It Works the United Way

It's United Way time again. The local campaign will kick off next week, striving to meet this year's goal of $1,150,000. Find out Sunday how over 29,900 people in Midland benefitted from services provided by United Way agencies last year.

Touring Farms and Ranches

It's been a bad year for cotton in Midland County — too little rainfall and too many insects. The annual Farm and Ranch Tour focused on this year's cotton crop, plus a trip to a pine forest and a working ranch. Read about it Sunday.

Titan silo blows with nuke inside

DAMASCUS, Ark. (AP) — A fiery explosion that lit the night sky "like daylight" rocked an underground Titan II missile silo today, injuring at least 22 maintenance workers, the Air Force said. Pentagon sources said a nuclear warhead was atop the missile, but said there was no evidence the weapon was damaged or that any radiation leaked.

Authorities evacuated an area that stretched 10 miles north of the silo and five miles on either side, routing about 1,000 people mostly in the tiny towns of Damascus, Bee Branch and Gravesville. But by late morning, people were being allowed back except within a mile of the facility, according to the Strategic Air Command.

Teams from the Department of Energy and the state health department were sent to the site about 50 miles north of Little Rock to check radiation levels.

Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., said the Air Force told his office there was "no evidence of a plutonium leak, the warhead is intact and the warhead is in the hands of Air Force officials."

Tom Mahr, a public information officer at the headquarters of SAC in Omaha, Neb., said 22 people were injured, 18 of them seriously enough to be hospitalized, in the accident that began when a three-pound wrench socket fell 70 feet and punctured the missile's first stage fuel tank.

Gov. Bill Clinton said Air Force officials told him that no nuclear explosion had occurred and that none could have occurred in the silo housing the 103-foot-long intercontinental ballistic missile which is capable of delivering this nation's largest hydrogen bomb to a target 6,300 miles away.

Maj. Lew Lambert at SAC headquarters said the explosion scattered debris around the surrounding area and that Arkansas officials reported some foliage caught fire. By mid-morning, he said, the fire had subsided.

It was not immediately known whether the missile itself or only fuel exploded. The silo, covered by concrete doors, was "just a big rubble inside" after the blast, Clinton said.

The explosion occurred as a maintenance crew tried to neutralize a fuel leak in the first-stage of the missile, said SAC spokesman Col. Richard Kline.

Air Force Secretary Hans Mark in Washington said the missile had been undergoing maintenance Thursday night when the wrench socket fell, bounced off a thrust mount, and struck the missile, puncturing the first stage fuel tank holding about 10,000 gallons. About 24 minutes later, the maintenance crew reported indications of a fire, Mark said, and flooded the silo with water. Civilian authorities were advised to evacuate the area.

It was the second accident this week involving sophisticated Air Force weaponry. On Monday, a B-52 bomber caught fire at Grand Forks Air Force Base in North Dakota.

Oswald's grave won't be opened

FORT WORTH (AP) — A judge today blocked exhumation of the body that lies in the grave of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy.

State District Judge James Wright, in granting a temporary injunction, said "no necessity or compelling reason for the threatened exhumation or autopsy are shown in this record. In short, rumors, speculative theory, conjecture, and public curiosity will not suffice."

Lawyers for British author Michael Eddowes, who tried to have the body dug up, said they were studying the ruling and would decide later whether to appeal.

The dispute started when Eddowes received permission to have the body removed and an autopsy held to determine if Oswald or a Russian spy were buried there.

Oswald's brother Robert filed suit to stop the exhumation.

Wright rejected Eddowes' argument that the consent of Lee Harvey Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, to exhume the body was a controlling factor.

That "is not a correct view of the law," Wright said.

The judge also held Eddowes "mistakenly asserts the point" that Robert Oswald should not be heard in the matter.

"It is the opinion of this court that the plaintiff (Robert Oswald) has shown a probable right and a probable injury," Wright said. "Therefore...the plaintiff's application for temporary injunction as to the defendant Eddowes should be and it is hereby granted."

The judge denied Oswald's application for an injunction against Rose Hill Burial Park on the city's east side, where Lee Harvey Oswald is buried.

"With regard to the injunction sought against the defendant Rose Hill cemetery, there has been no showing in this case that the cemetery has taken, or intends to take, any action concerning the disinterment... It is therefore the opinion of this court that plaintiff's application for a temporary injunction as to the defendant Rose Hill cemetery should be, and it is, hereby denied."

Serious dog disease infects Midland pets

By KAY CRITES
Staff Writer

Within the past 10 days, Midland veterinarians have seen as much as a 200-fold increase in serious cases of vomiting and bloody diarrhea in dogs. Several of these cases have resulted in death, and it's all being tied to an extremely deadly and contagious virus called Parvovirus.

Although it has not been confirmed, Midland veterinarians say the symptoms are consistent with those of Parvovirus, a disease that can kill a dog within 24 hours.

In April, the disease became common enough in Midland that local veterinarians warned people to have their dogs vaccinated. The vaccine given to ward off the disease is the feline distemper vaccine, since Parvovirus is very similar to feline distemper and may even be a mutant type. Symptoms of the disease include vomiting, bloody diarrhea, depression, loss of appetite and rapid dehydration. The virus is extremely contagious and begins by attacking the intestinal lining and destroying it. After that it gets into the bloodstream and into the bone marrow where it destroys white blood cells.

Dalton Byerly, director of the city animal shelter, said his department has been called to pick up 25 dead dogs since Sept. 10, and that perhaps 20 of those deaths might have been caused by Parvovirus.

"In about the last two weeks, and the past few days especially, we have been having a lot of young dogs dying — all with no apparent reason," Byerly said. "We always ask people why the dog died and they're saying 'I

Part six: Not a fluke of history, but a president

BY MERLE MILLER

Within a few hours of John F. Kennedy's assassination, everybody in the world with a television set knew what Lyndon Johnson looked and sounded like: A huge Texan with preposterous ears and a Texas accent.

But beyond that, most people knew very little about him, and many of those who did, or thought they did, didn't care much for what they knew. The impression was that Johnson was a legislative wire-puller and manipulator.

Bill Moyers, a former White House press secretary, "knew that he was not a legitimate president. Constitutionally, he was president. Politically, he had not been asked into that office by the people. This made him very uncomfortable. He also knew many of the people who had been for Kennedy, considered him an intruder."

The first occasion for Johnson to present himself as president to the nation was an address to both houses of Congress. It was a resounding success, remembered mainly for one line — "Let us continue," a familiar reference to Kennedy's inauguration speech, with its theme, "Let us begin."

Even the New York Herald Tribune, which rarely had a good word for any Democrat, editorially praised the Johnson speech. "Fine words, fitting words, at times inspiring words. As he stood before Congress and the nation not a fluke of history but a president."

During the month of mourning for Kennedy, Johnson built bridges — by calling organizations, business people, labor people, church people, ethnic groups, telling each, "I need you. I need your help more than Jack Kenney did, and I'm the only president you've got." He enlisted their sympathy and understanding, and built a strong and impressive base that way.

JAMES ROWE JR., a Johnson friend and adviser: "The one thing I used to say when Kennedy died and Johnson came into office, I used to say my boss Roosevelt had both style and substance. And Kennedy had style. And this fellow Johnson had substance. I still think this is true. Kennedy looked fine, made nice speeches, but he didn't get much done."

Everyone, it seemed, had something to say on that subject. Charles De Gaulle once called Kennedy the mask on the face of America, while Johnson WAS America.

Benjamin Bradlee of the Washington Post: "If you read the dictionary about style the fact is that Johnson had more style than Kennedy. If style is individuality — that individuality by which one distinguishes a person — he (Johnson) was just a goddamn bank vault of style."

Hubert Humphrey may have said it best: "Of course, every presidency has its own personality. Kennedy's had great grace and charm and class. Johnson's presidency was more like a developer moving into an area that needs rehabilitation. I think when you look back, you will see that with Johnson — he didn't get all the little paintings on the wall, and he didn't get the gold plate on the dome and didn't shine up the doorknobs, but he got the foundation in, got the side-walks up, got the beams put across. The structure was there."

One piece of legislation alone, the 1964 Civil Rights Act, illustrates the difference: Lyndon made sure he got everything he asked for. Kennedy, faced with inevitable Senate opposition, would almost surely have compromised somewhere, traded the deletion of one section, say, for the passage of the rest. Lyndon refused to delete, refused to compromise, anywhere.

The first two preoccupations of the Johnson administration were civil rights and a tax cut, plus an investigation of the Kennedy assassination.

THE SPECIAL COMMISSION to investigate the Assassination of President Kennedy, as it was officially named, delivered its report on September 28, 1964, saying that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone and unaided, and slightly crazed, killed John F. Kennedy. There were some who refused to believe the report told the full

Virus infects local dogs

Dr. Tom Green of Green's Animal Clinic said he had seen 30 to 40 suspected cases of Parvovirus in the past 10 days. Previously they had seen only two confirmed cases in the past month and a half.

Green has had four puppies die from the suspected virus since midnight Wednesday. Although the disease is more severe in puppies, Green said he is seeing the majority of cases in middle-age dogs.

Hospital to join in study of east, southeast needs

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff-Writer

Midland County Hospital District board of directors approved a motion Thursday to join in the Chamber of Commerce's Objectives for Midland — The Eighties program in a study of the needs of east and southeast Midland.

Approving a motion to pay $6,000 of the necessary $50,000 for the Urban Land Institute study of east Midland, the directors agreed the study would be most helpful to the hospital in learning the problems of a population where many of the hospital's indigent patients and emergency outpatients live.

Ed Magruder, president of the board, told board members about the group doing the study. "They've done this sort of thing before in this area (in 1967 in the downtown area). It's a highly professional group. They are a non-profit organization that is well-versed in the problems of urban economy," he said.

"They will do a good job and what comes out of it will be worth it," Magruder said. Although he added, "It might be a little far-fetched to advocate the good that comes out of it."

All five directors agreed the study would help the hospital and the city. Magruder added he expected to "specifically incorporate questions on outpatient needs." He said it was important for the hospital to learn from this study the residents' needs for "health care and its delivery as it bears on the hospital's responsibility and on the district's responsibility."

The hospital district becomes the fourth taxing body to join in the Objectives program. The city has pledged $17,500 for the study; the county allotted $15,000; and the school district also gave $6,000. The Midland College district has declined to join.

However, chamber officials are now asking the college's foundation members rather than the taxing body. The hospital's funds for joining the program will not necessarily come out of the tax revenues, however, as the board decided it will be paid for as a "purchase of goods," rather than a budgeted item.

In other board news, the directors approved the increasing of the maximum liability insurance coverage for all board members from $1 million to $5 million.

"It's serious enough," he said, "that we won't let a dog in our hospital without a parvovirus vaccination."

Veterinarians are urging dog owners to have their animals vaccinated. If the dog has been vaccinated, a booster may be needed. Local vets are usually recommending boosters every three months to a year, depending on how much risk the dog is exposed to. Those kept in boarding kennels or where there are a large number of dogs are under a greater risk of contracting the disease and may need boosters more often than the single pet.

Richard Gibson of the operations committee of the board of trustees, which is reviewing the recommendations from Wyatt and Co., said the coverage would not be an excessive amount.

"The number of persons covered under this policy in regards to this hospital is larger than most other hospitals," he explained. Coverage on this part of the insurance goes to members of the board of directors, the board of trustees, the board of governors and the hospital administrator — or roughly 50 people.

Board members also agreed to write off the special "no payment action" accounts package made up by the finance committee of the board of trustees.

The package of old bills amounted to $105,042, but board members took five of the accounts out of the package which they believe could be paid. The adjusted figure of the special write-off was not immediately available.

In addition, board members removed three accounts from the monthly write-off list of bad debts. Previously, the bad debt amount for August was $61,098, but directors brought that figure to $61,021.

"I don't think somebody's using even the slightest bit of initiative to figure these out," director Martin Neill said.

Board members agreed that if they could find assets accounts which they knew could be paid just from flipping through a list, every effort was not being made to get the bad debts collected.

"It's a very serious problem if we can notify that many (persons on the list) and we just started looking through it (the list)," director Thomas Ingram agreed.

But, Robert Abernethy, assistant administrator of finance, said of the old accounts, "It's creating such a bulk of accounts that it's not worth keeping them on the books." Each account costs approximately 60 cents a month just to keep them in the system.

Acting administrator Robert Bash agreed with Abernethy. "When they're written off, the collection agency still goes after them."

The board members also charged off some $15,000 in indigent care debts.

Big Spring facing segregation suit

WASHINGTON — Contending the Big Spring public schools illegally segregate black and Mexican-American students, the U.S. Justice Department has reportedly filed suit against the school district in Abilene's U.S. District Court.

Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said the suit names as respondents the Big Spring Independent School District, its superintendent and its seven-member school board.

The suit reportedly asks the court to prohibit school officials from discriminating on the basis of race and national origin, and to order district officials to prepare a desegregation plan for the 1981-82 school year.

The suit alleges school officials violated Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which forbids discrimination by recipients of federal funds. The government is contending the district continues to operate a dual school system in which white students and teachers are assigned to separate schools from black and Mexican-American students and teachers.

But Richard Milstead, attorney for the Big Spring school district, said Thursday the high school is fully integrated and that school officials have been talking with Justice Department officials about elementary school populations.

The Big Spring school system operates 10 schools with a total enrollment of 4,894 students. Of that number, 1,755 are Mexican-American and 434 are black, giving the school district a minority population of 42.8 percent.

According to Milstead, the school district has been "talking with Washington for years" and "generally I feel we're in compliance." School officials have discussed school integration with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare since 1972 or 1973.

The suit alleges that one school in Big Spring is 100 percent composed of minority members while another is more than 90 percent white. Copies of the lawsuit had not arrived in Big Spring by late Thursday.

Big Spring was the first school district in Texas to vote for desegregation in 1965. But since March 1973, the district has faced possible loss of federal funds because of alleged noncompliance with HEW and court orders to desegregate Bauer and Lakeview elementary schools.

Cuban hijackers returned to U.S.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Two Cubans were returned to the United States on Thursday to face air piracy charges, the first hijacking suspects the Cuban government has ever offered to send back for prosecution in this country.

"I believe this will stop the hijackings," said U.S. Marshal Hector Gonzalez, who helped bring the pair back from Cuba Thursday after the Caribbean island nation made them available for prosecution in the United States.

The two men are accused of hijacking a Delta Air Lines Boeing 727 headed from Atlanta to Columbia on Wednesday with 111 people aboard. It was the 10th hijacking in six weeks in the United States. Most of them were carried out by disgruntled refugees.

The hijacking came two days after the Cuban government announced that Cubans who left the country in the "Freedom Flotilla" this year made "one-way trips" and warned that hijackers would be severely punished or sent back to the United States.

On Thursday, Havana radio said that Juan Atega Fresnada, 25, and Chencelo Perez Perez, 26, would be sent back to the United States "with the purpose of definitely ending these acts, that may endanger the lives of hundreds of innocent people."

"This is a real breakthrough," said Dennis Feldman, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Washington. "Never before has Cuba volunteered to return a hijacker. By denying them asylum, this should bring to an end the current rash of hijackings."

The two appeared before U.S. Magistrate Charles Gambrell, who set bail at $750,000 each and sent them to Lexington County Jail.

