Iranian protesters mark U.S. embassy takeover

Tens of thousands of Iranians marched on the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and in a carnival-like atmosphere entered the grounds on the first anniversary of the takeover today. The Iranian Foreign Ministry asked the Carter administration for a quick, public response to its demands for the release of the 52 U.S. hos-

The demonstrators, shouting "Death to American Imperialism" and carrying placards saying "Shame on Carter," were joined by Iranian troops carrying their newest weapons and merchants from Tehran's bazaar. Police helicopters dropped leaflets over the crowd, the official Pars new agency reported.

A Western reporter at the rally said a sea of Iranians filled the embassy grounds and spilled into the surrounding streets. Thousands of school children were in attendance as well as soldiers and revolutionary guards who paraded with flowers in the barrels of their rifles. Brightly-colored banners decorated the embassy

The reporter said the militants did not allow the demonstrators to enter the embassy buildings, where the hostages are believed held. Estimates of the size of the crowd ranged from tens of thousands by Western reporters to hundreds of thousands reported

Speeches were broadcast to those outside the grounds by loudspeakers, and reporters said the rally could be heard for blocks.

None of the buildings was open to the public, and revolutionary guards manned the various entrances inside the compound, whose lawns and buildings appeared well-kept. Western reporters said papier-mache effigies of President Carter were burned, and one described the scene as "relatively calm and happy.'

Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rejai addressed the crowd, saying that regardless of the outcome of the hostage crisis the United States would remain Iran's No. 1 enemy. "The U.S. will continue its assault against us,' he told the crowd gathered on the warm, sunny day.

The rally opened with an address by Hojatoleslam Moussavi Khoeini, the spiritual adviser to the militants who seized the embassy and the head of the parliamentary committee that drew up the conditions for the freeing of the captive Americans.

Meanwhile, Iran's Foreign Ministry said a U.S. government note delivered by the Swiss ambassador in Tehran Monday contained "some provisions ... which are contrary" to the demands, the official Pars news soon as possible to Iran's official text of the conditions for the hostages' release "and they should notify the peoples of the world through the mass media of this matter." It did not elaborate.

The Israeli daily newspaper Maariv reported today it reached one of the militants by telephone, and he told their reporter the militants would issue a statement following a meeting on "when and how to free the hostages in accordance with the decision of the Majlis and the government."

The militants said earlier in addition to the demonstration there would be a special program inside the embassy. But details were not announced in advance.

Forty-nine of the hostages are believed still inside the 27-acre compound, despite claims by their captors that they were transferred to other cities after the unsuccessful U.S. attempt to rescue them on April 25. The other three have been prisoners of the Iranian Foreign Ministry since the embassy was occupied last Nov. 4.

The official English-language text of the Iranian Parliament's conditions for releasing the hostages was delivered to the State Department late Monday by Algeria, which represents Iran's interests in Washington and has been designated to act as its intermediary in the negotiations for the release of the Americans. State Department officials said the negotiations were not likely to start soon. Spokesman John Trattner said the American response to the Iranian communication would not be drafted until the government has time to 'think about it and study it.'

Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said the developments in Tehran and Washington "should be viewed as initial steps in a process which will require time, patience and diplo-

WASHINGTON (AP) - Their long, sometimes bitter campaign over, President Carter and Ronald Reagan could only cast their ballots and wait today for a troubled nation to decide the outcome of the one of the most closely fought elections in recent

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG AP Political Writer

On the first anniversary of the capture of American hostages in Iran, one of the darkest moments in his presidency, Carter returned to Plains, Ga., early today and voted in the old brick high school of his hometown. "I think it's very close," he told reporters.

Asked if he expected to win the election, Carter replied: "I hope so. We'll see. I've always felt confident. I've always come out well." He said the size of the voter turnout would be a big factor in the outcome.

While Carter gave emotional thanks to supporters who rallied at the Plains railroad depot, Reagan, his Republican challenger, awaited the voters' decision at his oceanfront home at Los Angeles.

