visited Saturn last September. Voyager's much more sophisticated instruments are expected to far exceed results from Pioneer.

The trip promises dramatic close-up views of the churning gas clouds that form the planet's surface. Saturn, with 95 times the Earth's mass, is a gigantic ball of hydrogen and helium swirling about a dense rocky core.

At Jupiter, Voyager revealed cloudy swirls as richly colored as an abstract painting. Johnson predicted Saturn "is going to look a little more washed out, a little blander."

But if Saturn's banded, yellow-gold surface is less dramatic than Jupiter's, the sixth planet out from the sun has a spectacle all its own.

"I think the rings are a sure-fire certainty for being a smash hit," Johnson said. "It's hard to look at a picture of Saturn without getting turned by those rings ... and we're going to get some spectacular pictures of them."

Earth-based astronomers have found a faint ring around Uranus, and Voyager found a thin ribbon of particles encircling Jupiter. But Saturn's rings are a solar system spectacular.

The five — probably six — rings are less than three miles thick, but they may spread over 400,000 miles of space. The three brightest can easily be seen from Earth with a small telescope.

Johnson said they're probably made mostly of dirty ice cubes about the size of baseballs that orbit the planet like countless tiny moons. Voyager's 10 instruments will try to confirm their composition and look for variations in the size of particles and their density in the rings.

Voyager won't solve the question of life and chemistry, Johnson said, "but I'm sure we'll narrow the range of discussion quite a bit."

Students require shots

According to school district pupil services director Payton Cook, in order to meet requirements established by the Texas Health Department, all students must have up-to-date measles, rubella, mumps, polio, diphtheria and tetanus immunizations before school begins Aug. 27.

Students in kindergarten through the 12th grade must show proof of measles vaccine on or after the first birthday or have their physician provide a history of measles illness. Polio vaccine with one dose taken on or after the fourth birthday and tetanus-diphtheria vaccine or tetanus-per-tussis-diphtheria vaccine with one dose on or after the fourth birthday is also a requirement for all students in kindergarten through 12th grade.

Additionally, students aged 4-11 must have had at least one dose of rubella vaccine. Rubella vaccine is not required after age 12. The mumps vaccine became a requirement as of September 1979.

One-fourth of Dallas third graders may fail

DALLAS (AP) — This fall, school children will concentrate on the three "R's, and face the facts of life in a new back-to-the-basics program that may have some rather shocking results, officials say.

School officials predict that one-fourth of all third graders in the Dallas Independent School District probably will fail this year when a program aimed at wiping out "social promotion" kicks off Monday.

Teacher evaluations of the 10,000 third and fourth graders in the school district showed the children performed below grade level last year, but were passed regardless of their lack of basic skills.

"Our system (until this year) allows an out for everybody," said school superintendent Linus Wright. "It lets the student off the hook, the parent off the hook, the teacher off the hook ... it even lets the superintendent off the hook."

He estimated 1,200 to 2,500 may "face a tough pill to swallow," and be forced to repeat a grade to catch up.

This year, the tough program is limited to first through third graders, though officials hope it will expand to all grades by 1985, he said.

Wright said the program is not a punishment, but would "probably be the best thing we could do for the children and their role in society."

He said the programs will make the school system more accountable for the proper education of students presently progressing through school without the basic abilities in reading, writing and arithmetic.

Most failures are expected at a third-grade level since first- and second-grade students tend to do well, officials said.

"I think it can get at the problem we have — youth getting through high school and being presented a diploma when we know full well they can't read," said Kathryn Gilliam, school board president.

Wright said about half the DISD ninth-grade students failed a 1979 Texas Assessment of Basic Skills test given statewide to that grade level. The poor results spurred school administrators to put the program into operation a year earlier than planned.

Schools will also begin a new comprehensive sex education program this year for elementary through high school students, officials said.

The program will cover basic knowledge in reproduction for younger children to details of birth control, abortion, and a smattering of information about venereal disease and homosexuality for high school students.

Rev. Sam Hulseley of Midland elected Episcopal bishop

LUBBOCK — The Rev. Sam Hulseley, pastor of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity in Midland, was elected bishop of the Northwest Texas district Saturday during a meeting here.

His election came on the sixth ballot. Hulseley replaces Bishop Willis Hinton who is moving to Louisiana.

Hulseley, who came to Midland in 1978, is the first Midlander to be selected for the lifetime post. He had been nominated by a selection committee.

The Northwest District includes the Texas Panhandle and West Texas with Lubbock as the central office.

Hulseley is married and has two children.

Midlander jailed on rape charges

A 17-year old Midland man was in Midland County Jail Saturday night in lieu of bond on aggravated rape charges in connection with the early Saturday morning assault of a 29-year-old woman.

Peace Justice John Biggs set bond at $10,000 for Walter Ray Webb Saturday afternoon after a warrant for his arrest was served by the Midland County Sheriff's office.

The incident was reported to the sheriff's department at 3:05 a.m. by a woman who claimed she was raped at knife point on the west side of the county, according to a spokesman in the sheriff's department.

Warrant for Webb's arrest was issued by Biggs at 2:30 p.m. and the arrest was made at 3:15 p.m. at the sheriff's office, according to sheriff's reports.

In other incidents, city and county law enforcement officials were kept busy with major automobile accidents late Friday night and Saturday.

An automobile accident at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in the 3200 block of West Wadley Avenue sent Steven Squires of Corsicana to Midland Memorial Hospital. Late Saturday he was reported in critical condition in the intensive care unit with head injuries, according to an MMH emergency room spokesman.

Police were continuing the investigation of the theft of a 1972 orange Volkswagen Sedan belonging to Roy Haese, 1605 N. Midkiff Road.

Another theft under investigation involved the removal of 24 shingles and 47 rolls of felt from A.W. Branch's property at 1910 W. Rhode Island Ave. Total value of the items taken amounted to $710.

Council to consider budget, tax rate ordinances

Increased payroll, higher salaries proposed

Midland City Council will consider ordinances on accepting the proposed budget for 1980-81 and setting the tax rate during a public hearing at 4 p.m. Tuesday in City Hall Council Chambers.

The proposed budget of $27.7 million is 22 percent higher than the current budget. Much of the increase is going to pay for more employees, higher salaries and rising costs of utilities and fuel.

The tax rate proposed for adoption is 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Although it appears lower than the current rate of 63 cents, it actually should bring in more money.

All property this year was revalued at "fair market price," thus upping the tax base. Dropping the tax rate accordingly to bring in the same amount of revenue as last year would have meant a tax rate of 39 cents. But with more money needed for the budget, the tax rate was upped six cents — a 15 percent increase.

The city already has held a public hearing on the proposed tax rate in accordance with the state law. After hearing comments from several citizens, the council voted in favor of the budget and tax rate with the exception of Councilman Carroll Thomas.

The council, which gets under way in a regular session at 10 a.m., will consider on second reading an ordinance which would prohibit all temporary, wheeled or portable signs. If passed, the regulation becomes effective Sept. 1. All businesses with these portable signs next to the street will have to find another way to advertise.

The council also will consider approving the sale of Browne Aviation at Midland Air Park to Basin Flying Service Inc., and will review the city's Affirmative Action Plan in relation to using minority business enterprises on construction work.

Ways to replace a MidTran bus will be eyed by the council. One of the seven buses received substantial damage in a collision with another vehicle last week. The council also should consider a contract between MidTran and Casa de Amigos.

With school starting on Wednesday, the council will look at a request for a temporary crossing guard at Haynes Avenue and Midkiff until a traffic signal can be installed.

Midland Park Mall is asking for permission to hold a balloon race. The council also will review proposed changes in health ordinances concerning burial of dead animals and waste.

Zoning requests up for second readings include a major development by Clajon Production Corporation on the northeast corner of Wadley Avenue and Big Spring Street and a small office and shopping center west of the Clajon development.

Additional purchases of rights of way for Loop 250 and appropriating money for the action will be considered in the consent agenda.

More fires feared in East Texas

LUFKIN, Texas (AP)

— East Texans in 52 counties were warned Saturday by the Texas Forest Service that outside burning could trigger more fires in forests turned to tinder by hot, dry weather conditions.

"It's crispy dry out there," Forest Service spokesman Lou Sloat said in announcing a Class 3, or high fire-danger situation.

He said 180 firemen, assisted by a dozen aircraft and members of volunteer fire departments, were on full alert until further notice.

If winds exceed 10 mph the situation will become critical, he said.

"The light wind is the only thing that's keeping us out of a Class 4, or extreme fire-danger," said Sloat. "If the wind comes up, I'm not sure we'd have enough men (to fight the fires)."

Sloat said the number of fires and the amount of forest land burned so far this month has already set a record.

"By this time in 1978, probably one of the worst August fire months in 15 years, we had 346 fires over 4,400 acres. So far this month, we've had 453 fires on 5,300 acres," he said.

As the Class 3 alert was issued, the Forest Service battled 45 fires over 1,526 acres. Sloat said, adding that the worst was near Livingston in Polk County.

"We had a very large fire that burned 1,004 acres. We had 20 units on it and it took about 15 hours to get under control. We saved three or four houses and a couple of trailer homes," he said.

By Saturday afternoon, Sloat added, the situation had worsened and the Forest Service cautioned against outdoor burning.

"We know people have to burn trash, so are asking them to burn early in the morning when we have some dew on the ground and there is no wind," he said.

Also, with good automobile driving record, the same company that insures your auto may also be able to give you a better rate on boat insurance. It certainly makes sense to discuss marine insurance requirements with experienced insurance professionals. Such an individual, familiar with other coverages, can recommend proper protection without duplicating existing coverages.

The staff at MIDLAND INSURANCE AGENCY, 3324 N. Midkiff, 697-4108 will help you select the best coverage for your needs from a variety of protection/price combinations. # Hill gives 'Thrill' to Cowboys, 20-13

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tony Hill calls himself "The Thrill" and he certainly wasn't guilty of false advertising Saturday night in the annual National Football League exhibition Texas shoot-out between the Dallas Cowboys and the Houston Oilers.

Hill caught touchdown passes of 22 and 34 yards as the Cowboys outlasted the Oilers 20-13.

"Tony has as much ability to get open as any receiver in the league and it's just a matter of hitting him," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry, who got some bad news with the good.

Landry announced after the game that the Cowboys had lost free safety Randy Hughes because of a recurring dislocated shoulder.

Hughes dislocated the shoulder for the third consecutive game and Landry said: "We'll operate on him tomorrow. This thing has gone long enough."

Hughes probably will be lost for the season and the candidates to replace him are numerous.

"Benny Barnes is the only one back there with any amount of experience who is ready to go," said Dennis Thurman, third-year defensive back and heir-apparent to replace Hughes.

"We'll be very young, so we'll have to make up for that with intensity and explosion. We'll make some mistakes, but when you go hard, things tend to even out."

The Dallas players were as excited over their victory as if the game was a regular season match-up.

"I feel like I've been in a car accident," said fullback Ron Springs.

"This intra-state rivalry with Houston always gets us pumped up."

"We feel good about beating them in the Texas shoot-out."

The Cowboys now own a 10-4 all-time record against Houston in this annual pre-season meeting.

The Cowboys, who extended their pre-season record to 3-0, struck early and late to outlast the Oilers, now 1-2, before 63,658 fans in steamy Texas Stadium where the temperature was 102 degrees at kickoff.

Oiler mistakes helped Dallas to a 10-0 half-time lead on Rafael Septien's 40-yard field goal and Hill's 22-yard reception of back-up quarterback Glenn Carano's scoring pass.

The Oilers charged back in the second half to take a 13-10 lead into the fourth quarter on Earl Campbell's seven-yard touchdown run and a fumble recovery in the end zone by Jeff Groth.

Fans ignore Cubs' leap to first place

Sports Editor

From the size of the Cubs Stadium crowd, you'd have thought the Oilers and Cowboys were playing on TV or something. It was some 3,250 shy of capacity, which might not be all that bad if you were playing, say, in Oakland.

What the absentees missed was the Midland Cubs staging another come-from-behind rally to take over first place in the tight Texas League West Division race with a tougher-than-it-sounds 10-5 victory over the fangless El Paso Diablos Saturday night.

The Cubs trailed 4-1 in the sixth and it wasn't until Joe Hicks, the big first baseman from Indiana, poled a towering homer over the scoreboard in left-center, good for three runs in the seventh, that Midland went ahead to stay, 6-3.

MEANWHILE, San Antonio's Dodgers continued to torment the Amarillo Gold Sox, 7-4, to drop the Sox a game back. San Antonio remains three out and the Dodgers come into Midland for a final five-game battle for survival on Tuesday.

The Cubs and Diablos clash at 6:30 p.m. today and also will play at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the series windup.

"El Paso has to catch an early plane," said Cubs General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., "and I don't want to take the chance of losing the game because of a delay."

The Diablos were supposed to have been rendered fangless before Saturday's game with the loss of 54 homers and 190 runs batted in when outfielders Tom Brunan and Mike Bishop were promoted to Salt Lake City.

However, they gave no evidence of it in taking a 4-1 lead. In the fourth, Darryl Scomiers singled, Brian Harper tripled and Tom Bhagwat singled for two runs. In the sixth, Bhagwat, pressed into service despite a bad shoulder, hit a solo homer and then Brandt Humphry's single and Mike Tipa's double produced two more runs.

THE CUBS whittled it to 4-3 with two in the sixth as Jared Martin doubled and scored on Tom Grant's single and then Grant was forced home when Rick Steirer issued a bases-loaded walk to J.W. Mitchell. Up until the sixth, Steirer had limited the Cubs to one hit.

Hicks' two-out homer in the seventh came after walks to Mike Shepton and Scott Fletcher. It was Joe's 23rd of the year and first since that three-homer explosion here against Amarillo Aug. 10.

There was still some drama left before victory was safe. El Paso threatened in the eighth when, after retiring the first two batters, Bob Blyth, the Cubs' third pitcher, walked Jamie Hamilton and gave up a single to Scott Carnes. Manager Randy Hundley wasted no time going to Herman Segeike, who was immediately greeted by Rick Adams' run scoring single, however, left fielder Randy La Vigne cut off the ball in left, whirled and came up throwing to cut down Carnes trying to go from first to third.

In the ninth, Segeike simply took no chances, smoking third strikes by the 3-4-5 hitters to pick up his 10th save. That gave the righthander five saves and a victory in his last nine appearances and an earned-run-average of 1.42 for his last 19 innings.

BRUN BREWIN'S—The Cubs released pitcher Kent Hunziker...Steirer for five innings didn't pitch like a guy who was 0-5 in his last eight starts...The Cubs sewed it up with four runs off sidwinder Mike Walters in the eighth as the Diablos contributed two costly errors...Catch of the night was Tipa's diving, grass-stop, rollover robbery on a sinking liner to center by Dave Owen in the third...The Cubs aren't without moral support in their drive for a second half flag. Among the viewers was Bob Kennedy, Chicago Cubs executive vice president, while roving infield coach Bobby Adams and roving pitching coach Les Moss also were here.

Team will remember Kwame

BALTIMORE (AP) — The members of a midget football team in Nashville, Tenn., will likely never forget the tragic story of teammate Kwame Kyler.

The Camp Springs, Md., 8-year-old, died Monday at his second practice at pee-wee football. Since birth he had fought a serious heart ailment, but he lost that battle playing the sport he loved.

His parents, who attended the boy's funeral Friday, had let him play football after doctors told them there would be no additional danger by participating. But they are not bitter, saying that at least the boy died happy.

"I came home and read that story late at night," said Rick Willis, coach of the Flatrock Vols in Nashville. "It really moved me."

"And for a few moments I put myself in the place of his parents, and I could see my own son playing out there."

"I could feel a little of the grief and sorrow they must be going through."

So the team of 7 and 8-year-olds will dedicate their season to Kwame's spirit, wearing black armbands in his memory.

A Kyler family spokeswoman said they were heartened by the team's action.

At Friday night's practice Willis read his players the story of Kyler's death.

"There was a stillness, quietness that went over the team," he said. "It was the most attention I've ever had with them."

Willis, a Nashville policeman, said the kids quickly agreed to send the parents a postcard. They also decided to dedicate each football game to Kyler's memory.

"Before each game we are going to think of Kwame Kyler," he said. "And at the end of the season, we're going to have a trophy in his name for the boy who shows the most desire, the most courage."

"They're ready to play for him. And before each game we're going to remember him, and we're going to remember how hard he tried."

Kyler was born in 1972 with a heart condition that usually kills its victims before they reach their teens. Following heart surgery when he was a year old, he had lived an almost normal life.

When a doctor said football would not mean any additional risk, the family let him play.

Bulldogs show enthusiasm

By BOB DILLON
Sports Writer

If enthusiasm can win high school football games, then Coach Pat Culppepper's Midland High Bulldogs should win the District 5-SA championship this season.

Speaking before a large crowd at Super Dog Night, Culppepper and his staff introduced the sophomore, junior varsity and varsity football teams before the crowd in Memorial Stadium.

It was an impressive sight with the band, cheerleaders and crowd on hand to meet the new coach and his staff which points towards the 1980 season with plenty of eagerness and enthusiasm.

"We are going to have the biggest line in 5-SA this fall and plan to do things that will make our size pay off," said Culppepper as the crowd sat in the stands eating hot dogs and drinking cokes.

Culppepper points with pride to the size in the middle of the line on defense with Joe Goebel, Wade Johnson and Steve Willis showing the way. Goebel is a 6-foot-6, 250-pound junior and Johnson is a 6-3, 235-pound senior. Both will anchor down the line in the middle in order to be able to turn three linebackers loose on their opponents this fall. Willis is a 227-pound senior middle linebacker and a good one along with Scott Yocham, 190-pound senior and Al Langford, an 188-pound linebacker.

"We should have the three best linebackers in the district this fall," stated Culppepper while addressing the gathering on the microphone.

Culppepper had his offensive and defensive teams line up and run through some of the offensive patterns and showed the crowd the 27 defense that the Purple Pack plans to use this fall.

Heading the backfield will be quarterback Michael Feldt along with running back Jerry Zachery, a gifted 205-pound senior. Yocham and Mark Hewitt will round out the explosive backfield.

"We had our hardest workout today and the heat was bad, but the youngsters responded to it very well," said Culppepper.

The Bulldogs travel to San Angelo Friday to scrimmage powerhouse Brownwood with the junior varsity starting at 6 p.m. and the varsity to follow.

"We go to Amarillo Tascosa for our opener and then on Sept. 12 we play Andrews here and we plan to kick their tails," Culppepper stated.

Midland will continue two-a-day drills until school opens on Wednesday and then it will be back to one workout per day until the trip to the Panhandle.

New York Jets upset Pittsburgh

By The Associated Press

Scott Dierking's touchdown plunge, set up by three key penalties, snapped a third-quarter tie and Pat Leahy added two field goals to spark the New York Jets to a 20-13 preseason football victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday night.

It was the first victory of the preseason for the Jets, 1-2, and it was their first ever over Pittsburgh, 2-1.

With the score 7-7 in the third period, L.C. Greenwood sacked New York quarterback Richard Todd on a third-down play from the Pittsburgh 37. But a 15-yard penalty for unnecessary roughness against defensive tackle Steve Furness kept the drive alive.

Two plays later, a roughing-the-passer call against John Banaszak gave the Jets 15 more yards and a first down at the Pittsburgh 15. Then pass interference against rookie cornerback Ted Walton gave New York a first down at the one, from where Dierking plunged for the go-ahead score.

One series later, Leahy booted a 49-yard field goal, the longest of his career. It was set up by a 15-yard scramble by Todd, who ran five yards for a New York touchdown in the first quarter.

Theo Bell returned a punt 69 yards for a Steeler touchdown early in the second quarter. But Leahy got New York's final score with a 23-yard field goal.

Buffalo Bills 14, Green Bay Packers 0

Veteran quarterback Joe Ferguson passed for two first-half touchdowns Saturday and rookie Joe Cribbs rushed for 79 yards in half carries as the Buffalo Bills defeated the Green Bay Packers 14-0 in a National Football League preseason game.

The exhibition victory was the first in Coach Chuck Knox's three years at Buffalo, ending a string of 10 straight losses.

Ferguson hit wide receiver Duke Ferguson for 12 yards and a score late in the first quarter, capping a 69-yard drive, and then put together a methodical, 77-yard march in 19 plays to salt away the game. His 2-yard scoring pass to fullback Roosevelt Leaks and Nick Mike-Mayer's second placement ended scoring, although the Bills let time run out with the ball on the Packers' 2-yard line.

Kansas City Chiefs 20, St. Louis Cardinals 10

Nick Lowery booted a 20-yard field goal and Horace Belton slashed 4 yards for a touchdown, both in the final quarter, giving the Kansas City Chiefs a 20-10 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night in a National Football League preseason game.

Kansas City, unbeaten in three contests, capitalized on an interception of a Jim Hart pass which was tipped high into the air at the line of scrimmage to unlock a 10-10 tie.

Lowery kicked his field goal five plays later. In the game's final two minutes, Belton crashed to the clinching points after J.T. Smith returned a St. Louis punt 35 yards to the Cards' 12.

Cleveland Browns 33, Chicago Bears 31

Brian Sipe's fifth touchdown pass, a 10-yard strike to Dave Logan with 1:28 remaining in the game, lifted the Cleveland Browns to a 33-31 victory over the Chicago Bears in a National Football League exhibition game.

Sipe completed 21 of 36 passes for 313 yards in a game in which the Browns trailed 29-6 at the half.

Sipe threw touchdown passes of 17 yards to Ozzie Newsome, 16 and 31 yards to Reggie Rucker and also a 10-yard touchdown pass to Ricky Feacher.

Washington Redskins 34, Oakland Raiders 17

Joe Theismann threw for two touchdowns and Clarence Harmon and rookie free agent Ricky Claitt ran over for two more Saturday night as the Washington Redskins broke out of their touchdown drought to defeat the Oakland Raiders 34-17 in a National Football League exhibition game.

Theismann, who completed 12 of 20 passes for 167 yards during the three quarters he played, threw a 30-yard touchdown to wide receiver Ricky Thompson, who dove to catch the ball but managed to keep his feet in the end zone.

The TD, coming with 19:16 remaining in the second quarter, put Washington into a 14-10 lead.

Minnesota Vikings 17, Miami Dolphins 10

Reserve quarterback Steve Dils tossed a 31-yard touchdown pass to Ahmad Rashad with 10:23 remaining Saturday night to lift the Minnesota Vikings to a 17-10 National Football League preseason victory over the Miami Dolphins.

The triumph was the second in three exhibitions for Minnesota and snapped the Dolphins' 10-game preseason winning streak.

Dils' touchdown pass capped a 55-yard, seven-play drive which was keyed by a pair of third down runs by fullback Doug Pascal that gave the Vikings first downs.

Detroit Lions 40, New Orleans Saints 17

Billy Sims scored two touchdowns and Ed Murray booted four field goals—including a 54-yarder—Saturday night as the Lions ripped the New Orleans Saints 40-17 in a National Football League exhibition game.

A tenacious Lions defense converted four Saints' turnovers into scores as New Orleans fell to 1-2.

Sims, the 1978 Heisman Trophy winner and the top choice in the NFL draft this year, gave the Lions a 14-0 lead in the first quarter, scoring on runs of 11 and 5 yards.

But New Orleans, with quarterback Archie Manning directing the attack, pulled even with a 4-yard run by halfback Chuck Muncie late in the first quarter. Manning, who passed for 212 yards in the first half, tied the game with a 10-yard TD run.

The Lions, 2-1, blew the game open in the third quarter.

After Murray hit a 25-yard field goal with 5:16 left, Detroit linebacker Stan White recovered a Wayne Wilson fumble at the Saints' 11. Jeff Komlo passed to tight end David Hill for a 7-yard TD. Two plays later, rookie cornerback Wayne Smith intercepted a pass from Saints' rookie Steve Ensminger and returned it 18 yards for a score.

Tampa Bay Buccaneers 20, Cincinnati Bengals 14

Second-year running back Rick Berns, fighting to make the team, scored on an 11-yard touchdown run in overtime Saturday night to give the Tampa Bay Buccaneers a water-logged 20-14 exhibition victory over Cincinnati.

Berns' touchdown run at 6:21 into the extra period gave him 99 yards in 14 carries for the game.

The victory boosted Tampa to a 2-1 record in preseason National Football League play while the Bengals fell to 1-2.

Cincinnati received the kickoff in overtime and moved to the Tampa 41-yard line. But the Bengals gave up the ball when running back Nathan Poole was stopped on a fourth-and-one attempt.

The Bucs took over and drove 59 yards in 11 plays with Berns picking up 32 yards in the drive.

San Diego Chargers 17, Atlanta Falcons 9

Rookie quarterback Ed Luther guided San Diego to a go-ahead field goal in the third quarter and fired a 49-yard touchdown pass to Artie Owens with 5:07 remaining Saturday night, leading the Chargers to a 17-9 National Football League preseason victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

Luther, a fourth-round draft choice out of San Jose State, completed 10 of 17 passes for 155 yards with no interceptions while playing in only the second half. San Diego starter Dan Fouts hit on eight of 18 throws for 103 yards in the first half.

The Falcons, 0-3 in the preseason, took a 9-0 lead on field goals of 4 and 20 yards by Tim Mazzetti and a 30-yard field goal by Jose Portela. The Chargers narrowed the gap to 9-7 on a 1-yard plunge by John Cappelletti with 1:54 remaining in the second quarter.

San Diego, 1-2-1 in the preseason, went ahead to stay on a 25-yard field goal by Rolf Benirschke with 5:47 left in the third quarter. Luther guided the Chargers from their own 19-yard line to the Atlanta seven, where the drive stalled and Benirschke connected.

Luther's touchdown strike to Owens capped a 53-yard march in only three plays that put the Chargers safely ahead.

The San Diego defense was dominant through most of the game. The Chargers sacked Atlanta quarterbacks Steve Bartkowski and Mike Moroski a total of eight times.

Bartkowski, playing in just the first half and one series after the intermission, connected on 11 of 18 passes for 168 yards.

OAKLAND (AP) — Dan Graham knocked in all the Baltimore runs with two homers and reliever Tim Stoddard shut the door on Oakland in a crucial eighth-inning situation to preserve Steve Stone's 21st victory as the Orioles beat the A's 4-2 Saturday.

The Orioles were leading 3-2 when Stoddard was brought into the game after Dave Revering reached second on center fielder Al Bumbry's one-out error. Stoddard then proceeded to strike out the A's No. 4 hitters in the lineup, Tony Armas and Mitchell Stoddard faced six batters overall, striking out five and allowing one single.

Stone, 21-4, was cruising along with a one-hitter and a 3-0 lead in the seventh inning when Page, who had the A's first hit in the second, lined a one-out homer over the left field wall. Jim Essian followed with an infield single, and when Stone hit Dave McKay with a pitch, Manager Earl Weaver brought in Tippy Martinez.

Yanks keep hold on first with 5-2 win

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Bob Watson was holding his inflamed, right index finger in a cup of ice in the locker room after the game, but the pain didn't show on his face.

