Oil spill amendment soundly defeated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House soundly defeated an attempt Friday to make the proposed "superfund" for oil spill damages retroactive to compensate Texans for the Ixtoc I spill that soiled state beaches last year.

The amendment by Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Texas, lost 264-43 despite across-the-board support from the state's delegation.

"It's a disappointment, because superfund offers a method for payment of damages," the Victoria congressman, whose district includes a coastal stretch hit hardest by the spill, said after the vote. "This fund would have provided the dollars."

The superfund, financed through new excise taxes on oil stocks, would be used to pay clean up costs for an oil spill if the spiller were unknown.

Wyatt's amendment would have allowed up to $75 million of the proposed fund to be used to reimburse the costs of fighting the Ixtoc I spill, the world's largest, and to compensate for provable economic losses it caused.

Opponents feared the amendment would set a precedent for including other past spills in the superfund and deplete it before it has a chance to start.

"The claims against the spill would wipe out the fund," argued Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y.

He said Ixtoc I damages were treated separately in a bill the House approved earlier this year authorizing up to $80 million as compensation.

That bill — sponsored by Rep. Ray Roberts, D-Texas — was referred to a Senate subcommittee after passing the House in June. It is uncertain whether it would move out of the subcommittee before the congressional session ends later this year.

Wyatt said he was hopeful — "being eternally optimistic" — that the separate Ixtoc I compensation bill still has a chance of passing the Senate.

During debate, Wyatt said the U.S. spent $8 million to clean up for Ixtoc I, the blown out well in Mexico's Bay of Campeche that took nine months to cap.

"It took only two months for the oil to travel the 500 miles on Gulf of Mexico waters between the well and the United States coastline, where the well caused economic losses to many businesses, most associated with tourism, and shrimpers who had to leave their normal fishing grounds and ports of call," he said.

Wyatt estimated remaining uncompensated damages at $20 million and said they probably were closer to $10 million, even though lawsuits totaling $355 million in claims have been filed in federal courts.

Texas voted 18-2 for Wyatt's amendment, with the only negative votes cast by Roberts, of McKinney, and Rep. Sam Hall, a Democrat from Marshall.

Four Texas Democrats did not vote — House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth and Reps. Jack Brooks of Beaumont, E. "Kika" de la Garza of Mission and Jim Mattox of Dallas.

Grand jury says lottery rigged

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A grand jury said Friday that Pennsylvania's April 24 lottery was rigged when liquid was injected into numbered pingpong balls used in the game. The jury recommended charges against six people, some of whom it said bought more than $1 million of winning tickets.

Gov. Dick Thornburgh, who announced the recommendations of the statewide grand jury, said the six included Nick Perry, the television announcer for the daily lottery drawing at WTAE-TV in Pittsburgh.

The drawing, beamed nightly to a statewide viewing audience, was fixed by injecting liquid into all the pingpong balls used in the game except those numbered "6" and "4," the grand jury said.

The balls with no liquid weighed less than the others and thus floated more easily to the top of the three air machines used in the drawing.

Heavy betting occurred on number combinations involving 4 and 6, the jury said. The result was a "666" winning number that paid a record $3.5 million.

Acting Attorney General Harvey Bartle said about $500,000 worth of the tickets have yet to be cashed, and will not be honored if they are.

Despite lottery officials' assurances that they had control of the game "every minute," the grand jury found lax security. On the night of the rigged drawing, the three lottery drawing machines were left unattended for 30 minutes, the jury said.

And last-minute drawing preparations were left to Perry instead of lottery personnel, the jury said.

Bartle said the grand jury will make more recommendations in the lottery scandal. Besides Perry, the grand jury recommended that charges be filed against:

—Edward Plevel of Monessen, a Pittsburgh district manager in the Revenue Department's Bureau of State Lotteries. Thornburgh said Plevel has been suspended.

—Peter K. Maragos of Monroeville, Allegheny County, a one-third owner of Forbes Vending in Monroeville.

—Jack K. Maragos of Monroeville, also a one-third owner of Forbes Vending.

—James Maragos of Springfield, Delaware County.

—Jean Ella Maragos of Springfield, wife of James Maragos.

Your number's up in Connecticut, too

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Connecticut's daily lottery on Friday night picked as its winning number 666 — the combination involved in a Pennsylvania lottery scandal that erupted earlier in the day. Even the usually unshakable state lottery spokesman "couldn't believe it."

Connecticut uses a system of pingpong-like balls similar to ones that a grand jury in Pennsylvania alleges were tampered with last spring in order to rig a drawing.

The fluke of Connecticut's drawing stunned lottery employees and staff members who saw it take place on a live broadcast at 7:29 p.m. from the studios of WVIT-TV in West Hartford.

"Why did it have to be me," said Greg Ziemak, a lottery employee, as he emerged from the studio where he had conducted the drawing.

Missile mishap third in 17 years of use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Friday's nerve-tlingling accident in a remote Titan II missile silo in Arkansas was the third major mishap in the 17 years since the United States put the huge missile on station as the single biggest weapon in America's arsenal.

In two instances, the cause was independent of the huge complex weapon — a blowtorch once, a wrench this time. In the other accident, the blame was put on a leak in a fuel line.

The first accident, which killed 53 civilians in 1965, was caused by a welder's torch bumping against a line carrying a combustible fluid.

The second accident occurred at a Titan II site near Rock, Kan., on Aug. 24, 1978. A leak led to the escape of a cloud of toxic, corrosive propellant gas. Two airmen were killed and 29 were injured.

The Air Force blames Friday's accident on a worker's dropping a three-pound wrench socket.

The tool fell 70 feet, bounced, struck the missile and punctured a fuel tank.

That happened about 7:30 p.m. EDT Thursday. Less than 11 hours later, after the area had been evacuated, a huge explosion occurred.

One man was killed, apparently by toxic fumes and injuries sustained in the blast. Twenty-one others were injured.

The nuclear warhead in the missile involved in the 1965 accident had been removed while civilians were working in the silo — modifying the air conditioning, heating and plumbing systems of the facility.

The 1965 accident occurred near Searcy, Ark., about 50 miles northeast of Little Rock. Friday's explosion occurred near Damascus, Ark. 40 miles from Searcy and about 50 miles due north of Little Rock.

The Titan II is an intercontinental ballistic missile — capable of being launched in one continent and hitting a target in another.

It is America's big city buster, carrying the largest nuclear warhead of any American weapon. And it is capable of carrying a heavier load than any U.S. missile.

It was used as the rocket which carried 10 two-man teams into space during the Gemini program in 1965 and 1966.

All told, the United States has 54 Titan II missiles in 54 silos near and under the jurisdiction of Air Force bases in Arkansas, Kansas and Arizona.

The missile is 103 feet tall and 10 feet in diameter. Loaded and ready to be launched, it weighs 330,000 pounds. It is propelled by a mixture of a fuel and an oxidizer which ignite when they come in contact with each other.

Part seven: The winter of Lyndon Baines Johnson

By MERLE MILLER

March 31, 1968 — one of those unforgettable days as it turned out — began at 7 a.m. Lyndon had spent a restless night.

Lady Bird recalls: "His face was sagging and there was such pain in his eyes as I had not seen since his mother died. But he didn't have time for grief. Today was a crescendo of a day. At nine in the evening, Lyndon was to make his talk to the nation about the war. The speech was not yet firm. There were still revisions to be made and people to see."

The war in Vietnam had shattered Johnson's presidency, overshadowing his considerable achievements in the war on poverty, civil rights, education, medical care and a whole range of domestic programs. The streets were now filled with anti-war, anti-LBJ taunts and protests.

INSIDE THE WHITE HOUSE, the Johnsons could hear the chants: "Hey, hey, LBJ, how many babies did you kill today?"

The tide of anti-war feeling dated back to early 1966, reaching a point where in an ad lib during a speech to a Democratic party dinner in Chicago, Lyndon referred to those who did not like the war as "nervous nellys." It was a phrase that was to haunt him for the rest of his presidency.

Nothing seemed to work. There was pacification, Vietnamization, "hearts and minds" galore — and hundreds of thousands of U.S. fighting men backed up by hundreds of millions of dollars worth of the latest and deadliest equipment.

Obviously, Vietnam was never far from the president's mind in 1967 and every new move by him drew more fire from the increasing ranks of the peace bloc. A particularly bitter storm erupted early in the year when he ordered new air strikes on Hanoi itself.

There were on-again, off-again attempts — how serious depends on the speaker and the timing — to get the participants to sit down, anywhere in the world and almost under any circumstances, to negotiate.

BUT IT TOOK TET, the great Vietcong offensive in January, 1968, to bring home once and for all the terrible quality of the war. The shock of pictures showing Vietcong damage to the U.S. Embassy in downtown Saigon, and the sight of American soldiers dead inside its walls, stunned Americans.

Lyndon Johnson was in deep, deep trouble and he knew it. So did others. Robert Kennedy, who still saw himself as the guardian of the keys to Camelot, announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Just before 9 p.m. on March 31, 1968, millions of persons across the country flicked on their television sets to hear Lyndon Johnson. Seated at his desk, flanked by flags of his country and his office, he began:

"Tonight, I want to speak to you of peace in Vietnam and southeast Asia."

