Polish strikes seem near end

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Poland's worst labor crisis in a decade appeared to be near an end today, after the Polish Communist Party approved a settlement with striking Polish workers that provides "independent, self-governing trade unions" and other political and economic reforms.

The party's Central Committee in Warsaw approved the agreements that strike leaders in Gdansk and Szczecin, the major port 180 miles west of here, said would send workers back to their posts by Monday.

Initial reports indicated that not all of the Gdansk workers' 21 demands had been met, but that the agreement guarantees the right to strike, provides immunity from prosecution for strike leaders, the release of political prisoners and relaxation of censorship laws except when military, economic or state secrets are involved.

A draft of the agreement said "the government will be obliged to prepare and present a complete program implementing all these demands, taking into consideration the economic possibilities of the country by Sept. 30."

The statement suggested that the workers would return to work as a show of "good faith" and that the agreement represented a compromise recognizing Poland's severe economic problems.

As strike leader Andrzej Gwiazda read the communique announcing the tentative accord, hundreds of cheering workers gathered in the Lenin Shipyards here threw their old union cards into the air.

After meeting with jubilant workers at the shipyards, flashpoint for the strike which began Aug. 14 and spread across the nation, First Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski returned to Warsaw to submit the accord to the Central Committee, which must grant final approval.

"And I shall have the agreement signed there. I shall return tonight," he said before leaving Gdansk, 180 miles north of Warsaw.

Sources on the Inter-Factory Strike Committee, which represents strikers in the Gdansk-Gdynia area, said they would order workers to return to their jobs Monday if the Central Committee approved the accord. Strikers in other cities have said repeatedly they would follow the lead of the Gdansk committee.

Full details of the tentative accord were not immediately available. However, Lech Badkowski, a member of the worker negotiating team, said his group did not "demand the destruction of the old trade unions." This indicated there would be parallel union organizations — one under party control and the other independent.

Under terms of the settlement, both sides agreed that the independent trade union would be built on "socialist principles" and that the Communist Party would retain its leading role in Polish society.

"The role of the trade union will be to protect and defend the material and social interests of the working class," said the joint communique.

The agreement also provides for a new labor law which would guarantee the right to strike, a key demand of the workers.

The announcement came shortly after Jagielski told the strikers here the government had accepted demands for establishment of "self-governing trade unions."

But it had not been clear then if the government's "self-governing trade union" met the strikers' demand for trade unions independent from the Communist Party. The announcement of tentative accord specifically included the word "independent" in describing the new unions as well as the earlier term "self-governing."

Jagielski's earlier statement followed reports of an agreement in Szczecin on "self-governing trade unions."

Rig fire hampers effort to locate crew members

PORT O'CONNOR, Texas (AP) — Flames shot 100 feet into the air from a burning gas well Saturday, hampering a search for three people missing after the offshore rig exploded, killing two workers and injuring seven, the Coast Guard said.

High flames and intense heat around the rig, 18 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico, hindered the search for missing men by helicopters and Coast Guard vessels, officials said.

"There is gas burning on the water and the platform and the wellhead, which is broken about halfway up," said Coast Guard Lt. Steve Sparks in Corpus Christi.

Officials said the flames were still shooting 75 feet into the air Saturday night and that the blaze could continue for up to 60 days — or as long as it takes to cap the runaway well.

Coast Guard officials called off the search for the missing men at dark, but said it would resume Sunday.

However, officials said the missing men would be difficult to find while the fire continued to burn.

"Until we get it under control it will be extremely hard to find those missing men," said Bob Hutton, a spokesman for the Tulsa-based Cities Service Co., owners of the well.

Hutton, production manager for the company, said the missing men were "probably" on or near the blazing well.

An effort to cap the runaway well is scheduled to start around noon Sunday, he said.

"We will bring in two very large barges to pump water on the rig to cool the metal down and keep the thing from melting down further or collapsing," Hutton said. "The first should start around noon, and then it will take about 24 hours to get the second barge pumping."

Hutton said a crew from Cities Service will move in sometime Monday and begin to drill a relief well near the crippled rig.

"We will drill into the existing well and kill it from the relief well," he said. "It could take up to 60 days to do this."

Hutton said the fire would probably burn until the well is capped or until a natural "bridge" of earth collapses into the well and stops the flow of gas.

He said company officials "felt sure" the 6 m. explosion was due to a buildup of pressure.

"This was the first well drilled into this structure, and when you drill a wildcat well you never know what kind of pressure is involved," he said.

"The pressure here must have been terrific for the thing to go up like it did."

Hutton said defective equipment could have contributed to the explosion, but "we couldn't speculate on that at this point because we really don't know."

Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co. of New Orleans, which owns the rig, had been drilling the wildcat well for Cities Service for about 80 days, an ODECO spokesman said.

Kent Young, spokesman for Cities Service Co., said eleven men were left on the rig to "contend with the pressure buildup and try to get things under control" when the explosion occurred.

Killed were William Blanco, a rig mechanic, 55, of Daphne, Ala., and Parvin N. Bailey, a Cities Service drilling foreman, 42, Deridder, La.

Missing are Lonnie Bessonette, 46, Brookhaven, Miss., Gary Snelling, 32, Lafayette, La., and Sam Smith Jr., 23, Prentiss, Miss.

Lester Wiese, 39, Angleton, Texas, a crewman on a rescue boat, broke both arms during the evacuation, said Warren True of John Sealy Hospital in Galveston.

Five ODECO employees were killed earlier this month when a helicopter crashed while evacuating rig workers as Hurricane Allen approached.

Four-year-old Mesquite girl drowns in swimming pool

A 4-year-old Mesquite girl visiting relatives in Midland County drowned Saturday afternoon in her uncle's swimming pool.

An ambulance and Sheriff's deputies were dispatched about 4:30 p.m. to the Charlie Cooper residence on County Road 130, just west of County Road 1200 Robin Melville, 4, was taken by ambulance to Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room and pronounced dead on arrival by Peace Justice Robert Pine.

The child reportedly was found in nine feet of water in the Cooper's pool. A neighbor visiting the residence pulled the child from the water. Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation was given, and emergency medical technicians administered CPR in a futile effort to revive the child.

Funeral services are being handled by Newbie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

The maturing of labor

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.
Editor in Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

Tomorrow the nation will observe Labor Day with the ugly spectre of mounting unemployment clouding the fact that the highest number of Americans in history is currently employed.

The jobless, along with the elderly and underpaid minority workers, are devastated by the ever-spiraling rate of inflation.

Organized labor in the U.S. is unique in the world. It is maturing and showing greater responsibility with each passing year. During the recent years of economic turmoil, most segments have kept their demands within feasible limits, despite the inflationary pressure.

Further evidence of organized labor's maturity is the concern of big labor's officials over the plunging rate of productivity.

It was the spokesmen for labor — AFL-CIO president Lane Kirkland, later joined by Douglas Fraser, president of the Auto Workers' Union — who were among the first to point out that America's economy will continue to slip so long as there is not enough money available to the corporate world to build new plants and equipment and to expand productivity, technological research and development.

Labor, still considered by many to be the instinctive enemy of corporations, recognized the problems of big business long before the general public did and certainly before the problems were recognized in Washington.

Tomorrow is a proper day to pay tribute to George Meany, late head of the AFL-CIO, who used a firm hand throughout the years to prevent communist infiltration of the labor movement. He saved the U.S. from the fate that has befallen other nations, causing havoc in labor's ranks.

I put in a good many hours daily working for and a great many more thinking about how to better the organization that I represent — and have.

Editor's Report

come to think of it, for better than 50 years. Nevertheless, there is a great deal of difference between the work I do and the sometimes monotonous work of the union man. However, my sympathies are and always have been — except of certain occasions — for the men and women who work for their living and for their right to organize.

All of us should appreciate and honor those whose efforts and endeavors brought this nation to its position of strong industrial leadership, and who are now trying to defend that position on behalf of all Americans.

Midland likely won't join census suit trend

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

Midland Mayor G. Thane Akins is downplaying the possibility the city might file suit against the Census Bureau over this year's count. But he has not totally ruled out that possibility.

City officials throughout the nation have been up in arms recently over the census counts, charging they are low and inaccurate. Some cities have been talking about the possibility of legal action against the Census Bureau over the counts. Others already have instigated lawsuits.

Asked whether Midland is considering a lawsuit over its census figures, Akins this week would not deny the possibility exists, but he did not indicate a suit is under consideration.

"I think it would be premature to talk about that kind of drastic action," the mayor commented.

Figures released earlier by the Census Bureau placed Midland's 1980 population at 66,998. The county's population is placed at 77,700. Comparatively, Midland's 1970 population was 59,463 and the county's count was 65,433.

But city, county and chamber of commerce officials claim the city's population is more like 72,000 to 73,000. They are challenging the Census Bureau figures — but they're not even threatening a lawsuit, yet.

"I don't believe we're at that point yet," Akins noted. "The people from Lubbock have been very cooperative in every way with us."

And he noted, officials have sent to those Census Bureau "people" at Lubbock quite a lot of "good statistical data that says our preliminary figures were low."

That data included the results of a 3 percent area probability sample conducted to locate Midlanders missed by the census, a list of uncounted households located by way of a chamber call-in program, a letter from the city's water and sewer billing division which identifies every occupied dwelling unit in census tracts 1, 7 and 8 — the tracts in which the undercount appears particularly high — and other documentation.

Recently, Akins participated in the Mayors' Advisory Committee to the Governor meeting in Austin concerning the census. Secretary of State George Strake and Texas 2000 Director Vic Arnold indicated at that meeting that legal action against the census should be considered if cities are not happy with final census results.

Officials are primarily concerned with obtaining an accurate count because changing census figures can

World's unemployment likely will worsen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Worldwide unemployment will continue to worsen over the next 15 years as the number of people seeking jobs grows, the Environmental Fund predicted Saturday.

The fund predicted that between 1965 and 1985 the world labor pool will have increased by 931.3 million people.

"What is alarming besides the general increase in the labor force, is that the largest increases occur in regions that already are suffering from extremely serious employment problems," noted Dr. Garrett Hardin of the fund.

The fund predicted that the labor force increase from 1965 to 1985 in Latin America will amount to 127 percent, growing from 79.2 million workers to 179.7 million.

In Africa, the group said, the growth is expected to be from 122.8 million to 248.1 million, or 102 percent.

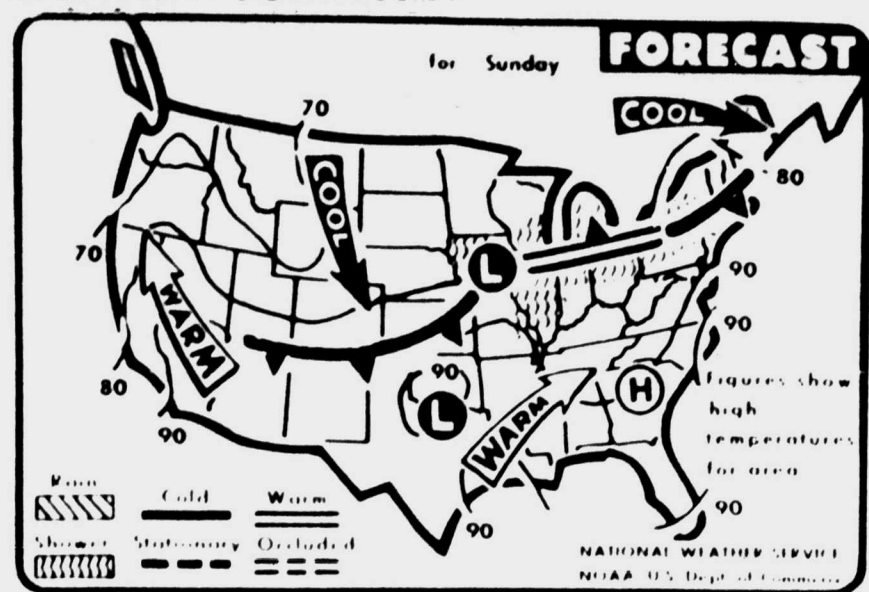

Other anticipated labor force increases include Asia, up 74 percent from 787.1 million to 1,369 billion; North American, up from 86.8 million to 131.9 million, or 52 percent; Europe, up 21 percent from 197.5 million to 238.9 million; the Soviet Union, growing 27 percent to 145.1 million from 114.5 million, and Oceania, up 78 percent from 7.3 million to 13 million workers.

Hardin is the chief executive of the fund, an organization that seeks to focus attention on population growth as a part of worldwide social problems.

He said the group chose this weekend — America's Labor Day — to release its estimates "to highlight the dramatic effects of rising populations on the labor force of today and tomorrow."

The labor force projections for 1985 are not conjectural, Hardin said, since the people who will be seeking to enter the labor force in that year have already been born.

French economy worse

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
PARIS (AP) — A strike by French fishermen, with their sporadic blockades of the nation's ports, is seen here as one more symptom of a growing economic malaise that has struck hard at the average Frenchman's ability to maintain his standard of living.
Coming on the heels of other walkouts this year in France, the fishermen's strike apparently is a reflection of a deep-seated anger at what many Frenchmen perceive as the failure of their government to put the country back on the road to worker prosperity.
The government's response is that France is trapped, like other Western nations, by rising oil prices and recession but is doing as well as can be expected under those circumstances.
The millions of French vacationers streaming back to their jobs this weekend from their annual August vacations will be faced with grim news:
—Prices were up 1.5 percent in July from the previous month, putting the total increase at 8.7 percent since the beginning of the year.
—A 6.5 percent unemployment rate in July, with nearly 1.5 million people out of work, was a new record.
—A $9.2 billion foreign trade deficit since Jan. 1.
—Inflation running at more than 13 percent, higher than West Germany and Switzerland but lower than Britain.

An Analysis

Each time the French homemaker goes to the market, she comes away with less food for the same amount of money, a situation that prevails as well for her counterparts in the United States and other countries. But living since the summer began in France, the cost of public transportation, tobacco, gasoline, automobiles and rents, all controlled by the government, have risen.
A cup of coffee is the equivalent of $1.25 and a gallon of gasoline $3.26.
In the case of the fishermen, the unifying issue between the commercial shipowners and the independents is the skyrocketing price of the diesel fuel which powers their boats. Though it is subsidized, the dramatic increase in the past year from about 60 cents a liter (56 cents a gallon) to 1.13 francs a liter ($1.06 a gallon) has taken a deep bite out of disposable income and as a consequence has lowered living standards.
The fishing industry is only one example of the economic problems that in recent months have led to strikes on the national railroad, the

Anderson calls for tax incentives

WASHINGTON (AP) — John B. Anderson, saying "something has gone wrong" with the nation's economy, made public Saturday a platform for his independent presidential campaign calling for tax incentives to discourage inflationary wage and price increases.
The 300-page document on which the veteran Illinois congressman will run his fall campaign also proposes new overtures to the Soviet Union to ease ratification of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) by the U.S. Senate.
"We believe America is in peril because our tradition of self-government has been eroded," said the platform introduction signed by both Anderson and his running mate, Patrick J. Lucey, a liberal Democrat from Wisconsin.
The platform charts a middle course between those produced by the Republican and Democratic conventions, and reflects Anderson's philosophy that the federal tax system is the most potent weapon available for national economic recovery.
But while American industry would receive billions in tax breaks to encourage new research and the purchases of new equipment, Anderson said that unlike President Carter and Ronald Reagan, he opposes any consumer tax cuts as inflationary.
Most of the specifics in platform have been spelled out during the 14 months Anderson has been running for the presidency, first as a Republican seeking the GOP nomination, and then as an independent.
But the platform sets out in one place both Anderson's philosophy of government and the detailed means by which he proposes to lead the nation through an era of austerity.

Fired school teacher sues MISD

Calvin Baker, a veteran journalism teacher who claims he was fired because he would not "censor" the student newspaper at Midland High School, has filed a $900,000 lawsuit in federal court in Midland against his former principal, the superintendent, the Midland Independent School District's board of trustees and other administrators.
Baker, 41, alleges that his constitutional rights were violated by the defendants and that his reputation as a teacher and journalist damaged.
He is seeking $500,000 in actual damages and $400,000 in punitive damages. The ex teacher, who now is into landman's work, alleges that the defendants' decision to release him from the teaching faculty was "retaliatory in nature and not based on good faith."
Baker had taught journalism and English for 17 consecutive years. But last year, he was restricted to teaching sophomore English and then was fired. The defendants have alleged that Baker was not an effective teacher.
Named as defendants in the suit are:
—Jack Stone, principal of Midland Senior High School.
—Dr. James Mailey, superintendent of Midland public schools.
—Sarah Macina, chairperson of MHS's English Department.
—Dr. Patricia Smith, assistant principal of curriculum development at the high school.
—Ed E. Runyan, president of the school board.
—Marshall McCrea Jr., school board member.
—Billy Jackson, school board member.
—Johnny Warren, school board member.
—Ronald A. Britton, school board member.
—Joyce Sherrod, school board member.
—Parker Humes, school board member.
Baker claims that he was ordered to "censor" the student newspaper, "The Bulldog," in a February 1979 letter signed by Stone, Macina and Smith.
He declined to follow the order.

Toxic waste dumps found in U.S. daily

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Toxic waste dumps are found somewhere in the United States almost every day, yet health experts admit they are guessing when they try to link the chemicals to birth defects, cancer and other frightening afflictions.
"I don't think we'll really know what the health risks from toxic dumps are within our lifetime," said Lamar Miller, deputy director of the Environmental Protection Agency's hazardous waste task force in Washington.
Douglas MacMillan, task force director, noted 500 more such dumps, large and small, were discovered in June, an unusually high number in one month. He said research in the field is "an infant and developing science."
"The best scientific minds are trying to pin down the exact hazards from chemicals, but a specific risk assessment all too often boils down to pure guesswork," he said.
Dr. Renate Kimbrough of the National Center for Disease Control's toxicology division in Atlanta said that of the 50,000 to 70,000 chemicals now used in industry and science, "very, very few have ever been examined for health effects. There's a lot more we need to know."
The health hazards of even thoroughly investigated chemicals, such as lead, continue to be debated fiercely, she said.
The current controversy is the legacy of the haphazard way in which chemicals were discarded for decades, leaving many of the dump sites to be rediscovered today.
Their names read like a chemistry text: pentachlorophenol, toluene, TCDD, ethylene dibromide, DBCP, vinyl chloride, benzene.
All of these can be dangerous to humans, and all have been found at one time or another in landfills, streams, dumps and wells now under investigation by the EPA and other agencies.
Dr. Henry Falk, who heads a special study team at the CDC's chronic disease division, said potential dangers to those living nearby are hard to figure even at sites where much information is available.
"At Love Canal, people know how it developed, know the chemicals that are there and where they're buried," he said. "Nevertheless, there are still massive problems in defining the affected population and sorting out the health effects. When you get to lesser dumps and smaller populations... the problems become even more pronounced."
Neighbors of Love Canal, a section of Niagara Falls, N.Y., where an old canal was used for years as a chemical disposal area, have blamed the dump for cancer, birth defects and other problems they have suffered.
Some scientists contribute to the confusion by being "often over-cautious to the point of doing science and the public more harm than good," said a senior official with the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health in Washington who asked that his name not be used.

Pentagon picking out new military sidearms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is getting ready to pick a new sidearm after about two years of study and testing.
Nine different models of 9 millimeter semi-automatic weapons are in the running to replace the old standby .45 caliber and .38 caliber pistols.
Six different companies, only two of them American, have candidates in the competition.
The weapons are: Smith & Wesson Model 459, Colt SSP, Beretta 92S-1, Star M-28, Heckler and Koch P8S and VP70, and Fabrique Nationale DA, FA, and HP. Beretta is an Italian firm, Star is Spanish, Heckler and Koch is a German company, and Fabrique is Belgian.
If the Pentagon decides to choose one of the European guns, it won't be a "first." For example, Fabrique Nationale makes the M-240 machine gun for U.S. armored vehicles.
The Army said a "procurement plan has not been established" but estimated that about 580,000 handguns are required throughout the armed services. They are carried by military police, guards, aviators and others.
The tentative plan is to make the first buys of the new weapons "off the shelf," the Army said.
Later, the Army indicated, a U.S. production base would be established if the competition was won by a foreign firm.
This has a precedent in a Fabrique

Midland woman shot

Police are investigating the late Saturday night shooting of a Midland woman in her downstairs apartment at Wall Avenue and H Street.
The shooting at the Park Terrace Apartments was reported to police shortly before 10 p.m. When officers arrived, they found Virginia Miller with a small-caliber wound to the right side of her neck. Mrs. Miller was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room where she was undergoing treatment late Saturday. Her condition was unknown.
Police have recovered a handgun they suspect was used in the shooting.
The owner of the apartment complex, notified of the shooting by a tenant in the apartment above where the shooting occurred, said there were bullet holes in the apartment door. A Midland police detective confirmed there were three bullet holes in the door, but was unsure whether they were a result of Saturday night's shooting.
Mrs. Miller's husband was at home at the time of the shooting. Police said the shooting apparently was a continuation of an argument the two had at the Eagles Club earlier Saturday night.

affect the amount of federal funding allocations, state legislature restricting and congressional reapportionment.
But Akins is hoping the census squabble can be settled without taking the matter to court. He said he hopes the matter can be resolved through "good follow-up work."
He's been in contact with Mitzu Jordan at Lubbock's regional Census Bureau office and will meet soon with officials from that office to talk about the city's census figures.
"I'm just expecting anytime for them to set something up and go over the data with us, and try to work it out," the mayor added.

With computers ready to talk, will folks listen?

By SALLY CARPENTER

DALLAS (AP) — Man and machine now have a new way to communicate: by talking to each other. Texas Instruments, Inc., has reproduced the human vocal tract on a tiny chip of silicon and now is offering the technology to manufacturers.

Soon, TI officials believe, everything from washing machines to automobiles will be talking to their owners.

"It gives us the ability to have a machine or box talk to a person," said Dr. Bernard List, who will head TI's new speech technology centers in Midland as corporate speech strategy manager.

"It's the same type of breakthrough that the cathode ray tube was to television. That was a visual man-machine interface. This is an auditory man-machine interface."

TI PRESIDENT J. Fred Bucy, claiming the "electronic revolution is here," announced the available technology at a stockholders meeting.

TI expects speech technology to be the next major growth area, with a $3 billion industry worldwide predicted by the late 1980s. In 1979, the entire semiconductor market reached $10 billion.

To support growth of the market, TI plans to open Regional Technology Centers at "strategic locations" across the country. Centers in Chicago and Boston already are open.

TI employees at the centers will help customers develop vocabulary lists and quality speech for their products. Environmental factors, word and phrase choices and the type of voice best suited to the product and the audience will be considered.

Vocal passages will be recorded at Dallas, then translated into digital language. TI says the system will preserve the character of each speaker's voice, including intonation, accent, dialect and pitch.

The system compresses and reconstructs speech on two chips smaller than a button. Sound effects and music composition are possible, as are new words that never have been spoken.

In addition, TI is creating a new speech organization within the Semiconductor Group.

The two new semiconductor plants at Midland will produce the tiny solid state speech synthesis chips, which will be available for $13 per 100 words when purchased in quantity.

TI officials believe games and toys will be the first products available with the speech technology, since their design is relatively simple and their production time short.

TI already has created a Speak & Spell learning aid, a talking language translator, and peripheral speech equipment for its home computers and microprocessors.

List said research is continuing in voice authentication, "where a single individual voice can be used much like a fingerprint to determine that he is the person he is supposed to be."

The voice authentication also could lead to banking or shopping by telephone, he said.

Speech also could be used as a replacement for telephone busy signals, he added.

And "with some speech chips, you can make your phone put in words and phrases such that if you're not there, you can communicate that you are not there," or vary the response depending on the caller, he said.

THE TELEPHONE also could team up with home appliances, he said. One could call home and tell the microwave oven to begin cooking at a certain time, for example.

Talking dryers, alarm clocks and other appliances could replace today's buzzers and bells.

List said the greatest opportunity for the speech technology will be in education.

"Our first two products are primarily educational learning devices," he said. "We believe that the success of Speak & Spell gives a child motivation because the product talks and opens communication between the child and that box. For the first time, the child has a box that talks to it."

The learning aids provide individual attention, while in most classrooms, the child only gets a certain percent of the time with the teacher, he added.

He said the language translator can "show the word visually and then pronounce it. And you can cause it to say something like, 'How much are shoes?'"

TI's new learning aids include Speak & Math, Speak & Read and Math Marvel.

Speech also could aid military and industrial training, he said.

ANOTHER INDUSTRIAL use would be a spoken alert to persons who must keep their eyes elsewhere, like on a microscope.

As for entertainment, List said, "Speech is going to add another dimension to video games and so on."

Uses in transportation would be primarily in "crisis situations," List said.

"The (Detroit) management is convinced by a car that says your oil temperature is high, you're out of water or gas," he said. "The message could be, 'Your engine temperature is too hot. You may drive three more minutes.'"

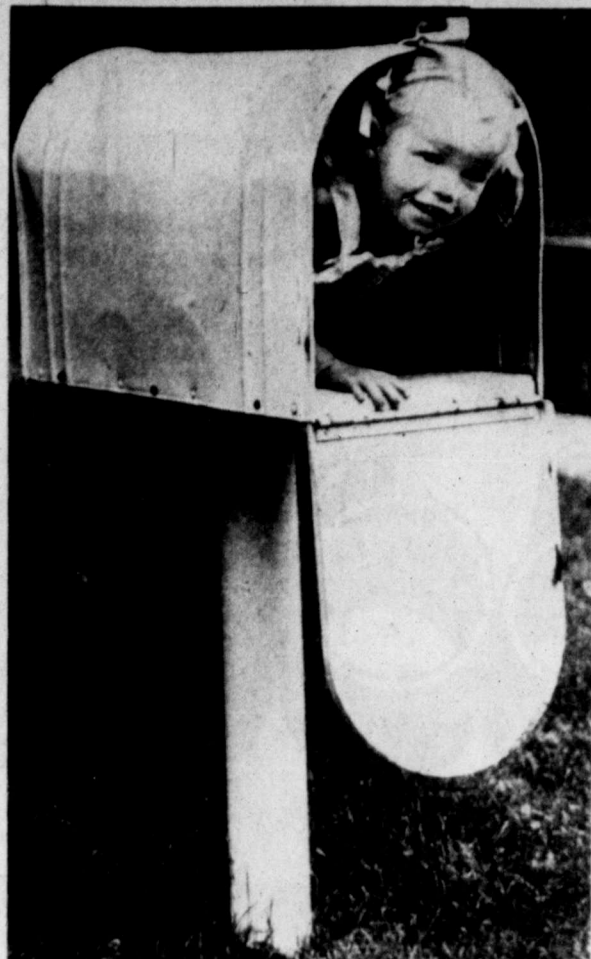

"Or it could give you diagnostics that say you should replace your spark plugs ... It's like having a mechanic under the hood."

List said the possibilities for uses of the speech technology are limitless.

"It's up to the creativity of the designers," he said.

TI spokesman Jim Muller said the new technology may conjure up visions of the talking computer Hal in the movie, "2001: A Space Odyssey." But he brushed aside such concerns, saying Hal was "a human mistake in programming."

Besides, Muller said, "computers still can't think creatively. Only people can do that."

I would like to know if it is legal for a person on the school board to hire two members of his family to work in the school system, one as a teacher, the other as the supervisor (wife) of the school cafeteria? — J.E., Rankin

ANSWER: Garland Chapman with the Midland Independent School District suggests that the answer to your question has many ramifications, depending on the situation.

Chapman says that in most cases, nepotism is not allowed. He also says to read Article 5596A, "Vernon Civil Statutes" of the "Texas School Law Bulletin for 1980."

There are a great number of vehicles on the streets of Midland and also on Highway 80 and Holiday Hill Road with only one headlight and no tail lights.

Who is responsible for enforcing the proper lights on these vehicles? Thank you for Answer Line, I appreciate it. — Mrs. E. G.

ANSWER: The Midland Police Department and the Department of Public Safety.

If such automobiles are "spotted" within the city limits, police officers will check the situation; while on the highways, the DPS will stop the drivers.

Could you give me the toll-free number for the library service for the blind and physically handicapped?

ANSWER: That number is 1-800-252-9605.

Now that tar content of cigarettes is widely advertised, do people really know how much of this harmful substance is in the cigarettes they smoke? — J.B.

ANSWER: The American Cancer Society says although some cigarette smokers may choose a particular brand because it is low in tar — a wise decision — most smokers are unaware of the tar content of the cigarettes they smoke.

A nationwide study conducted by Lieberman Research for the ACS in 1978 showed that 58 percent of smokers questioned answered "don't know" when asked how much tar is in the cigarettes they smoke.

ANSWER: The chairman of the grievance committee for the American Medical Association in Midland? — Mrs. C.C.

ANSWER: The chairman of the grievance committee is Dr. Richard Klempauer.

Woman Army captain files sex discrimination complaint

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An Army captain seeking to become the nation's first female Green Beret has filed an administrative complaint charging sex discrimination against the director of the Special Forces School.

A military attorney for Capt. Kathleen Wilder filed the complaint Friday against Col. Ola Mize, Special Forces School director, under the rarely used Article 138 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice, which provides for appeal against the action of a superior officer.

The action comes in response to Mize's rejection of Ms. Wilder's appeal of her failing grade in the field exercise of the 13-week Special Forces School officers course.

Ms. Wilder has claimed she passed the test and flunked only because of sex discrimination.

Mize recommended that Ms. Wilder be permitted to make up the exercise, when the course is offered again in November. A school official said the invitation to make-up the field exercise is offered to all candidates who fail that portion of the officers course.

But Ms. Wilder has orders to attend an advanced military intelligence course at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., beginning Oct. 14.

Ms. Wilder received her orders to report to Arizona on May 22, before she began the special forces course, said a spokesman for the Military Personnel center in Washington, but the orders were amended to allow her to attend the Special Forces course.

The Article 138 complaint gives Brig. Gen. Joseph Lutz, 10 days to respond. Lutz, who is commander of the John F. Kennedy Center for Military Assistance, currently is on temporary duty in West Germany. He is not expected to return until Sept. 8, according to a JFK Center spokesman, who declined to be identified.

Lutz ordered an investigation this week of Ms. Wilder's charges of sex discrimination in the course by his inspector general, Lt. Col. Craig Chamberlain.

"Brig. Gen. Lutz has made it clear that (the investigation) is a front-burner item," a JFK Center spokesman said.

Lutz may take action to address some of the charges against the school, such as the awarding of berets to officers who do not complete the course, the spokesman said.

The 10-day time limit on Lutz's response will be waived if the general requests more time to complete the investigator's report, he said.

Ms. Wilder has declined public comment on her appeal since the inspector general's investigation was ordered this week.

But a source close to the captain said she maintains she passed the course this summer and will not take it over.

TIA gets green light for love

HOUSTON (AP) — A three-judge federal appeals court in Washington refused Saturday to prevent Texas International Airlines from resuming service at Dallas' Love Field, an airline spokesman said here.

Jim O'Donnell, TIA's senior vice president for marketing, said the request was filed Friday by the City of Dallas after the Civil Aeronautics Board approved the airline's new routes.

TIA was to begin service Tuesday, O'Donnell said, between Love Field and Houston Intercontinental Airport, Beaumont-Port Arthur, McAllen and Baton Rouge, La.

"The appeals court decision removes the final legal obstacle to the new service, which was opposed by both the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth as well as the D-FW Airport's board at the CAB, and by Dallas in federal court," O'Donnell said.

The airline will have 16 weekday flights from Love to Houston, and will compete with Southwest Airlines in the highly lucrative commuter market, he said.

Tribe okays oil-gas lease referendum

LAME DEER, Mont. (AP) — The Northern Cheyenne Tribal Council has agreed to a referendum on whether to approve or reject a multimillion-dollar oil and natural gas lease agreement with Atlantic Richfield Co.

The decision for a Sept. 15 referendum was reached Friday during a special meeting of the council and came after the tribal government was advised by the U.S. Interior Department to hold the election.

The referendum is a victory for about 400 residents of the reservation in southeastern Montana who signed a petition calling for the election on grounds that the general tribal membership was not informed or consulted during negotiations with ARCO.

ARCO and the tribe agreed Thursday to suspend the terms of the agreement until the election results are known.

ARCO's initial payment to the tribe of $6 million will be held in escrow in a federal bank account. The payment was to have been distributed to individual tribal members — who had expected to receive between $1,200 and $1,500 each.

The original agreement, signed in May, called for ARCO to make the $6 million initial payment, then another $1.3 million payment for tribal operations. In return, the company was to receive a 33-year exploration and production rights package to search for oil and gas on the 445,000-acre reservation.

ARCO said at the time it felt the reservation land has the potential for oil and gas finds, although little exploration has been done.

The agreement was approved last week by the Billings Area Office of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

The residents of the reservation complained and chief tribal judge Carol Redcherries then issued an injunction, suspending the oil-gas deal.

One day later, Ms. Redcherries was suspended without pay by Tribal Chairman Allen Rowland until Sept. 22, when he said the Tribal Council would meet to formalize the firing.

Members of the tribe and ARCO officials were in Washington, D.C. this week to meet with Interior Department officials.

One Interior Department source, who asked not to be identified, said the agreement with ARCO contains at least two significant flaws.

He said one problem is that the tribe did not follow federal guidelines in soliciting oil company offers for development on the reservation. The other involved the length of the contract, which he said is not consistent with federal law, he said.

"We want these matters cleared up so that we will have a strong agreement, one the Bureau (of Indian Affairs) can stand behind, one that ARCO can defend, one that can withstand any future challenges," said Tribal Council member Joe Little Coyote, a

Houston spraying mosquitoes

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Mosquito Control District fogged most sections of the sprawling city Saturday in an effort to halt an outbreak of St. Louis encephalitis.

A city spokesman said the fogging, expected to continue through Labor Day, was ordered after reports of 24 cases of "sleeping sickness" in the Houston-Galveston area.

Authorities said the breeding cycle of disease-carrying mosquitos could be interrupted by dumping all containers holding water and keeping outdoor activities to a minimum.

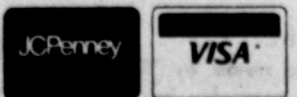

The SLE outbreak claimed its first fatality last Monday when Bartelina Diaz, 36, died in a Galveston hospital.

Medical experts said the outbreak is possibly related to high temperatures and drought conditions in the area.

MC fall enrollment increases

Midland College opens its fall semester Tuesday with about 200 more students enrolled than it had for its record 1979 fall term.

Registrar Dee Windsor reported that 2,233 students completed registration for credit courses last week, compared with 2,038 students who registered at the same time last year. The 1979 fall registration count climbed to 2,550 students by the close of late registration.

"We think we will have about five percent more students this fall than last year," Windsor said. "More students pre-registered and came to registration than in previous years. It seems many of them have learned that pre-registration is the easier way to enroll."

Both daytime and evening classes begin Tuesday, after the Labor Day holiday. Late registration also opens Tuesday. Students who wish to take a full class load of 12 hours or more must enroll by Sept. 9 while those planning to enroll for nine hours or less have until Sept. 17 to register.

"We encourage all late-registering students not to wait until the last day, or they will be quite far behind in their assignments and will have a difficult time catching up," Windsor pointed out.

Persons wishing to sign up for fall credit courses should visit the Office of Student Services, Administration Building, between 8 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday or 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Fridays. Additional information about fall classes may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extensions 166 and 251.

MMH sponsors course

Midland Memorial Hospital is sponsoring a continuing education course in cardiac critical care three mornings a week beginning Sept. 8 and lasting through Oct. 9, according to Beth Roye, RN, program coordinator.

The purpose of the course is to increase the knowledge and skills of personnel involved in the care of cardiac patients, hospital spokesmen said.

Specific topics to be covered in the course are arrhythmia interpretation, cardiovascular pharmacology, pacemakers, cardioversion/defibrillation, and mock code.

The course is open to all health care professionals who can anticipate regular attendance. The text for the course will be "Intensive Coronary Care," available for purchase in the nursing administration office of MMH.

Free of charge to MMH employees, the course will cost $35 for participants not employed by the hospital. Health care professionals interested in registering for the classes should contact Mrs. Roye at 685-1111, ext. 183.

MMH Auxiliary sets orientation

The Women's Auxiliary of Midland Memorial Hospital will sponsor a two-hour general orientation program for women interested in volunteering their time and services at the hospital. The program is scheduled for 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Further training is available for new volunteers after their completion of the general orientation.

Volunteers choose one morning or afternoon a week to serve the hospital in one of the following categories: helping patients, dealing with patients' families and the public, providing clerical assistance, or sewing.

Hospital departments and areas which need volunteers are admitting office, nourishment cart, central supply, physical therapy, critical care waiting room, surgery waiting room, surgery office, blood bank, gift shop and information desk. The auxiliary also provides the hospital with a newborn infant picture-taking service, floor hosting, and a sewing and mending service.

An evening orientation will be held later in September for those who work during the day and wish to volunteer in the evenings at the information desk or gift shop.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary and attending the orientation should contact Peggy Parr, coordinator of volunteers, at 685-1542 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 2, or between 8 a.m. and noon Wednesday, Sept. 3.

City to get new plant

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — National Semiconductor Corp. and Arlington city officials have confirmed the electronics giant will build a major new plant here, eventually employing about 3,000 workers.

The 240,000-square-foot building should be in operation by early 1982 and will employ 1,500 by 1986, said Ken Knutsen, director of planning and construction for the firm.

Sniper sought in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Police were searching Saturday for a sniper who killed a city shop foreman as he drove home from work on a busy freeway Friday afternoon.

Donald Messenger, 32, of Watauga, was struck once in the shoulder and once in the abdomen by shots fired through the right side of his pickup, said police Sgt. L.C. Henderson.

He said investigators have no clues or suspects.

"The way the shots were fired leads us to believe the sniper was stationary," Henderson said.

Hearing to review Basin health care

The Permian Basin Health Systems Agency will review the progress of local health care facilities in achieving the goals and objectives of the Permian Basin Health Systems Plan in a public hearing Sept. 10 at 2 p.m. The plans' objectives were set by area residents last year.

The agency has the responsibility for developing plans that made quality health care available and accessible at a reasonable cost to all the residents of the 17-county Permian Basin area.

Through this public hearing, the PBHSA governing body is seeking to provide an opportunity for citizens to participate in reviewing last year's accomplishments and to identify health care problems to be taken into consideration next year.

Anyone who is interested in learning more about the PBHSA and what is being done in the Permian Basin to improve the health care of the residents is welcome to appear at this meeting and ask questions or provide comments for planning the direction of the PBHSA for 1981-1982.

The meeting will be in the conference room of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission across from Midland Regional Airport.

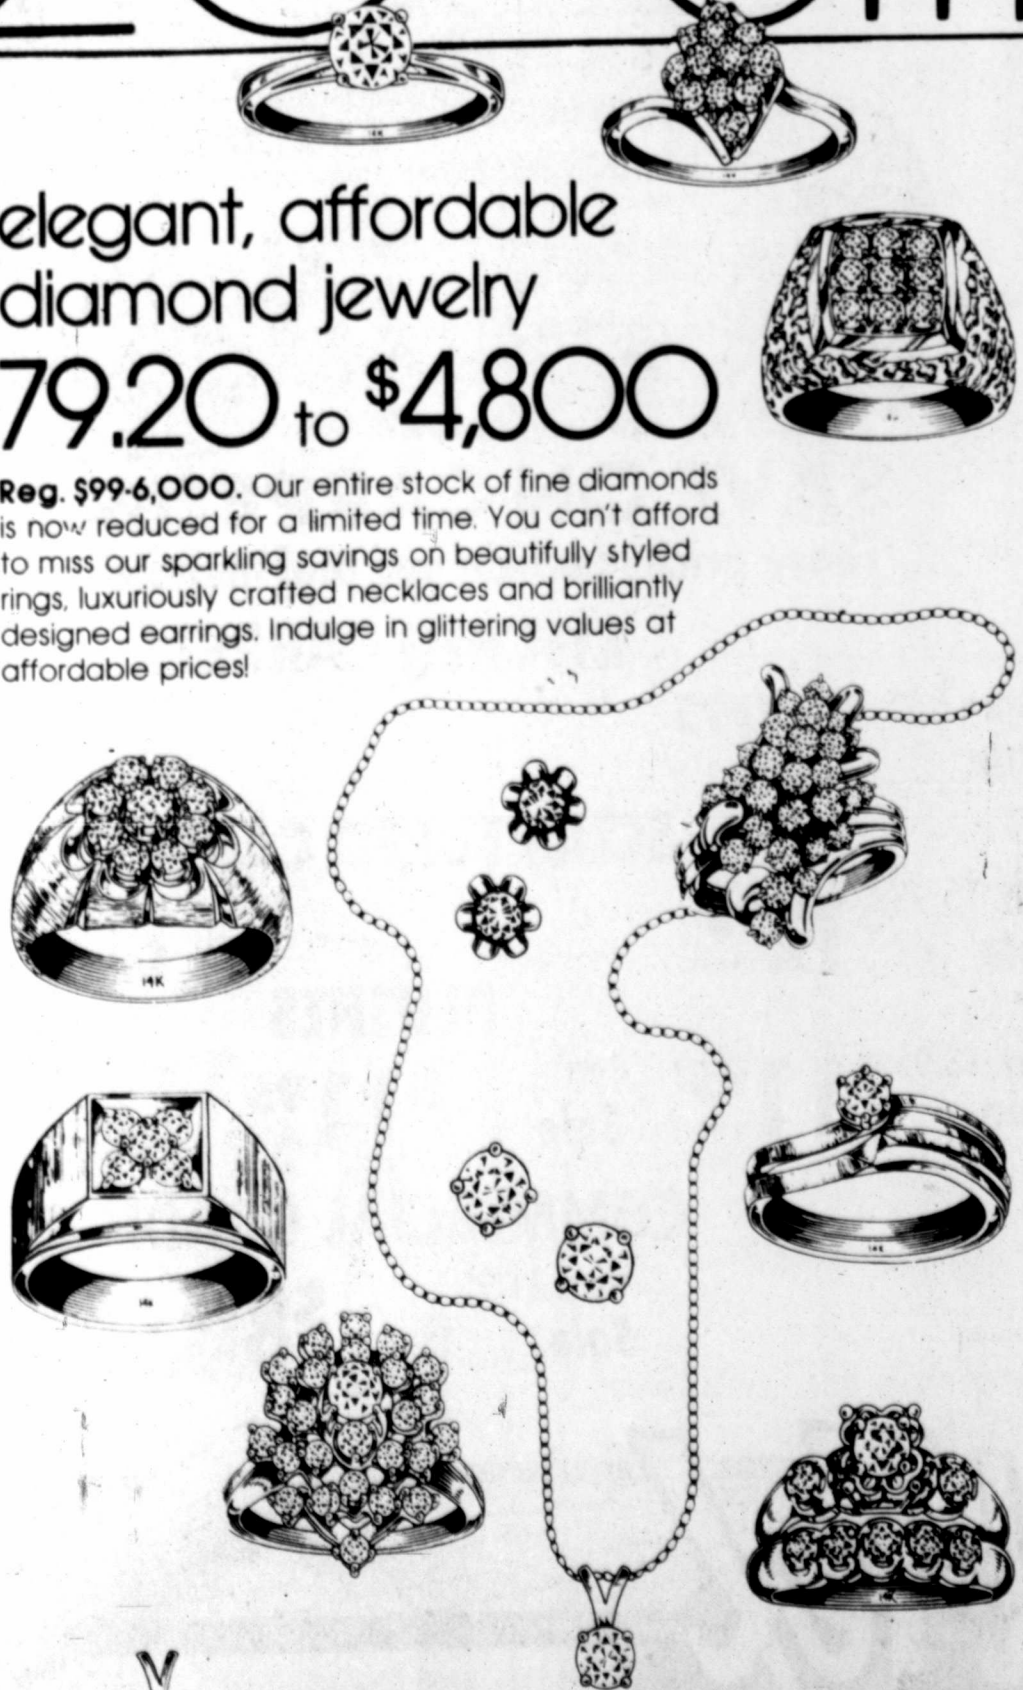

The health plan is available for copying at the PBRPC. For further information, contact Jeanne Kaferle, Permian Basin Health Systems Agency, P.O. Box 6391, Midland, 79701, or call 563-1061.

