

Life in Poland: 'Not bad if you have the money'

By SUSANNE SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Janina is barely 5 feet tall, but her stocky form exudes authority as she supervises the choppers, slicers and ladders behind a long wooden table at the Lenin Shipyards.

Striking workers in their grimy blue overalls tell her jokes while she oversees her female assembly line turning mountains of bread loaves and sausages into sandwiches for the striking workers who stream into the hall to discuss strike tactics until late in the night.

"I am 53 years old, and I've stood in plenty of lines to buy food," Janina tells a reporter, speaking in German. "I can certainly do the same for the strike."

"You want to know what life is in Poland? Life here is not bad — if you have money. There are enough meat and vegetables. It is just that it is so expensive. I am a simple woman, and I don't earn enough."

She asked that her last name not be used, explaining, "I must think of my daughter." She has been a secretary for 22 years at the Lenin Shipyards, Poland's second largest, and her daughter and son-in-law both work there. Janina lives with her 45-year-old brother, Gniech, who was "hit in the head" as a child during World War II. He cannot speak, can care for himself only partially and earns 2,600 zlotys (about $87) a month working in a factory that employs handicapped persons to assemble metal parts.

"With the bonuses I am eligible to get, I earn about 5,000 zlotys ($170) a month," she continued, "so we live together and I give him some of my money, but it is too little for us to live on."

"Every day I must go shopping. I work from 6:30 until 2:30 p.m., and then I go to stand in the stores, because there are so many people. I stand an hour, an hour and a half. I can't be sure I will get what I want, but I have to stand there anyway to try."

"I buy a loaf of bread, some butter, some eggs if I can get no meat, some pickles or vegetables. Tomatoes are too expensive now, we had a wet spring. Every day I need about 120 to 150 zlotys for us two."

"I pay the rent, it is 750 zlotys. I am very lucky. I have an apartment in a new building with two rooms. I got the apartment through the company and only had to wait three years."

Janina's daughter has a 3-year-old daughter.

"My daughter has it harder than I do," she said. "She must work, get the child from the kindergarten and then go out and shop. By the time she gets to the stores there is nothing good that is left."

"Her husband gets lots of eggs in his lunch pail when there is no meat to be had."

Janina's son-in-law is a welder and works 12 hours a day to earn extra money.

"Every man works overtime to make more money," she said. "He has an apartment to pay for and a new child. When the baby came and my daughter could not work, I had to give them 1,000 of my zlotys. It was another very hard time."

Although treatment by doctors is free in Poland, Janina said she had to pay 30 percent of the cost of tablets for her brother when he got sick.

"They were made in the U.S.A. so they were expensive, 600 zlotys," she said. "That is a whole week of food for us you can see why I walk every day and cannot afford a car."

New purge, promises of elections do not end Polish walkouts

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Strike leaders said today the new purge in Poland's Communist leadership and promise of democratic union elections will not bring an immediate end to the walkouts by more than 150,000 workers on Poland's northern Baltic coast.

Gdansk radio reported that the strikes along the Gdansk coast continued today, and most plants and ports remained idle. Workers expressed a cautious degree of encouragement, and awaited the government's next move.

"It may not mean much progress, maybe like changing an old coat for a new coat," said striker Lech Badkowski. "But it's still a coat. We have to see what they offer us."

First Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski returned to Gdansk to arrange a second meeting with strike leaders, government sources said. Jagielski held an unprecedented meeting with the strike leaders Saturday.

In an effort to end the 12-day-old strike, Communist Party leader Edward Gierek announced the firing of Premier Edward Babuch and eight other top officials Sunday, and promised that union officials would be elected from among candidates nominated by the workers.

But Gierek rejected the strikers' demands for free trade unions and political reforms such as the right to strike, an end to censorship and the release of all political prisoners.

"We cannot agree to demands striking at the very foundations of the existence of the nation and the state," he warned.

"We go on striking," Leszek Walesa, head of the central strike committee, told 2,000 strikers at the Lenin Shipyards in Gdansk. "Only free trade unions can make us happy, can give us victory. The government will not be able to cheat us — we do not give it that opportunity."

Some of strike leaders, however, seemed to welcome the appointment of the new premier, Jozef Pinkowski, 51, a member of the Communist Party secretariat, and the restoration to Politburo membership of Stefan Olszowski, a former foreign minister. Both are regarded as economic experts.

In a purge last February, Olszowski, for reasons still unknown, lost his key party posts and was demoted to ambassador to East Berlin. Some political observers in Warsaw said Olszowski might become Gierek's successor if the party chief's attempts to end the strike fails.

Diplomats in Warsaw agreed that the purge removed some "hard-line" pro-Stalinists and indicated significant moderation by Gierek's regime. One diplomat said such changes would be unthinkable elsewhere in the Soviet bloc.

Most observers said it was too early to determine Gierek's chances for political survival, which hinged on a settlement of the strikes.

In Gdansk, residents of the normally bustling port lined up to buy newspapers reporting the wholesale government firings.

Sunday's developments unfolded 24 hours after Jagielski concluded an stormy meeting with strike leaders in the Gdansk shipyard.

Jagielski had said the government would consider relaxing some aspects of censorship and increased news coverage of the strike, but he rejected the strikers' demand for an increase in the average monthly pay from $170 to $237 to offset rising meat prices caused by an end to government subsidies July 1.

On Sunday, Gierek announced the dismissal of Babuch, three other full members of the Politburo and two alternate members. They included the head of the state trade unions, Deputy Premier Jan Szydiak, and Deputy Premier Tadeusz Pyka, who tried to end the strike wave by boycotting the central strike committee and negotiating with committees in the individual plants.

Pact nations set maneuvers

DRESDEN, East Germany (AP) — A Bulgarian artillery unit arrived in northern East Germany today for a Warsaw Pact military exercise, the official East Berlin news agency ADN reported. The maneuver site is only 60 miles west of strikebound northern Poland.

Czechoslovak officers and men arrived in East Germany Sunday for the Eastern-bloc military exercise, which will involve 40,000 troops from six nations of the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact, also including Hungary, East Germany and Poland. Romania, a maverick member of the pact, will send only staff officers.

to the strikes until the government meets workers' demands. (AP Laserphoto)

Big oil firms pressured Independents cut wholesale prices

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Major U.S. oil companies are under increasing pressure to lower their wholesale gasoline prices nationwide as independent refiners slash wholesale gas prices and available fuel supplies remain high, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says.

Because of "superabundant gasoline stocks and the huge crude-oil stocks behind them," independent dealers now are paying an average 2.2 cents a gallon less for gas than their brand-name counterparts, the Lundberg Letter reported Sunday.

And with refineries operating at an average of only 69.9 percent capacity — possibly an all-time low compared to normal operations at 88 percent to 92 percent capacity — Lundberg said it looks as though the glut will continue.

"Summer is almost over, and the traditional depletion of stocks has simply not taken place," the newsletter said.

Because demand has remained stable even with rising supplies, retail prices have fallen slightly nationwide, the letter said.

Private dealers who often take delivery at refinery terminals traditionally pay less for gas than dealers who sell major brands.

And after "rack" prices (what private dealers are charged) rose nationally in June above major dealer prices, they now have fallen between one cent and six cents a gallon. So to remain competitive, the major gasoline marketers are under pressure to lower their prices as well.

"The way things are going, additional rack cuts are likely to follow," the letter said. And any new decreases "will put heavy pressure on majors to cut their branded wholesale prices."

Blown-out gas well in Gulf explodes, damaging platform

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An offshore gas well exploded in flames today in the Gulf of Mexico, one day after it blew out and injured four workers, officials said.

There were no reports of pollution, but oil company spokesmen said the drilling derrick had collapsed and there appeared to be extensive damage to the offshore platform.

Four workers suffered minor injuries in the blowout Sunday, said Jim Stewart, an operations manager for well owner Mesa Petroleum Co. No injuries were reported in today's fire.

"It's a big torch," Stewart said. "Our reports are that the derrick has gone over and it looks like severe damage to the rest of the platform."

He said the fire was too hot for company men to approach and would apparently be left to burn until a relief well can be drilled — a process that can take weeks.

Stewart said the company had contacted a wild well firefighting company, but "at this point it doesn't appear there would be much we could do with it. We just wouldn't be able to get in to the fire."

Stewart said a drilling barge should arrive at the scene within 48 hours. The rig is about 85 miles southwest of Intracoastal City.

What really happened aboard Soviet submarine?

TOKYO (AP) — The British captain of the first ship to reach the disabled Soviet nuclear submarine east of Okinawa last week says he doubts the Soviet crew's story that a fire occurred aboard the craft.

Capt. Cecil Baker of the 48,000-ton tanker Gari said he sent a lifeboat alongside the sub, and the crew saw nine bodies and three injured men on the deck. The Soviets told the boat crew there had been a fire, but there were no signs of burns either on the bodies or on the sub, Baker said.

"I don't know what happened aboard that sub, but I don't believe it was a fire," Baker, 52, told reporters after his ship docked at a port east of Tokyo during the weekend.

The 6,000-ton sub was disabled Thursday about 85 miles east of Okinawa and is being towed to the Siberian port of Vladivostok by a Soviet tug. They are being escorted by a missile cruiser, a destroyer and another Soviet ship.

The Japanese government feared that the crippled sub might be leaking radioactive material and denied a Soviet request for the convoy to pass through Japanese waters. But the Soviets defied the Japanese and went through a 20-mile-wide strait in the Ryukyu Islands Saturday.

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said it was an "unfriendly act and very regrettable," and the Foreign Ministry made a strong protest. But after the Soviet ambassador assured the Foreign Ministry the sub was not leaking radiation or carrying nuclear weapons, Japanese officials said the incident was "harmless" and there would be no further action.

Japanese patrol craft continued to shadow the Soviet convoy, checking for signs of radiation leaks, but none were detected. Japan's Maritime Safety Agency reported.

The Soviet freighter Meridian, which took 55 of the sub's crew on board and then transferred them to another ship, arrived in Kobe early today with a load of cotton and was checked for radioactivity. Japanese officials said it was clean. They reported the Gari also was radiation free.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda today fired a propaganda volley at the Japanese.

The Soviet daily said there was growing "militarism" and "anti-Sovietism" in Japan, and added, "Generals (in Japan) are looking for ways to bring their 'self-defense forces' into the international orbit, and merchants of death are trying to legalize the export of arms."

The lengthy Pravda article did not mention the submarine incident.

U.N. economic session opens

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly opened a special economic session today, hoping for new progress to ease the imbalance between industrial and developing nations.

In its first action, the General Assembly admitted Zimbabwe, the former British African colony of Rhodesia, as the 153rd member of the United Nations, adding one more developing country to the world body.

In opening the special session, Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said the lack of progress to date on the economic issue had produced frustration and anxiety, posing a critical problem for the General Assembly.

He said the General Assembly "must bridge the growing chasm between declarations and intentions on the one side, and the realities of hardship and suffering on the other."

"Rarely has it been so important to match words with policies and actions," he said.

Earlier, a senior U.N. official said he looked for the Third World countries to take a more pragmatic, less dogmatic approach than they displayed in past meetings and negotiations.

"There is a recognition that nothing is to be won by maintaining a climate of confrontation," he said.

The United States and the other industrialized countries were faced by Third World demands for greatly increased aid, cancellation of more than $360 billion in debts owed by developing countries, freer trade and guaranteed prices for raw materials.

Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie was to address the opening session. He was expected to urge creation of an international fund to help oil-poor developing countries find their own oil or alternative sources of energy; establishment of emergency food stockpiles in countries frequently threatened by famine and a global agreement to halt the rise of protective tariffs hampering Third World exports.

