WASHINGTON (AP) - A private conversation in the quiet of the White House living quarters isn't exactly what Sen. Edward M. Kennedy had in mind when he demanded that President Carter debate him. But that's all

With their last clashes at the polls behind them, Carter and Kennedy are meeting today at the White House, but there is absolutely no sign it will lead to Kennedy not pressing on with his attempt to take the nomination from

Jim Flug, Kennedy's spokesman, said the senator remained determined to challenge Carter for the nomination, although the president has won enough Democratic convention delegates to assure himself of

And Carter himself said Wednesday: "My anticipation is he will carry his forces and his popularity and his strength and his delegates and his deep belief in issues to the convention. That's part of the Democratic process, and need not cause us fear or concern or trepidation.' After Carter tried twice to reach Kennedy on the telephone, the senator called the president Wednesday afternoon. The two set up today's meeting in what the president called a 'cordial, not strained" conversation. "I'll congratulate him on having run a good campaign and see what we can do together to work together in the future, to meet the Republican challenge successfully," Carter told

Talking with reporters last weekend in Los Angeles, Kennedy said that if he met the president, he would press his demand for a campaign debate, something Carter says he

The president has sought peace with his rival in recent days, offering to accommodate Kennedy's views in drafting a party platform. The Massachusetts senator is known to feel, however, that the president's statements were an attempt to force him from the race when he is determined

Kennedy's recent speeches became spirited, sharp attacks on Carter, and the senator in the closing days of the primary campaign, called the president a "clone" of Republican Ronald

But, one Carter campaign aide said of today's meeting, "talking is always better than not talking." He added that the two men can "go over problems for the fall, articulate mutual

Kennedy has been trying for months to talk with the president, not in a private meeting but in a campaign debate televised nationwide. The two men were scheduled to debate before last January's Iowa caucuses, but Carter pulled out of the confrontation after the U.S. Embassy

The late afternoon meeting will be in the White House living quarters, rather than the more formal setting of the Oval Office, where Carter generally receives visitors. It will be the first announced, private meeting between the senator and the president in more than a year. No aides or news photographers will be present, the White House said.

At a party for congressional supporters in the backyard of a Washington lawyer and lobbyist, Carter said that he looked forward to a continuing contest with Kennedy, "if necessary."

"To the extent we can agree on common ground, then the harmony will be quite early," the president said of his differences with Kennedy. 'To the extent we don't agree at the platform committee, we'll let the delegates make a choice. Kennedy has said, in refusing to bow to Carter despite the president's commanding lead in delegates, that he will press on when the platform committee considers specific issues in debates leading up to the Democratic convention in New York in August.

But, in introducing Carter at a victory party Wednesday, the president's campaign chairman, Bob Strauss, sounded a theme that is likely to be used frequently as the president tries to woo dissident Democrats.

Carter vows to veto

new law repealing dime-a-gallon gas tax

Carter is vowing to veto legislation to kill his 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline fee, but lopsided votes against him in both the House and Senate suggest he taces a losing battle. The House voted 376-30 and the Senate 73-16 Wednesday to repeal the fee. Both votes were well over the twothirds margin that must be delivered in both chambers to override a veto. The bill to formally kill the levy could reach Carter's desk later today after the House and Senate resolve minor differences over what form it

Wednesday's votes dealt Carter one of the severest congressional energy defeats of his presidency and drew bitter criticism from Charles Schultze, Carter's chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

"It was disturbing, it was serious, it was inexcusable," Schultze said on NBC's "Today" show. "Probably the biggest economic problem of our generation ... is energy. The president didn't even ask them to vote for the tax. All they had to do was let him do it. He'd take the heat ... We're trying to pull them (world leaders) together to do something about this very, very serious problem, and here the Congress takes the power away from the president

If Carter follows through on his veto threat, he could become the first Democratic president to have a veto overridden since Congress in 1952 forced an immigration bill into law over Harry S. Truman's protest.

Carter has cast 21 vetoes, including two this year, all of which have been sustained. While the House passed a simple bill to knock down the fee outright, the Senate attached it to a 30-day extension of the federal debt limit. Thus the House was having to decide today whether to go along with the Senate version or to request a conference with the Senate to iron out the differences. Regardless of its form, the measure to kill the fee is expected to reach the president before week's end. Carter told reporters Wednesday he plans to veto the bill in whatevzr form t reaches him and even if no more than one member of Congress is willing to support him. Carter said imposition of the fee was "not a popular decision ... but in my judgment it is right for our country.' Failure to impose it, the president said, will "send a clear signal to oil-producing nations and oil-consuming nations that we do not mean business, that we will not take a firm stand to conserve oil and we will pay much higher prices for oil in the future.'

At the same time, White House press secretary Jody Powell acknowledged the White House could not now muster enough votes to sustain a veto of the repeal bill.

And Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said sustaining the veto would be "a very difficult fight" for the White House.

There is no question of the president's support having eroded. He

Rep. James M. Shannon, D-Mass., principal House sponsor of the repeal bill. "It's unfortunate he didn't see this earlier.' Carter and Vice President Walter F. Mondale, according to congressional sources who asked not to be identified, spent much of Wednesday on the telephone in a largely unsuccessful effort to pick up votes in favor of The administration claims the fee would save about 100,000 of the roughly 8 million barrels of oil imported daily. There are 42 gallons in a bar-

Foes of the gas tax called this savings, at a cost to consumers of $10.3 billion in the first year, minimal.

"It's a high price to pay for conservation," said Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan. And Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., told the House: "This is not a bold initiative, this is a turkey."

