Carter likely to suggest registering women

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is proposing that men and women aged 19 and 20 be registered for a military draft, probably beginning this summer, White House officials say

However, the president is unlikely to advocate changing the law banning

Furthermore, the White House staff considers the question of drafting women into the armed services hypothetical "and likely to remain so," according to an official, who did not wish to be identified.

An announcement detailing the president's recommendations was expected at the White House later today.

Carter's recommendation to register women for the first time in the nation's history is expected to face trouble in Congress. It will be requested in separate legislation so as not to jeopardize early implementation of registration for Administration officials envision the male registration program as beginning this summer, probably at post offices around the country. There was no telling when or if Congress would order women to register.

Although White House officials acknowledge the female registration issue will be controversial, they are not ready to buy House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill's duties and there is no thought of changing that," an official said.

While the issues of registering and drafting women may be linked in many minds, they are being treated separately at the White House. For instance, the possibility was raised that women, even if they register, never would be drafted.

"It would be unlikely that you would need to draft women even if you chose to 6 million persons.

gument that it would never pass.

"Right now the volunteers among women are more than adequate to meet their (military) needs." he said. "The actual fact of drafting women — the question in real terms — is mostly hypothetical and is likely to remain so." All of the White House officials willing to discuss the proposals did so on the

He is asking for an extra $10 million for the Selective Service to implement the new program. Though Carter currently has authority to order draft registration of men, he needs congressional approval for his suggestion to include women. The current law calls for registration of men between the ages of 18 and 26. However, there are an estimated 16 million men and 16 million women between the ages of 18 and 26, and the military reportedly only needs a pool of 4 million to

Scientists sift ashes in prison ruins

More bones unearthed

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - While scientists uncovered more bones in the ruins of New Mexico State Penitentiary, a corrections official said there appeared to be no truth to reports that a bloody 36-hour uprising at the prison was sparked by racial ten-

"This is one of the least, least, least racially tense institutions I have ever been in," Joanne Brown, administrative assistant to the director of corrections said Thursday after Jessie Wright, a black inmate, told a reporter the weekend riot in which 33 prisoners died had "turned into a racial

Meanwhile, University of New Mexico scientists raking through rubble in the prison's burned-out gym and found bones, but officials were uncertain whether they were those of some of the dozen inmates still unaccounted for.

Deputy District Attorney Dick

Baker said the remains of three bodies were removed from the gym earlier this week, but it had not been determined if the bones discovered by forensic anthropologists were from those bodies.

Ms. Brown said the dead inmates had about the same racial mix as the overall prison population - 60 percent Hispanic, 29 percent white, 10 percent black and 1 percent Indian. Only one of the dead identified was a black inmate, she said.

Black inmates have been segregated from other inmates in the prison since police and National Guardsmen on Sunday ended the seige that left much of the prison a shambles and some inmate victims mutilated beyond recognition. "We seen plenty of killings," Wright said earlier this week. "It was just senseless, brutal massacre butchery, just all-out butchery. They were actually stacking bodies on the stage in the gym and burning them. That's why they'll never get a full count.

Authorities do not have a complete list of prisoners because some of the 1,000 survivors are refusing to give their names. Officials have been fingerprinting and interviewing them in an attempt to get an accurate count.

Prison Warden Jerry Griffin said he would not know whether any more bodies would be found in the prison until "every single inch is examined with a fine-tooth comb.'

Prison officials planned to bring in a police special weapons team to search the entire complex to see if inmates could be hidden somewhere.

Two buses carrying about 40 black inmates left the prison Thursday morning for transfer to the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

Another big chunk of the money would be used to help lower-income Americans pay rising energy costs. That, along with the general tax reductions, would leave considerably less money than Carter had requested to develop synthetic fuels.

Major winter storm expected in the Basin

A major winter storm was expected to move into the Permian Basin area today, bringing with it snow, rain, colder temperatures and hazardous driving conditions.

But as of early this morning only a trace of moisture had been recorded at the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport. Elsewhere in the area, however, rain and sleet were reported at Big Spring, while other Permian Basin communities were reporting light rain, high winds and cold temperatures. The forecast issued by the NWS is calling for cold temperatures tonight and Saturday with an 80 percent probability of snow tonight. Accumulations of two to three inches are expected by Saturday morning, the weatherman predicted, and will cause hazardous driving conditions.