FIRST, HE REVIEWED the outcome of the Tet offensive, saying that the Communists had failed to collapse the Saigon government or its army. Then he renewed his offer to stop the bombing of North Vietnam and asked for immediate peace talks.

Then Johnson appealed for national unity and added:

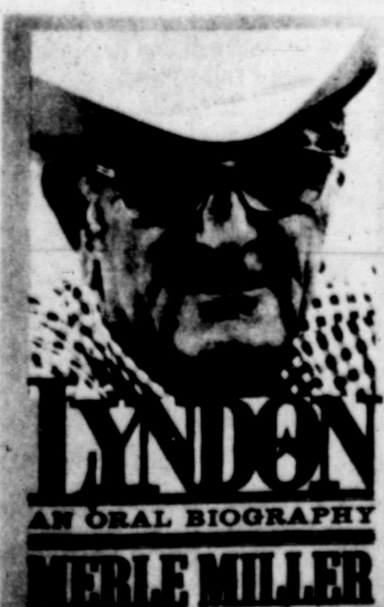

"With America's sons in the fields faraway, with America's future under challenge right here at home, with our hopes and the world's hopes for peace in the balance every day, I do not believe that I should devote an hour or a day of my time to my personal partisan causes or to any duties other than the awesome duties of this office — the presidency of your country."

"Accordingly, I shall not seek, and I shall not accept the nomination of my party, for another term as your president."

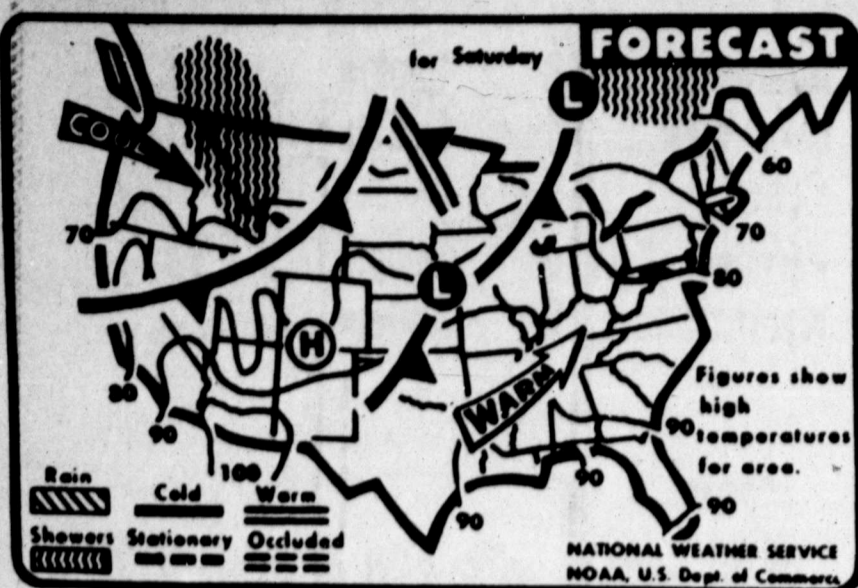

ROBERT FLEMING, a deputy press secretary: "When he finished saying he wouldn't run again, and the cameras went off, Mrs. Johnson and the two girls were sitting there, and one of the girls was crying, the other was smiling. They stood up, he stood up, and Mrs. Johnson went over and threw her arms around him and said,

Agencies get nine-month funding

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff Writer

AUSTIN — The Governor's Committee on Aging voted Friday to fund 28 area agencies on aging — including the Permian Basin Area Agency on Aging (PBAAA) — for a nine-month period, rather than the year award of some $29.6 million in federal and state funds. The grant goes to support nutrition programs and other social service programs for senior citizens in Texas.

Sisk explained, the board decided to fund fully for nine months in hopes the additional funds would become available by the June 30 deadline. Further, she said, the state has to match the federal money with 5 percent of their own funds to receive the federal grants. And, the state needs an additional $360,000 to match the federal funds.

Ms. Sisk said the budget restrictions the board was working under to make its decision Friday were some $2 million less than the president's proposed budget for the new year. All 28 agencies were approved for nine-month funding by 1:30 p.m. Friday — 3 1/2 hours after the meeting began in the Capitol building.

"Now all of them have a common beginning date and ending date," Smith said. "What it does in doing this is allow more time for conditional approvals." The PBAAA represents "26 basic operations providing one or both of the services for the aged," Smith explained. The two services are social services and nutritional services.

'Nobly done, darling.' Horace Busby, a Johnson friend and adviser: "I don't think there were any regrets later. That is the invention of the so-called psychohistorians. Nor any bitterness. Nor any feeling — well, of course, you always have moments, everybody does, of regret over something as major as that."

Hubert Humphrey heard the speech on radio in Mexico City, where he and Muriel were visiting. He wept, but behind the tears was the realization that it meant he had the best chance now to grab the brass ring that so often had eluded him in the past. Four days later, another trauma gripped Americans. Martin Luther King was assassinated in Memphis.

11, 1972, on civil rights. Hugh Sidey of Time magazine: "The men and women who carried the civil rights banner for two decades had assembled. There were some new faces among them, but the focus was on men like Hubert Humphrey, Roy Wilkins, Clarence Mitchell and former Chief Justice Earl Warren. They showed up with more wrinkles than they used to have, more gray hair, and a lot more discouragement. From the beginnings of the two-day meeting, it was plain that civil rights no longer had a clear national leader."

"To be black, I believe, to one who is black or brown, is to be proud, is to be worthy, is to be honorable. But to be black in a white society is not to stand on level and equal ground. While the races may stand side by side, whites stand on history's mountains and blacks stand in history's hollow. We must overcome unequal history before we overcome unequal opportunity."

to do for his country, they were answered right then."

THAT WAS MID-DECEMBER. Lyndon Baines Johnson died at 3:50 p.m. on Jan. 22, 1963.

A few minutes before his death he called the ranch switchboard from his bedroom, and two Secret Service agents rushed there with a portable oxygen unit. Lyndon was lying of the bed. They tried to revive him, but he was gone. Lady Bird was away; his daughters were absent.

Haynes Johnson, the Washington Post: "Perhaps the most poignant aspect of Lyndon Johnson's death is that this most public man, who was in his element when surrounded by cheering crowds, died alone, calling for help."

Explosion of missile silo prompts calls for inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The explosion early Friday at an underground Titan II missile silo in rural Arkansas prompted demands for a congressional inquiry to determine if the missiles are worth keeping.

"If it's not safe and effective, I don't know why you need it," said Republican Sen. Robert Dole, whose home state of Kansas is one of three states where the silos are housed.

Dole told a news conference he has not made up his mind that the missile system should be dismantled. But he suggested that its main purpose may have been as a bargaining chip in the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty talks with the Soviet Union.

"Some people are worried about the economy of the area" where the missile sites are located, he added. "But as these incidents increase, those numbers shrink."

Several members of Congress called for the House Armed Services Committee to begin its own inquiry. Committee aides said the panel's chairman, Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., was considering the request.

Rep. Robert Whittaker, R-Kan., said the hearings should seek to determine if the missiles, which are 17 years old, are obsolete. But he added, "I do not believe it would be prudent at this time to call for the

Belgium will accept deployment of U.S. missiles if arms talks fail

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Belgian government decided Friday to accept deployment of 48 American nuclear missiles on its territory if U.S.-Soviet talks on reduction of the missiles fail.

Belgium, like Britain, Germany, Italy and Holland, agreed in December last year to deploy on their territory 572 new U.S. nuclear missiles beginning in 1983.

Holland and Belgium, however, asked to postpone by the final go-ahead by 6 months to two years.

The Belgian government decided Friday to deploy 48 missiles in Belgium if the Allies decide on the installation after talks with the Soviets.

removal of this system." One immediate effect of the accident at the Titan site in Damascus, Ark., is likely to be congressional approval of siren alarm systems at most of the 54 facilities in Arkansas, Arizona and Kansas.

Ironically, the Senate approved installation of the siren alarms in a defense spending measure this week. It would cost an estimated $500,000, or $10,000 apiece, to install the alarms at 50 of the 54 silo sites. Four sites are considered so remote that alarms would be pointless.

The proposal, sponsored by Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., is likely to be approved in a Senate-House conference because of the accident at Damascus, Dole said.

The Air Force, in a report last May that defended the safety record of the Titan program, said the sirens were unnecessary and might cause panic and traffic jams in the event of future accidents.

In any case, Dole said, "the alarm system just gives you a head start" evacuating the area. "It doesn't address the basic problem."

He said that Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, agreed Friday to dispatch the committee's staff director to inspect the explosion site in Arkansas.

Dole, who said he has been frustrated in the past in getting a congressional study of the Titan safety record, said he hoped now there will be a thorough inquiry into the hazards posed by the missile system.

"I don't quarrel with the Air Force," Dole said. "But any department is going to put the best face" on its own programs. "We want to know what the real face is."

A congressional study could decide that the Titan program is still useful and that would reassure the public, Dole added.

