'Viva La Independencia!'

Mexicans celebrate their big day

EL PASO (AP) — Thousands of costumed Hispanics crying "Viva Mexico!" danced in the streets of Texas-Mexico border cities to celebrate the traditional Mexican Independence Day.

Schools in Juarez, Mexico, shut down for Tuesday's festivities while children and college students marched in a mile-long parade through the nearby city.

Delegations from El Paso and Brownsville, located just across the border from Juarez and Matamoros, attended the celebrations in the Mexican cities.

"Our blood and our roots come from the same origin," Brownsville Mayor Emilio Hernandez told the Matamoros crowd. "Congratulations to our sister republic. Viva Mexico!"

Mexicans throughout Texas also celebrated the day of independence with picnics, festivals, folkloric ballets and dances in cities with large Hispanic populations.

Statues of Father Hidalgo, which stand in many Texas cities, were decorated with flowers in memory of the revolutionary leader who was killed by Spanish troops in 1811, 10 years before Mexico won independence from Spain.

More than 100,000 people jammed the streets for the annual parade of schoolchildren and Mexican Army troops from the 26th Battalion in Juarez.

The day's activities started at midnight, when Mayor Manuel Quevedo Reyes stood at the Palacio Municipal, outlined with bright lightbulbs, and cried: "Viva La Independencia!"

Fireworks burst through the midnight sky for an hour as the crowd shouted "Viva La Revolucion!" in response.

Simultaneously, more than 800 miles away, Mayor Dr. Antonio Cavazos Garza waved a huge Mexican flag at the gaily decorated Palacio Municipal in Matamoros and shouted, "Viva Mexico! Viva Mexico! Viva Mexico!"

Colorful fireworks shot through the plaza, highlighted by the years "1810" and "1980" lighted on the municipal building.

Street dancing broke out as a band played on the plaza and children's dancing groups performed in the crowd.

Carter draws even with Reagan in polls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest polls on the 1980 presidential race vary in their assessments of who's on first — but they all agree the race will be close.

Republican nominee Ronald Reagan has all but lost the edge he had on President Carter four months ago, according to a poll commissioned by the Republican National Committee and the Republican Congressional Committee.

And the man who conducted the survey, GOP pollster Robert Teeter, says Reagan's verbal gaffes could be partly to blame.

The poll by Teeter's Detroit-based Market Opinion Research shows Reagan and Carter in a near dead heat, with independent candidate John Anderson trailing and an increase in the number of undecided voters.

Teeter declined to release exact figures from the survey, but said they were almost identical to those of several other national surveys.

Meanwhile, a new New York Times-CBS News Poll shows Carter leading Reagan, 38 to 35 percent, with 14 percent favoring Anderson. That poll was based on the probable electorate, a measure of voting likelihood that was applied to 1,417 registered voters interviewed by telephone between last Wednesday and Sunday.

The significance of the three percentage points separating the candidates is made virtually meaningless by the poll's margin of sampling error; the level of true support for either candidate could be as much as three percentage points higher or lower than the survey indicates.

Previous results of the poll were not available for comparison.

A new Gallup Poll gives Reagan a slight lead over Carter. That survey indicates that 40 percent of registered voters support the Republican presidential ticket, 38 percent back the Democratic team and 15 percent are rallying behind Anderson's independent effort. That survey shows voter support for Carter, which surged after the Democratic National Convention, fading.

The margin of error for that poll was not available, nor were previous results for purposes of comparison.

The Gallup survey was taken last weekend, amid discussion about Carter's refusal to debate both Reagan and Anderson in the first debate sponsored by the League of Women Voters, scheduled Sunday in Baltimore. The results were based on interviews with 1,367 adults, 1,005 of them currently registered to vote, in scientifically chosen sites around the nation.

The Teeter poll updated those conducted last November and again in June. Interviews for the new survey, involving roughly 1,500 people, were made between Sept. 5 and Sept. 10.

And it contains what might be considered good news for GOP congressional candidates, Teeter said.

Those surveyed indicated, by a 31 percent to 14 percent margin, that they believed a shift to a Republican majority to Congress would generally improve conditions in the United States. The remaining 55 percent said they either didn't know or didn't think it would make much difference.

10 indicted here on drug charges

By BILL MODISSETT
Staff Writer

Law enforcement officers throughout Texas and elsewhere this morning continued rounding up 10 men indicted Monday by a U.S. District Court grand jury meeting in Midland.

The three-count indictment variously charges the 10 men with conspiracy to possess marijuana with the intent to distribute, importation of marijuana, and aiding and abetting the possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute.

Named as defendants in the case are Carlos Ibarra, about 40, of Miami, Fla.; Harold Taylor Atkins, 46, of McAllen; Larry Coulter Foreman, 41, of Woodstock; Humberto Pablo Nunez, 46, of North Bergen, N.J.; Orren Hayes Ohlinger, 52, of Laredo; Michael Ohlinger, age unknown, of Laredo; Ronald Marshall Watson, 31, of Laredo; Anibal Acosta, about 46, of Miami, Fla.; Laureano Ibarra, age unknown, of Colonia Valencia, Venezuela; and Richard Morley Stewart, 43, of Weslaco.

The indictments stem from an incident last Feb. 24 when four men were arrested at a ranch near Odessa. At that time, law enforcement officers confiscated some 6,000 pounds of a substance believed to be marijuana and an aircraft.

According to the indictment, beginning on or before October of 1979 and continuing until Feb. 24 this year, the 10 men conspired to import marijuana into the United States for the purpose of distributing it.

Count one of the indictment alleges that in October 1979, Robert Lee Ross, who was not indicted, Carlos Ibarra, Nunez, Orren Ohlinger and Michael Ohlinger had a meeting in McAllen "to plan the importation and distribution of a quantity of marijuana." Then on Dec. 10, 1979, Atkins and

Accident kills Midland woman

A 17-year-old Midland woman, Wanda D. Parker, died shortly after 7 p.m. Tuesday when she was thrown from the car in which she was a passenger.

Jerry Lee Parker, 22, of 1916 E. Pecan St., was westbound on U.S. Highway 80 about six-tenths of a mile east of Midland. The left rear tire blew out, and the driver lost control, said a Department of Public Safety spokesman. The car struck a guard rail over a culvert, went through the rail and overturned twice.

Ms. Parker, 17, also of 1916 E. Pecan, was thrown from the vehicle. She was pronounced dead at the scene at 7:25 p.m. by Midland County Peace Justice Robert Pine. Her body was taken to Newline W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Jerry Parker was not thrown from the vehicle. He was treated for minor injuries at Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room and released.

The accident was investigated by DPS Troopers Ken Pittman and Matt Andrews.

Red Adair opens office in Midland

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Red Adair is a firm believer in safety.

"I've been preaching safety all my life," drawled the stocky man. Adair, known throughout the world for his ability to put out oil well fires, was in the Permian Basin Tuesday for a groundbreaking ceremony. He is putting in an office on West Highway 80 just east of 84 Lumber Co., and it should be open in time for the Permian Basin Oil Show in October. In charge of that office will be Danny Clayton.

The new office will be an expansion of his company, which is based in Houston, said Adair. "All my life I've tried to keep it small," he said. But the demand for his services is growing and he felt the time for expansion was now.

The Midland office will serve several purposes, said Adair. Its primary function will be safety in the form of classes. "Safety is one of the most important things you need in this business," he said.

Various training schools will be held, dealing with such things as blow-outs and methods of firefighting.

The Midland office also should help resolve one of the major problems in fighting oil well fires, said Adair, and that is difficulty in locating necessary equipment quickly. Sometimes, he explained, they have to hunt for equipment all over the United States and when it comes, it needs to be repaired.

Stockpiling equipment at the local office will speed up a job, he said. His men can ship it to a location and have it there within a few hours. The quicker they get the well under control, the more fuel that is saved, he said.

The 65-year-old has been fighting oil well fires since 1938 when he went to work for M.M. McKinley in Alice. "Back then we only did five fires a year," he recalled. Now he is called out to about 50 a year.

Over the years, drilling techniques have changed and so has his equipment. "But it's hard to keep up with all the new technology," he admitted.

And drilling has increased dramatically within the past few years to the point that a record number of rigs are in operation throughout the world. West Texas also is experiencing a drilling boom, and is one of the reasons for locating the new office here, he explained.

West Texas has its share of oil well fires and the most recent one occurred at Sonora. One of the worst in recent memory was capped Easter Day at Loco Hills, N.M.

The Ixtoc I well off the Mexico shore which made the headlines because of its imminent danger to the Texas shore was big, but not as big as another rig in Mexico. And there have been big fires at wells in Iraq and Iran.

But the one fire that stands out in Adair's mind was on Sumatra, an island in the Indian Ocean. An earthquake there caused the well to blow, he said.

"The whole earth was shaking," Adair said, adding that the well lost 800 million cubic feet of gas a day. The island, which is part of Indonesia, is home of the largest liquefied natural gas plant in the world, he said.

His job, Adair said, is not to cap a well, but to control it. "If we cap it, you end up losing your well. We're concerned with putting it back into production."

He denied stories that he gets paid $100,000 a day for his work. Adair said he charges a minimum of $4,500 a day. All equipment used is an extra charge. However, if a company calls for advice on how to control a well, Adair gives it without charging.

Adair is known for going into fires which others won't touch, and sometimes he pays for that daring attitude. Recently, down in Mexico he fell off some machinery into a pile of hot mud. Although pulled out immediately, his exposed skin was blistered, he said.

The Houston-based firefighter confessed he hadn't seen his wife in three months because of work.

"We're like gypsies," Adair said of his company and employees. "We have to travel so much."

"I've been preaching safety all my life. Safety is one of the most important things you need in this (oil well firefighting) business." — Oil well firefighter Red Adair

Part four: A frustrated and subdued vice president

By MERLE MILLER

He was the most powerful politician in the country, everybody said so, and when talk turned to the presidential race in 1960 his name was the one most often mentioned. It was the name that John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon speculated about.

Katharine Graham of the Washington Post remembers her husband, Phil, speaking with Kennedy at a dinner party in 1958 about rumors that the senator from Massachusetts might run. Phil wasn't sure it was a good idea.

Katharine Graham: "Kennedy said, 'Well, Phil, I'm sorry, but I'm running, and this is why.' One reason was that if he didn't run now, somebody else would run and be in for eight years and probably dictate his successor. The second reason was that if he stayed eight years in the Senate, intending to run, he'd end up being a lousy senator and a lousy candidate. And the third, he said, 'I think I'm better than any other of the possible candidates expect Lyndon Johnson.'"

Nixon's question was whether Johnson could win, even though, in Nixon's opinion, Johnson was the ablest possible candidate.

Indeed, whether he could win was nagging Lyndon and his staff and supporters.

LAWYER AND LONGTIME friend James H. Rowe: "I think he wanted it so much his tongue was hanging out." But there was another part of him that thought he had no chance. And there was the health question.

Bobby Baker, the Senate wheeler-dealer who fell from grace later, remembers Johnson telling him one night: "Bobby, you never had a heart attack. Every night I go to bed, and I never know if I'm going to wake up alive the next morning. I'm just not physically capable of running the presidency."

Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey were slugging it out on the primary trail, and the Johnson camp put its toe into the water in October, 1959. Sam Rayburn, his political idol and the Speaker of the House, announced the formation of the Johnson for President committee in Dallas. Publicly, Lyndon ignored the announcement.

Blacks, labor, liberals and, to a lesser extent, other voting blocs either opposed Johnson or were lukewarm to him at best. And he knew it. At the same time, Kennedy was coming out of the Democratic pack as the man to beat. Lyndon was not sure that Kennedy could win. In fact, he told some aides that he thought Kennedy's Catholic faith would defeat him. And Kennedy was, it turned out, unhappy at all the attention paid to Johnson as Washington's most powerful politician.

In short, a rivalry was developing.

Bill Moyers: "Johnson thought up until late in the pre-convention era that Kennedy wouldn't get it — that the religious issue would focus against him and the press would turn on him. He thought Kennedy would have the momentum, but then he would stall short, and there would be a free-for-all in that Symington and Humphrey and other liberals would have knocked each other off and there would be the place for the Great Compromiser. That's how he saw himself."

BUT, SAYS MOYERS, three or four weeks before the convention, Johnson realized that his scenario wasn't likely. And already, people had other ideas about Johnson.

On the morning of the convention opening, Philip Graham and columnist Joe Alsop met for five minutes with Kennedy, alone.

Graham: "I did the greatest portion of our talking, and urged Kennedy to offer the vice-presidency to Johnson. He immediately agreed, so immediately as to leave me doubting the easy triumph, and I therefore restated the matter, urging him not to count on Johnson's turning it down but to offer the VP-ship so persuasively as to win Johnson over. Kennedy was decisive in saying that was his intention, pointing out that Johnson would help the ticket not only in the South but in important segments of the party all over the country."

Kennedy won a first-ballot nomination.

On Feb. 22, Atkins and Foreman allegedly flew to the Republic of Columbia and the next day obtained about 6,000 pounds of marijuana. They flew it to Torreon Feb. 24.

Meanwhile on Feb. 24, the indictment alleges, Jesse David New, who was not indicted, Stewart and Nunez drove a U-Haul truck from Odessa to a ranch owned by Kenneth Wayne Meek near Odessa. Meek was not named in the indictment.

That same day Atkins and Foreman flew the marijuana to the ranch where they met New, Stewart and Nunez. The men then allegedly transferred the marijuana from the aircraft to a metal storage building also located on the ranch.

Count two alleges that all 10 men unlawfully, knowingly and intentionally imported about 6,000 pounds of marijuana into the United States from Mexico in violation of Title 21 of the United States Code. It also realleges the overt acts set out in Count One.

The final count of the indictment alleges that on Feb. 24 Atkins, Foreman, Nunez and Stewart possessed 6,000 pounds of marijuana with intent to distribute. It also alleges that Orren Ohlinger, Michael Ohlinger, Watson, Acosta, Carlos Ibarra and Laureano Ibarra "aided, abetted, counseled, induced and procured" the commission of the offense alleged.

It was uncertain at noon today which of the men and how many of the men had been arrested.

The federal grand jurors also returned indictments against four others, including three on drug-related charges.

However, daytime temperatures in Midland will resemble those of an Indian Summer with high today expected in the low 90s and a high Thursday in the mid-90s. Tuesday's high was 94, a few degrees shy of the 1965 record temperature for the date of 99.

Police investigating reported theft of wedding, engagement ring set

Police are investigating the reported theft of a wedding and engagement ring set valued at $125.

Hazel Hicks of Pampa told police Tuesday the rings were in her purse in the kitchen of her room at the West Wind Motel, 2608 Midkiff Road. Sometime between 2 and 3:30 p.m., the rings were allegedly stolen. The wedding band had seven small diamonds, and the engagement ring had one large diamond.

Four shattered banks have police investigating a burglary which reportedly occurred between 8:20 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Tuesday at 1113 E. Oak St.

Edmundo H. Lara reported that an unknown quantity of change was missing. Investigating officers said entry was gained by removing a window screen on the southeast corner of the house. Inside, officers found a blue piggy bank and two porcelain chicken banks shattered on the floor. A porcelain ball bank was not broken but had a hole broken in it large enough to remove the coins. Several pennies were scattered on the floor where the banks had been broken.

Nothing else in the house had been taken. A Midland woman was being examined at Midland Memorial Hospital at 8 a.m. today after a two-car collision in the 1300 block of East Front Street. Brenda Sexton, 19, of Route 2 Box

18-year-old AWOL Marine arrested for unauthorized use of automobile

STANTON — Stanton police arrested an 18-year-old Marine Tuesday on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Scott Alan Moneymaker, a Marine who police say is AWOL from Camp Pendleton, Calif., is being held in Martin County Jail today in lieu of bond on two charges.

Stanton police were notified Tuesday of a man who allegedly stole some gasoline from a Midland station on Interstate 20, according to Jerry Register of the Stanton Police Department.

Moneymaker was apprehended about 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in what turned out to be a stolen 1979 Pontiac Trans Am from Tucson, Ariz.

Moneymaker, an Arizona native, was officially charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle Tuesday. Justice of the Peace F.E. Kennedy set bond for Moneymaker at $5,000 for the stolen automobile charge and $250 on a charge of theft under $20, stemming from the gasoline theft from Midland.

Carter, Reagan jabs read like long-distance 'debate'

By The Associated Press

It wasn't exactly a debate, but with three states and some 700 miles between them, there were President Carter and Ronald Reagan trading verbal jabs. Carter accused Reagan of being too close to oil money and of stirring up racial hatred. Reagan called Carter's comments "harmful and shameful." And he said again and again that if Carter had something to say, he should do it at the televised debate next week that the president has refused to take part in. Carter's comments came as he campaigned in the South and Ohio on Tuesday, and Reagan responded from Texas, where at a glittering Republican Party fund-raiser he helped raise $2.8 million, which party officials said was a record amount. Carter, speaking himself to well-heeled Democratic donors on the patio of a mansion in wealthy Shaker Heights, Ohio, mentioned the GOP event in Houston and tried to tie Reagan to Texas oil money. "Who will be the next secretary of energy?" Carter asked. "Will the oil companies again have their fingers intimately entwined in the shaping of policy?"

Carter's remarks on racism came at the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, where the late Martin Luther King Jr. preached.

"You've seen in this campaign the stirrings of hate and the rebirth of code words like states' rights in a speech in Mississippi and a campaign reference to the Ku Klux Klan relating to the South," Carter said.

