

Drug connection has Big Spring residents upset over concert

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

TYLER (AP) — An "inmate" doctor involved in a flap over a Willie Nelson concert once illegally dispensed drug prescriptions to Nelson and his celebrity friends, records show.

John Marcus Young, 41, an Athens radiologist, provided a wide variety of prescription pills to Nelson, his wife and several other country and western singers.

The popular physician quietly pleaded guilty to unlawful possession and dispensing "narcotic controlled substances" and was sentenced last January to three years in federal prison.

Sent to a minimum security facility in Big Spring, Young has become embroiled in a controversy swirling around a Nelson benefit scheduled there Sunday night.

Among the recipients of Young's prescriptions were country and western singers Waylon Jennings, Johnny Rodriguez and Sammi Smith, rock singer Steve Fromholz and Playboy Playmate Kelli Murphy.

U.S. Attorney John Hannah of Tyler described Young as a "celebrity groupie" who did not benefit monetarily from his drug dealings.

Hannah said he reportedly earned $160,000 annually from his radiologist activities.

A substantial portion of Young's medical records, including the reports of investigating officers, were obtained by The Associated Press and the Longview Morning Journal.

The semi-secret documents indicated also that Priscilla Davis, wife of millionaire Fort Worth industrialist Cullen Davis, obtained 3,200 Percodan pills over a four-month period in 1978.

The prescribed dosage for Percodan, a narcotic painkiller, is one every six hours.

Sources within the U.S. Attorney's office here confirmed the validity of the documents but refused a newsmen's request to examine the federal files.

To do so, the source said, could trigger the wrath of U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, the tough, highly respected "Law East of the Trinity."

Last January, in an emotional appeal to escape prison, Young told Justice:

"I realize I've erred. I'm sorry I did it. I just ask forgiveness. It was not done maliciously or for personal gain."

Said Justice: "Your friends believe in you. I'm not certain that some of the people who had written me would have done so if they had known all that was in this report."

Justice did not order the records sealed but federal, state and local officials said he preferred that they remain secret.

The judge denied Young's appeal for leniency.

"Prisons can't be reserved for the poor, the uneducated or persons without standing in the community," he said. "In instances where it is merited, the rich, powerful, professional and others in positions of prestige must also withstand imprisonment."

Justice sent the once-bearded doctor to the federal minimum security camp in West Texas, where he played a key role in luring Nelson to Big Spring for Sunday night's concert.

The performance, ticketed for the high school football stadium, has much of the local citizenry up in arms.

John Allman, superintendent of the federal camp, confirmed that Young contacted Nelson about the benefit and was probably responsible for his acceptance.

"But Mr. Young is not running the show," he insisted. "He is not making any money out of it. He is merely advising civilian Junior Chamber of Commerce members of things that need to be done."

He also insisted there is nothing irregular about Young working outside the prison.

"Permitting inmates to go into the community and work on such benefits is a good thing," he said.

Allman said he is aware "there's people upset" but "I hate to ruin a good cause because somebody has a personal feeling about an inmate."

He said he also was aware of the narcotic link between Young and Nelson and others, but perhaps not to the full extent.

The documents show Nelson and wife, Connie, obtained a wide variety of amphetamines, barbiturates, sedatives, diet pills and painkillers between 1975 and 1979.

A baby cried. The Daughters of the American Revolution handed out miniature U.S. flags. Old Glory waved. And 16 aliens from nine countries pledged allegiance to the United States of America and denounced allegiance to their native countries in naturalization ceremonies conducted Wednesday in federal court here.

"We welcome you here this afternoon," U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton told the "inductees," while about 60 spectators, including friends and relatives of the new U.S. citizens, looked on. "We hope you are impressed with the ceremony," he said, "because we are impressed that you want to become one of us — citizens of the United States."

Naturalization examiner Bartholomew J. Rumaker of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in El Paso told the judge that the candidates had been "tested, questioned and investigated" and were qualified for citizenship.

COURTROOM CLERK Bobby Pieper administered the oath of allegiance twice. The first time, she administered the regular pledge to 15 of the aliens. And to the 16th person, a young woman — a Jehovah's Witness — from the Philippines was administered a modified oath which freed her from the obligation of bearing arms in military conflict.

An educator and a lawyer spoke of patriotism, freedom, liberty and responsibility. "This is a good day for you, it's a time of celebration for you," said Dr. Philip Speegle, president of Odessa College.

"THIS COUNTRY IS great, because the individual people do their part," he told the 16 citizens. Fourteen were seated in the jury box to the right hand of the judge. Two others were seated just in front of the jury box. "This country will only work if every one of us do what we should."

Each U.S. citizen has to be "individually responsible for doing the best" he can do with his skills and talents, Speegle said.

"It's a country where each person has to learn to abide by the law," he said. "The vast majority abide by the laws of the land."

The educator said that he was "delighted that you have decided to join with us."

Bill Smith, immediate past president of the Midland

County Bar, congratulated the "brand new citizens" and told them of their newly acquired freedoms and responsibilities.

A baby started to cry.

"We have many great freedoms," Smith said. The small child's crying began to amplify, as the father tried to console and then tussled with the babe.

The child would not be hushed. The father rose with the crying child in his arms to leave the courtroom.

"We have freedom of speech," Smith orated, even as the baby cried. And those in the courtroom, amused by the coincidence, laughed loudly.

"Well, we do have freedom of speech, and that's no accident," Smith continued.

"You have the freedom of the right to be left alone," the attorney said. "No one can come and kick your door down at home without proper authority."

He listed other rights guaranteed to U.S. citizens by the Constitution.

"This court and every court of the land jealously guards your rights," Smith said.

Smith reminded the 16 new citizens, who have been thoroughly schooled in the Constitution and the citizens' rights and responsibilities.

"The Constitution needs you," he said, "and you need it."

"Stand up for your rights. Stand up for the Constitution."

The lawyer admonished the citizens to guard their rights.

"Not a day passes that someone doesn't try to encroach on you for personal gain."

JUST BEFORE representatives of two chapters of the DAR passed out flags for the 16 new citizens to wave. Bunton again welcomed the 16 people to citizenship status.

June Ormand, regent of the Col. Theunis Dey DAR chapter, passed out the flags. Helena Gaston, the Americanism committee chairman of the Lt. William Brewer DAR chapter, handed out certificates. And League of Women Voters President Charleen Rosebery was primed to sign up the new citizens to vote in the Nov. 4 general election.

"I enjoy talking to people who have chosen to adopt this land," the judge said. "We're glad you chose us."

The 16 new citizens represented nine countries.

None hurt as bomb explodes in casino

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Police today hunted three suspects in a bombing that blew the side out of a Lake Tahoe hotel-casino during a botched attempt to extort $3 million in $100 bills from the gambling house.

The FBI, meanwhile, said the sophisticated design of the complex bomb, which sent plumes of smoke skyward and showered debris over several blocks when it was accidentally detonated by a robot, may offer clues to who built it.

Late Wednesday authorities issued an all-points bulletin for three suspects driving a black late-model car with California license plates. A California Highway Patrol spokesman said it was not known where they were headed.

Agents tried to meet the ransom demand to save the posh resort, but the bomb exploded Wednesday during attempts to dismantle it. The blast made rubble of the $20 million casino's bottom floors and blew out most of the windows in the 12-story building.

No one was injured. Thousands of people had been evacuated earlier from a four-block area around the casino.

There was no immediate estimate of damage.

The blast came more than 30 hours after the bomb, encased in a blue steel box inside an IBM computer carton, was first discovered at Harvey's Resort Hotel-Casino.

State and federal officials, some of them experts from nuclear laboratories, had rushed to the scene as gamblers in this resort city tried to make bets on whether the device was a phony.

Jerry Yablonsky, FBI special agent, said the sophisticated design of the bomb might provide clues on who made it.

"I don't know of another similar device being used," Yablonsky said. "I have not seen anything like it in my 28 years of service."

"As far as the FBI is concerned, all the stops are out to bring the perpetrators to justice."

Some of the nation's most highly trained electronics and explosives experts failed in efforts to crack the design.

Strike leader calls for temporary halt

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Polish strike leader Lech Walesa appealed today for a temporary halt to the spread of the strikes to give the communist government time to settle the labor crisis.

"It is not good to have Poland terrorized," Walesa said. "The people must have food. If we don't get results in three to four days, then let the strikes spread."

He said he would go on state radio and television to make his appeal.

Walesa, chairman of the Gdansk area Joint Strike Committee, made the announcement at the request of government negotiators in an emotional speech while perched atop a gate at Gdansk's Lenin Shipyards, the unofficial strike headquarters.

Dissident sources earlier reported that the work stoppages were continuing to spread beyond the Baltic seaport cities where they began Aug. 14.

According to the communist regime's top negotiator, the government has agreed to most of the strikers' demands, but progress has yet to be made on the key question of free trade unions.

A recorded message by Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski, who has been trying to end the walkout, did not elaborate on the government's concessions. It was broadcast by Gdansk radio after Andrzej Gwiazda, one of the strikers' negotiators, told reporters, "There is general agree-

Housing needs study set

South and east sides to be eyed

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

House by house, the south and east sides of Midland are being scrutinized in a study for the Objectives for Midland program to determine what needs to be done to improve those sections of the city. The preliminary data will go to the Urban Land Institute which will recommend ways to alleviate problems of those sections, Mike Williams told the Midland Chamber of Commerce board on Wednesday.

Williams is directing the preliminary studies for the chamber. Recently, he and a women's organization combed the tax records to de-

Some to close for Labor Day

Labor Day, the last official holiday of the summer, is Monday and, in observance, almost all governmental offices and some businesses will be closed.

Federal, state, county and city offices will be closed for the day. The U.S. Postal Service will operate on a normal holiday schedule.

There will be no residential, business or rural delivery provided, and no mail will be boxed. No window service will be provided, either. However, special delivery and express mail service, including the delivery of perishables and holiday collections, will be provided as usual.

Emergency services will operate as usual, and Department of Public Safety Highway patrol units will be out in force in an effort to reduce accidents, injuries and fatalities.

Banks also will be closed for the holiday.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram will publish a Monday paper, but there will be one morning edition only.

termine who owns what pieces of property in the study areas east of Big Spring Street and south of the railroad tracks.

Persons who own the most property will be separated from the rest of the landowners. These records will be divided according to who lives in Midland and who doesn't, he explained.

The Objectives program talked about industrialization of that area, Williams said. This study of the tax records will help to identify large open tracts of land that might possibly be used for industry.

One survey has taken a look at retail stores in the south and east sides. The results showed that "people in our target area feel prices at those stores are too high, the employees are courteous and the shops are clean," said Williams. "But what concerns us most is that residents aren't shopping at stores in their area."

Preliminary housing surveys have revealed that "there are a number of unpaved streets in the target area and then a number of paved streets that have no houses on them."

Nine members of the Urban Land Institute will take the preliminary data gathered by Williams, study it and make recommendations on projects when the panel comes to Midland for a week starting Nov. 14. Of the nine members, eight are from the private sector, he said, and the ninth is from the public sector.

ULI is a non-profit research advisory group that consists of 300 to 500 members. Administrative offices are in Washington, D.C. Members are familiar with various programs that can assist cities, according to Williams.

For example, he said, "they will tell us whether or not to rehabilitate houses and how to do it, whether to use public or private funds and how to get them."

Cost of the ULI assistance will be about $50,000 and Williams said the money has been raised from various

Missing boy found dead

SANDERSON — A 2 1/2 year-old who wandered away from an oil rig on which his father was working near here Tuesday night was found dead 25 1/2 hours later in a sewage pit only yards from where he disappeared.

Shoemaker ruled the death accidental, but ordered an autopsy in Odessa.

A massive search for Jackie Ferguson began about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday with the Department of Public Safety helicopter out of Midland, a private aircraft from Odessa, border patrol units, parks and wildlife units, the DPS unit in Sanderson and Sheriff's Office units from Sanderson participating. The child was reported missing by his father, O.L. Ferguson of Loveland. Ferguson, employed by Sifton Drilling Co., had been working on an oil rig about 15 miles west of Sheffield when he discovered the child was gone.

Shortly after midnight today, officers drained a sewage pit behind the Ferguson's mobile home at the site, and discovered the child's body.

According to Shoemaker, the couple's mobile home was in a trailer park near the rig, and the fatal hole apparently was one someone neglected to cover up after digging cesspools for the park.

Driver hurt in wreck assaulted

It just wasn't Ron Yeager's day Wednesday.

First he received minor injuries in a traffic accident and shortly thereafter he told police he had been assaulted.

Yeager, of 4310 Princeton Ave., was injured at 1:56 p.m. in the 4600 block of West Wall Avenue when his vehicle and a vehicle driven by Larry Franklin Stover, 5706 McKnight St., collided. Both were eastbound on Wall when the wreck occurred.

Yeager was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital by ambulance. He was treated and released.

His car was towed away by Reid's Wrecking Service. At 5:23 p.m., Yeager reported that he and his wife went to Reid's parking lot to retrieve some personal items from his pickup. As he did, a man approached and grabbed the items out of Yeager's hands, officers were told. Yeager said he pushed the man and the man began striking him about the head, shoulders and back with a 24-inch flashlight made of aircraft aluminum.

Another traffic accident injured a Midland woman Wednesday night.

John Paul Prado, 1111 S. Camp St., No. 9, was northbound on Big Spring Street. Martha Harris Swindell, 713 S. Jackson St., was eastbound on Wall Avenue. The two vehicles collided at the intersection. Ms. Swindell was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room.

A Midland man was taken to Odessa Medical Center following an early morning accident today on Interstate Highway 20.

Roberto Cornejo, 24, of Midland was eastbound on I-20, as was a truck tractor driven by Charles Sparks of Georgia. Apparently, Cornejo's vehicle had a blow-out and the two vehicles collided around 2:45 a.m.

Cornejo was taken to Odessa Medical Center by Ector County ambulance. His condition was unknown this morning.

Firemen were called to a trash fire at 3:08 p.m. Wednesday at FM 715 and Garden City Highway and a grass fire at 6:34 p.m. on West Highway 80 nine miles out of Midland.

Seven people were transported by CFD ambulance.

sources, including the city, county and school district.

Also in the chamber session, Bill Collyns said the Industrial Foundation has purchased another 200 acres for a new industrial park south of Midland Regional Airport. The first 50 acres will be ready for development in the near future. The industrial park at the southwest corner of Midland is almost filled with only a few spots left for small industries.

President Ray Moudy advised the directors the city's portion of the chamber budget was cut by $29,000 during the City Council meeting Tuesday. Councilman Steve Davidson replied the decision to cut "was not a vote against the chamber."

Moudy explained the $130,000 the chamber will get is coming out of the city's hotel-motel tax. That tax is 4 percent, but the chamber actually is only getting 1 percent, he said. The other 3 percent is going to retire bonded indebtedness on Midland Center.

Because of the cut, Moudy said the chamber will have to limit activities of the economic development division. It's that division, he added, that works to bring in other industries to Midland.

The board was advised that Federal Express will be starting service at Midland Regional Airport soon. The firm gives overnight delivery of packages, Moudy explained. A news conference will be held later to announce the program.

School's a new experience for some

By DAVID CAMPBELL Staff Writer

"What did you learn in school today?" was the inevitable question parents asked their youngsters Wednesday night.

For 146 kindergarten students enrolled at the Bunche Early Childhood Center, they had an array of answers.

Most children talked about riding a bus, eating in a large room with fellow students, having to walk to and from one place in a straight line or napping on a cool floor.

Wednesday marked the birth of the Bunche Early Childhood Center which houses kindergarten classes from Travis and South elementary schools, Head Start and 4-year-old migrant classes.

Afternoon activity at Bunche varied from concentrated classroom activity to the much needed snooze.

Michelle Madison was busily constructing pink clay cannonballs. Her collection of cannonballs varied in size and shape.

She lifted her head from her work to answer a few questions.

"What did you learn today?"

"We learned how to go to the bathroom," she answered with pride. "I also learned that you got to be careful and not get your hand caught in the door."

"Did you do anything else?"

"Oh yeah, we listened to records, saw a film, played a little bit and did some reading," the kindergarten student replied.

"Well, what did you have to eat today?"

"PIZZA!" shouted Roger Lipps, who was standing near Michelle.

"We had French fries, peanuts and chocolate milk," Roger recalled. "What's this?" a blond-haired, blue-eyed youngster said, pointing to a pink clay creation on his chin.

"It's a moustache," Roger proudly proclaimed.

On separate sides of the classroom, two kindergartners were fast asleep on the floor.

One student, Will Conner, had completely tuned out the classroom environment while other students were moving around behind him picking up papers, clay and other objects.

In another room, two groups of 5- and 6-year-olds were engaged in writing exercises. Each student gripped a big round pencil in one hand and a sheet of white paper in the other.

One 5-year-old boy meticulously scrawled his name on the paper. When he was finished, he backed off from his signature and surveyed his accomplishment.

"Nice work," his teacher said. The little boy beamed back a smile.

Sally Franco, 5, sat on a rug assembling parts to a plastic toy dog, giraffe and elephant. Although some of her work did not exactly look like a dog, she seemed satisfied with her creation.

The school incorporates bilingual education in some of its classes.

Most of the children attending Bunche are Hispanic. Starting Sept. 2, 4-year-old children of migrant workers will be attending the center.

Recess remains the ideal activity of school children. The swings were the object of much debate as to who would get swung and when.

One playground receiving much attention consisted of a plastic milk carton cut in the form of a scoop and a tennis ball. The children would throw the ball high into the air and try to catch it with the scoop.

"As a kindergarten teacher, you make do with what you've got," a teacher said of the toy. "In my house, I have things like that scattered all over the living room floor."

"The kids really like playing with those toys and it teaches them a certain amount of eye-hand coordination."

Riding the bus to school was quite an experience for one kindergarten student and her mother. According to several students on the bus, the ride produced a tearful departure for the two, even though the mother rode with her daughter on the bus.

The mother quickly discovered that the more she cried, her daughter responded equally. As she was becoming embarrassed with the situation, the mother subdued her emotions.

It was probably the first time the two had parted — daughter going to school for the first time and mom realizing her little girl was not that little anymore.

L. A. may appeal desegregation order

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Los Angeles school board appears headed to the U.S. Supreme Court after the refusal of the state's highest court to bar mandatory busing this fall in the city's elementary and junior high schools, the board president says.

Board President Roberta Weintraub, saying she was "not at all surprised" by Wednesday's decision by the California Supreme Court, was working today to arrange an emergency board meeting.

She said she thought the board would vote to appeal to the federal Supreme Court immediately.

"If mandatory busing does take place at all here, it is obvious we will have a disaster on our hands," she said.

The state court also denied a request Wednesday to set aside an appellate court ruling barring the use of specified percentages or quotas in desegregating the schools.

The school board had asked for a delay to court-ordered busing for grades one through nine. The Los Angeles public school system is the nation's second largest.

Jerry Halverson, an attorney for the board, said the board, which favors voluntary integration, would probably go to the U.S. Supreme Court to stop the forced busing of its 544,000 pupils.

The board had urged the state Supreme Court to overturn a July 7 Los Angeles County Superior Court plan for pupil reassignment and transportation pending an appeal through normal channels.

Course on flowers

Midland College has scheduled a one-evening short course to teach the technique of drying flowers in a microwave oven.

Offered through the MC Department of Community Services, the course is scheduled for Sept. 4.

Jennifer Cochran, course instructor for Flower Drying, deals with the microwave oven process, demonstrating and then allowing students to actively participate in the procedure. The dried flowers are then assembled and grouped in suitable arrangements.

Class is limited to 25 students meeting 7-10 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 4. The course fee is $5 and supplies, which may be purchased during the meeting, cost an additional $5.

Pre-registration may be completed now in room 156 of the Administration Building from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, including the lunch hour. More information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extensions 147 or 216.

Carter proposes 1981 tax cut

Program aims to also stimulate industry, create jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is proposing about $27 billion in 1981 tax cuts for individuals, married couples and businesses as part of an economic program that also aims to create almost 1 million new jobs in the next two years.

However, the wide-ranging, election-year package being unveiled today would increase the federal deficit to about $40 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. Only five months ago, Carter was championing a balanced budget as the key to his economic policy.

Despite the deficit, administration officials insist the package is not inflationary because the initiatives will spur investment, increase productivity and put people back to work over the next five years.

Beyond economics, Carter's thrust has political import. It is his rebuttal to a $37 billion tax cut proposed earlier by Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan.

Its unveiling comes on the eve of Labor Day weekend, the traditional start of the presidential campaign.

The program has three major goals: to relieve Americans of an ever-increasing tax load, revitalize U.S. industry and help workers laid off during the recession, as well as the chronically unemployed.

In addition to the tax cuts, sources said Carter was proposing about $4 billion in new federal spending for job retraining, additional research and development, and energy conservation and transportation programs.

Most of the tax and spending initiatives will not be formally proposed as legislation until after the Nov. 4 election, administration sources said.

Reagan wants a tax cut enacted immediately, and the Senate Finance Committee already has approved a bill that would reduce taxes next year by about $39 billion.

Carter's proposed tax cuts for calendar year 1981 should benefit individuals and businesses about equally, administration sources said.

Specifically, Carter was expected to propose tax credits for individuals and employers to offset the $13 billion increase in Social Security payroll taxes that goes into effect Jan. 1.

In addition, he wants to reduce the so-called "marriage penalty," a tax law quirk that requires a working married couple to pay more taxes than two single persons.

Besides the Social Security offset, businesses would be given other tax breaks under Carter's proposal.

The current depreciation rate would be speeded up, reportedly about 40 percent, to let companies write off and replace old equipment and plants faster, thus keeping up with the latest changes as well as inflated costs.

In addition, there would be special tax breaks for businesses in economically distressed areas.

Companies in high unemployment areas could seek an extra-fast tax writeoff in addition to the general speedup in depreciation rates, Carter aides said. To qualify, businesses would have to meet criteria yet to be developed.

Moreover, Carter was proposing a partial cash rebate on the existing investment tax credit. Currently, only companies that make money and pay taxes qualify for the credit.

The change would allow firms just starting out or those that lost money to take advantage of the credit if they invest in new machinery or plant, administration officials said.

The business-tax changes are aimed at revitalizing U.S. industry. While the most obvious benefits would be to the troubled auto and steel sectors, administration officials said the revisions would help virtually all companies, including small businesses that are just starting out and have limited capital.

Other proposals include: —A 13-week extension of unemployment benefits, which now run out after 39 weeks.

—Between $500 million and $1 billion in "countercyclical revenue sharing" aid that would go to cities and counties where unemployment is particularly high. This money also would help offset the proposed loss of state revenue sharing.

—An additional $1 billion in fiscal 1981 and $2 billion in fiscal 1982 for economically troubled localities and companies.

—Multimillion-dollar spending programs to build ports for coal export, maintain highways and weatherize housing.

—A bolstered retraining program under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act, or CETA.

—A 3 percent annual increase, after adjusting for inflation, in federal spending for research and development, with much of this money going to universities and to private industry, rather than to government agencies.

Administration officials predicted that the combined tax and spending programs would create between 450,000 and 500,000 new jobs in both calendar years 1981 and 1982.

While this could help grease the recovery from the recession, officials said the programs were not designed to end the current economic downturn.

'Buy American,' says U.S., as it buys Japanese

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the last year, while America's auto industry suffered through one of its most desperate periods, one of every six pickup trucks bought by the federal government came from Japan.

Of the 36,000 pickups bought for the government's fleet between Oct. 1, 1979, and June 30, 1980, by the General Services Administration, 5,900 were compacts made in Japan for General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, a GSA spokesman said.

The GSA, the government's purchasing agency, must accept the lowest bids on goods it purchases. The compact Japanese trucks cost less than the smallest American-made pickups, even with a price break accorded to the U.S. products.

Although the entire U.S. auto industry is in a slump, truck sales have suffered the most. In the nine-month period, auto and truck sales combined were down 31 percent from the same time a year earlier, while truck sales alone were down 36 percent.

Unemployment is so high and profit losses so deep that President Carter flew to Detroit in July to announce recommendations for federal aid to an auto industry he said was beleaguered by Japanese competition.

GSA spokesman Peter Hickman said the purchases will continue until American-made compact trucks come onto the market beginning in 1982.

Under the "Buy American Act" of 1965, domestic manufacturers get a price advantage when bids are evaluated.

Thomas B. Morris, commissioner of the Federal Supply Service, addressed the matter of such purchases recently in a letter to Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo.

"The Buy American Act preferences are the only preferences federal agencies are permitted to apply in favor of domestic products. If the foreign bid remains low after application of the appropriate differential and the bidder is otherwise responsive and responsible, GSA normally has no alternative but make the awards on that item."

No figures were readily available on how many Japanese trucks are among the 450,000-vehicle fleet the GSA operates for other federal agencies.

All autos in the fleet are American-made, Hickman said.

The value of polls

Though their accuracy often is questioned and their value uncertain, few can deny the interest associated with polls, particularly those conducted during a presidential election year.

Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, for example, held a commanding lead in nationwide polls prior to the Democratic National Convention earlier this month in New York City. That lead held even during the week immediately preceding the start of the convention.

Then came the convention. Few would have doubted the convention would make no impression at all on the poll results. After all, here was a beleaguered incumbent president virtually battling for his political life, striving to hold his party together and facing challenges which could, conceivably, impede the path to his renomination and party unity.

Amazingly, in polls conducted immediately after the conclusion of the convention, President Carter's popularity had risen — or Reagan's popularity had dropped — to the point that the two candidates were practically neck and neck.

It has become apparent that the majority of Americans currently are susceptible to change, to outside forces, in their political views. That much the polls do reveal. Concern over domestic and international matters certainly will control to a degree how Americans will vote come November. With two months left prior to that election, there is time enough for anything to happen — even several things — to affect the political fortunes of President Carter, Mr. Reagan and even Independent candidate John Anderson.

The events now transpiring in Iran involving the American hostages could alter public sentiment concerning one or more of the candidates. The strikes by Polish workers in Poland and the Soviet response to those strikes, too, could affect political fortunes. Dips and climbs in the United States economy, of course, will play a large part in how voters react to the economic philosophy of the various presidential candidates.

But how much stock can we really place in polls and their results? There's little doubt they are good indicators of general moods of the public at large. But the variables are many and, as the polls themselves have indicated, changes in the mood of voters occur rapidly and without prediction.

The only safe presidential poll will be issued the day following the November election.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Aug. 28, the 241st day of 1978. There are 125 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Aug. 28, 1833, the British parliament banned slavery throughout the British empire.