Exhumation battle on

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—A British author, relatives of Lee Harvey Oswald and medical examiners will troop into court again this week in a legal seesaw over whether the accused presidential assassin's grave should be opened.

State District Judge James Wright has scheduled two hearings in a suit filed by Oswald's brother Robert, who is seeking to block attempts to dig up the body.

The judge already has issued an injunction against author Michael Eddowes, who wants to open the grave in Fort Worth's Rose Hill Cemetery to prove the body of a Soviet agent lies there instead of Oswald.

The judge will decide Wednesday whether to wash his hands of the matter entirely. Eddowes and Dallas County Medical Examiner Charles Petty, both defendants, have asked to have the case moved to Dallas.

If Wright retains the case, he will rule Friday whether the body may be exhumed.

Oswald, accused in the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, was shot to death by nightclub owner Jack Ruby in the basement of the Dallas police station three days later.

Robert Oswald's attorney, Kenneth L. Campbell, said he would fight the motion to move the trial on grounds the court proceedings should take place where the body is buried.

Campbell also has asked Wright to remove

Marina Oswald Porter as a defendant because she agrees with her former brother-in-law and "believes Lee is buried there."

Mrs. Porter said she earlier gave her consent to exhume her late husband's body only to dispel rumors.

Campbell also has asked that Dallas County Judge Garry Weber, who signed the original exhumation order, be removed as a defendant because "it is no longer necessary."

Eddowes, whose theory is contained in his book "The Oswald File," maintains he has "legal authority" to exhume the body and have an autopsy performed. Petty has said he would perform the autopsy.

Wright turned down Eddowes' 1978 request for a court order allowing the exhumation, ruling the Englishman did not have the same legal rights in this country as a United States citizen.

Eddowes claims he has "persuasive" evidence to indicate the man in the grave is not Oswald.

The evidence, first presented to the Tarrant County medical examiner two years ago, indicates "a 60-40 chance" the man in the grave is actually Soviet agent Alek James Hidell, Eddowes says.

The researcher theorizes that Oswald, who defected to the Soviet Union in 1958, was institutionalized there and Hidell assumed his identity, returned to the United States and shot Kennedy.

Oswald had scar behind his ear from a mastoidectomy and that mark was not found during the initial autopsy, Eddowes says.

He also claims a two-inch height difference was discovered in a comparison of Oswald's military physical description and the autopsy.

Eddowes believes the assassination was the result of a Soviet plot that began soon after Kennedy's election when "a young girl was sent from London in December 1960 to try to compromise and embarrass Kennedy."

Since June 1963, when he learned that "staggering information" from FBI agent John Malone, Eddowes says he has been determined to learn the truth.

"We now know that former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had a plan to kill President Nixon. We learned that from Soviet defector Anatoly Golitsin," Eddowes adds.

The public's reaction to his theory has been, "Why don't we just let the body stay where it is? But my reputation is for persistence and analysis of evidence," Eddowes says.

Tanker pushed free of rig

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Hitched to heavy-duty tugs, the Texaco North Dakota began a two-day trip Saturday from the spot where it rammed a partly built offshore oil rig to Port Arthur, Texas, officials said.

The crash Aug. 21 ripped a gaping hole in the bow of the 565-foot tanker, which remained snagged on the rig until Friday. It was pushed free after cargo remaining on the ship was shifted from forward to aft compartments, said Texaco spokesman Max Hebert.

About 500,000 gallons of the 2.1 million-gallon cargo of raffinate, or raw gasoline, were lost in a fire which blazed out of control for 36 hours. Another 400,000 gallons of oil were unharmed, officials said.

'Blue flu' action over

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Manpower levels were almost back to normal Saturday after a job action that saw two-thirds of Omaha police officers on an early morning shift call in sick.

Some officers said the "blue flu" was a protest over staff shortages and stalemated contract talks.

"This sickness is not the kind you need to stay home for," said one on-duty officer, who asked that his name not be used.

Omaha Police Union president Gary Becerra said the union had not sanctioned the job action. The Omaha World-Herald quoted unidentified police sources as saying the matter was discussed and overwhelmingly approved at a special union meeting Thursday.

Becerra said reports he had heard from rank and file officers indicated the wildcat job action would end after 24 hours. But he said city officials "haven't seen the last of it" saying there were "symbolic actions" officers can take. He declined to elaborate.

Twenty-one of 32 cruiser officers called in sick for the midnight to 8 a.m. shift Saturday, police sources said. Other officers were held over to work for those who called in.

"Luckily, Friday night was comparatively quiet," one officer said.

For Saturday's second shift, six officers told their superiors they were sick, said Capt. Bernard Mollner.

The city could take punitive action against officers proven to have abused sick leave. The police contract bans "blue flu" and strikes.

FARM-RANCH ROUNDUP

Station planning 71st field day

LUBBOCK — The 71st annual Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) Field Day, which will feature cotton variety performance tests, will be held from 12:30 to 5 p.m. Sept. 9 at the High Plains Research Foundation 14 miles west of Plainview and off U.S. Highway 70.

Trials of 81 varieties and 28 hybrids are being conducted this year under both dryland and irrigated conditions.

Members of Plains Cotton Growers Inc. of Lubbock are invited to the demonstration, especially since PCG has invested $350,000 in the TAES cotton research since 1956, according to PDG President Joe D. Unfried.

'Workfare' communities sought

DALLAS — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is seeking communities interested in joining in a pilot program which would require food-stamp recipients to "work off" the value of their food stamps.

Legislation passed in 1977 specified that their "workfare" projects be carried out in one urban area and in one rural area in each of the seven administrative regions of the USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

Potential sponsors may submit applications within the next 30 days if they want to operate a workfare pilot project, according to Carol Tucker Foreman, USDA assistant secretary.

Workfare projects currently are operating in Sussex County, N.J.; Rusk County, Wis.; Muskingum County, Ohio; Berkeley County, S.C.; Morristown, Tenn.; Clay County, S.D. and in the County of San Diego, Calif.

Political subdivisions wishing additional information and application kits may contact Claire Lipsman, director, Program Development Division, Family Nutrition Programs, Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250 or call 202/447-8325.

Commodity prices hit record

WASHINGTON — A four-month string of price increases has pushed the government's index of farm commodity prices to its highest level on record.

Even so, as the latest figures by the U.S. Department of Agriculture showed on Friday, farmers' expenses also are rising. And the crunch will mean a sharp drop in their net income this year, possibly a decline of 11 percent to 22 percent from 1979.

Meanwhile, the latest USDA report said prices that farmers get for raw products, already at a record level, jumped an additional 3.6 percent in August.

That put the department's composite index of prices 7.6 percent above a year ago.

Officials said higher prices for hogs, cattle, corn, eggs, potatoes and soybeans contributed most to the increase from July. Corn prices, for example, were the highest in five years.

So far this year, the farm price index has declined slightly in January, edged up in February, dropped in March and April and rose in May, June, July and August.

Farm prices in August averaged 256 percent of a 1967 base price average used for comparison, up from 238 a year ago. The revised index for July was 247 percent.

Officials said the old record for the price index was 246 percent in March 1979. It declined a month later but in May rose to the record level set in March of last year.

The report also said: —Cattle averaged $65.10 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, compared with $63.20 in July and $62.20 in August 1979. Those are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.

—Hogs averaged $46.80 per 100 pounds, compared with $41.30 in July and $36.20 a year ago.

—Upland cotton was 69.9 cents a pound on a national average, compared with 72.4 in July and 59.2 a year ago.

—Eggs were 58.0 cents a dozen, compared with 50.7 in July and 53.1 in August 1979.

—Broiler chickens were 31.6 cents a pound against 31.7 in July and 23.0 a year ago.

Crop physiologist receives honor

EL PASO — Dr. Richard M. Taylor, crop physiology research in vegetables with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, has been presented a meritorious service award by the Commercial Vegetable Producers Association (CVPA) of El Paso.

Taylor is headquartered at the Texas A&M University Research Center at El Paso and responsibility for the vegetable improvement program in Far West Texas.

His regional research with vegetables is "the backbone of the commercial vegetable industry" in Far West Texas, according to Ben L. Ivey Jr., association president.

Screwworm samples taken

MISSION — The eight screwworms taken from wounds in the heads of two sheep on the Rafter L Cattle Co. at Brackettville make the second positive screwworm collection in the United States this year.

The samples were collected by M.M. Nelson of the Rafter L Cattle Co. 22 miles northeast of Brackettville in Kinney County on Aug. 20. The only other screwworm infestation in U.S. animals this year was identified April 15 in worms taken from lambs in Coleman County, Texas.

At the Screwworm Laboratory at Mission, preparations were being made for aerial dispersal of Screwworm Adult Suppression System (SWASS) pellets. The sterile screwworms were to be released Aug. 28.

Adult female screwworm flies deposit their eggs on the edges of the open wounds in warm-blooded animals. As eggs hatch, the tiny larvae (Screwworms) enter the wound to feed on living flesh.

Bears given 'free ride'

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Alaska Airlines says that rather than see six bears killed for lack of a suitable home, it will fly the bears as far as Seattle at no charge.

But now the problem is getting the bears from Seattle to Bear Country, USA, a drive-through wildlife park near Rapid City, S.D.

Three black bears, a cinnamon bear and two grizzlies are being evicted from their homes at the Alaskan Zoo here as part of a $7 million park renovation.

A Fort Worth resident, Diane Hannum, has been spearheading a drive to save the bears, which will be destroyed if new homes are not found by winter.

AREA REPORT

Stanton Jaycees chapter honored

STANTON — The Stanton Jaycees chapter has been honored by the United States Jaycees as the No. 2 Jaycee chapter in Texas for the first quarter of the Jaycee year, which begins in May. The Roscoe Jaycees were selected as the No. 1 Jaycee group in Texas. The Stanton Jaycees were recognized for their community service work in Stanton and Martin County. Robert Haggard is president of the Stanton Jaycees.

New manager appointed

CRANE — Robert L. "Bob" Ernst has been appointed Southern Union Gas Co.'s manager for the company operation in Crane and McCamey. The folks in the Crane-McCamey area are "the friendliest people I've met anywhere," Ernst was quoted by The Crane News. "There is a general feeling of sincerity that leaves you feeling good." Ernst joined Southern Union Gas Co. in 1968 in Flagstaff, Ariz.

Firefighters plan barbecue

GOLDSMITH — The Goldsmith Volunteer Fire Department will hold its annual barbecue Saturday to raise funds for operating the fire department and ambulance service, according to Wendell R. Law, assistant fire chief. "Our ambulance service is free and modern, and is financed in part by profits of this barbecue," he said. The feed will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Goldsmith Community Hall. Tickets are $3.75 each. Drawing will be held for a Browning BPS pump shotgun, rod-and-reel, portable television set with AM-FM radio, two radios and "fine foods," he said. "It has traditionally been a time of reunion for many friends," Law said of annual firemen's barbecue.

Interim peace justice named

STANTON — The Martin County Commissioners' Court has appointed Francis Kennedy to serve out the term of 82-year-old Peace Justice Martin L. "The Judge" Gibson, who has resigned. Kennedy will serve until a justice of the peace is elected in the Nov. 4 general election. Any person interested in running for the post may contact Martin County Judge Jimmy Mathis. Gibson has served as a peace justice for 28 years and has been the county's Veterans Service Officer for 35 years. "I cherish the friendships developed in my years of working with you and your predecessors," Gibson, quoted by The Stanton Reporter, said in his letter of resignation to the commissioners and the judge. "I cherish, perhaps even more, the friendship developed in my years among the world's finest people."

Park shelter planned

ANDREWS — The Andrews County Commissioners' Court is planning to build a 54-by-54-foot shelter building at Florey Park. County Judge Roy Bennett said the shelter likely would seat up 300 people.

60,000 attend open house

LUBBOCK — More than 60,000 people showed up for the recent 1980 Reese Air Force Base Open House, which turned out to be "one of the best ever," said Col. Monte D. Montgomery, commander of Reese AFB. The open house activities included aerial feats by warbirds of the Confederate Air Force. The U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds will perform at Reese AFB on Oct. 12.

Fewer students expected this year

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 750,000 fewer students than last year will be attending American schools as classes begin this week but the cost of educating them is expected to rise by more than $15 billion, the Department of Education said Saturday. According to the department's back-to-school forecast, an estimated 57.6 million Americans will be enrolled in classes from kindergarten through graduate school. The cost for all that education is expected to reach $181.3 billion, up 9 percent from the $166 billion spent on the 1979-80 school year. That works out to more than $3,100 per pupil. The enrollment figure, which was estimated by the department's National Center for Education Statistics, represents a drop of nearly 1.3 percent, from last fall's enrollment of 58.5 million. Secretary of Education Shirley M. Hufstедler noted in a statement that the figures are down 5.7 percent from the record high of 61.3 million students reached in the fall of 1975. Some 3.3 million persons will be employed as classroom teachers and 300,000 others as principals, superintendents and staff. "Education in the fall of 1980 will be the primary activity of 61.4 million Americans," Mrs. Hufstедler said. "In a nation with a population of more than 222 million, almost three of 10 persons will be direct participants in the educational process." The figures include both private and public schools. Not counted in the 57.8 million are the estimated 1.5 million Americans attending postsecondary vocational schools, according to the center's Vance Grant. Here are some of the center's other estimates: —Elementary school enrollment (kindergarten through grade 8) is expected to drop by 447,000 to 31,165,000, a 1.4 percent decline in the past year. "Small annual decreases in elementary enrollment have been occurring since 1969... (but) in the mid-1980s this trend is expected to be reversed." —High schools will enroll 422,000 fewer youths. The enrollment of 14,885,000 will be down 2.8 percent from last year. High school enrollment hit its peak in 1976, and declines are expected throughout the 1980s. —Colleges and universities will again enroll a record number: 11.7 million, up 130,000 from 1979. "College enrollment, however, appears to be nearing its peak," said the center, which projects small decreases after 1981 that will last the rest of the 1980s.

Media promotes drugs: Meehan

PDAP director guest speaker at Midland anniversary

By SANDI BREEDEN
Lifestyle Writer

"What scares me today is somehow the public have allowed the media and many times the government to promote the drug world," said Bob Meehan, founder of the Palmer Drug Abuse Program, during an interview Saturday afternoon.

"When you get Cheech and Chong on a program and they happily say 'all of this and drugs too,' and then they get me on (TV) and fry me, something's wrong," he said.

Meehan was in Midland as guest speaker for a Saturday night banquet celebrating the first anniversary of Midland's branch of PDAP.

Nationally, PDAP was founded in 1971 when Father Charles Wyatt-Brown, whom Meehan says is the most Christ-like human being he has ever met, told the long time drug user turned sober that he was being made a full-time counselor to the kids that were on drugs that came to the Palmer Episcopal Church to talk with Meehan.

"When I first became janitor at the church, there were six kids that came to talk," said Meehan. "When Father Charlie made me a full-time counselor, there were 150 kids coming to my wife and I and we couldn't handle all those kids. So I appointed other counselors and this became the Palmer Drug Abuse Program."

A FREE SPIRIT who knows what is right and wrong for him, Meehan has seen the program grow from its meager beginnings in Texas' largest city to a large PDAP network with programs in many Texas cities, as well as Colorado, California and Oklahoma, plus soon-to-be-opened programs in Florida, New York, Arizona and New Mexico.

Bob Savage, director of Midland's program, will also be director of the program in New Mexico. Savage said the program would be located in Lea County and should be opening within 60 days.

Last January Meehan was scrutinized by CBS newsman Dan Rather in a segment on 60 Minutes. Shortly after that program aired, Meehan was named as a consultant to PDAP instead of executive director. But Meehan said that the popular television program had nothing to do with his stepping down as executive director.

"About a year and a half ago, it became obvious to me and other people that I am a poor administrator," he said with a slight grin. "November (1979) was going to be the formal date for me to become a consultant, but then it was suggested we wait until the first of year."

"After we had made that decision, here came the 60 Minutes crews. The program aired in January and naturally a lot of people thought the television program was the reason for the change."

MEEHAN SAID THE controversial 60 Minutes program did a good thing for PDAP. "When I saw myself on television — well, 60 Minutes caused me to see my arrogance and ego and this kept PDAP from going to the point of no return."

"The government sees drugs as OK because it is a $45 billion industry — a way to get some future tax money and that is the bottom line," he said unquestioningly.

"60 Minutes and 20/20 (an ABC news shows) came down on us (PDAP) because we don't have statistics. We don't ask for names or for forms to be filled out. All we say is 'if you want to be sober, welcome.'"

"We do know how many new appointments we have and how many people get a monkey's fist," said Meehan. He stressed these are known by number only and not by names — enforcing the strict confidentiality PDAP uses. The monkey fists are awarded to those program participants who have chemically rid their bodies of drugs for 30 days.

OVER 50 PERCENT of young people from age 12 up use drugs, he said.

"When a kid reaches 12, the peer group pressure is put on. And today, drugs are the establishment; PDAP is the anti-establishment.

"PDAP is very aware of this," he said. "The question is: 'How do you change this?'"

"You get a peer group that says it is good to be off drugs. This is what PDAP is about."

"PDAP offers a group of people that offer love, care, games and everything else teen-agers do, but drugs. We help them clarify their own values."

"We have set up a program that teaches them what a trip it is to be a part of society — that by learning the rules of the game, they are winners."

"We teach that every action has a reaction, and through this, the kids finally get to the point of realizing they cannot keep pointing a finger at the world because they use drugs. They finally have to point that finger at themselves."

CONTINUING WITH what PDAP is about, Meehan asked, "How do you get the kids' trust and how do you get them to know you're not out to use them?"

"PDAP teaches them they must learn the rules of the game or get the hell out of the ballpark. But most importantly, we try to teach them by example. You say, 'let me show you what I do.' There is someone around you and I and everyone else can relate to — we teach the kids to pick a winner and stick to it."

Although Meehan is a consultant to Board of Trustees and to the national office of PDAP, he gets his salary from being a consultant to Hospital Affiliates Inc. and from advising corporations, such as oil companies, about chemical (drug) dependence. "I am being paid for my expertise in dealing with chemically injured people."

Meehan stressed he has nothing to do with putting people in the hospital, as was suggested by 60 Minutes. "If I am advising an oil company on the drug use in their company, and an employee of that company joins PDAP or if an employee should go to a hospital that I consult for, people think that employee has gone to that particular hospital because of me and that is not true."

Not forgetting his background, Meehan said he will not take money for helping someone get off dope. "My job now is in prevention of chemical usage."

MEEHAN SAID HE has two goals in his consulting capacity: "To create awareness through education on how people getting high affect production and to work with immediate supervisors so they don't go on a witch hunt to fire those whose production has fallen. I help the supervisor to help the employee because of the loyalty that employee will have in the long run."

And even though he is only a consultant to PDAP, he still has the people the program helps at heart. "My goal is to get the number of young people using drugs to under 50 percent! Then drug users will be the minority and it will be anti-establishment again," he said.

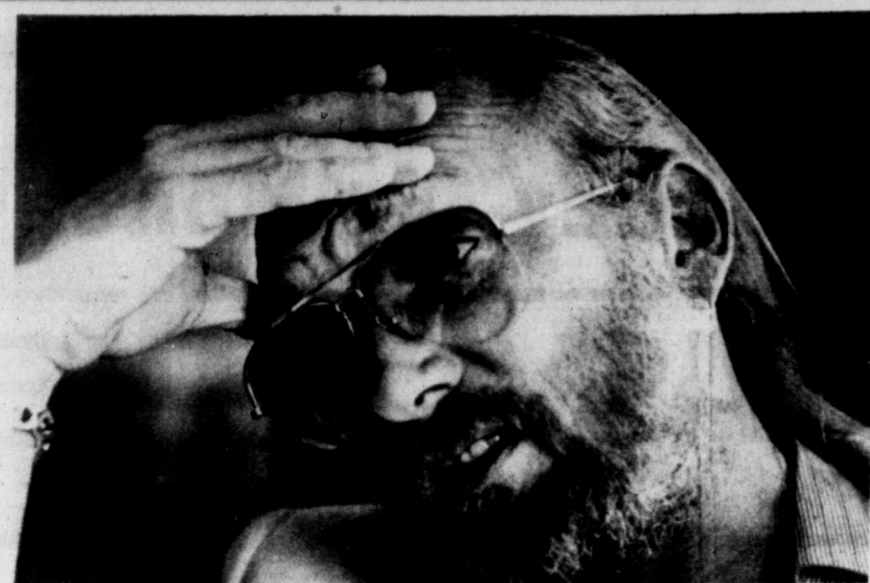

"If we can get the media to stop making drugs look romantic and if we can get government to quit worrying about the tax money they can get off drugs, we have accomplished a lot toward this goal," he added.

"PDAP is not part of the temperance movement," he continued. "If you want to get high, that's your problem. If you don't want to get high, that's our problem."

Discussing the role of parents in children's lives, Meehan stressed making children feel important. "It is our job as parents to make every child feel he is an important member of that family and this starts on day one of that child's life. Make that child feel that it is great to be part of the human race."

Meehan suggested this could play a big role in whether a child uses drugs. "Low self esteem is prevalent in every drug user. When I got high I came from being Liberace up to being John Wayne."

And Meehan also had an answer for how to put self esteem into a person's life, and thus an end to drug abuse. "Unconditional love — that's drug abuse prevention."

"We have set up a program that teaches them (drug users) what a trip it is to be a part of society — that by learning the rules of the game, they are winners," says Bob Meehan, founder of the nationally known Palmer Drug Abuse Program. Meehan was in Midland Saturday to speak at the first anniversary banquet of the Midland PDAP program. (Staff Photo by Edward McCain)

Mechanic held for murder

WEATHERFORD, Texas (AP) — A peace justice denied bond Saturday for an auto mechanic accused in the abduction-slaying of a teenage runaway from Fort Worth.

David Allen Gardner, 25, was arraigned on capital murder charges before Justice of the Peace Roy Glen Densmore.

Gardner was arrested Friday because, authorities said, his car matched a description given by the victim's wounded companion.

Rocky Crecy, 14, says he and 15-year-old Kandi Kae Reynolds were picked up Tuesday while hitchhiking.

Crecy, who remained hospitalized Saturday for treatment of four stab wounds, said the motorist attacked him and dumped him out of the car after Crecy tried to protect Miss Reynolds from the man's advances.

After being arrested, Gardner accompanied Parker County Sheriff Billy Cain and other searchers to a clump of trees near Lake Weatherford, where they found Miss Reynolds' body.

Cain said the girl's body was fully clothed in blue jeans and a shirt.

The teenagers had run away together last weekend. But the victim's mother, Carolyn Bouldin, said Kandi had called from Waco Monday to say they were coming home.

Tuesday night, Crecy staggered to a rural Parker County farmhouse, saying he had been stabbed and thrown from a car on Farm to Market Road 5 near Aneta.

However, he was able to describe the car that picked them up as a blue and white Pontiac with a citizen's band radio.

The boy's father, James Crecy, said the incident should serve as a warning to other young people who consider running away for adventure.

"I just hope that if there are any kids out there who think they can take off for three or four days and everything will be just fine, that nothing will happen. I hope they look at this and think about staying home," he said.

DEATHS

Emmett Boyle

R. Emmett Boyle, 78, an independent oil operator in Midland, died Saturday in a Midland hospital following an illness. He lived at 2507 Haynes Drive.

Graveside services are tentatively set for Tuesday at Resthaven Memorial Park with the Rev. Sam Hulsey, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, officiating. Burial will be directed by Newell W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Boyle was born March 10, 1902, in Hydro, Okla., and grew up in Anadarko, Okla.

He attended the University of Oklahoma and moved to Texas in 1930, when he entered the petroleum business. In Houston, he worked for Marathon Oil Co., and moved to Dallas in 1948 to work with Intex Oil Co. He was transferred by Intex to Midland in 1960, and became an independent oil operator in the mid-1960s.

He was married to Sweetie Johnson in Nacogdoches in 1930.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Mary Catherine "Kay" Jones of Midland and Patricia Boyle Young of Long Beach, Calif.; two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The family has requested that memorials be directed to Cal Farley's Boys Ranch of Amarillo and to the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center.

Ronnell McDaniel

GARDEN CITY — Ronnell McDaniel, 69, a Garden City rancher, died Saturday in a Big Spring hospital following a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 2:30 p.m. Monday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel in Big Spring. Burial will be in the Garden City Cemetery.

McDaniel was born June 11, 1911, in Roscoe, moved to Glasscock County in 1924, and was married to Bobbie Harrison on Feb. 20, 1932, in Garden City.

He was a rancher and was associated with the Pecos Trucking Co.

He was a Baptist. Survivors include his wife; a son, Roy McDaniel of Garden City; a daughter, Mrs. Joe (Gall) Cushing of Snyder; a brother, A.F. McDaniel of El Paso, and four grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the research program of the American Cancer Society.

'Dick' Wright

SAN ANGELO — Services for R.C. "Dick" Wright, 75, of Kingsland and father of Sherman Wright of Midland, were Saturday in Johnson's Funeral Home chapel in San Angelo with the Rev. Edgar Tatum of Baptist Tabernacle officiating. Burial was in Eola Cemetery.

Wright died early Friday morning in a San Angelo hospital following a brief illness.

He was born Feb. 27, 1905, in Hawley. He married Maude McDaniel in Eola on May 4, 1924. He was a member of the Baptist Tabernacle.

Other survivors include his wife, Maude Wright; two other sons, Billy Wright of Sisbee and Ronnie Wright of San Angelo; two daughters, Nadine Williams of San Angelo and Marlene Holley of Garland; a brother, Leonard Wright of Eola; a sister, Gladys Jones of San Angelo; 12 grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews.

A.W. Adams Jr.

MABANK — Services for A.W. Adams Jr., 72, of Cedar Creek Lake and formerly of Midland, will be at 4 p.m. today at Eubanks Funeral Home in Mabank.

Adams died Thursday night of a heart attack in a Corsicana hospital. He retired from Sargent Industries in 1974.

Survivors include his wife, Agnes Adams; a son, Arthur W. Adams III of Dallas; a sister, Susan A. Roberts of Odessa; a brother, Rodney Adams of Olympia, Wash.; three grandsons, three nephews and a niece.

Mrs. McCormick

Gladys McCormick, 79, a native of Midland, died Saturday in a Lubbock hospital following a lengthy illness.

Graveside services will be at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in Fairview Cemetery. Arrangements are being handled by Sanders Funeral Home in Lubbock.

Survivors include two sisters, Pearl Massie and Loree Walters, both of Lubbock.

Tassie Moseley

BIG SPRING — Services for Tassie Moseley, 80, of Big Spring, mother of Lorene Robinson of Midland, were Saturday in the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with burial in Trinity Memorial Park.

Mrs. Moseley died Thursday in Odessa after a lengthy illness.

She was born March 9, 1900, in Gatesville. She was married to J.B. Moseley Sept. 7, 1920, in Big Spring. He died Nov. 19, 1979. She was a member of Crestview Baptist Church and had lived in Big Spring since 1918.

Other survivors include five other daughters, Oral Rogers of Big Spring, LaVerne Barber, Shirley Barrett and Alta Caughron, all of Odessa, and Jody Arnold of Enid, Okla.; two sons, Don Joe Moseley of Bailey, Colo., and Terry Moseley of Odessa; a sister, Grace Kinard of Big Spring; 25 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Juan Gutierrez

LAMESA — Services for Juan S. Gutierrez, 81, of Lamesa were Saturday at St. Margaret-Mary's Catholic Church in Lamesa with Father Pat Hoffman, pastor of O'Donnell's St. Plus X Catholic Church, officiating. Burial was in Lamesa Cemetery under the direction of Branon Funeral Home.

Gutierrez died Thursday upon arrival at a Lamesa hospital following an apparent heart attack.

A San Antonio native, Gutierrez had been a Lamesa resident since 1940 and a lifetime Catholic.

Survivors include his wife, Helen Gutierrez; two sons, Juan Alex Gutierrez of Lamesa and Oscar Gutierrez of Portales, N.M.; six daughters, Stella G. Guerra of Lubbock, Beatrice Molina of Aurora, Colo., and Julia Lozada, Minnie Cortez, Lupe Tejada and Lillie Torres, all of Lamesa; 26 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Raymundo Lujan

STANTON — Services for Raymundo O. Lujan, 82, of Stanton, will be at 9 a.m. Monday in St. Joseph Catholic Church with the Rev. Robert Bush, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in St. Joseph Cemetery, directed by Gilbreath Funeral Home of Stanton.

Lujan died Friday in a Stanton hospital following a brief illness.

He was born in 1898 in Shafter, was married to Anastacia Aguirre in 1939 in Marfa and moved to Stanton from Marfa 24 years ago.

Survivors include his wife; four sons, George Lujan and Joe Jimenez, both of Stanton, Alfred Lujan of Marfa and Fred Lujan of Odessa; eight daughters, Rita Cantu of Big Spring, Gloria Rios and Elva Saigado, both of Stanton, Amparo Garza of Lomax and Maria Valensuela, Angelica Guerrero, Lupe Vanega and Mage Reyes, all of Marfa; a sister, Antonia Rodriguez of Coahoma; 50 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren.

Ralph Peters

Services for Ralph K. Peters, 59, of rural Midland will be at 2 p.m. today in the Newell W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. J.B. Stewart of the First Methodist Church officiating.

Burial will be in Garnett, Kan., at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Peters died at his home Friday. He had been in failing health for a year. Born Oct. 27, 1920, in Garnett, Kan., Peters was married to Kathleen Walker July 4, 1942, in Centerville, Kan. They moved to Midland in 1956 when Peters began employment with Phillips Petroleum Company. He was a member of the Methodist Church. He was a member of the Spraberry Masonic Lodge.

Labor Day weekend death toll rising

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — George Lee Dunn, 34, of Kerens, became the first holiday traffic fatality in Texas at 1:35 a.m. Saturday when his car ran off the road southeast of Corsicana.

The Department of Public Safety has predicted 45 people will die on Texas highways over the Labor Day weekend from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday.

"In order to provide maximum protection for driving public, we're placing additional state troopers on the highways," said DPS spokesman Richard Grimmitt. "Many will be in well-marked black and white patrol units but in some areas of the state we will be in unmarked units."

"Our troopers will be especially watchful for the speeding driver as well as the drinking driver," he said. As of 8 p.m. Saturday, five people had died on state highways.

Singer Gene Watson and his band pleased country music lovers

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

It wasn't the usual Wednesday night crowd. These country music lovers had come for a special reason — to hear Gene Watson.
And they weren't the usual Midland Stardust concert crowd. The ages among those gathered ranged from 18 to 60. Although many were attired in the uniform western garb, almost as many were not. The only common factor seemed to be their desire to hear this particular singer.
They weren't disappointed. During his two sets, Watson sang all of his hits, including "Farewell Party," "Love in the Hot Afternoon," "The Old Man and His Horn" and his most recent, "Raising Cain in Texas."
Although Watson said "I can't read music and I've never had a music lesson of any kind in my life," he sings like someone who has had some formal training. Perhaps his vocal control can be attributed to his years of experience and the fact that he comes from a family of singers.
"They all sing, but they don't sing my kind of music. They sing religious Country western singer Gene Watson and his band, The Farewell Party, perform for an enthusiastic crowd at the Midland Stardust. During the two sets, Watson sang all of his popular songs, such as "Farewell Party," "The Old Man and His Horn," "Love in the Hot Afternoon" and, his most current selection, "Raising Cain in Texas." ENTERTAINMENT music. I've got two sisters that sing. And one, Lord, she can blow me away."

Watson, who grew up in Paris, Texas, said, "I've been singing ever since I can remember." He sings country and not gospel music because "I just like it and I always have. I used to do a little rock and roll, but even with 'Roll Over Beethoven,' I still sound country."
He and his band, The Farewell Party, were really high Wednesday night. High on Diet Dr. Pepper, that is.
Joe Eddy Goff, who has been with him for 2½ years, explained that "Some of us haven't had a drink in three months. We used to like to drink. Now all we do is drink Diet Dr. Pepper and play poker."
"Since we quit drinking," Goff said, joking around during the break between sets, "We found out those women aren't nearly as beautiful as we thought they were."
Grinning, he added, "Well, we have a few vices, but we're not going to print those." This statement was immediately followed by laughter and the comment among the band members that "Gene's married, but the rest of the band is single."
At which point Watson interjected, "We're just good old boys."
And the reason for all this abstinence? Those abstaining are all on diets.
Actually, with their hectic schedule, it would seem that none of the members light anywhere long enough to gain any weight.
"We spend 90 percent of our time on the road," Watson explained. On a monthly basis that averages out to "23 to 24 days a month."
But they all agreed that they are "doing what we like to do."
Of course the cost of traveling has really increased in the last couple of years, but Watson said that "it doesn't slow us down. Maybe those who are having difficulty finding jobs have priced themselves out of work."
For Watson, "My life's music. I want to have an award winning band and an award winning show."
Besides having a new album out, "No One Will Ever Know," Watson has a song, "Any Way You Want Me," in the new Clint Eastwood film, "Any Which Way You Can," which is due to be released in December.
Watson describes himself as a "real impatient person. When I want something, I want it." What would make him happy now is "a gold record and a new bus."
But, they all agreed that the biggest payment they get from their music "besides money, is pleasing people."
So they should have felt well-paid Wednesday night, because the crowd sure seemed well-pleased.

Hostage debate to begin next week

By The Associated Press

The speaker of the Iranian Parliament said Saturday that legislators would debate the fate of the 52 American hostages after dealing with "urgent tasks" during the coming week, Iran's Pars news agency reported.

It quoted the speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, as saying the Majlis - Parliament - would conclude its urgent business, such as approving deputies' credentials and a new Cabinet, before opening discussion on the hostages. He set no timetable.

Terhan Radio reported that President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr met with Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and they agreed that the names of the Cabinet ministers would be announced Sunday at the regular session of the Majlis.

The Iranian regime directed by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has said only the Majlis can decide the fate of the hostages, who on Saturday passed their 301st day as prisoners of Iranian militants.

A Kuwaiti newspaper said Saturday that an Arab state maintaining close relations with Iran has been attempting to mediate the release of the hostages.

The dispatch, filed from Washington and appearing in the Kuwaiti daily Al-Watan, quoted unnamed "reliable diplomatic sources," but did not identify the Arab state. It said the the Arab government began mediation efforts last week in cooperation with an unidentified Western European state. Other diplomats in Kuwait said the Arab nation could be Algeria, which has relatively close ties with both Iran and the United States.

In other developments: —Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moifanfar denied rumors that there would be fuel shortages in Iran during the winter. He said Iran had higher stocks of kerosene, oil and gasoline in reserve than last autumn and the the Esfahan refinery would increase oil production this week from a daily capacity of 80,000 barrels to 125,000 barrels, Pars news agency reported.

—The deputy commander of Iran's joint staff of the armed forces, Gen.

Fallahi, told Bani-Sadr Saturday the armed forces should be prepared for a possible attack by U.S. Marines in the Persian gulf, Pars said. It quoted the general as saying the U.S. Navy task force with 1,800 Marines was "in open international waters. We can observe them carefully in this manner and anticipate their moves."

—Bani-Sadr said in an interview with the French Socialist newspaper Le Matin that he had received reports that a U.S. aircraft carrier had entered the Persian Gulf "and is now near the Iranian coast."

—Radio Tehran reported 11 more people were executed in Tehran on charges of participating in a plot to overthrow the government. No further details were given.

Malta asks for help in Libyan oil dispute

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Malta accused Libya of threatening "regional and international peace" when its warships closed down an oil drilling rig in the Mediterranean and asked Saturday for an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council.

The rig, operated by the U.S. oil company Texaco under a concession from the Maltese government, is on the Medina bank of the continental shelf in a zone claimed by both Libya and Malta.

Malta's U.N. ambassador, Victor Gauci, handed U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim a letter asking for an urgent meeting of the 15-nation council on grounds that Libya had taken an "illegal action." It said Libyan warships surrounded the rig Aug. 20 and forced the Italian company in charge of drilling to shut down. The company's representative in Tripoli, Libya, was arrested and threatened with "dire consequences" if the drilling continued, the letter said.

Malta expelled an estimated 50 Libyan military advisers Thursday in retaliation for the incident, which has scarred relations between the two countries for the first time since Malta gained independence from Britain in 1964. Informed sources estimate oil-rich Libya's investment in the Maltese economy at between $90 million and $120 million. U.N. spokesman Rudolph Stajduher said no council meeting was expected before Tuesday. Gauci's letter was dated Monday and addressed to the council president, an office Tunisian Ambassador Taieb Slim will fill for a month beginning Monday.

The letter said Libya and Malta signed an agreement May 23, 1976, to submit the question of jurisdiction over the Medina bank to the International Court of Justice in the Hague.

But the Libyan People's Congress never ratified the agreement and "in the circumstances, the Maltese government could no longer postpone drilling operations" and notified Libya of its intentions in late 1979, the letter said.

It added the Libyan government of Col. Moammar Khadafy made "no written objection."

Libyan diplomats could not be reached for comment.

Billy's Libyan deal questions morality of government: Jaworski

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Billy Carter's involvement with Libya is an example of "questionable morality in government," regardless of whether any laws have been violated, a former Watergate prosecutor said Saturday.

And, said Leon Jaworski, President Carter should have expressed a desire to avoid misunderstanding or intimation that any special privileges were expected, and should have issued a public statement saying his brother was representing the Libyan government.

"Such a public pronouncement was not only indicated, it was essential, because of the involvement of a nation rightfully suspect in the minds of Americans," the Houston lawyer said in a speech at Abilene Christian College.

The Justice Department made Billy Carter register as a foreign agent for Libya after he received $220,000 from the Libyan government, money he said is part of a $500,000 loan.

A special Senate Judiciary Subcommittee is investigating his ties to Libya. The president's brother has said he never tried to influence U.S. policy for Libya.

There was no immediate comment from the White House on Jaworski's remarks.

"For many months, ever since Billy Carter was consorting publicly with the Libyans and boasting of his friendship with their leaders, the president was forewarned of the dangers to the institution of the presidency inherent in his brother's close association with these characters of questionable design," Jaworski said.

"But the president did nothing officially, nothing to contain this potential danger of impropriety."

Jaworski said that no one knew better than the president that Billy Carter, "expert though he may have been as a peanuts raiser and gasoline seller, had no expertise in industrial, technological or governmental affairs."

"He had nothing to offer to Libya except a willingness to misuse his relationship to the president of the United States."

Jaworski said the president should have known "that monetary considerations would be involved and that his brother, who was hanging on the ropes of bankruptcy, would not be serving the interests of Libya for 'peanuts.'"

Talks continue as actors strike nears record length

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Turning down the entertainment industry's latest offer, striking actors headed back to the bargaining table for a 10th day Saturday in their longest walkout in 20 years.

"Anything could happen right now," said Kim Feller of the Screen Actors Guild, which struck the major film studios, television networks and other producers on July 21 along with the American Federation of Television Radio Artists.

The threat of a boycott of next Saturday's Emmy Awards program was growing.

The strike, which will surpass the 42-day walkout by SAG in 1960 if no settlement is reached this weekend, has idled 67,000 TV and film actors and at least 20,000 non-striking craftsmen and technicians. Ms. Feller said union bargainers had rejected the latest offer from the producers.

"Their most recent counteroffer was unacceptable," she said. "The unions are meeting to determine where they want to go next."