"Hatred has no place in this country," he added. "Racism has no place in this country."

Reagan, in an Aug. 3 address in Philadelphia, Miss., said he believed in "states' rights" and as president would try to "restore to states and local governments the powers that properly belong to them." And on Labor Day in Detroit, he referred to Carter being in "the city that gave birth to and is the parent body of the Ku Klux Klan."

Carter had actually been in Tusculum, Ala., which is not the birthplace of the Klan, and Reagan later apologized for his remark.

Asked Tuesday about Carter's latest assertion, Reagan said: "I just don't know how much farther he'll go to divert attention from the fact he could say all these things to a nationwide audience in a debate."

At every stop, Reagan mentioned Carter's refusal to take part in next Sunday's debate with independent John Anderson and him. He told a San Antonio audience that Carter "refuses to engage in the kind of debate the American people want and spends his time puttering around the Rose Garden."

When asked if he thought Carter's statements on racism were hurting the political process, Reagan replied, "It's harmful and it's shameful because whether we're on the opposite sides or not we ought to be trying to pull the country together, not tear it apart."

White House press secretary Jody Powell responded to that by saying the president wasn't calling his opponent a racist. He said Carter was "just trying to point out to minority groups his dances with Reagan."

Those differences are a legitimate part of the campaign.

"We'll be happy to debate him on civil rights or anything else," Powell said, but he didn't suggest the president was changing his mind on Sunday's debate.

And campaigning in Chicago, the president's wife, Rosalynn, said of the debate question: "The president's mind is made up and if it hurts him, it will hurt him."

The man who will take part in Sunday's debate with Reagan, independent Anderson, said in Denver that Carter's latest statements on Iran showed "disarray" in the administration's conduct of foreign policy.

He noted that on Monday Carter found hope in statements made by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, but on Tuesday said there was no real reason to think the 52 hostages might be released soon.

"The president has once again shown his talent for pointing up the disarray within his own administration on questions of foreign policy," Anderson said. "I don't think it is terribly helpful for the conduct of foreign policy for the president to be speaking one way one day and another way on the following day."

In Texas, Reagan appealed for the large Hispanic vote which could win him the state's 26 electoral votes. Carter won Texas in 1976, but this year the polls show Reagan in the lead.

The most recent nationwide poll, meanwhile, shows Carter's support falling off slightly after picking up following the Democratic National Convention.

'Witnesses' needed

"Silent Witness," Midland's new crime fighting and prevention tool, offers Tall City residents a unique opportunity to do something to really help themselves and others.

The new program is similar to other crime-stop type programs operated throughout the nation. Those programs for the most part have proven highly successful. They have been well received by the public and generally have achieved dramatic results.

Under the program in Midland, people with information regarding a felony crime that has already occurred or is about to occur will call a special telephone number — 685-1190 — and give that information to law enforcement officials.

If the information results in the arrest and indictment of a criminal, the board of directors of the program will set a reward amount to be given the person who called "Silent Witness." Midlanders should keep in mind that the criminal involved does not have to be convicted for them to receive the reward, merely arrested and indicted.

"Silent Witness" is an innovative program designed to get Midlanders involved in their community, to make them aware of and concerned with the events taking place around them.

The objectives of the program are to furnish law enforcement agencies with information on felony crimes, wanted persons and any other criminal activity that the agencies otherwise would be unable to obtain. "Silent Witness" also is intended to motivate and promote public interest and involvement with law enforcement efforts and to make available rewards for such involvement.

And, of course, the program is intended to help prevent some crimes and to create public awareness of law enforcement needs and interests in assistance from citizens.

Callers can remain anonymous if they so desire. But Midlanders have to become involved if the program is going to achieve success. Once we all get involved in the crime prevention and detection program we can make some changes in the quality of life in this community. It will be to the advantage of all Midlanders.

But first, we have to make that telephone call. That's the first step. From there on, it's easy on everyone except the criminal.

Third ice cream flavor killing two-dip 'cone-cept'

WASHINGTON — If John Anderson does well in the November elections, he will owe it all to the Carter campaign organization. They have been building Anderson up as the one they really fear, and this year the perverse voter says, "If Carter doesn't like him, Anderson can't be all bad."

The Carter people feel that Anderson is a spoiler and will siphon votes away from their man. But they won't admit this publicly. What they're saying out loud is that Anderson is damaging the two-party system.

"We have nothing against John Anderson personally," one of the president's people told me. "But this country can't afford three presidential candidates."

"Why is that?" I asked.
 "It detracts from the issues. The choice between Reagan and Carter is very clear. Anderson muddies it, because the people don't know what he stands for."

"The people didn't know what Carter stood for when he was running for president in 1976."

"That was different. Carter was running on the Democratic ticket. Anderson is running as an Independent."

"So?"
 "Look, if you go into an ice cream store and have the choice of only vanilla or strawberry flavors, it's not a problem. You can make up your mind in seconds. But if you have to choose between vanilla, strawberry and butter almond, then you really have to think about it. No one should have to choose between three flavors. Do you get what I'm driving at?"

"I'm not sure. But there are people in the country who are very unhappy with vanilla and strawberry, and would take butter almond just to protest the lack of choice."

"The majority of the people like vanilla and strawberry. Butter almond has nuts in it, which confuses the issues."

"You're not suggesting John Anderson is nuts?" I asked.

"No. All we're saying is that vanilla and strawberry are proven flavors. Butter almond has no real support in this country and should not be listed on the menu."

"A recent survey showed that 15 percent of the American people preferred butter almond over vanilla and strawberry. That's quite a few. Shouldn't they be heard from?"

"If the regular vanilla and strawberry ice cream consumers split down the line on butter almond, then I would say okay. But most of the people who claim they now prefer butter almond come from the ranks of the strawberry-eaters, and we can't take a chance that vanilla will come out first because they want to switch to a third flavor."

"So much for ice cream. Now can we talk about a debate among Carter, Reagan and Anderson?"

"There's nothing to talk about. We want Reagan one on one. We might consider debating Anderson after the election, when the president isn't involved in a political campaign."

"How much damage do you think it will do to the campaign by Mr. Carter's refusing to debate both Reagan and Anderson at the same time?"

"We're willing to take the gamble. To get back to ice cream — we're not going to give butter almond a platform it doesn't deserve."

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

The Food and Drug Administration says its budget doesn't allow for the use of primates in the testing of caffeine. (I don't make this stuff up, folks.)

Come on — if we're serious about regulatory agencies, let's give them the proper tools to work with. What's a few more baboons in government?

The Food and Drug people could conduct an experiment with the actor Robert Young. Living with an orangutan, Young only drinks decaffeinated coffee, while the monkey is given the kind with caffeine. If he (the monkey) becomes too cranky, he loses his civil service job.

Without the use of primates in their experiments, the FDA admits that the results of their caffeine studies are inconclusive. So far, the only label they can put on coffee is that it may be harmful to pregnant hamsters.

Lesson of Iran important for many nations

By ERNEST CONINE (c) 1980, The Los Angeles Times

Ever since the shah of Iran was overthrown, thoughtful Americans have been anxious that the lesson not be lost on other countries with which the United States has vital economic or political relationships.

The lesson of Iran, of course, is that a society that tries to modernize too rapidly is courting a disastrous backlash.

The Saudi Arabian peninsula is one place where the winds of change may be blowing too strongly for the good of either the monarchies in the area or the Western nations that depend so heavily on Arab oil.

Mexico, with its growing flood of oil money, could explode into violence and chaos unless it manages its new wealth with unusual skill and prudence.

You don't have to be a China expert to wonder if the post-Mao government in Peking isn't running the same sort of risk with its vast modernization program and the importation of Western experts and ideas that it will require.

To return to the case of Iran, whatever the late shah's sins may have been in other respects, he challenged the feudal power of big landowners and reactionary mullahs. Women gained a semblance of equality. He sent thousands of young Iranians to study at European and American universities so that the country would not have to depend forever on foreigners to run the industrial enterprises being built with oil revenues.

But the rapid modernization program also involved the mass migration of peasants with traditionalist Moslem values to the cities, where they were outraged by what they saw as the corrupting influences brought into Iran by Western experts involved in the industrialization and town-building effort. Such resentments helped open the way for the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and his rabidly anti-Western, anti-progressive brand of Moslem fundamentalism. China obviously is a different case. But there are similarities.

As the proceedings of the National People's Congress that ended last week amply confirmed, post-Mao China is embarked on a deadly serious campaign to turn the country into a modern industrial power in the shortest possible time.

As pragmatists, the Chinese understand that the old rules of national self-reliance must be bent if the program of rapid industrialization is to have any chance of success.

At this time, China simply does not have the requisite technology or economic infrastructure of port and rail facilities, power plants, steel mills and extractive enterprises. Although the country has extremely able scientists, engineers and enterprise managers, the talent pool is too thin for the rapid development of home-grown technology to be a viable alternative.

Peking has drawn the inevitable conclusion that China must tap Western know-how, capital and technology, and recast its own systems of incentives and management to make the most efficient use of the inflow.

Since Mao Tse-tung's death almost four years ago, a steady stream of Japanese, European and American businessmen have gone to Peking. And a smiling number have left with happy smiles on their faces.

At one time, Chinese enterprises had signed letters of intent or otherwise expressed an interest in buying foreign equipment and services totaling the equivalent of $600 billion. Considering that China now has exports of only $10 billion per year, there was never any possibility that actual sales would be anywhere near that large.

Twice now, in fact, the Chinese have cut back on what they plainly considered to be overly ambitious economic-development targets. Foreign businessmen now understand that many letters of intent will never be translated into hard contracts.

However, the Chinese plans which are expected to be laid out in detail later this year, obviously are still very ambitious.

China has acquired lines of credit totaling more than $20 billion from Western banks and governments. Although some wrinkles remain to be ironed out, legal provision has been made for joint ventures between Western and Chinese enterprises.

The European Common Market expects China to import $25 billion worth of goods and services per year from the West by 1985. The U.S. Department of Commerce thinks China's trade with the United States alone will double to $5 billion within five years.

Meanwhile, Chinese students, including the sons of important leaders, are flocking to American universities.

The National People's Congress formalized a decision to throw out the old Communist system of command management, under which ideological fervor and reliability were more valued than ability and performance, in favor of a new emphasis on worker incentives and managerial know-how.

Plans are going forward for the construction of hotels to accommodate foreign tourists and businessmen.

All this is refreshing evidence of the determination and pragmatism with which the post-Mao Chinese leadership is approaching the task of modernization. But it means that a lot of well-dressed foreigners will be present to remind the Chinese man in the street of his poverty and, potentially, to trigger a revolution of rising expectations.

Equally important, the new emphasis on performance rather than ideological devotion is going to dislodge many thousands of bureaucrats and factory-level party functionaries whose own power will be diluted, and who could constitute the human raw material for a backlash.

China has demonstrated a remarkable ability to swing from Mao worship to political and economic liberalization. The same thing could happen again, this time in a direction that neither we nor the present Chinese leaders would like.

Remarks by Deng Xiaoping, the powerful vice chairman of the Communist Party, suggest that the leadership is aware of the danger but is confident that it can be avoided.

Given the American stake in a friendly and stronger China, we should all hope so.

As one well-placed Chinese visitor to California said not long ago, "We cannot afford to go too fast because, if we fail, we will be discredited and there would be a danger of returning to the old policies."

A Chinese regression to ideological fanaticism and repression obviously would not be conducive to the partnership that our two countries, in response to Soviet pressures, are trying to build.

NICK THIMMESCH

Despite air of calm, Egypt boils with religious strife

WASHINGTON — To understand what goes on in Egypt is to understand why President Anwar Sadat is so accommodating in the peace negotiations. Egypt, crippled with poverty, is weary of wars in which fellow Arab states vow to fight to the last Egyptian, and, despite its Islamic majority, constantly boils with religious strife.

Recently, the Catholic National Register reported, in a front-page, headline story, that Egyptian Moslems had stepped up their harassment of Coptic Christians, who number about one-eighth of the population. In the late 70s, according to this American paper, Moslems destroyed homes, businesses and churches of Christians, and wounded and killed several clergymen.

The Coptic Christians trace their religious roots to St. Mark, though ethnically and linguistically they are descendants of the ancient pharaohs. They were in Egypt many centuries before Arab Muslims overran their country in the seventh century.

Coptic Christians were generally second-class citizens under Islamic rule. But when the British occupied Egypt, the Copts, because of their Christian affinity, were privileged with education and desired positions in government and business. Early in this century, Egypt had a Coptic prime minister, though he was assassinated by a Muslim fanatic.

Then, when Egypt became independent of the British, Arab nationalism and Muslim extremism combined to make life miserable for the Copts.

Nick Thimmesch

They were the particular target of the Muslim Brotherhood, whose interpretation of the Koran on justifiable homicide is contrary to the British Common Law which generally prevails. Egypt is not an official Islamic state. The late president Gamel Abdul Nassar, following orthodox socialist doctrine, outlawed the Brotherhood as a threat to his revolution. With Nassar gone, the Brotherhood saw an opening.

Moslem fanatics, in August, 1977, ravaged the Christian sector of Assiut, in upper Egypt, and destroyed a Protestant church and the Coptic Cathedral of St. Michael. In 1978, a Coptic priest was stabbed during Lenten services in Aswan, and soon after, Moslems attacked a Coptic monastery, killing a deacon and wounding a priest. In September 1978, another Coptic priest was killed, and his wife was seriously injured after being attacked by Moslems. In March 1979, Moslems burned the Coptic Church of the Virgin Mary.

Sadat decries this violence, but hasn't been successful in corralling the culprits in the Moslem Brotherhood. This gang of extremists is also enemy to Sadat, and fights to establish Egypt as an Islamic state.

Being a Nobel Prize winner and all the rest, Sadat naturally likes to have the world believe that life is improving under his rule, that his 40 million subjects live in political and religious harmony.

So when the "shepherd" of Egypt's Coptic Christians, Pope Shenouda III, convinced that Sadat was remiss in not preventing attacks on Coptic Christians by Muslim fanatics, refused to accept the president's traditional Easter greeting this year, Sadat became angry.

He claimed that "sedition mongers" who appealed to the world and the Vatican for help "should have realized that the real security for Christianity in Egypt is Islam itself." This high-handed observation stirred the Copts, known to quickly complain about any offense, to even more accusations against Sadat.

The Freedom of Faith Foundation in New York, which monitors persecution of religion around the world, declares there is no official oppression of the Coptic church in Egypt, but acknowledges that the Copts have suffered considerable harassment and violence.

The foundation points out, however, that there is a good deal of religious violence in the Middle East. A Greek Orthodox priest, Abbott Philomenus, was murdered in Jerusalem while conducting services at Jacob's Well last November. His assailant used an ax to kill him in rather gruesome fashion, and Israeli authorities are still investigating. There is no end to the killing in "Islamic" Iran. Anyone familiar with the Middle East knows that the region's address is a violent one.

Besides this sort of trouble, Sadat faces a chronically depressed economy, a population explosion, hostile Libya next door, the residual stirrings against any accommodation with the Israelis, and the realization that there is a time limit for him to achieve the goals of the Camp David agreements.

So, while Israel's Menachem Begin has his difficulties at home, he also knows that Sadat has his. In a sense, the two principals in this hoped-for peace are over a barrel, and this doesn't make the American role any easier.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

How grown up are you?

DEAR brothers, I have been talking to you as though you were still just babies in the Christian life...

I have had to feed you with milk and not with solid food, because you couldn't digest anything stronger...

For you are still only baby Christians, controlled by your own desires, not God's. When you are jealous of one another and divide up into quarreling groups...

There you are, quarreling about whether I am greater than Apollos, and dividing the church. Doesn't this show how little you have grown in the Lord?

Who am I, and who is Apollos, that we should be the cause of a quarrel? Why, we're just God's servants...

My work was to plant the seed in your hearts, and Apollos' work was to water it, but it was God, not we, who made the garden grow in your hearts.

The person who does the planting or watering isn't very important, but God is important because He is the one who makes things grow.

Apollos and I are working as a team, with the same aim, though each of us will be rewarded for his own hard work.

We are only God's co-workers. You are God's garden, not ours; you are God's building, not ours.

MC president tells business leaders instructors needed

By DAVID CAMPBELL Staff Writer

Midland College is experiencing a shortage of quality occupational-technical instructors.

That was the message college president Dr. Al Langford delivered to some 150 local industrial-business leaders at a noon luncheon Tuesday in Chaparral Center.

Instructors in some vocational fields and several business personnel have left the college because private industry can afford to pay a higher wage than the college, Langford noted.

The MC president said he believes the problem will reach a crisis stage within the next five years. However, he emphasized the lack of vocational-technical instructors has hit the college this year.

Areas in which the college will be desperately in need of instructors by next fall are data processing, electronics, petroleum technology, accounting and welding, he said.

"We (MC) are not saying 'Don't take our instructors,'" Langford said, noting the college believes in free competition.

But, if the college does not have a solution, Langford said the administration and the Midland College Board of Trustees are prepared to shut down the technical-occupational programs.

"Give us additional funds on a yearly basis to help keep quality personnel," the MC president said, requesting a possible $15,000 to $20,000 in addition to the present technical instructor's salary.

Or local industries could give about six hours release time to some of their top people to teach day and night classes at the college, he said, adding that this might be a favorable suggestion with the civic leaders.

