Production

hike announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia, the main supplier of foreign oil to the United States, has decided to increase its oil production and to try to get other major oil-producing nations to follow suit in response to the Iran-Iraq war, according to a published report here.

Saudi Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal told the Washington Post that his country's action was being taken in an effort to insulate the international petroleum market from the effects of the war. Both Iran and Iraq are major oil producers, turning out a combined total of some 3½ million barrel of crude oil a day prior to the outbreak of war.

Bus overturns

WEST POINT, Miss. (AP) — A school bus overturned in a collision with a car Friday night, injuring 34 members of a high school band who were on their way to a football game, state police said.

No one was seriously injured, said Charles Crum, band director at West Point High School.

The wreck occurred on Miss. 8 in Chickasaw County. The band was on its way to a football game in Grenada, about 70 miles west of West Point.

Iranian arrested

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — An Iranian national was held on $1 million bond Friday after federal agents foiled an alleged plot to bomb an anti-Khomeini meeting at San Jose State University, authorities said.

U.S. Magistrate Nordin Blacker set the bail for Naser Rahimi Almanneth, 28, who was described as a member of an anti-Khomeini group, the Iranian Free Army.

Cubans transferred

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — The transfer of unaccompanied Cuban refugees from Fort McCoy, Wis., to Fort Chaffee was completed Friday after 840 refugees arrived on a stepped-up schedule of six flights.

State Department spokesman Van Rush said the increased number of arrivals caused no security or processing problems. Flights from Fort McCoy had been bringing between 200 and 500 refugees a day to the consolidated relocation center here.

Anderson endorsed

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami News Friday endorsed independent John B. Anderson for president, saying the choice for president doesn't have to be between a "vacillating moderate of modest ability" and an "extreme conservative whose vision and knowledge in critical areas" is limited.

"The choice for president need not be limited to someone officially sanctioned by the Democratic or Republican Party..." the editorial said.

Some economic improvement seen in 'new' figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported new signs of improvement in the economy on Friday, with a slight decline in the unemployment rate and the first drop in wholesale prices in 4½ years — a dip resulting from a change in the Labor Department's computation methods.

Department officials said the 0.2 percent drop in wholesale prices during September was based partly on discounts for cars and trucks at the end of the model year, a seasonal factor that has not been considered previously.

If that factor had not been introduced, wholesale prices would have shown an increase of 0.4 percent last month, still a slowdown of the sharp increases reported in July and August, said Janet Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics.

The reports — the last on unemployment and wholesale prices before the Nov. 4 election — were considered likely to buoy President Carter's reelection hopes. The White House issued a statement saying Carter was pleased by the latest economic figures.

"The fight against inflation is far from over, and the economic recovery is still in its early stages," the statement said. "But the president believes that today's economic data, and those of the last several months, indicate that his economic policies are working...."

The Labor Department said the unemployment rate dipped to 7.5 percent in September, down from 7.6 percent in August and the lowest since April, when it was 7 percent. The September jobless rate showed the second consecutive monthly decline and strengthened previous indications that the recession is bottoming out.

Meanwhile, in a sign inflation might be cooling, wholesale prices dropped 0.2 percent in September, reversing the sharp increases of 1.7 percent in July and 1.5 percent in August, according to a separate Labor Department report.

It was the first reported drop in wholesale prices since a 0.3 percent decline in February 1976. Wholesale prices for the past 12 months have risen 12.3 percent, however.

The Labor Department refers to its wholesale prices report as the Producer Price Index for finished goods, which surveys items ready for sale at retail, such as an assembled car. The department also measures prices for goods at an intermediate stage, such as rolled steel, and at a crude stage, such as iron ore.

The Producer Price Index stood at 248.9 in September, meaning that it cost $248.90 last month for a basket of goods and services that cost $100 in the 1967 base period.

The September price decline was largely attributed to a sudden drop in food prices, a continued reduction in energy prices, including gasoline and heating fuel, and discounts for cars and trucks at the end of the model year — the factor not considered previously.

"This is absolutely the correct price," Ms. Norwood said, denying that the change, coming one month before the presidential election, was politically motivated. "It's unfortunate that it (the change) came now."

She said the change actually was planned more than a year ago, but noted it had a more dramatic effect than any previously made in methods of determining the government statistics.

Changes in wholesale prices are normally reflected several months later in the prices consumers pay for goods.

"I think we have certainly stopped going down and we have evidence that the economy is improving," Ms. Norwood said.

Four killed in bombing of Paris synagogue

PARIS (AP) — A powerful bomb exploded in front of a synagogue in the heart of the city on the Jewish sabbath Friday night, killing at least four people and injuring 12 in the latest outbreak of anti-Semitism in Paris.

The blast overturned cars, damaged five buildings and shattered windows for blocks, officials said. They said the fatalities included two motorcyclists, a pedestrian and a person driving in a car. None of the victims appeared to have any connection with the synagogue. Seven of the injured were in serious condition, officials said.

Police said the bomb was placed in a parked car outside the Union Liberal Israelite synagogue, located in the city's fashionable 16th district and not far from the Arc de Triomphe.

Two suspects were arrested nearby. Police refused comment on the arrests.

The explosion occurred while sabbath services were going on inside the temple, located at 24 Rue Copernic.

Jean-Pierre Pierre-Bloch, a leader of the Paris Jewish community, said the bomb apparently had been timed to go off when the services ended. "If the bomb had worked like the assassins wanted it to, there could have been 100 deaths because people were just getting ready to leave the temple," Bloch said.

It was the sixth attack against Jewish institutions or memorials in Paris within a week. There were no injuries in any of the previous attacks.

"It is unforgivable," French Chief Rabbi Jacob Kaplan said. "The Jewish community cannot stand by and let these kinds of attacks go on."

Pierre-Bloch said the explosion signaled a growing neo-Nazi and fascist movement in Europe.

"First it was Bologna and then Munich," he said. "I said Paris would be the next city to be hit and people called me an alarmist. Now look what's happened."

"I want to cry with rage," Pierre-Bloch said. "But I urge the Jewish community to remain calm."

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing denounced the "odious attack" and called on police to do everything to catch those responsible.

Appeals amendment pushed by Clements, two top jurists

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — If Texans seriously want to do something about crime, they will vote Nov. 4 for a constitutional amendment changing the appeal system, Gov. Bill Clements and two top jurists said Friday.

Constitutional Amendment No. 8 would enable the 14 courts of civil appeals to handle criminal cases, freeing the Court of Criminal Appeals for major legal issues and death penalty cases.

The amendment would spread the task of deciding most appeals of criminal convictions among about 60 judges instead of only nine under the current system that sends all cases directly to the Court of Criminal Appeals.

"If people want criminal justice speeded, now is the time to get away from a slow crawl in criminal appeals to a speedy disposition of criminal matters," said Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court.

Greenhill said appeals typically take three to four years after conviction, "and this certainly does not act as a deterrent to crime."

Persons sentenced to less than 15 years can remain free on bond while their appeals are processed and decided; those with longer sentences or who cannot afford bail start serving time.

Judge Truman Roberts of the Court of Criminal Appeals said the court's workload in terms of new appeals filed each year increased from 1,057 cases in 1971 to 3,166 in 1979.

Although voters enlarged the court from three to nine members several years ago, "that didn't even keep us up with the cases filed, much less reduce the caseload," he said.

Clements noted that 14 new judges would be needed to help the intermediate "courts of appeals" with their added load of criminal cases. He said the Legislature should not delay creation of the judgeships past Sept. 1, 1981.

"Decisions by the courts of appeals should be rendered in a relatively short time after they are submitted on appeal — within a few months rather than a few years," the governor said.

Clements said he favored the amendment, while Roberts said he opposed it, telling Clements it simply would add to the Court of Criminal Appeals' workload.

A Hopeful campaign

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Bob Hope launched his presidential campaign at Texas A&M Friday because "no other candidate has ever done it here."

Hope said Johnny Carson will deliver his nominating speech and a bevy of stars — including campaign manager Tony Randall, media specialist Angie Dickinson and dirty trickster Paul Lynde — will be working to elect the veteran comedian.

Tune in to NBC Oct. 28 for details on his platform and running mate, he said.

Portions of his A&M visit are tentatively included in the two-hour "Bob Hope for President" special, press agent Ward Grant said. Hope was visiting the campus for a performance kicking off the Aggie-Texas Tech football weekend.

Hope opened his presidential campaign by taking a swipe at the incumbent.

"There's only one difference between Jimmy Carter and Billy," he said, "and that is that Billy has got a foreign policy."

Candidates court judges, religious broadcasters' group

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

In a jab at Ronald Reagan and the platform he is running on, President Carter said Friday he will never appoint judges on the basis of whether they hold "beliefs on someone's list of so-called right attitudes."

Carter told a group of female judges that "I am concerned, as are many of you, that some groups around the country are attempting to set up ideological eligibility tests for judges."

Reagan, whom the president did not mention by name, coincidentally was meeting with some representatives of a religious element that is among the most vocal in demanding that new judges be opposed to abortion.

Meanwhile, John B. Anderson, in California, told reporters he can win the presidency on Nov. 4 if he succeeds in borrowing enough money to buy television time. But he conceded he has not yet completed negotiations with a group of banks.

Reagan, back in his Virginia campaign home after a 17-state trip, met with the National Religious Broadcasters Association at Liberty Baptist College. That school is headed by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, founder of the Moral Majority, a church-oriented group that encourages fundamentalist Christians to become active in politics.

Arriving in Lynchburg, Va., Reagan was asked if he shares the view — attributed to Falwell — that the Lord only hears the prayers of those redeemed through faith in Christ.

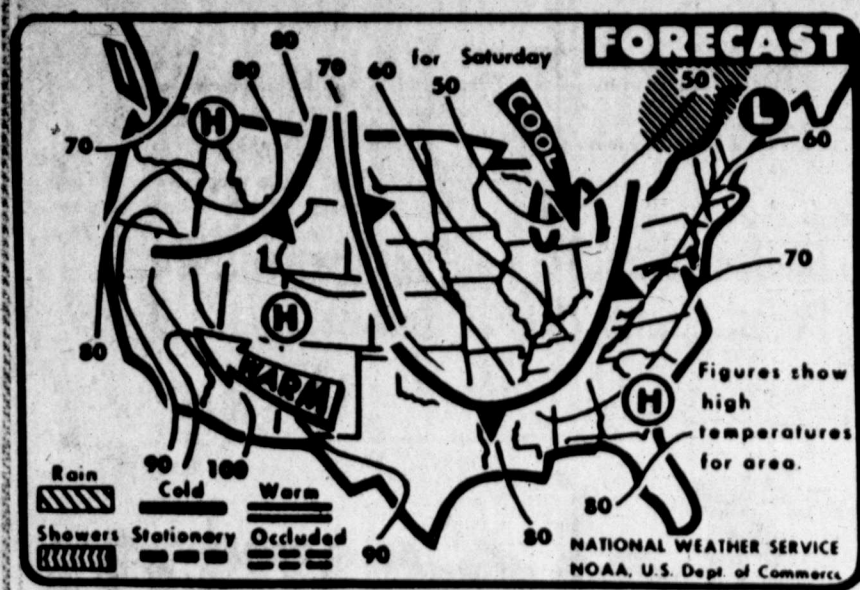

"No," he replied. "Since both the Christian and Judaic religions are based on the same God, the God of Moses, I'm quite sure those prayers are heard. I guess everyone can make his own interpretation of the Bible."

"Many individuals have been making differing interpretations for a long time," Reagan added.

The former California governor and his running mate, George Bush, will receive a Carter administration briefing at Reagan's rented home in Middleburg, Va., Saturday on the war between Iraq and Iran. Reagan rejected earlier offers for general foreign intelligence briefings.

Mortgage loans to be offered

Applications will be accepted Thursday

By ED TODD Staff Writer

The homefront is beginning to radiate renewed hope for Midland Countians looking for a home of their own.

That hope loomed Friday afternoon, when the Midland County Housing Finance Corp. board of directors announced that $21.6 million in residential mortgage loans at 10% percent interest will be offered to applicants beginning at 8 a.m. Thursday at Midland College's Chaparral Center.

The program will be open to applicants "until the funds run out" or until the one-year cut-off date arrives, noted Harry Clark, president of the corporation's board of directors.

The offering followed weeks of a limbo-state for the home-mortgage banks, as the corporation had been banking on a U.S. Congress-approved tax-exempt status for the "rich" buyers of the initially-proposed $40 million in bonds the corporation was hoping to sell via its underwriter, Howard, Weil, Labouisse, Friedrichs Inc. of New Orleans.

But, due to opposition by Congressman Al Ullman, who had tacked on a rider to the budget bill to nix any tax-loophole for the bond buyer and the politically-inspired reluctance of the Congress to act on the budget bill prior to the Nov. 4 general election, the tax-exempt status died.

"WE HAVE BEEN ADVISED THAT this thing (home-mortgage loan program) will not fly" if the bonds don't get tax-exempted, Durward Wright, corporation board member said on Sept. 12 when the program was getting deeper and deeper into limbo.

By then, though, the underwriters had sold or placed about $19 million in bonds on speculation that the tax-exempt status would be granted.

"It wasn't, but the underwriters and the corporation persisted in selling the bonds to private investors.

"I'm kind of proud of our underwriters," Wright said Friday, "and am proud of three of our banks which have purchased a block (of bonds)."

"The underwriter is taking a calculated risk," said Clark. "We would have fallen flat without their cooperation," said Don Hellinghausen, corporation vice president.

The three Midland banks which purchased a block of bonds are The First National Bank of Midland, The Midland National Bank and Commercial Bank & Trust Co., but Clark declined to affix the amount purchased by the banks.

CLARK ALLOWED that an unidentified but "major national insurance company" bought a $6 million block. "The people who bought the bonds may not get the tax exempt."

Ullman, chairman of the U.S. House's Ways and Means Committee and an Oregon Democrat who is seeking re-election, reportedly opposed the tax-exempt bond because he figured it was a "loophole for the rich — the people who are buying the bonds," Wright noted on Sept. 12. Too, Ullman was making an attempt to balance the deficit-laden federal budget.

Regardless of that, Hellinghausen had noted that the home-mortgage loan program would "benefit the moderate- and low-income people" in Midland County.

Approximately 400 Midland County households may start to realize benefit from the program Thursday, when heads of households line up to apply for the 10% percent-interest loans for single-family housing, duplexes and limited condominium units. The program covers houses yet to be built, those under construction and existing housing.

COMMERCIAL interest rates are about 13% percent — three percentage points above the "discounted" rate of the corporation's program.

Each family or individual seeking the conventional loans must meet certain conditions at the time of applications Thursday or within a year thereafter until the funds are exhausted. Those conditions include:

— 1979 adjusted gross income not to exceed $40,000 per household and proof substantiated by the 1979 federal income tax return and W-2 form.

— Housing purchasing agreement executed on or after Sept. 15, 1980.