A travelers' advisory is in effect through Saturday morning, according to the weather service.

Skies will be partly cloudy in Midland on Saturday afternoon, the NWS said. Low temperature tonight is expected to be in the lower 20s and the high on Saturday should be no more than the upper 30s.

Winds tonight will blow out of the northeast at 5-10 mph.

Around the area this morning light rain was reported at Lamesa and Rankin reported a heavy mist. Big Lake reported receiving .12 inch of rain. Other area communities reported high winds and cold tempera-

Authorities said a male caller said: "There is a high explosive device in the building," and then hung up.

Bush continued speaking, but officials said the program was speeded up, and a bomb squad and the fire department were called to search the building as Bush spoke.

As Bush began his remarks, John Oppenhimer, a local campaign official, came up and whispered to him.

The candidate then announced to the crowd: "I don't want to panic anybody, nor do I want anybody to walk out in the middle of my speech, but he (Oppenhimer) said someone phoned that there is some powerful explosion in this building.'

Bush cut his remarks short by about 10 minutes and instead stood by the door and shook hands with the audience as it left.

Bani Sadr cracks down on militants

By The Associated Press

President Abolhassan Bani Sadr consolidated his power in Iran today and intensified his crackdown on the young militants holding some 50 Americans hostage in the U.S. Embassy.

Hopes increased for the release of the hostages soon. But the ruling Revolutionary Council said the crisis would be considered after an international panel is set up to probe its charges against the shah. It did not say whether the captives would be freed at that time or after the investigation is over.

Tehran Radio announced the elevation of the president from acting chairman to head of the council with the consent of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the 79-year-old leader of the Iranian revolution.

Hasan Habibi, the council's spokesman, said Bani Sadr would chair the policy-making council's sessions, exercise the council head's legislative and executive powers and "harmonize proceedings" with government ministers who are not members of the council.

Habibi indicated that this setup would continue until a Majlis, or parliament, is elected March 7.

The announcement confirmed Bani Sadr, who got 75 percent of the vote in the presidential election Jan. 25, as Iran's second most influential leader after the aged, ailing Khomeini, who is convalescing after a heart attack.

The president demonstrated his growing clout by attacking the militant young students occupying the American Embassy as tyrannical, lawless foes of the government for the second straight day Thursday. He also had the Revolutionary Council limit their access to the national radio and TV network and granted only four-day visas to the 49 Americans they invited to publicize their cause instead of the 10-day visas they sought.

Why do those students who call themselves followers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini violate the constitution by their illegal acts?" he said in a new attack on the militants for engineering the arrest of Information Minister Nasser Minachi by broadcasting charges that papers found in the embassy linked him to the CIA.

"Is this Islamic or Stalinistic?" he asked in an interview with the Tehran newspaper Kayhan. "It is the judiciary system that can investigate whether some Iranians have had corrupt links with America, not you. ... In any part of the world such rebets against the government would be punished severely. But we, as a revolutionary government, have not done

The council freed Minachi, who denied the charge, and ordered Tehran Radio-TV to allow the militants no more air time to publicize their allegations. The militants defiantly said they would take them to the newspapers. Although the militants continued to insist that they would free the hostages only after Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was returned to Iran for trial, they were becoming increasingly isolated. Expectations grew that the president would soon take decisive steps to end the hostage crisis. U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim told reporters in New York that Bani Sadr was setting the stage for their release and that he believed this could happen before the election.

Waldheim's spokesman, Rudolf

Staiduhar, said the secretary-general was closely following developments in Iran "which indicate that the authorities are trying to stabilize the situation under the presidency" of Bani Sadr. But Stajduhar said he could not confirm a report from Tehran by the Kuwaiti newspaper Al Khadaf that Waldheim was trying to get Bani Sadr to replace the embassy captors with regular Iranian troops, that the number of militants had dwindled from 400 to 50, and that the release of the captives was "imminent.

Iranian Foreign Ministry officials said they doubted the release was imminent, and a spokesman for the militants denied their number had been reduced.