The siren system that Pryor is proposing would sound an alarm that could be heard up to two miles away.

The Air Force said its own evacuation system, relying on telephone calls and personal contacts, was more efficient.

Witness: 'I thought this is where I would die'

DAMASCUS, Ark. (AP) — Steve Taylor, a reporter for the Arkansas Democrat, hit the ground when the Titan II missile silo exploded before dawn Friday, thinking it was his time to die.

The newsman had been sent to the silo Thursday night after a leak developed. But he had his back to the underground facility when the blast came at 3 a.m.

"All of a sudden, the whole area was light," he said. "I started to turn around. As I did I heard a loud crack like thunder, but higher, sharper."

After the shock wave from the explosion, Taylor went to the ground. "I thought this is where I would die," he said.

He said the explosion was "beautiful, in an odd sort of way...gigantic sparks on black velvet." He said the debris carried about one-quarter mile before it started falling to earth. There was an acrid odor, he said.

Taylor said military personnel began swarming the area, grabbing for air masks and screaming for people to leave the area. He said he drove about two miles north of the silo and spotted two military policemen stopped on the side of the road.

He said he asked them how far he should go. "Just get as far away as you can, as fast as you can," one told him.

Dwight Whitecher, a field inspector with the Department of Pollution Control and Ecology, was half-asleep in a car at the entrance to the silo when the explosion occurred.

"I looked over to the silo and it was a huge boiler fire," he said. "It looked something like roman candles."

"I've never in my life been as scared, I don't believe," Whitecher said. Charles Akers of the state Office of Emergency Service was in the car with Whitecher.

"At the first flash, we dropped the car into gear and left," Akers said.

"There was kind of a red flash followed by a blast of air that was like dynamite going off. It was enough to rock the car." "It vibrated the whole house, busted windows in the house," said Royce Johnson, 19, who lives in Damascus. "It felt about like a train was going to run through the house. I knew it was time to get the hell out of there."

Randolph Wallace, an elderly resident of Conway County, lives about 12 miles from the silo.

"You take times like these, I wish I wouldn't have moved here," he said. "I got my place up for sale but I don't guess this is going to help the sale of it."

Carter expresses regret at missile silo explosion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter expressed regret Friday about the 22 injuries in an explosion of a Titan II missile silo in Arkansas, but said "there is no indication of radioactivity" leaking from the site.

Carter, pausing as he left the White House for a Camp David weekend, said he had "stayed in close contact all throughout the morning" with Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

"We deeply regret the casualties from the explosion," Carter said. "The situation is under control and there is no indication of any radioactivity at all."

Anastasio Somoza Jr. is comforted by scores of wellwishers in Miami's Caballero Funeral Home Friday. Somoza's oldest son chartered a DC-8 and flew to Paraguay to bring the body of his father, killed by assassins, to the U.S. for funeral services scheduled Friday. (AP Laserphoto)

Somoza's body flown to U.S., Funeral mass scheduled today

MIAMI (AP) — The body of deposed Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza, who was assassinated in Paraguay earlier in the week, was flown to Miami on Friday for burial in his estranged wife's home state. Thousands of members of Miami's large Nicaraguan exile community were expected to parade past Somoza's casket at a southwest Miami funeral home handling the arrangements. A funeral mass was scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday at St. Raymond Catholic Church. The funeral, to be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, will be open to the public, said a spokeswoman for the Cuban-run Caballero Funeral Home in Little Havana. After Sandinista revolutionaries forced Somoza out of Nicaragua in July 1979, the dictator came to Miami with the intention of settling in the area, where he held several business interests. But the U.S. State Department told the 54-year-old Somoza it couldn't guarantee his security, and the deposed dictator huffily left aboard his yacht. He went first to the Bahama Islands but later settled in Asuncion, Paraguay, where he was slain Wednesday. Anastasio Somoza Jr., the new head of the family, said Friday the family was not bitter at the United States. "We are very grateful to the United States government for finally allowing us to bring him here for burial," the young Somoza said after arriving with the body in a chartered DC-8. "My father was always a very good friend of this country," he said. But, he added, "Being a very good friend of the country's ideals, does not necessarily mean of the government that might be in charge at the time." Somoza's burial at Woodlawn Memorial Park will fulfill the former president's wish, according to his nephew, Luis Somoza. "His wish was if he could not be buried in Nicaragua, he wanted to be buried in the United States," he said. Somoza's widow, Hope, is a native of Tampa, Fla., and the family owns considerable property in the Miami area. Also, some 15,000 Nicaraguans, many of them former members of Somoza-commanded Nicaraguan National Guard, fled to Miami after leftist guerrillas overthrew the three-generation regime.

Naval clashes 'likely' in Iran, Iraq dispute

By The Associated Press

Iranian and Iraqi forces battled on the ground and in the air Friday along the disputed border and the Iranian military command said naval clashes are "likely" in the next few days, Tehran Radio reported.

The radio also said Parliament members will visit the "spy nest" U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Monday to talk with militants about the 52 American hostages now in their 321st day of captivity.

The Iranian military communique reported intense fighting "still going on" along most of the Iran-Iraq border, but did not elaborate on the possibility of naval engagements in the Persian Gulf.

In Baghdad, the official radio reported continued attacks by Iranian forces on Iraqi border positions and said Iranian aircraft flew over Iraqi ships but "our anti-aircraft fire forced them to withdraw."

The fighting has intensified following President Saddam Hussein's announcement Wednesday that Iraq was abrogating the 1975 border treaty with Iran. Hussein vowed to "liberate" territory along the frontier.

Baghdad Radio said Friday's border fighting involved ground troops, tanks, jets and the naval units that engaged Iranian planes. One Iraqi soldier was killed, but Baghdad Radio had no information on Iranian casualties.

Iraq reported repulsing an armor attack on a border post in the Maysan region and a bombing attack by Iranian planes on a border post at Maysan. An Iranian tank was damaged in another action, Baghdad said.

The Iranian military communique reviewed clashes earlier in the week and said casualties had been inflicted on Iraqi forces in the Khan Leyli area.

"During a number of successful missions" in the border areas of Khuzestan and Lam on Thursday, the communique said, two Iranian jet fighters crashed. One crashed on Iraqi territory.

Iraq claimed Thursday to have shot down two Iranian warplanes.

The Iranian communique also said 25 "counter-revolutionaries" were killed during an operation in Mahabad Thursday. It said two soldiers also were killed.

The radio quoted the embassy militants as saying

Parliament members will visit "the spy nest to observe the signs of crimes and espionage equipment and hear replies to their questions about the hostages."

Parliament took up the hostage question this week. Tehran Radio said a visit to the embassy had been planned for Saturday but was postponed to Monday.

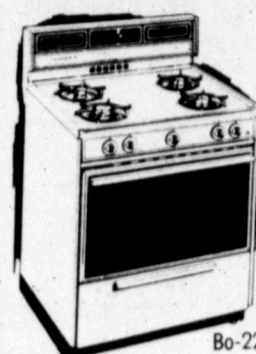

A Soviet economic delegation arrived in Tehran to negotiate the purchase of Iranian oil and discuss expansion of economic relations, the radio said.

It quoted a Soviet Embassy official as saying the six-member Soviet delegation included three trade officials and was led by an undersecretary of the Ministry of Foreign Trade.

Relations between Tehran and Moscow have been strained because of the Soviet supplying of arms to Iraq. Last month Iran threatened to recall its ambassador in Moscow if Soviet military assistance to Iraq continued.

Trials should begin soon for Gang of Four

PEKING (AP) — A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Friday the trial of Mao Tse-tung's widow and her Gang of Four colleagues would start "very soon" but that he did not know the date. Some diplomatic sources said visitors from Luxembourg had been told in an unofficial conversation by Chinese sources that the trial of the four was likely to begin Friday.

There has been no official confirmation of the date and on Friday there were no signs of unusual activity at the supreme court building in Peking's old legation quarter.

"As to the date of the trial, I do not know," a spokesman said in response to a journalist's question.

Sunset panel vote may close Amusement Machine Commission

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Sunset Commission voted Friday to tentatively recommend putting the Amusement Machine Commission out of business and giving its chores to the Comptroller's Office.

The Sunset staff said the comptroller could collect the taxes on the machines for $350,000 less per year than the Amusement Machine Commission does.

The six-member commission, which collects taxes on more than 105,000 coin-operated machines in the state, was set up in 1971. It operates on an annual budget of $565,000.

The Sunset Commission decided not to adopt a plan that would keep the Amusement Machine Commission, but make 10 internal changes. Included would have been a new state law that would permit felons to get licenses from the commission. State law bars felons from getting the license needed to make money off the machines. William Wells of the Legislative Budget Board said part of the Amusement Machine Commission's responsibility has been to keep organized crime out of the industry.

The Sunset Commission also voted Friday to make several changes in the Board of Private Investigators and Private Security Agencies. The commission, however, turned down a proposal to deregulate private investigators, burglar alarm companies and guard dog services.

The staff decided "no need exists" for regulating those security services, but the commission voted against the recommendation.