Donation of funds would create a faculty morale problem in the academic areas, he said. "I don't see how we can pay each faculty member $20,000 a year."

Already Texas Instruments has promised to give release time to some of its top employees to teach at the college, Langford said.

But the immediate need is for a computer instructor to start Jan. 1 and to give leadership to the computer science program.

Midland College is not the only institution with a lack of technical instructors.

"Every president is looking for a computer instructor to teach at their institution," he said of the state's 47 community colleges.

"We can make a quality program even if we have quality part-time help," he added.

Midland Independent School District and Midland College are setting the pace for a cooperative effort to provide technical training to junior and senior high school students, Langford said.

"For some time there has been a shared relationship with the public schools," he said of the college's involvement with the program. Students from the two high schools utilize vocational labs on the MC campus.

"We are the first and we won't be the last," Langford said of the cooperative program becoming the model for other state vocational education programs.

"There are no quick answers," Langford said of the college's problems and its alliance with industry. "However, I know we can work it out."

Two South Dallas police shootings to be reviewed

DALLAS (AP) — Two recent South Dallas shootings in which police officers killed black suspects will be reviewed by the newly-impaneled Dallas Police Advisory Committee.

The committee will decide whether to investigate the deaths of Milton Brown Jr. and Patricia Henry after meeting with police chief Glen King Friday in a closed session.

Brown died Saturday night from gunshot wounds he received Aug. 27 following a high-speed chase involving Police Officer Scott Lane.

After crashing his stolen car, police said, Brown opened fire on Lane, wounding him.

Ms. Henry was slain by Officer Manuel Vasquez when he answered a complaint about gunshots being fired in her neighborhood, police said. She had wounded her boyfriend and was attempting to stab another woman.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Whose system?

To The Editor:

These two farces (not forces) are definitely interrelated. Apparently, Texas taxpayers must soon pay for a bilingual (Spanish) school system in Texas. We already have Chinese schools in San Francisco; next will be demands for French schools on our northern border for the French Canadians and perhaps Eskimo schools in the state of Washington. What next? Have we lost sight that the language of the United States is English?

Shirley M. Hufstetter, United States Secretary of Education, is definitely pushing for these bilingual schools, which in my opinion is also pushing for compulsory education of illegal aliens as that is the logical place to enroll them. She has been quoted as being concerned that the children will sink or swim and says that without the bilingual school system, many will surely sink. (Page 1, MRT, 9-9-80) By no means should we let the illegal aliens' kids sink. Let's build a raft and float them (complete with their illegal parents) down the Rio Grande back to their country so they can have a proper education in their native language.

If we must educate the illegal alien child, then we cannot kick him out of the country; therefore, his illegal parents must stay to care for the child. So, illegals with school-age children have it made, just sneak in with them and we cannot kick them out!

I lived legally in Caracas, Venezuela, with my wife and two children for seven years as did thousands of other English-speaking families from various countries. So that we might educate our children in our native language, we built the "American school" and staffed it with English speaking teachers using American and English systems. The Caracas government loved it (no financial or educational problems) and the English-speaking community loved it also.

What gaul these illegals and their supporters have.

• Readers are invited to submit letters on any subject although slanderous, defamatory or unsigned letters will not be considered for publication.

For valid reasons, at the discretion of the editor, the name will be withheld but must be included in the original letter.

Writers should be as concise as possible and the right to condense letters of more than 200 words is reserved.

Letters must be received by noon Thursday for Sunday publication. If necessary, the latest received may be held for publication the following Wednesday or Sunday.

They should be addressed to: Letters to the Editor, The Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, Texas 79702.

You know?

To The Editor:

I am writing this letter to request that you please use more "you knows" in your news stories. I really feel that you should be able to use at least one you know every five or ten words — this would help me to understand your news better, you know? Radio and television have kept up with the national media, you know? Why don't newspapers keep up with this latest addition to our English language? You really should, you know. I mean, you should be a contributor to the language, you know?

I don't know when and where this habit began; you know, it was probably from other kids at school, you know, or from television. You know, these things are picked up by our subconscious minds. Who knows? You know? This is now such a habit, you know, that most people don't realize they are saying it, you know, and the majority of the people don't notice it in EVERYBODY'S conversation, you know? The whole American population sounds like a stuck record, you know?

I'm getting better at this "you know" business, you know? It makes more sense now, you know, than it did when I first started this letter, you know? I really think it looks good in print, you know?

Just for grins, you know, next time someone says "you know" in casual conversation, respond with "Yes, I know" — you'll surprise yourself and the person talking with you just how often "you know" flies through your everyday conversation, you know?

Royce Gleghorn Midland

Without them...

To The Editor:

Concerning Ed Todd's "Roustin' About" column of Sun, Sept. 7, 1980. May I ask of Ed Todd his definition of "computer"?

I remind Ed Todd that without "computers" to store and organize copy, The Midland Reporter-Telegram (or any other newspaper, for that matter) would probably still be only three or four pages long. Ed may not even have a column to criticize with if there were no "computers." No "computers" to make Ed's clothes, to cut the lenses for Ed's glasses, to bottle Ed's underarm deodorant. No "computers" to sort this letter reminding Ed of his mistakes.

Roger Taylor Midland

Article refuted

To The Editor:

The two recent letters to the editor regarding the new football league in Midland were both factual and well written. They brought up points that directly refuted the previous original Reporter-Telegram article that initiated the whole thing.

The facts are, the new league is a vast improvement over the old YMCA league and it is put together by parents who know football and who care, not by people whose job it is to do this. I am not knocking the YMCA, but everything can be improved. I know that the organizers of the new league have actively pursued the minorities to play in the league and these people are not discriminatory by nature or by a set of rules.

If I recall the original article, it said that the new league was started because of past problems with integration. That is not true! It was started for the purpose of an improved, more competitive football program and ten minutes of interviewing with the league organizers would have revealed this. Their purpose is just and noble, believe me!

The article also made reference to the cost being higher and prohibitive. That is just not true either. If The Reporter-Telegram had accepted any responsibility whatsoever in this matter, they would have checked the facts and found the cost is unchanged. It is appalling to me that you reported one side and never checked the facts first. The two letters to the editor defended the new league and its people in a skillful manner, but I feel that another, maybe more important issue must be brought out as a result of your original front page article. Written by a member of your staff, it was based on false and misleading facts, high emotions, hearsay and innuendos. It was unfounded and it displayed "total irresponsibility" on the part of the author and the paper.

One last comment, the substance, the method and the intent of the article was far from Pulitzer material. You and your writer owe the people of Midland an apology.

Fred M. Newman Midland

Another view

To The Editor:

I especially enjoy the "Letters to the Editor" feature of The Reporter-Telegram and appreciate this outlet being available to citizens.

It was interesting to get additional input regarding the youth football program. Hopefully both programs can be instituted in Midland.

I would like to commend Carroll Thomas for having the courage to speak his views regarding the senior citizens tax benefit. This is not to say I agree with him entirely, but certainly he makes a valid point that families with young children are finding it equally difficult to cope with inflation as are senior citizens, usually because their needs are greater. When all segments of the population do not pay their fair share of taxes, it puts an undue burden on the others.

Mayor Akins' statements regarding the care of senior citizens is probably the way we all wish it to be, but it simply is not reality. I rather resent Ed Wallace's letter urging senior citizens to organize and demonstrate their "clout and voting power." This type pressure on our legislators is the source of many problems in the country today. However, on the other hand, it does appear to me that most cities I visit do have low cost government housing. Perhaps we are not doing Midland citizens a favor by resisting government assistance in this area. We were probably one of the few cities in this area that never had a community center built by WPA during depression days, and such a building would have come in handy over the years. That old saying "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em" sometimes has merit.

Mrs. Paul Wecker Midland

Crossed up

To The Editor:

On causal observation one will notice that most motorists try not to block pedestrian cross-walks; however, said practice seems to be directly proportional to how well they (the motorists) can see the lane boundaries and stop lines.

Owing to the city of Midland's general inability to keep the cross-walk striping readily visible, pedestrians are beset with considerable cross-walk encroachment and outright blockage.

I submit that there are several procedural changes that could greatly help the problem.

1. (the simplest) Use yellow paint for the cross-walk lanes and stop lines — yellow paint retains more of its visibility longer than does the white paint currently in use.

2. Mark the lanes with the yellow porcelain discs now in use for other informational striping. (A double row of discs would be used for the stop lines.)

3. As a third alternative, use a combination of the yellow discs and yellow paint.

The above changes should be necessary only in the downtown area; however, it wouldn't be a bad idea to modify the school crossings as well.

John E. Meyer Midland

Thanks, Midland

To The Editor:

The Lee High School Chorale's giant garage sale was a smashing success last weekend (Sept. 5-7). Thank you for giving us needed media coverage. We are indeed grateful to The Reporter-Telegram and to local radio and television stations. Their reporting of the Midland "happening" brought shoppers from Odessa, Kermit, Big Spring, Lamesa and Iraan, as well as hundreds of Midlanders. There may have been other West Texas communities represented of which we were not aware.

We want to say a very warm thank you, also, to each of those Midlanders who contributed to our success. We received many donations for our sale from individuals and from merchants. The use of the former Permian Pontiac building was greatly appreciated, and many items were donated for use in our concession area.

Each one of you who helped us, especially our shoppers, moved the Chorale just a bit closer to attending the International Youth and Music Festival in Vienna, Austria, next summer. We must raise a great deal more money, and we are working very hard to do so. When our goal is reached, we shall represent Midland and all of West Texas with pride.

I sympathize

To The Editor:

I can sympathize with "Name Withheld" who spoke of the doctors' and dentists' high fees. I had been having my blood pressure checked at a certain doctor's office by his nurses for $2 and couldn't believe it when I changed doctors and had it checked. The doctor did it and charged $15, then it went up to $16.50. We can't stand this as we're retired, living on Social Security, especially when there are good nurses that give it free at the Senior Citizen's Center.

If doctors are driven into socialized medicine it will be their own fault. It seems they want to get rich off of "one person," while the "sun shines" so to speak.

OK given chemical weapons plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, rejecting warnings of launching a dangerous new phase of the arms race, has given tentative approval to building a new plant that could make weapons for chemical warfare.

Supporters said the plant is needed to deter Soviet chemical weapon superiority.

Tuesday's votes were on separate pieces of legislation that have yet to gain full congressional approval — a military construction authorization bill in the Senate and a record $157.1 billion defense spending bill in the House that is $2.6 billion more than President Carter asked for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The proposed plant at Pine Bluff, Ark., would be equipped and ready to manufacture the weapons if Congress and the president decided to stockpile or use them.

The binary weapons would contain separate chambers of chemicals that are harmless until mixed to produce nerve gas or other toxic fumes.

The Carter administration opposed the appropriation for chemical weapons. Defense Secretary Harold Brown said providing money for a nerve-gas facility is premature and could set back negotiations with allies on mutual deterrence planning.

The House, which already had approved $3 million for the plant, voted Tuesday to reject an effort to cut an additional $19 million for it from the appropriation bill.

The House then approved the bill and sent it to the Senate. The Senate voted to add the initial

$3 million for the chemical weapon plant to a $5.4 billion military construction authorization measure and then approved the bill.

"This would send a horrible signal to the rest of the world," said Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., who led the unsuccessful fight in the House to eliminate all money for the plant. "We will have initiated an extremely dangerous phase of the arms race. Now is the time for reason."

But Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala., said Soviet advances in chemical weaponry require the United States to construct the plant.

"It is a terrible weapon," Edwards said, "but this is a terrible bill. I wish we did not have to discuss nuclear destruction and these other programs. But we have to live in the real world."

In the Senate, opponents including Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., failed by just one vote to delay a decision on the nerve-gas facility until next year.

Hart said the United States first needs defensive measures to protect its own troops from chemical warfare.

"In the absence of an adequate defense, the offensive capability is not a credible deterrent," Hart said.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the plant is needed now to convince the Soviets there is "a credible U.S. deterrent to any Soviet use of chemical weapons."

Chemical industry fighting toxic waste 'superfund'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chemical industry, facing legislation that would impose millions of dollars in new taxes on its products, is lobbying hard to convince Congress to start small in dealing with the hazards of toxic chemicals.

The Chemical Manufacturers Association, while saying it supports federal programs to clean up abandoned chemical dump sites, is arguing that Congress is overreacting to a few highly publicized incidents such as New York's Love Canal.

The association says it fears the end result will be punitive and back-breaking taxes on its members to cover problems that can better be handled through other means.

The industry's arguments were getting an acid test in the House today as congressmen debated legislation establishing three "superfunds" — multimillion-dollar programs to clean up oil spills, chemical spills and abandoned dump sites.

"Superfund" is a general label applied to a series of bills pending in Congress. All were prompted by incidents such as Love Canal, the neighborhood that discovered it was built atop an old chemical dump that was slowly poisoning its residents.

Washington's governor, Dixy Lee Ray, beaten in primary

By the Associated Press

Jim McDermott, a liberal state senator from Seattle, upset maverick Gov. Dixy Lee Ray in Washington's Democratic primary, while in Massachusetts, two liberals Democrats who favor federal funding of abortions beat back conservative challengers who had the support of the Roman Catholic Church.

And in Oklahoma, Democrat Andy Coats, a former Oklahoma County district attorney, defeated the son of one of the state's most famous political figures in a runoff and will face Republican Don Nickles in November for the U.S. Senate.

"How sweet it is!" said McDermott who ousted the controversial and colorful Miss Ray, the state's first woman governor.

"I doubt the governor will feel like talking with the press," said C. Montgomery Johnson, Miss Ray's campaign manager. "She has had a very strenuous year with the Legislature, Mount St. Helens erupting and a horrendous campaign."

With 5,833 of Washington's 6,041 precincts reporting, McDermott had 299,105 votes, or 58.6 percent, to 211,358, or 41.4 percent, for Ray.

King County Executive John Spellman won the Republican nomination, with House Republican Speaker Duane Berentson close behind.

Spellman had 148,428 votes, or 42 percent, to Berentson's 140,385, or 39.8 percent. Secretary of State Bruce Chapman, who trailed badly with 64,477 votes, conceded defeat with only 18.3 percent of the vote.

Incumbent Warren Magnuson faced only token opposition in the Democratic U.S. senatorial primary and will face state Attorney General Slade Gorton in November. Gorton defeated former television commentator Lloyd Cooney for the GOP nomination.

In Massachusetts, U.S. Rep. James M. Shannon and state Rep. Barney Frank, survived tough primary battles against conservative opponents and anti-abortion forces led by the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

Both won despite an 11th-hour abortion controversy stirred up by an open letter from Cardinal Humberto Medeiros, archbishop of Boston.

"Save our children, born and unborn," Medeiros urged, in a letter read in many parishes throughout the heavily Catholic 4th and 5th congressional districts during Masses two days before the election.

Shannon, 28, won renomination to a second term against conservative Lowell businessman Robert F. Hatem with 41,153 votes, or 54 percent, to 34,577 votes, 46 percent.

Frank, a 40-year-old liberal member of the Massachusetts House, defeated the conservative mayor of Waltham, Arthur J. Clark, 52 percent; 37,695 for Frank, 46 percent. The names of the other Democratic candidates who withdrew remained on the ballot and accounted for the remaining 2 percent.

Both Shannon and Frank face Republican opposition in November, but their districts are overwhelmingly Democratic.

In Oklahoma, Coats topped Robert S. Kerr Jr., son of a former Oklahoma governor and senator. In final unofficial returns, Coats had 209,327 votes, or 53 percent, to 185,690, or 47 percent for Kerr.

Nickles, a state senator from Ponca City, easily beat Tulsa businessman John Zink. Nickles received 81,645 votes, or 65 percent, to 43,018, or 35 percent, for Zink.

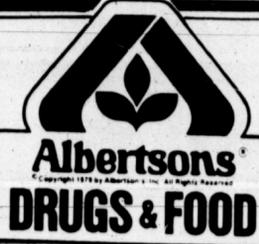

In Oklahoma's only congressional runoff, attorney Dave McCurdy of Norman won the Democratic Party nomination for the 4th Congressional District by defeating veteran state Rep. James Townsend.

McCurdy now faces Republican nominee Howard Rutledge in the Nov. 4 general election to determine who will succeed retiring U.S. Rep. Tom Steed.

Reagan wraps up four-city Texas tour

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan wrapped up a four-city campaign tour of South Texas with promises to cure the nation of a malaise created by a failed presidency.

Reagan repeatedly assailed the president's domestic policies Tuesday and urged a partisan audience in this oil-rich city not to allow Carter to "walk away" from the consequences. "That is the issue today. Not just what he has done, not just the promises he has broken, not just the sorry record he has made — but what he is doing to us now, what his policies have already done to shape the future," the former California governor said. The Republican candidate began his two-day campaign swing Monday night in San Antonio, several hours after Carter completed a whirlwind tour here. Accompanying Regan were GOP vice presidential nominee George Bush, former President Gerald R. Ford, Gov. Bill Clements, former Gov. John B. Connally and former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach.

Reagan and Bush were to leave the Bayou City today. During a long day of campaigning Tuesday, Reagan attended Mexican Independence Day celebrations in San Antonio and Harlingen and spoke at an outdoor rally at a Corpus Christi airport. Republicans hope the visit to Texas would cement many of the votes, particularly Hispanic, that helped put Carter in office. Mexican-American voters in Texas now number more than 750,000, compared to less than 500,000 four years ago. In the 1976 election, Carter captured 87 percent of the Hispanic vote.