The special session is the assembly's third to deal exclusively with economics. Its main objective is to initiate in January nine months of global negotiations to implement a new deal for poor nations in trade, commodity prices, finance and development during the coming decade.

The U.N. official said the negotiations are complicated by the fact that the current recession focuses the attention of Western governments on shorter-term problems of unemployment, inflation and negative balances of payments rather than the long-range goal of a new world economic order sought by the Third World.

A high-ranking U.S. official stressed that his government opposes a proposal to commit the industrial nations to contribute 0.7 percent of their gross national product to development aid.

Noting resistance in the U.S. Congress to any increase beyond the present 0.2 percent, the American official said: "We will not commit ourselves to a target that we do not realistically think will be achieved."

A whittled-down version of the $7.6-billion foreign aid package requested by President Carter for fiscal 1981 is bottled up in Congress and may not emerge before the November election. The main beneficiaries would be Israel and Egypt.

U. S. bowing to blackmail: Begin

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli jets downed a Syrian MIG-21 in a dogfight over southern Lebanon, and the Israeli Cabinet accused the United States of bowing to "oil blackmail" because it did not veto the latest U.N. Security Council resolution on Jerusalem. The first aerial clash between Israel and Syria in 11 months occurred Sunday when Syrian jet fighters intercepted Israeli jets on patrol over southern Lebanon, the Israeli military command said.

The rocky, orchard-studded hills of southern Lebanon have long been a battleground for Palestinian guerrillas and an alliance of Israeli forces and Lebanese Christian militiamen. Their warfare escalated last week when Israel sent 500 commandos over the border for a massive strike against four Palestinian bases in southeast Lebanon. The guerrillas retaliated with rocket attacks on Israeli settlements in Galilee, setting off artillery duels along the border. The Palestine Liberation Organization also claimed it was responsible for two bombs that exploded near Jerusalem Sunday, killing one Israeli and wounding a dozen others.

City sues Porras for zone violation

The city of Midland, in claiming that I. David Porras is violating a city zoning ordinance, has filed suit against the Midland-based interior designer to enjoin him from allegedly doing business in an area zoned as a one-family dwelling district at Missouri Avenue and H Street.

business as a showroom for "commodities and/or merchandise offered for sale on the premises," which the city's petition erroneously identifies as 1411 W. Michigan Ave. The Michigan Avenue address should have been listed as Missouri Avenue. The Porras place is also listed as 201 S. H St., the city claims.

Porras, through his attorney, E.F. "Trey" Lohmann III, maintains that he was "participating in a non-conforming use of his land" prior to relevant ordinances passed in 1979 and 1980 and that the land is being used "as a customary home occupation" and not as a business as the city claims. An earlier relating ordinance, No. 3975, was passed in 1963.

remain as it is. Porras is building the four office complex One Petroleum Center at Wadley Avenue and A Street in north Midland. The first two buildings are to open in October and, other than leasing office space, Porras is to operate his business, including art works as investments. "The plaintiff...has suffered no irreparable harm," Porras countered the city's allegations, "and there is no irreparable harm being done to anyone — even the surrounding property owners — and certainly to this plaintiff (the city)."

Overweight jail employee fired

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Like many people, Belle Luna is overweight. Unlike most, she lost her job because she couldn't even begin to shed the nearly 100 pounds required by city regulations. "I got to get that job back. I feel like a crud being on welfare," said the 5-foot-1, 245-pound former jail matron. Ms. Luna, 35, was fired from her city jail job July 11. Eighteen other city employees also face dismissal if they don't slim down. The former guard was among 22 people, all overweight but otherwise qualified, who were hired temporarily for federally funded job programs. The city waived its weight restrictions for jobs classified as arduous or non-sedentary when the new employees agreed to sign a contract to lose two pounds a week. Ms. Luna, who was supposed to reduce to 147 pounds, broke the contract. "No matter what, I just can't lose weight," she said. "But I did pass the physical examination, and I did my job right." Her job was to frisk female prisoners and check their purses. Male police officers took over if the inmates became violent. Melanie Smith, director of the city Civil Service Commission, defends the agency's action. "We've seen a correlation between excess weight and absenteeism," she said. "It's our job to place the people who can do the job most effectively." "I never took more than the sick days they gave me," said Ms. Luna. "And the sergeants said I did my job good." The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees last week filed a complaint with the state Human Relations Commission in an effort to get Ms. Luna reinstated. "We strongly condemn the city Civil Service Commission's decision that Belle's weight made her unfit to do her job," said Vincent O'Brien, director of District Council 84. An official of the federal civil service, which has no jurisdiction over the city, called the decision to dismiss Ms. Luna "ridiculous." "It's like disqualifying someone for having long hair," said Steve Hoffmann, staff specialist of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management in Washington. "Disqualification for obesity was done away with on the federal level five or six years ago." The state Civil Service Commission also does not use weight alone as a disqualifying factor, said Eugene Tometsco, assistant regional manager in the Pittsburgh office. Ms. Luna said she made $650 a month, including overtime, in her old job. Now she gets about $320 a month in welfare and food stamps to support herself and one child. Another son lives with his father in New York City, but Ms. Luna said she pays for his clothing.

FBI requested info on Oswald's scars

DALLAS (AP) — FBI four years before the agents tried to find out the killing of President John F. Kennedy, according to a published report. Quoting an unnamed source "close to the wald may have had — FBI's ongoing probe of the Oswald affair," the Dallas Morning News reported Sunday that agents questioned Oswald's brother six months after Oswald defected to the Soviet Union in 1959. The agents specifically asked about a scar behind Oswald's ear resulting from a reported mastoidectomy, the report said. The scar is one of a theory that a Soviet impostor took Oswald's place in a plot to assassinate Kennedy, the newspaper said.

Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. The Oswald grave is in Fort Worth's Rose Hill Cemetery.

British author Michael Eddowes wants the body in the grave exhumed and examined, believing it is a Soviet agent who carried out the assassination while posing as Oswald.

One of Eddowes' contentions is that Oswald had a mastoidectomy scar which was not found during an autopsy performed on the man arrested for killing Kennedy.

Eddowes also claims a two-inch height difference was discovered in a comparison between Oswald's military physical description and the autopsy.

Education meeting scheduled at Crockett school Thursday

The Mexican-American Advisory Committee on Education, along with parents in the neighborhood concerned about better education, will have a meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday in Crockett Elementary School. Educational programs and a private recreation program will be topics of discussion. The group will look at statistics showing the academic achievement level of minorities still to be low. Ways to improve those figures will be eyed. A private recreational program for 250 children will be reviewed. A spokesman said the concern is that program will affect the YMCA and their programs. Invited to attend are Dr. James Mailey, superintendent of Midland Independent School District, YMCA officials, school board members, MISD sports officials and persons involved with the new recreation program.

Watch for children

Summer's coming to an end and classes in Midland's public schools will get under way this Wednesday.

It's extremely important at this time of year that Midland drivers exercise as much caution as possible in order to prevent tragic accidents.

Streets will be exceptionally dangerous places this week and in coming weeks as the school year gets into full swing. Many youngsters will be making their way for the first time. They'll be learning how to stay appropriately alert and cautious as they make their way to schools. And, of course, some will be walking a route that is unfamiliar to them.

Other students will be attending new schools in unfamiliar parts of the city.

The start of school is an exciting time for youngsters. They are anxious to cultivate new friendships and renew old ones. They're not always as careful around traffic as they should be so it's up to drivers to watch out for them.

Drivers should observe basic "back-to-school" safety rules like reducing speed, paying more attention to children walking or bicycling to school and strictly observing school speed zones and crosswalks. Drivers also should remember they are required by law to stop for school buses that have stopped to load and unload children. Those vehicles should remain stopped until the children are safely across the street and the bus is moving again.

That rule applies whether a vehicle is in front of or behind the school bus, unless separated from the bus by a divided highway with a median strip.

If parents drive children to school, they should find the least congested area in which to let their children exit the vehicle.

Of course it's a good idea for parents to help their children pick the safest walking route to school and to walk it with very young children prior to the start of school.

The first few weeks of school usually are the most hazardous. Let's all be a little more careful this week and in coming weeks and make the start of this school year a safe and happy time.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Aug. 25, the 238th day of 1980. There are 128 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Aug. 25th, 1944, allied forces liberated Paris from the Nazis.

On this date: In 1689, Iroquois Indians attacked Montreal and killed its 200 inhabitants.

In 1718, French immigrants founded New Orleans.

In 1825, Uruguay became independent of Peru.

In 1921, the United States and Germany signed the World War I peace treaty in Berlin.

Five years ago, President Gerald Ford told a merchants convention he would get the federal government out of its business, out of its pockets and out of its hair.

Last year, American officials kept a Soviet jet grounded at a New York airport while they determined whether one of its passengers was being forced to return to Russia despite her husband's defection.

Today's birthdays: British actor Sean Connery is 50 years old. Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus is 49 and composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein is 62.

Thought for today: There is nothing new in the world except the history you do not know. — President Harry Truman (1884-1972).

"I GOT NEWS, BUSTER— I'VE JUST ABOUT HAD IT!" CHARLEY REESE

Journalist 'junkies' stay hooked on possibilities

After a week at the Democratic National Convention, I would like to share some thoughts with you on the odd relationship between press and politics. Newsmen and politicians are an odd couple which likes to tango.

The press needs news; the politician needs exposure so even when they despise each other they continue to dance. I think biologists call it a symbiotic relationship. To some extent the relationship warps both partners. To say it plainly, the press often reports as news stuff it knows the politician is doing only to generate publicity.

There are, of course, certain rules to the game. The politician must construct his event or expression to conform to the definition of news. That is why there are so many ex-newsmen on the payrolls of politicians. Still, the press and the politician know they are using each other and sometimes the charade does not serve their constituencies very well.

The convention provides a good example. No sophisticated person, either press or politician, really thought Ted Kennedy had or would get the votes to open up the convention in order to sidetrack President Carter's nomination. Kennedy and his people, however, kept the effort going just to get publicity. The press reported those efforts as if it thought there really was a possibility they might succeed. Kennedy benefitted from the publicity and the press benefitted because it had "news" but in the process the public was misled.

When Kennedy lost his vote, withdrew and endorsed Carter as everyone knew he would, these actions were reported as surprises. When Hamilton Jordan then said there was still a lot to be resolved at the convention, the press reported this fib with a straight face. Neither partner in the expensive tango wanted to admit that it was a waste of time and money for everyone concerned.

Jimmy Carter had the nomination. The party merely had to formalize it. That some of them weren't too keen on doing it was irrelevant. They had no choice. The platform disputes were meaningless since what Carter says in the convention and in the campaign has no relationship whatsoever to what he really thinks, if anything, or really intends to do, assuming he even knows.

If the press had been really honest about it, it would have sent a cub or two to observe the rituals instead of the army which spent literally millions of dollars reporting a non-news event.

There is, of course, the hope factor. Years ago when I didn't have any better sense, I used to ride an eight-hour shift with friendly cops. Most nights nothing happened, but I always ended my shift with the anxious feeling that just as soon as I got home, the most exciting thing would occur. It is like a narcotic and it is really what keeps a lot of people in police work and in the news business.

Deep in our curious souls the newsmen at the convention feared that if they did leave, something stupendously unexpected would occur. Rosalyn Carter might have announced she wants a divorce because she's fallen in love with Fritz Mondale. Chip Carter might have announced he was joining the Marines. Carter might have declined the nomination because he had gotten a better paying job with Saudi Arabia. Amy Carter might have smiled. Two pro-gun control nuts might have gotten in a fight and killed each other with knives.