— Five percent downpayment on the purchase price of the house.

— Apply for a loan not to exceed a maximum of $90,000 for a single-family or duplex residence. Houses must be owner-occupied.

Twenty-five percent of the funds will be reserved for 90 days for low-income households — those whose adjusted gross income does not exceed $20,000.

THE PROGRAM APPLIES to those living in rural Midland County or in the city.

Applications for the loans will be taken by representatives of two savings and loans associations and by two mortgage companies. Those lenders and the amounts of funds they are being allowed to loan are Citizen Savings & Loan Association, $8.35 million; First Savings & Loan Association, $3 million; Jackie Johnson Mortgage Co., $5.75 million, and Mortgage & Trust Co. Inc., $4.5 million. The residential mortgage funds available is about $14 million shy of what the corporation had initially sought and will finance approximately 400 houses averaging $50,000 to $60,000 instead of the previously projected 575 to 625 units.

"It'll be a shot in the arm," Wright said of the program. "I wish we could double it."

Additional information on the program may be obtained by contacting representatives of those institutions or Fred Kester, secretary of the Midland County Housing Finance Corp., at 682-0011.

Iran warns Persian Gulf nations not to help in Iraq's war effort

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran and Iraq, battling for the Iranian city of Khorramshahr, both claimed control over the vital oil port Friday and Iran warned Persian Gulf nations not to help Iraq's war effort.

Tehran Radio said Iranian soldiers forced Iraqi troops to withdraw from the city on the Shatt al-Arab waterway and in another action farther north reopened a railroad cut by Iraqi forces last week. But Baghdad said Iraqi troops controlled the city and were digging in to consolidate objectives gained in 12 days of fighting.

Iraq insisted it had achieved its military goals and apparently planned to go ahead with a four-day truce on Sunday. Iran has rejected the Iraqi offer of cease-fire and proclaimed the war will go on until Iraqi forces are driven from Iranian soil.

IRANIAN PRESIDENT Abolhasan Bani-Sadr said on Tehran Radio that Iraq now had to admit to the strength of Iran's forces, and for Iraq, a cease-fire would be a gift to "save him from collapse."

"For us, however, a cease-fire has no meaning, when the enemy's armed forces are still on our territory," he said. "Now is not the time for us to declare a cease-fire."

Iraq said its troops "continued to crush the enemy's counterattacks, maintaining a firm hold of the territory under their control and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy."

The speaker of Iran's Parliament reported a new Iranian tactic in the war — sending aircraft over Iraqi cities to drop messages from the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Iran's news agency quoted Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani as saying Iranian aircraft "were able to drop the Imam's (Khomeini's) message to the Iraqi people over the holy cities of Karbala, Najaf and Khazemeh."

of disposition of troops by each side or the amount of damage inflicted by the opposing forces.

Iran, which on Thursday said paratroopers and waves of jet attacks launched an "enemy-crushing" operation on Khorramshahr, claimed that Iraqi troops were forced out of the city after abandoning tanks and other equipment.

Tehran Radio said Iranian forces reopened a strategic railroad reported cut by Iraqi forces near Dezful, 150 miles north of Khorramshahr, and that a train left Tehran for Ahwaz, resuming service between the two cities.

THE IRANIAN ARMY command reported that four Iraqi MIG jets attacked Dezful Friday, killing 15 people and wounding 64. Iran said three of the Iraqi planes were shot down during the attack and claimed three other Iraqi MIGs were downed at unspecified locations along Iran's southern border.

The communique said Iraq realizes it "is trapped in west Iran" and has "resorted to crimes and dastardly air raids."

An Iraqi communique on the day's action said 25 Iranian forces were killed, 47 wounded and four taken prisoner. Iraq said "two enemy boats loaded with soldiers sunk in the Shatt al-Arab" and claimed to have shot down three Iranian jets and four helicopters. Iraqi losses were given as 17 killed, 48 wounded and 12 missing.

THE OIL PORT, only 10 miles from the Iranian refinery of Abadan, has been a focus of Iraqi attacks aimed at gaining control of the Shatt al-Arab waterway. Iran seized half of the waterway from Iraq in 1969 when the late Shah of Iran abrogated a 1937 treaty that had awarded it to Iraq. Iranian rights to the waterway were recognized in a 1975 Iran-Iraq border treaty that was terminated by Iraq two weeks ago.

Police investigating separate homecoming-related events

Two separate incidents marred the Lee High School Homecoming festivities Friday. At 2 p.m., Midland Police received a report that the principal's office had been burglarized and some $369 worth of sports equipment. Six footballs, four basketballs and 24 a heated chase with police officers, which resulted in shots being fired at an officer by one of the men.

Justice of the Peace Robert Pine set bond for each of the three men at $50,000 Friday.

The three men were still in custody late Friday night. Justice of the Peace John Biggs set bond for Donald Ray Holloway, 19, 203 1/2 S. Madison St., at $5,000 for attempted burglary of a business at 508 S. Main St. Holloway was arrested Thursday night. He remained in custody late Friday night.

In other police news, charges of attempted capital murder were formally filed Friday against three Midland men who were arrested late Thursday night by patrolmen.

Charles Ray Payton, 23, and Floyd James Clemmons, 18, both of 506 S. Adams St., and Carl Wayne Payton, 29, of 1207 E. Chestnut Ave., were arrested at midnight Thursday after

Librarians to gather in Midland Center

West Texas librarians from a 29-county area will be in Midland today for the annual meeting of the Texas Library Association's District IX in the downtown Midland Center, according to host librarian John Deats.

Deats is TLA District IX chairman and is chief librarian of the Midland County Library.

Principal speaker at the fete will be Margaret Nichols, an academician who will be talking on "Librarianship: The Profession Revisited" at the noon luncheon. Ms. Nichols is assistant professor of library and information science at North Texas State University in Denton.

The day's activities will get under way with registration and coffee at 9 a.m. for the estimated 150 librarians expected to attend the session.

The business meeting will be held from 9:45 to 10:45 a.m., sectional meetings will be conducted at 11 a.m. and the executive meeting will take place following the noon talk by Ms. Nichols.

The sectional programs scheduled at the TLA meeting are: — The Public Library: Library booster Betty Anderson of Lubbock will speak on "Texans for Libraries." TLA board chairman Ted Hornick of Plano will discuss more effective library trusteeship.

— The School Library: Librarians Jean Gillis of Denver City and Janelle Sullivan of Seminole will speak on the "joys and pitfalls" of remodeling existing libraries and building and outfitting new ones.

— The Academic Library: Dr. Michael Hooks, deputy archivist of Texas Tech University's Southwest Collection, will recount the 25 years of growth in the collection.

— The Specialized Library: Librarians in such fields as religion, medicine, law and museology will meet to discuss problems and programs in their areas.

The TLA's District IX is made up of approximately 230 librarians; principal towns in the district are Midland, Odessa, Lubbock and Big Spring. Statewide, TLA membership is approaching 4,000, Deats said. "We're sparse," he said of the West Texas district, "but we're not dense...not as dense as Dallas or Houston. We're big in space, medium in membership."

TLA's official representative at the annual meeting will be TLA President-elect Leroy Johnson, program director of instructional services for the Fort Worth Independent School District.

Guests at the meeting include Friends of the Midland County Library, a 300-member volunteer organization interested in promoting the library and readership, and headed by Gerald "Jerry" Hickman, and Midland County Commissioner Win Brown.

Role of TLA is to promote library service. Music at the TLA meeting will be provided by the Thouvenel String Quartet of Midland.

Polish workers pull off one-hour 'warning strike'

By JAMES F. SMITH

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The young independent union movement in communist Poland, in a carefully orchestrated "warning strike," pulled hundreds of thousands of workers off their jobs for an hour Friday across the country.

"I am sure this strike has shown who we are and that we should be treated seriously," said Bogdan Liss, vice president of the nationwide Solidarity union federation headquartered in the Baltic seaport of Gdansk.

He said Gdansk virtually shut down, with streetcars and buses idled, factory sirens sounding and flags flying from windows. The strike began at noon.

Lech Walesa, who emerged as leader of the summer strike wave, went to the Lenin shipyards in Gdansk, site of the Aug. 31 settlement that granted workers the right to form trade unions independent of the Communist Party.

The strike, called to press demands for higher pay and access to the media by the new unions, was the first showdown since the settlements ending the country's worst labor unrest in a decade.

Meanwhile, union sources said the Warsaw court reviewing the Solidarity charter had objected to some provisions — including a point making Solidarity a national umbrella organization. They said union leaders would discuss the matter Monday and then seek a meeting with government officials.

The government, which during the week pleaded with workers to avert "economic catastrophe," had no immediate response to the work stoppage. The action came a day before the Communist Party Central Committee planned to meet to discuss "the situation in the country."

Romuald Jankowski, the new head of Poland's state-run trade union visiting the Soviet Union, told a group in Moscow that Poland accepts the legality of strikes, but only if used as a last resort in a labor dispute.

Jankowski, appointed in a government effort to defuse the summer labor unrest, justified Poland's stance on strikes in a speech to leaders of the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

According to a text of his speech issued by the conference organizers, Jankowski pleaded for understanding of the "specific Polish conditions" under which independent trade unions appeared and strikes occurred. The speech contained no direct reference to Friday's one-hour strike.

Polish state radio, in its mid-day newscast, noted that the strike had been organized to minimize economic damage and that union leaders had promised to make up production losses later.

Castle diary raising eyebrows

LONDON (AP) — The just-published diary of former Labor Cabinet minister Barbara Castle is raising eyebrows around London with its swipes at Conservative Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Mrs. Castle's record of thoughts about her one-time opponent covers the mid-1970s, before Mrs. Thatcher became prime minister in 1979.

Mrs. Castle kept the diary when she was minister of social services in Labor Premier Harold Wilson's government. Mrs. Thatcher then was competing for leadership of the opposition Conservatives after Edward Heath lost three general elections.

The two women faced each other on opposite front benches of the House of Commons.

Mrs. Castle acknowledged she was happy when the Tories dropped Heath and chose Mrs. Thatcher, the first woman leader of a political party in Britain. But the change from feminist praise to criticism was quick.

Here's the record in "The Castle Diaries 1974-76:"

Feb. 4, 1975. Mrs. Thatcher heads the poll to succeed Edward Heath as Tory leader: "I fear that I felt a sneaking feminist pleasure. Damn it, that lass deserves to win."

Next day: "The papers are full of Margaret Thatcher. She has lent herself with grace and charm to every piece of photographer's gimmickry, but don't we all when the prize is big enough? What interests me now is how blooming she looks...I understand why. She is in love; in love with power, success — and with herself."

Feb. 11. Mrs. Thatcher is confirmed as Tory leader.

"She is so clearly the best man among them and she will, in my view, have an enormous advantage in being a woman too. I can't help feeling a thrill...men have been running the show as long as anyone can remember and they don't seem to have made much of a job of it."

"The excitement of switching to a woman might stir a lot of people out of their lethargy. I think it will be a good thing for the Labor Party too...a male-dominated party."

Feb. 12. "Mrs. Thatcher is looking as radiant as a bride. Who wouldn't after such a successful courtship? ...She will prove formidable and will have us fighting for our political lives."

March 4. "Margaret's election has stirred up her own side wonderfully: all her backbenchers perform like knights jousting at a tourney for a lady's favors..."

April 15. "Margaret Thatcher's riposte (to the annual budget speech) was pretty shallow, though I continue to admire her impeccable grooming, even under strain. Query: Is such polished coolness an enduring asset or will it be her downfall one day?"

July 22, during an anti-inflation debate.

"Margaret sat with her air of knowing primness, immaculately groomed as usual, in a new dress. The general view was that she flopped (in the debate) yesterday.... (Later) she was in another new dress. Two in one afternoon was a bit much."

Aug. 5. "...How does she keep her hair so unchangeably immaculate? It all adds to the feeling of unreality about her political leadership. Somehow that also is too bandbox....

"She never risks anything; just sits there listening to Harold (Wilson) with a carefully modulated look of disapproval."

Oct. 11 After the Tory party conference.

"I was struck by how blooming she looked (in the newspapers) after what must have been a week of intense strain: Vitamin of power again."

Oct. 13. Thatcher suggested to the Sunday Observer "that she managed to cope with all domestic chores herself, as well as do her political work."

"At weekends I cook and do some housework because there is no one else to do it. Sorry, but I don't believe it."

Nazi death camp officer Wagner commits suicide

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Gustav Franz Wagner, who had said he "only obeyed orders" as an officer at a Nazi extermination camp, committed suicide Friday at his isolated farm in Sao Paulo state, his attorney said.

The attorney, Flavio Augusto Marx, quoted family members and said he had no further details. Officials said Wagner had tried to commit suicide four other times since he was discovered in 1978 living on a farm at Atibala, a mountain community about 50 miles from Sao Paulo.

West Germany, Poland, Israel and Austria had accused the 69-year-old Wagner of responsibility in the deaths of 250,000 Jews and Poles at the Sobibor extermination camp in occupied Poland in 1942-43. Wagner denied taking part in the killings. He told Brazilian officials: "I knew what happened there but I never went to see — I only obeyed orders."

Bauman pleads 'innocent'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert E. Bauman, one of the House of Representatives' leading conservatives, pleaded innocent Friday to a charge of sexual solicitation, allegedly involving a teen-age boy.

Thomas O'Malley, the lawyer for the Maryland Republican, said the U.S. attorney's office has agreed to drop the charge if Bauman completes an alcoholism rehabilitation program.

Bauman pleaded innocent in District of Columbia Superior Court then waited with his head bowed to leave the courtroom. He would not speak to reporters.

BAUMAN IS president of the American Conservative Union and has led conservative fights in the House on issues including the Panama Canal treaties and U.S. aid to Nicaragua.

The investigation of the charge against Bauman was conducted by the FBI and an agreement with the U.S. attorney's office kept details of the charge out of all public records.

But the Washington Star quoted unnamed sources as saying Bauman is accused of paying a 16-year-old boy he met at a homosexual bar $50 to perform an oral sex act. The Star said Bauman was identified to police by a friend of the teen-ager, who saw the congressional license tags on Bauman's car.

Bauman's office issued a written statement in which the congressman said he does not know what he did during a "stage of acute alcoholism" last March 2, when the incident is alleged to have occurred.

HE SAID the U.S. attorney's appeal hearing is scheduled

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — An appeals court hearing is scheduled in November for a University of Georgia professor who served three months in prison for refusing to tell a judge how he voted in a faculty promotion case that led to a lawsuit.

James Dinnan, 50, who was released last Tuesday from a prison at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., said he was notified of the hearing Friday by his attorneys.

The hearing will be held Nov. 3, before a panel of 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals judges in Atlanta. Dinnan appealed to the circuit court after U.S. District Judge Wilbur Owens of Macon cited him for contempt and sentenced him to three months in prison for refusing to reveal his vote.

