Midland firemen responded to a hot oil truck blaze about 9 a.m. today. It took several hours to bring the blaze under control. The truck was loaded with 70 barrels of oil and two 50-gallon tanks of butane gas, causing several explosions. The fire occurred adjacent to an oil rig about one mile south of Garden City Highway on County Road 1140. Truck driver Russ Dawson, right, watches the blaze as he holds on to his charred cap which fell off as he ran from the blaze. Iran may block OPEC's price plan

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Iran tangled with Saudi Arabia today and threatened to block OPEC's first joint plan for raising oil prices and controlling production. The 13-nation cartel opened debate on the long-term proposal at its 20th anniversary meeting here.

OPEC General-Secretary Rene Ortiz confirmed that oil pricing had been discussed in the first session.

Iran's chief delegate, Ali Akbar Moïfar, threatened to block action on the plan unless the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries conference also discussed production.

Iran blocked Iraq from chairing the conference, apparently because of the two countries' recent border fighting, conference sources said. Iran threatened to demand a reversal of the agenda if Iraq took the chair, forcing a discussion of current oil prices and production disputes before taking up the long-term strategy — the official subject of the meeting.

Algeria, which has held the presidency since the June meeting in Algiers, was chosen to serve as chairman. Iraq was originally scheduled to preside over the meeting and also hold the rotating presidency until an OPEC summit in Baghdad starting Nov. 4.

Algerian Foreign Minister Mohammed S. Benyahia was named chairman and Iraqi Oil Minister Tayah Abdul Karim was named alternate chairman. The OPEC secretary-general said Iraq will preside at the Baghdad conference as originally planned.

"If we do not have a short-term decision on production, then it's a joke to have a long-term strategy," said Iran's chief delegate. He called for a Saudi production cut to drain off the current world oil glut and keep prices up.

"That's not right," Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, a proponent of the long-term plan, told reporters when asked about Moïfar's contention. Yamani said his country would not cut production until OPEC members agreed on the long-range plan, adding "That will be at the Baghdad summit in November."

Although no serious disagreement previously appeared looming over the joint strategy of the 13-nation cartel, Moïfar said when asked if he thought a long-term pricing plan would be worked out, "I don't think so."

Meanwhile, the authoritative Middle East Economic Survey reported Iran's oil minister sent the Saudi oil minister a cable containing "various accusations against Saudi Arabia couched in impolite language," and that the Saudis were reconsidering their decision to decrease oil production.

But with the oil market glutted again, several ministers predicted there would be no price increase before next year.

Reagan rejects Carter's offer of intelligence briefings

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan has declined a Carter administration offer to give him intelligence briefings on world affairs, White House press secretary Jody Powell said today.

Powell, asked whether Reagan is being kept informed of developments in the Iranian hostage situation and other issues, said the former California governor had been offered briefings, "but so far he's said he doesn't want them."

Powell did not indicate whether Reagan had given a reason. Such briefings have been customary in recent years for candidates challenging an incumbent president.

When President Carter was the Democratic nominee in 1976, he was briefed several times by George Bush, then CIA director and now Reagan's vice presidential running mate.

Hostage talks to start soon

By The Associated Press

The speaker of Iran's Parliament says debate on the the U.S. hostages will begin in the next few days and two influential Iranian religious leaders said today the regime has not dropped its demand for a U.S. apology as a condition for the Americans' release.

Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani confirmed at a news conference that the demand for an apology — already rejected by President Carter — had not been dropped. In a statement Friday, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini omitted the demand from a list of conditions, which U.S. observers interpreted as a sign of hope for a solution to the crisis.

According to Tehran radio, the speaker said Sunday that Parliamentary debate on the hostages would begin Tuesday, the 318th day in captivity for the 52 Americans. But the official Pars news agency today said he had announced the debate for Wednesday. It was not immediately clear which was correct.

Pars said Rafsanjani also received a letter from the hostages' families saying they are "ready to do what you and your colleagues order."

It said the families said they wanted to meet with him "to solve our problem in a human atmosphere. We wish to be a bridge that the hostages cross to reach their homes... we hope to find a solution to put an end to the current separation of the Iranian and American nations."

Pars said the letter was delivered by the Algerian ambassador in Tehran. It did not further identify the senders, and there was no immediate comment from anyone representing the hostages' relatives in the United States.

Tehran Radio said Rafsanjani told the Swiss charge d'affaires in Tehran Sunday:

"A decision was made in the Majlis (Parliament) today regarding a reply to the letter by the U.S. Congress, and substantial discussion on the hostages will begin on Tuesday and the Majlis will make a decision.

"Since the U.S. Congress letter was read out in the Majlis and was also covered by the press, we expect the U.S. government to publish the text of the Majlis letter of reply for the American public. If it fails to do this, it will have shown its lack of good will, and this will have an adverse effect on our talks."

The "U.S. Congress letter" was sent the Majlis in July by 187 congressmen who urged the release of the Americans taken hostage last Nov. 4 when young Islamic militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. The broadcast said the Swiss charge d'affaires delivered a "follow-up letter" from some of the U.S. congressmen on Sunday.

The Majlis Foreign Affairs Committee submitted a draft of a reply to the U.S. letter for the second time on Sunday. Its language was as vituperative as any used against the United States, saying:

"The world-devouring America, as the great Satan and a symbol of world tyranny, is the biggest enemy of our independence and greatness and a foe to the world's deprived peoples.

Secret hostage talks have been going on

MONTREAL (AP) — Secret negotiations have been under way for three months to gain the release of the 52 American hostages in Iran before the Nov. 4 American presidential election, the Canadian newspaper La Presse said today.

Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini favors the plan, it said.

Negotiations between the State Department and former Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh were conducted on the basis of a document prepared by European intermediaries, said the report by Robert Pouliot, Middle East correspondent for the paper, a major left-of-center, French language daily.

La Presse was first to report Canada's rescue of six Americans from Tehran. Embassy officials had hidden the Americans in their mission for months after the U.S. embassy seizure, then got them false papers and spirited them out of the country in January.

The document, which has never been published and which Ghotbzadeh never has officially accepted as a message from the United States, explains why the public trial of the hostages might cause Iran further harm, La Presse said.

The document suggests economic pressure on Iran might be reduced if the hostages were freed and it also outlines what President Carter would accept in a deal, the paper said.

Ghotbzadeh also feels personally that the election of Ronald Reagan as president would be much more dangerous for Iran than the re-election of Carter, the newspaper said.

Part two: He never lived down Senate 'landslide'

By MERLE MILLER

Of all the controversies that swirled around Lyndon Baines Johnson during his long public life, none was as fogged in confusion and suspicion as his successful race for the U.S. Senate in 1948.

It left him a nickname, "Landslide Lyndon," that he never lived down. The tangled roots of the "landslide" go back to 1947, when Congressman Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) began showing signs that he was ready and eager to move on to higher things.

That readiness was nothing new. He always had seemed to move faster, more visibly, more vocally, since his youngest days at the farmhouse by the Pedernales in the Texas hill country where he was born, as his mother Rebekah recorded later, at the auspicious hour of daybreak on August 27, 1908. There is no doubt that the pivot of Rebekah's life was her eldest child.

Rebekah (much later, on hearing rumors that her son might become president): "I'm not surprised. 'Course it's a mother talking, but from the first time I looked into his eyes, none of his accomplishments surprised me."

LYNDON'S FIRST RUN FOR public office came in 1937 after Rep. James Buchanan, age 70, died of a heart attack in Washington.

Mary Rather, a longtime friend: "The very moment that Congressman Buchanan died, Senator Alvin Wirtz (an early Johnson mentor) was saying, 'Get Lyndon for me.' And he immediately went into a huddle with him and said, 'You must run for this office.'"

The 28-year-old Johnson quit his job as state director of the National Youth Administration and entered active, competitive politics.

His election victory made the front page of the New York Times, which noted that he had "shouted his advocacy of President Roosevelt's (Supreme) Court reorganization all over the Tenth Texas District."

By happy coincidence, Roosevelt was about to begin a fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico. Johnson was invited to meet him in Galveston, where the president expressed his gratitude and gave his blessing to the young Lochinvar. He also gave him the phone number of Thomas G. (Tommy the Cork) Corcoran, his friend and advisor and one of the most powerful men in Washington, telling Lyndon that Tommy would take care of him once he got to Washington.

Corcoran: "When Roosevelt got back from that trip to Texas, he told me to take care of this boy and put him on the Naval Affairs Committee. There were others who'd been around for a while and were in line, but naturally Lyndon got the appointment."

LATE IN LIFE LYNDON used to say that he couldn't decide whether he preferred Washington in the days when he was a freshman congressman when anything seemed possible and often was, or those later years when he was the most powerful man in town. Both were intoxicating.

Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas died on April 4, 1941; he was 65 years old. On April 19 Gov. Wilbert L. (Pappy) O'Daniel announced that a special election would be held on June 23 to choose a successor. Pappy assured Lyndon that he was not even considering running for the seat; Lyndon believed him. Lyndon went to the White House and showed President Roosevelt the draft of a statement he had written announcing his own candidacy for the Senate. The president suggested that Lyndon read it on the White House steps, and a few minutes later, he did.

Eventually 29 candidates entered the race, including Pappy O'Daniel — who won. It was the first and only election Lyndon B. Johnson ever lost.

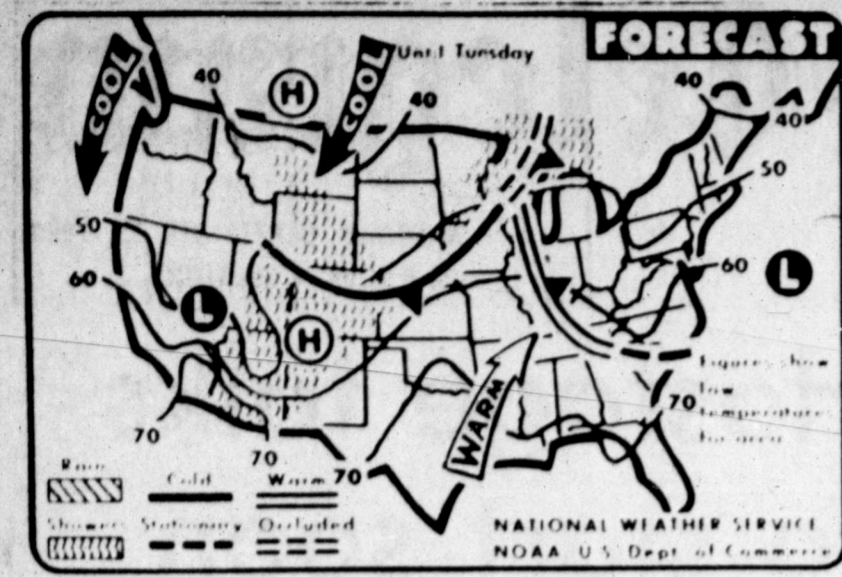

Johnson stayed in the House of Representatives, but by 1947 he was ready to try for the Senate again.