On this date: In 1609, English navigator Henry Hudson discovered Delaware Bay. In 1828, Russian novelist Leo Tolstoy was born in the province of Tula.

In 1963, some 200,000 people staged a peaceful civil rights rally in Washington.

In 1968, Vice President Hubert Humphrey was nominated for president on the first ballot by delegates to the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

HEMISPHERE REPORT

Politically active Latin Americans split over Bolivia

All Latin America is divided into three parts — the pro-Marxist, the anti-Marxist, and the politically inactive, who may well constitute the bulk of people.

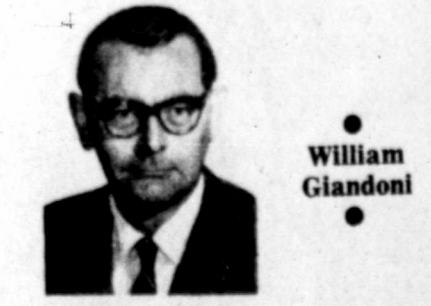

However, the politically active portion of the estimated 350 million Latin Americans either have what might be called an inordinate fear of communism or they are working for the establishment of what most choose to call "socialism."

So it is that Latin reaction to revolutionary events varies extremely.

Take Bolivia, for example. Anti-Marxist Argentines understood why the Bolivian armed forces dumped the caretaker government of that Andean republic in order to prevent the possible return to power of a left-leaning former president, Hernan Siles Zuazo.

Siles finished first among the dozen or so candidates in the June presidential elections but with far less than the 50 percent, plus one-vote majority that the constitution requires for outright election. That meant the choice from among the three front-runners would fall to the congress, as it did last year, when congress was unable to come to agreement and the caretaker government was set up.

Siles, of course, has been a prominent political figure in Bolivia for three decades now. His politics are well known. It was no secret that the coalition that backed him included

William Giandoni

Marxist groups. The allegation that the Bolivian armed forces staged the coup to protect their interest in the narcotics traffic is unconvincing.

Much the same charge was voiced against the Nationalist Revolutionary Movement (NMR) during the dozen years it ran Bolivia, between 1952 and 1964. Victor Paz Estenssoro was president first, then Siles, then Paz returned. The specific accusation then was that the Bolivian Labor Confederation (COB), still bossed by Juan Lechin, masterminded the drug trade.

In truth, Bolivia long has been a major grower of coca, the shrub whose dried leaves are the source of cocaine. The word "coca," itself, comes from the Quechuan language, one of the Inca tongues still spoken in Bolivia and other Andean countries.

Even today, coca leaves are often chewed, particularly by the hard-working, undernourished Indians, to kill hunger pains and increase the

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The Republicans have pledged $100 billion for new arms to "catch up with the Russians." This will presumably include new missiles, the B-1 bomber, super submarines, more surface naval ships, and beefed up tactical forces that can be flown to any part of the world.

The country is all for it. The only thing the GOP hasn't explained is where they are going to get the personnel to man the new hardware.

The truth of the matter is the Air Force, Navy and Army cannot find the crews for the equipment they have now. The mood of the country is to spend money on anything the military says it needs, as long as American sons and daughters are not required to put on a uniform and use it.

What's the answer? The solution is to draft all the illegal aliens that have come to the United States and swear them into the armed forces.

While military pay may be a pitance to an American, it is a fortune to an illegal South American, Mexican or Haitian refugee. Rather than pick tomatoes or grapes the illegals would be trained to use our new military equipment, and be taught all the latest methods of warfare.

Instead of being housed by immigration officials, they would be given privileges for themselves and their families. We would have Cuban submariners, Ecuadorian pilots, Chinese tank drivers, and Vietnamese missile men.

The officer corps would be made up of foreign generals, colonels, majors and admirals and captains who have been overthrown in their respective countries by Communist takeovers as well as those who have failed in right-wing junta revolutions in their respective countries.

By the time the $100 billion allocated by the Republicans would be accounted for, not one American would have to spend a day in the military to defend the country.

It is estimated that there are over 10 million illegal aliens in the United States right now. All we need is 5 million for a respectable defense capability. The other 5 million could be signed up for the reserve, and be permitted to work in the fields until an emergency required them to be called up.

While the illegals would only be required to serve for four years, those who refused to re-enlist would be immediately deported to their country of origin for being in the United States without a visa.

The beauty of this plan is that we could fulfill all our military commitments without fear of political fallout because we were endangering the lives of American boys. It would also resolve the debate as to whether American women should be required to serve in the armed forces.

But best of all, it would alleviate the bitterness that some Americans feel toward various boat people arriving in the United States. Instead of wanting to send them back, we would welcome these refugees with open arms as fresh mercenaries ready to fight to keep America free.

If the United States wants to become No. 1 in the world again, as the Republicans intend us to be, we are going to need all the illegal foreigners we can get.

WASHINGTON-MERRY-GO-ROUND

ABSCAM agents came close to entrapment

WASHINGTON — Did the FBI's undercover agents go too far in the Abscam caper, initiating crimes that otherwise would not have been committed? Critics of the "sting" operation, and the greedy public officials who got stung, say the FBI overstepped its bounds.

The Justice Department insists everything was on the up-and-up. No one "dangled bait in front of a congressman," Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann has testified.

My associate Gary Cohn has thoroughly reviewed the still-secret videotapes, audiotapes and official transcripts of the Abscam investigation. The conclusion is inescapable that the FBI agents, posing as representatives of an Arab sheik, came dangerously close to entrapment in their efforts to get the goods on members of Congress.

Take the case of Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., whose bribery trial is coming up next month. The videotapes show that he was offered a cash bribe by FBI agent Anthony Amoroso and declined it. Instead, he suggested more circuitous methods of payment, like deposits in certain New Jersey banks.

Amoroso was furious. He wanted Thompson to take the bribe in cold cash, with the FBI's hidden cameras filming the transaction. No complicated tracking of bank deposits would do. After Thompson left the meeting place, Amoroso told Howard Criden, the portly bespectacled middleman who had "delivered" Thompson: "Go back and talk to him. See what his position is."

But Criden insisted: "He told me he won't discuss money."

The agent wouldn't take "no" for an answer and sent Criden back for another try at persuading the congressman to commit the crime. Criden produced Thompson at a subsequent meeting and announced: "Frank understands the situation."

Jack Anderson

"Okay," said the G-man. "I just want to make sure you understand. There's the bribe case."

Thompson told Criden: "Howard, carry that for me." They left with the bribe case, which contained $50,000 in cash.

Consider also the case of Joseph Silvestri, a New Jersey building contractor who had been promised a $50 million loan for a client who wanted to build an Atlantic City casino. All he had to do was produce members of Congress who would fix the phony sheik's immigration problems. He brought in Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D.

But it soon became clear that Pressler would not take a bribe — had not, in fact, even been briefed on the possibility by Silvestri.

Pressler offered some modest help for the sheik, but made it clear he didn't want any money for it.

"The guy, when he started talking ... he didn't even know what we were talking about," the FBI agent complained next day to Silvestri.

Middleman Silvestri replied, in effect, that there was no need for a payoff. Pressler would help for free because he believed that the sheik's investments would be good for the economy.

The FBI man was insistent: "When a guy is talking to me, I've got to get some kind of a commitment out of him. What I'm saying, if I'm going to give a guy 50 thousand, I want him at least to tell me that, 'Look, you got my guarantee that I'm going to stick my neck out ... and try and get the guy in the country.'"

Silvestri objected: "I'll tell you frankly, I won't put words in the guy's mouth."

But the FBI agent kept pressing. "I want a guy to come forward and tell me what the hell he can do. If a guy's going to say he don't know what he can do, to me that's not worth 50 grand. All right?"

Silvestri still protested: "You want to know something? It's like saying to the guy, 'Well, lie to me.'"

IRATE READERS: When I reported last June that the United States was shipping potentially sensitive government publications to the Soviet Union as part of an information exchange program, the Kremlin belittled like a wounded bear.

The Soviet press denounced me, and Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., who was investigating the situation, as "fire-eating reactionaries." A number of Soviet representatives contacted Sasser to point out that the Russians send our government publications, too.

They're correct. Some 1,000 Soviet publications are routinely sent here, including Soviet Woman, Sputnik, News from the Ukraine, and even Soviet Military Review. Sasser was not impressed, noting that the Kremlin does not send us intelligence agency publications such as we send the Russians.

Sasser has now discovered that the Navy, for example, sent the Soviets a complete manual on maintenance and repairs for U.S. guided missiles. We have also provided the Russians with an in-depth analysis of Red China's industrial capacity.

And we send the Soviets "Trends in Communist Media," an analytical report that remains classified for six months after publication, at which time it is sent to the Russians.

POLITICAL POTPOURRI: For those who want to make a sporting proposition out of the presidential election, Las Vegas oddsmaker Jimmy the Greek's "morning line" makes Ronald Reagan the heavy favorite as the campaign starts in earnest. Jimmy puts the odds on Reagan at 5 to 2.

— Jimmy Carter hardly takes a breath these days without having a poll taken on the possible effect on his re-election chances. His obsession with opinion surveys is reminiscent of Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon in their last wretched months in office. As a result, Carter's in-house poll taker, Pat Caddell, now has greater access to the president than before. He's in on every strategy session, and his polls are taken continually.

— The White House has set up a special task force to bring disgruntled Kennedy supporters and other Democratic dissidents back into the fold. Jack Watson and Anne Wexler will do much of the work, and Labor Secretary Ray Marshall is assigned to corral labor leaders.

Bentsen hopes for passage of Mennonite bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says he hopes final approval is approaching for his bill allowing a group of Mennonite immigrants to remain in Seminole, Texas.

The bill sponsored by the Texas Democrat cleared the House Judiciary Committee on Wednesday. The last steps remaining are approval by the full House and by the president.

"I am very hopeful that, with today's favorable action by the House Judiciary Committee, we can see the bill signed into law within the next few weeks," Bentsen said after the committee vote.

The bill grants permanent resident status to 653 members of the Spartan-like religious community.

The Mennonites faced deportation after they paid $2.6 million for 6,400 acres in arid West Texas only to learn that their purchase did not make them eligible for permanent residency.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service suspended deportation proceedings for the Mennonites, who came to the U.S. from Mexico, pending congressional action.

The Mennonites' land near Seminole was repossessed last year after the group ran into financial difficulties, but many of them have remained in the area.

Bob Clark, former mayor of the small town 70 southwest of Lubbock, said the Mennonites who remained in Gaines County were working to save money to buy land for a fresh start.

Bentsen's bill did not clear a House judiciary subcommittee after gaining Senate approval in the last session of Congress. The measure was re-introduced to start over again this term and has fared better, in May clearing the subcommittee that posed the roadblock last time.

"This legislation would have absolutely no value as a precedent for anyone other than this group of unfortunate immigrants, because only these people have made such extraordinary efforts to comply with American law," Bentsen said in a statement. "The unique situation they face applies to no others."

Lubbock police busting suspected heroin dealers

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Police have begun a sweeping roundup of suspected drug dealers that they said could sharply curtail the supply of heroin in this South Plains city.

Officials said nine people were arrested Wednesday and five others were expected to be taken into custody before the roundup ends.

Police said the three-month-long undercover operation looking into heroin and cocaine trafficking in Lubbock already has resulted in the arrest of several suspected "major drug dealers."

Nine people were arraigned Wednesday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Wayne leCroy on charges of delivering heroin and cocaine, officials said.

Warrants were issued for the arrest of five others involved in the drug ring, leCroy said.

"These arrests should have a significant effect on the supply and sale of heroin in this city," said Bill Morgan, police department.

Cosme Tijerina, 50, was charged with two counts of delivery of a controlled substance and jailed on $200,000 bond, leCroy said.

Tijerina and two others arrested Wednesday were described as the "major targets" of the investigation, police said.

"There were 17 complaints filed on 14 individuals, five of whom are still at large," leCroy said.

Dallas fighting more Love flights

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas City Council plans to appeal any Civil Aeronautics Board decision permitting Texas International Airlines to serve Dallas Love Field.

The panel told City Attorney Lee Holt Wednesday to seek a stay in Washington federal court if the CAB gives its approval today to TIA's request to begin operations at Love Field Tuesday.

On Aug. 13, the council permitted the city to join the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport Board in protesting TIA's application before the CAB.

The airline plans to begin with flights to Houston, but officials have indicated they plan to go to other states as well.

The flights have been protested as detrimental to surrounding neighborhoods, as a possible violation of a federal law regulating Love Field and as a possible violation of TIA's agreement with other carriers to move its operations to the regional airport.

City Council member Joe Haggard, whose district includes Love Field, said a committee will develop a master plan to hold down noise at the airport.

Danny Bruce, Dallas director of aviation, said the goal will be to "make some differences immediately" in the amount of airplane noise at Love Field.

"We will try to do whatever we can voluntarily, so there can be an immediate effect," he said. "The (airport) tenants have indicated they are willing to help."

Council member Sid Stahl said it was imperative that the council act before TIA begins operations.

"Once they get in there and once they start flying, it'll be much more difficult to get them out," he said.

TIA senior vice president James O'Donnell said in Houston his airline would respect any restrictions at Love Field "as long as they're applied fairly."

"A unilateral suit against TIA only, ignoring other carriers at Love Field, seems not only unfair to Dallas area travelers, it's also unreasonable," he said. "The environmental thing is surprising. Any environmental thing is clearly a result of total activity, not Texas International alone."

Southwest Airlines now is the only commercial carrier flying out of Love Field. That airline and the DFW Airport Board have filed objections to TIA's plans.

Casino threats nothing new

By The Associated Press

Nevada casinos have been occasional targets of bomb threats over the years, some in attempts to extort money, others by disgruntled losers.

In the last 15 years, more than 40 bomb threats have resulted in the discovery of one dozen bombs in casinos.

Until Wednesday, no Nevada casino in recent history had been the victim of an actual explosion.

On Wednesday, a bomb planted in Harvey's Resort Hotel-Casino at State Line, Nev., exploded, ripping a huge hole in the side of the hotel. There were no injuries.

The only other incident in which a device actually went off was in June 1978, when a casino loser tossed a small smoke bomb into the El Cortez Hotel in downtown Las Vegas, causing a small fire.

One of the more elaborate extortion attempts occurred in Las Vegas earlier that year, when smoke bombs with notes demanding payment of $500,000 were found in five Strip casinos — Caesars Palace, the Flamingo, the Aladdin, the Dunes and the MGM Grand. None of the devices, described as virtually harmless by fire department bomb squads, ever went off.

Harrah's casinos in Reno and State Line have been the target of two threats in which devices were found.

A firebomb was found in Harrah's in Reno in October 1974 along with a note threatening explosions "throughout all your business establishments" unless the casino paid $300,000. A bomb found at Harrah's club at the lake in August 1977 demanding $250,000.

A time bomb found in front of the Nevada Lodge at Lake Tahoe in December 1972 was dismantled 10 minutes before it was set to go off in a $60,000 extortion attempt.

Thirteen years ago, three Strip hotels and two outside the state were the victims of two extortion attempts within a month.

In May 1967, a small homemade bomb was found with a demand for $75,000. The note threatened to blow up Del Webb hotels in Nevada, California and Arizona,

some 2,500 guests in the three states.

The following month, a man who threatened to blow up two Strip hotels was arrested and a quantity of explosive material in his possession was confiscated. He had sought $15,000 in cash and $800 a month for five years from the Flamingo and Stardust hotels.

'I got bombed at Lake Tahoe'

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — No mere bomb blast is going to dampen the action for long at the gaming dens of Lake Tahoe. Less than two hours after a bomb nearly destroyed a lakeside casino, T-shirts went on sale boasting "I got Bombed at Lake Tahoe."

Inside the gambling rooms, with the exception of bombs wrecked Harvey's Resort Hotel-Casino, the cards were flipping, the dice rolling and the slots gobbling up the coins as usual.

In fact, curtailed operations at all the casinos near Harvey's continued right through the explosion. A reporter at Caesars Palace said players did pause for an instant at the moment of the blast to exclaim things like, "Oh, Wow!" before giving their money away again.

The powerful bomb, planted Tuesday near Harvey's second-floor executive offices by extortionists who demanded $3 million, tore huge chunks off a side of the building, hurled debris for blocks and filled the air with smoke when it went off Wednesday. No one was hurt.

One extremely relieved man was Bob Harvey of Palmdale, Calif. He was getting ready to bet anybody $500 at 5-1 odds that the bomb talk was a hoax. He had no takers, an epic event in itself around here.

It was a jolly crowd that witnessed the smoky blast, cheering and yelling as the detonation echoed off the High Sierra backdrop.

One guy, apparently a loser, cried gleefully, "Take that, Harvey!"

Within minutes after the smoke cleared, most of the dealers, floor men and change-makers were back at work at the nearby hotels, servicing the thousands who flock to this resort.

Two youths from this town of 900, on the California-Nevada border at the southern end of Lake Tahoe, set up a sidewalk stand selling T-shirts memorializing the explosion. Greg Davis, 18, and Rocky Young, 14, charged $9 each and said they were working for a gift shop that ordered the shirts hours before the bomb went off.

The T-shirts said, "I Survived the Bomb, Lake Tahoe, Aug. '80."

Elsewhere along the glittering strip that lines the lake, others sold T-shirts that proclaimed, "I Got Bombed in Lake Tahoe" and "I Had a Dynamite Time at Lake Tahoe."

Honeymooners Jim and Barbara Maloro of New Jersey, guests at Harrah's across the street from Harvey's, have their own grudge against the bombers. Hotel officials knocked on the door Wednesday before the explosion and told them to leave.

"It was a hell of a time for that to happen," he said. A woman who wouldn't give her name said she was kicked out of her room at Harvey's Tuesday night and had to spend the night in a rest room. She's thinking about suing, she said.

Minorities will get new casino-hotel contracts

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The casino industry here will offer minority-owned businesses at least 15 percent of future casino hotel-related contracts under what one official described as a "milestone" agreement.

The agreement reached Wednesday between the industry and minority business groups provides a "goal" of 15 percent minority involvement "for all phases of casino and casino-related construction, supplies and vending."

"It appears to be an equitable way for minority entrepreneurs to share in the fruits of the rebuilding of Atlantic City," said Joseph P. Lordi, chairman of the New Jersey Casino Control Commission, who announced the agreement.

The agreement provides that minority businessmen get "adequate notice" on bid invitations by casino hotel owners, developers or their general contractors.

John Hickman, president of the industry-business committee which drafted the agreement, described it as "a major milestone" in the committee's efforts to involve minority businesses from the New Jersey, New York and Philadelphia metropolitan areas.

Lordi said the agreement was a "free and voluntary" commitment and that his commission wouldn't make the agreement part of its regulations.

Commission regulations call for "goals" of at least 20 percent minorities and 43 percent women in the operation of casino hotels. In construction of casino hotels, commission regulations set goals of at least 20 percent minorities and 6.9 percent women.

Sen. Gravel concedes

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — While Sen. Mike Gravel conceded defeat in his bid for a third term, elections officials across this giant state counted up the ballots that will determine whether Alaska will review its association with the other 49 states. Democratic primary voters Tuesday rejected Gravel's candidacy after his 12 years in the Senate, choosing instead Anchorage lawyer Clark Gruening. The 50-year-old senator, who stopped short of endorsing his opponent Wednesday, said he had "no deep sense of anger, loss or what have you" over the results of Tuesday's primary. While pledging to continue his fight against the Alaska lands legislation now before Congress, Gravel said: "When you become a lame duck, it affects the clout you may have." The senator staged a filibuster earlier this month against the bill before the Senate shut off debate by invoking cloture. The measure, approved by the Senate, would greatly restrict the private development of Alaskan land. In the primary race, with 407 of 421 precincts reporting, Gravel had 27,172 votes to Gruening's 33,925. A third candidate, Michael Beasley, had 998 votes. On the Republican side, Frank Murkowski, a banker from Fairbanks, had 14,408 votes to 4,886, for Art Kennedy, an Anchorage businessman. Another 5,500 were divided among four other Republican contenders.

Still too close to call on Wednesday was the final tally on a referendum to establish an Alaska Statehood Commission, which would study if the state's 21-year association with the federal union had been a success. If approved by voters, the 11-member commission would have until early 1983 to study "alternative forms of association between the United States and the people of Alaska" and the legal basis for new associations.

Connally, Clements stumping

By The Associated Press

Gov. Bill Clements and former Texas Gov. John Connally sympathized with the economic plight of rural Americans and hinted at a better life for West Texas farmers if they help elect a Republican president.

Clements and Connally toured a seed company and feed lot in Hereford, held a brief news conference in Amarillo and ate barbecue in Pampa Wednesday as the pair opened a 23-day Texas stump for Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan.

Connally said he doesn't think the farm vote is a "shoe in" for the Republicans, but he berated the Carter administration for punishing the "backbone of America," the agricultural community.

"I can't imagine any farmer defending Carter," Connally said in Hereford. "I'm going to be the last in the parade if all the government is going to do is punish the American farmer."

He said he did not believe Carter could carry the farm sector after allowing farmers to suffer through the Russian grain embargo and other ill-advised agriculture policies.

At a Pampa barbecue dinner for the two Republicans, Clements said he would not consider leaving Texas to take a job in Washington under Reagan.

Both Connally and Clements said they supported the grain embargo after the Afghanistan invasion, but Clements added, "I want to embargo everything — not just grain."

During a press conference at the Hereford airport, Clements said the China controversy facing the Republican ticket was "not handled properly by Reagan."

"I'd rather see him attack Carter's policy. I want Reagan on the offense, not the defense," he added.

Connally attempted to defend the GOP candidate and said Reagan was only trying to point out how "America has lost its way under the Carter administration."

Clements told farmers he and Connally "have input to Reagan and his staff on farm problems."

"Agriculture is the foundation of our strength," the former treasury secretary said. "If we were without the ability to produce, this country would be in desperate shape."

"We are called an industrial nation, but a agriculture has been the one to increase productivity," Connally said.

He pointed out that Reagan, as governor of California, understands agriculture.

At an Amarillo press conference, Connally sharply criticized the Carter Administration's foreign policy.

"We have lost ground in foreign countries," he said. "The Soviet Union has moved into countries such as Afghanistan because it perceives a weakness in the United States."

The former Texas governor refused to comment on how Republican lack of support for the Equal Rights Amendment would affect the campaign.

"The Texas legislature has passed it — as far as I'm concerned it is a non-issue," he said.

New game take-off on Texas politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — You show up at the Texas-Oklahoma football game while running for office in Texas and win 500 votes on election day.

Or, you're caught inside the Chicken Ranch and lose 20,000 votes from Texans who used to think you were respectable. You also lose $1,000 in pocket change and your pants.

That's just part of your run-of-the-mill day on the Texas campaign trail, as Carol Crain sees it in her new board game based on the foibles of the state's political history.

"I just started thinking about all the funny things that happened," Mrs.

Crain said about her game, called Texas Politics. "It's all a take-off."

So you can lose a turn in the Sharpstown jail or get lost in the Big Thicket on the way to the statehouse.

The object of the game is to accumulate enough votes and campaign donations to win whatever state office you desire.

Mrs. Crain said she came up with the idea four years ago after her son was born, but then left the mock-up she drew on butcher paper sitting in a closet until last year.

Then she met an artist to design the board and took it from there. The Amarillo native, who has public relations experience, said plans call for Texas Politics to be in stores this fall in time for the Christmas gift season.

Mrs. Crain said she based the game on her own experience as a campaign worker in Texas, plus observations of the state Legislature when her husband, Claiborn, worked there.

She moved to Washington in 1977 when her husband took a job with Rep. Jack Hightower, a Democrat from Vernon.

Mrs. Crain said she has learned the pitfalls of running a business from home, such as having her pre-schooler howl for cookies and milk while one of Texas' better-known retailers was on the line.

The whole project was run as her own small business, from arranging the printing of the "yea" and "nay" cards to finding a marketing representative at the Dallas trade center.

"My family has always been in the retail business, so it wasn't totally obscure to me," she said. With interest in Texas running high nationally as a result of "Dallas" and other television shows, Mrs. Crain said she hopes there might be a market around the country for Texas Politics.

She said a newspaper would be added to explain the in-jokes if the game is sold outside of Texas.

Another possibility for expanding the business would be developing editions for other states.

"I'd like to do Louisiana and I might like to do Oklahoma, but you might not have as much business in other states — because everybody's interested in Texas," Mrs. Crain said.

Three hostages freed

MONTREAL (AP) — Nine convicts pinned down at the Laval prison after an aborted escape attempt freed three more of their hostages early today as an act of good faith and were close to freeing the remaining eight, officials said.

"They are finalizing an agreement under which they would give up the hostages and return to their cells. We are not too far from a settlement," a prison spokesman said. The incident began Monday when 10 convicts, armed with revolvers and knives, mutinied in the prison welding shop and raced for the outside, collecting 12 hostages as they went.

There was shooting and John Connerney, a 44-year-old American serving life for the murder of a Montreal policeman, was hit in the chest and killed.

Seven more executed in Iran today; Total dead now 80 in conspiracy

By The Associated Press

Five Iranian army officers and two civilians were executed by firing squad today in a coastal park in Iran's southwest town of Ahwaz after being found guilty of plotting a coup attempt against the revolutionary regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The official Pars news agency reported the seven men, "agents of the coup d'etat conspiracy," were shot at dawn in Ahwaz, 340 miles southwest of Tehran in oil-rich Khuzestan province.

The Iranian regime announced in July that it had discovered the coup plot, and about 500 people, mostly military men, were arrested. Approximately 80 have been executed.

At the time, Iran blamed the planned coup on the United States, Israel and Iraq.

But the Soviet news agency Tass reported Wednesday in a dispatch from Tehran that Iran's Ministry of National Guidance had accused American, Israeli and British intelligence agencies of helping to stage the coup.

Tass quoted the ministry as saying it had uncovered a document outlining the foreign assistance in the Anglican bishopric building in Isfahan.

Also Wednesday, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt appealed to Mohammad Ali Rajai, Iran's new prime minister, to work for the release of the 52 American hostages in their 299th day of captivity today.

"I sincerely hope that the detention of American diplomats, condemned by the entire international community, be ended and thus a decisive obstacle be removed for cooperation between Iran and the international community of states," the West German leader wrote, according to a statement released by the chancellor in Bonn.