The walkout has shut down the normally bustling entertainment industry and forced networks into a fall schedule relying heavily on reruns, films and specials.

The current negotiations center on compensation in the booming home-video field. In earlier talks, union negotiators had sought 6 percent of producers' gross profits on sales of videodiscs and videocassettes after a $10,000 advance per actor.

Producers had offered 3.6 percent on pay-TV dramas, comedies and variety shows and 2 percent on talk and game shows after the shows had run for two years on pay TV or had sold 100,000 cassettes or discs.

National Peoples Congress opens session in China

PEKING (AP) — One of China's top economic planners told the opening session of the Chinese Parliament on Saturday that the nation's cautious flirtation with Western economic incentives has blossomed into a productive relationship between flexible socialism and limited capitalism.

"We have actively yet prudently initiated experiments in restructuring economic management in selected enterprises," Vice Premier Yao Yilin told the 3,400 deputies attending the National People's Congress, which for the first time in more than two decades was open to foreign reporters.

It was the first time American reporters ever had been allowed to attend the congress, convened in the red-draped main auditorium of Peking's Great Hall.

Yao, head of the State Planning Commission, said new policies introduced last year have produced higher industrial output and a higher per capita income for the nation's 1 billion people.

Those policies include greater emphasis on self-management and competition for about 6,000 key industries and financial rewards for creativity and individual initiative in agriculture and industry, Yao said.

He said the changes offset the rigid old system of central planning inherited from the Soviet Union and restored balance to China's economy. Under the late party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, heavy industry was promoted at the expense of other sectors of the economy, and Yao said China's new, pragmatic economics encouraged gains in agriculture and light industry.

Another development in post-Mao China is expected to be evidenced later in the two-week congressional session when the deputies rubber-stamp approval of several major changes in leadership. The changes already have been passed by Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party.

The reshuffling will underscore a policy of collective leadership — as opposed to the "cult of personality" under Mao — and the promotion of younger people to powerful government posts.

Premier Hua Guofeng, a compromise choice following the death of Chou En-Lai in 1976, is expected to cede his post to Vice Premier Zhao Ziyang, a pragmatic economic planner. Senior Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping, the 76-year-old architect of the nation's massive modernization scheme, and at least four other aging vice premiers also will give up their government posts.

But Deng, considered China's key leader, and the others are expected to retain the party posts from which they derive their real power.

Zhao, 60, is considered Deng's protégé, and is expected to continue his economic policies. Last May, Hua criticized those policies by blaming them for a decline in ideological purity.

In his speech Saturday, Yao told the deputies that — compared to 1978 — the new policies had produced an increase in industrial output of 7.6 percent, of 8.6 in agricultural output and of 9.6 in light industry.

Joan Higgs, a Keys Memorial Hospital administrator, said a 7-year-old girl was dead on arrival. "The medical examiner's autopsy showed carbon monoxide poisoning," she said.

The girl was identified as Daimar Gomez Quesad, Her mother, Arleya Quesada, was hospitalized in fair condition, Ms. Riley said.

Spanish radio station WQBA in Miami said Friday night the girl's stepfather, Mario Figueredo Garcia, who came to the United States on a refugee boat three months ago, recently returned to the Cuban port of Mariel to pick up his wife and family.

The radio station said he sent his family to Key West aboard the 25-foot Francisco because he considered it safer than a smaller boat.

The death raised the total number of known fatalities during the 90-mile passage across the Florida Straits to 27 Cubans and Cuban-Americans since the illegal boatlift began in late April.

The Coast Guard on Saturday also was escorting a boat carrying 80 other refugees to Key West.

Before the latest two boats, 121,404 Cubans had come to the U.S. since the boatlift operation began.

President Carter ordered a Coast Guard blockade put in place in May, but an average of nearly 100 Cubans a day still arrive on boats that slip through the 18-cutter patrol.

Dr. Johnny H. Ramsey, pastor of the Rolling Hills Baptist Church of Fort Worth, will be conducting a revival at the Temple Baptist Church, 4303 Thomason Drive, Tuesday through Friday at 7:30 p.m. There will be special music each night and the public is invited to attend. A nursery will be provided.

500 rebels reported killed

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Afghanistan's government radio said Saturday that 500 Moslem rebels were killed and 200 were captured in battles with government troops in northwestern Faryab Province.

"Our people have achieved success against imperialist agents and counter-revolutionaries," the broadcast, monitored in India, said.

It claimed the 500 anti-communist insurgents were "destroyed" in Maymana, Faryab's largest city located 320 miles northwest of the capital of Kabul. About 500 foreign-made rifles were seized from the rebels and "foreign stooges," it said.

In another encounter, "200 professional terrorists sent by their foreign masters to Faryab province were captured along with their weapons and ammunition by the security forces and party activists in cooperation with the people," Radio Afghanistan reported.

It acknowledged stepped-up rebel activity in the eastern province of Paktya and said loyalists there have "set up resistance committees for the defense of their region from attacks by counter-revolutionaries and agents of foreign imperialism."

In the northern province of Samangan, government forces captured a truck driven by insurgent leader Abdul Matin who was distributing weapons to villagers, the broadcast said. It did not say if Matin was captured.

There were no independent confirmations of the government claims. The broadcasts made no mention of Soviet military units.

The Soviet Union sent about 100,000 troops into Afghanistan last December to shore up the pro-Soviet regime against Moslem insurgents.

Refugees overcome by gas fumes

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Nine Cuban refugees, hospitalized after carbon monoxide fumes spread through their "Freedom Flotilla" boat, killing a 7-year-old girl, were "improving" at a medical center here, officials said Saturday.

Two of the refugees were listed in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit, nursing supervisor Joanne Riley said, and were being "watched closely."

The most seriously injured refugees were Mayra Torres, in her mid 20s, and an unidentified male in his 20s, she said. The other seven refugees were in better condition and were being treated on regular medical floors, Ms. Riley said.

The nine were rushed to Keys Memorial Hospital Friday after Coast Guard and Navy helicopters and the cutter Point Thatcher picked up 32 refugees from a cabin cruiser, the Francisco, about 45 miles southwest of here.

The white-minority government there has been fighting black guerrillas based in Angola. It's military operations into Angola have been staged from Namibia, which is controlled by the South African regime.

Joan Higgs, a Keys Memorial Hospital administrator, said a 7-year-old girl was dead on arrival. "The medical examiner's autopsy showed carbon monoxide poisoning," she said.

Angolans claim 32 killed

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — South African commandos and warplanes killed 32 Angolans, wounded 17 and kidnapped three in separate raids during the past month, according to the Angolan Embassy here.

A Defense Ministry statement from the Angolan capital of Luanda, released by the Marxist nation's Lisbon embassy late Friday, said three attacks were carried out under air cover by helicopter-borne South African troops based in Namibia.

It said 17 Angolan soldiers and 11 civilians died in an attack on the commune at Chitudo on July 29.

Two separate bombing raids against outlying areas near the town of Ondjiva Aug. 19 left four dead and 17 wounded, the embassy claimed.

It added the attacks were followed by South African flights designed to hit "strategic economic objectives situated in Mocimedes and Huila provinces," also located near Namibia.

The white-minority government there has been fighting black guerrillas based in Angola. It's military operations into Angola have been staged from Namibia, which is controlled by the South African regime.

Joan Higgs, a Keys Memorial Hospital administrator, said a 7-year-old girl was dead on arrival. "The medical examiner's autopsy showed carbon monoxide poisoning," she said.

Stargazers discover the computer at last

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Forget about crystal balls, elaborate wall charts and arcane mathematical formulas, astrologers finally have discovered the computer.

The new table-top home computers were the hit of this weekend's annual conference of the National Astrological Society, where about 300 stargazers, tarot card readers and cosmic researchers gathered to exchange information on the impact of the heavens on the earth.

"The computer revolution has just started for us, and we'll soon be in the middle of it," said Barbara Somerfield, society founder and director. "Last year only about 1 percent of all astrologers had computers to help in their calculations. This year it's 5 percent, next year 20 percent and in a few years everyone will have one."

The computers on display were programmed with the positions of the sun, moon and planets for every minute in the last 50 years. An astrologer just plugs in a client's birth date, time and place and, within seconds, the computer spits out the relative positions of the heavenly bodies at the exact moment of birth.

"Instead of spending hours charting the positions, it gives us more time to concentrate on the essential part of our craft — interpreting the data and helping a person realize their full potential," Miss Somerfield said.

Modern astrologers operate on the premise that the position of heavenly bodies at the time of birth influences a person's personality and ability. They feel people are not bound by astrological profiles, but may lead happier lives if they learn where their abilities lie. Astrology is not commonly accepted as a science.

Much of the conference was devoted to the increased use of astrology in such fields as psychotherapy, medical work, counseling and astrometeorology. Participants noted the use of astrology by Wall Street analysts and by Adolf Hitler and Winston Churchill during World War II.

Many participants criticized the public's most common contact with astrology — the horoscope columns in a newspaper. They complained the columns are geared to 12 astrological signs, and ignore what they said were more important factors, such as the position of the planets at the time of birth and the relationship between the birthplace and the planets.

The conference, which began Friday and ends Sunday, with a "post-conference healing seminar" scheduled for Monday, attracted many women and people in their 20s.

All were eager to lay the crystal ball image to rest.

"We still have the image of witches' hats and brooms," complained Miss Somerfield. She started the society, which she said is one of four major U.S. astrological groups, in New York 11 years ago.

Astrological author and theorist Leyla Rael-Rudhyar said she hears about crystal balls so much, "I've actually been looking for one for my office, so I can put a sign on it saying, 'Out of Order.'"

One of the convention speakers, Dr. Bernard

Rosenblum, a New York psychiatrist, said his colleagues were skeptical of his use of astrology to counsel some patients.

"It's not for every patient, but it can give a nice blueprint about someone's makeup and help him understand his past," he said.

The convention book store, however, indicated not everybody shared their scholarly interests. On sale was everything from books on "Sex and the Outer Planets" and "Reincarnation and the Zodiac" to tarot cards and astro dice.

Atop the books was the sign: "Shoplifting Wreaks Havoc On Your Karma."

Sci-fi fans gather at Worldcon to act out their fantasies

BOSTON (AP) — Junior Darth Vaders, Princess Leias and crewmembers of the Battleship Galactica are acting out their fantasies this weekend at an international convention of people devoted to their otherworldly passion — science fiction.

About 6,000 sci-fi fans, writers and editors are attending the 38th World Science Fiction Convention, an assortment of folks whose allegiances range from Superman and Star Trek to medieval battles and computer games.

Those attending the Worldcon, as they call it, are spending the weekend at seminars on alien civilizations, obscure fantasy films. Also planned is a masquerade ball.

"People fall in love with their fantasies, and they want to completely immerse themselves in their favorite stories," said Ann Layman Chancellor of Iowa City, Iowa. "This is a great long weekend for acting that out."

People wandered the corridors of the Sheraton-Boston hotel toting "ray guns" and sporting flowing capes and whirling hats. Star Wars characters were by far the most popular, although one young woman dressed as a cat from Brian Daley's "Star's End" and another carried a stuffed fire lizard on her shoulder from Anna McCaffrey's "Dragon Riders" series.

Professional science fiction writers, including Isaac Asimov and Damon Knight, led discussions on such subjects as life on a neutron star and how to become a werewolf.

For 12 hours each day, such films as "Termites from Mars," "Bambi Meets Godzilla" and "Armageddon Crowd Scene Take One" are shown.

About 200 writers are attending the convention, and some people spend the weekend tagging after their favorite authors. Others pass the convention huddled over games of "Dungeons and Dragons."

"Some of the people here are interested in science and talk about future colonies in space," said David Kyle, author of "The Dragon Lens."

The new agency, quoting South African Radio, said the accident occurred Friday about 60 miles northeast of Johannesburg. No other details of the crash were given.

King Sobhuza's son, Prince Masithela, chairman of the National Industrial Corp. of Swaziland, was in serious condition, SAPA said.

Letter course offered

The Permian Basin Graduate Center will offer a Calligraphy II Workshop Sept. 8-17. Classes will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. at the PBGC Building, 105 W. Illinois Ave. Laird Considine will be the instructor.

This workshop will focus on the various styles of uncial and half uncial letter forms of the 4th to 9th centuries. Uncials are beautiful and relatively simple letters that were used by the early Christians as the predominant form for biblical manuscripts. The use of Versals and principles of decoration and illumination will also be covered.

Considine began his studies in this ancient art while attending the Evergreen State College, Olympia, Wash. He has taught calligraphy at Midland College and Austin Community College. He has also led workshops at the Museum of the Southwest and PBGC.

Fee for the course is $30. For additional information or registration, please call 563-2311.

Police, too, must wear 'em

SASKATOON, Saskatchewan (AP) — City police have charged one of their own with driving a police car without wearing a seatbelt — almost three months after a motorist reported the violation, authorities said Friday.

The officer, Robert Peters, has been given three weeks to decide whether to fight the charge in court, or pay the $20 fine.

Joe Butzelaar of Saskatoon reported the apparent violation after following the cruiser for some distance, the authorities said. When the patrol car stopped, Butzelaar demanded that the other police officer in the car write out a ticket for his partner.

The officer refused and sent Butzelaar to the department's inspector.

Raids net moslem outlaws

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian security forces killed five members of an outlawed fundamentalist Moslem brotherhood and arrested three others in overnight raids, the official news agency SANA said Friday.

The Damascus raids also netted a weapons cache, including mortars and rocket propelled grenades, SANA said.

The raids came on the final day of an amnesty decree proclaimed by Syrian President Hafez Assad, calling on members of the Moslem brotherhood to surrender. Informed sources said about 900 members of the brotherhood accepted a presidential pardon.

Windstorm hurts two

ADA, Okla. (AP) — Two persons were injured — one critically — and thousands of dollars in damage was caused by high winds that roared through this southern Oklahoma town.

The windstorm Thursday night collapsed the roof of a bank's covered parking lot onto several cars, ripped the roof off a lumber yard, knocked down power poles and shattered numerous windows, said Ada Civil Defense Director Gene Smith.

Linda James, 23, was critically injured when she was hit in the head by a supermarket sign knocked down by the storm. The other person injured was treated and released at a hospital.

Estes homestead to be auctioned

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer

PECOS, Texas (AP) — The old homestead of Billie Sol Estes is about to be sold at public auction to pay off the convicted swindler's tax debts, but officials admit the home has fallen on such hard times that it probably won't bring nearly enough money.

For one thing, the backyard swimming pool where the Estes family once frolicked in high style is now a vegetable garden. The estate is occupied by a home for women in trouble, and they had the pool filled in with dirt, where the cultivation of tomatoes and peas offsets their grocery bills.

The eight-bedroom, six-bathroom estate — not counting a bathroom by the former pool — sits on an acre and a half of land and has been appraised by local officials at $82,115.

BUT THE INTERNAL Revenue Service has a tax lien against the house of $185,000, and local authorities are demanding $30,000 in unpaid ad valorem taxes — for a total of $215,000.

"It'll be a cold day in hell before anybody'll put out that much money for Billie Sol's house," admitted City Attorney Ted Painter. But he said whatever is collected will go first to pay off local property taxes.

Not so, says Michael Henry of the IRS' collection division in Fort Worth. "The proceeds will have to go in sequence, and the federal tax lien takes precedence," Henry said.

Painter predicted the matter of who gets first crack at the money from the sale of the home would end up in court. "We figure the ad valorem taxes should be paid first and we will fight to insure ourselves of collecting it," he said.

U.S. Marshal Eddy Markham, 42, who will serve as auctioneer, said prospective buyers must have at least 10 percent of the purchase price at the end of the auction. He said the balance is due in 30 days.

Estes, 55, is now a prisoner in the federal penitentiary in Big Spring, where he was transferred earlier this month from La Tuna, just north of El Paso. Prison officials said the move was made to allow Estes to be closer to his family home in Abilene.

ESTES MOVED HIS family to Abilene in 1963 after a bullet was fired through a window in the Pecos home and a cross was burned on his front yard. The incidents came two years after the scandal erupted that led to indictments and convictions against Estes for fraud.

Before he moved from Pecos, he tried to use the house to raise money by offering tours at $5 a head, plus $2 extra if they wanted to take pictures.

The Justice Department has said Estes, who won freedom on parole in 1971 but was convicted again last year for tax evasion, will become eligible for parole Dec. 15, 1983.

The home that will be auctioned on the steps of the Reeves County Courthouse Tuesday was built on the site of a former swimming pool after Estes, a farm implement salesman, moved here in 1951. It was small at first, but as Estes' wealth grew, he added on until the cottage became one of the finest and biggest mansions in Pecos at that time.

TODAY IT IS occupied by a group called "The Way In," a locally sponsored home for battered or deserted wives, unwed mothers, and other women going through a crisis who need a place to stay temporarily.

Student editor faces charges

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A student newspaper editor who said he would not submit negatives subpoenaed by prosecutors was ordered to return to a county courtroom today to face contempt charges.

Mark McKinnon, editor of the Daily Texan, has photographic negatives sought by Assistant County Attorney Jeff Blackwelder, who wants to identify 16 Middle Eastern students on trial here on charges stemming from the disruption of a Jan. 31 speech at the University of Texas by a former Iranian official.

McKinnon testified Thursday he could not tell if the negatives he had were the ones sought in Blackwelder's subpoena. However, County Court-at-Law Judge Jon Wisser said he did not think McKinnon made a sufficient effort.

"I'm convinced that with a very minimal effort he could have identified the time the photographs were taken," the judge said. "His lack of knowledge on this whole thing is startling to me."

Wisser said he was holding McKinnon in contempt and gave him until today to decide what to do with the negatives.

Disabled ranger opens up Yosemite

'Access coordinator's' dream closer to being reality

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — Sitting in his wheelchair, talking about ways of opening wilderness areas to the disabled, Yosemite National Park Ranger Dennis Almay has a rare insight into the problem he's trying to eliminate.

In many respects, the challenges of Almay's job as the park's "access coordinator" are as high as the peaks around him.

Almay says his dream is "to make the whole park accessible" to the disabled visitor.

The dream is closer to reality since the passage of Public Law 96-444 requires public areas to be open to all people, including the blind, deaf and orthopedically disabled.

"The disabled person has the same desires, emotions and wants as an ordinary person," Al-may explains. "The thing they don't have is the choice normal people do."

"The disabled person pays taxes and owns this park as much as anyone. If disabled people come here, they should at least have a choice as to what they can do as a park visitor."

Almay has produced a nine-page guide for the disabled which details all park facilities available for the handicapped. Transportation is the central issue here. Right now, the only way for a disabled person to get to Yosemite is by private car. Even Almay commutes from the park's employee housing in nearby El Portal in his specially equipped van.

"Things are starting to happen," he says. "By 1982, the park's shuttle buses should be totally accessible. The Curry Co. (the park's concessionaire) has agreed to look into the feasibility of long-line buses to see if they can get that needed transportation into the park."

With long-range buses, the disabled could get to the park from Fresno Air Terminal or the Amtrak depot at Merced in the San Joaquin Valley southwest of here.

Ultimately, Almay hopes to see access for the disabled to all buildings, trails, campgrounds and other natural areas.

"I would like to see some type of wilderness program for the disabled, perhaps a place where disabled groups could come as close to the wilderness as possible with a minimum of assistance," Almay says.

He wants park trails classified according to the level of difficulty they pose for the disabled. He already has marked his maps with the paved trails of Yosemite where the disabled can enjoy the same natural treasures most vacationers here take for granted.

Almay was afflicted by multiple sclerosis five years ago while in the Air Force.

New post excites, frightens bishop

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

The Northwest District of the Episcopal Church, which includes the Texas Panhandle and West Texas, encompasses 12,000 baptized persons. And its bishop-elect is a Midlander.

When the Rev. Sam Hulsey, pastor of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, was recently elected to the lifetime post, he became the first Midlander to receive such an appointment. He replaces Bishop Wills Hinton who is moving to Louisiana.

From the comfort of his Midland church office, Hulsey this week said the election to the post is "exciting and frightening."

"I was in a conflict over it to the point that I wondered why in the world I had gotten myself into it. I knew how because I was asked to by lay and clergy friends."

"I'm excited about the challenge of the job. And the opportunity to work with and be supportive of the parish clergy."

Hulsey explained that his new duties include being the "chief liturgical officer of the church, bringing people into full membership and representing our part of the church to the whole Anglican community."

The job entails "an awful lot of traveling, mostly within the diocese, but some without."

The schism within the Protestant Episcopal Church of America several years back resulted in the establishment of the Anglican Church of North America. When asked about his position on this division, Hulsey replied, "I'm grieved about it. I really feel that it is a negative kind of thing where people have paid more attention to the process of worship than to the worship of God himself. Those people are always welcome back. I desire for them to feel at home again in our communion."

Hulsey explained the church's split centered around "the 1928 prayer book. We have a new prayer book dated 1979. Some people did not like the changes in worship in the new book."

Another major issue was the ordination of women into the priesthood with those who left the faith feeling that women should not be ordained, he added.

Educationally, Hulsey's background includes a bachelor of arts degree with an English major from Washington and Lee University. He did his graduate work in English literature and divinity at St. Andrew's University in Scotland and then received a master of divinity degree from Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Virginia. He spent one year in Clinical Pastoral Education at Baptist Hospital in Nashville, Tenn.

He has served as curate, assistant rector and rector of St. John's Church in Corsicana, assistant to the rector and director of christian education of St. Michael and All Angels' Church in Dallas, rector of St. Matthew's Church in Pampa and, prior to moving to Midland, he was rector of Saint David's Church in Nashville, Tenn.

While in Midland, Hulsey has served as christian education director and vice president of the Midland Association of Churches, as a member of the Trinity School Board and the Midland Parks and Recreation Commission. He has been very involved in the hospice concept of care for the terminally ill.

"We are working right now to develop a hospice for Midland. Our planning group is sending a representative to a workshop in California in October.

"In this type of program we try to help the person who is dying live out his last days as fully as possible," Hulsey explained. He added that the program is nondenominational.

Hulsey's ordination is scheduled for Dec. 13 at the Civic Center in Lubbock. It is his hope that "lots of Midland friends will be there because I need their support and presence."

Although Hulsey is looking forward with anticipation to fulfilling his new duties, he said he and his family have "mixed feelings about leaving Midland. We all love Midland and don't like the thought of leaving."

"I hope I will always have a special relationship with Midland."

The Rev. Sam Hulsey, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, is the new bishop-elect of the Northwest Texas district of the Episcopal Church. He is the first Midlander to be selected for this lifetime post. Hulsey's ordination is scheduled for Dec. 13 at the Lubbock Civic Center. (Staff Photo)

Exerpts of late shah's memoirs being published

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Excerpts of the memoirs of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, written while he was in exile after the Iranian revolution, are being published in newspapers around the country beginning Sunday.

The memoirs, "Answer to History," are to be published by Stein and Day, according to Jesse Levine, an executive vice president of the New York Times Syndicate, which distributed the excerpts.

The first of six excerpts was published Sunday in about 25 U.S. newspapers, Levine said, including The Bulletin in Philadelphia, the Chicago Tribune, the Washington Star, the Miami Herald, and the Houston Chronicle.

The shah, who left his country in January 1979, wrote that he had mixed feelings about coming to the United States for treatment of cancer and other ailments.

Question marks in key states dot Carter's election map

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's election-day target map is clouded by question marks over such crucial states as Michigan and Illinois, New York and Texas. Even his Southern anchor could be vulnerable in 1980.

While Carter strategists claim to have turned the early trend and say the president is overtaking Republican Ronald Reagan in battleground states, the arithmetic that would add up to 270 electoral votes and another term in the White House is anything but clear.

New York, with 41 electoral votes, Illinois and Texas with 26 apiece, and Michigan with 21, typify Carter's problem.

Carter won two, lost two in 1976 when he captured the White House with 297 electoral votes to Gerald R. Ford's 241. It was the closest electoral college verdict in 60 years.

Overall, Carter won 23 states, four fewer than Ford. "We hope to carry most of them, all of them, this time," said Tim Kraft, his deputy campaign chairman.

Kraft acknowledges that Texas and New York could create major problems for Carter.

At the same time, he said Carter can gain against Reagan states he lost to Ford. He puts Michigan and Illinois in that category, along with Connecticut, New Jersey and the three Pacific Coast states.

That would include Reagan's California home, the biggest electoral prize of all with 45 votes to the victor. "We have closed in California to a point where the margin is very close," Kraft said. "... It is winnable."

That appraisal is not widely shared, but Kraft dismissed pre-convention polls showing Carter far behind in California as "almost ancient history." Thus, Vice President Walter F. Mondale is campaigning throughout California in the coming week.

Kraft says, "We don't concede a single state." That's standard strategy — in public. In fact, as the campaign takes shape over the next few weeks, the Carter forces will have to concentrate its investment of money — and the president's time — on states that could deliver the magic 270 electoral votes.

Ohio is a crucial swing state. Carter won it last time, but there has been friction among state Democrats, and GOP Gov. James Rhodes is hard at work for Reagan. The president is counting on the coattails of Sen. John Glenn, a solid bet for re-election, and Kraft says Ohio Democrats are uniting behind Carter. He says, "We intend to fight hard there. This is one of the major battleground states."

Texas, Illinois, New York, Michigan and Florida are all on the same list.

Carter already has two visits to Texas on his schedule, and Kraft says, "It will be tough, probably even tougher than last time."

In Illinois, Carter is counting on an organization assembled for the primary election he won over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. "We're got an almost unified front," said Kraft. Almost doesn't include Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, who broke with Carter to support Kennedy and hasn't had much good to say about the president since.

Mondale and Rosalynn Carter already have scheduled Illinois campaign forays.

Michigan, Ford's home state, also went Republican in 1976. "I think we'll be in much better shape this time," Kraft said, with the endorsement of the United Auto Workers — which wanted Kennedy to be the nominee — and a Detroit base secured with the backing of Mayor Coleman Young.

New York, a state Carter must win, could go on his danger list should Rep. John B. Anderson, the independent candidate, gain Liberal Party endorsement there. That would give him a ballot position Carter wants, and probably needs in a state he carried by little more than four points over Ford.

Anderson remains a worrisome rival for Carter. His standing in the polls has slipped, but Kraft says it doesn't take double-figure support to make the independent a threat to the president.

Kraft said, "Even if he dropped to 8 percent, he'd be a problem" that could cost Carter as many as five states and tip a close race to Reagan.

That's why Carter now insists that the first general election debate be a direct confrontation with Reagan, not a matchup with Anderson included.

Carter's personal campaign schedule will have him hunting votes an average of 2½ days a week during September. It may get more intensive in October.

Carter kicks off his fall campaign Monday at Tusculumbia, Ala. His native South was almost solid for Carter in 1976. It will be far more difficult this time, but Kraft says Carter is gaining strength in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, likely Reagan targets.

Both Carter and Reagan are eyeing the region's biggest electoral prize — Florida. Its 17 electoral votes were comfortably Carter's in 1976. "We've got some work to do there," Kraft said. "That could be one of the toughest southern states."

Reagan campaign targeting states Carter won in 1976

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's presidential election strategy is keyed to 12 states Jimmy Carter won in 1976 when he gained the White House by defeating Gerald R. Ford.

The Reagan plan counts on holding nearly solid support west of the Mississippi River, cutting into Carter's southern base and defeating the Democratic incumbent in enough northern industrial states to give the Republican challenger the 270 electoral votes he needs for victory.

And despite some rocky moments in the early stages of his campaign, the Reagan strategists think the numbers are leaning his way.

But there have been signs of weakness. The big lead in national public opinion polls Reagan held after the Republican convention has vanished. The race now looks like a dead heat.

Immediately after the Democratic convention that nominated Carter for a second term, Reagan got entangled in a flap over his statement that the United States ought to have "official relations" with Taiwan. For more than a week, China dominated the Reagan campaign.

Campaigning in Ohio, Reagan met with Republican governors from five Great Lakes states, an area that plays a key role in his election strategy. To a man, they urged him to concentrate on the economy.

Top Reagan advisers agree with that advice. Edwin Meese III, Reagan's staff chief, said the Republicans will aim at drawing support from working people, minorities, senior citizens. "All were disadvantaged by Carter economic policies," he says.

Geographically, the Reagan strategy breaks down this way: In defeating Ford in 1976, Carter had 297 electoral votes, most of them east of the Mississippi.

His base was the South where Carter carried every state but Virginia. That won't be so easy against the Reagan-George Bush ticket.

Reagan always has had strong support in the South and his advisers are convinced he can carry several states in the region.

For example, against Ford, Carter carried Mississippi by less than 15,000 votes. Reagan aides are confident he will carry the state and its seven electoral votes this time.

Other Deep South states where the Reagan camp is confident are Alabama, Louisiana and South Carolina. Those three would give the GOP challenger an additional 27 electoral votes.

Subtract those 34 from Carter's 297 total in 1976, and he drops to 263, seven short of the 270 needed for election.

But Reagan can't count on holding every state Ford carried.

The weakest in that list is Michigan, which Ford carried easily with his appeal as a native son. But in 1980, Michigan looks more likely to give its 21 electoral votes to Carter.

As the Reagan camp sees it, that makes four northern and two southern states, the real battleground!

They are Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois, New Jersey, Texas and Florida.

In 1976, Carter carried Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas and Florida. But this year, the economy is a major issue in the four northern states. All but New Jersey have Republican governors who have pledged to go all out for Reagan.

Bush has lived in Texas for the past 25 years and ran well in the state primary when he was battling Reagan for the GOP presidential nomination. Two years ago, the state elected its first Republican governor in more than 100 years.

Illinois is a Midwestern battleground where both Reagan and Carter ran well in the presidential primary last March. Reagan was born in the state and has the support of its Republican governor, James Thompson.

A big question mark is New York where John B. Anderson, the independent candidate, hopes to get the endorsement of the Liberal Party. Carter strategists fear Anderson could damage Carter's chances of winning the state's 41 electoral votes.

Meese noted that Reagan doesn't intend to take the West for granted, another way of saying he'll keep an eye on California to make certain Carter doesn't pull an upset in Reagan's backyard.

Anderson to concentrate drive on populous states

By MIKE SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — John B. Anderson's long-shot presidential campaign will concentrate on a dozen states in the East, Midwest and Far West.

The independent candidate is gearing up an austere campaign which will depend heavily on his appearing in televised presidential debates and a heavy dose of television ads. It is an uncertain scenario because it isn't known if Anderson will be included in early-campaign debates and it isn't sure that he will raise the funds necessary for the TV ads.

The political premise of Anderson's campaign is that the most intense dissatisfaction with two major party nominees, Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, is concentrated in a string of heavily industrialized, highly populated states, plus California, Washington and Oregon.

"I am very hopeful that the broad band of states stretching across from the Middle West up to the East through New England represents those that I can win," Anderson has said.

Specifically, Anderson hopes to do well in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana.

Many of Anderson's campaign themes echo the concerns of cities in those same states.

There is also a lesser hope that Anderson, plagued by a recent fall in public opinion polls, will catch hold in a few Southern states like Florida and Texas. For the most part, however, the South will be left as a battleground for Carter and Reagan.

If Anderson won the 10 largest states in the November election, that would give him 216 electoral votes, 54 shy of the 270 needed to take the White House.

In many of those big states, a majority of voters questioned by pollsters say they would vote for Anderson if, on Election Day, they believe he is a credible candidate.

While Anderson strategists understand theirs is an uphill campaign, they say once Anderson is shown to be a contender in the biggest states, enough smaller states with fewer numbers of electoral college votes will fall into place, too.

Anderson has fallen to between 13 and 16 percent in most of the major polls. But his top campaign strategists believe that if he is invited to the debates sponsored by the League of Women Voters, and makes a good appearance, he will shoot up in public esteem and be taken seriously by increasing numbers of Americans.

One knowledgeable campaign strategist said that to do well in debate competition with Carter and Reagan, Anderson must soften his public image as a stiff man lacking in warmth.

The source said Anderson must change what often appears to be a contentious personality who frequently bristles when confronted with criticism of his proposed policies or his campaign strategy.

Until last week, Anderson's campaign schedule had been controlled by a group of largely young, political novices, who had worked in varied previous campaigns including those by Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., and California Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown.

But on Thursday, Anderson brought David Garth, formerly retained as a media consultant and overall political strategist, to Washington to take personal command of his campaign.

Three top aides resigned and one source said the result will be "a lean campaign more in line with what Anderson is all about."

Officials said it is hoped that Garth will provide strong direction to an organization which occasionally floundered and sometimes sent Anderson into campaign appearances with no apparent purpose.

Anderson has raised nearly $6 million in four months, but aides concede he will likely not meet his stated goal of attracting between $13 million and $15 million before November.

Nonetheless, one senior aide said, "there will be adequate funds for him to do what must be done."

Stock split announced

DALLAS — In their regularly scheduled meeting held this week, the Board of Directors of Southwest Airlines Co. declared a 3-for-2 stock split-up of the company's common stock to be distributed Sept. 22 to shareholders of record at the close of business on Sept. 8.

This stock split-up will result in an additional 2,283,250 shares of the company's common stock being issued to its shareholders, with cash being paid in lieu of fractional shares. This split increases the number of outstanding shares from 4,566,500 to 6,849,750.

The board also declared the company's regular quarterly dividend of 8 cents per share on the 6,849,750 shares to be issued and outstanding after the stock split-up.

Brassy feminine bureaucrat anxious to get back to Texas

By SOLL SUSSMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Liz Carpenter — the brassy drummer for countless causes from Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty to the Equal Rights Amendment — took drastic steps to make sure she doesn't renege on her pledge to stay here only one year.

For her return to Washington, Mrs. Carpenter said she pared her wardrobe down drastically — bringing only seven suitcases, or enough to get her through a year in her new job as assistant secretary of education.

With five months left before her self-imposed deadline for returning to Texas, she says, "I'm eager to get back to my Jacuzzi on the hill."

BUT THEN Mrs. Carpenter never intended to come back to Washington from that Austin hilltop home with the "spectacular view" in the first place, until Education Secretary Shirley Hufstедler sounded the call for her to head the new cabinet department's public affairs office.

"Secretary Hufstедler, called me with persuasion I haven't heard since Lyndon Johnson used to occasionally pick me up by the ears and say, 'America needs you, I need you,' and I thought she was overdoing it but then, who am I to argue with a cabinet member," Mrs. Carpenter, 60, said in an interview.

The former press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson said she was enjoying her life in Austin too much to want to return to Washington, a city she first visited in 1942 and lived in for 32 years.

MOST OF THEM were as a reporter watching the Texas congressional delegation, but she wound them up as a vice president at Hill & Knowlton, Inc., a large public relations firm.

Back in Austin since 1976, the widowed Washington veteran was working part-time at the LBJ Library and writing.

She wore a bright, red dress to her Senate confirmation hearing and cheerily told senators: "When this meeting was originally set for Valentine's Day, I went out and bought a red dress so I could ask you all to be my Valentines."

Mrs. Carpenter was no less repressible than during the Johnson years when she said, "I taught LBJ how to pick up dogs" or told reporters she knew about the White House dogs because, "I'm in the doghouse most of the time."

At the confirmation hearing, she treated her nomination lightly by comparing her surprise to Franklin Pierce's when he learned he was nominated for president on the 49th ballot.

"INDEED, HE ONLY learned of it when his manservant happened into the town of Concord, N.H., and heard the news," Mrs. Carpenter said. "He rushed back to his master at Hillsborough and said, 'Ridiculous as it may seem, Mr. Pierce, you have just been nominated President of the United States.'"

WASHINGTON: United States." She said she felt just the same. Mrs. Carpenter joked then, and jokes still, about her unfamiliarity with the bureaucracy and its standard use of acronyms like FICE and BEOGS.

"I had never met an organizational chart face to face," the new bureaucrat said. "Indeed, I had never known anyone over 10 years of age who drew squares and lines and shaded little boxes in crayons with the primary colors."

Joking aside, Mrs. Carpenter says she is deadly serious about the role she can play giving a human touch to the new department's image.

"I think that what I bring to these circles of young people is a sense of history and purpose and a reminder," she said. "It's as Lyndon Johnson said — education is the only valid passport out of poverty."

THE ASSISTANT secretary does not want her staff or the department to speak about "post-secondary education" instead of "college." She prefers to hear a program described by what it does rather than with a Roman numeral title or an acronym.

"I'm not a management type. I'm from a more creative world," Mrs. Carpenter admitted. "Sometimes the danger is they think it's all management, and they get very swept up in the large phrases and they don't realize that what the whole government is about is people." She said she tried to hire people with that purpose in mind, people who have some talent at explaining programs to the public.

"I think we are still struggling with it but I think we've made a lot of strides," she said. "You're always in reorganization it seems to me but we're about to get it all in place."

Plans for the fall include campaigning, mostly on weekends in Texas and elsewhere, as a "total immersion Democrat" for President Carter. "I hope to add some humor now and then. That's my fun and, my God, some of the things they do are laughable and yet also I think it's just a healthy thing to have in politics," she said.

Mrs. Carpenter reserved her most seathing remarks about Republicans to this year's exclusion of a platform plank supporting the Equal Rights Amendment.

"I plan to have a lot to say about that in the months ahead," she said. "I think it was a total betrayal!"

Her plans for the future include spending more time writing after her return to Austin and, if possible, helping to form a Texas writers' center or workshop.

Mrs. Carpenter said her decision to go back to Texas does not stem from any displeasure with Washington, although politics and the capital itself have changed from her first days here.

"I was nurtured in this town by a warmer world of politics," she said. "It's more of a free-for-all now."

if ya don tawk like dey do dey tink yer dum

By JANE SEE WHITE

NOO YAWK (AP) — If ya don tawk like dey do in Illinois — eben in ya home tern — alodda dem tink yer dum. The Noo Yawk accent is unique and it has venerable roots. But it can brand the speaker and shackle the ambitious. "I was turned down for a very prestigious national marketing job because I had a Brooklyn accent," a conservatively tailored young woman said. "I don't want it to happen again."

"I don't always expect to live in New York," said a teacher. "I expect to move away and I want to move up into school administration. The accent would be a handicap."

THESE NATIVE New Yorkers and 12 others did something about their "Rs" — and their "Ts," "THs," "NGs," and more. They paid $20 for a three-hour session where speech therapist Laura Darius taught them how to say "those" instead of "dose" and "tomorrow" instead of "ta-mawa."

She explained that a "winda" is really a "window," that "ya mudda" is actually "your mother," that "lass" is really "last," that the "awmy" that wants you is actually the "army" and that a "flaw" is more commonly known as a "floor."

Laura Darius calls her one-night course "How To Lose Your Brooklyn Accent," and she's sorry about that. "I'm using it as a catchall word for the native sound found in the five boroughs of New York City, parts of Long Island and parts of New Jersey, especially Jersey City," she said.

The problem with the accent is that, even in New York City, those who speak with it are often branded "dumb or angry and aggressive," Miss Darius said. "That stereotype can make it harder to move up in business."

"THERE'S NOTHING inherently bad about the dialect," she told her pupils. "This is simply a game that everybody plays that the fancy speech is the correct speech. It's a necessary game if you want to impress your employer or travel into the upper crust."

Desirable or not, the accent has venerable roots. Miss Darius believes it echoes various languages spoken by waves of immigrants who settled in New York City during the last 150 years. The accent has residues of Yiddish, German, Italian, Polish and Spanish.

The accent is also uniquely New York. Its two basic variations may reflect the city's stressful, jostling, high-pressure pace, she says.

One variation is a beleaguered, frustrated, high-decibel staccato: "So-ya-wanna-make-druble? wadem-oi-gonna-do-abowd-id?" (Or: So, you want to make trouble? What am I going to do about it?)

The other is resigned, a sluggish, shoulder-shrugging mutter: "Walax. Waddaya dune? Siback. Hava beeya." (Or: Relax. What are you doing? Sit back. Have a beer.)

WHAT MISS DARIUS teaches is a precisely articulated, low-decibel English like that spoken by the most homogenized of Midwestern television broadcasters. No trace of any accent.

Miss Darius grew up in Brooklyn, but most of the New Yorkers who came to learn their "Ts" and "Rs" did not. They came from Manhattan and Queens and the Bronx. And, yes, Puerto Rico.

"I moved from Puerto Rico to Brooklyn. I think I picked up a Brooklyn accent. I'm trying to force myself to drop it," said a middle-aged woman whose English was accented more heavily with Puerto Rico, despite her fears, than with Brooklyn. "I always try to better myself."

San Angelo man charged with attempted murder

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — A man identified by law officers as William Worley, 31, of San Angelo, was jailed Friday on charges of attempted murder and aggravated robbery.

Police said Worley abducted Jose Loera from his Austin apartment at gunpoint about 2 p.m. Friday and forced Loera to drive him to Round Rock. Near the high school he jumped out of Lucia's car, swatted A.R. Montemayor in the stomach with the gun and drove off in Montemayor's car.

Worley drove the second car off the road, and entered the back door of three nearby Cedar Park residents of Gerald Jones, said chief investigator Ray Hardison of Williamson County.

Hardison said Jones kicked Worley out the door and pushed him out the door, but Worley fired one round through the door, which had glass panes. The bullet hit Jones' wife, Patti, in the arm, and the shattered glass cut Jones slightly, Hardison said. Mrs. Jones was treated by a doctor but not hospitalized.

Police, who had been alerted by Loera, arrested Worley as he was returning to the gate of an eight-foot fence that surrounded the Jones property.

"I want to see him sent for all that he needs," said Jones.

Hotline to help refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — A toll-free hotline to assist Indochinese refugees who want to apply for U.S. citizenship has been set up by the Department of Health and Human Services.

The hotline operates from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. EDT Monday through Friday.

"Some 60,000 refugees from Southeast Asia will become eligible for the first time this year to apply for United States citizenship. As the federal agency most responsible for assisting these refugees during their transition to new lives in this country, we are especially pleased to be able to help them become full-fledged citizens of America," commented Roger Winter, director of the department's Office of Refugee Resettlement.