LYNDON ANNOUNCED HIS candidacy on May 12 in the penthouse of the Driskill Hotel in Austin. He made his first speech 10 days later before a small crowd that included a young man who was to become attorney gen-

Carter, Reagan head for Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is campaigning in Texas today amid new troubles with his campaign staff, while Ronald Reagan also hunts votes in the Lone Star state.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said Sunday, meanwhile, that he thought release of the American hostages in Iran would help the president politically but would not significantly affect the outcome of the election.

Reagan had urged Saturday that the United States agree to three of the four conditions laid down by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in return for the hostages' release.

Kraft said he was told by the Justice Department last week that appointment of a special prosecutor was being considered and had since learned in the press that one had been named.

Do-it-yourself inflation fight being urged

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The federal government's chief consumer agency is urging people to join their neighbors for a local-level, do-it-yourself fight against inflation.

To get things started, the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs is distributing a 411-page book detailing successful community efforts and providing a list of specific steps on the road to organization.

Copies of the book, "People Power: What Communities Are Doing to Fight Inflation," are available, at no charge, from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 682H, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

"Something special is happening that makes our country's economic picture a good deal brighter," says Esther Peterson, director of the consumer affairs office.

"There is a new movement — an exciting cooperative spirit — making itself felt everywhere from rural towns to city neighborhoods ... Consumers are taking concrete steps to beat inflation on the local level...

"The point of this book is to show that individuals working together can make a difference — a big difference — in the type, quality and price of the food, housing, health care and energy they receive."

Mrs. Peterson's office spent more than two years tracking down the almost 100 citizens' groups featured in "People Power." The distribution of the book is designed to help promote Consumer Education Week which is Oct. 5 to 11.

"People Power" includes advice on forming a neighborhood group — identifying community concerns, running a successful meeting, expanding and incorporating. It gives step-by-step directions for programs like community gardens and price surveys. It suggests ways to raise money and get publicity. And it lists the names, addresses and telephone numbers of hundreds of government and private organizations which can provide expert help and advice.

The main section of the book is divided in four parts — food, housing, energy and health.

The food section covers buying clubs, food co-ops, urban gardens and farmers' markets in areas as diverse as Denver, Iowa, and New York City. One of the case histories explains how residents of Northampton, Mass., with home vegetable gardens banded together to open a community canning center. Money for staffing the cannery, Community Self-Reliance, Inc., came from the Department of Labor under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act — CETA. Various state and local groups paid for the canning equipment and the Hampshire County commissioners provided the space. Residents are charged a small fee — an average of 12 cents per pint — and the organization soon expects to be self-supporting.

The housing section details neighborhood improvement and tenants' rights groups from San Antonio, Texas, to Chicago. Among the specific examples is Maintenance Central for Seniors, Inc., a Detroit program with the twin aims of providing low-cost home repairs for the elderly and employment for retired craftsmen who are still able to work. Maintenance Central was founded in 1975 and, by 1979, it was averaging 600 repair jobs a month.

The energy section includes information on conservation, recycling, solar heating and transportation alternatives, like the vanpooling program set up by Action Now, Inc. Action Now, a nonprofit group formed by business leaders in Louisville, Ky., organized vanpools involving 240 residents. One van driver whose passengers used to commute in eight separate cars estimated that his pool saved 5,600 gallons of gasoline in 1979.

The health section stresses such things as health maintenance organizations, programs of care for the elderly and consumer guides to medical services. Among the examples is the Cleveland Medical Directory published by the Cleveland Consumer Action Foundation. The guide lists nearly 700 doctors, 18 clinics, four health maintenance organizations and 32 hospitals. It includes information on prices, hours, specialties and prescription drugs.

Tribe collects $81 million

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — In a windfall that marked the end of a long legal fight over tribal timberland, about 600 Klamath Indians were collecting $81 million today for 135,000 acres taken by the federal government in the 1960s.

The government checks, some as high as $170,000, were being distributed through the Klamath Falls branch of the U.S. National Bank of Oregon, said bank manager Lyle Richards.

To avoid a "circus-like atmosphere," reporters were barred from the bank while the checks were released, Richards said.

Asked what effect the money might have on the economy of this town of 14,300, Mayor George C. Flitcraft said, "I have no idea," and declined further comment.

The timberland, in central Klamath County, now is part of the Winema National Forest.

The Klamath reservation was created by the Treaty of 1864 between the United States and the Klamath, Modoc and Yahooskin Indian tribes.

The reservation once comprised 1 million acres, but by the mid-1950s, the Indians had sold nearly a quarter of the land.

In 1954, Congress passed the Klamath Termination Act to acquire the land, and the government began making payments to the Indians.

Most of the more than 2,000 Klamaths voted to withdraw from the tribe at that time and take their share of tribal assets with them.

But others refused to give up their land, and it was put in trust for them by federal officials.

When the trust was dissolved in 1969, the federal government bought the remaining land for $49 million.

Congress, however, had assessed its value at $70 million, and the Klamaths sued for the difference. After a lengthy legal battle, they won the case and were awarded the money plus several million dollars in interest, for a total of $81 million.

Similar payments in the 1960s generated a storm of publicity because of the large amounts. Some Indians at that time invested in property and established trust funds. Others lost their money in bad business deals, prompting Klamath leaders to set up an investment consulting service for Indians.

Ten Indians put up $50,000 each of money received in earlier payments and bought a half-interest several years ago in the Town and Country Shopping Center here.

Schools opening amid confusion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One day before the opening of classes for a half million children, Los Angeles school officials today were struggling to assign teachers and tell as many as 100,000 students where they will be going in the first year of an integration-busing plan 17 years in the making.

More than 1,000 buses will take to Los Angeles' streets on Tuesday to carry youngsters to other neighborhoods, but the extent of the integration plan for the nation's second-largest school district remains muddled by late court maneuvers.

A number of schools and children still don't know whether they will be involved in Superior Court Judge Paul Egly's mandatory plan. The one thing school officials do know is that 46 schools involved in busing during the last two years, plus an undetermined number of others, will be involved in the program.

There are about 700 schools in the district. Some 497 were considered in the integration plan, and between 145 and 165 schools are expected to be involved in the busing program.

The uncertainty over who will be bused and to where is bound to lead to some "significant logistical problems" for schools, bus drivers, parents and children on opening day, said Associate School Superintendent Jerry Halverson.

Officials were sending a "parent advisory" today to all parents potentially affected by busing and setting up a telephone "hotline," he said.

"At this time it's not the most convenient thing in the world," said one black parent whose child will be bused, "but we are just praying that it will be successful and that the children won't be psychologically affected by this abrupt change."

Meanwhile, a state court of appeal ruled Saturday that the district can eliminate seven more schools from the integration plan. School board members were meeting today to decide whether to do so.

But some characteristics of the program are clear: Mandatory busing will cover grades one through nine, an expansion from the fourth through eighth grade plan in effect for the last two years.

The 540,000 pupil district has been divided into 11 geographical areas and almost all of the bus rides will be within six of those areas. There will be no busing between districts.

School board president Roberta Weintraub said the number to be bused "ranges from 60,000 to 100,000 ... depending on whose figures you're talking about and what court order you're dealing with."

Saturday's appellate court ruling stayed "pupil reassignment and pupil transportation to each and every school within the district which complies with our definition of substantial desegregation."

If the board removed the seven schools, it could mean a total of 20 more schools will actually be removed from the plan, because 13 are paired or clustered with the seven for exchanging students.

The appellate court also ruled the judge presiding over the 17-year-old case could not order the district to add nine predominantly white schools to the mandatory busing list.

Egly had issued that order Friday after U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist turned down an emergency request from the school district to halt all mandatory busing here.

Egly's order was an attempt to replace at least some of the 20 other schools scratched from mandatory busing by the state Court of Appeal courts last week.

Middle East madness

A tempest is building in the Middle East that threatens the security of that entire region, in fact the entire world.

The smoldering resentment and hatred brewing in that region reached a new high last week when Syrian President Hafez Assad and Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy announced their agreement to form a unified government for the merger of the two nations.

A communique issued by the two leaders pledged the new nation would be the "tool of confrontation with the Zionist presence (Israel) and of the liberation of Palestine." In a second breath, the communique pledged opposition to the U.S.-sponsored Camp David peace process.

All that saber-rattling talk adds up to just one thing: An escalation of tensions in the tumultuous Middle East and the dimming prospect for peace.

Under the proposed merger, Libya's annual multibillion dollar oil income is expected to be used to help beef up Syria's military machine. Then those forces can be unleashed on Egypt and Israel.

Those two nations lie between Libya and Syria and separate the two by some 800 miles. That's one reason some observers have speculated that the chances are slim for a successful merger. Another is the fact that earlier plans by Khadafy to merge with Syria, Egypt and Tunisia ended in failure.

Within the next month Syria and Libya are expected to form a unified government to guide the newly-formed nation, which will boast a population of 11 million. The United States and other peace-loving nations of the world should monitor developments in that area closely in coming weeks. What transpires in the coming negotiations very well could determine the future involvement of the United States.

The communique issued by Assad and Khadafy heralded the formation of the fledgling state as a giant step forward for their two countries and the developing Middle East. We can't see it in that context.

It looks, rather, like another step backward from peace, another step forward for hatred and prejudice and a commitment to bringing the entire Middle East to war once again.

That's insanity beyond comprehension.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Meat-grader forced into early retirement

WASHINGTON — Bureaucratic nitpickers in Washington have pummeled one of the Agriculture Department's most conscientious employees onto the ropes, forcing him into retirement with a series of low blows.

The dedicated civil servant is John Coplin, former supervisor of meat grading for the Chicago region. For years he has been the scourge of crooked meat dealers who have robbed consumers of millions by falsely upgrading the cuts of meat they sell. He is everything the public could hope for in a public official.

But Coplin managed to antagonize his desk-bound superiors in the Agriculture Department, swamping them with memos detailing corrupt practices by meat industry fat cats. Apparently determined to silence their indefatigable "conscientious objector," the agency's top brass gave Coplin a poor performance rating and transferred him to Washington, where he could be more easily controlled.

Coplin decided to take his retirement rather than accept what he considers unfair and unwarranted treatment.

Incredibly, one of the points of attack against Coplin was his participation in a mislabeling case that was an outstanding victory for the government and the public.

Jack Anderson

With the approval of the department's inspector general, Coplin and 25 of his meat graders worked with the FBI in a massive raid on retail stores of Dominick's Finer Foods, a Chicago supermarket chain. They found that meat originally graded "Choice" by federal graders at the packing house had been sold as "Prime" by Dominick's. This allowed the stores to charge an extra 30 cents a pound to consumers on tons of mislabeled meat.

