Carter 'chips away' in West Texas visit

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Treading briefly through this no-man's land for Democrats — otherwise known as the Republican territory of West Texas - Chip Carter on Wednesday pulled out the club and starting swinging in defending his father's policies, specifically the windfall profits tax, and in attacking opponent Ronald Reagan.

Carter arrived almost on the heels of Republican vice presidential nominee George H.W. Bush, who was in Midland Tuesday for a political rally. The president's son spoke to more than 100 Midland and Ector county supporters who had gathered in the Symphony Building at Air Terminal for a barbecue lunch. Talking at a rapid pace, Carter claimed this presidential election gives voters the "starkest choice" between candidates. I'I can't think of an area where Dad (the president) and Reagan agree. We carry on the tradition of (John F.) Kennedy and (Lyndon) Johnson."

The windfall profits tax, which has created hostility among West Texans for the incumbent, was described as a good point for Carter's administration. The younger Carter claimed that the president "is the only one who had the guts to deregulate the oil industry.

Dad made a hard political decision," and one which he knew wouldn't bring him friends.

TAKING A positive approach to the tax, the younger Carter said since the bill has been in effect there have been more wells drilled and more oil discovered than in the past few years. "Dad wants this country to become the OPEC (Oil Petroleum Exporting Countries) of the world in 10 to 15 years. This tax lasts 10 years and will get us into energy self-sufficiency.'

President Carter's comment earlier this week that if Reagan is elected he would bring about racial alienation wasn't mud-slinging, replied Carter. And, in his opinion, the president's remarks aren't strong enough.

Carter claimed it was Reagan who first brought race into the campaign picture when the GOP candidate connected the president with the Ku Klux Klan back in September.

"Gov. Reagan has slung much more mud than Dad ever thought about," he added.

Taking another swing at the Republican ticket, Carter described Reagan as having a problem with "foot-inmouth" disease.

He also attacked Reagan's economic proposals, which include a 30 percent tax cut over three years, as a "sugar-coated solution." Continuing in this vein, Carter criticized the plan to increase defense spending and balance the budget in light of a lower productivity level in this country.

THE DEFENSE BUDGET needs to be increased, he said in explaining the president's plan. "But you need to set long-range goals for three years, five years and 10 years in the future. Dad has done that. He wants to build the MX missile. He wants to build up the military personnel. He has a good

Reagan, on the other hand, wants a stronger defense but is opposed to draft registration, Carter charged.

The president's economic plan attacks "the symptoms of the disease. When Dad took over, he inherited a $66 billion deficit in the budget. Now he's cut that to half," stressed Carter. "He's creating more jobs by doubling the CETA program" and other jobs

News reports earlier this week that Secretary of State Edmund Muskie was unhappy with Carter's handling of foreign policy were unfounded, claimed Carter.

"Ask the reporter why he didn't talk with Muskie," Carter said in reply to questioning. "Muskie is a great secretary of state, he's good for

High casualty rate reported in Iran-Iraq air attacks

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq and Iran traded air and missile attacks today and reported the highest casualty toll for a single day in their war on the northern fringes of the Persian

Iraq used ground-to-ground mis-siles for the first time in the conflict, killing as many as 180 Iranian civilians and wounding hundreds more in attacks on two Iranian cities, the Iranian news agency Pars said. Iraq said Iranian attacks on its northeastern city of Kirkuk wounded 18 civil

Iraq's president, apparently extending attempts to get outside help or mediation to settle the conflict, sent top envoys to five nations. And Iran, which has rejected all cease-fire calls, said it was dispatching a high-level delegation to visit "revolutionary and friendly countries" soon to explain its case, and possibly take it to the United Nations Security Coun-cil. So far only North Korea has offered to help Iran. But Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini predicted Iran would win the war and said his goal was to take Islamic government to Iraq, Tehran Radio said. Iranian planes bombed the outskirts of Baghdad.

Iran said Iraqi invaders threatening Ahwaz, capital of Khuzistan Province, were thrown back 13 miles, but Iraq said its planes severely damaged a large factory there. Iraq said its anti-aircraft fire drove Iranian warplanes away from the northern cities Today is the neighboring refinery city of Abadan. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein sent Cabinet ministers to the leaders of Turkey, India, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Italy, and Radio Baghdad said they carried messages which "explained Iraq's peaceful attitude before and during the war."

In Ankara, Turkey, Hussein's envoy met with Turkey's top leaders and Western diplomats said they believed he asked for Turkish mediation

Baghdad Radio said Iraqi Oil Minister Rayeh Abdul Karim visited Kuwait's ruler Sheik Jabel al Ahmad al Sabah, then flew by jet to Saudi Arabia for meetings with King Khaled and Prince Fahd.

In Rome, Iraqi Minister of Provincial Administrations Abdul Fatah Mohammed Amin, delivered a per-sonal letter from Hussein to Italian President Sandro Pertini, the presidential palace said. The Iraq Embassy there said Amin was on the first leg of a European tour to explain his government's position in the war.

King Hussein of Jordan, brushing aside American and British warnings following his declaration of support for Iraq, said he would send Jordanian troops to fight if they were needed. But he said that was not imminent yet.

The Jordanian port of Aqaba was crowded with about 40 ships, three times the normal number, as supplies for Iraq were diverted there to be moved overland to Baghdad.

The Arab nations of the Mideast have been uneasy about threats from Khomeini, leader of a non-Arab but Moslem nation, to export his brand of fundamentalist Islamic revolution to his Arab neighbors. This threat is one of the issues in the fight with Iraq, where the minority Sunni sect rules a nation whose majority belongs to the Shiite sect. Most Iranians, although Persian, are Shiites.

In Washing retary G. William Miller reported that North Korea's communist government was selling ammunition and medical supplies to Iran.

Imports blamed for auto woes WASHINGTON (AP) - Increasing

imports are an important reason for the sharp drop in U.S. automobile production, Ford Motor Co. said today in support of its request that the government place a quota on foreignmade vehicles entering the country.

"The automotive industry has always been cyclical, but the present drop in U.S. production can't be explained by the business cycle alone,' the nation's No. 2 automaker said in a statement presented to a hearing of the International Trade Commission. "The difference between now and any prior experience is the dramatic increase in car and truck imports." Production of U.S. cars and light trucks has plummeted from 12.9 million in 1978 to about 8.2 million units in "The decline in the domestic industry caused by increased sales of imports began well before the current recession started in early 1980," Ford said. "Import injury predated the recession, and imports continued to increase their market share during the recession while domestic production continued to decline. Ford's chairman, Philip Caldwell, was appearing before the commission today in support of his company's request that it limit imports to 1.7 millions a year for the next five years. Officials of Japanese manufacturers, the main object of Ford's complaint, also were called to testify.

On Wednesday, the opening day of the hearings, a Federal Trade Commission official testified that the proposed import restrictions would, if enacted, cost consumers between $3 billion and $5 billion a year.

Michael Lynch of the FTC's Bureau of Economics said the limits would drive down competition and drive up rather than seeking to limit foreign competition, should offer more autos appealing to potential buyers.

Ford and other American automakers say it will take five years and perhaps $80 billion to retool their assembly lines from large-car to smallcar production.

Supporting the carmakers' plea to restrict foreign competition, United Auto Workers President Donald Fraser charged that Japanese producers have been determined to "exploit" the American market by increasing exports during "a period of panic-buying of small, high (mileage)

The tide of Japanese vehicles "simply overwhelmed" U.S. automakers, he said, also charging that the Japanese had "turned a deaf ear" on repeated requests to limit car and truck sales in the United States.

Solutions may rest with hospital's administrator

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series of five articles examining Midland Memorial Hospital's financial problems. This section deals with possible solutions to those problems.

By SUE FAHLGREN

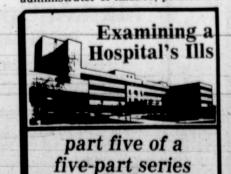

Although Midland Memorial Hospital continues to have an extensive list of bad debts - as it has throughout its history - hospital officials and directors said they feel there are some solutions available. Many of those solutions, they said, hinge on the abili-ties of newly-installed administrator Ray Branson.

Interim administrator Robert Bash said one of the most important things the hospital should do in the upcoming months is develop a long-range plan. The hospital does not have a longterm plan," he said, "nor do they have a physician recruitment plan."

However, he said, "you should wait until the permanent administrator is here because he should be involved in this." He said over the past few years the hospital has neglected the development of the plan basically because "they've been too busy building

"It's fair to say," Bash continued, "that over the past few years the internal operations have been slighted - not intentionally, but they've been let slide - while they (hospital officials) were concerned with construction.

ROBERT ABERNETHY, assistant administrator of finance, pointed out the operational downslide was not the fault of any one person — in particular, not the fault of former administrator Wayne E. Ulrich.

"I don't think it's a matter of his letting operations slide," Abernethy said. "I think it's a matter of any time you're in a construction situation, you let them slide. It's the nature of the beast. From that standpoint," he continued, "you try and maintain operations as best you can during a major renovation and construction period. But, they're going to suffer.

'There's an operational constraint and with the type of construction we had here," Abernethy continued, 'you don't even have to let them slide. You can work on operations as hard as ever, but they're gonna slide because there's distractions and the normal flow of traffic within the hospital is disrupted. It's just a totally disruptive-type situation. But, the disruption of construction creates inefficiencies. It's that simple.'

Abernethy said most of the major renovations are completed at the hospital now. However, there will probably be 12 to 18 more months of construction on the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center and the yet-to-be-started renovations on the hospital basement.

IN ADDITION, Abernethy said certain policy statements on admission procedures for the hospital need to be developed. "I really can't talk for the directors," he said. "But, I can make recommendations." In addition, Abernethy said, "We've got to be a little more stringent on the front-end" about collecting on bills.

However, Abernethy said he didn't think the bad debt situation at the hospital was that bad. "I'm not sure that we're off-track," he said. "This hospital as a county hospital district compared to other districts is not

"We as a rule are not out of line and probably (are) in better shape than a lot of other institutions, as far as what we write off for bad debts," he said. When asked why he thought members of the board of directors might be concerned about the problem, Abernethy replied, "I can't read their minds." He continued, "It may be that the people in town are upset about it and they're (board members) hearing complaints about this."

HE ADDED, "I'm not saying that bad debts is not a problem, but it's not as bad as people may think." He said before the district was created, bad debe was running about 9 percent of the income, too. "The bad debt ratio has not changed that much." However, members of the board of directors felt differently.

Director Pat Estes said she felt there is a need for a "solid business foundation at the hospital. I'm afraid we have not had solid business practices in the hospital's operations.

Mrs. Estes said she felt the hospital needs more effective policies, as well, but she thought policy-making should wait until Branson arrives. She said the boards' trying to run the hospital these past few months without a permanent administrator has been like "a team of horses with about 20 drivers.

Specifically, she wants to ask for a "rigid and strict program" to take care of the bad debts. "I do not have a definite plan for solving the problem," she said, adding that once Branson arrives the board will be able to come up with a better plan.

"We've lost sight of our basic reason for being here," she said. "And that is the patient.

"I THINK THE directors do want to bring this to a screeching halt if at all possible. This is how I feel about it. I think we're going to get control of this problem," she added.

Mrs. Estes also suggested the adoption of an outpatient clinic for the community. The clinic, she said, would take the pressure off the emergency room, which saw more than 1,700 people in August.

'This is one of the reasons for our bad debts," she said, adding many Midlanders have no family physician and several Midland doctors have closed practices. She also pointed to the adoption of a long-range study program before the end of the year.' Director Martin Neill said the board is "in the process of trying to work on it (a solution to the bad debt problem)." He added that as a "result of very poor handling" of the accounts, the hospital was "going through and taking our beatings" with the increasing write-offs.

Neill said because of the backlog in billing and waiting so long to write off accounts the collection agencies could get little out of these patients. As a result, the hospital has not been as efficient in its accounts as it should

Number 132 in line was Mark Thannisch, who had been waiting since about 4 a.m. He found the loan program enticing - considering it requires only 5 percent down for a conventional loan. Likewise, the 1034 interest rate over 20 years appealed

"I'm saving about $100 a month doing it this way," he said, but noted that monthly payments would be comparatively high. Payment of $600 to $700 a month might not be too uncommon, he said. Some may be as low as $500 a month. 'If my wife didn't work, there'd be no way (we could buy a house). That's what's nice about a program like this; it allows people without equity to get in a house with a 95 percent loan."

Those interested in the program may call the lenders, including Citizens Savings & Loan Association; First Savings & Loan Association; Jackie Johnson Mortgage Co.; or Mortgage & Trust Co.; Harry Clark, president of the Midland County Housing Finance Corp.; or fellow officers Don Hellinghausen, Durward Wright, Mike Williams, Steve Davidson or Fred Kester at 682-0011. If any financing is left over, funds under the program will be available for a year. However, 25 percent of the $21.6 million program will be reserved for 90 days for those less affluent families whose adjusted gross income is $20,000 or less per year.

Among those in the line were intended first-time homeowners. Others, such as Bill Campbell, was trying better is station in life by buying a larger home and selling his present house

"We're buying our existing home," Campbell told Clark, as he was registering to see a lender. "Just moving up a notch."

Clayton portrayed as 'trusting'

HOUSTON (AP) — Defense attorneys paraded four witnesses across the stand to try to unveil the shady character of an FBI informant, por tray a labor leader as a "dutiful stooge" and emphasize the "trusting" nature of Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton.

The defense opened its case in the Texas Brilab trial Wednesday, promising to show that Joseph Hauser, the government's key witness, was a habitual liar "who speaks only five percent of the truth.

A former legislative aide, Jack Gullahorn, was called as a character witness for Clayton. Gullahorn described the speaker as "trusting ... probably the most honest, up-front, vulnerable person I've ever met" and acknowleged he told Clayton to hold unaccepted campaign contributions. Clayton, Austin attorneys Randall

Wood and Donald Ray and labor leader L.G. Moore are charged with extortion, racketeering, fraud and conspiracy in an alleged insurance kickback scheme. Prosecutors have claimed Clayton accepted a $5,000 cash bribe from Moore, regional director of the International Operating Engineers Union.

Moore, who is to be tried separately, relayed the money from Hauser allegedly in exchange for Clayton's influence to reopen bidding on a $76 million-a-year state employees insurance contract.

Clayton, however, has said the money was a campaigr contribution and he planned to return it. Defense attorneys tried unsuccessfully to convince U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor the defendants were victims of government entrapment. 'The government says Moore's the leader of the pack," said defense attorney Ray Minton. But Hauser and two undercover FBI agents "put it all together" and Moore was their "dutiful stooge," Minton argued.

PBRPC backing Clements' plan to create own criminal division

By SUE FAHLGREN

The directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission gave their unanimous approval Wednesday to Governor Bill Clements' proposed legislation to create a criminal justice division in the Governor's Office.

The new division would be set up to take the place of federal funds for the state judicial system, Ernie Crawford, executive director of the PBRPC, ex-

The proposed act, which is slated to go into effect by Oct. 1, 1981, if approved, will provide funding for such local items as the Law Enforcement Academy, Crawford said. Many of the local items, such as those currently supported through Law Enforcement Assistance Administration funds, will lose funding next year due to federal cutbacks.

'These programs could be continued through funding in the state, rather than by the federal government," Crawford said.

The act calls for an increased court cost throughout Texas in municipal, county and district courts. The cost of municipal court charges will increase from $2.50 to $5; county misdemeanor court charges will rise from $5 to $10; and district felony court charges will go up from $10 to $20.

The increase would go toward the continuation of these programs.

"This was our proposal and the way we've been funded in the past," Crawford said.

In addition, Crawford explained, the state has already begun returning some of the money collected from court costs to the regions. He said there is some $13 million in reserves for the interim funding of these programs between the time this year's funding runs out and the new act's funds begin.

"I doubt that it would have any problem passing the legislature," Crawford told the directors.

In other PBRPC news, the directors accepted and gave their approval to CETA's Comprehensive Employment and Training Plan for the fiscal year

The Permian Basin Regional CETA Consortium is submitting the plan calling for more than $3.4 million under Titles II BC, II D, VI and VII. A spokesman for CETA said additional funds would be needed for youth program planning. Last year, he said, the total allocation amounted to some $4.5 million.

The plan provides for training and employment opportunies through on-the-job training, work experience, public service employment and classroom training for the unemployed and economically disadvantaged persons in the area.

In addition, directors approved Midland's funding of the Rape Crisis Center. The city submitted an application to the Criminal Justice Division of the Governor's Office (CJD) for $32,655 in funding to the center. The city will match those funds with $8,913.

The directors approved funding of the Big Spring Police Department's major crime Task Force. Big Spring is asking CJD to provide $25,811, matching it with $17,207 beginning in November. This is a thirdyear continuation grant for a task force of two officers and a secretary.

Lamesa's Juvenile Detention Center's application to CJD was also approved Wednesday by the PBRPC directors. CJD is being asked for $22,227 to be matched by city funds of $611. The grant would provide "seed money" for a juvenile division to help with juvenile crime including a specially trained officer and a secretary in addition to office equip-

Tyler raid nets Oklahoma slaying suspect

TYLER, Texas (AP) - Police staged an early morning raid on a Tyler residence and arrested five Oklahoma men wanted in connection with the shotgun slayings of three teen-agers whose decomposed bodies were found in the hills of southeastern Oklahoma

The five waived extradition when they appeared Wednesday before Mrs. Leon Hicks, a Tyler justice of the peace who set their bonds at $50,000 each.

Police said the men were scheduled to be returned to Antlers, Okla., today.

Oklahoma Bureau of Investigation spokesman Paul Renfro said the slayings were drug related, but he declined to elaborate.

Tyler police staged the raid early Wednesday morning after a Smith County deputy sheriff noticed the men at a Tyler restaurant and determined they were the same men wanted in

The five men were identified as Garry Todd Gregg, 20; Edward Wayne Simmons, Jr., 20; twins Larry Don and Terry John White, 17; and Chester Ray Eastham, 31.

Ford, who beat Reagan for the GOP presidential nomination in 1976 but was beaten in turn by Carter in the general election, continued to be critical of Carter's slashing campaign style.

In a separate meeting with reporters after spending about 15 minutes with Reagan, Ford said of Carter: "He's behind. He's getting arrothe borderline of demeaning the presiden-

Who's kidding whom?

One of the phenomenons witnessed in the political arena has been the unusual ability of a candidate to talk out of both sides of his mouth at once.

That phenomenon, it seems, is surpassed only by the gullibility of the voters who, overlooking the lip service, cast their votes for the candidate in question anyway. Unbelievable!

For example, back in 1976 Jimmy Carter was going around the country telling voters he would work to take prices controls off new natural gas. He also said he was for a strong national de-

But at the same time he was feeding that line to voters in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma, he was telling voters in most of the rest of the country that he favored tighter controls on natural gas prices.

Of course Carter won election in 1976 and the rest is history.

Now the president, on the campaign trail for re-election, is going around telling voters that his administration has cut inflation sharply. We wouldn't want to be the ones to call that statement an out-and-out falsehood so we'll let the statistics speak for them-

When Jimmy Carter took over

as president he inhereted an annual percentage rate of inflation of 4.8. And he verbally lashed the Gerald Ford administration for allowing such a high inflation

Anyone who hasn't been hiding under a rock for the past four years is well aware of what the inflation rate has done. It has soared as high as 20 percent and even now hovers in double digits.

So much for Mr. Carter's claim of having reduced inflation. He has reduced it from its 20 percentile high, but ...

Of course, telling the voters what they want to hear is the name of the game in politics. Every politician regardless of the office he or she is seeking will "use" the news to their own political advantage. Ronald Reagan does and so does John Anderson. That is a fact of political life.

It's when the voting public refuses to take these pronouncements with a grain of salt that they become harmful because at that point we lose the ability to make sound judgments.

Jimmy Carter once told the voters of this country he'd never lie to them. His statements concerning inflation seem to come pretty close to stepping over the

Pro-Khomeini students should be fighting Iraqis

WASHINGTON - Every time something happens in Iran, the Iranian students in the United States seem to come out of the woodwork, or wherever they live, protesting alleged American involvement, screaming oaths against the U.S. president, and screwing up the traffic something

This is, of course, perfectly legal, but it does go against the grain of many Americans, who feel that the streets could be better used during the rush hour than for pro-Khomeini demonstrations

As a defender of free speech, I cannot call for any group to be banned from parading and shouting. But it seems to me that with Iran at war, the students could do so much more good if they went home and defended their country.

From what one can see, the Iranian students have tremendous spirit. Their talents seem wasted in the United States, yelling at the top of their lungs about all the terrible things that are being done to them. These people would make marvelous soldiers in Bani-Sadr's army, and could really play an important part in repulsing the satanic forces which are trying to overrun their country.

Instead of lying down in the streets of Washington trying to stop our buses, they could throw themselves in front of the Iraqi tanks. And instead of burning effigies of President Carter, they could lob grenades at the Iraqi soldiers who have invaded their

Naturally, all of us here in the United States would hate to see them leave, but we would understand it if they all packed up tomorrow and left for their homeland.

There might be financial problems in the pro-Khomeini students getting back. But I think this could be dealt with by unfreezing some of the Iranian assets in this country, and providing them with free transportation to Tehran.

Let no one make any mistake about this proposal. No Iranian student should be kicked out of the U.S. just because he doesn't like it here. But we should appeal to his patriotism. Instead of the American people looking on with distaste as the students demonstrate, we should urge them to enlist in their own armed services, and go forth to fight their holy war where it is taking place.

We should make it perfectly clear that we would love to have them stay in America, but their protests are falling on deaf ears here, and they are much more needed on the battlefield. I would even hold a ticker tape parade down Broadway as they marched off to the troopships which would take them back to the land of their birth.

Many people to whom I have suggested my idea seem skeptical. They say the Iranian students don't want to go home. They maintain the students would rather remain here, where they know they are safe from the crazy mullahs who are running their country. They also know they'll be protected in the U.S., no matter what they're protesting, which doesn't happen to be the case in Iran.

But I don't believe it. I know every pro-Khomeini student is dying to leave the oppressive police state they maintain we have over here. So I say, 'Iranian Students, Unite and Go Home. Your Country Needs You -And Arrivederci, Gang. We'll Miss You - But, When You Gotta Go -You Gotta Go."

Senate postponement of probe questioned

WASHINGTON - President Jimmy Carter has been spared the humiliation of a pre-election probe into allegations that his Justice Department deep-sixed 15 cases that were considered politically sensitive by the White House.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has been investigating the charges for nearly six months. But a few weeks ago, the word came down from the office of the Senate majority leader, Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., that the probe - in the words of one Judiciary Committee staff member - was to be put on "active hold."