"No one is more aware of what his election campaign can mean for America than Texans," Reagan said. In San Antonio, Reagan promised to slash individual income taxes 10 percent during each of his first three years in office and to tie income tax brackets to inflation to eliminate "bracket creep."

"Jimmy Carter has become the greatest taxer in the history of the Republic and our economy is close to the breaking point." Later in Harlingen, he chided the Carter administration's policies toward Mexico and backed Clements' suggestion that Hispanic workers be given temporary employment visas if they seek jobs in the United States.

Kennedy supporters hear Carter appeal

CLEVELAND (AP) — President Carter, admittedly in trouble in this state that put him over the top by the narrowest of margins in 1976, is imploring supporters of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to work for him now and avoid an election like the one that put Richard Nixon in the White House.

Humphrey of a chance to serve as president and put Richard Nixon in the White House. A few votes, a few more speeches, a few more radio tapes and TV advertisements could have prevented the Nixon administration from taking place.

"I think all of you realize that since the Democratic convention was concluded, that one of my best and strongest and most effective supporters and campaigners has been Sen. Ted Kennedy, and I deeply appreciate that," Carter told a reception for the Cuyahoga County Democratic Party here Tuesday.

"That's what we face this year," he said. Timothy Hagan, the county Democratic leader who headed Kennedy's campaign here and is now working for Carter, said most of the Massachusetts senator's supporters have followed Kennedy's lead and are now backing Carter.

"Now is a time to bring ourselves together to think about the importance of what we've done together and to think about the importance of the future." And at practically every stop, on his whirlwind two-day campaign swing — from Texas, to the Deep South, to Ohio — Carter has reminded his audience of what happened a dozen years ago.

But he conceded that "Ohio right now is in the Reagan column" because the economic recession has taken a heavy toll in this industrial state.

"You remember 1968," he told black political leaders in Atlanta. "How a divided Democratic Party deprived Hubert Hagan claimed there are some indications the situation is taking a turn for the better, and he said Kennedy told him last week he would be coming to help out in Ohio.

Anderson losing his old magic?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — John B. Anderson, a favorite among presidential candidates on college campuses last spring, appears to have lost some of his magic before student audiences this fall.

As college students have returned to campus, the independent presidential candidate has resumed a heavy schedule of appearances at universities and colleges wherever he goes. On a few campuses since Labor Day, Anderson has gotten a good response, especially in speeches where he notes his long-time support of ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and his opposition to registration for the military draft.

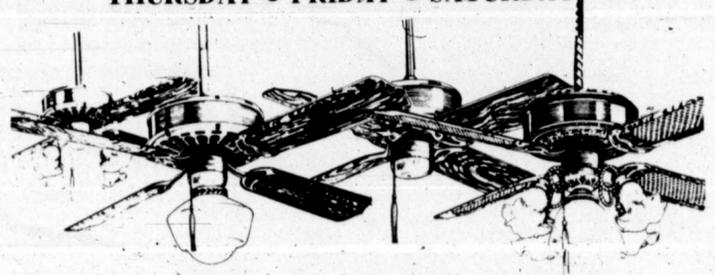

But in a number of recent stops, including San Jose State in Clermont, Calif., and on Tuesday at the University of Colorado in Boulder, the reaction to Anderson among students has been at best attentive and sporadically hostile.

"He seems like just another politician," one University of Colorado student said. About 4,000 students came for Anderson's outdoor rally in brilliant sunshine at the Boulder campus.

They were entertained by a five-piece rock band which played "Johnny B. Goode" just before the Republican congressman took the podium. From the start, Anderson spoke in general terms despite frequent calls from the students to discuss specific issues.

At one point, Anderson recalled the recent controversy over the Stealth bomber and suggestions that President Carter had leaked information about the new weapons development to the press. "I guess for Jimmy Carter, I am a Stealth candidate," Anderson said. "I don't show up on his candidate suggestion screen."

Somoza, three others killed

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — Former Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza, his driver and bodyguard were killed today by assassins who blew apart his automobile with explosives and automatic weapons fire, U.S. officials here reported.

fourth person, unidentified, was also killed. Some reports, not confirmed immediately, said the exiled leader was attacked by three men who fired a bazooka from a house in central Asuncion as Somoza's Mercedes-Benz passed by. Other reports said the assailants tossed bombs. "Somoza was killed instantly, and his body is still in the car... The car is really rather blown apart," said Donna Marie Oglesby, a public affairs officer at the U.S. Embassy in Asuncion. "Somehow bombs were involved. Either the Somoza car had weapons that exploded, or they were bombed as well as bazooka'ed," she said. An Asuncion radio report said the Nicaraguan's body was "virtually shredded" in the attack. Paraguayan authorities have not arrested any suspects, and no one claimed responsibility immediately, Mrs. Oglesby said.

Paraguayan radio reports said the explosion occurred at about 10:30 a.m. about eight blocks from the luxurious home Somoza occupied. The site was just two blocks from the U.S. Embassy. The bodies of Somoza and his two companions, believed to be his chauffeur and a bodyguard, were later taken to a hospital, radio reports said. The 54-year-old Somoza was overthrown in July 1979 in a revolution led by leftist Sandinista guerrillas. He had been in exile in this South American nation since August 1979, granted asylum by Paraguayan President Alfredo Stroessner.

Hospital expenses exceed budget

Midland Memorial Hospital board of trustees learned today the hospital's operational expenses for the year-to-date through August exceeded the budget by more than $200,000. Although the trustees' finance committee reported a favorable variance of $8,742 between the actual operational excess of $464 and the budgeted deficit of $8,278 for the month, the overall financial picture seemed bleak. The figures showed a year-to-date deficit of $168,551, compared to a budgeted excess of $33,406, leaving an unfavorable variance of $201,957 for the year-to-date.

When depreciation was added to those figures, the situation looked worse. For August alone, the excess plus depreciation brought the figure to a deficit of $76,936. For the year, the total deficit climbed to $991,151 through August. The number of patients for August was higher than the budget predicted.

ed with an average 129.5 patients. But the added patients per day compared to an expected 120 to help much.

Soviets demand U.S. return soldier

By The Associated Press

The Soviet Union was reported today to have demanded that the U.S. Embassy in Afghanistan hand over a Soviet soldier who has been granted temporary refuge at the mission.

The State Department said Tuesday the United States has no intention of returning the soldier to Soviet custody. Department spokesman John Trattner said Washington is engaged in discussions with Soviet, Afghan and U.N. authorities in an effort to fulfill the soldier's wishes.

What exactly those wishes are remains unclear, as no one at the U.S.

Embassy in Kabul speaks fluent Russian, sources said. The soldier, described only as a private or corporal from a construction brigade, slipped past Afghan security into the compound Monday.

The State Department, amid concern that either the Soviets or Afghans may try to retrieve the soldier by force, has "made it clear" that Washington holds Moscow responsible for the safety and well-being of the 14 Americans stationed at the mission. Undersecretary of State David Newsom summoned Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin to the department Monday to present the U.S.

Today's edition of the New York Times reported that Newsom asked that Moscow use its influence in Afghanistan to arrange for the soldier's safe conduct out of the war-torn nation. The paper said Moscow is insisting that he be returned.

Moscow's request for the man's return was underlined by the stationing of a large detachment of Afghan police, considered virtual Soviet clients, outside the American mission.

At least one U.S. official has noted that the soldier may be in for a long stay at the embassy. He cited the case of a group of Soviet Pentacostalists which has been living in the U.S. Embassy in Moscow for more than two years. The religious dissidents want to emigrate to the United States, but Soviet authorities have refused to allow them out.

The Soviets poured some 85,000 troops into neighboring Afghanistan in December to help the pro-Moscow regime in Kabul in its so far unsuccessful battle to crush anti-Communist Moslem insurgents.

An Afghan rebel who arrived in Peshawar, Pakistan, Tuesday reported some 80 people killed in clashes 40 miles east of Kabul.

Zookeepers to create sperm and eggbank

CHICAGO (AP) — Zookeepers from around the nation, fearing the extinction of many exotic animal species, are planning to create a sperm and egg bank for wildlife.

"It's a race against time to save some of them — like the great panda from China, the mountain gorilla from West Africa, the California condor and the snow leopard from Siberia," says Dennis Merritt, assistant director of Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago.

Merritt envisions breeding centers in a half-dozen major cities where zoos will ship animals for honeymoons or artificial breeding.

"Natural habitat is disappearing at a frightening rate and in another generation zoos and wildlife preserves will be the only depositories of exotic wild animals — the only place where they can be seen," Merritt says.

Stuntman ignores safety

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The producers of ABC-TV's "That's Incredible!" are ignoring the safety of daredevils to give their audience thrills, the head of a stuntmen's association contends.

"If they keep it up eventually somebody will get killed," said Ron Stein, president of Stunts Unlimited, a group of professional Hollywood stuntmen.

The accusation came Tuesday as motorcycle daredevil Gary Wells lay in critical but stable condition in a Las Vegas, Nev., hospital. Wells tore a heart artery and broke both legs and his pelvis Monday night when he hit a wall after leaping 155 feet over fountains outside Caesars Palace.

Cameras from "That's Incredible!" were on hand for the leap, but did not film it because of a mix-up.

Woody Fraser, producer of the show which features people performing unusual feats, denied that it exploits the daredevils.

"Nobody's encouraging anybody to do anything," Fraser said.

"Wells is a thorough professional. He's been on 'CBS Sports Spectacular' about eight times. His record, I think, is 176 feet. The jump he made yesterday was 150 feet."

Wells is the third person injured attempting a stunt for "That's Incredible!"

In Los Angeles in March, Stan Krumi permanently injured his hands in a 150-foot dash through a tunnel of fire wearing a suit that was supposed to have been fire-retardant.

In July, Steven Lewis attempted to leap over two cars speeding toward him in the Arizona desert, but his left foot smashed through the first car's windshield.

Wells was hurt when his motorcycle clipped a landing ramp after the leap.

"My feeling is that 'That's Incredible!' has been negligent," said Stein. "Nobody is drawing the line on what's safe and what isn't."

"They're hiring daredevils and not stuntmen, and we resent that they're calling them Hollywood stuntmen," Stein said. Stuntmen consider themselves professionals who carefully assess risks and say that not all daredevils are as cautious.

No charges filed in bomb case

DALLAS (AP) — No charges will be filed against the woman who mailed a package containing a crude explosive device that ignited while being unloaded at the U.S. Postal Service Dallas bulk mail center, according to a postal official.

Postal inspector Henry Herrera said Tuesday the U.S. attorney's office refused to accept charges against the woman. She mailed the package for a friend who had recently been discharged from the U.S. Coast Guard, he said.

"As far as we can tell, there was no criminal intent," Herrera said. "Apparently the person who mailed the package did not know she was breaking the law."

The Dallas police bomb squad disarmed the explosive device, made from an old clock, a clock radio wired to a speaker and three military-type flares.

Part four: A frustrated and subdued vice president

tion, although LBJ ran fairly even with him during the roll call until it reached the second half of the alphabetic order of states.

Booth Mooney, an aide: "After Kennedy was nominated, Johnson snapped off the television set and said, 'Well, that's that. Tomorrow we can do something we really want to do — go to Disneyland, maybe."

The next morning, recalls Homer Thornberry, an old friend, he telephoned Johnson to express his regrets for the way things had turned out: "He thanked me and he said, 'Kennedy's coming to see me in a little while. He may be wanting to talk to me about the vice presidency. What do you think?'"

THORNBERY ADVISED him not to accept, but: "He said, 'Well, here's my problem. If I refuse it and go back as majority leader and Kennedy chooses somebody else, and he loses, they'll blame me for it, and then my position as majority leader might be in jeopardy. If he wins, they'll say, 'He won without your help,' and then I'll have some problems. Finally, I may owe a responsibility to try to carry this country for the Democratic party."

And those apparently were the reasons for Johnson's acceptance. It was the Boston and Austin ticket, but not everyone was completely happy with it. Bobby Kennedy, for one, was not convinced that Lyndon was the best man for the second job.

In November, Kennedy and Johnson defeated Richard Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge by 112,881 votes — 112,881 votes out of 66,832,818 cast.

Margaret Mayer of the Dallas Times Herald: "The night after he was elected vice-president — very late, when it was quite apparent that he and Kennedy had been elected — I don't think I ever saw a more unhappy man. There was no jubilation. Lyndon looked as if he had lost his last friend on earth, and later he was rude to me, very rude, and I tried to remind myself that he was unhappy... It was clear to me and a lot of other people that even then he didn't want to be vice president."

On January 21, a day after the inauguration, Lyndon took up the gavel of presiding officer of the Senate, which he had so often said he would not do. But he was not going to be disloyal to his president, and there is no evidence that he ever was, publicly or privately.

"There is," Hubert Humphrey used to say, "an old story about the mother who had two sons. One went to sea, and the other became vice president, and neither was ever heard of again."

BUT KENNEDY TRIED to make his vice president more than an empty office filled by a useless man. He promptly named Lyndon Johnson chairman of his Presidential Committee on Equal Opportunity and chairman of the Space Council, two jobs he hoped would keep him busy and happy.

And, perhaps more important, he made sure that the Johnsons were invited to the White House for the state dinners and formal ceremonies.

Angier Biddle Duke, the White House chief of protocol: "Kennedy would (invite them) and they would come, I say this in all respectfulness, not about Lyndon Johnson, but about the post of vice president. Nobody was terribly interested in him."

Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk: "I had long been used to the favorite indoor sport around Washington — making fun of vice presidents. But I never saw the slightest trace of that in John F. Kennedy. He always spoke of Lyndon Johnson with understanding and respect, although some of his staff people used to throw barbs at the vice president."

That Lyndon, who always wanted EVERYBODY to like him, suffered under the barely concealed scorn of certain presidential staff members cannot be questioned, but he would not have minded that had he held any actual power over events and had any real outlet for his reined-in energy. But he did not. What the vice president often did was travel, representing the president or showing the flag or fulfilling some sort of diplomatic or ceremonial function.

DURING THE 35 months he was vice president, Lyndon Johnson embarked on a new "tour" on an average of every three months, visited dozens of foreign countries, conferred with their leaders, hooted and holered, even in the Taj Mahal, spoke of the poverty of his youth, especially to the dispossessed, got out of official cars and walked among and shook the hands of the multitudes, and acted for all the world as if he were running for re-election to the Senate from Texas.

When Lyndon was in India, Ambassador John F. Kennedy Galbraith had to find him a translator.

Galbraith: "I told the translator, 'If Lyndon forgets and asks for votes, leave that out.'"

Lyndon as traveling ambassador was most effective during the first year of his vice presidency, when he tried harder, was fresher, less travel-weary, more interested. But even more, as Lyndon in Washington became increasingly constrained and frustrated and subdued in his vice presidency role, Lyndon out of Washington, and particularly out of the country, reacted with a characteristic lack of restraint that left his hosts, although frequently charmed, at the same time bewildered and often dismayed.

Harry McPherson, lawyer and LBJ aide: "It was a time of deprivation. He grew very fat and drank a lot. He took up some golf, I recall, but not with enthusiasm."

But he remained loyal to Kennedy and scrupulous in his dealings with him. Outwardly, he and the president were still friends, but anti-Johnson sentiment was rife among the inner Kennedy circle, and Kennedy, disappointed with congressional inaction on his legislative program, was no doubt convinced that Lyndon could have helped him out there if he tried.

U.S. won't send Russian back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States does not intend to return to Soviet custody the Russian soldier seeking political asylum at the American Embassy in Afghanistan, the State Department says.

THE TRUTH IS, Lyndon had virtually given up any thought of trying to re-exercise power. He had resigned himself to the fact that the only power that counted in the executive branch was in the Oval Office and the few men who had freest access there.

So there was, by mid-1962, already talk, discussion, hints; that Lyndon would be dumped from the re-election ticket in 1964.

Within months, however, Texas politics would intrude, disturbing John F. Kennedy to such a degree that he would decide to fly to that state and reassert his own paramount position within the deeply split Democratic party there.

History was preparing to turn an important page.

Iran tarnishes OPEC's unity image by blocking cartel's pricing plan

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Iran, spearheading an alliance of oil cartel militants, drove a wedge in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' facade of unity by leading the hardliners in blocking agreement on a long-term oil pricing plan.

Iran, Algeria and Libya, the 13-nation cartel's chief proponents of higher prices, got together Tuesday to torpedo a plan that would have increased oil prices by small amounts every three months by linking them to world inflation rates, currency fluctuations and economic growth rates.

The militants demanded steeper price increases as well as cuts in OPEC production to dry up the world oil glut that is making it hard for them to sell their high priced oil.

Ministers representing the 10 nations who support the long range plan said they might adopt it by themselves, despite the hawks' objections, when it comes up for consideration again in early November, just before the summit of OPEC heads of state.

An analysis

The current meeting of OPEC oil, finance and foreign ministers in Vienna was extended by one day today so the delegates could discuss proposals to increase OPEC aid to developing nations hard hit by rising oil prices. But ministers said there would be no further discussion of the long-term pricing plan.

"We agreed to disagree," a Venezuelan delegate said.

OPEC delegates and oil industry observers said political tensions between Iran and other OPEC members surfaced repeatedly during the Vienna meeting.