The fee was to have taken effect May 15, but was blocked by a federal judge who said Carter overstepped his authority, which applies only to imported petroleum, in trying to apply the fee to all gasoline. That ruling is being appealed by the Jus-

Tour bus crash kills at least 20

JASPER, Ark. (AP) - A tour bus with 34 persons aboard careened off a mountain highway in northern Arkansas early today and plunged 50 feet into a rocky ravine, killing at least 20 persons, authorities said.

"In 27 years with the state police it's the worst I've ever seen," said Capt. Billy Bob Davis, commander of Troop I of the Arkansas State Police at Harrison. He said the death toll probably would reach 21.

The bus landed nose down in rugged terrain 50 feet below the shoulder of Arkansas Highway 7, and rescue crews were still trying to extricate bodies from the wreckage four hours after the accident occurred.

Nineteen bodies were removed from the wreckage and taken to two funeral homes in nearby Harrison, State police said one body remained pinned under the bus and one passenger was missing and presumed

Frank Wise, administrator of the Boone County Hospital at Harrison, said 13 persons were treated for injuries. One person was listed in critical condition, but the condition reports for the others were not immediately available.

Davis said the bus was headed north down a steep hill on the two-lane highway. It traveled along a ditch on the right side of the highway for more than 200 feet, then hit a culvert and veered off the road, plunging 50 feet. Survivors said most of the passen gers were asleep at the time of the accident.

The driver and three or four passengers were thrown from the bus, and at least four bodies were found on the highway, Davis said.

The driver, who was not immediately identified, was among the dead, Davis said.

The accident occurred shortly before 1 a.m. CDT one mile south of Jasper, police said.

The bus was chartered by Central Texas Trailways of Waco, Texas, and left Dallas early Wednesday for a four-day holiday in Missouri and Arkansas, officials said.

J. Ganner, assistant general manager of the bus company, said in a telephone interview this morning that he had not been notified officially of

Divorce tore him apart

Friends shocked by sheriff's death

By KAY CRITES Staff Writer

ANDREWS — The portrait painted by friends is one of a deeply religious man, tremendously in love and slowly being torn apart by the turmoil of

A man who wasn't sleeping, wasn't eating and who had been hospitalized earlier for a nervous condition.

Early Tuesday morning, the last thread snapped as Andrews County Sheriff J.A. "Bud" Gregory shot his estranged wife in the chest and head. He then called the sheriff's department dispatcher, explained the situation and asked her to send Chief Deputy Wayne Farmer and Peace Justice R.G. "Rags" Ragsdale, both old friends, before turning his .41-caliber service revolver on himself.

Gregory had been extremely despondent over the pending divorce suit, filed by his wife in May the week after he won an unopposed spot on the November ballot for his fifth term as

Mrs. Gregory was slumped on the couch; Gregory was beside her with a single wound to the head. There was no sign of a struggle.

MRS. GREGORY was fully clothed, apparently ready to go to work. She had been a payroll secretary for the past 13 years for the Andrews Independent School District. Deputy Farmer also found a note left by Gregory containing a list of relatives to be notified in the event of his death. Part of the list had been photocopied, leading deputies to speculate it had been prepared the day before the shooting.

The sheriff's department dispatcher said Gregory came into the office earlier Tuesday morning and spoke with her briefly before leaving. It is now believed Gregory returned to the office to get his revolver.

James Roberts, editor of the Andrews County News, said he didn't think Gregory's death really sur-

Webster challenges Rep. Hance for position

"People all across America are looking for a change," Midlander J.D. Webster said today in announcing his candidacy for the 19th Congressional District seat currently held by Demo-crat Kent Hance of Lubbock.

Big government is the primary rea-son why Webster decided to throw his hat into the ring. He cited a need to place limitations on government and remove the restrictions placed on citizens of the U.S.

"Big government is unresponsive, cumbersome and ineffective," Webster said. "It is responsible for our current economic slowdown and the crisis in foreign policy, energy, health care and the schools.

Guard patrols Grand Island

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP) - National Guardsmen patrolled past twisted and shattered buildings early today as federal officials pledged to help this Plains city recover from devastating tornadoes that destroyed nearly 600 homes and businesses and killed at least four people.

Bill Shreffler, assistant city attorney, said workers continued to search for more possible victims, but "we have no numbers" of the missing.

"Nobody really knows how many deaths there are," said Gov. Charles Thone, who inspected the devastation by helicopter. Estimates of the death toll Wednesday reached as high as 35, but Thone later said the final tally would be lower than expected.

"I've never seen anything like it." said Danford Stout, who huddled with his family in a cellar as the twisters reduced his home to splinters. "You know, I ain't much of a church-goer, but I still believe in the good Lord and I prayed when we were down in that

His friends say sheriff was torn up by divorce

all were shocked that he shot his

"Gregory was real open about the fact that when they got back from Kansas, she had filed for divorce." Roberts said. Shortly after the May 3 primary election, the Gregorys traveled to Kansas to see their first grandchild.

"He kept sending people over there to talk to her about him coming

ACCORDING TO COUNTY Judge R.D. Bennett, the couple had separated before, but always reconciled.

"All his friends tried to cheer him up," Roberts said, "and it worked pretty good until Monday afternoon.

He became real depressed. "He was at church Sunday and dressed fit to kill. He looked real good. In fact several people said Sunday, afternoon he was in a better mood, and then something changed.' The sheriff's unexpected and violent death has caused a great deal of turmoil in the community.

Mayor Maurice Simmons remarked, "This has really saddened all pull together. It may even strengthen it in some way.