Winter said the hotline will be staffed by personnel able to respond to refugee inquiries in Cambodian, Cantonese, Lao and Vietnamese as well as English.

The service will provide general information on citizenship requirements and naturalization and will refer refugees to local counseling services in their home communities, he said.

The toll-free number for the service is 800-424-0212. In Washington, D.C., call 245-0061.

The department also operates two other toll-free hotlines, one providing technical assistance for educators dealing with Southeast Asians and the other offering orientation and general information for refugees and their sponsors.

The educators hotline is 800-424-3750 and that for general refugee orientation is 800-424-3701.

Houston combating outbreak

HOUSTON (AP) — Officials here are spraying insecticide and encouraging residents to take special precautions after an outbreak of St. Louis encephalitis claimed one life.

A total of 24 cases have been reported.

To interrupt the breeding cycle of the disease-carrying mosquitoes, officials said people should empty water containers and keep outdoor activities to a minimum in the late evening when the insects are most active.

The outbreak could be related to the area's high temperatures and drought, health officials said. Symptoms include headaches, dizziness, irritability, mental confusion, fever, nausea and vomiting.

InteCom to build in Texas

ALLEN, Texas (AP) — An Exxon Corp. subsidiary has purchased more than 68 Collin County acres to construct an electronics division.

Exxon Enterprises, Inc., bought the undeveloped tract for the headquarters of InteCom, which develops, manufactures, maintains and markets a synergistic switching device for Exxon's automated electronic office products.

C. Michael Bowen, InteCom president, said the company hopes to move here before the end of 1981.

Droppings get blame

SALEM, Va. (AP) — Sparrow droppings that showered a cross-country wagon train two weeks ago may have caused the illness that sent many of the travelers to the hospital, says the leader of the trip.

Virginia health officials said furrier tests were needed before they could confirm the theory.

Lewisville No. 1 in grid poll

By The Associated Press Lewisville in Class AAAAA and Bay City in AAAA, who teams that narrowly missed state championships last season...

Lewisville advanced to the state 5A semifinals last season before suffering a disappointing 3-0 loss to eventual state champion Temple...

Port Arthur Jefferson, led by the pass-catch duo of Todd Dodge and Brent Duhon, placed second in the preseason balloting...

Bay City, despite the loss of blue chipper Greg Williams, is rated the favorite to take one more step in Class 4A than it did last year...

Second-ranked Lubbock Estacado out-poled Bay City in first-place votes, 7-5, but Bay City got the top ranking by a 128-117 margin...

The AP panel gave Breckenridge the most dominating position of any classification, gathering in 13 first place votes and outpointing runnerup San Augustine by a 145-94 margin.

Breckenridge returns 14 starters from a team that went unbeaten in 1979 and exited the playoffs in the quarterfinals after a 13-13 tie with Van, the eventual state champion...

Only seven points separate the next four teams in the voting including No. 4 Cedar Hill with 66 points, Refugio, 63, Hallettsville, 61, and Pittsburg, 59.

Pilot Point returns 15 starters from a team that lost in last year's quarterfinals to eventual state runnerup China Spring.

Waskom was a solid runner up in Class 2A with four first place votes while Troup and Rotan into the first week of the regular season.

M-Cubs lose season finale to Dodgers

BY TED BATTLES

Midland's Cubs were literally blown out of the second half Texas League West pennant chase when three fly balls by San Antonio rode the wind over the left field fence to account for five runs in the Dodgers' 7-4 victory in the season's final game at Cubs Stadium.

Even if Midland had won, it would have been necessary for El Paso to beat Amarillo in El Paso, but the Gold Sox swept the five-game series from the Diablos...

Home runs by Terry Fobbs, Mike Zouras and Alex Taveras got the job done offensively for the Dodgers while lefthander Ricky Wright, 8-9, won his first game in the second half after being picked for the All-Star team in July with a 7-4 record...

Texas southpaw pitched a six-hitter but won it by keeping the Cubs bouncing grounders to his infielders, out of the air where the wind could hurt him, and when he wasn't doing that he was striking out 12.

SO THE Cubs packed their bats after the game and prepared to head home, although seven will report to the Arizona Fall Instructional League in two weeks. Paul Semall, married to Judy Robinson of Illinois at the Cubs Stadium pitching mound earlier in the day...

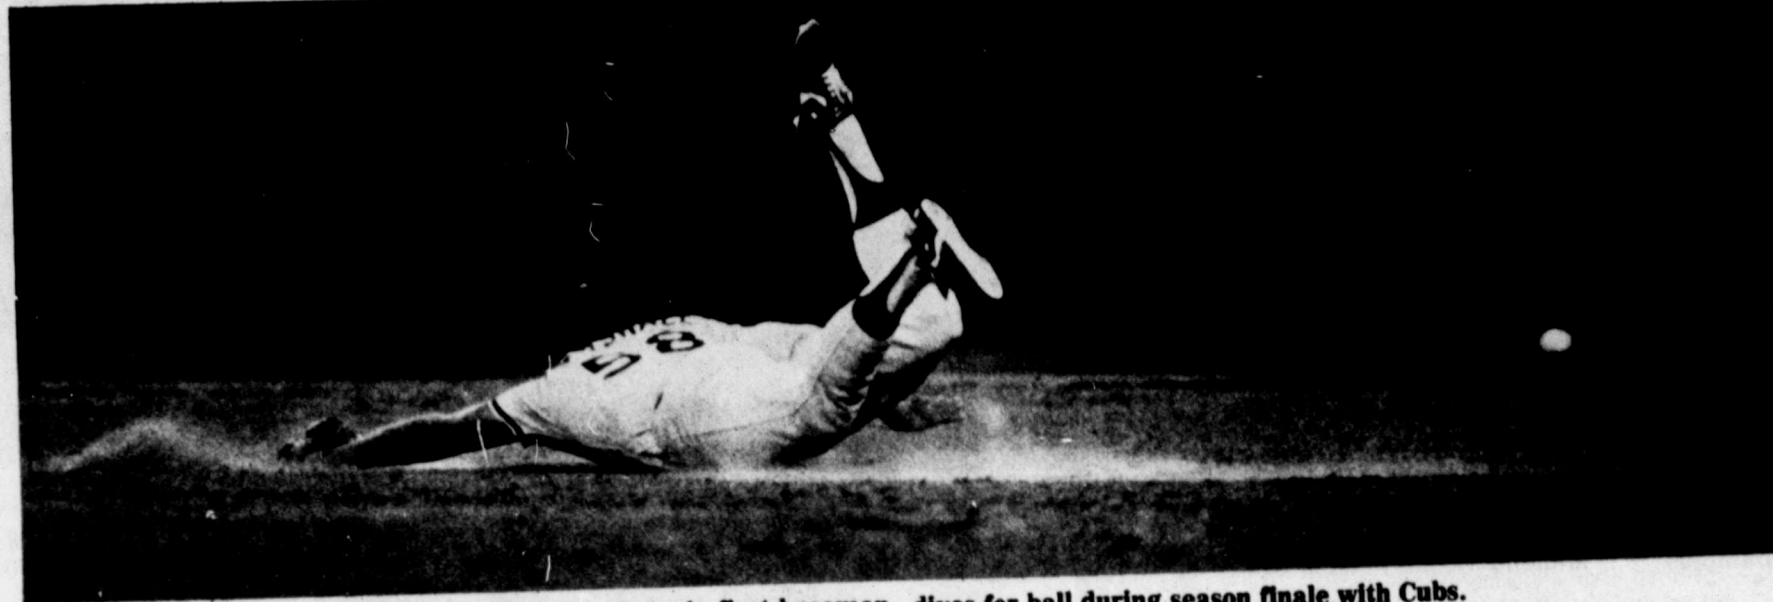

Fobbs opened the game with a homer, his seventh and second of the series, and a couple of singles later Zouras connected, his 13th and fifth at Cubs Stadium. When Semall drifted into trouble in the fourth, Randy Clark relieved to begin a procession of six Cubs pitchers as Manager Randy Hundley pulled out all the stops in an effort to keep the Dodgers within reach.

But the way Wright was pitching, it didn't matter. Taveras' solo homer highlighted a two-run fifth that made it 6-2 and Fobbs singled and Tom Beyers doubled for another run in the sixth.

The Cubs showed only three hits for the first seven innings and Randy La Vigne had batted in two of Midland's runs, the first on an infield grounder in the second after a double by Joe Hicks and a single by Gary Krug. Hicks walked and scored on La Vigne's double in the fourth and a third run in the sixth came when Tom Grant walked, took second on passed ball, third on a balk and scored on a wild pitch.

BRUN BREWIN'S—Paul Semall didn't look like a guy whose sole thought was winning his 10th game a half hour later. When asked about his honeymoon plans, he said, 'We'll visit Ohio and Illinois, but our honeymoon will have to be Venezuela. I report in October.' Paul pitched in Venezuela last winter, playing under managers Willie Horton and Louie Aparacio...

Dodgers topple Expos for 9th straight time

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dusty Baker sliced a two-out, two-run double to right field in the third inning, and Jay Johnstone singled home the eventual winning run in the seventh, lifting Los Angeles to a 4-3 victory over Montreal Saturday night.

The win was the Dodgers' ninth straight over the Expos and kept them 2 1/2 games behind Houston in the National League West.

Baker's double gave the Dodgers a 3-2 lead, and the Dodgers went ahead 4-2 in the seventh on consecutive singles by Mike Scioscia, Dave Lopes and Johnstone.

The run became decisive when Montreal scored in the eighth. Ron LeFlore, who had three of the Expos seven hits, doubled to lead off the inning, took third on Rodney Scott's long fly to center and came home on an infield out by Roland Office.

Burt Hooton, 12-5, earned his ninth win in 11 decisions with relief help from Don Stanhouse, who recorded his third save. Bill Gullickson, 6-4, took the loss despite striking out eight.

After Montreal took a 1-0 lead in the first, Lopes hit his ninth homer to lead off the Dodgers first.

Dallas Cowboys sell out two more games

DALLAS (AP) — Two more Dallas Cowboys games were sold out Saturday, a spokesman for the National Football League team announced.

That left tickets remaining for only five games, Doug Todd said.

The Washington game Nov. 23 was already a sellout, Todd said, adding the Sept. 21 Tampa Bay game and the Nov. 16 St. Louis match to the list.

MTC Fall tourney set for Sept. 27

The Midland Tennis Club's 20th annual Fall Tennis Tournament will be a United States Penn Circuit event, which will be held in Midland Sept. 27 through Oct. 5.

This tournament will feature many of the higher ranked players in the world, both amateur and professional, and is a part of a secondary circuit which feeds into the Grand Prix Tour.

Steelers whip Cowboys Bradshaw bombs Dallas secondary, 31-10

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Terry Bradshaw, no stranger at bombing the Dallas secondary, rifled one touchdown pass and set up another score Saturday night to carry the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 31-10 National Football League exhibition victory over the previously unbeaten Cowboys.

Bradshaw, who had only played Pittsburgh 8, 3, 14, 14-31 Dallas 6, 3, 4, 7-19

For Davis, a fourth-round draft pick from Michigan two years ago, it was his first professional touchdown. He missed the 1979 season with a broken arm.

After Mike Wagner intercepted a Danny White pass and returned it 25 yards to the Dallas 24, Bradshaw hit Randy Grossman for the touchdown on the next play.

The Steelers added two other touchdowns in the fourth quarter. Backup quarterback Cliff Stoudt flipped a six-yard touchdown pass to John Stallworth for one and Sidney Thornton ran four yards for the other.

Dallas' first score came in the second quarter on a 35-yard field goal by Rafael Septien, which was negated by a 26-yard field goal by Matt Bahr with five seconds to go in the half.

Dallas finally struck for a touchdown in the closing 80 seconds of the game on a 42-yard touchdown from Glenn Carano to tight end Billy Joe DuPree.

Both the defending NFL champion Steelers and the Cowboys finished the exhibition with 3-1 records.

Bradshaw finished the night by completing 13 of 29 passes for 211 yards.

But he was the typical Bradshaw in the clutch. He completed passes of 22 yards to both Sydney Thornton and Theo Bell, 11 yards to Stallworth and 21 yards to Grossman on the impressive 96-yard drive.

White, who was heavily booed by some of the Dallas fans in the sellout of 62,795, served up three interception passes to the Steeler secondary with Wagner getting two and Ron Johnson the other.

White completed only 10 passes in 29 attempts for 150 yards. The Cowboys fared better under Carano although he fumbled the ball away to Gary Dunn at the Dallas 26 to set up the last Pittsburgh touchdown.

Then Carano came back in the final two minutes of the game to find DuPree over the middle for the Cowboys' only touchdown.

Longhorn back may miss Hog tilt

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Left halfback Rodney Tate, the fastest back on the Texas team, is listed as "questionable" for the Arkansas game Monday after missing eight straight workouts with a sprained right ankle.

Texas' other starting halfback, A.J. "Jam" Jones, returned to practice Friday with his right upper leg wrapped to protect a strained groin muscle.

"He's ready," Coach Fred Akers said of Jones, who gained 918 yards as a sophomore in 1979 although he missed three games with injuries.

Akers in an Aug. 22 interview called Tate "the most pleasant surprise" of pre-season workouts. "He's fully recovered from his shoulder injury, has gained 17 pounds (to 192) and hasn't lost any speed. He still looked like a skinned rabbit, but he is strong and is the fastest back we've got."

Now, Akers says, "Tate's going to be a question mark right up until game time. I won't rule him out for playing him or starting him, but he's probably not going to start (if he cannot practice)."

Texas, Arkansas tangle Monday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bitter rivals Arkansas and Texas, who have tangled in some memorable showdowns, kickoff regular season collegiate football in the 1980s Monday night with the earliest game in Southwest Conference history.

Texas was an early point and a half favorite largely because of its Memorial Stadium edge over the Razorbacks, who haven't won here since 1966.

THE LATE NIGHT kickoff (8:10 p.m. CST) for the benefit of ABC-TV has made the game an easy ticket. Some 5,000 tickets remained on sale at mid-week for the spacious 80,000-seat stadium.

"The combination of the game being on television, the fact most fans have to get up and go to work the next day, and the heat all have been a factor," said a Texas spokesman. "It's kind of odd for an Arkansas-Texas game not to be a sellout."

The game rates a tie as the earliest NCAA meeting on record. Temple and Penn State played on Friday Sept. 1 last year and Drake and New Mexico State met on the date in 1973.

Both Arkansas and Texas will each make some $200,000 from television by switching the game from its usual mid-October date.

ARKANSAS COACH Lou Holtz said "We knew when we made the switch the advantage would be with Texas. They have a much more experienced offense which is the most difficult thing to prepare early."

Texas Coach Fred Akers said the Longhorns would be at a disadvantage because "We have a young defense which will not have had the opportunity to play in a game together."

By making the move, Holtz and Akers helped their respective schedules. The Razorbacks would have had to play Texas and Houston back-to-back while the Longhorns would have had to play Oklahoma and Arkansas on consecutive weekends.

Sophomore quarterback Tom Jones, brother of Bert Jones of the Baltimore Colts, will be starting only his second game as a Razorback. The younger Jones completed 57 per cent of his passes last year as a backup to Kevin Scanlon.

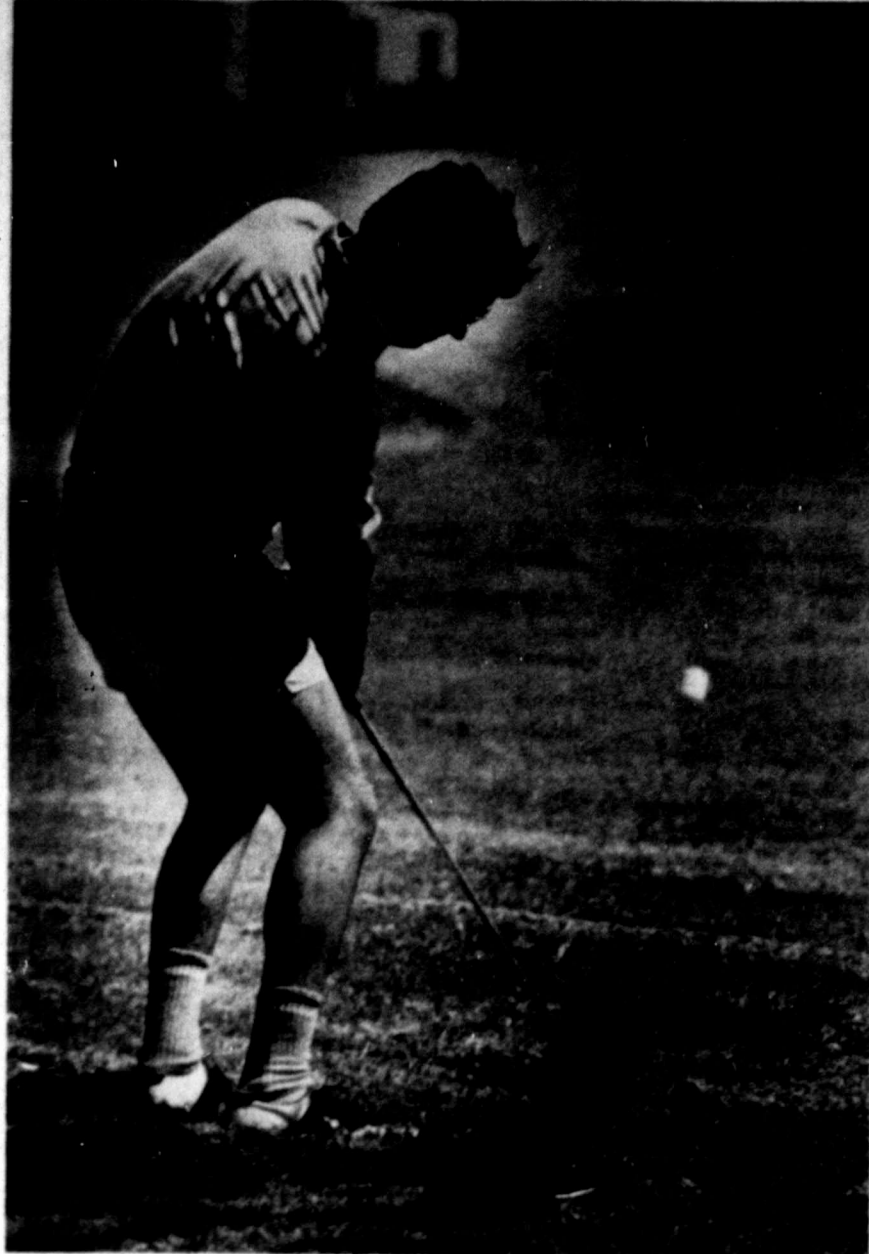

Facing Jones will be a green Longhorn secondary which includes Mike Hatchett and Bobby Johnson, younger brothers of graduated All-SWC performers Johnnie Johnson and Derrick Hatchett.

Junior Donnie Little has apparently beat out sophomore Rick Melvor for the starting quarterback post in the Longhorn backfield.

Both teams boast an explosive, all-weather threat at running back. For Arkansas, it's Gary Anderson, who averaged 5.7 yards per carry as SWC Newcomer of the Year. He also can return punts and kickoffs.

FOR TEXAS, it's A.J. (Jam) Jones, who has recovered nicely from off-season shoulder surgery. Jones rushed for 918 yards last year and scored 10 touchdowns.

On defense, Arkansas is led by sophomore tackle Billy Ray Smith and safety Kevin Evans while the Longhorns are proud of defensive back Vance Bedford and linebackers Doug Shankle, Robin Sendlein and Bruce Scholtz.

If you are not playing golf over the Labor Day weekend, you might find it hard to have friends over to the house. All three country clubs in Midland are holding their annual club champion-

on the 18th green at the Green Tree Country Club, which is holding its first club championship. (Staff Photos by Brian Hendershot)

Mullins captures lead in RHCC championship

Mike Mullins is off and running toward the 1980 club championship title at the Ranchland Hills Country Club after firing a first round 70 Saturday for a four-stroke lead over the nine-man championship field. However, Mullins has 36 more holes to negotiate with 18 today and 18 Monday on the final day of the tournament. Rick Peterson's 74 was the closest to Mullins after the first round, but Jerry Willenburg is still in the hunt with a 75. Jamie Winkel stands at 76 while Bill Hull and John Kennedy both have 77. Tony Farrish owns a 78 and Cappy Paulding a 79 while Sam Terry brings up the rear with an 83. All other flights are match play flights. Saturday's results and Sunday's tee times are as follows:

Championship Flight: Mullins, 70; Peterson, 74; Willenburg, 75; Winkel, 76; Kennedy, 77; Hull, 77; Farrish, 78; Paulding, 79; Terry, 83. Tee Times: 11:30 a.m. Terry, Paulding, Farrish, 11:37; Hull, Kennedy, Winkel, 11:45; Willenburg, Peterson, Mullins. First Flight: Pat Garrigan def. Four golfers left in run for MCC golf championship

The 1980 Midland Country Club title chase is down to four players, but defending champion Andy Shapira is not among them. Larry Snyder pulled the match play upset Saturday with a relatively easy 4-3 win over Shapira. The tournament runs through Monday. Dr. Dean Strack and Randy Geiselman, both two-time club champions at MCC, are still in the hunt. Geiselman had an easy 5-4 win over Graham Mackey while Dr. Strack struggled to a 1-up decision after 21 holes over Ken Sewell. The only other player left in the hunt is Craig Campbell, who bested Ted Ferguson 2-1. Campbell was MCC's medal play champion this year. In today's semifinal round, Snyder will test Dr. Strack while Campbell goes against Geiselman. Saturday's complete results at MCC are as follows:

Kesterman signs with Dolphins

MIAMI (AP) — John Kesterman, a running back waived last week by the Washington Redskins, was signed Saturday by the Miami Dolphins. At the same time, the Miami waived offensive guard Burton Lawless, who had been picked up in a trade with Dallas. Kesterman was a 10th-round draft pick chosen by the Dolphins in 1976. He was traded to Philadelphia and played two preseason games with the Eagles before being traded to Seattle. Dolphin officials said defensive back Mike Kozlowski has been placed on the injured reserve list after suffering a severe ankle sprain during Miami's 20-0 victory over New Orleans Friday night.

Pooley, Trevino sharing B.C. lead

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — In five winless years of knocking around the fringes of the Professional Golfers' Association tour, Don Pooley has seen enough to know someone usually gets hot near the end of a tournament. On Saturday, he fit the bill. "All I wanted to do was stay close to the leaders. I figured somebody might break away," he said after firing a 5-under-par 66 to tie Lee Trevino at 10-under 203 following the third round of the $275,000 B.C. Open. Pooley started a stroke behind Trevino and three other halfway leaders, but made up the deficit with a five-birdie, 13-par round on the 6,941-yard En-Joie Golf Club course. Trevino, who followed a fat 1-over-par 72 Thursday with a sparkling 64 the next day, shot 67 for the tie going into Sunday's final round. The colorful 39-year-old Trevino had the same number of birdies as Pooley, but bogeyed the 11th hole. The two made an odd couple — Trevino a 14-year veteran and one of three players ever to win more than $2 million, and Pooley, 29, who needed a one-time "performance extension" from PGA Commissioner Deane Beaman last winter just to keep his tour card — but Trevino said he wasn't overconfident. "You don't really look at the names in a golf tournament," he said. "You look at what it's going to take to win and then you go out and play the golf course, not the man. My intention tomorrow is to shoot 66 or 65. If that's not good enough, it's the best I can do." First prize in the Professional Golfers' Association event is $49,500. Pooley already has won $100,031 in 1980 and Trevino $326,515. Pooley started methodically, sinking putts of 20 feet and 1 foot for birdies on the front nine. Then — starting with No. 12 — he hit a rhythm with alternating birdies and pars for six holes and made a routine par on No. 18. Bryant and McCumber had rounds of 65 — the best scores of the tournament except for Trevino's effort Saturday. But McCumber was starting from even-par 142 and was unable to make up much ground on the leaders despite an eagle-3 on the 528-yard eighth hole. Five other eagles were posted Saturday, including the second in two days by Mark Hayes, who was unable to break 70 either day.

Three Hogan golfers in lead

The first round of the first annual Green Tree Country Club Championship golf tournament did very little to shed any light on who will wear the first club crown. Heading into today's second round, three players were tied for the lead with C.E. Boyd, Alan Williams and Les Oppermann all owning 71, but only eight strokes separated the first 16 players with 36 holes to go before the end late Monday. Harry Bettis stands at 72 while Tom Kit, Royce Woolard and Ernie Swart all have 73. Jeff Moses and Wayne Youngs are at 74 and Jim Pritchett and Mark Stoltz are at 75. Others in the championship flight are Randy Mull, 76; Bill Stanford, 76; Steve Whiteside, 77; Lendon White, 78; Joe Jarnagan, 79; and Jim Lyons, 84. All other flights were match play. Saturday's results of lower flights and Sunday's tee times are as follows: First Flight: Ray Whiteside def. Jack Eiteljorg, Don Hanes def. John Sublett, Max Combs def. Ronnie Ward, Tony Logan def. Wayne Potter, Steve Brown def. Tommy Hill, Franz Weis def. Ron Cunningham, Joel Mays def. Scott Cramer, Larry Scholz def. Hart directs Cards' victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Hart completed 15 of 26 passes for 258 yards and one touchdown and set up two touchdowns by Otis Anderson Saturday night to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 21-13 victory over the Chicago Bears in a National Football League preseason finale.

The triumph gave the Cardinals a 2-2 record in exhibition games while the Bears finished with a 1-3 record including three successive defeats.

Anderson pounded across from the 1-yard line and then the 8-yard line to touchdowns to give the Cardinals a 14-3 halftime lead.

Chicago cut back to 14-10 early in the third quarter on a 10-yard touchdown pass from Vince Evans to Kris Haines, but the Cardinals stormed right back with a 64-yard touchdown drive which included passes from Hart for 26 yards to Wayne Morris and 29 yards to Mark Bell and was capped by a 1-yard touchdown flip to Doug Marsh.

Bob Thomas booted field goals of 29 and 35 yards for the Bears and when the Bears threatened to score again in the fourth quarter, Lee Nelson intercepted an Evans pass in the end zone to thwart the drive.

Evans went all the way at quarterback for the Bears in place of regular Mike Phipps who was sidelined with a touch of flu and a high temperature.

Jets fly past Giants, 32-7

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Richard Todd's four touchdown passes, including a 90-yarder to Johnny "Lam" Jones and two short ones to Bruce Harper, carried the New York Jets to a 32-7 National Football League exhibition victory over the New York Giants Saturday night.

Todd, who left the game just before the end of the third quarter after completing 10 of 15 passes for 216 yards, found Harper with scoring passes of 9 and 8 yards in the second period and Mickey Shuler on a 39-yarder in the third period.

But it was the explosive first-period pass to Jones, the Jets' No. 1 draft choice, which set the tone of the game. On the first play, after a Todd-to-Shuler pass of 25 yards was wiped out by an illegal formation penalty, Jones took off from the right side, blew past left cornerback Terry Jackson, caught Todd's throw at mid-field and outran the Giants to the end zone.

Pat Leahy's extra point was blocked and the Giants went in front 7-6 later in the quarter when Phil Simms passed 19 yards to tight end Tom Mullady. But in the decisive second period, Todd put the Jets ahead to stay with his two touchdown passes to Harper, the Jets' diminutive running back.

The first one came at the end of a 70-yard, 12-play drive and, when Leahy's extra point was again blocked, left the Jets in front 12-7. With 39 seconds to go in the half, Todd and Harper teamed up again, this time six plays after Dave Jennings had shanked a punt for 21 yards, giving the Jets the ball at the Giants' 48.

Leahy, who was long enough but wide to the left on a 51-yard field goal attempt in the second period, was good on field goals of 43 and 40 yards in the third quarter before Todd capped his performance with a 30-yard scoring pass to Shuler.

Denver whips Packers, 38-0

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Matt Robinson passed for 186 yards, including touchdown strikes of 6 yards to Jon Keyworth and 30 to Riley Odoms, leading the Denver Broncos to a 38-0 National Football League exhibition victory over the Green Bay Packers Saturday night.

The Broncos, who finished the pre-season 2-2, held Green Bay to just 17 net yards rushing. Meanwhile, Otis Armstrong, Rob Lytle and Lawrence McCutcheon consistently rushed for big yardage through the middle of the Packer defense, manned by rookie inside linebackers Bruce Beekley and Ricky Skiles.

The Packers finished 0-4-1, and scored only 17 points in the exhibition season.

Steve Foley intercepted a pass by Lynn Dickey on Green Bay's second series and returned 40 yards to the Packer 6. Two players later, Keyworth beat Beekley and caught a 6-yard scoring pass from Robinson.

Maurice Harvey made a diving interception of a Dickey pass at the Denver 33 a few moments later. That triggered a drive sparked by a screen pass from Robinson to Jim Jensen for 32 yards, and Dave Preston scored from 2 yards out early in the second quarter as the Broncos led 14-0.

Robinson fired his scoring pass to Odoms 1:54 before halftime. Odoms had no one within 15 yards when he caught the ball.

Fred Steinfort kicked a 44-yard field goal on Denver's first series of the second half. The Broncos drove 42 yards on six plays on their next series, and McCutcheon scored on a 4-yard run as the Broncos led 31-0.

Keyworth scored Denver's final touchdown on a 1-yard run with 2:48 to play.

Murray kicks Lions to victory

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ed Murray kicked field goals from 49, 34, 51, 30 and 27 yards out Saturday night as the Detroit Lions edged the Cincinnati Bengals 15-10 in the final National Football League preseason game for both teams.

Murray kicked the 30-yarder with 3:43 left in the third quarter to give Detroit a 12-10 lead. Second-string quarterback Jeff Komlo drove the Lions from their 28 to the Bengals' 16-yard line to set up the kick.

Cincinnati quarterback Jack

Thompson, playing for the injured Ken Anderson, rallied the Bengals to a go-ahead touchdown drive on their first possession of the second half.

Thompson, who connected on 13 of 19 passes for 177 yards, threw completions of 20 and 13 yards as the Bengals covered 77 yards in 11 plays. Charles Alexander muscled 8 yards for the touchdown.

Murray, who missed a 48-yard field goal attempt on Detroit's second possession, booted one from 27 yards out with 11:53 left in the game to establish the final margin.

Vikings race past Browns

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Tommy Kramer tossed two touchdown passes and Keith Nord returned a pass interception 48 yards for a score as the Minnesota Vikings closed out the NFL exhibition season with a 38-16 triumph over Cleveland Saturday night.

The Vikings, 3-1 in preseason, open the regular season next Sunday against Atlanta at Met Stadium. The Browns, 1-3, open against the Patriots at New England.

Kramer directed the Vikings on two long scoring drives in the first half. He threw a 16-yarder to Ahmad Rashad for a 7-0 lead and then hit tight end Joe Senser with a nine-yard TD toss for a 14-0 cushion.

Reserve quarterback Mike Livingston and Steve Dils also threw touchdown passes. Livingston's was a 10-yarder to Kevin Miller early in the fourth quarter and Dils threw an 8-yarder to Terry LeCount to close out Minnesota scoring.

Angels down Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rick Miller drove in four runs and Jason Thompson rapped a three-run pinch homer to power the California Angels to a 12-6 victory over the slumping Baltimore Orioles Saturday night.

The Orioles went into the contest 1½ games behind the American League East-leading New York Yankees but lost for the fourth time in five games and twice in a row to California, a team they had beaten in 12 straight regular season games before Friday.

Miller capped a four-run first inning rally with a two-run bases-loaded single off loser Mike Flanagan, 13-10, and singled for two more in the seventh to make it 8-5.

Thompson cracked his 16th homer in the seventh, the first allowed this season by relief ace Tim Stoddard, and Bob Clark added a solo homer later in the inning.

Lloyd, Austin post Open wins

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd routed Wendy White 6-1, 6-1 for her third straight-set victory at the $654,082 U.S. Open tennis championships Saturday and pronounced herself ready and eager to regain her women's singles title.

"I feel motivated because it would be something special to prove I can win this tournament again," said the 25-year-old Lloyd, who took the Open crown four years in a row before being dethroned by Tracy Austin last year. "I haven't won one of the majors, Wimbledon or the Open, for two years now."

Austin, meanwhile, fell behind 4-1 in the first set but recovered to win the next six games and beat Sylvia Hanika of West Germany 6-4, 6-4 to advance to the fourth round. Like Lloyd, the 17-year-old Austin has yet to lose a set in this tournament, but she was far from her best against Hanika.

"I made too many errors," a tired Austin said afterward. "She played well, but I could have played a little better. Maybe this tough match will be good for me."

Like Austin, Bjorn Borg of Sweden, the No. 1 seed in the men's draw, looked sluggish in the early going before rallying to beat Peter McNamara of Australia 7-6, 1-6, 6-2, 6-0 in a night match before a crowd of 11,487.

The 25-year-old McNamara is best known for his doubles play with Paul McNamee and is ranked only 51st in singles, but he gave Borg all he could handle for two sets before losing control of his serve and fading. McNamara won just one of his seven service games in the last two sets and scored just six points in the final set.

"I started to be much more aggressive in the third set," said Borg. "I put more pressure on him and he made more mistakes. Right now I'm very pleased with the way things are going."

Raiders edge Eagles, 24-23

OAKLAND (AP) — Jim Plunkett hit Derrick Ramsey with a 14-yard touchdown pass with four seconds left to give the Oakland Raiders a 24-23 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles Saturday night.

The Raiders appeared certain losers in the National Football League exhibition game when they got the ball on their own 33 yard line with 58 seconds left. But Plunkett completed a 36-yard pass to Rich Martini to put the ball on the Eagles' 29.

A roughing-the-passer penalty moved the ball to the 14 and two incomplete passes then preceded the winning toss to Ramsey over the middle.

Jim Breech followed the touchdown with the winning point. Plunkett had connected with Ramsey with 3:16 left on a 5-yard touchdown pass to bring the Raiders to a 23-17 deficit.

A Raider onside kick after the score was not successful, but the Raiders stomped the Eagles and forced them to punt, setting up the winning touchdown.

Taiwan captures LL title

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — A heavy thunderstorm brought a delay, but it didn't deter Taiwan from continuing its Little League World Series dynasty Saturday.

"We want to keep going to the championship next year, next year, next year," Taiwan Manager Ching-Con Hsiang said through an interpreter after his team's 4-3 victory over a Tampa, Fla., team that battled back after a shaky start.

"We played real good, but we made some errors in the first inning and that is what made the difference," said Tampa's 5-foot-2 shortstop Tyrone Griffin, who rapped a solo home run.

"We were all a little nervous at first," said losing pitcher Kirk Walker. "But it was a pretty good game."

"I love these kids and I'm proud of them," said Tampa Manager Vernard Selder. "After they got the jitters over, it was a ballgame."

Within an hour after the game, Griffin and Walker had apparently shaken off the defeat. They and their teammates were splashing around in the Little League swimming pool with the Taiwan players. One couldn't tell the winners from the losers, because all were laughing.

The thundershower delayed the game's start an hour, but the sunshine returned and Taiwan won its fourth straight title and its ninth in 12 years before a crowd of about 20,000, including many Chinese-Americans waving small Taiwan flags.

"I have watched this game on television before, but I never dreamed I would come here," said Taiwan's Shuh-Shin Li, who pitched a four-hitter and smacked a home run.

The game was transmitted to Taiwan for a 2 a.m. telecast. Taiwan's Little League victories are celebrated each year on that island with early-morning fireworks and jubilation in the streets.

Tampa, represented by an All-Star team from that city's Belmont Heights Little League, handed Taiwan two runs in the first inning on three errors and a single by Li after Republican vice-presidential nominee George Bush threw out the ceremonial first pitch.

Dispute nears settlement

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A dispute with the National Football League over room accommodations for Super Bowl XV is close to settlement, the attorney for the manager of four New Orleans French Quarter hotels said.

Henry Klein said President Mark C. Smith III of Century Management met in New York on Friday with NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle to discuss the problem, and both "are confident the matter can be settled in a very short period of time."

Jim Heffernan, NFL public relations director, described the meeting as "an exchange of views." He added, "The NFL believes that this situation will be resolved."

The NFL earlier this month accused Century Management, operator of four hotels in the French Quarter, of renegeing on room commitments in three of the hotels for the Jan. 25 Super Bowl.

Smith later filed a $30 million slander lawsuit against the NFL. Century Management runs the St. Louis, Marie Antoinette, St. Ann and Prince Conti hotels.

Smith has said the previous owners of all but the St. Louis Hotel gave only "tentative" commitments when New Orleans bid two years ago for the Super Bowl.

He claimed Century Management was within its rights in withdrawing those commitments, and said the St. Louis was honoring its 30-room "definite" commitment.

Klein said, "It probably will be early next week before it is officially announced, but both parties are confident all issues will be resolved to everyone's satisfaction."

Halsmer outdashes Scyphers

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Pete Halsmer beat Billy Scyphers in a one-lap dash to the finish to win the 100-kilometer Mini-Indy race Saturday at Ontario Motor Speedway.

The second yellow flag of the 25-lap race came out with just four laps to go when cars driven by Bruno Belicke and Richard Shirley tangled in the second turn of the 2.5-mile track.

It took three laps for the track safety crew to clean up the debris, and the green came out with just one lap remaining.

Halsmer, driving a Ralt R-1, held

Joe Morgan (8) of the Houston Astros, is forced at second by Chicago's Ivan DeJesus during third inning of National League game Saturday afternoon in Wrigley Field. The Astros won, 2-0 for their 13th straight win over the Cubs. (AP Laserphoto).

Klugman wins Handicap run at Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Jaklin Klugman, owned by actor Jack Klugman, took command at the top of the stretch and went on to win the 111th running of the $112,200 Jerome Handicap Saturday at Belmont Park.

Ridden by Chris McCarron, the 3-year-old son of Orbit Ruler, who carried 122 pounds, covered the mile test in 1:34.5, one-fifth of a second off the stakes record. Jaklin Klugman scored by a neck over Fappiano, 114 pounds, who finished 6 1/2 lengths ahead of Plugged Nickle, 124 pounds.

Then came Current Legend, Piko-tazo and Herb Water.

Jaklin Klugman, slow to begin, picked up the field gradually and began accelerating at the three-quarter pole. He rushed by Current Legend and then Plugged Nickle to take command at the top of the stretch as Fappiano rushed into contention along the rail.

Jaklin Klugman and Fappiano raced as a team the rest of the way, with Jaklin Klugman holding on to win.

Favored in the betting of the crowd of 25,218, Jaklin Klugman paid $3.60, $2.80 and $2.20. Fappiano returned $3.60 and $2.60 and Plugged Nickle returned $2.40 to show.

Jaklin Klugman earned a net purse of $67,320. Jack Klugman was on hand to receive the victory trophy.

Yastrzemski cracks rib

BOSTON (AP) — Boston outfielder Carl Yastrzemski suffered a cracked rib in making a spectacular catch in the seventh inning Saturday, but remained in the game to help the Red Sox to a 7-6 victory in 10 innings over the Oakland A's.

Yastrzemski, who hit his 15th homer in the fifth, singled and scored in a four-run ninth inning before going to the hospital for X-rays.

Dr. Arthur Pappas, Boston's team physician, said the 41-year-old left fielder suffered "an incomplete fracture of the 10th rib on the left side." Pappas added that the extent of the injury would not be known for about 24 hours.

Yastrzemski made a leaping catch of a drive by Jim Essian and crashed into the scoreboard in left-center. He remained on the ground for about five minutes, but refused to leave the game.

Houston blanks Chicago by 2-0

CHICAGO (AP) — Right-hander Vern Rühle yielded just five hits and Terry Puhl drove in both runs as the Houston Astros blanked the Chicago Cubs 2-0 Saturday.

Rühle, 8-3, struck out four and walked two in pitching his first shutout of the season. Rühle had to work his way out of jams in the third, fifth and seventh innings.

The victory gave Houston all 11 games in the meetings between the teams this season and 13 straight, extending back to last season.

The Astros got their first run in the third as Rühle led off with a double. Joe Morgan followed with a single and, after Chicago starter Lynn McGlothen, 9-10, struck out Enos Cabell, Puhl hit a grounder to first, allowing Rühle to score. Houston added an insurance run in the ninth. Consecutive one-out errors by first baseman Dave Kingman and shortstop Ivan DeJesus on routine grounders by Morgan and Cabell put runners at first and third. Puhl made it 2-0 with a sacrifice fly.

The Cubs threatened in the bottom of the inning on consecutive singles by Tim Blackwell and Steve Dillard, but Rühle got McGlothen, DeJesus and Lenny Randle on fly outs.

In the fifth, Chicago loaded the bases with one out on consecutive walks to Scot Thompson and Blackwell and a single by McGlothen, but Rühle then got DeJesus and Randle to pop out.

After striking out Blackwell starting the seventh, Rühle gave up a single to pinch-hitter Jesus Figueroa and an error by Joe Morgan at second on pinch-hitter Mike Vail's grounder put runners on first and third. However, DeJesus grounded to third baseman Cabell, who threw home to get Figueroa, and Randle fled out.

Randle was hitless in four at bats, ending his 21-game hitting streak.

Burroughs' home run, his 12th of the year, came in a pinch hit, trimming the St. Louis lead to 4-2.

Leon Durham homered in the bottom of the fifth, his sixth of the year, for the Cards' final run, and Dale Murphy lashed an RBI single in the Atlanta eighth.

In the Cards fourth, ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tony Scott drove in two runs with a single to cap St. Louis' three-run fourth inning and lead the Cardinals to a 5-3 triumph over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

Don Hood, making his sixth start of the season, handcuffed Atlanta on two hits until Bill Nahorodny singled and Jeff Burroughs homered in the Braves' fifth. Hood, 4-5, left after the sixth, with John Urrea finishing up for his first save.