They are accused of dousing a flight attendant with gasoline and threatening to set her afire if the plane were not taken to Cuba. They told a passenger they came to this country in the "Freedom Flotilla" but were unhappy with their new lives in New York.

The plane returned safely to the United States after dropping the two men off in Havana. U.S. Attorney Thomas E. Lydon asked for a high bond because "the alleged offense endangered the lives of (about) 110 people." The two will stand trial "in no more than 60 or 70 days," he said. He said they could receive life in prison if convicted.

Gambrell said that if the pair made bail, they would not be allowed to leave South Carolina. "They will not be permitted to go anywhere, by air unless they consent to a search by a proper federal officer before they get on that airplane," the magistrate ordered.

Meanwhile, 80 Cubans entered the United States legally on Thursday, flying from Havana to Miami on a chartered plane. They included some of the 283 Cubans who sought refuge at the U.S.

Maine lobster may make move to land-locked Utah

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The Maine lobster might become a Utah resident if the successful laboratory work of two Brigham Young University scientists reaches its commercial potential.

Roger W. Mickelsen and Rex C. Infanger, research associates at BYU, say their laboratory work shows that they should be able to put 1 million lobsters on the dinner table a year, all born and bred in land-locked Utah.

Two years ago both men presented a paper at the World Mariculture Society on their development of a modular caging system that suitably houses the lobster and adjusts through each growing stage.

"This was a major advance, considering the obstacles. The system had to be durable, rust-proof and submersible. Since lobsters grow in relation to the size of their cage, the housing compartments had to be flexible enough for quick and easy adjustments," said Infanger.

Since the scientists were exploring the system's commercial capabilities, it had to house hundreds at a time and be virtually maintenance-free.

Mickelsen and Infanger say they have demonstrated that "lobsters can grow and develop normally in recirculated, filtered salt water as opposed to sea water." Additionally, they are working with scientists in Canada and California on perfecting a diet formula that costs far less and is just as nutritious as traditional lobster food.

They say they've done all this work for the past four years for "fun," despite stringent budgets and what some folks from the coast might call unusual conditions.

Utah is nearly 1,000 miles away from the Pacific Ocean and seems like a strange location for a lobster project. But, with the Great Salt Lake available — a massive body of water with high salt concentrations — the pair thought they had a near-perfect environment.

When that project failed because the mineral content was radically different than sea water, a fellow scientist at Davis, Calif., suggested that the pair try recirculated water, with the proper chemical components.

Infanger and Mickelsen started with tap water, added all the ingredients necessary to support marine life, and then recycled it through the lobster cages after it had been filtered, heated and purified.

The idea worked and today both scientists are ready to launch the first recirculated water lobster farm in America.

The number of lobsters that can be grown a year is really limited only by the size of the operation, according to Infanger. "We could grow 500,000 pounds so that's nearly 1 million animals a year on 4 acres. But that's down the road."

Since the lobster is prized because of its taste, can these men produce a product that fussy consumers, who've dined in fancy East Coast restaurants, will approve? A taste test done in San Diego with laboratory-grown lobsters showed them to be "as good or better than the Atlantic Ocean variety," said Mickelsen.

Infanger likens the lobster industry today to the cattle business of more than a hundred years ago. "Lobsters are one of the few remaining foods that are grown exclusively in the wild and whose delicate growing, feeding and breeding habits have been left to mother nature," he said.

Although female lobsters produce 10,000 to 40,000 eggs, very few survive in the open ocean since they are consumed by other fish or eaten by each other. Since lobsters are cannibalistic, the male lobster will eat the female instead of impregnating her, unless she has recently moulted.

"Mass production of lobsters in the laboratory will improve the taste of the seafaring creature," says Infanger. "In the same way that breeding improved the tough Longhorn steer. Selective breeding can do nothing but good. Nobody would want to eat a Longhorn steer — they were as tough as a door. Yet lots of breeds have Longhorn in them. We need to do with lobsters what we've done with cattle and prawns."

Carrington cancels his travel plans

LONDON (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington canceled plans to accompany Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on a visit to France Thursday because he is suffering from a kidney stone.

Carrington was forced to leave a Common Market foreign ministers meeting in Brussels this week because of the complaint, although he was reported feeling better and put in a full day's work Wednesday.

Mrs. Thatcher will visit Paris and Bordeaux for talks and attend an Anglo-French conference.

Newton's legal ills continue

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Former Black Panther leader Huey Newton's legal troubles were continuing this week.

Newton, 38, of Oakland, was riding in a car driven by James T. Kerr, 34, identified as Newton's attorney, when they stopped Wednesday by a police officer who charged Kerr with drunk driving and Newton with public drunkenness.

Newton, scheduled to appear in Berkeley Municipal Court next Wednesday on the charge, is on probation for a drunk driving conviction in Oakland last month.

Last year, he was tried twice in Oakland on a charge of killing a 17-year-old prostitute in 1974. Both trials ended in hung juries, and the district attorney dropped the case.

Baron says French must believe him

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — French Baron Arnaud de Rosnay may not be able to go home again.

The 34-year-old adventurer said Wednesday that if he cannot convince French critics that he did indeed windsurf 560 miles of the South Pacific by himself, he will never return to his homeland.

"If they don't believe it in France, I'll never go back, never," de Rosnay said in an interview on the eve of his departure from Tahiti to Paris. "I will come and live here and forget France."

French windsurfing experts have charged that he could not have made the 12-day trip earlier this month from the Marquesas Islands to Ahe, an atoll in the Tuamotu archipelago, without outside help.

He said he was returning to France with proof.

"I doubt they will believe me and I don't care. Now I'm up to the stage that I really don't care. So now, they believe it or not," the baron said.

NO THANKS - I'LL STAND OVER HERE

CHARLEY REESE

Until Congress is purged deception will not change

As you try to plan your economic future, you ought to take into consideration the fact that there are certain problems no change of administration can immediately solve.

The public debt, for example, is around $900 billion. Annual interest payments are edging toward $100 billion. That debt will still exist Jan. 20, 1981, and the interest will continue to accrue.

The significance of the debt, which is inexcusable, is this. It represents a trillion dollar claim on future taxes. That's a trillion dollars of taxes that must be levied on the people, not a dollar of which can buy a food stamp, a bullet or a piece of paper for a bureaucrat.

With such a huge load of public debt which an irresponsible Democratic majority in the Congress has put on our backs, you can expect no end to inflation. Inflation is the old and dishonorable way governments cheat their creditors. Obviously, too, you cannot expect any genuine and substantial tax cuts since this obligation must be met.

Also, on Jan. 20, 1981, the Federal Reserve System will still be in operation regardless of who is elected. The Federal Reserve, a federally chartered but private organization, controls the supply of money and credit as it jolly well pleases with no regard for the wishes of the government.

The significance of this is that a president can ask for tight money or easy money until he is blue in the face, but the decision is entirely the Fed's, not his. Until we elect a Congress with enough backbone to re-examine this question, the people of the United States will continue to have their money supply and credit controlled by private bankers.

Finally, on January 20, 1981, the enormous federal bureaucracy will be waiting for the new president like Moby Dick, the evil white whale. The majority of those bureaucrats are immune from political purges thanks to wrong-headed reformers who couldn't see that the old spoils system had one mighty important virtue: it allowed a complete house cleaning.

Every president has trouble with the bureaucracy which can thwart a president's will with simple lethargy. Furthermore, the bureaucracies and their rules and regulations which are choking American business can only be abolished by the Congress.

What it all means is that even assuming there is a new administration, any changes in our situation will be gradual, not swift. Therefore, you can count on more inflation, only minimal tax relief, and probably some form of wage and price controls.

The most important thing to understand about our economic ills is that they are caused by political decisions. Inflation is a deliberate policy. The huge public debt is a result of political decisions. The tax laws and the bureaucracies are all created by political decisions.

Therefore, to cure our economic problems will require new political decisions. Politicians, however, traditionally practice deception and try to avoid admitting any responsibility for the problems they cause. That's why they end up resorting to wage and price controls.

Wage and price controls don't work, but they do deceive the public. Implicit in wage and price controls is the assertion that inflation is caused by unions and by business when in fact it is caused by the government.

Unless there is not only a new president, but a radical turnover in Congress, this pattern of irresponsibility and deception is not likely to change.

Another Carter boo-boo

President Jimmy Carter's refusal to engage in a League of Women Voters-sponsored debate involving Republican nominee Ronald Reagan and Independent candidate John B. Anderson should be recognized for exactly what it is: If they won't play his way, he just won't play.

He's pulling the old political trick of changing the subject in hopes that all of us voters will forget what the subject really is. But will we? We, at least, hope not.

As you have read, the president is insisting that the first debate this year be between only he and Reagan. He claims the presence of Anderson would detract from the debate of the two major party candidates.

That's just so much political double-talk and American voters can see through it plainly. Carter knows that Anderson's presence in the Baltimore debate Sunday is a concession that Anderson is a viable presidential candidate. Carter doesn't want the American voters to view Anderson as a viable presidential candidate.

According to the political experts, Anderson's Independent party candidacy will take votes away from President Carter. His candidacy will, in effect, help Reagan; thus the claims that Anderson's in the race primarily as a "spoiler."

Carter knows to be successful Nov. 4 he must minimize the votes going to Anderson. He also undoubtedly knows that his own political fortunes are dwindling.

But now the president's position relating to Anderson's inclusion in the debate may be turning sour on him. It's beginning to look more and more like he doesn't want to debate Reagan and Anderson simultaneously because he fears being placed on the defensive too much, forced to back his own misconceived policies.

The simple fact of the matter is that most Americans can see through Carter's thin veil of an excuse for not wanting to debate Anderson. He doesn't want to give Americans the opportunity of seeing his policies put to the test of rivalry where everything would be scrutinized.

Jimmy Carter is only hurting himself. He's painted himself into a corner and if Reagan and Anderson are the only two men involved in Sunday's debate, the president will be the big loser — literally.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Questions remain about Stewart's finances

WASHINGTON — Ordinarily I do not report developments that raise questions about a political candidate in the last days before an election. In fairness to the candidate, he should be allowed sufficient time to answer the questions raised before the voters go to the polls.

But the case of Sen. Donald Stewart, D-Ala., is different. The senator has made my reports on his 1978 campaign finances an issue with his constituents, who will vote in the Democratic primary runoff next Tuesday. So the charges are no last-minute surprise.

At the same time, Stewart has steadfastly refused to provide convincing answers to the questions raised by my reports. If Stewart won't give me the answers, maybe he'll give some to the voters of Alabama before Tuesday. In that hope, I'll report the latest developments in the Stewart case.

The FBI and a federal grand jury have been investigating Stewart's campaign finances and the statements he has made about them. Some of Stewart's personal bank records were turned over to Justice Department attorneys in Birmingham on Sept. 2.

Because of Stewart's stubborn refusal to give satisfactory answers to financial questions, I asked my associates Jack Mitchell and Tony Capaccio to investigate. I also enlisted the services of a respected Birmingham attorney, W. Eugene Rutledge, to help research the public records. Some of the findings raise nagging questions about the senator's strange finances.

According to the public record, for example, Stewart's personal share of the mortgage debts on various properties in which he has a sole or partial interest is at least $393,000. Yet his only income in his financial report for 1979 appears to be his $60,662 Senate salary, plus a modest $4,500 in speaking engagement fees and a maximum of $2,500 in rental income.

Immediately after his election in 1978, Stewart managed to make a down payment of about $28,000 on his Washington home, valued at approximately $150,000. Incredibly, that was a year when he reported earnings of only $24,000, had borrowed more than $239,000 for his Senate campaign and was already engaged in a number of sizable mortgage ventures.

Although Stewart refused to answer questions from my reporters about his financial status, he was clearly worried about their investigation — so worried, in fact, that he called Rutledge at 1 a.m. on Sept. 3.

Rutledge was sound asleep. Stewart asked the startled attorney if he had filed a complaint about him with the Justice Department. Rutledge answered truthfully that he had not.

Stewart then demanded to know if Rutledge had "done a report for Jack Anderson." The attorney acknowledged that he had examined the public record at my request.

Then, as Rutledge recalled the conversation, Stewart said angrily: "Gene, I'm going to get you after the election." He then wanted to know where Rutledge was — a strange request from someone who had just placed a call to a man's house at 1 a.m.

When Rutledge hesitated, the senator chided him, saying, "What's the matter, Gene, are you afraid to tell me where you live?"

"Look it up in the phone book," advised the lawyer, before hanging up and going back to sleep.

Footnote: The 40-year-old Stewart came to Washington with promise of a bright future. He brought with him a populist reputation for taking on the big utilities, and he quickly impressed his Senate elders by working hard and learning the legislative ropes. By burning the midnight oil, Stewart became assistant majority whip and landed choice committee assignments.

But his finances have raised a cloud of doubt that could eclipse Stewart's promising career. He would do well to give Alabama voters better explanations than he has provided so far.

NOSE-COUNT NO-NO'S: The White House was warned by its former counsel, Robert Lipshutz, that it's against the law to demand political favors in return for federal jobs. That doesn't appear to have deterred President Carter's aides during the national nose count.

The inspector general of the Commerce Department, the Census Bureau's parent agency, is investigating three serious allegations that census workers were told that to get a job they'd have to agree to work for the Carter-Mondale campaign.

The complaints originated in Springfield, Mass., Traverse City, Mich., and Muskogee, Okla. The most serious charges came from a high-level census officer in Muskogee, who was fired after she complained to the inspector general's office.

The Muskogee official charged that prospective census workers were told they'd have to do political work. She also charged that female applicants were told they'd be expected to provide sexual favors for visiting Democratic politicians.

KEEP ON TRUCKIN': The House Public Works and Transportation Committee staff recently drafted a bill that would increase penalties for truckers who violate safety laws and would also protect whistleblowers who reported safety violations. The Senate had passed a similar bill.

But before the House committee members were given a chance to study the legislation, a copy of the draft was sent to the various lobbying groups that have an interest in trucking. Only after the industry lobbyists had a chance to put in their two cents' worth was the bill presented to the committee.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, Sept. 19, the 263rd day of 1980. There are 103 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Sept. 19, 1881, President James Garfield died of wounds inflicted by an assassin in Baltimore, on July 2.

On this date: In 1777, American soldiers in the Revolutionary War won the first battle of Saratoga in New York.

In 1934, Bruno Hauptmann was arrested in New York and charged with the kidnapping of Charles Lindbergh's baby son.

In 1955, President Juan Peron of Argentina was ousted from office in a revolt by the Army and Navy.

In 1974, former President Nixon was subpoenaed by special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski to appear at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Ten years ago, Palestine Liberation Army reinforcements entered Jordan from Syria to fight against King Hussein's army.

Five years ago, a U.S. District judge in California denied bail to Patricia Hearst.

Last year, the State Department said it opposed any intervention in Afghanistan's internal affairs, following confirmation that the United States had noticed Soviet army activity near the Afghan border.

Today's birthdays: Defense Secretary Harold Brown is 53 years old. British actress Rosemary Harris is 50. Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell is 73.

INSIDE REPORT:

South Korea's new strongman struggling to find stability

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

SEOUL, South Korea — President Chun Doo Hwan, South Korea's new strongman trying to show the West a less repressive face, did not rule out to us the possibility he might commute a death sentence against dissident Kim Dae Jung amid indications that government lawyers are about to study his options.