Another committee source was more candid. The investigation was being postponed, he told my associate Indy Badhwar, in the interest of "Democratic unity - not hurting the administration too much before the

The probe might have been nearing conclusion at this point had not the Justice Department defied the committee for two months by refusing permission for the panel's investigators to examine its files on the 15 questionable cases. Only after a unanimous committee vote to subpoena the documents, and a full-Senate vote to uphold the demand, did Assistant Attorney General Philip B. Heymann, head of the Criminal Division, give in. He agreed to allow designated committee staff aides to look at the files. But, in return, he insisted that the department's attorneys not be questioned about the instructions they may have received from higher-ups. The Senate investigators thus relinquished their trump card. Since the compromise was struck, said one committee source, "I can't say we've done a whole lot. One of the cases under scrutiny involves a former federal energy regional chief, Kenneth Dupuy, and Georgia state energy czar Lewis Spruill, who was appointed to that post by Jimmy Carter when he was governor. The energy officials were accused of accepting lavish gifts from Georgia oil dealer William E. Corey, who was favored with generous fuel allocations during the gas shortage that came in the wake of the 1973 Arab oil embargo. Spruill had also been charged with giving preferential treatment in 1973 to the Plains, Ga., gas station then owned by Billy Carter.

The case was referred to the Justice Department shortly before Jimmy Carter's election. The department sat on it for three years and then dismissed it.

Most of the cases in question were handled by the Justice Department's Public Integrity Section. Among the others that smack of political hijinks are these:

Thomas J. Cooney, father of two deaf youngsters, Tommy and Ronnie, has appealed in vain for an audience with Carter to get his signature on the sports memento. ### Japan experiencing nagging doubts about 'new' America

WASHINGTON — The late Japa-nese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira recently remarked that the United States was no longer a super-

An aide later explained that the prime minister had meant only that American power in the world had somewhat diminished. The statement revealed an uncertainty about the American ally which has been growing in recent months.

Today two thorny problems affect our relations with Japan: defense and automobiles. Many officials and much of the American public which bothers to think about Japan condemn our Pacific neighbor for military weakness. This is an old complaint, going back to John Foster Dulles and his arguments with then Premier Yoshida in 1950, ironically only three years after the Americanwritten postwar constitution, outlawing armies, navies and war potential, had gone into effect.

Recent events in Iran, Afghanistan and Korea have stepped up concerns over the lack of a Japanese defense role in East Asia. The facts are that Japan's defense budget ranks about seventh in the world and that the Self Defense Forces are being armed with some of the latest American equipment: F-15 fighters, P3C anti-submarine patrol planes and new early air warning

Although we would like the amount larger, the Japanese are contributing nearly a billion dollars a year to the maintenance of American forces and bases in their country. They have a political problem: the military has not been popular.

Fortunately, however, a general consensus now supports the self Defense Forces and the security treaty with the United States. These thoughts dominate the work of John K. Emmerson, a Senior Research Fellow at the Hoover Institution, Stanford, Calif., and the author of "The Japanese Thread: A Life in the U.S. Foreign Service" (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1978) which has just been awarded a prize by Harry Truman Library Institute for the best book relating to the Truman era published during the two year period

Emmerson says government policy limits Japanese defense budgets to 1 percent of a gross national product now approaching a trillion dollars. Defense spending, 0.9 percent of GNP, will probably reach the 1 percent mark by 1983 or 1984.

American defense officials think this pace too slow. To their proddings have been added the even more insistent voices of the Chinese. In stark contrast to Premier Zhou Enlai's 1971 warnings against a revival of Japanese militarism, Chinese defense officials now exhort Japanese leaders to "double" their defense budgets to meet the Soviet threat. Japanese are worried about Russian buildups in the western Pacific and on the northern islands claimed by Japan and occupied by the USSR. So far, however, Japan has trusted in the ultimate guarantee of a nuclear umbrella provided by the security treaty with the United States.

Agitation over imports of Japanese automobiles is obviously a problem of a different dimension. Yet it illustrates the growing irritations in the Japanese-American relationship. Japanese see their successful car sales to Americans as a response to consumer demands for quality and gasoline economy. They are aware of unemployment in the U.S. automobile industry and some companies are ready to manufacture cars in the United States with American labor. But others worry about costs, the skill of the American workman and quality control

Two illustrative stories have circulated in Japan, Emmerson notes.

The buyer of an American car just off the assembly line detected a strange odor which he could neither locate nor identify. Dismantled at the shop, the car frame revealed part of a workman's lunch - a rotting piece of chicken - lodged in the door. Another owner of a new car heard a persistent rattle. Within the frame, mechanics discovered a Coca-Cola bottle with a note inside: "So you found it!"

Japanese faith in American equipment, military as well as commercial, was shaken when the shock of the failure of the hostage rescue mission focused on the fact that the helicopters didn't work

Japan's image of the United States is changing. Events of the past five years have contributed to this change: defeat in Vietnam, diminished naval power in the western Pacific, proposed withdrawal of troops from South Korea, the "swing strategy" for moving forces from Asia to Europe, a perceived habit, since the Nixon "shocks," of acting first and consulting afterward, and the diminished faith in American know-how already mentioned.

Japan is no longer the submissive country we occupied and reformed. Its confidence in its own judgment and in its own expertise has risen. It does retain aspects of a closed society and has not yet assumed the international responsibilities commensurate with its national achievements.

The eight "wise men," American and Japanese, who are studying the economic relations of the two countries, have already agreed that Japan's "passivity and the closed nature of its society must give way to active involvement in the international community."

But Americans must realize that the "younger brother" whom we tutored so successfully 30 years ago has long since come of age and demands and deserves our respect.

Panic: New therapies helping some victims cope

By SANDY ROVNER
The Washington Post

It's not a new disease. Sigmund Freud referred to it. Some of our great greats may well have talked about it as "having the vapours."

Women, especially young women, and a few men, have been having panic attacks for generations.

Doctors still don't know why, although current studies are shedding some light. And some new therapies are helping victims cope.

I can still remember, one day at Bloomingdale's in New York City, feeling that the tiled floor was moving out from under my feet.

The overriding sense is that some thing is terribly, terribly wrong. The feeling that you're going to die. That you're going to lose your mind. Certainly, that you're going to faint. Your heart is beating out of your chest. You can't catch your breath. You've got to get out of there so you can breathe.

In fact — and this is important to remember — you're not going to die. You're not going crazy. In all probability you're not even going to faint. You're just having a panic attack. But often, that's just the beginning.

"Think of it as being like a layer

You can be standing in a roomful of people anywhere — and suddenly, for no apparent reason, you feel, well, alienated. Apart. You may feel dizzy, or you may feel a wave of nausea. You have a sense that reality is slipping away from you.

cake," says Dr. Donald F. Kelin, who has been treating and testing agoraphobics for some years at the New York State Psychiatric Institute and is one of this country's half-dozen top specialists in the illness. The first layer is the attack itself, which seems to "come out of the blue." Doctors usually find nothing

For a time. Because the attacks usually come in clusters, there will be another, and then another. Because they come on with no warning, the victim begins to feel deep apprehension and fear of another attack. That's the second layer, which Dr. Klein and colleagues call "anticipatory anxiety.

This can lead to the third layer avoidance - in which victims begin to keep out of situations in which they have had attacks, or where the fear they could have one. They may refuse to go out alone, in the most severe cases, at all. They may refuse to drive over bridges or through tunnels.

"The anxiety of anticipating a panic attack," Klein says, "produces

But even though Dr. Klein says that anything the paient accepts - be it guru, therapist, or family member may help overcome the fial phobia, a recurrence of the panic attacks "will make the whole thing topple like a pack of cards."

It is a syndrome, says Dr. David Sheehan, another top specialist, "notorious for spontaneously remitting and going away for months or years, Klein and Sheehan and an increasing number of colleagues specializing in agoraphobia - and treating it as something different from, and more complex than other phobias - have found that two families of anti-depressant drugs (trycyclics and some MAO inhibitors) can block the attacks. (Tranquilizers, major and minor - like Valium - often have been prescribed for the syndrome, but are rarely useful.) Studies have indicated that patients treated with both anti-depressants and behavioral therapy do better than patients receiving placebo or therapy

"The problem with desensitization (behavioral therapy) alone," says Dr. Sheehan, "is that it's been credited with the entire cure. And while it works for this small percentage of people who have it in a mild form, it just doesn't work for the majority of the people with agoraphobia.

On the other hand there is, Dr. Sheehan concedes, a political problem within the medical community.

"Traditionally, psychologists — not psychiatrist — have treated phobias, because they do behavior therapy in

So as a result, psychologists are rather unhappy about the whole posture of their practice (regarding agoraphobics) suddenly not being effec-tive anymore and having that disorder pulled back into the domain of psychopharmacology.

"Another dilemma," says Sheehan, is that the family of drugs we are talking about is very, very tricky to manage. It takes quite a lot of skill, not only to regulate the dose, but to get the optimal effect."

Sheehan co-authoried an article in the current Journal of Psychiatry and Medicine which gives, he says (for doctors, of course) "explicit, cookbook sort of instructions on how to prescribe MAO inhibitors, explicit instructions about all the ins and outs and ups and downs. .

Once the attacks have been supressed, however, psychologists' behavioral therapies are effective, even essential, to the agoraphobic.

Because the attacks do respond to drugs, and because attacks can actually be precipitated by infusions of a chemical called sodium lactate, research is now seeking a biochemical cause for the initial attacks, a metabolic imbalance which may be in-

It is, Dr. Sheehan feels certain, "an inherited vulnerability.'

It strikes a small percentage of the population, with around three-quarters of the victims women, and usually emerges in the late teens or early

"In my view," says Sheehan, "it cuts across all personality types, intelligence levels, racial barriers and socio-ecomonic levels.

Preliminary indications about its biochemical makeup are "rather surprising," says Dr. Klein. For example, although it has been generally accepted that adrenalin flows during panic attacks, tests are not showing high levels of adrenalin during the attacks. Dr. Sheehan says he hopes that "not too far off" are a diagnostic blood test and new safer and more effective drugs. At the moment, he says, the most effective drug is the hardest to high, medium or low.

In the '60s, the nation learned how a person's socio-economic class affected his learning processes mostly through President Lyndon Johnson's Great Society programs.

"The idea at that time was to salavage as many of those students (the slow learners)," he said of the nation's Upward Bound program. The relaxing of educational standards began during the '70s, Granowski added, until now when the public began demanding a "back to the basics" program for the '80s.

He reminded the audience that in establishing those standards, the needs of the slow and fast learner must be included.

During the late '70s, Granowski commented the Midland public school system had done its homework to prepare for a return to teaching the basics - reading, writing and arithmetic. Other subjects not related to those basics, like art, should not be eliminated, but could be taught along with the three R's.

He pointed out that when the standards in the form of educational priorities were set, the public should be aware of the school district's priorities, responsibilities - both parent and teacher - and the scope and sequence of those priorities.

Granowski stressed the importance of parents participating in a child's "Parents are responsible for teaching their kids social values, support-ing the schools," Granowski said.

Mental and physical fatigue burnout — among teachers occurs because "we (society) have held these people responsible for everything. If you put too much pressure on an organism, it breaks down.

'Too many times, children learn skills at school which are forgotten at home," Granowski said. There should be some way where parents can help their children practice those skills learned in schools, he recommended. A rich home environment where parents provide learning experiences for their children is a great educational advantage, he added. "Parents should spend time with their children, but the important thing is how that time is spent."

After making the opening remarks at the workshop, Granowski met with school officials Wednesday afternoon to provide advice about the district's reading program.

A message to users of Rely tampons Procter & Gamble.

Women who use Rely* tampons should stop using them and return the unused product to Procter & Gamble for a refund.

Government studies show that tampons are associated with an increased risk of Toxic Shock Syndrome (TSS). This is a newly-discovered disease that affects mainly women who use tampons during their periods.

Toxic Shock Syndrome can be very serious and is believed to be responsible for a number of deaths. Almost all women who have had the disease have recovered.

Some recent studies indicate that Rely was apparently involved with-Toxic Shock Syndrome to a greater extent than other tampon brands.

Toxic Shock Syndrome was first reported in November 1978. It is believed to be caused by a toxin produced by a bacterial infection (Staphylococcus aureus). In June 1980, the U.S. Center for Disease Control. (CDC) first linked it to tampon use. No one yet knows how or why tampons are associated with this disease.

In June, based on research conducted up to that point, CDC said that tampon use alone was not sufficient to cause the disease. CDC also said that no particular brand of tampon was more involved than others.

But on September 15, CDC announced a new study. It compared women who had Toxic Shock Syndrome with women who did not. The study confirmed that Toxic Shock Syndrome was associated with tampon use. It also indicated that Rely was apparently involved with more cases than any other brand. Here are the key data available to date:

DEFINITE TSS CASES REPORTED TO CDC CDC Study = 2 reported to CDC Total CDC cases Brands used totals more than the number of cases reported because some women used more than one brand

On September 21, P&G convened a scientific advisory group to review all known data relating to TSS. The group concluded that the available data were still fragmentary, but advised that the results of the latest CDC study should not be ignored.

Therefore, on September 22, Procter & Gamble announced it was suspending sales of Rely and that it would refund money to consumers who had Rely in their homes.

The Food and Drug Administration offers this advice to consumers:

"The current evidence indicates that women should stop using Rely. Women who want to reduce their risk of toxic shock even further may want to consider not using any tampons atall, or using napkins part of the time during their periods.

Women using tampons who develop a high fever and vomiting or diarrhea during their periods should stop using tampons and see theirdoctors right away."

The FDA and CDC have said they will continue studying Toxic Shock Syndrome to find out what causes it and why it is associated with tampons. Procter & Gamble will participate with the government in this important effort.

In the meantime, Procter & Gamble advises women not to use Rely tampons and to return unused Rely for a refund.

You should know these symptoms of Toxic Shock Syndrome:

 High Fever (102°) and Vomiting or diarrhea

If you have these symptoms during your menstrual period, discontinue use of tampons and see your doctor at once. How to return Rely and obtain refund:

Send your unused Rely tampons with your name and address to:

Rely, P.O. Box PM006, El Paso, Texas 79966. And you will receive a refund including cost of mailing.

NOTE: You may see Rely advertisements in the November issues of various women's magazines. Unfortunately, these issues were already printed when the decision to suspend sales of Rely was made on September 22, 1980.

be. "We have not taken the time to work the accounts the way we really ought to be working them," he said.

NEILL CALLED the bad debt situation an almost "insurmountable problem." Yet, he said, the hospital has to "make the best of it."

"I expect we will get it under con-trol," he said. "We need to apply pressures where the pressure will do the most good."

He added that some of the problems could be worked out - as with the new pre-admissions procedure — in areas such as getting people to plan their elective surgeries.

Making an analogy to young people with new credit, Neill said, "A lot of folks...get in trouble with credit cards and they're in debt before they know how to handle it. It's the same thing at the hospital. With a little bit of preparation," he said, a payment schedule could be set up.

"We're trying to help people help themselves really," Neill said.

President of the board of directors Ed Magruder was hesitant to speak of any specific plans about bad debts. But, he said, "I think we're really going to have to wait on some solutions until our new administrator is on

Magruder said he did expect some new policies to come out of the board's future actions on bad debt

"THERE'S A WHOLE lot better methods than we've been employing to prevent an account from becoming a bad debt," Magruder said.

Director Thomas Ingram said, "I don't know what can be done, but I know it has to be done! It is disgusting to me that we have respectable people who to my knowledge can pay those bills on our (bad debt) lists.

Ingram wanted specific actions. He suggested that if after a few months, there had been no payments, the account should be turned over to a local attorney and the former patient should be written a not-so-nice let-

Ingram said he thought that even though bad debt payments came out of hospital revenue, taxpayers were still greatly affected. If the bad debts could be contained, taxes could be lowered, he said. "It's going to affect everything.

Ingram made an analogy with department stores, saying that the consumer must pay for all the store's losses, petty thefts and cost increases. "It's the honest ones who're paying for what others don't pay."

but as for people who just didn't: "I don't believe in that."

CONTINUING, he said, "Once we get a new man on board I hope you'll see a number of changes. I think that we've turned the corner on this."

Ingram said, "I know I step on a few toes, but I didn't take the job to make friends. If I step on a few toes, well then, I'm sorry.

Dr. Henrie Mast, a retired physician and a director, said, "Bad debts are an inescapable cost." Most businesses, he said, can contain bad debts because they "don't have to sell on credit." If someone abuses his credit at a certain business, Mast continued, that business can cut him off. A hospi-

"The hospital is one of the few businesses (operating) on credit," Mast said, "because if we do what we're supposed to do - and what the community wants us to do - then we can't refuse anybody." He continued to say the hospital is "one place you can go and get big credit.'

Mast agreed that some of the people on the bad debt lists were able to pay. 'Sometimes they are even rich peohe said, then added, "maybe that's how they get rich."

But Mast said he thought the problem could be overcome as well.

As far as solutions, Mast mentioned the "computerized billing system - that's going to help collections some." He said making the bills more current and prompt would enable people to pay their bills while the incident is fresh in their minds.

"IT'S DIFFICULT to pay a bill three weeks later than the time of discharge," he said.

The average amount of time it takes to get a bill to a patient and to have the revenue collected from that bill, or the accounts receivable days, is an important factor in the hospital money problems. That average is figured by dividing the average day's revenue intake into the total number of accounts still outstanding.

In October 1979, the average num-average - some accounts would take longer and some fewer. In some of these cases, however, patients were not even receiving their first bill until after they had been home from the hospital for three months. At the last board meeting, Abernethy reported the overall receivable days had dropped to an average of 78.5 days. "That tells you that we're doing a better job of collecting now than last October," Bash said. However, Abernethy said "about 60 to 65 days is pretty much of a national average" on accounts re-ceivable days. He quickly added the hospital had never been at that level, but that it is working toward it. What we have been doing for the last few months," Bash explained, "is trying to catch-up - literally. I think we've gotten to the point where we have these (bad debt) accounts identified so that they can get some better collection off them.

Doug Scharbauer, trustee and member of its finance committee, summed up the statements of most the hospital officials at the September board meeting. He told the board, "We are looking into some very stringent policies for controlling...our bad debts. We don't like to look at that (write-off) figure each month just like I'm sure you don't. We haven't formulated them exactly yet, but we do have some good ideas.

Edwin Magruder, president of the board of directors, was hesitant to speak of any financial policy changes before new administrator Ray Branson arrived. (Staff Photos by Edward McCain)

"I don't know what can be done," director Thomas Ingram said of the bad debt situation at Midland Memorial Hospital, "but, I know it has to be done!"

Tax repeal effort outlined

Efforts to repeal certain portions of the Windfall Profits tax should be directed toward Congress where the real power is, Bob Madison told Downtown Lions at a Wednesday noon meeting in the Midland Civic Center.

Madison, the information director for the Permain Basin Petroleum Association, told a full house the national elections are expected to add Republicans to the House of Representatives and the Senate.

After reviewing the energy platforms for the Democrats and the Republicans, Madison noted that every Congressional committee is controlled by the Democrats.

However, he predicted the possibility that some Democrats and Republicans could form a coalition to elect a different house speaker.

Most of Madison's barbs were directed at the Department of Enegrgy "which has finally admitted that they (DOE) were the cause of last year's gas

The 20,000-employee organization has a budget of about $13 billion of which 85 percent goes to outside consultants, he said.

"As long as they are able to get a 10 percent increase in their budget every year, they (DOE) will continue to grow and develop new programs.

Sheriff's Association hires Haynes over graft remarks

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Sheriff's Association of Texas says it has hired the high-powered law firm of Richard "Racehorse" Haynes to seek legal redress for published remarks on alleged corruption in the ranks of Texas sheriffs.

The association also said President Carter and Attorney General should investigate the remarks, which were attributed to an FBI agent now working in Georgia and a U.S. Attorney.

The group issued a statement Wednesday, saying the Dallas Morning News should investigate and retract a Sept. 21 article that ran under the headline "Crimes Tarnish Sheriffs' Stars.'

Dallas News Managing Editor Terry Walsh, reached today in Boston, said he would not comment on the association's statement until he talked with the newspaper's attorneys.

The Dallas News article, picked up by the As- Hannah of Tyler was sociated Press. paraphrased a statement from an FBI agent saying at least half the sheriffs in Texas were involved in some kind of

Milosz gets Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - The 1980 Nobel Prize in literature was awarded today to Czeslaw Milosz, an exiled Polish novelist and poet living in the United States.

Milosz, 69, was born in Lithuania. He has been in America since 1960 and teaches at the University of California at Berkeley.

The 18-member Swedish Academy of Letters cited Milosz as a writer "who with uncompromising clearsightedness voices man's exposed condition in a world of severe conflicts...

The prize this year is worth a record $212,000. Milosz has been in the United States since 1960. The Academy took most people by surprise again with an award to a relatively little known writer. Last year the prize went to Greek poet Odysseus Elytis.

The lawsuit maintains that GM, between November 1975 and March 1980, failed to pay Permian Pontiac for "warranty repairs" it made on "numerous" Pontiac cars it sold and serviced and thereby breached the "Dealer Sales and Service Agreement for Pontiac Motor Vehicles.

"Defendant has unilaterally and wrongfully debited the accounts due plaintiff (Permian Pontiac) by defendant (GM), and defendant has failed and refuses and continues to fail and refuse to pay said sums of money.

Permian Pontiac also alleges that GM "tortiously interfered with the business relations" between Permian Pontiac and its customers "by wrongfully and maliciously interviewing" Permian Pontiac's customers as to "alleged abuses of warranty claims and intimidating plaintiff from making legitimate warranty repairs to its customers' cars by frequent and malicious questioning of plaintiff's warranty claims and debiting of plaintiff's accounts.

In addition to actual damages of $125,000, Permian Pontiac is seeking $425,000 in exemplary damages and $300,000 for loss of good will and being forced to sell its assets.

Representing Permian Pontiac in the lawsuit is Midland attorney James Leeton Jr.

The suit was filed this week in the Midland-Odessa Division of the federal court system's Western District of Texas. Lucius D. Bunton is presiding

Jim Nugent gets down on 'damned Yankees'

By ED TODD Staff Writer

Texas Railroad Commission candidate Jim Nugent advocated further deregulation of oil, said the windfall profits tax should be sacked, accused the "damned Yankees" of treating Texas like a colony and even suggested that the state seceding from the Union was "not a bad

Nugent, a self-described "moderate with a conservative bent," offered his panacea for the many ills that stifle oil exploration and recovery during a campaign stop-over in Midland on Wednesday. And he said that those ills could be cured if the government would just let the oil companies operate without restraints.