The 24 registered voters in Dixville Notch, N.H., traditionally the first to cast their votes for president on Election Day, gave Reagan a 17-3 lead over Carter shortly after midnight. Independent candidate John B. Anderson got two votes, Libertarian candidate Ed Clark got one and one ballot was left blank.

"I hope it's the forerunner of things to come," Reagan said in Los Angeles before going to bed. But Dixville Notch has voted for the loser in every presidential election since 1960, with the exception of 1972.

After months of Reagan's harping on Carter's handling of the economy and the president's hints that Reagan could start a war, the final days of their campaign were dominated by swiftly moving events in Tehran that encouraged speculation that the ordeal of the 52 American hostages soon may end. No one could say how those events would affect the outcome of the presidential race, and the candidates reacted cautiously.

"Don't know yet," was the president's response on Monday when asked if he was encouraged by the news that the Iranian militants holding the hostages had agreed to relinquish custody to the Iranian govern-

Campaign '80: It's

Referring to the hostages in an election-eve address for which his campaign purchased time on the three television networks, Reagan said, "Like you, there is nothing I want more than their safe return that they be returned with their families after this long year of imprison-

Another unpredictable factor in the presidential race was Anderson, who insisted on Monday, despite polls showing him far behind the others, that there could be "dramatic shifts" to his candidacy on Election Day.

Carter, concerned that Anderson is)ore likely to draw support from him than from Reagan, appealed Monday to dissident Democrats to reconsider any plans to vote for Anderson. The president said he and the Illinois congressman have goals "very close" on such issues as energy conservation and controlling the spread of nuclear

Then he added, "I ask you to consider the consequences to your lives if you should wake up Wednesday morning and find a new administration ready to take over the Oval Of-

During a long day campaigning in Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, Washington and Oregon, Carter coupled his appeals to potential Anderson potents with sharp attacks on Pos voters with sharp attacks on Rea-

... The candidate cried

VIDOR, Texas (AP) — The Democratic vice-presidential nominee told network newsmen he wanted to bomb Iran and his running mate started to cry. The independents forced the Republicans into a runoff and the victors celebrated on a school playground. Newly elected GOP President Chip Seymour and Vice President Capri Vidor Elementary School teacher Bob Sanford said the campaigns were as fraught with emotion as their national counterparts.

last week. "We tried to stress that this was for the presidency of the United States The children hammered out platforms at party conventions guided by Sanford so policy statements dealt with the same issues the grown-ups

"The only issue we did not deal with was abortion," he said, arguing that third-graders could not comprehend that problem.

"At first, we were not going to talk about women's rights, but they brought that one up.

The highlight of the four-week campaign was a debate with both presidential and vice-presidential candidates fielding questions from "net-And the debates were what hurt the Democrats, who were knocked out of the running in the general election, Sanford said. Democratic presidential candidate Nicole Whitaker said she couldn't answer questions because she had cut her hand. She referred all questions to running-mate Lonnie McCabe. "She just got nervous," Sanford said. When McCabe announced he would go to war in Iran, Whitaker's mouth fell open and she tried to interrupt and disagree. McCabe kept talking and left her pouting and teary. After his inaugural speech, Seymour said he would rather not be president because "the job is too much trouble." But, he said, he will be running for re-election in 1984.

Long lines reported at polls

Early samples of voting at a few polling places around Midland showed voter turnout to be heavy this morning with long lines reported at several places.

In a little more than an hour of voting at Jane Long Elementary School, 201 voters already had made it through the line, according to Dale Stice. It was taking voters about an hour and 10 minutes to make it from the end of the line to the voting booth,

The line wasn't that long, he said, but it was taking people a long time to cast their vote in the machines.