In his first interview since moving two weeks earlier from behind-the-throne power to the presidential throne itself, Chun stressed that Kim is not a political prisoner but is on trial for his life on strictly criminal charges. But while asserting "this is a matter for the courts and not the responsibility of the president to mete out justice," Chun did not close the door to clemency.

That typified the restrained tone by the 49-year-old career army officer who seized power last December during the turbulence following President Park Chung Hee's assassination. In a 90-minute interview at the Blue House, Chun welcomed President Carter's call for "complete democracy" here, proposed a quick end to martial law and predicted a more democratic South Korea than Park's 18-year regime.

But Chun also emphasized the danger of North Korean aggression, making this peninsula a potential world flashpoint and keeping 39,000 U.S. troops here. If last May's riots in the town of Kwangju, he said, "had been allowed to spread to two other cities," North Korean ruler Kim Il Sung would have sent down 100,000 infiltrators. "That is why social unrest, disorder and riots cannot be tolerated," Chun added.

On balance, Chun hardly seemed the barracks-room primitive portrayed in the international press. While chain-smoking throughout the interview, he was relaxed and self-assured. His sophistication belied the fact that scarcely two years ago he was an unknown infantry division commander.

The contrast between the smiling, athletic-looking Chun and the austere, frail Park is more than physical. While Park told us in the same room five years ago that communist North Korea's military menace precluded relaxation of security here, Chun held out considerably more hope even though his regime so far is measurably harsher than Park's final years. Chun called the U.S. his country's "great benefactor" and studiously avoided provocative language about the U.S. often used by Park.

That was true of his cautious language in responding to Western criticism of the trial of former presidential candidate Kim Dae Jung, today the most serious dispute between Washington and Seoul. "I am a little concerned about the tendency in the United States and Japan to link that case to me," he said.

But Chun did not lash out at U.S. interference. He simply said he had not yet considered a presidential pardon, while not commenting on the prospect. We received the impression that his lawyers will soon research the presidential powers for clemency, though commutation of a death sentence is opposed by Chun's key advisers.

As for Carter's recent call for "complete democracy" in South Korea, Chun told us: "I think it is very good that he should say that. I certainly do not resent it at all. Democracy has to be complete. Incomplete democracy is undesirable under any circumstances." But he quickly added that "each country has its own historical, cultural and geopolitical circumstances."

Those "circumstances" include linking the threat from the north to preventing disorder in the south, but Chun said, "Martial law ought to be lifted at the earliest practical moment." He called it "advisable to observe the situation for a few months. But my feeling is that it (martial law) will not last a long time."

"Those in the United States who call the policies here oppressive," he said, "obviously are talking about what happened in the past. I am not in a position to talk about that, because I was not politically responsible." Having thus disclaimed responsibility for the Park era, Chun said that the new constitution will be more like the American Constitution than Park's in providing contested presidential elections and a limited presidency (one seven-year term).

Chun saw no North Korean interest in serious negotiations that would diminish tensions: "Where you and I sit at this very moment is within the effective field artillery range of North Korean forces, and if they decide to pull the trigger, the shells would explode right here in our midst. This is something that a great, rich and secure country like the United States finds it difficult to imagine."

It is also something that has required a generation of Americans and Koreans to overlook what they perceive as the other's shortcomings in the interest of each nation's security. The Kim Dae Jung case will drag on for months with the worst yet to come. But Chun Doo Hwan clearly wants some mutual overlooking as South Korea pursues perhaps its last chance for stability, a quest whose life and death implications transcend this small nation.

Strauss, Sadat best dressed

CHICAGO (AP) — The "impeccable taste" of Egyptian president ANWAR SADAT and President Carter's campaign manager ROBERT STRAUSS landed them on the list of best dressed men of 1980, according to the Men's Fashion Guild of America.

They tied with 300 candidates, suggested by custom tailors here and abroad, for the top 10 spots, said guild president Fred Mazzei.

"These are men with impeccable taste in their attire who wear their clothes tastefully," he said Thursday.

Others on the list include actors FORREST TUCKER and PATRICK MCNEE; Chicago Sun-Times columnist IRVING KUPCINET; John L. Montgomery of the Chicago accounting firm Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., and Andrew A. Athens, president of Metron Steel Corp. of Chicago.

Also, Vito Pascucci, president of G. LeBlanc Corp. of Kenosha, Wis.; Mel Boldt, head of Mel Boldt and Associates of Mt. Prospect, Ill.; and Burr Gray, head of Gray Mobile Homes, Muskegon, Mich.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — In honor of CHET ATKINS' fame on the Grand Ole Opry stage, his guitar is doing a solo in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington.

The guitar, made for Atkins by a Kentucky man, was being handed over for posterity today in a brief ceremony at the Smithsonian's National Museum of History and Technology, according to Miriam Longino, a spokeswoman for RCA Records here.

The guitar will be displayed in the museum's Musical Instruments Hall.

Atkins, a member of the Grand Ole Opry since 1950, has appeared with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra and at the Newport Jazz Festival.

BOSTON (AP) — Retired Gen. WILLIAM C. WESTMORELAND says Americans must reawaken their sense of patriotism and the way to begin is in the schools.

"That spark of patriotism that has faded must be rekindled," the former Army chief of staff said in an interview Thursday before a session of the Fourth Annual Great American Achievements Program.

The program, sponsored by the Bicentennial Council of the Thirteen Original States Fund Inc., features scholarly papers and discussions at its two-day meetings. Study kits focusing on the U.S. Constitution are later made available to interested schools or individuals.

Former FBI officials charged in conspiracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brian Gettings, defense attorney for the one-time No. 2 man in the FBI, came right out and said what many law enforcement observers fear is true but prefer to ignore.

Law enforcement officials, he said, tend to believe they are different from ordinary people, exempt from the laws that apply to everybody else because they answer to a higher calling.

"You may not like it, but that's how they think," he told the 12 jurors trying the federal conspiracy case against W. Mark Felt, former acting associate FBI director, and Edward S. Miller, former head of the FBI intelligence division.

Gettings used the argument in a narrow sense Thursday, contending that Justice Department officials have for years tacitly approved FBI break-ins in search of information about those considered subversive.

But in a far broader sense, Gettings' argument defines an issue still troubling the law enforcement community.

Civil libertarians along with the reform leaders of some police agencies, including FBI Director William H. Webster, search for an elusive balance, one that respects citizens' constitutional rights while also allowing effective intelligence-gathering to prevent terrorist violence in America.

Felt and Miller are charged with conspiring to violate individual civil rights by authorizing FBI break-ins and searches at the homes of five New York and New Jersey residents thought by the FBI to have connections with fugitives who were members of the left-wing Weather Underground.

Gettings said Felt was little more than a bystander, implementing policy decisions made by others in the FBI, by other intelligence-gathering agencies and even by then-President Richard Nixon. And Felt thought his actions were a proper response to a threat presented by the militant group, Gettings argued.

If Gettings' contention prevails, not only in this trial court but also in the higher courts this case likely will reach, that could help a growing movement to ease post-Watergate restrictions on the nation's intelligence-gathering apparatus.

Since the Watergate-era disclosures of the dark side of spying, court orders, legislation and administrative rules have required the government's spies to account to the public for their tactics, especially when American citizens and home-grown organizations are involved.

Much tighter restrictions control the most intrusive techniques, such as wiretapping and bugging.

Yet there are rumblings of dissatisfaction, from inside the spy agencies and from their outside supporters, that such restrictions hamper effective intelligence-gathering.

The jury of 12 middle-aged men and women gave no hint of reaction to the tall, thin defense attorney and his long and combative oration. His phrases leapt out in staccato bursts as first one arm, then the other thrust out at full length in emphasis. Then his shoulders and his whole torso, jerking forward and back, drew watchful attention as he steamed into the heart of the argument.

His voice rising to a shout, he asserted, "The Justice Department that is prosecuting this case knew of these practices, condoned them. Now they come around, seven years later, after Mr. Felt has retired, and they want to make him a criminal!"

By contrast, government prosecutor John Nields spoke so softly that those on the spectators' benches of the small courtroom strained to hear. With hardly a reference to notes, he outlined the government's evidence in charging Felt and Miller with conspiracy to violate civil rights.

"This case is about the Bill of Rights," he said. "It is not a case of the FBI against the Weathermen."

Then he recited from memory the Fourth Amendment: "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated."

He noted that the FBI officials had the right and the responsibility to pursue Weather Underground fugitives — but not right to violate the law themselves in an effort to enforce it against others.

Anticipating defense testimony about Weather Underground violence, Nields told the jurors that such evidence "will literally screech at you."

You will hear the sound of Weatherman bombs." "We ask you," he continued, "to listen to the sound of the Constitution of the United States."

Gettings, too, had something to say to the jury about the Constitution. "You may get back there and bow down to the Bill of Rights and say the Bill of Rights overcomes everything. I can't help that. I would hope you wouldn't."

Sabotage seen in bus crash

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — After a prison bus careened through a busy intersection and rolled over, crushing to death a guard thrown from the vehicle, authorities discovered the brake line had been cut. "There is definitely sabotage involved," Ocmulgee Circuit District Attorney Joe Briley said Thursday.

Suspects include two inmates who were returned to the Middle Georgia Correctional Complex just before the fatal crash, authorities said, and investigators also were questioning the 20 young prisoners who were on the bus.

One inmate was hospitalized in serious condition after the crash Thursday.

Investigators are unsure whether the motive was to cover an escape or to injure someone on the bus. None of the inmates on the bus at the time of the crash escaped.

"If we knew why (the lining was cut), it wouldn't take us so long to figure out who," Briley said.

The front and rear hydraulic brake hoses on the right side of the bus had been cut while the inmates, on a work detail from the prison's youthful offenders unit, ate box lunches on the grounds of a Department of Human Resources youth development center, he said.

Prison officials want to learn what happened during the lunch break and why two inmates were returned to the prison.

The crippled bus left the center via a secondary road that ended just inside the Milledgeville city limits.

story. Lyndon Johnson was among them, believing at first that the Vietnamese were involved and later that the Cubans were involved.

As his interim presidency reached its halfway mark and the 1964 elections approached, Johnson became progressively concerned with finding his own hallmark, some phrase that could encompass his aims the way Roosevelt's New Deal, Truman's Fair Deal and Kennedy's New Frontier had encompassed theirs. Some phrase that would catch on with the press, with the people, with the historians.

It is generally agreed that the term Great Society, the phrase Lyndon finally adopted, was conceived by speechwriter Dick Goodwin when he hammered out a speech the president eventually delivered to the University of Michigan's graduation exercises on May 22, 1964. He only spoke for 20 minutes, although that was twice the time he originally planned. The crowd loved it and so did LBJ.

Charles Roberts of Newsweek: "When we got back on the plane, he was sweating and exuberant. He violated his old rule and had himself a drink, a Scotch highball, and came back to our press pool." There, he read parts of the speech to reporters again and proudly told them it was interrupted 29 times for applause, not 27 as their own count showed.

"He was a compulsive talker mostly when he was in this buoyant, euphoric mood after giving a speech or when things were going right for him. And of course during all that great first year that he was so euphoric, the Vietnam thing was still just a cloud no bigger than a man's hand."

FIRST EISENHOWER, then Kennedy, had taken the United States progressively deeper in Vietnam. It was not Lyndon's war — not yet.

What made it so was the Gulf of Tonkin incident, Aug. 2, 1964, a confusing event in which, it was announced, three torpedo boats had attacked an American destroyer in international waters. As more details came to light, they only confused the situation more. But to Lyndon, it was necessary for Congress to pass a resolution that would show Americans — and indeed the world — that the president, as commander in chief, was prepared "to take all necessary measures to repel any armed attack against the forces of the United States and to prevent further aggression."

Congress voted 514 to 2 for the resolution, and it was now Lyndon Johnson's war — all the way.

It was Lyndon Johnson, "the peace candidate," versus Barry Goldwater, "the Air Force candidate," in 1964. Goldwater had adopted the slogan, "In your heart, you know he's right," but almost immediately some subversive made up the slogan that swept the country. "In your guts you know he's nuts." Goldwater never had a chance.

Hubert Humphrey ran with Lyndon, who turned to his old liberal more-or-less friend and often useful ally after flirting with the idea of asking Robert Kennedy. He asked Clark Clifford, a close adviser, what he thought.

Clifford: "I thought the suggestion had no merit at all. I thought that if by chance it were to result in that (a Kennedy vice presidency), it would be a complete shambles. They were very unlike. I doubt that under the best of circumstances they could ever have developed much of a friendship. But also Bobby Kennedy seemed at the beginning very much to resent President Johnson. It was a curious attitude, completely illogical, wholly emotional. It seemed to irritate Bobby Kennedy when he saw President Johnson as he did."

Meanwhile, Bobby, as the guardian of Camelot, was himself thinking a great deal about the vice presidency. He decided he wanted it and, according to Lawrence F. O'Brien, a special assistant to the president, he went to Johnson to tell him. But the president ruled him out, telling Kennedy that he was not going to choose any member of his cabinet to run with him.

EVEN THOUGH EVERY poll showed Johnson winning the election by a landslide, he campaigned exuberantly, emphasizing his peace credentials as opposed to Goldwater's "wildman" philosophies. In Akron, Ohio, on October 21, the president told a crowd, "We are not about to send American boys away from home to do what Asian boys ought to be doing for themselves."

And he was sending Congress almost daily messages — about the education bill, the health bill, the foreign aid bill, the arms control bill and on and on. He seemed impatient to get things done while he was still popular enough to bully and cajole Congress to do his bidding.

Medicare was a tough fight but Johnson won it. He had less trouble winning approval of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, because after the riots that summer in Watts, Detroit and elsewhere, a great many white Americans, including most members of Congress, felt guilty enough to do something about racism and discrimination.

Johnson gave the civil rights bill a tremendous push with a speech that ended, "And we shall overcome." It was a remarkable speech by a white southerner, no matter what office he held.

People say that Lyndon fought two wars, one in Vietnam and one on poverty, and some people say that he lost both of them. Certainly, 1965 was a watershed for Great Society legislation. It also was, as it turned out, a watershed year for Vietnam. Johnson made two major and irrevocable decisions, with no objections by his top advisers.

First, he ordered the start of systematic bombing of North Vietnam and, five months later, in July, he committed U.S. ground troops on a major scale in South Vietnam. The decisions, he said, were based on the blunt assessments that the Vietcong were winning.

AND FEW AMERICANS seemed to mind, much less take their opposition to the streets.

Even in the early part of 1966, Lyndon was still riding high in the polls, and he used to read the figures aloud to anyone who questioned his priorities or direction. And many did — the Vietnam situation was getting worse, faster than anyone could have suspected a year earlier, and this was an election year, with all the trouble that could mean in the White House.

Wilbur Cohen, HEW official: "I think he tried to do too much and worked too hard at it with too many small things mixed in with the large. The average person was unable to comprehend it all: it was all too much for him to swallow all at once."

On civil rights, there was another bill — to ban discrimination in housing, on juries and in classrooms. Johnson met with black candidates at the White House, telling them that he had more civil rights legislation in mind. "We haven't gone near as far as we're going to go in the next two years of my office if the good Lord is willing and the creeks don't rise", he said.

