Orphans stay home, together

HESSTON, Kan. (AP) — Orphaned a decade ago when their parents died in a plane crash, the seven King kids made a rare and difficult decision: they would stay together in the family home.

The youngest child was 4, the eldest only 18, but, "I hope, and I truly believe, that if they could be with us now, they would be proud of the way we turned out," said Lynne, now 28, as the family prepares for its 1980 holiday reunion.

The tragedy struck Oct. 2, 1970, after state Rep. Ray King, 48, and his wife Yvonne, 41, said cheery good-byes and headed for Logan, Utah, to see old friends and a college football game.

They never made it. The Kings, along with 29 other people — including most of the Wichita State University football team — perished when their chartered plane crashed near Silver Plume, Colo.

There were 11 survivors, and for more than a day, the King children prayed their parents were among the lucky ones.

Terri, then 13, recalled praying to God to "let Mom and Dad be OK. Please ... you're the only one I can turn to now and I need you. We all do. Either way, I know you're going to take care of us."

After the funeral, attended by more than 2,000 people, relatives held a family council on the fate of the orphans.

The decision was unanimous: stay together, with a local couple living in as temporary "houseparents."

"Finally, after everybody had left, we were all there alone," recalled Lynne, then 18 and a college freshman. "I looked at the dinner table, the scene of some of our happiest times as a family. The silverware was set wrong. The meat was not at the right end of the table, the place where Daddy had always sat and served. Suddenly I knew that no matter how, we were going to do it, we would go on as normal in an abnormal situation."

Lynne, Gary, then 16, and Terri cared for their younger sisters, Lori, 11, Lisa, 7, Julie, 6, and Dina, 4, with a married couple overseeing life in the rambling brick home in this town of 1,200.

King, co-owner of a bridge building firm, left enough money in trust to support the children. And legal settlements from the accident provided educational scholarships for each child.

Over the years, the kids voted to remodel the house, reupholster the furniture and enclose an atrium to bring birds, a brook and 100 plants right into the living room. They boosted their weekly allowance to keep pace with inflation, and extended their curfews.

Lori, now 21 and a senior at Asbury College in Kentucky, says: "I'm sure each of us at some time or another asked ourselves why it had to happen. We never felt angry. But holidays and special occasions such as graduation were hard."

"I thought about Mom and Dad a lot," says Dina, now 14 and a cheerleader. "I'd get my grade cards and they wouldn't be here to see them. I tried to imagine what they'd advise about problems."

Lisa, now a 17-year-old senior, says the accident taught her not to be embarrassed about death.

"When Mom and Dad died, I'd never experienced death before, not even a pet's. Now I can tell someone who is grieving, 'I know how you feel, I know what you're going through.'"

Julie, 16, thinks she grew up faster than other kids her age. "We learned responsibility and to believe that there is a master plan for all our lives."

Gary, 26, and Terri, 23, both are involved in religious work, he in Wichita and she in Chicago. Lynne is a legal secretary in Hutchinson. Lori will graduate from Asbury in August and wants to work with children. Lisa will go to college in Indiana next fall.

Lynne, now mother of a 5-year-old son, recently underwent a kidney transplant, receiving the organ from sister Lori.

"Of all the things that have happened to us over the past 10 years, I think the transplant has brought us closest together," said Lynne. "Every one of my sisters and my brother were ready to save my life."

Iranians renew threat of trials

By The Associated Press

The speaker of the Iranian Parliament today renewed Iran's threat to put the 52 American hostages on trial if the United States does not accept the $24-billion demand for their release.

The Parliament leader, Hashemi Rafsanjani, declared that Iran will not "back down from our demands."

The new threat of hostage trials came a day after U.S. officials effectively rejected the latest Iranian terms for ending the confrontation — that the U.S. government deposit some $24 billion in cash and gold in the Algerian central bank as a guarantee that Iran's financial demands on the United States be met.

The British newspaper Daily Telegraph reported, meanwhile, that Algeria will mediate new "detailed negotiations" between Iran and the United States in London this week. But a State Department spokesman said, "We're not aware of any meeting in which the United States is participating in London this week."

"I doubt it very much," another high-level U.S. official said of the report. The Daily Telegraph gave no source for the brief story.

Rafsanjani was asked at a Tehran news conference about the likelihood of hostage trials if the United States rejected Iran's demands.

He replied: "I have not yet seen the official U.S. reaction. But if the U.S. is not ready to give us our rights our last act will be a trial."

"... We guess the Americans have wanted to make an excuse of the hostages for military intervention and conspiracies. We have no intention of backing down from our demands."

Rafsanjani also said he does not expect the issue to be returned to the

Edmund S. Muskie

Harold Brown

Parliament, or Majlis, which set the four basic conditions for the hostages' release seven weeks ago.

"Because it has already given its instructions if the U.S. does not accept. The Majlis has said they (the hostages) should be tried." The Iranians accuse the hostages of having been spies.

The speaker's comments echoed those Sunday of Iranian Executive Affairs Minister Behzad Nabavi, who is in charge of the negotiations with the United States. Nabavi said U.S. rejection of all the demands would probably lead to a decision to refer the matter to the Islamic courts.

On Sunday, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie called the demands "unreasonable" and said the hostages would not be home by Christmas. A top Iranian official said Iran could hold the 52 captives "for 10 more years." They spent their 415th day in captivity today.

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, appearing on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation," said the United States would not yield to Iran's demands for "ransom ... money that was never in this country."

But a lawyer for the Iranians said he doubts they consider it a demand for ransom.

Thomas G. Shack Jr., a Washington lawyer who is representing Iranian interests in U.S. courts, said on NBC-TV's "Today" show that Iran is trying to recover assets it considers to be its lawful property.

The Iranian demands, contained in a message to Washington, were made public Sunday in Tehran by Executive Affairs Minister Behzad Nabavi.

OPEC boost has affect

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The OPEC boost in crude oil prices already is registering at the gasoline pump, but Americans won't really feel the pinch until spring, oil industry expert Dan Lundberg says.

The Dec. 19 edition of the weekly Lundberg Letter said the largest gasoline price impact will be felt in March, when, it predicts, gasoline prices will soar to $1.33 a gallon. Americans could face an average price of $1.45 a gallon by December 1981, the letter said.

Meanwhile, in New York, the trade newsletter Petroleum Intelligence Weekly said the war between Iraq and Iran helped hold the output of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to a 10-year low in October.

The Lundberg Letter, distributed by Lundberg, said the average price increase announced by OPEC at its meeting in Bali, Indonesia, last week would come to $3 a barrel.

The increase will average six cents per gallon of petroleum products for American consumers, the publication said. Lundberg said a survey of 14,000 stations across the U.S. this weekend showed an across-the-board increase of eight-tenths of one cent for all types of gasoline, while refiners took an immediate penny increase.

Gasoline sold at both self-service and full service stations averaged $1.22, compared to $1.21 the weekend of Dec. 5. Refiners' prices went from 98.07 cents to 99.06 cents during the same period.

Lundberg said his survey indicated the increases took place within the last four days.

But consumers didn't feel the full effect of the refiners' increases because dealers again lowered their profit margin, Lundberg said, adding that dealers now make an average of 9.07 cents per gallon. The federal Department of Energy allows up to a 17.70-cent profit.

After March, rising refiners' costs, decontrol of domestic crude prices and the ripple effect of higher world oil prices on the newly decontrolled oil will bump gasoline prices higher each month, the letter said. "But the idea that OPEC will stop here is a hell of a mistake," Lundberg said. "Especially when Sheikh Yamani of Saudi Arabia thinks we're going to hit $50 a barrel."

Lundberg's publication predicts that if that happens, prices for gasoline would reach $1.60 a gallon.

"Nobody can guess the price sensitivity of motorists," Lundberg said. "We don't know how much the public will curtail use if the price goes up, but it does throw some doubt over the effect of these increases being fully realized."

Saudi Arabia announced during the Bali meeting it wanted $2 more per barrel retroactive to Nov. 1 while Algeria, Libya and Nigeria announced a $4 per barrel increase.

Petroleum Intelligence Weekly said today that OPEC's production in October fell to 23.3 million 42-gallon barrels daily, down 2.2 million from September and down from 31.2 million in the same period last year.

Poles stage meat protests

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Workers in a central Polish town continued a maverick meat rationing protest today despite a ban on strikes ordered by Solidarity, the nation's largest independent union, in a bid to ease tensions between Poland and its Soviet bloc neighbors.

The protesters occupied a district government building in the central town of Piotrow on Thursday and are waiting there to meet with government officials, Solidarity spokesman Stanislaw Kotlinski said.

He said the demonstrators sent a letter to Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagiewski in Warsaw asking how long officials "will continue to force us to continue the occupation strike and strike readiness ..."

Those leading the sit-in claim local allotments of meat and butter rations are only 40 percent of the national average.

Government officials agreed, the protesters said, and issued additional ration coupons guaranteeing each resident at least 1.1 pounds of choice meat and about a quarter pound of butter for the Christmas holiday. But the demonstrators say there is not enough butter and meat to redeem the coupons.

The protesters are backed by workers at the Belchatow coal mine and at unspecified factories who declared a strike alert, Kotlinski said.

He said the Piotrow protest began with the approval of the Solidarity inter-factory committee, headquartered in the southern city of Katowice, but was not supported by the union's executive committee in Gdansk.

The union's national leadership has banned strikes by its estimated 10 million members until at least Jan. 15 in an effort to ease tensions between Poland and its Soviet bloc allies and reduce the possibility of Soviet military intervention.

The food rationing imposed in Poland last week is the first such program since shortly after World War II and has spurred long lines of holiday shoppers at those stores that still have food.

Meat shops were kept open in Warsaw on Sunday to give residents an extra day to redeem their coupons, and people stood in line at some shops through Saturday night.

Those in line at one store Sunday demanded that it be kept open until all its supplies were sold. The shoppers contributed the equivalent of 33 cents each to pay store clerks to remain on duty and the store stayed open until 2 a.m.

Police infiltrate 'smoking circles'

By SALLY CARPENTER
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — For three months, Christa Parker earned honor marks at Thomas Jefferson High School. She was even named student of the month. But as well as being a "brain," Christa was a "head" who hung around the smoking area — with plenty of money to spend on marijuana.

The long-haired girl whom students knew as Christa, however, was really a 21-year-old mother — and a Dallas Police Department undercover narcotics agent.

Her work resulted in the arrest of 13 people, including the parents of one student and two non-students. Four other people, including one student, were arrested after a similar operation at W.T. White High School.

Dallas police first began infiltrating high schools in the early 1970s, when arrests were made at five schools. "There were more psychedelic, hallucinogenic type drugs then. Now there's more marijuana," said Capt. Don Milliken, commander of the vice division.

The officers, youthful-looking rookies using fake cover identities, usually enroll as transfer students. School principals are told about the operation, but do not know who the officers are.

Dallas Independent School District trustees and Superintendent Linus Wright have cooperated fully with the projects, Milliken said.

"We give these people very strict behavioral and tactical guidelines," Milliken said. "Obviously, they can't go out there and smoke dope with somebody or rip off a motorcycle. It's like you and I playing baseball and I have to play by the rules, but you can play any way you want to."

The officers do homework, participate in extracurricular activities and have little trouble fooling teachers and students, he said. Their mission is to find the dealers — students at the hub of the drug culture who supply the rest of the school.

"We could just go out and round up the smoking area," Milliken said. "But at every secondary school there are people who are actually pipe-lines and they make it available to the other students."

"If you get one guy who's dealing to six or seven kids, that's the whole idea. You cut out this little kid that takes a joint because he doesn't want to look like he's a chicken."

The investigations also serve as a deterrent — to scare teenagers enough to override peer pressure. Drug users wield heavy influence at secondary schools, he said.

"We do not need the business," he said. "The justice system does not need any more kids in it. ... So the objective is, through enforcement and education, not only for the kids but for the parents, to deter them. There are certain other people who you are not going to deter from anything. We want to reach someone who might be considering going over to that group."

Milliken said dealers are as likely to be student leaders as not nowadays. "You can't tell the good guys from the bad guys anymore because it used to be the good guys all had short hair. Now everybody has beards and holes in the back of their blue jeans."

Milliken said he was surprised at the number of girls who act as brokers, or middlemen for the dealers.

"Girls generally think nothing's going to happen to them. They have an untouchable attitude," he said. "Another thing is that they have a lot of freedom. Here's this 15-year-old girl staying out till 2 a.m. on a school night."

While marijuana is the most abundant drug in Dallas schools, Milliken said everything from LSD to cocaine can be found. Myths surround some drugs and increase their popularity, he added.

The sedative Quaalude has "the image of some kind of aphrodisiac," he said. And caffeine pills, legally purchased in drugstores, are sold as "speed."

An operation last spring at Bryan Adams High School resulted in more than 30 arrests. Milliken said the publicity may have helped deter would-be drug users at other schools, including Thomas Jefferson. Police would not allow "Christa" to talk with reporters, but Thomas Jefferson students who were interviewed seemed stunned by the arrests.

"I thought it might be Christa," said Leslie Gibson, 17, who attended music class with the officer. "She was very intelligent. She said she was from Wichita Falls and that her boyfriend went to W.T. White."

Christa once joined Leslie and some friends for a pizza, she said. "When we'd talk about things, it sounded like she knew a whole lot, like she had been through a whole lot."

'He will live with it,' says father of youth killed by acquitted Iranian

DENVER (AP) — The father of a teen-ager who was fatally shot by an Iranian student says Afshin Shariati will have to "live with" the incident despite his acquittal on second-degree murder charges.

Donald Moritzky said his son's death was a tragedy that has traumatized his family.

"My wife, my sons — our lives will never be the same," he said after the verdict. "He will live with it."

Shariati was freed Saturday after a Denver District Court jury acquitted him of charges stemming from the Nov. 11, 1979 incident.

He admitted shooting the .30-caliber rifle that killed 15-year-old Moritzky and wounded two of Moritzky's companions. But Shariati said he did so because he thought a bomb had been thrown into his apartment. Shariati's defense lawyer, Walter Gerash, contended Shariati did not take aim at the boys as they fled.

Witnesses testifying in the case said the three boys, armed with baseball bats, had set out to "hassle" Iranians and smashed a window in Shariati's apartment. The incident occurred one week after Americans were taken hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Iran.

"This was an American tragedy," said Gerash. "American justice has triumphed."

Shariati, a student at Arapahoe Community College near Denver, said after the verdict that he would remain in the United States. He lives with his American wife, Toni.

Michael Lopez, 17, was wounded in the incident along with Steve Roane, 18.

Shariati also was acquitted of attempted second-degree murder and assault in the case.

"It's time for action," says hostages' father

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — On Christmas Day, Gregory A. Persinger will mark his 32nd birthday and his 418th day of captivity in Iran.

"The Marine sergeant has been sent a package containing toiletries such as toothpaste and shaving cream and some crossword puzzles to provide some diversion from the monotony of his detention."

"I don't know whether he got them," his father, Lawrence, said in a telephone interview from his home in Seaford, Del., Sunday. "We haven't heard anything."

The elder Persinger and his wife, Jackie, have received only two full letters — the most recent in August — from Gregory since the U.S. embassy in Tehran was seized by Iranian militants more than a year ago.

Persinger said he agreed with Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, who said Sunday the latest Iranian conditions for the hostages' release were "unreasonable."

"It's blackmail as far as I'm concerned," he said. "I think they're outrageous. I've always felt you can't deal with them."

"I just think it's time we got off of our rear ends and do something," he said. "I'd block the Persian Gulf and demand cooperation from American allies whom he called 'our lukewarm friends.'" And then, he said, "I'd give them so long and then I'd go in there and get them (the hostages)."

St. Helens spouts steam

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens shot a plume of steam to an altitude of 20,000 feet at the same time a seismic burst was recorded on seismographs, scientists say.

The plume was spotted at 2:09 p.m. Sunday by a U.S. Forest Service pilot.

"We did see an event about 2:09 ... one of those seismic bursts that we see sometimes associated with steam bursts," said Steve Bryant at the University of Washington geophysics center.

68 killed in crash blamed on sabotage

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Hours before a Colombian jetliner took off, an anonymous caller warned it would not "arrive at its destination." It didn't. The jet crashed in a northern Colombian desert, killing all 68 passengers and crew moments after its pilot reported an explosion aboard, airline officials said.

Investigators headed for the crash site today in the remote Guajira Desert, about 500 miles north of Bogota, in an effort to find out what caused the Sunday crash.

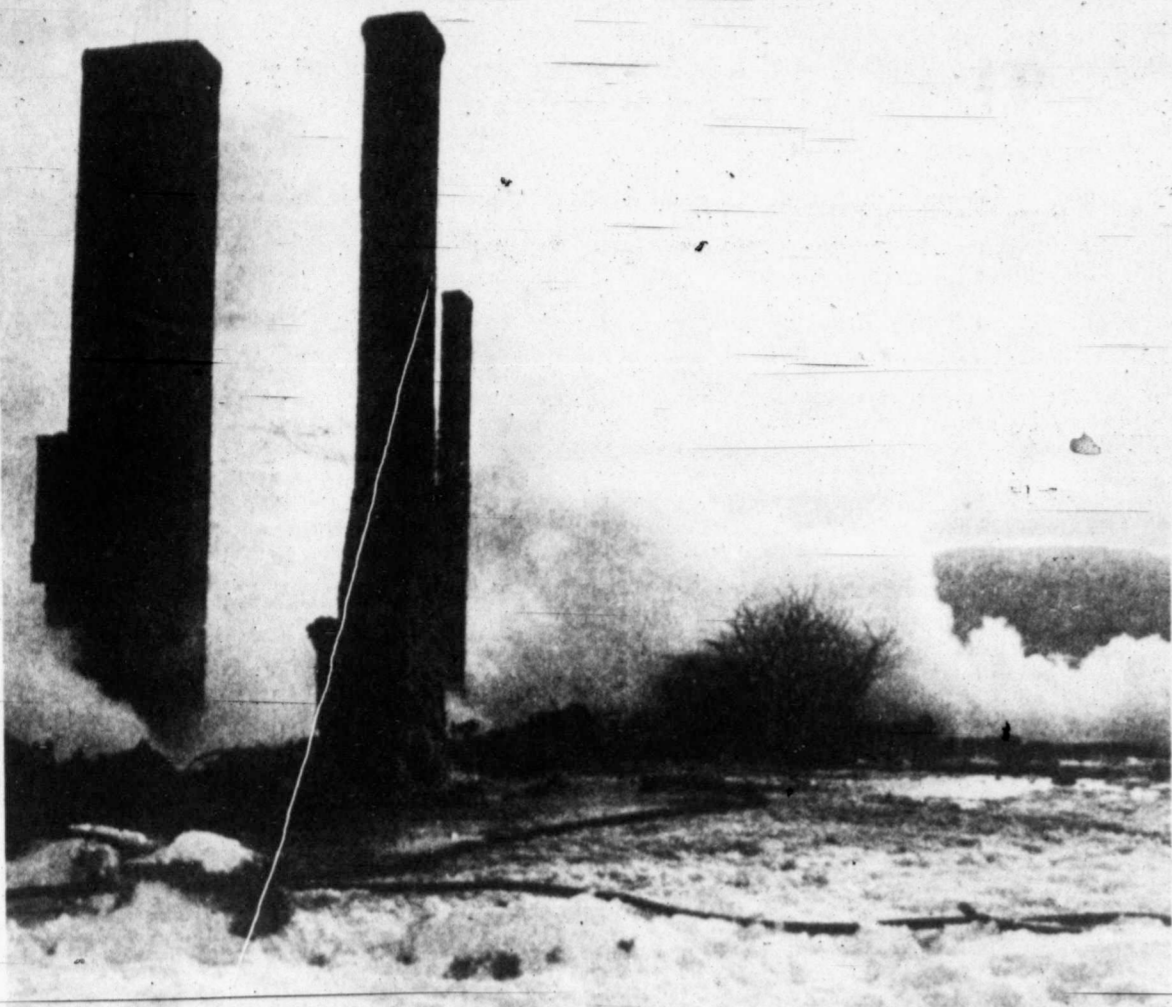

Some officials of the domestic airline are blaming it on sabotage, citing the anonymous threat and the pilot's report of an explosion. One airline official, who declined to be identified, said it was believed a bomb exploded aboard the twin-engine, French-built Caravelle jet.