Meanwhile in the Buffalo suburb of Amherst, N.Y., the family of Cynthia Dwyer, a freelance American journalist seized in Tehran on May 5 on charges of spying, said it received its first communication from her — two letters in which she said she was "quite well, patient and hopeful."

Her husband, Dr. John F. Dwyer, chairman of the English Department at Buffalo State College, said his wife also wrote that "the food here is plentiful and good, so please do not worry about me."

He said the letters arrived Tuesday, were handwritten and he had "no doubt about the writing or sentiment."

Hostage's family gets letters

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The family of Cynthia B. Dwyer has received two letters from her, relatives' first communication from the free lance writer since her arrest in Iran in May.

"I am quite well, patient and hopeful," she said, according to her husband, Dr. John F. Dwyer, chairman of the English Department at Buffalo State College.

He said she also wrote that "the food here is plentiful and good, so please do not worry about me."

Dwyer said the letters arrived Tuesday in one envelope and did not appear to have been censored.

Mrs. Dwyer, a former copy editor for Humanist magazine, left her home in suburban Amherst in early April and traveled to Iran to do some free lance writing.

The Iranian Foreign Ministry later said she had been arrested by revolutionary guards on May 5 on charges of being a spy for the CIA.

Dwyer said he and his children have been writing to her regularly through the Red Cross and the Iranian Foreign Ministry, but said her letters "didn't mention receiving our letters."

He said the postmark on the envelope from his wife was too faint to be read, and the stamp was missing.

He said the letters were handwritten and "were not dictated or anything like that. There is no doubt about the writing or sentiment."

Dwyer said one letter was addressed "birthday letter to daughter and son." That was for the Dwyer children — Dan, who will be 12 next month, and Susannah, who will be 9 next month.

The second letter was marked "letter to husband and other son," which was for Dwyer and their third child Ben, 14.

Gun liability case settled

Attorneys in the product liability case involving a death allegedly caused by a defective automatic rifle took the case from the federal jury this morning, reportedly just as the jury was about to render its verdict.

Amount of settlement was not disclosed, but the original suit was for $6 million.

Odessa Frances Smith, plaintiff in the case against Browning Arms Co. of Utah, claimed that a defective trigger-safety mechanism — a sear — in her husband's .270-caliber Browning automatic deer rifle had caused his death.

Her husband, Kenneth Louis Smith, 53, was killed in his home on Dec. 19, 1978, when the rifle discharged. The firearm, then new, was on safety and was in its soft case when it fired, testimony in the case this week before the three-man, three-woman jury indicated.

Browning had maintained that the rifle had been abused and such alleged misuse was the cause of rifle's firing.

"Mrs. Smith is satisfied with the settlement," Odessa attorney John Green, who was Mrs. Smith's co-counsel, said at noon today.

John Gunter, a Midland lawyer who represented Browning, said the firearm company's Boston-based insurance carrier decided take the case from the jury and to reach an out-of-court settlement.

A Lubbock economist had placed a $290,000 value on what services Smith could have rendered his wife had he lived.

Smith had owned a chain of 21 drive-in restaurants before he sold the business earlier in the 1970s and had invested in an apartment complex and a mobile-home park in Odessa.

U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Buntion, who presided over the two-day trial in Midland, reportedly has ordered that the jury's findings not be disclosed.

Gunter said he is aching to know what the jury's verdict would have been but probably will never know.

Among other issues, the jurors were to determine whether or not the rifle was defective in design and manufacturer and, if so, if the rifle was a "producing cause" of Smith's death.

Also, the jury was to determine if the rifle had been misused and abused and, if so, if that misuse were a proximate cause of Smith's death. Had the jury found misuse of the rifle or defect in the firearm, it was to determine the percentage of each.

Then, the jury was to set an amount of damages.

Ann-Margret loses lawsuit

NEW YORK (AP) — While actress ANN-MARGRET may blush over a nude photograph of her in High Society Celebrity Skin magazine, she didn't have such qualms when she appeared in the movie from which the picture was taken, a federal judge has said.

In dismissing the star's suit against the publication, U.S. District Judge Gerard L. Goettel said Wednesday the popular entertainer was a public figure, "a woman who has occupied the fantasies of many moviegoers over the years (and) chose to perform unclad in one of her films."

Thus, Goettel said, she could not sue the magazine for printing a picture of her naked from the waist up. The reproduction of the still photograph, taken from the 1978 movie "Magic," did not constitute an invasion of privacy, he said.

The judge called Ann-Margret "a woman of beauty, talent and courage."

"It would appear, from her reaction to her inclusion in the...magazine, that she is also a woman of taste," the judge said, calling the magazine "tacky."

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP) — REZA PAHLAVI, son of the late shah of Iran, is giving up his academic career in Massachusetts to stay in Egypt with relatives, according to officials of Williams College.

Pahlavi, 19, notified the school of his decision Wednesday, said officials at the four-year liberal arts institution.

Pahlavi's father, MOHAMMED REZA PAHLAVI, fell from power in Iran in February 1979 and died in exile in Egypt in July.

Pahlavi did not indicate when he might return to the college, officials said. Cris T. Roosenraad, acting dean of the college, said beyond loss of time and work toward a degree, Pahlavi's leave of absence would have no effect on his status as a student.

Roosenraad said it is not unusual for a student to leave college for personal reasons. In Pahlavi's case, Roosenraad said it was "a personal decision to be made by him and his family."

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Although nuns in her religious order shunned any celebration, the Indian government has observed MOTHER TERESA'S 70th birthday by issuing a commemorative postage stamp in honor of Calcutta's "saint of the gutters."

The government postal department on Wednesday issued the stamp, bearing the likeness of the Yugoslav-born winner of the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize. Postal authorities also gave Mother Teresa a check for $260.

But it was business as usual Wednesday at Mother Teresa's Missionaries of Charities convent here.

"We do not celebrate birthdays," an unidentified nun at the convent said. "There were only prayers for her during the day's routine mass."

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC-TV'S "THE DAVID LETTERMAN SHOW," struggling with viewer ratings since it first appeared last June, finally caught on fire in a recent telecast.

The show heated up — literally — at the end of Wednesday's live broadcast at Rockefeller Center when confetti tossed by guests celebrating the 30th wedding anniversary of Sam and Betty Cottenoff ignited on the stage.

A surprised Letterman ran about the stage, attempting to put out the fire with his feet before a stage hand came to his assistance with a fire extinguisher. No injuries were reported and NBC officials said there was no damage to the stage.

Sparklers held by friends and relatives of the Red Bank, N.J., couple apparently ignited the confetti. The couple was chosen to appear on the hour-long show by producers of the comedy-variety show.

Studio officials said the audience remained calm during the incident, with many apparently thinking the fire was part of the show.

Congregation evicted for non-payment

LANCASTER, Texas (AP) — A justice of the peace has ordered a Baptist church congregation evicted for failure to pay its debts, but the pastor of the church-school says he's going to stay put — regardless of the court ruling.

"I don't believe the courts of our land will put a Baptist church out if it can prove it's trying just as hard as it can," said the Rev. Herschel Williams, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church.

Justice of the Peace Vernon Chowning, however, could — and did — order the pastor and his church to start packing their bags.

The eviction order came Wednesday after testimony indicated the church is in default on $40,000 to $50,000 in bond payments to the Modern Church Financing Company.

The company foreclosed on the property in July after the unpaid debts had piled up. In August, the property was sold and company officials filed for eviction.

"There are bondholders not in any way affiliated with that church. To them it's just an investment," company attorney Terry Cozy said. "Those bondholders have a right to enforce their debt — even to a church."

But to enforce that debt, the company will have to go over the pastor, who stands firm in his belief that money is not the issue — it is a battle between right and wrong, he said.

"We have not said we don't owe money. We do," Williams said. "We have done everything in our power to pay... But I make no apology for saying I think God put us in the school business."

Williams staunchly added what he believes is God's will would prevail and keep the school and day-care center that serves 200 children in business.

"Personally, I felt like I was in a den of snakes today," the pastor said. He added since the foreclosure the church has raised $25,000 in cash and $35,000 in church bonds on which the owners are willing to borrow.

But for now, the only thing that stands between the church and eviction from their 12-year location is an appeal.

The church's financial problems started in 1978, and the congregation has dwindled since then from a membership of 250 to between 75 and 100, the minister said.

A dispute over rules and regulations in the school lost the church many members, he said.

Boys must sport haircuts above the ears, and girls must wear dresses. The pastor said long hair on boys and what he called "men's apparel" on women is "a sin."

The church also lost members when a girl was expelled for becoming pregnant and a boy was ousted for smoking marijuana, he added.

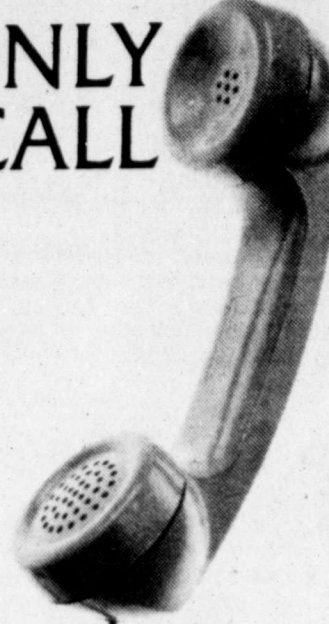

The bond company is not interested in taking the church from its congregation, and "if they paid their indebtedness, they'd get it back," said spokesman Ray Steed.

Ex-Dallas Cowboy arrested for fraud

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted three men — one of them a former Dallas Cowboys football player — in connection with an alleged scheme to sell $8 million in non-existent student loans.

Billy H. Howton, 49, president of the now-defunct First Financial Group of Texas Inc., Vining T. Reynolds Jr., 38, the firm's vice president and salesman Larry T. Lee were charged Wednesday with mail fraud, wire fraud and inducing interstate travel for fraudulent purposes.

Howton was a wide receiver with the Cowboys during the early 1960s.

The three men were charged in the 27-count indictment with selling bogus government-guaranteed loans to various financial institutions and promising to repurchase the loans at a later date.

Securities and Exchange Commission attorneys said Wednesday the practice of selling loans is not unusual because it allows brokerage firms to increase profits by lending cash instead of investing directly in loans.

The SEC obtained a default judgment against Howton and Reynolds on March 10 in a suit to request First Financial Group be placed in receivership and its assets frozen.

U.S. District Judge Ross N. Sterling also cited Howton and Reynolds for contempt during the March hearing and sentenced them to 10 days in jail because they failed to appear and give depositions on the SEC suit.

None of the three men charged Wednesday could be reached for comment.

The indictment alleges Lee received $200,000 for locating potential "victims" for First Financial.

The grand jury said the defendants would give false locations for the loans to prospective customers, then avoid repurchasing the bogus loans.

The indictment also charged that Lee lied to a federal panel May 12 when he told them he was not in Houston when the body of Robert Kahn, scheduled to testify about the alleged fraud, was found after Kahn had been shot in the chest.

The indictments in the case came after the SEC charged in September, 1979, that Reynolds and Howton had taken more than $625,000 from First Financial between Dec. 30, 1978, and Aug. 17, 1979.

Black leaders head off violence

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A human chain formed by black leaders kept 300 angry youths from a police station following funeral services for a black teen-ager whose shooting death by police sparked two nights of violence.

Black leaders linked hands and halted the angry crowd just 10 yards from a line of riot-equipped police Wednesday night. After pleading with the youths for half an hour, the leaders turned the march away from the station.

But windows on police vehicles were smashed and scattered incidents of bottle-throwing were reported near the station, where a crowd of 400 people pelted officers with rocks on Monday night.

Police said there were no arrests Wednesday. The latest incidents came after funeral services for 17-year-old William Green, who was killed by a police officer's bullet after he crashed a stolen vehicle into a tree.

Police said the shooting by John Ziegler, a 17-year police veteran whose service revolver discharged as he hit Green with it, was accidental. Some witnesses contend it was deliberate.

Green was to be buried today. More than 20 people were arrested in two nights of rock- and bottle-throwing after the Sunday incident, and black leaders in a "community patrol" had urged youths to avoid violence Wednesday.

Hundreds of people gathered outside the funeral home during the service for Green. After the service, several hundred headed for the police station.

As the crowd approached, about 100 police officers in riot gear assembled outside. But the march was turned back by a dozen community leaders who linked hands between the two groups.

Black youths also marched on a business district at Lehigh and Germantown avenues but departed when they encountered police, he said. Windows on several police vehicles were broken at another encounter nearby in the predominantly black area of north Philadelphia near Temple University.

Mayor's son given 'immunity'

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Jim McConn's son was given "diplomatic immunity" when he was released after being arrested for failing to move from the scene of a traffic accident, says the Houston police chief.

B.K. Johnson said the release of Terry McConn, 22, was a "professional courtesy ... kind of like diplomatic immunity."

Johnson said Tuesday at a news conference he "asked" the arresting officer that McConn be released, but did not order it.

"The mayor is the mayor," Johnson said. "He is number one, the leader of this city and we try to take care of the leader."

McConn's son could have been fined as much as $200 for the alleged municipal violation.

Johnson said a report of the incident raises doubts as to whether McConn's son should have been arrested.

Johnson said he will probably recommend that the case be dropped after he meets with the mayor.

McConn is in Israel and could not be reached for comment.

"I think this is something that goes on in the United States and every place you go," he added, "and let's not bicker about that — it's just part of life."

'Forget China,' Reagan told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan has been told in no uncertain terms by the governors of five key states to get the party's bull elephant out of the China shop and back to economic battleground on the home front.

Reagan arrived from Columbus, Ohio, and drove to a temporary home in Middleburg, in the hunt country of Virginia, for the duration of the campaign. On hand to welcome him were Gov. John Dalton of Virginia and Reagan's new neighbor, Sen. John Warner, R-Va.

Reagan talked politics over dinner Wednesday night in Columbus with the chief executives of five Great Lakes states that hold 110 of the 270 electoral he needs to win the White House.

"On the street corners of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Scranton and Erie they're not much concerned about China policy," said Gov. Richard Thornburgh of Pennsylvania. "They're concerned where their next paycheck is coming from."

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, where unemployment is running 14.4 per cent, said he told Reagan to "go with the big ticket items ... the emphasis has got to be on jobs."

"If you're going to squirrel hunt, you keep your eye on the squirrel," added Gov. Lee Dreyfus of Wisconsin. "Right now everything indicates in the last couple weeks (the focus is) trying to move off on all other issues — for example have we got two Chinas."

He said the people in his state don't give "one good darn whether you've got two Chinas, three Chinas or four Chinas."

The five governors, including James Rhodes of Ohio and James Thompson of Illinois, also advised Reagan not to take part in any campaign debate that excludes independent candidate John Anderson. They said their view did not necessarily represent Reagan's stand.

Reagan-Bush group formed here

Gov. Bill Clements, state Republican campaign chairman, and Ernest Angelo Jr., deputy chairman campaign manager of the Texas Reagan-Bush Organization, announced the formation of the Midland County Reagan-Bush Organization today.

Angelo said Midland County will play an important role in the fall election and has been an integral part of the success of the Republican party in Texas in past elections.

Larry Hunnicutt will serve as county chairman for the fall campaign here. Hunnicutt was previously the county chairman for the Reagan effort in the primary.

David Godfrey will serve as county campaign chairman and will manage day-to-day activities for the local campaign.

Angelo also announced the campaign headquarters for Midland, located at 700B Andrews Highway, will open within the next two weeks.

Injunction hearing set in Pecos motel purchase

Judge Barbara Culver of the 318th State District Court in Midland will hold a hearing at 8:30 a.m. Friday on a temporary injunction to prevent the buyers of a Pecos motel from alleged "threat of waste and continued misconduct" at the motel they are purchasing from Amarillo businessman W. J. Budwine for $233,615.

The hearing will come 10 days after Judge Culver signed a temporary restraining order in the case.

The case stems from the 1978 sale of the American Motor Inn & Restaurant in Pecos to two Indian brothers and their spouses, Khushalbal F. Patel, Saroj K. Patel, Santilal R. Patel, and Lalitaben S. Patel. The Patels, doing business as the Pecos Valley Motel Co., defaulted on payments and thereby breached their contract with Budwine, the petition alleges. The petition says that the defendants had agreed in the July 1, 1978, contract to buy the motel in 180 monthly payments: 47 payments of $876.75 each and 133 at $3.349.

If granted, the injunction would preclude the Patels from "interfering" in the motel's restaurant, operated by Max C. Crisp and Lory Crisp, and from "damaging, destroying, removing or otherwise disposing of furniture and equipment," including television sets, air conditioning and fixtures.

Darrell Smith, attorney for the plaintiffs, said Budwine may regain control and ownership of the motel.

Rotan youth hurt in rodeo accident

A 10-year-old Rotan youth is in critical condition in the Critical Care Unit of Midland Memorial Hospital after a rodeo accident Wednesday night.

The ambulance was dispatched to the Joe Thorp Rodeo Arena, where the AJRA Rodeo is currently being held, about 11:17 p.m.

According to a hospital spokesman, Glen Overby had been stepped on by a horse and was taken to Midland Memorial by ambulance.

Details of the accident were unavailable this morning.

Midland fares well in survey of state's convention sites

Midland's reputation as a convention city is spreading throughout the state.

In a reader poll conducted by Texas Business magazine and published in its September issue, Midland fared well in all convention and business meeting categories among smaller cities, along with Abilene and El Paso.

One Houstonian wrote the magazine that "Midland is the friendliest city in the state. There is a whole frontier still to conquer out there and the people there just make it easier."

The survey showed that Midland ranked fifth as best designed overall for business trips. Ahead of it were Dallas, Houston, Austin and San Antonio.

It came in fourth for best business-sales opportunities, behind Houston, Dallas, Austin and San Antonio.

And the Tall City was ranked fifth in the state for being the friendliest (congeniality of hotel and restaurant personnel and business people).

Texas Business said the survey was sent to a cross-sampling of readers and received 220 replies.

In the same poll, Odessa was listed by businessmen as having the worst convention facilities, worst recreational facilities and worst hotels.

U.S. considering possible base in Egyptian desert

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Defense Department engineering team is reviewing what construction would be needed to make a remote Egyptian area on the Red Sea a standby base for U.S. forces.

Pentagon sources stressed that this was only a preliminary examination and that no decision has been made to go ahead with such a project at Ras Banas, a strategically located point in Egypt's eastern desert, just north of the Sudan and across the Red Sea from Saudi Arabia. The team inspected the area in June.

"Many more discussions will have to be held with the Egyptians," said one source.

Pentagon spokesman Thomas Lambert noted that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat "has publicly invited the U.S. to use Egyptian facilities and we are considering ways to do that."

However, Lambert said, "No decisions have been made, so it would be premature to discuss places and money figures right now."

It is known, however, that U.S. officials developing an American capacity to deploy troops rapidly into the critical Persian Gulf region are interested in Ras Banas.

They said they conceive of it as a "bare-boned standby base" with an airstrip upgraded to handle U.S. transports and warplanes flown from the United States in a crisis.

The concept also involves possible construction of some buildings that would be kept ready to support a U.S. Army division which might be sent there as a staging point for commitment into the Persian Gulf area in an emergency.

The sources, asking to remain anonymous, estimated that improving Ras Banas for this purpose, including dredging its harbor to handle supply ships, would cost about $300 million. "It would be nothing elaborate," said one official. No U.S. troops would be stationed there on a permanent basis, he said, but a few American civilian personnel might be posted at Ras Banas for caretaker purposes.

There are no present intentions to stockpile heavy Army equipment, such as tanks, ashore at Ras Banas.

But officials left open the possibility that one or more depot ships loaded with such gear and other supplies might be moored in the Ras Banas harbor, as is now done near the U.S.

base on British-owned Diego Garcia in the mid-Indian Ocean.

Establishment of a standby base at Ras Banas would fit the pattern of an expanding U.S. capability to project military power into the Indian Ocean-Persian Gulf area. U.S. moves in this direction have gathered momentum since the Iranian revolution and the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

The United States already has won access to airfields and ports in Kenya, Somalia and Oman.

Award to Moonie's father first of its kind

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A father who fought for five years to see his daughter — only to see her speak against him in court — has been awarded $30,000 after contending the Unification Church violated his rights as a parent in recruiting her.

A church official called the award unprecedented, but Don Kieffer said he would "give up everything" to get his daughter Jana back.

Kieffer had asked $1 million in damages, contending the church "deprived him of his natural parental right" by recruiting his daughter when she was a minor. He also contended the church "continued to exercise its mind control techniques" over Jana after recruiting her.

David Hager, legal director of the church — whose members are sometimes called Moonies — said the church had never before lost a suit over its recruitment or retention of members, "none that relate in any way to this type of issue."

Hager said he believed the U.S. District Court jury found the church responsible for violating the father's rights as a parent, not with controlling the young woman's mind. "If they found mind control, they would have socked us for a million bucks," Hager said.

The five-woman, two-man jury deliberated for five hours on Tuesday and Wednesday before deciding the suit after 15 days of testimony.

Hager, reached at the church's legal office in New York, called the decision "a token victory" for Kieffer. But he said the case would be appealed because it involved the issue of "religious liberty."

Kieffer said the award was a victory. But the father, who saw Jana for the first time in five years when she testified against him at the trial, said he would not be satisfied until she returned home.

"I feel good about the decision, but I still feel badly that Jana is not back with her family," Kieffer said. "I would give up everything to have her back."

Jana, now 21, was introduced by her mother to the church, which is led by the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, a Korean industrialist and evangelist. Her mother and Kieffer — who adopted Jana, a child of his wife's first marriage — are divorced.

Lawyers for the church argued church officials did not know that Jana was in the custody of her father, rather than her mother, when Jana joined her mother at the church's Barrytown, N.Y., center, in 1975.

Hager said the jury "felt that someone in the church knew, or should have known."

Kieffer said he filed the suit in 1977 to force the church to produce his daughter in court. He called that experience "devastating."

Kieffer said Jana refused to meet him in the past, and he hopes the meeting in court would help renew family ties. He said Jana's brother, sisters, grandmothers, aunts, uncles and cousins had attended the court hearings, but he conceded the family's hopes may be in vain.

"In my opinion, she is very definitely under their control," he said. "She is very hostile toward her family and has a great deal of anger toward me."

Talks continue in strike as actors picket

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — While negotiators in Hollywood hashed over the issue of residual payments in an effort to end a five-week actors strike, performers in New York picketed on Broadway as a band played "There's No Business Like Show Business."

About 1,000 actors, including Mickey Rooney, Jason Robards and Sandy Duncan, picketed outside the Gulf and Western Building, which houses offices of Paramount pictures, then marched down Broadway into New York City's theater district. "Not all actors reach stardom, but we are human beings," said Rooney, who is starring on Broadway in "Sugar Babies." "Jockeys, baseball players and football players strike. ... This is not a case of us trying to break anyone but rather to get what we deserve."

not been affected by the strike, which is against television and movie producers.

Meanwhile, in Hollywood, about 40 industry workers marched Wednesday outside the offices of the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers, where bargaining was taking place.

Talks were resuming today as negotiators tried to untangle a dispute over residual payments. The unions want a greater share in the revenues producers receive when shows are used on pay TV or on video cassettes.

The walkout by about 60,000 members of the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists began July 21.

The strike has blocked production of movies and some television shows and has forced television networks to reshuffle their fall schedules.

The strike has also resulted in unemployment for about 20,000 members of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees. Representatives of the union attended Wednesday's bargaining and urged an end to the walkout.

A representative of producers said industry managers were aware of the hardships brought on by the strike and were attempting to bargain in good faith to end the strike.

Two more boatloads arrive in Florida

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Two more boatloads of Cuban refugees arrived in Key West while two other boats believed bound for Cuba were escorted back to port, the Coast Guard said.

The two boats to arrive Wednesday carried approximately 290 refugees, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Crewmen from the boats intercepted en route to Cuba were turned over to U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service officials for possible prosecution for violating a presidential ban on the "Freedom Flotilla" boatlift, which has brought nearly 121,000

Cubans to the United States, officials said.

The cruiser Aio F1, with two men aboard, was stopped about 30 miles north of the Cuban coast by the cutter Courageous, spokesman Mike Ayres said.

The 45-foot pleasure craft Mila Rae, carrying four people, was intercepted by the cutter Alert 15 miles north of Cuba, Ayres said.

The Coast Guard's 18-cutter Florida Straits patrol, aimed at stopping the boatlift, has been intercepting two to three boats a day bound for Cuba, officers say.

Neurosurgeon uses unique gluing method to stop brain's blood leakage

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was written by Susan Rutherford, a former member of The Reporter-Telegram editorial staff and now a writer for The University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas.

DALLAS — You've seen it on TV. Cyanoacrylate. They say a drop of it will hold the weight of a car.

Now a surgical form of the "super" glue is being injected into people's brains to save their lives.

Neurosurgeon Duke Samson, associate professor at The University of Texas Southwestern Medical School, is using the glue to close off two forms of life-threatening blood leakage in the brain—abnormalities that don't respond to conventional surgical methods.

His technique is experimental and unique. Samson is the only surgeon using a needle injection gluing procedure. But since he recently received FDA approval to use the glue in patients, he has seen promising and exciting results. Sixteen so-called "untreatable" patients have had operation with 14 apparent successes.

The glue is working without any permanent neurological complications to date, even though long-term effects have not been established.

Certain brain abnormalities cause blood to be diverted to places it should not go. This means that some arteries and veins become bloated with too much blood while other areas are starved for lack of blood and necessary oxygen. A scenario is set for potential strokes, seizures, severe headaches, hemorrhaging and even death.

The glue is used to block off blood flow into the full areas, and allow the blood to seek other outlets.

Samson described the surgery as "experimental with tentative results...but for some people the injection of the glue may be a very worthwhile thing."

Patient number 16 was recently wheeled into the Parkland Memorial Hospital operating room with an arteriovenous malformation (AVM).

one of the two conditions on which Samson is using the glue technique.

The 31-year-old patient spoke with difficulty when asked if he had taken anything to eat or drink since the night before.

Only three weeks ago his symptoms began—paralysis in one arm, problems with speech and occasional loss of consciousness. A large blood clot had formed as a result of the malformation and it was pressing on the brain. This clot was removed in a preliminary operation and, anticipating more surgery, the piece of skull removed from that operation was held off. By the time the patient came for the gluing procedure, a large bulge could be seen where fluid had collected and was pushing through the hole in the skull.

With the patient under a general anesthetic, the five-hour surgery began. Cutting through layers of brain tissue, Samson was able to first expose the malformation, which was surrounded by non-functioning brain. Then he worked around the edges of the AVM, sealing off blood passages leading into it with four injections of glue.

