Reagan gets landslide mandate

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Wilson Reagan won the White House on the crest of a conservative tide that swept Republicans to control of the Senate for the first time in 26 years and gave the president-elect a landslide mandate for his promises of a tougher America abroad and less government at home.

"I am not frightened by what lies ahead," Reagan told a victory celebration at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles, promising to "tap that great American spirit."

President Carter congratulated Reagan and pledged "our fullest support and cooperation in bringing about an orderly transition of government."

"I can't stand here tonight and tell you it doesn't hurt," Carter told supporters at a Washington hotel.

Reagan and running mate George Bush led from the earliest returns on Tuesday and it quickly became clear that their triumph was a prelude to a sweeping shift in the American political balance of power.

The GOP ticket had courted Democrats — Jews, blue-collar workers and big city residents — and his strategy paid off, according to polling data that showed Reagan capturing a substantial share of those votes.

As the returns flowed in, the magnitude of Reagan's victory was clear in the electoral vote tally which gave the Republican nominee 483 to 49 for Carter with only one state — Arkansas with 6 electoral votes — to be decided. Reagan only needed 270 electoral votes to win.

The national turnout of Americans of voting age was low — only 52.9 percent — the lowest since the Truman-Dewey election of 1948.

With 98 percent of the vote counted, Reagan had 42.4 million votes for 51 percent and 483 electoral votes. Carter had 34.2 million votes for 41 percent and 49 electoral votes. Anderson had 5.4 million for 7 percent, but no electoral votes.

Republicans captured 10 Democratic Senate seats and were leading in the race for two others, assuring them at least a 51-49 majority and control for the first time since 1954. The GOP won at least 29 House seats and led for five others, but fell short of the 59-seat gain needed to wrest control of that body from the Democrats.

Among the last races to be decided — all in the GOP's favor — were in Wisconsin, where former Rep. Robert Kasten defeated veteran Sen. Gaylord Nelson; in Alaska, where Frank Murkowski defeated Clark Gruening for the seat held by Sen. Mike Gravel, who lost to Gruening in the Democratic primary; and in North Carolina where John P. East defeated Sen. Robert Morgan.

The Democrats, in contrast, were threatening only the seat held by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., whose 1964 presidential campaign was Reagan's first taste of national politics, but the lead in Goldwater's battle with Phoenix businessman Bill Schulz saw-sawed.

The Senate outcome will mean the shift in Senate committee chairmanships — with Charles Percy, Ill., taking over the Foreign Relations Committee; and these other new chairmen: Strom Thurmond, S.C., Judiciary; Bob Dole, Kan., Finance; Mark Hatfield, Ore., Appropriations; Jesse Helms, N.C., Agriculture; John G. Tower, Texas, Armed Services; Jake Garn, Utah, Banking; Bob Packwood, Ore., Commerce; James McClure, Idaho, Energy; and Alan K. Simpson, Wyo., Veterans Affairs.

A Reagan presidency, promising one of the sharpest ideological shifts of this century, thus would be aided by a more conservative Congress, even with the Democrats still in the majority.

Reagan wants to remove most government restraints on private industry as the surest way of solving the nation's energy problems. He says one of his principal goals is to "take the government off the backs of the Local Republicans, Demos split six contested races

Although Ronald Reagan carried the Republican Party to huge election celebrations throughout the country with a sweeping victory over incumbent President Jimmy Carter, local Republicans and Democrats did some celebrating of their own, equally splitting six wins in contested races here.

Midland Democrats took their wins in the district judge seat and both county commissioner seats. Democrat Pat Baskin won the district judge seat of the 142nd district over Republican Jay "Timber" Floyd by a wide margin. Democrat Durward Wright took the precinct 1 seat in the commissioners race over Republican Jeff Barber by about a 2-to-1 margin. And Democrat C. Dwayne Davis beat out Republican Alexandra Morris for the precinct 3 seat in the commissioners race.

Local Republicans celebrated wins in the sheriff race, the justice of the peace race and the county constable race. Incumbent Republican Sheriff Dallas Smith defeated his Democratic challenger Joe Carr by a more than 3-to-1 margin. And Republican Charlie Sprayberry ousted 20-year incumbent John Biggs in the justice of the peace race for precinct 1 in the first contested race against Biggs after five terms. In the constable's race, Republican Tom McGinnis beat out Charlie Jones for the seat.