Stice, who worked the polls for the presidential election four years ago, said he didn't remember the lines being so long or the turnout so heavy. "It's the presidential election that's drawing a lot of people," he sur-

Goddard Junior High had 180 persons voting after 11/2 hours today, and the line was reported to be one block

Cecilia Hull, election judge in that precinct, said, "I know we don't have enough voting machines. We only have three and we need about two

There are 2,228 registered voters in that precinct, she noted. People were lined up at 7 a.m. to vote and it was taking them about one hour and 45 minutes in line to reach the voting

With about 400 voting absentee in the San Jacinto Junior High precinct and another 160 voting by 9 a.m., half the people had voiced their opinions before the polls had been open two hours there, said one poll worker. That precinct has a little more than 1.000 registered voters, she said. Another woman who had been working at the poll there for several years said the turnout was heavier than four years ago for the 1976 presidential election.

Bowie Elementary had almost 200 persons voting by 9 a.m. "We've got good long lines," said a poll worker. But the lines were moving quickly and voters only had to wait about 30 minutes.

Carver Cultural Center also reported good voter turnout. By 8 a.m., about 150 persons had voted, said

Jean Ward. "It's been real good since 7 a.m. We've had a continuous line."

For a presidential election, she noted the turnout was about normal.

Iraq claims 'massacre' of brigade

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) - Iraq claimed today an entire Iranian brigade was "massacred" while trying to break through the Iraqi siege of the Iranian refinery city of Abadan.

There was no immediate reaction from Iran, but if confirmed, the casualties could be the highest yet for a single encounter in the 44-day-old Persian Gulf war.

The Insitute for Strategic Studies in London, in its latest survey, says Iran has tended to adopt U.S. military organization, and that a U.S. armored brigade has about 4,500 men, and a mechanized brigade about 4,800.

Iraq's defense minister, Adnan Khairallah, announced the "brigade massacre' in an interview with Iraq's daily newspaper, Al Thawra.

"It was a foolish attempt to try to break from the siege," he said. "They got themselves annihiliated."

The minister, brother-in-law of President Saddam Hussein, accused Iran's chief islamic judge, Hojatoleslam Sadegh Khalkhali, of being responsible for the "brigade massacre, because he ordered the foolish attempt to break out.'

Khalkhali, who sent hundreds of supporters of Iran's ousted monarchy before firing squads, has been taking an active role in the fighting in Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province.

Pars, the official Iranian news agency, said the Abadan governor's office reported several attempts to penetrate the city during the night but the defenders of the revolution countered the attempts."

"The sound of cannon was heard throughout the night," the report added.

Iran admitted earlier that Iraqi forces crossed the Bahmanshir River, on the east side of the city, and fought their way into the eastern suburb of Zolfagar Monday. But the Iranians claimed the "remnants of the aggressor forces that penetrated Abadan have been completely annihilated." Pars also said two Iranian air force planes destroyed enemy positions on the west side of the river, while Iraq said its air force shot down an Iranian Phantom jet in a dogfight over the

No confirmation of any of the claims was available since Western reporters were barred from the battle

Besieged Abadan is Iran's last stronghold on the disputed Shatt al-Arab estuary and produced 60 percent of its refined petroleum products before Iraqi forces invaded Iran on Sept. 22. The city has been bombed and shelled every day since then, and Iraqi forces are pressing in on it from all of its landward sides, but the revolutionary guards defending it are still holding out... The capture of Abadan would give Iraq complete control of the Iranian side of the Shatt al-Arab, part of the pre-war border between the two nations and Iraq's only waterway to the Persian Gulf.

Iraq's two daily communiques Monday reported mostly on the air

One said Iraqi MiGs bombed an army camp near Ahwaz, the capital of Khuzistan Province 80 miles northeast of Abadan, and attacked troop installations west of Kermanshah, at the northern end of the 300-mile inva-

Iran reported heavy fighting in Kermanshah. It said its forces regained complete control of the Gilan-e Gharb region and inflicted "fatal blows" on the Iraqis in battles at a number of other points.