The recommendation tentatively adopted includes amending state law concerning the carrying of handguns by security officers. The new law would allow guns to be worn only when guards are on active duty.

The Sunset Commission will make final decisions on the agencies under consideration at a later meeting.

Also Friday, the commission voted against a proposal to merge the State Board of Nurse Examiners and the Board of Vocational Nurse Examiners. The staff said 44 other states now handle the two professions through a joint board.

Cuke spill scrambles traffic

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Cucumber lovers — and some who don't particularly care for the vegetables — scrambled for free cukes Friday after a truck dumped five tons of them on an Interstate 35 access road.

"I wish I had a truck," said a man who stuffed cukes into several sacks. "I don't know what I'm going to do with the damn things."

Police said witnesses reported a semi-trailer truck veered off the highway Friday morning and tilted just enough to spill the cucumbers on the road.

The driver apparently stopped briefly to survey the damage and then drove off.

Labor leader Moore described in FBI's secret Brilab tapes

HOUSTON (AP) — Labor leader L.G. Moore, a key figure in the Texas Brilab case, was described Friday on secret FBI tapes played to a federal court jury as a "man who will deal. A man you can do business with."

The comment was made by Harold Grubbs, education director for Pipe Fitters Union Local 211, during a taped conversation with FBI informant Joseph Hauser.

Grubbs told Hauser, "The SOB you can deal with on a one-to-one basis, like you do with me."

Grubbs was the first Brilab connection made in Texas and the investigation eventually led to Moore and then to Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton.

Clayton, Moore and Austin attorney Randall Wood and Donald Ray were indicted by a federal grand jury July 12 for extortion, racketeering, bribery and conspiracy. The charges arose from an alleged insurance kick-back scheme.

The House speaker and the two attorneys are on trial in the court of U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor. Moore is to be tried later.

The jury Friday also heard tapes of Grubbs accepting a $2,000 retainer from Hauser to influence the awarding of a union insurance contract.

Grubbs first refused the money, saying he didn't want to be paid until he had done something. Later, he accepted the money.

During a second meeting in Houston, Grubbs told Hauser it may be too late to get the Pipe Fitters union insurance, but there was an good shot at the pension fund.

To this Hauser said, "That would bring you $125,000 every year."

Grubbs, "Every year? All right."

At another point on the tape, Hauser said, "There are so few people you can sit down and talk to today."

Grubbs said, "Yeah, it is to the point you don't know who to trust."

The FBI informant testified Friday that Grubbs also had agreed to bring him the information on insurance bids from other companies so Hauser could be assured of filing the lowest bid.

Grubbs was taped as telling Hauser he would contact a union leader in Washington state named Robert Bilger and a Bill Boyle in New Orleans.

Hauser also met with Sherman Fricks, head of the Pipe Fitters local and former secretary-treasurer of the Texas AFL-CIO.

Fricks was quoted once as saying, "I don't like grand juries and I don't like investigations. Life is too short and too sweet."

Fricks and Grubbs were questioned by the Brilab grand jury but were not indicted. Both have been subpoenaed to appear as government witnesses.

Prominent Texas Democrats issue debate challenge to Gov. Clements

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Three prominent Texas Democrats challenged Gov. Bill Clements and any two other Republicans Friday to a debate on the presidential campaign.

"Texas is a key state in the election and it is therefore appropriate that the issues be debated here because the lives and livelihoods of 13 million Texans will be affected by the outcome," said a joint statement issued by former Attorney General John Hill, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Clements was out of the state Friday but his press aide, Jon Ford, said "he has never shown any reluctance to debate anyone."

Ford noted that Clements and National Democratic Party Chairman John White have a debate scheduled Sept. 29 in San Antonio before the Texas Association of School Boards and School Administrators on the educational issues in the GOP and Democratic platforms.

"Governor Clements should get a couple of Republicans of his choosing off the golf course and meet us in the biggest possible public forum," the Democrats said in their challenge.

Ancient Virginia canoe unearthed thanks to long summer drought

By GENE PHILLIPS
Newport News Daily Press

WAKEFIELD, Va. (AP) — This year's drought uncovered an important artifact from colonial Virginia, a dugout canoe found in the stream where its last occupant left it two centuries ago.

Richard Andrews and his son, Ricky, found the canoe, all but the tip covered with silt collected over the years.

Finding the canoe was a rediscovery for Andrews. He first saw it about 10 years ago during another drought, but couldn't excavate it until the recent dry weather caused the water level to drop.

Andrews' find was half-forgotten until this year when his son Rusty, 15, suggested they look for it again.

Rusty wasn't home the day Andrews went back into the swamp, and his brother, Ricky, 21, went along. They searched for the spot where Andrews first saw the canoe and were about to give up when Ricky spotted it.

Andrews called for his third son, 18-year-old Ronnie, and the two men who work on his farm. The five men worked about three hours cutting tree roots away. They worked in water waist- to shoulder-deep, taking care not to put pressure where it might damage the boat.

During the excavation they weren't sure whether they had found a complete canoe or only a section. The canoe was pulled out completely and a later evaluation showed it to be in excellent condition.

The men still had a hard job once the canoe was dug out — hauling it out of the swamp.
"It weighed about 600 to 700 pounds," Andrews recalled. "It was saturated with water. It wasn't easy getting it out of the hole, then we toted it 300 yards out of the swamp."

Once at Andrews' home, the men submerged the canoe in a farm pond for its protection until he makes the arrangements for its preservation.

Leslie B. Gregory Jr., an archeological contracting company operator, described it as "one of the best preserved examples of an early colonial dugout I've seen."

Gregory, who operates Archeology Associates, is making arrangements with the Mariners Museum in Newport News for help in preserving the boat.
Describing the process, he said it would mean slow drying for about six months.

The water is removed and replaced by a preserving material. Gregory said the wood is especially delicate during the preserving process and must be supported the entire time.

Gregory said the style indicates the canoe was made between 1750 and 1800. Though dugouts are generally considered Indian boats, they were also used by the early colonists well into the 19th century. A few were used in some sections of eastern Virginia as late as the 1930s.

A main difference between the dugouts of the Indians and the colonists is in the way they were made, Gregory said. The Indians burned a log, then scraped the burned material away with clam shells, stone knives or other instruments. The colonists used hand tools.

The canoe found by Andrews and his son shows the marks of an adz, and the ends were cleanly cut with a saw at about 45 degree angles.

The Indian canoes had rounded corners, while the edges of the gunwales of Andrews' boat are cut at about 90-degree angles.

Gregory said it was probably used by slaves. The white colonists usually used planked boats which they were more familiar with.

He described the canoe as a utility boat suitable for narrow rivers such as the Blackwater, and said it would be ideal for ventures such as night hunting.

Such canoes were not stable enough for large water bodies such as the James and other wide rivers, Gregory said.

It is 12½ feet long and 26 inches wide and can carry three people at the most.

Gregory said only about half a dozen other similar craft have been found in eastern Virginia and they are in poorer condition than the one found by Andrews and his son.

The canoe is the largest of hundreds of artifacts Andrews has found since he began collecting them about 10 years ago on his farm.

Real politician finds a way

BOSTON (AP) — Billy Galvin is a politician who knows how to pick a fight — with himself.

When voters go to the polls in Boston's 19th Suffolk District in November, they will have a choice between two candidates for the state Legislature — William F. Galvin and William F. Galvin.

Galvin decided to eliminate the competition early by running in both the Democratic and Republican primaries Tuesday. And he won both of them.

Galvin, a state representative from the Brighton neighborhood of Boston, was unopposed in the Democratic race. There were two candidates in the GOP contest, but Galvin entered that one, too, and won with 122 votes compared to 84 for Joan F. Kiley and 54 for J. Michael Marion.

Galvin said he has not decided whether to decline the Republican nomination and run unopposed in November or to try to beat his Republican alter ego.

"There's good news and bad news in these results," he commented. "The good news is that the two-party system is alive and well in Brighton. The bad news is that they both have the same nominee."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, September 21, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: In the next few months, a stabilizing trend will become evident in the areas of love, marriage and employment. Be extra sensitive to the hidden aspects of family relationships. A new career or business venture gives you the opportunity to match wits with the best of them. Do what you can to increase savings. An unusual investment could pay big dividends. Make sure that a strong drive to get to the top does not separate you from old friends.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Personal effort makes the big difference today. Ties with certain family members can be somewhat strained. Heated exchanges over political choices should be avoided if the evening is to be a happy one.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Short trips or visits with old friends are part of the day's plan. Relative may express interest in self-improvement activities. Share any helpful tips you have.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Hosting a small private gathering is apt to be much more than joining a huge crowd. A change of attitude enhances relationship with mate, spouse. A long-desired vacation may soon become a reality.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): All should go well today if you will guard against an emotional outburst. A newcomer has the knack of saying the right thing at the right time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A loyal friend may now need special assistance. Do not allow the pursuit of pleasure to prevent you from doing the right thing. A chance encounter could lead to a happy romantic interlude.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Refuse to meddle in the private affairs of other family members. Instead, relax and unwind. Tend to routine domestic chores while planning the ideal vacation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Try not to make any false moves today. More thought needs to be given to where a romance is leading. If you have doubts about a legal commitment, ask for additional time to think things through.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Family member expresses respect for your intellectual gifts. Money can be saved by paying cash today. Be careful not to take on more responsibility than you can comfortably handle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Family member may be struggling to make a far-reaching decision. Refuse to let a stranger's rudeness upset you. There is much to be done in the week just ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This is a time when some long-range plans must be made for the future. Being honest with yourself may be the first step towards resolving a domestic dilemma. Your life is entering an important new phase.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It will do a world of good if you can spend a quiet day with someone who shares your interests. Extend the olive branch to a difficult relative. An outdoor meal is pleasant, relaxing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An old mystery may be solved. Someone you thought indifferent is revealed as a true friend. Issue an invitation to a relative or neighbor who lives alone.