Long, thin syringes had been filled with .1 cubic centimeter of water, then .2 cc of glue, and then another .1 cc of water. The water allowed a free flow of glue. This type of glue doesn't set on contact with air, but rather it sets on contact with substances containing negative and positive ions, such as blood and spinal fluid.

Samson explains that the procedure doesn't just glue the artery shut. "The glue expands like a sponge and in the expansion a clot forms. This way we can seal off the malformation while preserving the normal vessels."

An AVM is a congenital malformation in which portions of the brain never develop beyond their fetal state. Ordinarily at the time of birth, the arteries, which bring blood into the brain, have branched out into tiny capillaries. And these capillaries have widened again to become veins, which take blood out of the brain. Capillary development is necessary because their narrow size allows only one red blood cell to pass at a time, therefore giving adequate time for the blood to give up oxygen and take on carbon dioxide and time for the blood serum to give up glucose and take on waste, such as lactic acid. Within the capillary walls the resistance to flow is high and therefore the flow is slow.

Samson says that for unknown reasons, however, some people have areas within the brain that show a persistence to retain normal fetal circulation—that is, they never develop capillaries. Arteries flow directly into veins and there is little resistance to blood flow. Blood from other areas is sucked into the malformed vessel, depriving parts of the brain of blood. The AVM is very susceptible to hemorrhage and seizures and since it drains blood from normal areas it can cause severe headaches.

"It probably enlarges somewhat with age," says Samson, "not because it grows but because flow continues to be high and it continues to draw blood from other areas. And the brain around these malformations is usually not functional."

Often an AVM, which affects slightly less than one percent of the population, can be surgically removed without any problem, Samson says. But he adds there is a significant number of patients who have malformed vessels that cannot be resected because the vessels are too large or because of their critical location. These are the cases in which the glue surgery is being used.

A wide variety of treatments has been tried on these patients, including tying off the vessels or injecting glue through catheters which have been threaded up into the brain. But many doctors, including Samson, have not been satisfied with the results from these treatments. Samson's technique using open craniotomy and glue injection is now offering a potential solution to those cases otherwise considered surgically untreatable.

In spite of the experimental nature of Samson's work the gluing procedures have drastically changed several lives, and may offer hope to numerous other "untreatable" patients.

What's cooking?

Now is the time to take advantage of all those seasonal fresh vegetables available at reasonable prices.

Squash, for example. It's nutritious and in abundance right now. Mrs. J. B. Roberts, 58 Perrie Lane, has an excellent recipe for Squash Casserole. It's a real family favorite.

SQUASH CASSEROLE

- 2 1/2 lb. yellow squash
- 1 bell pepper, chopped
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 stick of oleomargarine
- 1 1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- salt and pepper to taste

Cook squash until tender. Drain; add sugar, salt and pepper. Sauté chopped onion and pepper in oleomargarine. Add to squash. Pour 1/3 of squash into a 2 1/2 quart casserole dish. Add a layer of shredded cheese. Alternate the rest of squash and cheese. Top with a layer of cheese. Bake at 325 degrees for 30 minutes.

Plan a picnic for Labor Day

All good things must come to an end. With the advent of Labor Day, those who have not been to the beach, mountains or lakes this summer because of the high cost of gasoline may be planning a little something extra for Monday.

Anne Winfield, a home advisor, notes that Americans are now extremely energy-conscious and are using over a half-million fewer barrels of gasoline per day in 1980 compared to a year ago. Gas went from an average of 78 cents a gallon at the beginning of last summer to a current average of $1.22 per gallon.

"Americans are realizing that fighting traffic and traveling a long distance to enjoy the last weekend of summer may not be as palatable as a good old-fashioned picnic in the backyard or at a neighborhood park under the willows," Ms. Winfield says.

It doesn't take a lot of effort to create an atmosphere of the good old days. Start with an ordinary basket.

Ms. Winfield suggests taking a leaf from the devotees of "nouvelle cuisine" who chefs believe that dressing up the accoutrements is almost as important as the food served.

Line the basket with a colorful tablecloth and include matching napkins, plates, cups and utensils. The cloth can be used to cover the picnic table where the feast will be served. Wicker plate holders are not only decorative but also prevent spills. Use thermoplastic containers to keep food hot or cold and avoid unwanted guests. All of these picnic items are inexpensive and can be purchased at your neighborhood variety store.

For those who want to cook on the scene, there are small portable barbecues available at reasonable prices. To save time and space, fill the barbecue with charcoal beforehand so that all you need to do is strike a match when you get to the picnic site.

The choice of food for such occasions is boundless. Fried chicken, hot dogs and hamburgers are old favorites. To add sparkle to any entree, cold salads are delectable. Remember that any food item prepared with mayonnaise must be kept cold to prevent spoilage. Fill the basket with snacks and dips along with pickles and interesting vegetable relishes. Corn on the cob is easy to serve. Baste the corn with butter, wrap in aluminum foil and let cook slowly over the charcoal pit.

The choice of liquid refreshments also is unlimited, but if there are wine lovers among the invited, don't forget a case of red or white. For the piece de resistance and an easy dessert, carve a watermelon into a basket shape and fill it with chunks of fresh fruit in orange and lemon juice.

Activities before and after the meal for the sports-minded can include Frisbee relay races, softball and touch football.

Ms. Winfield also suggests a citronella candle for after sunset and handy wash-up packets for sticky hands. So, if you are among those who would prefer to stay close to home this Labor Day, pack a basket and savor summer's finale.

DEAR ABBY

Expert on domestic affairs

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever considered running for president? I'm serious. I think you'd be perfect for the job, and what's more, I'll bet you could win. Say the word and I'll make the first campaign contribution.—YOUR FAN IN NEVADA

DEAR FAN: Thanks for the compliment as well as the vote of confidence, but I don't know how my husband would feel about being the "first laddie."

DEAR ABBY: My finance and I are planning to be married in a few months. We found a perfect spot in the mountains where the ceremony could be held in clean air, under the trees, near a lovely stream. Both of us are lovers of nature and the outdoors.

When we tried to find a minister in the area, we were disappointed to learn that most of them were only vacationers and would be gone long before the wedding would take place. Then we heard about a forest ranger who has the legal right to perform marriage ceremonies, although he is not a minister. We contacted him and he agreed to perform the ceremony.

The trouble started when we took my mother and grandmother to meet this ranger. They were appalled to find that he had long hair and a beard. They also objected to the fact that he isn't a "real" minister.

Abby, it doesn't matter to us who performs the marriage ceremony as long as it's legal. (Neither of us is religious.) What is your opinion?—A HAPPY COUPLE

DEAR HAPPY: Have the long-haired ranger tie the knot and don't worry about what your mother and grandmother think. Perhaps you could remind them that Jesus Christ had long hair and a beard. DEAR ABBY: Have you any words of comfort or advice for a woman who is the same age as her husband but is often mistaken for his mother?

That is my problem. My husband always has been extremely young-looking for his age. He has a trim, athletic build, a full head of hair and a boyish grin.

I have always had a weight problem. (I'm about 50 pounds overweight.) My hair started to turn gray when I was in my late 20s, but friends tell me it's "becoming."

I have to dress matronly because they don't make smart, youthful clothes in my size.

When my husband is with our 19-year-old daughter, everyone thinks he is her "date." When he is with me, they think I'm his mother. What can I do besides feel sorry for myself?—LOOKS OLD

DEAR LOOKS: Enlist the help of Overeaters Anonymous, TOPS, Weight Watchers or your friendly family physician and get your figure down to where it should be! For every 20 pounds you lose, you will look 10 years younger! And quit apologizing for your "matronly" wardrobe. If you can't find smart, youthful styles in your size, MAKE some!

Now, about your hair, lady. Gray hair may be "becoming"—but it's not youthful. Don't wait until Monday to begin the self-improvement program. It's later than you think. Good luck.

Stuttering treatment is difficult

Copley News Service

Stuttering is a complex problem that responds to different treatments, but there is no easy answer. That's the assessment of Ellen Ora Shamasko, a speech pathologist who frequently treats those who stutter.

"Every person is different," she said in an interview, "and must be treated differently. This makes treatment difficult.

"Tension is one of the aspects that shows up in stuttering. The person anticipates and builds up anxiety that he or she is going to stutter.

"Physiologically, there is tension in the muscles of speech, the vocal cords, so the person has both physical and mental tension.

"So the most obvious way to treat a person is to find the cause of tension and get rid of it, but it isn't that easy."

Shamasko said some current theories on the treatment of stuttering, which affects nearly 3 million Americans, are new while others are old concepts newly revived.

"One of the newer methods is the use of biofeedback," she said. "In this, you can actually hook up the muscles of speech to a monitoring device.

"When a person speaks, he actually sees the baseline. Say it's 10. At the moment of stuttering, that number may jump up to 25, so the person, by watching the number, can recognize when tension begins and make attempts to relax his vocal muscles.

"Another method is the use of delayed auditory feedback, in which a person is hooked up to earphones and hears himself speak in a delayed manner.

"In this, as in biofeedback, the idea is for the person to relax or slow down his speech which will cut down on his stuttering."

She said older methods still in use are hypnosis, behavior modification, counseling "and just plain relaxation therapy."

"But in all these methods, there is the problem of carry-over," she continued. "It's not easy to maintain that progress that a person makes while under the various treatments."

Shamasko, who has a private practice in Escondido, Calif., cited three theories on what causes stuttering.

"One is that it's organic in origin. An actual neurological problem, possibly something wrong in the central processing area (of the brain)," she said.

"Then there is psychogenic — something intrinsically wrong with the psychological state of the person, as neuroses.

AT WIT'S END

Ohio outclassing Texas?

By ERMA BOMBECK

In the wake of the popularity of the TV series "Dallas" comes a new one this fall called "Texas." I watched the teaser for it the other night as it warned, "There's only one state big enough to hold all this passion! Texas!"

I don't like to make trouble among the states, but how do you think that makes the other 49 feel? Like a bride with a cold sore, that's how.

Frankly, I think it's a big mistake to single out one state as the Passion Capital of the world. Look what's happened to Dallas already...busloads of tourists converging on the city winking and tipping bellhops to send them a Ewing for a little action.

Or, if you're going to regionalize sin, let everyone have a shot at it. I was discussing this recently with a local TV programmer just to get a handle on his reaction.

"Assuming you're right," he said, "what state do you have in mind?"

"Look at history," I said. "Peyton Place already put New England on the map. Knots Landing has done for cul-de-sacs in the California suburbs what Mondays have done for dieters. Dallas bedrooms have made the country forget there's oil in the ground. Now it's the Midwest's turn. How about a sexy series called "CLEVELAND!"

My friend looked stunned for a moment.

"What's the matter with Cleveland?" I asked.

"Nothing, but it's so industrial. Besides, whenever I think of Cleveland, the only thing that comes to mind is William Howard Taft."

"That's because you don't know Cleveland," I said. "It's crawling with lust and passion."

"Do they have anything like the Dallas Cowboys?"

"No, but the Cuyahoga River catches fire in the summer."

"Does Ohio have a Broadway play about it called,

Your relatives will be asking you for the recipe for Apricot Fluff Pie.

Apricot Fluff Pie a pleasing dessert

Relatives are coming to dinner and you'll want to serve them Apricot Fluff Pie. This refreshing pie is a perfect finale to most dinner menus and can be served with confidence.

A crunchy crust made with 100 percent natural cereal, brown sugar and butter is baked and allowed to cool. Convenient 100 percent natural cereal saves time and energy while providing delicious ingredients of whole-grain oats, whole wheat, almonds, coconut, honey and brown sugar.

The light filling of canned apricots, unflavored gelatin, apricot yogurt, honey and whipped cream provides a smooth, creamy contrast to the crunchy crust. The filling is chilled several hours or until firm. The filling ingredients can be purchased any time of the year, making this a year round pie.

APRICOT FLUFF PIE

CRUST:

1 1/2 cups finely crushed 100 percent natural cereal
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted

FILLING:

1 16 oz. can apricot halves
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 8 oz. cartons (2 cups) apricot yogurt
1/4 cup honey
1/8 tsp. salt
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

For crust, combine all ingredients; mix well. Press onto bottom and sides of greased 9-inch pie plate. Bake at 350 for 8 to 10 minutes or until golden brown. Press bottom and sides of crust into place with spoon while still warm, if necessary. Cool.

For filling, drain apricots, reserving 1/2 cup liquid. Soften gelatin in reserved liquid; dissolve over low heat. Cool. Combine apricots, yogurt, honey and salt in blender container; blend 2 to 3 seconds or until apricots are chopped. Add dissolved gelatin blend about 5 seconds. Pour mixture into large mixing bowl; chill 20 to 25 minutes or until slightly thickened.

Fold in whipped cream; spoon into prepared crust. Chill several hours or until firm. Makes 9-inch pie.

Copley News Service

Connoisseurs have rarely fawned and gurgled over Sebastiani wines.

I can't recall such excitement over a Sebastiani wine that it sold out days after release, as happens so often with some of the smaller, more prestigious houses of California.

To be sure, Sebastiani wines have always been well made, well-priced and some have been bargains. I recall fondly buying cases of 1973 Sebastiani Zinfandel at $1.99 a bottle.

But the offerings of this old Sonoma County, family-run operation rarely had staying power or the complexity, and even Sam Sebastiani now admits that they've made "some pretty mediocre wines."

Thus a 1976 Pinot Noir I had was an eye-opener, since I felt it had potential to become elegant and complex.

This sort of thing doesn't happen overnight, and it rarely happens by accident. So I called Sam to ask about this wine, and to find out if he was planning any more surprises. He is, and they sound exciting.

"My concept is, we won't survive if we continue this way, making middle-of-the-road wines," said Sam quite honestly. "But my father and I realized that it was going to take time to make the changeover."

I asked why, all of a sudden it seemed, Sebastiani was taking this step. Sam had a logical answer: "My father had the feeling that first we had to develop a profitable organization. Then we could go ahead and be an artist. This winery in Sonoma is designed as a premium winery, and we haven't done this all of a sudden. It began five years ago."

The changes are showing now because the wines are noticeably better.

His father, August Sebastiani, died earlier this year, but it was August who actually began this change over to smaller production when, in 1975, he began experimenting with the difficult Pinot Noir grape.

"We've felt that to make a good Pinot Noir you needed a reduction in the volume of the liquid that is fermented with the same amount of skins. So we took all the free-run juice from the crush, which is about 110 gallons per ton of grapes, and made that into a white wine," Sebastiani calls that white Pinot Noir "Eye of the Swan."

"The remaining juice, about 60 gallons per ton, was then fermented with all the skins and a portion of the stems. My father made the '75, but it missed and we never released it. The '76 turned out pretty well."

Other changes at Sebastiani include a reduction in the number of tons crushed. "We crushed 9,700 tons in 1979 here in Sonoma, but this year we'll crush just 6,600 tons. The rest will be our 'Mountain' wines, and they'll be made for us in the San Joaquin Valley," he said. This leaves time in the Sonoma facility to handle each lot of grapes with more care.

Another change: "We are eliminating all non-vintage varietals." In the past, folks could buy non-vintage Cabernet Sauvignon, which doesn't give the buyer much of a clue about when the wine is ready to drink.

Another change: "Within the next year, we will begin designating the vineyard on the label, and keeping various lots separate from one another. We want to be recognized for our quality."

In addition, Sebastiani recently spent more than $300,000 for such equipment as a new corker and a new filler - equipment that will insure that no air gets inside the bottle during filling.

Horseradish business causes teary eyes

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Clayton Hofffield's work has brought tears to his eyes nearly every day for more than 45 years.

Hofffield is the owner and sole full-time employee of the Hofffield Supreme Horseradish Co., a business he inherited from his entrepreneur father during the Depression.

"I've been in this racket since '34," Hofffield said as he pared and chopped the pungent root. "We got horseradish, horseradish and relish, and horseradish and beets."

While pushing bits of horseradish into a grinder at his shop in the city's market district, Hofffield broke into tears.

"This doggone stuff is really strong," he said. "But, it's smooth, you know. It's smooth and it goes up your nostrils. It doesn't burn your tongue."

Hofffield claims to have a taste for the stuff himself, and offered a reluctant visitor a horseradish sandwich.

"We have four or five bottles open all the time," he said. "You can put it on eggs or fish, beef, anything you want. It won't harm it."

Hofffield's product is pure ground root with only a splash of distilled vinegar. One taste clears the nostrils in a flash.

"There's a lot of competition. There's a lot of horseradish on the market," he said. "But most aren't pure. Mine is regular pure horseradish, you understand. There's no chemicals in it."

But because there are no preservatives added, Hofffield's horseradish has a short life. He figures it will hold its strength about two weeks. After that, it turns black from the top of the bottle down.

Hofffield won't say how much horseradish he makes. But the company, which once employed four others, now employs only Hofffield. And he has to sell other food products with the horseradish to make ends meet.

"Naturally it's down. We don't put out as much as we used to do years ago," he said. "My gosh, we'd buy 100 sacks of horseradish at a time. We don't do that anymore."

One Pittsburgh restaurant no longer in existence often would buy up to 20 gallons of horseradish a day from his father, Hofffield said.

But the corporate food giants have outpriced Hofffield, who now sells mainly to specialty shops and restaurants within a few miles of downtown. He said a small jar of his product sells for $1.25, while others that won't perish so quickly are priced about 50 cents lower.

"It's an altogether different product. We buy the best roots. I never ask the price," he said. "But I don't worry about it. I figure I got enough customers. I got customers who are willing to pay it."

Cold soup Bordelais is good start for patio picnic

By TOM HOGE
AP Food and Wine Writer

From the apartment terraces of Manhattan to the shore-front cottages of Cape Cod, thousands of persons who normally avoid entertaining are paying off social debts with patio picnics that require little effort and don't cost too much.

Most salads and cold dishes are easy to prepare and, with a little imagination, can be turned into a memorable meal.

One of the simplest hot weather spreads I know of starts off with a chilled but filling soup. Follow this up with generous chunks of gruyere, cheddar or any cheese you like, accompanied by crusty French bread. Wash this down with a well chilled white wine such as the dry Graves from Bordeaux.

Cheese is usually served with a robust red wine, but in summer a tangy white gives it a refreshing lightness. For garnishing serve garden-fresh cherry tomatoes, radishes and scallions.

With this sort of fare and a big enough yard, you can entertain from four to 40 guests without straining your back or your pocketbook.

The centerpiece of this meal is Soupe Bordelais, which can be served hot in the winter and cold in the summer. It is a sort of cross between gazpacho and minestrone and originated in a region near France's Bordeaux wine country.

Whether you are serving a brunch or a banquet, there's no sense in loading your guests down with heavy, hot dishes that leave them wilted.

Your patio spread should wind up with a refreshing dessert, such as a bowl brimming with chilled fresh fruits cut up and sprinkled with a little sugar in case they are too tart. If you want to give your dessert a gourmet touch, add a few drops of Curaçao liqueur.

Here's the recipe for Soupe Bordelais.

SOUPE BORDELAIS

- 2 slices bacon
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 medium onion peeled
- 1 leek
- 2 stalks celery
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/2 cup Medoc wine
- 4 tomatoes, diced
- 1 medium can chicken stock
- 1 cup chick peas
- 1 cup red kidney beans

1 cup mushrooms, preferably fresh

Mince bacon, garlic, onion, leek and celery. Sauté in oil several minutes. Add Medoc and stir till liquid has simmered down. Add diced tomatoes and simmer five more minutes. Add chicken stock, chick peas and kidney beans. Simmer 90 minutes. Add mushrooms 10 minutes before removing from heat. Chill well. Can be prepared several days ahead of time. Serves 4.

Film dispute delays anti-draft trial

AUSTIN (AP) — The trial of four men accused of blocking the main post office in Austin on the first day of draft registration has been postponed until Sept. 2 because of a lawyers' controversy over videotapes from KTBC-TV.

Defense lawyer Malcolm Greenstein subpoenaed tapes that KTBC made of the anti-draft demonstration on July 21. He said the defendants wanted to use as evidence material the TV station did not broadcast.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Equal time for tots

DEAR HELOISE:

It's important to us as a family to spend time with each of our children, individually.

If we depend on school functions, it can get a little lopsided, as some of the children are more active than others.

Now we give each child one night to call his very own. The others stay home.

The child can plan anything which pleases him or her (within reason, I might add). Usually it entails going out to eat at a restaurant of his or her choice, and to a movie, bowling, or whatever, with Mother and Dad. One time we spent the entire evening in a train hobby shop.

They really appreciate this and spend weeks planning the details of "their night," so we know it means a lot.

They are able to talk without interruption, and have our undivided attention. You'd be surprised at what you can learn at one of these outings! They will discuss things while we are alone that they never would talk about at home for fear of the other kids' reaction.

Sometimes it can get a little expensive, but when we stop to think of what a short time they are with us, it's worth the sacrifice.

Of course, it depends on how many children a family has. We take each of our four children out only about once a year.

It's really made us closer to our children, and them to us. Besides, now when Dad and I want a night out by ourselves, they don't complain because they know their night is coming. — Jane Terry

DEAR HELOISE: My mother left me many handmade dollies — over a hundred!

Instead of putting them away, I use them between my good serving dishes — plates, bowls, etc. Some of these dishes were handed down from her too.

The heavy dollies are good buffers and help prevent nicks and scratches.

Now I have a constant reminder of her labors of love and generosity, as I use these dishes when I have guests. — Marge

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE: I'm a retired man, but I do a lot of cooking as my wife still works out.

DEAR HELOISE: I'm going to tell you something that I recently discovered. You may already know about it, but I have to tell you anyway.

It was quite by accident that I found out what a good scrubber crumpled up aluminum foil makes.

Those burned, sticky cast iron skillets, as well as stainless steel pans, come out clean.

This is a good way to recycle, too, as I just grab a piece of used foil when I need to scrub a stubborn pan. — Dorothy

Cookies make a great after-school snack

How lucky are the children whose mother, grandmother or other fond relative bakes a variety of cookies to go with milk. It's a wonderful after-school snack, or in a pinch, a great dessert for the whole family.

If all three varieties of cookies can be made, they add up to 12 dozen except for the few that may get sampled as preparation proceeds. Of course, they don't all have to be made in a day. Baking can stretch out over two or even three days, but it will give a supply that's truly a bonanza. Since butter is used in each recipe, the cookies will mellow and improve in flavor.

Chocolate is always a favorite, so these drop cookies of chocolate dough, frosted with a vanilla confectioners' sugar icing, are guaranteed to be a hit. Cool cookies completely so that frosting adheres to them.

Almond is a favorite flavor with butter in these crisp cookies made in an unusual way. First they're rolled into small balls, dipped in granulated sugar and placed on the cookie sheet. If you have a ceramic cookie stamp, dip that in sugar and "stamp" each ball to flatten and make a pretty design on it. Or, if you have no stamp, just flatten the balls with the tines of a fork.

No collection of cookies that go best with milk would be complete without peanut butter. Made with butter and peanut butter, brown sugar and oats, Peanut Butter Balls are nutritious, delicious and require no baking! They look attractive rolled in coconut.

CHOCOLATE DROP COOKIES

Cookies
1 cup (1 1/2 sticks) butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda

Combine flour, baking soda and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Blend in chocolate. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls onto unbuttered cookie sheets. Bake 12 to 15 minutes. Remove to wire rack to cool.

Sex survey gives astounding results

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten percent of the women who responded to a Cosmopolitan magazine questionnaire said they had engaged in incest, and 47 percent of those said the incident involved a brother.

Thirty-one percent of those who said they had committed incest said the partner had been their father, and 22 percent said it had been an uncle, according to the survey of about 106,000 female readers.

The questionnaire on sex and sexuality appeared in the magazine's January issue. The results, to be printed in the September issue, were released Tuesday.

Of those polled, 40 percent said they were using birth control pills, despite charges the pills are unsafe. Nearly half of those were in the 18-to-24 age group.

Twenty percent of the women said they were not using any type of birth control and 25 percent said they had had an abortion.

The highest percentage of those not using any birth control were older than 30. The largest group that reported having had abortions — nearly 34 percent — were in the 25-to-29 age group, the survey said. Those having the fewest abortions — 12 percent — were younger than 18.

The survey also found that: —Some 62.1 percent of respondents younger than 18 said they had sex before they were 16. Twenty-five percent of the 18-to-24 age group said they had sex before age 16; 15.4 percent in the 25-to-29 group; 15.1 percent in the 30-to-34 group; and 14.6 percent of those 35 or older.

—Half the married women reported having had an extra-marital affair, with 42 percent of those saying it had no effect on their marriage, 34 percent saying it helped, and 25 percent saying it was harmful.

Cookies and glasses of milk solve the after-school snack problem.

Americans not using products' coupons

Copley News Service

Almost everyone will occasionally break down and clip a coupon out of the local newspaper in order to get a discount on a particular product.

Some families are slightly more organized and will clip and use a dozen or so coupons a week. But of the 70 million coupons issued in 1978, collectively worth over $500 million, more than 60 billion were never redeemed.

Despite rising food prices and increased interest in smart shopping, Americans retain some psychological disinclination to use coupons. Perhaps it is the image of the slightly dizzy shopper at the head of the line with a handful of clippings that scares us off. Or perhaps some shoppers think the store owners dislike coupon clippers. Neither of these scenarios is necessarily accurate.

One popular writer and occasional talk-show guest contends that she regularly cuts her weekly food bills by 50 percent, and has, on occasion, cut as much as 80 percent off of her bill by using coupons in a systematic fashion.

If you are organized, there is no reason why you should worry about your image in the grocery line. And don't ever think that store owners aren't glad to get coupons. For one thing, coupons will often bring new customers into the store. Perhaps more importantly, manufacturers pay the stores a substantial amount of money in handling fees for the coupons, as much as $150 million in 1978, because coupons are an important way to introduce new products. So store owners make out very well in all coupon transactions.

The first thing the novice coupon clipper must know is how to acquire a steady supply of coupons. Well, the first place to start is in the store itself, where coupons can be found in the products you buy or between aisles. Another important source is, of course, the local newspaper, but national magazines are often overlooked as a source.

Almost all national magazines, particularly the "home" type magazines, carry coupons each month. You can assure yourself of a regular supply of coupons by subscribing to a few of these magazines, or you can trade magazines with friends. For that matter, you can work out trade arrangements with friends for the coupons.