County joins landslide Reagan gets huge margin here

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Local Republican leaders were smiling like the Cheshire cat Tuesday night as the returns from Midland showed Ronald Reagan with a 19,000 vote margin over incumbent Democratic President Jimmy Carter.

And after the results nationwide showed almost a surprising landslide victory for the Republican, the GOP leaders acknowledged gleefully they won't have Carter to kick around any more.

Out of 44,073 registered voters in Midland County, 32,890 crammed into the voting machines to pull the levers 25,027 times for Reagan. For Carter, the number was 6,839, down from the 7,725 he garnered here four years ago to win the presidency.

Bob Monaghan, region V director of the Reagan-Bush campaign in Texas, said he anticipated Reagan would win by a bigger margin than what pollsters were predicting.

"I feel it was a groundroofs swell," he commented this morning. "People who had never voted Republican voted for Reagan. Some of my wife's relatives in Arkansas voted for a Republican governor."

"People wanted a change," Monaghan explained of Reagan's wide margin of victory over Carter. "They wanted to feel the country had a future; they wanted to be optimistic."

The one-vote Republican lead in the Senate, making it the first time since Dwight Eisenhower's term in 1952 that the country has a Republican Senate, was a surprise for local Republicans.

To hope for a lead in the Senate "was wishful thinking," Monaghan laughed this morning. "It was a surprise to us. We had only been hoping to get two or three liberal senators out of office. But I believe the coat-tail effect of Reagan has gone all the way down to the courthouse, not just the Senate."

The Republican Senate will make it easier for Reagan to push through some of his proposed policies, Monaghan surmised.

The outcome of the election — over and above the election of Reagan — is that the liberal Democrats have been taught a lesson, in the mind of the GOP official.

"To get a strong organization, they're going to have to change their thinking."

Four years ago, Monaghan wasn't smiling the day after the general election, he recalled. But this year, he said he was getting telephone calls from excited relatives even after midnight.

Midlander Harris Kerr, a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee and chairman of the Carter-Mondale ticket here, agreed with Monaghan's summary of the Democratic Party's future.

"There's an awful lot of work ahead for the Democratic Party," he said. "I think it was an anti-incumbent election. The message was 'you had better change your ways.'"

He remarked he was "astounded" by Reagan's margin throughout the country, but he feels the Carter people "did their job by turning out the vote."

The Republicans, he feels, "did a fine job of organizing. They're to be congratulated. But I'm pleased with the local Democratic winners we had."

Carter only carried three precincts in Midland County, and all were in strong Democratic areas. At Precinct 1, located at the Public Safety Building, the vote was 433 for Carter, 122 for Reagan. The fifth voting box, located at Carver Cultural Center, was 635 for Carter, 60 for Reagan. And Precinct 10, which voted at the fire station on Golf Course and Edwards Streets, recorded 971 votes for Carter, 235 for Reagan.

The remaining precincts were heavily in favor of Reagan with the largest number of votes coming out of absentee, 5,775 for Reagan and 879 for Carter.

Reagan easily captures Texas' electoral votes

DALLAS (AP) — As television thrillers go, it had all the drama and suspense of a Sportatorium wrestling match. Charlie's Angels with bras.

But Texas Republicans liked the ending: Ronald Reagan and George Bush by a near landslide.

The former California governor and his Houston running mate torpedoed President Carter's bid for reelection and captured Texas' 26 electoral votes in the process.

In sports parlance, it was a slaughter.

Worse still, the end came with some Texans standing in line to vote and with hardly a handful of ballots computed.

NBC projected Reagan the presidential sweepstakes winner shortly after nightfall Tuesday and awarded him Texas as something of an afterthought.

Early today, the Reagan-Bush ticket commanded 55 percent of the vote, roughly a dozen percentage points ahead of Carter-Mondale.

For a state described variously as a tossup, as pivotal, as critical, the swift verdict was a bummer.

But not for the Republicans.

Said Gov. Bill Clements: "Nationally, all across this nation, Texas has become a model for how a campaign should be structured, how a campaign should be run."

The fact that the feisty Clements helped structure and run that Texas campaign could hardly be overlooked.