JUDGE BENNETT perhaps provided the best insight into "Bud" Gregory during the few weeks before his death. Bennett's office was just around the corner from Gregory's and apparently they talked quite

"It's shocked everyone and, of course, those of us here who were close to the sheriff and his wife - we were more affected by it than perhaps you would be normally.

"In retrospect, he was a man that was liked. He was a very dedicated fellow to something he believed in. But he was emotional. The separation from his wife had just overcome According to Bennett, Gregory was hospitalized two days early last week for a "nervous condition.

He also said Gregory was extremely sensitive and would sometimes take common occurrences as a personal affront

"People who committed a burglary did it not for the swag but to do him personal injury - that's how he sometimes saw it. Yet, he'd bring these same people in here and do everything he could to make them comfort-

BENNETT ADDED that Gregory kept his jail immaculate and made sure the prisoners were well fed. "He had so many kind qualities about him that were good, yet when he got mad - he was real high tempered. Gregory apparently expected he and his wife would reconcile again, Bennett said. "But evidently Mrs. Gregory was adamant that they shouldn't; that it wasn't in their best interests. And he told about the time last week when Gregory came in to talk to him. 'He said he hoped everything would work out. We were just talking about it and all at once he just got up and walked out. It seemed to disturb him just to talk about it."

Bennett also said Gregory had been having trouble sleeping and hadn't been eating as he should.

But it just never entered my head that he might commit suicide, and he dearly loved his wife. If you had asked me prior to this if he might have killed himself, I would have said yes. But not his wife. He loved her too much. When he talked about her he always had something nice to say. And he valued her influence in the community.

GREGORY WAS DEEPLY religious, according to the judge, and was highly emotional about it. "He tried his best to live a Christian life, but he would let events sometimes sway

During his 15 years as sheriff, Bennett said, Gregory worked hard to keep Andrews County "clean," especially of narcotics.

"That seemed to be the thing he worked harder on. His feeling seemed to be about the children who are involved."

Wayne Farmer, former chief deputy and now interim sheriff, had worked for Gregory for 14 years.

'He's been fair to us. We have a lot of respect and admiration for him. He ran an excellent sheriff's department. He was well-known throughout the state; almost every agency recognized his name," Farmer said, his words cut short by his effort to control his tears.

It had been a long day - Gregory's death, his being sworn in as interim sheriff and then shortly after midnight Wednesday, another suicide. 'I'd give anything if it (Gregory's death) hadn't happened," he told

"Bud has his faults like all of us do, but as far as the department, he devoted his full time and everything he had to it.'

ANDREWS WAS ALREADY rocking from a suicide-murder Saturday night. The Gregorys' deaths seemed almost too much to accept, topped off by a Wednesday morning suicide five gunshot deaths in five days.

"We're just hoping it's finished," Roberts said.

"Things in Andrews seem to happen in cycles," said Farmer. "There'll be three accidents or three fires It's not a set rule, but it's common enough that people around here recognize and notice it."

Ironically, there are similarities among the three incidents. All three were related to marital problems.

In the first, Jesus Escarcega broke nto his estranged wife's home Saturday night and shot her in the head before turning the weapon on himself. He was found semi-conscious and later died at Permian General Hospi-

Both Escarcega and Gregory stopped after killing their wives to notify someone of the deed. Escarcega walked next door and told a neighbor before killing himself. Gregory called the sheriff's dispatcher.

About 12.36 a.m. Wednesday, a passing motorist reported a body 3.3 miles west of Andrews, Donald H. McBeth, 52, of Andrews was found lying beside his vehicle with a shotgun wound to the head. The justice of the peace ruled suicide.

Gregory and McBeth were both estranged from their wives, and both lived in the same apartments. But as far as deputies can determine, the two did not know each other

GREGORY WAS BORN and raised in East Texas, the youngest of seven children. His father died when Gregory was six, and he worked at various jobs throughout his school years. During World War II he joined the Navy, and upon his discharge was employed by Petrolite Corporation at a wax plant near Kilgore. He met Willa Dean Carl, his future wife, in 1948; they were married in 1949.

In 1953, Gregory went to work for Mobil Oil, the old Magnolia Petroleum Co., as a roustabout.

The job was in Andrews. They arrived the week after Thanksgiving in Seven years later, when Mobil threatened to move the Gregorys, now numbering five, he went to work for Tret-o-lite Co. They were transferred anyway, in January 1961, to South Texas for two years. In 1963, Magna Chemical Co. offered him a job in Andrews, and Gregory accepted.º

In 1964, he ran for sheriff. He won and since then has been virtually unopposed for the office.

Funeral services for "Bud" and 'Biddy" Gregory were to be at 2 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church

Israel Radio said, meanwhile, that the government investigation of the bombing was now centered in the West Bank city of Hebron and at the nearby ultra-nationalist Jewish settlement of Kiryat Arba. There has been speculation the bombers were out to avenge a May 2 guerrilla ambush in Hebron in which six Israeli settlers were killed and 16 injured.

The radio said investigators believe a single terrorist squad carried out all for attacks, planting bombs first in Nablus and then working south to Hebron.

Arab merchants tried to stage a general strike to protest the bombings, but Israeli troops cracked down hard on would-be strikers, cutting locks and hoisting shutters to force them to open.

Most stores on the West Bank and in Jerusalem were opened today, but some West Bank merchants said they feared reprisals from Palestinian militants who organized the protest.

Potts, facing twin death sentences for the kidnapping and murder of 24-year-old Michael Priest in May 1975, had fired his lawyers last fall and said he was ready to die. When his mother visited Wednes-

General Chun tightens military grip on South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - Military strongman Lt. Gen. Chun Doohwan tightened his grip on South Korea today with the announcement that he will head a standing committee to handle the nation's day-to-day affairs.