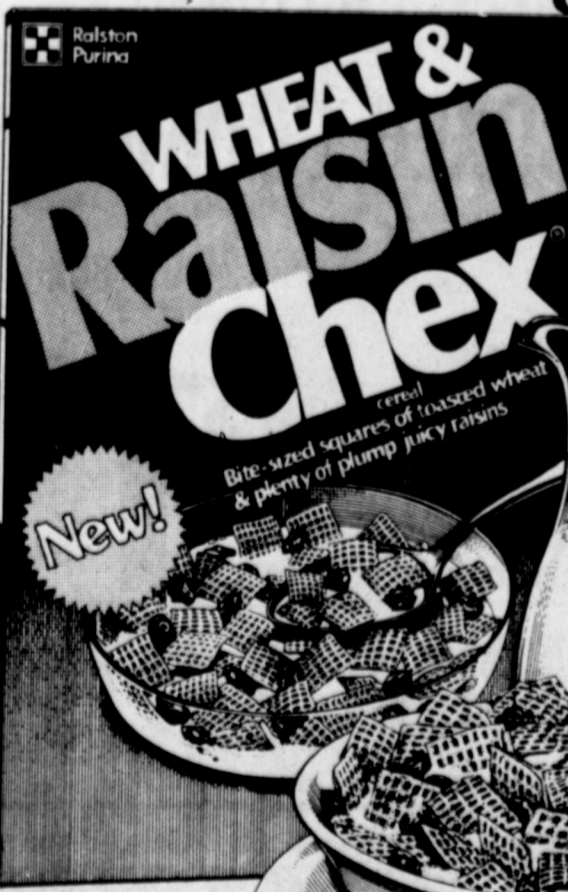

For example, you save coupons for meat while your neighbor, a vegetarian, saves coupons for pet food for her cat, and you can periodically trade these. Doctors' and dentists' offices are another source of magazine coupons that will otherwise be thrown away.

The next thing you must do is to work out a filing system. Any logical system will do, the simpler, the better. Just put your coupons in a series of envelopes marked with such broad titles as meat, cleansers, canned goods, paper goods, etc. This allows you to quickly find coupons for the items you know you will be shopping for that day. But be careful to make sure you don't allow the coupons to expire.

Coupons can be great bargains for the smart shopper. And for even smarter shoppers, there are promotional gimmicks called "doubles," whereby a store will double the value of any coupon you have just to get you in the store. This is where big savings are possible, so keep an eye out for such rare occurrences.

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE Spying proves two-way street

By MAUREEN SANTINI

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Carter addressed the American Federation of Teachers in Detroit last week, he was greeted with a story with a moral by Albert Shanker, head of the union which is affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

It seems there is a window in the office of the AFL-CIO president in the District of Columbia that "looks down at the White House."

Shanker quoted the late union president, George Meany, as saying that vantage point was necessary because "whoever represents workers always has to keep one eye on what's going on down there."

Carter, who has had his share of criticisms from the union, said he was aware of the lofty window. "There have been a few times when White House binoculars were trained on that window as well," he added wryly.

THE CARTER administration now has its version of an erased tape. But unlike the Nixon administration's famous 18½-minute gap, this time there's no question who did it.

White House press secretary Jody Powell held a news briefing in his office last week, and one reporter inadvertently left his tape recorder behind.

A couple of hours later, the reporter returned to retrieve the machine and learned Powell had discovered it during a private conversation with another White House official. The press secretary, not leaving anything to chance, took it upon himself to erase the tape.

FRANK MOORE, the White House liaison with Congress, missed President Carter's trip to Boston last week because of an embarrassing mishap.

Shortly before the president was scheduled to leave the White House, the hefty Moore was sitting in a car talking to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, who was traveling with the president.

As he got out of the car to board the president's helicopter, Moore ripped his pants. He turned around to let O'Neill survey the damage and was advised it was pretty serious. So Moore grabbed an aide and said: "Get on the helicopter." The surprised aide obliged.

POWELL RECENTLY was reminded that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Carter's defeated rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, was involved in the ill-fated swine flu program several years ago. Someone asked why Powell hadn't made an issue of it.

"We decided not to raise it during the primary campaign, so there's no reason to raise it now," he said. With a glint in his eye, he added, "But if you know of any connection with Reagan..."

THE PRESS SECRETARY also has let it be known that he's tired of being second-guessed about how the White House treats Kennedy. He said reporters should stop thinking that they know how to handle the situation better, and proposed a deal.

"You don't try to do our job and we won't try to do you-alls — anymore than we already do."

Hondo finally may get federal handout

HONDO, Texas (AP) — Although this South Texas city's unemployment rate continues at a low 3 per cent, maverick Mayor Woody Glascock says it may finally qualify for some federal funds.

Glascock drew national headlines and received thousands of letters and telephone calls in June 1977 when he wrote President Carter asking that bonafide hardcore loafers be sent to this South Texas town to qualify it for federal funding.

"I want a list of people who won't work under any circumstances," Glascock told the president. "I intend to write them letters to move here in sufficient quantities to enable us to qualify for some of your programs."

Glascock wrote the tongue-in-cheek letter when the Department of Health, Education and Welfare refused to help the city build a $1 million civic center, although he said Medina County has one of the lowest per capita income levels in Texas and could not afford to approve a bond issue.

"I got a letter back from the assistant secretary to the undersecretary of HEW. It said that the City of Hondo was 'not of sufficient quotient to merit counter-cyclical stimuli,'" laughs Glascock.

Three years later, Glascock reports that four people eventually did come to Hondo looking for work in response to the letter and "they've all got jobs. The longest anyone was unemployed was nine days."

His letter was meant as sophisticated humor to criticize the government's pumping of millions of dollars in funds to areas with high unemployment while ignoring the needs of low income towns with low unemployment. But Glascock said it touched off a tremendous response, some of it from people serious about the matter.

"I got more than 2,000 letters and another 2,000 phone calls. Some of the letters were absolutely hysterical. All of them were in favor of it. One lady said, 'if you'll just feed my son, I'll pay the bus ticket down there.' He (son) was 26 and never worked."

"A bunch of people were serious. All I had to do was tell them to come on and I'd of had 'em standing up to my ankles."

The notoriety that Glascock received from the letter caused him to run for Congress on the Democratic ticket in 1978 and he came within 389 votes of winning the Democratic nomination in a race against better known former State Sen. Nelson Wolff of San Antonio.

But Republican Rep. Tom Loeffler defeated Wolff in the general election and now Glascock says he approves of the job Loeffler is doing for the sprawling 21st District.

"I ran on the Democratic ticket, but I'll vote for whoever will use their head," the maverick mayor says. "I'm not going to vote for Carter."

Today, Glascock's battle with the federal government goes on, with him claiming the census count of 5,883 is below what it should be, costing the city federal revenue sharing funds. He charges people with post office boxes were not counted. "If I hadn't gone down and got a form myself, I wouldn't have been counted," he said.

Belgium denies trying to sell planes to Taiwan

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Belgian government Wednesday denied published reports that it is trying to sell 60 of its 72 F-104G Starfighter war-planes to Taiwan.

A Belgian government spokesman confirmed that the fighter-bombers were for sale but said Belgium was not negotiating with Taiwan, as reported in the U.S. magazine Aviation Week. Belgium has no diplomatic relations with Taiwan.

The F-104Gs are being sold to make room for 116 F-16 fighters Belgium will bring into service in the next few years.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Pot adds problems

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have used marijuana for about three years while a college student, with no ill effects. However, a few years ago a roommate of mine became quite agitated while using marijuana, and it took some time before he could be calmed. Was this experience the exception that proves the rule, or are people who use marijuana more susceptible to emotional or mental problems? — Keith.

Dear Keith: While marijuana users often say they experience feelings of euphoria and relaxation, some do react badly to the drug. Acute anxiety attacks accompanied by feelings of persecution have been reported, with more than 10,000 emergency room visits resulting from marijuana use listed during 1978. Usually these anxiety reactions are limited to novice users.

Although marijuana is not believed to have a direct cause-and-effect relationship with mental or psychological problems, it does appear to aggravate existing disorders. For example, individuals who are depressed or who suffer from other emotional difficulties often find their symptoms are aggravated when they use the drug. On another level, marijuana use can adversely affect thinking, reading comprehension and verbal and arithmetic skills.

However, some researchers suggest that by providing a temporary escape from reality, marijuana keeps young people from becoming responsible adults. A person who avoids making decisions and never establishes a value system of his or her own cannot learn to become a mature, independent individual.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Although I am only 40 years of age and happily married, I am beginning to find it increasingly difficult to perform sexually. I hesitate going to my doctor because physicians seem to believe that any sexual problem is all in the mind. What would you advise? — Ernie.

Dear Ernie: I would advise you not to assume that all physicians attribute sexual difficulties to psychological problems. While impotence may have an emotional component, I have found that in many of my patients it also can stem from physical causes.

Dr. Richard L. Spark of the Harvard Medical School shares this opinion and maintains that as many as one-third of men whose impotence is believed to be due to emotional causes actually have a physical problem, such as a glandular disorder. It may be the inability to perform sexually that is causing the depression, rather than the reverse. If your doctor is unable to be helpful in this situation, ask for a referral to an endocrinologist.

Dear Dr. Solomon: The hospitals in the community in which I live now sponsor hospice programs. Have other sections of the country shown a similar interest in this movement? — Sue.

Dear Sue: Since hospices were introduced in the United States six years ago, more than 200 have been established. Most of these are hospital-based, and each offers some type of specialized care for terminally ill patients.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Hodding Carter readies for media watchdog role

By KEN O'QUINN

CAMDEN, Maine (AP) — Hodding Carter III, the former State Department spokesman who is to become a media watchdog, already has some ideas about what's wrong with journalism.

"There's so much concentration in getting today's story," he says, rather than "trying to help people understand where the government is taking us."

"We've got to watch the cops-and-robbers approach to every story," he said.

Carter, who appeared daily on television news shows during the Iranian crisis before he resigned, is preparing to become anchorman of a public television series, "Inside Story," that will examine the performance of the newspapers and broadcast news operations. The show is to go on the air next year.

Carter, 45, no relation to President Carter, left the State Department when Edmund Muskie became secretary of state. Muskie replaced Cyrus Vance, who resigned in protest of April's aborted U.S. mission to rescue the American hostages in Iran.

Carter recently purchased a 23-room home overlooking Penobscot Bay. He has been playing tennis and hiking, meeting with old friends and planning a course on U.S. foreign policy he will teach this fall at American University in Washington.

Carter also knows journalism from the inside, having served as editor of a newspaper in Mississippi.

Because journalism is so important, Carter said in a recent interview, "it shouldn't be content to settle for average or mediocre work, nor should it be exempt" from public scrutiny.

"Newspapers and television make profits that are huge," Carter said. "You put that against the argument that they can't afford anymore than a half-hour (television) news program, and it makes you want to puke."

Carter was admired by some Washington reporters for admitting if he did not know something, if he did not want to answer a question or if he could not elaborate on an answer.

Midland to participate in WTCC Industrial Tour

Midland will be included when 45 representatives of West Texas cities participate in the 1980 West Texas Chamber of Commerce Industrial Tour Sept. 2-5. The group will visit Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh and explain to local industrialists the advantages of locating plants in West Texas.

Attending from Midland will be H. Eugene Abbott, president of ABCO Development Co.; Grant A. Billingsley, manager of economic development with the Chamber of Commerce; and Douglas B. Henson, vice president of economic development with The First National Bank of Midland.

On Sept. 3 participants will host Detroit area prospects for a reception and luncheon. They will go to Cleveland on Sept. 4. The final reception and luncheon will be Sept. 5 in Pittsburgh.

The group will make individual calls to industries on behalf of local communities during some free time.

Master of ceremonies for the luncheons will be R.H. "Bob" Brummal of Lubbock who chairs the regional chamber's private enterprise development committee. He also is serving as tour chairman.

Other towns participating in the tour are Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Bedford, Big Spring, Brownfield, Crosbyton, El Paso, Euless, Fort Worth, Lubbock, Mineral Wells, Munday/Odessa, San Angelo, Waco, Weatherford and Wichita Falls.

Evening TV Schedule

Eight Families

Andrew Duggan and Barbara Barrie star as Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mamie in the last evening of a 10-part miniseries, "Backstairs at the White House," that looks at eight first families through the experiences of the servants who worked there for 52 years, on Thursday, Aug. 28, on NBC, Channel 2.

In 1953, the servants see the relaxed, informal Truman, replaced by Eisenhower and his wife, who seems determined to turn the White House into a Pink House, as she orders the color used for everything.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Change in lifestyle could improve self-image. Verbal promises of support may be forgotten. Grin and bear it! Solo efforts can be very rewarding for artists, musicians.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Unexpected circumstances could slow down some activities. Patience and tact are your strongest allies. Keep aims within practical guidelines, or work efforts could suffer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Expect a banner day where work or career matters are concerned. Dealings with people at a distance are favored. Candid talk with family members will aid domestic harmony.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep a careful eye on spending. Comparison shopping will help reduce expenses. Utilize special talents to make extra income at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Use tact in handling delicate work problems. Higher-ups may make extra demands on your time, increasing your work load.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Ticklish situations require a logical approach. Postpone travel plans for weekend. Last-minute developments make staying home more attractive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid all forms of speculation and gambling. Insist on others paying their own way. Your social life may take a strange twist tonight, but it will probably be both enjoyable and fascinating.

would permit him to accomplish that!

Take a look at what would happen if, on the ace of clubs, declarer discarded a heart instead of ruffing! West still has the lead, so the king of spades is safe from attack. Now West must cash his ace of spades or declarer will make an overtrick.

Suppose that West simply continues with a club. Declarer ruffs in his hand, draws the trumps, then cashes the ace and king of hearts and ruffs a heart. When the queen of hearts drops, declarer has the rest of the tricks. But even if hearts are 4-1, the contract is safe. Declarer can get back to dummy twice more with trumps to ruff out the heart.

and then take a spade sluff on the last heart. Thus, declarer can lose no more than one trick in each black suit.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. 'Middle Age Crazy' modern morality play

By the Associated Press

MIDDLE AGE CRAZY is based on the Sonny Throckmorton song about a man "40 years old, going on 20." He's Bruce Dern, a successful Houston contractor with a wife who pumps up their sex life to keep him satisfied. But that isn't enough. His concern over aging prompts him to trade in his Olds for a Porsche and to have a fling with a Dallas cheerleader. Director John Trent and writer Carl Kleinschmitt have done a slick job of concocting a bitter comedy that is in reality a modern morality play. After experiencing the fleshy pleasures, the husband realizes that his old life wasn't so bad after all. Bruce Dern gives the best performance of his career, and Ann-Margret is ideal as his perplexed wife. The film's only drawback is an uneven tone, perhaps because locations were shot in Houston and interiors in Canada under tax-shelter financing. The rating is R, with strong language, a nude gogo dancer and pervasive sexual themes.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:
 G — General audiences. All ages admitted.
 PG — Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
 R — Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
 X — No one under 17 admitted. Some states may have higher age limits.

Fort Worth may vote on movies

FORT WORTH (AP) — Fort Worth residents may get a chance to go to the polls to decide if the city's cable television franchise winner will be permitted to show R-rated movies.

Mayor Pro Tem Dick Newkirk said he is considering asking the city council to hold a special election to determine Actress Brooke Shields and actor Christopher Atkins smile as they arrived for the premier of "The Blue Lagoon" recently in Los Angeles. Shields and Atkins play two children, who shipwrecked on a paradise island, survive and grow up together untouched by any other influence. (AP Laserphoto)

Flowers, dried foods highlight hikers' days

NEW YORK (AP) — When Michael Cogswell finishes a 2,100-mile trek along the Appalachian Trail — making meals, drinking spring water, hiking as far as 28 miles a day — he intends to start first grade.

Michael, 6, is halfway to becoming the youngest person ever to walk the entire trail, from Maine to Georgia.

His mother and stepfather, Reina and Jeff Cogswell, are also looking beyond their Appalachian journey: they hope for a lifetime of romantic adventures.

Jeff Cogswell is 33, a beefy former yacht deliverer whose mustache serves as a lid for a broad smile. He says he's always had a penchant for adventure — bicycling cross-country, floating on a flatboat down the Mississippi, crossing the Pacific on a Polynesian canoe without food, water or navigational aids.

He settled down to deliver yachts last year, and met Reina, 23, a cashier at a Miami sandwich shop. They married a month later.

"Everybody wants to meet someone and fall in love and live happily ever after," said Cogswell. "I had met a lot of girls, but none who would want to pick up and just seek adventure."

Reina is different. "I like the idea of escaping from the hustle and bustle and the crime, and going out and doing things. And this way, we can all be together as a family all the time," she said.

They sold everything they owned — their car, their home in Miami, all their belongings — and set out on the trail April 1.

The Cogswells are making their journey in two parts. First, they hiked from the trail's southern terminus to its midpoint in Harper's Ferry, W.Va., arriving there Aug. 10.

To avoid New England's capricious autumn weather, they plan to drive to Maine in a van, then hike the rest of the trail south to Harper's Ferry, arriving at Thanksgiving.

The hike, they said, was to be a tune-up for other adventures. The question was whether to take Michael, Reina's son by a previous marriage, or send him to stay with his grandmother in California.

Michael made the decision: he wanted to go. Officials for the Appalachian Trail Conference say they believe the youngest "through-hiker" (one who hikes the whole trail) to have made the journey in one trip so far was 12.

"One day," said Cogswell, "Reina asked me how to spell 'relief.' Before I could say anything, Michael said, 'R-O-L-A-I-D-S.' I couldn't find a rope to string him up with, so I decided to take him along, where there would be no more TV."

"At first, I didn't know if Michael would be able to do it or not. I fully expected to have to send him home after a week," he said.

And at first, Michael did have his problems. He tired easily and fell a lot — "584 times so far," said his mother. "We've been counting."

But then, Cogswell said, came a "transformation." The 40-pound, blond youngster now carries his 8½-pound pack without a whimper. He's learned the names of 20 wildflowers and how to cook the dehydrated camp meals. He says he likes watching the "Peter Cottontail" rabbits, but still misses television.

One day, in the Smoky Mountains, Cogswell heard his son screaming so loud he thought "he'd been bitten by a snake or caught by a bear. He wouldn't stop screaming, and I thought about what you see in the movies and I slapped him. It worked."

Michael pointed in the direction of "big black thing." It was the first wild boar he'd ever seen.

"It scared me half to death," said the boy.

For only the third time in his life, Michael saw snow and threw snowballs. He slept in a firehouse-hostel in Waynesboro, Va., and climbed on the trucks, quite an occasion for a boy who wants to be a fireman when he grows up.

He lost a baby tooth along the trail, and the "tooth fairy" put a toy truck and two quarters under his sleeping bag.

"Even the Easter Bunny found him along the trail," Cogswell said.

A similar election was held at Mesquite. Residents of the Dallas suburb turned out in record numbers to reject a proposed ban on R-rated movies. That election involved a hard-fought campaign between groups in favor of the R-rated movies and a church-oriented group opposed to them.

Newkirk made the remark about a possible special election after Morgan Woodruff presented the council with a petition bearing the signatures of 212 persons who want the R-rated movies banned. It was the second such petition presented to city officials.

Woodruff, who contended the movies are "indecent," said such a special election would be the "most forthright solution" to the issue.

Rejecting arguments that the city should not attempt to legislate morality, Woodruff said, "R-rated movies are no more than corruption."

'The Year of the Hopi' currently on display at Museum of Southwest

"The Year of the Hopi" exhibition, featuring works by Joseph Mora, is currently on display through Sept. 21 at the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave.

In 1903, Mora, armed with the first of the Kodak box cameras and intrigued by tales he had heard of Hopi Indians, who danced with snakes in their mouths, journeyed to the southwestern part of the United States to witness first hand this remarkable dance. His photographs and watercolors, executed over a period of three years which chronicle the Hopi ceremonial year cycle, are being circulated by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

This year marks the 300th anniversary of the Pueblo Revolt in 1680 when the Pueblo tribes, including the Hopi, overthrew Spanish domination and regained control of their lands.

Accompanying the 67 photographs are Mora's watercolors of kachina dancers, highlighted with comments from Mora's notes.

The museum is open day and 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. No admission is charged.

Artists to get benefits

AUSTIN — The Texas Fine Arts Association announces a comprehensive group medical benefits program for artists and for employees of organizations which serve artists.

The program was developed with partial funding from the National Endowment for the Arts. It is the only such plan to allow the individual artist the benefits of group medical coverage at group rates. It is a nonprofit plan established under the guidelines of the Employer Retirement and Income Security Act.

Corporate Trustee for the plan is Austin National Bank and the plan administrator is Hallmark Administration, Inc. of Austin. More information is available from TFAA by writing P.O. Box 5023, Austin, 78763, or by calling 1-512-453-5312.

U.S. Open reads like sick bay list

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Bjorn Borg is running down tennis balls on a suspect knee. John McEnroe is hobbling around on an injured ankle and hitting his two-fisted backhand with a lame wrist. Jimmy Connors continues to fret with an ailing thumb.

Guillermo Vilas and France's promising Yannick Noah both were horsed out of Wimbledon, Vilas because of an appendectomy. Harold Solomon is coming off a foot operation and Gene Mayer repelled a hamstring and defaulted his first-round match.

These are the men's "Who's Who" in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships now in progress at Flushing Meadow. But the rash of afflictions besetting top players is not strictly confined to the male sex. Look at the women's division.

Billie Jean King, the 36-year-old marm who dominated her field for a generation and who made a strong stab for a seventh ladies' singles title at Wimbledon, has a nagging, debilitating virus that has kept her out of the singles competition. Martina Navratilova had to default in the recent Canadian Open. Back trouble.

Wimbledon winner Evonne Goolagong, winning from a chronic back ailment, chose not even to show at Flushing Meadow. She rushed home to Hilton Head, S.C. Pam Shriver is just storming back after months of worrying about a sore shoulder affecting her use of that giant-sized racket.

GREER Stevens has both a bad ankle and a bad knee. Sue Barker, Virginia Ruzici and Regina Marsikova all have been hobbled by one pesky injury or another during the season.

What goes on here? Tennis is supposed to be a polite, gentlemanly sport as harmless as a social game of croquet on an English lawn — actually the source of the game's birth back in the late 1800s. There is no bodily contact as in football. You can't get cut by the flying spikes of a base stealer as in baseball. There is none of the violence you see in boxing and wrestling.

Yet the dressing rooms at Wimbledon and Flushing Meadow have the appearances of a Red Cross disaster center.

Are modern athletes going soft? Are tennis players of the 1980s more fragile as well as being more financially secure than their predecessors of the 1920s or even 1960s when a lady's backache or a guy's bum knee never got more attention than the effectiveness of their volley or smash?

IT WAS a cause celebre when the stone-faced Helen Wills Moody, down 0-3 in the final set of their U.S. ladies' final at Forest Hills in 1933, picked up her sweater and rackets, strode to the umpire's chair and politely said she didn't plan to continue.

Until this day, nobody knows why. Borg and Navratilova, rated the world's best in their divisions, both defaulted in the Canadian Open earlier this month. McEnroe and Connors

Texas' Jones, Tate sidelined Wednesday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Running back A.J. "Jam" Jones joined Rodney Tate on the sidelines Wednesday, but the University of Texas coach expects both players back in time for the Longhorns' opener with Arkansas.

Tate has been out almost a week with an ankle sprain, and Jones left practice Wednesday with a tight thigh, coach Fred Akers said.

"We don't think A.J.'s injury is severe, it was a precautionary move more than anything," Akers said. "Both A.J. and Tate should be back at practice Thursday."

Akers said the Wednesday workout was rough, leaving "a little to be desired."

"We will have to pick things up the rest of the way," he added. "We just don't have enough concentration."

Bills face Oilers tonight seeking first indoor win

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

HOUSTON (AP) — The Buffalo Bills come to the wide open spaces of Texas tonight to prove that they can win football games in the enclosed environment of the Astrodome against the Houston Oilers.

Except for a regular season victory over the Detroit Lions in the Silverdome last season, the Bills are winless in "dome games," including an 0-4 record in the Astrodome.

Buffalo also is only two weeks away from trying to end another negative string in their regular season opener against the Miami Dolphins, who hold a National Football League record 20 straight victories over the Bills. Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox also plans to use his regulars longer this week in the Bills' final tuneup before the Miami opener.

Starting quarterback Joe Ferguson, who has completed 56 per cent of his passes in the first three preseason games, will play two or three quarters against the Oilers.

Rookie running back Joe Cribbs of Auburn, is the Bills' leading rusher in the preseason, ahead of former 1,000-yard rusher Terry Miller, a No. 1 draft choice in 1978.

Houston Coach Bum Phillips likely will take a close look at running back Edgar Armstrong of Texas A&M, one recently have lost matches they had been expected to win easily, as if plagued by pain.

These days, you can't pick a favorite without a medical resume. Although most of the walking wounded are playing, Las Vegas bookies wouldn't touch the action with one of the late Adolph Rupp's 10-foot poles.

Who knows who is the "weldest?" "It's a tough racket," said William F. Talbert, Jr., former Davis Cup captain and director of the big tent show in Flushing. "It's the pressure and constant grind of open tennis."

Jon Perlman will go after his 14th win tonight against San Antonio and try to stop Cubs' slide in hot Texas League West pennant race.

Pack, Rebs see action

Midland and Midland Lee will get to see just what the Bulldogs and Rebels have to offer for the up-and-coming 1980 football season when they hit the road Friday for scrimmages with Class AAAA Brownwood and Andrews.

Midland has the longest trip, a jaunt to San Angelo to take on Gordon Woods' always-tough Brownwood Lions on the Angelo State University campus while Lee travels to Andrews to take on Bill Shipman's Mustangs.

The Midland-Brownwood scrimmages start at 6 p.m. with the Bullpup junior varsity taking on the Brownwood JV's and the two varsity teams to tangle at around 8 p.m., according to new Bulldog Coach Pat Culpepper.

"I think that the lights on the Angelo State campus are good, but then we could move over to Bobcat Stadium if we need to," said Culpepper Wednesday.

The Midland-Brownwood scrimmages will take place on the same practice field that the Houston Oilers just completed their pre-season workouts. Midland will be preparing for its season opener, Sept. 5 in Amarillo when the Bulldogs take on the Tascosa Rebels in a 7:30 p.m. kickoff in Dick Bivins Stadium while Lee is prepping for its season opener under new Coach Spike Dykes against the Killen Kangaroos in Midland's Memorial Stadium at 8 p.m. on Sept. 5.