But former Gov. John Connally was no less ebullient. Said he:

"We are clearly moving toward a moderate-conservative philosophy in American politics...In the decade of the 1980s, Texas will be one of the strongest Republican states in the nation."

For Bush, an adopted Texan, it was a night of rejoicing, though tempered somewhat by reflective rhetoric.

"This is a night of celebration for some of us, disappointment for others," he told a cheering crowd of supporters at a Houston hotel.

"But tomorrow, in the great American tradition, those of us who celebrate tonight and those who have suffered disappointment will come together as one people to meet the larger challenge."

All but overlooked amid the presidential fanfare were several important Texas races and issues, ranging from congressional contests to constitutional changes.

From a national viewpoint, the most important involved House Majority Leader Jim Wright, who survived a well-financed challenge to win a 14th term in congress.

Wright won a surprisingly lopsided victory over millionaire Fort Worth businessman Jim Bradshaw, a popular, conservative Republican.

Three other house races involving incumbent congressmen were too close to call. They included Democrats Jim Mattox of Dallas and Bob Eckhardt of Houston and Republican Ron Paul of Lake Jackson.

Democrats Jim Nugent, an incumbent, and Buddy Temple won election to the powerful Texas Railroad Commission, neither with undue difficulty.

Hance re-elected by wide margin

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Kent Hance started running for re-election to a second term in the U.S. House of Representatives from the 19th Congressional District with no opposition from his party nor even the local Republican organization. But by last summer, he was being challenged by Libertarian candidate J.D. Webster of Midland.

Hance did no campaigning nor advertising, yet he won handily in Midland County by a vote of 17,230 to Webster's 1,732.

And it was an even bigger margin when the results from the 17 counties in his district were in — 123,713 for Hance, 6,737 for Webster.

Late Tuesday, Webster acknowledged the vote totals, saying "I thought I was going to do better. But we found quite a bit of constituency out there."

The challenger said he was hoping there would be a large "Republican crossover" here that would help, but it didn't show up.

Kent Hance

However, he felt the electorate who voted for him were people who normally wouldn't have cast a ballot in that race. "These are new people for the potential equation in the future." He predicted the Libertarian Party will be seen again in the future in more local races. "People find it easier to vote for a Libertarian candidate in the lower races," he explained.

Hance, a former state senator from Lubbock, won his first term two years ago in a heated contest with Republican George W. Bush of Midland. It was the rural vote that gave Hance the edge he needed then to take the congressional seat.

From Hereford, the home of his mother-in-law, Hance said today he was "extremely pleased with the percentage of vote we received. I look forward to a new Congress; it will be a more conservative Congress."

Referring to his own conservative political philosophy, Hance said he believes he will have no trouble working with President-elect Ronald Reagan or the Republican-ruled Senate.

"I've always been one that puts the issue first," he said.

His first project in the new session will be to get the Windfall Profits Tax repealed or get the royalty owners and independents exempted from the tax. Hance said he expects some relief of this type will pass Congress. "Reagan has indicated he will support it."

If the conservative trend continues into the elections two years from now, Hance said he believes he still will be reviewed on his record, not specifically his party.

"I would think people would judge me for the work I've done with the district and for staying in touch with the people. I've had more town hall meetings than any other congressman."

Hance will be returning to Washington next week for the final meetings of this Congress. But he's not expecting much to happen, Hance said, pointing to the number of lame duck congressmen.

"I don't think we'll be handling much of anything," he added. "I wish we'd just adjourn."

Democrats keep control of House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats are keeping control of the House but the nationwide voter mutiny against Jimmy Carter slashed sharply into their ranks and will likely insure a receptive forum for the conservative programs of Ronald Reagan.

Several of the House's most prominent — and liberal — Democrats were defeated Tuesday as the mood of the electorate swung sharply to the right, giving Reagan a landslide victory and, in the Senate, ousting Democrats from the control they had held for the last quarter-century.

Republicans won at least 26 additional House seats, surprising even themselves, and were leading in eight of the 10 remaining races. A 34-seat gain would restore the party to the strength it held before the Watergate scandal ousted Richard Nixon from office and decimated the GOP's ranks.

Democrats hold a 276-159 margin in the outgoing House. With 10 races still too close to call, the lineup was 240 to 185.