But, as he was saying this, the level of criticism was increasing. The anti-war movement was growing. Congress was not voting to spend the kind of money Johnson needed for Vietnam and social programs.

Guns and butter were giving way to more guns and less butter; much less butter, many more guns. The creek was rising.

Speculation on Oswald could go on for years

FORT WORTH (AP) — Speculation on the identity of the man buried in Lee Harvey Oswald's grave could drag on for years, regardless of what a judge decides about exhuming the body, lawyers in the case say.

State District Judge James Wright said he probably would rule today on a request that the grave be opened and the body examined to determine its identity. But lawyers for both sides — Kenneth L. Campbell and Jerry M. Pittman — say they will appeal an unfavorable ruling and the process could drag on for years.

Pittman represents British author Michael Eddowes, who wants the grave opened in an effort to prove that the body really belongs to a Soviet spy who impersonated Oswald. Campbell represents Oswald's brother, Robert, who has sued to prevent exhumation.

The Warren Commission said Oswald on shot President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, and was himself shot to death by nightclub owner Jack Ruby two days later.

Printing source sought

CHICAGO (AP) — The Secret Service is trying to determine where $1.2 million in counterfeit food stamps were printed, the agency's office here says.

Kenneth S. Giannoulis said Thursday the phony stamps were in $10 denominations and of "fair" quality. He declined to say how much cash was to be exchanged for the bogus stamps. The Secret Service doesn't think they were printed in Canada or the Chicago area, he said.

Bruno Mancini, 37, of Montreal and Federico Prestigiamoco, 48, of New York were arrested Tuesday and charged with trying to sell the bogus stamps to undercover Secret Service agents, officials said Thursday.

DEATHS

Bessie Morren

Bessie Morren

Bessie Morren, 75, 4201 Harlowe Drive, died Thursday in a Midland hospital after an apparent heart attack.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with burial in Resthaven Memorial Park.

A resident of Midland for over 50 years, she was married to Dave Morren Jan. 7, 1924, in Colorado City. She moved to Midland with her family in 1930. Her husband worked with the Midland Police Department until his death in 1956 of cancer.

She was a member of the First Baptist Church, the Eagles, the American Legion and a charter member of AARP.

Survivors include two daughters, Lucille Pratt of Midland and Shirley Hahn of Dallas; a son, Martin Morren of Midland; a sister, Lena Johnson of Midland; a brother, "Boots" Cain of Midland; seven grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Wanda D. Parker

Services for Wanda Dolais Parker, 77, of Midland will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Thomas Funeral Home chapel with Melvin Williams, minister of the Church of Christ of Rock Hill, S.C., officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Mrs. Parker died Tuesday night as the result of injuries received in a traffic accident.

Pat Snoddy

Mrs. Sam (Pat) Snoddy, 52, 2602 McClintic Drive, died early this morning at her residence.

Services are pending at the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Snoddy was born Dec. 5, 1927, in Glasgow, Mo., where she was raised. She was graduated from Central Methodist College with a BS degree in education in 1949. She was married to Sam H. Snoddy in July 1956, in Dallas. The couple lived there for five months before moving to Midland.

She was employed by Halliburton until 1954. She was a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church and was an active member of St. Ann's Altar Society of the church.

Survivors include her husband, Sam Snoddy; a son, Mark Snowdy of Midland; a daughter, Michelle A. Snowdy of Midland; and her mother, Ella Noth of Glasgow, Mo.

'Moffett' Gilbow

Services for A.M. "Moffett" Gilbow, 66, of rural Midland will be at 4 p.m. Saturday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. James Holman, minister of St. Paul Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will follow in Fairview Cemetery under direction of the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Gilbow died early this morning at his home following a lengthy illness.

He was born March 21, 1914, in Blue Grove. He was reared in Blue Grove and Henrietta, and moved to Midland in 1926.

He entered the U.S. Army in 1941 and served in a European theater. Since his discharge, he had been employed by Richard Hinkle Standard Oil Distributors. He was manager there for 35 years. He retired in March 1979.

He had been a resident of Midland for more than 35 years and a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He had been in failing health for six months.

Survivors include his wife, Essie B. Gass Gilbow; a son, Jimmy Don Gilbow of Midland; a stepson, Lee Gass; his mother, Essie Jameson of Henrietta; two grandchildren and three nieces.

Bomb scare in Manila

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Hundreds of employees spilled out of the Asian Development Bank today after a caller warned urban terrorist bombers would strike next at the regional developmental institution, bank officials said.

The scare occurred after anonymous callers threatened to bomb the cultural section of the Soviet Embassy, two schools and several private establishments in Manila and suburban areas, police said.

No bombs were immediately found in any of the buildings threatened.

Police said they have been receiving an average of 50 bomb threats daily since a wave of bomb explosions killed an American woman and wounded 30 other people last Friday.

A group calling itself The April 6 Liberation Movement has claimed responsibility for the bombings, which it said it will continue until it forces an end to President Ferdinand E. Marcos' eight-year-old martial law regime.

Soviets changing tactics in Afghanistan

LONDON (AP) — Soviet military commanders in Afghanistan are launching helicopter-borne commando raids against Moslem rebels in a major tactical shift from previous large-scale ground operations, the Times of London reported today.

In a front-page report from Kabul, the Afghan capital, the British newspaper said officers commanding the 80,000-man Soviet occupation force in Afghanistan have called in Cuban and Vietnamese counter-insurgency experts for help in dealing with the rebellion by anti-communist guerrillas.

Karan Tharpar, the Times' correspondent in Kabul, quoted unidentified "military observers" as saying the Soviets also are bringing in "older and more experienced" troops to replace the young and largely inexperienced draftees, who make up the bulk of the occupation army.

According to the Times, the Soviets are shifting away from the widespread use of tanks and other armored vehicles and large formations of troops, which are difficult to maneuver in the mountainous terrain favored by the guerrillas as bases for their hit-and-run attacks.

Instead, the Soviets are using helicopter-borne commandos, backed by columns of motorized infantry, to strike at the fast-moving rebels, the Times said, adding that Soviet fighter-bombers are often used to soften up guerrilla targets ahead of the commando strikes.

The newspaper said Soviet forces and the Afghan government troops control Kabul, the main provincial cities and some of the surrounding countryside, while the guerrillas hold much of the nation's rugged mountain terrain and appear to have widespread support among the population.

Rebel resistance is "sufficient to worry the Soviet forces and keep them on a constant war footing," the newspaper said. But Tharpar quoted unidentified diplomats in Kabul as saying they believe the Soviets will eventually succeed in gaining control of the country.

The current situation is a "moving stalemate" with the guerrillas' continued resistance dependent on how much aid they can get, "not just local support, but arms and money from outside Afghanistan," one diplomat was quoted as saying.

The paper said the Soviets are "making rapid preparations for a long stay in the country. With the winter snows only a few weeks away, the Soviets are building new roads, arms and fuel deposits and concrete winter barracks to replace the vast tent cities that have housed the Soviet forces since they first moved into Afghanistan last December.

The Kremlin sent in the troops to aid Afghanistan's pro-Moscow Marxist government in its 29-month-old war with the fundamentalist Moslem rebels.

Meanwhile, a standoff reportedly continues in Kabul over a Soviet soldier who sought asylum in the U.S. Embassy.

Reliable diplomatic sources in neighboring Pakistan said the Soviets are claiming the man is a "simple, confused enlistee" who wanted for an unspecified "crime" in his construction battalion.

Despite Soviet demands for his return, the State Department has refused to surrender the man who entered the embassy on Monday.

Afghan officials claimed the Americans "abducted" the soldier and have deployed troops and security police around the embassy.

Haitians will be allowed to go home

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Most of the 317 Haitians aboard an aging freighter that was diverted to Florida by hijackers will be allowed to return to their homeland if they want to go, immigration officials said Thursday.

But 17 men, who commandeered the vessel with guns and machetes early Sunday during a short trip between two Haitian ports, were being held without bond in the Federal Correctional Institution in Miami on charges of interstate transportation of stolen property.

The 17 were arrested when the vessel Chantal pulled into the U.S. Coast Guard station in Miami Beach late Wednesday.

FBI special agent Bill Nettles said it was the first such hijacking of a boat from Haiti.

The fate of the 300 other Haitians on the boat, which had been carrying passengers, food and cargo on a regularly scheduled trip from Port-au-Prince to Jarmie on Haiti's northern coast, was unclear.

Officials that while some indicated they wanted to return to Haiti, others appeared to be friends or relatives of the men arrested. Many seemed jubilant at the adventure.

"We all did it, we seized the boat," shouted one of the Haitians, who wasn't charged.

Yet, INS officer Raymond Morris said, "About 30 or 40 have been identified as saying they do not want to remain in the United States."

Morris said the Haitians probably would return home on the freighter.

FBI spokesman Welton Merry said a physician in Haiti called Thursday to say one woman was traveling to Jeremie for medical treatment, and needed immediate attention.

necessary to turn out finished work. No sewing experience is necessary. The fee is $12.

Anyone wishing to pre-register for any course may do so now in room 156 of the MC Administration Building. Hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays, including the lunch hour.

For more information on classes or necessary supplies, call 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

About the piracy, Nettles said, "The captain of the freighter advised that four to six hijackers armed with two handguns, two machetes and several small knives commanded his vessel about 2 a.m. (Sunday)." Nettles said. "The four to six hijackers were immediately joined by several others, totaling 17."

Two Coast Guard cutters, on alert after receiving a report that the vessel was overdue, spotted the ship in the Atlantic Ocean about 100 miles off the coast of Miami and escorted the vessel to the Miami Beach station, according to Lt. Cmdr. Jerry Bowersox.

FBI agents boarded the vessel and seized the handguns and other weapons and placed the men under arrest, Merry said. Boxes of chickens and rabbits were aboard the ship.

Cuban and Soviet cosmonauts in orbit

MOSCOW (AP) — Cuba's first cosmonaut and his Soviet mission commander hurtled toward a space rendezvous today with a pair of Soviet cosmonauts nearing a world endurance record in an orbiting space station, Tass reported.

Arnaldo Tamayo Mendez, a 38-year-old Cuban air force pilot, and veteran Soviet cosmonaut Yuri V. Romanenko, 36, rocketed into space Thursday from the Baikonur launch center in Soviet Central Asia.

The Cuban was the seventh non-Soviet citizen to fly in the Intercosmos series, the official news agency said. Romanenko flew for 96 days in the Soyuz 26 flight in 1977-78.

Tass said they were scheduled to dock with the orbiting Salyut 6 space station today to begin a seven-day mission of scientific experiments.

Vote jeopardizes city pay hike

HOUSTON (AP) — Councilwoman Christin Hartung says she will ask the City Council to reconsider a 6-6 vote that jeopardizes an 8.5 percent pay increase for city employees.

The tie Wednesday defeated a plan by Mayor Jim McConn to transfer $11.1 million from the city's sewer account to the general fund to start the pay hikes Sept. 26.

Mrs. Hartung, who voted against the plan, said Thursday she has changed her mind in that she now believes the transfer could be made without forcing a sewage rate increase.

Cosmonauts Leonid Popov and Valery Ryumin have been orbiting aboard the lab since April. On Oct. 1, they will break the world space endurance record of 175 days, 36 minutes set by Ryumin and Vladimir Lyakhov last year.

Portraits of Tamayo and Romanenko were published on the front pages of Pravda and other Soviet newspapers today, along with their biographies and pre-launch statements.

One headline proclaimed: "Another international space crew in orbit."

Previous flights in the Intercosmos series have involved Hungarian, Vietnamese, Czech, Polish, East German and Bulgarian cosmonauts, each of them accompanied by a Soviet mission commander.

Clements will try again on his anti-crime program

DALLAS (AP) — Texas legislators will be asked again next year to adopt an anti-crime legislative package proposed by Gov. Bill Clements that includes legalized wiretapping and strong penalties for those who assault children.

"We have always had to walk a fine line in balancing the rights of both the accused and the victims, and I agree that all people's rights must at all times be protected," Clements said in prepared remarks.

"But in recent years, I think we have seen an imbalance occur — in favor of the criminals — and I say to you that it's high time we restore this balance and restore full protection of the laws to the victims of crime," he said.

Clements unveiled his latest anti-crime package in remarks to the Texas District and County Attorneys Association, meeting here Thursday. After his 1978 election, Clements asked the legislature to enact a comprehensive anti-crime package but the measure did not pass.

He told the prosecutors' association he wants court costs doubled to raise $18 million a year to finance state and local criminal justice projects.

Strike spreading

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Bus drivers today joined striking streetcar conductors in the Silesian industrial center of Katowice in one of a number of walkouts reported despite agreements last month aimed at ending communist Poland's worst labor crisis in a decade.

Sources in Katowice said employees of the municipal streetcar system struck Thursday in an effort to get city officials to discuss demands for higher pay. After city authorities did not show up to negotiate, city bus drivers, members of the same system, struck.

Sources in Katowice could not say how many workers were on strike.

The agreements reached last month to end strikes in Gdansk, Szczecin and Silesia granted workers the right to strike and to form independent unions. Some union members have demanded assurances that they will have the same social benefits under independent unions as they have had under the state-controlled unions.

The state-run radio and television reported Thursday 16 struck plants in various parts of Poland, but it was not clear whether these walkouts were the beginning of a new wave of labor unrest. The report said some of the plants were being struck "for the second and third time."

In the wake of the lingering strikes, Warsaw Radio carried a commentary Thursday that appeared to hint of a possible purge of corrupt Communist Party members.

The commentator called on the people "to think about the political, ideological and moral requirements a party member should meet."

Dallas police admit they were 30 minutes late to robbery

RICHARDSON (AP) — Dallas police admitted they were more than 30 minutes late responding to a bank alarm at the First Texas Savings Association where $2,000 was stolen Wednesday.

Police are investigating the delay, officials said.

A Dallas police report stated that no one knew "if the suspect had contacted the security system, advising them that the alarm originally dispatched to the security system was faulty. The dispatch office is checking tapes to find any additional information on the delay."

Volcano's atmospheric effect being studied

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Scientists equipped with a special plane are studying the impact of eruptions from the Mount St. Helens volcano on the earth's upper atmosphere.

"The volcano provides scientists with the closest thing to a controlled experiment we can have in the atmosphere," said James P. Friend at a news conference Wednesday. He is project director for atmospheric chemistry at Drexel University in Philadelphia.

Scientists arrived Tuesday to begin the study, sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and seven colleges and universities.

The scientists will get information from satellite instruments as well as from the equipment aboard the NASA turboprop plane, which was flown in from Langley Air Force Base at Hampton, Va.

Instruments aboard the Lockheed P-3A Orion includes laser radar equipment for flights over the mountain, which are to continue through Sunday.

Readings on volcanic ash in the stratosphere also were taken during the plane's flight across the country. The stratosphere extends from six to 15 miles above the earth.

The study will include examination of gaseous emissions from the volcano, which had five major eruptions between May 18 and Aug. 7. The volcano has continued to emit steam and gas since Aug. 7.

Colleges and universities besides Drexel that are involved in the study are Maryland, Arizona, Alaska, Dartmouth College, Michigan Technological University and the University of Oregon.

ACORN confronts Bell official

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — ACORN members incensed about Southwestern Bell's massive rate hike request came into the hearing room noisily, demanded to talk with a Bell official, and then walked out after two heated hours with him.