The New York Yankees had just battled their way out of a prolonged offensive slump to defeat the California Angels 5-2 behind Rudy May, 11-5, who struck out a season-high nine batters.

Watson, Rick Cerone and Lou Piniella sparked a 13-hit attack that enabled the Yankees to maintain their one-half game lead over Baltimore in the American League East.

Cerone had three singles and drove in three runs while Piniella also had three hits. Watson homered and doubled to drive in two runs.

"This is what it's all about," Watson said. "This is my 16th year and this is only the second time I've been in a pennant race. I'm not going to let a little hurt keep me from playing. It would mean a whole lot to get into the playoffs and the World Series and win the whole thing."

"Everyone talks about the money, but it's the prestige. You can spend the money but you'll always have the ring," Watson said.

It was Watson's 10th home run, a first-inning shot, that got the Yankees started. The big first baseman was as happy about that as he was about the bats his teammates were swinging.

"I was happy today. I think the offense is going to come around. This is the first time we've been getting runners to second base where we can drive them in," Watson said.

Piniella got to second base in the second inning on an infield single and a throwing error by Bobby Grich, and Cerone promptly singled him home to give New York a 2-0 lead.

Finley sells Oakland A's

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After 20 years in baseball and numerous attempts to get out, Charles O. Finley finally sold the Oakland A's Saturday to a group headed by the chairman of the board of Levi Strauss & Co. for $12.7 million.

Finley announced the sale to Walter A. Haas Jr., Levi chairman and a trustee of the Ford Foundation, Haas's son Walter J. and his son-in-law Roy Eisenhardt at a crowded news conference at the Kaiser Aluminum's corporate headquarters. Both Finley and the new owners credited Cornell Maier, chairman of Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp., for making the sale possible.

Although the 62-year-old Finley has tried several times to sell the team to out-of-town owners — most recently oilman Marvin Davis of Denver last year — the new owners pledged to keep the team in Oakland for at least the seven remaining years on the lease at the Oakland Coliseum and the 20 more years on the lease option.

"I'm leaving the game because I can no longer compete financially," said Finley, who bought the team in 1960 in Kansas City and moved it to Oakland in 1967. "I'm having to leave because of the idiotic, astronomical, unjustified salaries today. But I don't think I could be leaving the team in better hands."

The elder Haas, 64, who heads the huge Levi corporation of San Francisco, will be team chairman, but day-to-day operations will be run by his son who will carry the title of president and by Eisenhardt who will be executive vice president.

The sale is to become effective on Nov. 6, but needs the approval of American League owners. Several previous attempts to sell the team to Davis ran into both legal and American League opposition.

Eisenhardt said Maier told him in July that the team was for sale and after undertaking a demographic study of the east Bay and a financial analysis of the team the Haas group decided to go after the club.

Haas, 30, had been an official with Levi Strauss but resigned to take over the A's while Eisenhardt, a 41-year-old attorney, will continue to teach at the University of California law school at Berkeley.

"We left our hats at home and brought all the cattle," Eisenhardt said in describing the purchase negotiations and paraphrasing one of Finley's favorite phrases about potential buyers.

"The entire transaction took 30 days. The big question of course is can the Bay area support two teams. We intend to be successful. We want everyone to catch baseball fever," Eisenhardt said.

"When I was young I used to think about how I could get to the ballpark everyday and not be called a bum," the younger Haas said. "I have always been a sports fan."

The sale had been rumored for several days but the actual buyers came as a surprise to most people — including manager Billy Martin.

"I just walked in cold," Martin said of his first meeting with the new owners before the news conference. "I'd never met them but they seem excited about it and they love the game of baseball."

"It's kind of sad in a way that Charlie's leaving. Everyone said we wouldn't get along but he's been just tremendous with me."

Sundberg lifts Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Jim Sundberg cracked a two-run double in the eighth inning to give the Texas Rangers a 7-5 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday night.

Milwaukee had scored two runs in the seventh to take a 5-4 lead, but Buddy Bell walked with one down in the eighth and pinch-hitter Richie Zisk doubled to knot the score 5-5.

Zisk's hit was only the second allowed by Brewers reliever Jerry Augustine, 4-3, since he came on in the third. Bill Castro took over on the mound for Milwaukee but hit Billy Sample with a pitch. Sundberg's double cleared the bases.

Danny Darwin, 11-2, got the victory with 2 2/3 innings of hitless relief.

The Rangers took a 3-0 lead in the opening frame off starter Larry Sorensen. Mickey Rivers and Bump Wills singled and both scored on Al Oliver's single when center fielder Gorman Thomas bobbled the ball. Oliver later came home on Rusty Staub's sacrifice fly.

Milwaukee scored twice in the second. Texas shortstop Pepe Frias mishandled Vic Harris' grounder for an error. Ed Romero singled, Buck Martinez hit an RBI double and Jim Gantner hit a sacrifice fly.

Royals rally to defeat Tribe

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) —

Clint Hurdle slugged a two-out, run-scoring double in the seventh inning and rode home on Frank White's single to lift the Kansas City Royals past Cleveland 3-2 Saturday night and help starter Rich Gale set a club record for consecutive victories.

Gale, 13-7, needed two-inning relief help from Dan Quisenberry to set a club record with his 12th consecutive winning start.

Wayne Garland, 6-6, walked Amos Otis with two out in the seventh, then Hurdle lashed a 2-2 pitch into left field to score Otis with the tying run.

George Brett was hitless in three at bats, and his average dropped to .399 after being above .400 for a week.

Miguel Dilone, who stole two bases and raised his season total to 47.

Chisox down

Blue Jays, 5-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Todd Cruz drove in two runs, and Kevin Bell contributed two key hits Saturday night to pace rookie right-hander Rich Dotson and the Chicago White Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

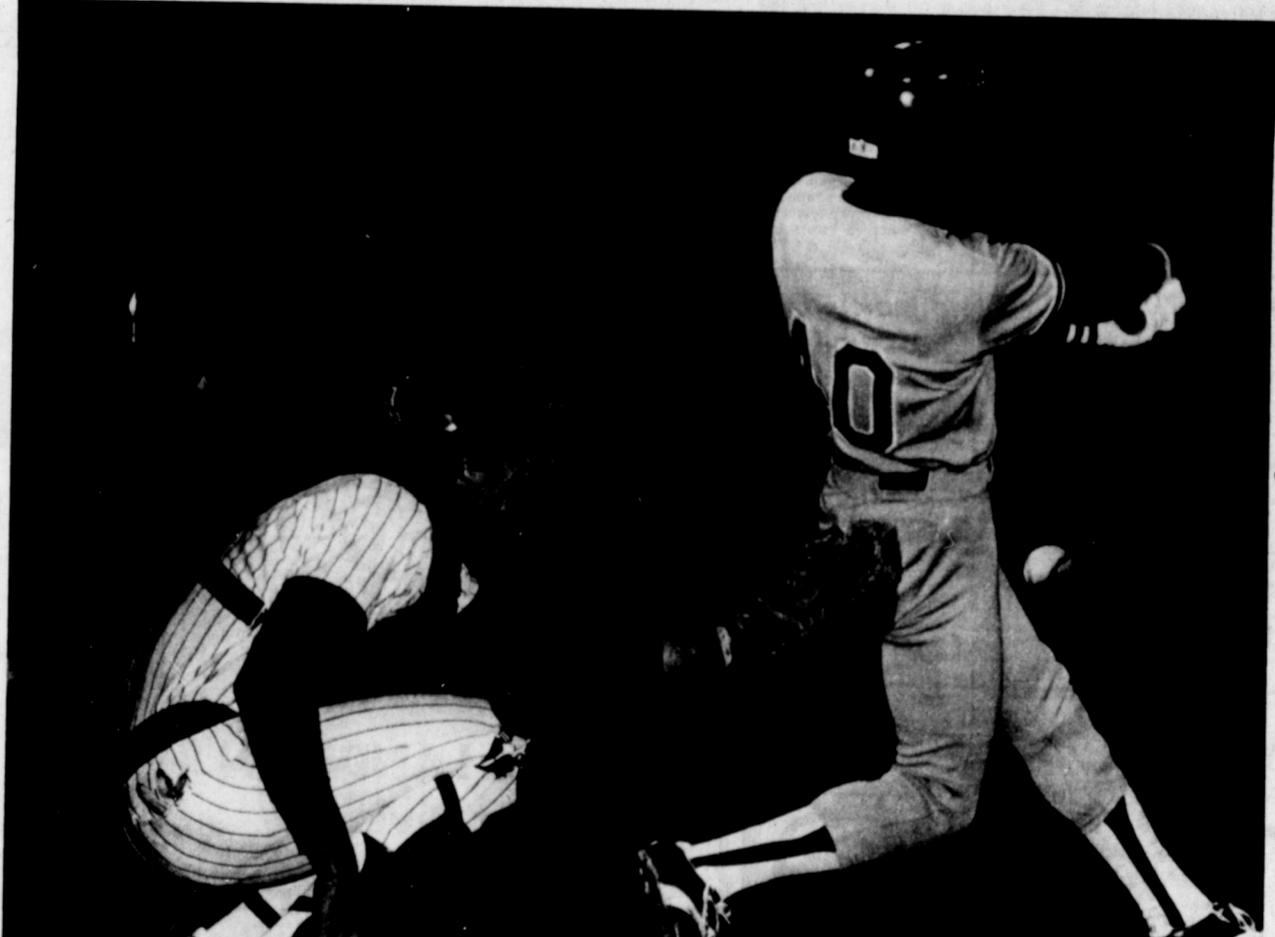

Dotson, 10-8, tossed a four-hitter while walking three and striking out eight as the White Sox won their third game in a row while Toronto was dropping its third straight.

Trammell's hit sparks Tigers

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Alan Trammell's bases-loaded triple highlighted a four-run eighth inning as the Detroit Tigers scored a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

The Tigers loaded the bases with no outs on singles by Jim Lentine, Lou Whitaker and Rick Peters. Trammell then hit his fifth triple of the season to left center to tie the score at 3-3 and chase Twins starter Darrell Jackson, 7-8.

Christian leaders had misgivings about 'briefing'

DALLAS (AP) — Two religious leaders said they had to overcome personal misgivings and, in one case, the weight of a White House request before they could attend the National Affairs Briefing.

The president of the Southern Baptist Convention, Bailey Smith, and the founder of the Christian Broadcasting Network, Pat Robertson, said they were, to some degree, apprehensive about attending the two-day gathering of conservative Christians pledging to become active in politics.

"I don't like it when preachers get more excited about missiles than the Messiah," said Smith, in reference to several convention speeches decrying the current state of U.S. defense preparedness.

"I was about to back out of it, but I was convinced to come along at the last minute," Robertson said Friday, the final day of the meeting.

And Smith said President Carter's liaison officer for religious groups, Bob Maddox, asked him not to address the meeting.

Robertson said he does not like the implication that conservative politics and Christianity go together, although he did give a speech urging the convention delegates to vote.

Smith, of Del City, Okla., said, "The only qualms I had about speaking here is that some would consider it an endorsement of a particular political candidate."

But Smith said that was not the case.

"I'm not even telling many people who I'll vote for," he said.

Smith pointed out his recent White House meeting with Carter and the prayer he offered at one of the Democratic National Convention sessions.

He said both Carter and Republican nominee Ronald Reagan, the only presidential candidate to speak to the religious gathering, covet his endorsement because he leads the 13.8-million member Baptist group.

Smith took part Friday in a private meeting with Reagan and other leaders of the convention, including Hurst evangelist James Robison; Smith's predecessor as Southern Baptist Convention president, Adrian Rogers; and W.A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, the largest Southern Baptist church in the United States.

He said his friendships with those men played a part in his decision to ignore the White House request.

"I couldn't turn down James Robison, Adrian Rogers and Dr. Criswell — they're my friends," he said.

Leg used to re-attach boy's arm

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Doctors used part of the right leg of a 13-year-old boy to reconstruct his severed arm and re-attach it in 10 hours of surgery that ended Saturday, a day after his right limbs were cut off by a train, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The boy's leg was severed below the knee, and was too damaged to be re-attached, official said. Part of the arm was also mauled, and a small section of the stump of the boy's leg was surgically removed and fitted between the arm and body.

The success of the surgery could not be determined immediately. The teen-ager was in critical condition.

Officials said Richard Grin- age and a friend, Abdullah Fra- zier, 8, both of Pontiac, Mich., were injured Friday when they were hit by a train as they played on railroad tracks.

Frazier's right arm also was severed, and he was taken to the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor. Surgeons began a re-attachment operation there Saturday.

Doctors from Hand Surgery Associates re-attached Grin- age's arm in surgery at Jewish Hospital here.

14-ounce baby dies Saturday

BALTIMORE (AP) — Tiny Devon Somerville, a 14-ounce baby that survived for four days, died Saturday night, hospital officials said.

She would have been the smallest premature baby to survive normally in this country, said Lou Daugherty, a spokesman for Baltimore City Hospi- tals.

Devon was the third child of Leon- ard and Linda Somerville of Leonard- town, Md. She was born Tuesday at St. Mary's Hospital in Leonardtown and was flown by helicopter to Baltimore after birth.

She weighed 14 ounces and was less than a foot long.

Daugherty said it had been difficult to predict the infant's chances for survival, although he noted that 95 percent of premature babies her size die soon after birth.

He said the cause of death wasn't immediately known.

"The general medical trend is that babies this small pass on early. But if you take all the statistics, you find that with each day they live, the chances of survival are better..."

Daugherty said. Somerville, a disabled iron worker, spent Friday at his daughter's side, and had said he and his wife would visit again Sunday.

Hospital officials said earlier Satur- day the infant had developed jaun- dice, a breakdown of red blood cells which is common in premature chil- dren.

"Her gestation was 7 months, but her size is about the size of one at 5 months," Daugherty said.

His wine has soured, but rower's journey still sweet

CHATHAM, Mass. (AP) — His wine has gone sour, but Gerard d'Aboville was in good spirits when last heard from on his journey across the Atlantic. He's managed to row — and drift — over halfway across the ocean toward his homeland in France.

D'Aboville, a 34-year-old boat surveyor and delivery captain, left Chatham, Mass., on July 11 for the coast of France, determined to be the first solo rower to cross the Atlantic.

According to d'Aboville's most recent messages to amateur radio operators, the Breton and his 15-foot canoe had traveled about 1,900 miles, placing him about 1,500 miles from Brest, France.

D'Aboville reported to French radio operators he was 45.5 degrees north latitude and 35.2 degrees west longitude, or several hundred miles northwest of the Azores.

The transmissions were monitored by Charles Weidman, a Chatham lawyer and ham radio operator.

D'Aboville, who lives with his wife and son in Auray in Brittany, had estimated the trip to Europe would take him 70 to 100 days.

It now appears, Coast Guard officials said, that the trip may take another three to four weeks and that he will land somewhere on the Irish coast.

D'Aboville rows about 15 miles a day. The rest of the time he just drifts toward Europe, Weidman said. "There are prevailing westerly winds all the time, and the Gulf Stream carries him in that direction, too," he said. "The rowing is mainly for steering."

D'Aboville rows at night and sleeps during the day. "He's basically a night person anyway, but he also does it because he's in shipping lanes. Boats can see him during the day, but at night he wants to make sure he sees them," Weidman said.

Recently, d'Aboville ran out of wine. He had transferred his supply of wine to plastic containers, and it went sour.

"It could be a disaster for a Frenchman," joked Weidman, "but he's still in good spirits."

Actors planning picketing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television and film producers have made a concession to striking actors to get contract negotiations rolling after a 2½-week stalemate. But the actors say that won't change their plans to begin a week of picketing Tuesday at Paramount Studios.

Producers had said that they would not resume negotiating until the two actors' unions — the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists — reduced their demands on royalties for programs or films used on pay television or in video cassettes. But the producers dropped that requirement and the talks resumed Thursday.

There had been no bargaining since Aug. 4, when each side accused the other of being immovable. The strike began July 21, halting production on most films and television programs.

During a break in the negotiations late Thursday, Kim Feller, a spokeswoman for the Screen Actors Guild, said, "It's probably going to be a long difficult road to a conclusion." But, she said, "there seems to be an inclination on both sides to talk."

Picketing by the actors at production studios has become one of the biggest tourist attractions in town.

His paintings are patient, precise

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

He's been working at his craft for as long as he can remember.

Slightly past 50, it's been a long road. And the years add up to a lot of patience, practice, low pay and hard work.

"I don't have a time when I started to paint," said artist Dick Lopeman, who is now painting daily in the lobby of the Midland Hilton. "I've just always done it. My mother used to say my best baby sitter was paper and drawing tools."

After spending 1945 through 1947 aboard a Navy destroyer where he was the "ship's artist," Lopeman utilized his GI Bill to work on a liberal arts degree at the University of Chicago.

"I had no formal training to that point. But, my GI Bill ran out and I later enrolled in the American Academy of Art in Chicago. I worked and sweated and paid my way through. For 3½ years I worked in a hardware store."

Then, through the Artist Guild, Lopeman got an apprenticeship where he finished art work for advertising agencies.

After spending three years with this organization, he worked for a year with the Journal of the American Medical Association doing "infected bones and disconnected muscles," Lopeman explained, laughing.

"When I was 21 and 22 I had this dream of a rambling house in California with all that goes with it including great Danes, but it never came about. But, at that stage, I knew it was going to."

He did, however, make it to California.

"I went out to do scenery and backdrops. When I got there I made contact with three studios."

He left when he decided not to play their game. But, he met his wife, Marilyn, who does the background research for his paintings. And along the way, Lopeman "inherited two garages."

"I couldn't tune a car even if it meant I had to walk 40 miles. I moved the studio into the garage, but everytime the phone rang, I got upset."

The Lopemans finally decided in 1972 to devote their full efforts to his art work.

Since that time, Lopeman has spent his time painting in hotels and country clubs.

"I was living in Titusville, Pa., and I tried to make an arrangement with the local country club to let me hang some paintings there. They asked me if I'd be willing to come on out and work right there. I consented to and it has turned out to be a very successful thing for me."

Among those who have become hooked on his style of Western and Civil War art are the chairman of the board of Quaker State, dean of medicine at Duke University and the financial advisor for Howard K. Smith, Lopeman said, explaining that these men periodically commission him to do works for them.

The Lopemans spend a lot of time researching his works. Both have spent many hours at the actual sites where Civil War battles that he has recreated on canvas were fought. Mrs. Lopeman spends many hours digging details out of history books and piecing together descriptions of situations and people so that his work will be as authentic as possible.

A painting he has completed since he set up his works at the Midland Hilton is of Major General Patrick Cleburne, for whom Cleburne, Texas, is named.

"In my research and talk with people of the South, his name kept coming up," Lopeman said. He decided to paint Cleburne as he was right before he was killed in battle.

Lopeman's research took him to a variety of museums, the Statue of Liberty — where Cleburne's statue is in "a room that pays tribute to people who come from foreign lands and make a name for themselves in this country" — and the site where he fell in battle.

"Everything in that picture is as accurate as it is humanly possible to compute the 10 minutes before Patrick Cleburne was killed in battle."

Lopeman does this much research on all his works because he has to become a part of what he is painting.

"If I'm doing dust, I have to become a part of it."

"You have to be very sensitive to be an artist and then you have to be able to convey that sensitivity to someone who is not."

For him, it is important that his works convey to the viewer a situation or person as it actually was, down to the microscopic details. It is toward this end result that his efforts are directed.

Willie Nelson

Evening with Willie planned

BIG SPRING — An evening with "Willie" is planned for 8 p.m. Aug. 31 at Memorial Stadium here. It is a special occasion. An old friend asked him to help a worthwhile cause. And he said yes.

The friend is John Young, concert coordinator for the Jaycees of Snyder and Big Spring. He first met Willie Nelson, 1979 Country Music Association Entertainer of the Year, about 10 years ago at a golf tournament in Arlington.

"I've been a country music nut all my life," Young said. "When I met Willie he wasn't selling out night clubs. All of Willie's peers and anybody else that loved and appreciated country music knew how good he was.

"Probably nobody loves to perform for the audience more than Willie does," Young said, adding that as far as he is concerned, "Willie has got as much or more charisma than Elvis Presley."

Since there is no backup group, this is a good opportunity for Willie's fans to be able to hear him perform as long as they can keep him on stage.

As Young explained, "I have seen him perform as long as five hours." Even though he will go on stage by 8:15 p.m., it may still be a late night.

The Jaycees are preparing for a crowd of 15,000. And they are doing everything first class.

"It's costing us $2,500 to get enough power run to the stage and the lights," Young said. A concession area with seating is planned where the crowd can get soft drinks, barbecue sandwiches and hot dogs.

No glass containers, coolers, or alcoholic beverages will be allowed in the stadium. And no alcoholic beverages will be sold.

The gates will open at 5 p.m. for those fans who want to ensure that they get a good seat. Tickets are $8 in advance and $10 at the door. They can be purchased locally at Music Haul Records.

And the cause?

The concert proceeds go to the Texas Jaycee Campus of Victoria College at Gonzales Warm Springs. This is a junior college program designed to serve severely handicapped men and women with potential for success at a college level. In addition to earning an academic degree, the program demands that students learn how to live as independently as possible.

After all, the first song Willie ever sold was "Family Bible" in the 50's, Young said. And he sold it for $50.

Alpert an unusual executive

By YARDENA ARAR

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The wood-paneled office is spacious but dark, almost cave-like. Every square inch is cluttered with furniture, records, stereo equipment, trophies, photos and works of art.

And in the back of the room, the vice chairman of A&M Records sits at a grand piano, playing a lush chord progression.

It's certainly not your usual corporate suite, but then Herb Alpert is not your usual corporate executive.

Although he's headed A&M with co-founder Jerry Moskowitz for 18 years now, most people know him better as the handsome trumpet player who rattled off a string of hits with the Tijuana Brass in the late '60s — and who, after a decade of absence from the pop charts, staged one of the biggest musical comebacks ever with his 1979 smash, "Rise."

The disco-flavored instrumental, whose sophisticated synthesizer and piano lead-in to Alpert's solo horn contrast sharply with the simpler sound of his Tijuana Brass days, was a No. 1 chart hit. It sold more than a million singles and another million-plus albums and also won a best pop instrumental Grammy.

But the comeback aspect of the tune is the most interesting. Many musicians have had their hot streak and faded — but few of them then continue to spend much of their time in the studio as chief of a major record company.

"I felt lonely," says Alpert, who has by now left the piano for the comfort of an armchair at another end of the office — which, incidentally, is housed along with the rest of A&M in a Hollywood cottage complex that was once Charlie Chaplin's studio.

"I had an enormous amount of success in the '60s and it got to be a little bit too cushy for me, a little too comfortable. Things were going too right.

"In 1969, in my own way, I think I kind of willed that whole thing away. I didn't want it anymore. I was trying to play concerts in places I had been before, and something just smelled wrong and I wasn't having a good time.

"I wished for the whole darn thing to go away so I could start over, and that's exactly what happened. That might be a rationalization, I'm not quite sure.

"But I've had the pleasure of crawling back to this whole thing, and working my way back through various scenes. I had another Tijuana Brass in '73, '74. I did a couple of solo albums, I did a couple of albums with Hugh Masakela, and all this was leading to what I've been doing lately.

"And when Rise happened, it was a renewed rush. It was different from the rush I had in the 60s — I appreciated it better."

Alpert says his own story proves you don't get a leg up in the music business simply because you happen to run a record company.

"I didn't buy my way into it," he says. "There's no way you can force a record down people's throats."

"Rise" came along at the tail end of the big disco boom — but despite its thumping beat, it escaped being categorized as a disco tune in the Grammy competition.

"I was consciously trying to make a record that would appeal to dancers, but not a disco record," Alpert says. "I wasn't trying to play into the hands of disco music."

Alpert, who in his spare time paints and gardens at the Trancas home he shares with his second wife and three children aged 5, 14 and 20, has recently released a new single and album, "Beyond." But he sidesteps predictions on how they'll compare to "Rise."

Reception set Monday

A reception for Misty Fincher is being held Monday from 6 to 11 a.m. at KNFM-Radio, 2001 W. Wall Ave.

The occasion is to celebrate Misty's 25 years in the broadcasting industry. The radio disc jockey has the 6 p.m. to midnight "Music with Misty" program on KNFM.

The public is invited to attend.

Singer's nieces fighting for management rights

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two nieces of Kate Smith are fighting each other in courts in two states over the rights to manage the singer's property.

Kathryn S. Rodriguez and Suzanne L. Andron, both of Raleigh, filed the actions in North Carolina and New York.

Miss Smith, best known for her rendition of "God Bless America," is now 71 and suffering from diabetes and several related medical problems, including failing eyesight. Confined to a wheelchair, she lives with a professional companion in Raleigh.

The News and Observer of Raleigh reported Saturday that the nieces, along with Miss Smith's attorney, Richard S. Becker of New York, were appointed last year as caretakers to manage her property.

A New York judge earlier concluded Miss Smith was unable to care for the property because of her "deteriorating physical and mental condition," court records said.

The newspaper said Mrs. Andron has asked the New York court to remove her sister, Mrs. Rodriguez, as one of Miss Smith's caretakers. Mrs. Rodriguez has asked the court to remove Mrs. Andron and the lawyer as caretakers.

Several pieces of Miss Smith's property, including jewelry and furniture, were sold to an auctioneer last year. The Blowing Rock Auction Gallery plans to place some of the items on sale next week.

Among the items listed were a solid gold compact, a 14-karat gold and diamond clock and a watch was a gift from composer Irving Berlin.

Mrs. Rodriguez called the dispute "an ugliness."

She said the caretakers had agreed at one time to liquidate some of Miss Smith's property.

"We wanted to make sure that she will be covered in terms of money for the rest of her life," Mrs. Rodriguez said.

Miss Smith and Mrs. Andron could not be reached for comment. Becker declined comment.

A hearing will be held in a New York court Tuesday. No estimate was available on the value of property involved.

Reagan 'sounds like a Democrat'

By TERENCE HUNT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — From the folks he quotes, Ronald Reagan almost sounds like he's the Democratic presidential nominee.

In the month since he won the GOP presidential nomination, Reagan has borrowed the words of more than a half-dozen Democrats to help sell his message — from Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy to Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind.

Reagan also quotes President Carter, always in what Reagan hopes is an unfavorable light.

Only once in four major recent speeches has Reagan invoked the words of a Republican. That was when he quoted Abraham Lincoln, and in that case, Reagan said he wasn't sure Lincoln's statement still was valid.

Reagan had quoted the first Republican president as saying it was doubtful that any administration could seriously injure the government in just four years. The message was that Carter had managed to accomplish that.

Mindful that he must attract Democrats and independents to capture the White House, Reagan seems to be going out of his way to identify his views with Democratic heroes such as Roosevelt and Kennedy.

To promote his argument that government has gotten too large, Reagan cited Roosevelt's acceptance speech to the 1932 Democratic National Convention where the late president said government costs too much.