Iran also claimed its pilots des-troyed 50 to 60 percent of the oil and shipyard installations and heavily damaged radar facilities in the Iraqi port of Faw.

Carter administration pondering next steps in hostage situation

after 52 Americans were taken prisoner in Tehran, the Carter administration is pondering what to do next, rejecting Henry Kissinger's advice to tell Iran there is no basis for negotiation in the terms for release it laid down Sunday.

"There's a good deal of rubber in this particular rubber band and we shouldn't give up now," presidential counsel Lloyd Cutler said of the conditions the Iranian Parliament set for the captives to be set free. Hours before Cutler's remarks on the Public Broadcasting Service, Iran's official translation of the terms for ending the crisis had been delivered to the State Department.

There, spokesman John Trattner said no response would be forthcoming until the United States has time to "think about it and study it."

Cutler stressed that point, saying the administration was determined not to act precipitously. President Carter, arriving home in Plains, Ga., early today to vote, said: 'I feel more encouraged about the hostages than I have in the past." Carter, who kept in radio-telephone contact with the State Department overnight while flying cross-country, said the United States was going to 'exchange documents' with Iran, probably through Algerian diplo-

"The Iranians couldn't have chosen a better representative" than Al-

In a televised interview late Sunday, Kissinger had said that meeting the terms "could amount to ransom" and that accepting them would lead America's friends and foes to view the nation "with contempt."

But Cutler said, "There may well be a way in which something that we can do consistent with our laws and our principles will be found ... to meet their conditions."

The four conditions are the return of the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, the freeing of frozen Iranian assets in the United States, the cancellation of U.S. legal claims against Iran and an American pledge not to interfere in Iran's inter-

Although there has been progress,

Officials said negotiations were not likely to start soon. No one in authority would speculate whether it would be days, weeks or months before the hostages' ordeal ends.

He also welcomed Monday's announcement that the students holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran since last Nov. 4 had given responsibility for their captives to the government. Since the hostages were taken, the American position has been that they must be in the hands of those who can negotiate before their freedom could

Three hours after Muskie spoke, Algerian Ambassador Redha Malek delivered the official translation of Iran's four conditions to Assistant Secretary of State Harold Saunders. In the absence of diplomatic relations between the United States and Iran, Algeria represents Iran's interests in Washington.

On Sunday, administration officials said the official English translation could provide "clarifications" that would ease the conditions.

But officials who asked not to be identified said Monday that the official translation did not appear to differ significantly from the unofficial version obtained earlier.

The officials reiterated that some of the conditions, if taken literally by Iran, may be impossible to meet. They added that it remains to be seen how flexible the Iranian interpretation will be.

Neither President Carter nor Republican Ronald Reagan offered any substantive comments on the hostage situation as they ended their campaigns for the White House.

Geologist, oil producer get $35,000 in cross-action suit

A former Midland geologist and oil producer was awarded $35,000 and not the $1 million-plus he had sought in a cross-action suit in 238th State District Court after a well he had drilled in 1978 in Gaines County was plugged and abandoned by Verna Drilling Co.

The judgment-was awarded to J.J. Travis, the 68-year-old geologist who now lives in Rockport, Monday night by the jury which had deliberated about seven hours on the issues in the case and which heard testimony for week in Judge Vann Culp's court. "It was kind of a stand-off," John Gunter, attorney for Travis, said of the outcome of the cross-suit in which Travis had sought damages for lost production on the well.

The litigation was kicked off two years ago after Verna Drilling Co., with whom Travis had contracted to drill a 3,300-foot hole, somehow got its drill string, including casing, pipe, collars and bit, stuck at 3,324 feet, when Verna tried to back out of the hole to run an electric log.

Effort to "fish" out the drill collars Verna maintained that Travis ordered the well "plugged and aban-doned" and that Travis subsequently refused to pay his drilling bill, which, Verna maintained, totaled $121. 350.97. The bill included $41,788.08 for the lost drill collars.