The phone company is asking for $326 million in rate increases. The hearing was into its fourth day Thursday — with Bell trying to keep trade secrets from getting in the record — when about 50 members of the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now marched in.

Spokeswoman Savannah Edwards said ACORN demanded to meet with a Bell official.

"Until Southwestern Bell will speak directly to us we'll just wait around," she said.

Paul Roth, Bell vice president for revenues and public affairs in Texas, agreed to meet with them. He later said he did it to prevent further delays in the cumbersome hearing that will take about six weeks.

The ACORN members came in complaining about Bell and the PUC process which will determine how much of an increase, if any, the phone company will get. Spokeswoman Ruth Martin charged the rates are set in closed-door meetings, not during the hearing process at which ACORN is represented by two lawyers.

An eight-member committee selected by ACORN followed Roth into a nearby room. The rest of the ACORN members filed in.

Roth tried to explain the PUC system and Bell's need for $326 million.

"The numbers in this rate case seem quite large to you, I know, that's because Southwestern Bell has a large responsibility," he said before the questions started flying.

There were specific and general complaints about phone service. One woman had to wait on long lines. Another was paying push-button rates for a dial phone. The general complaints included Bell's donations to charity and proposed changes in so-called lifeline service.

Lifeline is aimed at providing low-cost service to customers who make few calls per month. Bell wants to change the system that now allows 25 calls for a flat monthly rate and then charges eight cents for additional calls.

Under the proposed change, the calls would be measured for time and distance. A monthly flat fee would cover $1.85 worth of calls. Additional calls would be measured and billed.

Charles Land, PUC telephone engineer, said a study showed 77 percent of current lifeline users would pay the same or less under the proposed service.

However, ACORN is upset with the prospect of having local calls measured like long distance calls.

Mrs. Edwards also complained the current $24.25 charge to switch to lifeline service deters many customers. Bell wants to raise that fee. The PUC staff has recommended cutting it by about half.

About the only agreement during the session came when Roth told John Bell, PUC general counsel, the phone company would adopt the staff proposal for a drop in the fee.

The ACORN members did not seem satisfied.

Bell also tried to assure ACORN the rate-making process takes place in public. He agreed to send ACORN a copy of his memo ordering staff lawyers not to meet privately with anyone involved in the Bell case.

"This is no game in here. This is the real thing," he told the ACORN committee after he and Roth reached agreement on the change of service fee.

However, the meeting fell apart when the ACORN members filed out of the room. Some thanked Roth and Bell for meeting with them.

Trial beginning in suit over teen-ager's death

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An eyewitness says a teen-ager slain by a sheriff's deputy in January 1978 shoved the officer's shotgun away but never grabbed the barrel as the deputy claims.

The testimony contradicts previous statements made by Deputy Sergio Guzman concerning the shooting death of Danny Vasquez, 17.

Jose Zaragoza, 21, testified Thursday that he was leaning against Guzman's squad car and saw the deputy shoot the teen-ager with a 12-gauge shotgun at point-blank range.

Guzman said the gun went off accidentally after Vasquez grabbed the barrel, and the death was ruled accidental.

Zaragoza testified for the "Danny Vasquez Justice Committee" on the first day of testimony in a $1 million civil lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court here against Guzman and the county.

The shooting occurred during a party after officers were called to quell a disturbance and took Zaragoza into custody.

Both sides agree that Vasquez was shot after he approached Guzman, protested that Zaragoza was innocent and demanded the deputy free him. But accounts differ from that point.

Zaragoza said Vasquez was standing about two feet in front of the muzzle of the gun when he was shot. He was asked where Vasquez' hands were when shotgun discharged.

"Hanging at his sides," he replied. "Was he touching the gun?"

"No, sir," replied Zaragoza, who was 18 at the time of the incident.

Guzman has testified previously Vasquez had his hands on the barrel of the gun, pushing and pulling while the deputy had his finger on the trigger, causing the firearm to discharge accidentally.

An El Paso County grand jury previously considered evidence in the shooting and decided not to bring charges against Guzman. A federal investigation also ended without indictment.

Revenge motive for club blaze

HOUSTON (AP) — Revenge for the shooting death of a former club manager apparently sparked a blaze that gutted a vacant nude modeling studio, investigators said.

Fire ripped through the Diamond Lil modeling studio Thursday afternoon in northeast Harris County, said Fire Chief Roy Wimberly. Less than a month ago, Wimberly said, the studio was damaged by fire.

No one was injured, and no damage estimates were revealed, authorities said.

Senate can OK nuclear fuel sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is lobbying hard to persuade the Senate to overrule the House and permit India to buy 38 tons of U.S. reactor-grade uranium despite that nation's refusal to renounce the development of nuclear weapons.

The House voted 298-98 Thursday to disapprove the shipments of nuclear fuel for the India energy-producing reactor at Tarapur near Bombay.

Although the result was expected, it was a setback for President Carter, who personally overruled a unanimous decision by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in ordering the sale.

Disapproval by both the House and the Senate is needed to override the president's decision.

The Senate vote, which is scheduled for Tuesday after a debate that could run as long as 10 hours, is expected to be close.

Influential Sens. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Sam Nunn, D-Ga., support the sale, and Secretary of State Edmund Muskie is calling on his 20 years' experience in the Senate in leading the administration's campaign.

Despite Muskie's efforts last week, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee recommended disapproval by a one-vote margin.

House opponents Thursday said the export of nuclear fuel to India would be a threat to U.S. nuclear non-proliferation policies because of India's refusal to allow international inspection of all its nuclear facilities.

Supporters said refusing the sale actually might increase the risk of nuclear proliferation by relieving India of existing obligations to safeguard nuclear materials. They also said not shipping the fuel would send India elsewhere, perhaps to the Soviet Union, for uranium and alienate the government of Indira Gandhi at a time when the United States is seeking closer relations because of the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

The controversy revolves around India's explosion of a nuclear device in 1974, its refusal to place all its nuclear facilities under international safeguards and its refusal to promise to forego development of a nuclear weapons program.

The Tarapur reactor has been supplied with U.S. fuel since 1963 under a contract that restricts its use to energy production and prohibits it from being enriched to weapons-grade potency.

Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., said Congress is considering the proposal in a "blizzard of misinformation."

"There is an atmosphere of confusion overlaid with far too much emotion," he said.

"If we cave in to the contemptuous pressure from India, it will be difficult to demonstrate our seriousness of purpose" on insisting on nuclear non-proliferation safeguards," said Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich.

McCormack said India has good reason to be contemptuous of the United States.

"We are treating India as a second-class people who are trying to blackmail us," he said.

McCormack said no fuel from a civilian reactor has ever been used to produce a bomb because the material is of such low grade.

He said India has been meticulous in observing the safeguards it agreed to at the Tarapur plant and said nuclear fuel from Tarapur was in no way linked to the 1974 explosion.

But Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said a decision to allow the sale to go ahead would signal the world that the United States does not care to enforce its own non-proliferation policies.

Jews celebrate their holiest day

JERUSALEM (AP) — Life in Israel ground to a halt this evening for Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement fast and the holiest day of the Jewish year.

Only the most essential public services and security arrangements remained in operation from sundown today to sundown Saturday. Public transportation stopped, Ben-Gurion Airport shut down, radio and television stations signed off the air and traffic disappeared from streets and highways.

Police warned Israelis to be on alert against terror attacks on the holiday, and the military government banned Arabs from the occupied West Bank and Gaza from entering Israel until Saturday night.

Yom Kippur marks the end of a 10-day period of introspection and penance at the start of the Jewish year. According to Jewish tradition, the fate of every Jew for the coming year is inscribed by God on Rosh Hashanah, the new year, and sealed on the Day of Atonement.

The effort to repent sins and insure a "good inscription" for the coming year culminates in the day-long Yom Kippur prayer service and fast.

Authorities expected overflow crowds at Israel's 7,600 synagogues, as even Israelis who rarely attend religious services flock to hear the traditional Kol Nidre ("all vows") prayer that begins the observance. Thousands of Israelis also were expected at the Western Wall, last remnant of the ancient Jewish temples and Judaism's holiest site.

Yom Kippur has taken on an added solemn note since 1973, when Egyptian and Syrian forces attacked simultaneously on the holy day. Israel sustained heavy losses on both fronts before mobilizing its reserves and counterattacking in a bloody war lasting 17 days.

Individual memorial services for soldiers killed in the fighting take place throughout the holiday, and official government ceremonies at military cemeteries throughout the country were scheduled for Sunday.

Peruvian police search for eight prison escapees

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Police and troops scoured the country today for eight convicts, led by a convicted murderer and armed with pistols and sticks of dynamite, who broke out of a teeming Lima prison, using the warden and seven other persons as human shields, authorities said.

The hostages, seven of them wounded, were freed shortly after the Thursday breakout. They were found about a dozen miles from the Lurigancho Penitentiary in a fire department van used in the escape.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said the warden, Lt. Col. Jose Zuta Valqui, was shot "in cold blood" in the leg and shoulder. He and the other injured were being treated at a police hospital.

The fugitives were led by a convicted murderer identified by police as Ruben Caballero Melendez, also known as "Ruben the Dog" and the "Slaughterer." There were no immediate details on his record.

Authorities said the escape took place while inmates in one cellblock rioted in an apparent diversion.

The rioters grabbed weapons from guards and clashed with them in a six-hour firefight that left one dead and seven injured before calm was restored, the Justice Ministry said.

The prison, about 10 miles northeast of downtown Lima, consists of more than a dozen separate cellblocks in a compound surrounded by a high wall. Prison officials said it now houses more than 5,000 inmates.

Production of Rely tampons suspended

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Production of Rely tampons, a brand linked by the federal government to a rare but sometimes fatal disease, has been halted at Procter & Gamble plants in Albany and in Cape Girardeau, Mo., company officials said Thursday.

In a statement issued from company headquarters in Cincinnati, officials said production of the tampons has been suspended until representatives of several U.S. tampon manufacturers consult next week with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

The FDA and the national Center for Disease Control warned Wednesday that women who use Rely tampons seem to run a greater risk of contracting toxic shock syndrome. Researchers have begun tests looking for the reason for the apparent connection.

Since 1975, 25 deaths have been attributed to the newly recognized disease. Almost all victims are women of child-bearing age, and most under 30 years old.

Redwood deck may need a preservative

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q. My redwood deck is one and one-half years old. It has naturally become a beige, gray color.

Should a preservative be used on redwood or not? If so, please recommend one. — M.P.P., Spring Valley, Calif.

A. The California Redwood Association says redwood can be left without any finish whatsoever to mellow to a somewhat deeper hue with the years of aging.

However, for an exterior redwood that is walked on and subjected to weather, a good water-repellent finish is highly recommended. This can be a clear finish or a pigmented stain ca be added. It protects the wood and makes it easier to clean.

Consult your local paint dealer or building supply dealer for a recommended brand. Penta-Seal is a West Coast product which should be available in Spring Valley. There are other brands which may serve equally as well.

Q. Our concrete patio floor generates cement dust. Can this be prevented, and if so, how? — Charles T.R.

A. The best way to solve your problem is to apply an acrylic-polymer concrete sealer sold at paint stores. This will soak into the dusting concrete and set, binding the surface together.

If you like, you can then put on an acrylic latex floor paint over the cured sealer. This will brighten the surface and provide additional protection.

Do not use an epoxy floor paint. Though tougher than the latex paint, it will not adhere well to the sealed surface.

Q. We have built a lovely, large log cabin in the woods and have now been invaded by carpenter bees. Although the dreadful creatures have not got in the house yet, at the rate they are boring holes just under the eaves, it will not be long before they take over and drive us out.

We have plugged the holes with sevin-soaked cotton, and have killed all the bees flying about with spray, but how can we prevent them from drilling new holes so that there is a nota never-ending battle to keep them away? — Harry J.G. Orrville, Ohio.

A. We suggest you spray all available places where these insects alight or crawl with a chlordane insecticide. This type of insecticide deposits a thin, invisible film which will kill any insect which crawls across it and it remains effective for several weeks, when another application may then be needed.

Consult a nursery or professional exterminator for the chlordane spray.

Q. I would like to know what to use to wash ceiling acoustic tile that was marked on the boxes as washable. Our ceilings are getting a tinge of cooking and smoking smoke. Also what do we wash washable wallpaper with? — Irene S.S., Warner Springs, Calif.

A. To wash the ceiling, use a solution of one-third cup of trisodium phosphate, one-half cup of household bleach, mixed with one gallon of warm water. The bleach helps remove the yellowish stains.

The washable wallpaper can be washed with a mild solution of trisodium phosphate or a low sudsing detergent.

Q. In a recent article about removing mildew, you gave a recommended solution. After using that, do you rinse or wash off the solution before painting or after the solution dries, do you paint over the solution? — William H.H., Sheffield, Ala.

A. After cleaning with the solution, be sure to rinse well. Then, when the area is dry, you can refinish as desired.

SLOOP LEAVES

DETROIT (AP) — The Dal, a 29-foot sailing sloop which made a historic voyage to America from Gdynia, Poland, in 1933, docked here recently prior to a voyage that would take it back to Poland.

The sloop had resided 26 years in a Chicago museum before Rene Gieblewicz, a Polish immigrant, obtained the vessel and restored it to seaworthy condition.

Marge Daniels, left, and Heidi Mazzullo hide behind a "mountain" of handmade arts and crafts items which will be available at the 32nd annual St. Ann's Family Fair Sept. 27 on the school grounds. The fair will feature over 40 activities, including booths of these handmade items, Christmas items, Mexican dinner and many games. Rides will be open Friday evening until 10 p.m. and all day Saturday. In addition, the puff quilt shown here will be given away, as will a 1980 Ford Mustang. More information is available from church members. Mrs. Daniels is a volunteer with the fair and Mrs. Mazzullo is chairman of the arts and crafts booths. (Staff Photo)

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I hope and pray that you will print this letter, as this problem has plagued my friends and me for many years. I'm a 19-year-old girl, living with my parents and attending a very strict Baptist college. My parents are paying for my education. Abby, I've been listening to rock music for over eight years without my parents' knowledge. They found the tapes and were crushed. They say they can no longer trust me. I apologized for having kept it from them, but explained that I didn't tell them because I knew rock music is against their beliefs. They say that rock music destroys young people and that I cannot keep the tapes in the house. I told them that I have developed my own convictions, and as long as I don't disturb anyone with my music I should be allowed to keep the tapes and listen to them.

Who is right? Must I get rid of the tapes and turn my radio dial to the religious station? Or should I be allowed to make my own choice of music as long as I don't bother anybody?—ME IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR ME: As long as you live in your parents' home and they are paying for your education, you must follow their rules. Once you are on your own, you may do as you please.

DEAR ABBY: I live in Pearl City, Hawaii, and I'm shocked and appalled at the ignorance of some of our fellow Americans who still think Hawaii is a "foreign country."

When I travel to the mainland, I am amazed at the number of people who say, "I'd love to go to Hawaii someday; I've never been out of the United States." I'm also asked, "Is this your first trip to America?"

I've even been asked, "Do you have running water, being that you're so isolated from everything? And how does life in America compare to Hawaii?" The list goes on.