Last month, the appeals court declined to order Dinnan's release from prison, but the court granted him an expedited hearing on the appeal.

torney "informed me that allegations had been made concerning my personal conduct during the period of my heaviest drinking last winter."

The charge against Bauman, in court papers, is printed on a form stating "sexual solicitation — unlawfully invited, enticed, persuaded and addressed for the purpose of prostitution and an immoral and lewd purpose."

The FBI and U.S. Attorney Charles Ruff refused to give any other details or to explain why details of the charge were not given in court.

O'Malley said Bauman's court-supervised rehabilitation program requires him to continue an Alcoholics Anonymous program he has already started. He said the terms do not involve sex counseling.

IN HIS statement,

Bauman said his sobriety is restored and indicated he will continue his campaign for re-election.

"I will submit myself to the judgment of the citizens of my district on the basis of (my) record as I have in the past," he said.

At another point, he said, "I strongly emphasize that this allegation involves only my personal conduct and has nothing to do with my office or duties as a member of Congress."

"I have confessed my sins, as my religion requires, and I am in the state of grace and will remain so with God," Bauman said. "For the first time in my life, I have come to terms with my personal problem, admitted my faults and am trying to make amends."

Bauman is running for re-election against Democratic state Del. Royden P. Dyson, who came close to unseating Bauman in 1976.

Meanwhile, the Baltimore Sun quoted an internist who said he was Bauman's physician as saying "from a medical standpoint he's not an alcoholic."

Bauman's lawyer refused to comment on the Sun story.

Carter addresses female jurists

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, addressing a group of female judges Friday, attacked Ronald Reagan's preference for anti-abortion jurists.

"I am concerned, as are many of you, that some groups around the country are attempting to set up ideological eligibility tests for judges," Carter said without mentioning his Republican opponent's name.

"It's never been done before. It's a radical departure from what all previous presidents, Democrat or Republican, have done," the president said in a departure from his prepared remarks.

Returning to his text, the president vowed: "As long as I am president, potential judges will not be subjected to tests of religion, gender, race or personal beliefs on someone's list of so-called 'right' attitudes."

In an interview with the Associated Press earlier in the week, Reagan was asked what her he would rule out appointing a Supreme Court justice who, prior to appointment, had favored abortion rights.

"No, I have to say that I would be guided by the whole, broad philosophy of the individual who was under consideration," he replied.

The Republican Party platform includes a plank declaring: "We will work for the appointment of judges at all levels of the judiciary who respect traditional family values and the sanctity of innocent human life." When that plank was adopted on July 15, it was interpreted by sponsors and opponents as a vow to oppose the appointment of judges who support abortion.

Reagan said in the interview that he doesn't read it that way. "That plank says 'has a respect for innocent life,'" he said. "Aren't all of us supposed to have that?"

In his meeting Friday with the National Association of Women Judges, Carter said he knew the women would like him to promise to select a woman for the next U.S. Supreme Court vacancy, but he refused.

"I would be honored to be the first president to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court, but I cannot promise that," he said. "I can promise that women and members of minority groups will be fully considered, but I will not rule out anyone — male or female — on the basis of sex or race or religion or national origin."

"To do that would violate the principles for which you and I have fought so hard, and would violate the trust placed in me as president," he added.

Carter also took the opportunity to reiterate one of his favorite campaign themes — that his appointments to the federal judiciary are for life and therefore will have a continuing affect on society after he leaves office "in January, 1985 — I hope."

The president said he had met many of the women he appointed to judgeships for the first time Friday and "I was amazed when I looked at the group at how young the women are."

At the same time, the president reminded his audience that 10 women had been appointed to the federal bench before he took office and said he has appointed 40 more.

He said that there would be more female judges if it weren't for some senators who have resisted considering the nominations of women. He did not identify the senators.

The association gave Carter a "citation of appreciation" for his efforts to increase the number of women on the bench.

Reagan visits conference of Christian broadcasters

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — Ronald Reagan wound up a 17-state campaign swing Friday, flying to a conference of fundamentalist Christian broadcasters whose support could help him break President Carter's hold on the South.

The National Religious Broadcasters Association was meeting at Liberty Baptist College headed by the Rev. Jerry Falwell.

Falwell is a founder of the Moral Majority, a church-oriented group that encourages fundamentalist Christians to become active in politics. While fundamentalist leaders are more in agreement with Reagan than Carter on such issues as abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment, many opinion polls say the president retains strong support among their followers.

Carter, a Southern Baptist, ran very strongly in Bible-belt states in the 1976 presidential election.

Reagan was returning to his rented Middleburg, Va., estate after two campaign appearances in the only Southern state Carter failed to carry in 1976.

Reagan and running-mate George Bush will receive a briefing on Saturday on the war between Iraq and Iran. CIA officials will go to Middleburg to brief the Republican ticket.

Reagan accepted an offer from White House national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski to be briefed on the Middle East fighting.

Reagan has limited his reaction to the outbreak of hostilities between Iran and Iraq, saying he was awaiting the briefing in order to have a better understanding of the situation.

However, he has said that he does not believe the warfare would have erupted or that the American hostages would have been taken in Iran if the United States had given stronger support to the shah of Iran when he was being overthrown.

Reagan had rejected earlier offers for general foreign policy intelligence briefings. He had said he felt such briefings would restrict his freedom to criticize Carter's conduct of foreign policy.

Reagan's campaign swing began two weeks ago in Baltimore, where he debated independent presidential candidate John Anderson. From there the Republican candidate traveled through the South and to the West Coast.

Anderson optimistic

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson said Friday he believes he can still win the presidency as an independent if he can borrow the money needed to "broaden our base" with radio and television advertising.

Anderson also contended that President Carter's popularity is on the wane, and that he is the only person who can keep Republican Ronald Reagan out of the White House.

On Thursday, the Federal Election Commission cleared a major obstacle to Anderson's attempt to borrow funds for his campaign with a ruling that it is not illegal for a banker to lend money against the funds Anderson expects from the Treasury as reimbursement if he wins 5 percent of the vote on Nov. 4.

Anderson aides said, however, that they have not yet worked out their loan package.

Firefighters control 700-acre brush fire

VINCENT, Calif. (AP) — After a desperate battle that saw a fire truck damaged by flames, about 150 firefighters have controlled a 700-acre brush blaze that reversed directions and came within 100 feet of about a dozen homes.

The truck burned Thursday while men and equipment rushed to save the homes off the Antelope Valley Freeway, 35 miles north of downtown Los Angeles.

Flames burned within 100 feet of their front porches, Los Angeles County Fire Department spokesman Dick Friend said Friday.

California still fighting smoggy, foggy weather

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fog and smog over Southern California combined with hot weather in other parts of the state Friday for a fifth straight day of uncomfortable weather, but some relief was forecast.

Predictions of cooler weather and less smog, however, were little comfort to residents forced to tough out the final day of the work week in choking, eye-stinging, chalk-colored air.

"I have a sore throat and my sinuses are acting up," said Billie Brown, a department clerk at Lockheed Aircraft in Burbank. "This happens about every two months, when there's heavy smog," she said.

"Do people wear (filter) masks down there, or doesn't that help any?" asked a state employment official in Sacramento.

A cooling trend was forecast for San Francisco, but more record heat was expected Saturday for the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valley with temperatures ranging into the hundreds.

In Yosemite National Park, hot and hazy weekend weather was forecast with highs reaching 96, the NWS said.

Dense fog was blamed for a pile-up Friday on the San Bernardino Freeway when six large semi-trucks and six passenger cars smashed into each other near Ontario, 35 miles east of Los Angeles, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The 8:15 a.m. accident began on the eastbound Interstate 10 at the intersection of the transition road from the northbound Interstate 15, said CHP officer Casey Bos. Two people were injured and a car burned. Bos said four eastbound lanes of Interstate 10 were closed for 1 1/2 hours.

A spokesman for the Southern California Air Quality Management District said no second-stage alert was issued for Friday. Such warnings were issued for the first four days of the week. A second-stage alert means factories must cut emissions and some commuters must travel to work in car-pools.

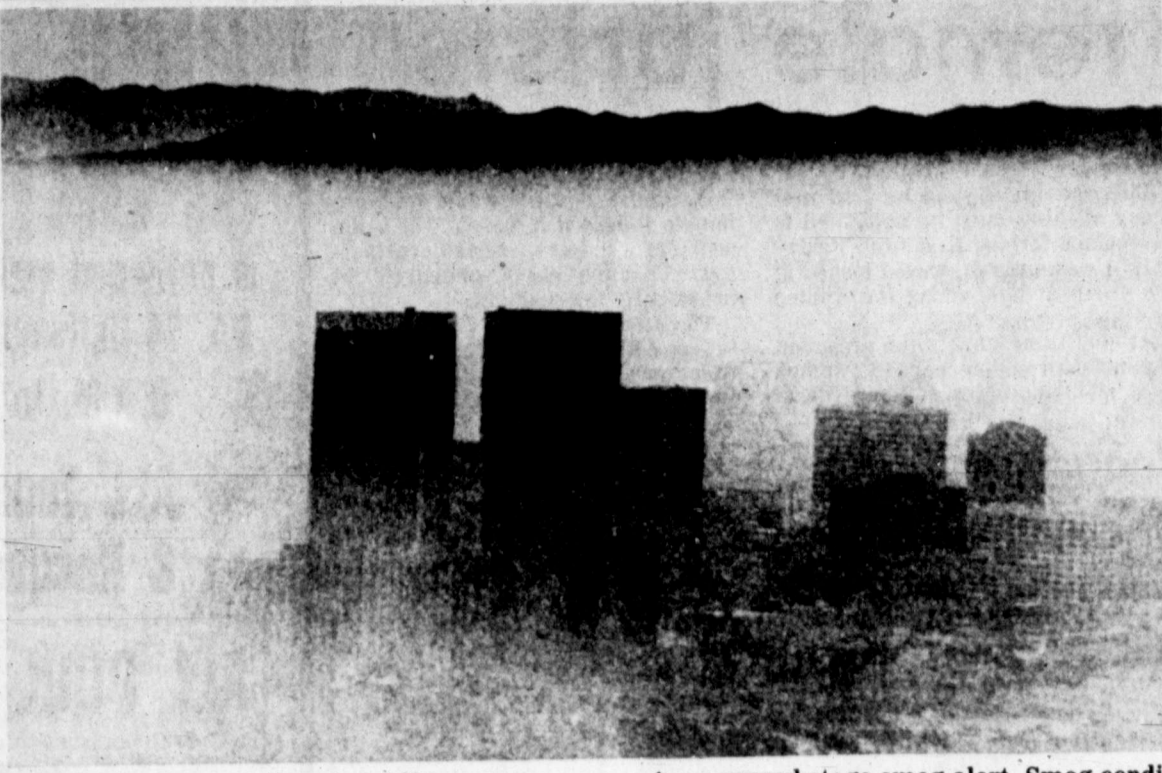

The AQMD did issue a sulfate alert for Friday, requiring industries which emit sulfur dioxide in the four-county Southern California smog control area to reduce their output 20 percent.

"It will be touch and go," AQMD spokesman Jeff Schenkel said, "but we expect a break in the severe situation we've been having."

The string of second-stage smog alerts was the longest of the year. In September, 1979, eight straight days of second-stage alerts were recorded, the longest stretch in over 20 years.

AQMD meteorologists said the inversion layer which kept a lid clamped over the smog in the basin had risen Friday from a low of 800 feet to nearly 1,500 feet, and could still be rising.

The lower the inver-

The twin towers of Century City, some twelve miles west of downtown Los Angeles, are barely visible in this recent aerial photograph of the Los Angeles basin, suffering a second stage smog alert. Smog conditions are expected to ease in the next few days, weather officials predict. (AP Laser-photo)

Workmen patch major crack

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Workmen patched a major crack Friday as they continued to fortify a railroad embankment preventing San Joaquin flood waters from inundating 6,000 acres of farmland and a key link to a metropolitan water supply.

"Things are reasonably under control," said Don Drake, a spokesman for San Joaquin County. "There have been no reports of seepage since Thursday afternoon."

The 5,000-acre Lower Jones Tract was flooded last week when a levee gave way, leaving only the five-mile-long railroad embankment to hold back flood waters from the Upper Jones Tract. The embankment is also a barrier protecting an aqueduct providing the water supply for 1.1 million residents of the Oakland area.

Several families were evacuated from the upper tract Thursday after a 1,000-foot-long crack was discovered in the embankment. In addition, about 70 children from the Holt Elementary School on Roberts Island remained away from classes.

Drake, who explained that the crack was patched with dirt, said, "We don't anticipate any immediate problems."

Meanwhile, Santa Fe Railway engineers said tests indicate the embankment remains strong enough for continued train service.

The rail embankment is a link in the Santa Fe's line between Stockton and Richmond. Although predominantly for freight service, the line also carries two Amtrak passenger trains daily.

"All service has continued at a reduced speed of 10 miles per hour," said Santa Fe spokeswoman Susan Saltzer. Faster speeds would cause trains to sway, which could weaken the embankment, she said.

She said the railroad has been dumping 8,000 tons of rock a day to strengthen the embankment.

Officials have said it could take several months to repair the levee and pump the flooded lowlands.

'Blast zone' timber salvaged

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Timber taken from the Mount St. Helens "blast zone" is of good quality, but volcanic ash coating the timber continues to hamper the salvage effort, a Weyerhaeuser Co. spokesman said.

The work is on schedule, but it will probably take a couple of years before all the salvagable wood is collected, Weyerhaeuser regional woods manager Jack Schoening said Friday. The timber was blown down in the May 18 eruption of Mount St. Helens. The volcano was reported quiet Friday.

Volcanic ash covering the fallen timber is forcing the company to change mill saw blades much more often than usual, Schoening said. In addition, loggers have tried washing the ash off the logs, but with limited success, and they are using power saw blades and chains at an unusually fast clip, he said.

A light dusting of ash was swept as far north as Tacoma Thursday night and Friday morning when high winds kicked up the fine ash settled on the summit-crater of the volcano.

Several reports of light ash falling around McChord Air Force Base were received by the National Weather Service in Seattle, said meteorologist Kim Scattarella.

McChord officials deemed it unnecessary to take any precautions, since the ash was hardly visible, said public affairs specialist Jim Hunt.

At the volcano Friday, some ash was blowing from the crater, but the scene was quiet, said Bill Brown of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

No seismic activity was recorded on the University of Washington geophysics center's seismographs Thursday or Friday, said spokeswoman Melanje Kruidenier.

Doctors 'unlock' girl's world

By LINDY WASHBURN

NEW YORK (AP) — Adaliza "Mele" Bowie, born with her jaw locked, has one wish now that the rare condition has yielded to delicate surgery — she wants to savor ice cream and roll it around on her tongue for the first time in her seven years of life.

And doctors said she'll get it — sherbet, at least — when post-operative swelling goes down in about two days.