Verna sued Travis for the drilling costs of the abandoned well, and Travis, in a cross-suit, sued Verna for loss of production. Travis reportedly has two other producing oil wells, near the abandoned well, and wells which feed from the same reservoir. Verna claimed that the drill string got stuck after Travis's "geologist, not being sure of his geologic correlation, directed" Verna to "circulate for two hours and come out of the hole in order that an electric log might be

Friends, family display ribbons, light candles on hostage anniversary

By DAVID GREEN Associated Press Writer

Families and friends of the Amerii nostages in Iran displayed yellow ribbons and lit candles today to mark the first anniversary of the U.S. Embassy's capture, but some said wearily that Day 367 seemed no different than the previous 366.

"It's just another day to be endured," said Patricia Boggs of Elyria, Ohio, mother-in-law of hostage Joseph Hall. "We'll be watching television for the latest news out of Iran and voting to make sure our country doesn't turn into one like Iran.

"It probably will be just another routine day, except for the voting," said Margaret Lauterbach of Dayton, Ohio, mother of hostage Steven Lauterbach. "We've always had hopes, but whatever happens, we try not to get too enthusiastic."

In Los Angeles, candles were being lit every hour in the Civic Center and giant yellow ribbons were tied around trees lining Hollywood Boulevard.

A 24-hour candle-lighting vigil began at noon Monday. County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn urged the crowd of 200 "to rejoice" when the hostages are released, "whether it is an hour from now, or a day from now or a week from now. In Hermitage, Pa., relatives of some of the hostages marked the anniversary Monday with a flag raising at a cemetery. One flag has been raised for each day since the embassy at Tehran was captured by militants seeking the return of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, now dead, from the United States. "It strikes me hard to see all these flags waving in the land of the free,' said Richard Hermening of Cudahy, Wis., father of hostage Kevin Hermening. "I hope they will be home soon to be free, too.' Hermening was joined by Eleanor

Kupke of Francisville, Ind., mother of hostage Frederick Lee Kupke, and Gary Cooke of Pittsburgh, brother of hostage Donald Cooke. All three wore yellow ribbons in their lapels, à gesture of support for the hostages that derives from a popular song of a few

"I've had to mask my emotions throughout the crisis," Mrs. Kupke

"All of the ups and downs are really hurting me," she said, adding she had to fight back tears when a high school chorus sang the "Star-Spangled Banner" as the 366th flag was raised. In New York, a class of schoolchildren and 200 tenants of an apartment complex also wore yellow ribbons in a simple ceremony near Times Square commemorating the anniversary.

They prayed that the hostages will be "returned unharmed in body and mind." Behind them, yellow ribbons fluttered from the balconies of apartments in the 45-story, twin-tower Manhattan Plaza apartments.

It was announced Monday that custody of the hostages would be transferred from the militants to the Iranian government. Carol Elledge of Kennewick, Wash., sister of hostage Joe Hall, said the latest developments left her quivering "like a bowl of Jell-

"I'm trying to tell myself not to get too excited, but I'm afraid I'm not doing too well," Mrs. Elledge said. "I just wish I knew what the transfer meant. This has been going on so long.

"We've thought we've almost been at the top of the mountain before, but we were thrown back into the valley of despair," she said.

Although this is election day, a spokesman with the city Planning and Community Development Department said the polls close at 7 p.m. and it takes awhile before early returns are posted. Thus, residents will have time to make it to City Hall for the hearing and get home in time to hear results of the voting.

The spokesman explained that the Department of Housing and Orban Development, which issues the funds. has a strict time schedule to follow in filing the application. According to that schedule, this week is the only time the hearing could be held and city officials picked today.

The funds can be used for such items as senior citizens' centers, neighborhood facilities, child care centers, flood and drainage facilities and street improvements.

After four years of refusing to apply for the money, the City Council recently decided to try another application. A second hearing on uses for the funds will be held Jan. 12.