The conference opened an hour late Monday when

Iran, which has been fighting an increasingly heated border war with Iraq, threatened to overturn the agenda if an Iraqi delegate was allowed to chair the meeting. An Algerian was named to preside instead and the Iraqi was appointed alternate chairman.

The procedural dispute set the stage for more substantive disagreements to come.

Iran said it would not consider the long-term pricing plan before Iraq and Saudi Arabia agreed to cut their oil production to ease oil surpluses and help buoy prices.

Iran's chief delegate, Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinefar, accused both countries of "aiding imperialism" by continuing to pump oil at current rates.

He proposed that Iraq cut its production by 500,000 barrels a day, and called on Saudi Arabia to trim "at least" two million barrels a day from its current output of 9.5 million barrels daily.

The argument was based in part on politics. Iran has adopted a strong anti-Western foreign policy since the Islamic fundamentalist revolution that deposed the Shah of Iran in January 1979. Saudi Arabia, meanwhile, maintains close ties with the United States and Iraq, once a key member of the militant alliance, has recently been edging toward the West.

Oil industry sources said Iran also wanted the two countries to reduce their production because it has been having trouble selling its high-priced oil in a glutted market.

Although the oil exported by the three nations is almost identical in quality, Iran charges $35 a 42-gallon barrel of its oil, compared to Iraq's price of $32 a barrel and the Saudi tab of $28 a barrel.

"They (the Saudis) are lining the pockets of the multinational oil companies by selling at the lower price," Moinefar told The Associated Press. "They do not care about helping the oppressed peoples of the world."

Libya and Algeria joined Iran for both political and economic reasons. Both are socialist countries with anti-Western foreign policies and both favor a pricing policy that will push up prices faster than proposed in the majority's long-term plan.

In addition, industry sources say the two countries also are finding it difficult to market their $37-a-barrel oil in today's flooded market.

Algeria was wavering early Tuesday and hinted at a willingness to support the majority proposal, OPEC sources said. But Moinefar and Libyan Oil Minister Abdussalam Zagar took Algerian Oil Minister Belkacem Nabi aside and convinced him to support the militants' position, the sources added.

Tuition increase defended

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby says a committee that recommended higher college tuition felt loans and scholarships for dental and medical students "would prevent minority and other needy students from being barred from this kind of training."

Hobby responded by letter to Ruben Bonilla Jr., national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens. Bonilla said LULAC was "unilaterally opposed" to the tuition increase proposed by the Special Committee on Higher Education.

Soviet purge 'as severe' as Stalin's

WASHINGTON (AP) — A current Soviet purge of dissident groups is as "severe as almost any in the period since Stalin," according to a top State Department official.

Patricia M. Derian, assistant secretary for human rights and humanitarian affairs, made the comment Tuesday in prepared testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on International Organizations. She said the Soviets have carried out "an intensified campaign to suppress dissent" in the past 12 months, using "extreme police harassment, blocking of contacts to the West, loss of jobs, frequent arrest — often on trumped-up criminal charges — harsh sentences, internal exile and forced emigration."

If you've been looking for good buys in beef, you've probably noticed that while the less tender cuts may be more economical, these cuts are usually not as suitable for broiling, barbecuing or roasting.

The most tender cuts — the loin and rib sections — make up only a small proportion of the beef carcass. Only about 22 percent of all beef is naturally tender enough to broil, barbecue and roast. The desirability of these cuts, coupled with the limited supply, commands a higher price.

You can make the less tender — leaner cuts from the more active muscles, such as the shoulder (chuck), round and flank — suitable for dry-heat cooking methods by tenderizing the meat before cooking.

To tenderize meat you must employ mechanical or chemical methods of breaking down tough connective tissue.

At your request a retail butcher can tenderize meat. Usually, he uses a cubing machine, a mechanical device that works much like a meat cleaver or hammer you would use at home. Cube steaks, minute steaks or sandwich steak are usually prepared this way. For roasts, a machine equipped with needles pierces the meat and breaks tissue.

You also may purchase liquid and powder tenderizers that chemically break down connective tissue and absorb moisture.

The tenderizers work efficiently at room temperatures; at refrigerator temperatures action is greatly retarded and at freezing temperatures, the action stops completely. At cooking temperatures the action ceases completely and permanently.

At the packing plant, steaks and roasts may be dipped in a tenderizing solution for a few seconds, then packaged and placed in a freezer to stop the action of enzymes.

In federally inspected plants, where liquid tenderizers are used, FSQS inspectors monitor the process to make sure the treated product does not absorb more than three percent liquid.

If tenderizers were not controlled, you would be buying more water than normally present in meat, since liquid tenderizer treated meats absorb more moisture and juices due to the method of treatment.

Papain, an enzyme derived from the papaya tree, is a tenderizer discovered centuries ago and still used today. Ficin and Bromelin are also plant enzymes used to tenderize meat. Meat treated in a federally inspected plant must carry on the label the name of the enzyme and any added ingredient, for example, "Beef round steak dipped in solution of water, papain."

Meat tenderizers improve the tenderness of meat, reduce cooking time, shrinkage, loss of flavor, juices and nutrients. They offer a good alternative for cooking less tender cuts traditionally prepared by moist heat methods.

If you decide to tenderize meat yourself, apply the tenderizer before meat is frozen or during thawing of frozen meat. Do not use additional salt, since tenderizers usually contain salt. Cut shallow gashes on meat to allow penetration of tenderizer. Before cooking let meat stand at room temperature for 30 minutes or according to package directions.

Although hamburgers made from extra-lean beef may be juicier and tastier than those made from regular beef, there is only a minute difference in fat levels of cooked ground beef. Regular ground beef patties lose more fat during cooking and extra-lean ground beef loses more water.

NEW TENDERIZER REGULATIONS EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 6

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has revised its meat and poultry inspection regulations to permit processors the use of tenderizers in all red meats and mature poultry, effective October 6. Formerly, tenderizers were permitted in beef only.

If tenderizers — called proteolytic enzymes — are used, the label must indicate it with a descriptive statement next to the product name — for example "Tenderized with Papain." If any substances other than water are used in the enzyme solution, it must also be shown on the label. Weight gain from an enzyme solution is limited to three percent above the weight of the raw, untreated product.

Enzymes permitted under the new rule are papain, bromelin, ficin, aspergillus oryzae and the aspergillus flavus oryzae group. They are "generally recognized as safe" for use in human food by the Food and Drug Administration.

The final regulations will apply to all products subject to inspection under the Federal Meat Inspection Act and the Poultry Products Inspection Act, as well as to all products treated with the enzymes at retail establishments INCLUDING those establishments exempt from federal inspection requirements.

What does this mean for you, the consumer? We can probably expect to see the use of tenderizers on less tender red meats and poultry in the future. This will enable you to utilize these products with more diversification than has been previously possible. They should also provide a lower cost means of providing attractive and tasty protein in your family's meals. You may want to expend a little effort to commit these acceptable enzymes for tenderizing to memory. Start watching for these added labels to red meat and poultry products after October 6. Join us next week for more creative ideas especially for...living today!

Woman's complaint draws response

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever since she told the world how tough it is for modern career women to find eligible men, Roma Gans has not had much time for looking. Men from all over the country have been trying to meet her.

"It's really been crazy," said Ms. Gans, 37, a placement counselor at Columbia University.

She said letters, cards and telephone calls began arriving last month after she was quoted in an Associated Press story on demographic and social changes that have created a shortage of compatible men for the emerging class of young professional women.

"It's difficult to meet men," Ms. Gans had said in explaining why it's not her fault she never married. "And it's really difficult to meet the type of man I would like to establish a relationship with."

Her complaint drew vigorous responses from men as varied as a North Carolina laborer, an Illinois attorney, a Lake Tahoe piano player and a California convicted murderer and evangelist.

Ms. Gans, who said her comments surprised friends and relatives who had always thought of her as shy, said she has talked on the phone to some of the men and will answer some others' letters.

For instance, she has a tentative date with the 27-year-old Urbana, Ill., lawyer when he visits New York City in a couple weeks.

"I said I'd see him," Ms. Gans said. "He mentioned dinner. I'd be curious to meet someone like that, who would go to all the trouble of writing to someone they don't know."

She also said she wouldn't mind meeting a 42-year-old divorced Grand Rapids, Mich., physician who told her that men, too, have trouble meeting compatible women: "I just wanted to say hello and welcome to the club."

She is less likely, she said, to get together with the Lake Tahoe lounge piano man who described himself as a 50-year-old widower. His gaudy postcard invited her to visit, with the postscript, "If interested, RSVP. No fun and games please."

The 57-year-old convicted murderer and former drug addict, on parole as a traveling evangelist, told Ms. Gans, "I'm your equal."

"My intentions are honorable and sincere," a 42-year-old divorced Phoenix, Ariz., salesman wrote.

"I realize this is highly irregular," a 45-year-old divorced Hazelton, Pa., machinist wrote, "but like the saying goes, nothing ventured, nothing gained."

A Wenonah, N.J., man wrote that he was delighted with Ms. Gans' half-joking formula for the perfect marriage of the 1980s: "Two workaholics."

"Can it be there are more of us?" he asked.

But Ms. Gans said perhaps her favorite letter was from two retired Jonesboro, Ark., teachers who wished there was "some modest way" to fix her up with their 40-year-old son.

Victory claimed in Bendectin proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposed labeling rules for the morning sickness drug Bendectin are being hailed as both a consumer breakthrough and vindication for a major drug maker.

The new rules were suggested Tuesday by a special Food and Drug Administration advisory panel that concluded after two days of hearings that the available scientific evidence neither indicts nor wholly exonerates Bendectin. Some experts believe the drug may cause birth defects.

The agency is not required to adopt the advisory group's recommendations.

The fertility and maternal health drugs advisory committee wants the FDA to require "patient package inserts" for Bendectin, advising women when to take it. Bendectin is prescribed for the nausea and vomiting that often occur during early stages of pregnancy.

The panel also recommended revising physician information leaflets to suggest prescribing the drug only for discomfort that is "unresponsive to conservative measures." Some panel members expressed concern that the drug was being given too frequently to pregnant women, who should avoid all unnecessary medication.

The panel also suggested that the FDA require the labeling warnings for any drug containing the same components as Bendectin.

The manufacturer, Richardson-Merrell Inc., of Wilton, Conn., interpreted the non-binding recommendations as a victory.

"We are generally pleased with the findings of the advisory committee," said spokesman Robert Irvine. "They confirmed what our position has been all along: that there is no scientifically demonstrated association between Bendectin and an increase in the normal rate of birth defects."

But Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., who had been conducting his own investigation and urged the federal evaluation, described the panel's action as a victory for consumers. Edwards said he would "monitor FDA implementation to insure that the true risks and benefits of this drug are made public."

Until the advisory group's review, the FDA had taken the position that Bendectin did not cause birth defects and did not need warning labels. Bendectin, first approved for use in 1956, has been taken by more than 20 million women worldwide.

The debate over its possible side-effects became a war of words among a group of international scientists involved in a study of birth defects.

After hearing both sides, the FDA panel concluded that the evidence against Bendectin was too weak to justify withdrawing it from the market, but too significant to be ignored.

The committee noted the presentation of two studies, which associated the drug with heart defects and cleft palate and tongue at statistically low levels. It urged that continuing epidemiological studies of the drug be encouraged. At least three such studies are in progress.

Bendectin prompted one widely publicized lawsuit, Michael and Elizabeth Mekdeci of Orlando, Fla., blamed the drug — taken by Mrs. Mekdeci during pregnancy — for congenital limb deformities suffered by their son, and claimed the drug's manufacturer should be held responsible. A jury found in their favor, but the case will be retried under a judge's orders in January.

'Flair' style wins annual coiffure award

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Mary Halbur of Milwaukee won the 1980 National Coiffure Championships at the Grand Jubilee Convention of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Assn. held here. In this year's event, 38 contestants vied for top honors.

Ms. Halbur described her winning creation as "a European interpretation of the Flair," a creation of NHCA. "The cut had smoother, simpler lines and featured a hairbow accented by a colored hair extension. The cut was asymmetrically shaped, and while it was definitely a Flair cut, it had a European flavor."

Amateur musicians

WILMETTE, Ill. (AP) — The number of Americans joining the ranks of amateur musicians is growing at a rate of about 6 percent a year, reports the American Music Conference. More than 50 million Americans participate in music activities and they spent nearly $2.5 billion on instruments, music and accessories in 1979, according to the AMC.

Deodorant sales rise slowly

Each year Americans spend more than a half billion dollars on deodorants and antiperspirants.

However, for the last few years sales have only been rising 1 or 2 percent a year as compared to toothpaste, up 8 percent, shampoo, up 10 percent and toilet paper, up 17 percent.

Teen-age girls like to keep their hair clean. Forty-five percent of those in a recent survey said they shampoo every day.

Reminiscing the birth of a child.

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

The midwife is standing by, the birthing room is ready. Probably they've even boiled hot water and brought plenty of towels. We're having a blessed event in our family.

This is the first child for my oldest daughter, the first grandchild for me.

A friend asked me how it felt, becoming a grandmother. There was more to the question than might appear. She had been talking of my life, and what had happened along the way, only moments before.

She knows me well enough to understand that I graduated from high school at the end of the 1950s, moved along to college in time for the torment of the '60s. Like so many of my classmates, I married young and started a family while still in college.

WE PLANNED FOR a blissful, stable life, but along came Vietnam. In 1965, I found myself alone with my children in San Francisco, in the midst of the flower child movement.

And so it went, one memorable phase right after another. And now, before I was truly prepared for it, grandmotherhood. It's hard to believe that flower children are that far along in life, but it's true.

"My daughter's too young," I explained to my friend.

"At 19, she's about the same age you were when she was born," came the reply.

How else would I know she's too young?

IF GRANDMOTHERHOOD MAKES me feel any way at all, it's probably expressed in a single word. Helpless.

All those years of parenthood have been marked by one thing. Change, unpredictable change. As a new mother, it never occurred to me that so many things would happen.

But there was a clue. One evening, while my daughter was tiny, we gathered around the television set with the whole family. All of us were frightened.

I fed the baby while we watched President John F. Kennedy explain what was happening in the Caribbean. The Cuban missile crisis was in progress, and we wondered if a nuclear war was next.

IT WASN'T, BUT one political, social and intellectual crisis after another rocked the nation, and they swept mother and children right along.

It would be wonderful if, somehow, I could tell my daughter some of the important things about motherhood, but after my own experience, I wonder if there are any universal truths.

Actually, I can think of one. When parents have a child and they love that child, they double their emotional life. As an individual you worry about your own health, safety and welfare. You're scared, fearful, sad and frequently confused for yourself. Now you feel exactly the same way for another person. If the child is hurt, the parent hurts too.

And of course, the same is true for joy. When your youngster is happy, fulfilled, and at ease in the world, a parent can relax and enjoy the same good feelings.

There is one other universal truth that might ease that helpless feeling. The Cuban missile crisis was over 18 years ago. Though I thought I might have to escape with my daughter to some remote refuge and scrounge like a cave woman to keep her alive, that never did happen.

Buying meals with food stamps outlawed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Human Resources voted Tuesday to cancel its experimental program that allowed old people to use food stamps to buy restaurant meals.

The program started Sept. 1, 1979, and involved 94 restaurants in Taylor, Galveston, Harris and Travis Counties.

Merle Springer of the board's staff said about 1,000 persons were eligible but "on any given day, only 11 participated."

DEAR ABBY

Gift of sight cannot be bought

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter in your column signed, SEEING AGAIN, I cried. They were not tears of sadness, but tears of joy.

SEEING AGAIN wrote in part: "As a teen-ager a few years ago, I underwent two cornea transplants—one in each eye. I want to address my feelings to my unknown donor."

"I never knew you, yet your generosity changed my life. You died, yet a part of you still lives. You gave of yourself. It was the last thing you gave, and you gave it to a stranger. My life is so different because of you. Every day I am reminded of the gift you gave me. I wonder about you often. Who were you? What wonderful things did you see through these eyes? With the help of God, you created a miracle—the miracle of sight!"

Abby, several years ago, my son was struck by a motorcycle and died six days later. So that a part of him would continue to live, we donated his corneas. A few months later, the eye bank notified us that both corneas had been successfully transplanted. As is their policy, they did not reveal the identity of the recipient. I'm not sure I ever really wanted to know, but I did wonder what kind of person received the precious gift of sight from our son.

Now that I have read the letter in your column, I have some idea of how the recipient must feel, and I am convinced that some good did indeed result from our son's death.

I want to thank SEEING AGAIN for sharing his feelings. His letter really made my day.—MRS. M.M. TALBOTT, SUTHERLAND, VA.

DEAR MRS. TALBOTT: And thank you for writing. Your letter made MY day.

Readers, the gift of sight is something we are all able to give, yet it cannot be bought. To obtain a donor's card, call your local Lions Club today. It is listed in your phone book.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think this letter is a joke, because it's written in all sincerity.

If by chance my husband and I should die at the same time, is it possible to be buried together? I mean in the same casket, holding hands or touching each other?

Abby, if they can make caskets to accommodate one person who weighs 400 pounds, and our combined weight is less than that, why wouldn't one casket be large enough to accommodate the two of us?

I suppose the chances of dying together are small, but it could happen. Please find out and let me know.—THINKING AHEAD

DEAR THINKING: A spokesperson for the largest cemetery in Los Angeles said he had never heard of such a coffin or burial.

A coffin for two would have to be custom-made and would require two burial plots. It would be very costly and too grave a matter to consider seriously.