As it turned out, except for a faint smile from Amy, none of this occurred. Still, all journalists are junkies, hooked on hope and possibilities, and I guess there are worse things to be hooked on.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Report contends prior raid 'poorly planned'

WASHINGTON — A top-secret report to the Senate Armed Services Committee has concluded that the Pentagon brass "did not do a very good job of planning" for the Iranian rescue mission last April.

The detailed post-mortem on the botched attempt to free the hostages raises serious questions about the quality of U.S. military leadership and the degree of cooperation among the armed services.

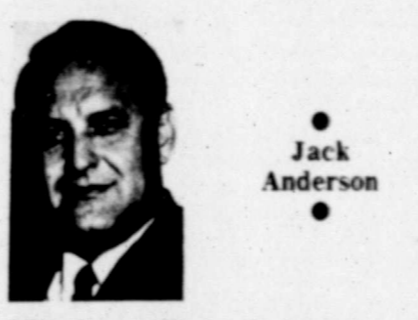

The report, stamped "Top Secret," was written by Senate investigator Bud McFarlane. "Although we have talked to fewer than 25 key personnel," he wrote to Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, "it is clear that major errors were made in the planning and execution of this operation."

The report belies the official post-raid explanation that bad luck and unforeseeable circumstances combined to cause the mission's disastrous outcome.

"I believe very strongly," McFarlane informed Tower, "that the heart of the several errors lies in the poor choice of the commander and the subsequent errors which were compounded as a result of his limited scope."

While acknowledging that the commander, Maj. Gen. James B. Vaughn, is an "excellent soldier," McFarlane notes that he was "experienced as a Division Commander with substantial combat but no special operations experience per se." The Senate investigator concludes that Vaughn was simply "out of his depth."

According to the report, Vaughn was selected by Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, on Nov. 11, 1979, to "develop a capability for a military mission to rescue the U.S. hostages."

Jack Anderson

By Nov. 21, Vaughn had in turn chosen his three subordinate commanders, each of them experienced in special operations: Col. Charles A. Beckwith for the commandos, Air Force Col. James H. Kyle for the C-130 transport planes and Col. Charles Pitman for the helicopters.

Training was under way in the Southwest desert by Dec. 8, and the first full rehearsal was staged on Dec. 21. It was successful, as were all the subsequent periodic full-dress rehearsals.

Significantly, however, McFarlane found that "no rehearsal was ever conducted when weather precluded visual flight rules." He explains: "The planning assumption throughout the training was that in the event of bad weather, the mission would be postponed. In addition, no provision or procedures were established for reacting to bad weather in the event it occurred after the mission was already launched."

Thus, the commanders had no prepared plan for dealing with the dust storm conditions that the helicopters encountered over the Iranian desert. By late January, the combined operation was ready, and performance continued to improve over the next three months.

But Pitman found that his helicopters, poised on the carrier Kitty Hawk, "were not being flown enough." The choppers were supposed to be flown for three hours every other day. But they were not. The copiers, on average, were flown only 15 to 20 hours between January and mid-April, instead of the designated total of 110 hours.

Why the orders for crucial flight testing were not carried out, McFarlane doesn't say. It was, of course, helicopter failures that caused the mission to be scrubbed, with the death of eight American commandos.

The Pentagon's inability to carry out a relatively small-scale mission like the April raid casts serious doubts on its chances for success in any project as ambitious as a limited invasion of Iran.

Footnote: The Pentagon has taken a more charitable view of its failings in Iran, my associates Dale Van Atta and Ron McRae have learned. A preliminary Pentagon evaluation of the rescue attempt insists that the planning was adequate, the equipment sufficient and the command-and-control procedures satisfactory.

But the secret evaluation acknowledges that "under the best of circumstances, a certain number of casualties" were expected among both the hostages and rescuers. The operation also "might have endangered" foreign nationals, including personnel of friendly embassies. There were no plans, the report adds, for evacuating U.S. citizens whose lives may have been endangered by retaliatory action after the raid.

UNDER THE DOME: After a newspaper reported that Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd was miffed at not having been given a role at the Democratic convention, he denied the story to my reporter with rare eloquence. "I am not irked," said the West Virginian. "I am not snubbed. I do not like political conventions. I would rather be in the cool hills of West Virginia, carrying my fiddle with me, playing a tune here or there and talking to my constituents. I can just smell the air wafting from the hills of home, where the streams are pure and the pressures and tensions of conventions are unknown."

— Stung by Democratic taunts arising from the Ku Klux Klan's endorsement of Ronald Reagan, Rep. Bill Dannemeyer, R-Calif., told his colleagues that if he wanted to, he "could mention" that a Klan member is running for Congress on the Democratic ticket. "But I will not do that," he said, deadpan, "because to make mention of that fact would suggest... an association between the Democratic Party and the Ku Klux Klan." Twice more, he mentioned that he would not mention such a thing, because it would be unfair — and of course he never did identify the supposed Democratic Klansman.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan's advisers seeking way to protect him from himself

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The return of the high-flying Reagan campaign to reality was imposed less by the rapid change in the polls following saturation coverage of the Democratic National Convention than by Ronald Reagan's inexplicable turning back to the Vietnam War as "a noble cause."

What is stunning about that self-inflicted wound was the Republican nominee's insistence on rewriting those words back into his Veterans of Foreign Wars text. They had been excised by one key adviser, encouraged by others, who ran a red pencil neatly through an early speech draft hoping to stop this resurrection of one of the most emotional and controversial chapters in American history.

Who did clear the final draft of Reagan's Aug. 18 Chicago speech, headlined on page one of the Atlanta Constitution: "Vietnam was 'noble cause,' Reagan says"? The answer: Reagan himself.

"I was appalled," one Reagan operative told us. In Reagan's political headquarters in Alexandria the day after the speech another search was on to define and execute a "fail-safe" process that will lower future risk to an irreducible minimum. Reagan's irresistible urge, in the words of one intimate, "to tell it like he feels" was the major strategic problem on the desks of Bill Timmons, Reagan's national political director, and campaign consultant Stuart Spencer.

Clearly, needed, as so often in the past, is a tough political strategist to say "no" to Reagan when his self-destructive urge gets out of hand. That could be Spencer — or it could be Jim Baker, a rising influence in the Reagan camp.

Reagan's intellectual honesty in decrying what he called the "feelings of guilt" over Vietnam is not in question. It is widely shared, and not only by Reagan's partisans. In the Southern states, where President Carter faces a stiff challenge from Reagan, there is particularly strong and patriotic support for his statement that the U.S. effort in Vietnam to turn back "aggressors bent on imperialistic conquests" was indeed a "noble cause."

But the great majority of those voters need no reminder of where he stands. They know. For many others, however, the reversion to Vietnam reopens old wounds beginning to heal. It was a sledge-hammer reminder of old anxieties about Ronald Reagan.

The "noble cause" sentiment that came from Reagan's soul illustrates a potentially-dangerous insensitivity on his part: inability to understand the automatic and highly-emotional reactions of these other voters. Without that sensitivity, his own political-alarm system failed to sound urgent warning bells.

Even if a "fail-safe" mechanism for Reagan is found by his advisers, it will be hard to plug in to Reagan's off-the-cuff comments and in the hurly-burly of press conferences where he lacks a written text. Press secretary Lyn Nofziger had that in mind when he told Republican state chairmen in St. Charles, Ill., Aug. 12: "Don't ask for press conferences when we come to your state, or set

How you can cut air-conditioning bills

Copley News Service

It is a simple fact that if every home in the United States would raise air-conditioning temperatures by six degrees, we would save the equivalent of 190,000 barrels of oil every day, according to government statistics.

Considering the fact that over half of our oil is imported at exorbitant prices, and considering that this high-priced oil is sending ripples throughout every sector of our economy, such a reduction is worth pursuing. But you don't have to sweat and sweat in order to conserve. There are a number of simple ways to conserve in comfort.

If you are considering buying a central air-conditioning system, look for one with a cooling capacity that is not larger than your requirements. Your dealer can help you to determine what size air conditioner is right for your home. A larger unit not only requires the unnecessary expenditure of energy, but it also probably won't remove enough moisture from the air.

Another important checkpoint for central air conditioning is the duct. All ducts should be properly insulated, especially those ducts which pass through uncooled spaces like the attic.

Individual air-conditioning units are usually less expensive than central air, but the same rules apply. Don't buy an oversized unit that it does you no good to set them at a lower temperature than normal when you first turn them on. It will not cool your home any faster than a higher setting.

Remember to clean your air conditioner's filter at least once a month. If the filter is dirty, it takes the fan longer to move the same amount of air thus burning up more energy.

If you are leaving a room for more than an hour, turn your air conditioner off.

Although it will take more energy to cool the room off later, you will save energy in the long run.

A few other pointers regarding air conditioning and cooling are worth mentioning, even if you don't have an air-conditioning system.

Keep lamps and appliances away from the thermostat where they can influence the temperature reading.

Keep daytime sun out with drapes, awnings or shades, and your cooling requirements will be lowered.

Dress for warmer temperatures and you won't need cooling as much.

Remember to keep lights off during the daytime, as well as any other appliances which can increase the temperature of your home.

In combination, these factors can significantly reduce your cooling needs and that's good for everyone.

You could stop a crime

In about half of all household burglaries, the burglar enters without force — usually through an unlocked door or window or by using a key.

A new booklet from the U.S. Department of Justice can help you protect yourself against burglary, rape, arson and other crimes. For your free copy of "You Could Stop A Crime," just send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 651H, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

It doesn't take much to outsmart most burglars, since they're usually not "pros." Remember to lock your door always — even when you're going out for just a minute. Make sure your locks at home are the deadbolt type, with a strong metal bar that extends one inch into the door frame.

If it's too hot to close the windows, put nails in the window frames so the windows can't open more than a couple of inches. If you're off on a trip, be sure to stop the newspaper and mail delivery, or ask a neighbor to collect them, so they won't pile up outside your door. Use automatic timers you can buy at the local hardware store for under $10 to turn the lights on and off.

And, to further deter burglars, mark things you own that are particularly attractive — such as color TV's, stereos and CB radios — with a personal identification number.

Out on the street, it may surprise you to learn that losses from reported purse-snatching average about $98 a take. But protecting yourself just takes common sense: walk confidently; be alert to anyone who passes you or to anyone behind you; don't take shortcuts through parks, parking lots, alleys or tunnels at night; hold your purse tightly and close to your body; keep your wallet in a front pocket or button your hip pocket; and carry as little cash possible.

Although older people aren't victims of crimes any more often than younger people, they are especially vulnerable to fraud and purse-snatching.

wastes energy, and buy one with a high energy-efficiency rating. Combine this system with a few ventilating fans in other areas of the home. Use these fans to circulate air when it is cool outside instead of running the air conditioner. If it is under 82 degrees Fahrenheit outside, it pays to use the fan to pull cool air inside.

The experts recommend that you set your thermostat at 78 degrees Fahrenheit, a reasonably comfortable, highly efficient temperature. If you are normally setting your thermostat at 72 F, you could be wasting between 12 percent and 47 percent of your annual cooling costs, depending on where you live.