A walk to Ken Oberkfell, Scott's single and Ted Simmons' one-out grounder put the Cardinals ahead 1-0 in the first.

In the Cards fourth, Rice triggers Bosox win

BOSTON (AP) — Jim Rice triggered a four-run, ninth-inning rally with his 17th homer and then led off the 10th with another homer, as the Boston Red Sox extended their winning streak to six games with a 7-6 victory over the Oakland A's.

Our ace shooter this week is Aubrey Leon Sullivan. He scored an ace on the 185-yard, par-3 No. 10 hole at Hogan Park Golf Course this past week with a perfect six-iron shot.

Witnessing the ace were playing partners Joe McCray, Jessie Price and Charles Roberts.

The rule we will cover this week will be Loose Impediments. The term "loose impediments" denotes natural objects not fixed or growing and not adhering to the ball, and includes stones not solidly embedded, leaves, twigs, branches and dung, worms and insects and casts or heaps made by them.

Decision 60-12(1): Question: What is the exact meaning of "and includes stones not solidly embedded?" Some say that a stone partially embedded may not be moved regardless of how small it may be or how easily it might be picked up. How about stones the size of watermelons which clearly rest on top of the ground, but can only be moved with much effort. May they be moved?

Answer: The words "solidly embedded" should be taken literally. If a stone is only partially embedded, it may be picked up with ease, it is a loose impediment. Where there is

Rangers win in 11th, 7-5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mickey Rivers' two-out single in the top of the 11th inning drove the Texas Rangers to a 7-5 victory over the Kansas Royals Saturday.

Rivers' single came after Dave Roberts reached base on an error by first baseman Pete LaCock and Jim Sundberg was safe on Darrell Porter's two-base throwing error on a sacrifice bunt.

The two 11th-inning errors were among four committed by the Royals as reliever Dan Quisenberry suffered his fifth loss against 10 victories. The victory went to Texas reliever John Henry Johnson, 2-2.

Amos Otis slammed a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth inning to tie the game 5-5 after a walk to U.L. Washington and Hal McRae's ground-rule double. Otis also turned in the game's top defensive play when he fielded Pat Putnam's two-out single in the 10th and nailed pinch-runner Doc Medich at the plate.

Kansas City scored in the third on Jose Cardenal's double and Washington's single, then made it 3-2 on a pair of singles and run-scoring double-play grounder by Willie Aikens.

Mike Richardt led off the Texas seventh with a double and took third on "Pepe Fria's" punt single before Al Oliver slammed a two-out double for two more runs.

The Royals added a run in the seventh on Washington's one-out triple and Brett's RBI groundout.

Before the inning finished, the Mets sent 11 batters to the plate. Frank Taveras and Alex Trevino contributed two-run singles and Claudell Washington capped the rally with a two-run double.

Double triggered a seven-run rally in the seventh inning and the New York Mets went on to beat the San Francisco Giants 9-5 Saturday.

The game was tied 2-2 when Henderson lofted a high pop fly to short right with one out in the sixth. Second baseman Joe Pettini pursued the ball and stopped, expecting right fielder Larry Herndon to make the play, and the ball dropped in for a hit.

For anglers who have hunted in vain for that one hidden-away spot where fish grow large and swim about in countless numbers, search no more. Now, with a few basic instructions from Sport Fishing Educational Foundation and a little help from fellow anglers you can create your own fishin' hole.

Condo Living for Sport Fish—Fishin' holes are man-made fish attractors that provide game fish with a home they can call their own. Common building materials include brush piles, used tires, stake beds, cement blocks, car bodies, old Christmas trees and clay or metal pipes.

They provide fish with food and protection. These shelters are effective in fresh water bodies and saltwater embayments that lack structure and vegetation.

A recent study by the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Resources department in cooperation with the Southern Division of the American Fisheries Society substantiates results that artificial attractors can produce.

At Barkley Lake, Ky., brush attractors were found to concentrate 574.0 pounds of crappie per acre as compared to four pounds in cove areas and 30.7 in open water. The large-mouth bass population was 54.1 per acre, 10.8 in the cove and 4.0 in open water. There were 445.5 pounds of blue gill per acre at the site vs. 21.3 in the cove and 17.8 in open water.

Community action groups build fishin' holes—"Our man made fishin' holes have been very effective in providing a place where the first or second time angler can go to experience the excitement of catching a fish," says Howard Carr, director of the Southern California American Youth Fish program.

"It's important that youngsters or beginning adults have success learning to fish and fish attractors offer a better than average chance," he said.

Sugar Ferris and the Bass'n Gals, headquartered near Dallas, have worked closely with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. to construct holes in Texas and other southwest and southern states. "Constructing artificial fish habitats has provided an excellent conservation project which our members can perform in cooperation with local fishery administrators," says Mrs. Ferris.

Other community spirited groups are adopting Fishin' Hole programs as a practical means of putting something back into fishing for beginning anglers and others. A youth fishing camp in Minnesota, a bass club in Arkansas, a forest-preserve in Illinois, a university fishery research unit in Washington and a sport-fishing college class in Wisconsin represent a growing list of Hole sponsors.

In the Lone Star State, the Inland Fisheries of the TPWD initiated an artificial reef program in 1976 and with the assistance of bass clubs, scuba clubs, lake lessee associations, vocational agriculture classes and other interested sportsmen have improved the quantity and quality of their fishing resources.

Reefs are built in eight to 25 feet of water. Some are marked with buoys, but most are not and most are one acre or less. For best results, asks the local concessionaire, marina operator or fisherman about the reefs and baits. The structures are most often tire bundles and appear as a two-or-three foot marker on even an inexpensive depth-finder. Mark the reef with a small float such as a cork or piece of styrofoam on a string and leave it. Come back and stop short of the float. Fish to the reef, not over it.

Among Texas lakes with artificial reefs boasting good catches of catfish, bass and crappie are lakes Benbrook, Lewisville, Possum Kingdom, Grapevine, Arlington, Mineral Wells, Texoma, Nacogdoches, Proctor, Kemp, White Rock, Whitney, Tyler, Lavon, Long, Madison, Stillhouse Hollow, Calaveras, Canyon, LBJ, Braunig, Dunlap, Somerville, and Meredith.

bass clubs, youth groups, civic associations, school classes and municipal recreation departments are some of the organizations throughout the country developing Fishing Holes as community service projects. Old tires serve as useful material for building homes for fish. This group of youngsters has found that drilling holes in casings of tires helps to submerge them more easily.

Cuba takes 9-3 victory in Amateur

TOKYO (AP) — Defending champion Cuba came from behind to beat South Korea 9-3 on two home runs and 11 hits and maintain its top position Saturday after seven days of competition in the 26th World Amateur Baseball Championships at Yokohama, a port city near Tokyo.

Cuba is the only country still undefeated in the 12-nation round-robin competition now being held in Tokyo and Yokohama.

South Korea finished third in the last championship in Italy in 1978 and is rated one of the contenders for the title. The Koreans went ahead 2-0 in the second inning but the Cubans scored four runs in the fourth to cruise to their seventh straight victory.

For the Koreans, it was their second setback after losing to the United States 8-5 last Sunday. They have won five games and are in fourth place. Japan beat Australia 7-3 on 10 hits, including the third homer of the championship by the only college player on the Japanese team, Tatsunori Har. The victory puts Japan in second place behind Cuba with a 6-1 record. It was Australia's fourth defeat against three wins, placing the Australians sixth in the standings.

The United States defeated the Netherlands 9-3 after the score was tied twice. The victory moved the Americans up from fourth to third place with a 5-1 record.

The loss was the Netherlands' sixth against one victory, placing the Dutch in the cellar.

Italy whipped Venezuela 6-3 on Stefano Rum's two solo home runs.

The Italians are now in seventh place with a 3-4 record. The Venezuelans are right behind the Italians with two wins against four losses.

Puerto Rico edged Canada 4-3 in 10 innings for its third win against three defeats.

Unser seeking 500 win today

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Unser knows exactly what it's going to take to win the 11th California 500 today at Ontario Motor Speedway.

The 46-year-old "Albuquerque Cowboy" has won this third jewel in championship racing's triple crown three times, including last year.

"If a guy can last here and be quick, he can be double tough," Unser said. "This track is so quick that it's very hard on race cars."

"To run 500 miles here at top speed is real tough. In fact, it's probably the toughest track on equipment that we drive on."

Unser, who is also a two-time winner of the Indy 500 and won the Pocono 500 for the first time earlier this year, still is a bit awed by the fact that he and teammates Rick Mears and Mario Andretti swept the first three places here last year.

"I don't think that I'll ever happen again in a 500-mile race, having three guys from the same team not only finish the entire distance, but come in 1-2-3," the Indy car veteran said.

"If you went to Las Vegas and tried to bet on that happening again, you probably couldn't even get odds."

This year, Andretti is in Europe to honor a Formula 1 commitment, but car owner Roger Penske has put Tom Gloy.

OU's Watts also has fighting side

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — J.C. Watts, the University of Oklahoma's mild-mannered senior quarterback, has a fighting side, too. What most people, including many of his teammates, don't know is that he once toyed with the idea of trading in his helmet for boxing gloves.

No, he wasn't following in the footsteps of Ed "Too Tall" Jones of the Dallas Cowboys. This was before Jones' brief fling with the ring.

Fighting got into Watts' blood in high school, where he had seven bouts as a light heavyweight. He won all of them — five by knockout, one by TKO and one by unanimous decision.

At Oklahoma, he once tried to enter a fraternity boxing tournament but was stymied because of a bar against previous fighting experience. Also, he did not belong to a fraternity.

Then there was the period of disillusionment surrounding his redshirt sophomore year. At one point he packed his bags and went home. It was then that he thought of a ring career.

There were visions, of course, of some bouts as an amateur, a pro career ... maybe even a title shot someday.

"I discussed it with my high school assistant who fought pro," recalls Watts. "I was discouraged because I wanted to play. At the time, I was looking for something."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer is happy Watts' flirtation with the ring didn't reach the serious stage.

Not quite as strong or fast as his predecessor, Thomas Lott, Watts has had to carve his own niche as leader of the Oklahoma Sooners.

He came into his own last year as a smooth, solid runner, gaining 455 yards on the ground and passing for 785. He was named the outstanding player in Oklahoma's Orange Bowl victory over Florida State as the Sooners finished the season at 11-1, ranked No. 3 in the nation.

After college, will the lure of boxing touch him again? No, he says.

Actually, Watts says he first rejected the notion of a boxing career after high school.

"I had a chance to fight in an AAU tournament in Shreveport, La., but I turned it down," he said. "At the time, I didn't feel I had a future in boxing. For me to be competitive, I would have to lose a lot of weight and fight at 165 or 175."

Besides, he says, "my mom has always been very protective of me" and never did like the idea of his catching blows in the ring. "Right now, for me, it's strictly football."

COM tryouts set

Tryouts for the City of Midland Swim team will be held from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday at the Mabey Pool. Beginners through advanced swimmers and their parents are invited to the trials.

Indians down Chisox behind Dilone, Cruz

CLEVELAND (AP) — Miguel Dilone rapped three hits and drove in two runs and Victor Cruz pitched 2-3 innings of scoreless relief as the Cleveland Indians downed the Chicago White Sox 6-2 Saturday.

Dilone doubled twice and singled, lifting his batting average to .348, and delivered the game-winning RBI for the second straight game.

Winner Dan Spillner, 13-9, was bailed out of a jam by Cruz in the Chicago seventh with runners on first and third and one out. Cruz retired Kevin Bell on a line drive and struck out Todd Cruz, protecting a 3-2 Cleveland lead at the time.

Cruz then went on to record his 12th save, insuring Spillner his sixth victory in his past seven decisions.

Chicago scored twice in the first inning when Chet Lemon doubled, Bob Molinaro tripled and Lamar Johnson doubled. Spillner then held the White Sox in check until needing help in the seventh.

Cleveland scored in the first against Ross Baumgarten, 2-9, when Jorge

Orta walked, took second on Mike Hargrove's single and scored on a single by Joe Charboneau.

The Indians tied the score 2-2 in the second when Rick Manning singled, moved to second on a grounder and scored on a double by Dilone.

The Indians took a 3-2 lead in the fourth on consecutive two-out singles by Manning, Tom Verzyer and Dilone, then added a run in the seventh on Charboneau's 20th homer.

Verzyer had an RBI single and Orta an RBI double for Cleveland's final runs in the eighth inning.

The White Sox have scored only a total of 12 runs for Baumgarten in his last 16 starts.

Foster, Seaver pace Reds over Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — George Foster and pitcher Tom Seaver each drove in two runs as the Cincinnati Reds beat Pittsburgh 5-3 Saturday, extending the Pirates' losing streak to six games.

The Reds took a 2-0 lead in the first inning against Jim Bibby, 15-5, as Dave Concepcion singled and scored on Foster's double and Dan Driessen followed with an RBI single.

The Pirates tied the score against Seaver in the bottom of the first on a leadoff triple by Omar Moreno, a single by Tim Foli, a double by Bill Madlock and Mike Easley's sacrifice fly.

Cincinnati went ahead 5-2 in the fourth when Foster led off with his 20th homer of the season and second in as many games. Driessen singled and advanced to second on a hit by Joe Nolan. After Ray Knight hit into a double play, Ron Osterter was walked intentionally and Seaver doubled to score Driessen and Oester.

Pittsburgh added a run in the sixth when Dave Parker doubled and scored on Ed Ott's single, one of nine hits off Seaver.

The victory raised Seaver's record to 6-7 and was the 21st triumph of his career, tying him for 37th place on the all-time list.

The Pirates have now dropped 10 of their last 13 games and Bibby is 2-4 in his last six decisions.

Wrong horse in inquiry

KENNER, La. (AP) — State Racing Commission stewards held an inquiry Saturday into the second track mixup within eight days involving a pair of 2-year-old bay fillies: Joker's Wish and Morning Call Miss.

Central figures in the investigation were reportedly Bobby Vance, the track's identifier and timer, and H.J. Delahoussaye, who trains both fillies.

"We understand the horses have similar facial markings but that one has a white marking on one of her hind legs," said Warren Groce, Jefferson Downs racing secretary. "This seems to be like two sets of parents taking the wrong baby home from the hospital."

Morning Call Miss won a race in which Joker's Wish was entered Thursday, paying $3.60, $2.80 and $2.80, Groce said. The horse's identity was discovered by Dr. Donald P. Dicharry, the state veterinarian, when he checked the ID number tattooed on the winner's lip.

On Aug. 20, Joker's Wish ran in a race for which Morning Call Miss was entered at 10-1 odds, and finished eighth, Groce said.

Jenkins in meeting over drug charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins met with representatives of the baseball commissioner's office Saturday in a fact-finding session requested by the commissioner as a result of Jenkins' arrest on charges of possession of drugs last week.

Jenkins refused comment and was hustled out a rear exit to catch a plane and rejoin his teammates in Kansas City.

Bob Fishel, assistant to the president of the American League, said that Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was not present at the hearing. He was represented by Henry Fitzgibbons, director of security, and Ed Durso, legal counsel.

No suspension or action was announced. Jenkins was represented by his lawyer, Edward Greenspan, and by Donald Fehr, the general counsel of the Major League Players Association.

Fehr said, "I have no reason to believe Jenkins won't complete the season with the Rangers. When the commissioner feels that something occurs on which there is public comment, generally due to the press, he may ask some questions. That's what he did here. Any other comment at this time would be inappropriate."

How good is Hog back Ask guy behind him

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — How good is Arkansas running back Gary Anderson?

Well, Coach Lou Holtz says Thomas Brown "looks like he did a year ago" when he averaged 9.1 yards per carry and he's playing behind Anderson.

"To appreciate Gary Anderson, you have to watch him every day on the practice field," Holtz told Southwest Conference writers Wednesday. "You watch him and you say 'I can't believe he did that.' You say it in a surprised sort of way."

"He is not average. He reminds me of Paul Warfield, the same silky smoothness about him," Holtz said.

"If you really wanted to appreciate Gary Anderson, get one platoon football back. What a strong safety and wide receiver."

Anderson, in fact, was given a try at wide receiver during spring practice when Holtz was concerned about the lack of depth at that position. That changed after the Razorbacks got down to one tailback.

Holtz, in what he said was a spur-of-the-moment decision, turned to Anderson and said, "Get in there at running back."

"It was a battlefield commission... You are a lieutenant. Get on the hand grenade."

Holtz described Anderson as

"team-oriented. If you told him to go to wide receiver or strong safety, he would never blink an eye."
Holtz said that when Anderson was returned to running back, he ran better than ever.

"I felt like I was back at home, Anderson said. It was a whole different world out there."

Anderson rushed for 438 yards and averaged 5.7 yards per try last year as a freshman. For that performance, he was named Associated Press Offensive Newcomer of the Year in the Southwest Conference.

He also was a dangerous kick returner, averaging 8.4 yards per try on 34 punts and 21.4 yards on 16 kick-offs.

Anderson became a starter when Brown underwent shoulder surgery after two games. Anderson went to high school in Missouri and the recruiting battle over him was hard-fought.

"The first indication I had that Gary Anderson might be exceptional was that some schools tried to get him declared ineligible," Holtz said. The remark was in reference to the fact that Anderson's high school operated on an 11-point grading system, and that had to be converted to the four-point system to make sure that he was eligible for a major college.

$1.2 million All-American Futurity Monday

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Unbeaten and heavily favored Mighty Deck Three, this season's Spectacular Bid of the quarter horse racing circuit, heads the field for Monday's running of the $1.2 million All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

The 10-horse field of 2-year-olds will race 440 yards for the first place purse of $440,000 in the race that until this summer was known as the world's richest.

The All American Derby, a spinoff from the futurity and a race for 3-year-old quarter horses, offered a larger purse of $1.4 million this year. However, the futurity's purse, which has been locked in at the $1.2 million figure for several years, will be allowed to escalate again starting next year. By 1983, the futurity's purse is expected to hit $2 million, with the winner's share an even $1 million.

The 10 horses in the race qualified through two sets of elimination trials this month and none did it more impressively than Mighty Deck Three, who now has won nine straight races and has yet to be seriously challenged.

The gelding, owned by Dan and Jolene Urschel of Canadian, Texas, set the top qualifying time of 22.37 seconds in winning his trial by almost two lengths.

Mighty Deck Three's biggest victory to date was in the $587,500 Rainbow Derby over the same Ruidoso Downs stretch. The Rainbow was run over 400 yards, but the colt has shown the ability to handle the longer distance.

"He break well, runs on the end and just doesn't make any mistakes," said Shirley Montgomery, the 23-year-old trainer of one of the challengers, Six Fols.

Mighty Deck Three's trainer, Leo Wood, agrees his horse will be tough to beat but concedes the pressure of being unbeaten going into the futurity is starting to mount.

"It puts a certain amount of pressure on me because I don't think the horse knows about it," said Wood. "After nine in a row, he's subject to getting beat. I'm just hoping it's not this particular trip."

Most of the trainers and jockeys of the other entries agree it will take a perfect race to beat the favorite.

"I'd like for Six Fols to draw alongside of him, have them both get a good break and see which one of them can handle it," said Montgomery. "My horse will not be able to make any mistakes and then I'm not sure he can outrun Mighty Deck Three."

The second fastest qualifier was a filly, Chick Called Mito, who went the 440 yards in 22.40 seconds. The speedster has won three of eight races this year and finished in the money three other times.

The rest of the field includes two other fillies, Rocky and Love Poem, and colts Heasterjet, Joe Bailey Oak, El Rey Burner, Mystic Eye and Fleet Sky Rocket.

The race will be nationally televised with post time scheduled for 3:40 p.m.

Lauda, Moss enter Hall of Fame

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Formula One driving greats Nikki Lauda and Sterling Moss were among six persons inducted Saturday into the Auto Racing Hall of Fame at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Joining Moss and Lauda in entering the racing shrine were Carl Fisher, founder of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway; William H.G. France, founder of NASCAR; and Eddie Hearne and Harry Hartz, both great drivers from the early part of the century.

The six were elected by voting members of the American Auto Racing Writers and Broadcasters Association, which founded the Hall of Fame in 1972. The new enshrinees bring to 52 the number voted into the Hall.

Lauda, a two-time world champion from Austria, recently retired from the Grand Prix circuit. He dominated Formula One racing from 1975 through 1979 and made a miraculous comeback from a serious racing accident in 1976.

Moss never won a world title, but captured virtually every European Grand Prix race on the circuit at one time or another from 1946 through 1965. The English driver was forced into early retirement by injuries suffered in a racing crash at the peak of his career.

A touch of class with designer Bill Blass

A man who is a top notch fashion designer of America today is coming to town to help local children who are top notch in the lives of their families and of the Children's Service League.

While Bill Blass has probably had a few ups and downs in his life, the children the Midland Cerebral Palsy Center provide services for are always striving to go up — usually with a struggle.

Blass will be here Sept. 11 for a luncheon and showing of his fashions at Holiday Inn Country Villa. The event is sponsored by Children's Service League, which owns and operates the cerebral palsy center, and is being presented through Julian Gold, Inc.

The Cerebral Palsy Center, 802 Ventura St., serves about 200 children from 19 counties in West Texas and New Mexico. The new facility was completed in June, 1972, and in 1979, an addition including four classrooms was completed.

Dr. Thurston Dean has been medical director of the center since 1973. He is assisted by Dr. Bill Alexander and Dr. Charles Younger, also orthopedic surgeons, Dr. John Foster, pediatrician, Dr. J. C. Whitaker, dentist and Dr. William L. McGavran III, neurosurgeon. These men donate their service to conduct evaluation clinics at the center.

Executive director of the center is Jim Crawford, who also serves the center as a physical therapist. He has been associated with the clinic for 20 years. The center employs two full-time physical therapists and a full-time occupational therapist. The Midland Independent School District provides a speech therapist during the school year while the center provides speech therapy during the summer.

Any child diagnosed as being cerebral palsied or neurologically handicapped is given free treatment at the center. Treatment is administered under the supervision of the medical staff.

The Children's Service League has been working with crippled children since they became the local sponsor for the Easter Seal campaign in 1944. In 1956 the cerebral palsy treatment center was built with the majority of the labor and half of the building materials donated. Today, the center is no longer associated with the Easter Seal and is funded entirely through proceeds from the Beekeepers Ball and a style show, presented on alternating years, and through private donations.

Last year, some $131,895 was raised during the Beekeepers Ball with about 550 guests attending the "best" of the 1979 fall social season.

League members involved in this year's style show include chairman, Susan Stengl; assistant chairman, Juanita Goolsby; invitations co-chairmen Kathy Wetzel and Dot Stovell; decorations co-chairmen, Donna Smith and Barbara McLellan; and publicity, Mary Mims.

Bill Blass, one of the most widely acclaimed American fashion designers of today, will be in Midland Sept. 11 for a fashion showing and luncheon. Blass has received the Coty American Fashion Critics Award three times, the third time elevating him to the Fashion Hall of Fame.

Mrs. Roy Davidson, chairman of special prizes for the Bill Blass Fashion Showing and luncheon to be Sept. 11 at the Holiday Inn Country Villa, discusses the event with Mrs. Ervin Philpy, president of the Children's Service League, which is sponsoring the event. Also looking on is Jim Crawford, executive director of the center, and Brandy Tune, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hank Tune of Odessa. Brandy is one of the children benefitting from care at the center.

...THE DECLINE IN LANGUAGE studies has left a gap in our education," writes Shelly Porsch, 19, 2313 Stutz St., in the September issue of "Seventeen" Magazine.

"Language programs have ceased to be an active part of our school curriculum, leaving us virtually a monolingual people," writes Shelly. Today, only 15 percent of our high school students study foreign language, as opposed to 24 percent in 1965. Also, only 8 percent of our colleges require a foreign language, either for admission or graduation, compared with 34 percent in 1966.

"If you're career-minded, consider this: In the 'real world,' about 6,000 American companies have overseas branches; approximately 35,000 business people live and work abroad," writes Shelly. "A foreign language is, therefore, a marketable skill that can enhance a student's eligibility for many interesting jobs."

"Language can be a vital part of our lives," Shelly points out, "yet the President's Commission on Foreign Languages and International Studies cites unimaginative instruction as a major reason for our faltering abilities. To combat boredom, teachers should illuminate the cultural and historical aspects of a language, instead of having students simply memorize tedious conjugation charts."

"All of us are affected daily by international diplomacy and economics," says Shelly. "Thus, we can no longer afford to isolate ourselves linguistically. An ability to communicate with others in their native tongue is the key to feeling at home in any corner of the world."

Copper bracelets may help arthritis

By JOHN T. WATTS
Copley News Service

Dear John: You have an article in the Brandon Sun on wearing copper bracelets.

I have been interested in copper bracelets for this last 70 years (not that I need one myself, but it's knowing the right kind to get).

About the year 1905 my brother-in-law's sister and I went to visit a cousin in Plumas. There was a Dennis to his name. That's all I remember. A family man lived on the farm, but worked in the elevator.

He told me if it was not for this copper ring, he would not be able to hold his job. The ring was rather wide, a little stout. Now on the inside was a grayish metal with two or three narrow bands of copper embedded in the grayish metal inside the ring.

He could not wear it the full day as it would give him a rash, otherwise it always left that greenish color on his skin.

I was born in 1887 and by the grace of God I am still quite fit. — May F., Manitoba, Canada

Dear May: The legend that copper bracelets help with arthritis pain may have some basis in fact. Dr. Helmar Dollwet, a biochemist at the University of Akron, gave this opinion some months ago as a result of a study he made.

He said apparently copper from the bracelets (or rings or whatever) reacts with chemicals within a person's perspiration to produce an anesthetic. He said this anesthetic, a gas called ethylene, may be absorbed through the skin and circulated in the bloodstream to the arthritic area.

Dr. Dollwet said the only after-effect is the harmless green stain left on the skin.

This column reported the finding on Dr. Dollwet's study, which incidentally is continuing, several months ago.

On pleats

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Pleats are nothing more than fabric folded over on itself. Sounds simple. But a lot can happen to cause you trouble with your pleats.

For a pleat to hang properly and stay in place, it must be creased along the grain line of the fabric. It is important, therefore, to choose the right fabric. Make sure it is "on grain" and is not too heavy to be pleated. It should be a firmly woven fabric (or a firm knit), and it should not have much stretch.

Barbecue favored by males

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

Ever since the first cave dweller roasted the results of the day's hunt over an outdoor fire, men have revelled in presiding over the backyard meal known as the barbecue.

The American male may balk if asked to help in the kitchen, but give him an apron and place him in front of a charcoal grill and he will outdo himself.

The earliest form of grilling is believed to have been the ancient practice of placing a chunk of meat on a pointed stick and holding it over flames.

As time passed, desert nomads began impaling meat on their swords and cooking it. From this practice was derived the term "shish kabob." Shish in Turkish means sword and kabob means broiled meat. Today most outdoor cooks wield skewers made of metal or hard wood.

Barbecuing has come a long way from the days when it was limited to grilled hamburgers and hot dogs, although they are still the favorites.

A complete meal can be prepared on the grill today. Stuffed mushrooms, for example, can be grilled. So can crab meat that has been breaded and wrapped in bacon.

Not only are all sorts of meats and some fish grilled, but so are a number of vegetables, including potatoes, beets and carrots that have been wrapped in foil to prevent charring. And many cooks don't think a barbecue is complete without husk-roasted corn.

If you want to give your cookout a gourmet touch, try grilling venison or a wild bird. But some people don't relish the taste of game, so unless you know your guests, it's better to stick to domestic meat.

If you prefer the old-time barbecue where hamburger was king, there are some variations that might appeal to you.

To keep chopped beef juicy, add a couple of tablespoons of red wine for each pound. Or mix the meat with one slice per pound of stale pumpernickel bread with the crust removed, soaked in beer and chopped fine. I personally prefer the wine as in this recipe.

- 2 pounds ground beef, round or chuck
- 1 large medium onion, grated
- 2 garlic cloves, chopped fine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
- 4 tablespoons red wine
- 1 bottle store-bought barbecue sauce

Mix first six ingredients well and form into patties. Cover with barbecue sauce and grill about 3 inches from the hot coals. Turn frequently to cook meat evenly on both sides. Cook to desired doneness. Makes 6-8 hamburgers, depending on size desired. Good with chilled beer or ale.

Resale value

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — By using a little foresight, a homeowner might find that a long-lasting roof will help him get the price he wants when it's time to sell his house.

When the time comes to reshingle the house, the owner should first decide approximately how long he plans to live in it, says Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., a shingle manufacturer.

Then buy a shingle that will last twice as long. The owner stands a better chance of getting the price he wants for the house if the roof is in good condition, since people who buy a house don't want to buy a new roof, too.

Being divorced doesn't present problems for management job seekers

NEW YORK (AP) — Being divorced generally doesn't pose problems for people looking for a management job. Sometimes it's even an advantage. But being in the process of getting divorced is a real disadvantage.

These are among the conclusions of a survey among heads of management-level personnel agencies across the United States and Canada.

The survey was taken by National Personnel Associates, a network of 237 personnel agencies that cooperate in filling jobs at the $18,000-$75,000 level.

Sixty-one percent of the survey respondents believe a divorced job applicant not at a disadvantage, while 31 percent believe there is a disadvantage. Eighty-four percent believe that being in a divorce process is a disadvantage while 10 percent disagree.

MANY OF THESE agency heads, who exchange thousands of resumes and employer job listings yearly in their cooperative efforts to fill jobs, expanded on their questionnaire comments.

"Divorced persons are hot employment candidates because they are independent of family. Employers feel they devote more to the job and career than married or single people," commented Phil Orlesky of Fort Garry Personnel Services Ltd., Winnipeg, Manitoba. "Unfortunately, people going through a divorce are considered somewhat unstable or unpredictable," he added.

"The divorced person is more apt to be apartment-oriented, so high mortgage interest costs on the purchase of a house are not a big factor, and this is an advantage," says Chuck Han-kings of Hankins Personnel Services, Lima, Ohio.

"In the past, being divorced may have been a drawback. Now it indicates greater ease in relocation and that is one of the biggest pluses a management applicant can have," said Jerold E. Tompson of Bowman Associates Inc., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Charles B. Delbridge of Associated Personnel, Decatur, Ill., says, "A female candidate who is in the process of getting a divorce is at a disadvantage because the employer might feel that she will go back to her husband and stop working."

"A DIVORCE OF less than two years is a complete red flag. If getting divorced is mentioned no one will talk to the applicant," comments Evelyn Thomas of Salesmen Only Inc., Rosemont, Ill. On the other hand, Helen Piers Browning, CPC of Mutual Personnel Service, Macon, Ga., feels, "A divorced female with children is highly prized for long-term, management-oriented positions because she will have to work and will make the necessary life adjustments to succeed.

"A divorced man is often shunted aside in sales because he lacks the proper domestic base for entertaining clients and projecting a sense of long-term stability. We have some clients who will interview divorce-in-progress people and the recently-divorced but will not interview long-term divorced males because 'something is probably wrong with them.'"

Marilyn Asselin of Barker Personnel Service in Springfield, Mass., points out that different employers have very different attitudes. A major consideration is "whether or not the employers themselves are divorced," she says.

Some survey respondents advise persons in the divorce process not to change jobs if they can avoid it.

tive effect on his job search abilities."

Many survey participants commented that even with disadvantages, persons seeking a management-level job should approach the task with confidence.

"Everything can be a disadvantage when you are seeking a position," said W. T. Cretney of Cretney & Associates Inc., Cleveland. "Too old, too young, not enough experience, too much experience, etc., etc. However, each person needs only one position. It's our job to help the employee find it."

Thriving little town has everything, including a dog

JUGVILLE, N.D. (AP) — This thriving little town has everything in a row of white buildings — a general store, clinic, church, telephone office and school. But don't look on a map for Jugville.

It's got a population of two, plus a dog and lots of birds. And it's built on Sig and Josie Jagielski's backyard — and imagination.

Jagielski is familiar to Grafton, N.D., radio listeners as Uncle Sig, a genial Sunday disc jockey who has regaled his audience with old-time music and jokes for almost 20 years. He also is a compulsive collector.

He started 25 years ago with pencils, pens and bottles, but soon found his basement filling up with old farm equipment and other odds and ends.

It got worse when he married Josie. She too, is a passionate collector, with a kitchen full of cups and salt and pepper shakers. But she had something more potent — ideas.

"You put one horse on a wagon and he can't pull it, but two can work in harness," Jagielski said. "She comes up with the ideas to brighten this up or make that better. Twelve years ago, we decided to make something of it."

And so Jugville began. Instead of having people traipse downstairs to see his treasures, Jagielski built his town and put everything in its proper place.

Now he escorts visitors with a flourish through his yard, full of flowers and benches and chairs made of old tractor seats and bedsteads, to the neat little town with the hitching posts up front.

"Fifteen and 20 years ago, all this stuff was in scrap piles," Jagielski said. "Me, like a goof, I like it."

Jugville holds an incredible array of business and farm machinery, antiques and long forgotten objects. An old phone switchboard, yellowed but colorful school posters, food tins, old medical tools, washing machines and furniture fill the town.

Jagielski built the town on an acre and a half. The buildings are big enough for two people to walk into.

The first building was the church, complete with steeple and bell. Ja-gielski said he built it in memory of his parents.

Taped music comes from behind the altar, and statues crowd the tiny white interior. Books and Bibles are placed near the colored windows.

Jagielski playfully dons a black clerical cap and pulls the bell rope, but he's very serious about the chapel's contents.

"It just seems (the churches) are going to modern times, and they're throwing all this out," he said, pointing to delicate plaster angels holding candles.

Sunshine solves mildew odor in mattress

DEAR HELOISE:

To the lady who asked for help in getting rid of the mildew odor in a mattress: I, too, suffered with the same problem for months before mentioning it to my mother-in-law.

She had the best answer of all, and it didn't cost a cent!

My husband picked the mattress up one bright, sunny morning, carried it outside and laid it on the ground on top of an old sheet.

After about six hours of sun and wind, no more odor of any kind!

I just wish I had known of this long ago. You wouldn't believe the results and no need for more deodorizing. — Mrs. M.L. Sanders True! Pick a sunny day with no threat of rain. And turn the mattress over at least once. However, I must insert a word of caution...

Hot sun CAN fade the covering, so take this into consideration before sunning your mattress. But, this really does help to remove musty odors. — Heloise

LETTER OF LOVE

DEAR HELOISE:

While visiting my husband's sister, a "major" disaster occurred. The marmalade did not gel!

My husband rose to the occasion. "Heloise says to call it fruit syrup and pour it over waffles, etc., and it's delicious."

She did, it was, and surprise bonus! We received a big jar to take home! — Fran

DEAR HELOISE:

Clean burned-on brown grease spots on your glass or enamel ovenware the same way you clean your oven — with a can of your favorite spray-on oven cleaner.

It does a beautiful job. But as always, have the area well-ventilated before using the spray.

If the dishes are slightly warm before spraying on the cleaner, it works even better. — Nora

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found addressing cards while on vacation a time-consuming nuisance.

So, weeks before I go, I get a roll of adhesive address tape, and type as many names and addresses as I expect to send cards to.

Sure saves a lot of aggravation looking up addresses at the last minute. — Alice Gross

DEAR HELOISE:

I have traverse rods for hanging drapes over the windows in my home, but some of the plastic eyelets that the drapery pins hook into have broken off.

These rods are good except for this problem. Do you have an idea as to how to repair them? — Evelyn Glass

You don't have to repair them, luv... Did you know you can buy a package of these plastic eyelets at any drapery notions counter? They are very inexpensive, and all you have to do is slip as many as needed into the traverse rods and you're all set. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

For my kitchen table, I bought five plastic place mats from open stock.

Then, using the cover from a one-pound coffee can, I traced four circles on the extra mat and cut them out with pink shears.

Voila! Matching coasters for my glasses and coffee mugs. — Verna Lombard

Cowboy Cheerleaders in Midland store Saturday

Two members of the famed Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders will be in Midland and Odessa Saturday for appearances at Dillard's department stores.

Renee Pipkin and Donna Wichita, both 21 years old and second-year cheerleaders, will be appearing from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Dillard's in Midland Park Mall, and from 2:30 to 4 p.m. they will appear at Dillard's in Odessa's Permian Mall. During each appearance they will autograph photo reprints and pose for photographs. Location for the appearances will be in the menswear area of each store.

Though the Dallas Cowboys have always had sideline cheerleaders, the phenomenon as it is today really did not begin its rise until about five years ago. Super Bowl X in January 1976 was the turning point as television cameras found their way to the sidelines and a new attraction was added to professional football.

The Dallas Cowboys decided to hold open auditions for the cheerleading squad in the spring of 1976, with approximately 250 young women applying that year. Close to 2,000 ladies made application for the 1980-81 squad, and the cheerleaders have become the darlings of the National Football League.

The 1980-81 Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders squad represents almost the career and lifestyle of the American woman: Some are single, some are married and several have children. All are either working or attending school full-time.

Once selected, the cheerleaders undergo rigorous physical conditioning, exhaustive practice schedules and adhere to stringent rules and regulations. Each season, their repertoire includes 50-odd song and dance numbers.

Suzanne Mitchell, director of the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, says, "People want a clean, American, apple pie image. They want someone to look up to, someone who's upfront and first-class. The Cowboys are that kind of organization and always have been, and the Cheerleaders are a reflection of that image."

Reception honors couple on wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn A. Howard, 721 Sinclair St., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception hosted by their only son, Gary Dee Howard, his wife, Sandy, and their two grandsons, Gary Dee Howard Jr. and Timothy Howard, all of San Antonio.

The reception was held Sunday in Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard were married Aug. 24, 1930, in Burkburnett in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Smith. Mrs. Howard is the former Mildred "Millie" Smith.

The couple lived from 1930 to 1941 in Burkburnett, in Jal, N.M., from 1941 to 1943 and in Sundown from 1943 to 1944. They moved to Midland in 1944.

Mr. Howard was employed with Texaco Inc., retiring in June 1972. Mrs. Howard was employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. before her retirement. They are members of the First Baptist Church and Midland Masonic Lodge.

One hundred and fifty guests attended the reception.

The out-of-city guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. R. King of Forrest, Miss. Mike Laird and Mr. and Mrs. George Laird of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Jones of the Republic of Singapore, Von Dean Lawson of Andrews, Pauline Donley and Hazel Burwell of Voca, Creo Barking of Hobbs, N.M., Frank L. Typical granddad of 1980 does't conform to tradition

NEW YORK (AP) — There are an estimated 11 million granddads in the United States today, and the majority are young in spirit, dedicated to their work, their families and their communities, a recent survey indicates.

"The comprehensive portrait of the typical granddad of 1980 does not conform to traditional stereotypes — either that of the kindly, old bearded gentleman rocking away his golden years on the front porch or the more tragic image of the lonely soul cut off from society," says research director Dr. John Crothers Pollock.

"Both types certainly do exist today but they are in the minority," he adds, citing the study, "Granddads in America: The Young at Heart," conducted by Research & Forecasts Inc. of New York City, a national research organization, and sponsored by Old Granddad. The grandfathers surveyed ranged in age from 33-92.

Granddads show a deep involvement with their families, reports Pollock, a social scientist. Almost 90 percent of American granddads are married to their first and only wife, and three of five see their grandchildren at least once a week.

"At a time when polls indicate Americans are concerned about declining morale and a slippage of traditional values, this profile strikes a largely positive note," Pollock points out. "It suggests that family life may be stronger than is generally believed."

Among the key findings of the survey: —Despite the fact that granddads enjoy an extremely close relationship with the grandchildren and feel they are being brought up properly (only 8 percent often disagree), there is noticeable disapproval of the behavior of youth today. Just over half (53 percent) say that today's youth behave less well than those of yesterday.

—Home-oriented

granddads tend to be active with hobbies, gardening, doing odd jobs about the house (42 percent), playing cards and visiting family and friends. Sixteen percent often perform volunteer work and are active in their communities. Traveling as a leisure activity is enjoyed by 65 percent, while 24 percent go dancing regularly — and that includes disco.

—American granddads today are completely in step with the trend to fitness and health, with the age having little significant relationship to health.

Tape monitor Jack Gazzale, left, and narrator Vic Rogers, shown reading in a sound proof studio, donate 20 hours of their time every week to help record books and magazines for the Tape Lending Library, 202 N. "C" St. It takes the team between a month and a year to tape a book, depending on the size. (Staff Photo by Edward McCain)

Being blind is no reason to avoid this library

By SANDI BREEDEN
Lifestyle Writer

Most people enjoy reading — it is relaxing, stimulating and makes people knowledgeable about a variety of subjects. Most people do not think twice when they pick up a novel or magazine and start reading.

And thanks to the Midland Tape Lending Library, local people with visual or physical handicaps, either temporary or permanent, that cannot read for whatever reason can still get the same relaxation, stimulation and knowledge as those who flip through pages. The difference is those using the tape lending library "flip" through cassettes on tape recorders to get the same information.

Founded about 10 years ago, the Midland Tape Lending Library has grown from a small group to an organization with 20-25 active volunteers and two part-time paid employees. And more volunteers are needed, according to director Betty Flora.

"We always need volunteers," she said, "but especially in the fall. Because we have a program for reading in Spanish, we also need Spanish speaking volunteers."

HOW DOES THE library serve Midland citizens? "We do what people ask us to do," said Ms. Flora. "We were asked to describe the cover of Texas Monthly, so now we do," she stated, explaining one of the library's functions. "We also describe photo stories," she added.

Midland's tape lending library makes the master tape of Texas Monthly for the Texas State Library, Division for the Visually and Physically Handicapped. "We record the entire issue of Texas Monthly," said Ms. Flora. "It takes at least 50 hours of volunteer time each month to record the magazine," she added.

After the state library gets the master tape, they then record it on cassette tapes and mail about 400 cassettes to users every month.