"If we would just let the free market operate in the discovery and production of oil," Nugent told employees of Atlantic Richfield Co. at a Civil Action Program, "we would be far better off both as a state and a nation as a whole.'

Nugent, a Democrat, is being challenged for the post by Republican H.L. "Doc" Blanchard, whom he described as a "a nice old man" who 'wants to abolish the Railroad Com-

"(There's) nothing wrong with a nice old man running for office," Nugent said of Blanchard, a Lubbock attorney and a former state senator. Nugent, a former Kerrville attorney and a former state representative for 18 years, was appointed to the regulatory agency in 1978 by then Gov. Dolph Briscoe and took office in January 1979.

Ken Terrell, Arco's operations manager who introduced Nugent, said the commissioner had a reputation for being "tenacious, tough and does his homework.

Nugent took a tough stand against the "damn Yankees" and the Northern states which, he charged, are looting Texas of natural gas.

"They're using us as a colony" and have been for 30 years, he charged. But he took some consolation in

Texas's abundance of lignite coal. 'There's one thing I like about lignite," Nugent said. "It's heavy, it's got a low BTU (British thermal unit) content and it can't be economically hauled very far from the site where it is mined." Thereby, he seemed to gloat, it's virtually out of reach of those "damn Yankees. Nugent said Texas is "the major user" of coal, and that states to the north are increasing their use of Texas's natural gas. He seemed to resent that set-up.

"As we're phasing in coal down here, that's going to make more natural gas available to them up there," he said. And such a trade-off is tantamount to an "energy war in this country" and is causing the United States to be "Balkanized" by the Northeast power bloc.

He overstated his case by entertaining the idea that Texas might secede from the Union to keep from being abused by the federal govern-ment and by fellow states.

Were it a nation, Texas would rank ninth worldwide in gross national product, Nugent said.

The commissioner criticized Montana's imposition of a 30 percent severance tax on coal hauled into Texas, but did not urge that Texas reciprocate by increasing its tax on natural gas piped out of state.

"I don't make the decisions on taxes and that's something I can't do very much about," Nugent asserted, but he suggested that individuals who want higher taxes could write their legislators.

Nugent said he is against an increase in severance tax.

"Unless the money is demonstrably needed, I'm opposed to any additional taxes," Nugent said.

He lashed out at the windfall profits tax. 'The federal government giveth, and with a second wave of the wand, the federal government taketh

But he said that "higher oil prices" have made it feasible for Texas' recoverable reserves to jump by 600 million barrels in a single year.

He also noted that a record rig count and a higher drilling pace throughout the year have added 39 million barrels of newly-discovered oil to the market.

"These statistics graphically demonstrate what I have been saying for some time:" Let the free enterprise system work unencumbered by federal regulations.

New reactor monitoring equipment to be installed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special monitoring equipment will be installed in the shutdown systems of 16 nuclear power reactors in the wake of a malfunction last summer at the Tennessee Valley Authority's nuclear plant near Decatur, Ala., the government has announced

The staff of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said Wednesday the order will affect 10 utility compan-

The NRC staff said that during the June incident at Unit 3 of the TVA's Browns Ferry plant, some of the control rods on one-half of the nuclear reactor failed to work properly during a routine shutdown of the reactor.

The order requires the utilities to install equipment that will detect the presence of excess water in the boilers that could prevent the control rods from properly shutting down the reactor in the event of an emergen-

Until the equipment is installed, each of the reactors will have to be checked once during each work shift to determine whether there is excess water, the NRC said. The agency emphasized that the incident at the Browns Ferry plant presented no significant hazards, but there was concern that the excess water might represent a more general problem that could cause severe reactor damage and radiation releases if it interfered with an emergency shutdown.

The orders "require the installation of water level monitoring systems" that "must provide sufficient information for the operator to take appropriate actions from the control room in the event water accumulates..., said the announcement.

Ban on use of fluorocarbons may be extended, altered

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government says it may extend its limited ban on the use of fluorocarbons, believed by some to harm the Earth's vital ozone layer, or set up a competitive bidding system to make the gases so costly that industry will be forced to find replacements for them. The use of fluorocarbans in aerosol sprays has been banned since 1978 because of some scientists' fears that they were depleting the atmospheric layer that screens out harmful sun

Officials of the Environmental Protection Agency, citing a large increase in the use of the gases, said Wednesday that competitive bidding for government permits would increase the cost of fluorocarbans and allow for the retention of only essential fluorocarbon uses.

EPA Deputy Administrator Barbara Blum said a less promising possibility is for the agency to select certain fluorocarbon uses and ban them outright, as it did with aerosol

Agency officials said their estimates show that the use of fluorocarbons may increase by 7 percent annually for the rest of this decade in products such as air conditioning, refrigerators, foam insulation and in-

Ms. Blum said if theories about ozone depletion are correct, the increased use of fluorocarbons could lead to "thousands of additional cases of skin cancer and harm economically important crops and animals."

Ms. Blum admitted that her agency has not proven "conclusively" that fluorocarbons actually damage the ozone layer, although the agency's position is backed by the National Academy of Sciences and evidence received so far.

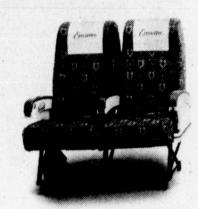

She maintained that further curbs are still necessary, saying the EPA 'cannot afford to wait for certainty, because by then it may be too late" to stop the ozone depletion.

The EPA's push for further restrictions is expected to be fought by manufacturers.

With as many scientific questions as there are in this matter, a rush into regulation at this time would be premature and ill-advised," said E. Douglas Kenna, chairman of the Alliance for Responsible Chlorofluorocarbon Policy, an industry trade

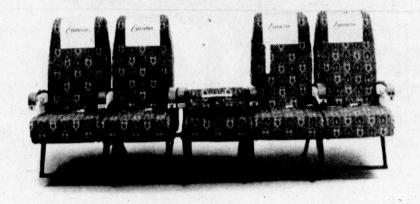

So far only three countries - Norway, Sweden and Canada - have followed the U.S. lead and restricted fluorocarbon use in aerosol sprays.

Welfare spoof game 'borders on racism'

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) - A game lampooning welfare cheaters and liberal government bureaucrats "comes close to bordering on racism," says NAACP official Carl Snowden.

The object of "Public Assistance," created by partners Ron Pramschufer and Bob Johnson, is for players labeled "able-bodied welfare recipients" to collect money while avoiding the "working person's rut."

They do this by snatching purses, stealing hubcaps, shooting craps and having illegitimate children, with profitable side trips into drug dealing, gambling and prostitution. Players who fall into the "working person's rut," on the other hand, have some opportunities to make money, but more likely wind up saddled with taxes, car repairs and dental bills.

"It's a really obnoxious game and comes close to bordering on racism," Snowden, who works with the poor and unemployed, said Wednesday

Snowden said he will ask the Maryland branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to consider boycotting stores which carry the game, scheduled to go on sale here November 1.

Pramschufer and Johnson, the game's creators, are partners in two small business firms. They see the game, which will carry a price tag of $15.95, as a humorous look at the welfare system. "We didn't invent this game, government liberals did," Johnson said.

"We just put it in a box. "We're not against welfare," he added. "There are a certain number of people we feel obligated to take care of. It's the able-bodied welfare recipient we're against.' Snowden said the game is not based on fact and could hurt efforts to improve programs for the poor. "In Maryland, the subsidies from the Department of Social Services

don't even meet the levels recommended by the governor's own welfare commission," he said. Prosecutors to question man

about his racial attitudes

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - Prosecuters in the murder trial of six Ku Klux Klansmen and American Nazis will be allowed to question a defendant about his racial attitudes, in an effort to show that racial hatred prompted a confrontation in which five communists were shot to death. Superior Court Judge James Long ruled late Wednesday that the state could question Klan defendant David Matthews about a speech he made at a Klan rally in Lincolnton last

In that speech, Assistant District Attorney Jim Coman said Matthews boasted:

"I believe in white supremacy. I will stand up for it until the day I die; until the last breath I breathe; or until someone takes the last breath out of Coman said the speech shows Matthews' state of mind was dominated by "hatred, hostility, prejudice" toward blacks.

The line of questioning was opposed by defense lawyer Robert Cahoon, who represents Nazi defendant Ro-land Wood of Winston-Salem. "We ought not to be inflaming race rela-tions. We already got enough prob-lems," Cahoon said in arguments to the court.

The five victims in the Nov. 3 confrontation - four white men and one black woman - were participating in a "Death to the Klan" rally sponsored by the Communist Workers Party.

Earlier this week Coman tried unsuccessfully to use a similar Klan rally speech by defendant Jerry Smith, 33, of Maiden to show Smith came to Greensboro because of racism and his hatred of communism.

In his testimony Wednesday, Matthews testified he fired five shotgun blasts at three black men who pointed guns at him during the brief outburst of violence. Matthews said he did not know whether any of them were hit by the gunfire.

Matthews, 25, is the fourth defendant to admit firing a weapon at the demonstrators. Smith, Wood and Nazi defendant Jack Fowler Jr., 28, of Winston-Salem testified earlier.

The other defendants are Lincolnton Klansmen Lawrence Morgan, 28, who testified Tuesday, and Coleman Pridmore, 37, who is expected to testify later.

The defendants claim they acted in self-defense after a stick fight developed when their nine-vehicle caravan pulled into the rally site.

Water to be pumped from missile silo

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - Contaminated water from a gutted Titan II missile silo was to be pumped from the silo today and trucked to a high-temperature incinerator for dispos-

More than 150,000 gallons of water had been pumped into the silo, in Damascus some 50 miles north of here, as a precaution after fuel began leaking from a tank on the missile Sept. 19. The explosion in the silo that killed an Air Force sergeant and injured 21 other airmen occurred several hours after the leak

The 20-foot-deep mixture in the silo was 98 percent water and 2 percent chemicals from the missile's fuel tanks, Col. Al Hanson, commander of the 314th Tactical Airlift Wing, said Wednesday. Some 5,000 gallons were to be pumped out of the silo and into a tanker truck, which was to transport it to the Energy Systems Co. Inc., in El Dorado, about 170 miles south of Damascus

The mixture is "moderately hazardous," said Burvie Sheets of the state Health Department, and it is important the water be disposed of soon. The mixture included hydrazine, nitrates and diesel fuel, he said.

"The longer it stays in there, the more chance there is that it will seep into the ground water," Sheets said.

After today's load, which was to serve as a test disposal, about four loads a day will be pumped out of the silo until the mixture is removed, Hanson said. The removal would take eight to 10 days, he estimated.

Ensco president Melvyn Bell said the incineration process involves exposing the waste water to a 4-or-5-second burst of high temperatures. He said vapors will be safely released into the

Hanson said the disposal of the water will cost the Air Force

Pilot, found five weeks after airplane crash, disappears

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP)

John Provine, the pilot who walked out of the woods five weeks after his airplane crashed, has disappeared again, leaving authorities to puzzle over questions about his

Ada County officials have entered the investigation of the 31-year-old Provine's odyssey, Chief Deputy Prosecutor Greg Bower said Wednesday in Boise

"Our investigation surrounds the alleged theft of the use of the aircraft or potential embezzlement of the services of the aircraft," he said.

Provine, who owned a janitorial service here, rented a Piper Warrior from the Gem State Flying Center in Boise Aug. 31 and disappeared shortly after he took off on a scheduled flight to McCall

On Tuesday he walked to the Poet Creek Campground, some 22 miles east of Elk City, and later led authorities to the site of his crashed plane three miles from the campsite. While examining the wreckage of the plane, deputies found a Sept. 5 aircraft parking citation from Salinas, Calif., said Idaho County Sheriff Bud

"When we asked him, he said he was in Salinas. But he offered no explanation. We can't prove or disprove his story," Walkup said. Deputy Sheriff Rod Sherfick said Provine's story

'had several discrepancies." He noted that Provine was "pretty clean and had only a short growth of beard" when founy Sherfick described the 6-foot-3 Provine as "calm and coherent" for a man who had been lost in the woods for five weeks.

Authorities had assumed that Provine was dead in a plane crash, and his business had been liquidated, his telephone shut off and his dog given a new Provine told authorities he hit his head during air turbulence and crashed in a mountain meadow. He was sick the next 10 days, surviving on "dried fruit, beef jerky and mountain grapes," he told Idaho County deputies in Grangeville.

When he found his plane could still fly, Provine said he took off again only to crash once more when he ran low on gas and had engine trouble, 75 miles off the flight plan he had filed. It took him five days to walk three miles to the campground, where hunters took him to the Red River

Ranger Station. Provine talked to only one reporter since his return, Pete Harriman of the Moscow Idahonian. Provine told him by telephone that he was in good shape physically, but too mentally distressed to talk about what happened.

"I can't talk about that right now. I don't want to be rude, but I can't talk about that," he said.

On Wednesday morning in Grangeville, a car whisked Provine away after a reporter tried to interview him. Later in the day, Provine was reported staying with friends in Spokane, Wash. Attempts to reach him were unsuccessful.

Reports called 'misleading'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense Secretary Harold Brown today described as "extremely misleading" recent published reports that many Army divisions, Navy aircraft carriers and Air Force squadrons are not ready for combat.

"Our forces are ready to go to war - if need be and we are increasingly able to sustain our forces in combat," Brown contended.

The defense secretary's prepared speech appeared aimed at blunting allegations that are potentially damaging to President Carter's chances of defeating Republican challenger Ronald Reagan. The GOP candidate has accused Carter of allowing American defenses to sag.

For a forum, Brown chose a meeting of the El Paso (Texas) Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club. He has used other nonpartisan platforms during this election campaign to defend administration military terpretation of the military "C-rating" system.

The C-rating system is best understood as a peacetime planning and management tool designed to identify problem areas, particularly resource deficiencies," he said. "It is a systematic way to tell unit commanders and their superiors what must be done to a unit so that it has all of the personnel. equipment and training it should before it actually enters combat.

Brown said "we have made the standards tougher" during the last four years.

He said "it is misleading to imply" that six of the 10 Army divisions in the United States are incapable of combat, as was reported last month.

Brown also criticized a recent report alleging that only six of the Navy's 13 aircraft carriers were com-

At present, he said, five of the seven carriers rated as unready are undergoing overhaul, scheduled major maintenance and modernization to extend their effective service lives.

Guardian angels finding trouble

NEW YORK (AP) — In red berets and white T-shirts, the Guardian Angels ride the subways, buses and ferries looking for trouble. They've found it — in a surprising quarter.

These self-styled foes of the criminal element tightening its reign of terror in the nation's largest city carry no weapons and take no pay. They're armed with the martial arts - and expected a New York thanks would be their compensation.
It hasn't turned out that way.

Some transit police resent them, and others call them vigilantes bent on taking the law into their own hands. Mayor Edward Koch has advised the Angels — mostly blacks and Hispanics — "if you want to engage in para-military activity, join the auxiliary police. It was a simmering feud until Sunday, when one of the Angels - 17year-old Nelson Joga — allegedly ran afoul of the law in a Brooklyn subway

Joga was escorting 28-year-old Barbara Weissman to the platform about 8 p.m. when, according to police, officer Sherif Ali, 32, spotted him smoking a cigarette - a violation of the Officer Ray Montoro, a candidate for treasurer in the Transit Patrolmen's Benevolent Association's upcoming election, was among those involved in the incident. When confronted, he says, Joga "went into a

"I'm a Guardian Angel. I'm here to protect the public," he quoted Joga as saying. Then the youth turned abusive, police said, hurling obscenities and refusing to identify himself.

Five patrolmen responded to a radio call for assistance, and Joga was subdued in a struggle. Montoro was treated for a sprained right hand.

stitches. The Angel was charged with assault, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and smoking in the subway. After a hearing several hours later, Joga was freed without bail.

But there is another side to this story. Miss Weissman says Joga was "accused unjustly." Joga says he wasn't smoking. And the leader of the Guardian Angels, 25-year-old Curtis "Rock" Sliwa, says the arrest was intended to enhance Montoro's union

"The police officer was very abusive," Miss Weissman said Wednesday at a news conference. "He was nasty and he acted like he was looking for a fight. I didn't see any cigarette, but I can't say for sure.

"They just jumped him," she con-ued. "... The boy never started a fight. The police started it.'

Silwa blames Montoro. "I think he used it (the incident) as a platform for his campaign for union office," he

For more than a year, the Guardian Angels have been seeking and getting attention for their subway and parks patrols. The arrest of one of their members was news - and the man who called reporters was Montoro.

Union spokesman James Groark says it's not unusual for transit police officers to call reporters when they can't reach public relations people. But Montoro makes no secret of his dislike for the young men. "If they were out to help, we would be the first to welcome them," he declared at the time of the arrest. 'They are vigilantes who have embarked on and committed shakedowns. I've never seen them help anyone in my nine years of service."

Crime has been on the rise for years in New York City's sprawling network of underground railways, and the Guardian Angels were conceived in February 1979 as a citizen's response to the problem.

The group began as "The Magnificent 13," headed by Sliwa, a former McDonald's restaurant manager from The Bronx. In September, pa-trols were expanded to Central Park, the Staten Island Ferry, buses and areas frequented by the elderly.

At the same time, the group which now claims 500 members and chapters in New Jersey and Connecticut - took the name "Guardian

The Guardian Angels get no govern-ment or private subsidies, and each member pays his own fare for subway patrols, Sliwa says. But since Sept. 15, 1979, they have had one request: some recognition from New York City Mayor Edward Koch.

About a dozen Angels picketed City Hall that day, and they have been back. The mayor "is the leader of the city, urging people to fight crime, and there's not even a thank-you," Sliwa said at the time. The Guardian Angels claimed eight of their members had saved the life of transit patrolman

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, admitting he's been "carried away on a couple of occasions" with sharp attacks on Ronald Reagan, was campaigning in the South today after promising to take a gentler, more reticent approach.

"I'd like to get back in on the track," Carter said.

The president, who prophesied earlier in the week that Republican Reagan's election would tear the nation along religious, regional and racial lines, said he'll try "to be sure that we do not have a lowering of the tone of the campaign."

Interviewed before setting out today on a two-day swing to Tennessee, North Carolina and Florida, Carter said he is confident he can yet reverse the voter tide that has been going toward Reagan because Americans make up their minds in the last days of the campaign.

'There's still a very large undecided group," he said, adding that he'll concentrate on "the sharp differences between myself and Governor Rea-gan on the basic issues that face this

In the interview, Carter was asked by ABC News' Barbara Walters if he made some mistakes in personally attacking Reagan.

"Yes, I'll say that," he replied. But he added that Reagan, too, had made some comments about him that 'probably are ill-advised.*I've made some about him that are ill-advised and I'd like to get in back on the track.

Talking to a handful of reporters later, press secretary Jody Powell said he resents that the press "holds the president up to a higher standard than everyone else" and that if the press is intent on focusing on Carter's criticisms of Reagan "we will get rid of them.'

The question is are those comments any harsher than what Reagan has had to say about the president?'
Powell asked. "The answer is 'no."

At one point in his interview Wednesday, Carter said "I don't think

When Reagan calls him desperate, vindictive or hysterical, the president said, "he shares part of the blame that I have assumed" for the low tone of the campaign.

Carter to take gentler approach

"I'm going to do the best I can to refrain from any sort of personal relationship with Mr. Reagan as far as criticisms are concerned but still reserve the right to spell out the issues clearly," Carter said.

The differences, he said, are on taxation, arms control, defense, and relations with other nations.

Carter said he will speak directly to the American people on radio on each of three Sundays remaining before the election. The paid broadcasts, he said, will deal with the economy, defense and arms control and the future of the country.

On Tuesday, he said, he plans also to make a major address on the econAsked whether he was apologizing, Carter said "I'm explaining" and blamed human nature for any mudslinging. He said that in the statement that a Reagan election would set Christian against Jew, black against white, North against South, "I did not insinuate and do not claim that Governor Reagan would deliberately try to set one American against another.' He admitted that "maybe" he went to excess and added: "I'll do the best I can in the weeks ahead not to repeat that kind of personal involvement of the candidates in the race." "No more name calling?" he was

"I'll do my best," he replied. There were opportunities aplenty for Carter to dwell on the issues as he moved around the three southern states that were solidly in his corner in 1976, but are on the shaky side this

Iran says Iraq fired four ground missiles

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) - Iran accused Iraq of firing four giant ground-to-ground missiles into the Iranian town of Dezful, killing 60 civilians and wounding 300.

There was no immediate reaction from Iraq, but if the claim is confirmed it would mark the first time that ground-to-ground missiles have been used in 19-day-old war between the Persian Gulf oil giants.

An Iranian military communique, broadcast by Tehran Radio and monitored here, said the attack occurred Wednesday night, that each of the missiles was 30 feet long, 20 inches wide and weighed 4,400 pounds.

These rockets have a range of about 40 miles and are fired from inside the Iraqi border, the communique added.

Moments before, Mrs. Howe's telephone had rung. It was Johnnie Howe.

"If you don't meet me at the corner, you'll never see Mary again," he told her.

The demolitions expert had just picked up their 14-year-old daughter to take her to school Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Howe said she raced outside, too late to do anything but stare in horror as a tremendous explosion ripped apart the 1970 Buick like a toy, hurling her 14-year-old daughter into the street.

"I looked up and there was this whole sheet of smoke and flame. And then I felt the heat," one eyewitness said. Tires, glass and chunks of the car flew through the air, according to bystanders.
Shortly after the blast, Mary Howe died in the emergency room at Santa Rosa Hospital. Her father

Gas leak prompts evacuation MONT BELVIEU,

Texas (AP) - Fumes seeping into sewer lines have prompted authorities to evacuate 37 families from their homes in this Chambers County community sitting atop a salt dome used to store petrochemicals. City officials were alerted to the problem this week when Marie Kaler was burned in a flash fire after turning on her dishwasher. Ms. Kaler was treated for minor burns and released from an area hsopital, officials said.

A house-to-house search Tuesday by five teams of Texas Railroad Commission inspectors found increasing amounts of gas leaks, Miller said.

Laboratory tests showed gas fumes - a combination of ethane and propane with traces of butane and methane had saturated a six-block residential area of this community 30 miles east of Houston.

More than a dozen petrochemical companies have storage facilities in the salt dome.

"We told them the facts, that this town was the most dangerous place in the United States that anybody could live, but some wouldn't listen," said Gordon Speer, a Mont Belview realtor.

Mayor Fred Miller said the source of the fumes is undetermined, but noted the situation had increased to such an extent in the southwest part of the area that safety precautions were necessary.