Another point about thermostats is

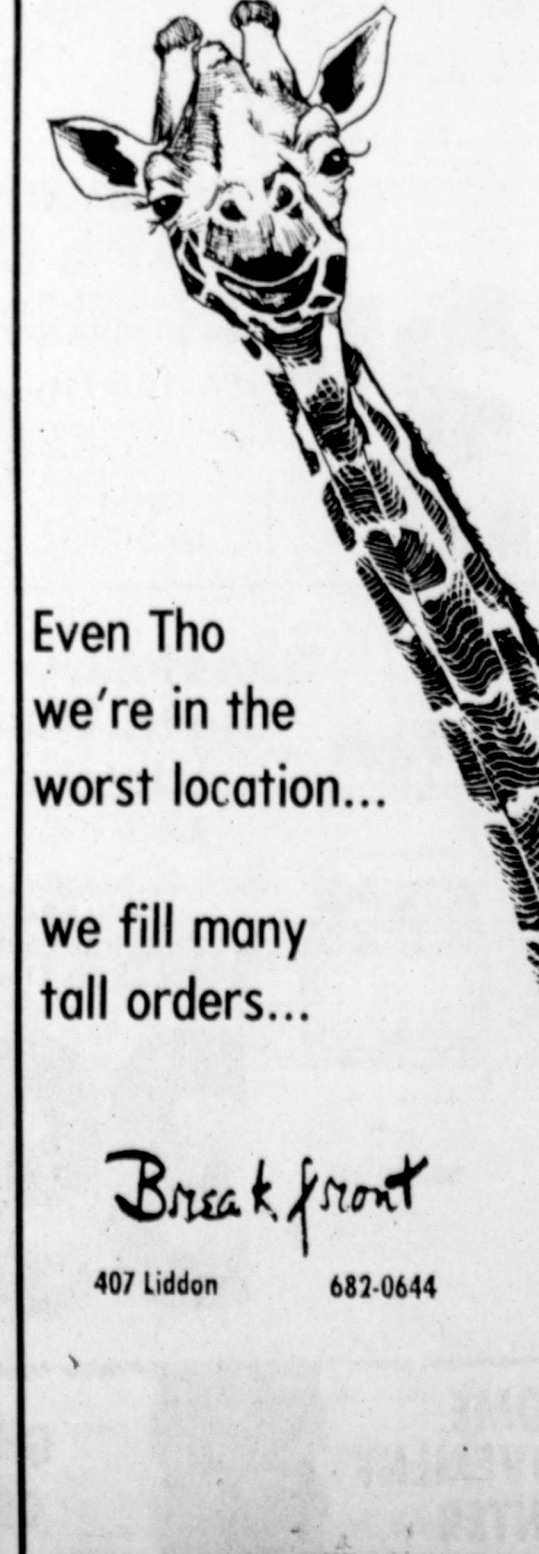

Cheese book available

The eighth and final booklet in "The Wonderful World" series is on cheese.

It shows how cheese can be used for entertaining in Triple Cheese Ball, fondue to soups and special sandwiches such as Super Cheese Hero or Monte Cristo. There are many ways to combine cheese with vegetables or in classics such as Stuffed Pizza, Zucchini Lasagna or Onion Omelet, Italian Style.

Desserts include recipes for a Surprise Apple Cheesecake, Blue Cheese Apple Pie or a fruit/cheese tray. A Cheese, Wine and Fruit chart guides your choices while another chart describes cheese varieties and details their use.

DEAR ABBY Simple courtesies mark best neighbors

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Just a word to SLEEPY-TIME GAL, and all the others who complain about neighbors who mow their lawn in the early hours of the morning:

I mow mine from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m.—before the sun comes out. With the temperature 100 degrees during the day, I have no apologies for mowing my lawn during the coolest hours.

If SLEEPY-TIME GAL wants to mow my lawn for me when SHE gets up and the sun is scorching, I'll be happy to work out a deal. HOT IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR HOT: If you can't work out a deal with your neighbor, read on for a suggestion from an Arlington, Va., reader:

DEAR ABBY: Poor SLEEPY-TIME GAL. She has our sympathy. We had the same problem a few years ago. However, it was solved when you mentioned it in a column titled, "Ten Nays for neighbors." We clipped it and showed it to our neighbors, and I must say it did a lot for our good-neighbor relations.

We had to get it photostated because so many of our friends wanted copies, including a guard at the White House in Washington, D.C.

I'm enclosing a copy with the request that you kindly print it again.—ARLINGTON READER

DEAR READER: Consider it done.

TEN NAYS FOR GOOD NEIGHBORS

1) Thou shalt love thy neighbor, but not his wife, nor shalt thou covet thy neighbor's house, or his car, or any other thing he owneth.

2) Thou shalt keep thy dog, and thy stered, and thy lawnmower quiet while thy neighbor sleepeth.

3) Thou shalt borrow from the neighbor rarely, and when thou doest, returneth undamaged and without delay that which thou hast borrowed.

4) Thou shalt not alloweth thy pets nor thy children to run amok, despoiling thy neighbor's lawn, flower beds and fence.

5) Thou shalt keepeth thy lawn green, thy fence painted and thy driveway uncluttered even as ye shall also keep thy vehicles in thy garage where they belong.

6) Thou shalt watcheth always for criminals and fires in thy neighborhood and guard thy neighbor's home and his property even as thy own.

7) Thou shalt not use thy home for any unsightly or illegal activity.

8) Thou shalt always stand ready to help thy neighbor in his hour of true need, even as he does for thee.

9) Thou shalt not parketh thy camper, nor thy RV, nor thy van in the street where it blocketh thy neighbor's view and createth a safety hazard to all.

10) Thou shalt not hold wild parties or orgies that lasteth until wee hours unless thou shalt inviteth thy neighbor too.

Avoid problems in lawn seeding

MARYSVILLE, Ohio — For the homeowner who is fixing up a summer-scarred lawn or putting in a new one, late summer or early fall is by far the best time to do the job, according to agronomists at Scotts, the lawn people. These experts have compiled a list of the most common mistakes made today in seeding a lawn and how to avoid them.

1. Buying seed of poor quality. Since a lawn can never be better than the seed it starts with, an investment in high quality seed that has a low weed content, no excess inert material and superior, named varieties of new grasses is preferable.

2. Not preparing a good seedbed. In order to germinate and take hold, grass seed must make good contact with the soil. Never toss seed on hard, bare ground or on top of existing grass. Scratch or slice up the upper layer of soil with any convenient garden tool. This will provide the crevices the seeds need.

3. Sowing the seed ineffectively. When it is spread too thin, the seed germinates too few plants to establish a well-knit turf that helps to shut out weeds. Too heavy a spread can produce too many seedlings competing for the nutrients, moisture and light. Using a precision spreader is the best answer for areas larger than ten square feet.

4. Starving seedling grass. The young seedlings need different nutrition than established grass plants. Use a fertilizer that is specially designed for new seedlings. It will have a high middle number (phosphorus content) indicated on the box or bag.

5. Neglecting to water. Agronomists at Scotts estimate that probably 90 percent of seeding failures are due to lack of moisture following germination of the seed.

Pat Walker's really works for a working woman like me. I lost 51 pounds!

Ray Barnwell's True Story:

Running an auto supply store means being on the job six days a week, doing everything from selling to handling the books. At home, I have two children and a husband to take care of. So I don't have much time to think about myself. Maybe that's why I hadn't done anything worthwhile about my weight problem. I'm embarrassed to admit that I weighed 167 pounds (I'm 5'5").

A friend of mine—who was always going on fad diets with me—decided to try Pat Walker's. When she began to see results, I thought I'd try it, too. Luckily, I could go before or after work, and I didn't even have to change clothes to use the Symmetricron passive exercise unit.

The counselors at Pat Walker's are so encouraging, and they have a great plan for eating right that's a lot more flexible than those strict diets I'd tried.

Within a month, I could see that Pat Walker's was working for me. And now I've lost about 10 inches from my waist, 7 inches from my tummy, and a total of 51 pounds! So you see, even if you're as busy as I am, you can still look as good as you should. Pat Walker's is the secret.

Teen-ager shoots self during church service

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — As a 15-year-old friend and 1,300 other people bowed their heads in prayer around him, a 14-year-old resident of a youth home shot and killed himself in the balcony of a New Orleans church, officials say.

The home's director said today he was still trying to figure out why Brett Soingnet got a gun, got drunk and shot himself.

"According to several boys, he had been doing a great deal of drinking. But that was just the catalyst. ... I think being intoxicated gave him the courage, I guess, for lack of a better word, to shoot himself," said Ralph Stroup.

Police Sgt. Patrick Fricke said the Sunday night shooting came about 10 minutes after social workers called to say the boy had been waving a gun around at the Waldo Burton Boys Home.

By the time officers arrived there, he said, the youth was gone.

Fricke said Soingnet was on "some type of probation" for burglary and said social workers reported the boy was despondent.

"The boy has a whole history of things he could be really depressed about," Stroup said, adding that information was private.

But, he said, things had seemed to be looking up for Soingnet.

"He had gone to summer school and had got passing grades; he was going into the ninth grade. Everything looked real sort of rosy."

"He was not a boy that was continuously punished or got into trouble or anything," he said. "On the outside he was a happy-go-lucky boy. ... He was liked by just about everyone."

Soingnet had become short-tempered in the past few weeks, Stroup said, but had refused to tell counselors why. He was brandishing the gun when he returned from a weekend visit with his family, Stroup said.

"He told the boys that some friends had given it to him," said Stroup. Counselors talked with Soingnet for several hours, trying to get him to give up the pistol.

"The moment he left, we called police to try to get him picked up, but we didn't know where he was going," he said.

A 15-year-old friend went with Soingnet.

"The (older) boy was actually very gallant about it. He was very frightened the whole time but stayed with him, trying to talk to him," Stroup said.

About 1,300 to 1,400 people were in the church about 10 blocks from the youth home when the two boys entered, said the Rev. Daniel Flanagan, associate minister at the First Assembly of God.

Soingnet shot himself just after the congregation bowed heads and joined hands at the end of the service, according to Flanagan.

"The young man who brought him said he felt the young man's hand leave his, and then the next thing he knew, he heard the sound of the bullet," he said.

"It's too early at this time to pinpoint any particular reason," Stroup said. "But ... the boy shot himself in church, so I think he made a last-ditch effort to save himself. And it wasn't successful."

Kermit raising funds for UNICEF

NEW YORK (AP) — He was greeted by clicking cameras and went right to work. "I'm sending out some letters, getting my picture taken. ... I'm beating last year's record for $4 million in fundraising. We're going for $10 million."

The name of this consummate fundraiser? KERMIT THE FROG, the "first chairfrog" of the 1980 UNICEF fundraising campaign.

With his long, green skinny legs stretched out before him, Kermit sat on a table at the organizations' headquarters Saturday talking about the international campaign that benefits children. His constant companion, Muppet creator JIM HENSON, was beside him.

Asked if he had told fellow Muppet MISS PIGGY about his new duties, Kermit said slowly, "Well, yes, I have. She gave me 25 cents. She handed it to me right then and there. ... er, maybe it was $1 or $5."

Kermit will appear on posters and television to talk about UNICEF because "it's an opportunity to do something nice."

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1940, BETTY HUTTON made her Broadway debut at the Alvin Theater in "Two for the Show," and catapulted into films with her "incendiary blonde" looks.

So there's a touch of nostalgia as she returns to the Alvin 40 years later as Miss Hannigan in "Annie."

She'll be filling in for ALICE GHOSTLEY while Miss Ghostley takes a three-week vacation.

Miss Hutton, 59, has had a long bout with alcohol, pills and breakdowns, but says, "I'm OK now."

"I almost committed suicide," she said during a rehearsal. "I owe it all to God. I'm a Catholic now. My family is back again. I'm working. And it's fabulous."

It was the Rev. Peter Maguire of St. Anthony's Church in Portsmouth, R.I., who helped the transformation work, she said.

He'll be watching, along with her daughters and several grandchildren when she opens here Sept. 17. "It's great, isn't it," she said.

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'd rather be the butt of a good joke than a bad rumor."

So saying, MARGARET TRUDEAU has decked herself out as damsel in distress, tied to the railroad tracks, crying for help. She also appears as a bird-brained zoo keeper, clad in hiking shorts and a bush helmet, who loses a boa constrictor on a talk show.