"We have a two-fold purpose," said Ms. Flora, continuing to answer how the library serves the Tall City. "We maintain and circulate a collection of cassette books of general interest to all ages of readers who can't read regular print material and we record any material not already available on tape for visually and physically handicapped individuals who must read by listening."

And Texas Monthly is not the only thing recorded by volunteers. "Volunteers also record material to meet recreational, educational and other needs of our users," said the director. "For the state library, we read Texana, books by Texas authors and about Texas."

ONE THING THE library does not record, however, is newspapers. "We haven't had enough volunteers or money to do it," explained Ms. Flora. "Some towns have special radio programs where newspapers are read, but this is usually in conjunction with a college."

And only those who qualify can use the tape lending library. "Because we get special copyright releases on the materials we use, we legally cannot give tapes to anyone but those with visual or physical handicaps," said Ms. Flora. "Those with a learning disability also qualify," she added, "but they must be determined by a professional to have a learning disability."

Those who qualify to use the library do not have to choose from just what the library has, said the director. "Local residents can bring print material and the tape lending library records it at their request," said Ms. Flora. "All local requests go on cassettes instead of a master tape," she added.

The library also furnishes cassette recorders for those who do not have one, until the users get their special recorder from the state library. The recorders from the state library are equipped with special designs on the buttons so the visually handicapped can tell which button is for what function.

Just how many people utilize the local facility is hard to ascertain, according to Ms. Flora. "When people are enrolled in the state library program, they are using our library indirectly," she said. "Sometimes they do not have direct contact with us unless they need us for a specific purpose. We work with the public schools too — they have a program for visually handicapped and nursing homes also use our services, so it's hard to say how many people do use the program."

SINCE MOST PEOPLE can read, it seems being a volunteer for the library would be an easy way to donate to a worthy cause and get some reading done at the same time. However, it is not as easy as it sounds.

"There are three classifications of volunteers," said Ms. Flora. "The narrator, monitor and reviewer."

According to Ms. Flora, the narrator is the one who reads the book. He must pass an audition in which he is evaluated on the basis of quality of voice and presentation as well as clarity and accuracy of reading. He must also pre-read, prepare and record any requested material including books and periodicals.

The monitor's general responsibility is to operate the recording equipment during a recording session with the narrator, closely checking the narrator in a second copy of the text. The reviewer proof listens to completed recorded books against the printed copy to insure that the narration is accurate.

According to Ms. Flora, a book may take anywhere from one month to almost a year to record, depending on the length. "Every three hours of recorded listening time requires 20 to 25 hours of volunteer time," she said.

Two 'tools' added to fight against leukemia

BOSTON (AP) — Scientists have developed two techniques to help fight leukemia, one of which enables doctors to predict for the first time when leukemia victims will suffer a relapse.

The other development, a new form of treatment, could add years to the lives of people suffering from acute myelogenous leukemia, a particularly stubborn form of the disease, doctors say. The technique uses shorter but more intensive chemotherapy than standard treatment.

Both developments were the subjects of articles in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The new forecasting tool, called the PCC technique, is given to people whose leukemia is in remission. By checking the genetic material of bone marrow cells, doctors can spot cancerous cells before they multiply and spread.

"It can give advance notice to the physician that the patient may go into relapse three or four months from now," said

Dr. Potu Rao, a biologist who developed the technique with other scientists at the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston.

"It gives him time to take steps and make a preventive strike to head off that onset," Rao said.

Leukemia, a cancer of the blood-forming tissues, is usually fatal and kills 16,000 Americans each year. Overall, only about 20 percent of the victims are still alive five years after the onset of the disease.

Using the PCC technique, the doctors followed the progress of 19 patients whose leukemia was in remission. During the study, 14 of them suffered relapses, and the test accurately predicted the fate of 11 of those patients.

The test, still considered experimental, takes two days to perform and is too complicated for the average physician to use. But Rao said the team is working on a simpler version to let doctors spot the cancerous signs with dyes.

The new form of treatment for acute myelogenous leukemia was used on 83 cancer patients in a study directed by doctors at the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute in Boston. Tests were conducted at 10 hospitals.

The disease went into remission in 70 percent of the patients, half of whom did not suffer symptoms for periods ranging from two to four years.

WE'RE OLD HANDS AT HELPING NEWCOMERS GET THEIR FEET ON THE GROUND.

At The Midland National Bank, we know there's a lot of groundwork to be laid before you ever set foot in your new job and your new community.

And our Newcomer Counselors are prepared to roll out the welcome mat as soon as you let us know you're moving to Midland.

We know your first priority is putting a roof over your head. So our counselors will put our Newcomer Package in your hands, furnishing you with the latest information on temporary and permanent housing, sources of mortgage money, and current interest rates.

You'll want to know where to send the kids to school. Our counselors have done their homework; they can tell you which schools have accelerated courses, honors classes and enrichment programs, and they'll supply you with a profile of the schools and their districts.

You won't need to shop around for Midland's facilities; our counselors can point you in the right direction for shopping centers, private clubs, recreational facilities—all the things you'll want to know about Midland, but didn't know who to ask.

Since our Newcomer Counselors are also banking professionals, they know how unsettling it can be when you're trying to get settled and your bank drags its heels on transferring funds from out of town. Or how a bank can tie your hands by rejecting your remodeling loan just because you're new in town.

So they'll put you in touch with trained financial experts who can promptly and efficiently help you with all your financial needs, whether it's opening a checking and savings account, setting up a trust, or making a quick evaluation of your petroleum collateral.

You see, at The Midland National Bank, we want you to feel as much at home in Midland as we do. Give us a call at 683-2751 and ask for Diedre Schiemenz or any of our Newcomer Counselors. We know it takes more than just another big bank to get a sure foothold in your new community.

WE'RE MORE THAN JUST ANOTHER BIG BANK.

McAlister, of Willis, and Jim Malaske of Colorado.

Susan Reid of Midland was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kim Quinn, of Midland, and Mandy Wells, sister of the bridegroom of Willis. Tracey Lynn Finn, niece of the bride of Midland, served as flower girl.

The bridegroom's brother, Scott Lee Wells of Midland, was best man. Ushers were Joey Wells, brother of the bridegroom of Midland, and John Swiney, brother of the bride of Midland. Kim Shapley and Brian Nikolai, both of Midland, served as groomsmen. Brandy Finn and Douglas Swiney, niece and nephew of the bride, served as ring bearers.

Following a wedding trip to Galveston, the couple will reside at 2433 Whitmire No. 9.

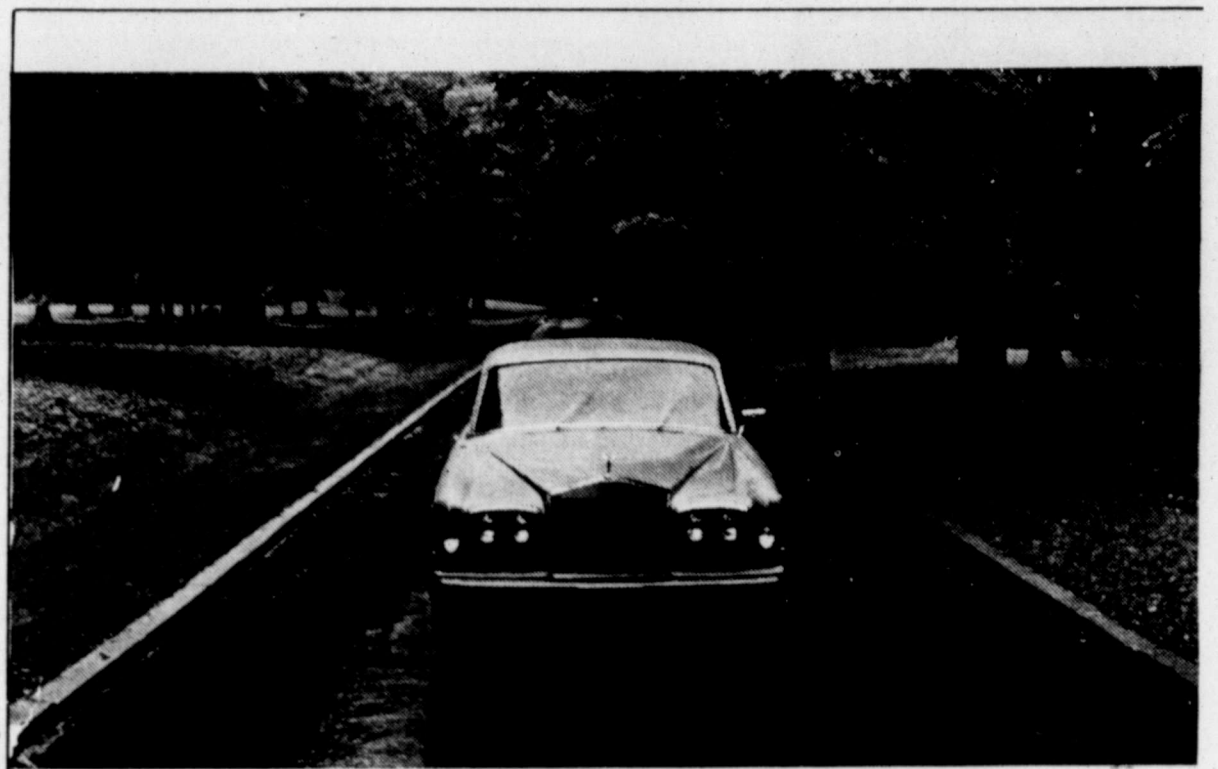

Quality food important

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite today's economic pressures, quality is more important than cost when buying a food product, according to a national survey of 200 home economists conducted by the Closure Committee of the Glass Packaging Institute.

Among home economists asked to state the most influential factor affecting their food-buying decisions, 72 percent of those responding cited quality; cost was considered the second most important factor by 45 percent.

Packaging style was also found to be a consideration when making supermarket purchases for 72 percent of the respondents.

How to drive a Rolls-Royce masterpiece of your own without owning one.

If you wish to enjoy the timeless pleasure of a new Rolls-Royce motor car, you don't necessarily have to purchase one. For many sound business reasons, you may prefer to lease one.

The first month's payment and the small security deposit can help you free your capital for other purposes. The possible tax advantages inherent in your fixed monthly payments may help you conserve your cash flow. And the option to arrange either a closed-end or open-end lease for anywhere from one to seven years can help you control the extent of your lease and your investment.

Your financial advisor can help you determine the benefits of leasing a Rolls-Royce motor car. And because we are one of the select dealerships appointed by Rolls-Royce Motors, you can rely on us to arrange the lease that will suit your personal needs.

For that matter, we can arrange the option to turn your new lease on life into the purchase of a priceless asset: a Rolls-Royce masterpiece all your own.

Consumers deciding trends

CHICAGO (AP) — Fall fashions show no one clear-cut "party line," and as a result, hairstylists say that consumers have more influence than ever in deciding today's hair trends.

"The basic fashion message for fall is that if you feel good about it, wear it," says Michael Swiger, Phoenix, Ariz., member of the Helene Curtis Hairstylists Advisory Board. His comment was echoed by other board members polled for fall hair forecasts.

What do today's salon clients want? "Convenience is still key, and we'll see many easy-care looks with a close-to-the-head, controlled feeling," says Darleen Hakola, Portland, Ore.

Swiger adds, "Women, working women especially, want neat, well-cared-for, professional looks for the office." And Victor Figueroa, New York, comments "People want 'convertible' hair. They want to get their money's worth with versatile styles that can be altered for several different daytime and evening looks."

There is a conservative mood to fall hairstyles, with the return of classics such as the pageboy, say the board members, who see few outlandish or innovative styles, because, as Jerry Gordon says in Chicago, "People just aren't in a mood for change right now."

The great debate for fall centers on hair length, which, like skirt length, rises and falls according to individual taste. Says Detroit stylist Gerald Haynes, "There seem to be two extremes: long hair with clean lines and the shorter, chunkier looks with lots of hair around the face and neckline."

Lifestyle guidelines

The following are suggested guidelines for publication of stories in the Lifestyle Department of The Midland Reporter-Telegram:

Information for our Sunday pages must be in our office by 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday; or two days before publication in a daily paper.

Engagement announcements must appear at least four weeks before the wedding date. Wedding stories must be submitted within a week of the event.

Engagements, weddings, anniversaries and club notices must be submitted in writing. All materials should include the name and telephone number of the person submitting them. The Reporter-Telegram has forms for engagement and wedding announcement stories. We cannot mail pictures or forms to persons living within Midland. Pictures must be picked up in the Lifestyle office within one month after publication.

Only the bride's picture will be used with both the engagement and wedding announcement.

Pictures should be black and white, preferably glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but they may reproduce poorly. Good reproduction cannot be assured when color prints are used. In general, snapshots are not acceptable.

There is no charge for publication of pictures and stories.

'Skimpy' rate hike OK'd

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The City Council has unanimously granted Lone Star Gas Co. a rate increase 45 percent below the amount sought by the utility.

The company had requested a hike of $4.94 million, but council members cut the figure to $2.74 million Tuesday. Lone Star vice president Ben Thompson called the increase "skimpy," but said the company probably would not appeal it.

Big campaign planned to reduce birth defects

By LEE JONES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state agency is planning a $3.75 million-a-year campaign to reduce the number of children with birth defects born to women on welfare.

It could mean fewer children with genetically transmitted diseases such as hemophilia, Down's syndrome ("Mongolism") and sickle cell anemia.

The State Board of Human Resources is expected to vote in October to offer genetic screening to Medicaid recipients. Its 1982-83 budget request includes $375,000 a year for the state's one-tenth share of the cost. Federal funds would pay the rest.

Screening tells a couple its chances of having a child with a genetically transmitted disorder. Scientists have identified over 2,000 such conditions.

"Texas will be the first state in the nation to separately identify genetic services to be included in its family planning program," said Beth Weber, director of the board's family planning division.

If the program is started, welfare case workers will spread the word. "I don't think it is a matter of wringing anyone's arm. I would think anyone would want to know what is causing a child's medical problem and, ... if it can happen again, do I want it to happen again?" Mrs. Weber said.

She said genetic disorders occur in about one in 14 births, and screening can help high-risk couples to "make informed reproductive decisions."

"For example, one in every 10 black people is a carrier of sickle cell anemia. If two carriers marry, they could be making a reproductive decision without being informed. Or take cystic fibrosis, if two carriers marry, their child would have a strong chance of having it," Mrs. Weber said.

Genetic screening could result in long-range savings of tax dollars because treating some genetic disorders is an expensive burden on Medicaid.

The State Health Department and the March of Dimes now will pay the $250 to $750 cost of a genetic work-up for needy people, but many who need it don't get it.

Mrs. Weber said adding genetic screening to the list of Medicaid services will make it available to more people.

Medicaid would pay only for genetic services prescribed by a doctor for a patient with a suspected genetic condition "which has implications for reproductive decisions." It would not pay for tests to learn if a baby will be a boy or a girl.

A potential controversy lies in a provision allowing payment for amniocentesis — the taking of amniotic fluid from a pregnant woman's uterus with a needle. Analysis of the fluid can disclose such defects as Down's syndrome.

Anti-abortion groups oppose amniocentesis because when it reveals a defect, one option is abortion.

Douglas Johnson, legislative liaison for the Texas Right to Life Committee, calls amniocentesis a "search and destroy mission" that is often used "with the purpose firmly in mind from the start of aborting if a defect shows up."

How to survive kids' parties

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

Young mothers ask me how achieve hassle-free birthday parties for 4- to 7-year-olds.

Because it's been some years since I gave birthday parties for a niece or a nephew. Her two small boys have social life aplenty. As we compared notes I found, interestingly enough, that nowadays these birthday celebrations—if they're held at home rather than at school when a child's whole class is invited—go on the usual way. They center around games, food and presents.

In planning parties, Mary and I agreed, the motto to remember is "Be Prepared."

Be prepared to limit the number of guests to a manageable number. Mary wouldn't dream of letting her eldest son invite more than 8 to 10 guests.

Be sure to have an adult helper—Father or a good friend who enjoys children and doesn't mind noise and unexpected behavior.

Be prepared for the weather. If you plan to have the party outdoors, keep in mind that the weather may turn stormy. Be ready to switch indoors, with active games at hand, at a moment's notice.

Stairs can be insurmountable barriers for handicapped people, especially those confined to wheelchairs...

He just wants people to stop erecting hurdles in his path

Jack Cowden doesn't ask for special consideration. He doesn't want the government to intervene for special favors on his behalf.

All he asks is that people stop erecting hurdles in his path. Cowden is a Multiple Sclerosis victim who depends on a wheelchair for transportation. Doors, curbs and stairs stand in his way, barring his entrance from even those buildings his taxes help support.

"The hardest thing sometimes is just getting on the block. I was thinking about going to the library the other day. It's only a block down and I can see it from my window." Cowden is an engineer with Conoco, whose offices are on the seventh floor of the Gibraltar Building.

"BUT I WOULD HAVE to cross the street twice in the middle of the block. That's probably a violation of the law, and it's not safe because when you cross, you're standing — but I have to do it seated."

Cowden believes he could manage getting into the library if he could get there, and, indeed, MS patient Peg Anderson says the back entrance to the library is easy to handle. In addition, she says the library is considering reserving parking for the handicapped near that entrance.

Public buildings, such as the library, are governed by both federal and state laws, if built or renovated since the laws took effect. In 1968, the federal government passed into law a bill requiring all buildings using federal funds or with federally-funded projects to be "barrier-free."

In 1970, Texas followed suit with a law on public buildings. According to Eric Brown with the State Purchasing and General Services Commission Architectural Barriers Department, public buildings are any built with city, county, state or federal funds, built on public land or with programs funded by public money.

EVERY PUBLIC BUILDING constructed or undergoing major renovation on or after Jan. 1, 1970, is required to comply with the state mandates.

The mandate regulates such things as ramps, degree of incline, stairs, elevators, rest rooms and parking. The state requires that buildings falling under the code reserve one percent of parking space for the handicapped. Those required spaces must be 12 feet wide to allow for wheelchairs.

In Midland, public buildings include City Hall, Midland County Courthouse, George Mahon Federal Building and Post Office, schools, Chamber of Commerce and Midland College.

City Hall, although built before the law went into effect, displays the international sign indicating a barrier-free building. A ramp on the east side of the building allows entrance and an elevator allows access to all floors. There is no reserved parking.

The Midland County Courthouse underwent major renovation in 1974, according to the plaque on the building. Therefore, it should fall under the mandate. There is no reserved parking, but the parking statute is only required with 50 or more spaces, which the courthouse does not have. In addition, Brown said the state does not enforce the parking regulation, leaving that to the cities and counties.

THERE ARE FULLY-EQUIPPED rest rooms in the courthouse, but, according to Peg Anderson, those in wheelchairs cannot reach those rest rooms without assistance. What appears as a mountain of stairs blocks most entrances, and the handrails on the stairs do not extend the required 18 inches beyond the top and bottom stairs. But that requirement may have been waived if it was judged a hazard.

There is a ramp on the east side of the building, but "I think it would be exciting enough you could possibly slide on it," said Cowden. The ramp appears to exceed the one foot of rise per 12 feet of ramp limit.

"The courthouse is impossible," said Mrs. Anderson. "I was asked to serve on the jury and I called and said I was handicapped and wanted to know how to get into the building. They offered to have me excused, but I didn't want to be. I just wanted to know how to get in. The ramp is too steep and I almost broke my nose the one time I tried it."

Mrs. Anderson was rescued from her dilemma by County Judge William Ahders, who arranged to have parking reserved for her and to get her help with the ramp.

"The irony of it, is there is a handicapped bathroom, but how can a

Independence for the handicapped: It's a myth

"Get this for frustration.

"All of the toilets over at this building are at a level halfway between floors. I'm sure some architect won an award for that because no one was more than a half a floor away from the toilet, but for Tom, who had both legs amputated, the toilets might as well have been on the moon," said Jack Cowden, now confined to a wheelchair as a victim of Multiple Sclerosis.

"There was one in the basement he could get to. The problem was there were three elevators, but only one went to the basement. So he had a one in three chance of getting the right one. If it wasn't, he had to go down to the lobby, across to the east side of the building and take another elevator that went to the basement."

The concept of a person confined to a wheelchair being able to work, shop and live independently in Midland is a myth, said Peg Anderson, another MS victim.

There are too many barriers.

BUILDINGS WITH toilets between floors or with decorative floor tiles with cracks that can cause someone with a bad leg to trip, curbs, cracked sidewalks — they all amount to hazardous traps for the handicapped.

Under state law, all buildings built or undergoing major renovation on or after Jan. 1, 1978, must meet state accessibility requirements for the handicapped. The law includes such things as reserved parking, ramps, degree of ramp incline, rest rooms and elevators.

Some of Midland's newer buildings meet the letter of the law but not the intent. Chaparral Center has the required one percent of 12-foot-wide parking spaces, but they're not marked. So how can anyone know they're for the handicapped.

Midland Center has an elevator to carry the handicapped down to the basement. But, according to Cowden, the outside door leading to the elevators is usually locked. If it is, it means a trip through the south meeting room (embarrassing to say the least if a meeting is under way) to open the doors. Or someone can go down the stairs, take the elevator up and open the doors.

"There are some buildings you can get into and some you can't," said Cowden.

MIDLAND COMMUNITY Theater's handicapped parking is not marked, but not for lack of effort. The signs are on order from the only available source — Bloomington, Ill.

"The best place for me to get around in is the new mall," said Cowden. "It's all ramped. I got along fine except for getting in the doors, and usually you can find someone to open the doors. I enjoyed getting out there."

Cowden is a little more fortunate than many. He works in a new building that has cut ramps in the corners; there's a new park being built in the next block and therefore the corners

Mrs. Anderson added that doors were often a problem. As an example she said the pressure closing device on the bathroom doors at Midland Community Theatre was too strong, making the door impossible to open while seated in a wheelchair.

DON BACHMANN SAID the hardware had been ordered to decrease that pressure, but that it, like the handicap signs, weren't available in Midland.

Cowden admits to getting rather frustrated sometimes. "It sure would be nice if they would cut down some of the handicapped in the parking garage next to the Gibraltar building (and that one is for Gibraltar Savings customers), it's not too great a problem for Cowden because he uses his electric wheelchair.

"I don't really want anyone to do anything for me. I would just like for them to stop erecting hurdles in my path. In rebuilding Midland, maybe they could make the doors a little wider, eliminate steps.

"Hell, I make a good salary, but I sure don't spend it where I can't go. And it's not a case of my deliberately withholding my business. If I can go there and they have what I want, I'll buy it."

Text by Kay Crites....Photos by Bruce Partain on that block have been ramped; and he has an electric wheelchair.

"Many handicapped are prisoners on the block (where their job is located) until 4:30 p.m. until they can go home again. Tom was trapped.

"But that's just one of the things you just have to learn to live with. I think I'll take my wife out to dinner tonight and we'll go to (a particular restaurant)." Then I think, "No, we won't because I can't get into there."

"I DON'T GO to (another restaurant) any more and get an arthroscope. That was my favorite Friday night treat, but I don't do that any more because there are steps up to the restaurant. We go to some of these places, but when we do I have to corner a friend who will help me hump it up the steps. And I hate to impose on my friends.

"Now it's become almost automatic; there are some places I just don't go."

A spokesman for one of the restaurants Cowden mentioned agreed that no ramp made it difficult to get into the building. "I know because I was in a wheelchair for five years," he said, "but this building is 10 years old. And it's kind of hard to do that kind of remodeling in a case like this."

A spokesman for the other restaurant, however, disagreed with Cowden's statement. "We've had them (wheelchairs) in here before," said the manager. "Someone has to open the door for them, but we have had them in here."

these curbs, offer a tax break to those who'll cut down their own curbs. I'm not saying fix up the town for a few gimps. There's a lot of us here in Midland."

National estimates say one person in seven has a handicap of some sort, meaning slightly more than 8,000 people in Midland have handicaps.

"If you have a brace on your leg, stepping up on a curb can be an ordeal. The classic corner in this town is the northeast corner of Colorado Street and Illinois Avenue. It would take a mountain goat to negotiate it.

"I guess curbs are the big thing in my life now."

He also called the west side of Colorado Avenue from Big Spring Street "a real obstacle course" because of the steps at the alley and the broken sidewalk.

"I USED TO DREAD that walk. One night I was going home and my car was in another parking lot. I tripped over a crack in the sidewalk and fell. I went down like a ton of rubble on Big Spring between Texas and Illinois. Nobody came and helped me get up. I am guessing they probably figured I was drunk. But people are pretty good as a general rule."

Part of that sidewalk has been replaced.

That was when Cowden could still walk most of the time and his office was in the Midland Savings Building. Now he parks in the lot next to the Gibraltar Building. Although there is only one reserved parking place for

COWDEN DOESN'T blame others for the hazards thrown unthinkingly in the paths of wheelchairs. "Back before I got in the wheelchair, it's not that I was insensitive, you just don't realize some obstacles unless you have to climb over it."

For example, there is only one public parking place in downtown Midland reserved for the handicapped, and that one is frequently filled by non-handicapped drivers.

But help is available. Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon said his officers are going to begin enforcing the handicapped parking restrictions both downtown and at the airport. Cars parked in the handicapped spaces and not bearing the necessary sticker on the license tag will be ticketed and possibly towed away.

Applications for those stickers are available from the county tax assessor-collector's office. The application forms will be mailed upon request.

Also, anyone wishing to report a building for possible violation of the state mandates can contact the State Purchasing and General Services Commission Architectural Barriers Department, P.O. Box 13047, Austin 78711.

Eric Brown, with the department, said they would investigate any complaint, but require certain information when the complaint is filed.

J.B. Keaton, city buildings inspector, added that the 1979 building codes for the city are in the process of being approved and do include regulations relating to facilities for the handicapped.

And to top it all, the United Nations has declared 1981 the International Year of the Disabled Person.

Writer, 'handicapped' for 30 minutes, struggles to perform simple moves

I am a perfectly healthy person, able to leap tall buildings only in my dreams, faster than a speeding tortoise and more powerful than my little brother. But I can walk freely and see well enough not to walk in front of a bus (so my optometrist says).

Not so long ago, I began a story on accessibility for the handicapped — is it a myth that the handicapped person can be independent? We see such thrilling movies of quadriplegics and paraplegics painting and doing exquisite drawings with their toes and teeth, it erases a little of reality.

During my interviews for the story, one suggestion surfaced repeatedly, and so last week, I played a little "game." I pretended to be dependent on a wheelchair for my transportation.

My experiences were limited. I only spent about 30 minutes in the chair when I should have taken at least a day and preferably more.

I spent 30 minutes at the hospital (where I'd be close to treatment) under the supervision of hospital personnel.

I'm sure some of those people thought the person escorting me was a real cad, standing by nonchalantly as I struggled to open restroom doors and get in and out of elevators. Even trying to turn in the right direction was a battle, often lost.

At one point, a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary rushed forward to open the restroom door for me.

"I'm all right," I explained. "I'm just trying to get the feel of a wheelchair for a story I'm doing."

"Oh," she responded, "I thought you were in trouble."

If only she knew how right she was.

My tour began with the restroom door and then led to the front electrical door, down the outside ramp, along the sidewalk and out a ramp cut out of the curb. Once out on to the main semi-circular drive, I wheeled myself down to the handicapped parking (where, I might mention, a car was parked that did not belong to a handicapped person) and back to the front door.

I found the going a little steep up the sloped drive. My observations, however, as far as judgments for the handicapped are false. Whether it would be easier or more difficult for someone actually confined to a wheelchair to get themselves up that drive would, I think, vary with each individual. They say those in wheelchairs develop a great deal of strength in their upper limbs, but then there are those with muscular dystrophy or other diseases which weaken limb strength.

Anyway, once back at the door, it was up the ramp again, back inside, up the elevator, down a hospital corridor and back down on the elevator. Off the elevator, I met my first insurmountable obstacle — a door opened by the crash bar.

The problem is, while pushing the chair wheels forward to open the door, I pushed my body backwards, thereby actually moving the chair backwards. It was impossible to reach with one hand and push the bar and yet retain enough strength and impetus to propel the chair forward. Fortunately, patients would not use that door.

My last attempt was the back ramp, again cut out of the curb. Unfortunately, I was not able to try that one. Someone had parked his Cadillac with the back extending into the ramp. I was so caught up in maneuvering the chair that I actually would have hit the car had I not cheated and put my foot down.

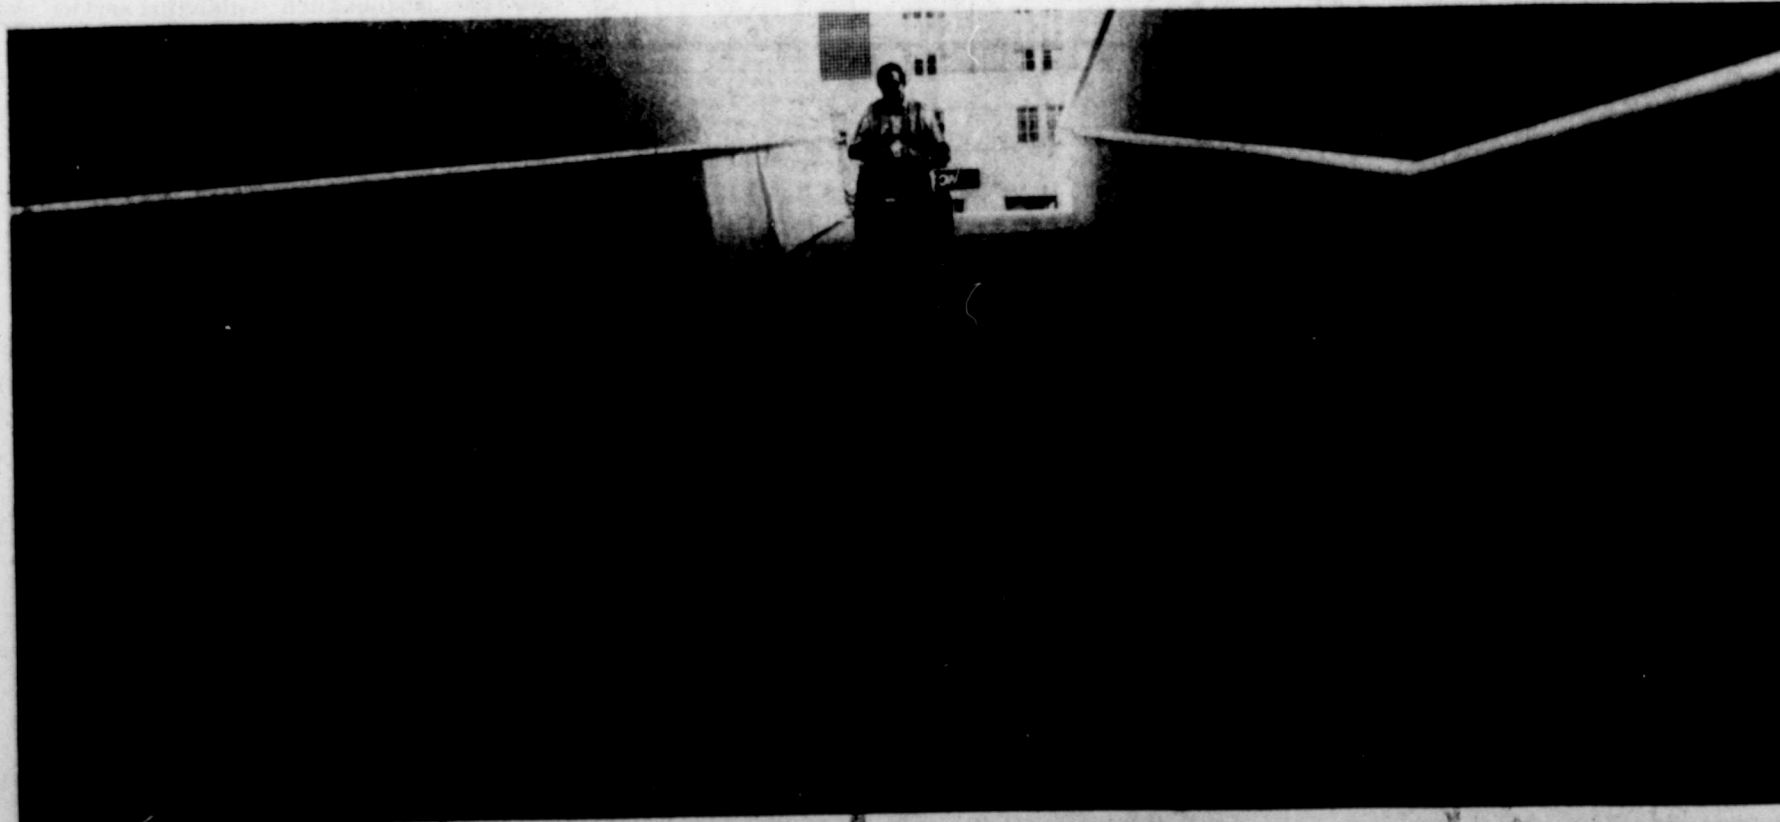

My brief "tour of duty" was, of course, only a scratch on the surface, but even if I confined myself for a day or two I don't think I could really get the true feel of it. I know my feet work, and it was beyond my control, as I headed for that hospital wall, to prevent my foot from slipping down and acting as a brake.

In the elevators, that foot helped me miss the walls and my escort as I turned around. Even then, it didn't always work. The hospital has several new dents.

But the primary difference was the basic knowledge in my mind, expressed best by Multiple Sclerosis patient Jack Cowden.

"The only difference between you and us in that chair is that you know at the end, you can get up and walk away."

Grass burs represent serious lawn problem

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

Some parts of Midland and adjoining counties received enough accumulated rainfall in the last three weeks to benefit crop and rangeland. However, there are areas that got very little or none. For much of the cotton crop the moisture may not mean too much in the form of increased yield. Insect damage to many fields resulted in loss of much of the early or bottom crop. The cotton is resquaring and blooming in the top, but 14 years of research conducted by the Lubbock Agricultural Experiment Station shows that statistically there is only a 29 percent chance of maturing a boll from a white bloom on Aug. 30 in the Lamesa-Midland area.

Of course, any given year an unusually mild fall and delayed frost date could alter the odds. This is about all that local cotton producers can hope for at this point if they have lost the bottom crop.

ONE OF THE MOST difficult weedy pests to handle in a home lawn is the sand or grass bur. It's too late to do very much about grass burs this year. The damage is done once the plant has produced the burs. Close mowing and catching the clippings will improve the appearance of the lawn and reduce the population of burs, but enough will remain to reinfest the lawn for several years.

Lawns damaged or weakened by insects, disease or wear are susceptible to invasion by grass burs. They are rarely found in a dense, vigorous turf area.

The seed may lie dormant in the soil for several years until environmental conditions favor germination. Or, the seed may be carried in by birds, small animals or people. And, where there were only a few plants one year, hundreds may be found the next year. All the grass bur needs to become a problem is a weak turf and favorable moisture conditions during the late spring and early summer. The plants may go unnoticed most of the summer, but become quite noticeable when the burs appear in late summer and fall.

FERTILIZE LAWNS in the spring and summer to promote desirable grasses. If the grass burs are already established in the lawn, fertilization will stimulate the burs as well as the desirable grasses. But, a more vigorous turf will reduce the grass bur population the following year. Late fall fertilization, after the grass burs have matured, is particularly advantageous.

Water lawns as needed to maintain a complete turf cover. Thin turf is more susceptible to invasion by grass burs. Water lawns thoroughly and often enough to promote deep rooting of lawn grass. Light, frequent watering keeps the soil surface moist, which is ideal for weed seed germination.

PRE-EMERGE HERBICIDES applied in the spring for crabgrass control before emergence of the grass burs has been shown to reduce the grass bur population. Herbicides or fertilizer-herbicide (weed and feed) combinations containing benefin (Balan) or DCPA (Dacthal) are partially effective against the grass bur if the timing and rate of application are correct. (Note: These are the only weed and feed combinations that I recommend in this area; avoid others because of risk of damage to trees and shrubs).

As with all pesticides, label instructions should be followed for a particular material. Also, remember that herbicides only provide a temporary solution to weed problems. A healthy, vigorous turf is the ultimate solution.

If all else fails to eliminate the grass bur, a sharp hoe and a pair of thick gloves are the last resort.

IF YOU'D LIKE to find out how good a job you did with your zinc spray program on pecans this year, collect leaf samples for zinc analysis.

Mid-August through mid-September is the best time to collect pecan leaf samples to indicate the true nutritional status of the tree. Take two leaflets from the second compound leaf on the current season's growth. Collect 60 to 100 leaflets at random from around the tree, and select samples from trees in all areas of the orchard.

Enclose leaf samples in a plastic bag to prevent moisture loss and mail them to Soil Testing Laboratory, Room 230, Soil and Crop Sciences Bldg., Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843. Enclose $2 for each sample to be analyzed.

If the analysis shows the zinc to be less than 60 parts per million (ppm), then the spray program was not efficient and reduced production and performance can be expected.

Coast Guard orders nine new cutters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coast Guard ordered nine new large cutters Friday to replace some vessels that have been in its fleet for 40 years.

The agency awarded a $391,882,517 contract for the 270-foot, medium-endurance ships to the Tacoma Boatbuilding Co., Inc. of Tacoma, Wash.

The new cutters will operate under a computer-based command and control system and carry sensor equipment to detect, track and identify fishing vessels at long range, the Coast Guard said. They will have a flight deck for helicopter operations.

The vessels will be named after noted Coast Guard cutters from the service's 190-year history.

The contract specifies that Tacoma Boatbuilding must deliver the first of the nine cutters within three years and each of the rest at four-month intervals.

The same firm was awarded a contract in 1977 to construct four similar cutters. The first of these, called the Bear, will be launched on Sept. 25.

Judge grants student newspaper more time

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A judge on Friday granted a student newspaper more time to submit photographs subpoenaed for the trial of 16 Middle Eastern students.

Mark McKinnon, editor of the Daily Texan, testified Friday that he called Janet Sonnenmair in Dallas the day before to ask about negatives of a protest that disrupted a University of Texas speech by a former Iranian official.

He made the call after telling County Court-at-Law Judge Jon Wisser that he could not tell if the negatives he has are the ones subpoenaed. But he said Ms. Sonnenmair was "less than helpful."

McKinnon has been held in contempt, but Assistant County Attorney Jeff Blackwelder said Wisser on Friday gave the student until Tuesday to reach Ms. Sonnenmair "to sustain a conversation of more than two sentences." Tuesday is the first day of the fall semester at the university.

Wisser did not announce his decision to delay the proceedings from the bench. The judge did deny a defense motion to declare a mistrial. Defense attorney Bill Allison called the proceedings a "circus."

McKinnon said he asked Ms. Sonnenmair about details of the negatives, and she said, "Mike, go to sleep" and hung up.

"I'm convinced that with a very minimal effort he could have identified the time the photographs were taken," the judge said Thursday. "His lack of knowledge on this whole thing is startling to me."

Wisser said Thursday he was holding McKinnon in contempt but he would give him more time to decide what to do with the negatives.

The subpoena called for photos taken Jan. 31, the day Fereydoun Hoveyda, former Iranian ambassador to the U.N. in the regime of the late shah, spoke.

Jim George, McKinnon's lawyer, said the negatives are unnecessary in the case because witnesses, including arresting officers, have identified the defendants.

But Wisser said, "The identification of some of the defendants is still in question."

Insurance FACTS

COURTESY OF MIDLAND INSURANCE AGENCY BY LARRY CRAWFORD

In some states, certain insurance companies make up what is known as a special-package policy that may be available to motorists believed to be good risks. The package often automatically includes liability, medical-payments and uninsured motorist coverages and is generally about 15 per cent cheaper than equivalent coverages under a standard policy. The reduction is possible partly because only good-risk drivers qualify and partly because the medical-payments coverage does not pay for bills already fully covered by other medical insurance. Your insurance professional can provide information as to what plans may be available in your area.

MIDLAND INSURANCE AGENCY, 3324 N. Midkiff, 697-4108 handles all types insurance so whatever your particular needs may be please consult with us. Buying a used car calls for caution

By LINDA TRUITT
Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin, Inc.

The Better Business Bureau office receives many calls from people who have bought "take overs" and want their money back.

What is a "take over"? A take over is a used car that keeps you continually broke and constantly worrying because of frequent repairs. The car never ran correctly and it never will run correctly.

When people call the office we have to explain the sad fact that used cars are usually sold "as is." This means the seller takes no responsibility for the car's condition or for any repairs that might be needed later. Although the caller may remember having signed a contract with that statement included, it really didn't seem important until he discovered the poor condition of the car and was faced with expensive repair bills.

By planning ahead, you can prevent this situation from happening to you. First of all, before you start shopping, decide what size, type of car and options will meet your needs. Also, decide how long you plan on keeping the car, and the condition and mileage you are willing to accept. If you only plan on keeping the car a short period of time, a low-mileage car may not be essential. By deciding these things before you begin looking for the car, you will save valuable time.

Secondly, decide who you want to buy the car from. New car dealers will often be able to offer better warranties as well as better service facilities than used car dealers, but they may charge higher prices. If you do not have first-hand knowledge of the dealer, you should ask for names and addresses of previous used car buyers who bought more than six months ago. Then contact these people and find out how they were treated after the sale, what kind of service they got, and whether or not the car was as reliable as it was represented to be. If you still have questions, check your BBB for any information it might have about the dealer.

If you are thinking of buying from an individual, obtain maintenance records, service station or dealer references, and records of the original purchase. Remember, a private seller rarely will issue any guarantees or warranties.

Whatever the source of the used car, a sales talk is not a reliable basis for a buying decision. Therefore, make an "on lot" inspection of the car. Thoroughly check the inside and outside of the car for excessive wear. Signs of new paint, black, gummy spot in the tail pipe, and worn accelerator and brake pedal pads are indications of how much the car has been used and/or misused.

If the car passed the "on lot" inspection, take it for a road test. Never buy a car you have not tested on the road. During the test you will need to start and stop the car several times, drive over a variety of road surfaces and try all electrical items.