Will you please inform people that Hawaii is now one of the 50 states of the union? Also, we no longer live in little grass

patches. THANK YOU!—ALIVE AND WELL IN AMERICA

DEAR ALIVE: You can bet your ukulele. Let it be known that on Aug. 21, 1959, Hawaii became the 50th state to join the union, and has been a part of America ever since!

DEAR ABBY: With the changing times (and less emphasis on the more formal aspects of a wedding), my wife and I are often faced with an embarrassing dilemma. We are both pastors who officiate at many weddings. We are seldom invited in advance to the rehearsal dinner or the wedding reception, but when we start to leave, the bride says, "Please stay. We thought you knew you were invited."

We never presume that we are invited unless we have received an invitation beforehand. Abby, we have small children and must make arrangements for having them looked after, just as all the other invited guests who have been officially invited.

Please remind your readers that if the officiating pastor(s) is expected to stay for the rehearsal dinner and reception, an invitation should be sent.—ASSOCIATE PASTORS IN ILLINOIS

DEAR PASTORS: Consider it done.

Industrialized region hides bird sanctuary

CHICAGO (AP) — Hidden near the many steel mills, refineries, freight yards and dumping grounds on Chicago's bustling Southeast Side is an amazing nesting area for rare birds.

In sharp contrast to the sounds of man and machine in one of America's most industrialized regions are the screams of the yellow-headed blackbirds and the squawks of herons.

In the Lake Calumet area — the largest remaining tract of open land inside Chicago's city limits — is marshland surprisingly unpopulated, where birdlife thrives among thick cattails taller than a man.

Several marshes of more than 100 acres exist, and through the years, they inexplicably have remained undisturbed in the shadow of factory smokestacks.

"One of the favorite spots is a 160-acre, deep-water marsh (four feet deep). It has remained untouched through time and its water is not polluted. I can't explain why," said Carl Becker, endangered species biologist for the Illinois Department of Conservation.

"In 1914, there were 10,000 acres of marshland in the area. Now there are about 1,000 acres. The birds eat small fish, dragonflies and a mixture of aquatic plants and insects.

"A walk through the marshlands is a remarkable lesson in how wildlife will inhabit good habitat even when man is changing everything nearby," said Becker.

Snowy and great egrets, American bitterns, black-crowned night herons, upland sandpipers, Forster's terns, black terns, brown creepers and yellow-headed blackbirds — all endangered species in Illinois — can be found at Lake Calumet. Forty-six of the 100 species on the National Audubon Society's "blue list" of threatened birds are found there, too.

"The rare curlew sandpiper, which has been seen only four times in the lower 48 states, has been seen three times at Lake Calumet alone," said Becker. "The vast number and variety of bird species always have amazed birders and hunters."

But a big change may be coming, and conservationists are concerned. The city plans to dredge and fill a large part of the remaining marsh. It hopes eventually to develop an industrial park with light industry and assembly plants on the site.

Richard Hankett, director of project development for the Chicago Department of Public Works, said the city is willing to try to arrange a compromise that could preserve the best marsh areas.

"We realize that Lake Calumet is a unique and important place for birds and wildlife, but it could also create many needed jobs," he said.

Enjoy the weekend, Monday could be deadly

CHICAGO (AP) — Under the stress of returning to work, a man with no history of heart disease is more likely to suffer a fatal heart attack on Monday than on any other day of the week, a new medical study reports.

"Reintroductions to occupational stress, activity, or pollutants after a weekend respite may be factors precipitating" altered heartbeat that can cause a fatal heart attack, said Dr. Simon W. Rabkin of the University of Manitoba.

Rabkin and Dr. Francis A.L. Matthewson followed 3,983 men from 1948 to 1977, examining daily variations in the occurrence of sudden death, or chronobiology.

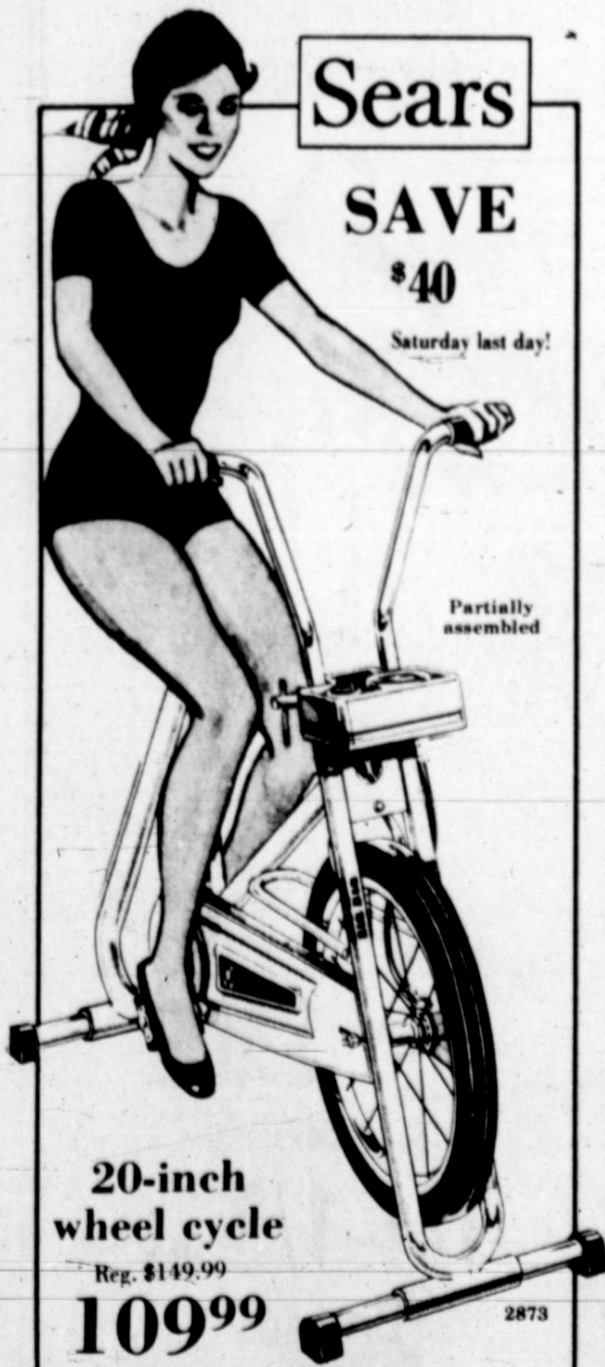

Of 63 sudden cardiac deaths in men with no previous ischemic (anemic tissue) heart disease, they found 22 occurred on Monday, seven on Tuesday, six on Wednesday, 13 on Thursday, five on Friday, four on Saturday and six on Sunday.

The report appears in the latest issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, which was published today.

Among the 63 victims, 75 percent of the deaths at work occurred on a Monday, and 46.7 percent of the deaths at home also occurred on a Monday, the doctors said.

Eleven typhoid cases confirmed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Eleven cases of typhoid fever have been confirmed in an outbreak that the Texas Department of Health says has been traced to YMCA Camp Grady Spruce on the shores of Possum Kingdom Lake in Palo Pinto County. The department said Thursday 26 other summer campers have had "symptoms compatible with a typhoid infection." The department said the confirmed cases included 10 campers and one nurse who had attended the Aug. 5-19 camp session. Ten of the cases — nine campers and the nurse — occurred at the main camp. The other confirmed case occurred at another camp. The department said it has made telephone contact with 101 of the 130 persons who attended the main camp during the mid-August session. Of those, the department said, "50 campers are well, 14 have had symptoms clearly not related to a typhoid infection, 26 campers had symptoms compatible with a typhoid infection, nine campers have been confirmed as having typhoid fever, and two suspected cases proved to be negative." The department said its investigation is still going on, and parents of children who attended camp July 22-Aug. 5, as well as the later session, also are being informed of the situation. "All campers who develop symptoms such as fever, lethargy — feeling tired or weak — abdominal pain, constipation or diarrhea, or headache are being advised to contact their personal physicians for evaluation," the department said. It said since the incubation period for typhoid fever is from one to three weeks, and usually within two weeks, "it is expected that most infected campers will have had symptoms by now."

The department said it is contacting the 130 summer employees at the camp, including 40 who worked in the kitchen. The typhoid fever organism is generally spread to others through fecal contamination of food or water. "Very careful studies of the water treatment facility, kitchen facility and kitchen staff are almost complete, and laboratory results of the investigations are expected soon," the department said.

Drug used to treat high blood pressure causes cancer in animals, says institute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute says a drug used by millions to treat high blood pressure causes cancer in animals, but one of its major manufacturers says there is no evidence of a cancer risk to humans. The institute formally released results on Thursday of animal tests which conclude that the drug, reserpine, causes a variety of cancers in mice of both sexes and male rats. An independent review of the data confirms the original results, which were first disclosed last year when they were discussed by a government advisory panel, the institute said. CIBA-GEIGY Corp., the company with the largest share of the reserpine market, repeated its contention that the animal tests were flawed and that the data does not support the government's conclusions. "WE FIND NOTHING to support restricting the use of reserpine," said CIBA-GEIGY spokesman David Jones. But he said the company is willing to discuss with the Food and Drug Administration possible revised labeling to tell doctors about the animal tests. Both the cancer institute and the company agreed that none of 13 case-controlled studies involving people who took the drug provided conclusive evidence that reserpine caused cancer in humans. The institute said its tests, in which animals were given the drug in feed for 103 weeks, also do not prove reserpine causes cancer in humans, but do indicate it is "a potential risk to man."

The National Cancer Institute and CIBA-GEIGY Corp. agreed that none of the 13 case-controlled studies involving people who took the drug provided conclusive evidence that reserpine caused cancer in humans.

Both the cancer institute and the company agreed that none of 13 case-controlled studies involving people who took the drug provided conclusive evidence that reserpine caused cancer in humans. The institute said its tests, in which animals were given the drug in feed for 103 weeks, also do not prove reserpine causes cancer in humans, but do indicate it is "a potential risk to man."

The drug, which has a tranquilizer effect, had widespread psychiatric use in the 1950s when it was used in high doses to control psychoses. But this practice has been largely abandoned because doctors found that reserpine also produces mental depression, the cancer institute said.

Three independent consultants reviewed the original data after one industry objection and confirmed the results without change, the institute added. Both the cancer institute and the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute cautioned patients taking reserpine not to discontinue using it without consulting their doctors about alternative therapy. THE RISKS OF untreated high blood pressure, which can lead to stroke, heart attack or kidney failure, far exceeds the potential risk of cancer, they said in a statement. More than a million Americans take reserpine in various forms to treat mild hypertension, or high blood pressure, and millions more have used it in the past. In the 1950s and 1960s, reserpine was one of the most widely used high blood pressure drugs. However, other more potent agents with fewer side effects have replaced much of this use, leaving reserpine as but one of a battery of drugs doctors can choose for mild hypertension.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Don't judge in the dark!

So don't be proud of following the wise men of this world. For God has already given you everything you need. He has given you Paul and Apollos and Peter as your helpers. He has given you the whole world to use, and life and even death are your servants. He has given you all of the present and all of the future. All are yours, and you belong to Christ, and Christ is God's.

So Apollos and I should be looked upon as Christ's servants who distribute God's blessings by explaining God's secrets.

Now the most important thing about a servant is that he does just what his master tells him to.

What about me? Have I been a good servant? Well, I don't worry over what you think about this, or what anyone else thinks. I don't even trust my own judgment on this point. My conscience is clear, but even that isn't final proof. It is the Lord Himself who must examine me and decide.

So be careful not to jump to conclusions before the Lord returns as to whether someone is a good servant or not. When the Lord comes, He will turn on the light so that everyone can see exactly what each one of us is really like, deep down in our hearts. Then everyone will know why we have been doing the Lord's work. At that time God will give to each one whatever praise is coming to him.

I have used Apollos and myself as examples to illustrate what I have been saying: that you must not have favorites. You must not be proud of one of God's teachers more than another.

Italians tuning in to television

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON

ROME (AP) — Italians, who used to go to the movies and theater in droves and sit for hours talking in cafes, are becoming sedentary television watchers.

The new status symbol is no longer the sleek Ferrari or the stylish Gucci bag, but the multi-channel color television set.

Until five years ago, Italians had to content themselves with black-and-white broadcasts by two state-controlled channels whose programs were consistently panned by the critics.

But a court order has since opened the way for private stations. The government resolved a diplomatic dilemma and started broadcasting in color, and the state TV added a third channel to meet the competition.

A recent survey confirmed the trend toward sagging box office receipts, reporting the bulk of an Italian's entertainment lira goes for radio and television equipment.

Spending on this has been increasing at 8 percent a year while spending on theater and movies tickets has been going down about 2 percent a year, the survey said.

"In our country, people love to sit in an armchair watching television, reading little, trying their hand at betting, not spending much for the movies and not going to the theater," the report done for a publishing group concluded.

"It's intellectually less taxing to get all your information from the TV than read a book, even if more expensive," said Annalia Pasqueto as she displayed a line of color sets ranging in price from $600 to $960 at her store in a Rome suburb. "It's a status symbol. No family wants to be caught without a color TV."

Among the nine countries in the European Common Market, Italy has the most black-and-white televisions, with such sets in 90 percent of all homes. The country was one of the last to introduce color, faced with deciding between the French and German systems offered by its two close allies. It finally opted for the German system three years ago, and already 20 percent of Italian homes boast a color set.

But the revolution in television came with a high court ruling in 1975 that the state monopoly of local television and radio was unconstitutional. Now there are 508 private TV stations—about 20 in Rome alone—giving Italy one TV station for every 111,930 persons, compared with one for every 216,260 persons in the United States.

They are wooing viewers with late-night strip shows, pornographic movies and a steady diet of American sit-coms and cops-and-robbers fare such as "Love Boat" and "NYPD."

With the average Italian family spending four hours and seven minutes a day in front of the tube, the rating stakes are high. The private stations grab nearly 20 percent of the audience and an increasing share of the advertising revenue.

State television is countering with more made-for-television movies, documentaries and on-the-scene reporting in its newscasts. The state network also has gone into producing major films by such directors as Federico Fellini, putting them on television as well as distributing them to movie houses worldwide.

CNN, 'Turner's Folly,' rolling right along

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An update on Ted Turner's Cable News Network, the boom-or-bust all-news television enterprise known in the size of CNN's present audience hasn't tempered Turner's optimism — he expects to have 3 million subscribers by the end of this month, which would make his prediction of 5 million by was expected the network to lose $2 million a month for 18 months before turning the ledger around.

CNN'S BIGGEST boost, somewhat unexpectedly, has come from advertisers, who have already doubled their projected expenditure.

Bristol-Meyers was one of the earliest big companies to jump on the low-cost, high-future CNN bandwagon with a 10-year, $25 million deal. General Motors, General Foods, Procter & Gamble, Merrill Lynch, Hilton, Holiday Inns and, recently, Atlantic Richfield have clamored aboard.

Usually timid advertisers are lured by the bargain prices — $100 to $700 for a 30-second spot — and by the prospect of getting in on the ground floor of what figures to become a mother lode for advertisers, cable TV. It's not yet safe to say that Cable News Network has established a bright New Age of TV journalism. But Turner's Folly is still on track and seems to be accelerating. And right now, it is heading toward boom, rather than bust.

ENTERTAINMENT

some quarters as Turner's Folly, as it rolls into its fourth month.