"It was enough to alarm us to take some safety precautions. But I don't think we have a dangerous .situation,'

Officials in the nearby community of Daisetta, which also sits on top of a storage dome, have been investigating a similar

Both boys are involved with the Big Brother/Big Sister program, sponsored through Family Services, a United Way agency. Their big brother, friend and confidant is Midlander Jack Swallow. Jack was the first person in Midland to be matched with a Little Brother, and that match was made with Eric Sanders. Five years later, he added Kelly Cockerell to the brotherhood.

THE BIG BROTHER program was begun in Midland five years ago to provide adult leadership and role identification for young people from single parent homes. The program is funded through the United Way of Midland, a federal grant from the Department of Criminal Justice and special events.

"One of the most gratifying parts of the Big Brothers program is being able to see changes in the boys," Jack says. "When Eric first became my little brother, he was so quiet and shy I had to continually ask him questions - and more often than not, all I got were yes and no answers. He was a hard nut to crack.

"After Eric's father and I got a divorce, he just needed someone he could call on and talk to outside of our family. He was really close to his real, older brother who moved off to live with his father, and that left him feeling really alone. He was pretty distrustful of men, but Jack helped him get the confidence and self-respect he needs.

In the five years Jack has spent as Eric's Big Brother, he's undergone quite a few changes also. Jack and his wife of six years, Janet, have had two children of their own, Brent, now 2, and Brook, their 41/2-month-old daughter. ### Wing walker already has plan for new stunt

(AP) - Scarcely had West German daredevil Jaromir Wagner set foot on solid ground, rubbing the frostbite marks on his face, than he began pondering his next challenge. "Next I'd like to jump off an airplane wearing snow skis," said the wingwalker.

The stocky used-car dealer who became the first person to cross the Atlantic Ocean on the outside of an airplane was showered with champagne Wednesday by his flight crew after his landing at Essex County Airport

Describing his latest feat, Wagner said frostbite almost forced him to abort his journey. He began losing his senses in sub-freezing conditions over Greenland, and almost canceled the trip's final leg, he said.

The temperature over Greenland plummeted to 13 degrees below zero,

"Yesterday in Iceland. I was very, very tired, but now I feel OK," Wagner said as champagne soaked into his red, white and blue leather flight suit.

"I could use something to drink, but I'm not really hungry now."

To combat the cold, Wagner wore three layers of clothing including the leather suit, woolen underwear and a scuba diving outfit.

"The first thing I want to do is tell my wife it's OK and I am 'gesund' (healthy),'' said Wagner, who speaks little English. He ended his 11-day

Eastern Star chapter celebrates 75th birthday, diamond jubilee

Dorothy and Wayne Edge, worthy matron and patron of Midland Chapter No. 253 Order of the Eastern Star, along with officers and members celebrated the 75th birthday of the chapter recently. The chapter was constituted Oct. 12, 1905.

The diamond jubilee year was celebrated with a banquet in honor of Sam E. Hilburn, worshipful grand master of the worshipful grand lodge of Texas, A.F. and A.M. and a past patron of the local chapter, and Kathy Johnston, worthy grand matron of the grand chapter of Texas.

The "Sands of Time" banquet was held at the Holiday Inn/Country Villa with Wayne Edge serving as master of ceremonies. Ann Ellen Johnson, past matron, gave the welcome. Molly Goodpasture, of Brownfield, worthy grand adah, general grand chapter and past grand matron of Texas gave the response. Myrle Prine, past matron, gave the intro-

Emerson PTA begins new year

The Emerson Elementary PTA began the 1980-81 school year with its first meeting in the school cafeteria

The flag ceremony was presented by Emerson 6th Grade Junior Girl Scout Troop No. 234. Troop leaders are Esta Geron and Norma Harbin. Joe Cummins, principal, introduced Dr. Joe Baressi, assistant superintendent of schools, who presented members of his elementary administrative staff. Dr. Baressi and his staff were available to visit with parents after the meeting. Open house was held to give parents an opportunity to visit their childrens' classrooms and meet their teachers.

Recent winners in the Midland Fire Prevention Poster Contest included the following students: primary division (first through third grades), first place, Andy Monro (first grade); second place, Stasia Goddard (third grade); and third place, Will Goddard (third grade). A tribute was given to Mrs. Johnston, worthy grand matron, by Billie Glover, deputy grand matron of Andrews. Hal Burnett, past grand master of Texas and past patron, of Alphine gave a tribute to Hilburn. Also on the program were James J. Johnson, past patron, and W.H. "Bill" Measures, grand chaplain of the grand lodge of Texas.

Grand officers from the Order of the Eastern Star and from the grand lodge of Texas from all over the state were present. Among local guests were Don McCarty, worshipful mas-ter of 623, and Bill Molar, senior warden, and their wives. Many friends from all over the state were on hand to help make the event a very special occassion.

Following the banquet, a meeting was held at the Masonic Temple. Registering the guests were Susie Mae Davis, Katie B. Floyd, Zora Hamelton and Vera Gandy. Past matrons and patrons introduced along with their year of service were Dewey Pope, 1927-29; Ophie Pope, 1951-52; James J. Johnson, 1951-52; Zora Hamelton, 1953-54; Margaret Crum, 1956-57; Ann Ellen Johnson, 1958-59; Sam E. Mabel Hargrove, past matron, could not be present, but mailed a card congratulating the chapter on their 75th year.

A reception was held in the dining room with Ann Snider and Mrs. Jack Locke serving along with Polly Rogers, Theresa Lowe, Jessie Loach, Louise Willis and Irma Parker.

Baby boom predicted

CHICAGO - A mini baby boom may be underway, according to an article in the latest issue of the "Voluntary Effort Quarterly", published by the Voluntary Effort to Contain Health Care Costs.

The author, Rachel Golden, Ph.D., research economist for the Blue Cross/Blue Shield Associations, reports that although there is no single theory to explain why, births have increased by at least four percent per annum in two of the last three years. In the first five months of 1980, the latest period for which information is available, births also were four percent greater than in the corresponding period of 1979. This increase in births represents a reversal of trends. The fertility rate had risen steadily from the 1930s until 1957, when it peaked and began falling. The 1970s saw fewer births than the 1950s and 1960s. 'Since the baby boom generation (of the 1950s) will be passing through its childbearing years in the 1980s, the government and many private consulting firms are predicting a mini-boom during this period," Dr. Golden Since 1957, fertility rates for all age groups with the exception of the 10-14 year group, have declined sharply. 'If the fertility rates of 1957 had been maintained, the U.S. population would ahve been more than 10 percent larger in 1977, and would have had a radically different age compostion,"

Dr. Golden says. She points out that the impact on the health care system of the icrease in births will mean increased demand for obstetrical, pediatric and newborn facilities and special facilities for complicated births as older women, who delayed marriage and births in the 1970s catch up. In many cases, these services may have to be re-in-stituted in hospitals where they previously had been reduced or eliminated due to lack of demand. Drawing from a wide variety of sources including economists, sociologists, consulting firms and the Census Bureau, Dr. Golden presents a number of current, sometimes conflicting, theories relating to births and fertility in the 1980s. Only one thing is certain, she says: "Births are going up."

Among the reasons which she cites from her sources are:

• The baby boom generation will be passing through its childbearing

• The number of non-white births has been increasing more rapidly than white births. This trend is likely to accelerate due to increased immigration of women from Haiti, Mexico, Cuba and the Far East who traditionally have high fertility rates.

 Women who have delayed marriage and births in the 1970s will catch up in the 80s.

• If the current recession reduces job opportunities for women, there may be an increase in fertility in 1981. In general, women will adjust their pregnancies to correspond with changes in economic and work oppor-

And then there are those economists who, she points out, are predicting that the mini-boom won't happen, that there won't be an appreciable increase in births in the 1980s.

"Time will tell which theory and which estimates are more correct,' Dr. Golden says. In the meantime, "Births are increasing rapidly and are about on target with Census Bureau projections, while hospital occupancy rates for births also are rising.

DEAR ABBY

Stick-in-the-mud will stay stuck

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a fine, educated, dignified gentleman for two years. I'm divorced, in my 40s; he's in his mid-50s and has never married.

My problem is his programmed way of life. He takes me out every Wednesday and Saturday night only. And always where HE wants to go. If I want to see him on any other night, it's absolutely no. And nothing can move him. He lives alone and has never invited me to his place where we could have complete privacy. If I suggest going to his apartment, he gives me a speech about appearances, his dignity, reputation and what his neighbors will think. Meanwhile, he thinks nothing of staying overnight at my place with my three children sleeping upstairs and my neighbors looking

I cater to all his preferences in food, entertainment and even late-night TV, which I do not enjoy. I am constantly feeding his ego. There has been no mention of a possible future or any kind of commitment together. I seem to be getting nowhere.

DEAR ABBY: What is wrong with an adult with a master's degree who seems to enjoy correcting the pronunciation errors of another adult loudly and in the presence of others at any social gathering? Shouldn't this be done privately—if at all?

Not only does the recipient of this treatment become embarrassed, so do those present. How can this be handled gracefully? Should the one corrected apologize for the error, thank Mr. English-teacher for his useful help, or never open one's mouth again in conversation when he is present?—SENSITIVE DEAR SENSITIVE: Such "helpful corrections" should be done in private—if at all. Those who correct others publicly (and loudly) do so not in the spirit of nelpfulness, but in an effort to show their own superiority. They are the losers because they show themselves to be insensitive and arrogant. When corrected, say,

First-cut blade chuck a money-saving marvel

By MERLE ELLIS

It would be presumptuous of me to take all of cle that makes those the credit, or all of the blame; but many times in this column I have told eye muscle becomes too of the money-saving marvels of the first-cut blade chuck. And that cles take over. But, don't particular cut seems to despair! There is a gold be harder and harder to mine of money saving find. There may be no connection, but then

The first cut of the blade chuck is the one that comes off the beef carcas literally the thickness of a knife blade from the rib, and has within it a large section that is a continuation of the tender rib-eye muscle. Rib eye steaks sell for a premium, and if you know which blade chuck to look for, you can pick out a first cut blade chuck, cut out the rib eye, and get a couple of tender 1-inch thick steaks from a nice thick 2-inch blade chuck roast at a bargain price.

Evidently a lot of people have been doing just that, for while first cut blade chucks used to be the last to sell, they are now hard to find. I have had to ring the bell in more than one market and have one cut to friends, make Halloween your own special holiday with home-baked goodies everyone will love. When they are colored orange and black, they take on a particularly festive air. Black Magic Cake, clad in bright orange frosting with a bittersweet chocolate glaze, will do the trick.

The reason, of course, is short supply. There is only one first cut blade chuck per chuck. Only one cut of the blade chuck comes off right

The marbled cake, deep chocolate and bright orange, is made with two batters and the lively, fresh orange juice makes a great contrast in taste as well as color. The orange juice rally sweet, piquant taste. Orange chip cookies are another delightful Halloween treat. The bright orange batter, with its lovely citrusy lilt, is studded with chocolate morsels and grated orange rind. Nutritious as well as delicious with frozen orange juice concentrate, Orange Chip Cookies have a special magic, too.

And for the occassion, what better brew than Sorcerer's Punch? An inspired potion--combining orange juice and sweet cider, warmed to a golden glow and made spicy pungent with cinnamon and cloves.

1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar 1/2 cup orange juice 1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour

l tablespoon grated orange rind 1/2 teaspoon baking soda In top of double boiler combine

unsweetened chocolate with water and 2 tablespoons sugar. Place over simmering water and stir occasionally until melted and smooth. Remove from water and cool.

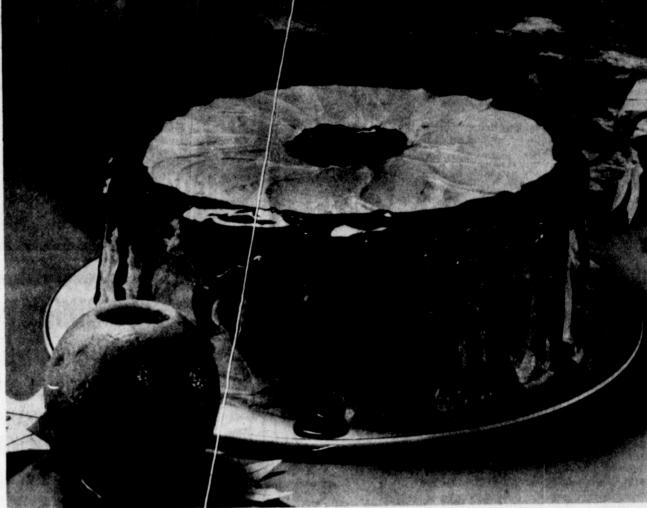

In large bowl of electric mixer beat egg whites with salt and cream of tartar until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in 1/2 cup sugar and continue to beat until stiff peaks form. In another mixing bowl and using the same beaters, beat egg yolks until light and lemon colored. Gradually beat in remaining I cup sugar and continue beating until thick enough to form a ribbon when beaters are raised. Blend in orange juice (at low speed or by hand) alternately with flour. Pour over egg whites and fold in gently but thoroughly. Divide batter into two equal portions. Fold orange rind into one half of batter. Stir baking soda and melted chocolate into second half of batter. Alternate spoonfuls of orange and chocolate batter in ungrased 10-inch tube pan. Run a knife through batter to marble; do not mix. Bake in 325 degree F. oven one hour, until cake springs back when touched lightly with finger. Invert to cool. When cake is completely cool, turn out of pan and frost with Orange Butter Frosting*. ### Housing trends are changing

By DICK TURPIN The Los Angeles Times

Pessimists in the housing industry are on the verge of declaring a double or nothing edict in our inflation-plagued economy.

They point to newly available national statistics showing that about 200,000 households "disappear" in midyear, lost in the counting because they apparently moved in with an existing household - of one, two or more persons.

That new pattern, going against the long existing movement to more, and smaller households because of divorce, vast numbers of single persons and longevity of the populace, will reverse an 80-year period of growing households.

In what may be tangible evidence of renting householders avoiding long commutes, substantial numbers of apartment dwellers have moved closer to their places of work in central cities.

While rental vacancies inside metropolitan areas are declining, 5.2 percent nationwide as of midyear — a 40-year low, there is an obvious counter trend in the suburban and rural areas.

Since the onset of the latest gasoline crisis, rental vacancies outside urban centers and in small towns have increased sharply. The rental vacancy rate in those locales was 5.9 percent at midyear, compared with 5.1 percent at the same time last year.

U.S. Housing Markets, a mid-year summary of conditions in 37 significant markets, notes these major changes. the study is published quarterly by Advance Mortgage Corp., the country's fourth ranking mortgage banker.

The doubling up is particularly noticeable in every market where job layoffs have taken place, with people sharing apartments or moving back to Mom and Dad. It ha become a way to cope with unemployment and inflation in those hard-hit areas.

Even in some of the stronger economies, the doubling up is evident. One sign is that studios and efficiency units are becoming tougher to rent while two-bedroom and larger units are becoming more popular. Another sign is the rising vacancy rates despite a minimum of new construction.

The survey indicated that the midyear rental vacancy rate inside metropolitan areas is th3 lowest since World War II, reflecting a steep decline in rental unit completions.

In Detroit, for instance, doubling up has doubled apartment vacancy rates within the last year. That troubled city's vacancy rates were between 5 percent to 7 percent a year ago; today, the rate has reached 15 percent. In its blue-collar areas, it is more than 20 percent.

In Chicago, suburban vacanci3s have gone from 4 percent a year ago to 6 percent today. But the city rental market is in the 1 percent range. Other examples of cities suffering job losses (Indianapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis and Portland) have also reported substantial doubling up by families, according to the report.

In some of the stronger economy cities, doubling up is reported alongside some weakening in occupancy rates. In Dallas, doubling up was the only apparent reason for a 1 percent jump in vacancies last spring but now the rate has "recovered" to its former 5 percent. In Seattle, the researchers found that even young employed persons were moving back with families to circumvent high rents. The vacancy factor is still a tight 2 percent but it was even lower a year ago. In Pyoenix, with a softening rental market, some property owners reduced rentals in the off-season. A big volume of additional rentals is also expected to come onto the present market.

In Houston, where overbuilding has become a problem, vacancies are now in the 11 percent to 13 percent range, up from 7 percent a year ago. More than 60,000 rental units were completed there in 1978-79, twice as much as any other market, but only 40,000 were absorbed and another 15,000 are scheduled for completion th8s year, heading for a glut.

Finally, the survey adds that rental units being completed this year are far fewer than 1979, down 20 percent. This year's production will have 360,000, compared to 450,000 last year, or slightly more than half the average rate of the first five years of the

The Telephone Pioneers of America will be working closely with the Texas Department of Health and the Governor's Office of Volunteer Services in a statewide campaign to inform the public on immunization practices and will conduct an evaluation of the current immunization program being used in Texas.

The Pioneers will distribute 12,000 posters throughout the state. A callout program aimed at hospital, clinics and private offices will be part of the evaluation program.

The Pioneers were organized in 1911 to provide a social organization for persons in the telephone

"The concept of service to the community was added in 1958, and we have been involved ever since," said Dorothy Abbott, president of the Far West Club of Midland. Thomas Walch, public health advisor for the Department of Health, said he has "never seen a group more determined to make a success of such a project." The Pioneers come from four separate chapters that cover the entire state, but they have banded together for this project.

Man, 105, credits song for long life

NEW YORK (AP) - Jesse Highsmith says be starts "each day with a song," and credits that habit with helping him to sing in the new year each year for the past century and then some.

Highsmith, a veteran of the Spanish-American War and World War I, celebrated his 105th birthday Tuesday at Manhattan's Park Crescent Nursing Home where he was joined by his granddaughter and several of his great-grandchildren.

Born in North Carolina in 1875, he came to New York around 1900. He worked building railroads and retired in 1954 to take a position as an elevator operator, which he kept until he was 98.

Judge won't stop sale of snake-venom drug

MIAMI (AP) - The U.S. Food and Drug Administration's request has failed to win a temporary injunction against production and sale of a snakevenom drug used to treat multiple sclerosis and arthritis victims.

U.S. District Judge Joe Eaton set a trial date of Oct. 27 on Tuesday in a suit filed by the FDA charging that one user of the drug PROven developed uterine bleeding and that another died of a brain hemorrhage.

Eaton said he would hear evidence before ruling whether to stop production of the drug made from cobra, krait and water moccasin venom. Used by 5,000 people, the drug sells for $80 a vial. Serpentarium owner Bill Haast says he will continue to make the drug.

Louisiana defendants won't get separate trials

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Four defendants in Louisiana's Brilab case who sought to avoid facing a jury with reputed gangland leader Carlos Marcello have been refused separate trials.

Their severance motions were denied Tuesday without comment by U.S. District Judge Morey Sear. The 70-year-old Marcello is a key figure in the FBI's bribery case in which agents uncovered an alleged conspiracy to bribe public officials to get state health insurance contracts. Four of the case's five defendants had filed motions for trials separate from Marcello's, saying it would be impossible for them to get a fair verdict if they faced a jury with the reputed mobster.

Radiation from engines called no health threat

BROOKINGS, S.D. (AP) - Radiation from a chemical contained in damaged B-52 bomber engines that accidentally were jolted from a transport never presented a threat to the public's health, the Air Force says.

The radioactive chemical cesium was in the engines, but officials said Tuesday that both the engines and chemical components were stored safely in two 16-foot-long pressurized drums. The drums weren't ruptured when the trailer truck carrying them ran into an interstate highway bridge Monday night, tumbled down a 25-foot embankment and overturned. The engines, damaged when a B-52 caught fire last month at Grand Forks, were bound for repairs in Oklahoma.

YMCA offering course in technique of rappelling

The Central YMCA is now offering a class in the mountaineering technique of rappelling. Rappelling is the technique of descent by the use of ropes and accessory gear. Rappelling may be used in climbing and caving.
The class begins Oct. 27 at 7 p.m. at the Central Y.

The cost is $20, which includes all equipment; films, booklet and instruction.

This is the first in a series of ourdoor education classes offered through the Midland YMCA's Community Services. There will be future classes in sailing, backpacking, caving, skiing, camping and canoeing. Also offered will be a series of Caravan Camps including trips to Colorado, Big Bend, the Pecos Wilderness and several other places of inter-

Wilson Smith, center, regional manager for Dowell Division of Dow Chemical USA in Midland, helps breakground for the division's multi-million-dollar research and development facility in Tulsa, Okla.

With him are, left, Ted Pumpelly of Tulsa, director of Technology, and Al Look, president of Dowell Division and a vice president of Dow Chemical.

Dowell breaks ground for complex

By Joe Salman Reporter-Telegram Oil Editor

TULSA, Okla. - Groundbreaking ceremonies for a new Dowell research and development complex were held Wednesday in Tulsa.

Al Look, Dowell president, conducted the cremonies which were attended by Dowell regional managers, numerous other Dowell personnel from various locations, representatives from the energy industry, media and state and local officials.

The complex will provide for the expansion of existing Dowell research facilities through the addition of 24 laboratoris. Look said "these laboratories will provide the research capabilities necessary to maintain the level of excellence expected of Dowell by the energy industry, and will help us prepare to meet the challenges of the future.

The complex also will house a training section, complete with a 75seat auditorium, conference rooms and areas for customer services, a library with computerized data and literature searching capabilities, and space for personnel from the Patent, Engineering, and Scientific Computer

Ted Pumpelly, Dowell director of Technology, said in addition to increasing the research and development capabilites, the complex "will greatly expand the division's ability to provide technical and commercial training seminars to employees and representatives of the energy industry, and make the addition of some needed personnel and office consolidations possible."

The 75,000-square-foot complex is on a 50-acre tract. The facility will house approximately 200 Dowell personnel engaged in research and technical services.

The company's manufacturing and administrative operations, employing about 450 people, along with some of the research and development functions will remain at the Dowell North Utica location in Tulsa. Chemical manufacturing facilities will remain at the present location west of the

Natura gives test reports

Natura Energy Corp. reported that two wells in which it has a working interest are being completed in Burleson and Fayette counties.