It was in his own acceptance speech last July 17 that Reagan remembered Roosevelt saying, "For three long years, I have been going up and down this country preaching that government — federal, state and local — costs too much.... We must abolish useless offices. We must eliminate unnecessary functions of government."

In his next speech, to the National Urban League, Reagan quoted Hatcher, one of the first black mayors in the country, on the importance of tax reform to stimulate business expansion in the cities.

Nowhere has Reagan more eagerly quoted Democrats than on the subject of national defense — an area where Reagan says Carter has let the United States slip behind the Soviet Union.

Bush brings stern message from China

PEKING (AP) — George Bush, the Republican vice presidential nominee, left Peking Saturday with a stern message from his hosts that a Republican reversal of U.S. policy on Taiwan could seriously jeopardize a developing anti-Soviet alliance between the United States and China.

Bush spent four days here in a futile attempt to ease China's fear and uncertainty over Ronald Reagan's statements that he would resume official government relations with Taiwan.

Reagan's insertion of an almost forgotten and highly emotional issue into his presidential campaign prompted angry Chinese denunciations of what they see as a return to a "two-China policy" that ended with President Carter's severing of diplomatic relations with Taiwan in 1978.

Senior Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping and his associates are alarmed and annoyed by Reagan's insistence — even while Bush was trying to assure them otherwise — that he intended, if elected, to extend some form of diplomatic recognition to Taiwan.

Meanwhile, Bush told Deng that a Republican administration could not legally set up a government liaison office on Taiwan and had no intention of doing so even if it could.

At a news conference in Dallas, Reagan said Friday he had not abandoned the Taiwan proposal, made before Bush left for China. When asked if Bush misrepresented his ideas to Peking, Reagan said he hadn't talked with his running mate since he arrived in China Wednesday and would not discuss the subject until Bush returned.

In scathing commentaries Saturday, the Chinese government's Xinhua news agency said any change in the U.S. stance on Taiwan would be a serious setback to Sino-American relations and hinted they could be broken off.

"Those who think that China is willing to develop its ties with the United States because China needs its help, or that China, in order to maintain its relations with the United States, will eventually swallow the bitter pill prepared by Reagan, are day dreaming," it said.

New black political party organized

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A new national political party, created at a convention Saturday, hopes to give blacks and other Americans a tool for reforming the way things are, an organizer said.

The party has no name yet, no constitution and may never nominate candidates for presidential elections, said Dr. Manning Marable, a professor of political economy at Cornell University.

Marable, spokesman for the organization, said the party is intended to educate and register voters, rally them around issues and develop their political clout.

He said the organization was needed now because presidential nominees of neither the Republican nor Democratic parties held much hope for the disadvantaged.

The convention originally was intended to determine how an independent party could be formed, but an estimated 750 delegates from about 25 states voted Saturday in favor of organizing now. It is an outgrowth of conventions held previously in 1972 at Gary, Ind., in 1974 at Little Rock, Ark., and in 1976 in Cincinnati.

A convention must now be held to write a constitution, said Marable, and to "call together all forces throughout black America to ratify it."

"We're concerned primarily with organizing and liberating black people first," said Marable.

Anderson attacks Carter campaign

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John B. Anderson on Saturday accused the Carter administration of "playing politics with the defense and security policy of the United States."

The independent presidential candidate said both Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie have injected themselves into President Carter's re-election campaign.

Completing an eight-day coast-to-coast campaign swing, Anderson said Carter sent Muskie to work on his behalf at the Democratic National Convention.

At a news conference, the Illinois Republican congressman also cited a new Carter nuclear policy against military and political targets in the Soviet Union and disclosure this week of a new technology allowing U.S. bombers to evade Soviet radar.

Some national security experts say the new doctrine might permit limited nuclear war, saving widespread destruction of population centers in both the United States and the Soviet Union.

But Anderson said, "I am against the idea that we should be flaunting as an official doctrine that we are ready to fight limited nuclear wars. There is no such thing."

"It would become a general nuclear war which would destroy life on the planet," he said.

"Frankly," Anderson said, "I am getting a little bit tired of people playing politics with the defense and security policy of the United States."

Anderson called for the restoration of a bipartisan foreign policy under which top defense and diplomatic officials would remain aloof from presidential politics.

Report cites flaws in rescue mission

Pentagon panel says more choppers should have been available

By FRED HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-ranking Pentagon military panel reported Saturday that some key planning flaws and other weaknesses, including assignment of too few helicopters, helped doom the Iran hostage rescue mission.

Especially significant was the group's contention that planners should have increased the number of helicopters from eight to at least 10 as insurance.

Commanders cancelled the mission in the Iranian desert last April 25 because three helicopters dropped out with mechanical problems. That left the force one short of the minimum six choppers considered necessary to carry out rescue of 53 American hostages from Tehran.

Among other things, the Pentagon panel of six senior retired and active officers criticized command and control arrangements below the top echelons. It spoke of some confusion at "Desert One," the refueling stop where the mission was aborted.

"When the Desert One on-scene commander's name (Air Force Col. James Kyle) surfaced during post-mission interviews with helicopter pilots, they stated that, in some cases, they did not know or recognize the authority of those giving orders at Desert One," the report said.

This differs from senior Pentagon officials' portrayal, shortly after the mission was cancelled, of a smoothly-functioning chain of command up and down the line.

In fact, significant portions of the report suggest that Defense Secretary Harold Brown may have been overstating the situation on May 8 when he called it "a well-planned mission."

In two major recommendations for the future, the panel argued that "counter-terrorist forces" of all U.S. military services should be brought under a single command and that the Joint Chiefs of Staff should create a senior body of officers to review plans and operations in this field. Pentagon spokesman Thomas Ross said these actions are being taken "with high priority."

While listing criticisms, the investigative panel, created by the Joint Chiefs last May, also concluded that the rescue mission's concept was valid, that the operation was feasible, and that it "offered the best chance of getting the hostages out alive (with) the least danger of starting a war with Iran."

On the other hand, the five generals and one admiral called the aborted rescue attempt by U.S. commandos "a high-risk operation" and said "there was little margin to compensate for mistakes or plain bad luck."

ADMIRAL JAMES L. Holloway III, retired chief of naval operations, presented the 78-page report, a heavily-censored version of a much bulkier classified document turned in to the Joint Chiefs following a three-month investigation. As chairman, Holloway said the panel was unanimous.

Summing up the mission, Holloway said in a statement that "it was risky and we knew it, but it had a good chance of success."

Apparently trying to soothe the sting of his group's criticism, he praised the men who commanded, planned and executed the operation as "the most competent and best qualified for the task of all available."

Holloway also said that "we encountered not a shred of evidence of culpable neglect or incompetence."

At a news conference Saturday, Holloway said "we found absolutely no evidence" that the operation was detected by the Soviet Union or anyone else.

Asked his estimate of the possible casualties had the mission gone all the way to Tehran, Holloway said panel members felt "it would be pure guesswork to predict" a number and the group made no effort to do so.

The unclassified version of the report covered only the first stage of the rescue operation. That was also the last stage, as it turned out, because the 90 commandos and their flying comrades were recalled from the desert 200 miles from Tehran.

After the mission was cancelled, a helicopter and a C-130 transport plane loaded with fuel collided and eight American servicemen died in the flames.

KEEPING SECRET ALL details on what would have been the remainder of the mission, the panel said only that "the plan for the unexecuted portion... was soundly conceived and capable of successful execution."

Documents displayed by the Iranians after the mission's failure, and in effect confirmed as authentic by Pentagon sources, showed that the plan called for the 90 commandos to fly by helicopter from Desert One to a mountain hideout about 50 miles from Tehran where they were to await the nightfall. Then, by truck, the commandos were to move into Tehran, surprise the militants guarding the hostages at the U.S. embassy and the nearby foreign ministry and escape with the hostages aboard helicopters which were to have landed in a soccer stadium near the embassy.

The American party was supposed to have rendezvoused with C-130 transport planes near Qom and flown out of Iran under cover of U.S. fighter planes flown in from outside the country.

In discussing the first phase of the operation, the Pentagon panel highlighted deficiencies discovered in studying the more than five months of preparation.

The investigating officers faulted provisions for dealing with weather developments such as the heavy desert dust cloud that hindered helicopter pilots and forced one machine to return to the carrier Nimitz in the Gulf of Oman.

They said the operation suffered from "lack of a comprehensive, full-scale training exercise" in the United States before the mission.

THEY BLAMED ZEALOUS concern for tight security for some of the shortcomings they found, including failure to increase the mission's helicopter strength, to send weather reconnaissance aircraft over the Iranian desert, and to bring the entire force together for a dress rehearsal in the U.S. West.

"Many things, which in the opinion of the review group could have been done to enhance mission success, were not done because of strict operations security consideration," the report said.

For instance, the panel said, a C-130 should have been flown across the desert ahead of the helicopters and that such a weather-testing flight would have encountered the dustcloud that later hampered the choppers.

It was suggested C-130s might have served as pathfinders through the blinding dust for one helicopter which returned to the mother carrier after developing trouble with navigation instruments.

"In retrospect, pathfinders would most likely have enabled helicopter No. 5 to reach Desert One and the mission to proceed," the report said.

There have been suggestions that a type of helicopter other than the RH-53D, which normally is a minesweeper, should have been used on the mission. But the report said that the RH-53D "emerged as the only helicopter with the full combination of operational capabilities upon which a feasible rescue plan could be structured."

Some critics have questioned whether the helicopter squadron was provided with sufficient spare parts and other technical support.

BUT THE PANEL REPORT said "the effectiveness of the special supply system was commendable, especially considering the problems imposed by operational security."

Defense officials and mission leaders who have testified before Congress have claimed that the Desert One site, in a thinly populated area, was the best that could be found as a refueling point.

As it turned out, a busload of some 44 Iranians had to be detained by the raiders, and two other smaller vehicles also appeared on the road just about the time the first C-130 landed.

"Clearly, another site away from the roads would have markedly reduced compromising the rescue mission in its early phases," the report said while acknowledging that there was no "suitable alternative" available.

The five generals and one admiral called the aborted rescue attempt "a high-risk operation" and said "there was little margin to compensate for mistakes or plain bad luck."

Some in Congress and elsewhere have questioned why the commandos left behind classified material and why five helicopters were abandoned in the desert without being destroyed.

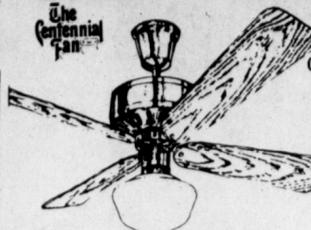

Army Col. Charles Beckwith, who led what would have been the assault force, has said that his men and the remaining air crews did their best to salvage sensitive materials, but thought it important to leave quickly because daylight was approaching and the flames and exploding ammunition were becoming increasingly dangerous.

The panel did not argue with the decision to speed the pull-out, but said that the loss of classified material "reflects unfavorably on the performance of the personnel involved."

FARM-RANCH ROUNDUP

Winter pasture could help out

COLLEGE STATION — Winter pastures could really give a lift to beleaguered livestock producers this year, says Don Dorsett, a forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Due to the season-long drought, most producers must try to develop winter pastures to ease feed bills," he said.

Key to successful winter pastures includes good seedbed preparation, early planting and a good fertility program.

He suggests planting adapted varieties of wheat, oats, rye or ryegrass in September so that livestock will have grazing in fall and winter.

"Early planting is essential in pastures to provide grazing before Christmas," Dorsett said. "Winter pastures make their best growth during optimum temperatures and plenty of sunlight in the fall months. Once cold weather hits, winter pastures make only limited growth."

Zinc analysis recommended

COLLEGE STATION — Pecan growers in Texas should collect leaf samples for zinc analysis during the next few weeks.

Purpose of the analysis is to help growers find out how good a job they did with their zinc-spray programs, said John Cooper, pecan pest management agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Inadequate zinc application will result in stunted trees and reduced pecan yields. Mid-August through mid-September is the best time to collect leaf samples. Samples of leaflets to be analyzed should be placed in a plastic bag, sealed and taken to the county agent's office for mailing. (The Midland County agent is in the downtown Courthouse Annex, telephone 682-9481.)

Or pecan growers may mail their samples to the Soil Testing Laboratory at Texas A&M University, Room 230, Soil and Crop Sciences Building, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas. A $2 fee should accompany each sample, which should consist of two leaflets from the second compound leaf on the current season's growth and 60 to 100 leaflets selected at random from around the tree and samples from trees in all areas of the orchard.

Stock ordered off public land

GLASGOW, Mont. (AP) — The Bureau of Land Management has ordered about 55 ranchers to remove 4,000 to 5,000 cows from public lands in Valley County by early next month because of potential damage from over-grazing on the parched rangeland.

The agency said the livestock must be off the land by Sept. 10, a month earlier than the ranchers had expected. The grazing area covers 433,000 of the slightly more than 1 million acres of public land in Valley County.

About 160 ranchers graze cattle on public land in Valley County, and some were angered by the shortened grazing period.

With hay selling for $100 a ton and no grazing land available within 300 miles, ranchers will be in trouble when their cattle are forced off the public land, Black said.

New farm income formula

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is juggling statistics to show farm income this year will not decline nearly as much as it has been saying.

The new formula will show that instead of declining anywhere between 22 and 37 percent — as USDA figures showed on Aug. 6 — the farm income drop will be "only" 11 to 22 percent from 1979.

Howard W. Hjort, the department's chief economist and policy analyst, described the bare bones of the new procedure at a news conference on Friday, where the main topic was food prices.

Greenbug immune to wheat resistance

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Researchers at Oklahoma State University say Mother Nature threw them a curve in the form of a new greenbug that can overcome a wheat strain developed to resist the pest.

Scientists made their announcement Thursday while on the verge of releasing the new wheat lines as an answer to the greenbug. Instead, it will be held off the market for another year, they said.

The tiny insects annually lay waste thousands of acres of Oklahoma grain.

A new type of the greenbug, known as Designated Biotype E, was discovered earlier this year by Kenneth Porter, a Texas A&M wheat breeder. Porter was working with OSU greenbug-resistant wheat lines near Bushland, Texas.

Porter, OSU officials said, noticed some of his resistant lines suddenly weren't standing up to greenbugs in the fields. He then alerted OSU scientists, who confirmed his finding.

As a result, officials here say Oklahoma farmers must continue to rely on chemicals to control greenbug infestations in their fields.

"We are going to continue our greenbug resistance efforts with renewed determination," said Ed Smith, an OSU wheat breeder involved in the project.

Pork, turkey are among foods USDA says will be 'plentiful'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Let's hear it for pork, turkey, grapes, pears, purple plums, lemons, limes, raisins, prunes, peanuts, rice, dry beans, split peas and canned spinach.

Those items will be in "plentiful" supply next month, says the Agriculture Department.

But some other important foods will be in only "adequate" supply in September, the department's marketing specialists said Thursday.

The "adequate" list includes beef, broiler chickens, eggs, milk and dairy products, fresh peaches, nectarines, apples, fresh oranges, citrus juices, potatoes, onions, and canned and frozen vegetables.

According to USDA marketing specialists who size up the nation's food supply for the month ahead, when an item is plentiful the supply means "more than enough to meet requirements." And when it is rated adequate there is "enough to meet normal needs."

In other words, the two terms border on surplus and scarcity. But when something is really it tight supply — meaning it can cost the proverbial arm and leg to buy — it is only considered in "light" supply.

The only item listed as in light supply for September is "other than purple plums," the report said.

For some years, the USDA has published the monthly list as a "Food Marketing Alert" report, primarily for big food buyers such as schools, hotels, nursing homes and other institutions. It also is circulated to media food editors in hopes they will give a free advertising plug to commodities in surplus.

The report also is useful in determining at a glance which farm commodities stand a chance of being priced lower than some others, although it does not speculate specifically on actual price levels.

Here is the rundown on some of the food items included in USDA's report for September:

Pork
Supplies will be plentiful and are increasing seasonally. The supply available to consumers will be up 4 to 6 percent from a year ago, and 15 percent more than the 1977-79 average for September.

Beef
Only adequate. Supplies are "down substantially" from high levels of recent years. Production will be about the same as last September but will be about 10 per cent less than the 1977-79 average for the month.

"Since there are fewer beef animals in feedlots, there will be less grain-fed cattle marketed. Grass-fed cattle will account for an increase proportion of total supply."

Broilers
Adequate. September supplies will be 2 to 4 percent below year-ago records but near the 1977-79 average for the month.

Turkeys
Plentiful. Supplies will be up 15 to 17 percent from a year ago and about 25 percent more than the 1977-79 average. Turkeys held in cold storage at the beginning of the month will be up 25 to 30 percent from a year ago, while new-crop turkeys will be about the same as a year ago.

Eggs
Adequate. Output will be down 1 to 3 percent from last September but "close to" production in 1977-79.

Milk and dairy products
Adequate. Production, while above a year ago, will be declining seasonally. Partly to meet "somewhat heavier" back-to-school demand, dairy products will be moving out of commercial and government storage.

"Heavier storage stocks this year have resulted from increased production during the past year. In June — the latest firm figures available — production was 18 percent above a year earlier for nonfat dry milk, 13 percent higher for butter, and 6 percent higher for American cheese."

Sugar production in U.S. declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sugar production in the continental United States fell 16 percent during the first five months of 1980 compared to the same period last year, the Agriculture Department says. Production dropped to 1.6 million tons from 1.9 million tons on the strength of substantial declines in cane sugar production in Florida and beet sugar production throughout the nation. Imports of raw sugar by American cane refiners also dropped in comparison to the same period in 1979, falling 11 percent to 1.75 million tons.

Let yourself grow

Join the VIPS (Volunteers in Public Schools)

"... All other things being equal, students achieve better in schools that have active Parent-Teacher Associations. PTAs can provide pressure to improve a teaching staff or school programs and facilities. More important, a widely supported PTA is the tangible sign of parental responsibility for education... something as simple as caring can improve the schools."

...From "Help! Teacher Can't Teach!" Time Magazine article, June 16, 1980.

A group of concerned Midlanders are enthusiastic over what they think is the answer for an educational system in trouble. And they're doing something about it with a program called VIPS (Volunteers in Public Schools).

"Let Yourself Grow" is the theme of this year's program. It encourages participants to learn to better understand the schools; learn to share their talents; grow in their understanding of young people; and learn new skills.

"The education of a child requires time, effort, and responsibility on the part of the school, home and concerned Midland citizens," said Nell Furguson, VIPS chairman.

"The quality of education makes a difference in the quality of lives and this affects the entire community. Therefore, the primary goal of this year's program is to improve the quality of education through more parent AND citizen involvement. VIPS is a major project of the Midland City Council PTA. The City Council PTA has a VIPS coordinating team and the following have agreed to join the VIPS program for this year."

They are Mrs. Furguson, chairman; Patti DeFrance and Fran Polston, co-chairmen; Kenneth Karr, an employee of Midland National Bank, who will be marketing coordinator of the program; Lynn Mashburn, newsletter chairman; Doris Redfern and Nancy Watts, fall workshop co-chairmen; and Barbara Jowell, luncheon chairman.

This coordinating team has stayed busy throughout the summer setting goals and objectives for the VIPS program, according to Mrs. Furguson, and is now ready to launch into the fall school program.

"The team is responsible for preparing materials and training elementary school volunteer chairmen, of which there is one in every elementary school," she added.

This team works closely with the school administration in planning workshops and providing training for all school volunteers.

"We believe that adult interest and involvement play an important part in education and we encourage parents and concerned citizens to participate in VIPS," she said. "Throughout the city, school volunteers will be asked to serve in a wide variety of ways."

If you would like to be a volunteer, you can help in countless ways, including art, at the Carver Center, enrichment programs, field trips, Halloween carnivals, Head Start program, homeroom parties, especially seasonal parties; libraries, materials preparation, math groups, music/drama, Partners-In-Reading program; school improvement and beautification projects, storytelling and/or book review.

It's not hard to become a volunteer, according to Mrs. Furguson.

"Recruitment forms will be sent home with kindergarten through sixth grade students on the first day of school," she said. "Or interested persons can call the volunteer chairman in their neighborhood school."

She stressed that this is a community project in which ANYONE can join. "VIPS wishes to acknowledge the financial support of First National Bank, Midland National Bank, Commercial Bank and Trust and Texas National Bank," she said. "Their support will help provide a volunteer newsletter, fall workshop for all school volunteers and a spring luncheon to recognize outstanding school volunteers."

There's evidence that the program has already worked. Spring evaluations forms filled out by school principals and teachers revealed the following reactions to volunteers and the VIPS program:

"Gave us two more hands when we need so many in our program. Gave much needed individual attention and help." -Linda Honeyfield, teacher in Crockett Head Start program.

"Volunteers also led to increased comprehension through oral discussion. I would have been unable to conduct those four extra reading groups alone." -Pat Shehan, Emerson third grade teacher.

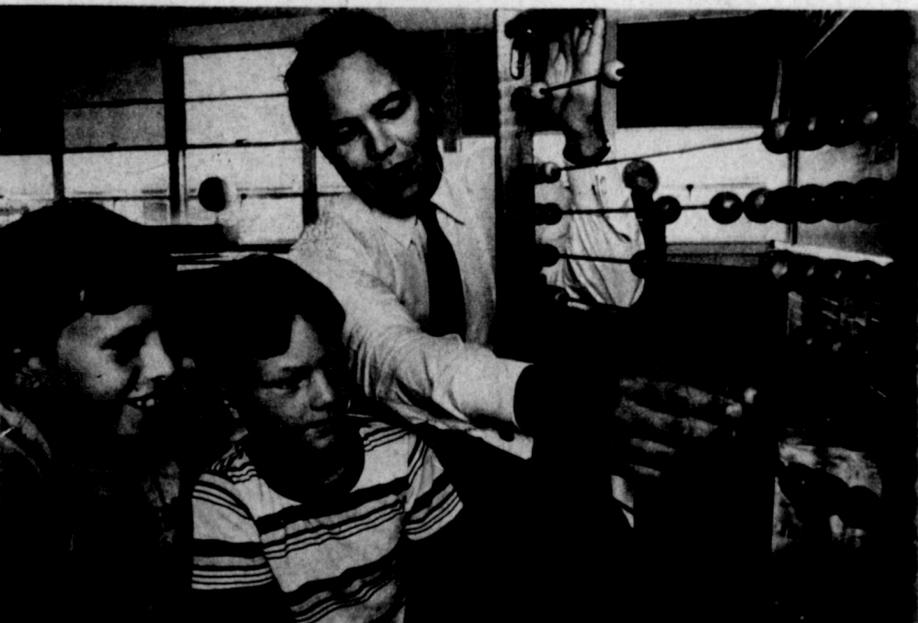

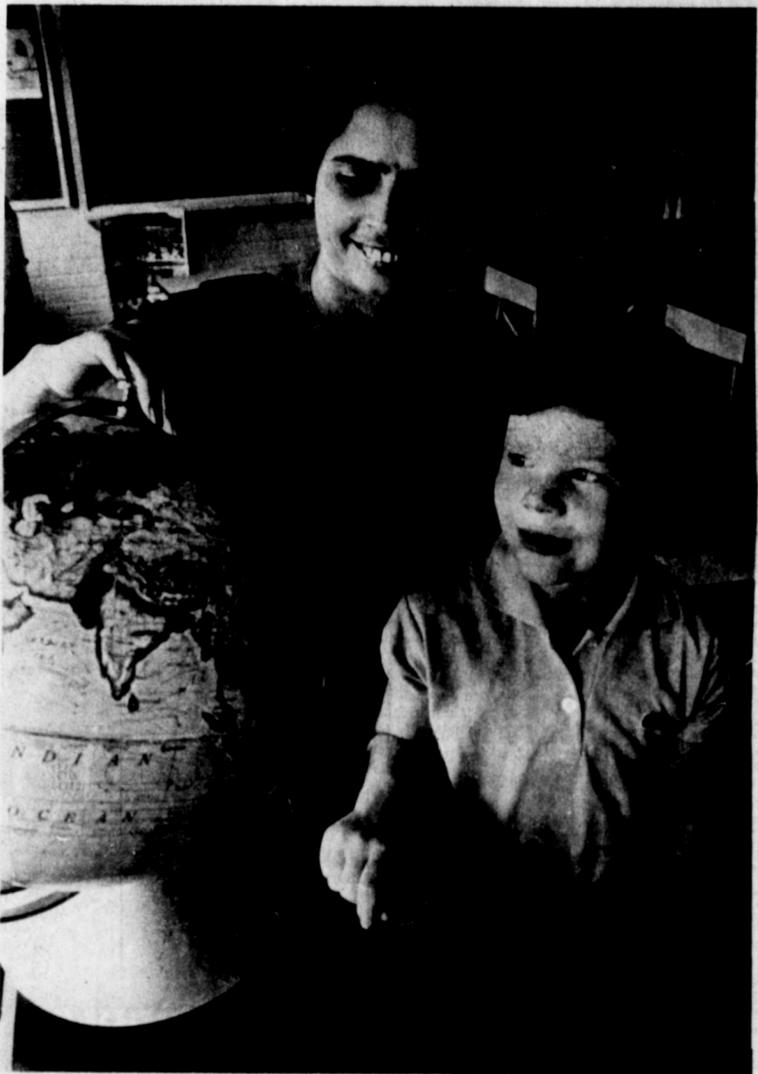

"She (the volunteer) was invaluable in helping me, especially in making copies of materials to supplement our work." -Mamie Norton, Rusk fifth grade teacher.

"It gives us an opportunity to develop ambassadors of goodwill." -Keller Stamy, Sam Houston principal.

"Promotes closer tie between school, home and community." -Clint Adams, Long principal.

"...a morale boost to teachers. Shows community interest and support. Someone cares enough to help out. Students have another significant adult to interact with." -Jo Ann Riggs, Ben Milam principal.

DEAR ABBY

Death not on her mind

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Do you think of dying very much?—SAN MATEO SAM

DEAR SAM: NO. It's the last thing I want to do.

DEAR ABBY: My 12-year-old daughter, Annie (made-up name), has a big problem she needs help with. Annie is a quiet, shy girl who has always stayed in the background. She has a girlfriend I'll call Rebecca. Rebecca is pushy and loud and has a big mouth. Whenever my Annie makes friends with another girl, this loud-mouthed Rebecca takes her new friend away from her. If Annie were more pushy like Rebecca, she would fight to keep her friends but she just can't do it. She's too nice. How can I help Annie so she won't keep losing her friends to Rebecca?—ANNIE'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Annie will have to cultivate and maintain her own friendships. No one can steal a friend as if it were some kind of mindless doll. Mothers who try to run interference for their children in such matters tend to weaken, not strengthen them.

Sarah Fullinwider

Sarah Fullinwider to represent Midland at ball

Sarah Fullinwider has been selected to represent the city of Midland at the Women's Symphony League of Austin's 1980 Jewel Ball Sept. 6 at the Municipal Auditorium.

Miss Fullinwider, along with representatives from eight other Texas cities, will be presented as the Rose Tourmaline of the Jewel Court, and will be escorted by Bill Charles Ribar of Austin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Ribar Sr.