And, of course, she ends up with that classical slapstick accessory, the pie in the face.

These are among the "good jokes" on "Big City Comedy," a Canadian version of "Saturday Night Live," where she makes her satirical TV debut this fall, People magazine says.

The show also will be syndicated in the United States.

After flings with rock stars, photography and the disco set, and with a movie to her credit, the ex-wife of Canadian Prime Minister PIERRE ELLIOTT TRUDEAU says she's "very happy and quite fulfilled."

She lives in a small red-brick house near the prime minister's residence in Ottawa, and mothers her three children, ages 8, 6 and 4, on alternate weeks. "I feel I'm pulling my weight as a parent," she says. "Maybe in three or four years I'll spend more time on a career and on myself."

Teen-age hiker safe after 6 days in Grand Canyon

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — John A. Fountain, who spent six days lost in the rugged terrain of the Grand Canyon, says he ate frogs and prickly pear cacti, fended off snakes and celebrated his birthday in 120-degree temperatures before searchers found him.

The 19-year-old returned home Sunday, a little thinner but sporting a T-shirt that said, "I've hiked the Canyon."

"He's a tough little nut, a survivor," said his father, Donald H. Fountain, who had gone to Arizona last week to keep abreast of any progress in the search, which cost Grand Canyon officials $32,000.

"Oh, thank you, God. Oh, thank you, God," his mother, Eda Fountain, said when her son arrived the Indianapolis International Airport to a greeting by friends and relatives who waved signs saying "We love you, John" and "Welcome home."

The teen-ager was lost after he became separated from two hiking companions on Aug. 16. He was found Aug. 22.

"I was scared, but not of dying," Fountain said of his solitary adventure. "The first day was the worst because I was in the sun the whole day. After that I tried to sleep during the day and hike in the morning and night. But I didn't sleep much."

Fountain spent his 19th birthday lost in the canyon, "singing happy birthday to myself" and thinking "about Gatorade a lot."

He subsisted on water and what he could find around him.

"He tried to eat a whole frog, but he couldn't take that. So he used a knife he found to cut off the legs off, and he set them in the sun to see if they would cook. But they just shriveled up, so then he ate the legs raw," his 21-year-old brother, Mike, said.

On the day he got lost, Fountain had left two hiking companions who were suffering from heat exhaustion. The two men felt better on Sunday, walked off to get water and when they returned to their packs they saw evidence that Fountain had returned and left again.

Thinking Fountain was safe, his companions walked out of the canyon. When they discovered Fountain had not left the park, they reported him missing.

Fountain, who will be a freshman at Ball State University in Muncie next month, said he plans to return to Arizona to discuss his hike more thoroughly with park officials.

"I found water in some places where they didn't know there was water. I couldn't remember exactly where I went, but I'd like to go back and try to show them," said Fountain.

"Well, not for a few days," his mother added.

French fishermen reimpose blockade of Le Havre port

PARIS (AP) — Striking French fishermen reimposed their blockade on Le Havre today, a few hours before a "national reconciliation meeting" among the fishermen, shipowners and government officials was due to start.

In addition to Le Havre, the third busiest port in the European Common Market, the fishermen blockaded the nearby oil port of Antifer and Dunkirk on the English Channel. Mediterranean ports remained open.

A car ferry that was due to leave Le Havre for Southampton, England was stranded in the port.

The Le Havre port authorities were taken by surprise as 20 fishing vessels sailed into the main channel two hours after sunrise to take their positions. Another six ships went on to Antifer and dislodged buoys that guide the supertankers.

The fishermen launched their action nearly two weeks ago to protest the rising cost of fuel and industry plans to trim jobs as an economy measure.

In an interview published in the newspaper Nice Matin, Premier Raymond Barre warned again that his government intended to keep the country's ports open and "no one should count on the least sign of weakness on its part."

Last week, acting on Barre's orders, French naval tugboats using fire hoses broke up a fishermen's blockade of the Mediterranean oil terminal at Fos-Sur-Mer near Marseille.

Few observers expect the conciliation committee to resolve the problems facing the French fishing industry. The fishermen have warned they will step up their efforts to stop all maritime traffic to France if a solution is not found at a meeting of the French cabinet Wednesday.

Four drown in heavy surf

KITTY HAWK, N.C. (AP) — Strong riptides spawned by three days of steady northeast winds led to four drownings within 90 minutes off North Carolina's Outer Banks, the worst series of drownings here in five years, officials say.

The drownings occurred Sunday after officers with bullhorns urged swimmers to stay out of the waters, authorities said.

One other person is presumed to have drowned Saturday afternoon.

Dare County rescue workers answered dozens of calls from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday along the 25-mile beach from South Nags Head to Duck. At least 17 people received medical attention.

The riptides were augmented by the monthly lunar tides and steady north-easterly winds from Tropical Storm Charley. All the Sunday drownings occurred within an hour of low tide.

"You hate to see a weekend like that come. The beach was full with a lot of people who didn't know what was happening," said Lt. C.L. Hatchell of the Dare County sheriff's office.

Southern Shores policeman Jim

Mulford said he almost drowned trying to rescue a victim near Duck.

"I almost panicked. I thought I couldn't get back," Mulford said.

Mulford tried twice to fight the current, only to be forced back to sea and north along the beach both times. After an hour, he made it to shore by swimming from sand bars close to the beach.

Dare County officials said the body of Wilton Howell Bunn, 61, of Newport News, Va., was washed ashore before Mulford could get out of the water.

Dare County authorities listed the other victims as John Moroney, 42, of Ellicott City, Md.; James Palsik, 36, of Raleigh, N.C.; and a 29-year-old man who was not identified immediately.

Officials said Paul Denne Jr., 28, of Port View, Pa., disappeared Saturday while swimming near Duck.

In addition, the Coast Guard suspended the search Sunday for a Virginia teen-ager who fell off a fishing boat Thursday night in Oregon Inlet.

Sheriff's deputies and police officers had urged swimmers to stay away from the waters.

"All we could do was ask them. We couldn't force them out of the water. You'd get them out for maybe 30 minutes and then they'd work themselves right back in," Hatchell said.

Officials said it was the worst series of drownings since Memorial Day 1975, when 11 people died along the Dare County beaches.

Charley reduced to storm

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Charley, sweeping east across the North Atlantic after a loss of hurricane status, today is no more of a threat than a brisk thunderstorm, forecasters say.

Charley, the third storm of the 1980 Atlantic season, was located late Sunday 620 miles south-southeast of St. Johns, Newfoundland. It was moving east at about 23 mph with winds well under the 74 mph required for hurricane classification.

A tropical storm must have sustained winds of 39 mph to 73 mph.

"It's not a very well-developed storm," said forecaster Joe Pelissier of the National Hurricane Center in Miami. "Right now, its winds are about 50 mph. You get those kind of winds in a good afternoon thunderstorm."

Charley was born with 80 mph winds Saturday from a low-pressure area that had been churning up waters off the Atlantic Coast for days. It wasn't formed in the tropics, but the low developed the whirling characteristics of a tropical cyclone and became a hurricane, Hope said.

At that time, Hope said the waters just 100 miles to the north were too cold to sustain a cyclone.

It will be a while before we know who shot J. R.: Hagman

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Actor Larry Hagman says it's going to be a while before anyone knows who shot ornery J.R. Ewing, the character he plays on the television show "Dallas."
 "It doesn't look like 'Dallas' will be on until October or November due to the actors' strike," Hagman said during weekend appearances on the Grand Ole Opry and at the Opryland U.S.A. entertainment park.
 "The real ending may be shot the day before it goes on the air," he said while answering questions from fans during Texas-style 95-degree heat at an outdoor theater.
 He said parts of 10 fall shows have been filmed but endings to these shows have not been done.
 "I think there are about three different possibilities," Hagman, 48, said without elaboration about his assailant.
 Ewing was shot by an unknown assailant on the show last spring, triggering a world-wide guessing game about who did it.

"I'm going to be in an iron lung for four or five shows," the terrible Texan said.
 Comedienne Minnie Pearl gave Hagman one of her famous straw bonnets Saturday and he wore it during an appearance on the Grand Ole Opry. He received spirited applause when he walked out on stage with it on instead of his usual giant cowboy hat.
 Miss Pearl, who went to school with Hagman's mother, actress Mary Martin, called him "a charming, delightful fellow" and presented him with a gold record comparable to the key to the city.
 Hagman said the "Dallas" cast gets along well despite reports to the contrary.
 "We're a family," he said.
 Asked by a fan how it feels to be a cult figure, he said, "It happened so fast. I've spent 31 years in the business and it's nice to have this much acclaim."
 He said he really is not mean in real life like Ewing.
 "I wish I had my kids here to let you know how nice I am. That lady has been married to me for 26 years," he said, gesturing to his wife.
 "There's no way I'd treat my wife like I do Sue Ellen," he said, referring to Mrs. J.R. Ewing on "Dallas."
 Hagman said he believes the "Dallas" characters Bobby and Pam will get back together and said Lucy will be married on the show to a new character.

'Starsky and Hutch' subpoenaed in case involving 'Charlie's Angels' fraud case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With the stars of "Starsky and Hutch" subpoenaed as witnesses, officials were opening a grand jury session today to gather information on allegations that two actors were defrauded of more than $500,000 in profits from the "Charlie's Angels" television show.
 David Soul and Paul Michael Glaser were among several people subpoenaed to testify at the informational proceeding conducted by Deputy District Attorney James Ferruzzo.
 Ferruzzo has headed the 10-month investigation into charges that ABC network payments intended for "Charlie's Angels" were diverted to "Starsky and Hutch."
 "We'll be taking testimony for the purpose of gathering information. We will not at this time be asking the grand jury to return an indictment," said District Attorney's spokesman Al Albergate. He said no charges have been filed in the case.
 The key prosecution witness in the case is former ABC lawyer Jennifer Martin. She has charged that ABC diverted license fees from one show to the other and also made "exclusivity payments" to "Charlie's Angels" as a means of defrauding actor Robert Wagner and his wife, actress Natalie Wood, owners of 43.75 percent of the hit series.
 Ms. Martin said the show already was exclusive to ABC and did not warrant additional payments. She brought the situation to the attention of ABC officials in a series of memos beginning Sept. 25.
 In the memos she alleged that an ABC official told her such payments were meant to defraud Miss Wood and Wagner of their returns from the show.
 ABC said it conducted an independent investigation into the matter and found no wrongdoing.
 Ms. Martin was fired Oct. 1, a move that ABC had decided on before the Sept. 25 memo and was based on absenteeism and sloppy work, the network said.
 Others subpoenaed to appear before the session included George Reeves, former ABC-TV senior vice president for television and theatrical affairs, and Ronald Sunderland, ABC vice president for business affairs.
 Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg, who produce both of the hit TV shows, have previously spoken with Ferruzzo's investigators and were not subpoenaed for the session, Albergate said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Voyager 1 began transmitting "some beautiful pictures" of the ringed planet Saturn to Earth this weekend, but scientists say the best are yet to come.
 "There are no surprises as yet," Irving J. Webb, project operations controller, said Sunday at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory's mission headquarters.
 He explained that Voyager 1 — which last year produced colorful images of Jupiter — is still 64 million miles from Saturn and therefore the 30 or so pictures that came in Saturday and Sunday offered no significant revelations.
 The Voyager spacecraft has travelled 1.26 billion miles since it was launched nearly three years ago, and is currently shooting through space at a speed of 46,650 mph. Its closest brush with Saturn is expected to occur about Nov. 12, when the two will be 78,000 miles apart.
 Voyager will continue to conduct experiments for two weeks after the closest encounter, Webb said, and will take more pictures as it leaves the planet. Its tasks are expected to be completed Dec. 15.
 Scientists spent Sunday checking the instruments of Voyager 1, which began the "observatory phase" of the Saturn mission Saturday.