When Dominick's officials saw the staggering evidence arrayed against them, they entered guilty pleas and paid more than $200,000 in fines. They then held a huge sale of their meat products at bargain prices to recapture the good will of consumers they had cheated.

But even while the case was being pursued, the paper shufflers in Washington were sniping at Coplin. Far from encouraging his cooperation with the FBI, officials in the meat-grading division raised highly technical questions on the propriety of meat graders lending their expertise to the Justice Department in a criminal case.

And when the prosecution was settled successfully, Coplin's superiors reacted by charging him with exceeding his authority. They accused him of violating department regulations by grading retail meat cuts for the FBI. Department regulations restrict graders' activities to carcasses and large wholesale cuts.

Coplin denies having done this. But the charge was one of the items listed as justification for Coplin's lower performance rating.

Coplin has filed an appeal of his performance rating. He told my associate Tony Capaccio that if he wins his appeal, he'll return to public service and fight his dead-end transfer — as well as the crooked meat merchants.

SNUB TO BOLIVIA: It's traditional for a new ambassador to be invited to address the membership of the Organization of American States after his credentials are accepted. But the OAS permanent council snubbed the new Bolivian envoy, Alberto Quiroga, when he first appeared.

Quiroga was not asked to address the body. When he rose to speak, anyway, one fellow ambassador interrupted to charge that he was out of order, and another left the room until Quiroga had finished speaking. No questions were directed to the new ambassador after his speech.

WORKHORSE OR SHOWHORSE? House Republicans are already deep into the process of picking a new minority leader to replace John Rhodes of Arizona who said he would resign the post if the GOP didn't win a majority in the House in November. The choice has narrowed down to a legislative workhorse, Robert Michel of Illinois, and an oratorical showhorse, Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan.

At this point Michel has a commanding lead on the loyalties of his colleagues, who figure he'd be a hard-working Jerry Ford-type, willing to shoulder the complex but routine chores nobody wants. Vander Jagt is counting on his chairmanship of the GOP congressional campaign committee to close the gap. His distribution of campaign funds will net him some political IOUs.

JUSTICE DELAYS: In July of 1979, the House Assassinations Committee reported that President John Kennedy was "probably" killed as the result of a conspiracy. Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, the chairman, recently wrote the Justice Department asking when it planned to reveal what it has done or will do with the committee's findings. He reminded Justice that officials there had promised to proceed "promptly" the last time he had heard from them. That was nine months ago.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Sept. 15, the 259th day of 1980. There are 107 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Sept. 15, 1776, New York City was occupied by the British during the Revolutionary War.

On this date: In 1789, the Department of Foreign Affairs changed its name to the Department of State.

In 1938, British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain flew to Germany to try to mediate a German-Czechoslovakian dispute.

In 1942, German armies attacked the Soviet city of Stalingrad during World War II.

In 1959, Soviet Premier Nikita

Khrushchev arrived in Washington to begin a 13-day visit to the United States.

Ten years ago, an Italian jetliner split apart on landing at New York's Kennedy International Airport, but all 156 people aboard survived.

Five years ago, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat accused the Soviet Union and Syria of trying to divide the Arab world and isolate Egypt.

Last year, the financially crippled Chrysler Corp. presented the Carter administration with a detailed blueprint of how it would survive and how much government help it would need in order to do so.

Today's birthday: singer Bobby Short is 56 years old.

WASHINGTON JOURNAL:

Political fund-raising groups aiding Reagan's campaign

WASHINGTON — There on the television screen is a view of challenger Jimmy Carter debating President Gerald Ford four years ago.

"Remember 1976?" the narrator asks the viewer. "That's the year Jimmy Carter first asked us to trust him. Let's listen."

The screen fills with a closeup of Mr. Carter as he says, "We will have a balanced budget by fiscal year 1981 if I am elected president. I keep my promises to the American people."

The image of Mr. Carter speaking is frozen and the narrator says: "It sounded good at the time, but with Jimmy Carter in the White House, taxes and spending have reached record levels. The results: double-digit inflation, rising unemployment, massive federal deficits — and yet another broken promise."

"We trusted Jimmy Carter once. Can we really afford to trust him again?"

This and three similar television and radio commercials dealing with Mr. Carter's 1976 promises during the debates, concerning never raising taxes for working Americans, never give up control of the Panama Canal, and never letting U.S. military defenses weaken, will flood the airwaves beginning Sept. 24.

But most Americans won't see them. They have been designed specifically for an anti-Carter campaign in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and the Florida panhandle.

They also represent the most money likely to be spent by "independent" political committees working for Ronald Reagan's victory in November.

These political commercials and the strategy behind their content and placement have been designed by the National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC), a slick, modern money-raising and spending organization dedicated to rooting liberals out of elective office and replacing them with conservatives of either party.

NCPAC and the other pro-Reagan groups got a legal green light Aug. 28 when a three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals here ruled that groups as well as individuals may spend unlimited amounts helping or hindering federal candidates as long as there is no collusion between the independent groups and the candidates who benefit.

President Carter's campaign committee and Common Cause had filed suits arguing that the groups are not independent enough to satisfy the intent of the federal election law.

For example, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairs one of the groups, Americans for Reagan, and Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., chairs another, Americans for Change. Helms and Schmitt were Reagan delegates at the GOP convention in July.

Americans for an Effective Presidency, which, like Schmitt's and Helms' groups, was formed solely to aid Reagan's candidacy, is headed by Thomas Reed, a long-time Republican activist and director of Reagan's 1976 gubernatorial campaign in California.

The Fund for a Conservative Majority, which was created out of the Young Americans for Freedom (YAF), is directed by persons who have supported Reagan for years.

And NCPAC's pro-Reagan operation is directed by David Keene, who was the campaign political director for George Bush when Reagan's running mate was seeking the GOP nomination himself. Keene also was Reagan's 1976 campaign coordinator in the southern states.

But as long as no one in the Reagan-Bush campaign organization has contact with officials of these groups, spending money on Reagan's behalf,

He contended that Reagan will carry the West without much outside help, and, based on press reports, he noted that the Reagan campaign will commit much of its own resources to battling Mr. Carter in the Midwest and Northeast, as well as in Texas and the populous southern half of Florida.

That leaves the rest of the South where outside help might do some good. Writing off Georgia as Carter country, and counting on Sen. Helms to direct his group's resources toward helping Reagan in North Carolina, Keene focused on Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and the northern Florida panhandle.

Mr. Carter came close to losing the three states to Ford in 1976, Keene said, "and he can't guarantee them" this year.

So a successful NCPAC effort to draw some of Mr. Carter's 1976 supporters away from the president would deny Mr. Carter a secure southern base, "which would upset the entire rhythm of his campaign."

Wrote Keene in July: "The target group in all these states should be comprised of white Democrats and independents. The Republicans are going to go with Reagan anyway, but the Democrats may need a push. Besides, these people ought to be particularly open to a NCPAC-type appeal."

"They're concentrated in small towns and rural areas served by affordable television stations and they listen to radio in large numbers."

"Moreover, to be honest, they will respond to less sophisticated media than their wealthier northern cousins."

Yet, Keene acknowledged in an interview, the radio and television commercials he's prepared for the pro-Reagan effort are mild compared to the normal slashing attack normally favored by NCPAC's Chairman, Terry Dolan.

The NCPAC ads will remind the potential swing voters "that Jimmy Carter as president hasn't done what Jimmy Carter as candidate said he would do."

no matter how much or how sophisticated, is not barred by law.

When these groups first made their intentions known, they claimed they would raise many millions of dollars, with estimates ranging up to $30 million. That is equal to the $29.4 million both the Carter and Reagan campaigns will receive from the federal government.

Since accepting federal campaign funds bars the candidates from raising additional money, efforts such as those on Reagan's behalf could give him a substantial advantage over Mr. Carter.

But it now appears that the original estimates were a bit high.

Schmitt's group, for example, continues to claim it will raise between $3 million and $5 million. But, according to its director, Brad O'Leary, the total to date is $300,000. Keene says Americans for Change will do well to raise a total of $700,000.

NCPAC, the most skilled of the groups at raising money for conservative political causes, thanks to its founder, direct-mail wizard Richard Viguerie, hopes to raise a total of $750,000 to pay for its pro-Reagan campaign in the South.

Keene says NCPAC so far has "a couple of hundred thousand" toward that goal.

Keene, in a memo drafted for NCPAC in July, made his case for focusing NCPAC's pro-Reagan resources in a certain piece of the South.

CHARLEY REESE
Stance on South Africa
hypocritical, dangerous

Charley Reese

Among the more stupid things some Americans have done is to allow themselves to be suckered into supporting the Soviet Union's propaganda campaign to overthrow the government of South Africa.

South Africa has been a faithful ally of the West. From our own selfish point of view, it is one of the most critically important nations in the world. To replace the present government with a Marxist regime or to drive the present government into a position of neutrality in the Cold War would be a catastrophic disaster for the American people.

South Africa is to strategic minerals and metals what the Persian Gulf states are to oil. If South Africa slapped a minerals and metals embargo on the United States, the oil embargo of 1973 would seem like a holiday by comparison.

The excuse that is used to justify the absurd hostility to South Africa is the racial policy called apartheid. Apartheid, of course, is segregation of the races by law — exactly what we in the United States practiced in the South until the 1954 Supreme Court decision and the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

I believe it is a red herring. It doesn't make sense for Americans to be more incensed over segregation in South Africa than they were over segregation in our own country. We still have segregation in fact if not in law.

I don't approve of laws based on race. Neither do most white South Africans. Over the years, the South Africans have gradually changed their laws. There is no evidence whatsoever that the government of South Africa is not sincere in its efforts to move toward a more equitable society. It is already the most democratic and most humane country on the African continent as well as the most powerful and prosperous.

We did not solve our racial problems overnight and the South Africans have a vastly more complex problem than we do. Our blacks were duplicates of whites with the same language, the same customs and the same religion. South Africa's blacks are people with different cultures, different religions, different customs, and different languages.

Nor is South Africa analogous to other African nations which were European colonies. South Africa has never been a colony. The whites settled in an empty land and their claim to the land is as legitimate as the claim of any black African. Unlike white Rhodesians, South Africans have no other country.

By joining in the Soviet-inspired propaganda campaign, we accomplish nothing of value. We aid our enemy. We betray loyal friends. We injure our own national interest. We help push the people of South Africa, both black and white, toward a blood-bath which is the communist goal. We give aid to extremists and we betray moderates.

The main source of the anti-South African campaign is the Soviet Union, its agents and its sympathizers. The Soviets obviously intend to capture the whole of the southern African continent with its huge resources of chrome, gold, uranium, cobalt, titanium, manganese and other minerals and metals without which a modern industrial nation cannot function. It also wants to put Soviet naval bases on the South African coast since most of the West's oil must sail past the Cape of Good Hope.