Chris F. Bosecker, president of the Midland-based company, said Union Oil & Minerals of Houston 1 Pinter in Burleson County is bottomed at 7,825 feet. On production tests, the well has been flowing an average rate of 100 barrels of oil per day from the Austin chalk perforations at 7,658-67,726

Natura owns a 13.6 percent working interest in the project

The company is participating in the drilling of a direct offset to No. 1 Pinter. The test is American Delta Corp. of Corpus Christi No. 1 Moore. Natura owns a 5.8 percent working interst (4.2 percent revenue inter-cent working interest in Thomas D. Coffman, Inc., of Austin No. 1 Schindler in Fayette County which has set production casing. Hole is bottomed at 7,695 feet. Oil and gas shows were encounted in the Austin Chalk during drilling operations. Natura Energy also has a 10 percent working interest (7 percent revenue interest) in Allen S. Garrett No. 1 Miaiam, a 1,800-foot roject in Crockett County. The wildcat is 10 miles south of Iraan The company also will carry working interests ranging from 18 percent to 25 percent in three wells to be drilled before year's end in Texas,

New Mexico and Illinois. Natura Energy of Midland completed its initial public offering in August with the sale of 15 million shares of common stock resulting in

discoveries in West Texas

Maddox Energy Corp. of Midland has completed a Devonian gas discovery in Pecos County, and Amoco Production Co. reported potential test on a Wolfcamp strike in Yoakum

PECOS STRIKE

Maddox No. 1 Frost National Bank, 24 miles west of Fort Stockton, is the Pecos discovery.

It completed for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 7,600,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations from 17,348 to 18,040 feet.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

The pay was acidized with 1,750 gallons and fractured with 25,000 gal-

Total depth is 20,450 feet, 51/2-inch pipe was cemented on bottom, and hole is plugged back to 18,133 feet.

The Devonian was topped at 17,345 feet on ground elevation of 3,099 feet. Other tops-include the Delaware lime, 5,043 feet; Bone Spring, 6,700; Wolfcamp, 7,400; Atoka, 16,815; Mississippian, 16,870; Woodford, 17,018; Fusselman, 17,578; Simpson, 18,285, and Ellenburger, 20,208.

The discovery is 4.5 miles east of Devonian production in the Hershey multipay field and 1,493 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 11, block 50, T&P survey.

YOAKUM OPENER

Anoco No. 1 Hearne is the Wolfcamp discovery in Yoakum County. The operator has suggested new field designation of Reeves (Wolfcamp). On 24-hour potential test it flowed 289 barrels of 37.6-gravity oil and no water, through a 19/64-inch choke and perforations from 10,727 to 10,743 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 588-1. The pay was acidized with 1,000 gallons Hole is bottomed at 11,200 feet, 51/2inch casing is set at total depth and hole is plugged back to 10,800 feet. The Leonard was topped at 9,164 feet, the Dean at 9,644 feet, and the Wolfcamp at 9,784 feet. Ground elevation is 3,467 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 688, block D, J. H. Gibson survey and 10 miles southwest of Tokyo. It is one mile north of Leonard production in the Reeves field.

TOM GREEN DISCOVERY

SUNEX Energy Corp. of San Angelo No. 1 W. L. Kellermeier has been completed as a Cross Cut oil discovery in Tom Green County, two miles southwest of Miles.

It completed for a daily flowing otential of 112 barrels of 41-gravity oil and 6.72 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 2,450-1. ompletion was through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 4,080 to 4,099 feet after 815 gallons of acid and 5,000 gallon of fracture fluid. The Cross Cut was topped at 4,079 feet on ground elevation of 1,746 feet.

Other tops include the Palo Pinto, 3,914 feet, and Dog Bend, 4,269 feet. The wellsite is 467 feet from south and wet lines of section 83, T&NO survey, abstract 2157 and one location east of an undesignated Canyon gas discovery, Pro Oil No. 1 Glass. CROCKETT OPENER

Harrison Interests Ltd. of Houston No. 19-21-30 University Lands, has been completed as an unidentified gas discovery in Crockett County, 18 miles west of Ozona.

Operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 2,150,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 8,8751/4 to 9,233

The zone was acidized with 7,500 gallons. The Strawn was topped at 9,047 feet on ground elevation of 2,618 feet. The well is 932 feet from south and 863 feet from west lines of section 21, block 30, University Lands survey and 5/8 mile northwest of Harrison Interests No. 11-20-30 University, Canyon gas well in the Howards Creek multipay field.

MENARD OPENER

Hydrocarbons Energies, Inc., of Midland No. 1-12 Harrison has been completed as a Goen lime oil discovery in Menard County, 10 miles northwest of Menard.

Maddox, Amoco complete

It finaled for a daily pumping potential of 36 barrels of 40.5-gravity oil and 10 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 417-1.

Completion was through perforations from 3,730 to 3,740 feet after a 2.000-gallon acid treatment.

The Goen lime was topped at 3,708 feet on ground elevation of 2,248 feet. The project topped the Cross Cut at 3,116 feet, the Harkey sand at 3,216 feet, the Capps lime at 3,386 feet, the Fry sand at 3,401 feet and the Strawn at 3,580 feet.

Total depth is 3,785 feet, 41/2-inch pipe is set on bottom and hole is plugged back to 3,768 feet. Location is 1,980 feet from south and 467 feet from east lines of section

12, block 2, TW&NG survey. It is 1/2 mile southwest of the depleted opener of the Nazera field. WINKLER WELL Gifford, Mitchell & Wisenbaker of Midland has dually completed its No.

1 A. G. Hill as a dual well in the Cheyenne multipay field of Winkler

From the Fusselman, it completed for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 4,052,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 19,664 to 19,673 feet. The zone was acidized with 5,000 gallons of acid.

The well earlier was completed from the Atoka. Total depth is 12,954 feet, 5-inch casing is set at 21,954 feet and hole is plugged back to 20,158 feet.

Location is 1,200 feet from north and 1,600 feet from west lines of section 6, block 74, psl survey and nine miles northwest of Kermit.

The Block 31, East (Devonian) field of Crane County gained its sixth well with completion of ARCO Oil & Gas Co. nO. 1 ARCO-Univesity "A."

On 24-hour potential test it flowed seven barrels of 41-gravity oil and five barrels of water, through perforations from 8,882 to 8,960 feet after 2,000 gallons of acid and 81,000 gallons of fracture solution.

Total depth is 9,531 feet, 51/2-inch pipe was landed on bottom and hole is plugged back to 9,300 feet. Wellsite is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 47, block 31, University Lands survey.

coming mums, so be sure and get a date — and buy a mum. All Student Council members need to work on the council's homecoming float. Construction begins soon, so time and place. Everyone is asked to come out and work on it, since it's the only float in the parade. Let's make it the best ever. Next Thursday is the homecoming parade, beginning at 3:30 p.m. at Midland High School. The bonfire and pep rally will begin at 7 p.m. in the west parking lot of MHS. Rasco says thank you to the five people who showed up on Saturday to help clean up. To the rest of the Junior Council and 100 Club, he says he is tired of doing their work for them not just on clean ups and set ups, but at lunch also. It comes down to one thing: The youth center is being hurt and he cannot do all the work, so there may be less dances and it may come to the point of shutting off lunches if he cannot get help to serve the food.

Dancer, director share strong love of musicals

By CHARLES SCHREGER The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD - At the very least, Francis Coppola and Gene Kelly share a love for musicals and a sense of history Kelly danced, directed and choreographed his way through dozens of musicals during the 1940s and '50s, among them "On the Town," "Singin" in the Rain" and "An American in Paris.'

Coppola is the director of some of the finest films of the past decade "The Godfather," "The Conversation" and "Apocalypse Now") — and one musical, "Finian's Rainbow." Coppola wants to make more musioals. He wants to make them right.

And he wants to make them with someone like Kelly, a man with a sense of history. 'Musicals, more than any other kind of film, require a real team, people who have been working together for a while and can put on a show together," Coppola said the other day. He was speaking from what once was the Harold Lloyd bungalow at Hollywood General Studios, now Coppola's Zoetrope Studios. So Coppola plans to put together a team and he has chosen its leader -Kelly.

Arthur Freed unit at MGM during that studio's musical heyday of the Freed was a lyricist, choreographer and producer. When Kelly sang the title tune in "Singin' in the Rain," he was singing Freed's wods. Freed was responsible for "The Wizard of Oz" and "Meet Me in St. Louis," to name just two of his films. And he helped further the careers of Judy Garland, Vincente Minnelli, Stanley Donen, Andre Previn and Frank Sinatra.

'You know those parallels, what can you say?" he said. "They're all a different cast of characters. Arthur Freed wasn't necessarily the kind of talent Gene Kelly was." He and Kelly have never worked together. They met briefly in 1969

when the two were working at 20th Century-Fox. Kelly was directing movies and Coppola was writing "Patton." One day, as Kelly remembered, Frank McCarthy, the producer of "Patton," handed the dancer a few pages of Coppola's script. 'Read this scene this kid wrote," McCarthy asked Kelly. The scene was the opening of "Patton." Kelly was impressed and he asked McCarthy to introduce him to "this kid," who, as it turned out, was working two doors down the hall. That is Kelly's only "Francis Coppola story," for now. He has many Arthur Freed tales. Chatting over the phone about his new appointment with Zoetrope, the friendly and warm Kelly fondly remembered his days with the Freed unit at MGM.

"It was wonderful," he said. "And so important to a dancer. The camaraderie and the ability of knowing who you'll work with from week to week was very valuable. It stilf is.

"Dancers spend their whole lives learning how to dance. MGM was a wonderful place to go to school. I hope this will be, too.' Kelly believes that musicals, however, never seem to lose their ap-

"I think that people just enjoy them." Kelly said. "I never did a musical to teach a lesson, just to bring joy. I hope to continue doing

With the new Kelly unit at Zoetrope, he'll get the opportunity. His first chore will be to choreograph the musical numbers for Coppola's next film, "One from the Heart," which, coincidentally, will be made for MGM. Then there's "Sex and Violence," another Zoetrope musical to star Cindy Williams. This will be followed by "Tucker," about the inventor Preston Tucker, which Coppola plans to direct and audition dancers and singers for the Zoetope musical company. And he'll be able to spend morke with the dance classes all of the actors under contract at Zoetrope will participate in. He's looking forward to it. So is Coppola. "We're like a couple of school kids," Kelly said of himself and Coppola. The Kelly unit is just one of many HOUSTON (AP) - A state judge has denied a request that St. Regis Paper Co. be prohibited from unloading overweight logging trucks at a Houston plant, saying the Texas Attorney General's office had failed to prove the company was responsible for damage to local roads.

Jr. made the ruling Tuesday, but Assistant Attorney General R.L. Townsend said he probably would seek a permanent injunction against the company. State authorities argued in a lawsuit that trucks used by the Houston-

Friday, October 10, 1980 YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-

DAY: The beloved First Lady of the American theatre-Helen Hayes-celebrates her birth on this day. In the coming year, you can make giant strides forward in a highly competitive field! Hard work and long hours will be required, but the rewards should more than outweigh any temporary sacrifices. Intellectual curiosity could result in a growing interest in religion or philosophy. A loving romantic partner will encourage you to strike a healthy balance between mental and physical pursuits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Bargains can be found by the alert shopper, but gambling or speculation will cost you more than money. A kindness performed today will be amply repaid. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The spotlight is on your creative abilities and powers of persuasion. Get some rest this evening. The weekend ahead may be much more active than usual.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Try a subtle approach when seeking to obtain mate's approval of weekend social plans. Get work projects out of the way early so that the next few days will be worry-free.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your unusual skills are in great demand now. Career is able to move in new directions. An influential associate is impressed by the confidence others have shown in your capabilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A hasty decision could have serious repercussions. A loved one may appear to be living in a dream world. You need help in planting this person's feet on the ground again.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Resist the temptation to reveal your true feelings. A better opportunity will arise in the near future. Avoid those who like to contribute to the gossip mill.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Someone who has trouble warding off temptation could use your assistance. Develop a new interest in work and greater recognition will be forthcoming.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.

The bidding: North East South West 1 + 2 + 3 Pass Pass 4 + Pass 6 9 Pass Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Ten of + A preemptive bid often disrupts the smooth flow of the auction. But it can backfire. Sometimes it will drive opponents to heights they would not have reached under their own power, and then help declarer make his perilous contract by locating all the key cards for him.

Left to their own devices, it is unlikely that North-South would have gotten beyond four hearts. East's preemptive jump overcall propelled the auction into slam, for after North raised to four hearts, South felt compelled to make another move because of his wealth of controls and because North's hand was not yet limited. Cue-bids in the pointed suits (spades and diamonds) led to a heart slam which, looking only at the North-South cards, was rather optimistic, but far from hopeless in view of the auction. West led the ten of spades, taken by the ace. Since bidding made it likely that if anyone was long in hearts it would be West, South led the jack of hearts to the second trick in the hope of finding East with the singleton nine. West covered, declarer won the king and then continued with the ten, praying that the suit would split 3-2. But when East showed out, declarer had an unavoidable trump loser. Prospects looked bleak.

There was just one chance, and declarer went for it. He played off four rounds of clubs, discarding two spades from his hand as West was forced to follow. Then came a trump to the ace, followed by another heart, giving West the lead with his high trump.

By now, West was stripped of everything but diamonds, and he was forced to concede the contract to declarer. If he led a low diamond, declarer would run it to his queen, cross to the ace of diamonds and discard his remaining diamond on the fifth club. It would be no better to lead the king of diamonds, for declarer would win in dummy and discard on the club immediately. Note that declarer could not afford to play the fifth club while West still held two trumps. West would ruff and exit with a trump, and declarer would be stranded with a diamond loser.

Iran-Iraq war best for hostages

By CHARLES J. HANLEY

NEW YORK (AP) - Former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who has tried to help mediate the Iran hostage crisis, says the Iran-Iraq war presents the best opportunity yet for winning release of the American hostages.

Clark said if the United States makes the first move by relaxing its economic sanctions against Iran or taking similar conciliatory steps, the hostages might be released "fairly soon."

He also said he believes the Iranians do not expect a formal "apology" from Washington about past U.S.-Iranian dealings — a demand rejected repeatedly by President Carter — but would be satisfied by a full report on that relationship.

'I don't like to say war is the way to get the hostages, but the conflict with Iraq interposes a greater crisis, a greater threat and a greater enemy or evil for the Iranians," Clark said in an interview with The Associated Press at his Greenwich Village law office. The resulting change in the Iranian national mood makes it "the best time that we've had for the hope of having the hostages released," Clark said. He noted the Iranians are demanding that the U.S. government release billions of dollars in frozen Iranian funds, return the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, pledge non-interference in Iranian affairs and give a full public accounting of the past U.S. role in Iran under the shah.

Some action on these items "could further improve conditions to where we could hope for release of the hostages, and I think fairly soon," he said. Waiting for an overall deal to resolve the crisis would be a mistake, he said — "I think that has already greatly prolonged the holding of the hostages." In the years before the shah fell, Clark was a leading U.S. critic of the Pahlavi regime and came to know a number of the shah's Iranian opponents. After the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran last Nov. 4, President Carter sent him to the Middle East to try to open negotiations, but the Iranians refused to allow

Last June, he and nine other Americans took part in a "Crimes of America" conference in Tehran. The Carter administration him into the country. threatened to prosecute them for violating the president's ban on travel to Iran. That possibility officially remains under study.

Clark, answering questions in a quiet Texas drawl, said he has remained in touch with the Iranian situation through people in direct contact with Tehran.

Asked about the sometimes vague Iranian demands for a report on or apology for American "criminal" actions in Iran, Clark pointed out that the State Department has amassed documentation about U.S.-Iranian relations in apparent preparation for an

'Dr. X' barred from practice

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Dr. Mario Jascalevich, dogged by malpractice claims despite an innocent Jascalevich received national attention verdict on multiple murder charges in the "Dr. X" curare case, has been barred from practicing medicine in New Jersey.

The state Board of Medical Examiners voted 11-0 on Wednesday to permanently revoke Jascalevich's New Jersey medical license and refused to delay their order pending appeal.

The 52-year-old Englewood Cliffs surgeon is practicing medicine in New York on another license. .Jascalevich, who voluntarily surrendered his New Jersey license in 1976, wasn't present at the hearing.

His lawyer Henry Furst refused comment on the Furst had urged the board not to "rubber stamp" an administraoive law judge's recommendation that Jascalevich received national attention as "Dr. X' after he was charged in 1976 with murdering five hospital patients in Oradell a decade earlier with the muscle relaxant, curare. His eight-month trial ended in October 1978 when a jury found him innocent of all

The administrative complaint by the board, unre-lated to the criminal case, charged the surgeon with malpractice and neglect, performing surgery after a false diagnosis, submitting a hospital report with the wrong patient's name on it and failing to proceed with the proper treatment.

Medical examiners denied Furst's request that board president Dr. Edwin Albano disqualify himself from the case because he had participated in the criminal prosecution.

Anonymous Astros even series with 7-4 win over Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The Houston Astros nickel-and-dime at-tack looked like a million dollars in the 10th inning Wednesday night as they evened their best-of-five National League Championship series against the Philadelphia Phillies at one game apiece.

Houston, recognized by many as the anonymous Astros, snapped a 3-3 tie with four 10th-inning runs for a 7-4

The Astros got what they came for, a split in the two games at Philadelphia, and now go home to their Astrodome where they were 55-26 in 1980. They'll have their best pitcher, Joe Niekro, 20-12, working the third game clubs in baseball. Philadelphia won 21 of its last 28 road games and posted a 48-33 away record enroute to the NL East Division title. They were 4-2 in the Dome while compiling a 9-3 regular-season record against Houston.

But the home field advantage doesn't necessarily give the underdog Astros a big edge, since the Phillies this season were one of the best road

Larry Christenson, 5-1, is scheduled to pitch for the Phillies Friday in an effort to set up a potential pennant-winning situation for its 24-game winner, Steve Carlton, on Saturday.

The Astros had just five hits going to the 10th inning and still managed to hold tight in a 3-3 game. The Phillies had 12 hits at that point.

But in the 10th against reliever Ron Reed, Houston erupted for those four runs, and then turned back an abbreviated rally by the Phillies, who left 10 runners on base over the last four Terry Puhl, who drove in the first two Houston runs, opened the 10th with a single. He was sacrificed to second by Enos Cabell. Joe Morgan was intentionally walked loading the bases, bringing up Jose Cruz. Cruz singled to right, scoring Puhl, and Morgan came home on a fielder's choice-grounder by Cesar Cedeno. Then Dave Bergman, who was inserted for defensive purposes in the eighth, drove a two-run triple in the right-center field gap for two more runs and it was all over.

The Phillies did throw a scare into Manager Bill Virdon and his Astros in the last of the 10th, scoring one run and bringing Mike Schmidt to the plate with two on and two out. The NL's home run-and RBI-leader, however, skied out to right field to end the

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the third off Phillies starter Dick Ruthven, when the right-hander walked .226 hitter Craig Reynolds, who was sacrificed to second by Houston starter Nolan Ryan, and scored on Puhl's

The Phillies, however, went ahead 2-1 in the fourth when Schmidt opened with a double and scored on Greg Luzinski's two-bagger. Luzinski was sacrificed to third and raced home on Garry Maddox' single.

Houston tied it in the seventh on a walk to Ryan and Puhl's double, and went ahead 3-2 in the eight as Morgan doubled and scored on Cruz' single.

The Phillies came back in the bottom of the inning when Luzinski singled in the eighth. Lonnie Smith ran for Luzinski, and reached second on a sacrifice bunt. Maddox again came through with a run-scoring single.

The Phillies had a big chance to win in the last of the ninth as Bake McBride lashed a one-out single. Schmidt also singled, McBride stopping at second. Smith then singled to right, and McBride rounded third, but held up after going part way home.

McBride appeared to have a chance to score, but he said he was held up by third-base Coach Lee Elia.

Elia said, "There was a little delay in his (McBride's part), but it was no fault of Bake McBride's. My hands went up as if to say stop and at the same time I said, 'no come on'. He saw my hands go up and stopped."

Phillies Manager Dallas Green said he wasn't worried about having to win two in the Astrodome.

"We were in the same position in Montreal and we didn't do too badly up there," said Green, referring to the Phillies' two-out-of-three conquest that wrested the East title from the

Royals stun Yankees

Dennis Leonard goes against Rudy May today

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Reminded that the home team has never before won the opening game in previous Kansas City-New York American League playoff clashes, Royals pitcher Dennis Leonard smiled slyly and offered a prediction:

"That just might not be the only 'first' you see this time," Leonard

'You know, there's something else that's never happened - us win-

Leonard, a right-hander with a 20-11 record, will oppose the Yankees' Rudy May, 15-5, in the second AL championship match tonight in an effort to "push them to the edge." "If we win the second game, I would say we've got a pretty good lock on them," Leonard said. "I'm just going to go out there and try to do that."

Gutty Larry Gura, who had not won since Aug. 25, regrouped after Rick Cerone and Lou Piniella slugged successive home runs on bad pitches in the second inning to outduel Ron Guidry and pitch the Royals to a 7-2 victory Wednesday in the opener of the best-of-five showdown.

The Royals, who lost the playoffs to the hated Yankees in 1976, 1977 and 1978, got unexpected performances from the lower part of their batting order and played the aggressive, fast and loose style that has characterized the team for four years.

May, whose ERA of 2.46 was tops among American League starters, said losing the opener puts no extra pressure on him to salvage the second game and send the New Yorkers back with a 1-1 split at Yankee Stadium Friday night.

"I was going to have to win any-way," said the veteran left-hander. 'This doesn't put a burden on me. This doesn't intensify things any more. KC has a good club, we've gotta go after them.'

Amos Otis, who had a miserable regular season, opened the Kansas City second with a single off Guidry, who lasted only three innings. After Otis stole second and John Wathan walked, the runners moved up on a wild pitch and scored when Frank White hit a bloop double between shortstop Bucky Dent and Piniella in

"I didn't think the shortstop could get it, so I just ran as hard as I could, hoping nobody would catch it," said White, who batted ninth and went three-for-four with a double and two

First baseman Willie Aikens, admittedly upset over pregame rumors that he would not start because he had not hit Guidry well, lashed a two-run single in the third to put the Royals on

Guidry, experiencing control problems, walked U.L. Washington to lead off the inning, but picked the Royals shortstop off first. Then George Brett walked and Otis lashed a ground rule double that bounced over the fence in left field. After Wathan was walked intentionally, Aikens delivered his hit. 'Guidry got behind me in the count, and when I faced him before, I no-hitter," Aikens said. "When the count got to three-and-two, I thought I'd get a fastball. Then I got a fastball in. Yankee Manager Dick Howser replaced Guidry with right-hander Ron ticed that he doesn't give in to any

Davis starting the fourth inning. "Guidry had a good fastball, but he kept hanging his slider," Otis said.

"He hung about 15 sliders and that's his out pitch. That's what I hit out of the park. Gura, handed a 4-2 lead, bore down with renewed confidence.

"From the fourth inning on, I felt pretty good," he said. "I was getting my pitches where I wanted them."

Reggie Jackson, whose 41 home runs and 111 RBIs led the Yankees this year, stranded five baserunners and was hitless in four at-bats. Perhaps the best pitch Gura made was an easy groundout he coaxed from the Yankee slugger in the seventh after Dent and Bob Watson singled with

That turned out to be the Yankees'

"If I didn't get Reggie out, I knew I'd be out of the game," Gura said. "That was the key pitch."