Reagan campaign mired in Two Chinas confusion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan's campaign is on the defensive, exactly where his strategists don't want it, as he and George Bush try to clear up a befuddling Two Chinas Policy — one by Reagan and one by Bush.

The GOP nominee and his running mate were to confer privately today before issuing a promised statement to set matters straight at a news conference.

Bush returned to Los Angeles Sunday night from a three-day trip to Peking, where he had said a Republican administration could not legally establish a government liaison office on Taiwan and had no intention of doing so even if it could.

Even before Bush left China, Reagan was contradicting his running mate, in saying he was sticking by his proposal for an "official governmental relationship" with Taiwan.

The official New China News Agency said Bush had "failed to reassure China" about the policies of the Republican ticket. It said Bush's assurances that Reagan would try to further American relations with Peking were "canceled out" by Reagan's repeated calls for renewed official ties with Taiwan.

The United States severed official links with Taiwan last year when it granted formal diplomatic recognition to Peking and set up an embassy there, replacing the liaison office once headed by Bush.

American interests on Taiwan now are represented by a private foundation, the American Institute. Although it has no official status, the institute is funded by the U.S. government and staffed by personnel on temporary leave from the State Department.

Reagan's campaign strategists had hoped to keep him away from such controversy, and to make President Carter's record the focus of the race. Reagan pollster and strategist Richard Wirthlin said recently that the Republican candidate's chances this fall would be "problematical" if Reagan himself became an issue.

But press secretary Lyn Nofziger said Reagan would not be hurt politically by the flap over Taiwan. "This campaign is not going to be won or lost on China," he said. "It's going to be decided on Jimmy Carter's record of incompetence."

At his last public appearance, a news conference in Dallas last Friday, Reagan was reluctant to spell out again his

Carter wants Reagan only in early debate

By the Associated Press

President Carter is ready to sidestep both John Anderson and recent tradition in his bid to have an early debate with Ronald Reagan. But for Reagan, the immediate priority is getting things straight with his own running mate and the world's most populous nation.

White House Chief of Staff Jack Watson said Sunday that while Carter remains prepared to take on challengers other than Reagan, he will insist that the first debate of the fall campaign be "one on one."

And that, said Watson, might entail finding a sponsor other than the League of Women Voters, the traditional organizer which already has slated three debates, possibly including Anderson, with the first scheduled for Sept. 18 in Baltimore.

Already, Watson said, the White House is evaluating offers for a Carter-Reagan confrontation prior to that date.

Watson declared that "there's tremendous uncertainty right now" about where Reagan stands on foreign affairs.

As for the prospect for presidential debates, a League of Women Voters official in Baltimore, Pat Chase, said "We are very confident the details will be worked out and the first debate will be here" despite the threat voiced by Watson.

Watson said other organizations had made offers to sponsor a direct matchup between Carter and Reagan in the near future and "We will be meeting with Mr. Reagan's advisors to discuss it."

Anderson, who has been given until Sept. 10 to come up with a 15 percent showing in the national polls in order to participate in the league's program, said Watson's remarks reflected an attempt "to manipulate the debates in order to benefit Jimmy Carter."

Anderson's ratings lately have been below 15 percent, but he hopes for a surge when he names his running mate, perhaps within the next day or two.

In Wisconsin, former Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey was still reported to be toying with the idea after a weekend meeting with Anderson's wife, Keke. But there was no confirmation that Anderson had made Lucey a formal offer.

Defense issues occupy candidates

By the Associated Press

If you were running for president, the first post-convention week of the election campaign was one for donning those brimless overseas caps, not of military issue but dandy for military issues.

The American Legion held its convention in Boston, the Veterans of Foreign Wars met in Chicago, and the candidates went courting.

Dutifully, Democrat Jimmy Carter, Republican Ronald Reagan and independent John B. Anderson put on those pointed caps, posed for pictures and talked about the state of the national defense.

Reagan charged Carter had allowed it to deteriorate and had jeopardized the nation's security.

"Every single analysis of which I am aware directly contradicts this administration's smug assertion that the United States is and will remain militarily superior or at least 'second to one,'" Reagan told the Legion. "We are already second to one."

Before the same forum, Carter gave a weapon-by-weapon defense of his military policies, said the nation was "strong enough for now and tomorrow" and promised to spend more on weaponry in a second Carter administration.

Anderson criticized both — Reagan for urging military superiority over the Russians instead of mere equality and Carter for "weak and vacillating leadership" in foreign affairs.

Reagan, in his speech before the VFW, attracted attention by his defense of America's participation in "a noble cause" — the war in Vietnam.

Carter, late in the week, replied: "We've heard the word 'noble' used; we must recognize the nobility of an honorable peace."

"It's been a long time, more than 50 years," the president boasted, "since a president has served a complete term or terms in the White House without having combat troops lose their lives in war."

Reagan won the endorsement of the VFW — the first awarded by the organization of 2.5 million men and women in its history.

But Carter won endorsements, too. With one vote and two abstentions, the executive committee of the AFL-CIO recommended that the labor federation back him.

And, when Carter flew to Boston, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was waiting at the airport with a handshake and warmer words than he expressed in the closing moments of the Democratic National Convention. There, Kennedy, defeated for the presidential nomination, appeared formal and unenthusiastic when he shared the platform with Carter.

Kennedy flew off to Detroit and asked the 550,000-member American Federation of Teachers, which had been for him in the primaries, to transfer its support to Carter.

"We are ready to help him," he told the cheering teachers. "We must support and work for the Democratic candidates and together we must support and work for the re-election of

NAACP officials plan to call for investigation into shooting

MATHEWS, Va. (AP) — Officials of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People planned to call for a federal investigation into the weekend shooting death of a young black man that triggered a protest and march through this community.

Jack Gravely, Virginia NAACP executive director, said on Sunday he will ask the Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department and the FBI today to look into the incident in which Mathews County Sheriff's Deputy John Thorne shot and killed Michael Johnson, 23, of Susan.

"The NAACP will be back here later this week to further investigate," Gravely added.

Johnson, a state Department of Highways and Transportation employee, was shot during a struggle in the parking lot of a state Alcoholic Beverage Control store on Saturday, said Sheriff Kenneth H. Jordan Jr.

That night, there was a demonstration on the steps of the sheriff's office, and 30 to 40 state police troopers were called in to restore order. Jordan said a screen door was damaged, but there were no arrests.

On Sunday, some 150 blacks chanted and sang as they marched from the center of town to a church where black leader, including Gravely, addressed them.

State police are investigating the shooting incident, and Jordan said he was uncertain when their inquiry would be completed.

The state medical examiner's office in Richmond was expected to perform an autopsy on

Chutist struck in air by cargo airplane

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A parachutist who had just jumped at 7,500 feet was struck and killed by a cargo plane in what one aviation official called a "one-in-a-billion" accident in the skies over the Borderland Air Sports Center.

"He (the parachutist) was in the free-fall portion of his jump, which means he hadn't pulled his chute yet and was moving at a horrendous speed," said a Federal Aviation Administration official who asked not to be identified.

"The plane itself was probably going 200 mph. If he (the parachutist) had had his chute out, they could have seen him, but it was one of those freak, one-in-a-billion occurrences," the spokesman said.

He said the plane crew initially reported that it had hit a bird.

John Peter Nichols, 24, was pronounced dead at the scene of the Saturday accident, a San Diego County Sheriff's Dept. deputy said.

The air center is in Otay, southeast of San Diego, about five miles north of the U.S.-Mexican border.

Nichols, an off-duty Marine Corps lieutenant based at Camp Pendleton, jumped with two friends from a Cessna 180 at about 7,500 feet and was struck at about 5,000 feet, officer Doug Clements said.

Neither friend was injured, he added.

The FAA and the San Diego County Coroner were investigating.

Grant, Hicks lead clout parade as Cubs win

BY TED BATTLES

Tom Grant...goes 4-for-4

Joe Hicks lost another one over the fence and Tom Grant went 4-for-4 as the Midland Cubs made it three in a row over the El Paso Diablos, 11-2, to take a two-game lead in the Texas League West Division pennant race Sunday at Cubs Stadium.

The Cubs and Diablos conclude their series in a 6:30 p.m. game tonight at Cubs Stadium and San Antonio's Dodgers, looming more and more like the team Midland will have to beat to win the second half flag, move in for a season-ending five-game series Tuesday. That, however, may be overshadowed by the return appearance of the San Diego Chicken, who masquerades away from the ball park as Ted Gannoullis, for Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. game. The Chicken drew 4,680 fans the last time around and Cubs GM Bill Rigney, Jr., advises, "Come early or be prepared to take a long evening stroll."

San Antonio made it three in a row over Amarillo Sunday to drop the Gold Sox two games behind Midland. At the same time the Dodgers stayed within striking distance, three games, of the first place Cubs.

WHILE THE 12-hit batting attack on four Diablo pitchers won it, the relief pitching of Henry Mack made it look easy. Mack relieved starter Jon Perlman in the fifth and pitched 4 2/3 innings of shutout baseball to notch his fifth victory of the season.

If the fans in the stands weren't impressed with Mack, they would have been if they had seen the swollen fingers of catcher Mike Shepston after the game. Mike confirmed that the Winchester, Ky., Rifle was firing live bullets with his three-hit performance. "He was throwing hard," Shepston said, "and when Henry and Herman (Segelke) come in in relief and throw as hard as they've been doing, it's rough on catchers as well as hitters."

Perlman, who popped an elbow and was unable to finish a shutout in his last start at Amarillo, tired in the fifth and left behind 2-0 with a runner on first and one out. Mack chalked up two of his four whiffs in snuffing out the threat and the Cubs won it in the home fifth with a three-run burst.

STARTER Dan Smith, now 8-7, courted trouble when he walked Dave Owen and Shepston with one out and got it as Jared Martin singled to right for one run, although Shepston was hung between second and third for the second out.

Scott Fletcher then beat out a bouncer to third to set up Grant's game-winning triple off the boards in left-center.

Four runs in the seventh and again in the eighth made it a runaway. Grant came up with two-out, a run in and Fletcher on first in the seventh with a single, double and triple already and needing only a homer for the Cycle. Instead, he was hit by a Rich Rommel pitch, but got the Cycle by osmosis when Joe Hicks followed with his

AL pennant pressure just too much for club owners

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Baltimore Orioles and New York Yankees went head-to-head eight times, the pressure became too much—not for the players, but for the owners.

Edward Bennett Williams, the noted Washington attorney who owns the Orioles, is occasionally suspected of looking longingly about 40 miles south everytime he visits Memorial Stadium.

He succeeded in planting his foot firmly in his mouth by suggesting in print that Oriole fans were "on trial," at the gate. The defendants spun the turnstiles to the tune of 253,636 paid admissions for five games against the Yankees, setting an all-time single series record.

And what's more, noted Williams, automobile access and egress from the stadium's limited parking lots is not outstanding. We'll see about that, responded the Baltimore Police Department. After one of the 50,000-plus crowd nights, they tailed Williams' limousine, which was headed south, of course, from the stadium to the city line. The clocking was 19 minutes, which is about 18 minutes longer than it takes shipbuilder George Steinbrenner, the Yankee owner, to lose his cool.

WHEN it comes to baseball owners rattling sabres, Williams must take a backseat to the big kid with the boots.