"It was apparent sabotage," said Alicia Fonseca, a spokeswoman for the airline, Aerovias del Cesar.

She said the company's office in Valledupar received a telephone warning Sunday morning from a caller who said: "It would be better to detain the plane because it will not arrive at its destination."

She gave no indication of a motive for the threat. The plane took off from Valledupar and flew without incident to the Caribbean port city of Riohacha.

At 2:45 p.m. EST, just 10 minutes after it left Riohacha for the north-west Colombian city of Medellin, the pilot radioed there had been an explosion aboard, said an airline spokesman, who asked not to be named because he said he feared company reprisals.

'Sound of Music' family lodge completely destroyed by fire

STOWE, Vt. (AP) — Johannes von Trapp surveyed the smoking rubble of what had been home for 40 years to the family that inspired "The Sound of Music."

"It's a mess," he said, his face haggard. "But we will rebuild."

Fire sparked by a faulty oil burner swept through the Trapp Family Lodge early Sunday, killing an Illinois man and forcing 46 guests out into sub-zero temperatures. As smoke clogged the hallways, many people leaped from windows into snowbanks.

Another 55 guests at a motel annex across the street were evacuated as a precaution. "We were lucky there was no wind," said von Trapp. "Otherwise we would have lost all."

His mother, Baroness Maria Augusta von Trapp, 75, the heroine of "The Sound of Music," fled the lodge in her nightgown. She watched as the flames burned the inn to the ground, consuming all the mementos of her family's life in America. Among them were a portrait of her late husband, Baron George von Trapp, a collection of candles, honoraria, awards and keys to cities.

Six people were injured, some in leaps from windows, others from frostbite. Two people remained hospitalized, including the wife of the man who died.

The body of Ron Becker, of Salem, Ill., was discovered in the rubble. His wife, Judy, suffered a fractured spine when she jumped from their third-floor window. Both she and Gino Fanicella, 39, of Salem, were listed in good condition.

A faulty oil burner was being blamed for the fire, which broke out shortly before 1 a.m.

A night watchman alerted many of the guests and helped them escape. "If it weren't for the night watchman, I don't know what would have happened," said Sally von Trapp, wife of one of Mrs. von Trapp's grandsons.

"There was no way we could get near our door," said Tim Ramsey, who jumped out of a second-floor window with his wife, Robyn.

On the first floor, William and Candace Achtmeyer, who were celebrating their anniversary at the inn near Vermont's largest mountain, Mount Mansfield, were awakened by a smoke alarm. "It happened so fast," Achtmeyer said. "We didn't know if everyone would get out."

Firefighting was hampered by the cold — the temperature hovered at 20 below — and lack of water at the remote mountain lodge. At dawn, only four chimneys were left standing.

The building was valued at $600,000. But von Trapp said much of what was lost was "irreplaceable."

The von Trapps settled in the lodge, originally a farmhouse, several years after their flight from Nazi-occupied Austria in 1938. The mountainside location reminded them of the Austrian Tyrol.

The couple and their 10 children first made their living by giving concerts throughout the United States. Later, the farmhouse, called "Cor Unum," meaning "one heart," served as a music camp that attracted hundreds of children each year.

The Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "The Sound of Music," which romanticized the von Trapps' flight from Austria, was first staged on Broadway in 1959, starring Mary Martin as Maria. Julie Andrews starred in the movie version.

The Trapp Family Lodge opened in 1962 and offered meals, lodging and cross country skiing.

Mrs. von Trapp, who lived in the lodge, often would mingle with the guests during dinner. The lodge also housed a main office, a kitchen, the laundry and 26 rooms.

Priceless mosaic stolen from Temple of Love

PAPHOS, Cyprus (AP) — Thieves have stolen a priceless 2,000-year-old mosaic tablet depicting Leda and the Swan from the museum at the Temple of Aphrodite, the goddess of love, police revealed today.

A police statement said the thieves struck over the weekend, breaking the lock on the door of the museum, near this Cypriot city, and carting off the heavy mosaic, measuring more than three feet square and set on a concrete slab.

The thieves, described as "a well-organized gang," apparently went to work late at night and the loss went unnoticed, police said.

"This is a very heavy blow... It is a terrible loss for our cultural heritage," said Dr. Vassos Karageorgis, director of Cyprus antiquities. "It is impossible to put a value on this mosaic, it is a unique piece," he added.

The mosaic was found in the bedroom of a first or second century Roman villa near the ruins of the ancient Temple of Aphrodite at Kouklia, 10 miles southeast of here.

Made up of thousands of tiny colored stones, it depicts the standing semi-nude female figure of Leda next to a swan.

According to Greek mythology, Zeus, the chief Greek god was exceedingly fond of making love to beautiful mortal women. As the story goes, he once transformed himself into a swan, swept down to earth from Olympus, and ravished the unsuspecting Leda, a princess he had fallen in love with.

Legend says one of the offspring of the mating was Helen, the beauty who later became queen of Troy.

The ravishing of Leda by the swan has been a favorite subject for artists and poets throughout history, but the Cypriot mosaic is believed to be the earliest work on the subject known to exist.

Airline's suspension extended

The Texas Aeronautics Commission granted a six-month suspension of service permit to Permian Airways Inc. as of Dec. 15 to keep the commuter airline's operating certificate in tact.

Permian halted service to area Texas cities Sept. 15, without notice to the Commission, which has been investigating the situation since Sept.

C. Harry Rogers, TAC director of the Air Carrier Administration, issued an order denying Permian's request for an indefinite suspension of services because "granting a suspension for an indeterminate period of time would serve to discourage other possible entrants into the market once served by Permian."

After the six-month period, if Permian does not resume its commuter service to Midland, San Angelo, San Antonio, Lubbock and Amarillo, Rogers wrote in the directive, "the Commission will issue an order to show cause why Permian's Certificate of Operating Authority... should not be cancelled."

When Permian shut down operations Sept. 15, company president Chuck Ceppi explained the suspension was done to give the company's board of directors time to find additional funds for an expansion of the airlines. Ceppi said then the shutdown was temporary, but that he had no idea when services would be resumed. The story was much the same this morning when Permian's secretary/treasurer Chris Prickett said the company was "still trying" to negotiate a deal with investors for the airline's expansion.

Prickett said although there was still "not any definite date" when the services will resume, he expected a return of Permian within the six-month time allotment of the TAC.

"There's no definite date when it will be back in operation," he said. "We're still working closely with the TAC on this."

He said the delay has mostly been caused by "paperwork."

Prickett said all of Permian's employees, with the exception of management have been placed on furlough. He added that he didn't expect there to be any problems creating a new staff once Permian's service was resumed.

"If you've noticed the way the industry's been," he said, "there are more pilots, service workers... more airline personnel available for work right now. We think now's the best time ever" to hire new help, Prickett said.

Pipe bombs explode in Penn Station

NEW YORK (AP)—A Puerto Rican terrorist group has claimed responsibility for two pipe bomb explosions in Pennsylvania Station that drove travelers into a freezing night and suspended train service for two hours.

An anonymous telephone caller told a news agency the Puerto Rican Armed Resistance was behind the two Sunday night blasts. The explosions, 10 minutes apart, tore up an unoccupied locker room near the station's main-level waiting area.

About 1,000 holiday travelers were evacuated from the station, which lies below street level in an area running from 31st to 33rd streets and from Seventh to Eighth avenues. No injuries were reported.

Rail Road trains were halted miles away as police accompanied by dogs searched for more bombs.

Police said the blasts erupted without warning at 5:55 and 6:05 p.m. at opposite ends of a bank of lockers, several feet from a waiting area. Each bomb had a timing device and each was as strong as a stick of dynamite, said Police Chief of Operations Patrick Murphy.

The male caller, who claimed to be a member of the Puerto Rican Armed Resistance, said a letter was planted in a garbage can at Sixth Avenue and 34th Street.

Murphy said the one-page message, typewritten in Spanish, was signed only with the group's name.

He said the group "alleged that the bomb was set in retaliation for crimes against Puerto Rican nationalists in Puerto Rico."

It was not known if the group was connected to the FALN, another terrorist group which has set bombs for similar reasons.

The waiting area, a flight below street level under Madison Square Garden, is used by hundreds of thousands of commuters each day.

"I was near the information desk (about 100 feet away) when I heard two 'pows,'" I thought someone was shooting," said Dianna James of Huntsville, Ala.

"I'm here for Christmas and I'm going home real soon and I'm not coming back," she said.

A station announcer said the explosion delayed 15 Amtrak trains, including trains from Washington, Philadelphia and Boston. Service had resumed by 8:45 p.m.

Police later searched another part of the station used by Long Island Rail Road commuters. LIRR service was restored at 9 p.m.

Holiday traffic snarled by fog

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Thousands of holiday travelers were stranded as Los Angeles International Airport shut down Sunday night after chowder-thick fog blinded pilots trying to take off and land, airport authorities said.

Four smaller Southern California airports also were socked in by fog and forced to shut down their runways.

Planes were barred from landing at Los Angeles International Airport at 5 p.m., airport spokesman Phillip Ewbank said. The runways were expected to remain closed to incoming planes until about 7 a.m. Monday, he said.

Aeromexico had one flight from La Paz, Mexico, land at Ontario. About 115 passengers were bused from Los Angeles to Ontario to make a departing flight for Guadalajara and Mexico City, said Aeromexico representative Frank Camino. Delay time was four to five hours, he said.

"I can't tell you how many passengers are involved but it is a substantial amount," Wayne said. "Our terminal is jammed with people. We are putting on extra people to cope with it, but at this juncture we are in a waiting game."

The National Weather Service forecast locally dense fog near the coast through Monday morning along a 250-mile strip from Santa Barbara to San Diego.

The season's message

As 1980 draws to a close, world events tell us that all is not well inside or outside the United States. Unfortunately, it seems that's the situation at the close of most years.

Americans may be enjoying what could be termed an uneasy peace currently, but elsewhere in the world that is not the case. Soviet troops, who invaded Afghanistan late in 1979, continue their unwelcome presence. The subjugation of Afghanistan has been bloody, with reports indicating thousands upon thousands of Afghans have been butchered.

In Poland, strikes by workers continue to threaten the free trade unions won there earlier this year. Soviet troops and armor continue their maneuvers just outside Poland, graphically reminding the Polish people of the bloody force that can extinguish their feeble flame of freedom at any instant.

The Middle East, too, continues as a source of concern for those who watch world events. Iraq and Iran continue their border war begun earlier this year. Tensions in Israel and Saudi Arabia have cooled somewhat, but remain the tinder that could cause an eruption in the Middle East at any time.

Elsewhere, hostility and violence are so prevalent that it almost seems listing the nations of the world not engaged in a struggle for life would be simpler than listing the ones which are.

Economically, the world — like the United States — seems to be slipping into hard times once again, ushered by widespread and rampant inflation. While Americans are all too familiar with the economic woes being experienced in our nation, the sad fact of the matter is that, worldwide, the United States' inflation rate is virtually negligible.

One of the black marks still on the books for 1980 is the hostage situation in Iran. A year has come and gone, and still 52 Americans are held illegally by Iran. Early this week negotiations appeared to be moving toward a settlement, but as past experience has shown, it's unwise to predict what the Iranians will and will not do.

The outlook is bleak. It's difficult to find a sunny spot in this world of gray we've been seeing for awhile.

Yet, that bright spot exists each year. It's coming up shortly throughout the Christian world. Christians call it Christmas and celebrate the birth almost 2,000 years ago of Jesus Christ in Jerusalem in the volatile Middle East.

It's important for all people — Christians or whatever religious affiliation — to realize the message of this important Christian holiday. It's a message of hope.

With that in mind, the troubles of today seem somehow easier to bear.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Dec. 22, the 357th day of 1980. There are nine days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Dec. 22, 1894, a French army officer, Alfred Dreyfus, was convicted of treason in a court martial that triggered world-wide charges of anti-semitism.

On this date: In 1696, the founder of the colony of Georgia, James Oglethorpe, was born in London.

In 1677 a naval fleet of seven ships was organized in the rebellious American colonies.

In 1963, the Greek liner Laconia caught fire and sank in the North Atlantic with a loss of 150 lives.

In 1968, 82 crewmen of the U.S.

intelligence ship Pueblo were released by North Korea, 11 months after their capture.

Ten years ago: North Vietnam disclosed it was holding 339 American war prisoners.

Five years ago: Argentine air force officers ended their revolt against President Isabel Peron.

One year ago: Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini cleared the way for clergymen to visit the American hostages so the captives could celebrate Christmas in "peace."

Today's birthday: Lady Bird Johnson, the former first lady, is 68 years old.

Thought for today: While we are postponing, life speeds by. — Marcus Seneca, Roman scholar (about 54 B.C.-39 A.D.).

INSIDE REPORT

Some Reagan defense appointees found wanting

WASHINGTON — Back in California after being announced as secretary of defense, Casper Weinberger placed calls to Republican members of the Senate Armed Services Committee that deepened the loss of joy among Reaganites six weeks after their great victory.

Weinberger told the senators he wanted as deputy secretary his own selection: Frank Carlucci, a career civil servant who is deputy director of President Carter's CIA. Having heard rumbles against Carlucci's appointment, Weinberger wanted the senators to know how much he needed the bureaucrat who was his deputy at two domestic agencies in Nixon-Ford days.

Almost surely, Ronald Reagan will ignore muted alarms from Capitol Hill and satisfy the wishes of his defense secretary. That guarantees more anguish within the Reagan transition, and raises some unpleasant questions:

Why is Reagan getting a secretary and deputy secretary at defense who both need remedial courses in military nuts and bolts? Why did he pick a reputed budget-cutter ("Cap the Knife") to rebuild the nation's leaky defense structure? Why is he naming a deputy without known convictions on national security who, fairly or not, is tied to the Carter administration's undermining of American intelligence (and whose nickname in CIA backrooms is "Hamlet")?

The answer falls under this rubric, delivered by a senior transition official, on Reagan decision-making since Nov. 4: "Disorganized, disconnected, lackadaisical." Other transition aides about to return to private jobs agree. Viewing the nation on the brink of domestic and foreign chaos, they have been stunned at the lack of urgency shown by the president-elect and his inner circle.

None of this was obvious in the euphoric post-election mood when defense experts converged on the Pentagon to plan the Reagan takeover. To them, Cap Weinberger was just a "kitchen cabinet" member in California who during the campaign wanted restraints on defense spending. Never did they dream of him as secretary of defense.

One reason the non-dream became reality is the misconception of the kitchen cabinet's aged millionaires that governing a great nation is like running a big corporation. Failing to perceive that the secretary of defense is responsible for policy rather than administration, they thought of Weinberger managing the Pentagon much like the Bechtel Corp. Reagan did not disagree.

No defense secretary has been less familiar with defense problems since Charley Wilson in 1953 (when the hardware was simpler and the dangers more distant). Weinberger's transition experts are preparing elaborate

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

'President's men' safe, but probe suffered

WASHINGTON — The story can now be told of what happened inside a federal grand jury that caused its incorruptible foreman, Ralph Ulmer, to accuse the Justice Department of covering up the Robert Vesco case.

He complained to a federal judge that the prosecutors seemed more concerned about protecting the Carter administration than investigating Vesco's influence-buying schemes. Later, Ulmer was summoned behind closed doors of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee to explain what he meant.

At three secret sessions, he told how the prosecutors had obstructed the investigation by trying to keep key witnesses off the stand and then belittling their testimonies when the grand jury insisted on hearing them.

The prosecutors were also rotated repeatedly in an apparent shopping effort to find one who could convince the grand jury not to indict any of President Carter's associates. The last prosecutor, assistant U.S. attorney Harry Benner, argued that the case should be treated as a minor, if "slimy," exercise in influence peddling.

The jurors reportedly wanted to extend the term of the grand jury beyond 18 months so they could complete some indictments. One source confided to my associate Indy Badhwar: "Benner told us flat out that it wouldn't make any difference if we went ahead and indicted, because the Justice Department's prosecutors would refuse to sign the indictments."

Apparently, this was the reason the grand jury returned no indictments.

Jack Anderson

But there's more to the story. The prosecutor also asked the grand jury to sign a "Bill of Ignoramus" — a document that would exonerate individuals who had been targets of the investigation.

The jurors were handed a blank form and were asked to list as many individuals as they would let off the hook. But they refused to exonerate anyone — not even President Carter, who had asked his attorney general to see one of the conspirators in the bribery plot.

Ulmer told the senators that the president had been one of the most recalcitrant witnesses, refusing either to testify before the grand jury or to let jurors come to the White House to question him. In the end, he answered a few innocuous questions from the prosecutors on videotape.

The jurors were so distrustful of the Justice Department that they refused to submit a blank "Bill of Ignoramus" for fear the prosecutors would tamper with it, my associate Lucette Lagado has learned. Ulmer started to sign the blank document, but another juror cautioned against returning it.

CHARLEY REESE

Communism, not Klansmen merits our attention now

A Tennessee reporter has just emerged from a year's undercover work with the Ku Klux Klan. The urban liberals are all ooh's and ah's. The guy will probably win a Pulitzer Prize. The Klan has been responsible for more Pulitzers than any other organization. Northern liberals love it when southern journalists whip up on the Klan.

What the reporter found out, of course, was that the Klan does not like Jews and blacks and that some of them own firearms. Southern journalists have been bamboozling northern journalism professors for years with Klan exposes.

Let me tell you the truth about the Klan. It is an organization of ill-tempered ignoramuses. With that said, it doesn't amount to a hill of beans. It is not powerful. It is not plotting to overthrow the government. It has no wide base of public support. It is poorly financed. What it seems to be is a straw man at which liberals can throw darts while they ignore the real threats to the American people.

Your typical Klansman is a poor white working man. He's at the low end of the economic totem pole, but he has worked hard. Hence, he is frustrated. He is not well-informed and is therefore susceptible to anti-semitism and racial bigotry. That is not surprising since anti-semitism and racial bigotry are also found in corporate board rooms and country clubs where the people ought to know better.

The Klansman, in his own misguided way, is a patriot. He sees goblins everywhere and is convinced Jews and blacks are going to take over the country. He is prepared to fight them — but he is not plotting to tear the country apart. Except in random and isolated incidents involving individuals, he is not a threat to the republic no matter how nervous his existence makes some liberals. For one thing, he is not smart enough to be a threat.

On the other hand, communists, the existence of which liberals seem determined not to acknowledge, are a threat. They are smart. They are well-financed. They are intending to bring down this country. They do have a fair base of support as well as the resources of foreign communist nations to call on, primarily those of the Soviet Union.

It's been estimated there are as many as 25,000 foreign communist agents operating in the United States if you count the Soviets, the satellite nations, Cubans and the Red Chinese. The Soviet Union is engaged in a massive effort to subvert the United States. You would think that some American journalist might be interested in exposing their activities, but instead they seem to operate entirely unnoticed.

It's interesting, for example, that Teofilo Acosta, the station chief of Fidel Castro's secret service, showed up at the memorial service for the late Laurence Stern, national editor of the Washington Post, and eulogized the American journalist.

As Robert Moss, a British journalist, pointed out, if the station chief of the South African secret service or even the head of the CIA's clandestine arm publicly eulogized a prominent American journalist, there would have been an uproar.

No journalist has gotten excited about the fact that Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, against the recommendations of the FBI and the U.S. Attorney in New York, ordered espionage charges dropped against Martha Dodd Stern and her husband, who fled behind the Iron Curtain in 1957 and are living in Czechoslovakia.

The FBI at least wanted the Sterns to agree to be interrogated as a condition for dropping the charges but Civiletti overruled them.

The point of all this is that while the Klan is a despicable organization, it does not merit the attention it receives, while communism, which receives almost none, most certainly does merit attention. At this point in our history, getting hysterical about the Ku Klux Klan is like being at the Battle of the Bulge in World War II and worrying about the Sioux at the Little Bighorn.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Watching the presidential transition is exciting. Every day dozens of Nancy Reagan's interior decorators sneak into the White House disguised as tourists.