Council agreed to Waldheim's plan to set up an international commission to investigate its charges against the shah. At that time, it said it wanted the captives held until the panel publishes its report. But Waldheim and the Carter administration want the hostages turned over to a third party in Tehran, possibly the Red Cross, as soon as the panel convenes.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren

Christopher said in Washington Thursday the U.S. government was postponing threatened sanctions against Iran in hopes that progress might be made toward releasing the hostages "if diplomacy were given the opportunity to work.

He said the Carter administration found some reason for hope in Bani Sadr's elevation to chairman of the Revolutionary Council, thereby apparently giving him the central authority to negotiate. But he added:

"I would not want to indicate a solution is right around the corner. I would counsel against raising expectations of a very early resolution of this crisis.'

Congress wants look at FBI evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) - Members of Congress are pressing for a first-hand look at the FBI's evidence in the congressional bribery investigation, despite the Justice Department's refusal to cooperate.

With seven representatives and one senator implicated in the government's widespread corruption case, Rep. Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., introduced a resolution of inquiry in the House Thursday. It directs the attorney general to hand over all FBI evidence against members of Congress within a month.

'Congress cannot wait for a grand jury investigation or for a trial. We must know now what happened," he said. "If ever the public needs to have confidence in its government, it is today.

The degree of support for Peyser's resolution, which goes to the Judiciary Committee, was unclear. Peyser sent letters to all House members urging them to debate his proposal Thursday - but he was the only member who showed up. In another development Thursday, the chairman of a House subcommittee said he will hold a hearing to determine if the FBI illegally helped a private company get a federal contract in return for the company providing a "cover" for undercover FBI agents conducting the investigation.

The Senate Ethics Committee already has voted for a "preliminary inquiry" into allegations concerning Williams. Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., chairman of the committee, said the panel might subpoena material it needs for its probe. The House Ethics Committee has voted to appoint a legal counsel to handle the case.

But Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann already has told House members they won't get the FBI evidence because, "There is one nightmare picture for all of us ... one in which we get entangled in each other's feet."

The eight congressmen, who have all denied guilt, were implicated last weekend in an alleged influence-peddling scandal. FBI agents, posing as wealthy Arabs or Arab agents, paid nearly $500,000 in cash in exchange for promises of political favors and other services.

In all, as many as 20 public officials and 10 businessmen have been implicated in the case, which will be turned over to grand juries. The Justice Department says it expects indictments within three to four months.

Williams, the lone senator said to be involved in the case, reportedly told FBI agents on videotape that Joseph Lordi, chairman of the New Jersey Casino Control Commission, helped him save $3 million for developers of hotel-casino project in Atlantic City. Williams and Lordi denied involvement in such a deal.

Williams expressed confidence about the outcome of the case Thursday night at a New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce legislative reception in Washington. "Just as fire is the test of gold, adversity is the test of strong men," Williams said. "I'm confident I will be joining you again next year at this dinner."

Williams also got support from New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne, who joked: "I'm supposed to go to Egypt next month on a trade mission and "Conservation is the first thing that hear they've got Arabs dressed like FBI men.

The statement was adopted Thursday at a meeting of parliamentarians from 12 communist nations in the Bulgarian capital of Sofia, Tass said. It listed Cuba, Vietnam and South Yemen among those supporting the Karmal regime.

North Korea has traditionally been closer to Peking than to Moscow, but has not previously criticized the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Romania has become increasingly independent of Moscow in recent years, and was alone among the Warsaw Pact nations in attacking the Soviet move into Afghanistan.

Yugoslavia voiced its opposition to the Soviet intervention shortly after Moscow began pouring 100,000 troops into Afghanistan on Christmas Day in an effort to prop-up the Karmal regime in its war with anti-communist Moslem rebels.

Yugoslavia's foreign minister, Josip Vrhovec, reiterated his government's condemnation of the Soviet intervention in a joint communique with his French counterpart, Jean Francois-Poncet. The communique, issued Thursday, capped two days of talks between the ministers in Bel-

Soviet position "The latest developments in Afghanistan afflict a severe blow to the policy of detente and could lead to grave dangers," the joint communique said.