DEAR ABBY: Saw the letter in your column from M. IN PASSAIC, N.J., who is seeking a "compassionate cleric" to bless her common-law union in the eyes of God.

I can't help her in Passaic, but I can help couples in their position in my area, a 20-mile radius of Lawrence, Mass.

If any in my area want such a blessing, I'll gladly oblige. Please send them my name and address at their request to you.—REV. CHAPLAIN R.A.M.

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 plus a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to ABBY, Letters Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Gasoline-saving tip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here's another fuel-saving suggestion from the Department of Energy: Check your tire pressure regularly. Underinflated tires increase gasoline use. You can lose about 2 percent in fuel economy for every pound of pressure under the recommended pounds-per-square-inch. And if buying new tires, you may want to consider switching to radials. They can mean from 3 percent to 5 percent improvement in mileage in the city and from 7 percent to 10 percent on the highway. Radials last longer to, but remember, never mix them on the same auto with conventional tires.

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Free professional aid for various problems available to Midlanders

By KENNETH H. WOLF, MSSW, SP

People in Midland who are experiencing a mental health problem, an alcoholism problem or a drug abuse problem have a choice of treatment services available to them. A person may choose a private practitioner or an agency, such as MHMR, for professional help.

Professional help for these kinds of problems has not always been available in communities of Midland's size. Twenty years ago, practitioners in private practice were often the only available local treatment resource. The private practitioner was often available only to well-to-do clientele. People who could not afford to pay private fees usually had no available treatment in their home community. Often, their only alternative was to seek help at the nearest state mental hospital, either as an outpatient or on an inpatient basis.

THIS RELATIVE lack of treatment resources in a person's home community had some unfortunate consequences. In seeking help at the nearest state mental institution as an outpatient, the problem of distance and time loss in travel often served to discourage people from making any consistent effort to seek help. Persons of lower income often could not afford to take off work or perhaps there was no reliable transportation to the facility.

A more serious consequence developed for those who were admitted as inpatients to state mental hospitals. Such people were labeled as "mental patients" even if their initial problem had been relatively mild. If they were kept in the hospital for any length of time, they quickly took on many of the qualities of an institutional environment.

A good adjustment to life in a mental institution is a distinct handicap to successful re-adjustment in one's community. When such a person was eventually discharged, he often returned to his community more socially handicapped than he was when he went into the hospital. He had probably lost his job; his family regarded him as a patient; he was apathetic; he followed directions well, but had little initiative; he had lost normal conversational skills; and he no longer acted as if he had any control over his own life or destiny.

THIS SET OF handicaps was particularly tragic if the person had been admitted to the mental hospital for relatively mild problems which could have been treated in his home community if treatment had been available to him there.

Persons admitted to the mental hospital with more severe problems often were kept months or years in the institution. When eventually discharged they also were severely socially disabled, even though the symptoms for which they originally were admitted were under control. Unwittingly, a kind of trade-off had been effected in which the disability of mental symptoms had been exchanged for the disability of a social outcast who had no idea of how to support himself successfully.

In the early and mid-1960s, the concept of community mental health developed as a possible answer to the difficulties associated with mental institutions. The idea was simply to provide as much mental health care as possible in local communities, so that fewer people would have to be exposed to the noxious effects of mental institutions.

THE MENTAL HOSPITAL would still be utilized, but only after local efforts at treatment had been tried. Many expected that the community health movement would result in the closing of mental hospitals. This expectation was never realistic, because of the fact that a certain number of people would still need the services of a mental hospital.

In addition, most mental health professionals were still being trained in hospital settings and found it somewhat difficult to practice community-based care with inpatient-based techniques and orientations.

The state of Texas authorized the establishment of community mental health centers in 1965. The Midland MHMR Center was established in 1969, and in 1972 its name was changed to the Permian Basin Community Centers for MHMR. The MHMR Center offers local treatment for mental health, alcoholism, drug abuse and mental retardation problems. Emergency, outpatient, inpatient, day treatment, consultation, detoxification services, day care, infant stimulation and sheltered work activities are provided.

Midland also has a family service agency, a pastoral counseling service, other drug treatment agencies and several private practitioners in the mental health care field. A citizen of Midland no longer is required to travel outside the area for quality mental health care. The savings in human terms resulting from the availability of local care are immeasurable.

Comments or questions from our readers are encouraged. Although the Update cannot give personal replies or specific advice, we will use as many questions and comments as possible in our future columns. Please address them to: Mental Health Update, 3701 N. Big Spring St., Midland 79701.

Kenneth H. Wolfe, MSSW, SP, is the MHMR Program Director for Midland County. He is a licensed psychotherapist and a certified health care provider in clinical social work. He has worked in the field of MHMR for eight years.

Enemies, pilots hold reunion

LONDON (AP) — Aging Battle of Britain pilots met up again Tuesday with some of their former German enemies, 40 years after saving England from a planned Nazi invasion. British and German aces who took part in the aerial dogfights that changed the course of World War II flew together from London's Gatwick Airport to Winnipeg, Canada, for a four-day Commonwealth wartime aircrew reunion.

Among 93 veterans leaving for Canada was Group Capt. Sir Douglas Bader, 71.

Enrollment of aliens skyrockets in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — The enrollment of undocumented alien children in Dallas schools jumped more than 60 percent Monday after a federal judge ordered the admission of the those pupils last week.

School officials reported 235 new enrollments Monday, making a total of 618 new students. About 600 of these are in elementary schools.

Officials said they believe many parents are waiting to enroll children until they are sure the schools will not be used to enforce immigration laws.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has said the schools will not be used to trace the children's parents.

Deputy Associate Superintendent Robby Collins, who supervises the enrollments, predicted the heavy flow of alien children would continue through next week.

All of the new students were interviewed and tested to determine their language proficiency and grade level, he said, with the assessments being made by bilingual teams.

Ties with U.S. are 'main axis' of Japanese foreign policy

TOKYO (AP) — Acknowledging that there are "ripples and frictions" in U.S.-Japanese relations, Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ito today said he would reaffirm to U.S. officials that these ties are the "main axis" of Japan's foreign policy.

Ito spoke to foreign correspondents on the eve of his departure for the United States on an 11-day visit to meet U.S. officials and attend the U.N. General Assembly session in New York.

Ito, who is scheduled to meet Friday with Secretary of State Edmund Muskie and Defense Secretary

Harold Brown on Friday, said his trip to Washington was "not for negotiations, and we don't expect to find any solutions to any specific problems."

However, he said he will tell U.S. officials that Japan intends to "carry out faithfully" its pledges to try to ease frictions caused by the rising tide of Japanese automobile exports to the United States. These pledges include an agreement to lower tariffs and ease inspection standards to make it easier for U.S. automakers to penetrate the Japanese market, and an official position that Japanese companies should exercise "prudence" in their export programs.

Even if it means some sacrifices for Japan, Ito said, "We have to stand strong against any threat to peace and security in the world."

He proposed the United States, Japan and the European Common Market nations increase coordination of their policies toward the Soviet Union to assure "solidarity" among the allies.

"We should get together and discuss criteria for our relations and draw lines for policy with the Soviet Union — what we should do and not do," Ito said. "If we do not do this, the measures applied by various countries become diversified and unbalanced."

Ito, who is due to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in New York next Wednesday, stressed that Japan has no intention of easing the "strict and severe" sanctions it imposed against the Soviet Union to protest its military intervention in Afghanistan.

Japan has joined the United States in condemning the Soviet intervention as a threat to international peace. It also joined in the protest boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow and has withheld new commercial credits to the Soviets and restricted official exchanges of other types.

Japan recognizes that the Soviets "have to pay a high price" for their actions and therefore "we have exercised restraints in a most severe manner compared to those of other nations," he said.

Ito noted that some Japanese businessmen were upset upon learning that France had signed a contract with the Soviet Union for a new electromagnetic steel plant, and called on the government to explain why, if France could make such a move, Japan should adhere to its strict policy.

"I said we shall maintain the principle of restraining our relations with the Soviet Union," Ito said. "We have no intention of easing or breaking the principles of policy toward the Soviet Union."

U.S. Embassy rocketed in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas fired three Chinese-made rocket grenades at the U.S. Embassy from the roof of a building about 50 yards away and two of them hit, but damage was confined to the roof and a vacant office and no one was hurt, witnesses and embassy spokesmen said.

Shortly after the 1 p.m. attack Tuesday, a radio station reported the People's Revolutionary Army fired the anti-tank devices at the heavily fortified embassy. The Salvadoran army quickly surrounded the building with 100 soldiers.

"One rocket punched through a third story window and pretty well messed up an office, but fortunately it was vacant at the time," said embassy spokesman Howard Lane. "A second one hit the roof, but did not cause much damage."

"I heard the rockets being fired and then the impact here," said Lane. "They didn't rock the building but there were loud explosions when they hit. We found the tail fins of the projectiles and determined they were Chinese made."

He said Ambassador Robert White was not in the embassy at the time but would not say if the rockets hit near his office, which is also on the third and top story of the building. The embassy has been stoned before and been peppered with machine gun fire, but the rocketing was the most serious attack to date.

Leftist groups fighting for power here have condemned U.S. support for the Salvadoran civilian-military junta, and the continuing U.S. aid appeared to be a motive for the attack.

The extreme right in El Salvador, which is locked in a bloody battle with the left for power, also has condemned U.S. support of the civilian-military junta that runs the nation, but authorities said they do not use Chinese-made weapons.

Authorities blamed the right for killing 20 suspected leftists found outside the capital Tuesday morning, adding to the more than 6,000 persons human rights officials say have been killed in political fighting here this year.

A leftist spokesman told reporters 20 leftists held in Santa Tecla Prison, 10 miles east of the capital, began a hunger strike Monday, and vowed not to eat solid food until all political prisoners in the nation were freed.

The spokesman, who declined to be identified, said the strike leader was Jose Antonio Morales Carbonell, 22, son of junta member Antonio Morales Erlich, arrested earlier this year for membership in a leftist group trying to topple the government.

Authorities say there are about 25 political prisoners in the nation, but leftists say the number is closer to 200.

Woman convicted in death hoax plot

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An El Paso woman convicted of helping fake her husband's death five years ago in Mexico and then collecting life insurance and government benefits could be sentenced to 22 years in prison and fined $30,000.

Jurors deliberated nearly two hours Tuesday before convicting Kathelyn Van Drais Miller on four counts of conspiracy and fraud. Her husband, Clifford Jerome Miller, faces trial on similar charges.

U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth scheduled sentencing for Oct. 9.

Federal prosecutors said Mrs. Miller knew her husband was still alive when she applied for death benefits.

The government said she collected more than $19,000 from the Standard Insurance Co. of Portland, Ore., and cheated the Social Security Administration out of death benefits.

The government said she also tried unsuccessfully to sue Metropolitan Insurance Co. of New York for $50,000, but did not collect. However, she gave sworn testimony while suing Metropolitan in July of 1977 that was used in her criminal trial.

Mrs. Miller, in her early 50s, said her husband died of a heart attack while the two were traveling in northern Mexico as tourists.

"He grabbed his chest and dropped to the ground," she said in the 1977 hearing. "I jumped out of the pickup ... and he was already dead."

She testified that she witnessed his burial in a nearby unmarked grave.

Defense lawyers said Mrs. Miller did not know her husband was alive until he telephoned her from Oklahoma two or three months after his "death."

But government attorneys said Mrs. Miller was in on the plot from the beginning.

The Millers were arrested near Marfa, Texas, in November 1977 at a Department of Public Safety drivers license checkpoint. A suspicious DPS trooper searching their car said he found a diary detailing the alleged plot.

Hudspeth ruled the diary was inadmissible as evidence during the trial because the search was illegal.

ICA unknown, underfunded

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission, declaring that U.S. national security is at stake, is calling for a substantial increase in resources the U.S. government commits to influencing foreign public opinion.

A 21-page report released by the commission on Tuesday concluded that the ICA is generally unknown, underfunded and underutilized.

Turn tax dollars into savings with your own Survival Kit™

Taxes wreak havoc with traditional methods of saving. They can ruin your plans for your financial future, for your retirement.

Federal and state income taxes combine to take 35%, 50%, 70% and even more of the interest earned by your savings.

But the Survival Kit provides long-term deferral of those taxes. The dollars that otherwise would go for taxes are left to compound and to earn interest on themselves. Depending on your tax bracket and the length of time you keep your money working, your savings can grow twice as fast. Or more.

Putting tax dollars to work for you can make all the difference in your planning for your future or your retirement years.

The Survival Kit can offer you this lifesaving advantage in growth because it is a group annuity plan underwritten by American Life and Casualty Insurance Company. But it is nothing like the traditional annuity which holds funds at a low, fixed rate of return.

Instead, the Survival Kit combines the advantages of a modern, high-return certificate savings account with the advantages made possible by this group annuity plan. In addition to the all-important deferral of taxes, you gain surprising withdrawal privileges, a variety of estate-planning benefits, and the option of choosing between lifetime retirement income payments or any other form of withdrawal that meets your needs. You are the one who decides how to withdraw your funds, and when.

Call us today for full information on all the ways the Survival Kit can brighten your financial future.

MC Foundation to help fund study

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Midland College trustees agreed to pay their share for an Urban Land Institute study of south and east Midland by requesting $6,000 from the MC Foundation instead of the taxpayers.

The $50,000 study sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce was scrutinized closely by college trustees for a large part of Tuesday's meeting in the MC Board Room.

Trustees were questioning if financing the study fell within the college's "area of responsibility."

Most board members agreed there was a need for the study, but they were concerned as to how they as a taxing authority would be able to justify financing the study to the taxpayer.

Trustee Ralph Way suggested the college should go to the Midland College Foundation for the funds instead of the taxpayer. The foundation is an organization which raises funds through private donations to supply certain needs of the college.

Already the city, county and school district had contributed $38,500, said Fred Tyler, chamber executive vice president. The college and hospital districts were asked to donate $6,000 each.

"A great many of our students come from that area," said Trustee Reagan Legg. "It is a study of the area's physical characteristics and how quality of life in that area could be improved. "And if that isn't a concern of Midland College, then I don't know what is," he stated.

The Urban Land Institute conducted similar studies for the Chamber of Commerce regarding the downtown area and the industrial park, Tyler noted.

Some of the study's results could lend to developing light industries or warehousing facilities in south Midland, he said, adding that the people living in that area might need more education to get gainful employment.

Trustees also agreed to increase the part-time instructors' salary from $12 to $15 per contact hour. A contact hour is the amount of time an instructor spends in the classroom.

The increase would be retroactive to the first of the semester, said Dr. Al Langford, MC president. He emphasized that part-time instructors would be utilized more in the occupational-technical programs.

A search committee to find a replacement for Murray Fasken who resigned last month was established. Trustees approved serving alcoholic beverages in Chaparral Center for a private showing of boats by Falcon Marine.

Alcoholic beverages can be permitted in Chaparral Center as long as the event is on a private basis and not for the general public, trustees explained.

Langford noted that the stop light at Garfield Street and the college's exit was in operation. However, there are some problems with the light's timing which are expected to be fixed sometime this week, he said.

Garfield Street would be closed sometime this year so the city can start work on the Northwest Drainage Channel and bridge. Traffic to the college would be rerouted through the exit entrance behind Chaparral Center, said Langford.

Also, the college may be hosting three college presidents from Taiwan. The college would be responsible for providing travel for the dignitaries who might be in Midland sometime in late October.

Also approved were reinstatement of the college's contract with Midland Community Theatre for teaching drama and dance, bills and financial statements for August.

Carter, Muskie cautious of Iran outlook

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, back in step after a day of confusion and conflicting comments, are advising Americans not to expect a solution soon to the hostage crisis in Iran.

Muskie told reporters Tuesday on Capitol Hill that both he and Carter are "extremely cautious" about any likelihood that a settlement is near.

And Carter, campaigning in Atlanta, said "there is no prospect at this time for an early resolution" of the crisis, now in its 319th day.

Their matching views followed conflicting signals Monday, when the president seemed optimistic while Muskie said "it would be wrong for hopes to be raised by recent statements of Iranian leaders."

The Republicans seized upon the situation as a political issue.

Richard Allen, the top foreign policy adviser to GOP presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, said "this sort of inability to get one's act together is characteristic of the present administration and we watch it with some amazement."

At a news conference Tuesday at Reagan's suburban Arlington, Va., campaign headquarters, Allen said "we were as surprised as anyone to see yet another flip-flop in the Carter administration's declarations."

In Corpus Christi, Texas, the day before, Carter had said recent events in Iran "may very well lead to a resolution of this (hostage) problem in the future."

Hours later, however, Muskie acknowledged that despite formation of a new government in Tehran there was still no direct negotiation over the hostages. The secretary of state offered further clarification Tuesday, saying: "I've been in close touch with the president over the past week while this speculation has emerged and we are in complete agreement that these developments should be viewed with extreme caution without raising expectations."

Indiana bank short of pennies

CARMEL, Ind. (AP) — Central Indiana residents who want to get their two-cents' worth should bring it to the Union State Bank. It's worth more there.

Wayne Phelps, the bank's vice president of marketing, said Union State has a "tremendous shortage of pennies. We just can't get them."

So the bank is offering $1.20 for every 100 of the copper coins patrons bring in. The offer first appeared in an advertisement in the Indianapolis Star on Monday, and the bank has brought in $4,300 worth of pennies so far.