The additions, coupled with the scope of Reagan's landslide, are sure to put the House on a more conservative course than has been the case. The House, with its membership up for election every two years, is necessarily sensitive to the mood of the electorate.

Even House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-

Mass., called the election results a "disaster for the Democrats" and said "the president collapsed in the last few days."

Carter has frequently been engaged in squabbles with the House as liberal Democrats and conservative Republicans joined forces against his proposals. His energy program, for example, was almost completely rewritten, as were several of his transportation deregulation proposals. Probably his most crushing defeat came when the House passed legislation forbidding him from imposing an oil import fee and then decisively crushed his veto of its prohibition.

But the remaining liberals, their eyes on the election results, are unlikely to muster much opposition to Reagan's plans for legislation such as a 30 percent tax cut and for decreased government interference in private enterprise.

"There is no way the next Congress is going to resemble the last," said Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, who headed up the $9 million Republican advertising drive to elect Republicans to the House. "Democratic leaders who managed to survive had the bejesus scared out of them."

More importantly, Republican challengers knocked off several prominent liberal Democrats who have helped shape the nation's course for years. Among the most notable Democratic losers were John Brademas of Indiana, who held the 3rd ranking leadership post among Democrats; Frank Thompson of New Jersey, a top spokesman for labor causes; Thomas Ashley of Ohio, influential in housing legislation; John Murphy of New York, a leader of American shipping interests; and Harold T. Johnson of California, head of the House Public Works Committee.

Another prominent Democrat — Al Ullman of Oregon, who chairs the powerful tax-writing Ways and Means Committee — was in a neck-and-neck race, trailing his Republican opponent by more than 2,300 votes with 86 percent of the precincts reporting.

And several veteran Democrats, including Richardson Preyer of South Carolina, Lester Wolff of New York, Sam Devine of Ohio, Jerome Ambro of New York and Andrew Maguire of New Jersey, lost their seats.

In contrast, Republicans lost fewer than six incumbents. But one loss was that of Rep. Robert Bauman of Maryland, the parliamentary wizard who has long made life difficult for the Democratic majority.

Wright decisive victor; Eckhardt loses squeaker

By TERRY LEONARD
Associated Press Writer

House Majority Leader Jim Wright won a decisive victory Tuesday night to turn back the toughest election challenge of his political life, but the political fortunes of three other incumbents were undetermined early Wednesday.

Wright, who needed a solid win to strengthen his leadership position in the House, collected 62 percent of the vote in whipping Republican Jim Bradshaw.

But U.S. Reps. Bob Eckhardt, Ron Paul and Jim Mattox still were engaged in see-saw battles early Wednesday for the lead in their bitter campaigns for Congress.

"I am grateful for this victory," said Wright. "It was not I who achieved it — it was the people."

Wright said he was not looking forward to the retirement of House Speaker Tip O'Neill, but he said the decisive win would bolster his chances for the post should O'Neill step down in two years.

"I am not looking forward to Tip's retirement ... if he's still speaker 10 years from now and is a pall bearer at my funeral I'll be happy," said Wright.

The House majority leader also said he did not foresee any problems working with a Republican president.

"...I've worked with three already," said Wright.

"We may have a Republican administration, but we still have a Democratic Congress," he said.

The lead in the 8th District exchanged hands frequently Tuesday night between Eckhardt and Republican challenger Jack Fields. With 95 percent of the vote counted early Wednesday, Fields held a narrow 280-vote lead out more than 125,000 votes cast.

Paul, the Republican 22nd District incumbent, clung to a narrow 335-vote lead out of more than 178,000 votes in his see-saw struggle early Wednesday morning with Democrat and political newcomer Mike Andrews fight for the seat in the 22nd District.

With 90 percent of the vote counted Wednesday morning, Mattox held a slim 52 percent to 48 percent edge over Republican challenger Tom Pauken.

Former State Sen. Ralph Hall, a Democrat from Rockwall, beat Republican John Wright of Tyler in a tight race for the 4th District seat vacated by the retiring U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts.

Democratic incumbent Martin Frost won handily over Republican challenger Clay Smothers in 107-year-old casts her first vote

FAIRMONT, W.Va. (AP) — A 107-year-old woman who became an American citizen just four months ago says that voting in her first election put her in awe. And in the best Yankee tradition, she kept her vote secret.