"There has been no decision. The proposal is still under consideration," a Foreign Ministry spokesman insist-

The United States has asked Japan and the Western allies to join in punitive measures against the Soviets to protest the Afghan intervention. The allies are scheduled to meet in Boni West Germany on Feb. 20 to coord nate their response to the Soviet in tervention. Meanwhile, sources in the Afgha capital of Kabul said Moslem reb snipers have killed about 40 Sovi soldiers over the past three weeks the streets of Talogan, the capital Takhar Provonce near the Soviet bo der in northern Afghanistan.

iOSCOW (AP) — The banishing of dissident physicist Andrei D. charov is a frightening example of the abuse of Soviet law, a Russian numan rights group that includes Sakharov's wife said.

OTTAWA (AP) - About 150 persons were exposed to high levels of radiation between 1947 and 1978 during accidents in Canada involving the transport of radioactive material, an Atomic Energy Control Board accident report said.

There were at least 135 nuclear transport incidents, and 27 were considered serious, according to the report obtained Thursday.

In one accident, a truck driver was exposed to 50 times more radiation than the maximum allowed under board standards. Another time, dozens of persons may have received more than 200 times the maximum allowable dose.

Tribunal clears Somoza supporter

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - For the first time, a special tribunal has cleared a defendant accused of war crimes for supporting deposed President Anastasio Somoza. Jacinto Cruz Ibanez, 39, was found innocent of charges of complicity in murder and of being an agent of the former national security office. More than 70 prisoners have been declared guilty of crimes against the Nicaraguan people since the civilian tribunals began operating last December. They have been sentenced from two to 30 years in jail. There is no death penalty in Nicaragua. Somoza was overthrown last July.

Weizman warns Syrians, Soviets against starting war with Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Defense Minister Ezer Weizman today warned Syria and the Soviet Union against sparking a war on Israel's northern frontier and cautioned them that "we don't respond as others do."

"If Syria goes to war it will be as a result of Soviet pressure to heat up the (Arab-Israeli) arena," Weizman was quoted as saying in an interview with the Israeli newspaper Yediot Aharonot.

"Both the Russians and the Syrians know that we don't respond as others do, and I hope that they will read us correctly," the defense chief said.

Weizman was reacting to Syria's decision to pull its 5,000-man peacekeeping force out of the Lebanese capital of Beirut and concentrate them in an area of southern Lebanon near the Israeli frontier.

His statement came one day after Prime Minister Menachem Begin expressed concern over Syrian troop movements in Lebanon. Speaking to foreign correspondents on Thursday, Begin also pledged to defend Lebanon's Christian minority if the Syrian withdrawal from Beirut leads to new fighting between the Christians and the alliance of Moslem leftists and Palestinian guerrillas.

"If the Christians, either in the south or in the north, are being attacked, Israel will not be passive," Begin warned.

Weizman said Israel has been monitoring the redeployment of Syrian

Persistence pays off in wild goose chase

WAYNE, N.J. (AP) — A four-month wild goose chase has ended for a persistent New Jersey housewife who finally freed a Canada goose from a plastic six-pack wrap that had become en wined around its neck and head.

Joyce Shapiro, 55, had tried since October to help the goose that fed along with hundreds of others outside her lakefront home in this suburban community of 49,000

Her vigil paid off Tuesday when she managed to trap the goose in a makeshift cage, cut off the plastic noose and release the animal un-

"He flew out of the cage as free as a bird," she said Wednesday. "It was just marvelous."

The long-necked bird's predicament was discovered last fall by a golfer at the Packenpack Golf Club, near Mrs. Shapiro's home. The unsightly plastic collar seemed to frighten other geese and made it hard for the goose to eat.

"He could only open his beak about a quarter of an inch," the woman said.

Golfers and bird watchers tried in vain to capture the foot-high goose and free him. Game wardens were stumped. State officials, contacted because the breed is protected in New Jersey. advised leaving the goose alone as long as he could walk, fly and eat.

While others gave up, Mrs. Shapiro continued her quest. Each morning, she scattered cracked corn in her backyard on Lake Packenpack. And she built a gated six-by-six foot chicken wire cage to try to confine the bird.

"I was looking out the window yesterday, when I saw that the goose was actually sitting all the way in the cage eating the cracked corn,' Mrs. Shapiro recalled excitedly.