Among those who took advantage of the scheme was one Indianapolis man who brought in the washtub full of coins. He had 11,700 pennies and walked out with $140.40 for his trouble.

"The Lord knows we need 'em," Phelps said.

Cappadonna elected president of Allison Center advisory group

M.A. "Mickey" Cappadonna, Midland Memorial Hospital trustee and president of Midwest Electric Co., was recently elected president of the Regional Advisory Council for the Allison Permalin Basin Cancer Therapy Center at the council's organizational meeting last week.

R.L. Heith, administrator of Malone-Hogan Clinic in Big Spring, was elected vice president.

Pat Dishman, MMH public relations director, will serve as secretary.

Thirteen members of the council were present and the heavy rains throughout West Texas last week were blamed for the absence of the other members.

"The Allison Cancer Center was created with the idea that it would be a regional center and this council will provide the means by which each of the 17 counties in Health Systems Agency 12 has direct communications with and input to the Center," Cappadonna explained.

Dr. Lee Schlichtemeier, medical director of the Allison Center, met with the group and discussed his plans for implementing top quality cancer therapy in West Texas. Dr. Schlichtemeier is a radiation oncologist currently practicing in Dallas. He and his family will move to Midland later this year. The Allison Center is expected to open in the spring of 1981.

Members of the Regional Advisory Council, by counties, include: James E. York, W. Sam Glenney and Dr. William H. Lauderdale, all from Ector County; R.L. Heith and Drs. Nell Sanders and Buerk Williams, all of Howard County; Judge Max Townsend of Gaines County; and Judge Leslie C. Pratt of Dawson County.

Also Judge Roy D. Bennett of Andrews County; Judge Jim M. Burkett of Borden; Tom Angel of Martin County; Mary Bell Jones of Loving County; Judge Frances Clark of Winkler County; Judge D.W. Parker of Glasscock County; Judge Richard Sitz of Ward County; Homer Grooms of Crane; and Judge Peggy Garner of Upton.

And Judge W.O. Pigman of Reeves County; Judge Charles Warnock of Pecos; and Judge Charles Stavley of Terrell. Midland County members are Cappadonna, Mary Virginia Saxe and Dr. James W. McGee.

Midland, Ector and Howard counties have three members each with the other 13 counties having one member each. Members will serve rotating terms of one, two and three years and may be re-appointed.

The next meeting of the Regional Advisory Council will be Dec. 10 at Midland Memorial Hospital.

National bird vanishing

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Encroaching civilization has driven Guatemala's winged national symbol and 83 other species of birds to the verge of extinction in Central America, an American ecologist said Tuesday.

Dr. Nicholas Smythe, head of the Smithsonian Institute Conservation and Education Office here, said the quetzal may soon be visible only on Guatemalan state emblems unless there is an immediate halt to "the indiscriminate and irrational" cutting of trees in Central America.

U.S. aid reports incorrect

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. aid to poor countries is overestimated because of misstatements in the national budget, according to figures in a report from the Congressional Budget Office.

It says the figures for economic and development aid fail to take account of repayments to the United States on past loans. Thus the $2.8 billion budgeted in 1978 disregards $302 million in repayments of principal and $217 million worth of interest payments.

So the net flow of aid to the poor countries was overstated by $529 million, according to this calculation.

"A different misstatement," the report says, "occurs in the food aid budget request, which does not include an estimate of farm support expenditures avoided by the existence of this program."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, Sept. 18, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The elusive Greta Garbo celebrates her birth on this day. In the months ahead, imaginative thinking and increased socializing could play a key role in winning you a new career or business opportunity. Fair-minded and diplomatic, you are often asked to mediate disputes. You have little interest or time for the petty squabbles in which others engage, and your personal relationships are apt to be very stable. A love relationship becomes more fulfilling than ever!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Plan carefully and you can make some very substantial gains! Personal relationships become more rewarding when you show greater interest in loved ones' thoughts, opinions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Circumstances conspire to restore harmony and balance to your plan. Seek legal advice before signing contracts, documents. Influential associate may not live up to promises.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Loans and financial backing are two favorite subjects for discussion. Breaks will come quickly if you play cards right. Consult mate, romantic partner if considering new employment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Too much haste can cause accidents, careless mistakes. Avoid unnecessary confrontations with relatives. A romance may be becoming more serious. Lay your cards on the table!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The day starts on a note of goodwill. Make sure that directions, instructions are clear so that there will be no delays or mistakes. A slip of the tongue could haunt you at a later date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Sidestep an early morning domestic dispute. Your artistic talents are recognized by someone special. Avoid a financial plan that involves considerable risk.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accept a last-minute social invitation and you could make valuable new contacts. Love and money interests may be closely connected. Know what you want and go after it!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make shopping list before departing for market or drug store, and both time and money will be saved. Refuse to be pressured into doing something that you are likely to regret later on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your intuition is right on target where a business deal is concerned. Use this instinctive knowledge to the best advantage! An unexpected visitor may cause a schedule change.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A new neighbor may make a friendly overture. Respond in a similar fashion. Temporary confinement will dampen loved one's spirits. Forget any past grievances and be an amusing companion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An emergency may slow down productivity at work. Consider new financial investments. Opportunities may exist which have been previously overlooked.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good day for performing routine tasks. Someone may express admiration for a special talent. The emphasis is getting your money's worth. Stick up for your rights!

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

It was obvious that the only hope for defensive tricks was in the spade suit. If West held an entry and at least two spades, the contract might be defeated. To redirect the defense, East rose with the ace of hearts and shifted to a low spade.

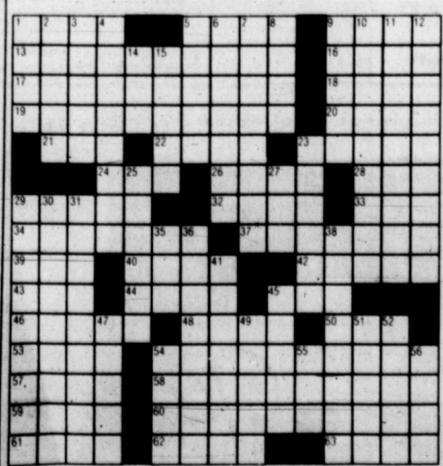

Declarer was able to win this trick cheaply with dummy's nine, but it was no avail. Even though he made three heart tricks, he had only eight tricks on top. He tried for his game-going trick by taking the diamond finesse. West gathered in the king and shifted back to spades, enabling East to reel off four spade tricks for a two-trick set.

When East shifted to a spade at trick two into dummy's strong holding, West's eyebrows arched sharply. Fortunately for him, his reaction was mild, so he was spared the indignity of a public apology.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" ## Alabama is now No. 1

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — "Well, I'd rather have just woke up from dreaming and it was Jan. 2 and you had told me we were No. 1."

From long and sometimes bitter experience, Bear Bryant has learned that the final poll is the one that counts and that is the one his Alabama football team is aiming for, as always.

Nevertheless, the coach's Crimson Tide moved back to first place in this week's poll past Ohio State, which dropped to second after coming from behind to defeat Syracuse 31-21 Saturday.

Alabama was idle, after an opening 26-3 victory over Georgia Tech, and faces Mississippi Saturday on the road.

The Tide is seeking an unprecedented third straight national championship and Bryant had some thoughts about Ohio State's earlier No. 1 ranking.

"I've always felt like the defending champion should be first until they get beaten," he said. "And I don't mean just us. I've felt that about Southern Cal, Texas, Oklahoma and others that have been champions."

Alabama and Ohio State each received 30 first-place votes in this week's Associated Press poll of sport writers and sportscasters, but the Tide received 1,232 points to 1,216 for the Buckeyes.

Oklahoma and Southern California both moved up one spot to third and fourth places and Pittsburgh dropped from third to fifth.

The remainder of the top 20 are Nebraska, Texas, Notre Dame, Florida State, Georgia, Stanford, Penn State, North Carolina, Michigan, Missouri, Washington, Arkansas, Houston, Auburn and South Carolina.

"It's exciting but it's really too early," Alabama quarterback Don Jacobs said of the Tide's ranking. "If we work hard and keep winning, we'll be there at the end."

Running back Major Ogilvie commented, "I just hope it will motivate us. I'd almost rather be lower in the poll to give us something to shoot for."

E. J. Junior, a defensive end, said, "We haven't proved anything in our own minds yet. We can accept being No. 1, but we have to prove it to ourselves, then to the other teams, and then to the nation. And right now, we haven't proved anything to anybody."

Bryant, with five national titles during his 22 seasons as the Alabama coach, said Mississippi will be a major test.

"We'll start finding out right away where we belong," he said.

Yanks pad lead over Birds

By The Associated Press

Even after continual use, the New York Yankees are still squeezing Goose eggs out of Rich Gossage.

Good as gold, New York's tireless relief pitcher continued to mow them down Tuesday night as the Yankees beat the Toronto Blue Jays 5-4 and moved a step closer to the American League East title.

Coupled with Baltimore's 8-3 loss to Detroit, the Yankees improved their lead over the Orioles to a solid six games.

"He just comes in and rears back and fires," said Toronto Manager Bobby Mattick. "It makes a big difference when you've got somebody like that to come in and blow you out."

Gossage replaced starter Ron Guidry with one out and two runners on base in the seventh inning after RBI-singles by Lloyd Moseby and Damaso Garcia cut the Yankees' lead to one run.

The big right-hander retired Alfredo Griffin on a pop fly, struck out pinch hitter Al Woods and allowed only an infield single by Moseby with two out in the ninth. Gossage has not allowed a run in his last 15 appearances, saying 12 of those games and retiring 73 of 85 batters while yielding five hits and six walks. One batter reached on an error.

"I've never been as mentally and emotionally involved in a season like this," said Gossage. "I may never feel this again. I'm so involved this season that right now it's scary. Maybe it's because of what happened last year that I feel I owe everybody. I know we'd have been a little closer if I had been healthy."

After winning three consecutive pennants, the Yankees slipped to fourth last year in the AL East in large part due to Gossage's injury-plagued season.

Guidry, making his first start since Aug. 18 after eight relief appearances for the Yankees, was nicked for a run in the first inning. Griffin led off with a single and was caught stealing, but Garth Iorg doubled and scored on a single by Roy Howell.

However, the Yankees jumped on Jim Clancy, 13-13, for three runs in the bottom of the first after he walked Willie Randolph and Bobby Murcer, the first two batters. Oscar Gamble singled the first run across, and Jim Spencer and Rick Cerone added RBI-singles.

The victory, the Yankees' sixth in a row and 14th in 15 games this month, improved Guidry's record to 14-10.

Rain postponed a doubleheader between Minnesota and Milwaukee and a contest between Kansas City and California.

Tigers 8, Orioles 3

Steve Kemp drove in four runs while rapping out three hits, including his 19th homer, to lead Detroit over Baltimore.

Kemp's two-run homer in the sixth off Steve Stone, 23-7, forced a 2-2 tie and his two-run single off reliever Tippy Martinez capped a four-run rally in the seventh.

The rally helped Jack Morris even his record at 14-14.

"The Yankees did what they had to do, but we don't want to hand it to them," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "We'll have to put as many runs on the board as we can, so they'll hear some footsteps."

Red Sox 9, Indians 5

Rookie Dave Stapleton collected five hits, drove in two runs and scored two as Boston defeated Cleveland. Stapleton doubled in the first and singled in the second, fourth and sixth innings and doubled in the eighth, improving his average to .323 since being called up for the first time from the minor leagues on May 30.

"It's the first time I've had five hits anywhere," said the 26-year-old infielder. "It's almost unbelievable. I'm so elated I really don't know what to say."

"In batting practice I was so terrible I could barely get the ball out of the cage. Then (Coach) Walt Hriniak told me aside that I had to bear down all the time even in BP. He told me I couldn't just try to loosen up, that I could get into some bad habits."

A's 4, Rangers 2

Dave McKay's RBI-single keyed a two-run rally in the 11th inning and helped Mike Norris post his 20th victory as Oakland defeated Texas.

Mickey Klutts, whose two-run homer in the ninth sent the game into extra innings tied at 2-2, led off the 11th with a single off Danny Darwin, the third Texas pitcher. One out later, Orlando Gonzalez singled to right to set up McKay's game-winning hit.

Darwin walked Jeff Newman intentionally to load the bases, and Mario Guerrero's sacrifice fly scored the second run of the inning.

White Sox 2, Mariners 1

Chet Lemon hit a solo homer and a triple, scoring both of Chicago's runs, and Rick Dotson and Ed Farmer combined on a seven-hitter as Chicago beat Seattle.

Lemon hit a 1-2 pitch from Seattle right-hander Glenn Abbott with two out in the third inning. The White Sox scored their eventual winning run in the ninth on Lemon's triple and a double by Harold Baines.

Montreal sweeps New York Mets

By The Associated Press

The Montreal Expos, who suffered the disappointment of staying in the division title race until the last day before being eliminated last year, are taking nothing for granted this time around.

Although 5-3 and 4-2 victories in a doubleheader with the New York Mets Tuesday night gave the Expos a 2½-game lead over Philadelphia in the National League East, there were no celebrations or cocky predictions afterward.

There was just grim determination to keep up the pressure on Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, the defending champions who are now five games down after beating the Phillies 3-2.

"It was a big night, but what's more important is that we battled back in both games," said Gary Carter, who contributed his 25th homer of the season in the opening game victory that went 11 innings. "We're not thinking we're in the driver's seat. We don't want to go to the wire again, but we do want to go to the World Series."

"We're in first, but there's a long way to go," added Carter. "Seventeen more, but it's nice to start the (13-game road) trip this way."

Two of Montreal's stars Tuesday night were former disabled list inhabitants.

Larry Parrish hit a two-run homer in the 11th inning of the opener after Carter's homer in the seventh helped overcome a 3-1 deficit.

In the second game, David Palmer, 7-4, overcame a shaky start that saw the Mets take a 2-0 lead. After that, he retired 13 straight in one stretch before leaving the game after eight innings.

In the ninth, a dropped throw at the plate by New York catcher Butch Benton led to two unearned runs that broke a 2-2 tie.

"I had fallen into some bad habits at bat," said Parrish. "Instead of pulling my elbow down and through, I was protecting my right hand (which was injured). Personally it's been a tough year, but at this point we've got a chance to win it."

Parrish's game-winning homer in the first game was his 14th of the year, "but I haven't had many lately. That's my first in about a month and a half."

"It feels good to contribute again," said Palmer of only his second start since returning from the disabled list.

Pirates 3, Phillies 2

Jim Bibby and Kent Tekulve pitched brilliantly the first five months of the season, but both tailed off in the last few weeks until Tuesday night's victory over Philadelphia.

Bibby had lost three of four prior decisions and had failed to pitch more than six innings in his last five starts, while Tekulve went 0-4 and saw the Pirates go 7-15 since his last save Aug. 22.

Braves 2, Dodgers 1

Jerry Royster, who has 11 hits in his last 13 at-bats, drilled a run-scoring single, his fourth hit of the game, in the seventh inning to power Atlanta over Los Angeles. The Braves — still hoping to get back in the West Division race — have won five in a row and 29 of 38 to trail the leaders by six games.

Phil Niekro, 15-14, scattered five hits and struck out four in seven innings before getting relief help from Rick Camp, who saved his 17th game.

Giants 8, Reds 1

San Francisco broke a six-game losing streak and kept Cincinnati from making up ground in the pennant race as Larry Herndon and Renne Stennett knocked in two runs apiece. Ed Whitson, 10-11, scattered six hits for the victory and also had a two-run single in the ninth.

The Reds remained 4½ games behind the Dodgers and Astros.

Cubs 6, Cardinals 5

Cliff Johnson's three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth inning carried Chicago over St. Louis.

Ken Oberkfell's sacrifice fly gave the Cards a 4-3 lead in the top of the eighth before singles by Jim Tracy and Bill Buckner set the table for Johnson's 10th homer. Keith Hernandez brought the Cardinals within a run in the ninth with a solo homer off winning pitcher Bill Caudill, 2-5.

Houston fails to gain ground on Los Angeles

HOUSTON (AP) — A pessimist would look at the Houston's plight and wonder why the Astros haven't gained any ground on the Los Angeles Dodgers, who have lost two straight road games.

Astros Manager Bill Virdon looks at the standings and wonders what everyone is worrying about.

"It means that we are still tied for first place," Virdon deadpanned Tuesday night after the Astros had lost to the lowly San Diego Padres 4-3 for the second straight night.

"I'm sure anyone in our position would say they would have wanted to gain some ground on the Dodgers, but it didn't happen and nothing can change that."

For the second straight evening, the Dodgers lost on the road and the Astros lost at home, leaving the National League Western Division race in a deadlock.

It would have been a good time for the Astros to gain a little cushion on the Dodgers, but nobody is ready to panic.

"We've got 18 games left," Astros spiritual leader Joe Morgan said. "We've got to go out and get them now. We shouldn't be guarding against anything. We can't be defensive, we've got to be aggressive and go out and play the best baseball we can."

"You put pressure on yourself. I don't feel any pressure and I don't think the rest of the team does. We just feel capable of winning this thing."

But for the second straight night, the Astros failed to capitalize on their opportunities.

Starter Vern Ruhle yielded run-scoring hits to Jerry Mumphrey, Randy Bass and Broderick Perkins for a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

Houston tied it on a two-run double by Rafael Landestoy in the second and a single by Gary Woods in the sixth inning.