The presentation of King Brio XV from the Knights of the Symphony, the Diamond Queen Stephanie Louise Young, and other Princesses will take place at 9 p.m.

The theme, "A Future Fantasy," is a tribute and special celebration in honor of this 25th Jewel Ball. The ball is a fund raising event to support the Austin Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Fullinwider is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Fullinwider, 1602 Country Club Drive.

She is a sophomore at Southern Methodist University and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Her father is a past president of the Midland Symphony Board. Her mother has served as secretary of the Midland Symphony Guild, and is currently chairman of National Young Artist Competition for the Midland Symphony Orchestra.

DEAR ABBY: I am 73. My wife is 65. She is a lovely little woman and we've been happily married for five years. (We're both second-time-arounders.)

She has a 40-year-old married son whose wife left him last year, so he came to live with us. I thought it was only temporary, but he has moved everything he owns over to our house, and it looks like he is dug in here for good.

He is a freeloader who expects his mother to cook him three meals a day, keep up his clothes and clean his room. He eats like a horse, doesn't furnish any of the food, has a nice car and expects his mother to keep him in gas part of the time. He works steady but we never see a penny.

I don't want to hurt his mother by asking her son to leave, but I have had it with this bum mooching free room and board! We have a nice little house, which I own. It's comfortable for two, but three's a crowd. Any advice?—CROWDED

DEAR CROWDED: Talk it over with your wife and decide together how much longer her son should be allowed to stay. Then SHE—not you—should give him the news.

DEAR ABBY: The following is a special message recently published in the Wall Street Journal. Feel free to use it.

"The most creative job in the world involves: taste, fashion, decorating, recreation, education, transportation, psychology, romance, cuisine, designing, literature, medicine, handicraft, art, horticulture, economics, government, community relations, pediatrics, geriatrics, entertainment, maintenance, purchasing, direct mail, law, accounting, religion, energy and management. "Anyone who can handle all those has to be somebody special."

"She is. she's a homemaker."—RAYMOND D'ARGENIO, UNITED TECHNOLOGIES CORP., HARTFORD, CONN.

DEAR MR. D'ARGENIO: Beautiful. But homemakers are no longer exclusively female. Would you consider amending the last two sentences by changing the "she" to "person"?

DEAR ABBY: One of my fellow workers is planning an outdoor wedding and reception. Everything she has ordered for the occasion will be colorful and symbolic of this occasion, but she plans to carry a bridal bouquet of BLACK roses.

Is this proper? After all, don't they symbolize death?—from the P. B. BUNCH ILLINOIS

DEAR BUNCH: Black roses? You're putting me on.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ELAINE: When a man tells a woman not to get "too serious" because he doesn't want to hurt her, he's usually trying to protect himself against HIS getting too involved and being taken too seriously. Lose him.

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get ABBY'S booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 plus a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to ABBY Letters Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Day care of major importance to parents, their children

Who will care for your child, or children, if you are a woman working outside the home? Is the facility you choose for intermittent care one you can feel secure using?

Answers to these questions are of major importance to the well-being of child and parent(s).

The Day Care Division of the federal government's Administration for Children, Youth, and Families seeks to provide assistance in making the best choice in its new publication, "A Parents Guide to Day Care."

By discussing the three general types of child care offered: in home care, family day care, and center-based care, consideration of personal factors can be applied.

In Home Care: As indicated, the child is cared for in his own home by a relative, friend, or person you pay to come to your home for that purpose.

Advantages of this type of care can be: infants and toddlers need not be taken out of the home and a family with several children is spared the problem of coping with several schedules to and from care facilities. Night care or after school care is more easily provided.

THIS TYPE OF CARE can be more expensive if a relative is not the primary care person, or for a single child, but may be less for three or more children of varying ages.

Family day care is provided in the home of another person. Many times a mother with her own children cares for an additional child or children. State licensing is required and the Midland office of the Department of Human Resources, Children's Services, has lists of such facilities which are updated at least twice a year.

Center-based care is usually provided by nursery schools, pre-schools, parent cooperatives, or the more commonly known "Mothers Day Out" care provided by several churches in Midland.

Services vary, some merely keep children safe, others offer organized activities with programs at a pre-school child's level.

Advantages are, if you will be using center-based care for a long period of time the child will have a stable view of his daycare period.

Children with physical or mental handicaps, or an emotional problem can be given specialized care. Often medical, dental, psychological or social services are offered by the center. Some provide educational and religious activities you prefer.

MOTHERS MUST ALSO keep in mind the center-based care is not for all children...there is not the homelike atmosphere he may need, nor are all children comfortable in large groups for the major part of their day.

Of particular value is the Guide's checklist of specific questions you should ask the caregiver, individual or center-based personnel. The Parents Guide to Child Care suggests you use the checklist to evaluate your final choices based upon previous determinants, cost, convenience and hours.

An edited list of questions follows. Taking the questions with you, and asking for those answers relevant to your situation will help with your evaluation of the facilities. Your final decision will be a more satisfactory one for both yours and your child's needs. You might want to read through the list at home, checking those questions applying to your situation, then take a copy with you as you visit with the caregiver.

AFL-CIO council opens ranks to women

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The all-male executive council of AFL-CIO is opening its ranks to a woman for the first time in the labor federation's quarter-century existence.

A long-standing wall of tradition crumbled this week with the formal election of Joyce Miller, a vice president of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers, to the 35-member executive council, which sets policy for the 13.6 million-member labor federation, sources said.

The decision to select Mrs. Miller, who also is president of the Coalition of Labor Union Women, was made Wednesday by a subcommittee at the urging of AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, according to the sources, who did not want to be named.

Ironically, Mrs. Miller, who had pressed the AFL-CIO to put a woman on its council, did not attend Wednesday's meeting because she was on vacation, and apparently was unaware of the decision.

AFL-CIO Secretary-

Treasurer Thomas Donahue said today that placing a woman on the council "has a charismatic or emotional effect on people who look at the council or labor movement" to take the lead in organizing women.

"The fact that women or minorities are on that council strengthens the ability to organize in the eye of the beholder," Donahue told reporters.

Although AFL-CIO leaders sought to play down the selection of Mrs. Miller as a token appointment, it nevertheless stands as a symbol of the growing presence of women at work.

Women have entered the workforce at twice the rate of men in the last decade, bringing about significant changes in American society.

An estimated 30 percent of the AFL-CIO's members are now women. Equally important, the sharp increase in the number of working women has given organized labor a large new group of workers to organize.

Mrs. Miller's election is a dramatic way for the federation to demonstrate its aggressive move into that field.

She is filling a vacancy left by Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union, who died several months ago.

In choosing Mrs. Miller, the selection subcommittee rejected Hall's successor, Frank Drozak, who had lobbied hard for the coveted seat.

Less than a third of the presidents of unions affiliated with the AFL-CIO sit on the council.

Under a tradition that had been maintained by late AFL-CIO President George Meany, only union presidents have been elected to sit on the council along with the president and the secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO.

That rule has barred women and all but a few blacks from sitting on the council, since nearly all union presidents are white men.

But Kirkland persuaded the council in February, shortly after he succeeded Meany, to drop that tradition so that women and more minorities could be represented on the governing body.

Currently, only one black sits on the executive council — Frederick O'Neal, president of the Associated Actors and Artists of America. About 17 percent of the federation's members are black.

To put Mrs. Miller on the council, the AFL-CIO also had to abandon another tradition that a union have no more than one representative on the executive council. Clothing Workers President Murray H. Finley already is on the council.

Old televisions might be valuable

That secondhand black and white TV set you sentenced to life in the attic when you bought the color portable could be worth money. Old televisions are becoming collector items. Some are now valued at hundreds of dollars.

Although telecasts had been made since 1927, regular TV broadcasting in the United States didn't start until 1939. That was also the year TVs became readily available to the American public. They ranged from a primitive do-it-yourself set for $79.95, to console models costing over $600. (The typical set sold for around $400.) Screen sizes varied from 3 to approximately 12 inches.

quality was not as good as that of the direct-view sets. Also, they tended to be more expensive.

For example, in 1949, the Scott Radio Laboratories model 800BT projection TV, with phonograph, AM-FM and shortwave radio cost almost $2,000. That was more than the list price of a new Chevrolet convertible.

Although color TV became available in the mid-1950s, early black and white sets are most in demand. Particularly those with unique styling. A quick way to find out how old your set is, is to look at the channel selector. If it has a Channel one, it was made before 1951. The date of manufacture may also be on the back of the TV.

Watching television on a 1939 set was somewhat like looking out a tiny window into a light fog. The picture was not as sharp or bright as today's TVs and the depth of field was limited. Close objects came in satisfactorily, but those in the background were out of focus. On most sets the images appeared in black and white. But on some, because of the tint of the screen, they were black and green.

By the end of 1939, there were only about 1,000 TV sets in use in New York City, then the television capital of the country. It wouldn't be until after the war that the average family would purchase a TV.

In 1946, RCA introduced its model 630TS television set. This 85-pound tabletop TV had a "big" 10-inch screen and sold for $375. It proved to be very popular. Other manufacturers soon began to come out with sets, and TV sales started to take off. They leaped from 6,000 in 1946 to over 7 million in 1950.

In 1948, television got its first "superstar," Milton Berle. Every Tuesday night as many as 75 percent of all TV sets were tuned to Uncle Miltie's "Texaco Star Theater." The enormous popularity of this show is partially responsible for the boom in TV sales.

Most of the televisions made were of the familiar "direct view" variety (i.e. you watch them directly from the picture tube). However, some of the early console models used the mirrored image method. On these you looked at the reflected image of the picture in a mirror built into the TV.

Another type that is currently making a comeback is the projection TV. These offered viewers larger pictures (typically 16 inches by 20 inches). But the

Decorating for changing lifestyle

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

A growing decorating problem for many persons is changing their lifestyle to fit into a small apartment after years of living in a larger house.

So numerous are the people moving into considerably smaller quarters that specialists have evolved a theory of small-space decorating. The decorating prescription calls for reordering your priorities. There is no room for sentiment in a studio apartment. The second set of dishes, the golf clubs you haven't used in 10 years, and the complete, collected works of a childhood author will have to go if you expect to have room for the essentials, such as a bed, a dining table, storage furniture and comfortable seating.

Think clearly about future needs. If you will be entertaining a great deal, keep the prerequisites. But if you expect to curtail your at-home gatherings to smaller, more manageable groups, eliminate the unnecessary items. Allow room for what is really important to you, whether it's appliances to cook fancy food or enough bookshelves to accommodate all your favorites.

Once needs have been spelled out, the physical dimensions of the space available must be measured and put on paper. This information should be readily available for shopping expeditions.

One way to maximize your living area is to think unconventionally about the division of space. Room dividers that also serve as storage are more useful than partitions or walls. For example, bookcases which form a solid surface on the back side can be covered with cork board or fabric and used as a "wall" against which to rest a bed, studio couch or desk. A homemade room divider can be made by stapling fabric to a wood frame. Usually, you gain more storage space with built-in furniture. But, if the added costliness of this type of furniture eliminates it as a solution, consider using a combination of ready-made bookcases and cabinets with a custom-made, wood- or laminate-covered top.

You should give preference to multi-purpose pieces when choosing furniture. A plain desk can serve also as a dining table. Comfortable but upright chairs may double for dining and accommodating guests in a conversation grouping.

Modular seating which is easily moved into different configurations can be used as a sofa or separate chairs, as the occasion demands.

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) — Harry House loves organ music. So he paid $3,500 for a kit to make his own electric organ for his wife's 25th wedding anniversary.

House, a marketing manager for Phillips Petroleum, drew on his electrical-engineering experience from the Navy as he soldered more than 4,000 tiny wires connecting the 48 voices on the organ.

When House and his wife, Cherre, plugged the cord in after six months work, the organ wouldn't work — no sound.

House says he panicked a little, but after one week he found his mistake in the power units for the speakers.

Floral candles easy to make

By ELLEN APPEL
Copley News Service

When I found myself suffering from a cold recently, I added cold capsules, orange juice and pink flowers to my shopping list.

I can't really say whether the capsules and juice affected my cold, but the flowers certainly cheered me up. Even now, I enjoy the flowers. They've since been dried and turned into "flowering candles."

Floral candles are simple to make. They're fat, white, dripless candles with pressed flowers all around the surface. Because the flame burns down the candle's center, floral decorations remain intact.

Directions for flowering candles come from a book called "Wildcrafts," by Leslie Linsley. Linsley suggests bright yellow or lilac flowers for the candles. Flowering candles are easy, inexpensive gifts, lovely decorative accents, and perfect centerpieces for a holiday table. To make them, follow directions below:

MATERIALS: Fresh flowers, books for pressing, fat, white, dripless candles, clear paraffin wax, large double boiler, paper towels, tweezers, baking soda.

PRESSING THE FLOWERS: 1. Press flowers in book. 2. Leave flowers at least a week. Leave flowers longer if petals are especially thick, or if your climate is especially humid. 3. Place extra books on top for additional weight.

MELTING THE WAX: 1. Place paraffin wax in top half of double boiler. 2. Melt wax over low heat. For safety reasons observe the following rules: Never leave wax unattended. Always be sure enough water is in the bottom pan of double boiler. If wax smokes, remove from heat source immediately. If wax somehow catches fire, smother flames with baking soda.

DECORATING CANDLE: 1. Turn down heat under wax. 2. Dip one edge of candle into wax. 3. Using tweezers, press dried flowers into wax. Tap down flowers carefully. 4. Dip another edge of candle into the wax. Add more flowers. 5. Keep dipping candle into wax and adding flowers until surface is decorated as desired.

FINISHING: 1. If wax has cooled, reheat it again. 2. Holding edges of candle, roll candle's surface quickly along surface of wax. The faster you roll the candle, the lighter the wax coating will be. Do not submerge the candle. Only the surface should touch the wax. 3. Allow candle to cool.

NEWS BRIEFS

BIG FISH
FLAMING GORGE, Utah (AP) — Frank Twitchell of Manila, Utah, landed a 37-pound mackinaw while fishing near the Utah-Wyoming border. It was 11m inches long and 29 inches around.

Utah Division of Wildlife Resources officials are checking out reports as to where the fish was taken. If the fish was taken on the Utah side, it would break a 20-year record as the largest mackinaw caught in Utah.

The catch breaks the Flaming Gorge record of 32 pounds for a mackinaw set by Richard Reinwald of Manila, Utah, last year.

SMALL TRADE
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Stock Exchange routinely trades from 30 million to 50 million shares of securities every day.

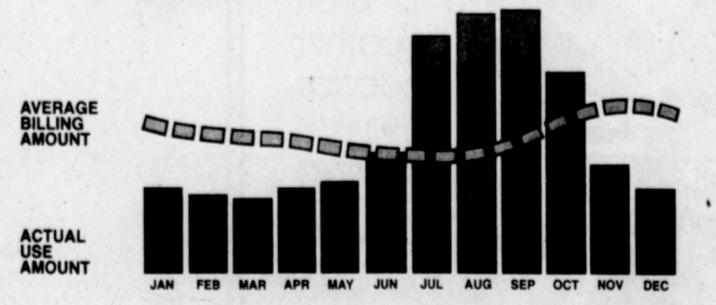

Compare that with the lowest trading day in Big Board history, as noted in the book about the N.Y. Stock Exchange, "The Anatomy of the Floor," by Leonard Sloane. That came 150 years ago — March 16, 1830 — when only 31 shares, worth less than $3,500, changed hands.

SAFETY PROGRAM
GENEVA (AP) — Between 200 and 1,000 new chemicals enter the world market — and the human environment — every year, according to the U.N.'s World Health Organization.

What are the effects of exposure to these chemicals — some 60,000 in common use — on the health of mankind?

WHO has begun an International Program on Chemical Safety in collaboration with a number of national laboratories and institutions. The program will evaluate the effects of chemicals on human health and publish the results. Guidelines will be developed on exposure limits and tolerance levels, on methods for toxicity testing and on hazard identification.

NEW YORK (AP) — With double-digit inflation in the U.S. recently, most Americans might think the city where they live is the most expensive.

The honor in 1980 goes to Lagos, Nigeria, which is one-third more expensive than New York. Tokyo, the longtime leader, is now second. Douala, Cameroon, is third, according to a survey by a business magazine.

Chicago was the costliest of nine U.S. cities studied, nearly 2 percent more expensive than New York. Washington was closest to New York's mark.

We cannot mail pictures or forms to persons living within Midland. Pictures must be picked up in the Lifestyle office within one month after publication.

Only the bride's picture will be used with both the engagement and wedding announcement.

Pictures should be black and white, preferably glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but they may reproduce poorly. Good reproduction cannot be assured when color prints are used. In general, snapshots are not acceptable.

There is no charge for publication of pictures and stories.

Roses have problems in fall

By PATRICK DENTON
Copley News Service

Items from my gardening diary:

ROSE PROBLEMS: It seems that all sorts of maladies tend to crop up in our rose bushes in the late summer and early fall, or perhaps it's just that we notice them at a time when our gardening chores are tapering off and we have a chance to look at our plantings a little closer.

If the leaves are yellow and spotted, this could be the onset of black spot disease which is controlled by a dormant spray early in spring and weekly sprays or dustings during the season. If the leaves turn yellow with no sign of spot, this is usually due to too much moisture in the soil in early spring, or from drought in summer.

Also, if the yellow leaves are mostly on the lower part of the plant, it could be magnesium deficiency in the soil. To correct it, simply add magnesium sulfate (epsom salts). If the yellow leaves are in the top growth, it could be iron deficiency and in this case, add chelated or soluble form of iron or spray iron sulfate on the leaves.

TULIP BULBETS: In dividing tulip bulbs, many gardeners keep the small bulbets and plant them in a special place where, given enough time, they'll grow into flowering sized bulbs.

In the fall, plant the bulbets in ground that has been well prepared with added humus and bone meal. They should be placed about 8 inches deep in sandy soil, 5 to 6 inches deep in heavy soil, and 6 inches apart.

They may need a season or two to send up foliage, ripen off and plump up before they arrive at flowering size. When the foliage has died down in summer, check one or two of the bulbs to see how they have sized up. Once they reach a size comparable to ones you have bought, then they can be planted up that autumn in your display area.

Given the patience to wait a season or two for the small bulbs to size up, the backyard gardener can save himself a bundle on the price of spring flowering bulbs.

BROWNING EVERGREENS: Just a reminder that the drying and browning of evergreens can be due to overly dry conditions and lack of water or red spider mites, or both.

AT WIT'S END The family that prays together...

By ERMA BOMBECK

COPENHAGEN—The family is here for a vacation. It is Sunday morning. We have rented bicycles and are all going to Mass. We look like a Norman Rockwell poster for "FREEDOM OF RELIGION."

The silence of the journey is interrupted by our son's voice: "Dad! Why don't you stop and ask someone?"

Dad says, "If the map says there's a church here then there ought to be!"

There is a cramp in my right leg and I must stop to massage it. I am in the bus loading zone. It is a blessing I only eat Danish and do not understand it.

One child suggests we go to an amusement park and say we tried.

Dad is clearly three blocks ahead of us like he is racing the Italians in "Breaking Away." I hate him when he gets in that mood.

He yells and says he's found the church. One son reminds him that once in Hawaii he said he found a restaurant we were looking for and it was a funeral home.

Another son says it looks like it is closed. It is not a good neighborhood.

I say someone will steal our bicycles. Two sons volunteer to stay and watch them.

My husband says, "We are all going to Mass and pray together for love and forgiveness if I have to break some heads to do it."

The church is definitely not Catholic. We told him so. There is no holy water, no statues of Mary and no confessionals. I say excuse me to the man on the pew. He is a wino who has passed out. The minister/priest/rabbi (select one) turns to give the sermon. It is in Danish. He is dressed in black with a ruffle around his neck.

I tell my husband if he hadn't been so stubborn and asked someone, we might have found the church. He nudges our oldest and tells him to sit up, pay attention and show a little respect. I send the other kid to check on the bicycles. The minister walks toward us and I suspect he is going to ask us to keep it down.

He takes the wino's pulse and seems pleased. We thank him for his sermon.

Outside, a man weaves over to my husband and offers him a drink of his beer. For a moment, I thought he was going to take it.

The family that prays together... gets on each other's nerves.

DOME ON THE RANGE

Shaped like half of a crinkled soccer ball, the thing could easily have just emerged north of town, a subterranean satellite popping up from the soil like a mushroom.

Whining metallic noises come from within, marked by occasional staccato whaps.

Someone stirs inside. A head appears through a triangular port, leaning out to avoid the side of the structure.

Without warning, it fires. A neat spray of tobacco juice stains the ground below.

"Come on in!" calls a friendly voice.

THIS IS GENE LOVE'S house, or it will be. Love and a small crew of carpenters, including "one Baptist preacher who's a hell of a roofer," will soon have the strange house completed.

Buckminster Fuller would be proud. Love's home is an adaptation of the famous architect's geodesic dome, a jigsaw puzzle design that uses six sizes of triangles to form a half-sphere structure.

The house is deceptively small from the outside. "It's got three stories, with a total of 3,200 square feet," says Love. The dome itself is 25 feet tall, but six feet of the basement is underground.

By the time it is finished, the house will cost around $40 a square foot, just about the same as a conventional home of equal size.

Why did Love build it, then?

AFTER CITING THE advantages of nine-inch insulation, 35 percent lower fuel bills and the possibility of do-it-yourself construction, Love admits his reasons.

"We're oddballs," he says. "Well, my wife isn't, but I sure am. I like something different."

Most of Love's unique ideas have been implemented in the four different restaurants he has operated in Midland.

Besides installing computer order-tickets as early as 1965, Love put in one of the first commercial conveyor "carhop" systems.

Back in the early 70s, Love's Burger Train drive-in featured horizontal dumbwaiters on tracks, little cars which would take cash from customers into the restaurant, then zip back outside with the food.

"I like things that are efficient," says Love. "In a restaurant you always have to watch your labor costs. In a house, energy costs are going to be the big problem from now on."

LOVE'S HOUSE USES several energy-saving ideas that would work in any house design.

Only three small windows break through on the north and west sides, keeping heat in during the winter and intense sunlight out during the summer. A quartet of large triangular double-plated windows open to the south, allowing sunshine in during the winter. Two smaller ventilation windows are placed below, and an air lock entry seals the front door from the outdoors.

The strong dome design allows free air circulation in the house, since no interior supporting walls are needed. Most of the inside is open, and a couple open windows on opposite ends of the home keep a steady breeze blowing through. Central heat and air conditioning are also included, however.

BUT IT IS THE abnormal qualities of the house that make it fascinating.

Walking inside, it is impossible to keep from constantly craning your head up and around, looking at the honeycombed pattern of the still-exposed frame.

It looks like one of those projects an engineer might enjoy getting into, but a little too much like trigonometry to interest most people.

Ordered in kit form from a Minneapolis outfit called Big Outdoor People, the dome surprisingly is designed for amateur construction.

The frame is made of two-by-ten boards, custom cut at the factory and bolted together on site.

Fitted together like a jigsaw, the dome appears on the north Midland horizon.

Two skins — outside and inside — consist of aspen-chip particle board, also precut into triangular shapes and ready to be installed.

"THE BOARDS ARE all color coded," says Love. "Most anyone could learn to put the basic shell together, then hire out carpenters for any of the more intricate additional work, like partitioning and finishing on the inside."

Love originally planned to build his dome as a mountain getaway, but after visiting the Minneapolis plant and taking a two-day dome construction course, he decided to not only build in Midland, but to try to sell others on the deal.

"I'm going to be the local distributor for the dome," he says. "We'll do anything from selling the kit to completely constructing it."

Although Love's own house will top $100,000, austere do-it-yourselfers could construct the basic shell for about $15 a square foot — that's with no wiring, heating, cooling or plumbing. It is, however, an insulated, shingled roof over your head.

Love says he's already gotten G.I. and F.H.A. approval, and two local banks seem impressed with the project's design.

Now he's waiting to see how much demand — if any — there is for an oddball house.

"I've got a lot of young people interested in it — if they could only get the money," he laughs.

Gene Love surveys the interior of the dome.

A screened porch will give the dome a homier look.

Inflation making Europe too costly for everyone

American golfers stay away in droves; Natives now tightening their belts

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

LONDON (AP) — Jack Nicklaus turned up for the British Open golf classic this summer pondering not the course, but how anyone, native or foreigner, can afford to live in Europe.

Eleven of Nicklaus' top-earning fellow American pros, driven back by $180-a-night hotel rooms, $2 cups of coffee and $8 cocktails, just stayed away.

A head of lettuce in the Belgian capital, Brussels, costs $2; a pack of cigarettes in London $1.85.

A gallon of gasoline in Europe starts around $3. A none too serious price war in early August shaved a few cents off the British price — it's down to the equivalent of $3.84 per U.S. gallon.

That's inflation, European-style, 1980.

FOR A "CHEAP" APARTMENT, try Madrid. An unfurnished three-bedroom apartment in a reasonable area of the Spanish capital can be found for as little as $450 a month, excluding utilities.

In central London, a $1,200-a-month "flat" is considered a fair bargain.

In Paris, rents rise by law with inflation. A small three-bedroom apartment in an old building on the Left Bank goes for about $900 a month, but in a new building or classy district costs nearly $2,000.

Americans and other foreigners have two choices — pay up or get out. Europeans cope, or try to, through a combination of wage hikes, moonlighting, renting out half the house and simply buying less.

Current European inflation rates, by European Common Market tabulation, range from Italy's near 22 percent to Switzerland's modest 3.3 percent, compared with 14.3 percent in the United States.

THERE ARE SIGNS of Americans opting increasingly for departure as inflation, the generally lower value of the dollar and U.S. tax law changes — removing overseas exemptions — make Europe a tough place to live economically.

Major firms such as IBM are cutting back U.S. staff, and the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration has announced the recall of its 19 Paris-based employees at the agency's regional headquarters for Europe and the Middle East.

The agency's director, Clarence Cook, attributed the recalls to the high cost of maintaining American staff abroad, including some $25,000 a year in housing, school and other allowances.

Despite pay hikes, there is evidence that purchasing power is being eroded for Europeans themselves, with car sales falling and stores extending their spring and summer sales.

BRITAIN'S U.S.-OWNED chain store, Woolworths, has just announced a drastic fall in half-year profits to $690,200 from its 1,000 stores dotted along the main streets of British cities and towns. That compares with $38 million in the first half of 1979.

The wealthy and well-organized, notably Switzerland and West Germany, where inflation runs at 5.5 percent and wage hikes this year averaged 7 percent, appear to be hurting least.

But despite quasi-socialist benefits in many European countries, such as free medical treatment and state-subsidized housing for low-income workers, there are plenty of Europeans who cannot afford the kinds of things they were able to buy a year ago.

Among the worst-hit are professionals whose earnings have not risen with inflation, and retirees living on fixed incomes.

Moonlighting, the cash-in-hand jobs from private car repairs to prostitution, is increasingly popular in Britain, which was a front-runner in the 1980 inflation league until July when the rate fell some four percent to 16.9 percent, and Italy.