If you are still interested in the car after the road test, then have it checked again — by a professional. This is the most important step of all. Take it to a repair shop, to a mechanic you trust, or to a diagnostic center for an assessment of current or potential problems. Although you will have to pay for the service, the investment may save you from making the wrong decision.

If the dealer offers a warranty, be sure to read the written warranty carefully. It should tell you what is guaranteed, for how long, the name and address of the guarantor, what the guarantor will do in case of a problem, and what your responsibilities are. Be sure that you get, and keep, a copy of the warranty for your records, when you buy.

By following these guidelines, you should be protected from buying a "take over." For more information on buying a used car, write for the free pamphlet "Tips on Buying a Used Car" from the Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin, Inc., P.O. Box 6006, Midland 79701.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Monday, September 1, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Beautiful actress Yvonne DeCarlo shares this birthday, and you will find that the next three weeks are very important for romance. Some proposed changes in your employment situation could mean happier times at work in the year ahead. There may be more travel involved than in recent past, but family members are understanding and supportive. Money worries will be reduced if you are very careful when choosing associates and making investment decisions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Enjoy a relaxed and happy holiday, but use great tact if attempting to combine pleasure with business. Someone who has opposed you in the past may now offer a tentative apology.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pay special attention to those in less fortunate circumstances, including them in your social plans. The day will not be a particularly busy one, but it should provide many happy moments.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Outdoor activities hold a special appeal, and group sports will entertain both the young and the young-at-heart. Share cooking and clean-up chores, and be careful not to eat or drink too much.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be diplomatic when dealing with family members. A unique chance exists to bolster a loved one's ego. Save any traveling for after-noon hours. Be extra careful not to neglect work responsibilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Enjoy some group activities with old friends. A close relative may act as cupid, enabling you to meet an attractive new romantic partner. Dress to impress if attending a social function.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Turn on the charm and win new friends on this lazy Labor Day. Neat appearance and a positive attitude will make a favorable impression on attractive newcomers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A get-together with old friends or neighbors will boost your spirits considerably. Stay close to home to avoid Labor Day traffic, and look forward to the beginning of a brand-new relationship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Much of the day will be centered on personal relationships. Goodwill abounds. Be on your best behavior, and guard against eating or drinking too much.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Something said in jest may strike you as food for thought. Your intuition is a big asset in handling domestic problems, but be sure to consult mate before making major decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An excellent day for making new starts. An exciting romantic relationship could lead to a permanent alliance. Enjoy the compliments of a long-time admirer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Daytime hours are largely uneventful but very pleasant. Keep all promises made to small fry. Picnics and outdoor outings are fun but inexpensive ways to entertain.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Dismiss all thoughts of "talking shop" if attending a company picnic or outing. A friendship may develop when and where you least expect it! Loved one shares an important secret.

"DEAR SIR: Welcome to the real estate business! Now, would you like to get out of it?"

It does take a lot of your time, doesn't it? We know because we've been in it for some time now. It always amazes us how our "business day" stretches out, with so-called rush-hour common to most businesses sometimes never occurring at any set time.

That's why our office puts in what we call a "8-to-7-and-then-some day". Owners who list with us never have to pass up meals or week-end trips, since there's no need for them to be around for them to be around to make sure prospect sees the property. And that means faster sales as well as easier selling because we can show your house to a dozen prospects while you're at the regular job you're supposed to be doing.

Why not phone us? We'll be happy to discuss your situation in the strictest confidence. *****

Carter accredits ambassadors of eight nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new ambassadors of eight nations, including the recently created Republic of Zimbabwe, were formally accredited at the White House on Friday by President Carter.

Carter accepted the credentials of each in brief, separate ceremonies in the Oval Office. "This is an opportunity for our nation to build upon our already good relationship" with Zimbabwe, formerly Rhodesia, Carter told Ambassador Elleck K. Mashingaidze.

The other ambassadors welcomed by the president were Filipe Nagera Bole of Fiji, Dr. Mohamed Warsame Ali of Somalia, Dr. Bhekh Bahadur Thapa of Nepal, Frank Gill of New Zealand, Jan Hendrik Lubbers of The Netherlands, Anton Hegner of Switzerland and Dr. Joseph Kingsley Baffour-Senkyire of Ghana.

Previously, the Carter administration signed an agreement with Somalia to allow the United States to use a harbor and landing strip there on the Gulf of Aden in return for $20 million in military arms sales credits and other aid.

Carter noted that the two nations were "negotiating important strategic relations" and he said "we have rapidly improving relations and a mutual commitment to maintain peace" in the region of the Horn of Africa.

The president twice mentioned the U.S. hostages being held in Iran during the ceremonies.

He thanked the ambassadors from Fiji and Switzerland for their support in the situation.

He said the Swiss "enjoy a major opportunity and a major responsibility in the world" because of their neutral status.

"This has been crucial to us since our embassy personnel were taken captive by terrorists in Iran," Carter said.

Mother's suit to test Witness Protection Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donna Ruffalo remembers every agonizing, ordinary detail of the day her son vanished.

She felt no reason for concern that Thursday afternoon in Kansas City nearly two years ago when she went off to her night job, kissed 9-year-old Mikey goodbye and left him with his father, her ex-husband, Michael.

"See you tomorrow, son," she told him. "Okay, Mom," he answered.

Donna Ruffalo hasn't seen or spoken to Mikey since that day, Nov. 9, 1978. Not at Christmas. Not on his birthday. She hasn't even a clue as to where he is.

She knows only that father and son vanished behind a curtain of new names obligingly provided by the United States government and its Department of Justice.

Her pleas unheeded, she filed suit this summer in an effort to force the government and her ex-husband to return her son.

MICHAEL RUFFALO was a mobster, a low-ranking but attentive soldier in the Nicholas Civella crime syndicate which, according to the FBI, controls racketeering in Kansas City. He worked the other side of the street, too, as an FBI informant for five years. Agents called him "most reliable."

That autumn, Ruffalo was marked for a mob execution and saw but one way out: the Justice Department program to protect Mafia witnesses and informants by giving them new identities and moving them to secret locations.

He took advantage of it, and sometime on the evening of Nov. 9, the mobster father and his Boy Scout son disappeared from Kansas City.

The next day, Mikey missed school but Donna "wasn't too worried because I thought they had probably gone to the lake" — the Lake of the Ozarks, where Michael Ruffalo had taken his son often.

By Monday, when there was still no sign of Mikey, Donna frantically

ACLU file check studied in California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An effort by the American Civil Liberties Union to check 100 cards in a nationwide police group's files for possible political surveillance will be considered by the California Supreme Court.

Chief Justice Rose Bird and three other justices voted Thursday to grant a hearing in the case, which the ACLU filed in 1976.

Defendants include the state attorney general and the California Department of Justice.

The petition asks the court to determine the degree to which the department, its Organized Crime Criminal Intelligence Branch and the Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit keeps tabs on political activists.

The LEIU, founded in 1956, is a network of 227 state and local law enforcement agencies in the United States and Canada. The Organized Crime Branch is the coordinating agency for the network and a repository for the cards disseminated to members. The cards contain various items of information about persons of interest to the LEIU.

The agencies say the files cover only organized crime and have refused to permit public inspection. State law exempts police intelligence files from public disclosure.

Fort Worth may pull out of joint bus system

By The Associated Press

Officials of the financially troubled Surtran bus system have been instructed to study ways to improve service to Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport in the wake of Fort Worth's threat to withdraw from the joint operation.

Fort Worth City Manager Robert L. Herchert has proposed that his city's Citran and the Dallas Transit System take over airport transportation beginning Oct. 1.

Fort Worth expects to pay more than $250,000 this year to make up for the deficit in Surtran operating costs, and the Dallas City Council has had to chip in $84,500. The Dallas portion was profitable until this year.

Dallas staff members have told officials the city stands to lose $800,000 on Surtran this year if Fort Worth abandons its 15 percent share and Dallas continues to operate the bus system.

Fort Worth City Council member Bob Bolen said after the Thursday meeting his city has budgeted $102,000 this year to cover its share of the deficit, but Surtran officials estimate Fort Worth's share could come to $281,000.

The councilman said Fort Worth no longer can afford to pay for the increasing deficit while cutting back on other services.

Surtran plans to begin constructing a $2.8 million operating and maintenance center at the airport, and officials say they could lose 80 percent of the cost in federal money for the building if ownership changed or was unclear.

Bolen said he sees no alternative but to drop the system.

"I think that's our best option," he said. "That's the one we'll probably use, but I'm not against studying options."

He conceded "a lot of contractual problems would arise if Citran were called authorities.

"Finally somebody in Washington called me and said they did have him and he was all right," the 31-year-old mother recalled in a telephone interview, her words tumbling out as she spoke of months of tearful, sleepless nights.

"I have called and called, everybody I can think of. My doctor thought I was losing my mind. I can't understand how the government could just take him away," she said.

"This is my only son. I want him back."

HER HOPES WERE revived, she said, when attorneys with the Children's Rights Project of the American Civil Liberties Union agreed to represent her and file a civil suit in U.S. District Court in Kansas City against the Justice Department, the Marshals Service which administers the witness protection program, and Ruffalo himself. None of the defendants has yet responded.

Because of the pending litigation, the Justice Department feels it would be best to have no comment," said spokesman Dean St. Dennis. Ruffalo obviously was unavailable to discuss his side of the case. The government says it is hiring a private attorney to represent him.

ACLU attorney David Hashmall said, "This case presents the best-developed challenge to the witness protection program," sharper even than the Tom Leonhard case which became the basis for a current movie, "Hide In Plain Sight."

Leonhard was a Buffalo, N.Y., construction worker whose ex-wife took their children along when she and her new husband, a mobster, fled into the program.

Leonhard lost a long legal battle but saw his children years later after his ex-wife divorced the mobster.

Hashmall said the Ruffalo suit raises broad legal questions and could lead to reforms in the treatment of other children innocently swept into the program.

"When you consider how common divorce is, it would be very surprising if this has only happened twice," he said in an interview. About 3,400 witnesses, with some 8,500 family members, are in the alias program, the Marshals Service says.

THE RUFFALO CASE presents a blatant violation of court orders dealing with child custody, Hashmall asserted.

When the Ruffalos were first divorced, Donna had custody and also what the courts call "possession" of Mikey, while his father had weekend and holiday visitation rights.

When Donna began working evenings at a restaurant, she and Michael agreed that he would keep the boy on weeknights. Court documents ratified their informal arrangement but made clear that legal custody still belonged to Donna.

After father and son disappeared, Donna went back to the divorce court and won an order requiring Michael to relinquish the boy and granting her "full care, control and custody of her son."

Emmitt Fairfax, the U.S. marshal in Kansas City, says Ruffalo was served with that and subsequent court orders through a routine procedure for channeling messages to and from protected witnesses.

Ruffalo responded to none of those decrees, not even the judgment finding him in contempt of court and ordering him to jail for ignoring the previous orders.

WILLIAM DEMPSEY, the Marshals Service Washington spokesman, acknowledged that protected witnesses risk being thrown out of the program if they violate such orders. But he said few have been.

As a matter of policy, Dempsey said, "We would not violate a custody order. We would certainly attempt to determine who has legal custody."

Was that done in the Ruffalo case? "I can't discuss the specific case because of the pending litigation," Dempsey said.

For Donna, the ordeal really began a lifetime ago. She was 19, a small-town girl; Mike Ruffalo, then 35, became the "older man" in her life, no less alluring because his worldliness came from a stint in the penitentiary.

"Three months later, I married him. Ever since then, my life was a living hell. The beatings were an every-week thing. He beat me in the head with a .45 revolver. When I was eight months pregnant, he beat me over the back with a chair.

"He was the black sheep in a very respectable family. I knew he was a thief. I stood it for three years, then I had to get out. One day, I told him, 'Mike, I'd rather be dead than live with you.'"

But for all his brutality, he "never laid his hands on" Mikey and Donna's daughter, also named Donna, now 12. Young Donna lately has become her mother's comforter. "She takes a picture of Mikey to bed with her every night and she says, 'Mommy, it's in God's hands.'"

MIKEY GREW QUICKLY into a husky dark-haired, dark-eyed little boy — "the spitting image of his father" — a chatterbox who relished attention, adored his father, and gloried in Michael's lavish gifts.

"I remember once," Donna said, "he wanted a bike and Mike got him a three-speed. Mike complained, he wanted a 10-speed. So Mike got him one of those, too.

"Mike spoiled him rotten. I couldn't afford to buy him all those things. I gave him discipline and love; his father just gave him gifts."

But for now, gifts are all Donna can give her son. Every Christmas and every birthday, she takes Mikey's presents — monster toys, space toys, puzzles, clothes at first until she realized she no longer knew the right sizes — to the federal marshals who say they deliver them to her son's new home.

She's wrapping presents now, for Mikey's 11th birthday—Sept. 7.

She's heard no word from Mikey about the gifts or anything else.

"Every possible explanation has gone through my mind," she said. "But what I really think happened is that Mike told him 'Mommy is dead and we won't talk about Mommy any more.'"

Generic drugs major 1981 issue

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A lobbyist for Texas pharmacists says generic drugs will be a major issue when the State Board of Pharmacy comes up for renewal by the 1981 Legislature.

C. Dean Davis said Thursday the entire Pharmacy Act will have to be reexamined and when it is, the law forbidding pharmacists to substitute cheaper generic drugs for those prescribed by doctors should be repealed.

Davis appeared before the Sunset Advisory Commission, which scheduled hearings today on the State Board of Dental Examiners and the State Board of Medical Examiners.

The commission, four senators and four state representatives, will make recommendations to the 1981 Legislature on agencies scheduled for consideration under the Sunset Act.

An agency will cease to exist in 1981 unless the Legislature votes to extend its life. Lawmakers also will have a chance to change a state board's composition and how it does business.

Doctors and pharmaceutical companies generally dislike the idea of generic drugs and have repeatedly lobbied to death bills allowing substitution by pharmacists.

Davis said his association and the Texas Medical Association are "actively discussing this issue to see if there is a common ground. I hope it can be accomplished prior to the session."

"I can't help but believe it is a concept whose time has come," Davis said of generic drugs. He predicted the federal government will step in if the states do not members should hold a majority on all licensing boards in the health field.

"Since it is the public's health, safety and welfare that is designed to be protected by these boards, ... there should be a majority of public members on them," said Carol Barger of Austin, Consumers Union attorney.

Public buildings must be accessible

(Continued from 1F) handicapped person get into the courthouse to use the handicapped bathroom?" she asked.

THE GEORGE MAHON Federal Building is fully accessible with ramps leading to the building and electric doors that slide sideways. An elevator allows access to all floors.

The new Midland Chamber of Commerce is a beautiful building, occupied only since March 1, and reached only by two sets of stairs.

"There is a future elevator planned for it," said Executive Director Fred Tyler. "As soon as we can come up with the money it will probably be put in."

In the meantime, the Chamber, which leases land and has been allocated $130,000 in city funds this year for "advertising" Midland, is inaccessible to those in wheelchairs or with handicaps which prevent them from climbing stairs. However, the rest rooms are fully equipped for the handicapped. A small parking area is provided for those using the Chamber and the United Way Office on the ground floor below the Chamber, but there are no reserved spaces and none 12-feet wide.

"We're not doing a very good job here for the handicapped," Tyler added.

Midland College is barrier-free, said Dr. David Norton at the college.

BUT MRS. ANDERSON said handicapped parking spaces were few and far between. She has been given permission to park at the curb in a "No Parking" area. "But it shouldn't be that way. We shouldn't always be having to do something illegal," she said.

Chaparral Center has ramps leading over the curbs, and facilities for wheelchairs on the concourse. There is a ramp leading to the floor of the building, but assistance is needed. The ramp was not built to comply with the 1 foot of rise per 12 feet because the only activities planned for the floor of the building were basketball games. However, since banquets and other activities are utilizing the floor, the college provides assistance with the ramp, and in some cases uses a van to carry the elderly or those with handicaps up and down the ramp.

Handicapped students in Midland's schools are assigned to the one-level schools such as Lee High School, Lee Freshman School and Austin Junior High. In some rare instances, there have been students in wheelchairs at Midland High School, in which case, said School Superintendent Dr. James Mailey, their classes are scheduled for the ground floor as much as possible.

Otherwise, "they would have to have aid in getting to the second floor — normally brute strength carrying them up," he added.

MIDLAND HIGH SCHOOL, currently undergoing some renovation, is also used for community concerts. Mrs. Anderson said there were no handrails on the stairs leading to the auditorium, so her husband usually carried her chair up. And she stops two strangers to help her up the stairs.

"In terms of accessibility for adults to the auditoriums and for attending conferences," Mailey said, "I'm not sure they do have an easy access." He added he would ask the architect in charge of the current reconstruction about handrails.

"That's something we might be able to do," he said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Acne, diet unrelated

Dear Dr. Solomon: I realize that with all the serious illnesses people write to you about, acne is very unimportant. But for a 16-year-old high school student, I can tell you it is extremely important. I have tried washing my face three times a day until it was raw, and I haven't had a piece of cake or candy in months; yet nothing seems to help. Are there any new developments in the treatment of acne, or do I just have to wait until I outgrow it? — Terry.

Dear Terry: I do not underestimate the seriousness of acne to an adolescent; from a teenager's perspective, it is probably the number one medical problem. Fortunately, treatment for the condition has improved recently and, to some extent, acne may even be prevented.

Part of the difficulty with treatment results from the fact that many teen-agers, as well as their parents, have erroneous conceptions of what the condition is and its causes. Dr. Christopher Papa, clinical associate professor of medicine at Rutgers Medical School in New Jersey, says the first thing he tells teen-agers and their parents is that blackheads cannot be washed away. Since blackheads are not a surface phenomenon, scrubbing the face does no good, and washcloths, sandpaper and buffers therefore are superfluous; in fact, they probably make the condition worse. Also, since neither dirt nor infection causes acne, antibacterial scrubs are useless.

Acne has both internal and external causes. Included among the internal causes are hormonal changes in women, such as those that occur prior to a menstrual period. Stress, which also has a hormonal component, may precipitate a skin eruption, too. External causes include the use of cosmetics. Other factors that may cause a flare-up of acne are simple mechanical or physical trauma, pressure from chin straps, head bands, leaning on the hand, and fabrics, such as turtle-neck sweaters that touch the skin. All these irritate the skin and the hair follicles in which acne develops.

There are a number of misconceptions about the role of diet in the development of acne. Dr. Papa maintains that chocolate, butter and peanuts do not aggravate the condition. If diet is a consideration, iodine is the causative factor. For example, kelp tablets, which are rich in iodine, can cause a flare-up, as can the heavy use of iodized salt.

A recent development in the treatment of acne is the use of vitamin A, or retinoic acid. When applied directly to the skin, vitamin A produces beneficial effects. For vitamin A taken internally to have the same results, dangerously large amounts would have to be consumed. Retinoic acid is a powerful medicine and should be used only under a doctor's supervision. It works by clearing out the plugs in the hair follicles and preventing others from forming.

Small doses of antibiotics may prove helpful in controlling some of the more inflamed types of acne, even though it is not an infection. These antibiotics must be prescribed by a physician. The use of ultraviolet light treatment is not recommended since sunlight irritates the skin. In fact, avoidance of the sun is one of the best ways to keep the skin young looking.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Small California town has just two telephones

SAN ANTONIO VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — With just two telephones in its 136-square-mile area, it's easy to forget the San Antonio Valley sits just 30 miles from the bustling streets of San Jose.

And the people of "San Antonio" couldn't be much happier about that.

Altogether, there are 140 dwellings in this beautiful valley and the hills around it. Twisty roads through the Coast Range isolate the community from the outside world.

Some residents haven't bothered to install electricity. But a lot of them are looking forward to having their own telephone.

The way it is now, the two pay phones — one near the Arnold Ranch, the other by the state fire station — are the only way for residents like Vern Roessler to make a call.

Sometimes both phones are broken. And sometimes they stay that way for a week. A common complaint is that Pacific Telephone waits too long before emptying the coin boxes. The phones won't work when they're jammed with dimes.

For 67-year-old Roessler, who has to ride a 1942-vintage motorcycle to one of the phones, that presents a particular hardship: his wife is bedridden. He wants reliable phone service for medical emergencies.

He may be in luck. The Evans Telephone Co. of Patterson has applied to the federal Rural Electrification Authority for a $1.2 million loan to start bells ringing all over the valley.

Not everybody is enthusiastic about that idea.

"It's wonderful without a phone," says Evelyn Gehri. "It's peaceful." Then she remembers the time her daughter suffered a concussion and there was no way to call for help.

"We put her in the car and made it to Livermore in 30 minutes with the school teacher driving," she says. "It's times like that when you want a phone."

Teen-agers suffer. Sometimes youths of the valley call the operator just so they can hear a voice on the phone, Ms. Gehri says.

While residents get along without phones, they do have some modern conveniences, including CB radios.

But because the two-way radios have a limited range, some are modified electronically for a stronger signal. That has the potential of disturbing television reception.

"My television set looks like venetian blinds when the CB'ers get going," says Ms. Gehri.

Another uncommon situation resulting from the lack of phones is that the two pay phones are treated with such respect that vandalism has never been a problem.

Save on fuel: that's the rule for Exxon's delivery fleet. Exxon's delivery vehicles save fuel by taking advantage of the latest fuel-saving automotive technology and by delivering more product in fewer trips. Design changes in Exxon's vehicles and increasing the average size of deliveries will save about 2.5 million gallons of diesel fuel this year.

Wallace: Texas wells may produce two billion barrels less crude in 80's

AUSTIN - Texas oil wells will likely pump two billion barrels less in the Eighties and the nation's economic and energy problems will multiply because of congressional and federal bureaucratic actions in recent years, the senior member of the Railroad Commission declared.

Commissioner Mack Wallace, in comments before the monthly statewide oil and gas hearing, blamed a recently imposed tax that singled out the U.S. oil industry for creating the specter of sharp production losses in the nation's Number 1 energy state.

"They did give us the Windfall Profits Tax, hailed as the cornerstone of a new energy plan for America," cited Wallace.

"Under its provisions, Texas is expected to produce two billion barrels of oil less than it would have otherwise produced for the next ten years. Describing America's dependence on imported oil from unstable foreign sources as the "greatest scandal," Wallace said much of the Congress and key federal agencies and their administrators should be graded "a big, red F" for their attempts to pull the U.S. from its most critical plight in 30 years.

Wallace said domestic oil production reached 8.6 million barrels daily recently after a four-year rise of almost six percent.

"However," he stressed, "if we had not had the flow of oil from Alaska which began two years ago, our production would now be a humiliating 14 percent less.

"That flow of Alaskan oil means $20 billion not spent this year on foreign imports."

Nevertheless, observed Wallace, Congress is arguing over how much of Alaska should be sealed off from further energy exploration.

"Incredibly, as America staggers under the burden of $80-$90 billion of imported fuel and its crushing blow to our economy and employment, some of our national leaders seem intent on further paralyzing the development of domestic resources," the Texas energy official asserted.

Wallace questioned the contentions of many that the proposed set-aside of more than 100 million acres in Alaska includes only lands with no energy or mineral potential.

"Five years ago," he said, "governmental scientists concluded that the Overthrust Belt of Wyoming, Idaho and Montana had little or no oil and gas potential — not of ignorance, but because it had not been tested or drilled.

"Today, after drilling, the Overthrust Belt has become the most significant oil and gas trend discovered in the United States in a decade."

Wallace pointed to the contrast in oil and gas activities that exists between Alaska and three of the leading energy states in the Lower 48.

"Only 13 drilling rigs are operating in Alaska this month," he reported.

"That compared to 991 in Texas, 455 in Louisiana, and 123 in California."

Wallace faulted Congress for allowing itself to be diverted from the primary issue of producing more energy in the U.S. Domestic production means jobs, national security and survival for America, he emphasized.

Most of the planning to boost U.S. production is geared to the 1990's and beyond, he noted.

"That is fine," Wallace continued. "But let me assure you, if we do not survive the 80's, it does not make much difference what is planned for the year 2000.

One of the first moves Americans can make to free themselves from "bondage" to foreign oil is to stop listening to promoters of no-growth and radical environmentalists who have "propagandized this nation to a near standstill," he maintained.

The Texas "experience" refutes presumptions that responsibility and careful development of natural resources is incompatible with environmental quality, Wallace said. He explained:

"In Texas we have drilled more than 600,000 holes in the ground searching for oil and gas, and hundreds of thousands of miles of pipelines have been laid to serve America. Indeed, our Texas experience has shown that oil and gas exploration can and does take place under environmentally sound conditions. I personally, would never be a part of laying waste the lands of Texas."

Agreement seeks to establish programs of energy efficiency, consumer assistance

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An agreement to establish a National Energy Conservation Partnership Program to promote energy efficiency and consumer assistance was signed today by the American Gas Association and the Community Services Administration.

The program is expected to create stronger ties between the government agency, the natural gas industry and various consumer groups on both national and local levels. Under the partnership plan, these various groups will address the problems of energy self-sufficiency for low income and disadvantaged groups and explore financial alternatives to assist them in conserving energy.

The program is expected to create stronger ties between the government agency, the natural gas industry and various consumer groups on both national and local levels. Under the partnership plan, these various groups will address the problems of energy self-sufficiency for low income and disadvantaged groups and explore financial alternatives to assist them in conserving energy.

American Gas Association President George E. Lawrence noted "One of the most significant aspects of this program is that it will provide the unemployed and underemployed with job training skills that will be useful throughout their lives." Lawrence and Robert H. Willis, president and chairman of the Connecticut Natural Gas Corporation, said that after the signing, A.G.A. and its member companies believe that it is in the best interests of the energy industry to become involved in these consumer issues and to take a leadership role in meeting consumer needs. They said many gas utility companies are already acting to provide company-funded consumer assistance programs, methods to help the poor budget their utility payments, home energy conservation audit services and company assisted efforts to install and finance conservation systems.

Operators emphasizing wells deeper than 15,000 feet

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Domestic oil and gas explorers are placing greater emphasis on drilling wells to depths exceeding 15,000 feet.

Petroleum Engineer International reports a record 621 such wells were drilled last year, compared with the previous record of 604 in 1978 and with 476 in 1977.

The Dallas publication says deep drilling has responded to sharper demand for additional domestic supplies of natural gas and to the late 1979 removal of federal price controls on gas produced from wells deeper than 15,000 feet.

Continuing improvements in bits, stimulation techniques, and corrosion resistant drillpipe and tubing also were credited with increasing the practicality of deep drilling around the world.

"They help take some of the headaches out of deep wells costing more than $200 per foot," the publication reported.

"And, the resultant added confidence in deep drilling is encouraging rig builders to come up with super rigs, such as one on the drawing boards right now that will drill to 50,000 feet."

Petroleum Engineer International has been surveying deep drilling trends more than 30 years and reports that one major company engineer says his company and most other major operators will continue to expand their deep drilling activities as wellhead gas prices continue to increase.

Last year's 621 deep domestic wells were said to have cost more than $3.5 million each or $208 per foot while recording an average depth of 17,246 feet.

The total cost was about $2.25 billion, a figure the publication says was 40 percent above 1978 even though the number of wells was only 3 percent higher.

While all drilling costs were higher, drilling mud costs were said to have jumped 60 percent last year to reach an average of $414,000 per deep well.

The survey indicated ultradeep wells, those drilled beyond 20,000 feet, totaled 64 last year, the highest since 1973. The average cost was almost $7 million, the total cost more than $440 million, and the average per foot cost was $321. The average depth was 21,556 feet.

"Ultradeep wells are almost twice as expensive to drill as are wells from 15,000 to 20,000 feet, but less than a third of them found oil or gas in 1979," the publication reported.

Twelve deep wells now have been drilled in the Baltimore Canyon off the New Jersey coast, including seven last year.

"The stakes are high east of Atlantic City, with deep wells out there costing almost $15 million apiece," the international magazine said.

"This means industry drilling expenditures in the Baltimore Canyon are approaching the $200 million mark, not to mention the $1.13 billion put up by the industry back in 1976 just for the chance to try their luck on the Atlantic Outer Continental Shelf."

Petroleum Engineer International said Arizona and Nevada could join deep drilling states within the next few years, adding that new prices for deep gas have awakened interest in suspected sub-desert deposits.

"The new prices also are rekindling interest in deep drilling in California, where only one such well was completed in 1979," the magazine continued.

"At year-end, however, eight deep well rigs were at work in that state's Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve."

Worldwide, such countries as Italy, Canada, Australia, Brazil and Indonesia also were said to be involved in deep drilling.

"A wildcat in the Santos Basin offshore Rio de Janeiro, for example, recently bottomed at 17,500 feet after testing hydrocarbons at the interval between 16,404 and 16,568 feet," the magazine reported.

"On the other side of the Atlantic, a British National Oil Corp. group that also includes 14 private companies is preparing a deep wildcat on the North Rockall Trough, some 270 miles off the west coast of Scotland. The well is to be drilled to a depth of between 1,500 and 20,000 feet to test reserves estimated at between 4 billion and 7 billion barrels."

Surplus chokes market; Crude production drops

TULSA, Okla. — World crude production dropped for the first time since 1975 during the first six months of this year as a surplus of oil began choking international markets, Oil & Gas Journal says in its Aug. 25 issue.

Worldwide production during the first six months of this year averaged 61.4 million barrels a day, compared with 61.8 barrels a day during the same period last year, the Journal reports.

Declining demand, continued high production by Saudi Arabia, and production increases by major non-Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries sources such as the United States, the North Sea, and Mexico fueled the surplus, the weekly business magazine reports.

Most OPEC members — their prices high and policies already leaning toward resource conservation — responded to the growing surplus with production or price cuts.

In fact, Saudi Arabia and Iraq are the only OPEC members with production higher in first-half 1980 than it was in the same period in 1979.

OPEC's first half production, at 28.5 million barrels a day, was 5.5 percent less than its level during January — July 1979. Lowest monthly OPEC output since the Arab embargo of 1973-74 came in October 1975, at less than 26 million barrels a day.

Communist production — up 2.9 percent to 14.5 million barrels a day — was led by the Soviet Union, world's biggest producer, which boosted flow by three percent to slightly more than 11.9 million barrels a day.

Production from the U. K. and Norwegian North Sea increased 13.4 percent to nearly 2.15 million barrels a day.

Mexico boosted output to more than 1.9 million barrels a day during the last two months of the period, averaging 1.83 million barrels a day for the first half. That's an increase of 30.9 percent from first-half production last year.

U.S. production, nearly 20 percent of it from Alaska's North Slope, edged up one percent over last year's first-half output to nearly 8.6 million barrels a day.

And Canada's production declined 0.7 percent to slightly more than 1.47 million barrels a day, although June output averaged 1.54 million barrels a day.

With the international crude surplus estimated at as much as three million barrels a day, Saudi Arabia has regained the price leverage it lost during last year's shortage. Through-out the first half of the year, output by OPEC's No. 1 producer exceeded its official ceiling of 8.5 million barrels a day by about one million barrels a day.

So, once again Saudi Arabia has become the world's swing producer. What it does will determine the near-term direction of crude production, the Journal says.

The Saudis have made no secret of their plan to use increased production rates to bring the shattered price system back into alignment. Once prices are unified, Saudi Arabia probably will reduce its output to 8.5 million barrels a day. Timing of such a move is uncertain. It could come during the buildup to an OPEC meeting next month and be combined with a price increase that would bring the Saudis into line with the mainstream of Persian Gulf prices.

In any event, further declines in world crude production seem likely in response to the current oversupply, the Journal says.

PBWLS slates talk by Frost

Elton Frost Jr., chief log analyst for Dresser-Atlas in Houston, will be the speaker for the Thursday meeting of the Permian Basin Well Logging Society of Midland.

The event will begin at noon in the Midland Country Club.

The topic is "Continuous Carbon-Oxygen Log Interpretative Techniques," and Frost will discuss case histories of log applications in the West Texas and onshore Gulf Coast areas.

Frost has been with Dresser-Atlas for the last four years. He is a graduate of Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos where he earned degrees in Math.

Prior to joining Dresser-Atlas, he worked two years for Schlumberger, in the West Texas area.

RRC releases refinery report

AUSTIN — Fifty-nine refineries in Texas processed 141,584,972 barrels of crude oil and hydrocarbon blends during May 1980, according to their reports to the Railroad Commission. This volume compares with 149,283,082 barrels in the previous May, the Commission's Administrative Services Division reported in its monthly recapitulation of Texas refinery operations. Inputs of crude oil and blends totaled 135,049,006 barrels in April 1980.

Texas refineries ran 114,240,458 barrels of crude oil in May compared to 125,048,488 barrels in May 1979 and 110,668,127 barrels in April 1980.

Products manufactured in May 1980 totaled 142,662,611 barrels, down from 147,740,949 barrels in the same month the previous year, and up from the 137,233,809 barrels in April 1980.

May 1980 manufacture of motor gasoline totaled 55,025,375 barrels, compared to 57,710,625 barrels in the year-earlier month and 51,883,234 barrels in April of 1980.

Texas refineries manufactured 9,077,903 barrels of home heating oil in May 1980 — a decrease of 430,049 barrels from the year-earlier volume. April 1980 output was 7,628,617 barrels.

Stone and Webster says gasohol system better

BOSTON (AP) — Stone and Webster Engineering Corp. says it has developed a gasohol production system that uses 25 percent less energy than current methods.

Marketing engineer Myles Connors said the process cuts down on the use of water and employs a "unique integration" of the drying, evaporation and distillation steps that consume large amounts of energy.

He said the new system is best for grain-based alcohol plants that have a fuel capacity of at least 20 million gallons. Both distressed and marketable grain can be used in the process, he added.

"It's not suitable for down-on-the-farm operations," Connors said in a telephone interview from New York.

Reed's Basin rig count shows increase of six

An increase of six rotary rigs, bring the total to 334, were recorded last week on the Reed Rock Bit Co.'s survey of Permian Basin activity. One year ago there were 277 rotaries making hole in the area.

Lea County, N.M., continued to lead all other West Texas and Southeast New Mexico counties in number of operations. That area was credited with 48 rigs making hole last week, which was the same as a week ago.

Eddy County, another New Mexico area, was the scene last week of 34 rigs—enough to hold second place in the Basin.

Pecos County, the Texas leader and third Basin-wide, reported 18 units at work on the Reed count, an increase of one over the last count.

Crockett County held the second spot in West Texas with 16 rigs at work, two more than Reed reported a week earlier.

Winkler County, the third place county in West Texas, had 12 rotaries in operation last week. A week earlier, the same area reported nine.

Andrews, Reagan and Ward counties each recorded 11 rotaries working.

"Scotchint" sun control film by 3M is shown being professionally installed on residential windows. Beauty thus achieved would be reason enough for this installation, but reflection of up to 75 percent of the heat of the summer sun and up to 20 percent reduction of heat loss in winter are compelling reasons for having these benefits for your own home or offices. Call 697-2266 or come by 3M Business Products, West Highway 80.

Save energy now, cover your windows

We would save a good bit of energy if we would just totally eliminate windows. We couldn't see out, though, nor would we have natural light. Windows are holes in an otherwise efficient insulation system. Glass transmits both heat and cold very readily. If you could just keep that heat from beating in and building up inside your home or business, your air conditioner would have an easier job, and, during the winter, if you could keep the inside heat from escaping out the window, some of THAT money could be kept from going out the window, too! Well, there IS a way. You can have the light from the windows, but at the same time cut the heat, glare and fading from the sun. A way to see the outside, but also keep the outside from seeing in. A way that also enhances the appearance of your home. It's "Scotchint", 3M's sun control film. It comes in four stunning colors: Silver, Bronze, Smoke, and Gold. It is easily applied, and easily kept clean. It reduces sun fading of materials as much as 99 percent, depending on the color of the film. Glare is reduced up to 82 percent. Privacy is increased. One-way mirror effect lets you see out, but others cannot readily see in. To learn more, contact 3M Business Products, phone 697-2266.

Assistant Linda Wall and owner Cindy Cantrell stand by the sign at 4402 West Illinois, just west of the Midland Drive and Illinois intersection. This modest store is a good place to go to get Gooch Blue Ribbon meats, frozen and in compact, neat boxes which will store well even in small freezing compartments. Go by soon to see what they have to offer.

Meat-N-Place has good West Texas beef for less

Cindy Cantrell moved to Midland as a child with her parents, Fred and Anna McMann. She graduated from Lee High, later married Don Cantrell in Arlington. She and her husband returned to Midland in '78, when he went to work for OIME. They are raising their family here in Midland. Cindy, who had fifteen years of inside sales, decided to try outside sales. She became the first food service saleswoman in West Texas for Gooch Blue Ribbon Meats. Gooch is a West Texas operation, buying beef on the hoof from WT ranchers. May individuals inquired about buying meat in freezer quantities at wholesale prices, which caused Cindy to form the idea for the type of operation she now has. Steve Blaylock, independent geophysicist, and his wife, Mary Ann, invested in Cindy and her idea. Linda Wall, an old friend, is her assistant. The store is in a converted service station. It is a low overhead location, and the savings are passed on to the customer. "Saving - Service - Selection" is the motto of The Meat-N-Place. Meat is cut and layered in neat, flat boxes which can be fitted into freezing compartments of refrigerators as well as freezers. Catfish fillets and fillets of chicken breast are in plastic, see-through bags. Boxes may be opened for inspection, so you can see what you are getting. Sausage patties, prize-winning German sausage, boneless hams, bacon, pork chops, prime steaks hamburger, hot dogs, blackeyed peas, cheese, and fresh cage eggs are all part of the variety of good foods available at the Meat-N-Place. Open 10-6, Monday through Saturday, closed Sunday.

Hard landing

SUNNYSIDE, Wash. (AP) — Don Hagert says he'll skydive again despite his recent run-in with the ground. "I love flying through the sky. There's a freedom of expression there that you can't get anywhere else," Hagert said as he sat on the edge of his hospital bed and waited to go home. He had been treated for three broken ribs, one cracked rib and some internal injuries. Hagert and fellow jumper David Hoyt bailed out at about 6,500 feet. As planned, the two joined hands and fell together for 4,500 feet. At about 2,000 feet, the men separated and pulled their release cords. Hoyt's parachute opened correctly. But Hagert's chute opened only partially and trailed behind the plummeting Sunnyside man. His right leg was tangled in the chute's lines. His body spun wildly through the air. In seconds, he smacked into the ground. "There were no thoughts of dying, no fears, no swear words, no prayers, no nothing," he recalled.

Permian Basin Petroleum Briefs

Bill Taylor, corrosion technician for the Midland Division of Gulf Refining Co., recently completed 35 years of service.

Taylor joined Gulf Refining in 1945 as a pipeliner in Odessa. Prior to his present assignment as a corrosion technician, he was promoted to a line rider, tank farm gauger, field gauger and connection foreman.

Taylor has worked his entire service with Gulf Refining in the Permian Basin area.

Taylor

Jack A. Dalious will retire from Exxon Co., U.S.A., effective Oct. 1.

He is currently Division Attorney-Law, for the Southwestern Exploration Division and the Midcontinent Production Division. He has maintained this position since 1967.

Since joining the company in 1946 in Houston as an attorney, his assignments have been in New Orleans, again in Houston in 1949, and in 1961 he transferred to Midland.

He will continue to reside in Midland.

Dalious

Larry L. Yoho has been promoted to engineering supervisor in Midland. Previously, he was senior reservoir engineer, Midland district engineering, Yates Unit.

Yoho joined Marathon in 1974 as a production engineer, and was transferred to Midland in 1977.

Paul W. Wright will replace Jack A. Dalious as Division Attorney-Law for the Southwestern Exploration Division and the Midcontinent Production Division.

Wright will transfer from the Southwestern Production Division in New Orleans.

He joined the company in Houston in 1973, and in 1979 he transferred to New Orleans.

He is a member of the American Bar Association, Texas Bar Association, and Federal Energy Bar Association.

Wright received his degree from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. in 1969.

Wright

B.K. "Bob" Schmitter has been promoted to manager of control systems for the Midland Division of the Orloff Corp.

Schmitter joined Orloff in 1976 as a senior estimator, and was promoted a year later to group leader of the Midland Division's estimating group.

Prior to joining Orloff, he was employed with General Atomic Co. for seven years, and was also a cost estimator for the U.S. Navy.

Schmitter

A native of Irving, Schmitter is a member of the American Association of Cost Engineers.

Jack Brewster has been appointed to the newly-created position of director of industry affairs with Gas Processors Association.

Brewster has served several years as manager of Drill Bit magazine. Prior to that, he was on the Houston staff of The Oil Daily.

He received his PhD in Economics from Indiana University in 1971.

Brewster

Two appointments have been announced within the Houston production division of Marathon Oil Co.

Randy B. Bath has been named southern district reservoir engineer at Shreveport, La.

Previously, he was advanced reservoir engineer, Midland district engineering, Yates Unit.

Texas offshore leases produce

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 19 - State leases in offshore and coastal Texas petroleum provinces produced 48,569 barrels of crude oil during June 1980 in contrast to 70,698 barrels in the same month of 1979 and 54,372 barrels in May, according to operator reports to the Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division.

Gas well gas production from state leases amounted to 20,429,677 Mcf in June against 18,468,570 Mcf a year earlier and 23,142,147 Mcf in May.

Casinghead gas production totaled 202,999 Mcf in June against 150,969 Mcf in the same month of 1979 and 184,196 Mcf in May.

New gas rules

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission adopted on an emergency basis new rules to implement sections of the Texas Natural Resources Code pertaining to safety regulations in the handling and storage of liquefied petroleum gases.

Guy G. Mathews, director of the Commission's Liquefied Petroleum Gas Division, recommended the action to Chairman John Poerner and Commissioners James E. (Jim) Nugent and Mack Wallace at the conference on LPG matters.