"We have been having good workouts, but will know a lot more when we face somebody else," said Dykes.

The Lee-Andrews JVs start at 6 p.m. with the varsity scrimmage to follow in Mustang Stadium.

Lee and Midland High have been working out in pads since Friday while Andrews and Brownwood have had almost two weeks in pads. The two scrimmages should provide a good test for both local schools since they have had limited workouts.

Since the 5-A schools have spring training, they must start fall workouts later than the lower classifications.

Sox tied for first

Valenzuela 3-hits Midland for Dodgers, 10-0

BY TED BATTLES

Just a couple of days ago the Midland Cubs seemed to have the second half Texas League West Division race well in hand with a two-game lead over Amarillo and the comfortable knowledge that going into the final five games, all it would take would be three wins and nobody could catch them.

The Cubs haven't won since and the Amarillo Gold Sox, after sweeping a doubleheader from El Paso Wednesday night, are in a tie for first place with just three games left and the heat is really on Midland. The Cubs can't afford to finish in a tie, since Amarillo won the season's series against Midland and would gain the second half flag on that basis.

Just two games back are the San Antonio Dodgers after battering the Cubs with a five-home run barrage in a 10-0 romp at Cubs Stadium, a prime case of overkill. With Fernando Valenzuela pitching, just one home run would have done the trick.

The desperate Cubs send Jon Perlman, 13-7, against the Dodgers tonight while Doug Rau, the ex-Aggie and LA Dodger on loan to San Antonio, after surgery, will go for San Antonio. LeJohn said Rau, in a rehabilitation program, will pitch 60 pitches or five innings, whichever comes first.

BUT EVEN in the wake of victory, San Antonio Manager Ducky LeJohn wasn't exactly turning hand springs. Noting the way Amarillo is playing in El Paso, he observed, "We could sweep this series and still not win it." Of course, San Antonio already owns the first half flag and will host the West playoff...unless they should win the second half, thus removing the necessity of a playoff.

Despite a two homer, four rbi night for Mike Zouras, the story for the Dodgers Wednesday was Valenzuela, the 19-year-old lefthander from Novato, Sonoma, Mexico, pitching only his first year of pro ball.

He snuffed out the Cubs on three hits and posted only the second shutout of the home artillery in Cubs Stadium of the season. The other was also a 10-0 job by Mike Lowery of Jackson on July 28.

Watching the southpaw work his magic on the Cubs Wednesday, it was hard to believe he was once 0-3 against Midland this season. This made him 2-3 against the Cubs and both victories have been shutouts. In fact, Valenzuela is working on a string of 24 scoreless innings and a victory string of five as he raised his record to 13-9.

"He's got a good fastball, curve and screwball and a changeup off all three pitches and he gets 'em all in the strike zone," praises LeJohn. "In fact, he's just a good pitcher."

As for the game, LeJohn summed it up, "We just exploded early and got good pitching."

Zouras' first homer came in the first, a three-runner, and capped a four-run burst against Vinny Valentini. In the second Larry Fobbs lifted his sixth homer, good for three runs, over the left field fence. In the third, Mike Marshall, No. 18, and Mark Bradley, No. 12, hit back-to-back homers over the centerfield barrier to make it 9-0.

When Zouras hit his solo job in the fifth, Randy Clark was pitching. After that, the Dodgers couldn't do a thing with the Cubs pitching, allowing just one hit over the final four innings. That's not quite as facetious as it may sound. Clark allowed only one hit in his 3 2/3 innings still while Ed Moore and newcomer Jim Gerlach registered five strikeouts between them in three innings.

J.W. Mitchell doubled in the third and singled in the eighth while Joe Hicks singled in the fourth, the extent of the Cubs' offense against Valenzuela who walked only two and fanned nine.

Amarillo sweeps El Paso Diablos

By The Associated Press
The San Antonio Dodgers unleashed a five-home run attack against the Midland Cubs Wednesday night for a 10-0 victory that kept alive San Antonio's chance at winning the Texas League West second half championship.

In other Texas League action, Arkansas beat Shreveport, 5-3, Amarillo swept a doubleheader from El Paso, 12-7 and 4-2, and Jackson and Tulsa split a doubleheader. Jackson won the first game, 7-6, and Tulsa took the second, 6-5.

The Amarillo Gold Sox climbed back into a first place tie with Midland by sweeping a doubleheader from the El Paso Diablos.

Rick Lancellotti and Curt Reed each hit three-run homers and Brian Greer had a solo homer as the Gold Sox took a 12-7 victory in the first game.

Brandt Humphrey had a two-run homer for El Paso and Brian Harper had a solo homer for the Diablos.

Randy Miller, 6-3, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Mike Witt, 5-5.

Lancellotti had a two-run homer in the sixth inning as Amarillo took a 4-2 victory in the second game with El Paso.

Eric Show, 12-6, was the winning pitcher. Steve Brown, 14-12, who had an 11-game winning streak in starts at home snapped, was the loser.

Rigney felt it was time to try something else

As it turned out, Bill Rigney, Jr., wasn't part of the franchise after all. He up and quit, effective Oct. 1, as Midland Cubs general manager, but the game will go on next year with a new face and Bill hopes, renewed enthusiasm, in the front office.

Rigney can't exactly be faulted for a lack of enthusiasm. During the last two seasons he set new records for season box seat ticket sales, not to mention adding a legible, when all the lights are working, scoreboard and before the start of the season had those awful eyesores removed from the stands. The eyesores, of course, were the two light towers that resulted in obstructed views from the grandstand and robbed the Cubs of some 200 choice seats.

"I thought it was time for a change. I think I might have been going stale and I think a new face might help."

RIGNEY feels he is leaving the Cubs' front office in good hands in successor Bill Schammel, a long time friend.

In fact, when Bill began to get the itch to try the oil business, Schammel, whom he had known for 12 years, was the first one he thought of everything about it. Advertising, to me, was dullsville."

Schammel also likes the idea of moving his wife Liz and four-year-old daughter Mary to a smaller city, away from the crime and smog of the big city.

MAX Christiansen, coowner of the Midland Cubs, said the change has been in the works for a month. "It first came up during a golf match in Ruidoso before July 1. Bill said he was thinking about it. Then three weeks later he made his decision."

Schammel came into Midland for an interview last Friday and Bill's "enthusiasm, his biggest asset" said Rigney, sold Christiansen and Bernard Lankford.

Schammel received his degree in Mass Communications. His pastimes include marathon running, golf and all athletics. He is on the board of directors of the Sun Angel Foundation, the primary fund raising organization for Arizona State University.

He hopes to sell his house and wrap up loose ends in Phoenix within two weeks and then return to Midland to begin preparations for the 1981 season.

Schammel was a stockholder of the Phoenix Giants of the Pacific Coast League and ran the concessions. Since then, the former Arizona State basketball player has been an Account Executive for a national advertising agency.

It's a crossroad move for both. Rigney, the baseball brat who has been in the business end of the game since 1967, said, "It was not an easy decision. I languished over it for three or four months, but the best thing is I can stay in Midland and learn a new game."

Schammel is leaving Phoenix, which has been home since 1946, for Midland and he too felt it was time for a change. "I left the Phoenix club when the ownership changed and I'm coming back to baseball because I love the game and

Bronx Bombers now are the ones getting bombed

By BOB GREENE

NEW YORK (AP) — The "Bronx Bombers" have quit bombing the opposing pitchers. And they have the lowly Seattle Mariners to thank for their place atop the American League East Division.

"We're not beating ourselves," rookie Yankees Manager Dick Howser said, "we're just not hitting. That's all."

The Yankees, who were sailing toward their fourth division title in five years before their recent nose-dive, returned home after a disastrous road trip that saw them lose seven of 13 games.

The club, still hanging on to a one-half game lead in the AL East, also has lost three key players: third baseman Graig Nettles, second baseman Willie Randolph and center fielder Ruppert Jones.

And the Yankee pitching staff — on paper one of the best in either league — has run into problems and tough luck.

NEW YORK, which led the major leagues in offense through most of the first half of the season, has scored 63 runs in its last 19 games — an average of 3.3 runs per outing. The Yankees have lost 11 of those 19 games. The Yankees held on to their narrow lead only because Seattle swept their last two games against the second-place Baltimore Orioles.

Now they have returned home, where they open tonight against the Mariners. Rudy May, who has been both a spot starter and a long reliever, will be on the mound when the Yankees begin their 11-game homestand.

Left-hander Tommy John, 17-7 for the season but 2-3 in August, will start Friday night with recently acquired Gaylord Perry pitching Saturday night and hard-luck Luis Tiant going on Sunday.

Tiant, 5-9, has lost six of his last seven starts despite some fine pitching. In those seven games, the Yankees have back him with a total of 12 runs.

"That's baseball. I can take it," Tiant said. "I know we're not scoring that many runs now but we'll come back."

NETTLES last played on July 23 before going on the disabled list with hepatitis. He is due back by mid-September.

Randolph, who has missed the last 10 games with a sore hip muscle, also is expected to return to the lineup.

Mop up man Stone prime candidate for Young award

Los Angeles Times
On a staff that included the reigning Cy Young Award winner, a three-time Cy Young Award winner and a youngster dubbed "the best-looking young left-hander to hit the league since Whitey Ford," what were the odds that the season's first 20-game winner this year would be (1) 33 years old, (2) short, (3) a lifetime under-500 pitcher, (4) Jewish, (5) a connoisseur of fine wines, (6) a scholar and philosopher, (7) a poet and graduate of Kent State, and (9) a jolly good fellow?

Steve Stone is the longest on this board. For Steve, it has been a long, hard struggle. You have only to look at the labels on his footlocker to conclude that Steven Michael Stone is a journeyman pitcher of the most pedestrian sort. There are stickers there from the San Francisco Giants, the Chicago Cubs, the Chicago White Sox, twice, to say nothing of Amarillo, Phoenix and Fresno. You don't go through that many whistle stops if you're Walter Johnson. Sandy Koufax never even played a game in the minor leagues or for any other team but the Dodgers.

Steve Stone came to the Baltimore Orioles sporting a career 67-72 record which meant that, on a staff that had three-time Cy Young pitcher Jim Palmer, last year's Cy Young winner Mike Flanagan, and Scot MacGregor who walks a batter every other eclipse of the sun, he would be relegated to mop-up duties. Or, so they were betting.

Some years ago, when pitcher Jim Lonborg was icing down his arm after a World Series victory, a journalist asked him if he regarded pitching as a cerebral venture. "If it were," Lonborg commented dryly, "I'd be icing down my head instead of my arm."

But Steve Stone has shown that the arm is only as good as the head that directs it. Usually, when a pitcher suddenly becomes a winner in his near-dotage, the league suspects he has come up with a new pitch, usually an illegal one. They authorize body searches that would do justice to the Bulgarian border patrol, looking for the Vaseline.

But they would have to frisk Steve Stone's brain. Steve throws a 95-m.p.h. fastball, which is better than average. He can get his curveball over on a three-and-two count which is sensational. But he couldn't win until he became the, so to speak, thinking man's pitcher.

For one thing, he realized he had to stop listening to managers who couldn't even spell words Steve used in everyday conversation. He had to stop accepting signs flashed to him by catchers who are in the lineup for their bats not their brains. He had to stop reading reports on himself like the one Charley Fox, then the manager of the Giants, gave the front office: "Too small, too slow, too frail, not durable, a spot starter at best."

"Once you get a tag like that in the big leagues, you never lose it," Stone said the other night as he sat in a locker room in Anaheim discussing his war with the major leagues. "I played the game just good enough to be in it. I decided that wasn't good enough for me. I knew I could pitch. I didn't know why I couldn't win. The fault had to be in me."

And, in some place other than his arm and fingers, Steve decided. He began to read books on positive thinking, and to "put negative thinking out of my life." He checked out Adam Smith's "Power of the Mind," among other works. He embarked on a period of self-hypnosis, self-help.

"I read where someone went up to the Esalen movement on mind expansion at San Francisco and the man told him 'Go down to Pebble Beach.' The guy said 'Why?' and they told him, 'Because there, you'll see a golfer named Jack Nicklaus who, if it is possible, and it is, wills the flight of the ball onto the green. It comes out just the way he has it in his mind.'"

Adds Stone: "I began to meditate on the day of the game. I picture the flight of the ball, I can see the stitches, the league name on the ball, and I will it to spots where the hitter doesn't want it. It's a principle anybody can use. Now, I'm not saying you can strike out Reggie Jackson if you don't have the arm for it or have never pitched big league ball. But, you see, I had the ability to do it. But not the will. One of the toughest things in sports is to win consistently. That takes a quality known as 'confidence.' Once you get it, your arm gets even better. I'm throwing four to five miles an hour harder than I was this time last year. You ask anybody in the league if I don't have a fast fastball. Ask Carney Lansford. Or Don Baylor.

"Your mind has to be like a blackboard. You erase the negative things and just put up positive things."

What do you do with Reggie Jackson comes to the plate with a clean slate of his own? Steve Stone grins. "Well, then it's strength against strength, as they say in The Sporting News."

Of course, Steve isn't relying entirely on the baseball blackboard. A one-time member of a syndicate which owned eight restaurants, including the Pump Room in Chicago, Steve now has a posh eatery in Scottsdale, Ariz., "Stevens," with a cordon bleu menu. That's not in case he gets a sore arm, it's in case he gets calcium deposits on the brain. And, if he wins in the World Series this year, not a longshot, don't be surprised to find him in the locker room icing down his head afterward.

Sounders take first big step

In a matchup of last season's champion and this year's hottest team, the Seattle Sounders have taken a big first step in the North American Soccer League playoffs. The Sounders, who had the NASL's best record of 25-7 during the season and the best goal differential in Jack Braden with a 0.96 goals-against average, beat the 1979 champion Vancouver Whitecaps 2-1 in a bitterly contested first-round playoff game Wednesday night.

In other first-round playoff games, the Tampa Bay Rowdies beat the New England Tea Men 1-0, the Washington Diplomats edged the Los Angeles Aztecs 1-0, the Edmonton Drillers defeated the Houston Hurricane 2-1, the Dallas Tornados blanked the Minnesota Kicks 1-0 and the San Diego Sockers outlasted the Chicago Sting 2-1. WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — A team with an "ace chucker" up its sleeve. A team that sings duet harmony. A team managed by a longshoreman — and a team from Taiwan. Those were the semifinalists set to meet today in the Little League Baseball World Series. "We practiced very well. We are ready to play," Taiwan Manager Ching-Con Hsiaw said Wednesday through an interpreter. Taiwan, seeking its ninth title in 12 seasons, faced the Canadian champions from Trail, British Columbia, today.

Houseboating in the off season, starting in mid-September, on Lake Powell is one of the best fishing bargains around.

KENNY REDIN'S
Fin & Feather

The inflation squeeze has forced many American families to re-evaluate their vacation plans this year. A recent survey by U.S. Travel Data Center in Washington, D.C., showed a 68 per cent increase in gas prices over last year. Lodging is up 17 per cent, air fare 36, food 11 (based on March consumer prices). The result is more carefully planned vacations.

One alternative is a vacation closer to home. A camping-fishing outing is an inexpensive alternative.

In addition to the thousands of miles of seacoast, there are hundreds of thousands of inland lakes, streams and ponds in the U.S. with populations of fun-to-catch, delicious-to-eat fish. Crappies, blue gills and other starter breeds for new fishers abound nationally. And for the more serious, mountain streams and salt water species offer the ultimate challenge.

America's natural and man-made resources offer family fun. From the seacoasts to the glacier-formed lakes of the midwest to the mountain streams of the west to the massive Corps of Engineer formed sport fishing havens of the south, there's something for every level of fishing knowledge.

Dorothy Singer, psychology professor at the University of Bridgeport and senior research scientist at Yale, touts the benefits of family fishing vacations. "The pleasure of being outdoors together is the important ingredient. By providing youngsters with an appreciation of nature through fishing, parents are helping to generate a respect for the beauty and irreplaceability of our great outdoors."

Add to this the fact that fishing-camping trips are low in cost and it is apparent why there is a trend toward outdoor recreation in summer 1980. And autumn months aren't a bad time to be outdoors either.

THE AVERAGE starter equipment for family members costs under $10, making it a prime inflation fighter.

A weekend of camping and fishing should cost an average-size family $100 to $150 including equipment.

Now Serious Fishing—The family is what counts. We know that! But if you've already taken your family on an outing, but now want to get down to some serious fishing with your old fishing buddies at a price that will not cause whiplash, there's Houseboating On Beautiful Lake Powell. We've looked at fishing and outdoor bargains over the years and have found that four to eight persons that lease a houseboat for fishing purposes on fish-filled Lake Powell, situated on the Arizona-Utah border, have found just about the best outdoor bargain around these days. They've also claimed it's the hottest bass and crappie lake the other side of Pike's Peak.

Several can lease a houseboat from one of Del Webb's three marinas on this huge, long-winding reservoir and spend no less than $100 and no more than $200, depending on the individual.

RENTING a houseboat with lengths ranging from 36 to 50 feet, depending on the number of anglers, will average the fisherman about $40 a day. That's your home on the water, your kitchen, your sleeping locale and your party room.

Unless, you're strictly planning on crappie fishing, the houseboat will serve the purpose. But for bass, you need to pull along a fishing boat or two. You can headquarter anywhere you wish on the 189-mile long lake.

Once at the lake, the linens, food and gasoline are up to you. The boats are complete with railed walkway, range and oven, refrigerator, ice chest cabin heater, 12-volt light system, shower, monomatic toilet, bunk beds, drapes, charcoal grill. The cabin is all weather cabin constructed on two pontoon floats and thrusted by two 70 horsepower outboards. There's a three-day supply of water already aboard.

Things to bring include flashlight, shovel, any on-shore camping equipment... paper plates, towels, cups, charcoal, dishcloths and musical entertainment such as battery operated tape deck or radio.

Consumer group backing Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Federation of America, the nation's largest consumer organization, is backing 31 candidates for the House and Senate. All are Democrats.

The consumer federation will donate no money to candidates but will "provide voters with information on the consumer platforms and records of candidates, publish the consumer voting record of the 96th Congress and work with our local affiliates in support of candidates we have endorsed," Michael Podhorzer, legislative director, said Tuesday.

The 31 include Sens. John Culver, D-Iowa, and George McGovern, D-S.D., and 17 other incumbents. Challengers include two consumer activists trying for House seats: Kathleen O'Reilly, who resigned early this year as executive director of the consumer federation to run for a Michigan seat, and Mark Green, who directed Ralph Nader's Congress Watch before seeking a New York seat.

Nine of those endorsed attended the consumer group's Capitol Hill news conference.

The endorsements come as consumer groups are on the defensive in lobbying battles on Capitol Hill. In the major legislative battle of the year between business and consumer interests, Congress stripped the pro-consumer Federal Trade Commission of some of its authority.

"If consumers ever needed friends, it is now," said Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., one of those endorsed. "Not only are they being pummeled by inflation and escalating energy costs, but they are being targeted by shrewd, well-financed and powerful groups whose special interests are often diametrically opposed to those of the average individual," he said.

No Republicans were endorsed, in part because the party's platform this year is "very anti-consumer," Podhorzer said. He said that the organization, a federation of about 220 consumer groups, will endorse additional candidates in October.

Other incumbents endorsed were Reps. Pete Stark, D-Calif.; James Corman, D-Calif.; Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif.; Ray Kogovsek, D-Colo.; Michael Barnes, D-Mt.; James Shannon, D-Mass.; Howard Wolpe, D-Mich.; James Howard, D-N.J.; Andrew Maguire, D-N.J.; Jerome Ambro, D-N.Y.; Tony Hall, D-Ohio; Jim Weaver, D-Ore.; Pete Kostmayer, D-Pa.; Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas; Robert Kasenteimer, D-Wis., and Herb Harris, D-Va.

Endorsements went to these other candidates for first House terms: Robert Maxwell of Delaware, John Walda of Indiana, Steve Sovern of Iowa, Tom Easterly of Kentucky, Archie Baumann of Minnesota, Gene Wenstrom of Minnesota, Harry Mesel and Dennis Eckart of Ohio, Jeanette Reibman of Pennsylvania and Pat Hamilton of West Virginia.

Most 5-year-olds aren't too interested in current events, but little Raegan Carter has a special interest in the 1980 presidential campaign, for obvious reasons. DC-9 Super 80 gets certification

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — McDonnell Douglas Corp. received formal certification from the Federal Aviation Administration for its DC-9 Super 80 airliner amid protests from pilots over the plane's crew size.

McDonnell President John Brizendine, who accepted the certificate from FAA Western Regional Director John Mattson during a brief ceremony this week at the company's plant here, defended the two-person crew of the new airliner.

"The DC-9 Super 80, as all DC-9s have been, is designed to be operated by a crew of two," Brizendine said. "The airplane is designed from the ground up for that. The workload of the Super 80 is a very significant percentage reduced from the workload of earlier DC-9s. We are satisfied it's safe and the FAA is satisfied."

John O'Connell, president of the Airline Pilots Association, which contends three people are needed to operate the new airliner, said in Washington that the union will consider a nationwide work stoppage to protest the FAA certification.

ALPA sued the FAA Monday, seeking a court review of its certification procedures and alleging that the agency "has permitted undue and improper manufacturer influence, domination and control over the certification process."

Mattson, however, said the FAA had imposed strict requirements on the new airliner and said the agency "devoted more than 30,000 hours to the certification of the DC-9 Super 80."

ALPA says increasingly crowded skies and the larger size of the Super 80 make a three-person crew necessary, a contention Brizendine rejected.

"The skies being crowded — that's a fact," he said. "But the design and the crew duties have been designed to take care of that."

The twin-engine Super 80, which will seat 172 in a commuter pattern and about 140 in the normal mix of first-class and tourist seats, uses half the fuel of current DC-9s, McDonnell says, and is the quietest of all commercial airliners. It has a range of about 2,000 miles.

More unemployment funds asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jobless Americans would be entitled to higher state unemployment insurance payments for a longer period of time and with fewer restrictions under a package of recommendations issued by a national commission.

The proposals put forth this week by the National Commission on Unemployment Compensation call for increased government spending — financed through higher employer taxes — at a time when Congress, the Carter administration and state governments are seeking ways to hold down their budgets.

But commission members argued that government cannot ignore the needs of a growing segment of the population that is expected to experience long-term unemployment during the next 20 years as the U.S. economy goes through a period of instability.

Commission chairman Wilbur J. Cohen, secretary of health, education and welfare during 1968, said that if unemployment were to average 9 percent in 1981 and all the recommendations were adopted immediately, unemployment payments during the next year would surpass $35 billion — some $10 billion more than the current estimate of $25 billion.

But the recommendations call for upgrading the compensation system gradually over the next nine years, not all at once, he told a news conference.

The commission was created by Congress in 1976 to propose changes in the nation's unemployment compensation system.

The proposals include raising average payments by 20 percent or more, increasing the maximum number of weeks of eligibility from 39 to 65, bringing more people under the system, standardizing programs from state to state, increasing employer tax rates and aiding states facing severe deficits because of high unemployment.

Between 1970 and 1977, Cohen said, 1.24 percent of employers' total payroll costs went to pay for the compensation program. Under the commission's recommendations, the percentage of payroll costs would rise to no more than 2 percent by the end of the 1980s, he said.

Congress and state legislatures would have to change laws to adopt the commission's proposals for changing the unemployment compensation system, which is administered jointly at the state and federal levels.

Cohen estimated that a record 20 million to 22 million Americans will experience at least one week of unemployment during the next 12 months, and more than half of them will collect unemployment insurance.

A constituency of this size could flex enough political muscle to press successfully for adoption of the recommendations, he said.

Thousands protest against president in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Tens of thousands of Chileans barred by police in riot gear from a political rally here paraded through the streets shouting slogans against rightwing President Augusto Pinochet in the first major protest demonstration since he seized power seven years ago.

The government-controlled news agency ORBE said there were "a number of arrests" but gave no count. At least two persons were injured by club-wielding police. No deaths were reported in the demonstrations, quelled by police in riot gear.

For many who dislike the right-wing military regime, the apparently spontaneous demonstration was the first opportunity in nearly seven years to publicly protest against the government. Many did so with vigor, hurling insults and a few rocks at police.

Pinochet, who seized power from Marxist President Salvador Allende in the bloody Sept. 11, 1973 coup, banned all but official political activity.

The demonstration began when police refused to let the tens of thousands of people join 8,000 others already attending a political rally sponsored by former Chilean President Eduardo Frei.

The rally, held in a downtown theater with government consent, was called by Frei to denounce Pinochet's proposed new constitution that would keep him in power at least until 1989.

The proposal, which would guarantee that free elections be held in 1997, is being put before a national referendum on the seventh anniversary of the coup.

Police formed human barriers around the theater in a two-block radius as thousands of people began chanting anti-Pinochet slogans, singing and waving burning paper at the barricades.

When Frei's speech ended, those inside joined the others outside the police perimeter in a sign-carrying, flag-waving, singing and shouting demonstration that ended about 10 blocks from where it began on Alameda Avenue.

In his address, Frei called for a civilian-military government of transition to prepare Chile for a return to democracy within three years. Frei, 70, is the leader of the Christian Democrats, Chile's most powerful party before Pinochet toppled Allende.

Frei also challenged the 64-year-old strongman to debate the government constitutional proposal.

"In the name of thousands of Chileans we offer this alternative because we want a rational and peaceful solution for our homeland," Frei said.

He warned "the country is awaiting a reply. If these proposals are not answered, or if they are rejected, the plebiscite will have no validity."

There was no immediate reaction from the government.

Officials ponder how hijackers got aboard

MIAMI (AP) — Tightened security didn't stop three Spanish-speaking men from commandeering an Eastern Airlines jet in the nation's latest hijacking, and officials are trying to figure out how the men smuggled two bottles of what was thought to be gasoline onto the plane.

The hijackers forced the widebodied jet to Cuba on Tuesday by threatening to ignite the liquid. The plane had been on its way to Miami from New York.

The plane returned safely to Miami early Wednesday with its 228 passengers and 14 crew members. The hijackers remained in Havana.

"They apparently just slipped through" airport security, Paula Musto, an Eastern spokeswoman in New York, said Wednesday. "It's gotten to the point where you have to look at shaving lotion."

For one passenger on the hijacked plane, Flight 401, the incident brought back memories of a brush with death eight years ago involving the same flight.

Jerry Steindam had been scheduled to take Eastern's Flight 401 from New York to Miami on Dec. 29, 1972. But he came down with pneumonia and missed the plane.