Another source of hostility is the cabal of cheap politicians, international bankers and State Department leftists who, believing South Africa will be overcome, are catering to the black extremists in the hope of making deals with them.

As usual, they are stupid. South Africa, which can mobilize an army of 400,000 trained men, is not likely to go under, but even if it did, the new government would certainly be Marxist and loyal to the Soviets, not to us.

The humane and sensible attitude of Americans should be one of helpfulness and encouragement. We should stop being shrill and self-righteous. We should oppose those silly leftists who lobby for economic sanctions. We should oppose the communist lynch mob in the United Nations instead of aiding it.

After all, it is hypocritical in the extreme to praise Red Chinese butchers, lend communists $80 billion, and talk of applying sanctions against the last, humane and democratic ally in southern Africa.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

John Anderson should definitely not be included in the Carter-Reagan debate. He should be moderator.

Jimmy Carter knows that politics is the art of compromise. Therefore, he should at least consent to holding the debate with Ronald Reagan while John Anderson's voice is piped in from an isolation booth offstage.

Anderson must convince the voters that he has supporters other than those who wear suede elbow patches, smoke pipes and watch the Dick Cavett Show while nibbling quiche in the dens of their frame houses in North-eastern college towns.

In short, Anderson badly needs more voters who bowl.

 Ramsey Clark: "There was a little cupola thing down there, like a small bandstand. He stood up in that. And what he did — it struck me even as a kid as being the corniest thing I'd ever seen — he took his hat off and said, 'I throw my hat in the ring.' Wow! He probably had a $25 Stetson on or something, and he sailed it out into the air."
 Lyndon's campaign theme, he said that night, was peace, preparedness, and progress. He was against selfish labor, and he was against selfish capital. He was, to be sure, for leaving to the state those things "which are state functions, such as civil rights."
 Former governor Coke Stevenson was Lyndon's major opponent. The primary was held on July 24, and Stevenson was ahead from the beginning. Eventually, he had 477,877 votes. Lyndon had 405,617, and a third candidate, George Peddy, had 237,195.

 Peddy withdrew the next day and there were those who thought Lyndon would and should do that, too. He did not. Instead, he forced a runoff vote for the nomination.
 PERHAPS HE THOUGHT THAT since he was going to turn 40 next month, after which he would have no future anyway, he might as well go for broke. Besides, while Lyndon was always indecisive about entering a race, once he was in, there was never any question but that he would stay.
 Lady Bird: "That 1948 campaign was one that didn't end. It just went on and on. Ordinarily, on the morning of the primary's over, you breathe a sigh of relief, you've won and the other race is just formality. But this time, there was the runoff and then one crisis after another right on up to the swearing in in January 1949."
 T. Kellis Dibrell, a lawyer and supporter of Coke Stevenson: "On Saturday night (after the runoff) we all went to sleep thinking Coke was the winner. Then Sunday night I received a call from Coke," who was worried about some changes in the vote tally, especially in south Texas.
 Most of south Texas, notably Duval and Jim Wells counties, was controlled by the parr machine, which always backed Stevenson; that is, until Coke refused to appoint a particular man, blatantly inappropriate, as district attorney. The man had been recommended by George Parr.
 George E. Reedy: "Now you must understand that Parr would give the voters three names — two that were essential to him as boss and dictator, and another for somebody he wanted to do a favor, or perhaps the opponent of someone he wanted to get even with, as in this case. Ideology had nothing to do with it. Parr would have supported WHOEVER was on the other side. The fact that it was Lyndon in 1948 was incidental."
 FOR DAYS THE VOTE TALLY seesawed back and forth, with Ste-

Lyndon B. Johnson, newly elected Democratic County chairman, one Harry Lee Adams, to prevail upon the previous incumbent weeks but in the end Lyndon prevailed and was certified as the Democratic nominee.

 He went on to win in November. Not that his victory tied up the loose ends. The various ramifications of the 1948 election would continue to plague Lyndon in one form or another until his death and even after it because no one could prove anything. Senate investigators looked into the matter in 1948, but critical persons were not around; necessary evidence had gone up in smoke. Literally.
 Creekmore Fath, a political adversary of Johnson: "When I got to be friends with Tom Miller, who was mayor of Austin, I said, 'Tom, who really won the 1948 election?' He said, 'Well, I'll tell you. We were picking up votes in East Texas. Only God knows who actually won the election, but I suspect that Coke was stealing as many votes as we were.'
 "I've always accepted what Tom said, that both sides were stealing, and Lyndon won. And hell, he was, I suppose, a somewhat better senator than Coke would have been."

Hugh Sidney, journalist: "My whole experience as a journalist was that Johnson was outrageous in some of the devices he used. He would lie, beg, cheat, steal a little, threaten, intimidate, but he never lost sight of the ultimate goal and he never violated the law, to the best of my knowledge, to achieve it..."

Man, 81, kills three, attempts suicide

SEATTLE (AP) — Authorities say a retired professor apparently killed his wife and two other relatives, then tried to take his own life.
 Garland O. Ethel, 81, was in critical condition early today at Harborview Medical Center.
 Police were called to Ethel's northeast Seattle home early Sunday morning by a man who said he had just killed his family and that he would be dead when officers arrived.
 "He said he would leave the front door unlocked," said Sgt. Don Cameron.
 When police arrived they found Ethel just inside the front door. He was sprawled on the floor with gunshot wound to his head. Police found a .45-caliber pistol at the scene.
 Each of the victims apparently was killed by a single gunshot to the head, police said.
 The dead were identified as Ethel's wife, Clarissa, 76, her sister, Jane H. Running, 69, and

Lubbock shooting kills one

LUBBOCK (AP) — A Lubbock man died early Sunday morning from a shotgun blast fired by a 78-year-old man who told police he thought someone was trying to break into his home.
 Pedro Martinez, Jr., 35, was pronounced dead on arrival at Lubbock General. An autopsy showed he had been struck by about 75 pellets in the chest, shoulder and throat, police said.
 Three men also were wounded in the incident.
 The case will be turned over to the district attorney's office today, police said.
 Justice of the Peace Wayne LaCroix has ruled the death a homicide, the city's 25th this year.
 The man told police he was awakened by people fighting outside his front door, heard gunshots and then telephoned police.
 After he called police, he said he heard glass breaking. He grabbed his shotgun and fired three times, once toward the ceiling and twice through the front door, he told officers.
 Also wounded were Israel Espinoza, 23; Guadalupe Enriquez, 30; and Leo Bardia Garcia, 38.

Redistricting hearing set

A public hearing on state legislative and congressional redistricting will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday in City Hall Council Chambers, 300 N. Lorraine St. In charge will be the Committee on Regions, Compacts and Districts of the Texas House of Representatives.

State Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, will chair the committee, which is charged with preparing for state legislative and congressional redistricting which will occur during the 1981 session of the Texas Legislature.

"The purpose of this hearing is to receive individuals' and organizations' testimony on the redistricting of state house and U.S. Congressional districts in the hearing area," said Von Dohlen. "As Texas is subject to the federal Voting Rights Act, the committee is particularly interested in testimony concerning the effect of redistricting on racial or language minorities in the area."

He stressed the following issues would be important for the committee's consideration in presenting testimony:

- Changes in an area or district's population base.
- Location of industrial and commercial development over the past 10 years.

—Dissatisfaction with present district boundaries and desired boundary changes.

—Location of distinct communities of interest or neighborhoods that should remain or be unified.

—Explanations of identifiable community or regional interests.

—Anticipated effect of redistricting changes on members of racial or language minority groups in the area, including population estimates, population distribution, voting age population and number of registered voters and history of elections in the area involving Black, Hispanic or other minority candidates.

The Midland hearing is the third in a series to be held statewide this fall.

Members of the committee include vice chairman Gerald Hill of Austin, Leroy Wieting of Portland, Hugo Berlanga of Corpus Christi, Reby Cary of Fort Worth, Bill Clark of Tyler, Ed Emmett of Kingwood, Buck Florence of Hughes Springs, Paul Ragsdale of Dallas, Chris Semos of Dallas, Gary Thompson of Abilene, Hector Uribe of Brownsville and Bob Ware of Fort Worth.

Coup stems political bloodbath

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The political bloodbath between left-wing and right-wing extremists that took as many as 25 lives a day has been stemmed, at least temporarily, by the coup led by Turkey's military chief three days ago.

Terrorist bullets reportedly have taken only one life since the armed forces seized power on Friday. Informed sources said an army captain died in a gun battle late Saturday while leading his troops against suspected leftists in the south-central city of Adana. Two leftists were wounded and an unspecified number captured, the sources said.

Troops fanned out Sunday in house-to-house searches for terrorists in Ankara and suburban Istanbul and witnesses reported a number of suspects rounded up. It was not known how many persons were detained, but the military government reported the arrest of 182 terrorists in the eastern province of Elazig.

Also on Sunday, Alpaslan Turkes, the fugitive leader of the ultra-rightist National Action Party, turned himself in to authorities only hours before a deadline set by the ruling National Security Council for his surrender, the state radio said.

Turkes, a former colonel, was the only major political leader to escape arrest and detention in the roundup that followed the coup. Radio Ankara said he was flown to a military post on an island in the Aegean Sea where the chairman of the fundamentalist Moslem National Salvation Party, Necmettin Erbakan, was being held.

Violence between ultra-nationalists, such as Turkes' followers, and leftist factions has taken an estimated 5,000 lives in the past five years, including 2,000 so far this year. It was this factional bloodshed and the civilian government's inability to quell it that prompted Gen. Kenan Evren, the 62-year-old chief of staff, to stage Turkey's third military coup in 20 years.

Evren also disbanded Parliament, abolished the constitution and banned all political parties.

Signup procedures set for free Polish unions

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist government announced registration procedures for the free trade unions won by the strikers, and Roman Catholic church officials reported that the state radio will begin broadcasting Sunday Masses next week.

The official PAP news agency said Sunday that union organizers have to register with city courts. It said they must submit a list of their "activists" and their addresses, the "framework of the union's activities" and other details.

PAP said the courts can reject applications by groups it considers "hostile to socialist Poland and the constitution," or if the proposed organization appears "inconsistent with the law."

The agency also said until new labor laws are adopted by Parliament in December, present procedures for the official union organization — the Central Council of Trade Unions — will remain in effect.

Some union organizers had said they were awaiting clarification of registration procedures before completing work on such details as the structure, membership and bylaws of their organizations.

Free trade unions and greater access to the media by the church were among the concessions won by the strikers who paralyzed much of Poland last month with mass walkouts beginning in the Baltic port of Gdansk.

The strikers said they wanted new union structures free of government and party control, and that the Central Council of Trade Unions controlled by the Communist Party looked after the interests of the government, not of the workers.

Dissidents said since the Gdansk settlement was reached, workers in 75 enterprises in Nowa Huta and 29 in Bielsko-Biala have formed regional federations of free unions. Nowa Huta, a steel-making center regarded as a model of socialist technology, and Bielsko-Biala are in southern Poland.