As soon as the guide turns his back, the stealthy decorators quickly start measuring the windows.

The White House guards are having a tough time trying to keep the Reagan decorators out before the Carters leave. Everyone going in or out of the White House is searched for swatches.

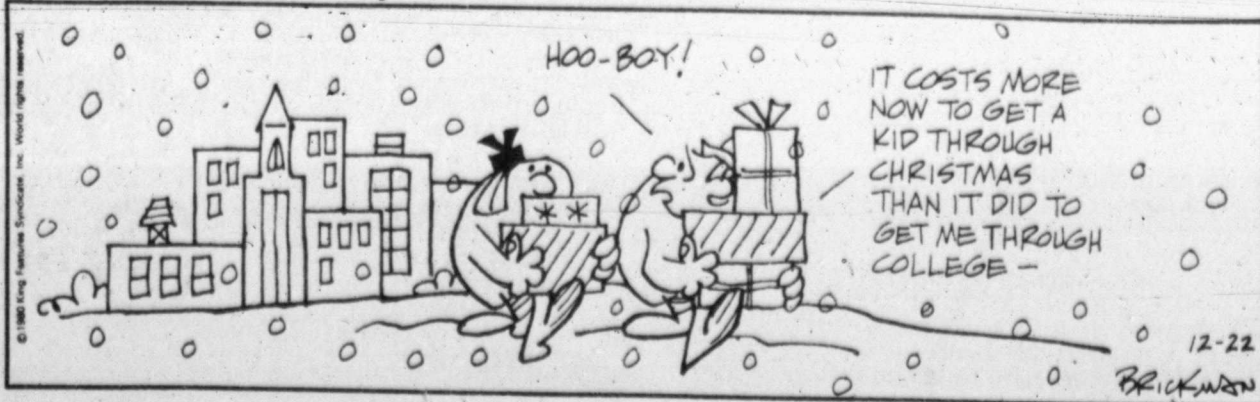

The Carter staff is worried that Nancy's hordes of decorators will stage a coup. The tip-off? Rolls of fabric are piling up in Lafayette Park across the street.

Nancy denies all this, but only yesterday, Rosalynn sat down to breakfast only to discover that the wallpaper in the kitchen was new. A lie detector will be used to determine if the phantom decorator is really the cook.

Playwright Marc Connelly dead at age 90

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright Marc Connelly, an Algonquin Round Table regular who won a Pulitzer Prize for his drama "The Green Pastures," is dead at age 90.

Connelly, a master of light comedy and well-known for his collaborations with George S. Kaufman, died of pneumonia Sunday at St. Luke's Hospital.

"The theater is a compulsion," Connelly said recently. "It fills a great human need. It is the best social instrument of communication that mankind has devised."

The son of an actor, Connelly turned to the theater — as actor, writer and director — after several years as a journalist. He also wrote novels, short stories, screenplays and taught at the Yale Drama School.

One of the Connelly-Kaufman works, "Dulcy," had a brief revival here last month.

Others include "To the Ladies," "Helen of Troy, N.Y.," "Be Yourself" and "Beggars on Horseback."

Among his other works are the play "The Wisdom Tooth," the novel "A Souvenir from Qam," his memoirs titled, "Voices Offstage," and the comedy "Young Men in Flight."

One of New York's literary wits of the 1920s, the bald, jocular playwright met almost daily at the Algonquin Hotel with Round Table cohorts Harold Ross, founder and editor of The New Yorker, critic Alexander Woollcott; humorists Dorothy Parker and James Thurber; and newsman Heywood Brown, among others.

He wrote and directed "The Green Pastures" in 1930 and directed it again on Broadway in 1951. It also appeared on television's Hallmark Hall of Fame in 1957.

Connelly at first was unable to find a producer for the play, which featured an all-black cast and depicted how Southern plantation blacks viewed God, the Old Testament and heaven. Many producers rebuffed him, saying the play might offend blacks and clergymen.

But he eventually found a producer — Wall Street broker Rowland Stebbins — and the play opened on Broadway on Feb. 23, 1930. An immediate hit, it was performed 1,642 times in its first five years and grossed $3 million.

Connelly, a native of McKeesport, Pa., began acting in his own plays at age 8 in his father's hotel in Pittsburgh. He got his start in journalism with The Associated Press and later joined the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

When he turned to theater, he sometimes performed in skits for club shows and "was always filling in for actors in my plays who got sick," he said.

"I directed most of the plays, so I knew what I was doing. ... It's not so unusual for playwrights to be actors."

Connelly taught playwriting at Yale from 1946 to 1950. His awards included the O. Henry Short Story Award in 1930.

Program helps lance wounds of alcoholism

By JERRY HARKAVY Associated Press Writer

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — Fighting back tears, 10-year-old Robin told of a stark Christmas past, a time when her father sprawled across the couch in a drunken stupor while her mother nursed bruises and black eyes.

"It wasn't a happy Christmas," Robin told her father, seated directly across from her, close enough to touch.

More than 100 people sat in a circle around them, straining to hear a child's tiny voice reveal grown-up memories.

Robin's mother, seated next to her, recalled how every Christmas holiday seemed to wind up the same way — in pain, fear and violence.

Looking directly at her father, Robin told of her biggest disappointment: "You've never told me to my face that you love me."

Trembling, her father said he was sorry, then whispered, "I do love you ... but when I'm drinking I don't love anybody."

Robin — not her real name — was taking part in one of the weekly family encounter sessions conducted at Eastern Maine Medical Center's Alcohol Institute, one of the nation's most comprehensive community-based treatment programs for alcoholics.

Family treatment is one of the cornerstones of the program's philosophy, based on the concept that alcoholism affects the entire family and each member must become involved in the recovery process.

IN THE FAMILY encounter sessions, children and spouses confront patients with bitter memories, sharing hostilities, lies and infidelities that have often been repressed for years.

The technique remains controversial, even among the hospital staff, because of the potential for embarrassment and psychological pain. But advocates say the sessions help break down the barriers that usually separate alcoholics from family members.

Dr. Stanley Evans, founder and director of the Alcohol Institute, likens the process to "lancing a wound."

"Take the risk. Share those feelings," he said. "We say, try this. It's going to embarrass you or make you cry. But it can't be any worse than the living hell you have now. And our experience has been that people get better."

The 36-bed institute, founded in 1974, claims a 75 percent success rate. Patients come from all socio-economic levels, but the program is geared toward those in the early stages of alcoholism, rather than the "skid row" types.

"These are younger people — the average age is 35 — people with families, people with jobs, people who have not gone through the losses," Evans said.

Patient treatment begins with three to 10 days of detoxification, followed by intensive rehabilitation. Three weeks of in-patient treatment are followed by two years of aftercare, in which patients take part in community self-help groups and Alcoholics Anonymous.

Saturday is a special day at the institute, the day when family members play their part in recovery.

Spouses and older children attend lectures on how to cope with alcoholism in the family, but the most poignant sessions involve the younger children, many of whom have been thrust into premature adulthood by the family burden. When a family arrives at the hospital for screening, Evans pays special attention to the children, looking for that "9-year-old kid who's acting like a 20-year-old."

ROBIN AND 20 other children ranging in age from 4 to 12 gathered in a small room in the hospital basement, where psychologists combine individual and group counseling with art work and games like the Magic Store. Here children are asked to give up something they dislike about their family for something they would like in return.

When it was Robin's turn to visit the Magic Store, she gave away "a sackful of yelling and fighting." In return, she took "a whole roomful of love."

The other youngsters dropped off bundles of confusion, anger and discouragement and came away with generous helpings of confidence, courage and understanding.

Later, they grabbed marker pens and collaborated on a huge mural of words and pictures to express feelings about family problems. It was a collage of confused, often violent, images which illustrate their anxieties.

Self-disclosure is the aim of much of the activity — at last the children can share the nightmare they've been living for much of their young lives.

Most of all, the children talk about change, the possibility that life may be improving now that the sick parent is getting treatment. They discuss the little changes in their families and wonder — not without apprehension — about the future.

At no time is this apprehension more acute than in the days before Christmas, a holiday that for most of the children has never measured up to the joyous time portrayed on television.

"CHRISTMAS IS A time when the essence of the family is held up to the light, and these families can't stand that," Evans said. "What happens is that they don't pass the test, year after year after year."

But this holiday may be happier for Robin and the other children sorting out changes in their lives. So much is changing, they say.

"Maybe," Robin said, "things will be different this Christmas."

Music pioneer buried today

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jack Stapp, a former Grand Ole Opry manager who went on to develop the world's largest country music publishing company, was being buried today.

Stapp, 68, died Saturday after being in poor health for more than a year.

He was responsible for bringing to Nashville many of country music's stars, including Johnny Cash, Jim Reeves, Marty Robbins, Porter Wagoner, Faron Young and Chet Atkins.

A former program manager at WSM in Nashville, Stapp founded Tree Publishing, which became Tree International in 1951.

At 17, Stapp became the youngest program manager in the history of network radio, working at WGST in Atlanta. A singer at the station then was Bert Parks, who went on to host the Miss America Pageant.

Rock throwing mars protest march

MIAMI (AP) — The streets of riot-scarred Liberty City were quiet today after sporadic rock-throwing erupted at the end of a peaceful rally marking the first anniversary of the death of a black businessman fatally beaten by white police officers.

Police cordoned the area with barricades and diverted white motorists away from the predominantly black neighborhood after stones were tossed at police cruisers and private vehicles.

The incidents were near Manor Park, where 200 people gathered to honor the memory of insurance executive Arthur McDuffie. McDuffie, 33, died Dec. 21, 1979, four days after he was brutally beaten by white Dade County policemen after a motorcycle chase.

"We've had a little rock- and bottle-throwing, but it's all quiet now," Miami Police Sgt. Joe Hunter said today.

Sporadic rock-throwing and a fire in an elementary school were reported in the same area Wednesday and Thursday after the acquittal in Texas of former Officer Charles Veverka Jr. on federal civil rights charges stemming from McDuffie's death.

The acquittal in May of five white former officers on state charges sparked bloody race riots that left 18 people dead and caused $100 million property damage. The Citizens Coalition for Racial Justice said it wanted to remember McDuffie while protesting the acquittals. The march had little support from leaders of Miami's black community.

About 100 demonstrators march through Miami's Liberty City, an area badly hurt during the May riots, in remembrance of the death of insurance salesman Arthur McDuffie who died a year ago after being beaten by police. (AP Laserphoto)

Doctor says vet may be walking radio receiver

MIAMI (AP) — Third-year medical student Stephen Liggett was surprised when a psychiatric patient reported hearing music in his head. Liggett was more surprised to determine that the music apparently was coming from a Miami radio station.

The patient, a Vietnam war veteran who had about 10 fragments of shrapnel embedded in his skull, may be a walking radio receiver, Liggett said.

But he hasn't seen the man since that examination, and Liggett, who also has a Ph.D. in physics, is getting ribbing from colleagues at the Veterans Administration hospital here.

"It's incredible, but I think it is true," said Liggett, who contends the shrapnel could be acting as a radio receiver for signals from WQAM. "I can't explain it. I'm tired of trying to figure it out."

The 28-year-old patient said he heard radio commercials and country music blaring inside his head. The man, who complained of depression and headaches, underwent a complete neurological workup after being admitted to the psychiatric ward.

When asked whether he heard music, he said yes. "Both ears?" Liggett asked. "No, just the one," the patient responded. Liggett said it is medically unusual for any source of hallucination to be unilateral.

The patient said the sounds he heard were muffled, but he said he could differentiate between music, news and commercials.

Using a borrowed radio, Liggett asked the man to identify the station. The man flipped the dial for a few minutes and then cried, "That's it." He was tuned to 560 — WQAM.

To test the tentative diagnosis, Liggett said he plugged in a radio earphone so only he could hear the radio and asked the man to tell him when the music stopped and started and when the news came on.

"He knew exactly when the station stopped playing one song and switched to another. It was incredible," said Liggett.

Liggett said he would have liked to have tested the patient further, but the man left on his own and hasn't returned. One neurosurgeon flatly says such a thing couldn't happen and challenged Liggett to "find it in the medical literature."

Liggett said he searched library indexes for a week with no success.

Autopsies slated for two slain missionaries

MIAMI (AP) — The bodies of two Catholic missionaries, among four shot to death in El Salvador recently, will be exhumed to determine the origin of the bullets that killed them, their relatives and associates say.

Patricia Donovan said she gave the State Department permission to do an autopsy on her daughter, Jean, a lay missionary in the troubled Central American country. The Sarasota, Fla., woman hopes the make of the bullet will shed light on who was responsible for the deaths of her 27-year-old daughter and three Roman Catholic nuns.

The Ursuline Order also has authorized an autopsy on slain Sister Dorothy Kazel, 41, who is buried in Cleveland.

The two missionaries, along with sisters Ita Ford and Maura Clarke of the New York-based Maryknoll Order, had been absent from their mission in La Libertad, El Salvador, for two days when their bodies were discovered earlier this month. A duty officer at the State Department said Sunday said she was not aware of any plans to exhume the bodies. And a Maryknoll spokeswoman said the order had not been asked by the State Department to allow an exhumation of the nuns' bodies, which were buried in El Salvador.

Sister Mary John of the Ursuline Order in Cleveland said, "The mother superior along with the family has agreed" to the exhumation and autopsy. "We understood the request (by the State Department) was made for identification."

Mrs. Donovan said Sunday she agreed to the exhumation because she doesn't want "this to die out. I don't want my daughter to die in vain."

If the autopsy reveals a U.S.-made bullet, Mrs.

Donovan said it would incriminate the Salvadoran military in the deaths because "any military supplies from the United States are grabbed there by the military."

"There is no doubt in my mind that the military killed her," she said.

She said U.S. aid and the country's foreign policy were partly to blame for the slayings. "I feel like we paid for the bullet that killed her," Mrs.

Donovan said. The United States suspended aid to El Salvador after the deaths. But it announced last week the resumption of economic aid following the installation of a civilian president.

Reagan expected to reveal more Cabinet names

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan prepared to unveil four more Cabinet-level selections today, including a black for housing secretary and a woman for U.N. ambassador, sources on the president-elect's transition team said.

The sources, who declined to be identified, said New York attorney Samuel R. Pierce was picked to head the Department of Housing and Urban Development, making him the first black man selected for a Reagan Cabinet post.

The sources said Georgetown University professor Jean Kirkpatrick was to be announced as the president-elect's choice for U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, a post that will be given Cabinet-level rank and, thus, allow Reagan to fulfill a pledge to include a woman in his top circle of appointments.

Reagan also planned to name conservative Colorado attorney James G. Watt as interior secretary and former South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards as energy secretary, said the sources.

Formal announcements were to be made at an afternoon news conference here.

In an unexpected development this morning, Reagan's transition team decided to hold up announcement of a fifth Cabinet-level appointment, Illinois Agriculture Director John R. Block, as agriculture secretary.

Over the weekend, Reagan's top advisers told Senate Republicans that Block would be among the choices announced today, but the decision was made this morning to postpone the announcement.

Several sources said Block still appeared to be in line for the job, but they could not explain the reason for the delay.

One source speculated that Reagan wanted to save the announcement for Tuesday when the transition may disclose its choice for education secretary, the last department head to be chosen. Reagan has had trouble finding candidates for this job because of his pledge to eliminate the Department of Education.

Reagan press spokesman James Brady said additional Cabinet announcements would be made Tuesday but would not elaborate.

Reagan already has announced his first 10 Cabinet-level nominations.

In Los Angeles, where he is staying, Reagan would say only that he hoped to complete his Cabinet selections by Christmas.

Block, director of the Illinois agriculture department and the owner of a 3,000-acre farm, flew to Washington Sunday, one Senate source said.

Reagan apparently settled on Block following a meeting with him last Thursday. Block visited Reagan at the president-elect's Pacific Palisades home along with the other top contender for the post, Richard Lyng, former president of the American Meat Institute.

Block was actively promoted by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.

Pierce also met with Reagan last Thursday but declined to say what was discussed. However, several Senate Republicans said they were told Pierce would be chosen to head HUD.

Reagan had settled on Watt for the interior job more than a week ago but an announcement was held up partly because of strong opposition, according to transition officials.

Watt heads a legal defense foundation in Colorado that has contested federal environmental regulations.

He also was reported to be flying to Washington.

Transition sources said several women had been under consideration for education secretary, but at least two top prospects fell through.

Elmo Linebarger to be honored

Elmo Linebarger, the retiring Midland County tax assessor-collector, will be honored in a public reception from 2 to 5 p.m. Dec. 29 in the downtown Midland Center.

Linebarger, 69, has been the county's chief tax man since November 1965, when the county commissioners appointed him to succeed the late J.M. Speed.

This year, Linebarger opted not to run for re-election on the Republican Party ticket. And his chief deputy, Frances Shuffield, ran in his stead and was elected in an uncontested race. She and other newly-elected or re-elected county officials will be sworn into office on Jan. 5.

The reception is being sponsored by the tax office staff.

Freezing weather may kill hundreds

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — A two-month-old girl died of pneumonia overnight in a tent city sheltering victims of last month's devastating earthquake in southern Italy, and health authorities warned today that hundreds of other people may die because of the freezing cold.

For the fifth consecutive day, icy rain and gusting wind pelted the area east of Naples hit by the Nov. 23 quake that left 3,000 dead and more than 300,000 homeless.

Thousands of people still remain in unheated tent cities, many without proper sanitary or kitchen facilities.

Alamo Y to host public

Located at 901 N. Midland Drive, the Y will even have Santa on hand during the day to hear visitors' last-minute gift wishes.

20 tons of marijuana seized from Panamanian vessel

YORKTOWN, Va. (AP) — The routine boarding of a 76-foot Panamanian fishing vessel ended in the seizure of an estimated $25.4 million worth of marijuana, officials say.

Eight crewmen, some American and some Panamanian, were arrested Sunday in what the U.S. Customs Service described as "by far the largest" marijuana seizure ever made in Virginia.

Twenty tons of marijuana were confiscated from the hold of the white-hulled Silvano after it was seized about 12:50 p.m., several hours after it ran aground near an oil company dock just inside the mouth of the York River, officials said.

Customs Service spokesman James Mahan said investigators did not know where the marijuana came from.

"We won't know where it's from until we can determine the boat's last port of call" or until the marijuana is analyzed, Mahan said.

Depending on where the marijuana is from, the smugglers may have paid as little as $1 million for the boat load. Mahan said the $25.4 million value placed on it was its street sales value in the United States.

Coast Guard Petty Officer George Stuart said the Silvano first aroused suspicion when it entered the York River at 6:10 a.m. Sunday and was reported to be "operating erratically."

A small Coast Guard

boat was dispatched to investigate and it discovered the Silvano had run aground, Stuart said.

A boarding party of Coast Guardsmen and Customs officers searched the ship, discovered the marijuana and seized the vessel and crew, Stuart and Mahan said.

The Coast Guard Cutter Point Huron was assigned to try to refloat the grounded fishing vessel. Once it is refloated, the Silvano will be held at the Reserve Training Center while an investigation proceeds.

Chinese party newspaper issues strongest attack yet on Mao Tse-tung

PEKING (AP) — China's Communist Party issued its strongest attack to date on the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung today, saying he personally launched and led the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution that set back economic development and caused the deaths of hundreds of people.

The criticism, on the front page of the party newspaper, People's Daily, was viewed here as a stage-setter for a formal reassessment of Mao by the party's Central Committee next month.

In a related development, the ninth of 10 defendants being tried for crimes committed during the Cultural Revolution defended himself in court today. The action leaves only the chief defendant, Mao's widow Jiang Qing to testify in what is expected to be an explosive self-defense.

During his lifetime Mao was revered as a virtually infallible leader. His portrait was on prominent display throughout China; his philosophies were studied with religious fervor.

Since his death in October 1979, however, Chinese leaders have increasingly criticized Mao and the period of purges known as the Cultural Revolution. That period, which led to vast internal strife, is officially regarded as a "catastrophe."