Stock market

By FLOYD NORRIS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - With defense issues pacing the gain, the stock market moved up sharply Monday, the last trading session before the election. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues rose 12.71 to 937.20 as advances outnumbered declines by a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange issues.

Boeing was up 1½ to 37½. United Technologies gained 2% to 52¼, Lockheed was up 3½ to 32¼ and General Dynamics rose 2 to 68.

Most petroleum issues were also strong. Mobil rose 11/8 to 74%, Exxon gained 21/2 to 78%, Guulf added 1 to 40% and Texaco was up % to 38%. Phillips rose 1% to 53½ after saying it was dropping plans to acquire Great Basins Petroleum, a Canadian company. But Getty dropped ¾ to 88%. Volume on the Big Board was a moderate . million shares, compared to 40.11 million on Friday.

The NYSE's composite index rose 83. to 74.36. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.76 to 338.75.

With the markets closed Tuesday, the trading was the last before the election results are known. In the four years since President Carter was elected, the Dow Jones industrial average has fallen almost 30 points, from 966.09 on Nov. 1, 1976, the day before the election.

But the more-broadly based New York and American stock exchange indexes are up sharply, having reached record highs last month. The Amex market value index was at 99.05 the day before Carter's election, and the NYSE composite index was at 55.00.

At the Amex, New York Times class A rose 3% to 38. Earth Resources leaped 7% to 54% after Mapco said it will tender for all the company's shares, instead of only some. Mapco slipped % to 431/2 on the Big Board.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial stocks rose 1.98 to 147.14 and S&P's composite index of 500 stocks

TODAY'S ANSWER

Mixed drink sales increase

AUSTIN - State Comptroller Bob Bullock said last week the sales of mixed drinks in Texas during the third quarter of 1980 pushed the yearly total during the first nine months to more than $700

Bullock said mixed drink taxes collected during July, August and September total $24.2 million. There were $22.1 million and $23.6 million collected during the first and second quarters.

He said his office is mailing checks totaling $7 million to 212 Texas counties and 366 cities as their share of the 10 percent gross receipts tax on mixed drinks for the third quarter.

Bullock said continued growth in sales of mixed drinks for the remainder of the year could push total sales in Texas this year to nearly $1 billion dollars. The state's General Revenue Fund will receive $17.2 million of the tax money collected during the Texas cities and counties receive a 15 percent rebate of the tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries under the law that legalized mixed drink sales. In Midland County, the county received a rebate of $31,800 of the $212,005 it paid in taxes on mixed drinks. The city of Midland received $28,353 of the $189,024 it paid last quarter.

In Ector County, $40,861 was rebated on the $272,- 407 paid by the county on mixed drinks. Odessa itself received $33,017 of the $220,118 it paid for the bever-

The tax is collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and the city-county rebates are sent out quarterly by the comptroller's office.

Texas' gross sales up, Bullock says

AUSTIN — Gross sales in Texas continued to climb in the second quarter of 1980, State Comptroller Bob Bullock announced last week. Bullock said a sales tax analysis of gross sales for April, May and June of this year shows the gross sales totaled more than $64.7 billion, up $3.8 billion over the first quarter

Bullock said the second quarter gross sales this year surpassed sales during the same period in 1979 by more than $11.4 billion.

The figures were gathered from 245,047 reporting outlets across the state.

Bullock also released a computer analysis showing reported sales during the second quarter for each of the state's 254 counties and a sales tax analysis broken down by the state's Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

Gross sales for Midland County during the second quarter, with 1,911 outlets reporting, reached a high $403,689,863. Of that figure, some $189,081,893 of that is subject to taxing.

In Ector County, gross sales for the second quarter with 2,907 outlets reporting amounted to $772,250,559.

Some $248,502,829 of that total is subject to taxing.

Average discount rate up on 13-week T-bills

WASHINGTON (AP) - The average discount rate of 13-week Treasury Department bills was 13.344 percent Monday, the highest since the 13.818 percent rate of April 14. The rate was 12.331 percent last week.