She underwent six hours of surgery here Wednesday and met the press on Friday.

"This is a once-in-a-lifetime experience," the girl from Panama whispered to her aunt and guardian, Lovinia Viera. Those were the only words she got out during the news conference at New York Infirmary-Beekman Hospital.

Following the surgery that removed bones that fused her upper and lower jaws at the back of her mouth, the youngster faces months of therapy that many other children would envy: chewing bubble gum.

"I can't think of another case where I would recommend sugarless bubble gum," said Dr. Stuart Super, chief of oral and maxillo-facial surgery at the hospital, who led the operating team that included a plastic surgeon and anesthesiologists.

"But she's just going to have to keep on chewing."

After her birth, Mele's family believed her locked jaw was an abnormality she would outgrow, so they fed her by breaking food into pieces small enough to force through a narrow opening in her front teeth.

Carter's mother hospitalized

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — President Carter made an emergency trip to Georgia Friday to visit his hospitalized 82-year-old mother, one day after she broke her hip, and reported she "is feeling much better."

After Carter spent about 30 minutes in the Americus-Sumter County hospital talking with his mother, known affectionately as "Miss Lillian," and looking at X-rays, he told reporters "her heart is very strong. Very vigorous."

He returned to the hospital to have dinner with his mother and with his two sisters, Ruth Carter Stapleton and Gloria Carter Spann.

His younger brother, Billy, was also at the hospital and said just before the president emerged that the two had met for the first time in four months. Asked what they talked about, he said, "Mother."

Mrs. Carter tripped on a rug Thursday morning, breaking her hip. She was taken to the hospital and a two-hour operation was performed that afternoon.

Contract gets mixed reviews

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — About 2,000 striking actors displayed mixed feelings about returning to work Monday after an emotional mass meeting Friday called by the Screen Actors Guild.

It was unclear whether the actors, who fired questions and listened to lengthy answers about their proposed contract, would end their 10-week walkout, as the union leadership ordered, and resume production in the long-delayed fall television season.

"Fifty percent want to go back to work and 50 percent want to stay out," said actor Ed Asner. "Almost to a man and a woman the decision has been cemented."

The star of "Lou Grant" said he will not cross the picket line of the striking American Federation of Musicians.

But actress Lynn Redgrave, star of "House Calls," said she would be back on the set.

"It's high time to go back to work," said Ms. Redgrave. "Everybody's been forgetting that the right to work is a very important thing. It's been a terrible thing for people in related industries who did not want to be out of work."

The actors did not give any specifics of their objections to the contract. However, it appeared the major stumbling block was the compromise provision for payment for pay television.

The producers told SAG they would give two weeks of amnesty to any actor who refuses to cross the musicians' picket line. AFTRA is seeking a similar amnesty for its members.

Musicians Union Local 47 in Hollywood said Friday more than 30 TV and film producers have signed interim agreements to abide by the terms of the final settlement, when it is reached.

Local 47 President Max Herman released a list of 26 producers who have signed so members will know they can perform for those producers under union conditions. He said several others also signed but requested anonymity for the time being.

Meanwhile, the CBS-TV comedy series "WKRP in Cincinnati" resumed production Friday, one of the first filmed TV shows to start up following the strike. Co-star Richard Sanders, who plays station manager Arthur Carlson, shot some exterior scenes on location in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Actor Wayne Rogers, Ms. Redgrave's "House Calls" co-star, walked out of the SAG meeting early, complaining it was "polemics" and "hot air." He said he would not cross the picket line of musicians still on strike for a separate contract.

Actress Charlene Tilton of "Dallas" said she would vote against the proposed contract, which she called ludicrous.

"The strike is not over, and I won't go to work until it is," she said. "If this contract is ratified my feeling is the strike was all a big mistake."

"As of Monday actors must be ready to go to work if called," SAG spokeswoman Kim Fellner said Thursday.

AFTRA officials also agreed to a conditional return to work after SAG's back-to-work order Thursday. The return to work could lead to an earlier settlement in the musicians strike, an AFTRA spokesman said.

Marine performs well following 'rehearsal'

By ANNE S. CROWLEY

MIAMI (AP) — Marine 2nd Lt. Steve Hoenie had just rehearsed what to do if a bird collided with his plane and was heading for base on the last flight with his instructor. Then a turkey buzzard came crashing through the canopy.

Both Hoenie and his instructor were knocked unconscious at 2,800 feet over southern Alabama. Hoenie's instructor, thinking his student had been killed, bailed out, leaving Hoenie to handle his first solo flight a day early.

"My instructor said one of the highest compliments I could have paid him was bringing the plane back," the 24-year-old Leonia, N.J., officer said Thursday night in a telephone interview from the house he rents with other trainees in Pensacola, Fla. "He's one of the best instructors around and that's a reflection on him."

"The commander of the base just said he was glad I saved him a $500,000 airplane. He looks at it in slightly different terms."

Navy Capt. Kenneth Dickerson, the base commander, said Friday that he had recommended "My instructor came to and he couldn't see anything," he continued. "He just determined the airplane was uncontrollable. He felt it was in a stall, an extreme nose-high attitude. He determined it was a bad situation."

"He said, 'Steve, get out.' When I didn't answer, he said it again... I came to at about 1,000 or 1,200 feet and there was no instructor."

Lucas did not know what had happened or what altitude they were at and could not see, so he was correct in jumping out, Hoenie said.

"He thought we hit another plane and I was dead on the controls," said the 1978 graduate of Glassboro, N.J., State College.

"My theory is that the buzzard came through the windshield, hit me, hit the instructor and took over the plane," Hoenie joked. "He flew it over the Brewton airport, had a heart attack and gave the lane to me and I landed it."

The buzzard was found dead in the back of the cabin.

Strangler 'imitator' arrested

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — An actress who visited confessed Hillside Strangler Kenneth Bianchi in jail has been arrested for allegedly trying to strangle a young woman to make it appear the "real strangler" was still at large, authorities say.

Veronica Lynn Compton, 24, was arrested Thursday at her residence in Carson, Calif., by Bellingham police and was booked at the Los Angeles County Jail on a Washington warrant carrying $500,000 bail.

Bellingham Deputy Police Chief Dan Fitzgerald said Ms. Compton, who describes herself as an actress, was accused in a warrant of trying to strangle Kim Breed, a 26-year-old Bellingham resident and a maintenance worker for the Bellingham parks and recreation department.

Authorities said Ms. Compton would be arraigned Monday on an attempted first-degree murder charge, and it would be determined at the arraignment whether she would fight extradition.

The Hillside Strangler killings — so named because bodies of the young female victims were dumped on slopes in the Los Angeles area — occurred from late 1977 to early 1978. Most of the victims were sexually abused and all were strangled.

Bianchi moved from Los Angeles to Washington in 1978, and two female college students in Bellingham were later strangled.

Volcker 'shares concern' over rise in interest rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said Friday he shares President Carter's concern over the recent rapid rise in interest rates, saying they may have "jumped too far."

"I don't like to see big gyrations any more than anybody else," Volcker said.

However, he declined to comment on the president's criticism of the board's own interest rate policies or to say whether he thinks the rise in interest rates could choke off the nation's recovery from recession.

BUT VOLCKER SAID the rise in interest rates on credit markets, including an increase in the prime lending rate of some banks to 14 percent Thursday, may not be justified.

"There is a tendency for markets to jump and anticipate...and I wonder if they haven't jumped too far," he told reporters who questioned him following a meeting of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank here.

Volcker said there appears to be a tendency for the prime rate "to do a little more jumping on the upside than the downside."

He said some uncertainty over the outlook for the nation's economy, including inflation, is justified and that this uncertainty is a factor in the rise in interest rates.

BUT VOLCKER ALSO said that things may not be as bad as the credit markets apparently are making them out to be.

"While some uncertainty is natural...things may move ahead of the facts sometimes," he said.

"I hope the market will try to evaluate things over a reasonable period," he said. By market, Volcker said, he means "the people making interest rates and bond prices on a day-to-day basis."

Carter had criticized the Federal Reserve Board for focusing too much on the growth in the nation's money supply, in setting its interest rates.

The board increased its discount rate on loans to banks to 11 percent late last month, citing the rapid growth in the money supply as the major reason for the action.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE, press secretary Jody Powell said Carter believes that "even given the policy and the actions of the Federal Reserve, the financial markets are overreacting."

"In particular, neither the president nor his economic advisers see the latest increase in the prime as being justified by what is happening to the cost of money," Carter's spokesman said.

Volcker didn't indicate any inclination to end the board's focus on the money supply, but he indicated that the credit markets may have overreacted to the rapid growth in the money supply in setting their interest rates.

"If you look at the broader tendency, I don't get any sense that the money supply is out of control," he said. Rapid growth of the money supply is considered as a development that risks worsening inflation. Volcker urged "patience" for those who want growth in the money supply to be curbed.

CARTER, CAMPAIGNING Thursday in Pennsylvania, said: "Recently the interest rates have begun to go up again. It's something that I deplore very seriously.

"It would be obviously much better for me as a candidate for election if the interest rates were going down," Carter told a television interviewer.

Decrying the Fed's "strictly monetary approach" to pegging interest rates, Carter declared: "I think that the Fed ought to look at the adverse consequences of increased rates on the general economy as a major factor in making their own judgment."

ALMOST A YEAR AGO, after the Fed moved to tighten the nation's money supply, Carter said the board had set interest rates too high.

"Interest rates are too high, inflation rates are too high," the president said on Oct. 11, 1979, in San Diego, Calif. After Carter spoke, his spokesman said the president did not intend to blame the Fed for higher interest rates.

Former President Gerald R. Ford, campaigning for Ronald Reagan and Republican congressional candidates in New Jersey, said Carter acted "cowardly" in criticizing the Federal Reserve Board. Ford accused Carter of trying to make the institution a "scapegoat" for rising interest rates.

"It's a cowardly act," Ford told an audience in Saddle Brook, N.J.

"I find it unbelievable," the former president said, adding, "He (Carter) appointed them. They're his board." "I personally have great admiration for Paul Volcker," Ford said. "His problem is he has a lousy running mate, Jimmy Carter."

SEN. JOHN TOWER, R-Texas, defending the Federal Reserve Board against Carter's criticism, said Friday the president "has shot his only serious ally in the economic battle."

Tower said government spending, not the actions of the Fed, are responsible for the latest increases in interest rates.

Price decline looks political

WASHINGTON (AP) — The September drop in wholesale prices — the first decline in 4½ years — appeared to be just the kind of news President Carter's re-election campaign needed. Labor Department officials said Friday the decline resulted from a change in the way the index was computed.

For the first time, the Labor Department included discounts given on cars and trucks at the end of a model year, a shift that changed what would have been an 0.4 percent increase in wholesale prices into a 0.2 percent decrease.

"This is absolutely the correct price," said Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics. She denied that the change, coming one month before the presidential election, was politically motivated. "It's unfortunate that it (the change) came now."

She said the change stemmed from a decision "more than a year ago" to use the actual prices paid to producers for their finished goods.

Michael K. Evans, head of a private economic forecasting firm, called the report "highly misleading," and said the next figure — to be released after the Nov. 4 election — will be higher than it would have been without the change.

The White House issued a statement saying Carter was pleased by the latest economic figures.

"The fight against inflation is far from over, and the economic recovery is still in its early stages," the statement said. "But the president believes that today's economic data, and those of the last several months, indicate that his economic policies are working...."

Aside from the change in the way the index was calculated, it showed that wholesale prices were down by 0.2 percent and that unemployment dipped from 7.6 percent in August to 7.5 percent in September.

Wholesale price information is contained in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for Finished Goods, which reflects the price of goods ready for sale to consumers. The index also includes prices at other stages of production, the crude and intermediate levels.

John Early, a government statistician, said the department had considered adjusting its September wholesale price report to reflect the distortion caused by the car and truck rebates.

Milton Bradley to replace two 'Bristle Block' parts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under pressure from the Consumer Product Safety Commission, a subsidiary of the Milton Bradley Company said Friday it would replace two parts of the popular "Bristle Block" toy that fail a safety test.

The subsidiary, Playskool, Inc., said parents should discard the parts and write the company for free replacements.

"Several million (of the toys) will have been sold by the end of this year and an equal number abroad," said commission spokesman John Bell.

The Bristle Block comes in four different sizes, consisting of from 32 to 74 pieces of colored plastic in various shapes. The pieces have flexible bristles that interlock, allowing children to build structures of various types.

The box containing the pieces says, "Imagine and Build! It's easy! It's fun!"

The toy retails from about $6 to $17, depending on how many pieces are included. It is sold for children 2 to 6 years old.

The largest three sizes of the four contain the pieces that fail the commission's safety test. That test requires toys sold for children under 3 to be too big to fit into a small cylinder that determines whether they could be swallowed.

Preliminary census estimate set at 227 million

Director estimates undercount of 3 million

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are about 227 million people in the United States, according to preliminary calculations from the 1980 census.

Census Director Vincent P. Barabba reported Friday that the bureau now estimates that when the count is completed it will have enumerated some 223,889,000 people.

In addition, he said, the count will probably miss about 3,111,000 people, for a total population of about 227,000,000.

The official estimate of the population had been 221,672,000 as of Census Day, April 1. And as Barabba finished speaking to reporters Friday, the Census Clock in the lobby of the Commerce Department had ticked off a population estimate of 223,485,688.

"Almost invariably, we are obtaining larger counts than one would expect on the basis of the estimates," said Barabba.

About 80 percent of the census offices across the country have completed preliminary figures so far, Barabba said.

The initial estimate of the undercount, which Barabba said was very tentative, totals 1.4 percent, considerably better than the 2.5 percent missed in the 1970 census.

A primary objective of the 1980 count was to reduce the number of people overlooked.

"I guess I'm ready to say today that we met our primary objective," Barabba said.

He added that the bureau also made a major effort to reduce the difference between the number of whites not counted in the census and the number of minorities. The 1970 census missed 1.9 percent of whites and 7.7 percent of blacks.

It is too soon, Barabba said, to determine whether that has been corrected.

Under law, the bureau has to send official state-by-state counts to the president by Dec. 31, a task Barabba said the bureau will accomplish.

A cloud hangs over that process, however, in the form of a federal court order that the figures be adjusted to compensate for the undercount.

Barabba said that would be impossible in the time available because not enough detailed information would be available, and he noted that extending the deadline could pose problems for states that need the figures for redistricting.

He said he has recommended appealing the order, but the final decision on an appeal rests with the Justice Department.

The bureau is continuing to try to develop methods to adjust the figures, Barabba said. But he noted that the bureau feels it would be unconstitutional to alter the figures for use on congressional reapportionment.

The Constitution requires that seats in the House be divided according to an "enumeration" of the people.

The 1970 census counted 203,235,000 people in the United States, and Barabba explained that adding birth and immigrants during the last 10 years, and subtracting deaths, should yield a population of 221,672,000.