— When Turner launched CNN last June, he had hoped for 3 million charter subscribers. He got 2 million. After more than three months in operation, CNN reaches just more than 2.6 million cable subscribers.

— Disharmony in CNN's Washington bureau recently resulted in the departure of Managing Editor George Watson, who reportedly left because of CNN's alleged partiality to "soft" news.

— In each month of operation, Turner's 24-hour-a-day TV news network has lost about $1.75 million.

YES, TURNER'S Folly is rolling happily along. "More happily than we had any right to expect," says CNN President Reese Schonfeld.

"We're absolutely on target," Turner says. History's great follies, remember, must be reckoned on separate ledgers. And while CNN hasn't kept pace with the grand (some would say wild) expectations of its indomitable founder, Turner, the world's first all-news television network does seem to be establishing a solid foundation.

Disappointment with the end of the year seem attainable. He boldly predicts 7½ million subscribers on CNN's first anniversary, June 1, 1981.

INDEED, CNN just signed a deal with Warner Amex Communications, the nation's fourth largest cable system, which has a subscriber delivery potential of 250,000.

Although there is no reliable audience measuring system as yet, CNN has been able to verify on a small scale one of its underlying premises: That over-the-air network and local television news do not adequately meet the needs of their audiences.

In Columbus, Ohio, where CNN is delivered over Warner Cable's two-way QUBE system, CNN has been able to measure its viewership and has found that it increased significantly on big news days — during the fury of Hurricane Allen, or the day the former Iranian shah died, for example. "That's when we hoped people would discover us, and that's what's happening," Schonfeld says.

And while the $1.75 monthly loss is significant, it's actually less than Turner had predicted when operations began. Turner said he

Lance has answers on Billy

ATLANTA (AP) — Bert Lance says he'll have everything in writing when he appears Monday before Senate investigators to answer 292 questions they have about Billy Carter's ties to Libya.

The questions deal with the advice Lance gave to the president's brother about his relationship with Libya. The questions also cover a request Lance received from the President to caution Billy about that relationship.

Davis' sons 'embarrassed' by lack of 'play' money

DALLAS (AP) — The sons of Cullen Davis are "embarrassed and frustrated" because they lack the money to keep up with social demands of their peers at Highland Park High School, according to a family counselor.

Testimony by Joe Caldwell, a family counselor, came Thursday at a hearing involving a request that the Fort Worth millionaire industrialist be ordered to increase his child support payments to $12,000 per month.

Mrs. Sandra Davis, Davis' first wife, also says she wants their children to be able to live in a "million-dollar house."

Davis' attorney called the request "bull" and claims the millionaire already is doing enough for his children and former wife.

The original divorce decree, in 1968, ordered Davis to pay his first wife $2,000 a month and required $150 a month in child support payments for his two natural sons, Thomas Cullen, 17, and Brian, 15, lawyers said.

Lawyer William Koons admitted Davis has voluntarily increased child support payments by $1,000 a month but Mrs. Davis is demanding the payments be upped to $12,000 a month.

Koons argued that Davis spends much more money on his current wife than on his original family.

Caldwell testified that both sons "are concerned about their mother's efforts to raise money so they can live in a lifestyle similar to their peers." He also said the boys "resented" having to ask their father for additional money.

The counselor noted that both boys are bright and popular, but said, "Their biggest problem is their lack of funds by which to pursue social activities to keep up with their peers."

Davis' lawyers noted that Davis voluntarily pays his sons' medical and clothing expenses, bought his first wife a home in the exclusive Dallas suburb of Highland Park, often takes the boys on trips and pays about $50,000 annually for country club fees, automobiles and other miscellaneous expenses.

They also asked Judge Linda Thomas to note that Mrs. Davis claims they are in "dire straits" although she has not held a job since the divorce.

Davis was acquitted on two criminal charges arising from a fatal August 1976 shooting at his Fort Worth mansion, valued at $6 million.

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A Taylor County jail inmate, indicted on robbery charges, was found strangled to death in his cell Thursday afternoon, a peace justice and police said.

The prisoner, Terry Lynn Trigg, 17, of Hawley, Texas, apparently tied his jail coveralls around a shower stall rod in his third-floor cell, then twisted the clothing around his neck, said Peace Justice Silas Clark.

Suspect in Somoza slaying dead

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — Police shot and killed a leftist guerrilla sought in the assassination of Anastasio Somoza and arrested another. The remains of the ousted Nicaraguan dictator were flown early today back to the United States, the country he fled abandoned him in his hour of need.

Police identified the slain man as Hugo Alfredo Irurzun, and said he was killed in a shootout Thursday night in the Asuncion suburb of Lambare after he opened fire on security forces coming to search the house in which he was hiding. Police said they were tipped off to Irurzun's presence by a businessman who recognized him from a photograph shown on television.

Police reported the arrest of another guerrilla suspected of taking part in the assassination. He was not identified. They also said one of Irurzun's cohorts escaped during the exchange, and that the suburb, about nine miles south of the capital, was sealed off.

Authorities said Irurzun was a member of the Argentine People's Revolutionary Army. The government had distributed photographs of him and a female member of the same group shortly after Wednesday's bazooka and machine-gun assassination of Somoza, his chauffeur and a financial adviser.

Security forces have thrown a dragnet over this entire California-sized country in an effort to capture the four to six members of the assassination squad still at large. Paraguay's borders with Argentina, Brazil, and Bolivia were sealed Wednesday, opened for five hours Thursday, then closed again. Police detained more than 100 people for questioning, and the right-wing government of President Alfredo Stroessner has offered a $40,000 reward for information leading to the capture of the assassins.

Somoza's five children — Anastasio, Jorge, Roberto, Carolina and Carla who arrived in Asuncion Thursday — left with their father's body aboard a Miami-bound charter flight early today. The family owns considerable property in the Miami area, and it was assumed Somoza would be buried there.

The State Department said Somoza's Florida-born widow, Hope, had requested permission for the body to be transported to Miami. The couple had been estranged for years.

The departure of the body ended what had appeared to be a brewing conflict over who would get it. Somoza's Nicaragua mistress of 18 years, Dinorah Sampson, had said he would be buried in Paraguay, "the only country that gave him asylum, where the president was his friend and where we spent a year of happiness." She apparently relented in favor of the family, but she said she would remain in Paraguay. Sources said she hoped to inherit Somoza's 19,000-acre property in the northwestern part of the country.

Somoza fled Nicaragua for Miami July 17, 1979, as Sandinista rebels prepared a victorious entry into Managua.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Drug may prevent angina attacks

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband continues to play tennis even though he is bothered by attacks of angina when he exerts himself. When this occurs, he is able to relieve the symptoms with nitroglycerin. Is there any reason he should not take the nitroglycerin before he begins to play in order to prevent an attack? — Mrs. A.S.

Dear Mrs. S.: For many people, taking nitroglycerin a few minutes before starting an activity that usually precipitates an anginal attack very often prevents the attack. Some patients follow this procedure routinely whenever they anticipate becoming involved in an emotionally charged situation, or before participating in any physically stressful activity, such as sexual intercourse, tennis or golf. Check with your doctor to make sure it's OK.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My closest friend recently was killed in an automobile accident at the age of 34. I find it ironic that he didn't smoke, drank only moderately and generally took good care of himself. In fact he used to kid me about the need for losing a little weight. His death has got me to thinking that we have little control over what happens to us, and that we might as well enjoy life while we can. If that means smoking a couple of packs of cigarettes a day or putting on a few extra pounds while indulging in favorite foods, so be it. Whether a person lives or dies apparently is determined by fate. What good did it do my friend that he didn't smoke? — Casey

Dear Casey: I can understand why the death of a close friend at such an early age might make you a fatalist, but I cannot agree with your conclusions. Although accidents do happen, many events are not beyond our control.

For example: Everything else being equal, people who are heavy smokers generally will not be as healthy or live as long as people who do not smoke. Possibly even more important, the quality of life of nonsmokers — that is, their ability to enjoy themselves and get satisfaction out of life — will be superior to that of smokers.

Just consider the extent to which personal behavior contributes to the development of serious injuries and diseases. Many of our more serious health problems are attributable to such habits as smoking, excessive drinking, inadequate nutrition, excessive use of medication, careless driving habits and unrelenting pressure to achieve. Do you doubt that at least some of these problems could be avoided if people only practiced greater discretion in these areas?

Nor are environmental influences caused by fate. To a considerable extent, contamination of our air, food and water, as well as excessive exposure to radiation and to dangers on the job, is a product of conscious decisions made by people in positions of authority.

Your friend's death emphasizes that no one can be guaranteed long life; accidents do and will continue to occur. But some aspects of health care are well within our ability to control.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Man gets a rush from Rushmore

By JULES LOH

MOUNT RUSHMORE, S.D. (AP) — A man with a fear of heights has no business dangling from a cable over Mount Rushmore, but Bob Crisman would not trade that duty with anyone.

"I've come to have very strong feelings about that sculpture," he was saying the other day, safe on the ground under the gaze of those four presidential faces.

"It's hard to put into words, but once you've been out there, touching it, moving over every square inch of it, you develop a certain attachment to it, a pride such as the men who actually carved it must have felt.

"It's a personal matter. I asked for the job, they let me have it, and I don't want anyone else to do it but me."

The National Park Service titles Bob Crisman's job "sculpture maintenance," an accurate but juiceless description of what he actually does.

What he does is strap himself in a bosun's chair and allow himself to be lowered over the face of the mountain, or rather the faces, by two trustworthy friends above operating a hand winch that was left for that purpose when the carvings were finished in 1941. Same old winch, same old cable.

From below, he looks like a tiny puppet on a string. Thus deployed, 300 feet above "impact level," as he puts it, he goes about filling hairline cracks in the granite so that water won't get in them, freeze, and possibly break off somebody's nose, or lip, or eyebrow.

"Don't worry," he said. "These are not cracks that have developed. They were always there. The rock is crazed, sort of like an old plate, with cracks from the size of a hair to the size of a pencil lead.

"When the sculptor, Gutzon Borglum, finished it, he filled all those cracks with a mixture of granite dust, white lead and linseed oil. I use the same thing. The cracks I fill are in the fillings. I have never seen any new cracks."

Bob Crisman's affection for the monument is apparent — he has read every word he can find about it — and also ironic.

He was born and raised on a ranch 13 miles from here and never troubled to go look at the sculpture, except a few times from a distance. When he got out of high school and then the Air Force, seven years ago, he took a job with the Park Service at age 24.

That was when he got his first close-up look at Mount Rushmore. "Once I saw it," he said, "I was really awed."

Midland man held for attempted rape

A 28-year-old Midland man was in City Jail this morning in connection with an attempted rape Thursday afternoon. Police said a woman was walking in the 1300 to 1400 block of West Louisiana Avenue about 9:50 a.m. when a man grabbed her and threw her to the ground. He then ran away. Officers later arrested the man at 4:25 p.m. at A Street and Scharbauer Drive. Art Delgado of El Paso reported the theft of $300 to police Thursday. Delgado said the money, a $100 bill and four $50 bills, was hidden in the lining of his suitcase in his room at Motel 6, 2925 E. Highway 80. The El Paso resident said he left the room about 8 a.m. and locked the door. When he returned at 9:30 a.m., he found the door still locked but the money gone. Also under investigation is the theft of $280 worth of items from a north Midland apartment. Gary Dan Lange said he was asleep on the couch when he heard a door shut. He got up and checked and discovered that a turntable and record cleaning unit had been taken from a shelf in a closet. A Lee High Freshman student was listed in satisfactory condition this morning in Midland Memorial Hospital with a broken leg. Daniel Llanez, 14, was injured Thursday about 4:23 p.m. during football practice. Two people received minor injuries Thursday afternoon in a traffic accident. According to reports, Carolyn Long Beasley, 3417 W. Michigan, Ave., was eastbound in the 2500 block of West Illinois Avenue at 3:03 p.m. Investigating officers reported that Ms. Beasley was going to change lanes, but there was a car in the other lane. She over-reacted, according to reports, swerved to the left and crossed the roadway, striking a vehicle parked in the Conner's Grocery parking lot. The parked car, which belonged to Mrs. C.R. Mallison of 1701 W. Cuthbert Ave., spun around and Mrs. Mallison, a passenger in the parked car, received minor injuries. Ms. Beasley also was injured. Both refused treatment. Two Midland men were injured late Thursday night after a collision near the intersection of Holiday Hill Road and Andrews Highway. Reports said James E. Green, 1406 Douglas Ave., was northbound on Holiday Hill. Scott D. Seth, 309 S. Bentwood, was southbound on Holiday Hill Road. The two vehicles collided at 11:40 p.m. on Holiday Hill Road, just past the intersection with Andrews Highway. Both drivers received minor injuries. Seth was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room. Green refused treatment at the scene. Most of the calls to the Fire Department since 1 p.m. Thursday were for ambulances or for public assistance. Ten people were transported by CFD ambulance.

Hotel group may pick Midland

Midland may become the future site for the Texas Hotel and Motel Association trade fair annual convention. Although the date of the convention was not revealed to the Midland Hotel and Motel Association members at a Thursday noon luncheon, Herb Wilson, THMA executive vice president, said the Tall City was high on the THMA list. He cited the city's convention facilities as one point in Midland's favor. In the past, THMA trade fair conventions were held in larger cities such as Houston, San Antonio and, this year, El Paso. But the association decided that holding these conventions in smaller cities would gain greater involvement by those cities in the state association. Milton Zahn, THMA president, explained the benefits of membership in the Texas Hotel and Motel Association. Besides receiving valuable information regarding the lodging business, Zahn explained that the business' interests were protected from state and federal government encroachment through THMA. Zahn and Wilson make about 50 trips each year visiting local hotel and motel associations to explain what THMA is doing in legislative affairs dealing with the lodging business.

Canadian feds to go ahead on new constitution

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's federal and provincial governments are heading for a stormy debate following Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's decision to recall Parliament ahead of schedule and unilaterally work out a new constitution. Yvon Pinard, leader of the governing Liberal Party in the House of Commons, said after a Cabinet meeting Thursday that Parliament will be recalled earlier than the planned opening Oct. 15 to start the process of devising the constitution. Sources said the Cabinet agreed the package will include a bill of rights but split over whether the charter should apply in provincial jurisdictions. Pushing ahead with a rights charter is certain to provoke a fight from the seven premiers who opposed it at last week's first ministers' conference as well as from the Progressive Conservative opposition. Conservative Leader Joe Clark said again Thursday it would be dangerous and unwise for the government to attempt to work out the constitution without support from the provinces. Whether language guarantees should be made to apply in every province — including the right to English and French language education where numbers warrant — also is unresolved.

Trudeau will think over the options this weekend before taking off on a week-long trip to the Northwest Territories. A date for the recall of Parliament has not been decided and the Trudeau trip means the legislature probably could not return before Oct. 1. "This cabinet meeting was an attempt to find an easy consensus," said one source.

Carter conference raises GOP's ire

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's nationally broadcast news conference raised not only some expected ire from his Republican opponent — whose aides called the performance a "political commercial" — but also some surprising concern by television network executives.

Carter, who has refused to take part in a televised debate Sunday between presidential candidates Ronald Reagan and John Anderson; held sway before the TV cameras Thursday for about 30 minutes, four of them devoted to an opening statement in which he gave a "good news" report on his administration.