ABOUT A FIFTH of ALL workers in Italy, where average minimum wages rose 22.6 percent in the year ended last April, didn't get the automatic quarterly inflation-linked pay hikes. These are the people estimated to be working in the black economy. They don't pay taxes either.

Economies made by ordinary people are affecting lifestyles.

Barbara Sutton, wife of a $26,000-a-year North London accountant, says they take the three children to McDonald's for a treat now, not a more formal restaurant. Inflation has boosted the Big Mac too — it costs $1.90 without fries in London's West End.

A 63-year-old spinster said she was well off 10 years ago, living on a $11,900-a-year private income in the inherited family home in Berkshire County, 30 miles from London.

This year she rented out half the home to pay the rates. "If I sell it, I could supplement my income. But I'm worried I'll last longer than the capital," she said.

FOR SPANIARDS, WAGE HIKES this year averaged 4 percent behind the 16 percent inflation rate, meaning that everyone got poorer.

"The government is doing nothing to help me against inflation," said Florencio Solano, an 80-year-old who works two months a year as summer relief building superintendent to supplement a $228 monthly pension.

In Britain, where there are few automatic index-linked increases, unions have so far refused to settle much below inflation, despite rising unemployment and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's long-dashed hopes of keeping pay rises between 7 and 11 percent.

BUT THE BRITISH ARE getting no richer. A recent survey showed average earnings have more than trebled in seven years to $290 a week, while the real value has not changed.

Tourism is not universally down this summer, despite the prices. In Britain, for example, there has been a five percent increase in tourists from North America. But first-class hotels are hurting. The prestigious Savoy recently applied to convert one wing into offices.

Commented one London tour manager: "Americans are used to paying around $50 a night for a room in a good hotel. They're not happy when they find the same thing here costs three times as much."

Paroled elderly convict finds life, living changed

By KEN HERMAN

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — For most of his first 61 years John Chlastak was a farmer, a family man firmly rooted in the land he worked. For the next 11 years and three months Chlastak was Texas Department of Corrections No. 290157. Now, a free man again he says, "I never figured out what the hell went wrong."

At 73, he's a wife-killer gone home to an empty house. A man used to a big family now trying to live in a simple farmhouse with only his four dogs, 25 chickens and a hog for daily company.

State parole records show four men over 70 were released from prison last year.

H.P. Skelton, a parole supervisor in Waco, said it's sometimes tough on the old men. One of the over-70 parolees is in his district.

"The problem is if a man spent a number of years at TDC, it's tough on them when they get out and face gas at a $1.15 and food that's gone sky high," Skelton said.

Chlastak killed his wife, Albina, at their Edna farm in 1968. As he recalls it — he does not like to talk much about it — he was working in the fields before he went into the house. Chlastak's parole officer, Terry Ford, said the woman died of a point-blank blast to the head with a shotgun.

"A darned thing like that never was in my mind, but it did happen," said Chlastak.

Jackson County Sheriff Harvey Reynolds said the body was found a few days later in a nearby creek. Chlastak dumped it there and went home — where he waited, not sleeping or eating, until deputies came by to get him.

Reynolds said the shooting was apparently caused by Mrs. Chlastak's habit of taking the coil wire out of her husband's car to keep him from driving anywhere. There was a coil wire near the body in the creek.

"We found 10 or 15 more of them hidden around the house," Reynolds said.

Chlastak pleaded no contest and got a life sentence. At 61, the farmer who hates city life was off to a prison full of people who might as well have been from another planet.

"I couldn't figure it out," he said. "I seen guys get out and in two or three weeks they were back."

"I can't complain," said the man known in prison as Papa John and Ol' Grandpappy. "The bosses were good to me. But I sure don't want to go back."

"You act stupid and you're going to be treated stupid. Those guys didn't want to work. They'd rather be in that cooler," he said.

Chlastak spent five years working in the prison mattress factory and later did some farming.

"I missed sightseeing. Just going window shopping and looking around," he said. "People don't know what they got until they get in trouble."

Ford said Chlastak's family — 18 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren — has been a great source of support for the old man since he left prison. Chlastak lived with a daughter for awhile, but said he got bored when he ran out of things to fix there.

The farm he now lives on was bought with money from the sale of the Edna acreage where he used to live.

Chlastak, speaking with a South Texas accent that carries a taste of his Moravian ancestry, could not remember when he first met his wife. They were married in 1932 or 1933, and he said it seemed he always knew her.

Town has nose woes

DOYLESTOWN, Ohio (AP) — A village council member here told his colleagues last week that the problem with this town is skunks. "Doylestown is being overrun by skunks," said Councilman Charles Lepley. "Everywhere you look, they're walking around the streets. You can't help but hit them."

Police Chief Jim Markley blamed the problem on Doylestown's version of urban sprawl. Growth in this northeastern Ohio village of 2,800 people has taken away much of the skunks' natural habitat, he said.

Instead of moving to new locations in the countryside, many skunks have adapted to city life, Markley said.

Mayor George Daniels has instructed Markley to call the Wayne County Humane Society for assistance in ridding Doylestown of its skunks.

Marine Pfc. Terry L. Thomas, son of William T. Thomas of 2407 Goddard Drive, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

During the 11-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill.

Thomas joined the Marine Corps in March, 1980.

Maj. Henry W. Derstine, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Derstine of Lamesa, recently was promoted to Army major while serving as a special projects officer with the Academy of Health Sciences, U.S. Army, Veterinary Science Division at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

This program is designed to allow the individual to take up to one year before actually entering duty. Upon entering the active Army, Keller will undertake basic training learning skills such as drill and ceremonies, marksmanship, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid and Army history and traditions.

After completion of basic training, Keller will be assigned for training in a specialty field. Keller has elected for training as a tracked-vehicle mechanic.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the communications-electronics systems field.

Ocean worms pose mystery

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists are puzzling over the origins of strange, red, mouthless worms that thrive on heat on the ocean's floor, but have been found only in three spots separated by hundreds of miles of freezing water.

The worms were found along volcanic vents in the ocean floor by scientists who returned this week from an expedition, sponsored by the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, in the Gulf of California, a body of water that separates the Baja California peninsula from mainland Mexico.

The scientists brought six dead specimens of the worms back with them.

Cold sea water rushes into the volcanic cracks, is heated, and then is percolated back up to the ocean floor, rich with sulfur and other minerals. The percolated water is as hot as 572 degrees while the ocean water is near freezing.

The worms, a foot or more long, thrive on the heat and live on the nutrients they absorb from the water. Their soft bodies are encased in harder plastic-like, white tubes that are fixed to the ground.

When the vents close and the heat disappears, the worms die, the scientists say.

That raises the question of how the worms could live in locations so far apart. The worms have also been found in two spots in the Pacific Ocean.

The answer may be that the vents extend across the ocean, according to Keir Becker, a research assistant on the expedition.

And Geologist Peter Lonsdale said Wednesday the process by which the vents spew up minerals may be important in the study of how metal ores are formed.

When the superheated seawater meets the cold water, the sulfur solidifies and forms huge cones more than 50 yards in diameter and more than 20 yards high.

Another biologist, director William Evans of the Hubbs-Sea World Institute, predicted "the findings may be someday prove significant in the hunt for energy."

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

ASK OMAR

Q.—I have been taking bridge lessons and playing for years, but I'm honest enough to admit that I'm strictly a run-of-the-mill player—a Sunday duffer. My failure to master this game is beginning to create doubts about my intelligence, which I've always thought to be above average. Do you have any idea why I am not progressing as rapidly as I feel I should? —I.G.R., Boca Raton, Fla.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.) A.—The main reason could be because you're equating skill at playing bridge with intelligence, and that is not necessarily the case. If you want to become a bridge expert, you have to start with card sense.

What is card sense and how do you acquire it? I am afraid that I can't answer either question. Card sense is a mysterious quality and there is no way to acquire it—either you have it or you don't; it has nothing to do with intelligence.

To be a star in any field, you need a particular flair for that activity. For instance, consider football. You can take a lad and teach him how to throw a ball. You can make him practice for hours, and I am sure that he will become quite competent. But he will never become a Roger Staubach or a Joe Namath unless he has a special something that sets him apart. That championship ingredient is something that cannot be taught.

You can learn enough about the technique of the game to become a very competent player. The thing is to recognize your limits and live within them. But don't let it get you down—you can enjoy many hours across the green baize even though you don't play at expert level, and no one will think you are stupid because, on occasion, you make an error. (This last statement, however, does not apply to my partners!)

Q.—My partner and I play the Precision System. I held the following:

- ♦ 10 9 7 6 5 3
- ♣ A K 9 6
- ♦ 10 9

My partner opened the bidding with one diamond. What is the correct Precision response? —C.W.R. Tucson, Ariz.

A.—System has nothing to do with it. Unless you are playing a canape system, where, by agreement, you bid shorter suits first, there is only one response on this hand, whether you are playing Standard American, Precision or catch-as-catch-can. That is: One spade.

CASTEAU, Belgium (AP) — A NATO maritime maneuver involving 60,000 troops, 170 ships and 400 aircraft from eight allied nations will be held in September in the North Atlantic, the English Channel and the North Sea, Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe announced Friday.

It said the exercise — one in a series of NATO maneuvers scheduled every four years — will be held Sept. 10-24. "The exercise is designed to demonstrate and improve the capability of the alliance to protect amphibious forces and reinforcement ... to Europe in time of crisis or war," the headquarters announced.

As part of the maneuver, 16,800 American, British and Dutch marines will land in Norway, and allied vessels on NATO's North Atlantic supply routes will come under simulated attack.

Western historians holding symposium

LUBBOCK — Midland historian J. Ezzette Haley will be among seven prominent western historians participating in a symposium on the American Southwest Sept. 18 on the Texas Tech University campus.

The symposium, entitled "The American Southwest: Seven Historical Viewpoints," will commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Southwest Collection at Texas Tech, a regional historical research center which collects and preserves documents portraying the history and culture of West Texas and New Mexico.

Haley, founder of the Nita Stewart Haley Memorial Library in Midland and prolific author, was on the Texas Tech board of directors when the Southwest Collection was established 25 years ago.

His historical works include a biography of Panhandle cowman Charles Goodnight and a history of the giant XIT ranch in northwest Texas. Besides the ranching history represented in the scholarship of Haley, the symposium will include discussions on nomadic Indian tribes and the social, economic and political development of the American Southwest.

Along with Haley, the six other historians involved with the symposium have authored a total of 40 books and more than 1,000 historical articles and pamphlets. Those historians include Dr. Rupert N. Richardson of Abilene, dean of Texas Tech University historians Dr. William C. Holden, Dr. Ernest Wallace and Dr. William E. Pearce.

Also participating are Dr. Billy M. Jones, immediate past president of Memphis State University, and Roy Sylvan Dunn, formerly director of the Southwest Collection.

"To my knowledge, this is the first and probably the last time that these distinguished historians have appeared on the same program," Dr. David Murrah, director of the Southwest Collection, explained. "Collectively they have logged more than 300 years of experience in historical research."

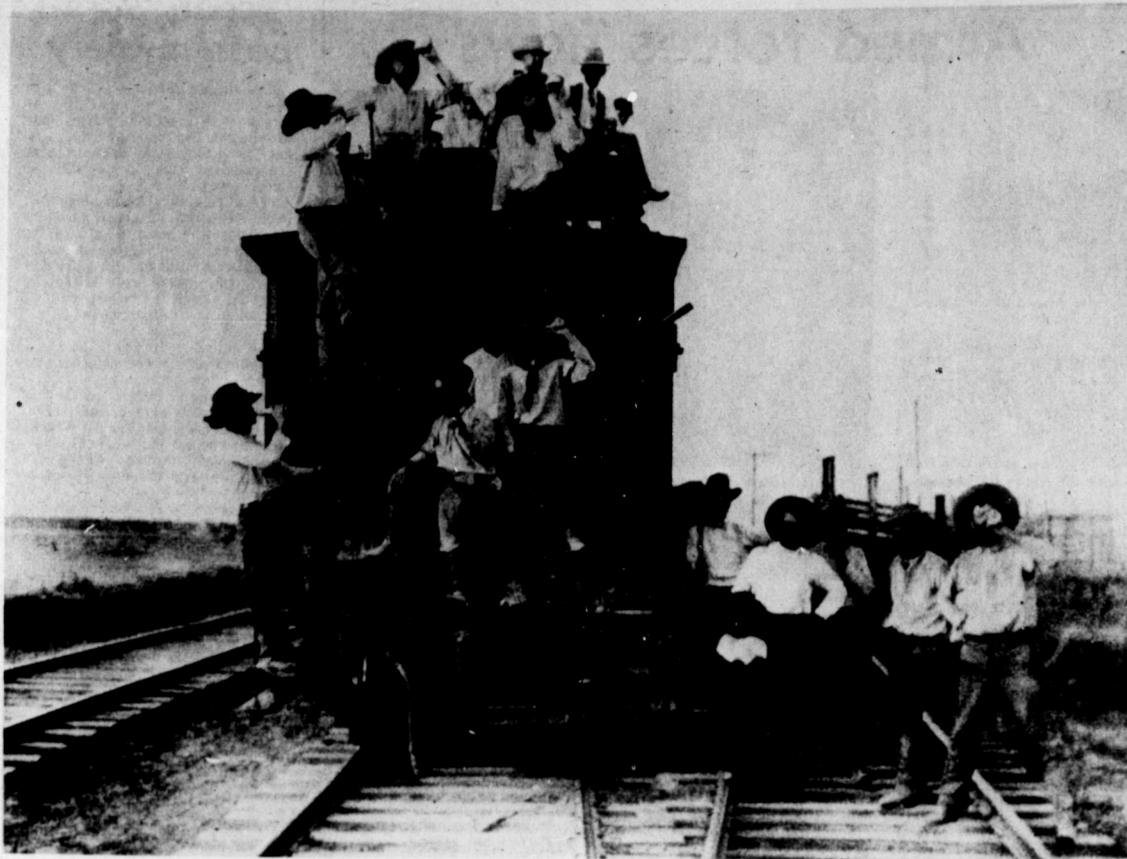

The Southwest Collection and West Texas historiography are concurrent in many ways. While the historical center did not officially open its doors until Sept. 1, 1955, its origins stretch back to 1930. Texas Technological College was only in its fifth year of existence when it acquired records from the prominent Spur and Mator ranches in West Texas. Those records became the nucleus for the research center.

Today, the Southwest Collection, a quarter-century in formation and a quarter-century in operation, has become one of the largest regional repositories for documents in the United States, containing information on oil, the development of mechanized agriculture, land promotion ventures in West Texas, mining and aviation.

Included in its holdings are 15 million pages of manuscript material, 250,000 photographs, 400,000 feet of microfilm and 25,000 books — all dealing with the American Southwest.

In addition, an ongoing microfilm project is committing to permanent storage the back issues of newspapers from across West Texas, information that normally would be lost to posterity once the newsprint decays.

The symposium will be held in conjunction with activities at the Ranching Heritage Center on the Texas Tech University campus Sept. 19-20.

LETTER FROM COLLEGE

Orientation week for new students

By H.A. TUCK
Public Relations Director
Midland College

Registration, faculty workshops and orientation for new students combine to make this one of the busiest weeks of the year at Midland College.

Pre-registration winds up Monday and Tuesday in the Office of Student Services, Administration Building, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

Registration is scheduled Wednesday and Thursday in the Physical Education Building. Hours are 10 a.m.-1 p.m. and 4:30-8 p.m. both days. Students who have pre-registered have received their time permits. Those who haven't pre-registered should come to the PE Building between 4:30 and 7 p.m. on Thursday. They will be processed as quickly as possible.

There will not be any registration on Friday, as administrators will be busy making class teaching assignments, working on space availability, and shuffling teaching loads.

Students new to Midland College will have their orientation classes on Monday, Aug. 25, and Friday, Aug. 29. Students who take the orientation should report to the lecture hall in the Allison Fine Arts Building at 8 a.m. either day. They will receive important information from administration and staff members, plus a tour of the campus. At the conclusion of the tour, students are required to answer orientation questions and fill out their degree plans.

New students may attend either session and have until Oct. 31 to turn in their papers, in order to receive a grade for the one-hour course.

In the meantime, new faculty members report on Monday morning for their own orientation session. All faculty members meet Monday afternoon and Tuesday for their workshops, division meetings and departmental meetings. They will assist with registration for two days and then complete their pre-press activities on Friday.

Midland College will be closed Monday, Sept. 1, in observance of Labor Day. Both daytime and evening classes will start on Tuesday, Sept. 2. Late registration also begins that day.

Former Midland College business instructor

Jerri Tittle recently passed all of her CPA examination. Jerri moved to Oklahoma City this spring when her husband was transferred from Midland. Congratulations to Jerri on becoming a Certified Public Accountant!

A few non-traditional plants have been spotted around the campus recently, but you have to look closely to see some of them. A number of hot pepper plants are flourishing in the flower beds. Not only are they attractive, but they add some spice to lunch for the grounds workers who planted them earlier this summer. There also are some watermelons and canteloupes growing in a remote area of the campus, while being watched closely by the employees who have been cultivating them.

All of us at Midland College extend sympathy to Dr. Liz Robinson on the death of her son recently.

Adoption of the 1980-81 budget and setting of the Midland College District's tax rate for the coming year is on the agenda for the regular meeting of the Midland College Board of Trustees at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 26, in the Board Room. The budget was reviewed in June, but the tax valuations weren't complete, so the budget and tax rate could not be officially set until now.

If you are still toying with the idea of taking a course at Midland College, don't wait any longer. Come on out and register for that course or courses you've been thinking about taking. We believe it will be one of the best decisions you've ever made.

Investing in a resort condominium as a second home can make a great deal of sense. There's a great way of life; rental income possibility; outstanding tax benefits; and all the joys of ownership in that the equity builds up as the mortgage is reduced and hopefully the value of the property goes up because of growth and inflation.

ready to move into. Many potential buyers can afford the down payment but simply do not have the ready cash to bear the cost of furnishing it. In some cases, the buyer simply does not have either the time or the inclination to furnish a second home. As the expression implies, all you need to do is turn the key in the door and move right in.

And now there is a new wrinkle in the selling of condominiums. It's called the "turn-key" operation and it is particularly popular in resort areas. When you purchase a brand new condominium, it comes completely furnished and

Fall weather critical to farm, ranch outlook

By CHARLES W. GREEN Midland County Extension Agent - Agriculture

Thunderstorms brought some scattered and local heavy rainfall to parts of Midland and adjoining counties last week. The heaviest rainfall appeared to the east of Midland. It damaged some cotton in the Greenwood community. Crops and ranges are responding to the moisture, but how much benefit will be realized to the current season crop and forage will depend on conditions and follow-up moisture during the next 60 days.

The question in the minds of cotton producers is how much time does it take a square to develop into a mature boll? Indeterminate varieties (those that have an extended fruiting period) may renew growth and continue to set fruit. Determinate varieties (those with a shorter fruiting period) that have set some bolls may "cut out" and cease to fruit. The interval between production of flowers on successive nodes up the main stem of the plant (vertical) is 2 to 3 days, and the interval between successive flowers on the same fruiting branch (horizontal) is 5 to 6 days.

BOLL PERIOD, the days between white bloom and boll opening, is affected by the season. Bolls developing late in the season have a longer boll period than those developing earlier in the season. Boll period is probably temperature controlled, with lower temperatures increasing the boll period.

For example, lengthening of the boll maturation period from an average of 48 days to an average of 68 days was found to be associated with a decrease of 80 degrees F. to 71 degrees in the mean daily average air temperature for the maturation period. In this area, boll periods will generally fall within the following ranges: Date of white bloom, July 1, 45 to 55 days to mature boll; White bloom Aug. 1, 50 to 62 days; white bloom Aug. 15, 55 to 68 days, and white bloom Sept. 1, 60 to 75 days to mature boll. Nov. 6 is average first frost date for Midland County.

Temperature is thought to play an important role in fiber development, particularly in the thickening process. Low temperatures decrease the rate of cellulose deposition, and the resulting fiber will likely be fine and immature. In other words, these factors can result in bad micronaire readings for the lint.

Cotton producers who have received enough rain to renew their crop now need to hope for a long, warm fall, with above-average temperatures, especially at night, and a late killing frost.

IF YOU'D LIKE to try to grow the state flower, the Texas bluebonnet, in the home landscape next spring, seed should be planted as soon as possible. Seeds must be sown by late August if blossoms are wanted next spring.

Late summer planting is essential as bluebonnets are actually winter annuals. They germinate in late summer, exist as a small rosette of leaves throughout the winter while developing a good root system, and then grow rapidly during the spring rainy season (or more likely supplemental irrigation in West Texas).

Many seeds are wasted each year due to improper planting. Just tossing the seed into a grassy area along the road or in the corner of the yard does little else than provide expensive food for birds.

GERMINATION is a problem. Poor germination usually occurs unless something is done to soften the hard seed coat to allow moisture to penetrate it. The often recommended practice of puncturing the seed with a needle or ice pick will sometimes work but is rather time-consuming as well as hard on the hands. Scratching the seed coat between two layers of sandpaper that have been glued to wooden blocks will also help.

To treat large quantities of seed, some commercial landscape companies often mix the seed with sand and tumble the mixture in a cement mixer to scratch the seed coat. Probably the best way for the average gardener is to soak the seed in warm water (about 130 to 150 degrees F.) for a few days, changing the water at least daily until the seed feel soft.

After treating, broadcast the seed on tilled soil, cover with one-fourth to one-half inch of soil, firm the soil and water. Keep the soil moist until seedlings appear - usually in a week to 10 days.

Firebombs kill refugee, hurt one in Germany

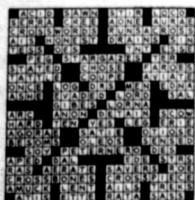

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) - Firebombs killed a Vietnamese man and seriously injured another at a refugee halfway-house here, West German police said Friday.

Officers said slogans reading "Foreigners Out" were smeared on a wall of the building, where 29 Gypsies were taken in Thursday.

Police said Molotov cocktails were flung into a ground-floor room shared by a 22-year-old and an 18-year-old Vietnamese late Thursday. Both were rushed to a nearby hospital, but the 22-year-old died, police said. They did not identify the victims.

Officers did not speculate about the identity of the attackers.

Eight days earlier, a 16-year-old Ethiopian girl was injured when unknown attackers threw explosives into a house in the German-Swiss border town of Loerrach. The girl, who suffered facial cuts, shared the house with seven other Ethiopian refugees, police said.

Cloning mixup may hamper guidelines relaxation

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) - Incidents such as the gene-cloning mixup at the University of California at San Diego may make it difficult to ease federal regulations for recombinant DNA research, says a high-ranking scientist.

Dr. Bernard Talbot, special assistant to the National Institutes of Health director, said Thursday that the foulup in the lab of Dr. Ian Samuel Kennedy earlier this month could set back efforts to relax the guidelines even though they cause no public health hazard.

Kennedy cloned a semliki forest virus while intending to clone a lesser risk sinbis virus.

Talbot said gene-splicing is one of two research techniques regulated on a "speculative" basis, that is, before any hazards have been shown. The other is radioactive isotope research.

The regulations "have been relaxed over the years as experience showed no problems with the techniques," Talbot said.

"Some scientists still feel they are too stringent. But there are people who feel very strongly at the other end of the spectrum and feel we should keep up valid pressure on scientists doing this work," Talbot said.

He also said it was unlikely that the maximum penalty of a funding cutoff would result from a UCSD Biosafety Committee report, due to the NIH Sept. 5.

Another prominent researcher, Dr. Donald Helinski, chairman of the UCSD biology department and an NIH guideline writer, said the mixup in one of his department's labs "can't help arouse anxiety even though there is no safety issue involved."

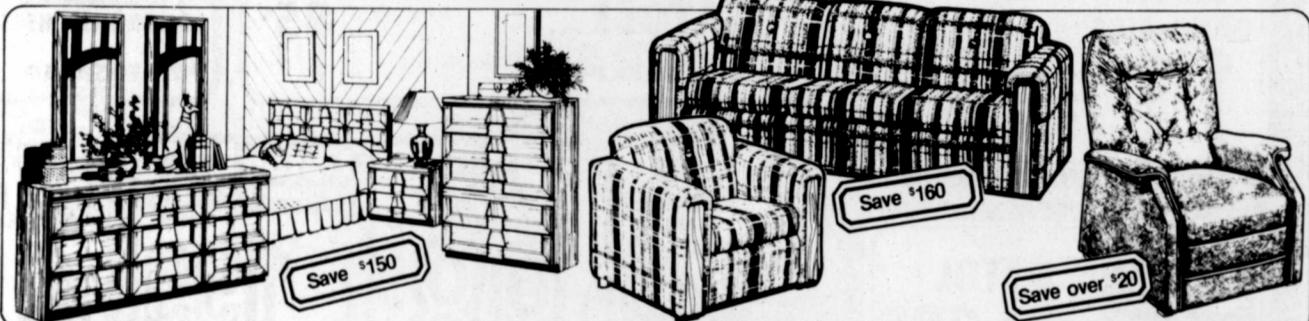

University of California campus police said Wednesday that theft of a rabies vaccine from the same lab Aug. 11, after the accidental cloning of insect virus was reported, apparently was not related to the cloning mixup. They said the rabies theft was a prank.

Kennedy himself had raised the possibility of sabotage in explaining the cloning mixup. He also said he had received anonymous phone calls demanding an end to his work.

Financial aid package can help pay for college

NEW YORK (AP) — While college costs, like everything else, keep going up annually, the amount of financial aid available to foot the bills has also increased dramatically in the past few years. Today there is more than $14 billion in financial aid available from federal, state, institutional and private sources.

Financial aid comes in different forms: grants and scholarships, which don't have to be repaid; loans, which generally carry a low interest rate and are repaid after students graduate or leave school; and employment, usually 10 to 15 hours per week, through which students can earn money to help pay their way.

Most students receive a combination of "package" made up of all three types of aid put together by the college financial aid office. In most cases, colleges, federal and state programs, and private agencies ask families to fill out a financial need analysis form, such as the Financial Aid Form, to determine a student's eligibility for financial aid.

By analyzing the FAF, national services such as the College Scholarship Service of the College Board give colleges an estimate of how much a student and his family can afford to pay based on the family's financial situation. Forms are available in school guidance offices, college aid offices, and public libraries.

The federal government is the largest single source of financial aid. The Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program gives grants directly to students to use at the college of their choice. In 1979-80 full-time students could have received as much as $1,800; an average grant was about $1,050.

To apply for a basic grant, students should file the appropriate financial aid form available from high school guidance offices, college aid offices and public libraries, or from Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program, P.O. Box 84, Washington, D.C. 20044.

Guaranteed Student Loans may be obtained from banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions and, in some cases, colleges. The federal government will pay the interest on such loans until nine months after students leave school.

Most colleges administer several federally funded programs, including:

- The Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant Program, which provides grants of up to $1,500 per year for students who can prove need.