Howser agreed Gura made a gritty, key pitch to the Yankee slugger. We had a good opportunity there, but he really did the job when he had to. All of our opportunities during the and we didn't get the key hits when we needed them," he said. Brett, whose .390 average this season was the best in the major leagues since 1941, doubled in the first inning and muscled an opposite field home run in the seventh.

game seemed to come with two outs

The Royals added two more in the eighth when Willie Wilson, known for his base-stealing and league record 183 singles, slammed a two-run double off the center field wall to score Darrell Porter, who had reached base on an elror by Watson at first base, and White, who had singled. Royals Manager Jim Frey admitted he almost removed Gura twice.

"He's a great competitor and an intelligent pitcher," Frey said. "After he gave up those two home runs he started pitching like he did early in the season. Larry Gura was the key to this game.

"After they got those two home runs," said Royals' designated hitter Hal McRae, "I thought 'Oh no, here we go again.' You've got to think that when a guy's been struggling for six

But Leonard, noting the Watson error and White's bloop two-run dou-ble, offered another observation.

"In the other playoffs, it seemed like we were the ones dropping balls and they were the ones with the hits that fell in," he said. "Maybe we're due for a change of luck."

Bulldogs should fear Big Spring

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

BIG SPRING - If by Friday night Midland High is still licking the wounds of a 31-0 blanking by Odessa Permian, the Bulldogs could be in big trouble when they face the upstart Big Spring Steers on Homecoming

It is true that the Steers are losers in 38 straight District 5-5A contests, but they opened some eyes last week in a fingernail 28-21 loss to Abilene High and coach Ralph Harris, in his first year as head coach at Big Spring, has his Steers feeling that they can compete.

"There is no mircale coaching job going on in Big Spring, Texas,' Harris says. "But it is a misnomer that Big Spring can not play in this league. We have some kids that can play and all they need is a little confidence. We feel that we can go out and play with anyone. We feel like we should have beaten Abilene High. They made some big third and fourth down plays on us, but we felt like we should have won the game. They had to come from behind to beat us.

"This is a crossroad game for both teams," Harris continues. "It may be bold for Big Spring to say that this is a must for both teams to stay in the district race, but that is the way we are approaching this one. We're not going out to lose.

Meanwhile, MHS boss Pat Culpepper is carrying around a film cannis ter of Bulldog highlights in the Permian game to show to his players. The cannister is empty.
"Tradition in the past has said that

Midland High is through with football after losing to Permian," Culpepper stated this week. "I guess we haven't done much to change tradition, but I quickly let our team know that we still intend to play football. If we find any senioritis on this team, we will play the juniors and sophomores. Our players were in a very low state of mind Saturday and again Monday. They were feeling the frustration of being pumped up and then not even coming close to Permian. It's been a week of sitting back and making new goals. We just have to go out and Culpepper has already made some chapges for the Steers. Mark Hewitt,

Lee Rebels will play again

It didn't take long for a District 5-5A nightmare to crop up on the local front. It came Friday night at Memorial Stadium when Odessa High quarterback Johnny Subia scored from four yards out with 10 seconds left in the game to defeat Midland Lee, 28-

Naturally, that loss is rolling in the nightly dreams of the Rebs. It hurt. It was a game they seemingly had put away in the first half by ripping to a 21-7 lead with an offensive showing that had Rebel fans standing on their heads.

However, Lee coach Spike Dykes has taken the loss in fluid stride. "I've never lost a game that I enjoyed, but you can't crawl in a hole and die because of it," Dykes says. "The best way to keep from losing sometime is not to play. Losing is part of life. That game was one we could have won and didn't. There are a lot of people disappointed in the loss, but none of them hurt worse than our kids. We're just going back out and play football.

The frustrating part of the loss was that the Lee offense finally came to the front. They moved the ball better than they had all year and this was against a team that had given up only 19 points in its first three games. Lee was also marching goalward on several other occasions only to lose a fumble or have a pass intercepted.

'The effort was there," Dykes said. "We had a lot of kids who played well - better than they have ever played. But we lost the game. Odessa also played hard and they made some big plays on us. They deserve some credit

A fumbled punt on Lee's 17 yard line with 38 seconds left to play set up the winning touchdown for the Bronchos, it proved to be a very costly play for the Rebels, but Dykes says that is not why Lee lost the game. "We were trying to win the game and we had the return on. We lost the ball, but that wasn't the only mistake in the game. We made other mistakes and Odessa High made mistakes too. You're just not going to see any football game without mistakes." But if you can strip away the negatives, you still have to feel good about the Rebel showing. Quarterback Barry Corley and fullback Calvin Riggs really showed, maybe for the first time this year, what they can Corley had 137 yards rushing and Riggs added 121 more. Even tailback Rodney Hemphill had over 70 yards rushing and the Rebels churned out over 330 yards of rushing statistics.

Corley busted one run for an 80yard TD romp, and the one play was more yardage than the senior had in his first three games. Corley's run came on what looked like a busted play, but Dykes disputes that, "Barry did stumble while faking a handoff up the middle, but he had read the defense perfectly. He made that play go. Corley had a great night, probably the best he has ever had. I really don't think he could have done much more.

It was almost a flawless game for him. Riggs also ran harder than we've ever seen him. We were pleased with a lot of the efforts we got in the game, but we didn't win and we realize that we now have our backs to the wall."

The Rebels, now much like Midland High who lost by a dreadful 31-0 count to Odessa Permian, face reaction time this week. This is where the good teams will rise to the challenge. It is also where character must become cream and rise to the top.

On paper, Lee should beat San Angelo and Midland High should beat Big Spring Friday. But early district losses test the fiber of all concerned and unfortunately, Tall Gity fiber bet-ter be made of tough stuff in the weeks to come because there is no more room for slippage

Overcoming defeat in life is a hard thing to do, and it must be done. The final rewards can pay big dividends. It's a worthy goal to shoot for,

Lasorda sees benefits to 'multi-month' contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The way Tommy Lasorda sees it, there are certain benefits to having a "multimonth contract" to manage the Los Angeles Dodgers.

This way, I get a chance to come to a press conference here once a year and eat," said the smiling Lasorda, popping hors d'oeuvres into his mouth at the Chinatown restaurant used by the Dodgers when they have announcements.

Wednesday's hastily called media gathering was to announce Lasorda's signing for the 1981 season, ending a brief bout of rumors that he might be going to the Chicago White Sox.

"I don't know who was doing the talking about Chicago," he said. "I don't know anything about it. I've been with the Dodgers for 31 years, lived in this organization and want to die in this organization.

Asked about reports he'd been seeking a multiple-year contract, Lasorda answered: "I never said that to anybody. I got a multiple-month contract, that was good enough for me. "Walter Alston got 23 of those oneask for anything that's not standard with the club." Lasorda, 53, guided the Dodgers into a tie for the National League year contracts and I didn't want to West crown with Houston this past regular-season. Los Angeles beat the Astros in the three final regular-season games before losing 7-1 in last Monday's one-game playoff. He expressed his gratitude to club

President Peter O'Malley and Vice President Al Campanis for renewing his contract, and to the Los Angeles fans for their support this season. "I'm sorry we disappointed the fans and didn't beat Houston, were a day late and a dollar short," Lasorda said. "But this club displayed more courage than any I've ever seen. Taking over the Dodger reins after Alston retired with a few games remaining in the 1976 season, Lasorda turned out pennant winners in both

1977 and 1978. After a dismal, injury-riddled 1979 campaign that saw the Dodgers finish below .500 and third in the NL West, the club overcame many injuries and bounced back this year to win 92 games and push the race into over-

Lasorda was a pitcher in the Dodger organization for 11 years, mostly with the minor league club at Montreal. In two major league seasons with the Dodgers and one with Kansas City, he pitched 26 games and had a 0-4 record.

Culpepper makes moves for outing with Steers

who has been out with a bad back, is back and will start at slot back. Johnny Garza will be moved into the tailback slot and Wally Kleine will take over at tight end. Junior Craig Bostwick, a 236-pound lineman, will start at strong tackle in place of Joe Goebel, who will concentrate on defense only. Curt Holcomb will move into a linebacker position on defense to replace Scott Yocham, who will concentrate on fullback for the offense. Wade Johnson, the regular tight end, will move to defensive tackle to replace Jerry Dedrick, who has a bruised thigh. Linebacker Gary Willis, who some think is the heart of the MHS defense, also has a bad bruise and junior Greg Spencer may play there Friday.
"I think some of our larger kids tired against Permian, and we are going to take some of the pressure off of them with the new changes," Cul-pepper said. "Midland High's best record in the last 20 years has been 7-3 and that is not by the board yet. We need to win the rest of them now."

And for those who think Big Spring is always punchless, consider the fact that the Steers have one of the most potent backfields in the district. Junior Bobby Earl Williams is the leading rusher in the district with 409 yards. Against Abilene High last week. Williams rushed for 165 yards on 12 carries and scored on runs of 63 and 62 yards.

Asked if Homecoming would play a big role in getting Big Spring up for the MHS contest, Harris replied, "I don't think it will really make much difference. Big Spring usually has six or seven Homecomings every year - ours and everyone elses. Culpepper thinks that Big Spring's backs are the best around and even better than Permian's backs. "Big Spring has some very good talent and they can make some big yardage on you. We had a miserable performance against Permian and I bet the Big Spring coaches are really enjoying watching our performance in the films this week. They're probably laughing themselves silly."

Harris answered, "Midland High has a good football team. They run very well and they are a much better passing team than we are. And they don't beat themselves. I know that wasn't evident last week, but that was just one game, and you can't judge a team by just one game.'

The Bulldogs now must jump back into the win column in a hurry or Big Spring's 38-game district losing streak will come to an end Friday. And as Culpepper put it, "It would be a tough one to lose."

Yaz turns down job

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox veteran slugger Carl Yastrzemski reportedly was offered the job of managing the team next season, but turned it down.

In today's Boston Globe, columnist Will McDonough said word among Yaz's teammates is that the 41-yearold outfielder-first baseman might have accepted the offer if he could be a player-manager.

Rangers seek 6-A victory Greenwood and Grandfalls tangle in a key District 6-A scrap Friday night in one of the top tilts in the Permian Basin area. Both teams enter the contest with 3-1 slates overall and 1-0 in district play. A victory is necessary so the victor can keep the pressure on Rankin, unbeaten and state-ranked, district leader.

The Rangers and Grandfalls are almost evenly matched. Grandfalls holds the edge offensively averaging 24 points per game. Greenwood averages 16 points per outing. Defensively, Grandfalls has surrendered 33 points in four contest while the Rangers have given up 32 points in four games.

In other District 6-A competition Rankin, 4-0, will try to remain unbeaten hosting Wink, 3-2. Iraan, 1-3, will attempt to pick up its first district win at Balmorhea, 1-3. Sanderson, 0-4, is at Buena Vista, 3-1, to round out the District 6-A District 5-2A moves into its second week of play with Stanton, 5-0, still high over its upset win over Seagraves, traveling to Forsan, 1-4.

Seagraves, 4-1, will try to resume its winning ways at the expense of Ropes, 1-2-1, at home. O'Donnell, 4-1, is hosted by Morton, 1-4, in other District 5-2A play

Andrews, 4-0, after handing Pecos its first loss last week 31-20, will try to make it five in a row with a win over Odessa Ector, 0-3-1, in a District 2-4A encounter Saturday night at Odessa.

In a key District 2-4A matchup

Pecos, 4-1, will try to rebound from the loss to Andrews by shutting down Sweetwater. The surprising Mustangs, 4-1, unbeaten in three outings indistrict play, need a win to stay on the heels of Andrews. Other district play sends Fort Stockton to Monahans and Synder travels to Lamesa.

District 6-2A clubs all play out of conference games. McCamey, 3-2, hosts Eunice, N.M., Van Horn, 3-2, travels to Jal, N.M., and Hatch Val-

Crane, looking to win its first game in four tries, hosts Sonora, Denver City at Lubbock Roosevelt, Littlefield at Seminole and Coahoma at Post are the games in District 6-3A Friday

Martin, Palmer give insight

An AP Sports Analysis By FRED ROTHENBERG AP Sports Writer

From the vantage point of the broadcast booth, Billy Martin didn't reveal his enemies list. He told us he gets along fine with old nemesis Larry Gura and he even praised those dastardly umpires of the world.

But if the Yankees had not won the American League East, Reggie Jackson would have joined Martin as ABC's expert commentator for the AL playoffs, and wouldn't that have been something!

The playoffs make for some interesting broadcast voices as the network tried to add more pizzazz to the normal telecasts. Last year, NBC tried to get Ron Luciano when he was still an AL umpire and next week Tom Seaver will join Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek for the World Series broadcast.

But a Jackson-Martin team would have topped them all. It's hard to believe that these two volatile figures. who clashed repeatedly when Martin managed the Yankees and almost came to blows in 1977 would have made sweet music together over the airwaves. "If I was going to sit between Reggie and Billy," said play-by-play man Al Michaels, "I would have insisted on a fourth man in the booth - (referees) Arthur Mercante or Carlos Pa-

Although Jackson was locked up for ABC's playoffs, the Yankees made it all moot by winning the AL East, freeing Baltimore's Jim Palmer to share the microphone with Martin and Michaels for the series between New York and Kansas City. Game two is tonight with Kansas City up one game to none.

Based on the first game Wednesday, Martin has a career as a commentator if he ever runs out of teams to manage. He was inciteful, funny and candid about most matters. Perfectly complementing Michaels' skillful play-by-play and Palmer's entertaining and enlightening analysis.

It was wonderful baseball chatter. much more interesting and informative than ABC's National League trio of Keith Jackson, Howard Cosell and Don Drysdale.

It was also inspired casting -Palmer, the Baltimore pitcher, representing the runnerup team in the AL East, and Martin, manager of second-place Oakland in the AL West. Their insiders' view of baseball and its strategies was terrific -On pitching to George Brett, Kansas City's .390 hitter: Martin explained how his pitchers held Brett to .233 average this year (throw out the Oakland games and Brett batted 406). "We changed our pattern on him. We never pitched him one way. On the shadows that crept across home plate: "Cleveland has the worst shadow problem in the league," said Palmer. "I think they (hitters) have trouble more with the breaking ball than the fast ball," said Martin. -On Ron Davis relieving Ron Guidry at the start of the Kansas City fourth: "I'm not surprised. Ron's not that sharp. Get him out of there now and he'll be stronger the next time," said Martin. -On umpires: "I love 'em all," said Martin. "From here they all look beautiful." To which Palmer added: "Yeah, the season's over." -On Kansas City fans: "They're good fans," said Martin. "They get on me a bit." "Where don't they," asked Michaels. "At my mother's house," Martin responded.

-On Reggie Jackson: "We get along very well, very well," said Martin. Quipped Palmer - "Sure, he's in New York and you're in Oakland.

After the game, Michaels said he was uncertain whether Martin was really revealing his true feelings about some of the people he's battled over the years.

"I'm not sure how you can get the true feelings out," said Michaels. "He probably has a very complex relationship with Reggie. We have some more games to do. Maybe down the road we'll learn more."

Michaels said he was confident of Palmer since the Baltimore pitcher worked for ABC at the 1978 playoffs and may be the best of the guest sports analysts. He admitted he wasn't sure how Martin would react to the producer speaking in his ear, and whether he'd be too quiet or too

"He did great. I can't think of anything I'd want him to change," Michaels said. "The only thing I'm concerned about in the future is if the game is dramatic, we keep it to the game. That's when I don't want to digress.

Michaels, who was helpful in drawing out Martin's opinions, is all baseball. "I'm bothered when I'm watching a game when the personal stuff interferes with the game. The focus for me is on the field. If the focus shifts to the booth I've got to get it That might have been impossible if he were sitting between Martin and

Padres think Winfield is not worth $1.3 million

SAN DIEGO (AP) - San Diego Padres' President "We made him a very substantial offer within the Ballard Smith figures Dave Winfield, who hit .276 last month, but haven't heard a response," Smith this past season, may not reap as much riches on the said. "It was around, but less than, $700,000 over five Dave feels this season did not hurt his value. I disagree," Smith said Wednesday after the Padres' slugger announced he will enter the free-agent draft. "If he hit .330 he'd be entitled to more. Obviously with the season he had, no one's going to pay him $1.3 million a year." While charging the Padres with "humiliating and degrading my performance" this season, the 29-year-old Winfield did not shut the door on signing with the Padres, the only club he's played for in his eight major league seasons. Asked whether front-office wrangling and boos by some fans meant he wouldn't sign with the last-place National League West team, Winfield replied, 'Don't assume anything.' Winfield, who hit .308 in 1978 and 1979, is reportedly seeking $13 million over 10 years. He declined Wednesday to say how much money he wants. Smith said he was open to negotiations, but that the next move was up to Winfield.

The real World Series for most Texans (and Oklahomans) takes place Saturday in Dallas. It's the 75th football meeting of Texas and Oklahoma, a fierce rivalry that was first played in 1900.

It's not just another football game. It's more than what purists call a college gridiron classic. It's a rite. It stirs a religious fervor on both sides and leaves rival partisans limp from exhaustion and virtual basket cases after a full night of wild celebration or saloon-drowning sorrow.

"Hook 'em, Horns!" "On, Oakies, on!"

Sweetwater turns around

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

A revival is underway at Sweetwater-in football that is-and tight end Rodney Griggs has been right on the front row each Friday night this

For a team that posted a 1-9 record last year and had been the district doormat for years, Griggs had a welcome message with his performance in a 24-0 shutout of Lamesa. The victory boosted Sweetwater's record to 4-1 this season.

Griggs caught six passes for 83 yards including touchdown receptions of 12 and 11 yards, rushed twice for nine yards and threw a halfback pass for a 22-yard touchdown last week and played a full game on defense, intercepting one pass.

The performance earned Griggs mention on The Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

Griggs has average speed with a best of 4.8 in the 40-yarrd dash and is not imposing physically at 5-10, 170, but he's exceptional with Coach W.T.

"He's as good as any tight end I've coached," Stapler said. "We've got a freshman quarterback and his passes aren't picture-perfect but if they get close, Rodney will go get them."

"People know about him so we try to move him around," Stapler said.

"On that halfback pass, we missed a block and he got his bell rung and didn't play the fourth quarter." Griggs has led Sweetwater's comeback all season and he's no longer a surprise to opposing teams. "He's the guy we've got to get the ball to if we're going to be successful," Stapler said. "He's made so many great catches this year. He caught one in the back of the end zone last week that was amazing. We've gotten to where we just expect the spectacular catch.

Meanwhile, David Reuter turned in an impressive defensive performance in leading Channelview to a 27-0 victory over Dayton. Reuter was involved in 20 tackles. Ten of the tackles were unassisted, six were behind the line of scrimmage and three were "The thing that is phenomenal is that they (Dayton) ran only 43 or 44 plays from scrimmage," said Channelview Coach Julian Bush, meaning Reuter had been involved in stopping half of Dayton's offense.

of four, 10, 12, 17, 75 and 75. -Doug Meissner was all the offense Woodsboro needed to shut out Agua Dulce 28-0. Meissner rushed 236 yards on 21 carries and had touchdown runs of 20 and three yards. He also caught three passes for 59 yards.

--Robert Lewis of Greenville rushed 139 yards on 25 carries and had a touchdown run of one yards and a TD catch of 11 yards in a 34-6 victory over Richardson Pearce that kept the Lions unbeaten. It was Lewis' fourth straight 100-yard plus game of the -- Linebacker George "Skeeter"Trousdale helped Barbers Hill shutout Tarkington 55-0 with 15 tackles, 11 unassisted and three fumble recoveries. Trousdale also rushed 54 yards on nine carries and scored on a one-yard run.

-- Temple's Kenneth Davis rushed 145 yards on nine carries in a 49-0 rout of Waco Richfield and he did most of his work early, rushed 141 yards on six carries and scoring on runs of 55 and 25 yards in the first quarter.

Astros, Phillies set playoff records

By DENNIS D'AGOSTINO

Associated Press Writer The Houston Astros and Philadelphia Phillies combined to tie or set several League Championship Series records in Wednesday's second game of the National League Series, won by Houston, 7-4 in 10

Played in three hours, 34 minutes, the game was the longest in terms of time in playoff history. The previous high was three hours, 29 minutes, set by Baltimore and Minnesota in a 12-inning AL game

Greg Luzinski's double in the fourth inning enabled the Philadelphia slugger to hit safely in all 13 playoff games he has appeared in. The 13-game hitting streak is by far the longest of any player in League Championship Series history. Baltimore's Brooks Robinson and Kansas City's Freddie Patek each hit in nine straight playoff games.

Mike Schmidt of the Phillies had six official at-

nati's Tony Perez in 1973.

Houston's Nolan Ryan became the fifth player in history to appear in a League Championship Series with three different teams. Ryan appeared in the NL Playoffs with New York in 1969 and in the AL Playoffs with California last season. The Astros fireballer joined Vic Davalillo, Tom Hall, Merv Rettenmund and Grant Jackson as the only other players to appear with three teams.

Philadelphia's Manny Trillo tied a playoff mark with two sacrifice hits. He joined Patek, Dock Ellis, Gaylord Perry and Jim Bibby. The two clubs combined for five sacrifices, another record.

The paid attendance of 65,476 was the highest in Pennsylvania baseball history and the highest in League Championship Series history. The previous high was 65,277, set in Tuesday's first game at Philadelphia.

The Phillies left 14 runners stranded, the most in playoff history. The previous high was 13, set by the 1971 Baltimore Orioles and the 1974 Los Angeles

Oklahoma set NCAA rushing and total offense records in demolishing Colorado, 82-42.

Texas, 4-0 and ranked No. 3, plays the No. 12 Sooners, 2-1, Saturday in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. Kickoff is at 11:50 a.m., CDT, before a sellout crowd of 72,032 and a national television audience. "Actually, we're kind of glad OU had all that offense last week," says Shankle, a 220-pound Silsbee junior. 'It just pumps us up that much more.

Shankle had a team-high 23 tackles in Texas' 41-28 victory over Rice on Saturday, including 14 solo stops. He has 55 tackles for the year, 14 more than 265-pound tackle Kenneth Sims, who is second on the team.

"For the last two games, Shankle has been playing like we have been expecting all along," said Coach Fred Akers. "He has been making plays all over the field, and he's awfully tough in the middle. He's smart, he's tough, he's everything you could ask for. Doug is some kind of player."