Cronkite voted 'most trusted' newscaster

NEW YORK (AP) — They don't have much faith in politicians and religious leaders, but many of the 1,000 American women who answered a magazine survey said they do trust in God and Walter Cronkite.

Cronkite, the CBS Evening News anchorman, was chosen as "most trusted" newscaster by 40 percent of those surveyed by Ladies Home Journal.

He had no close competition, ac-ording to the women — randomly selected from subscribers to the magazine — who were asked to name those "most trusted" in various categories.

According to the survey, 31 percent of the women picked "none" when asked which newscasters they trusted. John Chancellor got 5 percent and Dan Rather, Cronkite's successor, received 4 percent.

The top vote-getter among political figures was "none" with 43 percent. Former President Gerald Ford was most trusted by 11 percent. President Carter by 10 percent and Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan by 4 percent.

Pope John Paul II was most trusted by 26 percent of the women, according to the survey in the October issue. But 36 percent replied "none" when asked to name their most trusted religious leaders, 6 percent named Billy Graham and 3 percent named God.

However, God scored a plus-60 rating for trust over the past decade. That rating was obtained by subtracting the percentage who said their trust in God had decreased from the percentage who said it had increased.

In other categories, computers got a plus-2 rating, but everything else got negative ratings. The worst was for Congress with a minus-81; followed by auto manufacturers, minus-71; state government, minus-64; nuclear power plant operators, minus-60; the president, minus-55, and the courts, minus-54.

The magazine also gave the women a list of 17 occupations and asked them what sex they most trusted in those jobs.

Most said they trusted professionals of both sexes equally, except for electricians, airline pilots and police officers, where they preferred men.

The remaining respondents said they had more faith in men than in women, except when it comes to nurses, first-grade teachers and secretaries.

Gail Russell, Region Director 1-B of the Jaycee-Ettes, Barbara Barnett, president of Midland's Jaycee-Ettes, and Cathy Murphy, Today's Woman national chairman, prepare programs for the coming year of the local organization. Mrs. Murphy was awarded Outstanding Chairwoman by the Texas Jaycee-Ettes for her chairmanship of the Today's Woman program on the state level during 1979-80 and was recently notified of her nomination to the list of Outstanding Young Women in America. In addition to Today's Woman, the local Jaycee-Ettes are also participating in the S.I.S.T.E.R. project which involves corresponding with the Jaycee-Ette chapter in Pomona, Calif. (Staff Photo)

Artist becoming more famous for tax protest than work

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Famed Arizona-born artist Ted DeGrazia, whose angry protests of tax treatment of artists have gained him almost as much attention as his gentle, ethereal trademark paintings of Indian children, says he doesn't paint for posterity.

"I want to be remembered as a human being," he said. "I don't paint for tomorrow."

The comments came as he signed his autograph in gold — for posterity — for about the 250th time. He was halfway through the task of autographing 500 ceramic dinner bells at a Tempe company, Sandstone Creations.

Sandstone, which makes Southwestern-oriented stationery and gift items for marketing through gift and department stores across the country, is using DeGrazia's "Little Prayer" painting of an angel as the design for a limited edition of 7,500 bells.

DeGrazia said he wasn't burning any more paintings — "It's too hot."

But, he said, he's still angry with the government tax officials and is storing paintings in caves in the Superstition Mountains.

"Nobody knows where they are but me," he said. "If they can't see 'em, they're not there, are they?"

DeGrazia set a torch to some of his paintings to protest the inequities of a tax system which, he said, only allows an artist to deduct the price of materials for a work he gives to charity, "but when you die, they want 50 percent of the paintings you have left."

"Nothing protects the artists in this country," DeGrazia added. "In Europe, Ireland, even the Far East, they like artists. But not here."

"The art world is such a tough racket," he said as he continued to sign bells with a gold cerama-pen. "It takes so long to get there, an artist is just getting good when he's ready to die."

He started painting when he was young and "I was gray when I hit it big," he said. "I quit painting when I was painting for dollars ... I like to do art work because I want to, not because somebody else wants to pay me for it."

DeGrazia himself likes to be alone: "I'm a hermit," he said. "I don't like public things."

He comes from three or four generations of miners.

But "in 1932, I was 23, the mines were closing (in the Depression) and the camps wanted miners to get out, so I left ..."

He learned to paint in Mexico and knows that country better than he knows the United States, he said: "I was born in the era of Pancho Villa — that's the kind of thing I relate to."

He says he also relates to New Mexico, where he is in the process of building a home. "I like New Mexico better than Arizona. The pace is slower. I relate to a slower pace."

America leading in Western clothing

WATERTOWN, Conn. (AP) — "America has brought fashion democracy to the world by the seat of its jeans," says a man who is firmly attached to the international apparel scene.

Roger Hall, executive of a company that makes snap fasteners, zippers, burrs and tack buttons for Western-style clothes, recently completed a four-continent survey on clothing attitudes. The study shows the native American jean, born in the cattle and mining country and glorified in countless Western films, continues to increase its impact on people all over the world.

"The Western look may well be our most successful export," says Hall, of Scovill's Apparel Fasteners division here. "This year fabric manufacturers expect to produce 770 million square yards of denim, enough to cover the entire island of Guam — plus Reno, Nev."

The survey confirms that, far from peaking, the Western look promises to remain the universal fashion of the '80s. Hundreds of millions of denim jeans have infiltrated the Philippines, Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia, Hong Kong and Korea. Hall says that in Japan "where fashion magazines serve as a 'bible' for young people, designer signature jeans are the essential garment."

Jeans have also come out on top "down under" where, says Hall, cattle raising and farming are major industries that attract Australians and New Zealanders to Western apparel.

South of the border, the popularity of Western shirts and denims has not waned in Mexico, Guatemala, Venezuela, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Cuba.

New $27.5 million concert hall opening in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The contrast is startling. On one side of the street is the Gothic, gray Opera House. On the other, towering windows and sheer white walls gleaming in the summer fog, is the Louise M. Davies Symphony Hall.

The imposing structure, just a block from City Hall, will shelter its first public performance Tuesday night, with maestro Edo de Waart at the podium, pianist Rudolf Serkin among the performers and all 3,000 seats crowded with high society and high rollers, each of whom paid $250 to $1,000 to attend a moment in civic history.

The $27.5 million edifice is named in honor of 80-year-old Louise Davies, a symphony lover and widow of millionaire Ralph Davies.

"My husband left me a lot of money and I wanted to do something with it in one piece," she says of the $5 million she contributed to the project. A coalition of private foundations, corporate sponsors and wealthy donors raised the rest.

"It's like going from high school to college, from a Volkswagen to a Rolls-Royce," says de Waart, the 39-year-old Dutch-born conductor.

Opening night, which will be broadcast nationally on public television, will feature the world premiere of Pulitzer Prize-winner David Del Tredici's "Happy Voices," Berlioz' Roman Carnival Overture, Mendelssohn's Piano Concerto No. 1 and Beethoven's Symphony No. 5.

Some say the symphony's 200,000-square-foot new home, designed by Skidmore, Owings & Merrill of San Francisco and Pietro Belluschi of Portland, Ore., will make San Francisco the West's symphony showcase. But de Waart is simply grateful that he and his 100 musicians finally have a home of their own.

"We are the hall's main reason for being," he says. "We were a guest in another house until now. I'm not knocking the opera house. But opera sounds better in there. Don't ask me why."

Symphony musicians also are excited to finally have a hall of their own. They, too, complained that the opera house was not built for symphony concerts.

DEAR ABBY Husband's shift sets off wife's siren

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a policeman, working the graveyard shift (from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.). I'm not very happy about this setup, but I've accepted it. What really bothers me is this. About three months ago a woman partner was assigned to work with him. (Squad car duty.) I've met her. She's cute, single, bright and funny, and I object strenuously.

I've asked my husband to request a male partner, explaining that I find it difficult to sleep nights knowing that he is riding around all night with another woman, but he refuses to put in a request without giving me any reasons for his refusal.

Abby, I admit I'm jealous, but how many other women would like their husbands riding around every night with another woman—just the two of them with a lot of boredom?

We have a good marriage otherwise, but I don't feel like lying awake nights for the rest of my life. What should I do?—JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: Quit nagging your husband. And quit viewing that "cute, single, bright, funny" partner who works with your husband as a threat to your marriage. She's not. She's an intelligent, courageous, hard-working police officer who had to go through the same rigorous training as your husband in order to qualify for the job. And if you really believe there's a lot of boredom in police work, ask your husband if you can ride along one night, and you'll soon learn his job is no joyride.

DEAR ABBY: I am Jewish, 33, was raised in the Jewish faith and had the bar mitzvah when I was 13. However, I do not attend services except on the high holy days once a year.

Last year I fell in love with a wonderful gentle girl. Connie is 19 and an atheist. I want to marry her, and out of respect to my parents I want to be married in our synagogue by the rabbi who has been a family friend for many years. The problem is, the rabbi can't marry us unless Connie converts to Judaism.

She is willing, and even agrees to raise our children in the Jewish faith providing I become a practicing Jew! She says if she takes the Jewish faith she will follow it, but she's not going to be the only Jew in the family. This means attending services every Friday night and observing all the holidays.

What do you think?—DAVID
DEAR DAVID: I think she's terrific. Grab her!

DEAR ABBY: You have printed letters from telephone operators, salespeople, secretaries, doctors, waitresses, etc., so how about one from postal branch managers and window clerks?

When someone calls us and says, "I am going on vacation; please hold my mail," please don't get mad if I ask for something in writing, as my station serves over 65,000 people, and I don't know everyone personally.

If there are two people ahead of you in line, please don't yell if I don't open another window. Chances are I don't have another clerk to wait on you, and my boss thinks I have too many employees as it is.

If you pound on the door after we're closed, please don't cuss me out if I don't let you in. Our business hours are posted, and you can't get into a bank after it is closed.

One more thing. If we have a blizzard this winter and nobody can get to work, please don't get mad if your delivery is late, or you don't get one. My mail carriers do not drive snowplows.

If the price of postage keeps going up, please don't blame me. I only work here. Be a pal, Abby, and print this.—OFF MY CHEST IN INDIANA

DEAR OFF: That's the least I can do for the Postal Service. Look at what it's done for ME!

I'm bowled over by the weight I lost at Pat Walker's: 32 pounds!

Shirley Brenk's True Story:

I don't know where my weight came from, but I guess my snacking had a lot to do with it. At 161 pounds, I really had big hips and thighs, and about three rolls around my middle. Skipping breakfast didn't seem to help. Even my bowling wasn't improving my figure.

One day, at the trucking company where I work, I was talking to a trucker's wife. She used to be very fat, and I couldn't believe how much weight she had lost. When she told me she'd been going to Pat Walker's, I went right on over and started my own weight loss program.