- The College Work-Study Program, which provides jobs for students with need, usually about 10 to 15 hours per week. Employment is usually on campus.

— The National Direct Student Loan Program, which makes loans to students with demonstrated need. Students make no repayments while enrolled. Repayment at 3 percent interest begins nine months after a student graduates or leaves school.

Other federal aid programs are designed to assist students entering certain occupational fields, such as engineering or public service.

Most colleges also administer their own scholarships, grants, loan and work programs. Students really don't have to know all the sources at a college — the financial aid administrator will put the package together.

Almost all of the 50 states sponsor some financial aid programs, and most award aid on the basis of need. Eligibility requirements and procedures vary considerably so students should ask their guidance counselors or college aid officer about state programs or write directly to the state student aid agency.

Some states, like New Jersey which operates the fourth largest aid program in the country and awarded $33 million in grants last year, even provide toll-free financial aid information hot lines.

There are also thousands of special student assistance programs — public and private, local and national, large and small — that offer scholarships, grants and loans to students.

In addition, students can save money through indirect sources of aid like the College Board's Advanced Placement Program and College-Level Examination Program which enable students to earn college credit and either save money by shortening the time it takes to get a degree or enrich their college program. To find out about such programs, families should check books and pamphlets in school or local libraries, ask guidance counselors for suggestions, and check high school bulletin boards regularly for notices.

Two useful sources of information about financial aid programs are:

— "Meeting College Costs," a free booklet available from high school guidance counselors which outlines the financial aid process, funds available from various sources, and eligibility for those funds. Prepared by the College Board, it has worksheets to help families estimate how much they might have to pay toward the college and their eligibility for financial aid.

— "Need a Lift?" lists sources of career, scholarship and loan information for all students and is available from the American Legion, P.O. Box 1055, Indianapolis, Ind. 46206. It is updated annually and costs $1.

Brain tumors pose multiple problems

Dear Dr. Solomon: An uncle of mine recently died as the result of a brain tumor. Although we were not aware of it at the time, the earliest indication of the condition was some difficulty he experienced with his vision. I would like to know how brain tumors are diagnosed, and what can be done about them. — Mr. E.N.

Dear Mr. N.: Brain tumors present a number of difficulties in their diagnosis. One problem is that they can so easily be mistaken for some other conditions. Depending on its location and size, for example, a tumor may cause visual impairment as in your uncle's case, or disturbances of hearing, speech, taste and smell. It can also affect a person's intellectual capacity, emotional adjustment and his or her sense of balance while walking or running.

Headaches, one of the many possible symptoms of a brain tumor, may be steady or intermittent, and the patient may be very sleepy or unusually restless, sleeping very little. Any of these symptoms may appear very gradually or come about quite suddenly. These variations from one patient to another make the diagnosis difficult in many cases.

Sometimes a brain tumor, usually benign, will affect the pituitary gland. This may produce such symptoms as lack of energy, interference with some body functions and changes in vision.

The large majority of brain tumors — as much as 85 percent — occur in adults, usually in those 50 to 60 years of age. Among children, most brain tumors occur between five and 10 years of age, with more than half resulting in death.

Of greatest concern is the question of malignancy. A malignant tumor may spread through so much brain tissue that it cannot be removed and, eventually, results in death. Even a benign tumor if treated may expand within the skull to the point where it destroys nerve centers that are essential to life. Often, however, a benign brain tumor can be removed completely by surgery. In all instances, early diagnosis generally means a more favorable prognosis.

While many benign brain tumors can be treated successfully by surgery alone, malignant tumors frequently require the use of drugs and radiotherapy as well. Radiotherapy alone may provide some relief, if for some reason surgery cannot be performed. The goal is to destroy as many tumor cells as possible without damaging healthy cells.

A great deal of research is being devoted to finding drugs that may be used to treat brain tumors, either by killing the tumor directly or by making it more susceptible to the effects of radiotherapy. Many brain tumors are not sensitive to X-rays, and a drug that would make them so would constitute a real research breakthrough.

Fortunately, brain tumors are not very common. Fewer than 10,000 people die from the condition each year, and about 150,000 suffer some crippling from their effects. Compared with the number of deaths from other diseases or from accidents, these figures are not very high. The best guarantee of early diagnosis and cure of brain tumors is periodic physical examinations.

Atlanta police hunting black children's killers

By WILLIAM SCHULZ

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta police don't know if they're looking for one "very sick person" or several killers. But six black children have been shot, strangled or stabbed to death in little more than a year, and the size of the task force investigating the slayings has been doubled.

The latest victim was 13-year-old Clifford Jones of Cleveland, who was visiting his grandmother here. He was found strangled Thursday.

Four other children from the area have disappeared. One was kidnapped from her home, but there was no demand for ransom.

"We have not been able to tell that the cases involve one person," said homicide Lt. B.L. Nelkirk. "We haven't solved the cases or determined the motive involved. But this is an abnormally large number of such cases since July (1979)."

One link, he said is that "all the cases involved young, black people under the age of 15."

"Obviously, we've got a very sick person out there," Police Chief George Napper said during a news conference to announce that the task force investigating the deaths had been beefed up to 10 officers. Napper also said the city has asked the Georgia Bureau of Investigation and the FBI to step in.

"The police department has finally acted in this responsible manner," said Camille Bell, chairwoman of The Committee to Stop Children's Murders, formed by several mothers of dead or missing children.

"I think the one thing we want to do is to create an interest in this in the police department," she said. "I'm sure they are working, but if they focus their attention, they can solve it."

The slayings began in July 1979, when Edward Hope Smith, 14, was found shot to death. Three months later, Yusef Bell, 9, was found strangled. Angela Lanier, 12, was found strangled March 10. Eric Middlebrooks, 15, was found stabbed and beaten to death in May. Anthony Bernard Carter, 9, was found stabbed to death in July.

In addition, the decomposed body of 14-year-old Milton Harvey of Atlanta was found in suburban East Point in November. Cause of death could not be determined.

Jones was strangled while hunting aluminum cans for pocket money Wednesday, officials said. Searchers found his body, clad only in his gym shorts, near a trash dumpster at 1 a.m. Thursday.

His mother, Eunice Jones, said she hadn't expected him to be traveling alone because he had been warned about the rash of missing and dead children.

She said that during a visit to Atlanta earlier this year, Clifford and his brother had stumbled over the body of a slain man during one of their collection expeditions. The incident so frightened the youth he did not want to go on collecting for a while, she said.

Nursing home transformed into cruise ship of fantasy

By TAMARA JONES

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Amid balloons and bon voyage banners, nurses in sailor caps danced to "Anchors Aweigh" from a tinny piano and "shipmates" alternately poured out watered-down champagne and afternoon medication in tiny paper cups.

Once a year, the Palmcrest House transforms itself from nursing home to the HMS Palmcrest cruise ship, bound for faraway ports in an elaborate fantasy designed to "shake people out of the rut" of old age. The average age of the patients is 86.

During this week's "voyage," a "passenger" who said he hated parties tapped his spoon in time to the music. An old woman wept as she sat in her wheelchair, unable to reach a blue balloon at her slipped feet. Another shredded her passport "because I look like hell." Others showered the "captain" with kisses and tears.

"I can't guarantee that everyone knows what's going on," says Dr. Julian Feingold, director of the home, "but I can guarantee that everyone feels."

The annual three-day "voyage," which ends today, is a mandatory masquerade for all but the sickest of Palmcrest's 400 residents.

"This is therapeutic, not just fun," Feingold says. "We are adventuring. We get tremendous emotional reactions from this."

The cruise is meant "to stimulate them and shake out those lost feelings....All this commotion gives them a feeling of importance. It interrupts the chilling humdrum of institutional life," he says.

In summers past, HMS Palmcrest has set sail for Acapulco, Jamaica and Japan. On its cruise last week, Samoa and China were on the itinerary.

Many of the "passengers" are in wheelchairs; others use walkers or canes. But they festooned the Palmcrest dining hall with banners and crepe paper, balloon bouquets, carefully painted paper portholes with ocean views, jeweled fans, paper lanterns and a papier mache Chinese dragon.

"There is a stereotype — and it's wrong — that old people aren't creative," Feingold says. "The residents made all these decorations."

To complete the fantasy, there's a roast pig for the captain's banquet, a royal visit by the King and Queen of Samoa — alias recreation director and nurse's aide — professional flame torch dancers and acrobats, a six-piece orchestra for today's farewell party "even though no one is able to dance," a casino and bingo room and dolies of empty luggage to add authenticity.

Not all the residents understand the hullabaloo, Feingold says, "but everyone has an awareness...they pick up the feeling of the party. I think they all know it's simulated."

Some balked at the innovative game of let's pretend, objecting to the break in their routines, the noise, the food or the band.

But that's a good sign, too, Feingold says. "We can't let them surrender. It's psychosocial dynamics that make a good hospital. So many places are just too happy to let them sit in their wheelchairs. We have to motivate and push like heck."

A stroke victim, 79-year-old Beatrice Clark, wheels her chair into Feingold's office and she asks her if she is having fun. She answers that she's from New Haven, then, "No, no, Hartford, Connecticut."

Again, Feingold asks how she's enjoying the trip.

"When you think you've been places," she says, her mouth struggling with each word, "when you think you've been places, why, then you've really been there."

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A 67-year-old retired funeral home director who supposedly raised marijuana plants "as a diversion," has been fined $1,000 and placed on two years' probation for possession of 400 plants.

Henry Zopf was sentenced after pleading guilty in district court.

Defense lawyer Cynthia Spinola said Zopf started gardening after he retired. "He needed a diversion and turned to growing marijuana."

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — For 30 years, doctors have put their stethoscopes to the chests of the people of Framingham. What they've heard is the heart of America.

Every couple of years, 11,200 men and women have loyally appeared at a white clapboard house with a sign out front that says Framingham Heart Study. They are subjects in the longest-running medical investigation in the history of man's search for what's killing him.

Since 1950, this study has looked for reasons why some people stay healthy and some get heart disease, the most common cause of death in America. Over that time, it has compiled an indictment of the country's favorite vices.

Through thousands of checkups and interviews, doctors spotted the coronary risks in the rich diets, the sedentary ways, the paunchy bellies and the smoking habits of the American people.

When these researchers began to identify these dangers in articles in medical journals, the word spread and became the gospel of good health. Now Americans jog, watch their weight and eat more wisely. And the health of their hearts has improved.

Although they freely share credit with later studies conducted elsewhere, the doctors in Framingham think they deserve much of the credits for Americans' preoccupation with their hearts.

"We have persuaded many people that this is very likely a disease of lifestyle and that the fate of the potential heart attack victim really lies in his own hands," said Dr. William Kannel, 56, a professor at Boston University Medical School, which runs the program with the National Heart, Lung and Blood

Institute. When Kannel joined the study a year after it began, Framingham was a town of 28,000. The medical investigators enrolled 5,200 of them, half of the men and women in town between the ages of 30 and 62.

Every two years since then, these people have gone in for hour-long sessions of prodding and questioning and measuring. Those who moved away stop in for checkups when they return for a visit to this town — whose population is now 75,000 — 20 miles west of Boston. The study has lost track of only 2 percent of them.

Over the years, 2,000 of the subjects have died. Like Americans everywhere, half of them succumbed to heart disease.

Eight years ago, the Framingham Heart Study enrolled a second generation, about 6,000 sons and daughters of the original group.

After the checkup — consisting of an interview, treadmill and resting electrocardiograms, a sonar examination of the heart, blood tests and measurements of height, weight and lung capacity — the researchers share the results with the patients' personal physicians.

Kannel says people keep coming back out of a sense of pride and responsibility. "But also New Englanders are quite frugal," he added. "They know when they're getting something pretty good for free."

When the study began, little was known about why some people die of heart attacks and others stay healthy. So doctors tested theories.

Eventually, they sketched a profile of the likely heart attack victim — the fat, hard-driven man who eats lots of salt, loves fatty food, smokes cigarettes and never exercises, yet feels well and has no inkling of impending disaster.

Then they developed a mathematical formula that allows doctors to use checkup results to calculate the risk of heart trouble for patients.

Among the Framingham findings:

—Even a little high blood pressure is dangerous, and it is not a natural consequence of growing old.

—The risk of heart disease increases with the number of cigarettes smoked daily and with high levels of cholesterol in the blood.

—The chance of sudden death from heart disease triples among people who are 20 percent overweight.

—Very sedentary men are three times more likely to suffer heart attacks than are those who stay active.

Glare from the sun lights up the walls of the huge underground room being constructed at Midland's Permian Basin Petroleum Museum. Part of a new museum wing to be opened in 1981, the room will house a motion picture projector and what may be the world's largest mirror, both needed for special effects in an exhibit.

Sid Richardson Foundation gives $250,000 to Petroleum Museum

The Sid W. Richardson Foundation, Fort Worth, has granted $250,000 to the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Midland, for use in a major construction project.

Announcement of the gift was made in Midland today by Russell J. Ramsland, museum president. The funds will be used in a 40% expansion of the museum's exhibit space and for exhibits in the addition.

Total cost of the planned "North Wing" with all equipment, is expected to exceed $1.3 million.

Ramsland referred to the foundation grant as a "very big stepping stone" toward full funding of the project. Construction of the wing began in December and a late September completion is expected. Building of exhibits began in June, but opening of the wing is not scheduled until the first part of 1981.

The Sid W. Richardson Foundation, a major institution in Texas since 1947, gave substantial support to the original museum project during its 1973-75 construction period.

The museum president said that the foundation's decision to assist with the new project was an "extremely generous thing for which everyone interested in the museum and in West Texas is grateful."

The late Sid W. Richardson, creator of the foundation, was one of the most successful of Texas' early-day oil wildcaters. He had numerous discoveries in the western part of the state following a period in which he overcame numerous difficulties to establish himself as a producer. Later, in Fort Worth, he expanded both his oil enterprises and numerous other ventures and made a national reputation for himself as a risk-taking entrepreneur.

Douce: Positive search for domestic energy increasing

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — William C. Douce says there is ample evidence of stepped-up activity to increase the search for domestic energy supplies.

Douce, president and chief executive officer of Phillips Petroleum Co., says oil companies like Phillips have said repeatedly that if government price controls were removed from crude oil and natural gas the marketplace would provide the economic incentives needed to increase the energy search.

"That's exactly what's happening," he said. "Decontrol has started." Even though complete decontrol of oil is more than a year and removal of all controls for natural gas is further in the future, he said, there's ample evidence of stepped up activity.

For example, Douce said, the oil industry at the beginning of 1980 was expected to spend some $35 billion during the year just for U.S. petroleum exploration and development.

"That represented about an 18 percent boost over spending in the previous year," he said.

"Now, half way through the year, Phillips and other companies are raising their U.S. exploration and production budgets once again. So the estimate for the year has been pushed up to $37.5 billion."

Writing in the August edition of Philnews, an employee-stockholder publication, Douce said it also was projected at the start of the year that for all of 1983 the number of drilling rigs at work in the United States would be 11 percent above 1979.

"However, by the end of June, drilling rig activity was actually up 33 percent," he said. "This rising drilling trend is causing some industry authorities to feel that the industry's all-time record set in 1955 is about to be broken."

The latest weekly survey of active rotary drilling rigs had 3,050 rigs in operation, the highest weekly average since a record 3,137 average was recorded in late 1955.

Douce also said early year projections indicated oil companies would drill about 56,000 new wells this year, about 11 percent more than in 1979.

"Recently that estimate was raised to a 16 percent increase and again it looks like another industry record... will be broken this year," he said.

Midyear forecasts by two major trade publications indicate 1980 well completions will exceed the record 58,160 set in 1956.

The Oil & Gas Journal reported its new 1980 projection of 59,101 represents a hefty revision of company drilling plans as indicated in late 1979.

World Oil made a 56,000 projection in January for 1980 but now says that figure appears to be "almost pessimistic." It now estimates 60,958 completions this year because of increasing prices for both oil and gas, especially oil.

Douce said that while it will take several years to translate the exploration boom into actual oil production, people are already beginning to comment on the probable outcome.

There have been, he said, headlines saying the decline in domestic production has been reversed while other headlines have said output continues to slide despite the increased drilling.

"Where U.S. oil production is likely to go probably lies somewhere between the optimistic predictions and the pessimistic forecasts," Douce said.

"Today, U.S. crude oil production is declining and we are using up our oil faster than we are finding new reserves. Roughly, we are using two barrels of oil for every one we find."

But, he added, the debate over how decontrol will alter the course of U.S. crude oil production and reserves is not important.

"The important point is that with increased exploration and production we can expect U.S. crude oil production and reserves to decline at a much slower rate than he past," Douce said.

"Without the anticipated new U.S. production, our dependence on imported oil would be even greater."

RRC warns subcommittee water tables endangered

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The Texas Railroad Commission warned that its half-century record of effectively protecting fresh water sources could be replaced by red tape and costly and burdensome paperwork if underground injection controls proposed by the federal Environmental Protection Agency are implemented.

The view of the petroleum regulatory authority of the country's Number 1 producing state was laid before the House Subcommittee on Health and Environment by Jerry W. Mullican, director of the Commission's UIC program.

Mullican testified in support of a bill by Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas. The bill (HR-4509) would prevent the disruption of the state UIC programs without a positive finding by the EPA administrator that those programs are ineffective.

Mullican said the RRC's injection controls program was initiated in 1939 - "over 40 years before the EPA started giving 'how-to' lessons" - and "has been and is effective."

The RRC witness reported more than 700,000 wells have been drilled in Texas and in excess of 43 billion barrels of oil produced "without despoiling our environment."

Mullican further explained: "For over 50 years the Commission has enforced drilling, completion, and abandonment rules designed to protect the state's fresh waters. We establish casing and cementing requirements for all wells, inspect and order repairs to faulty wells and order the plugging of abandoned wells..."

Today, he related, Texas has some 46,000 injection wells and an estimated 99 percent of all fluids produced in the state are reinjected.

"This, in itself, has contributed greatly to the improvement of water quality by greatly reducing the use of unlined pits and ponds for salt water storage and disposal," he cited.

Pits, which did affect Texas water quality adversely, were prohibited by the Commission in 1969, he added.

More than 31,000 inspections by Commission field personnel in 1979 involved specific pollution-related investigations and activities, he reported.

Despite the RRC record and the nation's need for oil and gas, emphasized Mullican, the UIC regulations promulgated by the EPA "will saddle our agency and our taxpayers with additional layers of unnecessary red tape, administrative delays and expense."

Mullican continued: "Technical review of 38,000 injection wells will have to be accomplished at the rate of one every 17 minutes of each working day."

Over 8,000 disposal wells will have to be re-permitted at the rate of one every 42 minutes.

- Monitoring reports to be reviewed by the agency will number in the hundreds of thousands and will be impossible to review except by machine.

"At a time when taxpayers want less government and less bureaucracy, just two federal programs (UIC and the Natural Gas Policy Act) will increase the staffing of our Oil and Gas Division by 25 percent and the budget by 23 percent," Mullican divulged.

"But it is not only the additions to, but also the conflicts with our existing program which concerns me. The circulation of draft permits, for example, is inconsistent with our state's administrative procedures act. Notice requirements, comment periods and similar administrative details are out of step with state requirements and will require the establishment of an entirely new set of procedures and deadlines from those of every other proceeding of the (RRC's) Oil and Gas Division."

Gerald E. Stengl

Stengl named division boss

Harken Oil & Gas has announced the assignment of Gerald E. Stengl as division exploration manager, with primary responsibility for West Texas and New Mexico. The new office is located in Midland.

Stengl was formerly employed by Shell Oil Co. and more recently with Natamex North America in Midland. He is a member of the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists and is publications chairman of the southwest section of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

Stengl received his Master's degree from the University of Texas.

IPAA files suit against tax

A legal suit to overturn the Windfall Profit Oil Excise Tax has been filed by a legal committee put together by the Independent Petroleum Association of America and the Mountain States Legal Foundation. The suit was brought in the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals in Casper, Wyoming, because it's believed that court would be much friendlier than the Fifth Circuit Court in New Orleans.

The suit is based on the theory that all taxings "take." When the government takes taxes, the taxpayer gets fair compensation in the form of government services. James Watt, President of the Mountain States Legal Foundation, said the oil excise tax has been levied on one specific group without any pretense of just compensation and violates the U.S. Constitution. The Fifth Amendment prohibits taking property without compensation.

In other tax news, a Windfall Profit Tax on gas has been proposed. The chief economist for the Joint Tax Committee of Congress, James Wetzler, will call for the tax on natural gas in the September issue of the National Tax Journal. Wetzler calls for gas decontrol coupled with an excise tax on the so-called windfall. Recent increases in world oil prices make a $35 barrel of oil equal to gas at $6 per thousand cubic feet. The current ceiling prices in the U.S., however, is only $2.50 per mcf. About 50 percent of the gas will be decontrolled in 1985. Wetzler proposes to tax the decontrolled gas and make an appropriate distribution of offsetting tax cuts.

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association said more than a year ago that if the oil excise tax passed, natural gas would be next.

Reed reports slight drop in Basin rotary rig count

Drilling activity in the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico showed a slight drop of seven operations, as Reed Rock Bit Co. counted 328 rigs making hole in the two-state area last week.

The previous weeks tally showed 335 rigs going, while a year ago at this time the Reed survey counted 266 rigs.

Lea County, N.M., lead the survey with 48 rigs, adding one unit from the previous count.

Eddy County picked up two operations as the Reed survey counted 34 rigs making hole.

Pecos County, the West Texas leader, reported 17 rigs going, a decrease of two from the last count.

Andrews and Crockett counties each reported 14 units working.

Complete drilling activity as recorded on the Reed survey is listed in the table below.

Texas operators file applications

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission's Natural Gas Policy Act Section reported that as of Aug. 8 Texas oil and gas operators have filed 26,125 applications for determinations of new gas well production and pricing categories under the federal Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978.

The Commission initiated the well classification program in Dec. 1978 pursuant to NGPA mandate and guidelines set forth by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Under the federal rules and corresponding RRC policies, the section is responsible for processing applications filed by operators requesting gas well determinations under one of five different producing categories of the NGPA.

Operator applications are reviewed through section statistical checklists and are brought before the Commission for final action.

Through Aug. 8, the Commission has approved 14,786 applications for the requested NGPA producing categories, according to the section report. Seven applications have been denied.

A total of 14,089 of the applications have been transmitted to the FERC. The federal agency has the power to reverse or remand applications acted on and transmitted by the RRC. Another 473 applications are in a micro-filing status before being sent to the FERC.

The NGPA Section report gives the following breakdown of categories applied for by operators and those finally approved by the Commission.

1) 11,072 applications for determinations under NGPA Section 108 for stripper well natural gas from wells producing an average of no more than 60,000 cubic feet per production day. The Commission has approved 7,267 of the applications.

2) 11,384 applications for determinations under Section 103--new on-shore production wells drilled after Feb. 19, 1977. The RRC has approved 6,161.

3) 2,432 applications for Section 102 (c)(1)(C)--wells drilled in new on-shore reservoirs. A total of 1,017 have been approved.

4) 908 applications for determinations under Section 102 (c)(1)(B)--gas from wells meeting distance requirements from other wells. A total of 292 of the applications have been approved.

Oil and gas discoveries reported

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 18 - Texas operators reported 83 gas and 40 oil discoveries during the August 1-15, 1980, period, the Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division announced.

In the year-earlier period, 53 gas and 28 oil discoveries were filed with the state's energy regulatory agency.

Through the first seven and one-half months of 1980, operators have reported 914 gas and 461 oil discoveries, against 806 gas and 297 oil discoveries in the year-earlier period.

Successful exploratory and field completions in the seven and a half months of 1980 total 7,614 oil and 3,354 gas, against 4,984 oil and 3,480 gas completions in the same period last year.

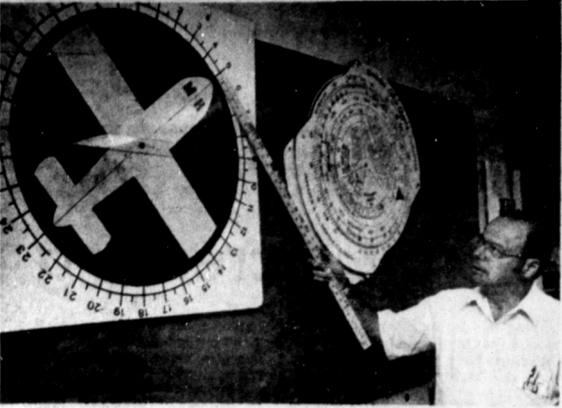

Gas discoveries in the first half of August included 23 in deep South Texas, 19 in the Refugio area, 18 in Southeast Texas, 7 in West Central Texas, 4 in the Midland area, 3 in the San Angelo area, and 1 in East Texas.

Oil discoveries included 9 in West

Central Texas, 7 in Southeast Texas, 5 in the San Angelo area, 3 each in deep South Texas and the San Antonio, Refugio and Midland areas, 2 each in East Texas, North Texas and the Lubbock area, and 1 in the Panhandle.

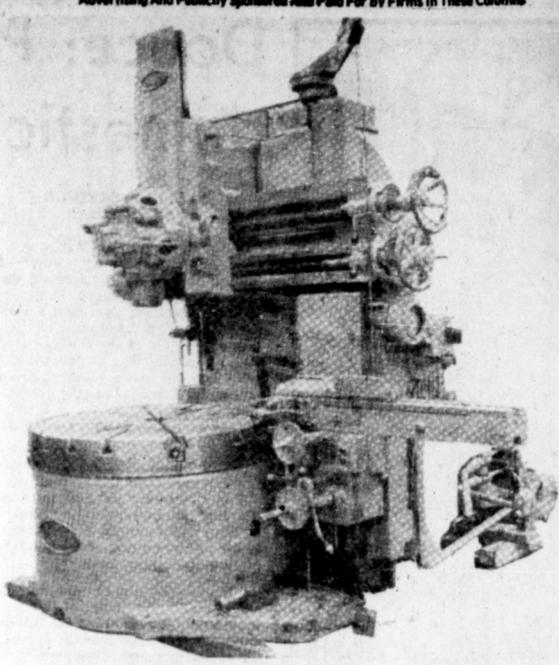

In the Aug. 1-15 period, operators reported 85 exploratory and field tests wound up as dry hole.

New application for permits to drill oil and gas tests totaled 1,272 in the first half of August compared with 1,035 in the same period of 1979.

Senators fight sale of Russian cars here

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators from two leading auto-producing states are pressing for legislation that prevent a New York company from selling Russian-made cars in the United States. "We take strong exception to the prospect of opening the U.S. market to the Soviets at a time when our own auto industry is suffering its worst depression in history and with fully one-third of our autoworkers unemployed," Democrats Thomas Eagle-ton of Missouri and Birch Bayh of Indiana say. Their concern is prompted by efforts of the Satra Corp. of New York to obtain certification of the Russian-made Lada from the Environmental Protection Agency for importation into the United States. The Lada, a compact car, is currently being sold in Canada, some European countries including England and some African countries.