Appeal suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Census Director Vincent P. Barabba said Friday he has recommended that the government appeal a federal court order that 1980 census figures be adjusted to compensate for people who were overlooked.

A final decision on whether to appeal the ruling by Judge Horace Gilmore of Detroit is up to the Justice Department, Barabba said.

He said an appeal was recommended "because there is no feasible statistically defensible method to measure the census undercount in all sub-state jurisdictions."

Gilmore ordered that the figures be adjusted for use in congressional reapportionment and in applying formulas for the distribution of federal funds.

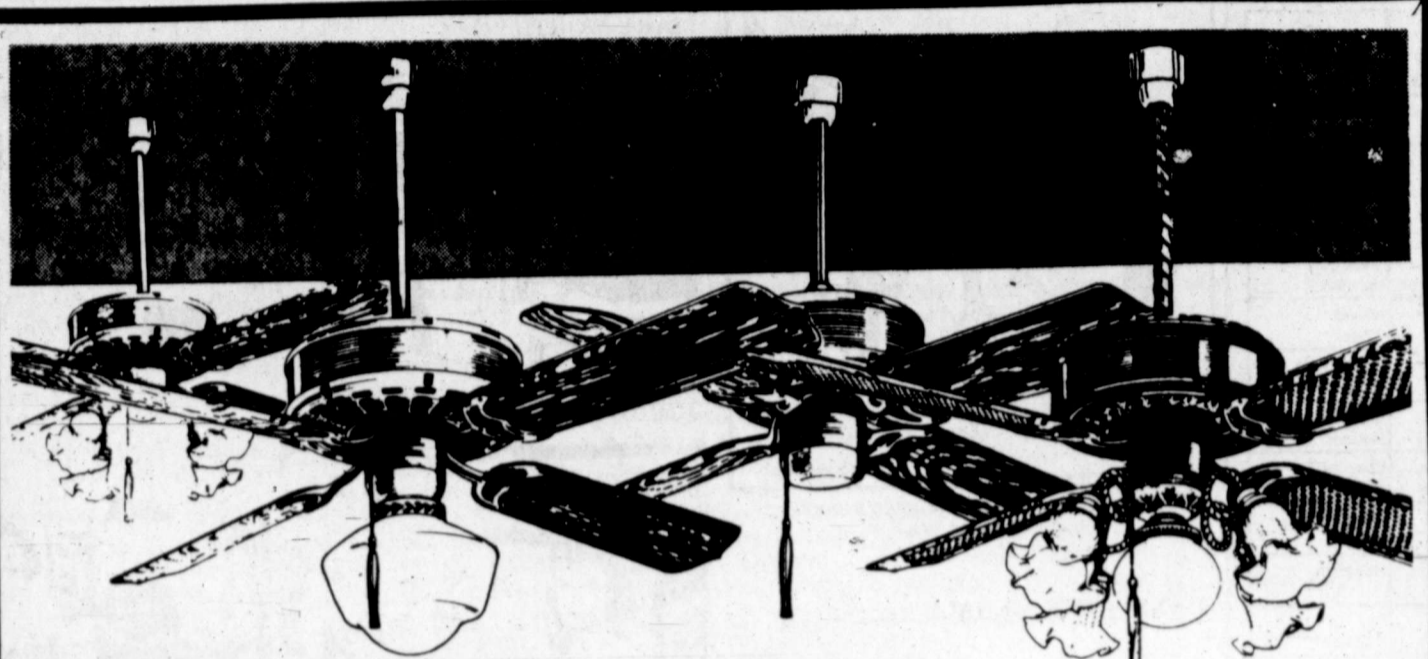

Barabba was reluctant to discuss the case, but said that none of the various possible methods for adjusting the figures would be accurate for local communities.

Barabba also said the bureau has been contacted by groups seeking to persuade it not to appeal, but he did not discuss those contacts.

On Thursday, Deputy Solicitor General Kenneth S. Geller also confirmed such contacts but refused to characterize them as "pressure," a term being used by some census-watchers.

It's perfectly proper for citizens to contact their government, said Geller. But he said a final decision will be based on the law.

The census bureau has contended that figures used for reapportionment cannot be adjusted under the Constitution, which calls for representation based on an "enumeration" of all the people.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees, needing one victory in their final three games to clinch the AL East title, got a break when Friday night's contest against Detroit was rained out with the Tigers leading 4-0 in the top of the fifth inning.

It was rescheduled as part of a Saturday doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m.

The second-place Baltimore Orioles, trailing by three games with three remaining, were rained out of their home game against Cleveland Friday night and also will play a doubleheader Saturday.

The Tigers used a leadoff single by Rick Peters and doubles by Alan Trammell and Tom Brookens to score twice in the first off Tom Underwood. Steve Kemp's sacrifice fly drove in an unearned run in the second inning and Kemp doubled in the fifth and scored on a single by John Wockenbus.

The Tigers had two runners on base and one out when play was halted. The game began in a drizzle that turned into a steady rain by the second.

The umpires waited 50 minutes before calling the game off.

Oliver homer sparks Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Al Oliver hit his 19th homer and a club record 43rd double to lead the Texas Rangers to a 6-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners Friday night behind the six-hit pitching of Doc Medich and Danny Darwin.

Oliver's 3-for-3 night also gave him 208 hits, two behind teammate Mickey Rivers, who holds the team record.

Medich, 14-11, struck out five and walked two before leaving after seven innings with a blister on his toe. Darwin pitched the last two innings. Glenn Abbott, 12-12, gave up 11 hits in the six innings he worked for Seattle.

Twins wins 12th in a row

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gary Ward and Jose Morales collected four hits apiece and John Castino stroked a two-run homer Friday night to lead Minnesota to a 5-3 decision over Kansas City for a club-record 12th straight victory.

The Twins pounded Larry Gura, 18-10, for 12 hits as they extended the longest winning streak in the majors this season. Gura, who is scheduled to pitch the opener of the American League playoffs for the Royals Wednesday, hasn't won since Aug. 25. Jerry Koosman went eight innings for his 16th victory in 29 decisions and got relief help from Doug Corbett, who registered his 23rd save.

Palmer, Burns lurk just behind golfing unknown

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Golfing legend Arnold Palmer and burly George Burns are lurking in the shadows behind second-round Southern Open golf tournament leader Mike Sullivan, but the virtually unknown former University of Florida ace says he's not intimidated.

"I've been close to the leaders at this stage quite a few times. It's not something I'll be afraid of," Sullivan said Friday after battering par for a 63, a 9-under-par 131 total and a two-stroke lead over Burns entering today's play.

Palmer, with his always-present "Arnie's Army" following his every move, was another two shots back at 135 in the battle for the $36,000 first prize of the $200,000 event.

The 51-year-old Palmer shot a scrambling 69 Friday after leading the field with a 66 after the first day of play over the 6,791-yard, par 70 Green Island Country Club course.

Sullivan, enjoying his best season on the tour, came close to winning the 1979 Buick Open before losing in a playoff and had a runner-up finish in the Bob Hope Classic earlier this year.

The five-year-old said the key to maintaining his lead would be patience and aggressive play.

"There are too many people out here who can shoot 63s," said the 25-year-old who has earned more than $94,000 this year.

"The reason I'm playing better now is my attitude. I had never been very patient and would get upset with myself when I played poorly," he said, adding he felt he was going to play well Friday prior to the round.

"I was doing everything well in practice but I had no visions of a 63," said Sullivan, who contends he will not change his thinking.

"My intention is just to play like it's the first round. Leading is fine, but if I was five shots behind I would still play the same way."

Sullivan had a near-perfect round which included seven birdies and the rest pars before swirling, windy conditions caused scores to be higher for the afternoon starters, which included Burns and Palmer.

Dodgers stay alive

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Ferguson hit a leadoff homer in the 10th inning to snap a tie and give Los Angeles a dramatic 3-2 victory over Houston Friday night, keeping alive the Dodgers' hopes of overtaking the Astros in the National League West.

The victory moved the Dodgers back to within two games of the front-running Astros with two games left in the big weekend series.

Ferguson's homer, his ninth, came off Ken Forsch, 12-13, who went the distance for the Astros.

Nineteen-year-old Fernando Valenzuela, who pitched two scoreless innings and has yet to give up an earned run in eight major league appearances.

"I was doing everything well in practice but I had no visions of a 63," said Sullivan, who contends he will not change his thinking.

"My intention is just to play like it's the first round. Leading is fine, but if I was five shots behind I would still play the same way."

Midland College made the most of its home course advantage by posting a team score of 312 to lead win the Western Junior College Conference tournament at Midland Country Club Friday.

Odessa College, Western Texas College and New Mexico Junior College tied at 315 while New Mexico Military Institute posted a 321. The victory moved Midland into a tie with OC for second place in the WJCC team standings. Both have seven points, one back of NMJC with only next week's meet at Odessa left before the teams recess until next spring.

Steve Goetzmann shot a medal 75 to lead the Chaparrals and the field. "The course played a long and difficult 7,400 yards," Coach Delnor Poss said. "So that was a good score."

Breck Nolen had a 77, Robert Upham a 79 and Bob Howig an 81 for the Chaps. Jeff Lutke and Doug Dabbs had 86s which did not count in the team score. Dabbs and Nolen both had back nine 36s.

Trevino stones shot out of trap

CHEPSTOW, Wales (AP) — Lee Trevino hacked his way out of a sand trap and got to within six feet of the hole. But the ball wasn't on the green — it was a stone that was near the cup.

It happened Friday at the ninth hole of Chepstow's St. Pierre golf course during the second round of a $144,000 tournament. It cost Trevino a six at the par-4 hole and helped to put him six strokes behind Bernhard Langer of Germany, the leader at the halfway stage.

Trevino's ball came to rest on a stone in the sand. He didn't know that under the rules of the European tour he was allowed to move the stone, even though it might affect the position of the ball. This is not allowed in the United States.

So he swung his club at the ball and stone together. The stone dropped onto the green, six feet from the pin. But the ball bounced past the green and disappeared down a slope on the other side.

"It was my fault," Trevino said. "I should have known the rule. I just didn't know I could get the stone out of the way before making my shot."

"If I had putted the stone from six feet I could have made a bogey. But the ball cost me a six."

Bertolaccini, Little lead

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Silvia Bertolaccini and Sally Little, two golfers not satisfied with the recent condition of their games, combined for a 10-under-par 63 Friday to take the first-round lead at the $115,000 LPGA team championships.

They held a 1-stroke lead over a pair of surprising young Hawaiians, Lenore Muraoka and Brenda Rego.

Mayer defeats Sadri

HAARLEM, Netherlands (AP) — Gene Mayer defeated John Sadri 6-1, 6-2 Friday on the fifth day of the Roxy international round-robin tennis tournament.

Victor Pecci of Paraguay defeated Dutchman Tom Okker 6-4, 6-3 in another evening match, and Ilie Nastase of Romania defeated Eddie Dibbs 5-7, 7-4, 6-4.

In the overall standings, Mayer and Nastase share the lead with four victories each, followed by Sadri and Pecci with two while Dibbs and Okker have not won any of their matches so far.

Turnbull, Austin triumph

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Wendy Turnbull and Tracy Austin won convincingly Friday night to advance to the semifinal round of the $100,000 U.S. Women's Indoor Tennis Championships at Met Center.

Billie Jean King and Roberta McCallum met in the final quarterfinal match of the evening for the right to play Dianne Fromholtz.

Election of left-wingers puts British socialists in 'crisis'

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

LONDON (AP) — A series of crucial victories by left-wingers in Britain's opposition Labor Party has plunged the country's strife-torn socialist movement into crisis and put its moderate leadership in danger of being ousted within months.

Moderate party leader James Callaghan and his worried aides joined with triumphant members of the party's left-dominated national executive in singing "The Red Flag," the socialist anthem Friday at the end of Labor's five-day annual convention in the seaside resort of Blackpool.

The display was no mask for the deep division between 68-year-old Callaghan and the party's left, led by former Energy Secretary Tony Benn, 55.

The convention became an open battleground for Labor's soul. It left the party, which lost power last year to Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives, in what appears to be the worst shape of its 74-year history.

Leading moderates were in near despair, fearing the party's lurch to the left and the infighting has ruined its chances in the next election, which must be held no later than 1984.

"We are sliding into a sort of oblivion," said former Defense Secretary William Rodgers. "We looked like a rabble, and the country will not vote for a rabble."

Left-wing legislator Dennis Skinner retorted: "They (the right) have long thought our role is to protest... They can't stand seeing us win."

Left-wingers won their biggest victories in the Labor movement since World War II. The convention adopted radical resolutions in favor of unilateral nuclear disarmament and withdrawal from the European Economic Community, and stripped the Labor members of Parliament — mainly moderates — of their exclusive right to elect the party leader by including unionists and rank and file party leaders.

The warring factions regroup for a special convention in January to decide who will elect the leader. Whichever happens, decisions made at the convention diminish the chances of moderate candidates by giving a say to trade unionists — themselves split between moderates and left-wingers — and the largely left-wing grassroots party officials.

Callaghan's next move is crucial. He must announce very soon whether he will stand again at the party's annual leadership elections in November.

That ballot will be held under the old rules, and in effect the victor will be a lame-duck leader until the January convention sets up a new electoral college.

Against this background, a scramble for the post-Callaghan leadership is under way — with former Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey the leading moderate contender, and Benn bidding from the left. Two other former ministers, John Silkin and Peter Shore, also have their hats in the ring. Both are situated politically between Healey and Benn.

The name of the game now is wooing the trade unions. They will have a decisive say in the choice of a party leader because they will have 40 percent of the proportional voting rights to 30 percent for the party members of Parliament and 30 for the mostly left-leaning rank and file.

Under the current system in which unions have block votes according to their membership, moderates hold a slim edge. Nevertheless, the new vote pool will almost certainly be further tilted than the members of Parliament, observers said.

The unions already bankroll the Labor Party, and the moderate politicians are none too happy about the influence unions will have on the leadership choice.

But Benn, who would have had no chance under the old rules, has a far from clear run now. The unions will want a leader who can plausibly lead Labor to victory in 1984.

In the view of most middle-of-the-road Laborites, Benn as Labor leader would be Mrs. Thatcher's greatest asset. His platform includes widespread nationalization, abolition of the House of Lords and banning private schools in his first month in office.

Argentina's military junta names three-year president

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's ruling military junta named former army commander Roberto E. Viola to a three-year presidential term Friday after weeks of divisive debate over the extent of his powers. He will assume office March 29.

Viola, 55, was the only serious candidate to succeed Jorge R. Videla, who led a coup against the widow of populist leader Juan Peron on March 24, 1976. But it took the junta four days beyond its self-imposed deadline to agree on the choice.

The junta of the army, navy and air force commanders had limited Videla's term to five years. It pledged Friday to continue his government's "process of national reorganization" to eliminate Peronist and Marxist influence from Argentina before calling elections.