The announcement was made by South Korea's ruling council, which said the committee has 19 top military officers and 12 bureaucrats, and 13 subcommittees generally patterned after the lines of the defunct National Assembly.

Only four members, all generals including Chun, were on the original parent council, officially called the Special Committee for National Security Measures.

The announcement said 13 of the standing committee members, six generals and seven civilians, will head the subcommittees, each with five to eight members.

The government set up the the special committee Saturday to enable the military to take near total control of the government to rule the nation under continuing martial law.

The 25-man committee headed by civilian President Choi Kyu-hah included eight cabinet ministers and two other civilians. But the real power center is believed to be the standing committee announced

The makeup of each subcommittee was not immediately announced but sources said it was made up predominantly of military personnel including many field grade officers. Civilian bureaucrats headed the subcommittees dealing with legisla-tion and the judiciary, foreign affairs, economy and science, finance, agriculture and fisheries, construction, commerce and resources.

The subcommittees chaired by military officers were those on steering, home affairs, finance, education and information, public health and social affairs, and transportation.

These subcommittees will "advise the president on his overall supervision of martial law affairs and be charged with coordination and control in the planning and execution of national policy matters for national defense and security," the announcement said.

Martial law was declared following the assassination of President Park Chung-hee Oct. 26. It was extended to the entire country when anti-government student demonstrations erupted May 17, sparking the closing of universities and widespread arrests, including that of dissident leader Kim Dae-jung. After insurgent demonstrators seized the provincial capital of Kwangju - Kim's native area 150 miles south of Seoul - for more than one week late last month, the ruling generals tightened up their control over the nation by setting up the junta-like council.

The student rebels had demanded an end to martial law, a speedup in the timetable for democratic reforms announced by the Choi government, and most importantly, the resignation of Chun, who was both defense security commander and acting head of the Korean CIA, the nation's secret po-

Last week, Chun formally resigned the CIA post, but held on to the command of defense security. With his chairmanship of the new standing committee, however, it was considered likely that whoever becomes titular head of the CIA will have to take his orders from Chun.

Iran executes 12 for drug crimes

By The Associated Press Twelve more Iranians were executed today in Hamadan and Jourghan, about 125 miles southwest of Tehran, for drug offenses. More than 70 have been shot for similar crimes in the last two weeks as part of Iran's drive against drug smuggling. Revolutionary Judge Sadegh Khalkhali, leading the campaign, donned a military uniform and led 150 revolutionary guards in a raid on the village of Jourghan where they rounded up 30 people. Shortly afterward, Tehran radio said seven of them were executed.

Earlier, Tehran Radio said the revolutionary court in Hamadan sentenced five persons to death for drug offenses and taking part in prison riots. One of them, Albert Danielpour who was member of a wealthy Jewish family, was also convicted of spying for Israel, supporting former prime minister Shahpour Bakhtiar and drug smuggling.

Orphaned dog improving after complicated delivery

LONGVIEW, Wash. (AP) - Poodley-Mama, a tiny dog orphaned by the May 18 eruption of Mount St. Helens, is recovering after a complicated delivery that left her with an infection, veterinarians say.

'She's doing better, quite frankly, than I hoped for at this point," Dr. R.A. Mitchell Jr said Wednes-

Mitchell performed a Cesarean section on the dog Monday after three puppies were born normally. A fourth was stillborn and Mitchell operated again Tuesday when the mother developed infection.

Mitchell said he could provide a firmer prognosis on the mother's chances in another day or so. He cautioned that a relapse was possible for such a

"I would say she's ahead of schedule compared to what we expected," he said.

The eight-pound poodle-terrier captured the attention of animal lovers when a picture of her peering from a humane society cage ran in newspapers across the country.

Her three puppies were in good condition and the dog, named Poodley-Mama by animal shelter workers, was allowed to nurse them for a short time Wednesday.

100 chances to reduce America's dependence on foreign oil.

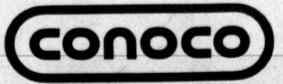

This year Conoco is drilling more than 100 wildcat wells in the United States-exploring alone or in partnership with other companies. We're looking for new deposits of oil and natural gas from Alabama to Alaska, from waters off the east coast to waters off the west coast.

In addition, we're participating in drilling some 1,200 wells in the U.S. this year to develop known deposits—deposits originally discovered

Just to drill the 1980 wildcats. Conoco is risking about $100 million. And it is a risk: On average, only one out of every six U.S. wildcat wells finds any oil or gas. And only one out of every 55 makes a significant discovery.

But Conoco's stepped-up drilling efforts

Conoco Inc., High Ridge Park, Stamford, CT 06904

(made possible in large part by higher earnings from our petroleum operations) are producing results: Last year we made 15 U.S. discoveries. and we've had five so far this year.

While it's too soon to know how many of these discoveries will be significant, we are encouraged. The more discoveries we can make here at home, the less oil America needs to import. So we'll keep putting money into wildcats It's one part of Conoco's $2 billion effort this year to develop more energy.

Hatfield trying to kill new draft with filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Mark O. Hatfield is trying to kill a peacetime draft registration plan by talking it to death in the Senate. Few if any of his colleagues are listening.

The Oregon Republican spoke against registration for almost five hours Wednesday as the Senate began debating whether to spend $13.3 million to register 19- and 20-year-old men this summer.

For most of the time, only one or two of the nation's 100 senators were Occasionally, Hatfield was alone on the floor, his only audience being Senate staff members and people in the visitors' gallery.