Now, with Pat Walker's passive exercise treatments, I'm down to 129 and, for my 5'9 1/2", that's almost perfect. (One of the truck drivers told me that I'm as slim as a model!) Pat Walker's taught me the right way to eat, too—I eat a good, big breakfast now, and feel much better for it.

I really recommend Pat Walker's. Look what they did for me!

Feuding families have shootout

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — As shoppers dove for cover, two families from the north Georgia hill country fired and slashed away at each other in a shopping center parking lot in the latest incident in a longstanding quarrel between the two, police say.

Five family members were wounded in the Saturday afternoon shootout, police said. One woman, wife of critically wounded Eddie Joe Ledford, 35, of Dahlonega, was unharmed as the families tangled with shotguns, pistols and knives, according to authorities.

The gun battle, which forced shoppers to scramble from the path of bullets, shotgun pellets and flying glass, was the result of a "domestic quarrel," between the Ledfords and the Frees of Gainesville, 20 miles south of Dahlonega, said Detective Tommy Mefferd of the Hall County sheriff's department.

It was the first time weapons more serious than a baseball bat were used, Mefferd said.

"It definitely was a premeditated meeting. Both parties showed up. Both parties took guns. It didn't just accidentally happen," he said.

"A lot of shots were fired. The (Frees) car was shot up. The barbershop was shot up," but no one else was hurt, he said.

Mefferd said members of each family swore out aggravated assault warrants against all three members of the other family.

The detective said he didn't know what started the trouble, which allegedly has included slashed tires, rocks thrown through windows and "Scottie Free broke Eddie Joe's arm with a ball bat last year."

Although warrants have been sworn out before, none has resulted in a jail term, Mefferd said.

According to the detective, when the Frees arrived Saturday, the Ledfords were waiting.

"Supposedly Steve Free was going to call the sheriff when supposedly Eddie Joe fired first and blew the glass out of the barber shop door and window, injuring Free with flying glass," Mefferd said.

Then, apparently, Scottie Free, who is in his 20s, fired his .38-caliber pistol at his father's assailant and Steve Free pulled a .38 and fired at Eddie Joe, Mefferd said.

Ten pistol shots were fired and Ledford allegedly got off two blasts from his old bolt-action shotgun before going down with bullet wounds in the stomach and foot, Mefferd said.

Mefferd said Eddie Joe's wife, Lora Ann, 20, allegedly stabbed Steve Free's wife, Lavonne, in the arm.

"Then there was a scuffle and the Ledfords got loaded up into their Pontiac Trans Am and got off to the hospital," Mefferd said. During the scuffle, Ledford's grandfather, Ernest, 70, was struck on the head with a pistol and suffered a possible fracture, he said.

The Frees were waiting and turned over their pistols when police arrived. The Ledfords were apprehended at a hospital, Mefferd said.

All but Eddie Joe were treated for injuries and released.

"I'm going to take it to court and let them prosecute each other."

Five children injured by bolt of lightning

BREESE, Ill. (AP) — Five children were hospitalized, two in critical condition, after a bolt of lightning "came out of nowhere" and struck a soccer field, injuring 11 people, officials said.

Three other children were hospitalized in satisfactory condition Sunday night after they were struck during a youth Tri-County League soccer match at a Mater Dei High School field. All the youths are from nearby Lebanon.

One of the children stopped breathing but was saved when spectators applied cardio-pulmonary resuscitation before ambulances arrived, authorities added.

Witnesses said the lightning "came out of nowhere" as the youths played under overcast skies. By the time ambulances arrived, a dreaching rainstorm swept through area.

Brett Morley, 9, was in "very critical" condition after being transferred to Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital in St. Louis, a hospital spokesman said.

Also in critical condition was Ronald Dann, 11. A third child hospitalized in St. Louis, Shawn Fossey, 9, improved Sunday and was in satisfactory condition, the hospital added.

Two other children were in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Clinton County Hospital and a third child was discharged.

An ambulance driver said the Morley boy suffered the most serious injuries when the lightning struck him directly. The bolt left marks where it had entered his chest and exited through his left foot, he said.

Middle East diplomats for new talks in U.S.

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—Senior diplomats from Egypt and Israel are en route to New York today for talks aimed at setting a date for resumption of the stalled Palestinian autonomy negotiations.

Sunday and stopped in Geneva for the night. Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said he was carrying a document spelling out Egypt's terms for resuming the autonomy talks it suspended last month in a row with Israel over East Jerusalem. There was no word on the contents of the document. Ghali was to discuss it with Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali, who is in the United States for medical treatment, before presenting it to U.S. officials later this week and to the Israelis at a later date.

Ghali is to meet with U.S. representatives Tuesday or Wednesday. He is to confer with Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir while they are in New York for the opening of the U.N. General Assembly next week.

Shamir left Tel Aviv for New York early today. He visited Egypt last week and was the first top Israeli official to do so since last spring.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat broke off the autonomy talks after the Israeli Parliament passed a law in July declaring unified Jerusalem the eternal capital of the Jewish state. Sadat complained that the law removed East Jerusalem, the Arab sector of the city until Israel took it from Jordan in 1967.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

I know God's secret

DEAR brothers, even when I first came to you I didn't use lofty words and brilliant ideas to tell you God's message. For I decided that I would speak only of Jesus Christ and His death on the cross.

I came to you in weakness—timid and trembling. And my preaching was very plain, not with a lot of oratory and human wisdom, but the Holy Spirit's power was in my words, proving to those who heard them that the message was from God.

I did this because I wanted your faith to stand firmly upon God, not on man's great ideas.

Yet when I am among mature Christians I do speak with words of great wisdom, but not the kind that comes from here on earth, and not the kind that appeals to the great men of this world, who are doomed to fail.

Our words are wise because they are from God, telling of God's wise plan to bring us into the glories of heaven. This plan was hidden in former times, though it was made for our benefit before the world began.

But the great men of the world have not understood it, if they had, they never would have crucified the Lord of Glory.

That is what is meant by the Scriptures which say that no mere man has ever seen, heard or even imagined what wonderful things God has ready for those who love the Lord.

But we know about these things because God has sent His Spirit to tell us, and His Spirit searches out and shows us all of God's deepest secrets.

Four governors predict Carter will edge Reagan in their states

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—The non-political Southern Governors Conference took off with informal political discussions on whether a former member could take this region in his fight for re-election to the White House.

Of the five state governors who attended Sunday night's opening social reception, two (Mississippi and Oklahoma) predicted their states would go to President Carter after a close race, two (North and South Carolina) said Carter would overtake current sentiment for Republican Ronald Reagan and one (Virginia) put his state directly in Reagan's camp.

Formal business was opening today with a session on energy, but just as association chairman and host Virginia Gov. John Dalton predicted, election talk dominated the casual get-togethers. "I'm certain all the governors will be talking about the campaign, but I doubt it will get out on the floor," said Dalton, head of one of only two association member states to reject Carter four years ago. Oklahoma was the other.

Dalton gave odds on Texas, Florida and Tennessee joining Virginia in choosing Reagan.

Gov. Richard W. Riley of South Carolina is calling a close race in his state but predicts a strong undercurrent of support for the president will show up by Nov. 4.

"The closer you get to the election date, the more sobering the consideration. I think that gravitates toward Carter's favor," said Riley, Carter's South Carolina campaign manager in 1976.

North Carolina will also see a close race, according to Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., but one that will eventually go to Carter.

"The president is trusted and respected. Our people identify with Carter," said Hunt. "The average working person thinks, 'He's one of us.'"

The Democratic governors of Mississippi and Oklahoma said the GOP candidate leads there at the moment but predicted Carter would overtake Reagan by November.

Carter aide takes leave amid drug allegations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tim Kraft, who as President Carter's national campaign manager has run the day-to-day details of Carter's re-election effort, is taking a "leave of absence" amid an investigation into allegations he used cocaine.

Kraft said in a statement issued Sunday that he is "completely innocent of the charges," which reportedly are being investigated by a special prosecutor.

But, he added, "I have concluded that I can best serve the president and avoid political exploitation of the false charges against me by taking a leave of absence from the campaign."

"I have not worked hard for President Carter for the past six years just to become a subject of political controversy in the final six weeks of his re-election campaign," Kraft said.

Kraft, 39, worked as a White House aide before joining the re-election effort and is the third high-level Carter aide to be com- pletely involved in a drug controversy.

He worked directly under — and at one point shared a house with — Hamilton Jordan, who was accused of using cocaine at New York's Studio 54 discotheque.

A special prosecutor, Arthur Christy of New York, found there was not sufficient evidence to prosecute Jordan on cocaine charges, and Kraft mentioned in his statement that it was Christy's investigation which led to the allegations against him.

He said they grew out of an "investigation by a previous special prosecutor into allegations against Hamilton Jordan which after a protracted investigation were proven to be baseless."

Sen. Russell Long and his ecstatic wife, Carolyn, greet the crowd during a victory celebration in Baton Rouge, La., Saturday night after Long was re-elected to a sixth term

Government may change mileage rating methods

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's fuel-economy figures for new cars, criticized for years by motorists who say they don't reflect reality, may be overhauled. The Environmental Protection Agency is considering various formulas to adjust the laboratory test figures downward and better reflect what a driver can expect on the road. EPA officials say they have not decided how much the figures should be reduced, but they hope to issue notice of a proposed rule change in the next few weeks.

Critics say the effort is long overdue. An Energy Department study of the actual mileage drivers got showed the EPA ratings for 1978 model cars were 21 percent too high. Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., issuing his own report on the ratings, said they were "more myth than reality." "Some of the disparity can be blamed on the auto companies that exploit every loophole and in a few cases may be cheating outright, but much of the blame has to be laid at the doors of the EPA," Aspin said. "The public is being misled and the worst thing is that it's the federal government doing the misleading."

leads to inflated figures since rough roads, wind resistance and other weather factors aren't present to reduce mileage. But the EPA maintains it is necessary to test the cars in the laboratory to get a uniformity of results. Aspin's report also attacks the EPA tests because fuel consumption is not measured directly but by an indirect sampling of exhaust emissions. He said this analysis can exaggerate fuel economy by 4 percent.

But Gregg Dana, an EPA official who works in the fuel-test program, defended the exhaust method, which compares carbon levels in the fuel with levels in the exhaust to determine gasoline mileage. He said the method gives an accurate reading and also provides the agency with information on emission levels, the principal reason the agency runs the tests. But Dana said EPA was considering using various formulas to shrink the laboratory mileage number to one that would more accurately reflect road conditions.

If a proper procedure can be determined, the agency hopes to substitute that number when mileage figures for the 1982 models are released in September 1981. Such a change would be certain to meet stiff opposition from the auto industry, which bases multimillion-dollar advertising campaigns on the mileage figures each year. The EPA in 1979 stopped releasing both a city and highway mileage estimate in favor of just the city figure because it felt the lower number would better reflect what motorists could hope to achieve.