But the Padres, doomed to last place in the Western Division, rallied once again in the seventh when Gene Richard led off with a single, was sacrificed to second base by Ozzie Smith and scored the winning run on Mumphrey's double down the left field line.

"We finally put together some hits and got some runs," Mumphrey said. "It felt great to get some runs. I wish we could have done it more during the season."

Ruhle, 9-4, said his curve was not sharp after missing one turn in the starting rotation with a case of the flu. Ruhle still looked sick in the first inning when the first five Padres got singles.

"They hit good pitches in the first inning," Ruhle said.

Junior Miller now a starter

SUWANE, Ga. (AP) — To no one's surprise, Atlanta's No. 1 draft choice, Junior Miller, will make his first National Football League start Sunday when the Falcons meet the Miami Dolphins, who will have a surprise starter of their own.

The Dolphins, struggling offensively in the early going, have decided to give backup quarterback Don Strock the starting nod in the Atlanta home opener. Strock replaces veteran Bob Griese, who could manage only 24 points in Miami's first two games.

"We'll start Miller this week," said Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett at his weekly news conference Tuesday. "It's no big news after watching his play last week."

Miller, the 6-foot-4, 235-pound tight end and former Midland Lee football and basketball standout, played a key role in Atlanta's 37-21 upset victory over the New England Patriots Sunday, catching eight passes for 117 yards and two touchdowns.

Miller, the seventh player chosen in the NFL draft, had missed much of the preseason due to a dislocated finger and an illness to his wife. He had been playing behind Russ Mikeska.

"I think he's (Miller) going to be the key to our offense this year," said quarterback Steve Bartkowski after the New England game. "You look at the guy and you say he has the capability to jump over buildings."

The Dolphins and Falcons, each 1-1, will both be coming off victories. Miami edged Cincinnati 17-16 in the closing minutes Sunday, while the Falcons exploded for more than 400 yards on offense.

"We were encouraged but we also are a young team and must keep a level head," said Bennett. "The Dolphins have always been a football team that finds a way to win. They have a great winning tradition."

He added that the elevation of Strock to a starting role could also work in favor of the Dolphins.

"He's going to want to prove that he should have started all along. From that standpoint, we're concerned about him," said Bennett.

Strock has seen action in both Miami games, completing 14-of-25 passes for 183 yards and a touchdown.

Dykes' Rebels searching for path to Mrs. Smith's yard

Spike Dykes is officially part of the community now that he has that first football victory under his belt, but the Midland Lee coach is still trying to get his Rebels to go through Mrs. Smith's yard instead of Mrs. Jones' yard.

If the Rebels would heed his advice, things would be much easier over the long haul.

According to Dykes, there is this boy who has found a shortcut to the grocery store by going through Mrs. Jones' yard, but all shortcuts seem to have drawbacks. Mrs. Jones has a 180-pound mutt in the yard who dined on the leg of the boy. Dykes feels that the boy should learn to go through Mrs. Smith's yard to the store. "You should never get bit by the same dog twice," is the way Dykes has put it to his Rebels.

It's just the way Dykes has of telling his team not to make the same mistakes twice. Mistakes don't seem to bother Dykes, but he would just as soon his team learn its lesson the first time around. Losing a leg is good reason to find Mrs. Smith's yard — and fast.

Defensively, the Rebels have learned to travel through Mrs. Smith's yard. Against Killeen in the season opener, the Rebels defense was burned by several big plays in a narrow 13-7 loss to a very good football team. Last week against Snyder, the Rebel defense got burned again by a 45-yard TD bomb, but it was the only play of the night in which

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Snyder was able to exploit the Rebel defense. Lee dominated the game defensively and that was the main reason for a 17-7 victory over the Tigers.

"I don't think they (Snyder) could have driven a truck up our middle. It was pretty salty in there," was the way Lee assistant coach Gary Griffin put it after the game.

Irl Conally, Keith Brown, Wade Colburn, Calvin Riggs, Terry Thompson and Clyde Smith seem to form the heart of the Rebel front wall. This is not your average defensive unit. They know what defense is all about and they showed it Friday.

Freedom rings in Cup opener

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Freedom skipper Dennis Conner had a good look at Australia's "bendy" mast as he sailed past the challenging yacht on his way to an opening victory in the America's Cup finals. He was polite with his verdict.

"I think it showed a lot of promise," said the man chosen by the New York yacht club to defend its silver trophy. "They have nothing to be embarrassed about."

But the Australians had hoped to show more than promise Tuesday as they opened the 24th foreign challenge for the sailing prize held by the United States without a break since 1851. The one minute, 52 second loss left them 1-0 in the best-of-seven series.

The mast, which has a flexible, fiberglass top that allows the 12-meter yacht to carry sail, was installed after Australia eliminated France 3 in the challenger finals.

Tuesday's match was its competitive debut. The Australians pulled in for repairs as soon as they reached the dock and asked for today off, postponing the second race of the series until Thursday.

"We're very satisfied with the mast. We're taking it out of the boat right now. We have a problem with the lower spreaders that requires some attention," said Australian challenge head Alan Bond. "We do intend to continue to use it."

The much like the one introduced to Cup competition this summer by the ill-fated British yacht Lionheart, represents a daring step for the Australians and one that cannot easily be retraced.

The yacht's sails all have been tailored to fit the contour of the flexible mast and would have to be recut if the Australians elected to return to the conventional aluminum mast they used in the summer-long elimination trials.

But Bond, waging his third Cup campaign and the fifth consecutive challenge by an Australian boat, gave no hint of second thoughts.

"We feel our performance is something we can improve upon — we intend to improve upon. We're not disheartened by today's race," he said.

Except for a few minutes early in the match, when Australia was leading, the challengers had little to cheer about.

Freedom, playing the fluky winds on Rhode Island Sound more effectively, took the lead 10 minutes into the first leg of the 24.3-mile race and rounded the first mark 52 seconds before Australia.

Conner, a 38-year-old San Diego drapery manufacturer with yachting credentials that include two Congressional Cups and an Olympic bronze medal, steered Freedom to increasing leads of 1:33, 1:48, 2:14 and 2:17 at the succeeding four marks.

Only on the final leg, where Australia chopped 23 seconds off Freedom's lead, did the gap close. Conner said it was because he did not push Freedom at the end of the race.

Bond, who has never steered away from controversy, raised a pointed complaint after the race about two-way radio traffic between Freedom and its tender.

George Brett of the Kansas City Royals turns to playing cards with teammates when rains cancelled Tuesday's game with California. Brett has missed the last seven games with a hand injury and still needs 55 plate appearances to qualify for the batting title. He is hitting .396. (AP Laserphoto)

Brett can still win bat title

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Even if George Brett's string of missed games stretches to a dozen or 14 — which a doctor says it might, because of tendinitis in his right hand — he still stands a good chance of winning the American League batting title.

The Kansas City Royals' third baseman owns a .396 batting average, making him far and away baseball's leading hitter. Brett needs 55 more plate appearances to reach the 502 needed to qualify for the title, but he has been out of action since the hand became sore during a game Sept. 6.

Tuesday Joe Burke, the Royals' general manager, said the batting star could return to the lineup as soon as Friday for the first game of a three-game series against Oakland.

Or his return could be as late as Monday, when the team opens a five-game road trip at Seattle. The most pessimistic prediction still leaves a dozen games in the schedule.

"Batting third in the lineup, he's going to get four plate appearances a game, and maybe five because we score a lot of runs," Burke said. "So if he could play in the last 12 games I think he'd make it."

But Burke added: "The batting title has to be secondary for him, and for us. His health comes first, that's our first concern."

Even if Brett falls short of the 502 necessary plate appearances, he still could win the title by adding the needed number of at-bats and counting them as outs. If his average, recomputed in that manner, still were the highest in the league, he would win the batting crown.

Adding 55 fruitless at-bats to his statistics leaves Brett's average at .348. His closest contender in the league, Cecil Cooper of Milwaukee, was batting .357 going into Tuesday night's game. The National League leader, Bill Buckner of the Chicago Cubs, had a .324 average.

That arrangement poses a dilemma for the record-keepers. The Baseball Records Committee is pondering whether Brett's average in case of such mathematical rejiggering would be entered at its true level, or as the refigured statistic.

More in jeopardy is Brett's bid to become the first player in 39 years to bat .400 over a season. That distinction will not be recognized unless the full number of plate appearances is reached.

Top prep teams retain top billing

By The Associated Press

Temple, Bay City, Breckenridge and Pilot Point, the top-ranked team in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, had little trouble retaining their No. 1 billings this week but eight other rated teams weren't as fortunate.

Temple blasted San Antonio Sam Houston 55-6 to easily retain its Class 5A lead over No. 2 Plano and third-ranked Port Arthur Jefferson. Plano and Port Arthur Jeff switched places from a week ago.

Bay City blanked Dickinson 10-0 to remain on top in Class 4A. Breckenridge became a unanimous No. 1 pick in 3A after a 21-7 victory over 4A-Brownwood and Pilot Point held its 2A rating with a 20-6 victory over Whitesboro.

Three ranked teams suffered losses from last week's 5A list including No. 6 Lewisville, No. 8 San Antonio Churchill and No. 10 Texas City. Churchill, which lost to San Antonio Highlands 16-13, was the lone loser to survive, retaining the No. 9 position.

Port Neches-Groves, expected to challenge Port Arthur Jefferson in Dist. 22-5A, moved into the No. 9 spot and Eules Trinity, 2-0, took over the eighth spot.

No. 6 Paris, No. 7 Brownwood and No. 9 McKinney suffered losses among the 4A rankings with Paris dropping to No. 8 and Brownwood and McKinney dropping from the top 10. Corsicana, No. 9, and Andrews, No. 10, are the 4A newcomers. Andrews moved into the list after a big 18-14 upset over 5A Midland High.

Ninth-ranked Port Isabel was defeated by Marine Military Academy of Harlingen 44-14 and San Augustine, tied for 10th last week, lost for the second straight week on the 2A list. Both dropped out of the top 10 and were replaced by No. 8 Littlefield and No. 10 Edna.

Other teams receiving voter consideration were: 5A — Lubbock Coronado, 18 points; Bryan and Austin Reagan, 12 each; Abilene Cooper, 11; Longview, 8. 4A — Ennis, 17; Corpus Christi West Osco, 12; Mount Pleasant, 10; and McKinney, 9. 3A — Barbers Hill, 10; Willis, 11; and Rockdale, 9. 2A — Seagraves, 14; Wheeler, 11, including one first-place vote, and Mart, 10.

The Associated Press did not rank Class A teams, but Rankin has been listed as a Top 10 team in several other polls, No. 1 in at least one.

SMU's Simmons gets SWC honors

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

John Simmons is not the kind of guy you pick on, twice.

North Texas State quarterback Joe Stevenson did it once too often Saturday night. Seconds later Simmons was dragging Stevenson into the end zone at the end of a 26-yard interception return.

Simmons' touchdown helped put North Texas State on ice in a 28-9 Southern Methodist non-conference football victory and earned the senior cornerback The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week award.

"He (Stevenson) telegraphed where he was going to throw the ball," said Simmons. "They had been picking us on the outside. This time he came out looking at the receiver. I just stepped up and there the ball was."

It wasn't the first time Simmons, who hails from Little Rock (Parkview), had victimized a careless quarterback.

In his freshman year, Simmons dashed 34 yards for a touchdown on an interception against Texas A&M.

Simmons now has 11 career interceptions.

The 5-11, 188-pounder wasn't recruited out of high school by the University of Arkansas although he was named to The AP Super Team and the Arkansas Gazette Super Team.

"Maybe they (the Razorbacks) didn't think I was fast enough," said Simmons. "My speed has increased in college."

Simmons was clocked in 4.4 seconds in the 40 last spring, one of the fastest on the team.

SMU was the only major college team to recruit him.

"I was a running back in high school and I thought I'd be a running back in college," he said. "I enjoy carrying the ball."

SMU Coach Ron Meyer said Simmons and the other cornerback, Charles Bruton, who had two interceptions against North Texas, are as good a pair as you can find.

"They are two quality players," said Meyer.

Simmons, who had a reputation of gambling too much early in his career, said he has settled down.

"You can get into trouble gambling and every now and then I have to catch myself," said Simmons.

But what Simmons mostly catches is passes thrown by other team's quarterbacks.

Bill Yeoman adds handoff for Cougars

HOUSTON (AP) — After losing five of seven fumbles in a season-opening loss to Arizona State, University of Houston Coach Bill Yeoman said Tuesday he's planning something innovative in the Cougar offense for Saturday's home opener against Miami.

"We've decided to install the hand-off this week and hope we can get it ready," Yeoman said. "We were all sitting around trying to decide what to put in for Miami and we think that will help us the most."

The Cougars lost nine turnovers to the aroused Sun Devils, including five fumbles and four pass interceptions.

Despite the disappointing opener, Yeoman said he thinks the Cougars' offensive problems can be solved.

"All we need to do is execute," Yeoman said. "The outside was open to us, we just couldn't get it there. But we're going to get it. We just have to go to work."

"We just didn't have the right rhythm to the offense," Yeoman said. "We were in the key of G and we should have been in C. There is a certain flow that makes the offense go smoothly and we just didn't have it."

Yeoman praised the Cougars' offensive line, which included a revamped right side.

"The offensive line blocked better than we've ever had in an opening game," Yeoman said. "But our backfield didn't function like it can. If we had been able to punt we'd have been in good shape."

But nine turnovers hampered Houston's punting and first game jitters affected quarterback Terry Elston.

Elston, who came off the bench to spark four victories in relief last season, had a rougher time as a starter and was replaced in the second half by sophomore Brent Chinn.

"Terry was a little slow in pulling the cord," Yeoman said. "I think he felt the squeeze of starting for the first time. I think he was glad to get that first one behind him."

Yeoman said Elston had been slowed because of a lack of scrimmage work prior to the season opener.

"We couldn't afford to get him hurt but now he's got a lot of work ahead of him," Yeoman said.

Houston plays its home opener in the Astrodome Saturday against the Miami Hurricane, which is 2-0 and has allowed only 12 first downs, three by rushing, in its victories over Florida A&M and Louisville.

Eagles impress Tom Landry

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry says about the only things that could keep the Philadelphia Eagles out of the playoffs are injuries or fatigue from carrying Dick Vermeil off the field.

The Eagles have jumped a game ahead of defending National Conference Eastern Division champion Dallas, and Landry was asked about fast-start Philadelphia at his weekly press luncheon.

"I've never seen a coach (Vermeil) carried off the field in September before," said Landry. "Usually you wait until a little later in the year for that. I'm just glad we don't play the Eagles for awhile."

Vermeil was hoisted to the shoulders of his players after last Sunday's 42-7 drubbing of Minnesota — the same day Denver blasted the Cowboys 41-20.

"If the Eagles can avoid injuries, they will be a cinch for the playoffs. They are out in front and their schedule isn't real tough," Landry said.

Dallas doesn't play the Eagles until Oct. 19 in Philadelphia.

The Cowboys must face unbeaten Tampa Bay Sunday in Texas Stadium which will be a sauna at the 3 p.m. kickoff if the current Texas heat wave continues as predicted.

"We'll start working out (today) in the hot weather at 3 p.m. ... we'll work through the heat," said Landry.

Temperatures reached 100 degrees or higher on 68 days in Dallas this summer and Landry has varied the workout schedule to get around the blistering Texas heat.

He said it was tough to condition the team as hot as it has been. He cited tailback Tony Dorsett as an example.

"Tony missed the last two preseason games and, because of the heat, it's been hard for him to get back into condition," Landry said.

Landry also said if it's extremely hot Sunday — the long range forecast says it will — "We will substitute a lot."

He said the Denver whipping was not setting well with his players.

"It got their attention. Not many players on this team have been with us when we get beat that bad," Landry noted.

The Cowboys opened strong with a Monday night 17-3 victory over Washington on the road then had to travel to Denver.

Landry refused to criticize quarterback Danny White, saying "It will take him time to get the feel of things. He's very intelligent. He'll get there."

TV switch aids Notre Dame

CHICAGO (AP) — Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine sees nothing wrong with moving college football schedules around to accommodate television networks.

"There are two reasons for changing the schedules," Devine told the Chicago Football Writers in a telephone interview Tuesday. "The first is money and that's important because it provides funds for scholarships for minority students and other sports. The second is for the good of college football in general."

"There are times television dictates but the NCAA and television networks working together is good for all of college football."

Notre Dame and Purdue moved up their Sept. 27 game to Sept. 6 to accommodate television and as a result the Irish had an open date between games last week and will have another open date Sept. 27.

All of which gives Notre Dame two weeks between games to prepare for Saturday's game against Michigan in South Bend.

Neither Devine nor Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler believed the open date will be advantageous to the Irish.

"We were extremely sharp for our first game," said Devine of the 31-10 victory over Purdue. "With that tempo going, I would have liked to play last week. The only injury we suffered was to Tom Cichy and it looks like he's lost for the season so the week off didn't help us in that respect."

Coleman fines Rollie Fingers

HOUSTON (AP) — San Diego Padres relief star Rollie Fingers has been fined $1,000 by Manager Jerry Coleman in the aftermath of a recent shouting match between the two, it was reported Tuesday.

The two have not been speaking terms in three weeks, since Fingers demanded to be traded after being pulled from a game at Montreal.

The fine involved an incident last Friday when Fingers berated Coleman after a game in Atlanta.