Late in the afternoon, Selective Service Director Bernard Rostker joined tourists in the gallery and listened for about half an hour.

Supporters of registration planned to take the floor today to outline their arguments

The administration says it has enough votes - about 60 at last count - to pass registration. Hatfield disputes that; by his count 35 senators firmly oppose registration, 20 are undecided and 45 support it.

The big question is how long Hatfield and his allies can keep the filibuster going. Registration supporters are expected to file a cloture petition debate.

That means the Senate would decide early next week whether to let the filibuster continue. Sixty senators must vote for debate-limiting cloture before the discussion can be cur-

Hatfield predicted he would win the first cloture test, but said he did not know how he would do thereafter.

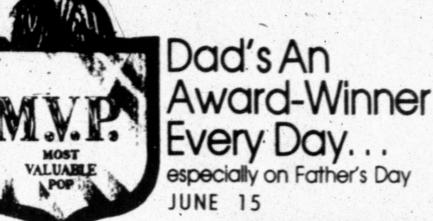

In his opening arguments, Hatfield called registration a "fruitless and inconsequential procedure" that would do nothing to improve military readiness but which would create divisiveness throughout the country.

He said that if only 2 per cent of eligible youths failed to register, the government would be faced with the prospect of prosecuting 80,000 people for a felony violation that carries a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

The court system is not equipped to handle all the cases, he argued, and federal prisons, now with a population of 24,000 inmates, would not be able to

On the other side of the argument, Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said registration would be a signal to the Soviet Union and to U.S. allies "of our determination to place our armed forces in a state of preparedness in the event of a military emergency.'

"Reinstitution of military registration will demonstrate our resolve to back up our foreign policy pronouncements with military strength," Byrd

Bomb closes statue NEW YORK (AP) - The National Park Service was reopening the Statue of Liberty to the public today as authorities puzzled over who set a bomb in a room at the base of the giant national monument. The Park Service said Wednesday the bombing had caused at least $15,-000 in damage to the second-floor "Story Room," which contains artifacts about the statue's history. Historic items damaged were a medallion issued to raise funds for the pedestal, an invitation to the Oct. 28. 1886 dedication of the statue, and a steamboat ticket issued for that oeca-

The bomb apparently had been put behind a glass-topped wooden exhibit case sometime Tuesday, officials saiid. It blew up about 7: 30 p.m., long after the last tourists had been ferried away. No one was hurt and officials said there was no structural damage to the giant copper statue. Meanwhile, the FBI late Wednesday denied an earlier statement that three terrorist groups were suspected in the blast. Tom Locke, speaking for the anti-terrorist task force, had said, "We're working now on three possibilities." FBI spokesman William Hotop said later, however, that Locke had denied making the statement to reporters and that several groups were still suspected.

Several political extremist groups had claimed responsibility for the

The New York City Joint Terrorism Task Force, a group of FBI and city police agents, conducted interviews with the Liberty Island staff of about 40 in an attempt to gain information about the bombing.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON PABA good for sunburn

Dear Dr. Solomon: Because I have fair skin and burn easily, my dermatologist has recommended I use an ointment that contains PABA when I am out in the sun. What is PABA? Is it a chemical? —

Dear Anna: PABA is short for para-aminobenzoic acid. It is a part of the vitamin B complex and is found in liver, yeast, wheat germ and molas-

PABA soothes the pain of burns and is effective in preventing and treating sunburn. It fact, people who ordinarily burn with only slight exposure to the sun cometimes are enabled to remain in the sun for hours after applying PABA ointment,

Dear Dr. Solomon: I read and hear a lot of arguments in favor of abortion and opposition to abortion, but I haven't seen any figures indicating the extent to which this procedure is used. Can you give me some idea of the number of abortions performed in the United States? — Sally.

Dear Sally: According to a survey by the Alan Guttmacher Institute, about three of every 10 pregnancies ended in abortion during 1977 and 1978. In 1977, 1.32 million legal abortions were performed in the United States; 1.37 million were projected for 1978. About one of every eight women of childbearing age in this country is reported to have had a legal

The study also showed that 28.6 percent of pregnant women terminated their pregnancies by abortion in 1977; teen-agers had one of every three abortions, while 75 percent of the abortions were obtained by married women. The number of women who terminated their pregnancies by abortion in 1978 is projected at 28.9 percent.

Dear Dr. Solomon: We live in an area that is heavily wooded, and I'm concerned that the children may be bitten by ticks during the summer months. I always look over exposed skin areas when they come in after playing, but I'm not sure how to go about removing a tick if I find one. Would it be very dangerous if I couldn't get it out? — Mrs. V.V.

Dear Mrs. V.: Dr. Kenneth L. Crawford, a Maryland state veterinarian, suggests nail polish as the most effective way of removing ticks from the skin. If the tick is on the surface, it can be plucked off with a tissue; if embeded in the skin, brushing it with nail polish will force it to release its grip.

As a preventive measure, you should also check any household pets for ticks. A tick brought into your home by a dog or cat might decide to leave the animal to veast on one of the members of your

The chief danger of having a tick embedded in the skin is that it may cause Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Only about two percent of all ticks are infected with the fever, and symptoms generally appear approximately 10 days after exposure. The symptoms resemble those of the flu, with a sudden onset of fever and infection of the lining of the

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Powell glad to be back in the saddle'

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary Jody Powell perhaps best displayed the general glee of President Carter and his aides finally to be out on the campaign trail. Between events during a recent 12-hour day in Ohio, Powell was overheard singing Gene Autry's theme, "Back in the Saddle Again.