Although Mrs. Marvich happily acknowledged the congratulations and kisses of those who turned out to watch, she refused to reveal which candidates got her first votes.

"She didn't say," Mrs. Nicoletti said about her mother's choices. "She wouldn't say nothing."

Mary Marvich, who usually gets around with a walker, was carried by several men to the second-floor voting booth at Marion County Courthouse so she could cast her ballot Tuesday.

"I was just awed by the whole thing," said Mrs. Marvich, who came to the United States 91 years ago from what is now Yugoslavia.

Federal officials had denied her citizenship because she couldn't remember the name of the ship she came on. They said they had no way of knowing whether she entered the country legally.

Mrs. Marvich gave up fighting the authorities 60 years ago, but at her 107th birthday party this year she once again brought up her dream of citizenship. This time, with help from many corners, she won the fight. After taking the oath of citizenship in June, she said her last wish was to vote.

"Bad weather or not, I'm going to be there," she told well-wishers who gathered for her citizenship ceremony.

She kept her word. Her daughter, Betty Nicoletti, helped Mrs. Marvich mark the ballot.

"She was thrilled to death," said Mrs. Nicoletti. "Her hip was bothering her but she said she was going (to vote). She did a terrific job."

U.S. won't make reply through media

By The Associated Press

The United States rejected Iran's demand for a speedy response via the media to its terms for release of the 52 American hostages and sought clarification of the conditions set Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and the Majlis, Iran's parliament.

"We are not negotiating through the newspapers," State Department spokesman John Trattner said Tuesday after Algeria's ambassador in Washington delivered Iran's request that the U.S. government "speedily announce" its reply to the Iranian Parliament's conditions for the hostages' release and "notify the peoples of the world through the mass media of this matter."

Trattner said the United States was seeking clarification of the terms and gave no indication when there would be a formal U.S. response to them.

"We will move forward expeditiously," he said, "but we will do it deliberately and with care."

President Carter sent a message to Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai through the Swiss ambassador in Tehran Monday, the day after the Majlis vote, but Rajai said it was a "statement concerning some generalities which did not address the issue of our conditions."

He said if the United States did not accept the conditions, "we will firmly stand by our position."

An official in Rajai's public relations office said Ronald Reagan's election will have no effect on Iran's position on the hostages.

"Iran's stand on the question is clear," he told The Associated Press in Beirut by telephone. "It is up to the United States to accept or reject. It doesn't make any difference to us who the president is."

The terms set by Khomeini, the leader of Iran's revolutionary regime, and the Majlis are a pledge from the United States not to interfere in Iranian affairs, cancellation of all American lawsuits and other legal claims against Iran, release the billions of dollars in Iranian assets frozen in U.S. banks and the return to Iran of the assets of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his closes relatives.

Today was the hostages' 368th day in captivity, the second day of the second year.

Rajai spoke Tuesday to the thousands who thronged the grounds of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for a demonstration celebrating the first anniversary of seizure of the embassy and its staff by young Islamic militants.

The prime told the crowd that regardless of the outcome of the crisis, the United States will remain Iran's No. 1 enemy and "continue its assault against us."

He said the seizure of the embassy on Nov. 4, 1979, while the shah was undergoing cancer treatment in New York, was "the best thing that could have happened to us since it made us see that we had to stand on our own feet."

American people."

Reagan pledged during his campaign that one of his first acts as president would be to sign an executive order placing a freeze on federal hiring.

One of president-elect's top aides said Tuesday that another of Reagan's first acts after taking office would be to send Congress his plan for a 30 percent cut in income tax rates to be phased in over three years.

But if there was a single event that sealed Carter's political fate in this longest of presidential campaigns it probably was the one-on-one debate with Reagan that the incumbent sought so avidly.

Held in Cleveland, one week before the election, Carter had seen the confrontation as an opportunity to sharpen public awareness of the differences between them, particularly on arms control.

Instead, the nationally broadcast debate, with an audience estimated at more than 100 million, gave Reagan a chance to counter the perception pushed by Carter that the Republican nominee would lead the nation into a dangerous nuclear arms race and was prone to advocating military force to resolve international disputes.

Reagan made the most of that chance.