New tariffs in effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharply higher U.S. import duties on small trucks went into effect today, a day after a federal judge here ruled against efforts to temporarily delay the tariff. The new charge could add up to $1,000 to the price of the vehicles if the extra cost were passed on to consumers.

R.O. "Jack" Major, president of MGF Oil Corp. announced that MGF Equipment Ltd. — 1980, a Texas limited partnership, has been formed to own and operate four National diesel electric land drilling rigs.

Two of the rigs will have depth capabilities of 18,000 feet while the other two will have depth capabilities of 25,000 feet.

MGF Oil Corp. is general partner of the partnership.

The partnership has been funded with $8,100,000 provided by limited partners, $1,500,000 provided by MGF, as general partner, and approximately $21,360,000 in bank financing.

PBGC offers course

The Permian Basin Graduate Center will offer a five-day "Well Control School" from Sept. 1 through Sept. 5.

Classes will meet from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the PBGC Building, 105 W. Illinois. Instructors will be chosen from the faculty of Prentice & Records Enterprises, Inc. in Lafayette, La.

The course is designed to teach a thorough understanding of well control techniques. The program is U.S.G.S. certified to meet all job classifications designated in the GSS T-1 Control Training Standard.

The school covers basic and advanced topics in well control in a practical, understandable manner. It is heavily weighted with day-to-day kick situations, and provides a modern, proven well control technology that has been field tested worldwide.

It includes hands-on training of units that simulate regular well kicks, one or several kicks, gas or salt water kicks, lost circulation, blowout preventer failures, gas migration, plugged nozzles, and variable amounts of annular friction loss.

Fee for the class is $500. For more information or registration, call the Graduate Center at 563-2311.

Major said it is anticipated that two of the rigs will operate in the Permian Basin, one in the Rocky Mountains, and one in Louisiana.

Refiners cope with market

TULSA, Okla. — Major U.S. refiners are managing to cope with burgeoning crude and product inventories during the current slack crude market, although at heavy cost, Oil & Gas Journal says in its Aug. 18 issue.

The majors seem more comfortable with the current surplus than they might have been before the 1978 Iranian revolution that quickly wiped out a surplus that had developed throughout that year.

Having undergone that near-crisis, refiners apparently would rather grapple with the problems of oversupply than face the dangerously low stock levels that hit the U.S. early in 1979 as a result of Iran's production cutoff, the Journal says.

To deal with the 1980 surplus, refiners are cutting crude runs to stills, selling some surplus crude, and banking the rest. Some refiners are holding crude in floating storage.

And the lower refinery operating levels are forcing crude and products pipelines to cut throughputs. Pipeline operators contacted by the Journal say throughout this year will be significantly less than last year. One operator estimates the decline will be as great as 50 percent.

The Journal says some industry observers believe the crude and product surplus has peaked, which would relieve worries that stocks are straining the nation's storage capacity. Yet high levels of stocks likely will persist.

Imports are declining, but importing companies won't cancel so many deliveries that they risk losing supply sources. And what once was considered excessive stocks levels may become the norm as refiners guard against future disruptions in the international crude market, the weekly business magazine says.

Meanwhile, crude and product markets continue to soften. Wholesale and retail prices are dropping. According to government sources, refiners' banks of unrecouped costs under gasoline price control rules total about $8 billion.

Key to the surplus is declining U.S. demand for crude and products. Conservation, high prices, and slowing economic activity have cut use of the major petroleum products in the U.S.

On July 25, total U.S. crude and products demand was estimated at 16.2 million barrels per day, lowest since May 1976.

At the same time, U.S. production of crude and condensate has turned up, totaling 8.7 million barrels per day July 25.

Much of the current crude and products surplus results from a buildup of stocks that began after the Iranian revolution under refiner strategies that likely will continue, the Journal says.

No refiner wants to get trapped with low inventories the next time the world crude-supply chain snaps.

In the long run, crude purchase contracts will have to be adjusted to fit the changing patterns in the international market, the Journal says. But in the meantime, refiners probably will honor contracts even when they don't need the crude, which will keep stocks high.

Partnership considered

WHITE PLAINS, N.M.

John K. McKinley, president and chief operating officer of Texaco Inc. and T. B. Pickens Jr., chairman, president and chief executive officer of Mesa Petroleum Co., announced that Texaco and Mesa have agreed in principle to the formation of a limited partnership to explore for oil and gas on approximately 1.9 million net acres of undeveloped exploratory oil and gas leases held by Mesa in the U.S. and offshore U.S. It is anticipated the partnership will acquire additional acreage as a result of its ongoing exploration program.

transaction, which the parties value at approximately $600 million, Mesa will contribute approximately 1.9 million acres of leaseholds to the partnership for its 75 percent interest. Texaco's contribution for its 25 percent interest will be in the form of cash.

Mesa will be the general partner and Texaco will be limited partner. Mesa will manage the partnership and its exploration and development programs, in consultation with Texaco. Expenditures during the first six years are expected to be at least $100 million per year.

It was also announced that Texaco intends to purchase $150 million of Cumulative Preferred Stock to be issued by Mesa. In addition, Mesa has agreed to grant Texaco certain rights with respect to purchases of Mesa's future crude oil and natural gas liquids production.

Commenting on the arrangements, Mr. McKinley said: "Texaco is pleased with the agreement with Mesa Petroleum. This offers an opportunity for further increases in Texaco's U.S. exploration activities which are in addition to the already expanded program announced in June U.S. exploration is a major thrust of Texaco and is considered essential in reducing the nation's overdependence on imported oil."

Mr. Pickens also expressed enthusiasm for the partnership. He said, "Mesa has always carried large inventories of high quality exploration acreage and has been successful in its exploration efforts, replacing production and adding to its reserve base for 16 consecutive years." Mr. Pickens further commented that, "The additional funds from the partnership will be used by Mesa to increase the pace of its already aggressive exploration program."

OSU receives grant

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — The Department of Energy's Bartlesville Energy Technology Center (BETC) has awarded an $80,000 research contract to Okla. State Univ. in Stillwater to study the biodegradation of chemical compounds used in enhanced oil recovery operations.

The project is directed by Dr. Mary Gruls, OSU biology professor. Michael Crocker, a research chemist in BETC's Environmental Technology section, is DOE's technical project officer.

The Bartlesville Center is DOE's lead petroleum production research facility.

Gruls and other OSU researchers will complete biodegradability testing of certain enhanced oil recovery (EOR) chemicals on hand from other research efforts and will acquire additional field samples for testing.

EOR chemicals are now being used on a limited scale to help loosen and "push" to the well-bore oil that remains in certain types of reservoirs which have undergone primary and secondary recovery (usually waterflooding) methods.

Crocker says the eventual goal of the OSU project and other related research projects sponsored by BETC is to develop enhanced recovery chemicals that do not break down under reservoir conditions and that, as a result, do a better job of recovering the remaining oil.

In addition to the research mentioned, OSU will also perform other related work, including the development of a "microbe bank" of microorganisms that biodegrade of the EOR chemical compounds.

The one year project is scheduled for completion by June 30, 1981.

Survey says attendance up

Visitation at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum was up during the first seven months of the year over the same period in 1979.

A survey of more than 500 museum visitors, made last month and in early August, showed that about 75% were from more than 100 miles away, and 44% were from out-of-state or foreign countries. A surprising 6% came from other nations.

The survey showed also that 69% of those surveyed came to Midland-Odessa by highway, and 28% by air. Approximately 61% of museum visitors are spending at least one night in Midland, it was shown.

The museum, in releasing the numbers, stressed that the percentage of distant visitors changes from month to month. Based on earlier studies, the percentage varies between about 40% and 70% during the year.

A mass mailing to approximately 2,000 firms and travel clubs that organize U.S. tours is being made by the museum. This year a Canadian tour company scheduled stops at the museum on a regular basis, the first to do so.

Officials of the federal agency said public comments on the document should be sent to the BLM's Roswell office by Sept. 15.

According to the BLM's Roswell district manager James "Smoky" O'Connor, the environmental assessment is required by the National Environmental Protection Act of 1970, and is designed to identify environmental impacts associated with oil and gas activities and to identify measures to protect or rehabilitate other resources.

The document also analyzes ways of reducing government processing time when dealing with energy-related activities on public lands.

Copies of the document have been sent to selected oil and gas companies and associations, as well as to other interest groups, O'Connor said.

Limited copies are available from the BLM's Roswell office, 1717 W. Second St., or may be reviewed at public libraries.

Amoco finals two gas discoveries

CHICAGO, Ill. — Marketable deposits of natural gas have been discovered 150 miles northeast of the city of Chicago, Ill., in a pair of wildcat wells drilled by Amoco Production Co., the U.S. exploration and production subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

George H. Galloway, president of Amoco Production Co., said the two discovery wells suggest an expansion of the Niagara Reef trend in Michigan, which Amoco Production has explored extensively over the past several years, resulting in substantial production of both crude oil and natural gas.

These two wells are between recognized northern and southern portions of the popular geologic interpretation of the trend, but Galloway stressed that neither well has been completed and only preliminary test have been conducted.

Amoco's No. 1-11 Miller-Fox, located near New Era north of Muskegon in Oceana County, Michigan, found 245 net feet of pay. It flowed high sulfur content natural gas at a rate of 3.875 million cubic feet per day with 51 barrels of condensate through a 26/64-inch choke during a 24-hour test.

Amoco Production is the operator and has 100 percent interest in the well until payout, then 50 percent. Other interest owners are Miller Oil Co. and McClure Oil Co., each with 25 percent after payout.

The second well, Amoco's No. 1-22 Isley, near Shelby, also in Oceana County, Michigan, found 29 net feet of pay. It flowed at the rate of two million cubic feet of natural gas per day with 414 barrels of condensate through a 30/64-inch choke. Amoco Production is operator of this well also with 100 percent interest until payout when Michigan Oil Co. assumes 18.75 percent interest.

The test rates compare favorably with those of other discovery wells in Michigan.

The interval tested in the Miller-Fox well is from 3,658 to 3,673 feet, and in the Isley well from 3,937 to 3,946 feet. The wells are drilled to total depths of 3,737 and 5,065 feet, respectively.

Installation of a processing facility will be required to produce pipeline quality gas by removing sulfur from the production.

Vickers Energy to be sold

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Vickers Energy Corp. will be sold in three parts for $1.1 billion with Mobil Corp. and Total Petroleum Inc. the principal buyers.

Esmark, which owns Vickers Energy, announced the sale Thursday, but identified only one of the buyers, Total Petroleum Inc., headquartered in Alma, Mich.

Total announced Thursday it had purchased Vickers Petroleum, the Wichita-based subsidiary specializing in refining and gasoline marketing, for about $245 million in cash and an undetermined amount for working capital at the time of closing.

Although Esmark declined to identify the buyers of its two other divisions, The New York Times reported that Mobil Corp. was the winning bidder for TransOcean Oil, a Houston exploration and production company with large oil and gas reserves. Mobil's offer was $715 million, the Times reported.

The buyer of a third Esmark subsidiary, Doric Petroleum, a small gas-processing operation in Oklahoma, was not identified.

Trained workers a must

DENVER, Colo. — Availability of trained oil field personnel will be a "make or break" factor in the nation's energy drive this decade, an oil production and drilling expert said today.

More than 85,000 wells are expected to be drilled annually in the late 1980's, according to Homer H. Hershey, senior vice president of production and contract drilling for Mitchell Energy Corp. This year, more than 60,000 wells will be drilled, he said here in an address to a marketing conference of the International Association of Drilling Contractors and Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association.

As the drilling activity increases, the need for trained personnel will grow, Hershey said. However, he added, the industry already is encountering a shortage of experienced oil field personnel.

Twenty years ago, there was no lack of trained people, Hershey explained. "In the late '50s and '60s, the tool pusher was a seasoned veteran with many years of experience; the mud engineer likewise," he said. "The cementing company, the logging company and other related services at the wellsite, in general, had an equal amount of experience. The company representatives with five to ten years experience was the 'worm' on location."

"Contrast that with today's situation in our high level of activity in the 80's: the man with five years of experience virtually has all the whiskers," Hershey commented.

Service firms with highly trained personnel will be in an excellent position to capture a large share of the market, he emphasized.

Quality and price will continue to be key factors, Hershey said. However, "the companies with experienced people will command an above average share of the drilling business during the 80's," he predicted.

The Mitchell executive recommended that the major and independent petroleum companies, service firms and industry trade associations work together with community colleges, high schools and vocational centers to develop oil field training programs.

Companies order 150,000 tons of pipe

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — More than 150,000 tons of steel pipe, valued in excess of $110 million, have been ordered by U.S. pipeline companies building a western delivery system that will transport up to 300 million cubic feet per day of surplus natural gas from Alberta, Canada to southern California.

The project, which involves more than 500 miles of pipeline expansion in the Pacific Northwest, is an integral part of the Alaskan Natural Gas Transportation System, according to John G. McMillian, chairman and chief executive officer of Northwest Alaskan Pipeline Co. principal U.S. sponsor.

McMillian said the western delivery system will be comprised of 160 miles of 42-inch diameter pipeline looped to the existing Pacific Gas Transmission Co. (PGT) system between Kingsgate, British Columbia and Stanfield, Oregon, and expansion of existing facilities of Northwest Pipeline Corp. and El Paso Natural Gas Co. in Oregon, Idaho, Colorado and New Mexico. Construction will begin this fall with completion set for the early fall of 1981.

Northwest Pipeline will be adding some 351 miles of pipeline to its system between Stanfield, Oregon, where it interconnects with the PGT system, and a point 14 miles east of Burley, Idaho. The company has placed an order with Kaiser Steel Co. in California for approximately 70,000 tons of coated steel pipe at an estimated cost of $52 million. Included in the order is approximately 100 miles of 30-inch diameter pipe (25,000 tons) and about 251 miles of 24-inch pipe (44,700 tons), he said.

PGT has ordered approximately 81,000 tons of 42-inch diameter pipe from two U.S. suppliers.

RRC overrules Lone Star's motion for rehearing

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission today overruled a motion for a rehearing filed by Lone Star Gas Co. on a July 7 RRC order denying the utility company's application to abandon service to customers served from gathering lines carrying unprocessed natural gas.

Commissioners James E. (Jim) Nugent and Mack Wallace acted on the rehearing request at today's conference on Gas Utilities Division matters. Chairman John Poerner did not attend the conference.

In recommending denial, GUD Examiner Jo

Campbell told the Commission that the Lone Star motion was based on the same items urged in exceptions considered by the Commission when the July 7 order was approved.

In other action at the Gas Utilities Division conference, the Commission:

— suspended for 120 days a $1,196 increase through service charges proposed by West End Gas Co. for the unincorporated areas near Natalia and Somerset. The proposed change, which would affect approximately 739 residential and 36 commercial customers, was suspended pending determination of its propriety.

— suspended for 120 days a $15 total increase through service charges proposed by Gulfside Gas Co. for the unincorporated areas surrounding Port Aransas. The requested change, which would affect approximately five residential customers, was suspended pending determination of its propriety.

— approved new gas rates proposed by Entex, Inc., for customers in the unincorporated areas near Universal City. The increase, effective Aug. 27, for four customers, is a cost of service adjustment based on 1978 and 1979 test years. An average residential bill for six Mcf (thousand cubic feet) of gas will increase by 12 cents.

— approved new gas rates proposed by Moran Utilities and affecting three industrial customers in unincorporated areas in Southeast Texas. The customers are Arnold and Clarke Chemical Co., Conroe, Brandt Co., Houston, and

As of the 18th of August, Permian had carried almost twice as much cargo as in the month of July.

Permian will carry any package meeting the size limitations anywhere within its route structure at the appropriate fare.

Permian officials cite the increase to its public awareness program, which is now in full swing, and the low rates that are being charged for "Pete Pak" service.

Permian is now under negotiations with several firms in regard to cargo charters.

DALLAS — Jones Dunnivant, a 22-year airline veteran, has been named manager for Southwest Airlines of its North Houston operation at Intercontinental Airport where service is scheduled to begin Sept. 8.

Previously, Dunnivant has served as station manager for Southwest in Beaumont/Port Arthur/Orange and most recently as shift station manager at Houston Hobby Airport. Prior to joining Southwest, Dunnivant worked at Texas International Airlines in customer service and research scheduling for some 20 years. He joined SWA in February, 1978.

Record sales announced for Elcor Corporation

Roy E. Campbell, president of Elcor Corporation, has announced record sales for the fiscal year and fourth quarter ending June 30, 1980.

"During fiscal 1980, Elcor completed the largest internal expansion program in its history," Campbell said. "The more than $26 million of new plants and equipment put in place should make possible sharply higher sales and earnings in the year ahead and beyond."

Sales for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1980, increased 38 percent to $201 million from $146 million. Income before extraordinary items increased to $6.6 million, equal to $1.68 per share, from $5.8 million or $1.42 per share. Net income amounted to $7.7 million or $1.95 per share, compared to $9.8 million or $2.41 per share in fiscal 1979.

"Income before extraordinary items again reached a new record in the year ended June 30, despite the heavy costs associated with our large-scale expansion, unprecedented interest rates, and the problems affecting the roofing products industry and other areas of the economy," said Campbell. "Although these factors reduced pre-tax income, income before extraordinary items increased because of a more favorable income tax provision resulting from investment tax credits."

For the fourth quarter, sales increased 63 percent to $57 million, a record for any quarter in the company's history.

ny's history, from $35 million in the year-ago quarter. Income before extraordinary items of $1 million of 29 cents per share was down from $1.8 million or 46 cents per share and net income of $1.2 million or 35 cents per share was lower than $2.3 million or 56 cents per share in the record fourth quarter last year.

"All three business segments — roofing products, industrial products and engineering and construction operations — contributed to record fourth quarter sales," said Campbell. "Earnings in the fourth quarter were lower than a year ago primarily because of heavy start-up costs for the two major new plants completed in the fourth quarter and the problems affecting the roofing products industry and other areas of the economy."

In accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement No. 34 issued in October, 1979, income before extraordinary items includes the effect of capitalizing interest on construction in progress of $765,000 in the fourth quarter and $1,617,000 for fiscal year 1980.

"Elcor continues to have a strong financial condition," Campbell said. "During the fiscal year, unsecured credit lines were increased to $61.5 million, of which $38 million was being used at June 30, 1980. In addition, $6.5 million of Industrial Revenue Bonds were sold in the fourth quarter to finance the new Lufkin hard chrome plating plant."

First National among top banks in America

According to the Aug. 14, 1980, issued of American Banker, The First National Bank of Midland is now the 179th largest bank in the United States. This is a jump from 255th position of a year ago.

The ranking is based on deposits of June 30, 1980, and includes the 300 largest of approximately 14,000 banks in the nation. First National's deposits on June 30, 1980, were $744,513,570 — up 52 percent from $489,385,306 on June 30, 1979.

FNB continues to hold its position as the 12th largest Texas bank and also retains its claim as the largest independent bank in the state.

Charles Fraser, president of First National, responded to the article by pointing out that Midland's strong economy and First National's ability to serve the financial needs of such a dynamic area were the primary reasons for such impressive deposit growth.

According to Fraser, "The optimism and efficiency of this region's energy producers, coupled with the productivity of our other industries, makes West Texas — particularly Midland — an exciting area which will continue to attract the attention of other parts of the country."

TI announces discount fares

Texas International Airlines has announced that beginning Sept. 3 it will offer a fare of $19 between Midland/Odessa and Dallas/Fort Worth, a discount of 79 percent.

This discount fare in Midland will be part of an experimental program by TI to offer approximately 50,000 seats per month throughout its system at discounts of 66 to 83 percent.

TI said it will offer a minimum of 285 seats per week each way between Midland and Dallas.

"These are seats that never sell," said Ron Woestemeyer, TI's vice president of marketing programs. "We believe that with unprecedented deep discounts we can tap a whole new market of potential air travelers, even during a period of the year when passenger traffic is traditionally soft and despite the recession." To obtain the discounted fares, passengers will have to purchase their tickets at the time a reservation is made, at least 14 days in advance of their departure. And, those tickets, once purchased, cannot be refunded, transferred to another passenger, or reissued for use on another flight. The purchase can be made by telephone with any major credit card, at any of the airline's ticket counters with credit card, cash or check, or with a travel agent.

"You might say it's like selling theatre tickets," Woestemeyer said. "Once you buy one, it's yours, whether you use it or not."

Woestemeyer also said that those passengers who are not able to meet the restrictions of this very low fare can still use TI's 50 percent off "Peanut Fares" between these and other cities.

Solar energy promoters call for more state cooperation

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An architect says property tax assessors need to understand that big glass solar panels aren't the only form of solar installation.

Texas are entitled to property tax exemptions for solar installations, but some are taxed because assessors don't know what they are looking at, L.M. Holder of Austin told the state's Solar Advisory Committee last week.

The committee, a branch of the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council, held its last public hearing before issuing recommendations on Sept. 3.

Holder said certain types of rooms, including sun porches and greenhouses, are designed by architects to collect and distribute heat from the sun on winter days and should be tax exempt.

He suggested that once an architect certifies to taxing authorities that such a room is a solar unit, eligible for a tax break, the documentation should remain with the tax records of a building.

Bob Russell of Austin, executive secretary of College House, a university living cooperative, said state agencies should repeal rules that interfere with the use of solar energy for heating both water and living space.

He cited rules allowing gas companies to impose a minimum monthly charge no matter how little gas a customer uses.

"This eliminates our saving (from solar energy) yet we save the gas company a considerable volume of gas," Russell said.

Ralph Latta of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation said a solar-powered unit to air condition living quarters at an MHMR unit in El Paso had proved far too costly for practical use.

He said the solar unit could not, by itself, keep temperatures within the 72-to-78-degree range required by federal rules for living quarters for the mentally handicapped.

Frank Kurzawa of Austin accused Gov. Bill Clements and Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace, who heads the solar committee, of being "small-minded" and overly skeptical about solar energy.

"As long as oil company executives continue to run the government, solar energy people might as well try to get the attention of a blind man with a flashlight," Kurzawa said.

Preliminary recommendations of the committee include:

— A bond-financed low-interest state loan program for purchase of solar equipment.

— Preferential treatment of buildings with solar equipment in issuing industrial development loans, veterans land loans and Texas Housing Agency loans.

— Greater state expenditures on solar research and development.

— State standards for testing solar collectors and state licensing of solar installers.

— Required use of solar heating, cooling, water heating and lighting in all state buildings constructed after Aug. 31, 1981.

— A licensing requirement that architects understand energy conservation and the use of solar power.

Martha's Vineyard people liked their paradise before

Art Buchwald

MARTHA'S VINEYARD, Mass. — There are certain people who, when they go on vacation, are never sure they're at the right place. It isn't a question of the facilities as much as whether it's the acceptable resort of the moment.

The "in" island at the present is Martha's Vineyard. Those of us who have been coming here over the years never planned it that way. As a matter of fact, many people fell in love with the island because it wasn't "in." We sailed, fished, clammed, and tended our lobster pots oblivious to the goings-on in such Gucci-ridden places as Southampton, East Hampton, Newport, Bar Harbor, and Malibu.

How did this all change? It dates back three years ago when a violent storm blew up off Cape Cod. A ship was sunk and one of the passengers, a reporter from Women's Wear Daily, was thrown up on the beach off Edgartown wet, bedraggled and exhausted.

She was washed up on a private beach and at first the owner wanted to call the police and have her arrested. But when he saw her condition he carried her up to the house where he decided to nurse her back to health before he pressed charges.

In a few days the WWD reporter was fit and her only problem was that she faced a deadline and had to phone a story into her paper by six o'clock. Desperate for anything, she decided to write a piece about Martha's Vineyard, declaring that it was the new resort for the nouveau beautiful people.

The following week the beautiful people all over America were in panic. No one had heard of the Vineyard or the people who spent their summers there, such as Walter Cronkite, Beverly Sills, Katherine Graham, Carly Simon, Lillian Hellman, James Reston, Mike Wallace, Bill Styron, Garson Kanin and Ruth Gordon. But since the reporter put their names in the story, everyone assumed they were important.

WWD, who can make or ruin a person's summer vacation, declared that the Hamptons were finished and Newport was ready for urban redevelopment.

Then John Belushi, of "Saturday Night Live" and "Animal House," and the person whom the beautiful people look to, to see trends, purchased Robert McNamara's house. When Jackie Onassis heard Belushi had bought a place, she had no choice but to buy one of her own, to be near him.

In no time at all Martha's Vineyard became a household name and the "only" place to be in the summer. The National Enquirer, Town and Country, Harper's Bazaar, Vogue and People magazine all sent reporters to the island to keep the legend alive. It would be only a matter of time before the paperback publishers would discover the place.

They did this summer when Stan Hart, a local resident, wrote a book for Dell titled "The Martha's Vineyard Affair."

The copy on the cover displaying a nude man and woman clinched our reputation for us. It read "Scotch got them through the day ... sex got them through the night ... and money got them through every jam until ... 'The Martha's Vineyard Affair' ... An island paradise where anything can happen — even murder."

I am happy to report that, in spite of all the attention, those of us who have been coming here before Women's Wear Daily are the same simple people we always were. Of course, there is a lot more drinking and promiscuity, but we only do it when the tourists are in town.

We'd much rather go back to clamming and sailing than drinking and fooling around, but we have to think about real estate values first.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, August 24, the 237th day of 1980. There are 129 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Aug. 24, 1814, British soldiers invaded Washington D.C., burning the Capitol and the White House.

On this date: In the year 79, the ancient Italian cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum were buried when Mount Vesuvius erupted.

In 1777, Gen. George Washington led his Revolutionary war army into Philadelphia.

In 1932, Amelia Earhart became the first woman to make a non-stop flight across the United States when she flew from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J. in 19 hours and five minutes.

Ten years ago, the first helicopters to fly across the Pacific reached South Vietnam from the United States.

Last year, the Carter administration announced it was prepared to resume shipment of military equipment to Iran — in an effort to ease the relationship between the United States and Iran's revolutionary government.

Today's birthday: French Canadian leader Rene Levesque is 58 years old.

Thought for today: How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child. — William Shakespeare (1564-1616).

BIBLE VERSE

Therefore I say unto you, Every sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men; but the blasphemy against the Spirit shall not be forgiven. Matt. 12:31.

Trouble in Poland

What began a week and a half ago as a protest over the rising price of meat has escalated into a major crisis for Poland and a test for the cause of human rights.

The strike by Polish workers is not a first. They took to the streets in 1970, too. But this time, although it began with the meat price issue, the real feelings of the workers soon began to surface.

They are striking, ironically, for the right to strike, the right to have free trade unions and an end to the privileges enjoyed by political and security officials. Various committees have issued demands ranging from automatic pay raises to make up for rising prices to political demands like freedom of expression, access to the mass media by religious groups, abolitions of government censorship and the release of political prisoners.

Although the Kremlin has chosen to look the other way for the time being, there's little doubt that in the back rooms of the Soviet state structures the top moguls are watching the events in Poland with keen interest. There is a stake there for the Soviets and they know it.