Until today, all criticisms of Mao avoided blaming him for direct involvement in the Cultural Revolution. Instead, official commentaries claimed Mao's advisers, led by his wife, exploited him during his falling years, committing crimes without his knowledge.

This time, however, the Peking Daily commentary laid responsibility for the Cultural Revolution on Mao's shoulders.

"In his late years and especially during the 'Great Cultural Revolution,' which he personally initiated and led, comrade Mao Tse-tung also committed mistakes which brought great misfortunes to the party and the people," the newspaper said.

"Some other comrades in our party also had made mistakes in varying degrees."

Analysts said the latter phrase appeared to refer to Party-Chairman Hua Guofeng, who inherited his position from Mao. Hua has been severely criticized within the party for clinging too strongly to old, outdated Maoist ideas. Diplomatic sources say he is likely to resign soon.

Three-ship group home after eight-month job

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — For 7,000 Navy men, the eight-month job of maintaining a U.S. presence in the Middle East was ending today as a three-ship Indian Ocean Battle Group sailed home to Norfolk. The Navy arranged to have official greetings from Navy Secretary Edward Hidalgo, Atlantic Fleet commander Adm. Harry Train and local officials presented aboard the ships as they sailed into port so the docks would be free for family reunions. The sailors of the aircraft carrier Eisenhower and cruisers Virginia and South Carolina last saw their relatives 251 days ago. The three nuclear-powered ships left April 15 to relieve the Indian Ocean Battle Group led by the carrier Nimitz, which housed the ill-fated helicopters used on the aborted mission to rescue the hostages in Iran. Although no such spotlight fell in the Ike, as the carrier is known, the Iran-Iraq fighting kept it on station through cancelled port calls for 152 straight days at sea, to surpass the post-World-War-II record just set by the Nimitz. The Eisenhower, with three two-crew allotments through the one-port call cruise, earned the nickname "six-pack" Ike. The Nimitz saw the first official break of the Navy's 66-year-old ban on shipboard alcohol. There was more beer and champagne Sunday for the 62 aviators of three of the carrier's air squadrons, which flew home a day early to Oceana Naval Air Station in Virginia Beach. Other squadrons went home to the West Coast and Florida. "Readiness was good. We were ready 100 percent of the time," said air wing commander Cmdr. Buz Needham. "We had a much high readiness posture than we generally experience in the Med (Mediterranean). Daily we were required to respond to problems not more than 400 miles away ... And I brought everyone I took out back with me." Although three aircraft were lost, the squadrons had no fatal accidents.

Watchdog's bark more important than his bite

WASHINGTON (AP) — If your neighborhood has had its share of burglaries lately and you're considering getting a watchdog, take note: a dog's bark is more important than his size. "What you need is an alert dog who will let you know when someone is in the house," said Phyllis Wright, director of animal sheltering and control at the Humane Society of the United States, which has its headquarters in Washington. "You don't want a man-or-a woman-eater. A medium-size schnauzer is one of the best dogs you can get." Miss Wright, who purchased and trained dogs for the Army during the Korean War, said people looking for watchdogs should give their animals obedience training. "You want a stable dog, one that responds to you, not a situation," she said. People who want a first-class watchdog should read up on the breed that interests them and then find someone who breeds dogs with good temperaments: "You should find out as much as possible about the dog's mother and father." But for those with slimmer pocket-books who prefer to select a pup from the local pound, Miss Wright suggested walking by the cages to gauge a dog's reaction. "Look for a dog that barks at you when you walk by," she said. "You don't want one that sits back in a corner. You want a dog with his head cocked and his ears alert." Miss Wright said people who purchase a watchdog from animal shelters take more chances because not as much is usually known about such a pup's background. "Ask for a personality profile on the dog, a history of its background and habits," she said. For those who simply want to sensitize their present pup to impending danger, Miss Wright said dog owners should take their animal on a leash for a walk around its own property and encourage the animal to spot trouble. "You want to reinforce his natural tendencies," she said. "Say, 'what's that?' when you see a squirrel or something, and when he responds, reward him and praise him." Miss Wright said that up until the age of 5, most dogs are trainable, but after that, they get set in their ways. "A 5-year-old dog is like a 50-year-old person," she said. "He gets engrained in his habits." Miss Wright, who lives in suburban Maryland with two terriers she got from dog pounds and one Doberman pinscher, cautioned people who want a German shepherd or a Doberman for a watchdog to be careful. "For every 10 dogs I get, I reject 17," she said. "There has been much over-breeding of the shepherd and Doberman. Their temperaments can be very unreliable. And the Doberman is much less tolerant than it used to be."

Wounded man infected after no antibiotics

DALLAS (AP) — A young man now seriously ill after being shot mistakenly by police received no antibiotics as part of an experiment before he first underwent surgery, according to the Dallas Times Herald. Betty Vanderburg doubts her 22-year-old son, Doy, knowingly consented to be part of the study, known as the Trauma Project, at Parkland Memorial Hospital. "It's like he was shot twice, once by the police and once by Parkland," she told the newspaper. But hospital officials said Vanderburg signed a release agreeing to participate, and contend the problems he now suffers do not stem from that project. Vanderburg was wounded Oct. 29 when police mistook him for a suspect in a drug roundup. Since then, he has had nine operations, the Times Herald said. The paper reported that gangrene set in after his first operation, his kidneys have failed, he cannot breathe by himself and fluid collects around his heart. Dr. Edwin Thal, one of the doctors in charge of the study, said, "There is no evidence that any study that I'm aware of has contributed to anyone's illness." He said, "I know for a fact there is a consent form signed by him," adding that "some patients don't understand all the facts (of an experiment) as well as others." Mrs. Vanderburg said her son had signed a permit to operate, "but that was it. He knows he needs antibiotics — for anything — because he had rheumatic fever." Thal and Dr. Ron Jones, leaders of the study on antibiotics, said the experiment began last spring and has involved between 100 and 150 patients so far. All emergency room patients with abdominal wounds are asked if they would be willing to take part, except those with specific medical problems. Doctors at the University of Texas Health Science Center said a thorough study on the use of antibiotics in abdominal wounds had never been done. "It's wrong to think because this has always been done that it's right," Thal said. "From time to time, things change."

A Jaycee Christmas present

By WANDA MOUTON
Lifestyle Editor

It was an afternoon to remember. And Gibson's will never forget it.

Pandemonium was the apparent word for what happened last week as the Midland Jaycees and 175 children showed up at the department store for the annual Jaycee Shopping tour.

There, the youngsters, ranging from first through third grade level, were allowed $16 to buy anything which they wished for Christmas.

"How much have I got left?" asked one student whose sack was already piled high with toys.

"I've still gotta get something for my sister and I've only got eighty cents left," groaned another.

And his buddy said, "My mom's gonna love this!" (enthusiastically holding up a rifle target set.

"They can pick anything they want, whether it's presents for themselves or for their families," explained Hill Glover, co-chairman of the event along with Byron Tuck.

"We encourage them to choose a little something for members of their families, but the decision is left up to them," he said.

These needy children are chosen by principals at Crockett, Booker T. Washington, Ben Milan, DeZavala, Pease, South and William B. Travis.

Although no toy was left unnoticed, a quick survey of the sacks revealed that the most popular pick was the traditional gun and holster set for the boys and a doll for the girls.

The Jaycees are assisted in this annual project by the Jaycee-Ettes. Following the shopping spree, the students were transported to the Boys Club where they were treated to a Christmas "shout" party, given punch, candy, cookies and fruit, and taken home.

Christmas traditions

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a four-part series on traditions which have been submitted by our readers. Our sincere thanks to those of you who responded to our requests for your ideas on what things mean a lot to you and your family during this holiday season, whether it be Christmas, Hanukkah or New Year's.

Ideas were varied, ranging from an original poem which one reader sends out every year along with Christmas cards, to an eggnog recipe which has been handed down.)

From Mrs. Russell G. Estes, 2011 N. "H" St., Midland:

Dear Sirs:

I do not know where to begin and I hope what I have accumulated through the years will be what you want to hear about.

About six years ago I started making calico things to decorate with. I now have quite a collection and add a little something I make each year to what I have. It has become a tradition to decorate my house with these calico things. My friends all seem to like forward to seeing them each year, as well as my family. I have a banner with stuffed calico pears and a stuffed partridge. I have "Joy to the World" made in calico and stuffed and hung across one wall. I have a calico table cloth. I have calico stuffed leaves and embroidered and hung as a wreath on the front door. I have a calico wreath hung over the fireplace. I have stuffed chickens in unbleached domestic in a circle around a calico ball in the middle of the table cloth. Most of these decorations were used one year to decorate for a Symphony meeting. You may have to come see to believe.

I am a collector of recipes and have a whole file on nothing but Christmas recipes. Some I have used and tried and some I have not. Some may be collected from the Midland Reporter-Telegram, since I have lived in Midland since 1955. I will include one that I have used for Christmas through the years, and this one was served at our Christmas dinner in Del Rio, Texas, where I grew up. It belonged to my aunt, Mrs. Dutch Wardlaw, originally. It's truly a Christmasy dessert!

I also have made a Thanksgiving table cloth (have used it for several years) that is beaded with turkeys, horn-a-plenty, pumpkins and fruits. I have finished beaded hearts and cups, and I am ready to put together for a Valentine table cloth. I hope to make a table cloth of some sort for all the special seasons and celebrations, eventually.

DEAR ABBY

Waiters' recompense rarely dollars

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Thanks for telling NEEDS TIPS ON TIPPING that waitresses need tips to survive. But let me give you a little tip, Abby. Waitresses and waiters are not paid the minimum wage of $3.10. I've been a waiter in Louisiana for 21 years, and most of those years I earned 36 cents an hour — now it's 85 cents an hour — so if it weren't for my tips, I'd be in the poorhouse. Also, if a dish is broken or a customer walks out without paying, it comes out of my pay. — GEORGE IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR ABBY: Correction, please. Here's one waitress whose hourly pay has varied from 50 cents an hour to $15.00 depending on where I've worked. Our employers assume that we will make $3.10 WITH our tips. Sometimes we do and sometimes we don't. Very few people realize this.

Pass the word. — HELEN IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR ABBY: I'm 53, have been a waitress for 35 years, and I love my work. In Brunswick, Ga., the tops is $1.90 an hour, and tips make up the rest. How would you like to serve four adults and five children a full-course dinner for a $1 tip? It happens. — BLONDY

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired minister, and nowhere does the Bible say that anyone is exempt from tithing, which means giving 10 percent of your income to the church. So since I give God 10 percent, no way will I put the waitress who delivers the best-caliber service on the same level with God. Therefore, I tip waitresses between 7 and 8 percent, and I am not ashamed of it. — FROM IOWA

DEAR ABBY: No complaints from California. I've got a couple of college degrees but they don't pay the rent. I dig being a waiter. I like the work, I enjoy the people I meet, and the hours suit me. A first-class waiter can make a good living anywhere in the world. — VINNIE IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: Please let the public know the truth about how much most restaurants pay their help. Where I work, the tops is $1.86 an hour. There is no sick pay, no benefits, no health plan and no retirement. We buy our own uniforms, tip the bartenders and busboys out of our pockets, and we're charged for our own meals whether we eat here or not. Add that to the cost of buying foot-soak, corn plasters and comfortable shoes, and you'll realize how important tips are. — FOOT-SORE IN BALTIMORE

DEAR ABBY: In Memphis, if we get a 10 percent tip we're lucky. And while we're on the subject, let a waiter tell you about tippers. Teen-agers are the worst tippers and leave the biggest mess. Church groups rarely tip at all. Women as a rule tip better than men. Most blacks are good tippers and extremely easy to please. Most doctors are cheapskates, and teachers and nurses don't know what a tip is. Most senior citizens are close with a buck and are apt to leave a bunch of pennies. Policemen tip well, and so do other waitresses because they know how hard we work. But the biggest tippers are show people — TUCKERED OUT IN TENNESSEE

I'M ONE PROUD HUSBAND

Says Wesley Baines of Houston

My wife and I have had a wonderful life together. Apart from being a good mother and grandmother, she is a very talented artist. Now that the children are grown it keeps her busy painting and teaching.

Well, the real change in our personal life is her new figure. I guess I get some of the credit because I encouraged her to go do something about her weight problem. She did... after looking around and pondering, she went to Pat Walker's. She was skeptical because it was hard to imagine she could again have the figure that she once had.

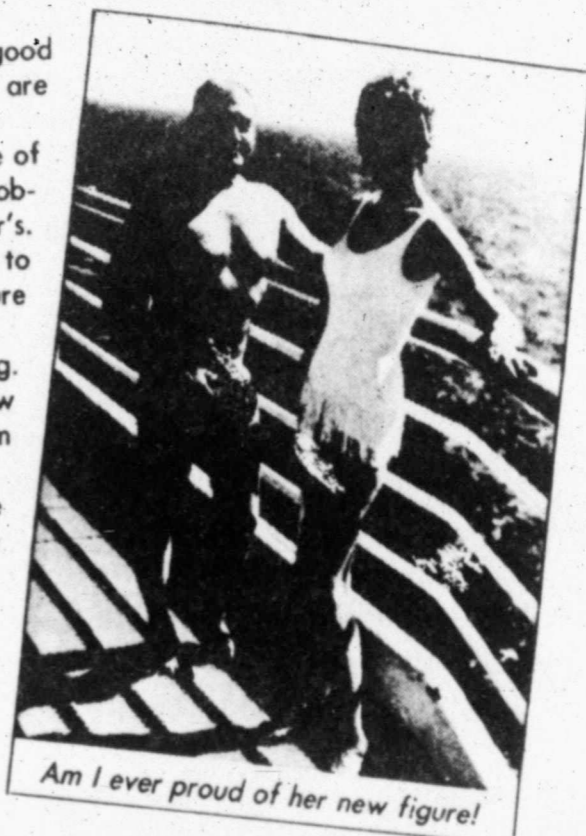

This is my wife before she reduced with Pat Walker.

Anyway, the proof is in the pudding. Here is my wife today and you know what? She finished reducing with them six years ago and still has her figure.

I don't know if I won or lost because now she gets all the compliments with her new figure and new energy. It has brought on a more social life. I am kidding, because I won. She's the girl I married many years ago.

Am I ever proud of her new figure!

Dandy candy-making tips

HI, THERE!

Today I'm going to let you in on a recipe for the most scrumptious candy you every let slide down your gullet.

It's so simple, yet something you'll get compliments on (and requests for the recipe too) all year long.

Down here in Texas, we have a savory little candy patty we call a praline (pray-leen). It's chock full of pecans, which is something we have in abundance too.

There are several ways of making this traditional piece of candy, but the one I'm going to give you has an ingredient you wouldn't think would go in candy. It's buttermilk!

Take your favorite candy-making pot — one's that's big enough to prevent any overflow — and pour in one cup of buttermilk, two cups of sugar and one teaspoon of baking soda. Stir until sugar is dissolved.

Put on medium heat and let that stuff bubble up and cook until it turns brownish in color and reaches the soft ball stage. Now you'll need to stir it constantly so it won't stick.

Remove the pan from the heat and add one tablespoon of butter or margarine, one teaspoon vanilla and two cups of pecan halves.

Now for the fun part! Beat the mixture until it becomes glossy and starts to crystallize. Quickly spoon out the candy into little patties about two inches in circumference on waxed paper or a greased sheet. Let cool.

If the mixture starts to turn sugary and harden too fast, return the pan to the heat for a few minutes, then spoon out again.

Boy, I can taste one now. So if you're still doing your holiday baking, give these little jewels a try. You'll love 'em. — Heloise

SAVING WATER

Dear Heloise: I place an empty quart mayonnaise jar in each of our toilet tanks, away from any moving parts.

The jar fills with water, then each time the toilet is flushed, the quart of water remains in the tank. There's still sufficient water for a proper flush, but we figure we save several hundred gallons a year in water conservation.

That helps the old pocketbook too. — Ede Hall

STUFFED TOYS

Dear Heloise: When

making stuffed toys, how do you put in the shredded foam without it's going everywhere and sticking all over but where you want it? — Virginia Rush

Try running enough hot water in the shower to make the bathroom steamy. Stuff those toys with the foam in the bathroom and the added moisture in the air should settle the foam down a bit.

Some have had luck spraying the foam with anti-static spray before using it. — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: They say having children late in life keeps you feeling young and alive.

Then why do I feel 90 when I'm only 55? — Mrs. J.A.P.

Obviously, whoever coined that phrase never had children late in life...

— Heloise

MONEY SURPRISE

Dear Heloise: I come from a big family and have several little nieces and nephews, so consequently there's not a lot of mad money handed out.

Whenever I find a cash refund offer I can use, I have the refund sent to one of the children. It's a big thrill to a child to get his or her own mail, but when the mail contains money — WOW! — Rosemary Brown

Bet you're tops on their list — you are on mine. — Heloise

Is something funny givin' you the giggles? Send your Letter of Laughter to Heloise care of this newspaper. She can't answer your letter personally but, soon as she stops smiling, she'll use all the letters good for a giggle in her column.

Challenge grant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Endowment for the Arts says its Challenge Grant Program — which has awarded $84 million since 1977 in matching grants to cultural organizations — has generated nearly $500 million in new money from private and local sources nationwide.

Solar water heating

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (AP) — Approximately one of six householders covered by a recent survey said they would use solar energy if they were to replace their present water heaters.

The survey sampled the 1.3 million residential customers of General Public Utilities Corp. in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

"About half of those responding said they would prefer natural gas and a fifth electric heaters," said Veronica A. Gearhart, GPU's economics analyst. The rest listed bottled gas, oil or coal.

The survey showed the main reason householders would switch to different water heaters is that they would cost less to operate than the alternatives.

Incumbent losers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter became the seventh incumbent President to lose office in a general election.

Before Carter, the most recent was Gerald Ford, who was defeated by Carter.

Open house: 'Shared ownership' plan

By JAMES M. WOODARD
Copley News Service
New concepts are emerging that will help families enjoy the benefits of home ownership even in today's market of super-high prices and mortgage interest rates.

One such concept is now being called a "shared ownership" plan. It's basically designed to meet the need of a family who wants to purchase and reside in a home, but can't afford to totally own the home at this point. So they share ownership.

It involves a third-party investor who becomes a co-owner of the property with the home buyer-resident. The investor pays a large proportion of the cash required for down payment, closing costs and other purchase-owner-ship expenses.

For example, a family wants to buy a $90,000 home, but lacks the cash to swing the deal — $18,000 down payment plus closing costs. This particular family would also have a problem coming up with payments of $910 every month (payments on a $72,000 mortgage for 30-year term at 15 percent) plus taxes, insurance, etc.

At this point, the outside investor enters the scene. He pays 75 percent of all acquisition and ownership costs. In other words, he owns a three-quarter share of the property. The buying family owns one-quarter share and resides in the home.

Result: The family pays $4,500 down payment plus one-quarter of all closing costs. They move into the house and enjoy its benefits as though they totally owned it. Their monthly payments are $227.50.

The family also pays one-quarter of the property taxes, insurance, major maintenance costs, etc. They also pay rent to the investor for residing in his 75 percent portion of the property. However, the combination of the family's loan payments and rent does not total the amount of payments required for full ownership.

The benefit to the investor is, of course, receiving 75 percent of the equity build-up (profit) in the property. It is initially agreed that the home will be sold or the investor's equity-interest in five years.

It's an alternative to total home ownership. It allows a family with limited financial resources to enter the world of home ownership. They at least acquire an equity interest in the home in which they reside, and can genuinely express "pride of ownership" in their home. It can be a viable first step toward total home ownership.

Israel cracks down on its Arab minority

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Haunted by the fear of a hostile Palestinian sub-nation coalescing within its borders, the Israeli government has cracked down on its Arab minority. But critics say the move has only boosted the Arabs' nationalism.

The government took the controversial step of invoking emergency laws to outlaw a congress of Israeli Arabs that was to have been held earlier this month in Nazareth, capital of Galilee.