League refuses wax 'stand-in'

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Ronald Reagan and John B. Anderson huddled with aides Friday in preparation for their two-man weekend debate, a South Dakota wax museum operator offered the sponsoring League of Women Voters a wax statue of Jimmy Carter — the man who won't be there.

"The president will be represented at the debate," Tom Keller, owner of the museum, said with a straight face.

Maintaining he wasn't trying to embarrass the president, Keller, a registered Republican, said of the Carter statue: "He will look happy but he won't say anything."

A spokeswoman for the League of Women Voters said in Washington the League had received the offer from Keller, but that it would not accept a substitute for the president.

Neither Reagan nor Anderson planned any public appearances before the debate, although Carter — the president, not the statue — scheduled a Saturday night address in Chicago before an audience of Polish Americans.

Anderson, readying himself for the 10 p.m. EDT Sunday night face-off against Reagan, viewed videotapes of previous debates and listened to his staff pose questions like those he expects will be asked by the six-member panel in Baltimore.

Reagan, wearing a pullover shirt, studied briefing books and also reviewed likely questions with staff aides gathered at his rented Middleburg, Va., estate.

The Republican presidential candidate interrupted his debate preparation on Friday long enough to meet with five GOP senators anxious to publicize their battle with Democrats over the federal budget.

DEMOCRATIC congressional leaders are delaying final action on the budget resolution until after the Nov. 5 election, a move the Republicans charge is designed to avoid pre-election publicity about the fact the fiscal 1981 budget will contain a deficit the Republicans claim could run as high as $50 billion.

Anderson and Reagan planned to spend the weekend reading materials on each other's campaign statements, as well as on Carter's record. Both also planned to spend time relaxing to make sure they are rested Sunday night.

When exhausted, Anderson often appears cranky and contentious, and aides indicated they were hoping he can avoid that by making no public appearances in the days immediately preceding the nationally broadcast debate.

The hour-long event will be broadcast live by the CBS and NBC commercial television networks and by National Public Radio. The Public Broadcasting System plans to carry the event on a tape-delayed basis to its affiliate stations around the country.

WHILE STILL in Washington, Anderson met twice with aides who made suggestions on what he should say.

On Sunday, Anderson planned to drive to Baltimore in the early afternoon and find a pool where he hoped to have a long swim before going to the Civic Center.

Reagan plans to fly to Baltimore-Washington International airport by helicopter Sunday afternoon and then drive to a downtown hotel to rest up for the debate.

After the event, the former California governor plans to attend a rally for Reagan volunteers. Reagan leaves on Monday for a two-week campaign trip that includes stops in every section of the country.

IN OTHER campaign developments Friday: — Anderson joined Reagan in demanding that ABC, NBC and CBS provide free air time to reply to statements Carter made Thursday afternoon at the outset of his nationally broadcast news conference. Neither camp indicated it was ready to file a formal complaint with the Federal Communications Commission, however.

The networks were said to be studying the pleas by Reagan and Anderson. Carter had used the first four minutes of the news conference to outline progress that he said his administration was making on the foreign and domestic fronts.

— GOP vice presidential candidate George Bush, campaigning in Detroit, maintained the federal budget deficit would swell to $275 billion by the end of a second Carter term in the White House. At the same time, Bush said the budget would finish $73 billion in the black under a Reagan presidency by the end of fiscal 1985.

— Vice President Walter F. Mondale drew roaring applause when he told the Arkansas State Democratic Convention, "You know, you're inclination is to get tough and just cite the record of Mr. Reagan. But we shouldn't do that. He's had a very difficult month and deserves our sympathy."

— A federal appellate court ruled that Anderson has the right to have his name placed on the Nov. 4 general election ballot in North Carolina. Meanwhile, the Anderson campaign completed on Friday the process of gathering what officials said were sufficient signatures to have the congressman's name listed on the ballot in all 50 states.

Thirty-four states and the District of Columbia, with a total of 361 electoral votes, already have certified Anderson as a candidate.

— The secretary of state in Georgia certified that Edward Clark, the Libertarian Party candidate for president, has amassed enough signatures to be placed on the general election ballot in Carter's home state.

— Sen. Paul Laxalt, Reagan's national campaign manager, demanded that Carter apologize for waging a campaign of "innuendos and outright smears."

— Former Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, Anderson's running mate, said the independent candidate faces a

"Catch 22" situation because of claims by many people who say they would vote for the Anderson ticket if they believe the congressman is a viable candidate.

Two other Democrats also are challenging Fasi's bid for a fourth term, but polls indicate they have very limited support. The winner of the Fasi-Anderson battle is rated a tossup.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, one of Hawaii's most popular vote-getters, has only token opposition from two other Democrats.

Rep. Cecil Heftel faces the strongest challenge, from State Sen. Charles

High voter turnout expected in Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — Several heated local races, including one for the Democratic nomination for mayor of Honolulu, are expected to draw heavy voter turnouts in Hawaii's primary election Saturday.

The focus is on state and local races because none of the three members of Hawaii's congressional delegation seeking re-election is expected to have any problem in the primary.

Most attention has focused on the Honolulu mayoral race, where maverick incumbent Frank Fasi is being challenged by Eileen Anderson, a former state budget director who is running with the support of Democratic Gov. George Ariyoshi.

Two other Democrats also are challenging Fasi's bid for a fourth term, but polls indicate they have very limited support. The winner of the Fasi-Anderson battle is rated a tossup.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, one of Hawaii's most popular vote-getters, has only token opposition from two other Democrats.

Rep. Cecil Heftel faces the strongest challenge, from State Sen. Charles Campbell, but he is favored to win the Democratic nomination.

Two other prominent Democrats — Hawaii's junior senator, Spark Matsunaga, and Ariyoshi — are not up for re-election this year.

Hawaii formerly had a closed primary, but this year voters will not be required to declare a party preference. As a result of a 1978 constitutional amendment, voters' party preference will not be recorded or even known to precinct officials.

School will maintain nuclear weapons labs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Despite an emotional plea by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., the University of California regents voted Friday to continue the school's supervision of research at two of the nation's nuclear weapons laboratories.

The decision came on a 15 to 5 vote as anti-nuclear protesters demonstrated outside the meeting chambers.

Brown said he intends "to do everything in my power to separate the University of California from the nuclear weapons business."

The two nuclear weapons laboratories are located at Livermore, Calif., and Los Alamos, N.M.

Brown said the university is "basically a cover...the laboratories can do pretty well what they want free from university control, free from control by the president of the United States, high government officials or the Congress."

University president David Saxon accused Brown of "demagoguery," while regent John Henning said he was insulted by Brown's accusations.

The university has supervised the labs, and their forerunners, for half a century. During that time, they have been at the forefront of the nuclear bombs and sophisticated weaponry.

"The content of a university ought not to include the design of means of mass destruction," said Robert Sinsheimer of the University of California in Santa Cruz.

But supporters of the labs claim that the university performs a national service by operating them.

90-year-old rabbi says he's human with Jewish roots

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The rabbi is a happy man.
Last Memorial Day, the city blocked off streets for a carnival in his honor and the dedication of a square block of Wilshire Boulevard as Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin Square.
He was 90 years old on July 1, and is still speaking every Saturday at Wilshire Boulevard Temple, one of the largest Reformed Jewish congregations in the country.
His honors have included giving the invocation at President Richard Nixon's inauguration and participating in the dedication for practically every major building in the city. He helped found the Hollywood Bowl.
Magnin's life has been devoted to increasing understanding between Jews and non-Jews. The range of people at the celebration for him attested to his success at doing it.
He says his greatest accomplishment is "a love of people and the love they've had for me. I call myself a Jew-humanist: I'm a humanist with Jewish roots. If I've brought the community together, in an interfaith sense it was not done with that intent. If I have any top non-Jewish friends, it isn't because I went out to win them. I've been myself."
Magnin came to Los Angeles in 1915 with his wife, Evelyn, and the temple grew with the city.
"When I came here Los Angeles was already a tourist city," he said, "We would ride out to Pasadena and get oranges off the trees on the way out. The movie lots were really lots then. The Warner brothers were members of our temple. They gave the great paintings that hang there."

thank God for my life, that my mind is still fresh at 90. I thank God every morning when I hear the birds or look at the sun or get out of bed without trouble or pain.
Magnin says another secret to his ecumenicism is that "I think most people are decent, although we all have faults. But most people are happy. If it wasn't for misleadings, creating mobs and violence and hatred, most people would be all right."
But Magnin doesn't forget history or what he calls "man'sB3civilized nature."
"The future doesn't look good," he says. "We're right in the middle of a revolution that is destroying the values that has kept our civilization as such a civilization as it is — thrift, work, decency."
"Morality is just discipline, that keeps under control those primitive urges of envy, fear and hatred. We can't be perfect, but we can be civilized. Unless we can get ourselves back again, we'll just go down the road of all the other civilizations," is his prediction.
"I pray and I do what little I can to stem it. It has to do with inner values. You clean your own doorstep, then help the other fellow. Laws won't change things. Changes have to come from inside ourselves."