Mathews told the Commission the emergency adoption of the rules was necessary to make them effective from Sept. 1, the date statutory changes precipitate the need for new rules until proposed rules can be formally adopted on a regular basis.

The proposed rules have been published in the Texas Register since Aug. 1, according to Mathews, and to date no comment has been received.

The emergency rules adopted differ from the proposed rules only with a more stringent requirement for demonstrating "good cause" prior to granting a temporary examination exception and field examination.

The proposed rules contain one provision dealing with liability insurance requirements of manufacturers and fabricators, carriers and transporters, and retail and wholesale dealers. Under the natural resources code, fabricators, transporters and dealers must carry completed operations and product liability insurance in a reasonable amount.

Summit reports Misener oiler

DALLAS — Summit Energy, Inc. announced that it has a 25 percent interest in a new Misener formation oil well which has been completed in Payne County, Oklahoma.

The well, the No. 1 Aufleger, potential for 431 barrels of oil and 430,000 cubic feet of gas in 24 hours through a 18/64-inch choke with 625 pounds of flowing tubing pressure.

Perforations are in the Misener formation from 5,034 to 5,050 feet.

Summit Energy is the operator of the well which is an offset to the discovery well drilled by Gormaco.

A direct offset to the No. 1 Aufleger is currently being drilled by the company. Summit has interests ranging from 25 percent to 50 percent in 750 acres in the vicinity.

Jack Knox, Summit president, said that the well is currently being produced at 200 barrels of oil per day at a price of $38.50 per barrel. Negotiations are underway for hookup to a gas distribution system.

Summit Energy has 2,384,900 shares outstanding owned by approximately 7,000 shareholders.

Commission says "No;" Oilman denied hearing

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission denied the motion of Austin independent oilman Thomas D. Coffman for a rehearing of the July 14-RRC order that held he had overproduced some of his wells in the Giddings (Austin Chalk) Field in Central Texas.

The order also referred to the Texas Attorney General for possible penalty action on the regulatory agency's determination that Coffman had produced wells in excess of assigned legal rates. Penalties could include fines and/or confiscation of overproduced oil remaining on subject leases.

The action by Chairman John Poerner and Commissioners James E. "Jim" Nugent and Mack Wallace during the weekly Oil and Gas Division conference was preceded by Senior Staff Engineer Willis C. Steed's recommendation that Coffman's motion be denied.

In his motion, Coffman maintained: — waste would occur by enforcement of the July 14 order curtailing production at four wells. — "unequal treatment" by the Commission was given him by directing two crude oil gatherers to take no more than 100 percent of the assigned allowables of Coffman's wells, while other operators are permitted to run 105 percent.

— minimum flows testing, as directed by the Commission, do not establish a maximum efficient rate of production in Austin Chalk reservoirs.

— "a secretive conference and discussion at the bench" was held by the Commissioners and members of the RRC staff on July 14 prior to the determination that Coffman had overproduced.

Commenting on the "secretive" discussion claim, Chairman Poerner said the "doors are open" when the Commission is in session at conferences for decision. "There is never a secret meeting (at such sessions)," he added.

During the second quarter ended June 30, Sabine earned $5.5 million, or $3.38 per share, on revenues of $30.25 million. A year earlier, Sabine reported net income of $1.67 million, or $1.31 a share, on revenues of $19.2 million.

DALLAS — Average cost of drilling an oil or natural gas well in Texas is $51.95 per foot, a 238 percent increase from 1970, according to Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

The calculation is based on a figured from the Association's annual compilation of facts and figures on the Texas petroleum industry, entitled

"80 Facts About Texas Oil and Gas."

Free copies may be obtained by writing Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, 1341 W. Mockingbird Lane, Suite 1111-E, Dallas, 75247.

HOUSTON — Coastal Oil & Gas Corp., a subsidiary of The Coastal Corp., has completed the sale of a $300 million carved-out production payment financed by a group of banks headed by Citibank, N.A. of New York.

Proceeds from the sale, which may be denominated in U.S. currency or Eurodollars at the company's option, are being used to retire the outstanding balance of an earlier production payment and other debt of Coastal Oil & Gas and its parent company. The remaining funds will be used for general corporate purposes.

The Coastal Corp. said it will cancel its $100 million revolving line of credit following repayment of the outstanding balance from the proceeds of the production payment sale.

The new production payment is expected to be retired over six and one-half years out of the proceeds from future oil and gas production.

HOUSTON — Rown Companies, Inc., joint owner of the semi-submersible Norjarl, has completed the sale for approximately $11 million of its 20 percent interest in the North Sea-based unit under the terms of an agreement announced in May.

Rown expects the after-tax gain from the sale of its interest will contribute approximately $2.22 in primary earnings per common share for 1980.

C.R. Palmer, chairman and president, said the gain on sale of the Norjarl is in addition to the company's earlier earnings forecast of $2.50 per share for the year.

Fuel dealers file with FTC over AGA ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fuel oil dealers, stung by home conversions to natural gas heating, filed a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission accusing the gas distribution industry of false advertising.

The charge was immediately denied by a gas industry trade association.

The National Oil Jobbers Council, an organization of dealers in 44 states, asked the FTC to investigate advertising by the American Gas Association and to make the AGA change its ads.

The Council challenged AGA claims about the efficiency, cost, and supply reliability of natural gas, and charged that its ads were "deceptive and misleading."

AGA President George H. Lawrence issued a statement calling the council's accusations "totally false."

Lawrence said the ads "are documented by detailed economic analyses." But the council's complaint said there was evidence contrary to the AGA's advertised claims.

Richard Jakmas, vice president for heating fuel policy, told reporters the oil dealers may be losing about 7 percent of their residential fuel oil business a year because of homeowners' decisions to switch to natural gas.

"It has hurt the industry. It hasn't devastated the industry," Jakmas said.

Christine Meagher, an attorney representing the council, said "it is a precedent for a major trade association to file a complaint of this kind against another."

The complaint challenged AGA ads which claimed, for example, that "Gas is America's most efficient energy," and is distributed "via the most efficient delivery system."

It also cited ads stating that natural gas is "your least expensive way to heat," and promising "economical gas energy for centuries to come."

It called such claims false or at least deceptive.

The council asked the government to order the AGA to stop making such claims and to publish corrective advertising.

In his statement denying the accusations, Lawrence said studies "which clearly show that gas will continue to be the most economic way of heating a home for the foreseeable future... are a matter of public record."

Lawrence added, "AGA is pleased to have any additional public attention focused on gas energy's economic, supply, efficiency and environmental advantages over oil heat."

Closing of outlet due to toxic chemical spill

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A nine-mile stretch of the Mississippi River-Gulf Outlet will remain closed to fishing indefinitely while traces of a toxic chemical spilled in a ship collision remain in the water, state officials say.

"As long as it's still there, we won't reopen the area," Dick Cousins of the state Board of Health said Thursday.

The July 22 collision of a container ship and an ore carrier spilled 12½ tons of granulated pentachlorophenol, or PCP, into the shipping channel that links New Orleans' industrial area with the Gulf of Mexico.

The Coast Guard vacuumed contaminated sludge from the bottom of the channel where the PCP fell out of a truck-sized steel container and leaked from plastic bags.

Shipping, halted for more than two weeks during the cleanup, resumed after 90 percent of the PCP was recovered.

And nearly all the 400 square miles of waterways that had been off limits to fishermen to guard against contaminated seafood also were reopened. But nine miles of the outlet near the site of the collision remained closed.

Cousins said continuing tests of water samples show the reopened areas are safe, but the nine-mile section still has traces of PCP in the bottom mud.

Lear constructing pipeline

DALLAS — Lear Petroleum Corp. announced that it will construct a $22 million, 85-mile intrastate natural gas pipeline in northwestern Oklahoma's Deep Anadarko Basin.

The line will be comprised of 20-inch pipe and will run through Grady, Caddo, and Washita counties.

Max W. Woodard, president of Lear, said construction of the line will begin immediately with completion targeted for Mar. 1, 1981. It will be a major expansion of Lear's Caddo Transmission system, which is located in Caddo County, Okla.

Uncompressed capacity of the line will be 200 million cubic feet a day. Woodard said the company expects initial throughput in the new line to be about 50 million cubic feet a day.

During fiscal 1979, ended Sept. 30, the company averaged approximately 91 million cubic feet a day through all of its natural gas transmission systems, which generated gas transmission revenues exceeding $70 million.

"This is the first major line in the Deep Anadarko Basin since 1970, and we're expanding in this area at the right time," he added.

Woodard said that company studies show that, during 1979, approximately 447 billion cubic feet of natural gas was produced from the area to be serviced by the new line. By 1990, the studies estimate annual production of about 1.3 trillion cubic feet.

"When our study was completed in April of 1980," Woodard said, "there were 126 wells either drilling or being completed in Oklahoma's Deep Anadarko Basin."

Exxon building $3 billion lignite coal gasification plant in East Texas

HENDERSON, Texas (AP) — Work on a $3 billion East Texas lignite coal gasification plant — the largest project in Exxon USA's history — is expected to start in about two years, according to company officials.

The mammoth project, which will utilize 35,000 acres of mineral leases in Rusk, Smith and Cherokee counties, was announced Thursday by Exxon officials touring the cities of Henderson, Jacksonville and Tyler.

Lurgi Kohle and Mineraloeltechnik, a Frankfurt, West Germany firm, will prepare process designs for the gasification and gas treating portions for a potential synthetic fuels plant.

Exxon officials said the company has committed $10 million over the next two years and that $40 million has already been spent on preliminary feasibility studies.

Vernon McGrew Jr., Exxon's governmental relations coordinator who worked out the details of the announcement, said a final decision on whether to go ahead with the plant will be made after a mid-1982 economic studies.

Construction for the plant, which will provide a "feedstock" or fuel to petrochemical firms in East Texas and along the Gulf Coast, is scheduled to start in 1983.

Final plan and design engineering work is slated to be finished at the time the feasibility study is completed and environmental permits should be obtained by late 1982, officials said.

The construction labor force could reach 5,000 and at least 2,000 employees would have permanent jobs, Exxon said. The area involved would furnish most of the manpower, and permanent employees would be trained while plant construction was under way.

In 1986 lignite mining sufficient to provide 15 million tons a year would furnish the plant with enough feedstock to produce 320 million BTUs per day of gas, and 10,000 barrels a day of liquids for at least 30 years.

This is the energy equivalent of 60,000 barrels of oil per day. Exxon USA will furnish sole financing, with no government funds involved.

Exxon sent 16,000 tons of East Texas lignite to a South African plant to be processed and the experiment was successful. The plant used the Lurgi process.

Water — 12,000 gallons per minute for the project — would come from nearby reservoirs. Mining would spread over 700 acres being mined at any one time, company officials said.

After the mining process is completed the pits would be filled and turned back to the owners.

Exxon environmental spokesmen said the company is conscious of the social and economic impacts of the project and will "cooperate with local governments" to gain adequate protection.

Case of bad judgement

Anger has a funny way of blowing things out of proportion. Things get changed in the process and come out totally different from how they were planned.

That appears to be the situation in the current controversy surrounding the new youth football program being organized by some parents who formerly assisted with the YMCA football program here.

Those parents had planned a program totally separate from the YMCA that would utilize the playing fields at four Midland schools and would offer enhanced athletic competition opportunities.

Unfortunately, the anticipated result of the program is twofold: it has reduced the number of youths available to participate in the YMCA football program and, thus, threatened the existence of that program; and effectively, albeit unintentionally, eliminates many minority youths from the newly-created program.

While we do not believe it was the intent of any involved parties to establish a segregated youth football program in Midland, that was the appearance created.

Certainly the school district did not mean to condone a racially-segregated program. The program actually was designed to be available to all races.

But the four schools chosen for the program are all located in the city's west side. Many — if not most — youngsters living on the city's east and south sides were eliminated from participating in the program because of transportation concerns and inconvenience, not to mention cost, $20 plus uniforms.

Anytime public facilities are involved, efforts must be made to make programs available to all people throughout the city regardless of race, color or creed. We must, in fact, bend over backward if necessary to ensure that all people are treated fairly and given the same opportunities in such circumstances.

For officials to permit school facilities to be used for a program that would have adverse effects was no more, we're sure, than a case of bad judgement. But it was that.

As it was noted during a meeting of the Mexican-American Advisory Group on Education Thursday evening, many individuals have worked long and hard through the years to maintain racial harmony in the Tall City. The efforts of all are to be commended in that respect.

But it requires eternal vigilance and unwavering dedication to the goal if all people are to be treated fairly and all given an equal opportunity. That goal cannot be accomplished by individuals who view it casually or on a part-time basis.

Cool heads should prevail on all sides in the current situation and the facts should be viewed realistically and reasonably. A solution should be found quickly so the matter can be put to rest.

WASHINGTON — Big Ed Muskie is not a happy man. Despite the public papering-over of his differences with the Carter administration, Muskie feels he has been used and abused since he agreed to be Jimmy Carter's secretary of state.

At the same time, the professional bureaucrats at Foggy Bottom are just as unhappy with their new boss and the top aides he brought with him from the Senate.

Muskie, whose "tears in the snow" may have cost him the presidential nomination in 1972, has learned to control his emotions in public. But lately, he has done some private crying to old friends and political associates about his troubles with the Carter crowd.

Here's what he has told them: Carter is surrounded by an impenetrable coterie of Georgia cronies, and no one outside the inner circle can get through to him. The president reminds Muskie of Richard Nixon in his final, beleaguered days in office, when he isolated himself from all but a few blindly loyal lackeys.

Muskie feels betrayed by Carter, who publicly promised to make him his chief foreign policy spokesman. On the strength of that assurance, Muskie gave up a safe Senate seat, only to discover that he has been kept as far out in left field as Cyrus Vance ever was. Policy decisions were made without even consulting him. In fact, Muskie told intimates, he's sorry he ever went to the State Department.

The "third man" speculation during the weeks before the Democratic convention made Muskie realize that he might have been the choice as an alternative to Carter or Ted Kennedy. He half suspects that Carter named him secretary of state simply to take

A number of incidents contributed to Muskie's disenchantment:

— In late June, on White House instructions, Muskie made a strong anti-Soviet pitch to the NATO foreign ministers, who then called for "immediate, unconditional and total withdrawal" of Russian troops from Afghanistan. A month later, White House national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski publicly announced a more reasonable policy of containment linked with continued pursuit of detente and arms control. Muskie, although he personally agrees with a more moderate policy, was furious that Brzezinski, the Cold War hot-head, was allowed to announce an apparent policy shift that undercut Muskie's earlier tough position.

— Muskie was understandably upset at being frozen out of discussions that led to the change in U.S. nuclear strategy announced early this month. "In four meetings among Muskie, Brzezinski and (Defense Secretary Harold) Brown, no one ever mentioned the nuclear strategy change," one source reported. "The whole thing was very well-coordinated with everyone except the State Department. Muskie is now saying: "Who am I? Am I a security risk? Am I really the president's No. 1 foreign policy man?"

— Muskie feels Carter used him as a cat's paw in the decision to abstain in the United Nations from censuring Israel over the Jerusalem issue. Muskie was asked to go to the U.N. to personally withhold the vote, which brought down the wrath of the Jewish community. "Who gets the can tied to his tail?" asked one insider. "It was bad politically for Carter, so they let their most popular man do it. Where was (Ambassador) Donald McHenry? They're going to use Muskie and then they're going to say, 'We can't use you anymore.'"

— Muskie's regal, free-spending senatorial habits have rankled the professionals at the State Department, who mourn for the departed Vance. The secretary behaves "like a kid in a toy store," his critics gripe. Muskie's personal staff of five, brought over from Capitol Hill, are derided as wide-eyed rustics overwhelmed by the grandeur of their new surroundings.

— Accustomed to the perks of a powerful senator, Muskie's staff has stepped on toes at Foggy Bottom by using security personnel as "go-fers," and generally not knowing "how to treat people around here."

— Muskie aide appalled the bureaucrats by asking subordinates to take care of the shipment of Muskie's son's luggage to college — a request that wouldn't have raised an eyebrow on Capitol Hill.

— Muskie has also been criticized for his expensive tastes in personal travel, using a small government jet to fly him to his home in Kennebunkport, Maine, for weekends. He has claimed that only half have been personal trips. For these, he is required to reimburse the government at first-class fare — a fraction of the actual expenses of the private jet.

Malibu's hottest gossip now comes in seven digits

Art Buchwald

LOS ANGELES — Everyone knows that Californians are different from the rest of us. They were the pioneers of pyramid games, they invented the candlelight dinner and hot tubs, and they were the first to put Gucci shoes on their roller skates.

Californians are into something new now. It's called "real estate." It isn't who you are or who you know that counts anymore. It's how much you're asking for your house.

I didn't realize how much real estate values mattered in people's lives out here until a very nice lady took me to a lunch in the Malibu colony at a $2 million shack which resembled the stockade in "The Bridge on the River Kwai."

The guests were all gathered around the small swimming pool and my hostess introduced me to the people. "This is Ted and Jane, who are asking $950,000 for their villa in Ventura; Bob and Alice, whose English Tudor is now on the market for $1 million five; Don and Phyllis, who turned down $2 million one for their Spanish hacienda in Brentwood; and Mildred, who just split with Sam and is showing her $850,000 redwood contemporary by appointment only."

They seemed like really nice people. The hostess apologized because lunch was late. "We're still waiting on Henry and Roz, who have just listed their Tarzana colonial for $2 million six, and Allen and Marjorie, who won't take less than $1 million seven for their place in Laurel Canyon." "They're worth waiting for," I said.

Most of the people were in the movie and television business so I expected some hot gossip about the stars which I could take back East with me. But it was not to be.

The table conversation went like this. "Rhonda left Johnny's fabulous $2 million panoramic hillside retreat with four bathrooms and an indoor jacuzzi and moved in with Herb in his $600,000 condominium with a wet bar on Wilshire Blvd."

"What a fool. Rhonda is always trading down."

"When Rhonda falls in love you can't talk any real estate sense into her at all."

"Someone told me the Saudi Arabians are moving into Culver City."

"I can't believe it. They haven't gobbled up Bel Air yet."

"Do you know the mobile home on the highway near Trancas?"

"You mean the one that was set up after the waves washed away the seven-figure Cape Cod on the dunes?"

"The mobile went for $1 million six."

"I thought it had been condemned by the zoning people."

"It had. That's why it sold so cheap."

I tried to get into the conversation. "What's Johnny Carson really like?"

"Six million for his home in Beverly Hills, and one million eight for his house on the beach."

"How about Candice Bergen?" I asked.

"There was dead silence at the table. Finally, someone said quietly, "Off the record?"

"It won't leave this patio."

"Candice sublets."

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Ronald Reagan says he has doubts about Darwin's theory of evolution, but he should consider the findings of the Mark Russell Monkey Poll:

• Fifty-nine percent of all registered voters in the top 10 states of the Electoral College believe that first came the piliwoog, then came the lizard and then came the city councilmen.

• Sixty-one percent of Republicans west of the Mississippi are of the opinion that today's television game show host was originally a prehistoric frog.

• Among Eastern liberals with a college education, a whopping 72 percent believe that if given enough time, a roomful of ringtailed baboons could recite verbatim the minutes of both the Democratic and Republican conventions.

THE BIBLE

CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER AND ELIZABETH ROSS WIERSEMA

1. With its 300 years of history, the city of David is holy to Christians, Jews and Moslems. To the north were the temples of Solomon and Herod requiring seven and forty six years to build. Which temple was built in seven? 1 Kings 11-38 3rd Kings (Douay)
 2. How do we know that it took 46 years to build Herod's temple? John 2:20.
 3. What trouble arose between the tribes of Israel during the building of Zerubbabel's temple? Ezra 4. (Zerubbabel)
 4. Name the two sisters of Lazarus. John 11.
 5. Tell of Peter's miraculous escape from prison. Acts 12.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Aug. 31, the 244th day of 1980. There are 122 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Aug. 31, 1935, President Franklin Roosevelt signed the Neutrality Act, prohibiting the export of U.S. arms to nations at war.

On this date: In 1290, Jews were exiled from England by order of King Edward I.

In 1654, the Rhode Island General Assembly banned the sale of liquor to Indians.

In 1903, a Packard car reached New York after a 52-day trip from San Francisco. It was the first car to cross the continent under its own power.

In 1977, whites in Rhodesia gave

Prime Minister Ian Smith an overwhelming mandate to negotiate a constitutional settlement.

Ten years ago: Indonesian rebels occupied their country's embassy in the Netherlands, holding the ambassador's wife and children as hostages. The rebels gave up after a day-long holdout.

Five years ago: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger announced agreement on a Sinai disengagement treaty between Israel and Egypt.

One year ago: The State Department confirmed the presence of as many as 3,000 Soviet combat troops in Cuba.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Buddy Hackett is 56 years old. Arthur Godfrey is 77.

Swing of the wrecking ball shattering Washington's charm

WASHINGTON — People visiting here for the first time, whether American or foreign, often remark on how beautiful this city is. For a century, Washington proudly presented magnificent buildings and charming streets with the kind of houses which bespeak of civilized living.

But lately, the relentless building boom causes those who care about Washington's beauty to fret that this city's downtown might be transformed into another of those urban collections of cold, boxlike buildings.

The buck is as almighty here as any other place in the Republic. So the deadly swing of the wrecking ball is a constant movement. Suddenly, the familiar is gone. There is a disquieting gap, like the place where an old tooth used to be.

Then, in what seems like only weeks, another of these 12-story squat, impassive, glass-faced office buildings is standing where there was once a smaller but more pleasant structure you could imagine belonging in Paris. It might have sheltered a neat cafe or a bookstore, or maybe even a workaday bar, but now it is gone, and grim technocratic business is left in its place.

Though the District of Columbia passed a law last year to protect landmarks and historic districts, there seems to be no letup in the demolition of buildings around the downtown area which always put flavor and heartiness into this Capital Soup. It seems that all the bureaucrats of the nation — business, government, trade association, lobbying group or whatever — crave a prestige downtown D.C. address. Office construction in D.C. has increased 57 percent in the past five years and the aesthetics of the city are none the better.

What's more, when old blocks where people shopped, drank, ate, and maybe even lived, are torn down for office buildings punctually disgorging themselves of humanity at night — well, there is a neutron-bomb effect. The buildings are there, but the people are gone.

The eeriness created by the conquest of living blocks by the commercially profitable but mute warehouses of paper-shuffling, computerizing and digital-calculating is not Washington's experience alone. Atlanta Journal columnist Ron Hudspeth recently lamented how his city's downtown has become a no-man's land of anti-septic glass towers. Houston is similarly afflicted, and so are a half-dozen other cities I could name which have lost their downtown blood, guts, heart and soul.

Downtowns, indeed cities themselves, need the charm of old buildings which immediately imply history, and can last and smile a little when you look at them long enough. There is a pleasure in seeing the familiar because it inspires thoughts about how life goes on, and shouldn't be too earnest, and certainly not cold.

The beauty and warmth of Washington was largely created in the 1870s when the capital was in a post-war boom. Happily, the builders worked in a more leisurely and graceful time. The result was carefully constructed houses, mansions and neo-classical Victorian buildings. It was an urbanism one could live with comfortably, and it prevailed until the end of World War II.

A read of "Capital Losses: A Cultural History of Washington's Destroyed Buildings," by James M. Goode (Smithsonian Institute Press), details (sometimes in devastating photos) how worthy, important buildings, which make us feel good to be in a city, disappear.

All is not lost, of course. No bureaucrat would dare to recommend the razing of that White House adjunct, the Executive Office Building — born of Second Restoration architecture — to make way for some 12-story blank-faced monolith. And the Willard Hotel was saved in the nick of time, and stands replete on Pennsylvania Avenue, waiting for its own restoration.

Moreover, we have a Georgetown section of Washington whose sidewalks teem with people at night because the buildings there are old, worldwide and distinguished. But watch it. Office buildings sprout near the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal.

In Chicago, there's the charm and honest architecture of the near North Side, and San Francisco won't sell out, though skyscrapers engage in one scary offensive to sensibilities there.

I am sure there are good citizens in every city, fresh water or whatever, who keep an eye on the character and preservation of local architecture, and who aren't afraid to oppose the bottom-line, more-building-for-the-buck bandits.

Another factor that may help get women elected is that the Texas Democratic Party has been making an effort to get women more involved and to provide them greater assistance — an effort which its critics see as far from perfect or complete, but still one that is under way.

Learning the art of loafing

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

I am writing this sitting on the balcony of my room in Badrut's Palace Hotel in the famous Alpine village of St. Moritz, Switzerland, where I have come to perfect my ability to loaf.

sunshine through crisp 50-degree air. But the essence of the art of idleness is to remember some of the principles when you return to the mad rush of things. A friend of mine succeeds in doing this. He is a dynamo of energy and turns out prodigious work loads. He doesn't fool but gets right to business.

happy, peaceful and rested. This was even more evident when one met the tramping up mountain paths or through Alpine meadows, or along singing, sunkissed rivers.

As part of the program of learning how to loaf, I go each morning to St. Moritz Bad to listen to an excellent small symphony orchestra.

How is that? Well, he goes to bed early and gets up late. He plays a little golf with emphasis on the little. He sits in the sun. He takes no telephone calls, writes no letters, doesn't talk shop. He walks slowly and floats when he swims.

Even if you stopped for tea at one of the primitive open-air cafe terraces high on the Schwarze, or Rlyfelld, above the murmur of conversation, the colossal silence reached you with its quieting touch. You were content to bask in the sun and look upward and woder and dream and maybe pray a bit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

An old story

To The Editor: On Tuesday, Aug. 26, the City Council voted not to give the senior citizens any additional exemption on their homestead taxes.

However, Councilman Carroll Thomas made a speech before the vote that dumbfounded me. He used to feel the elderly deserved some consideration, but has now changed his mind and is against anything the city might do that would help people over age sixty-five to make ends meet.

The senior citizens received small increases on their social security payments, but look at the hundreds of thousands of dollars they put into their Social Security and the small amount of return they get on the money they were forced to invest in the project.

After that vote not to give the additional exemption Councilman Thomas made a motion that the $6,000 exemption now allowed senior citizens on their homesteads should be discontinued. I do not know who seconded this motion.

Last year 2,632 senior citizens received $6,000 exemption on the tax values of their homesteads at the 63c rate that amounted to $37.80 per homestead that had a value over $6000. There were 719 people whose homes were not valued at $6000 and they did not have to pay any tax. 1913 people's homes were valued at more than $6000 and they paid full taxes on the overage.

What the council was voting on was to raise the exemption so the taxes would not be any more than last year, with the new 75% of 100% valuation for this year at a 45c rate. Senior citizens need the $17.01 each more than the city needs some of its projects.

Thank you, Midland Reporter-Telegram, for contributing to the welfare of the animals that we humans domesticate. I am referring to your regular featured pictures of the animals at the City of Midland Animal Control Center.

According to this animal lover, many of the pictures have been of prize-winning quality. The animals are awaiting either adoption or death. If they were wild animals I wouldn't bother to write this letter. But the fact is, they are awaiting their untimely deaths because their Midland County owners are too lazy and irresponsible to care for them.

You are to be commended for your efforts to save even one of them!

School scandal

I agree with Jane Kading. Our school board stinks. The voters need to go in and do some weeding out. Most of the people on the school board must not have any kids in our schools. I graduated in 1976 and on the day before graduation I heard some nasty and more than likely to be true rumors about a football star in our school.

Rumors that he could not read or write and was being advanced purely on his talent. If it's true, was it fair to him or his fellow classmates? I don't think so.

Is it fair to expect students to enjoy going to a school old as the hills? MHS is like a loved old car. No matter how much oil it leaks or other dollars you pour into it it takes a tragedy to realize the car is a hopeless cause. The money you waste on repairs could pay for a new one.

Parking was a pain when I was in school. It's worse now and will never get better. Illinois, Wall and Missouri were three of the most beautiful streets in town. But Wall and Illinois aren't anymore. As I said before, who wants a school downtown anyway?

If Odessa can get out of bussing, why can't we the citizens, voters and most important, the parents of Midland get what we want and our children deserve?

Carter can't...

Columnist Jack Anderson said in a series of articles printed during the week of August 18th that President Carter plans to invade Iran prior to the election. You can imagine how the American public would react. They would follow FDR's comment not to "change horses in the middle of the stream." This philosophy would no doubt help put Carter in for another term.

If it is true, that Carter plans to invade Iran, he should certainly be impeached or jailed. Watergate would be nothing in comparison. FDR's crime of deliberately agitating the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor would not be as serious. On the other hand, Carter's invading of Iran could set off a nuclear war.

We ought to ask our representatives to look into this matter, which doesn't seem to get any press coverage, and if it is so restrain the president from continuing his fool-hardy plans and the expense of many lives.

A zeal for Zion

To The Editor: In reply to Howard Reed's objection

Architect Frank Lloyd Wright perhaps would have made a far better jurist than a detective, a better philosopher than a historian. Witness: "The truth is more important than the facts."

Without the Jew, I would have no Messiah. The messianic concept is totally Jewish. I am a recipient of what Jesus of Nazareth, a Jew, did for His own people first and then for the whole world secondly. Mr. Reed, every time I meet a Jewish person I realize I know more about his ancestors than I do my own! How can I be anything other than a champion of Israel?

If the Bible is not relevant for you, check out secular history and ponder what has happened to the nations that have come against the Jews? Where are the empires of Haman, Herod and Hitler? Great Britain boasted that the sun never set upon her empire, after betraying Israel in 1948, that nation is not so great. After looking at the track record, Mr. Reed, you might decide that showing disrespect for Israel and her people is tantamount to national suicide.

Zionism is the belief that Israel belongs to Jacob's sons by right of covenant with their God and the Bible is the deed of title. Politics aside, Mr. Reed, that lovely land belongs to the sons of Jacob. Long live Israel!

Let's support...

In regard to Georgia Temple's review of Theatre Midland's play, "Relatively Speaking," there was apparently a drastic change in the performance of the actors from the play she reviewed and the performance I saw the following week, or perhaps she may have been too harsh in her review in the first place. Though I cannot comment on the play she saw, the performance of "Relatively Speaking" I saw was excellent.

I had no trouble at all understanding the actors' lines, especially those of Robert Russell. Russell's Texas accent did come through at times during the play but for the most part his British accent was the dominant accent of the two. In my opinion, Russell's mannerisms, facial expressions and characterization of the role he played were very good. I have never laughed so hard or enjoyed myself more at any previous comedies Theatre Midland has produced than that of "Relatively Speaking."

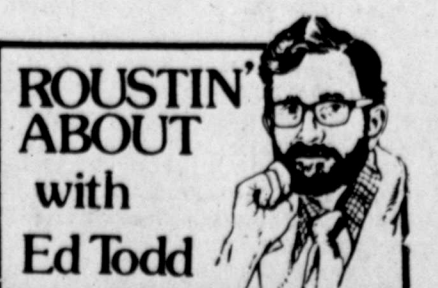

Ms. Temple and the public as well must remember that the characters of this play and any other play are most likely amateur actors with professional careers in other fields. We owe these people our support and gratitude for the time they have taken away from themselves, family and friends in providing us with entertainment on the live stage.

Bryant Shaw Midland

EDITOR'S NOTE: We believe Theatre Midland and, despite their amateur status, those who perform there, have a sufficiently high standard of professionalism to deserve more than a review consisting solely of platitudes and bouquets. And we are told many participants feel the same way. This newspaper agrees with you that the theatre and the actors deserve unserved support.

The 'whole' truth more than meets the eye

If you should ever pledge to tell the "whole" truth, then, brother, beware. First, you must seek and find it. If you're not careful, you'll deceive yourself and be persuaded to believe only that which you perceive to be in your best interests and image and not necessarily what is truth.

To be correct, as Niels Bohr observed, is not necessarily to be truthful. "The opposite of a correct statement is a false statement," the physicist said. "But the opposite of a profound truth may well be another profound truth."

Truth is the concept, the design, the reason. Facts give shape to the truth. That great broadcaster-journalist, Edward R. Murrow, had this to say about truth: "To be persuasive, we must be believable. To be believable, we must be credible. To be credible, we must be truthful."

Discovering it is the supreme challenge. Yet, the search for truth often follows when the more ordinary needs are satisfied. But not always. There are those who search for the often elusive truth. "No man thoroughly understands a truth until he has contended against it," penned transcendentalist Ralph Waldo Emerson. The search for truth is a noble undertaking which is not always successful. And you may arrive without knowing it. But search on, fellow friends of the Universe.

The first major change in American transportation due to enactment of the truck deregulation law has been announced by United Parcel Service and hailed by Secretary of Transportation Neil Goldschmidt for "affording additional price and service options for package delivery."

The package delivery company has begun a major expansion of its Blue Label Air Service, adding 10 mid-America states, including Texas, to its national network. This expanded service is now available in the Permian Basin through the Midland UPS office.

Blue Label Air is a unique two-day service available at any address for a cost saving of about 70 percent compared with overnight air express. A 10-pound parcel can be flown across country and delivered for $10.51.

The air service is operational for all residents and businesses in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas. Vast areas in these states previously had no access to an air package delivery service.

Douglas Graham, of The First National Bank of Midland, recently graduated from the first Bank Personnel Graduate School sponsored by the Bank Personnel Division of the American Bankers Association.

Graham

Graham was among the first graduating class comprised of 115 bank personnel professionals from across the country who participated in the one-week session held Aug. 17-22 at Princeton University in New Jersey.

The new graduate school's curriculum provides the bank personnel professional with components of advance personnel management topics, with the first session focusing on major issues and problems confronting these professionals in the '80s.

The American Bankers Association is the national trade association for America's Full Service Banks. Its membership is comprised of over 90 percent of the nation's 14,500 commercial banks — including more small banks than any other financial trade association.

Donald L. Evans, president of the company, and R.R. Morrison, president and director of General Resources Inc., were elected members of the board of directors of Tom Brown Inc., expanding the board from nine to 11 members, it was announced this week.

Tom Brown Inc. is engaged in the exploration, development and production of oil and natural gas and the operation of 26 land-based drilling rigs, in addition to the manufacture and sale or rental of down-hole drilling tools for the oil and gas industry.

Industry fees for TACB studied

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Fees for industries seeking permits from the Texas Air Control Board are under study by a TACB committee, and may go to the board for action in early 1981.

General counsel John Turney notes the TACB is authorized under the Federal Clean Air Act and the Texas Clean Air Act to charge fees for reviewing and acting upon applications for permits, and for enforcing and implementing permits.

Under the state law, fees of $50 to $7,500 are provided — but thus far, the TACB hasn't acted to implement the fees.

Several alternative fee systems have been presented by the TACB staff, with board member William Allan saying he favors a one-time fee, based upon the capital cost of the project involved — with one-tenth of one percent of capital cost suggested.

Eli Bell, deputy director for control and prevention, says he thinks such an approach would be preferable "because of simplicity."

Whatever system may be adopted, it should reflect the actual costs to the TACB in processing permits, Turney says.

Factors influencing actual permitting costs include type of facility proposed, expected level of emissions and type of regulatory review necessary. Bell's assistant Doyle Pendleton explains.

Bennie Engelke, deputy director of administrative services, says constitutional requirements prohibiting state agencies from having accounts receivable will require the TACB to have fees in hand before issuing permits.

TACB Executive Director Bill Stewart notes that there won't be any easy way to implement fees in a manner that will be totally fair and equitable to all concerned: "This is one of those things where there's no good way to do it," he comments.

Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council has awarded two contracts for studies of energy systems which might result in 30 to 50 percent savings in energy use in restaurants and commercial buildings.

Micon Corp., College Station, received a $14,822 contract to install a microcomputer at a College Station restaurant to control energy use for cooking and food heating. Micron will monitor energy use at the restaurant and present a report on its findings in August, 1981.

Roy Ray, TENRAC Technology Development section manager, says the microcomputer system could save restaurants between 40 and 50 percent of energy usage for cooking and heating.

Texas Restaurant Association is participating in the study and will share the results with its members.

Radian Corp., Austin, received a $73,076 contract to design and install a prototype system for retrofit of a water cooling tower to at least five existing roof-top air conditioners, at the company's own offices.

Purpose of that study is to demonstrate energy savings from using water rather than air in cooling systems. Ray said, with savings of 30 to 40 percent in energy anticipated.

Rep. Foster Whaley, Pampa, is considering legislation to give counties authority to ban sale and use of fireworks.

Whaley cites figures from the State Fire Marshal's office showing 485 Texas cities reported 209,000 fire calls due to fireworks in 1979.

CS&L sets new branch at mall

Citizens Savings & Loan Association of Midland has entered into a lease agreement with Melvin Simon & Associates, owners of Midland Park Mall, for a new branch office location. Ray P. Moudy, president of Citizens Savings, said the fifth location for CS&L would open "the first of the year."

"We elected to expand to this new location to better serve the growing population of northwest Midland," Moudy stated. He also noted that the new mall is located midway between Citizens Savings' two real estate developments, Meadowpark and Northgate.

The new branch will be located immediately inside the center north entrance of operation will be from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Other Citizens Savings locations are at 1100 Andrews Highway, downtown at Texas and Colorado, in Oak Ridge Square and in Dellwood Plaza.

THE WIZARD OF ID
BY PARKER AND HART

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My little daughter loves to carry a purse to hold her prize possessions, so when I make her a new dress, I use the scraps to make a little matching handbag for her.

For a base, I cut the bottom off a plastic round container, quart-size, such as a bleach bottle or detergent bottle.

I cut a piece of the material the circumference of the plastic bottom, plus seam allowance at the top, bottom and side.

I make a casing on the top for a drawstring, sew up the side, and attach it to the plastic container (with glue or by hand-stitching).

Now she has a purse for every occasion!

Peggy Harris
You can't beat that for getting the last ounce of good out of something.

What a cute way to coordinate daughter and what a thrifty way to stretch the budget.

Thanks for sharing.

COASTING ALONG

DEAR HELOISE:
One of the ways I use those very large foam meat trays that family-size portions are packaged in is:

For informal gatherings where people serve themselves drinks, they are very good to place under the glasses and beverages.

They catch the drips and small spills.

AND MORE COASTING.

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's another use for odd or worn-out socks.

I make two coasters from one sock. I cut the leg part into two equal pieces. From the foot part, I cut two circles the size needed to fit the base of my drinking glasses.

I put the leg part around the glass, set the glass down on the cut-out circle, and stitch the two together with a buttonhole stitch.

They absorb moisture, consequently no more rings on my furniture.

SAVE 'EM

DEAR HELOISE:
I enjoy your column very much and never miss reading it.

My hint is to save those plastic foam containers that you get food in at the fast food chains.

They are great for individual pieces of pie or dessert that you may want to take to someone or pack in lunches.

I find myself using them all the time.

Josephine Stotka

DEAR READER:

This is your column. If you'd like to share a hint, ask a question or make a suggestion, write me care of this newspaper.

WHERE DID THE WRINKLES GO?

DEAR HELOISE:
One morning I was running late getting ready for church.

Well, I needed to iron my slip but there wasn't time. I wore it anyway. But when I got home, I found my slip had no more wrinkles. It looked like I had ironed it.

So now I don't iron my slip when I want to wear it because I know it will wrinkle-free at the end of the day.

Tammy B., Age 11
I'll bet you were glad to make that discovery! Did you know that if you hang up some garments, the wrinkles will usually fall out of them?

Thanks for writing to me and do write again real soon.

Love, Heloise

SHE'S SET FOR SHAMPOOS

DEAR HELOISE:
I use a small pump-spray plastic bottle to keep my shampoo in.

I add a little water to make it go further and it really lathers great on my hair.

R. Zellner, Age 12

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

My daughter, bless her heart, is in her early teens and ever-so-hard to please when it comes to buying clothes.

On a recent shopping trip, we were looking at coats for the coming season.

Some are displayed with a chain that has a large ring on the sleeve that secures the coat to the rack thus preventing shoplifting.

Right off she fell in love with a darling coat but couldn't bring herself to try it on, as she said, no way would she wear a coat with a zipper that had a catch pull that big!

When I saw the price of the coat, no way was I going to set her straight on what those rings really were for!

Catching On

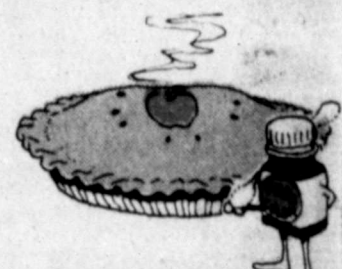

Boy, a mom sure has to stay one step ahead, right?

Picture Pies

DEAR HELOISE:
When my children were small, they liked to choose which pie in the freezer they wanted to bake.

To make the choice easier, I always cut a design with a sharp pointed knife as I made the steam vents.

A speck of food coloring mixed with water to make a delicate color and painted on the crust with a water color brush or cotton swab made it more decorative.

I used a thimble to cut a design of cherry clusters. If you try this, just remember not to cut all the way around the design or the pieces will fall out when you lift the crust to put it on the pie.

Mrs. Gilbert Plimpton

FORGET THE BIKE!

DEAR HELOISE:
The walk-in shower in our apartment is fully tiled from ceiling to floor, in beautiful ceramic blocks.

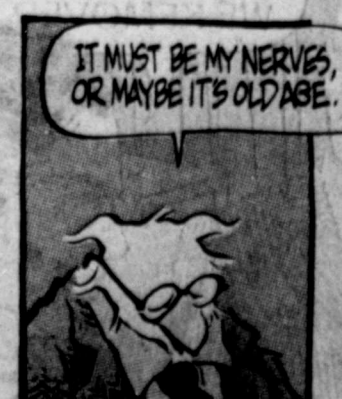

The showerpipe won't hold a caddy properly, and paste-on hooks aren't strong enough, and I wouldn't have any holes drilled into the tile so...

To hold shampoo, rinse, bath oil, etc., I bought a bicycle basket of woven plastic and hung it inside on the shower door.

It is self-draining, impervious to water and comes in all shapes and colors.