Powell also found himself receiving frequent congratulations during the day for being exonerated on charges of using cocaine at a New York disco. He graciously accepted the good wishes, without pointing out that it actually was White House Chief of Staff Hamilton Jordan who had received the clean bill a day earlier.

Although the president has made supposedly 'non-political" trips in the last month, the Ohio journey was the first time in a long while that Carter, who was holding a rally, was exposed to an outdoor crowd of thousands — a Secret Service agent's nightmare.

As Air Force One neared Columbus, reporters and agents lined up at the back of the aircraft to use the bathrooms before landing. One agent, who looks and sometimes acts like actor Walter Matthau, emerged from the lavatory and declared: "Never go into combat with a full bladder."

Later, just before Carter arrived at the Cleveland airport, an angry queen bee, soon joined by thousands of others, attached herself to the front tire of a Secret Service car. The Secret Service quickly summoned a local bee expert who scraped the queen off the tire with a charge card and deposited her in a cardboard box containing honey. The rest of the swarm followed.

On a recent visit to Carter's campaign headquarters, Powell and Jordan joined the president in his limousine for the short trip. When a reporter jokingly pointed out that he had never seen such an accumulation of power in one place, Powell replied face-tiously, "Usually the Secret Service doesn't let us ride together.' At the headquarters, the entourage was ushered upstairs in a tiny elevator that held only about five people. The president, his agents and Powell crowded in. Jordan was left to take the stairs, three at a time, up to the fifth floor.

Amy Carter, like 3,558 other Washington young-sters, walked 23 miles last month for the March of Dimes and earned $750 in pledges.

Like the other kids, Amy got a T-shirt for her efforts. But unlike the others, Amy's shirt was presented to her during a White House ceremony to which reporters and photographers were invited. Before the president's daughter arrived, one reporter asked spokesmen for the March of Dimes whether the occasion was held because Amy had collected the most money. No, said one. But E.E. Hager, director of chapter development for the local March of Dimes, said Amy was currently leading in the money race. But that was incidental to the

T-shirt presentation.

No one told Amy, who reportedly hit up as many members of the White House staff as she could to get the pledges. As she posed for the photographers, a reporter asked whether she knew she had collected the most money. "I did?" she asked with sur-

Judge questions wisdom of gas act while upholding its constitutionality

OKLAHOMACITY (AP) - A federal judge has questioned the wisdom of Congress' Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 to ensure reserves of natural gas while upholding the constitutionality

The long-awaited 40-page order ruled against a challenge to the act lodged by Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Wyoming and an independent gas producer who claimed the act robbed states of their power to regulate in-state trade.

The order has national impact in that it underlines the authority of Congress under the Commerce Clause of the Consitution to regulate the intrastate natural gas market just as it controls price ceilings of natural gas sold between states.

But U.S. District Judge Ralph Thompson indicated he based his decision not on the wisdom of the act itself, but on Congress' legislative authority under the Constitution to reach inside a state to govern trade.

Kennedy says party doesn't want Carter

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

To hear Sen. Edward M. Kennedy tell it, President Carter is really in trouble now.

Carter claims to have clinched renomination, and the delegate numbers bear him out. But Kennedy says the Democratic party doesn't really want Carter, adds that he, not the president, is the candidate who could capture the big industrial states in the fall. There are certain logical flaws in Kennedy's argument. One is that Democratic voters chose an odd way to express the distaste Kennedy perceives, since they have awarded Carter more than 1,924 nominating delegates — a majority with 258 votes to spare.

They may not be enchanted with Carter; there are polls attesting to that. But they're even less taken with Kennedy, the pre-season favorite who fell fast once the voting started. As he celebrated his capture of a delegate majority and more, Carter recalled the days when Kennedy was being billed as unbeatable. He thanked the supporters "who turned what eight months ago was a prediction of absolute defeat into a wondrous victory tonight." Without question, Kennedy had his best day of the long season in the final round of presidential primaries. He won five, including the biggest of them all in California.

That gives him a total of 10 primary election victories, five over a three-month span, five more on

Carter won three of the final primaries and ran his total of primary state victories to 24.

Kennedy said that didn't count. He said Tuesday's voters had declared they weren't going to concede Carter's nomination, and neither was he. "The people have decided that this campaign must go on; and the people have decided that relentless inflation and rising unemployment must be ended, and the people have decided that what counts is not the quantity of delegates but the quality of their lives," Kennedy

While Carter was declaring the nomination campaign to be over, Kennedy was contending it has only entered a new phase. He said he would outline his future course "at an appropriate time," which probably means as soon as he and his advisers figure out

He can keep daring Carter to debate him, and suggesting that they both release all their delegates so Democrats can have an open convention, but that won't work. The whole point of the five-month primary and caucus campaign was to close the convention, with both candidates trying to accomplish just that. Carter has succeeded, unless Kennedy can get a majority of delegates to adopt rules that waive the commitments of the primaries and the caucuses. That is not likely.

He could keep traveling, working Democratic state conventions. He could stay home and try to use the Senate as his campaign forum.

Mostly, he can wait and see whether economic and foreign woes lead Carter delegates to start looking for a way out. The Kennedy strategy must be based on the premise that Carter will go to the Aug. 11 convention looking like a loser to Republican Ronald Reagan.

Kennedy listed his primary election successes including New York, Pennsylvania and California, in arguing that he's the stronger Democrat in states "a Democratic nominee must carry to prevail in No-

He didn't mention Ohio, Illinois and Texas, big states that went with Carter.