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Where did you get your wealth?

What are you so puffed up about? What do you have that God hasn't given you? And if all you have is from God, why act as though you are so great, and as though you have accomplished something on your own?
You seem to think you already have all the spiritual food you need. You are full and spiritually contented, rich kings on your thrones, leaving us far behind! I wish you really were already on your thrones, for when that time comes you can be sure that we will be there, too, reigning with you.
Sometimes I think God has put us apostles at the very end of the line, like prisoners soon to be killed, put on display at the end of a victor's parade, to be stared at by men and angels alike.
Religion has made us foolish, you say, but of course you are all such wise and sensible Christians! We are weak, but not you! You are well thought of, while we are laughed at.
To this very hour we have gone hungry and thirsty, without even enough clothes to keep us warm. We have been kicked around without homes of our own.
We have worked wearily with our hands to earn our living. We have blessed those who cursed us. We have been patient with those who injured us.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Church celebrates 30th anniversary

Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St., will celebrate its 30th anniversary Sunday with the Sunday school hour beginning at 9:30 a.m. being set aside to reminisce about the past.
Anniversary activities begin tonight at 6:30 with a reception. Former pastor John Clink and his wife will be present. The Sunday service which starts at 10:30 a.m. will be led by Clink, who is now pastor at Immanuel Baptist Church in Wichita, Kan., and John Bullock of Snyder, who is a former Bellview minister of music. A barbecue luncheon follows the service.
Bellview began as a mission serving Midland in the early part of 1950. Its first sanctuary was raised in a single day by a small army of carpenters, electricians, masons and laymen. Since that time Bellview has added educational buildings and built a new sanctuary.
All former members and friends of Bellview are invited to attend the anniversary celebration.

St. Luke's to hold Lay Academy

St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas St., will hold its Lay Academy beginning this Sunday at 6:30 p.m.
The courses will also be held on Sept. 28, Oct. 5 and 12 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The program begins with a dinner at 6 p.m. Child care will be provided.
The Lay Academy is an opportunity to advance education in areas not available in regular church programming. The courses have been designed to increase the intellectual and creative skills in a variety of fields.
The courses to be offered include photography, microwave cooking, obedience for dogs, beginning bridge, country and western dancing, beginning guitar, acts of the apostles and marriage enrichment. The courses are open to the public for a nominal fee. For more information call 694-2571.

St. Mark's offers Three D's

St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., is offering Session I of Diet, Discipline and Discipleship or Three D to those in the community who are interested in the 12-week session.
The class will meet one day a week during the morning on the day that most suits those who have signed up for the course. Guided by a leadership team of two, the main emphasis of the course is acquiring self-discipline.
The Three D diet plan is a food exchange plan which can be used to lose, gain or maintain weight. For more information about the group contact Donna Murphy at 694-5359, or Jill Arthur at 694-1346.

Church to show film Sunday

St. Paul's C.M.E. Church is presenting the film "Push for Excellence" Sunday at the Francis Kerr Community Center, 410 S. Tyler St.
The public is invited to attend. For more information call 682-0010, or 682-0080.

Ambassador Church holds revival

The Ambassador Assembly Church, which meets at 3838 W. Wall Ave. in the Colonial Room of the Affordable Inn, is holding a revival tonight and Sunday at 7:30 p.m.
The Rev. Randy Stewart of Houston is the special speaker. The public is invited to attend.

Woman's Day Program Sunday

The Macedonia Baptist Church, 201 S. Carver St., will hold its annual Woman's Day Program Sunday at 2:30 p.m. with Helen Kerr of Houston as the featured guest speaker.
Mrs. Kerr, a teacher in the Houston school system, attended the World Alliance held in Toronto, Canada. She has spoken at churches and convention throughout the state. The theme of her talk will be "Additives that Motivate Effective Ambassadors for Christ (II Cor. 5:20)."
The public is invited to attend.

Public invited to see fifth film

The public is invited to attend the 5th film in the series "Focus on the Family" at St. Ann's Catholic Church, Illinois and M streets, Monday at 7:15 p.m. and Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.
This week's segment concerns "Preparing for Adolescence: Peer Pressure and Sexuality."

Magnin's 65 years with the temple and as a community leader helped mold the Los Angeles of today. "I remember when they were giving chicken dinners to get people out to Wilshire and Fairfax," he reminisced. "We bought a lot in Beverly Hills and people said we were crazy. We were; we should have bought the whole block."

Magnin built a Spanish-style home on that lot that he has crammed with treasures from around the world, an ancient Torah from Spain, a scroll of the book of Esther from Germany, an old refectory table from Europe.
He hums as he roams through the tile-roofed house, telling about his grandmother who came to California on a mule train through the Isthmus of Panama. Magnin's grandfather was I. Magnin, the clothing retailer, and his uncle was Joseph Magnin, another well known clothier.

"I was smart to pick good ancestors, long-lived, and to pick the most outstanding congregation in the world, the Reformed Jewish," said Magnin attempting to explain his lifelong good fortune. "We are broad-minded, modern, American," he said, "but we have still retained the best of Jewish values."

"In 65 years I've been in this pulpit I never had an argument. There were never any problems. And I had good helpers." One of his aides, Rabbi Maxwell Dubin has been with him 55 years, the other for 31 years.

"We've never been in a position of having to worry about funds. I call it a blessing from God; I call everything a blessing from God," said Magnin. "I

NEW YORK (AP) — The young woman needed to know whether Robert Crossley's anti-snoring invention really worked. "If it does," she said, "I might get serious about the guy."
Another customer, a prison inmate, wrote that his cellmates had threatened to set his bunk on fire if he didn't stop snoring.
And a Connecticut man worried that if he didn't stop snoring before he died, "it'll take the undertaker three days to quiet me down."

About 35 million Americans — the American Medical Association estimates the number at one in every eight persons, evenly divided between men and women — "saw logs" regularly and enthusiastically.
Letting off sleep, as snoring has been euphemistically termed, can be a sign of serious medical problems, but is generally not considered abnormal, doctors say.

In fact, some of history's more noted snorers include Beau Brummell, Cato the Elder and U.S. presidents such as George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt.

Some people claim their mates' snoring is a most comforting sound, and Irish playwright George Farquhar, circa 1700, hailed the snorer's various snuffles, chirrs, buzzes, zips, pops and wheezes as "The tuneful serenade of that wakeful nightingale, the nose."

But snoring can be a real problem for roommates, husbands and wives, brothers and sisters and sometimes even neighbors whose sleep is shattered by a blissful lumberjack of the night.
The complainers have a point: tests in London concluded that a hearty snore can reach a noise level of 69 decibels. Some jackhammers are quieter.

"He snored so loud," 18th-century satirist Jonathan Swift once wrote of a fellow traveler, "that we thought he was driving his hogs to market."

More recently, David Reed of Seattle learned that two tenants in his apartment building had moved out because of his snoring. He was not surprised.
Reed, 38, ruefully recalled that once, after snoring through a night in a barn during a church outing, "Someone thought it was a tractor."
Snoring is caused by vibrations of the soft palate, tongue and other muscles in the mouth as air is inhaled. Drinking, smoking, obesity, congestion, loose dentures, tension and lack of exercise can contribute to snoring, as can more serious medical problems such as enlarged tonsils and adenoids, oral and nasal deformities, nasal polyps, allergies and inflamed sinuses.

Dr. Phillip Green of the sleep disorders clinic at the Marshfield (Wis.) Clinic said snoring can also be a sign of a dangerous condition called sleep apnea.
Apnea is caused by a deformity that makes the sleeper stop breathing for anywhere from 20 seconds to two minutes several times an hour. It can be successfully treated by a tracheotomy, making an incision in the wind-pipe.

Advice columnist Ann Landers tells wives of snorers to sew ping pong balls to the backs of their husbands' pajamas to discourage them from sleeping on their backs.
A similar ploy was used 200 years ago when snoring colonial soldiers were ordered to do the same thing with musket balls so their comrades could get enough rest to fight the Revolutionary War.

But what about people who snore in any position? Or don't wear pajamas? Ann Landers admits the ping pong ball method is only about 50 percent effective.

It's still better, however, than some other methods, such as the bicycle horn a woman tried to get her husband to strap on so he would toot himself awake when he snored.

Like alcoholism, the snorer's biggest battle may be admitting he or she does rattle the roof. Tape recordings sometimes work, if the snorer doesn't protest. "That can't be me!"