As army chief of staff during the overthrow of President Isabel Peron, Viola played a key role in drafting the plan. It seeks to impose a free-market economy, curb trade union power, promote a strong conservative party and institute a permanent military "watchdog" role over future civilian governments.

Viola's extensive contacts with the sidelined political and labor bosses have aroused suspicion in the military that he might be too susceptible to pressure by the regime's opponents. They want a commitment to free elections in 1984 and immediate changes in economic policy to pull Argentina out of a six-month-old recession.

In a warning to "those who seek a premature restoration of democratic formalities," air force chief Omar Graffigna said this week the armed forces would complete their objectives "as soon as possible, but taking the time necessary to flatten all obstacles in the way."

The junta — composed of Graffigna, army commander Leopoldo Galtieri and navy commander Armando Lambruschini — has had considerable influence in Videla's government under a system of power sharing with the president.

Although the junta considered five other retired officers, Viola's appointment was never in serious doubt. He had replaced Videla in August 1978 as army commander, the most powerful military post; by his retirement last December, Viola had appointed enough key generals to be assured of army backing for the presidency.

But the three commanders, who began meeting Sept. 9 to choose a president, decided to limit his powers before naming him. By the junta's own rules, this was to be done by Sept. 29, six months before Videla is due to step down. But the junta announced Tuesday there was no agreement.

Some political sources said the junta had resisted Viola's proposal for a free hand to fill the cabinet and other key posts and for broader discretion in making policy. Other sources said the navy had vetoed Viola in a bid to win control of certain cabinet ministries and provincial governments.

The outcome of the conflict, apparently settled Thursday at the junta's eighth and last meeting on the issue, will not be known for sure until Viola's government is named in the coming months.

Viola himself added to the uncertainty by canceling a speech he had planned to deliver from the city of Concordia upon being appointed. Instead, he came to Buenos Aires for a lunch with Videla and the junta members.

Most political observers believe the junta will keep trying to limit Viola's power and the influence of civilians in his government. Even so, most civilians gave a cautious welcome to his appointment.

"I hope General Viola will understand that Argentines cannot be divided into good guys and bad guys, and that he will put himself to the task of changing an economic philosophy that has damaged the country," said Deolindo F. Bittel, the Peronist party president who speaks for the imprisoned Mrs. Peron.

Saudi accusation registered

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Saudi Arabia accused Israel on Friday of using U.S. support to flout the will of the United Nations, and objected to the Jewish state's participation in present and future sessions of the General Assembly.

Foreign Minister Prince Saud al Faisal said in the assembly's policy debate that Israel had driven the Palestinians from their homes, "devoured the remaining part of the Palestinian territory" and occupied lands of neighboring Arab countries.

"In its arrogance, its challenge and scorn of the international community," he declared, "Israel was encouraged by the unqualified support it received from the United States."

The Saudi official did not propose Israel's expulsion from the assembly, as did Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam on Tuesday. A recent meeting of the Islamic conference in Pez, Morocco, voted to seek support from East bloc and Third World nations to challenge Israel's General Assembly credentials.

President Carter has warned hardline Arabs that any effort to throw Israel out of the assembly "would raise the gravest questions about the future of the General Assembly and further participation of the United States and other nations in the deliberations of that body."

Prince Saud said Israel would ignore Security Council resolutions until they included sanctions.

He said the council this year had adopted two resolutions declaring Israel's formal proclamation of Jerusalem as its capital invalid, directing all states not to recognize that move and asking those with diplomatic missions in Jerusalem to withdraw them.

"Accordingly and on the basis of those two resolutions," Saud told the assembly, "my government objects to the participation of the Israeli delegation in the deliberations of this current session and the future sessions of the General Assembly."

"Israel does not enjoy a privileged status allowing it to ignore and challenge the United Nations resolutions."

Complete expulsion from the United Nations would require action by the 15-member U.N. Security Council. The United States could block any such move with a veto.

Constitution plans draw fire

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Two provincial leaders said Friday they are considering legal action to block Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's unilateral plans to fashion a new Canadian constitution.

Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan, a member of Trudeau's party, said if the federal or provincial governments do not challenge Trudeau's plans in the Supreme Court he "would not hesitate one moment" to do so himself.

Newfoundland Premier Brian Peckford announced a few minutes after Trudeau released his proposals Thursday night that he will study the possibility of challenging them in court.

Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon, chairman of the last premiers' conference, told reporters Friday in Winnipeg he will ask the other nine provincial leaders to meet in Toronto two weeks from now to discuss Trudeau's proposals.

Trudeau's resolution for the Canadian Parliament asks the British Parliament to relinquish control of the British North America Act of 1867, which serves as Canada's constitution. That would allow amendments — including a bill of rights and language guarantees if Trudeau has his way — resulting in a truly Canadian document.

Earlier efforts by Trudeau to win backing for the proposal from the 10 provincial premiers failed, in part because of disagreements over federal control of natural resources in the provinces.

NOW president attacks Reagan

By MACK SISK

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The head of the nation's largest feminist organization Friday berated Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan for reactionary, out-dated thinking on women's rights, but stopped short of endorsing President Jimmy Carter's re-election.

"Mr. Reagan, frankly, is in a generation that cannot possibly understand the aspirations of young women," said Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women. "I think he's clearly out of tune with our time."

"I don't believe in age discrimination and NOW has a very strong position on that: chronological means nothing. But this person (Reagan) has a belief system that is quite dated when it comes to females. He has not kept pace with the times."

A statement on the current presidential campaign was one of the priorities of the 1,500 NOW delegates who opened their annual issues conference, along with official strategies on the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion, lesbian rights and other feminist issues.

Although praising the Democratic Party for its pro-ERA platform and sharply criticizing the Republican platform, the so-called "moral majority" and Reagan — Ms. Smeal said NOW's official policy would be determined after a series of workshops and hearings on the presidential campaign. A resolution on the matter was scheduled for floor debate Sunday's closing plenary session.

She noted there was some sentiment among NOW members for independent presidential candidate John Anderson, who supports ERA and opposes the proposed "human life" anti-abortion amendment.

Some of the delegates also might prefer to concentrate on congressional and state legislative elections where they believe feminists could be more effective, said Ms. Smeal, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

She said most feminists feel that Carter, although less objectionable than Reagan, should take a more "aggressive" stand on feminist issues during the remainder of the campaign.

"In the presidential race, his position on women's rights is costing Reagan some," she said. "In the polls, Carter shows about a 10 percent increase in women's support. If, in fact, that is a close race, I think it could be a determining factor. There is no question the candidates are courting us. I think they view us as a political factor."

She accused Reagan of "trying to double-talk right now because he sees the polls and he knows this issue is extremely popular. So he constantly says he's for equal rights, then starts all the 'buts.' My feeling is he has not fooled very many people and the question is, will this be a big enough factor in the campaign. It certainly will be a factor and we're determined to make it more so."

Parenthood: As American as..

By DIANA INSOLIO

DENVER (AP) — Planned Parenthood is using the American flag and the American family to fight for contraception and abortion — taking on the so-called "right-to-life" movement with some of its traditional weapons.

The 64-year-old Planned Parenthood Federation of America unveiled some of its ammunition — two color television advertisements extolling patriotism and family life — at its annual national conference here this week.

The organization hopes the ads, and others like them, will counter the pro-family image of many anti-abortion groups with a "pro-child, pro-family, pro-life" image for Planned Parenthood, says President Fay Wattleton.

One of the ads opens with a shot of youngsters climbing into a 1930s Ford convertible and ends with a couple carrying groceries into a contemporary kitchen. The other shows clients being counseled by Planned Parenthood employees.

Both end with a picture of the American flag and the words, "Planned Parenthood. Helping Build a Strong America by Helping Strong American Families."

The point, says Ms. Wattleton, is that the American family will be strong only if family members are free to decide how and when to have children.

She said Planned Parenthood and its 20,000 volunteers are combatting a new right-wing movement working to wipe out sex education, contraception services and abortions — a movement she said is made up of fundamentalists, the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy, some Republicans and others.

Planned Parenthood, which has an annual operating budget of $116 million, also will buy radio time and newspaper space, Ms. Wattleton said. And volunteers will urge radio and television outlets to air free public service spots on Planned Parenthood.

There have been attacks on Planned Parenthood programs since 1973, when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the Constitution protects a woman's right to abortion, Ms. Wattleton said, but the group did not begin to take the opposition seriously until two or three years ago.

"In recent years we have faced an increasingly vocal and at times violent minority which seeks to deny all of our fundamental rights of privacy and individual decision-making," Ms. Wattleton said. "They want to pass laws that reflect their view of morality. And they don't believe in separation of church and state."

Ms. Wattleton and others said their opponents make up what amounts to a "New Right" of ultra-conservatism. The main issues in dispute, they said, are free access to abortion and contraception.

ERA not dead, NOW claims

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Pronouncements that the Equal Rights Amendment is dead are totally wrong, the president of the National Organization for Women declared Friday.

Likening the struggle to win ratification of the ERA by three remaining states to the persistent struggle of the Suffragettes for the right to vote, Eleanor Smeal said, "The odds are against us, but the odds don't count in these kinds of situations."

"It doesn't matter how long it takes, because we're going to continue fighting because we are not going to accept second-class citizenship."

Suit filed on RCA

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. Attorney's office has filed a $6.28 million civil lawsuit against RCA Corp. Consumer Electronics Division, claiming that the Indianapolis-based division dodged the payment of $1.57 million in import duties on RCA television sets.

RCA claimed to have made certain television set components in the United States, shipped the components to RCA Taiwan, Ltd. for assembly, and then imported the sets back to this country and improperly claimed a duty-free exemption.

U.S. Attorney Virginia Dill McCarty said the $6.28 million figure was reached under a law allowing the government to seek a penalty four times the amount of "the lawful customs duties owed."

Filed Wednesday in the court of federal Judge James E. Noland, the suit charged that

Coke, Pepsi settle out of court

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Two archrivals for the nation's soft drink business reached an out-of-court settlement in a lawsuit filed by Pepsi-Cola Co. to prevent Coca-Cola Co. from finding out about Pepsi's top secret marketing strategy for 1981.

Breen and Coca-Cola.

Pepsi, headquartered in Purchase, N.Y., said it has spent millions of dollars in the past nine months to develop "the Pepsi Challenge," a consumer taste comparison test of both colas that will be publicized in certain areas of the country next year.

Breen, who switched to Atlanta-based Coca-Cola on Sept. 9, "knows when and where it will be implemented," according to Pepsi lawyer, Elizabeth Beth.

In the settlement reached Thursday, Donald Breen, 27, a former Pepsi associate marketing manager, agreed not to discuss with his new employer, Coca-Cola, the strategy developed during his tenure at Pepsi.

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — House committees are completing their interim studies — with the Business and Industry Committee having proposed changes in several areas.

One of those changes is an overhaul of Texas' condominium housing laws, which were written in the late 1960s.

Some of the problems addressed in a proposed bill (which may undergo additional modifications before the Legislature convenes in 1981) are condominium conversions (with persons making such conversions required to give tenants 120 days notice), escrow of deposits, insurance, assessments for common expenses, implied and express warranties, obligation to complete or restore work, and other items (covering 71 pages.)

In the landlord-tenant area, the committee recommends that a landlord have the right to remove all property from premises that have been abandoned (with "reasonable measures to safely store ... personal property"), and that rental agreements dis-close the name and address of the owner or owners of rental units, and "any existing conditions which could affect health and safety."

Landlords also would be prohibited from "interrupting or causing the interruption" of utilities to premises occupied by tenants "under any circumstances."

Landlords also would be prohibited from entering leased property without notice and permission of tenants except for emergency repairs when the tenant cannot be located, for fires or similar emergencies, or normal repairs — if there is agreement in a written lease to allow that.

The committee also recommends that the Texas Industrial Commission better document its activities at its Mexico City trade office — suggesting a registration form for companies using the office (with companies being required to give information on sales, but with the information held confidential except for examining agencies of the state.)

TIC also is urged to study locating a major Mexican bank's office in Dallas or Houston to assist with import and export matters.

In its revised report for the 1978-79 biennium, the Texas Aeronautics Commission notes that "considerable passenger load growth" occurred during the period for the ten air carriers which operated in 37 Texas cities under TAC certificates.

Quarterly passenger totals during the biennium, TAC notes, nearly equalled annual totals in the preceding biennium (and figures are still climbing in the current biennium.)

During 1977, Texas traffic for all TAC carriers was nearly three million passengers — while in 1978, Southwest Airlines alone boarded over 3.5 million (with the total for passengers on all TAC carriers exceeding 4.3 million.)

State Board of Insurance has sent out guidelines on "paid loss retro" or "cash flow plans" for worker's compensation insurance, which have been a source of concern to the agency for several months.

The SBI has been reviewing the plans — which it called into question earlier — and indicates that most of them are in "substantial compliance" with State Insurance Code provisions.

The SBI will be continuing its monitoring of the plans, Commissioner E. J. Voorhis reports, and may contact insurers on an individual basis to determine compliance with policy forms, rules and rates.

The Texas Air Control Board is preparing to mail out its emissions inventory questionnaire to industries throughout the state around the end of the month, with the completed questionnaires to be returned in March.

The effort is part of the state's continuing compliance effort under federal clean air requirements.

TACB also is continuing its work on proposed permit fees for industrial plants, as authorized by the 1979 Legislature, but thus far not implemented.

Terrorists cause island concern

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — At Harrison Plaza, a modern shopping mall in Manila's tourist district, uniformed guards check entering customers for bombs. But inside, the 140-store mall bustles each day with 30,000 shoppers, bingo players and tourists.

Tight security measures at most major public and private buildings follow a series of urban terrorist bombings and bomb threats aimed at bringing down the martial-law government of President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

The 63-year-old leader says the bombings and the rallying of new anti-government groups here and abroad could delay a planned transition to a parliamentary democracy.

The bombings and Marcos' response have raised the question of whether this predominantly Roman Catholic nation of 7,000 islands is a booming "New Society" finally ready for true democracy or a faltering dictatorship ready to explode.

Neither the bombings — which have killed an American woman and injured 30 other people since Aug. 22 — nor the tightened security has had any outward impact on the loud music, traffic jams and pushing crowds that characterize Manila commerce.

"Even with the so-called terrorist bombings and the rising cost of living, you don't see it in the faces of the people," said J. Javier, manager of Harrison Plaza. "It hasn't affected the business climate in Manila."

Javier said the mall's business has increased steadily since it opened in 1975, catering primarily to what Marcos says is a growing Philippines middle class.

Marcos, a successful corporate attorney before he was elected president in a U.S.-style election, has led the Philippines for 15 years, the last eight by martial-law decree.

He said in an interview with The Associated Press on the Sept. 21 anniversary of his "New Society" that he objects to being called a dictator because he is subject to the national constitution.