The harsh words that were exchanged between Arab and Jewish leaders were a reminder to Israel's 500,000 Arab nationals that their position is still precarious, 32 years after they chose to stay and live under Jewish rule rather than become refugees.

The congress organizers say they merely planned to set up a civil rights lobby. They ridicule the notion that they sought to form a separatist movement linked to the Palestine Liberation Organization. Israeli officials counter that the organizers are hardline Moscow-aligned communists, openly pro-PLO activists whose leaders are the only Israeli citizens to have met in public with PLO leader Yasser Arafat. The Arab leaders also support a Palestinian state on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

Israeli Arabs have long faced the dilemma of dual identity. A large majority has demonstrated loyalty to the Jewish state. But many of these same moderates are calling the banning of the congress a "fascist" tactic.

At least two Israeli Cabinet ministers have come close to suggesting, in the debate over the banned congress, that Arabs who do not like Israel can leave.

"For too long we have been more than good and unduly tolerant toward a small minority that serves non-Israeli interests," says Commerce Minister Gideon Patt. He adds that anyone who is unhappy here "can take a taxi out ... We'll even wave goodbye to him."

Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon threw in the warning that Israeli Arabs were risking a repeat of "the tragedy of 1948," when 800,000 Palestinians fled or were expelled to make way for Israel as a nation.

Tewfik Toubi, an Arab Communist member of Israel's parliament, says the attempt to link his party with the PLO is slander. "The representatives of the Israeli-Arab people are those we elect to parliament," he says, "not the PLO."

Several observers say the government fears the congress could lead to a united Israeli-Arab party running for office in elections next year, instead of splitting its vote among several Jewish-led parties.

Israeli Arabs complain that although they have the vote, freedom of travel and the highest standards of living, health and education in the Middle East, they are in many ways second-class citizens.

There are no Arab Cabinet ministers or senior decision-makers. Arabs have difficulty renting homes in Jewish neighborhoods. They are exempt from army service, but this closes them off from large segments of the job market.

Atallah Mansour, a noted Israeli Arab political journalist, calls the situation "civilized, cultural apartheid between Arabs and Jews."

Arab town councils in the predominantly Arab Galilee complain that there is an eight-to-one ratio of aid given to Jewish over Arab development projects, as part of the government's plan to "Judaize" the northern region.

The higher Arab birthrate has been described by Israelis as a "demographic time bomb" to the Jewish state. Arab villages that lack indoor plumbing and electricity have watched new, industrialized Jewish towns spring up in Galilee as part of a campaign to offset a growing Arab population.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir recently dedicated a new Jewish settlement near Hadera. "No longer is this a Galilee of gentiles, but of Jews," he said.

Responds Arab nationalist poet Samih elQasim: "That is telling a man that his children are a dagger to the state."

In 1976, Arab anger at the seizure of their land in Galilee for Jewish settlements erupted into clashes with Israeli soldiers that left six Arabs dead.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Open heart surgery: Is it common practice?

Dear Dr. Solomon: It seems to me I know a number of people who have had, or are going to have, open-heart surgery. I also seem to be meeting people who know others who have had, or are going to have, such an operation. Are open-heart operations as common as my experience would indicate? And how safe are they? — Shirley.

Dear Shirley: While you would not call open-heart surgery a common procedure, more than 100,000 such operations are being performed each year. The reason for this sizable number is due, in part, to improvements in the procedure and in the postoperative care that have made the operation much safer than it used to be. The result has been a significant reduction in postoperative mortality.

For example, the mortality rate for coronary artery bypass surgery, which accounts for about one-half of all open-heart surgery, is now only about 0.5 percent. Ten years ago it was seven percent. Similarly, the mortality rate associated with replacement of various heart valves is now 5 percent, compared with a figure of 20 percent ten years ago.

Postoperatively, sophisticated monitoring systems have been developed to help keep track of a patient's cardiac output and artery resistance, among other factors. This permits problems to be identified and treated without unnecessary delay. Dr. Gott foresees even greater improvements in patient care and survival in the future.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is meant by "malignant" hypertension? I don't understand the relationship between high blood pressure and cancer. — Gus.

Dear Gus: "Malignant" hypertension is not associated with cancer. The word is used to describe an accelerating type of high blood pressure in which the systolic reading may go well over 200, while the diastolic pressure may be as high as 150. The condition is a serious one, and calls for prompt and sustained medical care.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Having enjoyed and benefited from your column immensely, we are pleased to see a medical doctor of your caliber emphasizing good nutrition and exercise as imperative to overall health maintenance programs. You have opened the eyes of a nation of readers who have heretofore neglected personal responsibility for their own well-being. From the questions your audience asks it is obvious that people today want to improve their present state of health as well as prevent many of the current degenerative diseases. — Lani Miller and Diane Rodgers, Central Point, Ore.

Prosecutor resigns job, says officials interfered in handling drug case

BALTIMORE (AP) — A former Texas federal prosecutor contends he resigned his job last week because U.S. Justice Department officials interfered with his handling of a cocaine case, according to the Baltimore Sun.

The newspaper reported Sunday that Assistant U.S. Attorney Daniel C. Guthrie Jr. resigned from his job following a dispute over the case of Samuel J. Weisgal, whose father is an official with the Israeli government.

Guthrie said he was under "tremendous pressure" to transfer the cocaine conspiracy case involving Weisgal from Dallas to Baltimore for a "sweetheart" plea bargain.

Guthrie, who resigned Wednesday, said one of the telephone calls about the case came from an executive assistant to U.S. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti. Civiletti, a former Baltimore attorney, said he had no knowledge about the case when the telephone inquiries were made.

The former prosecutor said he received a request to transfer the case from Dallas to Baltimore under Irvin B. Nathan, a deputy assistant attorney general in the department's Criminal Division.

He said Nathan told him that Fred Weisgal, the defendant's father, had requested the case be transferred to Baltimore.

The request to move the case, which Guthrie said was the largest cocaine case prosecuted in Texas, was "outrageous and unthinkable."

Weisgal, 27, is to go on trial Jan. 19 in Dallas on charges he conspired to import 110 pounds of cocaine valued at $3.5 million.

Guthrie charged that Nathan left several telephone messages before the two finally spoke on Nov. 18.

Nathan told the Sun he spoke to Guthrie to relay the elder Weisgal's request that the case be transferred. Nathan, however, denied that he made any recommendation about transferring the case to Baltimore.

Weisgal, who is head of the American law section of the Israeli Ministry of Justice, denied he contacted Nathan or any other Justice Department official. The elder Weisgal, who emigrated to Israel in 1969, was a prominent civil liberties attorney in Baltimore.

Ken Mighell, U.S. attorney for North Texas, said no one from the Justice Department pressured him about the case. Mighell said Ann F. Hoffman, an executive assistant in Civiletti's office, "passed on a request from family members in Baltimore" that the case be transferred.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

If only I could touch him!

When Jesus had gone across by boat to the other side of the lake, a vast crowd gathered around Him on the shore.

The leader of the local synagogue, whose name was Jairus, came and fell down before Him.

Pleading with Him to heal his little daughter. "She is at the point of death," he said in desperation. "Please come and place Your hands on her and make her live."

Jesus went with him, and the crowd thronged behind. In the crowd was a woman who had been sick for twelve years with a hemorrhage.

She had suffered much from many doctors through the years and had become poor from paying them, and was no better but, in fact, was worse.

She had heard all about the wonderful miracles Jesus did, and that is why she came up behind Him through the crowd and touched His clothes.

For she thought to herself, "If I can just touch His clothing, I will be healed."

And sure enough, as soon as she had touched Him, the bleeding stopped and she knew she was well!

Jesus realized at once that healing power had gone out from Him, so He turned around in the crowd and asked, "Who touched My clothes?"

His disciples said to Him, "All this crowd pressing around You, and You ask who touched You?"

But He kept on looking around to see who it was who had done it.

Then the frightened woman, trembling at the realization of what had happened to her, came and fell at His feet and told Him what she had done.

And He said to her, "Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace, healed of your disease."

Easier entry set for foreign doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department is adopting revised regulations designed to expedite the entry into this country of foreign physicians and nurses who agree to take jobs in U.S. areas where there are shortages of medical personnel.

In an announcement Sunday, the department said it was specifying doctors, nurses and a few other specialists on the government's alien labor precertification register of immigrants given preference for entry visas.

Physicians will be cleared for entry if they go to work in 1,855 localities — largely in the Southeast — where the Department of Health and Human Services has determined there is a significant doctor shortage in particular specialties.

Comic rebuilds his TV career

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marty Ingels knew it was time to quit when he had to be carried off the set of Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show, a quivering, quaking emotional wreck.

That was four years ago. Today the former comic has turned the "whole Hollywood garbage rat race" that led to his breakdown into a multimillion-dollar business placing celebrities in television commercials.

After years of harassing show business agents for work, suddenly they are calling him. Instead of worrying whether his career will be cut short by some nameless television executive, Ingels is busy building careers.

The biggest problem facing the man who once confessed he agonized about "whether I will be funny tomorrow" is overseeing the opening of a Tokyo branch.

Ingels Inc. is a huge success, and Marty Ingels says he has never been happier.

"Basically I dropped out of show business because I couldn't control anything," he says. "Whether or not you worked as a comedian was up to some guy with an anonymous list somewhere. Now I'm in control."

What Ingels is in control of is a firm with 38 employees in six cities, a business he says has "revolutionized" the way Hollywood works and has made him a hero among celebrities tired of cutting through the layers of show business bureaucracy.

"Celebrities are surrounded by arsenals of assassins whose whole job it is to set you off your track,"

Friedkin to produce film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Academy Award-winner William Friedkin will produce and direct the film version of Gay Talese's best-seller "Thy Neighbor's Wife."

Stephan Burns has been signed for a starring role in the returning ABC series "240 Robert".... Barbi Benton stars in the psychological thriller "Be My Valentine, Or Else..."

John Huston will play the town constable in MGM's "Canney Row."

Ingels says. "After my breakdown, I realized everybody in the world was always trying to get in touch with someone in Hollywood. Projects of all kinds were dying on the vine because people were not getting through to the right person."

While Ingels has made that idea pay off — grossing more than $2 million last year — it wasn't easy getting started.

"At the beginning I was constantly in tears on the telephone," he says. "One guy said, 'You're a has-been comedian.' The transition was very hard. But people finally got the idea it wasn't Ingels the comedian calling, but Ingels the arranger."

What Ingels is best at is getting through directly to the celebrity a company wants to hire for a commercial, sparing the caller the trouble of contacting various agents, business managers, lawyers and receptionists to get an answer.

Ingels is proud of what he has done — building a new career and family life with his wife, actress Shirley Jones — and spares no humility in congratulating himself.

He claims to have been instrumental in putting together "anything (commercials) you see on the air" and says Burt Lancaster, Lee Grant, Rod Steiger and Cary Grant have called to ask him to find products for them to sell on the air.

The improved production values in the commercial-making business has made his job easier, he says. "Commercials are not only not an onus now, but Bill Cosby got a television series ("Fat Albert") out of his wonderful Jell-O commercials with kids. Mariette Hartley after 22 years had to wait for a silly Polaroid commercial to do well."

Ingels knows all too well the ups and downs of a show business career. He was on top with a television series in the 1960s. "I'm Dickens... He's Fenster," then hit bottom with a divorce, near bankruptcy and the emotional breakdown.

"I've been called everything from a crude upstart to the Henry Kissinger of commercials," he says, referring to industry reaction to his business. But the talk doesn't bother him.

"Now agents and celebrities are calling me," he says. "How can I complain?"

Tuesday Weld in new version of 'Madame X' on NBC

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tuesday Weld will star in a new two-hour version of the classic "Madame X" for NBC.

"Madame X" began as a play in France and has been made into six previous motion pictures. The first was in 1915 and the last was in 1966 starring Lana Turner.

Miss Weld plays Holly Richardson, who marries into a wealthy political family and is forced to abandon her husband and daughter by a tragic accident.

Cowboys win, but Eagles do the celebrating

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The losers drank champagne.
The Philadelphia Eagles, who suffered through 20 years in the National Football League without a divisional title, earned the National Conference Eastern Division crown Sunday although they stumbled 35-27 to the aroused Dallas Cowboys.

Both finished with 12-4 records but the Eagles had a 17-point edge on tiebreaker No. 5 — net points within the division. The two teams were tied in the first four categories.

TAUNTED BY Dallas fans as he left the field, Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski shouted back "But who won the division? Who won the division?"

The Cowboys, who actually made up the point differential early in the fourth quarter but lost it when Jaworski took the Eagles on an 85-yard touchdown drive, were relegated to the host NFC wild card role. Los Angeles, which beat Dallas 38-14

Monday night, will come calling Sunday, Dec. 28th.
The Eagles will play Los Angeles, if the Rams defeat the Cowboys, either Jan. 3rd or 4th. If Dallas wins, the Eagles host Minnesota.
Dallas players watched in amazement as the Eagles celebrated their loss.
"We win the ballgame and there they are celebrating like they won," said Dallas wide receiver Drew Pearson. "Everything just seems to get watered down this time of season, I guess."
ONLY THE Eagles were giving thanks with hardstuff, champagne poured into cups that read "Philadelphia Eagles — NFC East Champions — 1980."
"The Dallas Cowboys have been a thorn in my side since I've been playing football," said Jaworski. "His (winning the division) accomplishment and beating them out is something great for me."

Dallas gave a tremendous shot at making up a 25-point differential.
Quarterback Danny White threw four touchdown passes and ran for another score as Dallas Coach Tom Landry threw his normally conservative game plan to the winds.
White broke Roger Staubach's record for touchdown passes in one season — 28 — but also tied Eldie LeBaron's interception mark of 24 in the Dallas record books.
"Our feelings are mixed," said White. "Here we win the game and everybody is going around with hanging heads, it's strange."
Dallas led 35-10 early in the fourth quarter but Jaworski threw a 30-yard touchdown pass to Rodney Parker and Wilbert Montgomery, injured earlier, shook off his woody feeling to score another touchdown from six yards out.
THE GAME ended on a bizarre note with Dallas running out the clock and Philadelphia, trailing by eight points, refusing to call timeout.

Eagle Coach Dick Vermeil said, "I saw we lost the battle but won the war. Last year, we tied Dallas for the division but they won the point differential."
"I still think they are a better team than we are. They have better personnel and I personally can't hold a candle with Tom Landry."
It was the Eagles' first divisional title since 1960 when Chuck Bednarik led Philadelphia to the NFL championships.
Eagle wide receiver Harold Carmichael's NFL record of 127 games in a row with at least one catch went down the drain. He was knocked senseless by free safety Dennis Thurman in the first half and only played briefly in the second half.
"At first, I felt bad about having the streak stopped but I'm really happy about winning the division," said Carmichael. "I knew the only way the streak could be broken would have been to have gotten hurt early in the game."

Dallas built a 21-0 halftime lead on White's one-yard touchdown run and scoring passes of 36 yards to Tony Hill and 9 yards to Preston Pearson.
The Cowboys padded the lead to 35-10 with 10:30 to play and had dreams of holding on to win by 25 points, which would have given them the division title. However, the Dallas defense couldn't contain Jaworski.
LANDRY WAS critical of the NFL tiebreaking procedure, saying "When winning isn't the most important thing in a game, then something's wrong."
He added, "Our guys gave a great effort. I thought we were OK until we got the 25 point difference, then we lost our concentration. We didn't anticipate to be up by 25 points going into the game."
Tight end Keith Kreple of the Eagles said his team had nothing to be ashamed of.
"No one can say we didn't do a good job," he said. "I think we played like champions coming back from 25 points down. It's been 15 years for me. Just waiting for a championship. I've never felt this good after a loss."

For the Eagles Sunday, losing was everything.

Oilers gain playoffs again

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's offense sputtered in the first quarter, popped in the second and then exploded behind the thundering runs of Earl Campbell Sunday to send the Oilers to a 20-16 victory over Minnesota and into the NFL playoffs for the third straight year.
The victory, another in Houston's patented series of cliffhangers, assured the Oilers a wild-card berth in the National Football League's post-season competition, after Cleveland had won the AFC Central Division title with a 27-24 victory over Cincinnati.

AS USUAL, the Oilers refused to let the outcome be decided before the final play of the game when Minnesota quarterback Tommy Kramer, who had thrown a pair of touchdown passes earlier in the game to tight end Joe Senser, passed incomplete into the Houston end zone.
"My last throw wasn't a real smart one," Kramer said. "We had no time left on the clock and I should have waited for someone to get into the end zone."
The Oilers had completed an amazing turnaround, rallying from a 13-3 halftime deficit to take the lead for the first time on Campbell's 3-yard touchdown run with 1 minute 58 seconds left in the game.
Houston coach Bum Phillips didn't expect it any other way.
"We've always been a second-half team," he said. "There was never any doubt in my mind that we would come back. We're a stronger running team this year and I'm also not sure that we are not a better clutch team than we were before."

Minnesota players would not argue. Houston did not make a first down and had the ball only 2:45 in the first quarter against the NFC Central Division champion Vikings.
HOUSTON DID not really turn things around until the second half when Campbell rushed over 200 yards for the fourth time this season and quarterback Ken Stabler ignited Houston's passing game.
"What you saw in our last scoring drive was classic Stabler," Phillips said. "And it won't be long before they will be saying it was classic Campbell. Those guys just took over and decided to do something about it."
Houston squandered scoring chances in the first half and by intermission had managed only a 23-yard field goal from Tom Fritsch, set up by Vernon Perry's 32-yard interception return.
They went to work in the second half, however, with quarterback Ken Stabler completing a 7-yard touchdown pass to tight end Dave Casper and Fritsch adding a 31-yard field goal in the third quarter.
Minnesota rallied for a 16-13 lead with 9:57 left in the game on Rick Danmeier's 38-yard field goal following a Bobby Bryant interception that gave the Vikes possession at mid-field.
THE OILERS saved Campbell's heroics for the final moments after Fritsch missed on a 48-yard field goal try that would have tied the game but was blocked by defensive tackle Dave Roller.
But Stabler drove the Oilers 78 yards for the winning touchdown, hitting Casper for pass completions of 12, 8 and 31 yards and Mike Renfro for 12 yards before Campbell game-winner from the 3.

The Houston defense kept the Oilers in the game until the offense got rolling, intercepting four Kramer passes, including two that set up field goals.
Campbell finished with 203 yards on 29 carries and 1,934 yards for the season to win his third consecutive NFL rushing title. Campbell's four 200-yard games established a league record.
Kramer, who threw a touchdown pass on the final play last week to beat Cleveland, had the Vikings poised for a similar effort against Houston. He completed a pair of fourth-down passes to keep the drive going and took the Vikings to Houston's 10-yard line with three seconds to play. This time, however, Kramer's pass sailed incomplete into the end zone as time expired.
KRAMER FINISHED the game with 26 completions on 53 attempts for 266 yards. Senser caught eight passes for 54 yards and Ahmad Rashad caught six for 76.
Stabler and Casper, teammates a year ago at Oakland, supported Campbell's running in the second half. Stabler finished with 19 completions on 33 attempts for 239 yards, with Casper catching seven of them for 120 yards and Rich Caster nabbing four more for 72 yards.
The Vikings scored on their first possession of the game. Kramer hit his first four passes and completed 5 of 7 in the drive for a 6-0 lead. Houston defensive end Mike Stensrud blocked Rick Danmeier's extra point try.
The Vikes went 62 yards for a second-quarter score with Kramer completing a 13-yard pass on fourth down before hitting Senser with his second TD pass.
Campbell got a drive started in the second quarter with runs of 18 and 16 yards but three Oiler penalties killed the effort.

Cowboys end Carmichael's long streak at 127

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles head coach Dick Vermeil turned from a huddle on the sidelines with quarterback Ron Jaworski and wide receiver Harold Carmichael and yelled at his defensive team on the field as the clock moved into the final 90 seconds.
"A turnover! Cause a turnover!" Vermeil screamed.
But the Cowboys ran three more plays, letting the clock expire on their 35-27 victory over the Eagles.
And so a planned short screen pass from Jaworski to Carmichael never came about, and Carmichael's record of receptions in consecutive National Football League games (called The Streak) ended at 127.
The 6-8, 225-pound Carmichael went 0-for-3 Sunday. Dallas safety Dennis Thurman knocked him out of the game with a jarring sideline tackle on a pass three minutes before the end of the first half. Carmichael returned for one play in the second half, but was only part speed because of his injured tailbone.