Shankle, a starter since the eighth game of his freshman year, said he was scared his first year against Oklahoma. "I really had no idea what was going on," he said. "It seemed so loud and confusing. The game of musical coaches is over. Now it's time to see how well each man can do in the city where he landed. Ed Johnston finished the 1979-80 National Hockey League season in Chicago, coaching the Black Hawks. He begins this campaign behind the bench of the Pittsburgh Penguins, who meet the Philadelphia Flyers in one of five opening-night contests to-

Of the 10 teams which begin play tonight, six do not have the same bench boss as at the beginning of last season. Aside from Johnston, the new coaches are Gerry Cheevers (Boston), Maurice Filion (Quebec), Red Berenson (St. Louis), Roger Neilson (Buffalo) and Keith Magnuson (Chi-

In all, 11 clubs have different coaches than they began with last season. Like Berenson, Claude Ruel (Montreal), Gary Green (Washington) and Joe Crozier (Toronto) did finish the 1979-80 schedule right where they begin this one. Bill MacMillan (Colorado), Ted Lindsay (Detroit), Filion, Magnuson and Cheevers are debuting behind the bench.

How much affect can a new coach have? Johnston, who led the Black Hawks to a 14-point improvement last season, is a good example.

The former goaltender changed the Hawks from a dull, non-aggressive, conservative outfit to an exciting, attacking team. The transition helped bring the fans back to Chicago Stadium and returned the Hawks to respectability in the standings.

But Johnston and Hawks General

Manager Bob Pulford had a falling out and Johnston moved to the Penguins, where he tries to repeat the trick with a club that's been sliding for years.

"I feel this club is capable of 85-90 points and we're aiming for one of the top eight spots in the NHL," said Johnston. "We have a solid mix of veterans and good skating youngsters. And Greg Millen has a lot of potential in net.

The Flyers seek to repeat their first-place overall finish in the regular season last year, when they collected 116 points, mainly thanks to a record 35-game undefeated streak.

In tonight's other openers, the New York Rangers visit Boston; Quebec is at Calgary in the first NHL regularseason game in that city - the Flames moved from Atlanta to Calgary in the offseason; Hartford is at St. Louis, and Buffalo travels to Chi-

The BASS Masters Classic. Not your average bass fishing contest by any means. It's the gathering point for the world's greatest bass anglers. It's the "Super Bowl" of all fishing tournaments. More money was awarded at this year's Classic than in any previous bassin' contest. The winner took home more that $40,000 for his superb angling performance.

The year's Classic X was recently held on New York's St. Lawrence River....the Thousand Islands region. Until 1977, bass fishing on this natural waterway was relativelty unheard of. Locals had always fished the St. Lawrence for northern pike, walleye, yellow perch, whitefish, smallmouth bass and muskellunge. And every now and then a local would catch a largemouth bass while fishing for smallmouths or pike. But they would think nothing of the largemouth catch.

In June of 1977, Bass Anglers Sportsman Society based in Montgomery, Alabama elected to host a regular points tournament in the Thousand Island region on a trial

THE 250 anglers from far and wide who entered the tourney really didn't know what to expect from the St. Lawrence River. Of course, they knew they would catch a few smallmouth bass, but the largemouth factor was unknown. Even the locals of Alexandria Bay where the tournament headquarters revolved didn't know what to expect when a bass fishing tournament came to town. But BASS held that first tournament and now has made Alexandria Bay, the St. Lawrence River system, the Thousand Island area world famous for its bass fishing and future potential

More huge largemouth and smallmouth bass were taken in that first tournament than the natives even thought existed in their own water-

Since that initial New York BASS Invitational, the sponsoring organization some 360,000-members strong has held two more regular tournaments, better results posted each time.

This year BASS did not schedule a regular tournament on the St. Lawrence. Most tournament regulars wondered why.

Reason being that Ray Scott, president and founder of BASS and New York State decided that the world's richest bassin' fish-off should be held on the St. Lawrence River. So it be!

FORTY-ONE of the world's greatest bass anglers gathered at Alexandria Bay for a three-day fishing bout. The winner's share would be more than $40,000. And all 41 anglers had a the best anglers to claim their share. As the first day's weigh-in rolled around, a marine dealer from Natchitoches, La., came in with the heaviest bag of bass totalling 200 pounds, 15 ounces. Bo Dowden, who has qualified for six Classics, led the field with his outstanding first day catch of five bass. His closest contender that first important day was Basil Bacon of Springfield, Mo. His New York limit of five largemouth-smallmouth bass tipped the scales at 16 pounds, five ounces. Texas anglers who had qualified for the Classic were also doing well. Kenneth Walker of Cedar Park weighed-in five bass totalling 12 pounds, 15 ounces while Toledo Bend guide and 1974 Classic winner, Tommy Martin of Hemphill had a bag of bass weighing 13-14.

But after the second day, it was a showdown going into the third and final day between Dowden and Bacon. Only four pounds separated the two Weather didn't cooperated accordingly that final day. If Dowden really had a pattern set, he could win. The same went for Bacon. Dowden's bassin' pattern held. He limited out that final crucial day. Bacon couldn't locate his fish and he was skunked. That happens to the best at times!

MAKING a strong cast on the final day was Roland Martin, all-time money winner on the B.A.S.S. tournament trail. He snagged the heaviest weight that day with 17 pounds, 10 ounces and his total for the Classic was good enough for second place with 44 pounds and one ounce. He claimed $10,000 for second place.

A young angler from Sugar Hill, Georgia, Cliff Craft finished the Classic race in third with 41-9, while last year's Classic winner on Lake Texoma, Hank Parker made a charge early but fell to fourth with 35-11. Bacon dropped all the way to fifth with 34-5.

Dowden also caught the largest Classic bass, a largemouth weighing six pounds, six ounces, good enough for another $1,000 bonus.

eThe 41 contenders in the richest bass fishing event to ever be held caught a total of 247 largemouth and smallmouth bass which weighed 712 pounds, four ounces. The best thing about the Classic is the the B.A.S.S. Catch, but Don't Kill system experienced a 100 percent live release. Not one bass died from the result of tournament fishing.

CHUCK DAVIS OUTDOORS

David Falls, great place to fish

David Falls isn't on any map, but I must call it something.

There is no particular mystery about it. It earned its name from the sure footed ability of one of my fisherman sons. David fishes the area regularly and he regularly falls - often breaking a rod, reel or barking his shins. But he catches heavy stringers of Brown, rainbows, cutthroats and an occassional largemouth bass or whitefish.

But greater fishermen than he or I preceeded us to the place, I understand. Some, including many of the big-name fishermen of the country, have thought seriously about renouncing their relatives and settling there in the camaraderie of bachelorhood to catch fish.

BUT EVEN the likes of a Brooks, a McClane or a Wulff didn't find this Clark Fork of the Columbia River Paradise. Who did for certain is vague now. Perhaps it was a bearded buckskin-clad trapper, who towed a crudely-tied muddler minnow behind his canoe while checking his trap line. It could have been an Indian chief whose family knew the secret. Or perhaps a Norwegian fisherman cast ashore by stormy seas, who found solace from the woods by taking a small boat onto the river.

David Falls is about 90 miles west of Helena, Montana and about 12 miles east of Missoula on the Westslope of the Rockies.

After traveling down a wide dusty road for a few hundred yards, you turn into a private drive and soon the fun begins. You clamber around sheer cliffs and rock slides of garbagecan-sized boulders to get to the whirlpool, fast-running water and fish-laden pools and runs. On some of the flats, big black bears and handsome whitetail bucks feed and travel about looking for whatever bears and deers look for. Rifts of old moss and scoured-out willows clog the backwaters. Canadian geese and mallards, disturbed by your presence blend into the background or skitter noisily across the water to seclusion.

THE AREA you are heading into is just downwater from Rock Creek, a genuine North American Blue Ribbon Trout Stream. Take your pick of prime waters where Schwartz Creek, Donovan Creek or Allen Creek spills into the big river. Buckskin-clad trappers towed a crudely-tied muddler minnow behind his canoe while checking his trap line. It could have been an Indian chief whose family knew the secret. Or perhaps a Norwegian fisherman cast ashore by stormy seas who found solace from the woods by taking a small boat onto the river. You are not swashing when you go with David, who has spent many hours seeking the answers to the real mysteries of life. Fishing gear is a minor item. David is a jack-of-all-tackle and a good one at that. Usually he has less than a dozen flies, shiny lures and grasshoppers merged together in his small pocket-sized tackle box to last him a day. He never has a landing net and always has wet feet.

I could never describe the fish that have accepted lures at David Falls. They were so numerous that to tell of the rises, misses and landings might prove monotonous.

It's a good spot, pardner, and you needn't thank me for the tip. Thank David Haffa. He fell for it.

MONTREAL (AP) - Despite what the National Hockey League's Board of Governors decided in June, any game ending in a tie won't go into a five-minute, sudden-death overtime period. It will remain a tie, as regular-season games have done since the league dropped overtime Nov. 21, 1942, because of wartime travel re-

This time, the NHL Players' Association put the idea on ice, withholding its approval in an effort to wrest concessions from the owners in other areas, such as free agent compensation. Eighty-five percent of players rejected the overtime proposal.

The teams prepared for the 1980-81 season with the waiver draft earlier in the day, conducted by Ziegler by telephone from the league office here. Five players changed clubs in that exercise, designed to spread talent more evenly throughout the league.

The Colorado Rockies got right winger Yvon Vautour from the New York Islanders, Quebec took left winger John Wensink from Boston, the Detroit Red Wings grabbed defenseman Rick Smith from the Bruins, the Edmonton Oilers selected right winger Curt Brackenbury from the Nordiques and the Vancouver Canucks laid claim to defenseman Colin Campbell of Edmonton.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Peter Arnett, who reported from Vietnam for The Associated Press from 1962 to 1975 and won the Pulitzer Prize, interviewed Vietnam's foreign minister, Nguyen Co Thach, on Tuesday.

> By PETER ARNETT AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - Olive branch extended, Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach moved purposefully along the corridors of this year's United Nations General Assembly.

His country was in its 35th year of continuing war, at odds with weather that has buffeted rich ricelands with two devastating typhoons in a recent month, and isolated politically from much of the world.

He had come on an annual mission to seek accord with former enemies. and peace with the present ones.

BUT THERE WERE FEW takers. "We are prepared to proceed with normalization of relations (with the United States) without conditions,"

Nearly six years ago, the United States ended its Vietnam involvement by snatching from the rooftops the last of its embassy staff as Saigon was collapsing to victorious North Vietnamese troops.

Vietnam was once the central focus of American concern but it has been bumped into the political backwaters by the flood of worry over militant Islam and endangered oil supplies. In an interview with The Associated Press, Foreign Minister Thach lamented the indifference.

"Normalization with America is important to us and for security in Southeast Asia. The less volatile the situation the better," Thach said. But American officials charge that Vietnam's aggressive designs are unsettling the region, and will not meet with the Vietnamese official during his visit or reopen long-collapsed talks (on normalizing relations).

THE FOREIGN MINISTER described the situation as "a vicious circle" of diplomatic conspiracy centered on China. "The United States is playing its China card. It does not want to displease China," he charged. China invaded Vietnam for several weeks early in 1979 after years of border clashes that culminated in the expulsion of many Chinese inhabi-

"As long as America plays its China card we are not in the game," the Vietnamese official said.

Thach charged that in addition to keeping 10 infantry divisions on Vietnam's northern border and lo nearby, the Chinese "are training several thousands of Vietnamese in Hainan and Yunan provinces for use in guerrilla operations. And a similar number of Lao and Cambodians."

It was concern over China's "4,000year tradition of attacking Vietnam from two directions, to make us a sandwich," that helped convince Vietnam to move into Cambodia and overthrow the Chinese-supported Pol Pot regime in 1979, Thach said. Southeast Asian neighbors of Cambodia, particularly Thailand, fear further Vietnamese expansion. Thach has met with Thai officials at the United Nations in an attempt to resolve the border issue.

The Vietnamese official said attempts to unseat the Pol Pot delegate and replace him with a representative from the Vietnamese-backed Cambodian regime will probably fail when the matter comes up next

"We have no illusions there will be a change," he said. "But we would hope that some delegations will have a heavy conscience when they vote for Pol Pot." There are continuing allegations in Cambodia of widespread atrocities by the former regime. The United States favors seating the Pol Pot delegation.

THE FOREIGN MINISTER insisted that Vietnamese troops will leave Cambodia entirely "as soon as possible." He said, "We have no interest in staying on in Cambodia. Our troops have been there twice before, during the French war, and again during the Johnson-Nixon war. We pulled out both those previous times. We will do it again."

That will happen "when the task of common defense is over," a goal complicated by the unsophistication of the Cambodian army. "We have plenty of soldiers, but all the cadre, all the potential officers, were killed in the Pol Pot genocide. How long does it take to make a colonel, a general?" Thach asked.

The Vietnamese Army is needed back home. "After the war with the Americans, we hoped to concentrate all our energies on rebuilding our country. But we have had to divert them in the national defense," Thach

"We have tightened our belts not once, but twice," Thach said, adding that his own monthly rice ration has been decreased from 16 kilograms to l3 (35 pounds to 29). Two typhoons in August and September destroyed one fifth of the season's rice crop.

THE FOREIGN MINISTER said the Vietnamese console themselves in their troubles by looking at the perspective of history.

"Our soldiers starved during the French war, but none starve today even though rations are low. During the American war, we were under massive bombardment in battle much worse than today. So if we look at the recent past, we are less pessimistic.

Fair will generate, among other things, a lot of trash

DALLAS (AP) - Not everyone would want Steve Moore's job. He and his crew of about 600 temporary workers clean the sprawling State Fair of Texas fairgrounds daily — after more than 250,000 people have trampled the midway from dawn to dusk.

If all the paper napkins, candy-apple cores, corn cobs, corny dog sticks and other trash discareded during the two-week fair were stacked on the floor of the Cotton Bowl, he says, it would make a pile 10

The man who deduced that somewhat unsavory statistic has contracted for the fair cleanup job for the past 19 years.

State Fair officials estimated they will spend about $300,000 this year paying Moore and his army to clean up after the three million litterbugs expected to stroll the grounds from now until Oct. 19.

The hardest job, Moore said, is cleaning the midway where the rides and games are located and where pedestrian traffic is always the hea-

Crowds make broom-handling difficult and driving the mobile trash carts impossible, he said.

But cleaning the midway puts the brigade - armed with everything from brooms and dustpans to golf-cart sized pickups - only midway through the spic-and-span operation. The livestock barns, which generate thousands of pounds of manure daily, must be cleaned and readied for the herds of cows and hordes of fairgoers. Behind the cattle barn is a row of large metal containers that hold 30 cubic yards of straw and manure each. "We'll probably fill 40 of them, one every 10 minutes, when we clean the barn after one show," said the trash man. "People sometimes call us wanting to know if they can get some of it for their gardens ... I'll ask them how much they want and a lot of them say, 'I'll take all you got.' But they just don't have any idea."

The crews work 20 hours a day and the fairground streets are swept and hosed down each night after the fair closes, he said. "We really don't know how many we have on the payroll," Moore said

"There's an awful lot of turnover. "We have quite a few vacancies every hour."

NEIL SOLOMON, M.D.

Nitrosamine level very low in beer

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Some time ago you responded to a question about the levels of nitrosamines in beer. Although I must admit that the earlier report did not cause me to curtail my drinking, I'm wondering whether there still is any cause for concern. -

DEAR JOHN: As far as the levels of nitrosamines are concerned, you can set your mind at ease.

The Food and Drug Administration's latest tests showed an average of one part per billion or less of nitrosamines in beers and other malt beverages. With the exception of the imported beers, the levels were well below the five parts per billion mark at which regulatory action would be Nitrosamines, which are formed during the drying of green barley used to make malt, had aroused some concern because they caused cancer in laboratory animals. The improvement in nitrosamine levels is attributed to a process involving the addition of sulphur during the drying of the barley.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: I have several questions about genital herpes. Is it considered a venereal disease? How common is it? What kind of treatment is prescribed for the condition? And what are its possible complications?

DEAR MARY: Genital herpes is a sexually transmitted disease and, therefore, one of the venereal diseases. For some reason, it seems to be particularly prevalent on college campuses among middle- and uppersocioeconomic level students. In a study conducted at the University of California, Los Angeles, 1.14 percent of all students visiting the student health service had genital herpes, a far larger number than had either gonorrhea or syphilis. There is no definitive form of treatment for the

Among the complications of genital herpes is its association with carcinoma of the cervix. When the disease is found during pregnancy, a cesarean section may be indicated in order to avoid herpes simplex in the child.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Three years ago, before I was married, I had an abortion. Since then I have married, but have been unable to carry a pregnancy to completion Is it possible that the abortion is responsible for my present inability to have a successful pregnancy? - Mrs. C. P.

DEAR MRS. C.P.: A report in the Journal of the Americal Medical Association suggests that induced abortions increase the risk of subsequent spontaneous abortions; however, this does not appear to be a factor in cases of a single prior induced abortion.

The researchers found that women who have had two or more induced abortions had a two - to threefold greater risk of first-trimester spontaneous abortions. However, there was no evidence that these women ultimately were unable to have a successful pregnancy, or that they were unable to achieve their desired family size. Nevertheless, the results of ths study serve to emphasize that abortion is not an advisable method of birth control.

Parkview's statistics average with nation

The number of hospitals in the United States from 975,000 in 1978. decreased last year to 6,988 from 7,015, according to Overall admission the 1980 edition of the American Hospital Association's "Hospital Statistics," recently released in Community hospitals represented more than three-fourths of all the hospitals, but showed only a slight decrease to 5,842 from 5,851 during 1979.

Community hospitals, like Midland's Parkview Hospital, are private, non-federal, short-term general or other special hospitals. They do not include public-run hospitals.

Based on AHA's 1979 annual survey of all hospitals, the data also show the number of hospital beds decreased. However, at community hospitals, the number of patient beds increased to 984,000 in 1979

Overall admissions continued to increase along with the number of surgical operations and births. Admissions to community hospitals increased 1.7 percent to 35,099,000, which brings the decade-increase to 24.2 percentage points.

Parkview Hospital, however, reported 907 admissions for 1979, which hospital medical records personnel reported did not include an increase in pa-average number of 14.43 patients per day.

The average length of stay in community hospitals remained at 7.6 days throughout 1978 and 1979. Parkview reported its average length of stay at

Births in community hospitals continued to increase, up 4.1 percent to 3,287,012. Surgical operations at the hospitals rose by 6.5 percent, from 17,150,124 in 1978 to 18,268,581 in 1979. Parkview does not have maternity care, yet its number of surgeries increased from 518 to 547 in

The average community hospital expenditure per inpatient day rose to $217.34 in 1979, an 11.8 percent increase from 1978. In general, the survey showed Bed-size at Parkview also remained at 60, with an the larger the hospital, the greater the adjusted expenses per inpatient day.

> Parkview's average expenditure was $259.54. All hospitals received the annual questionnaire. The response rate was 89.8 percent.

Floyd Cramer delighted crowd

By GEORGIA TEMPLE Staff Writer

If Tuesday's Midland-Odessa Symphony concert was an accurate sampling of what to expect for the season, then area residents have much to look forward to. It was a delightful evening.

With few rough spots, the symphony, under the direction of Tom Hohstadt, performed Bernard Herrmann's "Swing Your Partner," Paul Creston's "Night in Mexico," Aaron Copland's suite from the ballet "Billy the Kid," and Richard Hayman's "Pops" Hoe-Down. The concert was sponsored by a great from Pagin 170 grant from Basin, Inc.

The sound was very good. It was certainly a vast improvement over the outside Midland "Pops in the Park" concert held at the A Street and Cuthbert

After intermission, pianist Floyd Cramer took the

His manner was relaxed as he joked with the audience between selections Before playing a melody of his favorite songs, he remarked, "I hope you recognize them and I hope I remember how to play them." Then removing what looked like musical scores from his black velvet jacket, he placed them on the top of the grand piano, sat down and began to play. Naturally, he never looked at them. Cramer performed for more than an hour, playing many selections from his latest album which contains theme songs from various television shows. The theme song from the popular show "Dallas" was

Children of An Lac' starring Shirley Jones, Ina Balin to air

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Viet Cong invaders were only six miles away, Saigon was about to fall, and Betty Tisdale and actress Ina Balin worked against the clock to save the orphans of An Lac.

The story of their desperate struggle to evacuate the children — Vietnamese red tape and bureaucracy were as frustrating as the advancing Communists is told in "The Children of An Lac," to be broadcast tonight 8-10 EDT on CBS.

Shirley Jones stars as Betty Tisd Balin plays herself. The two-hour movie also stars Beulah Quo as Madam Ngai, the head of the orphanage, and Alan Fudge and Ben Piazza. The women succeeded in their gamble and got most of the children out and safely to the United States in April 1975. Betty Tisdale had been in Vietnam off and on for 15 years, supporting the An Lac orphanage," said Miss Jones.

'She made speeches around the country and was able to raise $5,000 a month to help support the orphanage. She had met Ina Balin when she was there to entertain the troops, and that's how Ina got involved. When Vietnam began to fall, Betty telephoned Ina in New York and said they had to get the children out.

When they got to Saigon, Viet Cong soldiers were only six miles away. "It was a race against time, and there was so much red tape to take care of," Miss Jones said. People were running for their lives, so they didn't care about a few children."

The Saigon government refused to allow the evacuation of any child over the age of 12. They would permit only 15 children to leave at a time.

"Madam Ngai wanted to evacuate all of the children," said Miss Jones. "Betty said let's take out those we can. They went at it tooth and nail." In all, 275 children were evacuated and placed in

The government blocked Madam Ngai's evacuation, but she did escape later. She made her way to the United States and lived with Ms. Tisdale in Georgia until her death. The movie was filmed entirely in the Philippines.

drenched," she said. "I think it gave it a reality. The heat, the humidity, the stench, the mosquitoes. After I saw the results on film, I knew it had helped. It certainly was real."

Miss Balin, perhaps best-known for her performance opposite Paul Newman in the 1960 film "From the Terrace," was instrumental in the production of "The Children of An Lac." The script for the film was based on her account of the evacuation, and she insisted that she be permitted to play

That latter consideration - playing herself - was "the easiest part" of the project, Miss Balin said. "I didn't have to reach for motivation, to search for a psychological characterization," she said.

In the same context, however, she was aware of so many events and people that were not included in the film. "There's so much that's not there," she said. "We just didn't have the time or the money. But it still says what it has to say."

For Miss-Jones, the movie was her first role since her ill-fated NBC series "Shirley."

"There's talk of my doing another series," she said. "I would love to do one, but it's tough to find the right property. And I'd like more creative control than I had on 'Shirley.