Before the debate most polls had shown Carter closing the gap in the lead Reagan had held since the nominating conventions. Most post-debate polls showed Carter's momentum halted, if not reversed.

The startling scope of Reagan's victory was such that independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson was no factor in the president's loss.

Anderson, who was receiving about 7 percent of the popular vote, finished no better than third in any state.

In the Senate, Democrats had won 11 seats and were leading for one other; Republicans had won 20 and were leading for two.

In the House, 242 Democrats had won. Among Republicans, 188 had won and five were leading.

In races for governor, six Democrats and six Republicans were elected, and a Republican was leading in Indiana.

Congress returns to the Capitol next Wednesday for a lame-duck session and it will be a last hurrah for many big name legislators.

Among the Senate losers were Democrats George S. McGovern of South Dakota, Birch Bayh of Indiana, Frank Church of Idaho, Warren Magnuson of Washington, John Culver of Iowa, and John Durkin of New Hampshire, and Republican Jacob Javits of New York, who was on the ballot as a Liberal after losing a primary fight to Alfonse D'Amato who went on to win the Senate seat.

Among the new faces in the Senate will be James Abdnor, who beat McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee; Slade Gorton, who beat Magnuson, the senior member of the Senate; Dan Quayle, who defeated Bayh; Steve Symms, who won over Church; Charles Grassley, who beat Culver, and Warren Rudman, who defeated Durkin. Abdnor, Quayle, Symms, and Grassley were congressmen.

Other Senate newcomers include Republicans Don Nickles of Oklahoma, Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, Paula Hawkins of Florida, Rep. Mark Andrews of North Dakota, and Jeremiah Denton of Alabama, and Democrats Rep. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut and Alan Dixon in Illinois.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., trailed most of the evening to Republican Mary Estill Buchanan, but finally pulled ahead and won a second term.

Among the losers in the House were Democratic Whip John Brademas of Indiana, Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, and Richardson Preyer, D-N.C.

Also approved were amendments to:

—Allow the governor to initiate removal proceedings against his appointees.

—Give the existing Courts of Civil Appeals review power over criminal cases.

—Allow married couples to set up individual property ownership.

—Allow sparsely populated counties to do private road work for a fee.

—Set up single property appraisal districts in counties.

Voters turned down attempts to give the governor more control of the budget, and to allow appeals of pre-trial rulings before the trial begins.

Republican candidates take peace justice, constable posts

By DAVID CAMPBELL Staff Writer

Republican Charlie Sprayberry was declared the victor Tuesday over 20-year incumbent Democrat John Biggs in the race for justice of the peace, Precinct 1 Place 1. Meanwhile, Republican Tom McGinnis easily overtook Democrat Charlie Jones in the race for constable in Precinct 1.

For Sprayberry, the outcome remained uncertain until all but one of the 29 precincts had reported their results.

The winner took 15,581 votes while Biggs received 12,551 votes.

For a while, Sprayberry was leading the incumbent with a comfortable 1,600 vote margin until 9:15 p.m. when precincts 10 and 5 reported lopsided returns of 1,495 for Biggs with the Republican taking only 188 votes for the two boxes.

At that time, Biggs vaulted into the lead with a 200-vote margin, leaving only four boxes and the absentee vote.

But, the absentee vote went in favor of the Republican as he garnered 3,554 votes to Biggs' 2,345 and the lead never changed.

Sprayberry thanked his workers and the Midland voters for their confidence in him.

When questioned about the secret of his success, Sprayberry replied he wore holes in two pairs of boots, indicating the amount of time he spent working on the campaign.

Improvements in the office would come after some study of the JP's needs, he said. Included in the improvements would be a better flow of cases being handled by the office.

The Democrat incumbent was good-natured about the loss. Fishing will most likely be occupying some of his time, as well as getting out the golf bag and trying to pick up the game Biggs left some time ago.

Of the 28 precincts, Sprayberry took 19 boxes and the absentee ballots, leaving Biggs with nine precincts.

The constable race saw Republican Thomas McGinnis easily overtake Democrat Charlie Jones.

McGinnis took 21 voting boxes and the absentee ballots with a total count of 15,513 votes to Jones 11,295 votes and seven precincts.