"I could run straight, but I couldn't make the cuts," said Carmichael, who was pounded into the turf when Thurman put his shoulder pad and helmet into Carmichael's upper chest.
"I'm sorry he had his streak stopped, but he was hurting. He wanted to come back in, but we both felt he couldn't run his routes," Vermeil said. "I had planned to put him in the game there at the end to maybe get his catch, but we never got the ball back."
Carmichael thought about asking to go back in earlier in the fourth quarter, but Jaworski was moving the Eagles downfield on a quick six-play, 85-yard drive that cut Dallas' lead from 35-10 to 35-17.

"We were trying to get some points on the board, and our guys were doing the job. So I felt if the streak had to come to an end, well, let it. I felt bad at first, when I realized the streak was over, but what really put a lid on that, what really put a cover on that, was us winning the division championship," Carmichael said.
Although the loss dropped the Eagles into a tie with Dallas with a 12-4 record in the NFC's Eastern Division, Philadelphia won the tiebreaker for the division crown by scoring 16 more points than the Cowboys in division play. A 25-point edge, which the Cowboys had briefly in the fourth quarter, would have given Dallas the title.
"It was a great honor to have, something great to hang onto, a record nobody else had, but the division title, that's what is great," Carmichael said.

"As far as the record goes, there never was that much pressure, although other people thought there was, maybe. Sometimes, when it got to the fourth quarter and I hadn't caught a pass, I'd put pressure on myself to catch one, but the record wasn't as big as me doing my job."
Carmichael, in his 11th year in the pros, predicted his record will fall.
"Somebody will break it. I broke it, and somebody else will come along and break mine," he said.
The crushing hit by Thurman on Carmichael came on a pass by Jaworski lofted toward Carmichael, who had two Cowboys covering him along the left sidelines in front of the Philadelphia bench.
"Jaworski tried to put it between myself and Steve Wilson," Thurman recalled. "I saw Steve tip the ball away out of the corner of my eye, and I didn't know where it was going, so I hit him (Carmichael). It was one of the few times you get a chance to take a clean shot at a receiver, and I got to take it," Thurman said.

"It felt good. I wasn't out to hurt him. ... It'll just be a great trivia question 10 years from now, who stopped the streak, that's all. He's a great receiver. It would have had to be something like that, an injury, to stop that streak," Thurman said.
Vermeil and Jaworski verbally blasted Thurman for the shot and officials for not throwing a flag, but Carmichael said he didn't consider it flagrant.
"I don't think so. He knocked my feet out from under me, and I hit the ground."

Pittsburgh Steelers won't win Super Bowl title this year

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Steelers are out of the playoffs, their dream for an unprecedented third consecutive Super Bowl title at an end. But the Steelers will have a say in deciding which team, San Diego or New England, completes the National Football League's 10-team playoff field.
Buffalo and Cleveland won division titles and Houston and Oakland assured themselves of postseason berths by winning their games Sunday. Those decisions wiped out Pittsburgh's playoff chances.
But the San Diego Chargers must beat the Steelers tonight to make the playoffs, and they know that won't be easy.
"This is our Super Bowl," said Hank Bauer, San Diego's special teams star. "Their pride is hurt. They want to show the country they are the champions they are. Anybody who thinks they won't be motivated is crazy."
Steelers wide receiver Lynn Swann agreed, "Revenge is always a great motivator," he noted.
If the Chargers win, they will be the American Conference's West Division titlists. But if they lose, the AFC West title goes to Oakland, a 33-17 winner over the New York Giants Sunday, and the New England Patriots would go into the AFC wild-card game with Houston.
New England stayed alive by beating the New Orleans Saints 38-27, but failed to overtake Buffalo for the AFC East title because the Bills defeated the San Francisco 49ers 18-13. The AFC Central championship went to Cleveland, which edged Cincinnati 27-24, while the Houston Oilers won a wild-card berth by trimming the Minnesota Vikings 20-16.
The only other division that had not been decided was the National Conference's East, and the Philadelphia Eagles won that even though they lost to the Dallas Cowboys 35-27. The clubs finished in a tie with 12-4 records, but Philadelphia earned its first division title in 20 years on the basis of net points in division games.
However, Dallas' triumph did give the Cowboys the home field advantage in next Sunday's NFC wild-card game against the Los Angeles Rams.

Bills 18, 49ers 13
Buffalo won the AFC East for the first time since 1966 as Nick Mike-Mayer's third-quarter field goal from 25 yards out snapped a 13-13 tie. The Bills added a safety when 49ers punter Jim Miller was tackled in the end zone following a bad snap from center.
San Francisco drove deep into Buffalo territory midway through the final period before Earl Cooper fumbled and Mario Clark recovered at the Bills' 5-yard line.
Patriots 38, Saints 27
The Patriots fell behind 13-3 but rallied behind Matt Cavanaugh, who threw three touchdown passes. New England's victory kept its playoff hopes alive and killed those of the Steelers — and ironically, it was engineered by a former University of Pittsburgh quarterback.
"I don't feel bad, but it is hard to believe," Cavanaugh said of the Steelers being out of the playoffs. "They've been in there for a long time."
Browns 27, Bengals 24
Brian Sipe fired three touchdown passes for Cleveland, but it was a 22-yard field goal by Don Cockroft with 1:25 to play that provided the margin of victory and put the Browns into the playoffs for the first time in eight years.
Sipe completed 24 of 44 passes for 308 yards to raise his season total to 4,132 yards and join Joe Namath and Dan Fouts as the only NFL passers to reach the 4,000-yard plateau.
"That's a record that they hang on a quarterback, but the whole team has to take credit for it," said Sipe. "I think I get too much credit for what goes on around here. We have some very shrewd receivers."
Raiders 33, Giants 17
The Raiders assured themselves of a playoff spot by beating the Giants as Jim Plunkett, their resurrected passer, threw touchdown passes of 31 yards to Cliff Branch and 37 yards to Raymond Chester.
"I don't think anyone would have given us any odds that we'd be in this position at the end of the year," said Raiders Coach Tom Flores. "Everyone was saying we'd be lucky to win four games, to finish out of last place."

The ability of Plunkett to step in for injured quarterback Dan Pastorini was one of the keys to Oakland's season.
"Right from the beginning of the season, Jim was on the sideline, ready to come in," said Flores. "He came in and pulled it all together. When you have your backs to the wall, there are two ways you can deal with it. You can run away or you can climb over the wall."
Rams 20, Falcons 17, OT
Los Angeles beat Atlanta on Frank Corral's 23-yard field goal midway through the 15-minute overtime period.
Rams linebacker Joe Harris sacked Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski deep in his own territory to force a fumble. Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi decided to go for the win right away and sent in Corral for the game-winning kick on first down.
Chiefs 38, Colts 28
Second-year quarterback Bill Kenney, making his third straight start after not playing a down for his first 29 pro games, threw three touchdown passes to lead the Chiefs over the Colts.
The game drew a crowd of only 16,941, the smallest home attendance in the 28-year history of the Baltimore franchise, and the smallest NFL crowd in six years.
Lions 24, Packers 3
Detroit, 2-14 last season, beat Green Bay to finish this year at 9-7, its first winning record since 1972. Gary Danielson completed 17 of 26 passes for 219 yards and one touchdown for Detroit.
Redskins 31, Cardinals 7
Joe Theismann fired three touchdown passes, two of them to Art Monk, as the Redskins beat the Cardinals.
Broncos 25, Seahawks 17
Matt Robinson, a surprise starter, passed for one touchdown and ran for another for Denver. Fred Steinfort added four field goals, including one from 55 yards and another from 53.

New England running back Allan Clark (35) picks up short yardage before Saint Larry Collins (43) makes the stop in a key NFL game Sunday in

New Orleans. The Patriots won the game, but still have to keep eyes glued to the TV tonight to see if they make the playoffs. (AP Laserphoto)

Lee faces Andrews today

The local basketball scene has a light schedule this week, but the Midland Lee Rebels of coach Paul Stueckler do have an ambitious non-conference clash with the powerful AAAA Andrews Mustangs today at 8 p.m. in the Lee gym.

Andrews is 11-2 on the season after suffering a loss Saturday in the finals of the Reese Air Force Base Christmas Classic in Lubbock. The Mustangs lost to El Paso Andrews, a team that beat Lee by only three points on Friday in the same tournament.

Lee, who is now 7-7 on the season after a 1-2 weekend in the Lubbock tournament, will be trying to get on the winning side of the season record, but it could be a tough chore against the high flying Mustangs. Lee is on a two game losing streak since defeating a good Canyon team Thursday. Lee then lost to Andrews and District 5-5A foe Big Spring Friday and Saturday.

A junior varsity matchup between the same two teams is set for 6:15 p.m.

The Andrews-Lee battle is the only local action this week.

Meanwhile, Midland High, who dropped its first game of the year to San Antonio Judson in the Optimist Classic Friday by a 74-64 count, will lick its new found wound this week. The Bulldogs still own a hefty 13-1 record after a 2-1 reading in the Optimist tournament. The Pack defeated

San Antonio Central Catholic with a 90-point burst and defeated a strong Houston Smiley team before losing to Judson.

The Bulldogs will not be back in action until next Monday when they travel to the Hobbs Invitational, which features state powers from New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma and California. The Bulldogs make up the state power from Texas. That tournament will run through Wednesday.

Both the Midland High and Midland Lee girls teams are open this week. Lee won second place in the Tall City Girls Invitational Saturday while MHS won consolation honors. Both teams had 2-1 records in the tournament.

Wilkins discredits Mojo pull

The air of superstition surrounds two of the state's schoolboy football champions. While Coach John Wilkins of Odessa Permian doesn't put much stock in it, the head mentor at Pittsburg admits to having come across a "good-luck charm."

Wilkins, whose West Texas squad captured the 5A crown with a 28-19 comeback win Saturday over Port Arthur Jefferson, said "hard work" was responsible for the win — not Mojo, the "hex" Permian fans use on unsuspecting opponents.

But Mojo believers may want to take at least part of the credit for the Texas Stadium turnaround.

Dale Carr dashed six yards and Kent Sager scooted another 40 yard touchdowns late in the fourth quarter as Permian wiped out a 19-7 halftime deficit.

"Mojo takes away from what the kids have accomplished," Wilkins said. "I don't resent it, but to say it's mystical, that we win with a mystique, is not giving credit where it is due. This is a product of hard work."

But Permian closed the gap to 19-14 when quarterback Jimmy Hix hit tight end Jimmy Morris on a 38-yard scoring pass with 37 seconds left in the third quarter.

Then Permian recovered a fumbled Jefferson punt reception at Port Arthur's 44-yard-line and Carr put the West Texans ahead with 4:13 left. After a fourth-down pass by Dodge fell short near midfield, Sager scored with only 73 seconds left.

"They (Permian) are winners," Jefferson Coach Ron Thompson said.

"They didn't roll over and die when they were down. That's the sign of a good team. And they are a very good team."

Van Vleck's lone safety was the only score by a AAA team off the Pittsburg defense this season. The Pirates had tallied a streak of 42 consecutive scoreless quarters until the second-quarter safety — a state record.

Pilot Point and Tidehaven battled to a 0-0 tie and settled for a co-championship in AA.

New England still on hold

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots will be in a huddle tonight at Schaefer Stadium, but it will be at the locker room television set, not on the playing field.

After a come-from-behind victory against New Orleans on Sunday, the Patriots still have a chance at a National Football League playoff berth, but it's dependent on Pittsburgh's game against San Diego.

"Only God knows what's going to happen," offensive tackle Shelby Jordan said. "And he's not talking."

If Pittsburgh beats San Diego in tonight's game, the Patriots, now 10-6, earn a wild-card berth in the American Football Conference playoffs, along with Houston. A Pittsburgh victory also would give the Oakland Raiders the AFC West championship.

But if the Chargers win, New England will be out in the cold for the second year, and San Diego joins the Buffalo Bills and the Cleveland Browns as division winners in the playoffs, bumping the Raiders back to a wild-card berth. In the event of a tie, Oakland wins the division and the Chargers get in as a wild-card team ahead of the Patriots.

"Most of the guys will be at the Stadium watching and hoping," said Patriots Coach Ron Erhardt. "Their Christmas party is in the afternoon and most of them will stay around and watch the Steelers game upstairs."

"I'm going to be watching that game, rooting for Pittsburgh," defensive

Now we know. Mr. Big Eye, of cyclops of the electronic age, is not quite as captivating a creature when he's lost his tongue. Come on back, Howard. All is forgiven.

The novel and gutsy experiment with announcerless football by NBC's Don Ohlmeyer was a noble gesture. But, in the case of football, it just won't play.

The network whiz knew this when it first became the germ of an idea. With him, tough, it was half revolution, half crusade.

If it produces even a small curtailment of the endless drivel that accompanies modern sportscasting, it will have served its purpose.

The idea could work effectively in tennis — and perhaps even be a TV boon to a sport dulled by idle colloquy. Certainly, it could work in boxing and, to a lesser degree, in golf, which needs a TV stimulus.

But in team sports — football, baseball, basketball and ice hockey, played with large numbers of competitors, moving constantly in and out of the game and performing sophisticated maneuvers that often require professional definition — the 21-inch screen is hardly adequate.

The Big Eye can follow men to the moon and even record wars on the face of planets millions of miles away. Yet it can't simultaneously follow the movements of 22 men scattered over a 100-yard gridiron. It doesn't have peripheral vision. It can't get all the action in.

In Saturday's game in Miami between the Dolphins and the New York Jets, Ohlmeyer sought to discover if he could give TV's millions of viewers

Midland Native places third at Sunland Park

SUNLAND PARK, N.M. (AP) — Easy Zipper, who'd been running on the Texas bus track circuit crashed into a big-time ranks with a neck win in Sunday's $139,226 Fall Quarter Horse Futurity at Sunland Park.

The filly's victory came as little surprise, since she operated in the 400-yard dash as the second favorite at just over 2-1.

Easy Zipper, owned by Jerry and Peggy Stone of Lolita, Texas, picked up winnings of $69,613 and stamped herself as a major league contender. She went into the Futurity with skimpy earnings of $3,836 with a record of 2-2-0 from six starts.

The filly paid $6.20 to win, $3.60 to place and $2.80 to show.

Runnin Barre, owned by Robert and Juanita Bellenger of Paola, Okla., earned $23,668 for second and paid $5.40 and $4.80. Midland Native collected $13,922 for third and paid $2.80. Midland Native, a son of Heisanative, is the property of Howard Crouch of Midland, Texas.

The Fall Futurity helped close out the fall season. Sunland action resumes Jan. 2.

Hearty 150 fans greet champion Eagles home

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles, newly crowned champions of the National Football Conference East, returned home early today to a cold but hearty welcome from about 150 fans, friends and family members.

The fans, braving 17-degree temperatures along the runway at Philadelphia International Airport, waited for about one-half hour until the Eagles' plane landed from Dallas, where Philadelphia clinched the NFC East crown Sunday despite a 35-27 loss to the Dallas Cowboys.

"I feel great, I just wish they had won," said Sandra Humphrey, wife of Eagles defensive end Claude Humphrey. "We wanted the whole thing and we could have beat them too."

About a half-dozen wives were toting bottles of champagne which were passed around after the team got off the plane.

Mrs. Humphrey said no special celebration had been planned.

"I just want to take my man home and give him a good rub down," she said.

DALLAS, Texas (AP) — Alabama's Paul "Bear" Bryant — who hopes the 1981 Cotton Bowl will move him one step closer to becoming college football's winningest coach — says he expects the Baylor Bears to be "foaming at the mouth" when they play the Crimson Tide in the New Year's Day football classic.

Bryant said his team's 9-2 regular season record didn't please him, so a Cotton Bowl victory is needed to help salvage the season. Alabama won its first six games and was the top-rated team in the nation until the Crimson Tide lost a 6-3 game to Mississippi State.

Bryant said his team's 9-2 regular season record didn't please him, so a Cotton Bowl victory is needed to help salvage the season. Alabama won its first six games and was the top-rated team in the nation until the Crimson Tide lost a 6-3 game to Mississippi State.

"A 9-2 record doesn't satisfy me," said Bryant, who has averaged 9.3 wins since becoming Alabama's coach 23 years ago. "It would probably satisfy 95 percent of the people in the country, but not me. I'm not supposed to be satisfied."

Bryant's record of 305-79-16 is now just nine victories behind Amos Alonzo Stagg's all-time record of 314 wins. Pop Warner has 313 wins.

Baylor will be no pushover for Bryant's 306th victory.

"They're a well-coached team," Bryant said. "They're big, active and strong. And they'll be foaming at the mouth to get us because we beat them pretty bad in Birmingham last year." Alabama beat Baylor 45-0 in 1979.

The sixth-ranked Bears, 10-1, could have been playing for the national championship if they hadn't suffered a mid-season lapse and lost to surprising San Jose State.

The Bears are led by junior running back Walter Abercrombie, who led the Southwest Conference in rushing with an average of almost 106 yards per game. Running mate Dennis Gentry was second in the league in rushing with an 88.3 yard average.

Baylor ranks sixth in total team offense, sixth in rushing offense and 13th in scoring offense. Defensively, Baylor finished eighth in rushing defense.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff was named the AP's coach of the year in the Southwest Conference, and one of his SWC colleagues said this of the Baylor coach: "You never find a team of his caliber. If they fire Teaff or he leaves, it would be a great service to the other eight schools in the SWC. No other guy could have done what he's done at Baylor."

Bryant brings great tradition into the Cotton Bowl. The Dallas game will be Alabama's 34 bowl appearance, including 22 consecutive appearances — both records.

Baylor, by contrast, has been in nine bowls, and was in none from 1963 to 1975. Teaff took the Bears to their only previous Cotton Bowl appearance in 1975, a 41-20 loss to Penn State. Until Teaff came to Waco, it was said the only thing cheaper than a Baylor ticket was two Baylor tickets.

Now Teaff has a chance to add even more to Baylor's new luster — a victory over Bryant's team on national television would add immensely to Baylor's prestige.

Gator Bowl finally strikes talent gold

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Gator Bowl, after years of carrying the label of being the biggest "minor bowl" has struck gold in 1980.

This year's game will feature third-ranked Pittsburgh, 10-1, against 18th-ranked South Carolina, 8-3, and a matchup of Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers, the Gamecocks' premier runner, and Pitt's superb defensive end Hugh Green, who finished second in the balloting.

The game will be played Monday night, Dec. 29 and will be televised nationally by ABC starting at 8 p.m. CST.

As an added attraction, the game could produce the national champion if Pitt wins, top-ranked Georgia falls to Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day and No. 2 Florida State stumbles, adding fourth-ranked Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl later that night.

"We think the game itself, considering the quality of the teams involved, will be outstanding," said Tommy Gay, head of the team selection committee. "But having the No. 1 and No. 2 college players in the game and the possibility that it could have a bearing on the national championship are an added plus."

"We never could have imagined that everything would turn out like this," Gay said. "Pittsburgh is the highest-ranked team we've had here and the attraction of Rogers and Green will make it a natural for Monday night football."

The meeting of Rogers, who gained 1,781 yards rushing this season, and Green, winner of the Lombardi and Maxwell awards, is believed to be the first time the top two Heisman vote-getters have appeared in the same bowl.

Rogers will be the fourth Heisman winner to play in the Gator Bowl, but only the second to play in the year in which he won. The other was John David Crow, whose 1957 Texas A&M team lost 3-0 to Tennessee.

Auburn's Pat Sullivan played in the 1977 Gator Bowl, but didn't win the Heisman until a year later and Earl Campbell, the 1977 winner, played in the 1974 game as a freshman at Texas.

The game has been sold out since Nov. 7 — a week before the teams were announced, earliest in Gator Bowl history. Officials attributed booming ticket sales to anticipation that South Carolina would be the host team, not the Rogers-Green matchup.