An interim National Assembly, elected in 1978, has some legislative power, but Marcos can overrule its actions. Earlier this month, 40 of the body's 179 members appealed to the president to continue martial law. Some asked for even more-repressive measures to quell the bombings, including a curfew and registration of citizens.

Marcos claims sweeping successes under martial law. Government literature says the dismantling of the "borrowed Western representative system" of government was a "watershed on the Filipino voyage of self-discovery."

The U.S. seized the Philippines from Spain in 1898 and it became a self-governing U.S. Commonwealth in 1935. It was given full independence on July 4, 1946, and adopted a U.S.-style government.

The government here also claims improved peace and order, an expanded economy, at least partially successful land reform, greater rural electrification, and better roads.

But Marcos' critics, including many old political foes from a decade ago, complain of what they call lost freedoms, civil injustices and continued graft and corruption. They also accuse Marcos of enriching himself and friends while failing to solve major problems such as poverty and malnutrition.

Marcos' most prominent critic, former Sen. Benigno Aquino, a likely presidential candidate if there had been a 1973 election, has maintained before audiences in the U.S., where he now lives, that Marcos' government will crumble in violence if he does not end martial law.

Marcos has taken Aquino's warning as a threat. The government accuses him of sending the terrorist bombers to Manila, including Philippine-born American Victor Lovely, seriously wounded by a bomb police say exploded accidentally as he was preparing it in his Manila YMCA room. Aquino denies any involvement in the bombings.

He was released from prison on Marcos' orders last May, in order to undergo heart surgery in Texas, after serving 7½ years, accused of subversion and weapons possession.

Marcos recently put Lovely's two Filipino brothers, also under arrest here, before a national television audience, and they hinted at ties with another opposition leader, former Sen. Jovito Salonga.

Salonga, himself a victim of an unsolved bombing that contributed to imposition of martial law in 1972, denies having anything to do with terrorism but agrees with Aquino that further incidents may be inevitable. Salonga is among a handful of formerly prominent oppositionists who have spoken out against Marcos' regime more frequently in recent months.

Salonga called for an end to Marcos' rule in a speech this month and outlined a 12-point alternative program. But he said Marcos' expensive propaganda machine has tried to convince Filipinos he is their only leader.

Salonga claimed that a "typical Filipino who prays for the end of martial law, or yearns for a society that is good and just and actually works for it, exposes himself to the risk of being picked up and detained indefinitely in an army prison camp."

Marcos says he has released and plans to release more "detainees." Earlier this year, the government admitted to holding 447 so-called "public order violators."

Former Sen. Lorenzo Tanada, another Marcos opponent, says some people believe the government is behind the bombings, to create an excuse for continuing martial law.

But Tanada said the danger of continued bombings is "that foreign investors might be scared, tourism will be affected and capital will fly away."

Tourism Minister Jose Aspiras said he had received "discreet inquiries" from delegates to three major tourism conventions scheduled to be held in Manila.

"We're telling them these things are isolated and the government is fully prepared to meet anything that would disrupt the conference," Aspiras said.

He said there have been no cancellations from delegates, most of whom will stay in one of more than a dozen luxury hotels built in Manila since martial law was imposed.

The Philippines hosts two major U.S. military installations — Clark Air Base and the Subic naval base. U.S. government briefing papers say that martial law was initially well-received by most Filipinos, but that there have been abuses, including arbitrary arrest, torture and killing.

Some U.S. congressmen have introduced measures to cut aid to the Philippines, which approached $100 million last year and is scheduled to reach nearly $150 million this year, including $95.7 million in "security assistance."

George Suter, vice president of the American Chamber of Commerce in Manila said following the bombings, "As far as our community goes, it's business as usual."

He added that U.S. businessmen in the Philippines view terrorism as a worldwide phenomenon.

"No one has changed the approach to doing business, but many of us are tightening security," he said. "It's a transition situation that will be resolved one way or another."

Feelings of futility settle on West Bank

By WILLIAM CLAIBORNE and EDWARD CODY
The Washington Post

HEBRON, Israeli-occupied West Bank — A deep dispiritedness and sense of futility in the Palestinian nationalist movement, accompanied by a near-vacuum of leadership, have settled over the West Bank of the Jordan River. Overt political resistance to the Israeli occupation has been subdued, at least for the time being.

The immediate causes of this retreat are the Israeli government's tough response to a May 2 Arab ambush in downtown Hebron that left six Jewish settlers dead, and the subsequent reprisal bombings, allegedly by ultranationalist Israeli settlers, that crippled two of the West Bank's most prominent Arab leaders.

In a broader perspective, however, it fits into a growing fear in the West Bank that, despite the promise of Camp David, in the long run little can be done to arrest to arrest Israel's relentless drive to settle the occupied territory with a Jewish population and prevent its return to Arab control.

In a series of interviews across the West Bank, from Jenin in the north to Hebron in the south, Palestinians expressed apprehension that, for whatever reason, the dramatic rise of openly defiant anti-Israeli sentiment over the last year has been crushed under the crackdown and the accumulated effect of the Israeli government's settlement policies.

"How could they leave, after all the building they have done?" asked Mohammed Ibrahim Tawil, 55, a sheep trader, as he sat on cushions on the floor of his living room discussing West Bank conditions with visitors to Hebron, only a hillside away from the sprawling Kiryat Arba Jewish settlement.

"We just ask them to live among us decently, but they are the ones causing the trouble. They are armed and they have the authority to beat us, so they do," Tawil said.

FOR THE MUSCULAR, compact Tawil, this kind of resignation did not always come so easily. He has been imprisoned twice by Israeli occupation authorities since the West Bank was captured from Jordan in the 1967 Six-Day war.

His son, Dahoud, 24, received a two-month prison term just before the Moslem holy month of Ramadan began in July. He was charged, his father said, with failing to inform authorities of plans by his friends for anti-Israeli activities.

"I've told him to stay out of that kind of thing," Tawil said. "There's no use to it."

The dispiritedness throughout the West Bank has become apparent in many other ways. Anti-Israeli demonstrations and rallies have become a rarity. Rock-throwing at Israeli vehicles has declined sharply. Militant declarations by what is left of the West Bank leadership have died away. The Arabic press has been forced to pull back from its once-strident tone.

THE 22-MEMBER National Guidance Council, formed to promote West Bank nationalism and rally opposition to the Camp David accords, has all but disintegrated with the deportation or maiming of its most assertive leaders.

Nablus Mayor Bassam Shaka and Ramallah Mayor Karim Khalaf lost their legs when bombs planted in their cars exploded on June 2. Halhoul Mayor Mohammed Milhem, along with Hebron Mayor Fahd Kawasme and Hebron Islamic Judge Rajib Tamimi, were deported following the May 2 ambush attack in Hebron.

Since the bombing and deportations, the Guidance Council, when was bitterly resented by the military government for its potential to organize resistance to the occupation, has been reduced to virtual inaction.

"The political activity of the last year has just been frozen," said Freij, who along with El Bieria Mayor Ibrahim Tawil is the only mayor of stature remaining in the West Bank.

Jemih Nasser, deputy mayor of Jericho, who participates in the Guidance Council's work, dismissed the council with a resigned wave of the hand, and said, "It's all over."

The disbanded leadership was elected in 1976 in the first Israeli-sponsored elections in the West Bank, replacing the traditional pro-Jordan mayors who had assumed power during the Jordanian control from 1948 to 1967. Much to Israel's chagrin, they were swept into office on a platform of open identification with the Palestine Liberation Organization of Yasser Arafat and made the PLO more than ever before part of daily life in the West Bank.

IN WHAT RESEMBLED the liberalizing "Prague Spring" of 1968 in Czechoslovakia, the occupation authorities inexplicably looked on in the West Bank as young Palestinian flag, while the Guidance Council met openly and issued militant communiques condemning the Jewish state.

Such anti-Israeli agitation had occurred before, notably in a series of violent demonstrations that shook the West Bank in 1976. But in the mood of swelling resistance, and perhaps hope generated by Camp David, West Bank residents were more openly defiant than ever before. Teen-agers who previously threw stones and ran away were throwing them and staying put, facing the Israeli soldiers who were their targets.

The Guidance Council declarations constituted direct, open challenges to occupation rules barring political action directed against Israeli control.

As a result, an intense debate broke out in Israel over whether the military government's seeming acquiescence to the nationalist spirit was a result of policy or a lack of it. Ezer Weizman, who was then defense minister, was subjected to sharp criticism by some officials of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Likud government, who warned that the relaxation of control could snowball and perhaps even lead to a Palestinian state.

The signal that the "Prague Spring" was over came in the early morning hours after the Hebron ambush. Weizman, after consulting with Begin ordered Milhem, Kawasme and Tamimi blindfolded and put in a helicopter to be taken across the Lebanese border, where they were left.

At first there was a defiant reaction by Palestinian leaders to the sudden deportation, reflected by Shaka in a May 7 interview with The Washington Post. He said, "The people are not afraid, if we (the mayors) don't give guidance, the people will act themselves."

BUT AS THE OUTRAGE over the bombings subsided to seething resentment, the first signs of dispiritedness began to surface. Freij and his entire town council resigned, and other mayors talked of quitting.

"This is a hurricane, and the best thing to do in a hurricane is step aside from its path," Freij said then, showing all the signs of a defeated man.

In the occupation authorities' crackdown, mayors and Arab notables were placed under "town arrest," meaning they were prohibited from leaving their own communities. Censorship of Arabic new papers was tightened. The Guidance Council was ordered not to meet. Mayors were warned under the threat of deportation not to talk with foreign journalists and were told they would be held personally accountable for any anti-Israeli demonstrations in their towns.

Midland is PEHEPE

The United Way in Midland is "people helping people." If you don't believe it, just ask Chris Parsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Parsley of Midland.

He's the young man who recently gave the name "PEHEPE" to the organization's mustachioed "Little Man" mascot, created by Midland's Norman Johnson.

Chris simply took the first two letters of each of the words "people helping people," put them together and came up with the name.

But Chris' name for the mascot goes much deeper than that, striking at the very heart of the United Way organization. The United Way continues to be successful in the Tall City year after year because of the concept on which it is based — helping those around us to have a more enjoyable, more comfortable life.

United Way is designed to appeal to all people. There are 18 member agencies that get a piece of the UW pie and they provide services to thousands of Midlanders.

The agencies serve elderly Midlanders, youthful Midlanders, unfortunate Midlanders, men and women in the nation's military services. They offer mothers the opportunity to leave their children in a day nursery while they work. They offer alcoholics an avenue to help. They offer youngsters paths to clean, wholesome, spiritually uplifting entertainment. They offer the elderly among us nourishing food, social activities and recreation.

And the United Way is an efficient organization. Contributing to the agency significantly reduces the number of organizations that come calling for contributions each year.

But even as efficient as the United Way agency is, the needs still remain great. In fact, the needs of the member agencies are increasing in correlation to the demands placed on them.

We in Midland have always responded to those needs by opening our arms, our hearts and our pocketbooks, and giving more so life for our fellow man will be better. This year is no exception. The United Way is attempting to raise $1.15 million. That amount represents a 12.3 percent increase over the amount raised last year by the agency.

The campaign opened last Sunday in Midland and will continue through Nov. 13. There is ample time for each Midlander to make his or her contribution and, in the process, to help Midland become a better home for all of us. That is a goal we can all appreciate.

Give to the United Way and give generously. Remember Chris Parsley's "Little Man," PEHEPE. The United Way in Midland is indeed "People Helping People."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Oct. 5, the 279th day of 1980. There are 87 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 5, 1502, Christopher Columbus discovered Costa Rica.

On this date:

In 1796, Spain declared war on Britain.

In 1910, Portugal was proclaimed a republic.

In 1931, Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon completed the first non-stop flight across the Pacific, arriving in Washington state 41 hours after take-off from Japan.

In 1976, the United States announced that radioactive fallout from a nuclear test in China had been detected in the eastern United States.

Ten years ago, President Richard Nixon returned from his eight-day trip to Europe and the Mediterranean and hailed it as a diplomatic success.

Five years ago, Idaho Sen. Frank Church said the Central Intelligence Agency had made several attempts to assassinate Cuba's Fidel Castro.

Today's birthday: Theatrical producer Joshua Logan is 72.

Libertarians might qualify for federal payment, but ...

WASHINGTON — The national malaise that the Rev. Jimmy Carter once announced actually applies more to how the citizenry feels about the most publicized presidential candidates than it does to the mood of the Republic.

Many a fussy citizen has agonized over Carter and Reagan, and not being able to stomach those flavors, now considers registering a protest vote. Such a dutiful soul can do much better than voting for Anderson, a piece of cotton candy really, and consider Ed Clark, nominee of an authentic third party, the Libertarians.

Mind you, protest votes are cast when a person just can't hunker down with the personalities or program of the major parties. There is an honorable third-party tradition in the U.S. Who today can scorn the maverick efforts of the Populist, James Weaver, Teddy Roosevelt, Robert LaFollette, Norman Thomas, Henry A. Wallace, and George C. Wallace (no relation)? These candidates and their parties address issues the majors wouldn't even whisper about, and rate a historian's salute.

Anyway, the Libertarian Party's basic notion is that the government should leave people alone — just as Thomas Jefferson said — and people will be better off and surprised at how well they solve problems for themselves.

Admittedly, this is high-minded stuff, but this year the Libertarians, founded in 1972, have 552 candidates running, are on the ballot in all 50 states, and hope to cadge 3 percent of the vote for Clark. In 1978, 200 Libertarians ran for office, got 1.3 million votes and won several races. Last week, this party conducted a closed-circuit telecast to 32 cities and gathered $250,000 for Clark's $2.7 million campaign budget.

Clark, 50, an anti-trust lawyer, is rather quiet for a candidate, but what he says can cause throats to clear and eyebrows to raise. In one swoop, he would cut taxes by $180 billion, lop $200 billion out of the federal budget, and abolish the department of Education and Energy as well as the CIA.

He would gradually phase out Social Security, a system he thinks defrauds rich and middle-income alike; abolish minimum wage and licensing laws so young people could get jobs again; establish "enterprise zones" in inner cities so business could revitalize those degraded areas; and eliminate price controls on oil so that the market would make alternate energy systems more attractive.

That's a big order, even for a heady Libertarian, but this bunch would also revolutionize education by giving tax reductions to parents who send their children to non-public schools. "The present education system is so rotten," Clark says, "that 30 percent of high school graduates are illiterates. The public schools need competition in the form of black Baptist schools, Hebrew schools, Catholic schools, atheist schools — all pluralistic, and not killing the mind as public schools do."

Clark opposes federal funding of abortion as "a cruel use of the tax system which forces a minority to accept what they regard as murder."

Political struggle crippling World Bank

WASHINGTON — The World Bank — one of the most effective vehicles for peaceful progress by Third World countries — could be crippled by an internal political struggle.

In a reversal of roles, it is the Arab nations and their Third World allies that are accusing the United States of playing politics. Usually, it is Uncle Sam who self-righteously tsk-tsks at the politicization of international institutions by Third World nations.