Just four minutes before its scheduled arrival at Miami International Airport, the jet slammed into the Everglades, flinging passengers into the muck and leaving others trapped in the mangled wreckage. The accident killed 111 people.

Ironically, Steindam was on Flight 401 this time around only because he had overslept and missed an Air Florida flight he had been scheduled to take.

About two weeks ago, the federal authorities stepped up security in response to six hijackings in seven days. Armed federal marshals were ordered to ride selected flights and experts put together a profile of likely hijackers to help security personnel at airport check-in points.

Since then, four apparent hijack attempts have been foiled before the would-be hijackers even boarded their planes.

Cuban refugees who said they were discontent with life in the United States were blamed in most of the recent hijackings, but federal agents said they were unsure of the nationalities of the three men who commandeered the plane Tuesday. The men were identified as Miguel Toledo, J. Calero and M. Avila.

Jack Barker, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, said one way to prevent hijackings would be to arrange for the return to Cuba of refugees who are unhappy with life in the United States.

Zimbabwe leader seeks more U.S. aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Zimbabwe Prime Minister Robert Mugabe says he has received no assurances yet that the United States will increase its aid to the fledgling African nation.

Mugabe made the request personally Wednesday during a White House talk with President Carter, highlighting a busy day of meetings with congressional leaders and top administration officials. Mugabe told reporters his trip was "a mission to renew our friendship and solidarity and also to appeal to the United States to help us with means to solve our economic problems."

But, he said, there is no "indication at this stage whether we're going to get aid or not."

Mugabe wants U.S. support for a $350 million program to repair the damage from the Rhodesian civil war that eventually led to the end of white minority rule and Mugabe's election as prime minister. The United States has contributed about $25 million this year and expects to raise that to $30 million next year, said Robert Keeley, the U.S. ambassador to Zimbabwe. Keeley said it is unlikely that the American contribution could be increased above $30 million until 1982.

Carter, at a White House reception, praised Mugabe as a "notable world leader" and said the outcome of the independence struggle in Zimbabwe had "thrilled the world."

Mugabe, in response, praised Carter for standing "firm on a matter of principle" in resisting congressional efforts to lift the economic sanctions against the minority regime. Mugabe also sought support from black members of Congress during a closed-door meeting with the Congressional Black Caucus.

Bologna bombing arrests reach 28

ROME (AP) — Police staged raids here and in two other cities today and arrested 28 right-wing extremists in connection with the Aug. 2 bombing of the Bologna railroad station that took 83 lives, officials announced.

In Bologna, Prosecutor Ugo Sisti said in a statement the charges against some of the 28 included planning and carrying out the bombing, Europe's bloodiest post-war terrorist attack.

Other charges were subversive association, forming armed bands and attempting to subvert democratic order.

Anthropologist finds cattle domesticated 15,000 years ago

BOSTON (AP) — The domestication of cattle in East Africa 15,000 years ago has raised doubts about the traditional view of the Tigris and Euphrates river valley as the "cradle of civilization," a University of Massachusetts anthropologist says.

Dr. Charles M. Nelson, associate professor of anthropology at the UMass campus here, said his five-year study found traces of domesticated cattle in East Africa dating back 15,000 years. That is about 8,000 years earlier than scholars had projected their use in the "fertile crescent" between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers in the Middle East.

"The traditional view outlined in textbooks is that we trace back our own culture and civilization to a single area of the world — the Middle East," Nelson said Wednesday.

"The assumption has been that it's the cradle of civilization because it had all of the important ingredients — plant and animal domestication, early use of tools — which then spread to India, North Africa, and elsewhere."

"New information, however, suggests that many of these important elements did not originate in the Middle East, but in other areas and may have been transmitted there through trade, immigration and cultural diffusion."

The Middle East can still be considered a "hub" of civilization because several of the innovations "may have come together first there, but the process in the Middle East did not spark the creation of civilization elsewhere," Nelson said.

His findings are among several recent archeological discoveries that cast doubt on the theory that many societal breakthroughs originated in the Tigris and Euphrates valley 7,000 years ago.

Nelson, a specialist in pastoral nomadic societies, worked with National Museum of Kenya officials in uncovering cattle's teeth and bones at three sites in the Lukenya Hill District. Using radiocarbon dating techniques and other methods, he determined the animals lived about 15,000 years ago.

The Kenya site, about 25 miles from Nairobi, is infested by tsetse flies, which would have killed wild cattle, he said.

The fly is less common in settled villages, and Nelson said his evidence indicates tribesmen brought in cattle during the pre-Iron Age era as a beast of burden and as a food source.

Indira Gandhi attacks book alleging her father's affair

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today described as "ridiculous" allegations in a new biography of Earl Mountbatten that claim her father, the late Jawaharlal Nehru, had a love affair with Lady Mountbatten.

"There was warm friendship between him (Nehru) and both the Mountbattens," a spokesman for Mrs. Gandhi quoted the prime minister as saying.

"It is a ridiculous story," the 62-year-old Mrs. Gandhi was quoted as saying after reading news reports of the book, "Mountbatten: Hero of Our Times," by Richard Hough. The book was published Wednesday in London.

It says Nehru and Mountbatten's wife Edwina had an affair in 1947 and that this was a factor in Moslem leader Mohammed Ali Jinnah's insistence on the partition of India in 1947.

Mrs. Gandhi is the only daughter of Nehru, the man who led India for 17 years as its prime minister until his death in 1964.

On Thursday, India honored Mountbatten with a special stamp issued on the first anniversary of his death. The British leader, who presided at the end of British colonial rule in India and its emergence as a free nation, was assassinated by Irish Republican Army guerrillas to protest British rule in Northern Ireland. He was 79.

Switching error caused wreck

MEXICALI, Mexico (AP) — A switching error by two track repairmen caused a passenger train derailment that killed 15 persons and injured 70, Mexican authorities say.

The 10-car train, on its way to Guadalajara and Mexico City from Mexicali, hit the open switch Tuesday on the outskirts of Mexicali, which is about 100 miles east of San Diego.

When the 120-ton engine, moving 30 to 35 miles per hour, hit the switch, it overturned, hurling six passenger coaches off the tracks, authorities said.

The repairmen had been riding in a tractor mounted on the rails.

"They pulled their tractor off the track and forgot to switch the gate back," said Biningnoe Larios, a spokesman for the Sonora Baja California Railroad.

Larios said the repairmen could be prosecuted. Damage was estimated at $1 million.

All but one of the dead were Mexicans. The identity of the non-Mexican victim was undetermined. Five Americans were hurt.

A survivor, Michael Hall, 31, of San Diego, said he was riding in the first car behind the engine and "we were opening our first can of beer when our car started to ride real high."

"The locomotive hit something and a chain-reaction banging occurred," said Hall. "We hit the engine and we got hit about two or three times by cars behind us. All I remember is being thrown around and then getting knocked down."

"I don't know how I got out of the car, but the next thing I recall is being about 40 feet from the wreckage," Hall said.

Israeli jets strike posts again

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — In their third such attack in 10 days, Israeli warplanes struck Palestinian guerrilla posts in southern Lebanon, a military spokesman reported today.

A one-sentence statement said the planes attacked "terrorist targets along the Lebanese coast." The spokesman refused to give any further detail. It was

Hair for fall soft, feminine, sophisticated

This fall's fashion reports indicate an emphasis on a woman's femininity, highlighted by soft sophistication. Experts agree that hair will be more important than ever in achieving this soft look. Gently cascading waves, loose curls full of body, romantic chignons and demure upswept styles are slated to dominate hair fashions this fall.

To enhance these wonderfully feminine looks are intriguing pieces of hair jewelry.

Coupled with a simple gold bracelet, a pair of unique earrings or a wide sash belt, colorful ornaments for hair are definitely the key to achieving a look of femininity.

"Hair jewelry today is as essential to a woman's wardrobe as the right pair of shoes or earrings," notes a spokesman for Goody, a leading manufacturer of hair accessories. "And with femininity the fashion high note for fall, no hairstyle will be complete without an ornament."

Of special interest for fall are the sophisticated chignon and upswept styles. These are perfect when you want your hair to be the leading attraction for those very special occasions.

These updated classic styles are easy to achieve with the help of a chignon or roll foundation. And nothing adds that extra touch of femininity more than a piece or two of hair jewelry, such as a chignon pin in a delicate floral design.

An intriguing look for longer hair is coiled braids. Try a mGngle braid, or, for extra interest, braid hair in sections and then weave them together, either at the nape of the neck or on top of the head.

The ideal accent for coiled braids is the decorative bob pin. This piece of hair jewelry is actually fashioned after the bobby pin, with the added plus of an ornamental top. Tiny, delicate rhinestone hearts, stars or flowers scattered in among the braids complete the romantic look perfectly.

The versatile fashion comb is one of the most important additions to your fall fashion wardrobe. Available in a variety of shapes and sizes for every length and style of hair, fashion combs can add a subtle hint of sophistication or a dazzling sparkle to any shade of hair.

Choose classic mock tortoise to highlight any daytime style, or mock tortoise combs studded with rhinestones for evening excitement.

Fashion combs in gala reds, blues, greens and yellows add an illumination of color and are perfect for coordinating with the rest of your outfit. Or, when the look is traditional with lace and velvet ribbons, a pale ivory comb with delicate birds or flowers adds the perfect touch.

Other big news for fall — barrettes, barrettes, barrettes. They are seen in a wonderful selection of exciting, new designs such as florentine favorites in gold and silver to add sparkle to romantic evenings. These marvelous ornaments also come in a luscious selection of colors — perfect for contrast or coordination with your other accessories. Two shades you will want to be sure to include in your accessory wardrobe this fall are mock tortoise and this fall's newest look, simulated horn.

Like the fashion comb, barrettes are extremely versatile and can be used with almost any length of hair. If you are tired of bangs falling into your eyes all day long, a matching pair of small barrettes will cleverly hold them in place. If you want a dramatic look for a special evening, try sweeping hair back above the ear and fastening with a large barrette. Or, for subtle sophistication, section a small piece of hair and brush back loosely to fasten with a slim barrette in one of fall's latest colors.

The nicest thing about all these pieces of hair jewelry is that you can easily afford to have an entire wardrobe without putting a dent in your fall fashion budget.

This fall the hair care experts at Ogilvie are predicting a wave of curvacious hairstyles. The forties appeal of this upswept hairdo can be an asset to the new fashions for fall. For a style like this one, the hair may be center-parted.

Gold demand reaches high

The demand for gold has reached an unprecedented high and the current production of gold is almost 1,400 tons a year mainly through South Africa and the Soviet Union.

No-wind quartz watch gives fashion, accuracy

There are trends in just about everything in our lives — from architecture and interior design to clothing and food. And styles change. What was "in" 10 years ago, or even last year for that matter, is not necessarily "in" today.

Over the last few years a new trend has been developing in the watch industry. Actually, it's better described as a revolution.

New technology has produced quartz watches that are thin, fashionable and stylish. Quartz watches are the timepieces of the future and available today.

The quartz timekeeping system provides the opportunity to produce a watch that has superb accuracy, reliability and no-wind convenience. You literally never wind the watch and rarely reset it, except when entering different time zones.

To top it off, quartz watches are 99.99 percent accurate.

Let's take a look at how a quartz watch works. Inside each watch is a quartz crystal that is activated by a battery.

This crystal oscillates at a constant rate when used in an electronic circuit and splits each second into at least 32,000 equal parts.

These impulses are then transmitted to the micro-computer element which controls the hands of the watch with superior accuracy. The micro-computer element constantly regulates the system and corrects any deviations from its programmed accuracy.

Fall fashion focuses on the leg

From all indications, this fall will be a season of the leg.
 Sales of dresses and skirts are up 16 percent. One-third of the women questioned by L'eggs Products, a leading pantyhose maker, said they will be wearing dresses and skirts more than they did last year.
 Designers are having a field day with this fashion trend with fall collections featuring myriad hemline variations.
 Predominant are just-below-the-knee-length dresses and skirts.
 Flounces add excitement and draw attention to legs, and the "Carmen Miranda" hemline — shorter in front than in the back to frame the legs — is making a splashy comeback.

 Geometrics are still popular as many designers are showing asymmetrical and handkerchief hemlines. Slits, both back and side, continue to be big.
 Expect to see the sophisticated little dress in growing numbers this fall. Some major collections even include the new controversial mini-length hemline, a real leg enhancer.
 The silhouette dress, at the peak of its popularity, is close to the body, simple, with emphasis on elegance.

 "In fact," says Mickie Miller, director of merchandising for L'eggs, "we are introducing silky, sheer pantyhose this fall, in part due to the increasing demand for easy, everyday elegance in fashion."
 The focus on legs involves more than dresses and skirts. Many designers are featuring short Bermuda-style pants worn with low-heeled shoes. Knickers, cuffed just below the knee, create a jaunty look for fall.
 The classic preppie look, with boy's shirts, penny loafers and blazer accompanied by culottes or pleated, Scotch plaid kilt, is perfect for showing off legs.

 Furs and overcoats are also following the trend toward higher hemlines. Very popular for fall is the jacket-length fur as well as the three-quarter length. In addition, some designers are showing the 51-inch-length longer coat. Worn with shorter dresses, there's almost no better way to draw attention to legs.
 From almost all angles, the long and short of it seems to be sharp focus on legs for fall 1980 fashion.

Changes in kid's clothes occur in color and style

I don't remember having much fun when I went shopping for clothes as a child. You either bought jeans with reinforced knees for play or a fancy party dress for special occasions. With so few choices to make I could never figure out why Mom didn't just go shopping without me and let me play with my friends. But, then again, the clothes my mother and I were looking at didn't appear in the array of colors, styles and materials found in children's clothes today. The children of the '80s have an easier task when choosing their wardrobe.

Fashion trends for children have followed the same path as the adult fashion market with clothes becoming multipurposed. Leisure wear is worn at all times of the day and night.

"The fitness trend has grown to the point where it has become fashionable to be involved in athletics," said Elliott Lokitz, president of LUV-IT, a leader in the children's fashion industry.

"Even those people who do not get physically involved in games want to look the part. Thus, a new look in fashion has become popular - children, of course, want to look like their parents," Lokitz said.

This trend has been slowly developing over the last 15 years, but it is only recently that the fashion industry has paid any attention to it.

"One requirement became apparent - sports-related casual wear had to be more stylish," Lokitz said. "The traditional gray sweatshirt and baggy bottoms were not acceptable."

Manufacturers in the fashion industry found that they could accommodate this new demand by simply adding some bright colors, changing the material to velour and redesigning the fit slightly.

"Young people and adults alike are now wearing warm-ups to class as readily as they would play tennis," added Lokitz.

The other major trend in children's clothing is the growth of the "sophisticated styling" look for girls.

"Television and the media as well as mothers and older sisters have significantly influenced the trend for girls to become style conscious at a much younger age than in the past," said Lokitz.

This has motivated the children's fashion industry to update and expand their styles.

"Younger girls do not want to look exactly like older people, but they do want to feel as if they are in step with current trends," Lokitz said. "The clothes that are worn are a significant factor in influencing a young girl's feeling about herself."

I guess I was just born at the wrong time. I never had to worry about

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements presented Mexican Consul Victor Romero Lopetegui Thursday the first copies of a Texas tourist brochure aimed directly at Mexican visitors.

Echoing the governor's hopes for closer international ties, Romero said the tourist literature, printed in Spanish, was a way to promote "people-to-people contact, which is the best way to strengthen bonds between nations."

The brochure portrays Texas vacation spots for every season of the year with color photos of Six Flags, Astroworld, the Texas coast and the Hill Country, the San Antonio river walk, the Manned Spacecraft Center, night clubs, major league sports, and a picture of a big Texas rib-eye steak.

whether or not my clothes were in tune with the current fashion trends. There was so little variety in the clothes on the racks that there was no choice involved.

The children of today certainly have more alternatives when they go shopping for a new outfit. Let's hope they have more fun while they're at it.

Children of the '80s have an easier task when choosing their wardrobe. Today's clothes have an array of colors, styles and materials.

Material frees active bodies

For many Americans, fall is synonymous with football. But, this year quarterbacks and defensive ends won't be the only ones wearing outfits made from football jerseys.

You'll be able to see fashionable women in town and out for the evening decked out in a new line of active sportswear fashioned from the perforated nylon fabric.

This new idea for fashion is from Hard Bodies of San Diego, Calif. Gloria Rich, designer for the company, used such words as "functional, utilitarian and quality" to describe the bright red jumpsuit which is the foundation of Hard Bodies' active sportswear.

Her original red jumpsuit is made of the perforated nylon used for football jerseys, trimmed with cotton webbing used for camping gear. That makes it cool enough to wear for active sports, yet stylish enough for parties, Rich said.

The nylon creates body heat to keep the wearer warm, but the perforations admit enough air to keep her cool, two of the virtues of this fabric for football players.

It also stretches with body movement, which makes it ideal for sportswear.

Rich first came up with the solid red jumpsuit, then added unusual T-shirts, pants, shorts and a group of sweatshirt sports pieces including a gray jumpsuit.

Hard Bodies was begun by Pat Rogondino, an advertising expert who is actively interested in sports. This combination led him to study the active sportswear market.

After research, he decided that there were not enough comfortable and fashionable clothes for women that allow active participation in sports.

The company went into operation with the addition of Rich as designer. His name, Hard Bodies, is beach slang for a good physique, Rogondino said.

Rich's jumpsuit is engineered with a good fit achieved by a front zipper to the waist. Webbing bands around the waist are adjustable with gripper snaps dyed to match the fabric. The jumpsuit is one solid color with knit cuffs at the ankle, wrist and neckband dyed to match.

Below the waist, a pleat adds ease in front. And the top front is lined as is a panel from the waist down to the crotch and halfway up the back because the fabric is suggestively - and sexily - see-through, Rich said.

Fall sportswear: Shape of things to come

Fall 1980 promises to be a season of totally wearable, feminine, and understandable sportswear. With prices continuing to rise, designers are staying away from fashion extremes and gimmicks, and concentrating instead on clothes that emphasize quality and good looks that last.

It is therefore not surprising to see a resurgence of traditional classics. All of the familiar styles are there — kilts, sweaters, gray flannels. We will see an abundance of separates, carefully conceived to stand on their own or to combine in different ways to stretch a wardrobe.

But in case things are beginning to sound a bit dull and just too practical — they aren't. Unusual textures and color combinations, unique feminine touches, classics with a new twist, and old favorites, such as sweaters, have been taken to almost an art form. This fall, the customer comes out ahead — with clothes that are enduring and practical, yet always imaginative.

For as long as anyone can remember, there have been kilt skirts and blazers. The kilt suit takes on a new sophistication for fall 1980. Bold plaid in gray camel, and creme neutrals catches the eye. A light weight wool gives extra movement to the skirt.

Old classics with a new twist — the kilted skirtsuit. Bold plaid in grey camel and creme neutrals.

Relaxed jacket is accented with piping. Silk blouse with bow adds a feminine touch.

Nearsighted people tend to prefer reds, while farsighted ones prefer blues, the American Optometric Association reports.

Young girls think thin

A recent survey has revealed that young girls in the United States are thinking thin.

In fact, the survey revealed that 79 percent of all teens have at some time decided to diet and two-thirds of these girls were currently dieting.

Girls are getting 'perms'

More and more teenage girls are getting permanents these days. In a national survey, 42 percent of those questioned said they had had a permanent either at home or in a beauty shop within the last year.

Makeup colors follow fall clothing fashions

By SANDI BREEDEN
Lifestyle Writer

As the colors for fall clothing change from browns and other earth tones to various bright shades of mulberries, pinks and reds, so the colors of makeup are changing also.

According to local cosmetologists, the various bright shades of mulberries, pinks and reds are the "must" colors for fall makeup this year. "We're getting away from earth tones," said one cosmetologist, "and we're using the deep mulberries and bright pinks and reds."

"Eye shadows are more brilliant," she added. This cosmetologist credited the use of brighter makeup to the colors of fall clothing. "The colors in clothes for the fall are so dull, the makeup is bright to liven the overall appearance."

Another cosmetologist agreed with her about the color of the makeup, but not the reasoning of the use of brighter makeup. "It's a time for change and clothing will be brighter this fall. Colors in cosmetics have to follow clothing," she said.

"Lipstick and nail polish are much more brilliant also," she added. "We are getting away from the browns and leaning towards the deep mulberries and rose colors."

"Most lipsticks are in wine (a shade of mulberry) and the best colors are red wine and darker reds and maroons," she said. "Nail polish should match the lip color."

"Pastel colors are out for eyeshadow," the cosmetologist added. "Browns and sludges are good eye-shadow color."

Another cosmetologist differed in opinion as to the right colors for eyeshadows. "Use anything in plum for eyeshadow," she said. She also gave some tips in wearing eyeshadow for a popular fall look. "Go around the eye, out from the corner and down under the lid," she said. "Use a little tan, beige or gold look on the inside next to the nose and use the dusty colors, silver, brown and deeper blues, on the outer area of the eye. This makes the eyes look bigger," she explained.

Earth tone lipsticks are still popular, said this cosmetologist, but the color is gradually changing to bright, deep colors. "Use anything in plum for lip color also," she said. "Use the same color in the blusher and blend the blusher into the temple area, this gives a different look around the eyes," she said.

As for base makeup, women should still match their skin tones, highlighting with the different shades of plum, said the cosmetologist.

Some advice given by the cosmetologists said what makeup is used always depends on the bone structure, skin type, and whether or not a woman has wrinkles. "It is impossible to have one rule that fits everybody. Body chemistry makes a big difference on the makeup a woman uses," she said. "A woman should always try the makeup before she buys it."

Light eyebrows are in style for fall makeup also. Women are not encouraged to bleach their eyebrows in order to make them light, but they should definitely stay away from making the brows darker.

Great looking sunglasses enhance pretty fall fashions and accessories are playing a large part in the overall "fall" look. This style features changeable gradient lenses. Indoors, they are fashion glasses darker at the top and gradually fading to become almost clear at the bottom. Outdoors, the lenses darken in bright sunshine for full sunglass protection.

Rainwear now in classics

There is something new under the sun...and the umbrella. New all-weather, all-purpose rainwear moves into the classics.

to be worn over a variety of same-fabric under-gear. Whether belted close or belted in front, loose and smocked or raglan, the look is easy and graceful for all ages. Another shape is the new special breed rain suits — also water-repellent.

No longer a seasonal item, rain gear — now called "shelter wear" — will take a woman from a drizzle or a storm into the office, an art show or a party.

Designer Vito Cantanzariti has revolutionized weather wear for Russ Taylor's Bonnie Cashin line.

"Gone are the un-matching, drab raincoats and raincoats as we knew them," says Vito. This year's rain gear wearer will truly be singing in the rain. She'll be "suited" for indoor or outdoor living in beautiful, matching togs.

"It's a season-spanning group of color and ideas to attract those who seek outdoor clothes that work both functionally and aesthetically," says Vito. "The new weather wear is geared to travelers, ready-to-goers and these who live in the temperate zones all year round."

The shape of things to come includes "great" coats, roomy enough in the sleeves and armholes

Sunglasses vital accessories year-round

Sunglasses are important accessories year-round. As anyone who participates in winter sports will attest, glare isn't seasonal. Sunglasses should be designed to help your eyes in addition to enhancing your appearance.

Reflection from ice and snow in winter can be more dazzling than glare from sand or water in summer. Good sunglasses should be part of your outdoor life. They can also put the final touch to your coordinated look.

The newest sunglasses for 1980 are flattering fashion glasses, combining designer styling with effective eye protection. Sculptured frames with metal accents and low slung temples complement soft, feminine fashions as well as the tailored looks popular for fall. Pretty frame colors — ranging from bluish and blue tones to deep rose, gray or tortoise — are smart for all seasons.

Bausch and Lomb has designed the Ray-Ban Naturals Sunglass Collection to feature high fashion with protection.

Frame styles and lens combinations are carefully coordinated for the pulled-together look so important in women's fashion accessories.

The new lightweight glass lenses combine protection and wearing comfort. They reduce glare from any surface or angle and filter out all potentially harmful portions of the sun's ultraviolet rays.

The collection includes gradient lenses. Indoors, they are clear enough to wear as fashion glasses — darker at the top and gradually fading to become almost clear at the bottom. Outdoors, in bright sunshine, the lenses darken to provide full sunglass protection in just 60 seconds. When fully darkened in bright sun, they block 80 percent of the sun's burning rays.

Shopping for sunglasses is a matter of good taste and good sense. First, select sunglasses styles compatible with the shape of your face, your skin tones, your hairstyle — and the major colors in your wardrobe. Try on a variety of styles. Check a hand or table mirror for a close-up look and, if you can, a full-length mirror for the overall effect.

To be sure the lenses are dark enough for bright sun, test the glasses further. If you can see your eyes clearly when you look in the mirror, chances are the lenses are too light — unless they're the light-sensitive kind that darken outdoors in the sun.

Good sunglasses block at least 65 percent of the light.

Judge quality by turning the glasses over to catch the reflection of an overhead fluorescent light on the inside of the lens. Then move the glasses slightly so reflection travels across the lens. If the light image is wavy and distorted, the lens may be faulty. Glass lenses that are ground and polished to prescription quality are distortion-free.

Examine the frame carefully for fit. Make sure the temples — side pieces — are narrow enough to permit an unobstructed view. The

Men's designs are rerun

America's top menswear designers are straddling the center line on a familiar road with their fall and winter fashions.

They're showing garments of nature's own materials and of polyester — just like they did last year.

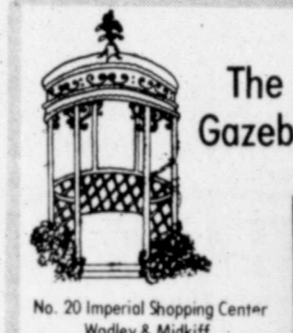

They're showing both bright and somber colors — just like they did last year.

As a matter of fact, their designs are little changed from what has been on the racks over the last couple of years.

If anything, their clothes are more middle-of-the-road.

A return to quality.

Preppie look right on city streets and college campuses

The updated preppie look for fall will be as right to wear on city streets and in suburban shopping malls as on college campuses. It is definitely not a for-students-only look.

Those who mourned its demise 20 years ago and have been saving crew-neck sweaters, plaid skirts and circle pins in the attic will be right in step. And those who vow to never give up the comfort of blue jeans and cowboy boots will applaud the updated version since it incorporates these newer American classics.