Steinbrenner, who was about 1,000 miles away at the time, set the tone for what was to come when he complained long distance about an umpire's call in the first game of the Oriole-Yankee series. Umpires make, oh, a few thousand-or-so calls a season and, not being as perfect as Steinbrenner, they occasionally blow a few. That's not to say Umpire Durwood Merrill blew this one. But what if he did? Can Steinbrenner be so sure that his Yankees haven't benefitted from a blown call here and there?

The Orioles took six of eight against New York and that created a crisis for the Yankee boss, who summoned his front office staff to a war room-like meeting at the Tampa headquarters. This with six weeks left in the season and his team still in front in the race.

AFTER the meeting, Steinbrenner rapped some of his players and dispatched roving pitching instructor Clyde King to the West Coast to deal with Ron Guidry's

Holman 2-hitter stumps Amarillo

By The Associated Press

Joe Hicks had a three-run home run as the Midland Cubs took an 11-2 Texas League baseball victory over the El Paso Diablos and held on to a two-game lead in the Texas League West.

In other Texas League games, San Antonio beat Amarillo, 6-1, Jackson shut out Arkansas, 1-0, and Shreveport shut out Tulsa, 13-0.

Dale Holman had two hits as the San Antonio Dodgers beat Amarillo, 6-1.

Brian Holton, 15-9, who pitched his 16th complete game of the season, was the winning pitcher. Martin Ronnenbergh was the loser.

Amarillo's only run scored when Curt Reed tripled and came home on Frankie George's infield out.

Sergio Beltre's single drove home Ed Cuervo from second with the winning run in the eighth inning as the Jackson Mets shut out the Arkansas Travelers, 1-0.

Landry patches up Dallas secondary

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tom Landry has 20 years of experience as a National Football League coach. This week he is going to need every day of it to piece together the puzzles of his injury-declimated secondary.

The Dallas Cowboys extended their National Football League exhibition season victory streak to three Saturday night with a 20-13 victory over the Houston Oilers but the pleasure was barely worth the strain.

Running back Tony Dorsett suffered a bruised thigh. Tight end Jay Saldi got bruised ribs. Rookie running back James Jones bruised a knee. And, for the third time this season, Randy Hughes dislocated his shoulder.

The Cowboys ordered surgery for the free safety, who will be lost at least eight weeks.

And Coach Landry ordered up some midnight oil so he could study the situation.

Retired Cliff Harris, now in the oil business, has said he would come back if the Cowboys asked. So far they haven't.

LANDRY would only say "That's a possibility."

He added "I don't know what we will do in the secondary until the final cutdown."

Strong safety Charlie Waters, who missed the 1979 season with knee surgery, passed the Oiler game because the knee was sore.

Landry could move Benny Barnes, Dennis Thurman or Aaron Mitchell to free safety.

"It would be like going home for me," Thurman said. "I've been playing free safety since Pop Warner days, since I was 12 years old, so I understand it and I'm more comfortable there."

However, Thurman admitted Barnes might be a more logical choice because he has "the most experience."

TONY "THRILL" Hill caught two touchdown passes — one from Glenn Carano and the other from Danny White — and Rafael Septien kicked two field goals in the victory over the Oilers, now 1-2 in preseason.

Houston scored two touchdowns on Campbell's seven-yard run and Jeff Groth's fumble recovery in the Dallas end zone.

The Twins were 54-71 at the time of Mauch's resignation, more than 25 games behind Kansas City in the American League West. He will be replaced for the balance of the season by third base coach Johnny Goryl.

Oliver changes boos to cheers

By CHARLES RICHARDS

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — When the Texas Rangers failed to cash in on a bases-loaded situation with the score tied 3-3 in the ninth inning and nobody out, it appeared it might not be their day.

"You can't get a better opportunity than we had, with our No. 2-3-4 hitters coming up and the infield drawn in," Texas manager Pat Corrales said.

But Al Oliver avenged his ninth-inning shortcomings by driving in Mickey Rivers from second base with an 11th-inning single that gave the Rangers a 4-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Sunday.

Singles by Jim Sundberg and Rivers to lead off the 11th set up the win. Reliever Reggie Cleveland, 8-8, forced Sundberg at third on Billy Sample's sacrifice bunt attempt and Bump Wills flew out, but Oliver rapped a game-winning single off the glove of second baseman Ed Romero.

"I can't get too psyched up about that hit, because I had a chance to win it for (Jon) Matlack in the ninth. After the game he pitched, he should have gotten the win," said Oliver.

MATLACK, the Texas starter, was denied the decision when the Texas uprising in the ninth fell short. He gave up seven hits, struck out seven and walked three but reliever Bob Babcock pitched the 10th and John Henry Johnson, 1-2, the 11th for the Rangers.

It was Matlack's 13th no-decision game of the season.

The Rangers took a 3-1 lead against Milwaukee starter Bill Travers before the Brewers battled back to tie in the fifth. Then reliever Fred Holdsworth kept Texas at bay until the ninth.

After Sundberg led off with a walk, Rivers and Sample laid down back-to-back bunt singles that loaded the bases. After Holdsworth struck out Wills, Milwaukee manager George Bamberger brought in southpaw Bob McClure to face the left-handed Oliver.

With the infield again drawn in, Oliver popped up to catcher Charlie Moore, and Bamberger summoned the right-handed Cleveland to try to get Buddy Bell, a right-handed hitter, for the third out. Bell grounded out, and the game went into extra innings.

JIM MURRAY

Greatest name in sports... well, how does Murray sound?

Los Angeles Times

You pick a favorite ballplayer for a lot of reasons. Sometimes, you like the way he looks, or hits, or runs or walks. Something about him reminds you of yourself.

That's what attracted me to the first baseman of the league-champion Baltimore Orioles. His name. It had a nice ring to it. "Murray." Roll it around on your tongue, if you will. It has a lilt, a sound of music, a nice rolling strophe, right? A broth of a name, in other words.

You know, if I were a ballplayer, you know what I'd be? Well, first I'd want to be a dangerous hitter. None of your la-dee-dah holler guys, banjo hitters with slow bats and fast tongues. I'd be the strong, silent type. Lou Gehrig. Charlie Gehringer.

I'd want to play the power positions. If I couldn't be a pitcher, I'd want to play first base, right field, center field. I'd bat cleanup. I'd have speed, and clout. I'd be a switchhitter. The best since Mantle. They couldn't bunch up on me. I'd hit to all fields. I'd have no weaknesses at the plate. I'd hit 25 to 40 home runs a year, bat .300, and knock in 100 runs.

I would be able to do it all, as the scouting reports say.

I'd be Can't-Miss Murray. Old-timers would like me to Hal Chase or Joe Judge. I'd lead Joe Judge around the bag. I'd lead the club in everything, and the league in quite a few. I'd lead the team to an annual pennant. I'd be The Franchise.

I'D SPEND only the bare minimum in the minor leagues. Just enough to break a rookie record or two and become a legend in Asheville or Rochester or someplace. I wouldn't strike out much, but I'd walk a lot. I'd have a great eye. "Mr. Murray will let you know when it's a strike, Mr. Pitcher, because he'll hit it out here," they'd say. Pitchers would fear me. Managers would pitch around me. Umpires would let me up.

I'd come up to the major leagues young so I could have one of those nice, long record-setting careers and spend the rest of my life going to banquets and having people on the street say, "That's the Great Murray." Maybe I'd be a greeter for a casino, or "Mr. Cocoa," or something, and I'd run for sheriff someplace, or simply retire to a big cattle ranch. Maybe I'd just take a nice cushy front-office job. In any case, I'd be Mr. Somebody.

Oh, yes, I'd be 6 feet 2 and 197 without an ounce of fat on me. I'd be able to lift a freight car by the wheels, run the 100 in nine-something and be a good dancer. I'd have all my hair and teeth and great blood pressure and the doctors at the physical would say to other doctors, "Come here and listen to this heart -- it's like a Porsche engine purring!"

WELL, NOW, there's a real Mr. Murray, and he's all of those things. And I've been waiting all my life for him. He's Edward Clarence Murray, of the Los Angeles Dodgers, an athletic family, like all the Murrays, and, if he doesn't come from the County Mayo branch of the family, well, not everybody can be Irish. We were a poor country, you know.

This Murray comes from a branch of the family around Locke High School in Watts, and, when the Baltimore Orioles first came in contact with him, the scouting report was so glowing they thought the scout had a piece of him. The front office figured it either had the next Babe Ruth or a scout who drinks.

Eddie was only 17 when he hit the rookie league in Bluefield, W. Va., but the pitching still looked like CIF to him. He hit 11 home runs in 50 games and, in fact, hit a home run every 11 times up. In Class A ball (Miami), where he next moved, he hit 12 home runs. Finally, in Triple A, Rochester, he hit 11 home runs in 54 games. At this stage of his career, bear in mind, Babe Ruth was still a pitcher. They might name a league after Eddie Murray someday, too.

I used to root for Jimmie Foxx, the late slugger, because he played for the Red Sox, hit balls clear out of Boston into Maine, wore his sleeves cut off to show his muscles, and because his name was "Jimmie" and he had that double-x in his name.

I used to love to watch Henry Aaron or Joe DiMaggio play ball. But that was different. You can watch a great performer with detachment, like a critic at the ballet. But your favorites you have to empathize with. That's you (unital) striking out up there. That's YOU, also, popping up. But, that's also you tripling with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth of the World Series. So it's just as important to pick a guy who can hit .300 off any pitcher as to pick a guy named "Murray." You never pick a mere glove man. Gives you an inferiority complex.

But what greater satisfaction than to pick a guy where you pick up the morning paper and read "Murray's Homers Sink Sox." Or "Murray Hits Three Homers in One Game to Bury Twins." Or "Murray Runs Errorless String to 80 Games."

You can see what solace Eddie is to me. Then, of course, you have no idea how ego-massaging it is to read the headline, "Murray Signs for Millions." I've seen that headline in dreams all my life. But, then, there's the best stroke of all, the really dream-headline: "Murray Makes Hall of Fame!"

Cubs whip Diablos, to take two-game lead

24th home run. This one cleared the barrier in center for three runs.

Joe didn't think Saturday's game-winner was going to carry and "I didn't think this one would go either," he blushed later. That made it 7-2. In the eighth Grant hit a two-run single and Hicks a run-scoring double, which gave both four runs batted in for the night. It was the second 4-run night in a row for Hicks.

Cubs enjoy luxury of two-game lead

With a two-game lead going into the final week of the Texas League season, the Cubs are sitting pretty. All six remaining games are at home. Still, with a big five-game series starting Tuesday against San Antonio, the Cubs aren't sure about whom to worry.

They have a two-game lead over Amarillo's Gold Sox, but the Sox have dropped three straight at San Antonio and finish with five games in El Paso. A good road club, the Sox are not. Still, they'll be catching the Diablos minus Mike Bishop and Tom Brunansky, the home run twins who made the club so dangerous in cramped Dudley Field.

Then, there is first half champion San Antonio, closing fast and winner of four out of five in a recent series against Midland at San Antonio.

At least, the Cubs will have the Dodgers in front of them and if they can't beat them here, they probably wouldn't feel they deserved to be in the playoffs anyway. As a bright, the Cubs swept the Dodgers five straight here in July.

it take to win it? What does he think might happen in the final week? Could the Dodgers and Cubs kill each other off in Midland while Amarillo sweeps in El Paso? Which one is he worried about? "The only game I'm worried about," he says as he prepares to take his lineup card to the umpires before the start of the game, "is the one that takes place in 20 minutes." Did we detect a yawn?...

sufficient duration or brilliance to warrant a promotion even to AAA Wichita.

At the start of 1980, it seemed like more of the same. He began the season as a starter and was 3-4 with a 5.44 earned-run-average when Hundley relegated Segelke to the bullpen to "work things out."