"I started to pull the string to the gate, which ran through the window of my husband's study. Of course, the goese heard me but I climbed out the window and managed to force him back. It must have been quite a sight."

Students taking leisure seriously

Associated Press Writer AMHERST, Mass. (AP) - In these parts, no discussion of "good work if you can get it" is complete without mention of Edward J. Mahoney, Ph.D., assistant professor of leisure.

Mahoney teaches at the University of Massachusetts, where students are breaking down the doors of the Leisure Studies Department to enroll in courses like "Philosophy of Leisure," "Introduction to Recreation" and "Leisure Activity Analysis."

But the Leisure Studies Department's course offerings are neither created for nor taken by 250pound football linemen who don't feel up to the study of intersubjectivity.

'We've limited ourselves to 115 majors. They must have had a B average as freshman to join the program, and we turn away more students than we accept," says the 29-year-old Mahoney, sitting in his office on the UMass campus. Leisure is serious business for Mahoney, his colleagues and his students, who are betting that the leisure industry boom of the past 15 years is just the beginning of a great, post-industrial American playtime

As people begin to work three- or four-day weeks, get more vacation, retire earlier and live longer, they're going to have more leisure time.

Yet many Americans, says Mahoney, don't even know what to do with the spare time they have "We haven't replaced the work ethic with a leisure ethic," he maintains. "Many people have an aversion to leisure and can't deal with it.' At UMass, one studies the business and the philosophy of leisure. The theory courses are complemented by others in business administration and fiscal man-As ever, employers like the YMCA, the Boy Scouts and municipal park departments need professionals who know how to organize recreational activities. But they now are being joined in the search for leisure professionals by businesses like ski areas and resort hotels, Mahoney says.

Still, "We encounter a lot of skepticism about the program," Mahoney admits. "The hard science people often don't see the importance of understanding leisure

Nor would they appreciate the role of professional "leisure counselors," who help those convinced that idle hands are the devil's tools.

And there's always the student's first telephone call home to Mom and Dad, who, when told of their offspring's choice of major, wonder,"Why are we spending money to send you to school to study

Leisure study is not concerned with hoisting sail or watching film. Instead, students learn to organize a youth baseball league, motivate beginners or compute a season's receipts.

Reagan counting on debate

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Ronald Reagan, who once shunned campaign debate, now is counting heavily on a televised confrontation with his Republican presidential rivals as a way to come back before it is too late.

The Reagan campaign is not going according to plan, so the plan has been rewritten to include at least one New Hampshire debate and possibly two. In contrast to the rationed campaign Reagan ran in Iowa — where he lost — the former California governor plans to spend at least a week, and probably more, hunting votes for the Feb. 26 presidential primary election.

"I'm going to be here quite a bit," he said. "On the night of the 26th I'll even help count the votes.

The debates and the emphasis on personal campaigning are in marked contrast to his course in Iowa. Reagan's national campaign manager, John P. Sears, said before that caucus contest that his candidate was the leader and therefore in a position to shape the campaign. He said it was the job of the other candidates to make Reagan turn around and confront them.

Former U.N. Ambassador George Bush beat Reagan in Iowa, and all that changed. "You're still considered the front-runner," a supporter told Reagan in Franklin the other night. "I am?" he replied with mock surprise.

He is not acting the lofty role of the leader any more. He has, indeed, turned around to confront the other candidates, particularly Bush. Should there be a second debate in New Hampshire, it probably will be a one-on-one meeting between Bush and Rea-

Bush has sought all along to make himself the prime challenger to Reagan and leave the rest of the field behind. Reagan strategists now say that, at least for the moment, he has succeeded.

He has the edge, although narrowly, in a Boston

Globe poll of candidate choices among New Hampshire Republicans. He is drawing bigger campaign crowds than is Reagan.

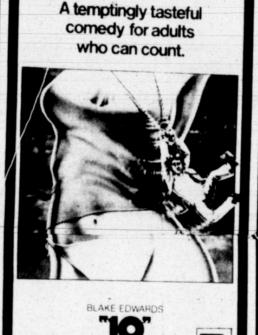

Hence the Reagan decision to join in a seven-candidate debate in Manchester Feb. 20, at a forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters. The same campaign realities make it likely Reagan will agree to face Bush alone Feb. 23, as proposed by the Nashua Telegraph.