Sen. Long, loser trading pot shot

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sen. Russell Long, D-La., re-elected to a seventh term, has accused his principal opponent of making "racist" allegations during his concession speech. The opponent, Democratic state Rep. Louis "Woody" Jenkins of Baton Rouge, denied he was a racist said Long was overreacting. Jenkins said after losing Saturday's election that Long spent $200,000 to pay for support from black political groups. Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, acknowledged spending more than $1 million to retain the seat he has held since 1948. But he said at a Sunday news conference that Jenkins remarks were

"injecting racism in the campaign." "Those sorts of comments are a disgrace to our democracy. I'm proud to have all Americans vote for me." Contacted in Baton Rouge, Jenkins said, "It is amazing to me that it is impossible to question Long's unethical campaign practices without being subject to character assassination." "I deny that I'm a racist and I wonder what sort of person would be compelled to make payments to political organizations based on their race." With all but one of Louisiana's 2,918 precincts reporting, Long had 479,212 votes, or 57.4 percent, to 324,444 or 38.9 percent for Jenkins. Three other candidates shared the remaining votes. It was Long's smallest margin of victory since he first won the seat. Under Louisiana's open primary system, all candidates — regardless of party — run. If a candidate gets more than 50 percent of the vote, he is elected. If one doesn't get a majority, the first two finishers meet in the general election. Six incumbents easily won re-election in seven contested races for Louisiana seats in the U.S. House. The exception was freshman Rep. Claude "Buddy" Leach, a Democrat. Leach, who was tried and acquitted on vote-buying charges growing out of his 1978 election, led five opponents, but garnered only 29 percent of the vote. He will face another Democrat, Charles "Buddy" Roemer III, in the November runoff. Leach still faces charges of campaign finance violations. House members winning re-election were Bob Livingston, Lindy Boggs, Billy Tauzin, Jerry Huckaby, W. Henson Moore and Gillis Long. Democratic Rep. John Breaux, dean of Louisiana's House delegation, had no opposition.

Teacher strikes continue

By The Associated Press Striking bus drivers and other non-teaching employees in Columbus, Ohio, were deciding today whether to accept a new contract offer. Teacher strikes continued in at least seven states. Stalemate talks in the 12-day-old Columbus strike resumed over the weekend after the district learned it would receive an additional $1 million in unanticipated tax revenue this year. Negotiators agreed about $400,000 could be earmarked for increased wages and fringe benefits for 1,300 non-teaching employees, with the remainder going to teacher salary increases. The strike had all but halted desegregation busing in the 73,000-student district. Meanwhile, teacher walkouts elsewhere in Ohio and in Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Washington, Arizona and Illinois continued to affect hundreds of thousands of schoolchildren. Some 103,000 students were staying home today as teachers strikes hit at least 20 districts across the state, the Michigan Education Association said. In the 14,000-student Port Huron School District, 700 teachers decided to walk out today, and 123 teachers were threatening to strike in two other districts where more than 2,500 students attend classes. Pennsylvania's largest teachers walkout, a strike in Philadelphia affecting 220,000 students, entered its third week today after informal weekend talks made no progress toward a settlement. The bargaining impasse centers on job security, according to John Murray, president of the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers. The PFT represents more than 11,000 teachers and 12,000 other workers in the district. A total of 290,000 students are affected by jobs actions across the state. No new talks were scheduled in San Jose, Calif., where a strike by 1,600 teachers moved into its second week. About one-third of the 33,000 students there attended class on Friday. In Illinois, strikes kept 13,400 students and 850 teachers at home. But 3,272 pupils returned to school today following the weekend settlement of two strikes by 225 teachers. Classes in Westerly, R.I., were canceled Friday until further notice when 200 teachers walked out on the first day of class for 3,000 pupils. Talks resumed in two Washington teachers walkouts, but 19,000 students still have not begun school in Bellevue, where 1,169 teachers are on strike. In the Lower Snoqualmie district, 1,200 pupils have had substitute teachers since their 62 regular teacher went on strike two weeks ago. Strike continued in a small Arizona community, as well as the Ohio communities of Miamisburg, Hubbard and Boardman.

Bum recalls Browns take no prisoners on Mondays

By CHUCK MELVIN

CLEVELAND (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips recalls what the Cleveland Browns did on television one Monday night last September.

More than 80,000 football fans watched in person as the Browns took no prisoners in a 26-7 thrashing of the Dallas Cowboys.

"Dallas went up there early last year for a Monday night game, and the Browns were sky high," Phillips said. "We have to prepare for that type of ball game."

Tonight's nationally televised contest between the Browns and American Conference Central Division rival Houston is again a sellout. It may give the Oilers an opportunity to play before the largest crowd in their history. The present record is the 80,020 fans who saw a Houston game at Buffalo in 1974.

Both the Oilers and the Browns lost their National Football League season openers last week.

Houston receivers had trouble hanging onto passes from new quarterback Ken Stabler. They dropped 11 of his throws en route to a 31-17 loss to the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

"We got behind and everybody wanted to make the big play to help us catch up," said Oilers receiver Rich Caster. "They were running away from the ball before they had it. There's no reason to expect it's going to happen, but sometimes it's contagious."

The maligned Cleveland defense surrendered 452 yards while the offense misfired in losing 34-17 to New England last week.

"We're capable of looking very good and we're capable of looking very bad," said Browns quarterback Brian Sipe. "We have to keep our opponents off balance. I don't have the kind of thing where I feel I can always throw to one guy or always hand the ball off to one guy. We seem to have to feel it."

The teams both will be missing key personnel because of injuries.

Houston receiver Ken Burroughs is expected to be out for at least two more weeks with a knee injury, while linebacker Ted Thompson is questionable because of a bad knee.

Cleveland running back Greg Pruitt is still hobbling on a knee injured last year and is expected to see little, if any, action. Browns defensive lineman Jerry Sherk, who played only the first half of last week's contest, was unsure how his aching knee would affect him.

Key offensive weapons for the Oilers are likely to be Stabler, running back Earl Campbell and Billy "White Shoes" Johnson.

Besides Sipe, the Browns have relied heavily on fullback Mike Pruitt, receivers Dave Logan, Reggie Rucker and Ozzie Newsome, and rookie running back Charles White.

The teams split their two meetings last year. Cleveland avenged a 31-10 early-season setback with a 14-7 victory in December.

Happy Phil Hancock hugs caddy after Fame victory.

Even Denver fans can't believe it

By JOHN MOSSMAN
DENVER (AP) — In a performance which left many Denver fans shaking their heads in disbelief, the Broncos shook off last week's dismal showing to whip the Dallas Cowboys 41-20 with what Coach Red Miller called "a total team effort."

Quarterback Matt Robinson ran for two touchdowns, safety Bill Thompson led a big-play defense with a 32-yard return of a fumble for a touchdown, and Fred Steinfort kicked field goals of 46 and 55 yards — the latter a team record for distance.

All three got game balls following Sunday's National Football League contest, but the offensive line and numerous other players also could have been recipients.

"MATT Robinson used his head and made some big plays, the offensive line did an excellent job, the kicking game and special teams were good — the whole team played well," said Miller after the Broncos beat the Cowboys for the first time ever in the regular season and rebounded from a 27-6 loss to Philadelphia a week ago.

The 41 points represented the most ever scored by Denver against an NFL team, and the most scored against Dallas since 1970.

"We were flat," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "Denver played old-fashioned football, nothing fancy. They ran it right at us. They outbit us from the start. We were continually giving the ball away, and you can't do that against a good defensive team."

THE BRONCOS scored on their first three possessions to take a 17-0 lead: Robinson capped an 80-yard drive to open the game by sneaking the final yard for the TD. Steinfort made it 10-0 early in the second quarter with a field goal.

Three plays later, Dallas quarterback Danny White was sacked by Greg Boyd and fumbled, with defensive end Barney Chavous recovering at the Dallas 5-yard line. Robinson bootlegged in for a 17-0 edge. White hit Tony Hill with a 36-yard scoring loss to cut the deficit to 17-7, but Denver countered when Thompson picked up a Tony Dorsett fumble and ran it into the end zone. It was Thompson's fourth fumble recovery for a touchdown in his career and it set an NFL record.

"The ball made a nice hop, and I just tried to get into the end zone as fast as possible," said the 12-year veteran. "It came at a time when we needed more points." Dallas' Rafael Septien kicked a 30-yard field goal as the first half ended with Denver ahead 24-10, and Septien connected again from 37 yards midway through the third quarter. But Denver then put the game away with two touchdowns less than two minutes apart.

Robinson's 52-yard pass to Steve Watson set up Otis Armstrong's 3-yard dash off right tackle with 3:26 left in the quarter. Seconds later, cornerback Steve Foley picked off a White pass and returned 36 yards to the Dallas 5. Fullback Jim Jensen bolted up the middle and Denver led 38-13 with 1:39 remaining.

Dallas' final touchdown was a 22-yard pass from White to Hill, and Steinfort's record field goal capped the scoring with 26 seconds left.

Rookies Miller, Sims spark wins

By HAL BOCK

Now all that bonus money seems well-spent.

Rookies Billy Sims and ex-Midland Lee star Junior Miller, who both had long, difficult contract negotiations before signing their first National Football League contracts this year, looked like a couple of bargains Sunday, leading their teams to victories.

Running back Sims had his second straight big game, rushing for 134 yards and scoring a touchdown on an 87-yard pass play as Detroit defeated Green Bay 29-7. That gave him 287 yards rushing in two games in the NFL.

And Miller, Atlanta's jumbo tight end, caught eight passes for 117 yards in the Falcons' 37-21 upset of New England. A week ago, Miller had been shut out in his first game.

ELSEWHERE Sunday, Chicago battered New Orleans 22-3. Buffalo downed the New York Jets 20-10. Philadelphia punished Minnesota 42-7. Pittsburgh edged Baltimore 20-17. Seattle nipped Kansas City 17-16. Washington nipped the New York Giants 23-21. Denver walloped Dallas 41-20. Miami overtime games, San Francisco topped St. Louis 24-21 and San Diego defeated Oakland 30-24.

Sims put the Lions in front to stay with a one-yard plunge 32 seconds before halftime. He had set up the score with a 22-yard run on the previous play.

Kicker Ed Murray booted five field goals, running his string for the season to seven straight for the Lions. And Gary Danielson, playing despite the death Thursday of his 9-day-old daughter, completed 11 of 17 passes for 246 yards.

Miller caught a pair of touchdown passes from Steve Bartkowski as the Falcons stunned New England. Bartkowski also hit Wallace Francis for a TD and passed for 244 yards. William Andrews ran for 124 yards and Tim Mazzetti kicked field goals of 26, 27 and 39 yards — the only scoring of the second half.