What makes the charges serious is that the United States no longer has the overwhelming clout it once had as the single biggest contributor to the World Bank. The Third World is no longer made up of have-nots alone; it includes such oil-rich countries as Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, which are rapidly becoming major World Bank contributors thanks to their petrodollars.

The latest political confrontation involved the proposed admission of the Palestinian Liberation Organization as an observer at the bank's meetings. While this would not give the PLO a vote, such status would enhance the organization's influence on member nations.

The United States is firmly opposed to admission of the PLO in any capacity. In fact, the House of Representatives, which must appropriate U.S. contributions to the bank's loan fund, has voted overwhelmingly for a rider to the foreign aid bill that would cut off all American commitments to both the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund if the PLO is given observer status.

The Arab countries, angered by what one source referred to as "American pigheadedness," have begun to reconsider their own commitments to the bank. Diplomatic sources told my associate Indy Bahar that Arab contributors, especially ly to the bank's concessionary loan program for developing nations, are seriously considering withdrawing from participation.

One of the most innovative proposals under active consideration by the World Bank — creation of an "energy affiliate" — is endangered by this political tug-of-war. The proposed affiliate would disburse $25 billion in loans to countries developing new sources of energy. Most of the funding for this program was expected to come from the oil-rich Arabs.

"The PLO question," one source said, "has seriously jeopardized the creation of a dependable source of money for worldwide energy research. The Arab nations are beginning to lean toward bilateral financial relationships, and the betting is that they will pour most of their petrodollars into the Islamic Fund rather than international institutions."

The PLO issue was settled temporarily by the IMF-World Bank decision not to invite any observers at all to this year's annual meeting. While this was publicly presented as a compromise solution, in fact it was a U.S.-engineered rebuff to the Arab world and to the current chairman of the IMF-World Bank Board of Governors, Amir Jamal, finance minister of Tanzania.

Mme. Gandhi's 'cooking' never leaves you hungry

WASHINGTON — "Hello, Mr. Carter? This is Mme. Gandhi. I'd like to call in my order. Have your deliveries gone out today?"

"No, ma'am. Our driver hasn't left yet."

"Well, I'd like a quart of milk, a dozen eggs, a box of steel wool, and 38 tons of enriched uranium."

"Yes, ma'am. It sounds like you're planning a big party."

"Never mind what I'm planning. Just send over the order."

"I'm not sure we have 38 tons of enriched uranium in stock. You wouldn't care to take 38 tons of wheat instead?"

"I would not. Every time I call, you say you're out of enriched uranium. If you can't stock what your customers want, I will have no choice but to go across the street."

"Please don't get upset, Mme. Gandhi. As you know, the motto of our store is, 'Give Everyone a Bang for Their Buck.' Do you want the instant enriched uranium or the type you cook from scratch?"

"I don't know the difference."

"Why don't you look on your atomic reactor and see what it calls for?"

Art Buchwald

"How did you know I cook on an atomic reactor?"

"I just assumed it. Most people who order enriched uranium have atomic stoves."

"Send over the instant uranium. I'm in a hurry."

"All right. Just follow the instructions on the box. There are all sorts of delicious recipes on the back."

"I know what I want to make with the enriched uranium, and I'm certain the instructions are not on the box."

"Mme. Gandhi, I'm obligated to tell you that under the Food and Drug Administration Act of 1962, enriched uranium, if not correctly used, could be dangerous to your health."

"Mr. Carter, I don't need someone telling me how to make uranium curry."

"There's no reason to get upset. I'm just following the law. If I sold the uranium and people got sick to their stomachs, I would be responsible."

"That does it. Please cancel my order. I'll get my uranium elsewhere."

"Don't hang up, Mme. Gandhi. I'm sure you won't do anything stupid, and I won't pursue the subject any further. Did you want any heavy water to go with the uranium?"

"Why? Do I need some?"

"Oh, yes. You have to mix the uranium with heavy water or the uranium will stick to the bottom of the pan."

"How much heavy water will I need to cook 38 tons?"

"Offhand, I would say 25 gallons to a ton. You don't want it to get too thin or it will boil over and contaminate the entire Valley of Kashmir."

"All right, include the heavy water."

"Very well. Anything else I can help you with?"

"Do you have any plastic garbage bags I can put the waste in?"

"Certainly. Would a dozen be sufficient?"

"Not for what I've got in mind. You better send me a gross."

"I agree with you. There's nothing like stockpiling up for a rainy day. Heh, heh, heh."

"Don't you get chummy with me, Mr. Carter. You're just lucky I'm giving you my business."

"And don't think we aren't grateful, Mme. Gandhi. Your account means a lot to us."

"I should hope so, and you better remember it if you want me to keep buying your uranium."

"Don't worry about that. Your order will be on the truck this afternoon, and, on behalf of everyone in the store, we sincerely hope that you have a bang-up time."

Water Development Fund proposal grows out of bonding problem

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Last month, members of the Water Development Board adopted a resolution to reserve the last $5 million of unencumbered money in the Water Development Fund for loans of $500,000 or less, for emergency purposes.

another $119 million) because of market conditions. Specifically, the board has been unable to peddle its bonds because of a constitutional provision limiting the interest which the state can pay on those bonds to six percent.

the state's problems. At the end of August, Texas had, according to the Comptroller's Office, general obligation bond debt outstanding of over $1.1 billion ($1,152,815,000, to be exact.)

ment ($9 million), college student loans ($161.7 million), and the Permanent University Fund ($80.5 million for Texas A&M University and $163.6 million for the University of Texas System.)

But, he says, "there's no doubt in anybody's mind that it will be self-liquidating" — meaning that the fund eventually will receive enough money to pay off all its bonds, and will have money left over.

The Water Development Fund has become self-sustaining in the past year, Manager Charles Holcomb reports, with $1.4 million income in excess of debt service requirements.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Most motorists...

To The Editor: On Friday morning during the recent monsoon season a young lady standing at an intersection curbside was seen to be drenched to the skin by an oaf of a motorist who plowed through the water at excessive speed sending a shower ten to fifteen feet on either side.

Can we survive? To The Editor: "Liberalism is mankind's shortest and surest road to self-destruction."

Note of thanks

To The Editor: I am writing this letter to the city of Midland concerning the prompt efforts of the emergency ambulance service.

Two weeks ago I fell and injured myself seriously at our home. The ambulance was there in minutes.

Now I would like to take this means to recommend other insured drivers to take similar action if they are ever involved in similar circumstances.

The front page To The Editor: I have asked quite a number of people if they read your editorial on Thursday, Sept. 4, 1980, regarding "Too Much Government."

For valid reasons, at the discretion of the editor, the name will be withheld but must be included in the original letter.

Who can doubt Kennedy will be the one with presidential power if Carter is elected?

Presidential power

To The Editor: A word about the presidency: Actually, a word about the power of the presidency. It is obvious the incumbent has the power, the power of the presidency. All of us plain citizens expect, hope and pray that our president will use that power only and It's people like these and my neighbors who helped me that day who make Midland a good place to live.

Another way to help your fellow law abiding citizens is to give your name to the innocent party in any accident you might witness. I certainly will do so in the future.

I certainly wish that this could be printed on a page that people would read. So many people miss the editorial page which is usually the heart of any newspaper.

POSITIVE THINKING

The real reason for retirement

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE One of America's most popular preachers is an institution in himself. There is never an empty seat at his services, come rain or shine. People come in busloads from distant places. He has a homey, friendly style and it's no wonder people love him.

The retirement dinner is over, the wrist watch presented, the citation read, the pension activated. The poor fellow fished for a while but soon tires of that; he golfs until he is fed up. He moons around the house.

the post? It seems curious. After all, I've had 20 years' teaching experience here. "That's not quite the way we looked at it," came the reply. "In your case, the board felt that what you've had is one year's experience repeated 20 times."

Watered down To The Editor: The manner in which the city of Midland water department runs its business is really amazing. The water department cannot find people to work for them who are even able to read meters correctly.

Note of apology To The Editor: I would like to direct the following to the Midland Lee Band and Boosters: It has been brought to the attention of the Red Rage Booster Club (by a Plainview Bulldog fan) that the card show and P.A. announcements at a recent football game were in poor taste.

No quotas To The Editor: These last fifteen months have been a very rough time for the domestic automobile industry and its workers. Now, a case has been brought before the U.S. International Trade Commission in Washington to determine if imports were really at fault.

Job: It's an overworked word

Almost everyone's ego yearns for a beam of shining glory on the job or at play. And it seems not to matter if that glorified ray be real or imagined. And one of the most convenient and satisfying means to sooth and artificially aggrandize the often-winged ego is to over-title jobs.

California's crime

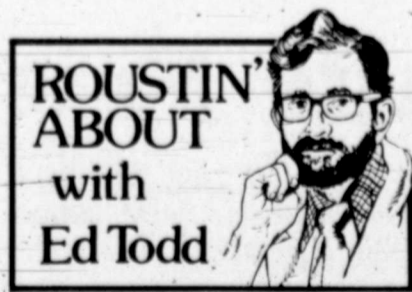

To The Editor: "Talk is cheap." "Look before you leap." You've heard these expressions before and they are applicable to the upcoming elections. Let's just mention a few things about the former governor of California. He is an interesting man, an intelligent man, he is a good sounding man.

A good word

To The Editor: I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for the Newspaper Bible, printed in the Midland paper. In the times in which we live, we are faced with many complex questions and our only logical answer is to turn to God, the Creator of all life.

California's crime

We can assure you that you are always welcome and we shall, in the future, attempt to execute our spirit activities in a manner which will be acceptable to everyone. We certainly hope that this mistake will not be a reflection on our town, our team, or the student body, and that we can continue our athletic rivalry in the future in the best interest of all — the fans as well as the participants.

Next president will mold federal judiciary

NEW YORK (AP) — For many partisans, the differences between Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan are no more sharply etched than in their attitudes toward the federal judiciary.

The next president will appoint dozens of trial and appeals judges. With five Supreme Court judges more than 70 years old, he conceivably could name a majority of the high court.

Once confirmed by the Senate, those lifetime appointees decide legal and social issues that chart the course of the nation.

It was 150 years ago that Alexis de Tocqueville wrote words that ring even truer today: "Scarcely any political question arises in the U.S. that is not resolved, sooner or later, into a judicial question."

"There's no question," University of Massachusetts political scientist Sheldon Goldman said, "that this election is critical to the future of the judiciary."

THUS, CAREFUL SCRUTINY is being given both candidates' records on judicial appointments: Reagan to the California courts during his eight years as governor, and Carter to the federal judiciary during his first four-year term. As a member of Congress, independent candidate John Anderson has never had a direct role in judicial appointments.

The issues include the appointment of minorities and women, legal craftsmanship versus political partisanship and the role of judges in deciding national policy.

The latter question has taken on additional significance with the Republican platform plank calling for appointment of judges "who respect traditional family values and the sanctity of innocent human life."

Reagan said he would consider a potential nominee's social views and general philosophy, and would not flatly rule out a judicial candidate who was pro-abortion. Nonetheless, some fear the platform provision could lead to a single-issue standard and the appearance of judicial bias.

"It would be a disastrous precedent," said Charles Halpern of the Judicial Selection Project at Georgetown University. "I don't think a judge should be asked to prejudge any issue." Andrew Schepard of Columbia University said, "For the justice system to function well, people have got to believe they're getting a fair shake."

REAGAN SAID IN AN Associated Press interview that his judicial philosophy is simply this: judges should interpret law, not make it. He criticized recent Supreme Courts for doing exactly that.

Such statements raise concerns that Reagan appointees would try to roll back key decisions of the last three decades, but Herbert Ellingwood, Reagan's former legal affairs secretary and now a campaign adviser, noted a traditional judicial reluctance to reverse landmark decisions.

Ellingwood said Reagan would try to appoint "strict constructionists" who would be unlikely to make new national policy. Goldman countered: "There's no such thing as a strict constructionist. That's a fantasy. The Supreme Court has been a policy-making body from day one."

While Carter and Reagan both claim they always try to appoint the best qualified candidate for any judicial post, both find those qualifications within their respective parties.

After Carter assumed office, he issued an executive order changing the way federal judges are selected. He set up a nominating commission that makes evaluations on the basis of merit for openings to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and the White House talked senators from more than half the states into setting up similar panels for recommending district court judges.

TRADITIONALLY, FEDERAL judges were chosen by U.S. senators who were members of the president's party, with opposition senators holding veto power.

Still, Larry Berkson of the American Judicature Society in Chicago says more than 90 percent of Carter's appointees have been Democrats — partisanship surpassing any of the previous seven presidents.

While Carter's changes have opened up the selection process to include candidates who might not have been considered previously, Berkson said, "It's really a process of what I've come to call the merit selection of Democrats by Democrats."

In California, Reagan supported legislation to implement a merit system, but the legislation failed and he never issued a comparable executive order.

Columbia Law School's Schepard said a study he did for Common Cause indicates that about 85 percent of Reagan's judicial appointees were Republicans.

"In terms of political partisanship, there's not much difference between Carter and Reagan," he said.

Lakes may be tapped

By The Associated Press

New Jersey's drought is becoming so severe that state officials are considering tapping large recreation lakes for drinking water, while in Norfolk, Va., officials are using a large rate surcharge to encourage customers to cut water use by 25 percent.

The New Jersey drought has parched the state's northern counties, and a mandatory rationing plan is in effect in 114 communities. The recreation lakes would be tapped if the drought became more severe, gubernatorial spokesman Joseph Santangelo said Wednesday.

Water from Lake Hopatcong in the northeast part of the state would be used first and would be carried by temporary above-ground pipes to any reservoir in need of replenishment, Santangelo said.

No date was set for any lake tapping.

In Norfolk, a water allocation plan went into effect Wednesday that levies a surcharge on customers using more than 75 percent of last year's average consumption. The surcharge is $10 per 100 cubic feet — about 750 gallons. Customers usually pay 92 cents for 100 cubic feet.

Mandatory restrictions on non-essential uses of water in August dropped consumption from 85 million gallons a day to 67 million in September. A publicity campaign then got consumption down to 59 million.

City officials hope to reach a consumption level of 50 million gallons a day, which would provide a 100-day supply even without rain, according to John Kempe, Norfolk's public utilities director.

In New Jersey, Santangelo said at a cabinet meeting that a long-range forecast received by the state predicts dry weather for several months.

Reservoirs were losing about .5 percent of their level a day, he said.

"Reservoirs in the northeast part of the state average 42 percent of capacity," he said.

Asked if that meant dry reservoirs in 84 days if the situation doesn't change, Santangelo replied: "Simplistically, yes."

Other contingency plans discussed at the cabinet meeting include making new connections between water suppliers, such as a link between the Commonwealth Water Co. and Passaic Valley Water Commission due to be finished by the year's end, Santangelo said.

He said more connections would not help ease the current shortage because pipelines take years to build.