"The hallmarks of the preppie look are easy fit, simple, well-cut styling and soft, heathery colors," says Ann Winfield, fashion coordinator for F. W. Woolworth. "Layering will be an important feature and a warm, practical way of combating reduced temperature settings in schools and offices."

"Sweaters are an important part of the layered look, worn over pin-striped blouses with white collars or with a paisley challis scarf tucked neatly into the neckline.

Two key styles are the V-neck raglan pullover and the crew-neck Shetland wool. Striped crew necks are a young, livelier version of this look.

"Blazers are essential and you needn't necessarily buy a new one to be fashionable," says Winfield. "Revive the classic navy blazer in your closet with brass buttons and substitute leather buttons on your corduroy or tweed blazer. Sew suede or leather patches on worn elbows of an older jacket to restyle it.

"Ribbon ties are a neat and inexpensive way of adding a fresh touch to the basic white or light blue man-tailored shirt. A yard of narrow navy ribbon purchased at a local variety store is all you need," says Winfield.

Knee socks are news again, in heathery cable knits and trendier argyles. Knee socks look right with classic chestnut brown moccasins and provide extra warmth under cowboy boots.

Neatness counts in the preppie look. A monochromatic color scheme that combines straight-leg blue jeans, a heather blue crew-neck Shetland sweater and a quilted vest that reverses from navy to French blue is as fashionable as it is practical.

Neutrals and subtle mixings of beige, camel and gold are all part of this new look. Strong contrasts are out, with the exception of red which remains part of the classic preppie story.

Other accessories that will help pull together the look are striped belts,

All in blue preppie version of the great American jeans outfit can be assembled easily. Cableknit heather blue Shetland sweater is paired with paisley challis scarf and quilted reversible vest. Combine with jeans, argyle socks and either brown moccasins or palomino stitched Western style boots.

Clothes' quality not affected by economy

Asked if the uncertain economy has influenced the quality of clothes being manufactured, Nipon's Susan Diamond and others were vehement in their denials.

"In our price ranges — generally $200 and way on up — that would be the worst thing designers could do," Diamond said. "We sell not only concepts and good designs, but also quality in tailoring detail and beautiful fabrics."

Helen Sidel, who said her reorders on fall designs have been the best yet, predicted that women will buy "one fantastic item to make last year's clothes look great. Then, if possible, she'll add to it. That's what we've been talking about during these last two seasons — the idea of investment buying. Women want clothing that will go on for several seasons."

Michael Lichtenstein, managing director for Halston, said that Halston had kept his prices down, "with tremendous effort, but then we always have the many clients who are 'recession-proof.' In other words, the economy doesn't affect them one way or the other."

Jean-Paul Radley, representing Pauline Trigere, and other designers, said they are looking with interest into the foreign market. Calvin Klein has moved into the Japanese market and had great success.

"With the dollar falling, we need to look to Europe and Japan for business. It's going to be a matter of going out and selling, just as it's always been," Radley said.

Gerry Gutenberg, representing Giorgio Sant'Angelo had a ready explanation for the quantity of voluptuously gala dresses for after-5 and formal balls. He said, "Women need a lift more now than ever before. We see a lot of women going to election year fund-raisers, defeat suppers and victory dances."

Gutenberg was not, of course, talking about morning coffees and box lunch picnics. Neither was he talking about the majority of women who, when they spend, will do it on a good coat, suit or dress which will carry them from office through dinner.

There were quite a few items shown in the more practical category. A selection of coats from Trigrere for Abe Schrader appeared to be great buys.

Done in meltons, poodle-cloth wool and plain, woven wools, they were a standout. Colors ranged from bright red, black and camel to tones of gray and plum.

Colored stones popular in fall jewelry fashions

But, diamonds and pearls still haven't lost their touch

By FRANCES MOORE
Lifestyle Writer

Colored stones, along with traditional diamonds, are predicted to be the "thing" in fall jewelry fashions.

According to an article by Karen Berman, senior associate editor of the "National Jeweler," that after five years of active growth, the gem investment market is expanding to encompass colored stones along with diamonds.

This trend was apparent at a recent International Investment Gemstone Conference held in Los Angeles, Calif.

According to one jewelry dealer, the competition in the field of colored stone jewelry is "fierce." This type of jewelry is affordable, perfect for day wear, evening wear, casual wear, anywhere.

This dealer states stone jewelry is the "hottest seller this year." Coral, sodalite, black onyx, tiger eye, garnets, jade, cultured pearls, Biwa pearls and other stones are used in necklaces, earrings, bar pins, bracelets and rings. And, of course, the ever popular beads.

At the Los Angeles conference, Bill Kennedy of Western Monetary Consultants, Fort Collins, Colo., said his firm "sees colored stones as a ground floor opportunity, much like silver."

Pearls and diamonds still are favorites. One pendant collection has gold-filled and sterling silver pendants and earring sets featuring settings with cultured pearls, one-point single cut diamonds and other genuine stones.

Then, there is an 18-carat circle pin featuring platinum and diamonds. There also is a 15-inch herringbone chain displaying a single colored stone station. A herringbone bracelet with either one or three colored stones is available.

Earrings combine the look of pearls with diamonds. Fourteen-carat green gold pearls mix with 18 points of diamonds in dangling earrings. Also, there are six pearls with one diamond in a simple design.

There also is a pendant, with an oval of black onyx, tiger eye, carnelian, jade or sodalite backing an initial.

Chains, for both men and women, remain in style. There are chains with 14-carat beads, stone beads of black onyx, jade and lapis. Also straight corrugated 14-carat chains.

Antiquated jewelry trends at the recent Milan and Basel Fairs were realized with the dominance at both shows of classic fashions like cultured pearls, alone or in combination with colored beads. According to a spokesman with the National Jewelry Institute, "There is no limit to the profusion of color and diamonds in expensive, high ticket jewelry, with exhibitors mousing their belief in the investment syndrome."

As for pins, there are Art Deco pins crafted in 18-carat gold, and there are rings that combine gold and silver along with pure metals. It is reported rings have the look and quality of 14-carat gold with prohibitive prices.

Accessories that reflect the traditional mood in neat classic designs are the clear winners for the '80s lifestyle. The favorite look of the identification bracelet is updated to add a finishing touch to the contemporary man's wardrobe. IDs, like the tubular design shown, add easy class to both business and casual attire.

ID bracelets popular again

As the United States moves into the '80s, the jewelry fashion world is experiencing a resurgence of interest in the identification bracelet as an off-the-cuff jewelry staple.

When Speidel created the identification bracelet during World War II, it could not have foreseen that, 5 years later, today's generation would use it as a way to express itself.

Today's fashion-conscious 12- to 20-year-olds are buying and wearing the identents just as their parents did at the same age.

In fact, their parents are enjoying stylized versions of the ID once

A broad combination of sociological and economic factors has been at work to boost the ident as a fashion accessory for both men and women.

Throughout history, individuals have sought to leave some sort of mark on their world — something to prove "I was here."

From the walls of ancient Pompeii to the sides of New York subways, a significant percentage of graffiti has been nothing more than the name of the individual artist.

At least one sociological study found strong ethnic factors at work in graffiti. The high influence of individual names among graffiti in the Southwest, the study said, "reflects the high value attached to personal names in Spanish-American culture."

The fashionable ident bracelet has become a socially acceptable tablet for graffiti.

"After all, you can tell someone 'I love you' or 'You're 11 on a scale of 10' on a gift ident as well as by painting it on a building," says Bob Bickel, product manager for identents at Speidel. "And I think that's what is happening in many cases."

Speidel alone provides about 40 percent of the many millions of identents sold in this country each year. According to the company, identents for men and women are equally popular.

In the 35 or more years they've been around, identents have enjoyed high and low visibility in the fashion world. During the '50s, it seemed that almost every high school student in the country exchanged identents with his or her steady date as a pre-classing symbol.

During the '60s and '70s, on the other hand, identents became what Bickel refers to as a phantom product.

"Sales were strong, but you never saw anybody wearing one."

Re-emphasis on the individual in the late '70s and now, as the '80s begin, has brought a resurgence in the wearing of identents.

Fashion-conscious members of both sexes are wearing more jewelry, but the zooming cost of gold and silver creates a serious financial problem for gift-givers.

Jacala: The name may not mean anything now, but watch out

Halston, Bill Blass, Sergio S. Jacala III. The third name may not mean anything to you now, but watch for it. Jacala is probably the hottest young designer to ever come out of the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising in Los Angeles in the school's 11-year history. Winner of multiple design awards, the 22-year-old Jacala is on his way. His mentors say the coveted Coty Award is not out of this young man's reach. BUT IT HASN'T been an easy road for Jacala. Despite his talent as a creative designer, there have been long, hard hours learning the nuts and bolts of this complex trade. The culmination of all the hard work was the preview of his work at the Fashion Institute's recent Debut '80, which introduced the graduates of the school's first third-year advanced study program. The result was that Jacala was immediately hired by Jill Richards, a Los Angeles-based company that has a separates and evening wear line. It was a well-earned reward. "A trip to the big salons in Europe in 1977 was my first exposure out of this country since I moved here from the Philippines," Jacala says, adding that the European tour was the best thing that ever happened to him. "I never looked at American (fashion) magazines, just foreign magazines, and the trip brought them to life. What you see in the American magazines is already in the stores.

designing clothes than sketching them on a pad. MARY STEPHENS, CHAIRPERSON of the school's design department and an instructor in the advanced program describes the early struggles he faced. "Sergio has always done extremely well in creative design and sketching classes but when he started he couldn't sew, couldn't make patterns and couldn't set a sleeve. "It was frustrating for him. I kept telling him, 'Patience, Sergio. It all comes with time and patience,' but he would get so exasperated. I would tell him that Coco Chanel worked on sleeves for 35 years.

He may well win the Coty Award. There is a tremendous possibility there. He is the calibre of student who could do that. It wouldn't be a far-fetched dream." Both see him owning his own business someday, saying that he wouldn't be satisfied with any less. Jacala concurs. "My ultimate goal is to open my own business — a design house with my name. "It is the goal of most students. I want it because it would mean more freedom. It is hard for me to follow anybody."

Meanwhile, he is happy at the prospect of working for Jill Richards. The last year has been spent with couturier Michael Novarese which was an invaluable experience. "IT WAS SORT OF a push. It was exciting," he says. But it will involve a different approach, doing mass production clothes instead of couture. As Jacala says, "You have to wear different hats in the industry. You have to think about the customer."

Fashion Institute president Tonian Hohberg is pleased with his students and talks of an invasion of New York design and "turning New York on its ear."

Jacala just grins when he hears that kind of talk. He already has a scenario in mind. He sees California as a challenge and a great place to work. "It's like the movie 'The Invasion of the Body Snatchers.' I am going to make a movie. It is going to be called 'The Invasion of the New York Designers,'" he says, with his own visions of turning New York on its ear.

"CLOTHING IN EUROPE has life. They really are advanced color-wise and in silhouettes. Just walking around the streets you can see what will be fashionable." He feels that this is true because clothes are not coordinated for Europeans the way they are in this country. As he says, "The French are forced to visualize and mix and that is what makes fashion." The trip gave the young design student, who has spent his whole life sketching and following fashion, an inside look into the world of top fashion design — at the couturiers who call the shots. From then on, he was determined to go somewhere in this field. But, he soon found out that there was more to

Plaid in any style or color is a fall winner

If it's plaid in any of a rainbow of colors, has ruffles or big bows at the throat and is topped or touched with black velvet, it's a winner for fall. Plaids are perfect this season, whether in full swinging skirts, dresses, or pants which are a little straighter in cut but still display some pleating at the waist. Another trend that seems definite is the move toward very feminine luxurious-looking late-day dresses, often short but with some hitting just above the ankle in an opera length. Don Sayres may have wrapped up the subject nicely with his comment on why such extravagance in a recessionary economic climate: "Designers can't start making clothes out of flour sacks no matter what the economic times. It's even more important to give a woman a lift now with pretty clothes, not to mention the men who will be looking at her." And Sayres, who has made his reputation on cleanly cut, expensive sporty looks, meant what he said. His collection consists of ultra-feminine dusty pinks — pink flannel evening pants topped with pink glitter chiffon blouses. He also splattered angora evening sweaters with rhinestones, then tucked them into pale gray flannel or black silk pants.

As far as colors go, chocolate brown looks like a winner for fall.

Jerry Silverman used it in his collection, most often in daytime dresses which skim the waistline with ease, then flare out into a full hemline. Contrasting bands of deep burgundy were sometimes used, and the deep brown was accented several times by lipstick red coats.

Becky Hendricks' True Story:

It seemed like everyone who came into my family's store asked me if I was putting on weight. That hurt my feelings, but I knew I had gained too much. Although I'm tall (5'10"), I couldn't excuse 164 pounds.

When I saw a newspaper ad for Pat Walker's salon close to my Stockbridge, Georgia home, I went in for a complimentary treatment. From my very first visit, I liked the encouraging attitude of the counselors. They taught me so much about how to eat sensibly, without denying myself my favorite foods.

I really like relaxing on Pat Walker's passive exercise unit, too. Those sessions (2 or 3 times a week) kept my figure smooth and firm while I lost 24 pounds and a total of 30 inches.

Now, everyone compliments me on how good I look. I tell them I couldn't have done it without Pat Walker's.

Make an appointment now for a free, no-obligation consultation at Pat Walker's. Utilizing the front slit to the best advantage, the focus on this fall creation is decidedly on the leg.

It pays to sew as children grow

By WANDA MOUTON
Lifestyle Editor

What can be more discouraging to the mother of growing children than to discover that a brand-new store-bought wardrobe no longer fits—and it didn't even have a chance to wear out!

To eliminate this problem, the manager of a local fabric store suggests sewing for children. "While it's true that making children's clothes will not stop the children from growing as fast, there are ways to surmount growth problems, cut about one-third of clothing costs, and create up-to-the-minute children's fashions," she said.

A busy mother can easily save time, energy and money when making kids clothes. Since yardage requirements are smaller for children's size, she can use fabric, trim and notions "leftovers" from previous sewing projects (a great way to houseclean!). When buying fabric for one project, she can plan ahead and purchase extra yardage that will add to a youngster's wardrobe; she'll save fuel energy, as well as her own, by eliminating another trip to the store.

"A quick check at the remnant counter often reveals small quantities of good fabrics at reduced prices," said the manager. "Actual sewing time will be reduced if the home sewer learns to use the sewing aides, notions and machine attachments that will help her complete her projects quickly and efficiently."

Children's patterns cover a wide range of sizes, from tots to teens, she said. "Pattern companies concentrate on 'function', as well as fashion, she explained. "Patterns range from easy-to-make overnight silhouettes to styles requiring more detailed work. The sewer's ability, her sewing time available and the garment's end-use should all be taken into account when choosing a pattern."

"Whether the garment is for back-to-school, or out-to-play, sturdy, washable fabrics should always be chosen to withstand a child's wear and tear," she said.

She also had other tips:

● Although good fit is an important part of sewing for children, it is not hard to accomplish. The sewer should simply keep in mind that "growth spurts" generally occur in the length—arms, legs and waist. Because the shoulders, upper chest and neckline change much less drastically and less frequently, children's sizes should be chosen by measurements, never by age.

● Let tucks help with "growth spurts". A tuck is a fold of fabric stitched along all or part of its length. Add several inches to the lower edge of a skirt when cutting out. Take up excess length with one or more tucks on the outside—if a decorative effect is desired—or on the inside, turn hem to proper length and take one big tuck of excess fabric close to hem edge. Hem and press tuck toward hemline. To lengthen, simply rip out tuck stitches. For boys trousers make pants two inches longer than called for, take up extra length with a one inch tuck on the inside as described above. As length grows, let out tuck and pants grow too! A dress has perfect "growth" potential; extra length tucked above the waistline can easily be hidden by a belt or sash until it's let out.

● Sewing for kids is a perfect excuse for some old-fashioned "togetherness." Children care about what they wear, so let them take an active part in the creation of their wardrobe. They can choose colors and styles they like, as well as help decide on special touches: personalizing with hand or machine embroidered designs or names, selecting favorite animals for applique, putting on a special pocket or using easy-to-operate closures so they can dress themselves. If clothes are destined to be "pass-alongs", let the newest owner decide on special additions that will make them his or hers alone.

Natural vs. synthetic Natural fibers. You hear that term tossed around frequently by those associated with the fashion industry.

What are the natural fibers they talk about and are they really much better than their synthetic counterparts?

In the clothing industry, natural fibers are fibers that come from animals and plants. The more popular animal fibers are wool, silk, angora, cashmere and camel's hair. Cotton is the most widely used plant fiber, followed by flax and latex. Flax is used to makelinen. Latex is an elastic yarn made from the rubber plant.

Weaving cloth from these fibers is an ancient art. Around 2000 B.C., the people of India were making cloth from the fibers of cotton plants while the Chinese were weaving silk from the threads of silkworm cocoons. The ancient Egyptians developed the art of making linen from flax.

By contrast, synthetic fibers are made by chemical processes. Many look and feel like "the real thing" and often have superior qualities.

Examples of synthetic fibers are nylon, orlon, dacron and polyester.

When woven, they have many of the qualities and characteristics of wool, cotton and other natural fibers. The fashion industry will often make blends by weaving synthetic fibers with natural fibers in different percentages.

The next time you look at a garment, take a look at the label and you'll see the differences. Some say 100 percent wool, while others may have 50 percent wool, 25 percent camel's hair, 25 percent polyester. Or you might see 65 percent silk paired with 35 percent polyester.

In today's fashion industry, the weight of the fiber and the way it is woven are important to the style of the garment. In Europe, for example, the cloth used for a suit is very heavy. In the United States, such material would be used for topcoats.

Older children can actively take part in clothing construction by helping to cut out and maybe sew parts of the garment.

News on men's hairstyles for fall

Nothing looks phony about it - if it's done right. And artificial curl is definitely a part of the '80s fashion scene, even more than in the '70s. There's nothing unusual these days about a man taking his rightful place in a salon chair next to a member of the opposite sex. But all is not just business as usual in men's hairstyling. Changes are due for American men as they approach the first fall of the '80s. "Radical ones," promises hairstylist Jerry Platt. As with many new fashion ideas, this one comes from Europe. It's last year's news there, but Americans on both coasts have finally bought the idea of shorter hair. Much shorter hair.

"Men's hair no longer covers the ears or collar," Platt said. "Many clients are asking for shorter cuts with sideburns trimmed at mid-ear."

Perhaps more men are asking for this look, but not all men.

"Men are finally asking for the same rights women have had for a number of years - they want a look that suits their individual faces and lifestyles. Fashion today is very versatile, no one style is 'vogue.'"

Some phases of the not-to-be-forgotten crew cuts are again becoming popular with the younger generation who never wore them before.

Platt: "But only for the right face." The idea of the shag has been reversed to give a man a more full and masculine appearance.

"This look is achieved by cutting the hair in different, distinct lengths. The top needs to be longer and the sideburns short to give the face a clean, full look."

Again, Platt points out, this style is only for the man with the right face.

"The man with a full or round face may want to keep the top shorter and give the visual illusion of an oval face by leaving the sides just a bit longer."

Big change in perfumes

Perfumes and scented products are divided into two distinct groups so far as preference and use go—the young and the old. That, in itself, may come as no surprise.

The surprise lies in the fact that the market is due to change radically in the next 15 to 20 years as the current young enter their older years.

Janet Fox, marketing manager for Proprietary Perfumes Limited, says "that that segment of the population (men and women over 55), which comprises more than 45 million today, will be even bigger in the next generation as the postwar 'baby boom' matures."

Consumers should be in-store detectives to recognize garment's quality

Where garment pieces are joined, seams should match. These do — a sign of quality construction.

With inflation straining clothing budgets, today's consumer is buying fewer garments and insisting that they be more versatile and last longer than ever before. The goal is to avoid the experience of buying a fashionable garment, only to have it stretch out of shape or pull apart at the seams after just a few washings or wearings.

According to Dr. Robert Springborn, testing specialist and consultant to Ban-Lon, it is possible — and easy — for us to become in-store detectives, recognizing quality before we buy. A little bit of sleuthing goes a long way in preventing costly and disappointing purchases.

Deciding on whether or not to make a particular purchase is similar to putting together a jigsaw puzzle. If all the pieces fit, the decision is easy and economical.

According to Springborn, the label is the first clue the consumer is given in solving the purchasing dilemma.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT requires that labels showing fiber content and care instructions be permanently affixed to all items of apparel.

Reading the label carefully will provide vital information when considering a purchase:

1. Manufacturer and Trademark — Do you recognize the name of the manufacturer? Is it a firm with an excellent reputation for quality products?

2. Fiber Content — This information will tell you what material the garment is made of. If it is a blend of more than one material, such as polyester and cotton, the label will tell you the percentages of each of the fibers used. Check this information to see if the garment contains any fiber that might irritate an existing skin condition or cause an allergic reaction.

3. Care Instructions — These instructions should be read and carefully followed. Some garments may have special finishes, treatments or trimmings which dictate that they be dry-cleaned even though the fiber content would normally be washable. Do you really want to buy that item when you add up the additional expense of having it frequently dry-cleaned?

LET'S ASSUME YOU'VE found the perfect outfit for that special occasion.

So it costs a little more than you had planned on spending, but it may really be worth the extra money. Make sure by inspecting the garment closely.

Remove the garment from the hanger or counter and hold it up to the light. No need for a magnifying glass. Check for any stains or discoloration. Look for tiny pulls, snags or tears at the seams. If the garment is patterned, check to see if the pattern matches up at the seams. Do the seams match where the sleeves, collar and cuffs are joined? Examine the overall appearance of the garment.

Now, it's time for a closer inspection. Turn the garment inside out and check the seams. Stitching should be reinforced at the ends of seams with no threads pulling loose. Seams should be finished with an overstitch or pinked to prevent unraveling.

SEAMS AT STRESS points such as the seat and armholes should be wide and even to resist pulling — particularly on pants, skirts and children's clothing.

Buttons, buttonholes, plackets and zippers should all be examined. Does the material around the placket or zipper bunch or pucker? Are there loose threads or rough edges? Does the zipper get caught in overlapping material or loose threads? If the answer to these questions is yes, you can be sure that this is not a well-constructed garment.

Cuffs and collars should lie flat with no puckering. While you're checking out these areas, examine the stitching at the collar, hem and underarm seams. Gently stretch the garment at these points — how tight is the stitching? Stitching on belt loops, zipper plackets and pockets should also be reinforced.

Your next step in examining the garment is to check out the details. Hooks and eyes, buttons and snaps should all be sewn securely to the fabric with no loose threads. Material should not pucker around the fasteners.

ANY TRIMMING or detail work, no matter how attractive, should be looked over to see how well it is attached and to make sure it is not camouflaging what may be a poorly constructed garment. Also be careful that trimmings on a washable garment don't require special care — sequins, glitter and suede collars may dictate that the whole garment be dry-cleaned for the sake of the trimmings.

Pockets and lapels should lie flat and be reinforced at corners. Inside seams should be trimmed to prevent bulkiness at corners and edges.

Finally! It's time to head for the fitting room. Sizes do vary from manufacturer to manufacturer, so be sure to try it on.

It is tempting to purchase a sweater or knit top without a trip to the dressing room. However, a garment that doesn't fit well is never a bargain. Tiny imperfections that may not be visible on the hanger may show up when you put the garment on.

Raise your arms over your head. Is there enough room for easy movement? Seams should not pull and there should be plenty of elbow room. Knit cuffs, waistbands and turtleneck collars should spring back to form.

Check zippers, buttons and snaps for ease in dressing and undressing.

Does the garment slide easily over your head? Is there any strain on the buttons? Again, check the overall appearance. Does it drape well? Are hems even all the way around? Does the garment lie smoothly?

Petite sizes can be hard to find

If you want to witness righteous indignation in action, ask a petite woman if she has a hard time finding clothes that fit her.

First, a look of naked vexation will cross her face. Then she'll launch into a lengthy discourse on the difficulties of locating size 3AAA sandals, the annoyance of trying on blazers that hang to the knee, the pathos of buying a beautiful French Provencal print dress only to lose the border pattern entirely in taking up the hem.

"The expensive stores carry petite sizes, so you have nothing to worry about if you're petite and you're a millionaire," said the 5-foot-1-inch Marge Swenson, a sewing columnist and a fashion coordinator and instructor at the Fashion Academy in Costa Mesa, Calif.

"But a short woman who's a size 10 can buy almost nothing in the stores," she added. "That's why I sew almost everything I wear."

Few shorties would deny that they are given short shrift by the garment industry. But where can they turn for consolation other than to their sewing machines?

Wendy Rogers says she has an answer — the Great American Short Story, a 2-year-old chain of clothing stores exclusively for women 5 feet 3 inches or shorter. Rogers maintains the most recently established link in the chain, in Orange, Calif.

The inventory includes everything from the minute, narrow size 0 — yes, there really is such a size — to a size 14 designed for the short but amply built woman.

"Not everyone who is short is built like Twiggy," said Rogers, a pretty,

4-foot-11 blonde. "Our size 14s are proportioned for a short woman — the sleeve length, the position of the pockets, the hemline, the pant length, everything."

Every item in the store is designed exclusively for short women, she said. The chain has its own garment manufacturing company, the Petite Body Engineering Co., which until recently produced clothing only for Great American.

The chain also carries leather garments produced by the only firm in the country that creates leather for petites, she said.

Prices run "from moderate to nice," Rogers said — "nice" meaning the $120 blazers, the $60 silk blouses and the tailored jacket, pants and skirt sets the often sells to attorneys and other dress-for-success types.

Most prizes, however, are comparable to those found in any specialty clothing shop.

"It's great to be able to buy clothes and not have to do major surgery on them," Rogers said. "I haven't had to take up anything I buy here more than an inch or two."

All of the store's saleswomen are 5 foot 3 or shorter, running the gamut from a 4-foot-9 woman who weighs 80 pounds to a 5-foot-2 woman who wears a size 14. And they all appreciate the opportunity to buy clothing that is not designed for 13-year-olds, Rogers said.

"There are a lot of stores that carry junior petite clothing of the type that a junior high school girl would wear — little girly, frou-frou stuff," she said. "We have classic styles that more mature women like."

This Italian furniture originates in the Malaysian jungles—the source of Malacca cane, famous for its strength.

In Sant'Ippolito, craftsmen transform the wild rattan into graceful furniture. They clamp the cane in vices, heat it with torches, and bend it into shape like blacksmiths working with iron, each piece hand wrought.