The average rate on 26-week bills was 13.269; percent, the highest since 13.549 percent on April 14.

The rate last week was 12.284 percent. The sharp increases in interest rates on short-term federal government securities came as the Treasury Department borrowed $7.8 billion. An investor's return on these government securities is higher than the discount rate because a portion of the price is refunded at the time of pur-chase. The average investment rate on 13-week bills was 14.00 percent and on 26-week securities was 14.42 The maximum interest that financial institutions may pay on six-month money-market certificates is tied by law to the discount rate on 26-week Treasury

Banks and thrift institutions may pay up to 13.519 percent on six-month certificates sold during the week that begins Thursday. The current limit is 12.534 percent. The current limit on 30-month "small-saver" certificates, which is pegged to yields on 30-month government securities, is 12 percent for thrift institutions and 11.75 percent for commercial banks. That limit is in effect for purchases through Nov. 12.

Auto production down

DETROIT (AP) — Despite production increases for the new models, the five major U.S. automakers say they produced 15 percent fewer cars in October than in the same month last year.

Reports from the companies Monday said U.S. assembly lines turned out 669,105 cars during the month, compared to 783,293 in October 1979. Chrysler Corp. was the only company building more cars during October.

New federal law worries college financial aid experts

WASHINGTON (AP) - Several college financial aid experts are worried that a new federal law could boost student subsidies for the wealthy at the expense of the poor and the middle class.

The experts also fear the new law will aggravate a tendency in the federal aid programs to penalize frugal parents who save for their children's education while rewarding spend-

The Education Amendment of 1980, which President Carter signed into law Oct. 3, extended federal grant, loan, work-study and other programs for five years and made changes in the aid formulas.

One of the most significant changes was elimination of the need for families to report equity in their home as part of their assets. The new law disregards home equity.

A computer analysis by the College Board's College Scholarship Service indicates that families with incomes of $15,000 to $18,000 could be expected to pay $414 more of their children's college bills. They now are expected to pay $182 a year. But those making $33,000 to $36,000 might save $304. Their contribution would be $2,394. In the $42,000-to-$45,000 range, a family might save $1,376 and see their expected share drop to $3,158.

Lawrence E. Gladieux, director of the College Board's Washington office, maintained that the new law also created some quirks in the aid formulas that Congress will have to correct with technical amendments.

The top student-aid offical in the Department of Education acknowledged the need for some technical alterationss, but said the department will make sure the wealthy are not aided at the expense of the poor.

Thomas Butts, the deputy assistant secretary for student financial assistance, said the College Scholarship dents will be faced with the same contribution rate, but that is not necessarily so.

"The law says the tax rate may be up to 14 percent for families with income of $25,000. It is silent above that," he said. "There's nothing to say we couldn't have a tax rate lower than 14 percent for low-income people and higher than 14 percent for people with higher incomes."

The department will not use the new aid formulas until the 1982-83 school year. It plans to issue rules next spring on how it will determine students' needs.

Striking city workers vote to accept contract

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) -Striking municipal employees in Michigan's second-largest city have voted to accept a two-year contract and end the longest walkout in Grand Rapids history.

Some 677 members of Local 1061 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, which represents the 850 city workers, cast ballots to approve the pact on Monday, the 87th day of the walkout.

Local 1061 President Edwin Muste said the tally would not be released. However, he said the vote was "real mixed all day; I wouldn't have tried to predict" the outcome. The workers, mostly clerks and public works employees, struck Aug. 9 after working for a month without a contract. The strike disrupted few services in the city of more than 180,000 people as supervisors operated water and sewer plants and drove garbage trucks to pickup points. The agreement, which will be considered by the City Commission tonight, gives workers a 25 percent wage-and-benefits increase over two years. The workers currently earn an average salary of slightly more than $13,000 annually.