"The trouble with 'Shirley' was that we were neither fish nor fowl. They couldn't make up their minds which way to go. They tried to make it a comedy, which it wasn't. We never retained the quality of the pilot.' She said she is looking for a dramatic series rather than a comedy. "You can grow so much as an actress," said Miss Jones, who won an Oscar as best supporting actress in 1960 for "Elmer Gantry." She starred in "The Partridge Family" on TV 1970-74. She said she and Miss Balin had talked of doing their own version of "I Spy," as two globe-trotting

But the selection that received an immediate response was "Last Date," which he wrote and recorded in 1960.

At the close of his performance, Cramer received a standing ovation. He was honored with a reception following the concert.

He had said on stage he had complimented the symphony by saying "I would like to take them with me, but I'm afraid they wouldn't fit into my Toyota." After the performance, he said he had worked with many orchestras in the last year, including Houston and Memphis, and the Midland-Odessa orchestra is "just as good or better than any I've worked with.

Cramer, who began to show an interest in music at the age of five, started playing professionally in 1951. He moved to Nashville in 1955. There he was on the road for the first six months before he was hired as a recording studio musician. He worked in that capacity from 1956-63.

"I wouldn't trade that experience for anything," Cramer said, explaining that was the time he wrote and recorded "Last Date."

Working for a recording studio is time consuming, Cramer said. Often the musician works for nine to 12 hours a day in three hour sessions.

Cramer said he feels one of the most significant decisions he made in his career came when he decided to give up the recording studio work and go

Star Trek' creator says new episodes may be made soon

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) - Devoted fans of "Star Trek" - grieved when the five-year mission of the USS Enterprise was cut short, not by marauding Klingons or Romulans but by earth-bound ratings may be in for a treat.

Gene Roddenberry, creator of the 1960s sciencefiction television series, says talks are under way to produce new television episodes featuring Capt. Kirk, Mr. Spock and Dr. McCoy.

Roddenberry told an audience at the University of Central Arkansas at Conway Tuesday that he had been negotiating with Paramount Pictures about the possibility of producing the new series.

After his speech, Roddenberry said Paramount executives had contacted him several times last week and had arranged to meet with him when he returns to Hollywood next week

The release last December of "Star Trek - The Motion Picture," which he produced, apparently spawned the interest in a new series, Roddenberry

"We currently have a recession in Hollywood that has kept us from doing a sequel" to the movie, he

"Paramount has called me a couple of times during the last week while I've been away from the city, saying that they don't want to keep 'Star Trek' on the shelf while we're waiting to do a sequel and they want me to talk to them immediately when I get back to town about finding some way to bring 'Star Trek' back to television,' he said.

The original series, which went on the air in 1966, acquired a cult following although it had only a three-year prime-time run on NBC. Ten years later, reruns of the show, which featured one-hour encounters between the valiant Enterprise crew and a host of cosmic villains, were being carried on more than 140 stations and in 47 other countries.

Conventions of Trekkies, as devotees are known. drew thousands to hear speakers affiliated with the show and trade in Star Trek memorabilia.

Roddenberry said he would not be interested in making a weekly series like the original, but would favor "six or eight 90-minute or two-hour shows each

He said he thought the original cast of the show inclwding William Shatner as Kirk, Leonard Nimoy as the half-Vulcan Spock and DeForest Kelly as "Bones" McCoy - would not be receptive to anything but the 90-minute to two-hour schedule.

Roddenberry also said the production costs for the new episodes would be much higher than the costs of the series in 1966 when each episode cost a few thousand dollars to produce. He said the cost of a new series would exceed $1 million per two-hour

The original series was by Norway Productions in association with Paramount TV and NBC.

CBS ratings unhurt by boycott

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite efforts by Jewish organizations to mount a boycott of "Playing for Time," CBS' drama set in a Nazi concentration camp was the week's top-rated program, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

The high rating for "Playing for Time" - 26.2 - helped boost CBS to first place in the three-way ratings race for the week ending Oct. 5, after two straight weeks in the cellar. CBS' triumph also ended NBC's two-week run as the No. 1 network, a stand that gan with the hit miniseries "Shogun

Jewish organizations and their supporters had objected to the casting of Vanessa Redgrave as Auschwitz survivor Fania Fenelon, whose memoirs were the basis for the three-hour film. Miss Redgrave has been an outspoken supporter of the Palestinian

Nielsen says the rating for "Playing for Time" means of all the nation's TV-equipped homes, 26.2 percent saw at least part of the

CBS, with four of the week's 10 highest-rated shows, compiled an average of 17.5, one-tenth of one point ahead of NBC at 17.4. ABC

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 17.5 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

Weekly averages calculated by CBS and NBC differ slightly from those from ABC, which does not include paid political announcements in its prime-time count. The distinction did not affect the standings in the most recent survey. NBC listed the next two programs after the CBS movie, "Little House on the Prairie" in second place and the "Johnny Carson Anniversary Special" third. A movie, "Jaws," in seventh place, was ABC's top-rated show.

All three networks are awaiting renewed production after the actors' strike that began in July, and prime-time schedules still contain plenty of reruns.

CBS and ABC have said they will consider the new season underway when original episodes from most series are in hand. NBC maintains, however, its new season began with "Shogun"

Magazine with David Brinkley," struggled in the ratings opposite CBS' "Dallas," No. 9 in the standings

"NBC Magazine" was No. 64 of 66 programs checked, with another NBC show, "Speak Up America," 65th. The three other programs among the five least-watched were political announcements - two on ABC and one on NBC.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

Movie, "Playing for Time," with a rating of 26.2 representing 20.4 million homes, CBS; "Little House on the Prairie," 26.1 or 20.3 million, and "Johnny Carson Anniversary Special," 25.6 or 19.9 million, both NBC; "60 Minutes," 23.9 or 18.6 million, and "Dukes of Hazzard," 22.9 or 17.8 million, both CBS; "Real People," 22.5 or 17.5 million, NBC; Movie-"Jaws," 21.9 or 17 million, ABC; Movie-"The End," 21.8 or 16.9 million, NBC; "Dallas," 20.3 or 15.8 million, CBS, and "That's Incredible," 19.5 or 15.2 million, ABC. The next 10 shows:

Movie-"Perfect Match," and "M-A-S-H," both CBS; "CHiPs," NBC; Movie-"Great American Traffic Jam," and "Steve Martin Special," both NBC, tie; "WKRP in Cincinnati," CBS; "NFL Monday Night Football," ABC; "Lou Grant," CBS, and "Love Boat," ABC, tie, and "Games People Play," NBC.

Yes, it's legal; but is it helpful

You are certainly free to eat food offered to idols if you want to; it's not against God's laws to eat such meat, but that doesn't mean that you should go ahead and do it. It may be perfectly legal, but it may not be best and helpful.

Don't think only of yourself. Try to think of the other feliow, too, and what is best for him.

Here's what you should do. Take any meat you want that is sold at the market. Don't ask whether or not it was offered to idols, lest the answer hurt your conscience.

For the earth and every good thing in it belongs to the Lord and is yours to enjoy.

If someone who isn't a Christian asks you out to dinner, go ahead, accept the invitation if you want to. Eat whatever is on the table and don't ask any questions about it. Then you won't know whether or not it had been used as a sacrifice to idols. and you won't risk having a bad conscience over eating it.

But if someone warns you that this meat has been offered to idols, then don't eat it for the sake of the man who told you, and of his conscience.

In this case his feeling about it is the important thing, not yours. But why, you may ask, must I be guided and limited by what someone else thinks?

If I can thank God for the food and enjoy it, why let someone spoil everything just because he thinks I am wrong? Well. I'll tell you why. It is because you must do everything for the glory of God, even your eating and drinking. So don't be a stumbling block to anyone, whether they are Jews or Gentiles or Christians.

That is the plan I follow, too. I try to please everyone in everything I do, not doing what I like or what is best for me, but what is best for them, so that they may be saved.

A ND you should follow my example, just as I follow Christ's relief to the nursing shortage in West Texas by helping inactive registered nurses get back into practice.

Midland comes under the jurisdiction of HSA 12, located at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission building.

A new program offered by the Office of Continuing Nursing Education (CNE) at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC) has been developed to help nurses update their skills and to overcome other problems associated with re-entering nursing practice.

The concept of updat-ing nursing skills has been practiced for several years. However, many nurses, for a variety of reasons, have not entered practice again, even after completion of refresher programs.

For a nurse who has not practiced for even a few years, re-entry into the field requires several adjustments. New techniques and technologies have been developed and must be learned. New medications and therapies must be learned. The basic adjustments of going to work in a hospital setting after working at home or in an 8-to-5 job requires an adjustment of schedules and lifestyle for the individual nurse and for the nurse's family. Coping with the pressures of readjustment, learning new skills and changing responsibilities and updates on medications are common to most refresher courses.

While these critical areas are developing, the program also fosters abilities in communication skills and decision making skills which can help the individual adjust to new routines and responsibilities.

The final two weeks of the eight-week course are spent in a hospital setting. Adjustment to the hospital environment as a part of the course

Kudirka is on trial again, but this time there's a difference

WASHINGTON (AP) - Simas Kudirka, the Lithuanian seaman whose attempted leap to freedom landed him in a Soviet prison camp 10 years ago, is being prosecuted again. But this time he's savoring every moment of it.

Kudirka, who could wind up in a Washington jail for two months, listened Tuesday as the government and his defense attorney argued the constitutionality of his arrest last July for demonstrating outside the Soviet Embassy.

'Look, Please. I must show you," declared the 50-year-old Kudirka as he dropped to his knees outside the Superior Court Building and pulled a rumpled West German magazine from a blue flight bag. "This is why. This is why I hate the Russian empire, why I love America.'

With that, Kudirka, a small man with powerful arms and voice, thumbed to a section featuring smuggled photos of the Russian labor camp where he spent 3 years and 9 months following his abortive attempt in 1970 to defect to the United States.

"You see the graveyard, the signs on the graveyard?" he asked. "Numbers, just numbers. In one of those graves is a Ukranian. He was my closest friend. But now he never existed. They stole his

I know the prosecutor is not my enemy. The judge, he is a real judge, he makes his own decisions. And no matter what he decides, I know he will not take away my name.

Judge Nicholas S. Nunzio rejected the pre-trial motion by Kudirka's attorney to strike down the federal law barring demonstrations within 500 feet of an embassy, for which violations are punishable by a fine of up to $100 and up to 60 days in jail. The attorney, Ernest C. Kaskauskas, argued that the law violates the speech and due process freedoms guaranteed by the First and Fifth amendments.

But U.S. Attorney Katherine Mack countered that the Vienna Convention requires nations to protect foreign dignitaries in the host state, and it is very important for the United States to ensure that pro-

Ten years ago, Kudirka jumped from a Soviet vessel onto the deck of the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Vigilant as both were moored at Martha's Vineyard. Though he asked for asylum, Coast Guard officers allowed Soviet officials to board the vessel and Kudirka subsequently was sentenced to 10 years in a Soviet prison camp for attempting to defect. Then-president Richard M. Nixon labeled the U.S. handling of the episode a tragic mistake, and three Coast Guard officers were suspended.

Woolies escape prediction

BOONE, N.C. (AP) - Predictions of the approaching winter's severity will have to wait - Appalachian State University's weather-forecasting woolly worms have gone over the

Dr. Sandra Glover, director of the center for woolly worm studies at Appalachian, had 400 hatched baby woolly worms - also known as woolly caterpillars - three weeks ago. She said the furry critters each were about the size of a pencil dot. But when she went to check on the tiny worms this week, they were gone.

"In three weeks time, they should have been half their adult size," Ms. Glover said Tuesday. "But when I checked the container, I couldn't find them anywhere. They were so tiny, escape can't be ruled out.'

Ms. Glover has to have about 500 of the furry insects to compile data on their coloring so she can issue the annual prediction on the upcoming winter weather.

Woolly-worm weather predictions are based on the folk belief that you can tell the severity of the winter by studying woolly-worm coloring in the fall. The more black there is on the Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices lost ground after slight gains in early trading today. Volume was moder-

There was little in the ecmnomic news early today to provide a strong direction to trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 3.75 to 960.24 as of midday on the New York Stock Exchange after showing gains of about a point in the early going.

The broad market showed almost an equal number of gaining and losing issues. The midday NYSE tally showed 637 issues were up and 614 issues down in price compared to Wednesday's close.

Big Board volume came to 21.6 million shares at noon compared with 19.62 million in the previous session. Stock traders recently have shown little reaction to the war between Iran and Iraq although some analysts suggested developments in the oil-rich region may be adding a note of caution to the market. Precious metals stocks, which often reflect political and economic uncertainties, rose sharply. Oil issues were widely mixed. Among gold and silver mining stocks, ASA Ltd. gained 2% to 89%; Campbell Red Lake Mines gained 23/4 to 77%; Hecla added 21% to 49 and Homestake gained 31/2 to 78. Among oil stocks, Atlantic Rich field gained 11/4 to 591/4; Exxon added 1/4 to 76 and Conoco rose 3/4 to 61 1/4. But Standard Oil of California lost 13/4 to 85¼; Getty fell 1% to 90% and Mobil declined % to 75%.

The NYSE composite index of all listed common stocks was off 0.17 at 75.85. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index declined 0.52 to 346.15

Cunningham resigns from Bendix Corp.

Mary Cunningham, the fast-rising Bendix Corp. executive whose friendship with the company chairman was the subject of national gossip, announced today that she is resigning.

Ms. Cunningham, 29, vice president of strategic planning for the nation's 88th-largest company, said in a statement that the controversy surrounding her promotions and relationship with Bendix chairman William Agee "impaired my ability to carry out my responsibilities."

On Sept. 24, Agee, told a meeting of some 600 Bendix employees that Ms. Cunningham's rise in the company stemmed from ability and not from any relationship she had with Agee who is 42. The company chairman, who was divorced about 11/2 months ago, noted that there had been gossip for months at Bendix linking the two romantically.

Four days after Agee's comments, Ms. Cunningham, who is separated from her husband, asked for a leave of absence, but the organization committee of the board of directors at Bendix rejected the request and announced the company was giving her its full support.

TODAY'S ANSWER

World economy matters hashed out at meeting

By ROBERT A. MANNING Special to The Los Angeles Times

Decisions that will shape the world economy in years to come were hashed out last week in the posh, staid atmosphere of the Washington Sheraton at the annual meeting of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund — one of the most important in vears.

Since its creation at Bretton Woods in 1944, the IMF has increasingly served as a sort of economic cop-onthe-beat, stabilizing currencies and overseeing balance-of-payments problems. The increasingly dire global economic situation has prompted moves to step up — and alter — the role of the world's most powerful international financial institutions.

SOME OF THE pressing questions taken up at the meeting were predictable: the West's recession inflation unemployment crisis, staggering Third World debts exacerbated as a result of oil prices, and recycling Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries surplus petrodollars. Yet this session was unique in many re-

China attended for the first time, adding a billion people to the two institutions' responsibilities, and together with the addition of Zimbabwe, a bulky socialist membership. Robert S. McNamara, who will retire in June after 13 years as president of the World Bank, gave a dramatic final address. A controversial debate over granting observer status to the Palestine Liberation Organization symbolized the conflict between the have and have-not nations and between the old money of the West and new OPEC money. The Carter administration's aggressive lobbying succeeded in excluding the PLO - a fact that underscored the dominance by a handful of Western nations of an organization most of whose 141 member nations are less developed.

AND THAT WAS THE conflict that lay behind the obtuse and highly technical discussions of borrowing and lending mechanisms.

No one disputes the gravity of the situation. Higher oil prices and the sluggish economies of the developed industrialized nations spell economic disaster for some 2 billion people in the world's poorest nations. In his emotional farewell speech, McNamara called for a major expansion of the World Bank to meet rising demands for loans from poor countries whose total debt now exceeds $350 billion, with $70 billion more ebpected this year.

McNamara pointed out that by the year 2000 "despite our efforts some 600 million people will still live in absolute poverty." He called U.S. aid performance "disgraceful." (It is less than 0.2 percent of the gross national product, half the Western average.) He called for an increase in bank's lending capital and a sp cial $25 billion energy affiliate to help the poorest nations become more energy self-sufficient.

FINANCE MINISTERS of many Third World nations who have been pressuring the West for a "new international economic order" pushed for sweeping reforms. A group representing more than 100 less-developed nations called for creating mechanisms to ease lending conditions. Key to the Third World demands was the request to re-evaluate the quotas that determine voting power, to increase the Third World's share from about 33 percent to 45 percent. (The United States has 20 percent of the voting predictably, rejected such demands, there were significant, if cautious, moves in the desired direction. The IMF is lending larger sums on slightly easier terms. Moreover, in the face of slow growth and ever-higher oil prices, it will lend for longer periods in an effort to bolster the supply side of beleaguered members' econo-

One of the ironies of the meeting was that, for a change, the dollar was stable and not in crisis. But U.S. officials are nonetheless encouraging a move away from the dollar and toward the use of special drawing rights, the IMF's currency based on a basket including the U.S. dollar, West German mark, French franc and British pound).

The expanded role of the IMF and World Bank will strengthen the link between these international institutions and private commercial banks. In recent years the private banks have played the leading role in recycling OPEC's surplus petrodollars, lending them out in large measure to oil-importing Third World nations. But the debt of many countries has grown so large that it sometimes takes up to 40 percent or more of a nation's foreign exchange just to service the interest on the debt. At the same time private banks have less and less liquid capital to lend. Moreover, commercial banks see the IMF as a barometer of a country's economic health and credit-worthiness.

THE GROWING ROLE of the IMF and World Bank in the world economy underscores the stark reality that major efforts are required to keep the international financial system afloat in the face of the present crisis. Though much of the talk in Washington was couched in highly technical jargon, the decisions taken here to a large extent determined who gets what for dozens of nations around the globe. Certainly the dire tone of discussion suggested that things will get much worse before they get better; and the battle over policies hinted that global economic power is shifting. The central question, still unanswered, is whether the current international financial and monetary system can accommodate the needs of the imminent future.

Lag in car sales due to unhappy small car owners

The Los Angeles Times

American consumers are not convinced that Detroit's new fuel-efficient small cars are either small or fuel-efficient.

They blame high gasoline prices, inssuficient fuel economy, import competition and high car prices, in that order, for sagging U.S. car sales

And the majority now defines a "fuel efficient" car as one that gets at least 24.5 miles to the gallon in city driving.

Those are some of the findings of a survey of 1,000 U.S. households conducted during the last week In August by National Family Opinion Inc., an independent market research company based in Toledo, Ohio. The survey was conducted for internal use by the U.S. subsidiary of Nissan Motor Co., makes of Datsun cars and trucks. The results were obtained by the Los An-

The findings point up what Nissan and other auto makers have suspected: There is a great deal of confusion over what a small car is.

Rent higher in New York and Chicago

The Washington Post

Comparing the rentals of apartments from city to city is somewhat like comparing apples and oranges. "Standard" apartment sizes vary, as do types of housing. The average Manhattanite may live an an apartment building, for in-stance, while in Boston, 54 percent of the population lives in four-family dwellings. And while the central city is an extremely desirable area in New York, in Los Angeles it is not.

For the purposes of this survey, based on interviews with local real estate boards, The Washington Post asked the average monthly rental of a one-bedroom apartment in the city's more desirable areas - Boston's Back Bay, or the Beverly Hills and Wilshire sections in Los Angeles. The one-bedroom was described as having a living room 20 X 12, and a bedroom 12 X 10. It was to be located in a wellkept attractive building.

In this 10-city survey, the highest rents appeared in New York and Chicago - both cities with a strong trend toward co-oping. Rentals in Phoenix appeared in the middle range of the #### Vietnam war hero gets 10 years for smuggling

By FRED BAYLES

BOSTON (AP) — A Vietnam war hero who admitted smuggl ing drugs but pleaded innocent because, he said, he was driven to it by a craving for war-like risks and adventure, has been sentenced to 10 years in jail. The judge said he was setting an example to other would-be si nugglers

"who think they can get away with a minimal sentence." Peter L. Krutschewski also was fined $60,000 on Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Walter J. Skinner, who said he doubted "whether

A week later, however, the same defense resulted in an i nnocent verdict for another Vietnam helicopter pilot, Michael Tindall, in a related Krutschewski had pleaded innocent due to insanity, claim ing his involvement in the smuggling operation stemmed from his experiences as an attack helicopter pilot in Vietnam.

Psychologists for the defense testified Krutschewski was the victim of post traumatic stress disorder, a malady also known as Vietnam Syndrome. The condition is recognized by the American Psychiatric Association and the Veterans Administration. The defense claimed Krutschewski's war experiences left him with an uncontrollable yen for risk and adventure.

Before the sentencing, Krutschewski and his lawyer Roger Crair asked the judge to consider the defendant's war record, which irreluded the award of a Bronze Star and other medals, and his recent com munity

"I did commit those acts," Krutschewski said. "The stresses, whatever they were, in Vietnam did contribute to my actions and I hope you will take that into consideration."

Skinner agreed that Krutschewski had become a model citizen, and while he acknowleged Vietnam Syndrome as "a real phenomena," he rejected the idea Krutschewski had been driven by his war experiences. "I also do not believe incarceration will rehabilitate Mr. Krutsc hewski or that he needs rehabilitation," the judge said. Skinner turned down an alternative sentence for Krutschewsl ci proposed by Michigan state Sen. John Kelly. # Iran gets airlift by U.S.-made jets friend: North Korea. Isolated until now in its war with Iraq, Iran has begun to get ammunition and medical supplies from the Koreans via an Iranian airlift using Americanbuilt Boeing 747 jumbo jets, Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said Wednesday.

Plan for the State of Texas
NOTICE OF PUBLIC COMMENT PERIOD and of a PUBLIC HEARING
In the May 19, 1980 Federal Register (45 FR 33063), the Environmental Protection Agency promulgated regulations, pursuant to Subtifile Coff the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976 (as amended), to protect human health and the environment from the improper management of hazardous waste. Included in these regulations, which become effective 6 months from the date of promulgation, were provisions for a transitional stage in which states would be granted interim program authorization. The interim authorization program will be implemented in two phases corresponding to the two stages in which underlying Federal program will take effect.
As noted in the May 19, 1980 Federal Register, copies of state submittals for Phase I interim Authorization are to be available for public inspection and comment. The purpose of this notice is to announce the availability of aware that on many occasions we spend good money and time on the used cars we sell.

Those trade-in cars that do not meet our standards never appear in our used car department. The newer model trade-ins in fine condition. get a quick check, a lick and some polish...while the good older ones do get fixed up, if we feel they are worth the money. That's why we offer every used car with pride