As we all have seen in the past, the Soviets can be pushed only so far before they respond with brute force in the form of troops and tanks. It happened in Poland and Hungary in 1956, Czechoslovakia in 1968, again in 1970 in Poland and in Afghanistan in 1979.

Communist Party boss Edward Gierek has warned in a television interview, with an eye turned toward Moscow, that there are limits that "must not be overstepped by anyone." The message was loud and clear.

Of course the United States should not and must not become involved in the Polish clash. It is a problem for Poland to solve without the outside interference of any nation.

And yet, we must be sure to encourage — vocally, at least — many of the freedoms which workers in Poland seek. There is a flame burning there that must be carefully nurtured without endangering it.

Hopefully, the Soviets will not feel the need to become embroiled in Poland's internal problem. One would think they have troubles enough with Afghanistan at the current time.

But with each passing day, as strikes spread and troubles mount, the possibility for Soviet intervention looms closer.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Teddy Kennedy will undertake a massive campaign effort on behalf of President Carter — a grueling two-and-a-half block walk through his neighborhood in McLean, Va.

Then, off to the airport for a major speech at Ed's Bait & Tackle Shop in Hyannisport.

It is now believed that, thanks to Kennedy's overwhelming support, Carter needn't worry about carrying Nantucket.

The joining together of these former opponents was symbolized on the podium at Madison Square Garden when Kennedy leaped to the stage, headed straight for Carter — and embraced Tip O'Neill.

Then, as the nation watched, Kennedy assured all that the Democrats were at last united. With a sincere slap on the back, he looked Carter in the eye and said, "Think it'll rain?"

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

2. On what occasion did the Lord say, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone."? John 8:7.

3. A sabbath's day journey was a shorter time than a week's day trip,

4. What plot of land was called Acedama (Ah-SELL-da-ma)? Acts 1:19.

D.C. lawmakers levy tax on sugar to 'save the children'

WASHINGTON — The District of Columbia, being a federal green-ward and protectorate, swills plenty at the government trough. There's never a recession here nor the urge to stop hatching spending schemes. Lately, the money's run short, so the citizenry is being gouged with a fistful of new taxes. One of the most imbecile is the tax on anything which smacks of sugar.

Now, food is not taxed in D.C. But in the new rage to tax and satisfy puritan lusts as well, candy, soft drinks, confectionery items and chewing gum are taxed at eight cents on the dollar. The rationale is that these pleasures can be harmful to the health, and therefore are bad.

However, the D.C. Gauleiters proclaimed in their new law that such joys as ice cream, jams, jellies, syrups, honey, cookies (however sugar-coated) and caramel and chocolate (if used for cooking) are pure and good and therefore shall not be taxed.

Therefore a simple twist of licorice, though its sugar content is three percent, is considered virtual contraband, and is taxed. Sugar-drenched ice cream is regarded as wholesome, and isn't taxed. Cereals, when prepared in candied or confectionery form, are sinful, but the run of sugar-coated breakfast stuff is not. Dust a peanut or raisin with sugar or chocolate and you pay eight percent tax. Even a diet drink demands this tax.

Now, there is nothing intrinsically evil in sugar, any more than there is, say, in chicken fat or lobster tails.

lunch hour will have his federal food bucks yanked.

Now, a taste of sweet is no more harmful than a taste of anything else. It is the excessive ingestion of sweets that can cause misery. But puritans always tax pleasure, so sugar is getting it. Why not tax filet mignon or caviar?

Similarly, can't the ordinary soul decide what's good for him or his charges? It should be the schoolmaster who has the courage to rid his halls of the sugar habit, not the feds. And it should be parents, not a taxing body, who inform their kinder that there will be no sugar orgies on their premises. In my home, the youngsters were told sternly there would be no Frosty Loops, Fruity Pebbles or Body Buddies on the breakfast table.

Across the Republic, a dozen states tax confectionery items, but exempt all other foods. Recently, the Connecticut legislature voted down a serious proposal to tax sugar-coated donuts and cereals, and frozen pies. A dozen states ponder the worth of levying a special tax on soft drinks, thus elevating them to the evil level of beer.

A good deal of the direction in this crusade against sucrose comes from Carol T. Foreman, assistant secretary of Agriculture, whose order will shut down certain snack food vending this fall in those schools benefiting from lunch subsidies.

Any schoolmaster caught selling water ices, soda pops, candy-covered popcorn, marshmallows, chewing gum or certain candies during the

Definition needed of president's 'war powers'

WASHINGTON — To the dismay of some members of Congress, President Carter has insisted he has the legal authority to conduct a limited military operation against Iran without the prior notification required under the War Powers Act.

Ever since the rescue mission fiasco in late April, Congress and the White House have been arguing over the president's responsibility to inform key members of Congress before undertaking military action that might lead to war.

Under the Constitution, only Congress can declare war. But the legislators effectively relinquished their authority during the early years of the Vietnam war. In a belated effort to recover its abdicated responsibility, Congress in 1973 passed the War Powers Act.

The law supposedly was a brake on future runaway military adventures by a president, requiring him to share his plans with Congress before committing the nation's armed forces in a given situation. But the law was worded vaguely enough to give White House lawyers at least arguable loopholes to justify the secrecy of the Iranian operation.

The crucial provision of the War Powers Act states: "The President in every possible instance shall consult with Congress before introducing United States armed forces into hostilities or into situations where imminent involvement in hostilities is clearly indicated by the circumstances ..."

The law was sponsored by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. In April, alarmed by rumors of a military solution to the Tehran hostage crisis, Javits and Sen.

Jack Anderson

Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee chairman, wrote privately to Carter, reminding him of his obligations under the act. The letter was delivered six hours before the rescue mission was launched.

"They were concerned about the jungle drums, about military action," as one source put it. Both senators thought the president was planning military strikes against Iran.

Part of the administration's post-ratified excuse for not consulting with Congress was that the rescue mission was not really a military operation, but a "humanitarian" effort to free illegally held American citizens. But in fact, as my reporter Ron McRae has established, outright military strikes against the Iranians were planned for the second and third stages of the rescue mission. The only reason the operation didn't become undisputedly military in scope and execution is that it was aborted in the primary stage because of helicopter failures.

Obviously, even the slickest White House lawyer couldn't reasonably claim that an invasion of Iran by U.S. armed forces — however limited — is a "non-military" operation. So, in private and in public Carter and his attorney general, Benjamin Civiletti, have fallen back on the other contention they made in the rescue-mission debate: The need for secrecy forces a president to wriggle through the "every possible instance" loophole of the War Powers Act.

It is simply not possible, they argue, that Congress can be consulted about an operation and have it remain a secret. Word would leak out and the operation would have to be canceled.

In the April "instance," Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., was informed of the rescue mission — and he was told about it only the day before it began. He said later he had had no idea the action was so imminent.

In the emotionally charged atmosphere of the aborted mission's aftermath, debate in Congress over interpretation of the War Powers Act was not as heated as it might have been. No one wanted to appear less than totally committed to the cause of freeing the hostages — particularly given the impatient, truculent mood of the public as reflected in opinion surveys. So the debate was reduced and over characterized as "legalistic wrangling."

While insisting on its "right" to take emergency action without consulting Congress, even in an out-and-out military invasion, the White House has clearly been seeking to get the kind of congressional support that would prevent recriminations after a future operation against Iran.

The White House has been pressuring Sens. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., to engage in a "colloquy" on the Senate floor supporting the president's stand against prior consultation. In senatorial parlance, a colloquy is a form of prearranged, friendly debate that is often simply inserted into the record unspoken.

In this case, it would give Carter something to point to later as evidence of support from outside the White House. But so far, Bayh and Huddleston have not gone along with the idea.

The hawkish Senate Armed Services Committee was persuaded to vote down an amendment to the War Powers Act that reaffirmed the prior notification requirement. But Sen. J. James Exon, D-Neb., concerned that the rapid deployment force being discussed might suck the country into a war without congressional action, took the issue to the Senate floor and won reaffirmation of the disclosure requirement after intense debate.

White House sources admit that Carter's main worry is that a minimum requirement of the reaffirmed War Powers Act, and the new Intelligence Oversight Act, would be that he inform the Senate minority leader in advance of a planned operation.

The current minority leader, Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., is far from a White House team player. This would be especially true in the case of an October invasion of Iran, when the timing would be widely regarded as a political move intended to sink Ronald Reagan's presidential hopes.

Clements' promises will be bigger burden in January than November

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements is enthusiastically following up on at least one of his campaign promises — that of defeating Jimmy Carter — as he heads up Ronald Reagan's Texas effort.

don't overlap to a great extent, tending to be rather separate, as regards constituencies and issues — neither of which necessarily carry over well from one to the other.

realities involved in asking the legislature to surrender any portion of its power, but the proposal hasn't pleased some "I&R" groups, who continue to favor a stronger, less limited version.

some opposition to his proposals. For the legislature, the main topic of interest — generally speaking — will be redistricting, with everything else in the "also ran" category.

will either have to deliver, or come up with some convincing explanations why he didn't. Up to this point, Clements has had a bit of a free ride in that he has no clear and obvious opponent, and the Democratic Party has been involved with internal problems and presidential politics.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Homeless what?

To The Editor: I would like the following published in your "Letters" column: Dear Mayor Akins and Councilmen Howbert, Marcum, Thomas, Davidson and Sloan:

In the top ten

To The Editor: Evidently our newly elected mayor doesn't read the local newspaper. If he will refer to the July 2nd edition, page 10B, he will discover that Midland, Texas, is one of the top ten cities in the nation having the highest per capita tax burden — not Dallas, not Houston, not Odessa, but Midland.

their students will learn in spite of the teacher.

So, parents — and teachers, let's start the new school year with a renewed spirit of collaboration. Roberta Floyd Midland

Dry guys

To The Editor: On Thursday, Aug. 14, I arrived home at lunch time to find our house definitely on the soggy side due to a ruptured hose from the hot water heater to the washing machine.

I'm sorry...

To The Editor: I am sorry Georgia Temple (critic — Reporter-Telegram) had such a miserable evening reviewing Theatre Midland's current production of "Relatively Speaking."

'Their' way

To The Editor: Few people attended the tax hearing of Midland Independent School District. That should surprise no one.

May I remind you that Midland has an acute housing shortage, for people, that is. That Hillcrest Manor, our one public housing project of 100 constantly occupied units has a waiting list of at least 150. The article said only 68 planes are on the waiting list.

If his proposed tax increase is approved, and the usual perpetual tax increase of the school board is approved, I am sure we will be number one in the nation.

I don't know the names of the gentlemen from the fire department, but I would sincerely like to thank them, and hope they're reading this.

'School spirit'

To The Editor: Identifying a problem is ninety-nine percent of solving it. The reason kids are not learning so much as they once did is directly related to poorly trained teachers. How simple would the problem be if it were so.

Since every sin is a collaboration, so every success is a collaboration. The teacher is only one influence in a child's life, and he may be only a brief influence. The lagging influence lies with the parents. If parents share an intellectual mind and a spirit of enterprising inquiry with their students,

So, with much gratitude, we would sincerely like to thank the two gentlemen that responded, and had the good manners not to laugh at our dilemma! Mr. & Mrs. R. Forrest Pendleton Midland

POSITIVE THINKING

Indecision, lack of direction may be all that's holding you back

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

One day several years ago, while having a game of golf with a friend, we played near a boy raking leaves on the golf course. I recognized him and nodded to him. He waved back and then came over and rather hesitantly asked, "Doctor, may I speak with you for a moment?"

My partner was willing to rest and so we sat down under a tree to talk. The boy said, "I'm not satisfied with what I am. I'm in a very ordinary job, but I feel there's more to me than I've ever shown on the surface. I've read your writings and I know you believe that there are certain principles which can help a person make something of himself."

Then, with rather pathetic frankness, he asked, "Please tell me how I can get somewhere." "Well," I answered, "I'm not an expert, but I'll be glad to try. Where do you want to go?"

It's time to put a lid on the old 'melting pot'

America needs to diversify even more. It needs to re-discover regionalism. Gradually — like wind eroding fertile soil — America is becoming a homogeneous melting pot. Sometimes it's hardly detectable, but it's changing. The North moves South; the Snowbelt natives bask in the sun.

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

He thought again, "Well, I don't know. I never gave it any thought." "This is a queer thing," I told him. "You want to get somewhere, but you don't know where you want to go. You want to be something better, but you don't know what you can do best, and you don't even know what you like to do. Son, those indecisions and lack of objective are the very things that are holding you back."

Television sets, multiplying like amoebas, span the continent. And people view other people — in the natural and on stage — and tend to act one like the other.

the people that it does with culture, regionalism, architecture, religion and habits. Granted, the great expanse of this nation has myriads of European-like pocket communities.

Then I suggested, "Suppose we pray about your problem right here on the golf course." And we did. "Lord," I prayed, "tell this young man where he wants to go. Tell him what he can do the best and tell him what he'd like to do. Help him to understand himself and get a definite purpose."

Regionalism tends to lose some of its poignancy. Genuine "local color" seems to be increasingly scarce.

The other day, I met this young man again for the first time in a long while. He seemed confident and assured. He told me that he was still working in the same plant where he had started shortly after he talked to me, but that he was being given increasing responsibilities.

He said he was secretary of his Masonic lodge, had become active in community work and plays the organ in church. One day, he said, when the preacher was away, he had even preached a sermon.

There is rivalry. Sometimes there's hostility. But it's never boring. The traveler in Europe is keenly aware of when he leaves France for Germany, Spain for Portugal, Luxembourg for Belgium, Switzerland for Italy, Lithuania for Poland, Greece for Turkey, England for Scotland, and Wales for Ireland. There's little doubt.

Well, maybe every state, every region in the U.S. of A. always will offer something delightfully and refreshingly different. Hope so. But it has to be worked at.

I realized then that he had found the answer to the question he had asked me a few years earlier. Through his faith and prayers, he had found himself. When he got somewhere with himself, he got somewhere in life.

Really, Reagan?

To The Editor: I find it to be a supreme paradox of logic that Ronald Reagan can aspire to become the leader of the most democratic nation on Earth, and at that same time, not only pledge support to bloodstained neo-fascist dictatorships in South America, but actually refer to them as "our old friends."

I understand!

To The Editor: I am living in Partille, Sweden, this summer as a Youth for Understanding student. Partille is a small town about five miles from the city of Goteborg. The first week in Sweden I came to the conclusion that the country is beautiful and the people great. But why couldn't such nice people be normal and speak English? Well, I have since learned that there are other people in the world besides Americans, and that just because these people speak differently doesn't mean they aren't normal.

A limited view

To The Editor: In Monday's Charley Reese column, Charley states the criteria by which, in his view, a nation must be judged viable or a fluke: "A nation must be able to feed its people and defend them." As usual, the third world countries, and particularly the Arab states, "fail" Charley's tests. Of course, if we subtract the massive infusion (on all levels) of U.S. support to Israel, Israel also fails the tests; a fact which Charley probably just forgot to mention.

After reading the Charley Reese offerings these past three or four years, it seems clear that Reese has one great love (Israel) and one great hate (communism-socialism, collectivism in any form.) He can tell you more than you want to know about either subject. And yet, after all this time, after all the rhetoric, cant and hypocrisy, he has never (not once) mentioned Israel's well known affinity for socialism and Marxism.

Why? He hasn't told us that there are two large and legal communist parties in Israel. He doesn't mention the kibbutzniks' practice of their purist version of collectivism, or that the longest lasting debate in Israel is on the subject of just how much Marxism should be adopted.

I, personally, am convinced that Charley Reese has been assigned the task of lobbying the conservative voter on behalf of Israel. The Zionists have already captured the liberal-minority coalition (minus Jesse Jackson, et al), and now they want the rest.

Charley Reese is one of that species, hardly rare, who would knowingly risk the health and security of America itself, so that the Jews might have bragging-rights about their "homeland" in Palestine; a "homeland" where (in fact) most of the world Jewry doesn't want to live.

I don't believe that ersatz-Israel has a "right" to exist. I don't believe God is so crass as to have a "chosen people." I do believe, if America is to be whole again, that Jewish influence in American affairs must be reduced to something approximating "one man, one vote"; maybe less!

Howard D. Reed Midland

Just symptoms

To The Editor: A weekend military, an inflation and jobless riddled economy, plus burdensome taxes due to an overgrown government are today's major topics for political discussion. Each political party is telling us that they care the most and have some solutions. But probably to the surprise of some politicians, I believe most Americans realize that these topics are only symptoms of a greater problem.

The major problem is that we are allowing our elected officials to become subjective to interest groups instead of being interested in the common good of all individuals.

Our own involvement in this exercise comes about as a result of labeling ourselves a Republican, Democrat, Independent, liberal or conservative without enough thought for the fact that all parties and ideals have both good and bad qualities dependent only upon one's position in society. This type of self imposed segregation leads us to believe that what's good for the group is good for all.

Admittedly, these groups have an important function. They can expose society to the issues which face our nation. But once in control of government that function should become promotion of the common good. But we are not without hope. In November we can express ourselves as individuals concerning the next 1,460 tomorrows. And regardless of labels or parties, our goal, even duty, should be to fairly judge yesterday's leadership, examine closely the leadership of promise, then elect the qualified men and women who really care about "one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

T. L. McCracken Midland

What he means...

To The Editor: President Carter says we have a choice between peace and war. What he means is we have a choice between indecision and firm policies, a choice between vacillation and respect.

Senator Kennedy says we must beat Reagan at any cost. What he means is if we elect Reagan, it will become apparent to the American people that they have been boonswoggled by the Democratic Party.

The single largest voting block in the United States is the group of people receiving federal funds in the form of wages and benefits. The U.S. government is the country's largest employer. Each and every working, productive individual is matched by an individual receiving federal funds.

The Democrats are appealing directly to the government employee by promising to increase the size of the bureaucracy. Government jobs will only be here long enough to insure the election of dedicated perpetrators of the bureaucracy.

The American people must recognize that jobs come not from the government, but from healthy, competitive, free enterprise. These are the jobs that will last and grow.

In November we will have a choice. We will have Reagan and a chance to return to the American way.

Or we will have Carter, and increase in government controls, government created work programs that won't last, more inflation, more payments to those who won't work, no incentive to be productive, and finally irreversible socialism.

All Americans must now decide whether they want free enterprise (read Republican) or socialism (read Democrats.) John Neiberger Midland

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When my son first got his stereo, we had only a couple of small rugs on the floor, and the noise was almost unbearable. I put wall-to-wall carpet on his floor and this helped. Then, my carpet dealer suggested we try a carpet, designed for wall installation, on one wall.

This did such a great job that we put it on the other three walls too.

Now, when he closes the door (it is covered with carpet on the inside) he can turn up his stereo as loud as he likes.

He's happy and I am too as I can once again hear myself think!

Silence! How golden! And, what a decorative way to achieve it!

However, I believe it would be less expensive to turn down the sound — or is that being unreasonable? Love you for writing.

GRANNY'S GREAT!

DEAR HELOISE:

My children's grandmother has a "make-do drawer" at her house.

In it she has good but worn T-shirts, trousers, disposable diapers, underwear, socks, etc., that can be put on visiting grandchildren in case of soiling or accidents.

The grandchildren love the status of the make-do drawer.

TACK-IT TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

I had to reupholster the lid of my bathroom clothes hamper and, not having a stapler large enough, had to use carpet tacks.

I discovered that by placing a table fork over the spot and putting a tack between the times, the tack would remain upright.

When the tack is almost in place, remove the fork and bang away.

MIX-UP MAGIC

DEAR HELOISE:

Today in the kitchen, I came across an idea which helped me a lot.

I wanted to do some baking but the mixing bowl I always use was in the fridge (filled with potato salad). So I got out a large saucepan to mix the cake batter in.

Having a handle on the pan, I could then just pour the batter into the cake tin. It was much easier than trying to lift a mixing bowl as I don't have much strength in my arms and hands.

It worked great.

Just for Kids

COLOR 'EM HIS OR HERS

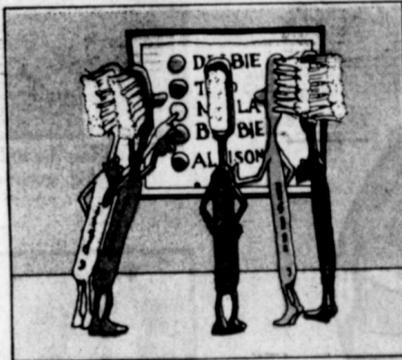

DEAR HELOISE:

There are five kids in my family and my mom bought five different colored toothbrushes for us.

Still there was always someone who forgot the color of their toothbrush.

So Mom looked in the crayons and came up with five colors which matched our five colored toothbrushes.

Starting with the oldest, she wrote their name and made a mark the same color as their toothbrush.

She did the same for the other four, down to my 4-year-old brother. He may not be able to read but he knows what his color is.

Mom taped the chart on the wall in the bathroom and we don't have anymore hollering. "Who used my toothbrush?"

RECIPE EXCHANGE

DEAR HELOISE:

Why not make up your own personal recipe cards? It takes only a few minutes to type up several cards to have on hand for those recipe-sharing moments.

I use 3x5 index cards. Across the top, I type "From the Kitchen of Marie Mosteller." I use an attractive stick-on seal in the top left-hand corner.

The cards are nominal in cost compared to those you buy ready made, yet I think they are just as attractive.

For a bridal shower, several cards can be typed up with the name of the bride-to-be. These make cute gifts, either singly or along with some other small item.

LETTER OF LOVE

DEAR HELOISE:

Thanks for all your good hints and comments. Pull up a chair and have another cup of coffee.

Good neighbors are always nice.

Oh, isn't it the truth! And, I know my "neighbors" are the best in the world! I love you dearly.

Thanks for the coffee!

LET'S PRETEND

DEAR HELOISE:

When my children were small, they liked the kitchen table to be turned upside down. Then, they would pretend it was a boat or a special place just for them.

We would put a blanket over the legs to turn the table into a tent. Great rainy day amusement.

To protect the table top, I placed an old blanket under the table.

Roberta Mayer

FOR DROOPY DAISIES

DEAR HELOISE:

One day while arranging flowers for company I noticed that many of them drooped.

No matter how I arranged them their heads hung downwards.

Looking around I saw some twist-ties and began twisting them around the stem of one of the flowers.

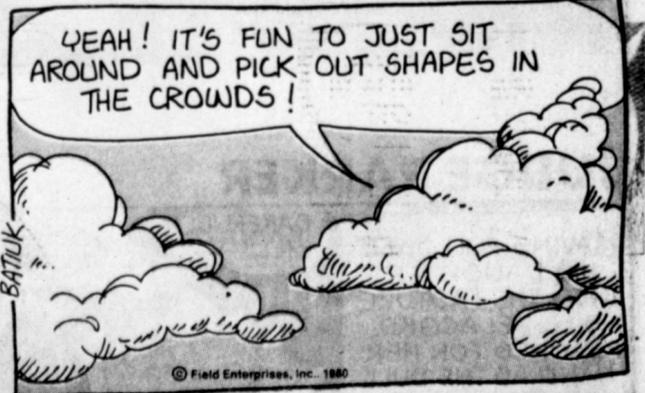

When I straightened the flower up, it stayed! So I did the rest of the flowers in the same fashion, positioning them as desired.

Many twist-ties come in green, so they match the stems and make the repair job inconspicuous.

The BETTER HALF

by WINSON

Featuring HARRIET STANLEY PARKER

"Isn't that sweet? Stanley is building a treehouse for the neighborhood kids."

"I'm applying the lotion as fast as I can. With all this skin, something is bound to burn!"

"Quick, Harriet... scatter these bills nonchalantly on the floor and furniture. I'm going to hit up Mr. Despot for a raise."

"Don't cry, Mr. Parker! My folks thought it was really neat the way you invited your insurance man to the barbecue."

"You're right... this theatre hasn't changed since we were here 20 years ago. This is the same movie and popcorn and I think he was here, too."

Prince Valiant

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story:
REUNITED WITH HIS FAMILY -- AND WITH THE 'SINGING SWORD'-- VAL SAVORS A FRAGILE MOMENT OF PEACE. THE CLOUDS DRIFT LAZILY, LIKE HIS THOUGHTS.

THE LATE SUMMER SUN IS STRONG AND RADIANT, LIKE ALETA. THE BOLD WARRIOR FINDS "LOVING HUSBAND" TO BE A ROLE HE RELISHES.

BUT WITH TWIN DAUGHTERS, HE IS MORE OFTEN CAST AS "STERN FATHER." AMONG THE FABLED DIVERSIONS OF CAMELOT, HE WONDERS. WILL HISTORIANS LIST KAREN AND VALETA?

ONE DAY, KING ARTHUR INVITES VAL AND ALETA TO JOIN HIS FALCONING PARTY. THE CROWN PRINCE OF THULE AND THE QUEEN OF THE MISTY ISLES READILY ACCEPT. GOLDEN MEADOWS GLISTEN UNDER A BLANKET OF FRESH DEW.

WALTER BATES

ALETA IS A NATURAL SPORTSWOMAN. LIKE THE UNTETHERED FALCON, HER SPIRITS SOAR. IT IS A GAY PARTY, AND AN EXCLUSIVE ONE. VAL'S CURIOSITY IS PIQUED BY KING ARTHUR'S YOUNG GUEST.

SHE HAD BEEN INTRODUCED AS LADY GWYNN OF CORNWALL. HER FACE WOULD BE CONSIDERED PLAIN BUT FOR THE SPARKLING INTELLIGENCE OF HER EYES.

"THIS IS THE ONLY PLACE I KNOW WHERE WE CAN SPEAK PRIVATELY," KING ARTHUR EXPLAINS. "MORDRED MAY BE BANISHED, BUT HIS SPIES ARE EVERYWHERE."

"THERE IS SOMETHING AMISS IN THE PROVINCE OF CORNWALL. FOR YEARS GWYNN'S FAMILY HAS BEEN MY EYES AND EARS THERE. THE SITUATION IS GRAVE."

REX MORGAN, M. D.

by Dal Curtis

DID EVIE GET TO SEE JUSTIN?

SHE WENT OVER TO THE HOSPITAL WHERE HE WAS DOING SURGERY---AND WAITED UNTIL HE WAS FINISHED!

I GUESS IT WAS ABOUT ELEVEN LAST NIGHT!

WHAT DID HE HAVE TO SAY?

THAT HE WAS TIRED---WANTED HER TO GO TO A HOTEL AND HE'D TALK TO HER IN THE MORNING!

THAT'S WHEN SHE LEFT, CALLED ME AND I MET HER PLANE! SHE'S REALLY BROKEN UP, RUDY!

MEANWHILE, REX MORGAN HAS TOLD JUSTIN ABOUT MEETING EVIE!

EVIE'S REALLY A FINE PERSON-- BUT WE DON'T HAVE ANYTHING IN COMMON ANYMORE!

IN MANY WAYS, OUR MARRIAGE WAS WASHED UP THREE OR FOUR YEARS AGO!

BUT SHE DIDN'T KNOW IT, DID SHE? AND YOU WERE NOT ABOUT TO TELL HER! RIGHT?