City officials said the workers could be back on the job as soon as Wednesday, but Muste said the union has a seven-day return period following ratification by the City Commission.

The union bargaining committee took a neutral stance on the pact because it did not contain a cost-ofliving clause or provisions for full amnesty from disciplinary action for union members arrested for strikerelated offenses.

Several strikers were arrested in connection with picketing at construction sites at the municipal convention center and the sewage treatment plant. Charges against the workers ranged from obstructing traffic to minor assault.

Muste said the city agreed not to fire any of the workers, but would not, guarantee that lesser disciplinary action won't be taken.

He also said: "I'm terribly proud of our members and our union. But I'm disappointed we couldn't meet their needs as well as their wants."

No patients hurt in fire in San Antonio hospital

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Firemen climbed ladders and broke out windows to evacuate patients from a San Antonio hospital late Monday after fire erupted in a conference room, sending smoke throughout the three-story building.

No patients were injured in the fire at Southwest General Hospital, located about five miles south of downtown San Antonio, although some were treated for smoke inhalation, fire officials said.

There were 110 patients in the 166-bed hospital. according to hospital administrator Ralph Aleman. They were evacuated from their rooms and sent to eight other San Antonio hospitals.

Soviets get counterfeit blue jeans

MOSCOW (AP) — The young woman gladly parted with a month's salary for the crisp new jeans adorned with the prized Wrangler label. But on the first washing the jeans and the label disintegrated into a shapeless, splotchy rag.

The woman was among hundreds of victims of a counterfeit jeans ring which, according to the government newspaper Izvestia, was recently broken in the Crimean port city of Odessa.

The paper's report detailed one of the biggest and most innovative operations yet to profit from the seemingly insatiable craving for American jeans among Soviet citizens, and more specifically for real Wranglers, Lees or Levis.

Sixty swindlers were given sentences ranging from one to six years, authorities confiscated 250,000 rubles ($387,500) and more than 400 witnesses gave testimony.

DEAR ABBY Policemen don't need another siren in car

DEAR ABBY: I almost always agree with you, but your reply to JEALOUS, who was upset because her policeman husband was working nights with a female officer, really lit

My husband is a police officer (11 nears), and I have lots of reasons for not wanting him to ride around with a "cute, single, bright and funny" woman all night.

In the police academy, they are taught that for every 1,000 hours of police work, there are 10 minutes of excitement. Just put a man and a "cute, single, bright, funny woman" in the same car for eight hours, and if there's no action on the street, you can guess where the action will be.

Men will be men. And they all have their weaknesses. You wouldn't put an alcoholic in a bartender's job any more than you'd put a diabetic in a candy store. Knowing my husband as I do, I certainly wouldn't feel com-fortable having him work with a cute lady.—SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: I know you won't like this, but there are some jobs women are just not suited for, and being put on patrol as a police officer

I'm a police officer, and I'm scared to death to have a female with me. I am given unofficial orders to "take care of her." and woe be it to me if she is hurt. When we go to a violent scene, I have to handle myself and her. I tell her, "Please sit in the car, and if I give you the signal, call in for help." At least she is good for that. There are other jobs they are good for, such as getting out on the street and pretending to be prostitutes and other such undercover work, but not police roadwork. "I KNEW WHAT was in the Bible, but I hadn't studied it until someone gave me the Phillips translation of the New Testament," she said. "With that translation, I could understand what I was reading.'

It was reading that translation that started the change in the young actress. "One of the first scriptures I read was in Romans, chapter 12. It said 'Don't let the world squeeze you into its mold.' That really hit me,' she said quietly. "I realized then that I had spent my life by pretending to be what people expected of me.

"Here I was in my middle twenties having a major identity crises — I didn't have an identity and I knew it," she said.

'There are things we know about ourselves we hope no one will ever find out," she said. "This comes up when we are trying to be accepted. Before I accepted Christ as my Saviour, I thought nobody who knew me would want me.