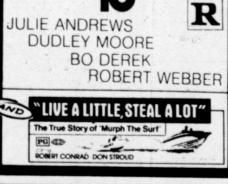

Reagan's managers still see television as his strong suit. The all-comers debate will be televised across New Hampshire, and they want similar coverage should they decide to meet Bush.

It was a vain hope in view of the book's subject matter — the seamy ritual of "cruising" in a waterfront gay bar.

"I do have a sort of exotic life I guess," I'm as good a writer as anyone writing now.

"The problem is the homosexual in literature is still viewed as an adjunct, an appendage, not part of the whole flow." Rechy tells of an effort by his publisher, Grove

Press, to win recognition for "Rushes" in a major book review publication.

"Their attitude was, 'We know Rechy is a very serious writer, but we'd have to have two other homosexual books to write about," " he recalls. "It was as if three homosexual books equal one heterosexual book."

Even now, 17 years after he published his first treatise on homosexual life, "City of Night," Rechy is infuriated at discrimination in the literary marketplace.

'What's amazing," he ays, "is that after seven books, after being translated into 12 languages in 20 countries, after teaching at colleges and lecturing at universities,

Press says social workers 'gambled with death

In the end, it wasn't enough.

LONDON (AP) - Fourteen-month-old Malcolm Page died hungry, cold and rotting with gangrene in an unheated bedroom. His parents were sentenced to one year in jail for neglect.

Claire Haddon was not yet six weeks old when she life imprisonment for her murder.

In both cases, social workers knew the babies were in trouble, but decided it was best to keep them with their parents - a "gamble with death," as the British press is calling it.

'It was not that no one cared," wrote the London Daily Mail, which accused the social workers of 'arrogant complacency.'

"They probably did. It was that no one was against a wall. prepared to move from what the textbooks teach and what ordinary common sense and experience

Tennessee human services commissioner before an abused child may be returned to parents. But social workers in Britain, unless armed with court warrants, have no powers to demand anything for a problem family. Some say their main priority is to keep the family together. That policy is at the heart of the controversy. Despite 48 visits from the Essex County Social Services Department, Malcolm had been so neglected he was near death when finally brought to a hospital. Five of his toes were gangrenous. His legs were purple with ulcers. The rest of his body was covered in sores and burst blisters, and the thin romper suit he was wearing was soaked in urine.

He had lain on a stinking mattress in an unheated bedroom during Britain's coldest winter in 10 years. The baby died of hypothermia and malnutrition, said prosecutor Kenneth Zucker.

The Pages pleaded guilty to cruelly neglecting Malcolm and to willfully neglecting their 2-year-old daughter, Suzanne. They pleaded innocent to charges of manslaughter in Malcolm's death. Suzanne and the other Page children, including an infant born after Malcolm died, are now in foster homes, but British legislators want to know why they were not removed from their parents' care sooner. "We believed the Pages loved their children and that they were in no emotional danger," said social services director Maurice Hawker. "We felt the children were in no physical danger. We were wrong and naturally we regret it." The evidence presented in court portrayed the Pages as a deeply troubled couple whose children became their victims. Social workers first became concerned in 1978 after some minor problems.

The family had no beds, although Page brought home $160 a week as a storeman. The Pages slept on the floor of a filthy house. Malcolm's diapers had not been changed for days.

In May 1978, the agency decided to place the children in foster homes. But when the Pages cleaned their house, the agency decided to return the

"It became a proper home, one where the family could live as a unit," said Susan Riches, 24, the social worker on the case.

From that point, Miss Riches visited once a week and arrangements were made for a family service helper and health visitor to call in.

Middle-class area is featured in guide for the best in city

think of the Michelin Guide as a beacon for tourists, diners and others looking for the best in a city

So it was more than a little intriguing when the Michelin people were recently persuaded to put out one of their little "green books" featuring, of all places. Washington Heights-Inwood: a quiet, somewhat drab-looking middle-class area in the northern most reaches of Manhattan.