He talked about the administration's efforts on Mideast negotiations, the economy, normalization with China, the hostages in Iran, auto imports, energy, and nuclear arms talks with the Soviets.

When it got down to questions, the preamble was mostly dropped and the president was asked repeatedly about recent campaign statements in which he linked Republican nominee Reagan's pronouncements on states' rights and the Ku Klux Klan with racism and hatred.

Four out of 12 questions dealt with that, prompting Carter to say he does not consider Reagan a racist and to reject any assertion that he is running a mean campaign.

"I think my campaign is very moderate in its tone," he said. But what concerned the Reagan camp was the opening statement. Reagan's campaign director, William Casey, called it "an obvious partisan announcement" and asked that the Republican be given equal time under the Federal Communications Act.

Network news executives seemed concerned, too. CBS News President William Leonard said the statement was "pretty obviously self-serving. I was a little bit shaken, frankly."

And David Burke, vice president of ABC News, said it "did not distinguish the press conference in the traditional sense. And we will keep that in mind when requests are made in the future."

The equal-time law specifies that broadcasters who permit candidates to "use" their stations must give an equal opportunity to other candidates for the same office. An exception is coverage of "bona fide news events."

Despite the opening statement, the president's 59th news conference since taking office was dominated by Carter's campaign conduct.

In Atlanta on Tuesday — two weeks after Reagan had mentioned the Klan — Carter told a partisan audience of black southerners that the campaign has seen "the stirrings of hate and the rebirth of code words like 'states rights' and the Klan."

"Hatred has no place in this country," Carter added. "Racism has no place in this country."

But when pressed on the matter Thursday, the president said he did not believe Reagan was "running a campaign of racism of hatred and I think my campaign is very moderate in its tone."

"I did not raise the issue of the Klan nor did I raise the issue of states' rights," he said. "And I believe it's best to leave these words, which are code words to many people in our country who suffered from discrimination in the past, out of the election this year."

When it was pointed out that Carter's secretary of Health and Human Services, Patricia Roberts Harris, first questioned Reagan's endorsement by the Ku Klux Klan — an endorsement that Reagan already had rejected at the time — the president said:

"I am not blaming Governor Reagan. That is precisely the point. The press seems to be raising this point."

He also said: "I do not indulge in attacking the personal integrity of my opponents and hope I never shall."

While his campaign director was concerned about getting equal time, Reagan still was trying to get Carter to join the League of Women Voters-sponsored debate Sunday night between him and independent candidate Anderson.

The former California governor, in a statement, said the news conference was "Jimmy Carter's desperate attempt to fill the empty chair at Sunday night's debate."

"It is time for Mr. Carter to stop hiding in the Rose Garden and participate in open debate where I can have the opportunity to refute his false and partisan version of his record," Reagan declared.

Carter insists he wants a one-on-one debate with Reagan before he debates other candidates. He said he would debate Reagan at the White House if the GOP candidate agreed.

Questioned about public opinion polls that now show him approximately even with Reagan, Carter predicted a "sobering" among Americans voters as Election Day approaches.

"The issues begin to become paramount," he said. "The personal characteristics of the candidates ... become less important."

There were also these developments on the political scene Thursday:

—The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that Anderson's name must appear on the general election ballot in Ohio. The court upheld an opinion that found Ohio's March 20 filing deadline for independent candidates unconstitutional because Republican and Democratic candidates did not have to file until later.

—Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said the administration plans $1 trillion in defense spending by 1985 and assailed the Republicans for saying that was not enough. It was an unusually political statement for a secretary of state.

—Ralph Nader, the consumer advocate, said he would not endorse a presidential candidate but added that he found Carter to be probably the best choice from a consumer point of view.

Clements says Carter 'probably' will debate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — President Jimmy Carter is just making "noises" and probably will show up Sunday for the big debate in Baltimore, says Gov. Bill Clements.

"I think he is going to make all these noises and then come Sunday he will be sitting in that chair," Clements told a news conference Thursday. "And I hope he does."

Carter has said he will not appear for the league's debate matching Ronald Reagan and John Anderson because he wants a one-on-one debate with Reagan first.

"I have the strong conviction that Jimmy Carter will be shooting himself in the foot if he is not present Sunday," Clements said. "I know it will hurt him in Texas. He will pay a price by his absence."

Clements said he believed Anderson's candidacy as an independent would hurt Carter more than it would Reagan, "although I think Anderson's status is being vastly overstated in Texas."

"My polls show he has about 9 percent now but I think by election day he will do good to get 2 percent of the votes," Clements said.

He said two recent polls, on Aug. 27 and on Sept. 13, showed 46 percent for Reagan in Texas, 37 for Carter and 9 for Anderson. "It's been about steady at that in the state for three weeks now."

He said the Reagan-Bush campaign would make another statewide poll within the next 10 days to determine the effect of Carter's and Reagan's visits to Texas earlier this week.

Clements estimated Reagan would get from 25 percent to 35 percent of the Mexican-American vote in Texas. Both Reagan and Carter visited San Antonio, the Rio Grande Valley and Houston in obvious efforts to sway Mexican-American votes.

Clements said he got 32 percent of the Mexican-American vote in his 1978 campaign.

On other subjects, Clements said: —He felt he was booed by University of Texas students during a Tuesday appearance of vice presidential candidate George Bush and former President Gerald Ford, because he favors a college tuition increase.

—He feels no rebuff from the State Republican Convention passing platform planks against any increased severance taxes while he, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton have been discussing a possible severance tax increase. "I did not pay any attention to it," he told the news conference. "They're the platform writers, and I'm the governor."

State grand jury determines Pennsylvania lottery 'fixed'

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Dick Thornburgh said today that a grand jury has determined that the April 24th drawing of the state's $3.8 million Daily Number lottery game was fixed and recommended that six people be indicted.

Thornburgh said the people recommended for indictment by the statewide grand jury included Nick Perry, the television announcer for the lottery drawing at WTAE-TV in Pittsburgh.

Thornburgh said pingpong balls used in the drawing were rigged by injecting them with a liquid. The result was a drawing of "666," which paid out a record $3.8 million.

"The grand jury found that a small, close-knit group of persons, including several members of the same family, purchased extraordinarily large quantities of lottery tickets (for the April 24th drawing) and received winning tickets valued at $1.18 million," Thornburgh said.

The grand jury alleged that security at the lottery drawing was so lax that Perry had control of the pingpong balls used in the drawing "and set them up for use in two of the three machines used in the official drawing."

Acting Attorney General Harvey Bartle said no charges had been filed against the people named in the grand jury presentment.

Shelley Hamlin hopes first round is a sign

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — Shelley Hamlin hopes her opening round in the $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament is a sign of things to come.

"I usually start out really chunky, and finish with some good rounds," said the 31-year-old Hamlin. "When I start out, I'm usually a real flop."

But the Fresno, Calif., resident hardly fell into that pattern Thursday, firing a tournament record 6-under-par 67 for a one-stroke lead at the Brookridge Golf and Country Club.

It was the best round of the season for Hamlin, who has won just one tournament in nine years on the LPGA tour and has finished no better than a tie for fifth this year.

"The first day you're tied with everybody and I think I usually try too hard," she said. "The last day I usually find myself and do well. It would be nice if this was my worst round of the tournament."

Right behind Hamlin at 68 was Barbara Moxness, 27, of San Diego, Calif., while Brenda Rego was three back at 70, and Debbie Austin and Hollis Stacy each had 71.

The LPGA tour's only top 10 money winners in the four-day, 72-hole tournament did no better than par. No. 2 Donna Caponi Young and No. 10 Sandra Post, the defending champion, each had a 75, while Pat Bradley, who ranks sixth, shot a 73.

Hamlin finished her first trip around the 6,273-yard, par-73 course with four birdies and an eagle, and escaped without a bogey.

First prize in the tournament, which raps up Sunday, is $15,000.

Niatross blanks Jug's pacer field

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Only a thoroughbred can keep up with Niatross, harness racing's superhorse, in the opinion of Clint Galbraith, his training driver.

That's how Galbraith felt after Niatross wiped out six world leading records and became the sports all time money-winning champion Thursday.

The Albatross colt's miles of 1:55 and 1:54.4, produced easy, straight-heat victories in the Little Brown Jug at the Delaware (Ohio) County Fairgrounds and made him a virtually shoe-in for pacer's Triple Crown.

"No harness horse can push him," said Galbraith. "Only the thoroughbreds we use in time trials can stay with him. They can go with him in a jog cart."

Galbraith is going to afford Niatross that opportunity at the Red Mile track at Lexington, Ky. Sept. 26 or 27.

Erxleben shows frustration

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — "Every-one's acted like I shot somebody," is how placekicker Russell Erxleben describes the reaction of New Orleans fans to his missing three of five field goal attempts.

Earlier this week, Erxleben's frustrations poured out in a New Orleans convenience store. A fan asked him how much longer he expected the Saints to keep him on the roster. Erxleben knocked the man in the jaw.

"There's nothing you can do. I hated doing it, but I'm tired of trying to please everyone," the former Texas Longhorn star told the Austin American-Statesman in a telephone interview.

After the Saints lost Sunday to Chicago, New Orleans Coach Dick Nolan relieved Erxleben of his placekicking chores at Erxleben's request. Now the 23-year-old Seguin native, the 11th player taken in the 1979 draft, will handle only punting.

"This is a football-crazy town and they love their football, but people ask the dumbest questions. They'd ask, 'Why did you miss it?' I'd say the coach told me to," said Erxleben.

"Another one asked me if I had tried to commit suicide. I said, 'Yes, but I missed to the left,'" Erxleben said.

The fans and press in New Orleans had good reason to expect a lot from Erxleben, considered the finest kicker in Southwest Conference history. He set kicking and punting records at UT, booming long, high punts and drilling 49 of 78 field goal attempts and 120 of 134 extra points.

"I haven't panned out. I know that but when we lose to Chicago 22-3 and they have it as my fault, I don't know what I can do," he said. "When I missed a field goal at Texas, I didn't think about it. They dwelled on the (missed 30-yard) field goal at San Francisco all week. I must have seen it on TV a million times."

Nolan called on castoff Benny Ricardo to relieve Erxleben. Last year Gary Yepremian, cut by Miami, replaced Erxleben after the rookie pulled a leg muscle.

Erxleben, a 44.2-yard career punter at UT, is averaging only 31.9 yards per punt this year. He said, however, that several of the short punts were downed inside the opposition's 10-yard line.

"They're always putting 'million-dollar kicker' in front of my name. I mean, why can't I just be the kicker for New Orleans?" he said.

"I really can't pinpoint what the problem is. I do know I want to do so good I can taste it. If it took running 100 miles a day, I'd do it...."

"Right now, I don't have any confidence, and the only way I'm going to get it back is to do something good," he said.

Chaparral linksters travel to Snyder

Midland College will travel to Snyder today for the first of three Fall Western Junior College Conference golf meets. Play will be 18 holes.

The Chaparrals will host the second meet WJCC meet at Midland Country Club Oct. 3.

Coach Delnor Poss will send a team of four freshmen and two sophomores against Western Texas College, the preseason favorite, and Odessa College, the chief challenger, today. Making the trip are Doug Dabbs, freshman from Austin Westlake; Patrick Holloway, freshman from Denton; Bruce Carroll, freshman from Big Spring; Bobby Tuttle, freshman from Andrews, and sophomores Bob Howig, from Grinnell, Iowa, and Jeff Butler, San Antonio Holmes.

Australians fail again

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — It was the biggest day of the America's Cup summer for the Australians, and it didn't count.

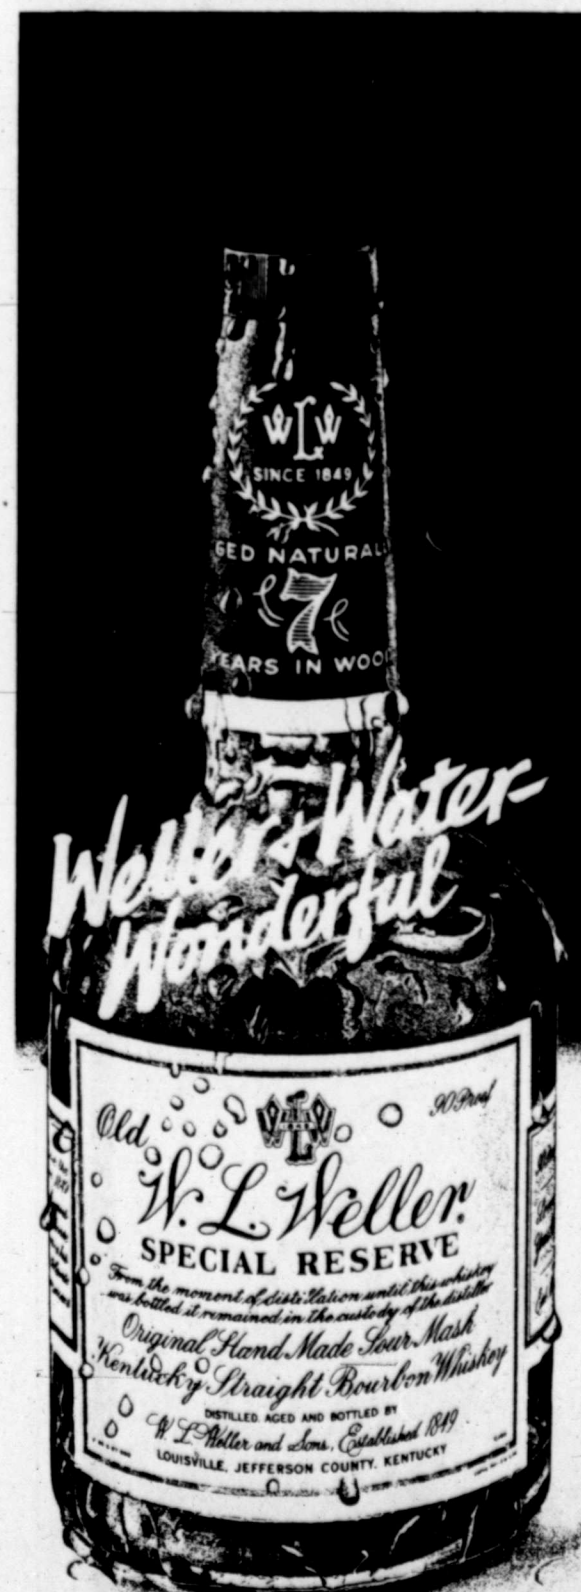

Australia labored in feeble breezes to build a half-mile lead over the defending yacht Freedom when time ran out on Thursday's round of the best-of-seven series.

Alan Bond, head of the Australian challenge, dismissed his ill fortune and looked ahead to today's rematch.

"We were very unlucky not to have won this race. We had the race in our hands. If Lady Luck had been with us, the wind would have filled in and we would have had our first win on the board," he said. "We'll be ready to go in the morning."

The expiration of the five-hour, 15-minute time limit on Cup matches spoiled the Australians' day but preserved Freedom skipper Dennis Conner's 1-0 edge in the series.

Conner, of San Diego, would admit no dismay at seeing Australia pull ahead on the fifth leg of the six-leg course with Freedom wallowing in the swells of Rhode Island Sound.