Primary victories do not equate with general election victories anyhow. If they did, Carter would have some electability evidence of his own: the primary states the president won will have 239 electoral votes in November. Kennedy carried states with 167 electoral votes. It takes 270 to win the White

Certainly Carter has political problems, serious

At this point, Reagan appears a formidable rival, and Carter acknowledges that the independent presidential challenge of Rep. John B. Anderson will cost him votes. Inflation still is high, although he says it will decline. Unemployment is headed upward. The president acknowledges that the recession may be deeper than expected. The American hostages are still captive in Iran.
An Associated Press-NBC News poll among Tuesday's Democratic primary voters indicated there may be wholesale defections from a Carter ticket. Only about one-third of Democratic primary voters in California ar the president in the Nov. 4 election.

Even in Ohio, which Carter won, more than half said they did not plan to vote for him. The surveys showed Anderson gaining the support of most of the potential Democratic defectors, although Reagan got his share, too. Carter's quest for party unity will be the more difficult given Kennedy's insistence that he will keep campaigning for the 10 weeks that remain before the

Inflation pace reduces record gifts to colleges

NEW YORK (AP) -- Donations to American colleges and universities reached a record high last year, but the gifts were "disappointing" because they did not keep pace with inflation, says the president of the Council of Financial Aid to Educa-

And John Haire said Tuesday that an increase in voluntary donations is necessary if institutions of nigher education are to bridge the gap between the ordinary and the excellent.

Haire said donors contributed $3.2 billion to colleges and universities in 1978-79, up $190 million over the previous year, for a new high in voluntary support. But the donations did not keep pace with

"If the vitality of the higher education system is to be preserved, the private sector will have to fill the gap between expanding needs and tighter sources of funds," he said in announcing the results of the council's 20th annual survey of voluntary support.

He also said that donations from corporations had reached an all-time high as a percentage of the total.

The survey said Harvard University received the largest amount of voluntary support, $70 million. Next was the University of California with $68 million, followed by Stanford University with $64.5

Famed Chicken Ranch Sheriff to retire

LA GRANGE, Texas (AP) — Fayette County is losing the sheriff who solved every murder and bank robbery of the past 35 years but found unwanted fame only as the legend of the Chicken Ranch spread from Texas to Broadway.

Jim Flournoy is retiring, seven years after the famed bawdy house shut down under pressure from Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Houston television personality Marvin Zindler.

At 78 and near the end of his long career as a lawman, Flournoy has few words about the Chicken Ranch. "I don't want to hear that name again. My wife is sick of hearing about it, and so am I," he told the Austin American-Statesman. The character of the sheriff is among the lead parts in "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," a Broadway hit that soon will be a Flournoy has not seen the play. He says he won't see the movie.

The sheriff's career and the legacy of the Chicken Ranch interweaved through the years. For years he practiced a peaceful co-existence based on house's owners were big contributors to local charities.

The 6-4, 200-pound sheriff and his deputies broke up fights at the house and used information gleaned from its women employees to solve crimes.

Lester Zapalac, former publisher of the local newspaper, said Flournoy found the girls could help trap a bragging bandit.

'He discovered that whenever some crook knocked over a bank, the first thing the crook was likely to do was rush over to (the Chicken Ranch) and spend his money on one of the girls. And while he was at it he'd brag about how he'd done the robbery, how much money he got, and who was with him when he did the robbing," said Zapalac.

Zapalac said "95 percent of the (local) people wanted it here."

At the end of this year Flournoy will leave the 100-year-old courthouse here. His career as a lawman started in 1925 as a deputy in nearby Kenedy County. He did not seek re-election

"At first I just wanted to be a cowboy. My father and brothers were already in law enforcement, and I guess I always knew I'd end up there too," he said. After serving as a deputy sheriff, Flournoy became a Texas Ranger and was sent to San Angelo. 'I'd hook up a trailer to the car to carry my horse and we'd drive out into the Big Bend country. When we'd gotten as far as we could go by car, we'd get the horses out and ride the rest of the way," he said.

Flournoy predicted the new sheriff will have to deal with an increasing number of outsiders coming to town, just as Flournoy had to contend with the out-of-towners who sparked the closing of the Chicken Ranch.

"We got a big oil boom going. Lots of outside people are coming in. The new sheriff is going to have a big job," he said.

Khomeini wants Carter tried

"roughneck" and said he should be tried for attempting to free the 53 U.S. hostages, who spent their 215th day in captivity today. The Americans' jailers reiterated the hostages should be tried as spies if the deposed shah is not returned.

Hundreds of thousands of people marched through the streets of Tehran today to mark the 17th anniversary of a bloody uprising against the former shah. Khomeini, who led the rebellion and was jailed, then exiled, when it failed, addressed the nation over Tehran radio Wednesday.. He referred to the aborted U.S. hostage rescue mission of April 25 and said: When a roughneck says, 'I will intervene in another country' — and he has intervened — well, this is a crime for which he should be tried. Carter should be tried by the world's courts."

The revolutionary leader also attacked the Soviet role in Afghanistan. The revolutionary regime has condemned the Soviet incursion there and has threatened military aid to Afghan Moslem rebels if the Russian forces are not withdrawn.

Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, head of the Justice Ministry and one of the most powerful Iranian leaders, told a crowd at Shahr-e-Kord, a town near the central Iranian city of Isfahan, that Carter's election depends on the outcome of the hostage

He suggested the U.S. president is "sending group after group" to try and get the Iranian leaders. He did not elaborate. But he seemed to be referring to the American commando raid which some Iranian newspapers have suggested was aimed at getting Iranian leaders as well as rescuing hostages. In the cities of Hamadan and Jourghan, 12 more persons were executed for drug offenses the latest of dozens shot in recent weeks for similar crimes in the country's drive against drug smuggling. The militant students who have held the American Embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4 issued a statement over Tehran radio and joined Khomeini in marking the anniversary of the rebellion gainst the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, currently in Khomeini was arrested and sentenced to death following the 1963 uprising, but was later exiled to Iraq. In January 1979 the hands of the people, unless this so-called defender of human rights, this criminal Carter, returns the deposed shah and his plundered wealth," the militants' broadcast said. "If this is done, the Majlis (parliament) deputies will take other decisions (on the hostages' fate.)" Khomeini has said the fate of the hostages rests in the hands of the new Iranian parliament which is not expected to debate the issue until late summer. Meanwhile, former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark said he will pursue "with full vigor" a proposal for a U.S. commission to document American crimes against Iran. Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr requested such a commission Wednesday at the "Crimes of America" conference in Tehran.

Clark, one of 10 American delegates to the conference, said the idea had "tremendous importance." He and the other Americans could face 10-year prison terms and 50,000 fines if convicted of violating Carter's travel ban imposed in April as part of the U.S.

"If that is folly," Miss MacDonald said today, "I wish to God I could have done it with 50 others."

The terrorists fled, but embassy guards cut one terrorist down outside in a hail of gunfire and captured him. The other

-An explosion shattered doors and windows at the Iranian Emassy in Kuwait. Police sources said there were no injuries, and there were conflicting reports about the cause of the blast. PEKING (AP) - Deng Xiaoping, the 76-year-old mainspring of China's latest great leap forward, said today he plans to resign as senior vice premier sometime in August, but will retain three other posts, including the all-important job of deputy Communist Party boss, until 1985. "I want to live a little longer," said the spritely Deng, explaining his decision to shed some of his responsibilities. He also said he feared that by 1985 his mind would not be as active as it is today

Deng first disclosed plans to quit as vice premier in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press in April. He added the August target date at a rare news conference today with the National Conference of Editorial Writers, which was opened to

"With these three posts I will be very busy," he said. But he added, "My plan now is to resign these other posts by 1985 and assume the role of an adviser."

Deng, the mastermind of an ambitious national drive to push China into the top rank of industrialized nations by the year 2000, is widely regarded as China's most powerful politician, despite the fact that is officially ranked second to Hua Guofeng, the FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) - FBI interviews with more than 400 people and the hypnosis of a possible witness have failed to turn up clues in the sniper attack on National Urban League President Vernon E. Jordan Jr., officials say.

Meanwhile, from his hospital room here, the 44-year-old civil rights leader talked groggily about the shooting. "You know, I almost went in (died)," said Jordan, who had been in critical condition after last Thursday's shooting.

Now in serious condition at Parkview Memorial Hospital, Jordan told the Indianapolis Star Wednesday it was eerie that Urban League members had driven by the site of the shooting near the Marriott Inn before the attack.

He had addressed the annual dinner of the local Urban League at the Marriott hours before the shooting.

Jordan has been sitting up and walking a little, said National Urban League spokesman Don Thomas. Police had hoped hypnosis would help a possible witness recall a description of at least one car seen near the motel parking lot where Jordan was shot. But a police spokesman said the hypnosis, conducted Tuesday at the Indiana State police post here, failed to produce any new information. Deputy chief of detectives Ernest Walters did not identify the individual who was hypnotized, although he said it was not

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) - When state officials look at the wasteland of uprooted, ash-covered trees, mud and tangled debris created by the eruption of Mount St. Helens, they see the future — a national park, 2 million visitors a year, motels, restaurants and a $750 million boost for the state economy.

first time something of this magnitude has happened in the continental United States for 3,300 years. And it's an enormously interesting thing." President Carter, after visiting the volcano last month, predicted "people will come from all over the world to observe -

"It is a tremendous event," said Gov. Dixy Lee Ray. "It's the when it's safe. It will be a tourist attraction to equal the Grand Canyon At the moment, however, tourism is at a low ebb. "It's all minuses right now," says Ray Walters, press secre-tary to Miss Ray. "Some people think Washington is uninhabitable, that it has floated off into the Pacific Ocean." Some conventions are being canceled and would-be visitors are awaiting an "all clear" message, says state budget director Lyle Tourism declined after Mount St. Helens erupted on May 18, killing at least 24 people. Fifty-one people still are listed as Because of the "good probability of continued volcanic activi-ty," development of Mount St. Helens as a tourist mecca may be five years off, said Don Richardson, of the state's Department of

There is talk of turning the area into a national park. And more immediate plans call for a state-federal interpretive center some 40 miles northwest of the volcano at Lewis and Clark State Park, which could be open by next month. The center, accommodating about 100 visitors at a time, will feature video tapes, explanations of the eruption and volcanic activity, specimens of ash, pumice and other volcanic materials and geological instruments. When the volcano simmers down and highways and bridges knocked out by mudflows and floods are rebuilt, Mount St. Helens could draw 2 million visitors a year, Jacobsen predicted.

And that could mean an extra $750 million each year, particularly from the motel and restaurant business, said Employment Security Director Eugene Wiegman. The state will poll airlines, tour operations and others this summer on the long-range potential for tourism, Richardson He is optimistic about drawing large numbers of tourists: "Mount Lassen Volcanic National Park has been drawing 380,000 people a year and it has been dormant for over 60 years. Hawaii Volcanoes National Park gets 21/2 million visitors a year,

"We are located much closer to the large population centers, The interpretive center, to be financed by the federal government and built on state land, probably will be ready by next month, says Tom France of the state Parks and Recre-