If tourists are tempted at all to visit the area, it usually is to see the Cloisters, a monastic-looking museum that houses a wealth of medieval

The area is an urban textbook of contrasts, surprises and contradictions, perhaps the biggest of which is how its ethnically diverse middleclass residents have teamed up with banks, universities and other powerful neighborhood forces in the past year to make this once declining area suddenly come back strong.

It may, in fact, be the very last genuinely middle-class neighborhood in "Fortress Manhattan" that will stay that way in the next decade. All other areas have become either very rich, or very poor.

So the hope of tourism wasn't the main reason for persuading Michelin to write them up. Neighborhood activists wanted somehow to tell the rest of the city that the area is doing fine, thank you, in large part because the community found common ground with banks and other powerful forces that are located there.

Consider the odds: to the south of Washington Heights-Inwood is Harlem. A stone's toss across the Harlem River to the east is the South Bronx. Adding to the jitters in recent years was a rise in arson, and rapid population changes with new immigrants coming in and the middle class mov-

And the changes were coming at a time when New York neighborhoods were pretty much left on their own to survive because the city government was busy struggling against its own near-bankruptcy. Reflecting on this a year or so ago, Carol Parry, vice president of the Washington-Inwood branch of Chemical Bank, wondered if her bank and other powerful institutions with a stake in the neighborhood could be of

NEW YORK (AP) - People usually some help in stemming the decline by banding together.

> We wanted to get the message out that the neighborhood is not as bad as everyone thinks," Ms. Parry said in a recent conversation.

She was able to build a 39-member consortium of the area's most mighty, including hospitals, universities, religious and cultural groups, and even banks that were sometimes accused of redlining the area.

Then came the more delicate task of convincing a sometimes skeptical community that this consortium was not interested in a local power grab, but was truly sincere in wanting to upgrade the area

Judging from talks in the neighborhood, they've succeeded.

Says John Fiorillo, an assistant vice president of Columbia University which owns considerable property in the area: "We reached a conclusion that our survival as an institution implies the survival of the place we're in. We joined this effort as a matter of self-interest, not altruism."

What the consortium gave Washington Heights-Inwood was clout Partly through its efforts, 10 percent of the area's housing stock has been rehabilitated with an additional $50 million of work scheduled for the next several years.

Recent public-private ventures include renovation of a 96-apartment building, purchase of new trash baskets and the creation of a new public

The clout has also been felt in City Hall. Last year, for instance, a private developer wanted to buy a vacant parcel of city-owned property in the neighborhood to build a roller disco. The neighborhood, however, had hoped to use the parcel for a hotel or a shopping mall.

Members of the consortium lobbied hard against the roller disco in a Board of Estimate meeting - the board being the city's most important legislative body. And the board was so astonished to see community bankers and hospital and university representatives fighting for a neighborhood that they won their fight.

Kennedy wants strong Israel

By STEPHEN C. SMITH

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) -American interests in the Persian Gulf can best be protected by a strong Israel and a drastically reduced thirst for Mideastern oil, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy told a Jewish group here.

"Above all else, we must strengthen our alliance to Israel," the Democratic presidential contender told the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith Thursday night.

Speaking at the fashionable Breakers hotel, the Massachusetts Democrat said pressure on U.S. policy in the Persian Gulf from the Soviet Union and from oil producing countries can only be stopped by "putting our energy house in order.

The crowd of Jewish leaders from throughout the United States bestowed its most enthusiastic applause on Kennedy when he called for strong U.S. support of Israel. There is no 'stable and democratic nation in the region be ides Israel," Kennedy

Kennedy was particularly critical of Saudi Arabia, which he said wants sophisticated weapons but refuses to sell the U.S. oil to build up petroleum

"It's intolerable when Saudi Arabia has questioned whether it will sell us oil to fill our strategic reserves, Kennedy said, his voice rising in anger as he departed from his prepared text.

"We ought to make sure the nations bility."

Earlier, in a Washington speech to the Consumer Federation of America, Kennedy said he and Carter agree on one point — they oppose legislation that would restrict the Federal Trade Commission's investigative capabili-

"This non-partisan president should also bring his White House staff back fom the New England primaries to fight a non-partisan battle in Congress to save the FTC," Kennedy told the consumer group.