The sentence may have been what Herman has been waiting for. As a relief pitcher, he didn't blossom overnight. He absorbed his lumps early and sometimes his appearance in game seemed like pouring oil on burning waters.

But Segelke has been a big factor in the second half pennant drive, easing some of the burden from Bob Blyth's weary shoulders. In his last 17 games, Segelke's ERA is 3.09 in 35 innings with three wins, two losses and seven saves. Over the last 10 games, Segelke has a 2.17 ERA with a win and five saves.

In 10 games as a starter, Segelke has a 5.88 ERA while as a relief pitcher, even with some bad outings early, his ERA is 3.48.

"He's going all out, keeping the ball down," says Hundley. "He doesn't have to worry about pacing himself and is giving it all he has."

The statistics indicate as much. In his last 35 innings, he has logged 36 strikeouts, far above his whiff average as a starter. Even better, he has walked only 19 in the last 35 innings and only seven in the last 20.2.

Segelke is sold on the transition as starter to reliever. "I'm going to Fall Instructional League where I'll concentrate on relieving and I can't wait."

For Herm, coming out of the bullpen puts a whole new dimension on the game. "I really get pumped up as the game moves along and I can watch what's happening, knowing I may be called on in the late innings. As a starter, with four or five days between starts, I had a tendency to go stale. As a reliever, you don't have time to get bored."

Witnesses to U.S. nuclear tests are now dying

But VA ignores their pleas for help, scientist says

DALLAS (AP) — Military veterans ordered to watch the detonation of nuclear bombs at close range are now dying from radiation exposure while the Veterans Administration ignores their pleas for help, a California research scientist said.

Henry Vyner said the government has repeatedly turned aside health complaints from about 200,000 soldiers who witnessed atomic bomb explosions at distances as close as five miles.

The blasts were part of Defense Department experiments conducted from 1945 until 1962 when a nuclear test ban treaty stopped the activity, the researcher said.

There were 223 above-ground atomic tests in Nevada from 1951 to 1962 and another 60 nuclear bombs were detonated in the South Pacific during the 1940s and 1950s, government records show.

Vyner, working under a government research grant in Berkeley, Calif., said the radiation exposure has caused the veterans countless health problems and has killed many more.

In a copyright story Sunday, Vyner told the Dallas Morning News he believes many of these veterans are susceptible to leukemia, skin cancer, muscle diseases and genetic defects.

"In one group of six veterans I have studied, each of them had the same type of muscle deterioration," Vyner said. "Right now I'm doing research on a type of muscle disease never before diagnosed. It's my feeling that exposure to radiation may have caused the disease."

The Veterans Administration does not take the problem seriously, Vyner said.

"Many of these men are told that nothing is wrong with them. The Veterans Administration comes along and tells them they aren't ill, and that is like a slap in the face to these men, many of whom were super patriots," he said.

A spokesman for the VA in Washington said 12 of 800 veterans who complained of radiation exposure have been granted disability payments. Julian Morrison said applicants must show signs of illness while in the service or within 1 1/2 years from discharge.

Vyner contended many of the veterans don't show signs of radiation exposure illnesses until many years later.

William Crisler, 56, of Dallas, said he participated in the Nevada desert tests. He said he suffers from kidney failure, heart disease, failing eyesight and brittle bones.

"We were all just guinea pigs," he said.

But he survives massive radiation exposure in lab explosion

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — Harold McCluskey's vision is still foggy, and he occasionally gets strange "pin-prick" sensations. But four years after he was contaminated by an almost-lethal dose of radioactivity, he's alive and holding up "pretty well."

"I was not supposed to live. I was not supposed to have any hair on my head," says the retired nuclear laboratory worker. "I'm alive and I have a head full of hair."

His doctors say McCluskey is the only man in the United States to ever take such a huge dose of alpha-particle radiation — which differs from radiation from X-rays or atomic blasts — and live.

McCluskey, now 68, was showered with radioactivity after a chemical explosion in a Richland nuclear laboratory on Aug. 30, 1976. He had been extracting americium — a metal used in petroleum exploration equipment, medical labs and smoke detection devices — from high-level radioactive waste, using gloves and working through a glass window.

The explosion sprayed him with americium, acid, glass, metal, plastic and cloth, burning his face and eyes and contaminating his system with the radioactive metal.

The blast also contaminated nine other workers and caused $500,000 damage to the recovery room. The others were decontaminated and back on the job within days, but McCluskey was hospitalized for more than five months and is still getting treatments.

Ninety-five percent of the heavy metal has been removed from McCluskey's system, said his physician, Dr. Bryce Breitenstein, director of the Hanford Environmental Health Foundation in Richland.

Americium acts much like lead, forming deposits on the liver and bones, and a special chemical that "globs onto the americium and forces it into the urine" has been used to treat McCluskey, he said.

McCluskey's facial burns have healed and the acid burns are gone. But because of "residuals on his corneas," his vision is blurred.

"Bright sunlight bothers my eyes, but I have special glasses," said McCluskey, who started as a construction worker in 1951 at the Atlantic-Richfield Hanford Co., now Rockwell Hanford.

Awarded $275,000 in an out-of-court settlement, McCluskey also has his medical bills taken care of by the company.

If he hadn't reached retirement age soon after the explosion, "I'd have been right back out there. It was just another industrial accident," he says.

Breitenstein feels McCluskey's strong character got him through the ordeal.

Crisler said that after the soldiers watched the explosion, they walked toward "ground zero" and saw the sand turned to glass from the intense heat.

Edwin Still, assistant director for the Nuclear Defense Agency, said the men were not "exposed to unsafe levels."

The agency is searching for 200,000 men involved in the tests to determine which veterans were exposed to radiation and to what extent, Still said.

About 40,000 veterans have contacted the agency, with 3,000 saying they were exposed to radiation, he said.

Dollar coin, $2 bill not gaining popularity

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The dollar bill may not buy what it used to, but Americans are still clinging to the familiar currency. Government efforts to promote a $1 coin and a $2 bill have been unsuccessful, and almost $1 billion worth of the coins and notes are still sitting in storage.

The $2 bill was introduced April 13, 1976. "The goal was to abate the growing demand for the $1 bills," said Pete Daly, a spokesman for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The government hoped to cut the number of $1 bills printed in half, saving an estimated $10 million a year. "It didn't work on a national basis," said Daly.

The government printed 500 million $2 bills between the fall of 1975 and January 1977 — about one-fifth the number of $1 bills printed annually. Daly said 180 million of the $2 bills are in circulation, 100 million have worn out, and the rest — 220 million bills worth $440 million — are in storage in the Federal Reserve System.

Even at the peak of its popularity, in 1978, the $2 bill accounted for only about 4 percent of all outstanding currency notes, Daly said. Today, he estimated, the $2 bill accounts for only 2 1/2 percent of outstanding notes.

The story of the Susan B. Anthony dollar is similar, but there are possible rescue efforts under way.

The coin, honoring the late suffragette, was introduced July 2, 1979. It is larger than a quarter, but smaller than either a half dollar or the old silver dollar. It is silver colored, but is made of an alloy of 25 percent nickel and 75 percent copper. (The last silver dollar — the one honoring Dwight D. Eisenhower — hasn't been minted since 1971.)

As with the $2 bill, the idea was to save money. It costs three cents to produce a coin which lasts an average of 15 years. It costs two cents to produce a note which lasts only 1 1/2 years.

Stella Hackel, director of the Bureau of the Mint, says 800 million of the coins have been produced. Some 300 million are in circulation. The rest — $500 million worth — are in storage and the Mint suspended production of the coin in February, a move it called routine.

"Distribution continues, but not with any great speed," said Ms. Hackel. The Mint is considering some changes in the coin. One problem with the Anthony dollar, which bears a likeness of Ms. Anthony on one side and an eagle on the other, is that "there is a perceived similarity to the quarter."

To make the distinction clearer, the Mint may alter the composition of the alloy used for the coin to make it copper colored. Copper and nickel would still predominate, but there would be a slight amount of aluminum and silicon, Ms. Hackel said. The Mint also may replace the eagle with the numeral one. Ms. Hackel said legislation may be introduced in Congress next year to put the changes in the works.

Daly and Ms. Hackel agreed that a major reason for the lack of popularity of the Anthony dollar and the $2 bill is the public's reluctance to accept a new idea.

"People cannot become accustomed to changing their habits," Ms. Hackel said.

An attempt to distribute the coins through post offices earlier this year was unsuccessful; clerks finally stopped giving out the coins unless customers asked for them. Ms. Hackel said the popularity of the dollar coin would not increase until banks hand them out routinely.

Friend reveals truth about tragic youth

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — While investigators were searching steam tunnels beneath Michigan State University last year for James Dallas Egbert III, the teen-age computer whiz was trying to kill himself in a town far away, a close friend has told The Associated Press.

Egbert died Aug. 16 of a bullet wound in the head that police say apparently was self-inflicted. His death came almost a year after the month-long disappearance that became the subject of national attention as police and Texas investigator William Dear speculated he had been trapped in a real-life version of the fantasy game "Dungeons and Dragons." Instead, the Huber Heights youth had botched a suicide attempt, reportedly in New Orleans, and was living and working unaware of the stir.

The youth's parents, James and Anna Egbert, on Sunday confirmed a report in today's edition of The New York Times and the story told in Dayton to The Associated Press by Egbert's 23-year-old Washington, D.C., friend, who asked to be identified only as David.

"We want to turn a tragic situation into something positive," said the elder Egbert, who has set up a scholarship fund to establish a clinic for gifted children through Wright State University in Dayton. The youth never revealed his whereabouts for that month because he was interested in selling movie rights linking his disappearance to "Dungeons and Dragons" or another intellectual fantasy game, David said. Dear has also refused to reveal where he found Egbert, but had said the disappearance had no relation to the game.

David said he wanted to "demystify" the Egbert story to assure a movie would never be made. "There really isn't anything movie-worthy about it," he said. "It is not sensational. It doesn't involve 'Dungeons and Dragons' or anything weird like that. It was a different sort of life, but it was nothing worth writing about."

Officials at MSU — where Egbert was a sophomore computer science student — had searched the maze of steam tunnels beneath the campus in case the youth had been acting out a "Dungeons and Dragons" game. The game, meant to be played on paper, centers on escape from fantasy prisons.

David said Egbert ran away from Michigan State last August because he was feeling grade pressures and because his roommate had moved out after hearing Egbert was homosexual. "He told me he discovered he didn't like living alone," David said. "He was an occasional recreational user of drugs. When he was alone under the influence of one or the other, which he didn't do very often except on very rare circumstances, he was rather self-destructive."

The troubled teen-ager "left town directionless. He left town on the first bus, found himself in another town, didn't think he wanted to die there, wandered around the streets that night and took a night train," David said. Egbert checked into a motel, flushed his identification down the toilet and took a cyanide compound with root beer.

"He was very surprised to wake up the next morning in a strange town far from Michigan," David said. The Times identified the city as New Orleans, and said Egbert wandered around for a few days before answering a notice for oil field laborers in southern Louisiana.

"What happened is reasonably ordinary," David said. "He went on his own. Nobody from Michigan knew where he was at any time." "He just happened to get drunk one night with some friends, and he told them he wasn't operating under his real name and that his family didn't know where he was and they convinced him to call," David said. "And he called and his family referred him to Dear and he told Dear where he was and Dear came out and picked him up and that's it."

David described Egbert as "ridiculously impulsive," someone who tried mescaline and acid but "mostly liked getting high with other people. Or drunk with other people or both."

"Dallas never really acted in thinking what other people are going to be affected by his actions, particularly when his actions were taken under the influence of drugs," David said. He said the youth had seemed optimistic in the weeks before his death. "For the first time he