Churchgoers will be paid a dollar for their troubles

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Churchgoers here will be paid a dollar for their troubles Sunday.

"We wanted to try something different," said Lawrence Luescher, vice president of the church council of the Lutheran Church of Peace. "As far as we know, nobody has ever been paid for going to church. We're hoping to attract people who might decide to come regularly and might even become members of the church."
The 90-year-old church has 230 members, and Luescher said the average Sunday attendance is 120.
The dollar giveaway is for this Sunday only.

Corporation offers $100 million

NEW YORK (AP) — An unidentified corporation has offered to pay St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church $100 million for the site of the Byzantine-style landmark on Park Avenue in what would be the most expensive land purchase in city history.

Church officials disclosed the offer Thursday, saying it might be months before they decide whether to sell the 50,000-square-foot site along the fashionable avenue. If they accept the offer, it would be the highest price ever paid for land in the city — about $2,000 a square foot.

Those familiar with real estate in New York have said they assume the prospective buyer, described by church officials as a "very prestigious American corporation," wants to demolish the 60-year-old church to construct an office building. That, however, would entail complicated and protracted proceedings before the city's Landmarks Preservation Commission.

The sale also would require the permission of the Rev. Paul Moore, bishop of New York's Episcopal Diocese, and the diocese's standing committee. Bishop Moore said Thursday he had "not even come to terms" with the idea.

In disclosing the offer, Marc Haas, senior warden for the church, said it caused the church "serious problems" because, like most such institutions, "we are suffering from the effects of inflation. It's a lot of money."

The prospective buyer also had made an alternate proposal to buy a portion of the site along 50th Street on which the parish house stands, Haas said. The church warden didn't disclose what price, if any, had been put on that site.

The second proposal would involve the purchase of the smaller area and the lease of air rights at a suggested rental of $7-per-foot-per-year with an escalation clause, he added.

Under city law, the church could be sold for demolition only if church officials establish hardship and no other buyer could be found to preserve the building.

The landmarks commission could then recommend that the city condemn and acquire the property. After three months, the city either would have to pay for the property or permit its sale and demolition.

The church, directly north of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, was designed in 1919 by Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue. Goodhue also designed St. Thomas' Church on Fifth Avenue at 53rd Street.

St. Bartholomew's Park Avenue entrance porch was a gift from the Cornelius Vanderbilt family. The porch was designed by McKim, Mead and White and the church's doors were sculpted by Daniel Chester French.

Church leaders form information bank

HOUSTON (AP) — Vowing to retake "what the liberals and the humanists took from us," fundamentalist leaders have formed a Christian "information bank" of political candidates and where they stand on issues.

"The liberals for years have been organized. They've got fulltime representatives in Washington. We just need to get organized," said Jay Leggett, a member of Houston's Cornerstone Church.

"It's a lot of time, but saving America is worth it," Leggett on Thursday told 75 church leaders and laymen of the work required to register Christians and get them to the polls.

The one-day seminar followed a "National Affairs Briefing" last month in Dallas urging Christians to vote against candidates who support abortion, rights for homosexuals and the Equal Rights Amendment.

Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan addressed more than 16,000 people attending the two-day Dallas conference and endorsed their efforts.

"This is nothing new," said the Rev. John McDonald, pastor of the First Baptist Church of North Shore. "We are just retaking what the liberals and humanists took from us."

We believe that taking communion in memory of our Christ is one of the most precious times of worship. Jesus commanded us to do this. (1 Corinthians 11:24) The early Christians observed the Lord's Supper every Lord's Day. (Acts 2:42; 20:7) Therefore, we do also.

California family never worries over utility bills

By CHARLES HILLINGER
The Los Angeles Times

MIDDLETOWN, Calif. — Anna and Homer Peterson don't worry about utility bills. They never get any.

Yet, their home has all the electric conveniences — television, lights, refrigerators, stove, power tools, water heater, blankets.

The Peterson home has had electricity since 1907 and in the ensuing 73 years the family has never had to pay a single utility bill.

Water takes care of everything and also supplies them with excellent fire protection.

"My dad put in a hydroelectric power system in 1907 and it has been working like a charm ever since," says Peterson, 70, a retired chemist.

The couple lives on a 600-acre ranch five miles by dirt road from Middletown, 100 miles north of San Francisco.

Their house is a rustic old structure built by Peterson's grandfather in 1887. On the slopes above are two reservoirs that are fed by springs and runoff water.

A 1,300-foot-long pipe leads from the reservoirs to the ranch house; the last 300 feet are a vertical drop.

"That drop exerts 140 pounds of pressure on the water wheel, which generates all the electricity we need," said Peterson.

The water wheel is encased in a housing flanked by two Model T Ford flywheels that provide surge — driving the generator.

"My dad and I added improvements to the homemade hydroelectric system but basically it's the same setup dad built when he got tired of candlelight in 1907," the rancher said.

After the water spins the water wheel and generates electricity for the ranch, it continues through pipes, irrigating the Peterson's vegetable gardens, vineyards and orchards.

Three generations of Petersons have run cattle on their spread — "but only a few head, just enough to keep us in milk and beef," Peterson said. "That's why we call the place Una Vaca Ranch — Spanish for One Cow Ranch."

The Petersons are self-sufficient in many ways. They have a cellar filled with jars of juices, fruit, vegetables, jams and jellies grown and put up by Anna Peterson, a retired schoolteacher.

Hanging from the walls of the veranda on the old house are dozens of antlers from deer shot by five generations of Petersons.

"All of the deer were shot as a food source for the family over the years," said Peterson.

"Sometimes we forget what's going on down the mountain. We have our own existence up here," Anna Peterson added.

"We live the quiet life. Our nearest neighbor is 2 1/2 miles down the mountain. It's a simple but comfortable existence — a life without utility bills."

Store travels through hills, hollows

By BRYNA BRENNAN

RENICK, W. Va. (AP) — Hale Arbuckle's journey begins shortly before daybreak, when his traveling store lurches onto the winding roads that will carry him through the hills and hollows of Greenbrier County.

For 31 years, Arbuckle has sold his wares — groceries, meat, fruit, feed, produce and hardware — from the back of a converted two-ton truck, to residents who depend on his weekly trip.

"It's a service that I just sort of stumbled onto" the 53-year-old Arbuckle said. "My father-in-law, he started it back in 1938 when he saw a traveling store somewhere. And it never did stop."

The trips take him up Droop Mountain, Butler Mountain and Spring Creek, places where homes sit a mile in from the mailbox, nine or more miles from the valley floor.

On one recent day, a woman in hair curlers flanked by two children and a dog waited in front of a big gray farmhouse, watching as Arbuckle maneuvered his unmarked truck to the side of the road.

"I've known some of these people 20, maybe 30 years," he said, as he edged from the driver's seat and ambled to the back to open his store for business. He unlatched the sliding doors and pulled himself up inside.

"Good morning," Arbuckle greeted the woman as she reached up and handed him a handwritten shopping list. She watched as he juggled the cardboard boxes and crates with ease, bending and reaching for the goods.

As the items — dog food, snuff, soft drinks, cookies — were packed, Arbuckle peered over his glasses and rang each on an adding machine sitting on a built-in counter.

He handed her a receipt. "Most of the people that I trade with run a credit business and pay by the end of the month," Arbuckle said as he turned the truck up a hill toward the next stop.

The scene is repeated 30 or so times, three times a week, along three different routes that take him about 90 miles from his Lewisburg home, north into Pocahontas County.

His store is packed with the usual food staples, and he keeps a book filled with customer requests, such as out-of-state newspapers, particular cuts of meat or a special type of feed or fertilizer.

"I don't know what we'd do without you, Hale," one customer said as Arbuckle unloaded the week's supplies.

The slightly stout man with graying hair has become something of a hero in the lush rolling hills of eastern West Virginia, but he doesn't see it that way. He says he's just following his calling.

"I'm a Christian and I serve the Lord," Arbuckle said, stroking the stubble of a new beard. "I don't see myself as a businessman. As long as the Lord gives me the health and the finances, well, I'll do it."

The hours are long, maybe 14 a day "by the time you get the book work done," he said. "I'm not concerned with making money. To some people it may seem silly, maybe stupid."

"I get up at 4 a.m. People depend on me. I can't be sick. If I feel bad I go anyway. I've gone sometimes when I feel terrible."

And save for a flood and some bad snows years back, Arbuckle said he's never missed a trip.

He drove to the next stop, where a wheelbarrow holding a cardboard box sat along an isolated narrow road. Inside the box was a shopping list. Arbuckle filled the order and placed the box laden with goods back in the wheelbarrow.

At the next stop, he hoisted a box of goods onto his shoulder and carried it to the door of an elderly woman.

Over the years, Arbuckle has become part of the lives of his customers. He's watched as local youngsters grow up and leave, seeking the city life. At the same time, he said, newcomers seeking refuge from the urban Northeast have moved to the county.

"Things have changed around here," he said. "Back a few years we didn't sell milk. Everybody had a cow. Now I sell 130 gallons of milk a week."

Quite simply, no one knows more about tuning up your Honda than your Honda dealer.