Kennedy's speech to the group followed by minutes a talk by President Carter. During his own speech, Kennedy used a tape recording of comments by Carter to engage in a "debate." Kennedy played a statement by the president and then commented

After the speech in Washington, Kennedy flew to Florida to campaign for the March 11 primary here. His visit to Palm Beach included a lavish fund-raiser at his mother's oceanfront mansion and a $10-per-ticket reception highlighted by one of Rose Kennedy's infrequent public ap-

BUSINESS MIRROR Despite law, people retiring around age 65

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — When the mandatory retirement age was raised to 70 years from 65, effective Jan. 1, 1979, concern developed among some executives that corporate mobility would be slowed.

That's a considerable worry in some companies, one arising from the belief that if old-timers linger in the posh jobs at the top they'll clog up the advancement routes for younger executives with new ideas, A bottleneck of that sort could have immediate consequences, forcing innovative young men and women to leave, perhaps slowing productivity growth and weakening competitiveness. So what, the late-retirement advocates said, at age 65 a worker often is healthy, generally useful, and sometimes in need of the money that goes with a job. He and she is not to be cast aside as all worn out.

There was power behind the movement. Consumer representatives, self-appointed, had learned how to get their way in Washington. And the geriatric generation was growing as a proportion of popula-

The arguments sounded very logical and eminently fair, but they may not have served the need. This facet of "retirement revolution" seems to have become a fizzle, or so the early reports would

Workers continue to retire in their mid-60s, regardless of their right to continue on to 70. Retirement is as before. The usual rites of the event - the watch, the luncheon, the little check - remain

In responses from 267 employers, the Bureau of National Affairs found only a fifth had an increase in workers staying longer than before. The law, said the bureau, a private business research organization, "had no or very little impact on the vast majority of employers. The survey was conducted last August, when the amendment to the Age Discrimination in Employment Act was in force less than a year, so the early results might be somewhat skewed. Workers who years earlier had made their plans, for example, might have been unable to change.

But there may be positive reasons too. With Social Security indexed to reduce the impact of inflation, and with retirees permitted to earn a bit more income than before, the financial terrors have been lessened.

Some retirees have been getting bigger checks than before, not just in dollar terms but in buying power too. The consumer price index, for example, includes several percentage points that many retirees do not incur, especially if they own their Retirement also has become more institutionalized. It is hardly the haphazard experience it was 25 years ago. Retirement homes, community-supported gathering places, and travel, sports and social events are part of the scene today.

Future polls might revise these early findings, but there does seem to be the suggestion that age 65 retirement, in spite of the rhetoric, may be to the liking of retirees.

If so, the worries may have been overstated.

Corporations needn't have worried so much about owered productivity, younger workers needn't have worried about their careers being slowed, and some of the so-called public interest advocates needn't have worried so about the retirees.

Ex-Ranger never killed man that didn't need it

BONHAM, Texas (AP) - It is not known how many men Rufus Van Zandt killed during his 50-year career as a law officer.

"My brother got to figuring it once, and when he reached 15, I told him to quit," says Van Zandt, 84. He has been a Texas Ranger, a prohibition agent for the Justice Department, a soldier and a private security guard.

Today he lives in this quiet East Texas town and walks with a cane. But he remembers well the days when he lived by a simple code:

"I never shot anybody that didn't need shoot Van Zandt, born in Tennessee and reared in Forworth, said he left home at age 18 and worked as a cattle guard on a Mexican ranch. He said that's when he killed his first man, a Mexican soldier trying to steal a cow. But he found himself in deep trouble "I had two choices then. Join the Mexican army of be arrested and shot," he said. He joined the army for 32 nights — sleeping days — crossing back into Texas just east of El Paso. He was wounded in France in World War I and after recovering, became one of 33 Texas Rangers earning $90 a month and providing his own horse and guns. Van Zandt's territory stretched from San

but escaped by stealing a colonel's horse and riding

Antonio to El Paso. In the late 1920s, Van Zandt joined the Justice Department as a prohibition agent. "I was being shot at every day. If I was not getting shot at, I felt onesome.

Looking back over his exploits, the retired lawman said, "I came so close to being killed it's not funny; I've been in some very tight places when I wished I'd never been born. I've been very lucky. God has been good to me."