"As soon as we confirmed that we were seriously considering South Carolina, the tickets started going like hotcakes," said Gay. "We were telling people that they were non-refundable, but they kept buying them anyway."

Mike Howard, publicity coordinator, likened the ticket rush to 1977 when Clemson — another South Carolina school — met Pitt here. "We set a record of 72,289 that year and probably could have sold every seat in the stadium in Clemson fans."

Howard said that by agreement of the schools South Carolina received 18,000 tickets and Pitt only 5,000. "I can't think of any other teams that have as fanatical a following as Clemson and South Carolina. Any time they're coming we're going to fill it up."

Ags, Cougs shine bright

By The Associated Press

The Texas Aggies and the Houston Cougars have brand new shiny trophies on display in their athletic departments today.

The next time you hear from them they'll be out West where snow wouldn't be a bad idea for after-game wear.

A&M overcame some atrocious free throw shooting to beat Virginia Tech in the finals of its own tournament 55-52 at Blacksburg, Va.

The Houston Cougars downed Wyoming 70-61 in the finals of the first annual Kettle Classic tournament in Houston.

The No. 13 ranked and 7-0 Aggies take a week off before playing Monday, Dec. 29th in the KOA Classic in Billings, Montana against first round opponent California-Ervine.

Houston, which is 7-1, plays Tuesday night at Nevada-Reno then travels to a place colder than Billings — Alaska — for two games against Anchorage.

For A&M, it was their second trophy in two weeks. The Aggies took the First Union Invitational two weeks ago in Charlotte, N.C.

The victory over Virginia Tech was a big one, said Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf.

"They've only lost 29 games in 20 years here and we played hard," said Metcalf. "You would have thought we were playing for the national championship."

"We overcame a lot of adversity," said Metcalf. "We played smart in the second half. It was our most important win of the year."

In other games Saturday night involving SWC teams, Houston won the first annual Kettle Classic with a 70-61 victory over Wyoming behind guard Rob Williams' 17 points; 19th ranked Arkansas downed Eastern Kentucky 80-74; Texas mashed North Texas State as Henry Johnson scored 36 points; Oklahoma City bumped Baylor 89-61, and Texas-Arlington routed Southern Methodist 78-56.

Warmup time is at hand

By The Associated Press

Like any prime television attraction, the New Year's Day bowl games need a warmup, someone to come on and whet people's appetite for the star of the show.

The warmups for college football's national championship take place next weekend at Tempe, Ariz.; El Paso, Texas; Memphis, Tenn.; and Birmingham, Ala. Their names are the Fiesta Bowl, Sun Bowl, Liberty Bowl and Hall of Fame Classic.

THE MAIN fireworks occur the following week, starting with the Gator Bowl — which has a chance to make history — Dec. 29 and ending with an anticlimactic Peach Bowl Jan. 2. In between, there will be a New Year's Eve party — also known as the Bluebonnet Bowl — plus the four old faithfuls on Jan. 1 — the Sugar, Cotton, Rose and Orange Bowls.

Not only can the Gator Bowl advertise the Heisman, Lombardi and Outland Trophy winners — South Carolina's George Rogers and Pitt's Hugh Green and Mark May — but it has a chance to make history.

No national champion has ever come-out of a bowl other than the Big Four and third-ranked Pitt will put in its claim for the honor provided (1) it defeats No. 18 South Carolina while (2) seventh-rated Notre Dame knocks off No. 1 Georgia in the Sugar Bowl and (3) fourth-ranked Oklahoma takes care of runnerup Florida State in the Orange Bowl.

The other Jan. 1 pairings are No. 5 Michigan-No. 16 Washington in the Rose Bowl and No. 6 Baylor-No. 9 Alabama in the Cotton Bowl.

The highest ranked team in action during the preliminaries is No. 8 Nebraska, which meets No. 17 Mississippi State in the Sun Bowl at El Paso on Dec. 27.

WARMPUP WEEKEND actually starts on Friday, Dec. 26, when No. 10 Penn State faces No. 11 Ohio State in the Fiesta Bowl at Tempe. Besides the Sun, Saturday afternoon also lists the Liberty Bowl in Memphis between Missouri and Purdue while the Hall of Fame Classic Saturday night in Birmingham matches Tulane and Arkansas.

While Ohio State had hoped for a trip to the Rose Bowl — that flopped via a 9-3 loss to Michigan — Penn State is more than happy to be in the Fiesta Bowl. Different strokes for similar 9-2 folks.

"I don't know where we would be if the seniors on this team hadn't committed themselves to the fact that an 8-4 season (in 1979) was not the way Penn State does things," says Coach Joe Paterno. "At the end of last season, a lot of people had doubts whether Penn State could do what we wanted to do in the way we wanted to do it."

"We came out of last year with a bunch of guys who believed in themselves. It's easy to keep it going, but it's different when you've fallen and you're down. To see this team come together and accept the challenge is gratifying."

SAYS OHIO State's Earle Bruce: "Of course, I am disappointed that we didn't win the Big Ten championship, but that is past. Now we have to concentrate on the Fiesta Bowl. We can still have a fine season with a win over Penn State."

Although Nebraska is a two-touchdown favorite over Mississippi State, the Sun Bowl poses some interesting statistical comparisons. Nebraska is second nationally in total offense (506.9) and scoring (39.9), tops in rushing (378.3), third in total defense (209.1) and rushing defense (86.4) and second in scoring defense (8.5).

Mississippi State appears among the leaders only in rushing offense (seventh at 285.0) but the Bulldogs excel in the specialty phases. Glen Young is fourth in kickoff return with a 27.6-yard average and Mardy McDoyle is ninth in punt returns (10.9).

In the Liberty Bowl, Purdue will be trying to keep its perfect postseason record intact. It currently stands at 3-0 and the Boiler-makers boast an All-American passing combination in quarterback Mark Herrmann and tight end Dave Young. Mizou counters with quarterback Phil Bradley, the Big Eight's career total offense king.

FINALLY, SOME thoughts from Arkansas' Lou "Always Good For A One-Liner" Holtz on the Hall of Fame Classic:

"We're giving our players some time off just before the bowl because they didn't get home for Thanksgiving and won't be home for Christmas. Of course, they will be home for New Year's, but that's the one holiday I didn't want them to be home for."

"We're looking forward to the trip. We'd rather have a better record, but no one should think for one minute we're not proud to be going to the Hall of Fame Bowl. Alabama went to bowls with a 6-5 record when it was building toward a national championship."

The Razorbacks had to beat Texas Tech 22-16 in their finale to avoid embarrassing the Hall of Fame game with a 5-6 team.

"I was a little leery of showing up at War Memorial Stadium," Holtz quips. "I figured a lot of our fans would go duck-hunting and those who didn't would bring their guns to the stadium."

"We feel that we have a championship coach and a championship team with all of us dedicated to a single purpose — winning for our fans," said Rams owner Georgia Frontiere.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — After leading the Los Angeles Rams into the playoffs for three straight seasons, head coach Ray Malavasi has signed a new three-year contract with the National Football League club.

Terms of the deal, which was announced at halftime of the Rams-Atlanta Falcons game Sunday, were not disclosed.

"We feel that we have a championship coach and a championship team with all of us dedicated to a single purpose — winning for our fans," said Rams owner Georgia Frontiere.

Tangerine victory gives Collinsworth a boost

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A Tangerine Bowl victory can't erase wide receiver Cris Collinsworth's memories of the frustration he endured through most of his four years at the University of Florida. But it at least makes it all seem worthwhile.

"I just wanted to go out a winner and we did," Collinsworth said Saturday night after he caught eight passes, including two for touchdowns, as the Gators rolled past Maryland 35-20 before a record Tangerine Bowl crowd of 52,541.

The triumph improved Florida's record to 8-4 and climaxed one of college football's most startling turnabouts. The Gators, coached by Charley Pell, went 0-10-1 in 1979 and this season became the first team to receive a bowl berth after being winless the year before.

Collinsworth, who also caught two passes that set up short scoring runs, received the game's Most Valuable Player award for his efforts, which included returning two kickoffs for 41 yards and two punts for 9 in addition to his 166 yards receiving.

"Being MVP doesn't mean a thing to me. People said this team was down and on the way out after losing three of the last four," the Titusville, Fla., senior said. "But this team had too much heart to give up now."

Collinsworth's touchdowns came on passes of 24 and 21 yards from freshman quarterback Wayne Peace as the Gators withstood a 39-carry, 159-yard rushing performance by Maryland's Charlie Wysocki.

Terrapin placekicker Dale Castro kicked three field goals in the first half while the Gators fashioned a 14-9 halftime lead and booted a fourth — from 42 yards out — to give Maryland a 20-14 lead five minutes into the third quarter.

Florida's Roger Sibbald mishandled the second half kickoff and the Gators were forced to begin their possession from their own 4-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Maryland safety Ralph Lary stepped in front of a Peace pass intended for Collinsworth at the Florida 15 and returned it to the 1.

Wysocki, voted the game's outstanding offensive player, bulled in for the touchdown and quarterback Mike Tice ran for a two-point conversion and a 17-14 Terrapin lead only 12 seconds into the third period.

Manning to retire after sad season?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — With their worst ever 1-15 season finally over, at least three veterans of the New Orleans Saints say they may retire before National Football League play gets under way again next year.

And those veterans include star quarterback Archie Manning.

Manning has said he owes it to his family and himself to consider his future — in or out of the National Football League.

Strong safety Ray Brown, who represented Atlanta in the Pro Bowl before he was traded to the Saints three seasons ago, said he definitely won't be back in New Orleans next year.

"I really don't know," he said after the Saints lost to New England Sunday, setting a dismal NFL record of 15 losses in a season.

"I'm seriously thinking of retiring. I won't be back with the Saints next year. I'm 100 percent sure of that."

"I love New Orleans. I've had three good years here, but I won't be back."

Defensive tackle Derland Moore, an eight-year NFL veteran, said he's going to Missouri, where he said he'll take about a month to sit and think about the future.

"I may buy a farm up there and chop cotton and grow tomatoes."

He said his decision will be determined at least in part by the Saints' decision on a new coach.

Four weeks ago, with the Saints mired at 0-12, Dick Nolan was fired as head coach. An old friend and assistant, Dick Stanfel, was promoted from offensive line coach to fill the job.

Nebraska's Osborne convinced to relax training rules

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — It might have been the mariachi musicians in the airport lobby or the young women in red, yellow, blue and green dresses stomping and spinning Latin dances.

Or maybe it was the "Sun Carnival Queen," Cheryl Ward, and her "ladies in waiting" greeting the arriving Nebraska football players with warm smiles and occasional kisses.

Whatever the reason, Head Coach Tom Osborne stepped off the team plane Sunday afternoon, surveyed the colorful scene in this border city and conceded he will have to relax training rules — at least for a while — pending his Sun Bowl showdown Saturday against Mississippi State.

"I'd like for the players to have some fun as well as play a good football game, so during the first two or three days we'll let them look around a little bit and probably not bed-check them real close," said Osborne, who had to raise his voice at times to be heard over the sounds of guitars, trumpets and violins of the strolling mariachis.

He told sportswriters that the Sun Bowl game will be "the most important game of the year for us" because of the final national rankings. At present Nebraska is No. 8 and Mississippi State is ranked 17th, and a loss could knock Nebraska out of the top 10 where it has been nine out of the past 10 seasons.

"This gives us an opportunity to play well on national television and end up fairly well in the national rankings, and so as far as I'm concerned, it's the most important game of the season," said the red-haired coach.

Saturday's nationally televised game is expected to draw a sellout crowd of more than 30,000. Both Sun Bowl teams are 9-2, but Nebraska, is a two-touchdown favorite.

Because of mechanical difficulties before takeoff, the 115-man squad arrived nearly two and a half hours late, and Osborne whisked his players on waiting buses after only one routine by the "Hermitas" dancers. A spokesman said four routines had been planned.

The Mississippi State squad arrives Tuesday afternoon. "A lot of people feel Mississippi State will have an edge (in enthusiasm) and that we'll somehow be flat," Osborne said. But he said the Dec. 27 contest "is going to determine pretty much how this team is remembered — as being a real good football team or just an average football team. So our players and coaches to this point have approached it with a serious and positive attitude."

Osborne said because "we had to sit in Lincoln for two and a half hours" while another charter jet was readied he would have his team work out in sweatsuits for about an hour and 15 minutes Sunday afternoon. He had planned a 90-minute drill in pads.

The players, who arrived at 2:24 p.m. MST, were greeted at the airport here by about 200 residents, including an 11-man hospitality committee that invited the squad to the dog races in Juarez, Mexico, just across the border Sunday night.

A person inside a bright yellow, inflated "sun" known as the "Amigo Man" was in the reception line.

Osborne said being tagged a 14-point favorite "doesn't make any difference, except to gamblers. I don't pay any attention to it. Just because they (Mississippi State) don't have the tradition of Ohio State or USC or

Notre Dame doesn't mean we shouldn't take them seriously. "What we've got to worry about is the team they have right now, which is very good."

Tiny NFL crowd braves cold

NEW YORK (AP) — The 16,941 stalwart fans who braved temperatures in the mid-20s and bone-chilling winds to watch Kansas City's 38-28 victory over the Colts Sunday at Baltimore comprised the smallest National Football League crowd in six years.

contest between also-rans that was played in wet and chilly conditions. Atlanta went into that season-ending game 2-11, while Green Bay was 6-7.

The Colts distributed 29,936 tickets for Sunday's game, but there were 12,995 no-shows for the game which matched a pair of 7-8 teams.

NFL officials confirmed Sunday night that the sparse crowd at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium was the smallest turnout in the 28-year history of the Colts and the smallest for a regular season NFL game since the Green Bay at Atlanta contest on Dec. 15, 1974 drew just 10,020 persons.

There were 48,830 no-shows when the Falcons beat the Packers 10-3 in a

Chargers down to do or die tonight

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A year ago, when the San Diego Chargers dismantled eventual Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh 35-7, little was on the line.

This time, a season is at stake for the Chargers — and punctured pride for the Steelers.

Out of the playoffs for the first time since 1971, Pittsburgh can play spoiler in tonight's nationally televised meeting. San Diego, 10-3, must win to repeat as AFC West champion. A Steeler victory would allow Oakland to win the title and end San Diego's season.

"We want to shoot the works," said Steeler center Mike Webster.

Hank Bauer, San Diego's inspirational special teams leader, calls the game "our Super Bowl."

A sellout crowd of 52,000 is expected for the 8 p.m. CST contest at San Diego Stadium.

The Chargers are 3 1/2-point choice in the rematch between the two clubs who tied for the best record (12-4) in pro football last year.

Pittsburgh, 9-6, was eliminated from postseason play Sunday when AFC contenders New England, Oakland and Houston won.

"I think the pride factor will carry us — and the people on this team do have a lot of pride," said Pittsburgh defensive end John Banaszak.

"We have no illusions at all," said San Diego Coach Don Coryell. "We know they want to go out a winner."

"Their pride's hurt," said Bauer. "They want to show the country they are the champions they are. Anybody who thinks they won't be motivated is crazy."

"Revenge is always a great motivator," said Steeler wide receiver Lynn Swann.

The game marks an end to the long career of Steeler running back Rocky Bleier, who has announced his retirement.

San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts, who has been rewriting the NFL record books with his passing, faces a Pittsburgh defensive line that ranks last in the league in sacks.

On the other hand, San Diego, which capitalized on seven turnovers in last year's romp, is the NFL sack leader. However, the Chargers could be missing starting defensive end Fred Dean, whose 5-day-old daughter died Wednesday. Dean, voted the AFC's top defensive lineman last year, was described as "deeply troubled" and listed as doubtful.

Fouts, who broke Joe Namath's all-time single-season passing yardage mark last year, broke his own mark last week against Seattle. He enters the game with 4,407 passing yards this year, three 1,000-yard receivers and the Chargers' strongest running game in years.

UCLA, DePaul headed for college showdown

By The Associated Press

The UCLA Bruins and DePaul Blue Demons are cruising toward a Dec. 27 meeting that could shake up college basketball's leading trioka for the first time since the season began.

The third-ranked Bruins will bring a 6-0 record to the Horizon in Chicago next Saturday, coming off an impressive 73-49 victory over previously undefeated Temple at Tokyo's Yoyogi Gymnasium Sunday.

Top-ranked DePaul, meanwhile, won the Chicagoland Classic championship over the weekend, beating Northwestern 62-54 in the title game Saturday. Coach Ray Meyer has guided his Blue Demons to eight straight victories this season and now has 630 victories in his career.

DePaul and UCLA — with Kentucky sandwiched in the middle — have held their respective spots in the poll since the first week of the season when defending NCAA champion Louisville's 86-80 loss to DePaul knocked the Cardinals out of the No.3 spot.

"It will be close," 18-year-old UCLA freshman forward Kenny Fields said of the UCLA-DePaul encounter, "probably decided in the last three minutes."

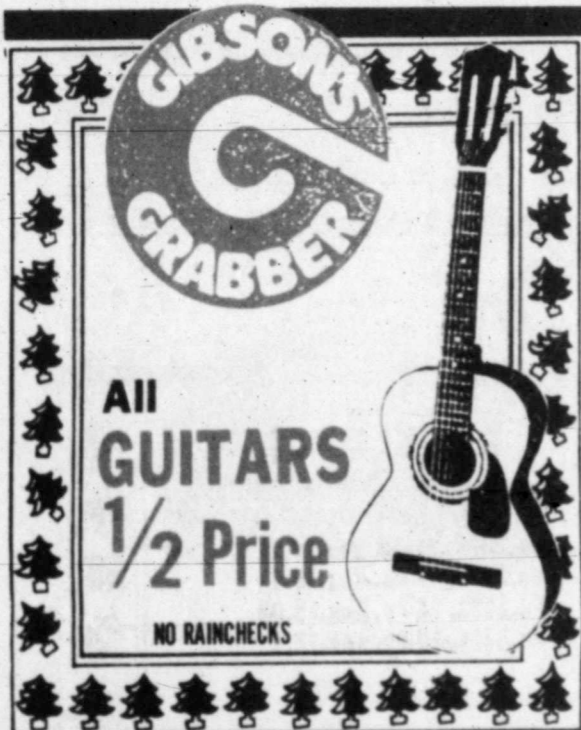

Fields and frontcourt mate Mike Sanders each scored 14 points to help the Bruins coast by Temple in the first U.S. college regular-season basketball game played in Japan.

The Bruins led 49-29 with 15 minutes left in the game. Temple then ran off a string of five straight points to cut the margin to 15, but that was as close as the Owls could get the rest of the way.

Soviets sticking to guns on invasion of Afghanistan

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — One year after the Kremlin sent troops into Afghanistan, some Soviet officials have admitted they may not have weighed all the "pros and cons" in advance. But they say they are convinced it was worthwhile, and claim it has revealed some sharp divisions in the Western alliance.

"It was something we felt we had to do," a Soviet foreign affairs specialist said in a recent interview. "I don't think that when the decision to go into Afghanistan was made, there was a very careful weighing up of the pros and cons. But in the long run, it seems to have been worth it."

The Soviet Union still faces international condemnation, trade restrictions and a grueling guerrilla war in Afghanistan itself. But the officials, who declined to be identified, say they believe international opposition has passed its peak and the Soviet army is gradually pacifying the anti-communist Moslem rebellion in Afghanistan.

On the plus side for Moscow, the prospect of a militant Islamic, anti-Soviet Afghanistan on its southern border has been destroyed for the time being, the officials say. They add that Third World countries and the West have seen that the Kremlin does not shy from defending its vital interests — by force if necessary.

In addition, they believe Moscow's Afghan intervention has revealed cracks in the Western alliance.

Despite a Western trade embargo sponsored by the Carter administration, Soviet business this year with France, West Germany, Italy and Britain is running at more than the level of business last year. Canada and Australia have removed ceilings on grain sales to Moscow imposed after the Afghan intervention.

Western diplomats counter that the Soviets still face many problems over Afghanistan, perhaps so many that thoughts of other military intervention — in Poland, for instance — have been shelved.