With the way gasoline prices are today, your car should be as fuel-efficient as possible. A smart start is keeping your Honda finely tuned. And, if you're really smart, you'll choose a Honda dealer to do it.

Because he knows your car inside and out. And if something needs replacing, he's got genuine Honda parts. Ask for them.

Remember. No one knows your Honda like your Honda dealer.

Feldt does it all as Pack whips Plainsmen

Devils strike in 2nd half for win

RANKIN—Rankin, held without a first down in the first half, struck for two Terry Turner touchdowns in the second half to beat McCamey's Badgers, 17-13, and win the battle of unbeaten and the Upton County championship in the process.

Bulldogs notch 2nd win, 33-21

The Lubbock Monterey Plainsmen had an encounter of the third kind at Memorial Stadium Friday night, or at least, you will have a hard time convincing the Plainsmen that Midland High quarterback Michael Feldt is of this earth.

FELDT rushed for 178 yards on 16 carries, completed seven of 12 passes for 140 more yards for a total offensive showing of 318 yards. He scored twice, once on a belly option for 65 yards that broke the game open, 26-14, and the other from a yard out with two seconds left in the game for the final margin.

the Dogs marched 66 yards again as Feldt passed for 14 to Yocham, gained 39 yards on the belly option and hit Bledsoe for the 39-yard bomb. MHS then led 20-14.

Scoring: Lubbock Monterey 0-14-0-7-21; Midland High 7-0-13-13-33. MHS-Scott Yocham, 11-yard run (Hank McClung kick).

TV station gets OK to carry Irish

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — The local television station that has carried University of Notre Dame football home games for 25 years can broadcast the games live this season, the National Collegiate Athletic Association says.

Klondike comes back to spoil Ranger upset bid

GREENWOOD—For most of two periods, Greenwood High fans had visions of an upset as the underdog Rangers took a 14-0 lead on potent Klondike here Friday night, but the Cougars came to life just before half and finally won it in the final period, 20-14.

converting for a 14-0 Greenwood lead. Klondike, bouncing back from a loss to Plains, scored as time ran out in the first half when quarterback Mike Arizmendez hit Todd Airhart with a 20-yard touchdown pass.

Rebs defense Dogs, 16-12

PLAINVIEW—Defense still wins lots of football games. Coach Spike Dykes' Midland Lee Rebels scored 16 points in the first half and then held on to half a furious Plainview Bulldog rally in the second half to post a 16-12 victory here Friday night.

pass from Corley to Kenneth Hardison on the one. Lee was out of timeouts and miss-fired on three cracks into the line from the one as the clock ran out.

Bulldog coffin to seal the win. Leading rusher for Lee was Riggs with 63 yards in 16 carries while Brown had 79 yards in 18 for the Bulldogs.

Permian posts easy triumph

ODESSA — The Odessa Permian Panthers remained among the list of unbeaten football teams here Friday night with a sound 16-0 blanking of Fort Worth's Wyatt.

Lions devour Bobcats

SAN ANGELO—Quarterback Tim Oehrelin passed for three touchdowns as Brownwood's Lions feasted on the San Angelo Bobcats, 37-6, here Friday night.

Bufs defense snuffs out Cranes, 24-0

STANTON—Stanton's Buffaloes scored 24 points, but it was an awesome defense display that stole the show in a 24-0 win over the Crane Golden Cranes here Friday night.

Madrid holes out 175-yard eagle

By Rex Worrell, Hogan Park Golf Pro

There were no aces reported this week, so a double-eagle will have to do. Jesse Madrid holed out a two iron from 175 yards out on the 445-yard par five No. 4 hole at Hogan Park.

tunnel in the ground made by certain animals, such as rabbits, moles, groundhogs, and prairie dogs for shelter and habitation, thus a "burrowing animal" is an animal that makes a hole in which it may live.

There is no free relief under the rules from holes made by dogs or other non-burrowing animals unless such areas are defined as ground under repair by the Committee under Definition 13.

The nine-hole division of the Hogan Park Women's Golf Association held a Scotch Twosome event with Rita Boe & Jean Connor taking first place and Nancy Cox and Barbara Larsen runnersup.

Dorothy Huchton, Wilma Allenson, Jane Gill, Gerry Feasire, Jeanne Allen, Carol Gillette, Nancy Cox, Rita Boe, Joan Dunn, Betty Cope, Marge Cardwell, Dorothy Lee Cook, Ruby Pennington, Frances Schmitt, Mary Davis, Margaret Moore, Ginny Piette, Lois Guthrie, Peggy Matina, Peggy Parkins, Barbara Larsen, Jean Schuller, Rosa Lee Neiberger

The 18-hole division will hold a general meeting and then make their own pairings for a Most Pairs event Thursday.

Stealthy Rogers takes one stroke Texas lead

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bill Rogers, known as "The Panther" because of his nervous energy, fired a 67 Friday and took the lead after two rounds of the $250,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

Rogers finished 36 holes without a bogey to lead the pack with nine-under-par 131, but four other golfers were bunched one stroke back at eight-under 132.

Former Texas Open winners Terry Diehl and Hale Irwin, second-year player Mark McCumber, who carded the lowest 18-hole score of 63 Friday, and veteran Fuzzy Zoeller were poised one stroke back of the leader entering Saturday's third round over the 6,525-yard, par 70 Oaks Hills Country Club course.

Rogers, who set a PGA record in 1979 by winning $230,500 last year without winning a tournament, expressed confidence he would finish high in the tournament in which he captured second place a year ago.

"There's no reason in the world I can't go out there and shoot eight under par the next two days," said the former University of Houston golfer.

"I'm going to have to play aggressively the next two days. There's no reason to back off."

Also in the thick of things were Bob Murphy and Lee Trevino, both of them seven-under par 133.

Trevino, by making the cut, virtually clinched the coveted Vardon Trophy for the lowest stroke average on the tour, edging out superstar Tom Watson, although two tournaments remain.

Hamlin, Moxness share women's golf lead

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — First-round leader Shelley Hamlin rallied with a birdie on the 18th hole Friday to tie Barbara Moxness for the lead after two rounds of a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Quarterback gets green light

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A state appellate court ruled Friday that University of Illinois quarterback David Wilson can play in Saturday's football game against Missouri.

The ruling, which came 20 hours before the Saturday afternoon kickoff at Columbia, Mo., overturns Wednesday's ruling at Champaign by a circuit court judge, which had left Wilson ineligible for the Big Ten football contest.

The Big Ten Conference has claimed Wilson has not made enough academic progress since transferring from a junior college.

BOWLING BEAT

By RANDY ISENBERG

Jim Ledbetter opened play in the Air Park Classic Scratch League with a 673 series to pace bowlers reporting scores this past week.

Nancy Martin with a 215 game and 585 series was high for the women.

Jo Stewart's 234 game was the top game for the women while Choy Young's 258 was the high game reported among the men.

Dave Smelzer was proud of his wife Mary, who bowled her personal high game of 269 and a 547 series. The 269 turned out to be the overall high game reported.

If you are not getting your scores reported to the Bowling Beat, please check with your league secretary. You may offer to assist this very busy league officer and take over the duties as publicity director of your league and see that your league scores get turned in.

We depend on you to get us information so that we don't leave anyone out. Contact me if you have questions as to what is a newsworthy item at 683-4683 or 684-7926.

Aussie yacht defeats Freedom

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Australia, skipped by Jim Hardy, charged from behind on the last leg of the race and defeated the U.S. yacht Freedom Friday to become the first foreign yacht to capture a finals heat in 10 years in the America's Cup series.

Hardy, who scored this decade's only other victory over a defending U.S. yacht, held the lead most of the race, lost it on the fifth leg, but in the dimming light of evening guided his boat expertly past Freedom on the final leg to win one of the closest America's Cup races in history.

Not since Hardy skipped Gretel 2 to a 1 minute, 2 second victory over Intrepid on Sept. 24, 1970, has the United States lost an America's Cup race.

Campbell in finals

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Defending champion Bill Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., and 1978 champion Keith Compton of San Antonio, Texas reached the final of the U.S. Senior Amateur golf championship Friday.

Campbell advanced with a 3 and 2 semifinal victory over Dr. Ed Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz., while Compton defeated Edwin Hopkins of Whitney, Texas, 4 and 3.

MHS spikers lose

DENVER CITY — Flat after a Thursday night loss to Big Spring in a District 5-A match, Midland High's girls volleyball team lost to Crane 15-7, 15-6 in the first round of the Denver City Tournament Friday, giving the Bulldogs an 8-6 record for the season.

Steelers' Bradshaw really embarrassed at attention

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For a man who doesn't like the limelight, Terry Bradshaw has reached uncomfortable heights in his profession.

"I get embarrassed when people put you on a pedestal and make a fuss about you and make you out to be something you're not," he said. "I don't like crowds, and I get uncomfortable when people stare. My natural inclination is to hide and stay secluded."

Everyone in the world may not recognize his face, but Bradshaw's name is prominent in the annals of professional football.

He has quarterbacked the Pittsburgh Steelers to a record four Super Bowl championships and has been called the best at his position in the National Football League.