WALTER Payton rushed for 183 yards, including a 69-yard touchdown run, and Chicago's defense sacked Archie Manning five times as the Bears defeated New Orleans. The 69-yard TD was the longest scoring run of Payton's career. He also had another 61-yard run from scrimmage in a drive which came up empty for the Bears.

Pittsburgh came from behind to beat Baltimore, with Terry Bradshaw's 24-yard pass to Jim Smith in the fourth quarter providing the winning points. It took an interception by Donnie Shell with 3 1/2 minutes left to seal the victory after the Colts had moved to a first down at the Steelers' three-yard line.

Wilbert Montgomery ground out 169 yards and scored a pair of touchdowns as Philadelphia routed Minnesota. Leroy Harris also scored twice and Ron Jaworski completed 20 of 26 passes for 234 yards. It was the worst loss by a Viking team since 1967.

Seattle built a 17-0 lead on a pair of TD passes by Jim Zorn and then withstood a furious Kansas City rally to shade the Chiefs. Nick Lowery kicked field goals of 50, 23 and a team-record 57 yards for Kansas City.

Buffalo celebrated O.J. Simpson Day by beating the New York Jets as Joe Ferguson completed 18 of 29 passes for 207 yards and free safety Jeff Nixon returned an interception 50 yards for a TD. The interception was the fourth in two games for Nixon.

Mark Moseley's 45-yard field goal with 1:55 to play lifted the Redskins over the Giants. Earlier, Moseley had an extra point blocked, ending a streak of 69 successful conversions for the Washington place kicker.

Uwe von Schamann also hit a game-winning field goal with 1:55 to play, booting the 39-yarder that lifted Miami past Cincinnati. The Dolphins had pulled to within two points when Nick Giaquinto recovered a fumble in the end zone for a touchdown.

Dan Fouts' 24-yard touchdown pass to John Jefferson at 8:09 of overtime carried San Diego past Oakland. Fouts completed 29 of 44 attempts for 387 yards and was intercepted four times by the Raiders. Oakland tied the game with 33 seconds to play when Jim Plunkett threw an 18-yard pass to Raymond Chester.

Paul Hofer's 26-yard TD run in the final minute of the fourth quarter tied the game and then San Francisco used Ray Wersching's 33-yard field goal four minutes into overtime to beat St. Louis.

Enos sees two-team NL battle

HOUSTON (AP) — The National League West has narrowed to a two-team battle for the top, or at least that's the way Houston third baseman Enos Cabell sees it.

"I don't think the Reds can come back now," said Cabell. "Both the Dodgers and ourselves would have to fall on our faces to let them come back."

Cabell singled in Houston's four-run second inning as the Astros collected their 22nd victory in their last 29 games with a 6-4 decision over the San Francisco Giants Sunday.

Alan Ashby highlighted the four-run outburst with a two-run single as the Astros kept their first-place tie with Los Angeles in the NL West.

The Dodgers completed a three-game sweep of the Reds Sunday with a 3-1 victory, dropping Cincinnati to 5 1/2 games off the pace.

JOAQUIN Andujar, 3-5, scattered nine hits over the first eight innings to pick up the victory. San Francisco starter John Montefusco was tagged for Houston's first four runs and suffered the loss.

"Joaquin has been one of our best pitchers since J.R. (Richard) got hurt," Cabell said.

"It seems like nobody can beat the Dodgers, but nobody beat the Reds for us last year either. We can't afford to let down."

Houston unleashed a 14-hit attack against five San Francisco pitchers to complete a three-game blitz of the Giants and extend its winning streak to five games.

Denny Walling and Joe Morgan also collected run-scoring singles in the second inning for Houston. The Astros now are 82-60, the best at this stage in the season in the history of the franchise.

TERRY Puhl tripled in the fifth and scored on Randy Stennett's error for Houston's fifth run and later doubled and scored on Cesar Cedano's seventh-inning single for the Astro's final tally.

San Francisco scored two runs in the sixth on run-producing singles by Rich Murray and Stennett.

Terry Whitfield's eighth-inning home run and Bill North's run-scoring double-play ball in the ninth accounted for San Francisco's other two runs.

Yankees increase lead to 5 games

By Associated Press
 Yankee Dent and Aurelio Rodriguez hit two-run homers and Eric Soderholm drilled a solo shot, powering the New York Yankees to a 5-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox Sunday.

The victory improved the Yankees' lead in the American League East to five games over Baltimore, which lost 4-3 in 13 innings to Toronto.

Former Midland Cubs pitcher Ron Davis, who replaced starter Gaylord Perry in the fifth, gained the victory as the Yankees took their fifth straight victory and 13th in 15 games.

Dent belted his fifth homer in the fifth inning, erasing a 1-0 lead, after Rick Cerone opened the inning with a walk off Boston starter Dennis Eckersley, 10-13. Eckersley walked Dent and Rodriguez followed with his second homer of the season. Soderholm hit his eighth homer of the season off Tom Burgmeier in the seventh.

Bob Bailor's single scored Lloyd Moseby, from second base in the 13th inning to lead Toronto over Baltimore. Moseby led off with a single and took second on Barry Bonnell's sacrifice bunt. Steve Braun was intentionally walked before Bailor rapped his game-winning hit off Dennis Martinez.

Elsewhere in the AL, another ex Midland Cub Pete LaCock drove in the winning run with a homer as Kansas City beat Oakland 4-3 and closed in on the American League West title. The victory dropped the Royals' "magic number" for clinching the AL West to two games.

Mike Cubble delivered a two-run single with two out in the eighth inning to lead Minnesota to a 3-2 victory over Chicago. Bob Clark homered and Jason Thompson and Rick Miller each singled in a run to lead California to Texas 3-1.

Cecil Cooper doubled home two runs in the seventh inning, providing Milwaukee with a 3-2 victory over Seattle.

Gary Gray, who had tied the game with a two-out homer in the ninth, delivered the winning run with a two-out single in the 13th, giving Cleveland a 5-4 victory over Detroit in the first game of a doubleheader. Bob Ovwchinko's four-hitter paced the Indians to a 3-0 victory in the nightcap.

In the National League, Rick Monday drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Jerry Reuss tossed a five-hitter to lead Los Angeles over Cincinnati 3-1. Bake McBride's three-run homer keyed a six-run third as Philadelphia beat St. Louis 8-4. Bill Gullickson pitched a three-hitter and Rodney Scott highlighted a three-run first inning with a triple as Montreal beat Pittsburgh 4-0.

Jerry Royster's fourth single of the game drove in pinch-runner Gary Cooper in the ninth, lifting Atlanta to a 4-3 victory over San Diego. Lee Mazzilli singled home his fifth run of the game and Steve Henderson hit a three-run homer to key a four-run ninth that lifted New York to a 10-7 victory over Chicago.

TCU, SMU grudge match Dry, Meyer not mutual admirers

By DENNE FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
 Texas Christian and Southern Methodist, two old rivals whose coaches are barely speaking to each other, tangle Saturday night in Texas Stadium while the rest of the Southwest Conference tries to do something about its suddenly soiled reputation.

TCU Coach F.A. Dry and SMU Coach Ron Meyer have held assorted grievances against each other in the last several years. A rumor SMU coaches helped out Auburn with its game plan, denied by the Mustangs, didn't calm matters.

Auburn beat TCU 10-7 Saturday night while SMU tripped North Texas 28-9.

Now, the two schools can settle any hard feelings on the field Saturday night.

Meyer says TCU should be favored.

"I'm very much concerned about TCU," said Meyer. "TCU will knock the dog out of you. TCU should be favored. I should be will cause some people to sneaker and say I'm crying wolf but we were pretty horrible against North Texas."

Meyer was shocked by the statistics he saw when he visited the press box after the North Texas game.

"We're supposed to have North Texas' stats," said Meyer, noting his team yielded 465 yards offense. "I bet we only had two players on defense who graded winning football."

The game marked the comeback of Mustang quarterback Mike Ford, and Meyer called his performance "adequate."

"Mike's got to come on a lot more," said Meyer.

Ford completed seven of 15 passes for 85 yards.

Sophomore tailbacks Craig James and Eric Dickerson each gained more than 100 yards. James rushed for 142 yards on 15 carries, including an 80-yard scamper for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage. Dickerson rushed 17 times for 111 yards.

TCU impressed Auburn Coach Doug Barfield, who noted "I said that TCU had a good football team, but not many people believed me."

Baylor produced the only victory by an SWC team, whipping Lamar 42-7.

Baylor piled up 656 yards in offense, including a school record 83-yard scoring jaunt by quarterback Jay Jeffrey.

 Defending NAIA football champion Texas A&I is discovering it's not hard to be humble.

Six months ago the Javelinas were celebrating yet another small college football title. Now, the Lone Star Conference bullies are wondering if they will ever win again.

A&I made it 0-2 Saturday with a 14-6 loss to tough Troy State of Alabama.

Abilene Christian, another former NAIA champ, also had it rough.

The Wildcats were ripped 41-0 before 46,649 fans at Aloha Stadium in Honolulu by major college foe Hawaii.

In other games involving LSC teams, Southwest Texas crushed Texas Lutheran College 38-0, Howard Payne tumbled 14-3 to East Central State, East Texas outlasted Cameron University 35-20, and Sam Houston downed New Ueno (Mexico) 26-12.

Ralph Cleveland, Shop Foreman for Roberts Auto Supply, stands by the flywheel resurfacing machine used in the Roberts machine shop. Made especially for flywheels, it does the job faster and more accurately than the lathe, which used to be used. A newly resurfaced flywheel is displayed on the machine, showing the beauty of the work.

Mead Corp. found liable for $350 million in damages

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal court jury ruled Saturday that Mead Corp. of Dayton, Ohio, caused 55 plaintiffs about $350 million in damages by participating in a corrugated container price fixing conspiracy.

An attorney for the plaintiffs, Steve Susman of Houston, said that under federal anti-trust law provisions his clients would be entitled to triple damages, or more than $1 billion.

The six jurors determined Mead Corp. and 19 other companies participated in a conspiracy to fix the prices on corrugated containers between 1964 and 1975.

The class action suit stemmed from 60 separate cases nationwide against 34 defendants. The first suits were filed in March 1977 and consolidated in Houston nine months later.

All of the original defendants but Mead Corp. settled out of court for amounts totaling more than $300 million.

"We are surprised and disappointed in the verdict," Mead Chairman James W. McSwiney said in a prepared statement released from Dayton.

He said the company would consider all legal options, including appeal.

Saturday's verdict, which was based the damages on 5 percent of Mead's sales, brought an end to the trial that began June 9 before U.S. District Judge John V. Singleton. Jurors began deliberating about noon Thursday.

Susman said the 55 plaintiffs represented more than 200,000 commercial and industrial users of corrugated boxes, including breweries, dairies, beef processors, restaurant chains and tuxedo makers.