These sources say the Soviet Army has suffered more than 7,000 casualties in a year of fighting elusive, poorly equipped guerrilla forces. It has failed to get much help from the desertion-plagued Afghan army and has no early prospect of being able to withdraw, the diplomats say.

"They thought that if the great, mighty Soviet army went in there, the resistance would just fold up like it did in Czechoslovakia in 1968," one Western specialist said. "It didn't happen."

Rival wings of the pro-Soviet Afghan government continue to attack each other under the Soviets' noses, according to reports from the area. Rebels reportedly control much of the countryside and the anti-Soviet guerrilla resistance is too diffuse to negotiate with, even if Moscow wanted to.

"I'd say the Russian army is trapped down there for at least an other year or two, unless they can negotiate with someone," a Western diplomat said. "They're probably also facing the temptation of escalation, which would take them in deeper in the hope of finishing the job against the rebels."

Western sources also reject the Soviet assertion that international furor is dying down over Afghanistan. They note that U.S.-Soviet trade is expected to decline 20-30 percent from last year, mostly due to a U.S. grain embargo that many believe also has produced a decline in Soviet meat production.

To protest the Afghan intervention, the United States also shelved the SALT II treaty, putting off any effort to seek Senate ratification of the new strategic arms limitation agreement, and many Western countries have cut off or reduced cultural ties with the Soviet Union.

Yet Moscow is hoping the West and its news media have a limited attention span. The Afghan crisis was not mentioned directly in the presidential debate this year between Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, and more newspaper space has been devoted recently to Poland and the Iran-Iraq crisis than Afghanistan.

Many Soviet officials believe that, if the Soviet Union continues grimly pursuing its present Afghan policy despite all obstacles, the West will eventually lose interest in the matter and agree to rebuild the crumbling bridge of detente.

Mondale discusses past four years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale says the Carter administration presented too many issues at once, and may have ineffectively "explained to the American people the nature of the difficulties" the nation faced.

"The public-education role of the president is a crucial element and I'm just not satisfied we made that case sufficiently," Mondale adds.

In a wide-ranging interview Saturday, the vice president also said he is "very worried about U.S.-Soviet relations." "It just baffles me why the Soviets these past few years behaved as they have," he said, noting the Soviets' arms buildup and intervention in Afghanistan. "When we're playing these games of chess with the lives of others, that... embitters the American political dialogue."

Turning to his personal future, Mondale refused to be specific about what he plans to do after leaving office Jan. 20, but said, "I very much want to stay in public life."

Scavenger's life better this year

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Last year, Edell Sansbury's Christmas was fraught with worry because her husband, Raymond, had been arrested for scavenging old clothes from the dump as gifts for their seven children.

This holiday season, the family is enjoying a four-bedroom home and the prospect of seeing their happy-ending story on a movie screen next year.

"People were really caring about somebody that needed help," says Sansbury, 34. "It made me believe more in people."

This time last year, Sansbury was working as a garbage collector and earning $112 a week. His wife worked at a fast-food restaurant, and the family lived in a $15-a-month wood shack without running water.

They came to national attention when Sansbury rummaged through the dump and salvaged seven pairs of shoes, two pairs of boots, a handbag and 40 pieces of clothing.

He was spotted by the operator of the landfill, and authorities later traced his license number and arrested him for trespassing. He faced a maximum penalty of a $100 fine and 30 days in jail since it is illegal under South Carolina law for private citizens to take things from dumps.

But the story of his troubles soon reached newspapers, radio and television, and thousands of people responded with Christmas cards, letters, gifts and cash.

The money eventually amounted to $30,000, which the family used to buy a house and a second-hand car. The last of the money was spent this week.

"I didn't want to waste it up," said Sansbury.

After the public outcry over the case against Sansbury, county officials dropped the charges.

A shy, quiet man, Sansbury was a bit unnerved by all the attention. Four months ago, he and his boss agreed his nerves were so bad that he should quit his job.

Now he spends his time working on his pale green, wood-sided house, painting the bedrooms and tending the yard. His wife babysits part-time and takes care of their children, who range in age from 3 to 13.

The movie is expected to go into production in February. Drew Cummings Productions of Tarzana, Calif., purchased the rights to the Sansbury story, and the $1.7 million motion picture is to be filmed in the Myrtle Beach, S.C., area.

The Sansburys are hoping that their take from the movie — which has not been determined — will be enough to keep them off the welfare rolls.

For Mrs. Sansbury, 29, the changes have been a dream come true.

"I used to come home and look at the walls and worry a lot. I used to have to be at work, and now I'm home with my children," she said.

Before last Christmas, Mrs. Sansbury said she had a recurring dream of a "clear spot with trees around it."

"I had this same dream three times and it scared me because I thought the Lord was showing me my grave," she said.

"After the last time I dreamed it things started happening. Now I know it was just the Lord letting me know he had a place for me."

Jail probe started over sex charges

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Two Smith County commissioners say they will ask their colleagues today to join their demands for a formal investigation into a female inmate's allegations that jail officials demanded sexual favors in return for special treatment.

The woman claims five Smith County jailers have promised preferential treatment to female inmates who accept the officers' sexual advances. Commissioners Jerry Shamburger and Merlon Ammons told the Tyler Morning Telegraph they think an outside agency should investigate the allegations.

"The sheriff probably already has begun an internal investigation," Shamburger said. "But because a county facility is involved and any lawsuit that may be filed would involve the county, I feel that a thorough probe should be conducted."

Sheriff J.B. Smith said if the female prisoner will take a polygraph test, he will give one to his jailers. But the sheriff said the woman's attorney, Dwight Cook, refused.

"If they (the jailers) fail on the lie box, I'll be the first to press charges against them," Smith said.

Cook said he had asked that the woman be moved to another cellblock because she has been "abused by other prisoners and by jailers making sexual advances," but Smith refused.

Autoworkers average $11.16 per hour

DETROIT (AP) — Here is how wages at the major U.S. auto companies have changed over the years compared with wages in manufacturing as a whole, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The figures are average hourly wages in September each year before taxes and exclusive of fringe benefits. Inclusion of fringes would widen the autoworker lead.

Union leaders talk over wage freeze

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — Leaders of the United Auto Workers union gathered today to discuss a wage freeze requested by Chrysler Corp. after the troubled automaker's chairman said he has nothing to offer workers "except their jobs."

The 200-member Chrysler Council, consisting of officers of Chrysler local unions, was being asked by UAW President Douglas Fraser to authorize re-opening of contracts signed in October 1979 and reduced in January in two concessions to the Chrysler automaker.

"We don't see any other choice," Fraser said after Chrysler's request last week.

The freeze, designed to save $600 million by September 1982, is an essential part of Chrysler's appeal for $400 million in government-guaranteed loans.

The Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board must have "some indication" of the union's reaction before it could give even conditional approval to the loan request, Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca said after meeting last week with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, who chairs the board.

For that reason, Chrysler will wait until after the council acts before formally submitting its plan to the loan board.

"Boys, you've been the highest paid group of guys in the world. We've shared with you. It's freeze time. Chrysler has good jobs at $17.50 an hour. It has none at $22," was the way Iacocca explained his message to the union.

His figures were the approximate 1981 hourly cost of labor to the company with a freeze and the September 1982 cost without one if inflation continues at 10 percent.

Other elements of Chrysler's plan call for a price freeze by suppliers and conversion of bank loans into preferred stock. Altogether, Chrysler is trying to cut 1981 expenses by $1.5 billion.

Iacocca said the survival plan was "rigid" and not subject to bargaining in the usual sense of the word. "The pieces have to come together, or the mosaic will fall right off the wall," he said.

Any wage freeze could not be ratified until after the 69,000 active Chrysler production workers return to their plants from an extended Christmas break on Jan. 12, the UAW says.

Chrysler says at some point it will run out of cash if it does not get the loans in January. Already, the company has almost run through $800 million in guaranteed loans, and, though its sales have improved over last year, the industry-wide slump caused by peaking interest rates will cause a loss of about $200 million in the fourth quarter instead of the profit predicted during the summer.

Fraser observed last week that it was the first time the union had been involved in saving a Big Three company, "but those of us who've been around the parts industry know we've sometimes had to re-open contracts to help companies out."

Meanwhile, in a telegram to President-elect Ronald Reagan, the UAW urged a "summit conference" on the auto industry to avoid "literal collapse" in the months ahead.

Reagan, speaking Sunday after attending church services in Pacific Palisades, Calif., said he would be "very happy to meet" with Fraser.

Are U.S. autoworkers overpaid?

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Autoworkers have long been among the best paid industrial workers in the United States, but that may be changing.

Chrysler Corp. workers are being asked to accept a wage freeze until September 1982, a move that would reduce pay by $600 million from what is called for in the company's contract with the United Auto Workers.

The freeze is being proposed as part of a package to keep Chrysler operating, and there is no question that factors other than pay scales helped that fellow goes home at the end of the day, say with two hours overtime, he's one tired individual. He's welded 700 cars. There's a lot of stress. He's not overpaid.

"We do have people with a lot of absenteeism and sick time. That's what management complains about. You never hear management complaining that we're overpaid."

Debs' plant makes the successful "X-car" compact for General Motors Corp. Only a handful of plants have much overtime this year, and nearly 190,000 autoworkers are on indefinite layoff.

An hour's labor from the average wage earner cost GM $18.60 in the third quarter, and costs Chrysler $17.31 now. The worker doesn't see all of that because fringe benefits are a large part.

His union brothers at Chrysler will take a pay cut, Debs predicts. "We'll do anything to save our jobs."

That's a good thing, says Robert M. Dunn Jr., an economist at George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

"It's about time for U.S. autoworkers to stop moaning about our economic plight and do something about it, like take a sizeable pay cut," he says.

Autoworkers have been paid well, in Dunn's view, because for decades the industry has been highly concentrated, with high profits going to few producers. Because the industry was concentrated, it was easy for the UAW to organize workers and gain a larger share of the profits through strikes and the threat of strikes.

Their pay lead over other industrial workers, "remarkably, has widened as the American auto industry's troubles have worsened," he wrote recently for the Washington Post.

In the 1950s, when three-quarters of the world's cars and trucks were built in North America, automakers were more profitable than other manufacturing companies.

North America now builds about a third of the world's vehicles, imports have 26 percent of the U.S. car market and last year the automakers were far less profitable than other manufacturers.

This year, of course, there are no profits. Car companies are losing vast sums — $3.5 billion for the Big Three in the first nine months of the year.

But the autoworker — if he is working — continues to do well. According to figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, workers making "motor vehicles and car bodies" made an average of $11.16 before taxes in September, not counting fringe benefits. That was 50 percent more than the average factory wage. A year earlier, the lead was 43 percent. In 1963, the lead was 33 percent.

In the past, union and company representatives have argued that growing productivity justified the ever-better wages. Peter Pestillo, Ford's vice president in charge of labor relations, said recently, "Our productivity growth is still good, but the tremendous investments costs we have put us at a disadvantage."

Ford Motor Co. already has said it probably would seek union concessions if Chrysler wins a wage freeze. Dunn said General Motors Corp. could tolerate Ford success only briefly: "They can't stand a cost structure so different for their competitors. They'll scream."

cause the company's current problems.

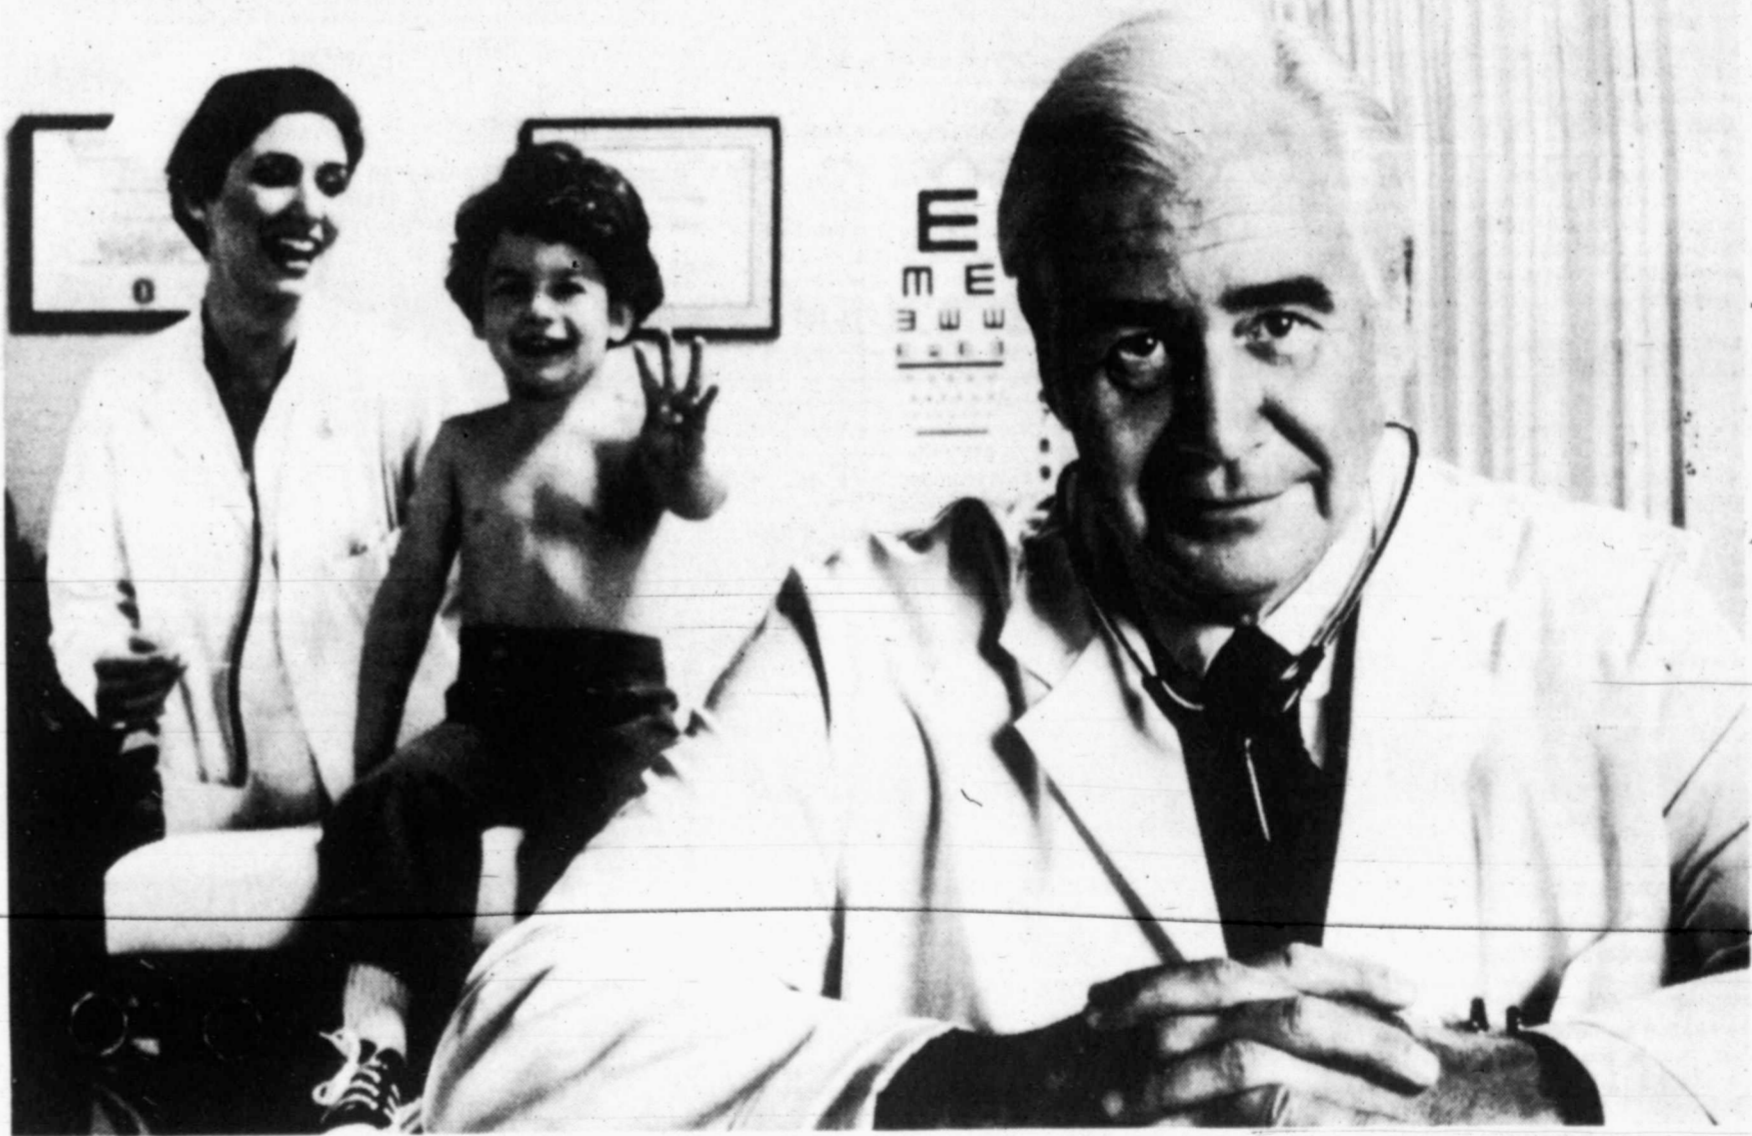

But the proposal, which the UAW confronts today, does raise the question of whether American autoworkers are overpaid.

Richard Debs, president of United Auto Workers union Local 1776 in Ypsilanti, Mich., states the autoworkers' case:

"I hear that argument a lot. My reply is that based on the profits the corporations have been making until recently, we're not overpaid. Autoworkers are productive, hardworking people.

Cubans find homeland virtually closed again

MIAMI (AP) — Thousands of Cuban-American exiles who rejoiced when Fidel Castro's government relaxed restrictions on travel to their homeland nearly two years ago are finding the doors to the Caribbean island virtually closed again.

A year ago, about 10,000 exiles were traveling to Cuba to visit relatives each month. But the Cuban government gradually reduced the number of Cuban-born visitors in 1980 and some exiles fear the trips may end.

"It's political. It's probably a wait and see game between Fidel and (President-elect Ronald) Reagan," said Frank Masdeu, executive vice president of American Airways Charters, the Hialeah-based company with exclusive right to coordinate U.S. trips to Cuba for exiles.

Officials estimate that fewer than 10,000 exiles will be allowed to travel to Cuba in the next six months. As a result, at least one travel agency has a four-month backlog and another has a waiting list of more than 3,000.

Masdeu said about 1,800 exiles traveled to the island in October. The number dropped to 1,250 in November, 1,000 this month and only 600 will be allowed to visit in January, Masdeu said.

"The Cubans have reduced the operation very much," said Myles Frechette, head of the State Department's Cuban Desk in Washington.

"It's clear they don't want people going down there, other than those who behave themselves."

Last week, Castro told delegates attending the Second Communist Party Congress that exiles could continue trips to Cuba as long as their behavior is not "counter-revolutionary." He added that Reagan's actions would determine if exile flights are continued.

AAC has filed a flight plan with the Civil Aeronautics Board requesting permission for 78 flights — with a capacity of 1,600 people a month — for February through July 1981.

The Cuban government cleared the way for exiles travel in January 1979 and the Caribbean island reaped immediate benefits.

More than 100,000 Cuban-Americans — many of whom waited in dawn-to-dusk lines to buy an $850 ticket to Cuba — visited the island and poured over $100 million into the Cuban economy.

Abscam defense continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Abscam bribery trial of Rep. Richard Kelly was to resume today with further defense questioning of J.P. Maher, a former top aide to the Florida Republican.

Kelly has claimed his acceptance of $25,000 from an undercover FBI agent Jan. 8 occurred only because he was conducting his own investigation of whether criminal elements were attempting to infiltrate his office.

After the Abscam case had broken publicly, it was revealed as well that Maher once had been arrested in Bolivia on a drug possession charge.

The trial is scheduled for a holiday recess Tuesday, resuming Dec. 29.