During the primaries, the Republican ran unopposed while Jones had to overcome Odell Smith to win the right to represent the Democrats on Tuesday's ballot.

Both office seekers were deputy constables when they decided to campaign for the head position.

The winner said early this morning that he was in a numb state about the election.

"It was a good race and I congratulated my opponent for running a good race."

He commented that his success came from his campaign.

But, he credited the secret of winning the constable's office to the Midland County voter.

Fire causes heavy damage; Thefts of doors, wallet probed

A fire early Tuesday afternoon heavily damaged a Midland residence, according to fire department reports.

Firemen were called to a residence at 603 N. Madison St. about 2:20 p.m. and spent nearly two hours battling the blaze. Owner of the residence was not listed among fire department reports.

The fire caused heavy damage to the front two rooms of the home and some damage to the roof.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

Midland police this morning were investigating thefts from the construction site of Skyline Terrace at 4101 and 4107 Angelina.

Taken in those thefts were a lead glass door valued at $600 and a six-panel glass door valued at $200.

Debra Henderson of 3909 Anetta Drive reported the theft of a wallet containing $400 in cash and a number of credit cards. She said the theft occurred between 4:45 p.m. Saturday and 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Police were called to the Hideaway Lounge, 1205 Rankin Highway, shortly after 7 p.m. Tuesday in reference to a fight.

There they found two men yelling at each other, according to police reports. Jim Fields of Route 4 was bleeding from a cut over his left eye.

A second man was arrested at the scene for public intoxication, police said.

Warm weather forecast for area

The weather will be warming up a bit in the post-election days this week, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Days will be fair through Thursday with warm afternoons, expected to reach a high near 80 degrees Thursday.

Tuesday's high was 70 degrees, much cooler than the 84-degree record set in 1934 for the date. The low Tuesday morning was 41 degrees, much warmer than the 27 degree all-time-low for the date in Midland set in 1936.

Temperatures will drop to the mid-40s tonight, showing a slight warming trend in overnight temperatures.

Winds will be southerly tonight, 5-10 mph, increasing to 10-15 mph on Thursday.

Police Roundup

Firemen also responded to an airplane fire at Midland Regional Airport Tuesday.

Reports indicated a Cessna 150 owned by Gene Beggs was struck by a wiring fire. Cause of the blaze was unknown and there was only light damage to the wiring.

A grass fire at the home of Gene Haralson, 3502 Bluebird Lane, was extinguished with 350 gallons of water early Tuesday afternoon. There was no damage, reports indicated.

Andrews man struck by car

ANDREWS — A 26-year-old Andrews man was struck by a car and killed late Tuesday morning 14.5 miles west of Andrews on FM 181.

Department of Public Safety officials said Raul Nunez Jr. was killed about 11:10 a.m. when he was struck by a car driven by Billy Joe Lagrome of Odessa.

Nunez, a swamper for an oil field truck, reportedly was crossing FM 181 to open a gate at the time of the accident. The accident occurred 14.5 miles south of State Highway 176 in Andrews County.

Nunez was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice J. Williams.

Trooper Buff Angel of Andrews investigated.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

O Lord Jesus, come!

Keep your eyes open for spiritual danger; stand true to the Lord; act like men; be strong;

And whatever you do, do it with kindness and love.

Do you remember Stephanas and his family? They were the first to become Christians in Greece and they are spending their lives helping and serving Christians everywhere.

Please follow their instructions and do everything you can to help them as well as all others like them who work hard at your side with such real devotion.

I am so glad that Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus have arrived here for a visit. They have been making up for the help you aren't here to give me.

They have cheered me greatly and have been a wonderful encouragement to me, as I am sure they were to you, too. I hope you properly appreciate the work of such men as these.

The churches here in Asia send you their loving greetings. Aquila and Priscilla send you their love and so do all the others who meet in their home for their church service.

All the friends here have asked me to say "hello" to you for them. And give each other a loving handshake when you meet.

I will write these final words of this letter with my own hand:

If anyone does not love the Lord, that person is cursed. Lord Jesus, come!

May the love and favor of the Lord Jesus Christ rest upon you.

My love to all of you, for we all belong to Christ Jesus.

Hostages' salaries, benefits tax free

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. hostages' salaries, hazardous duty pay and other benefits are tax free until the 52 Americans are released, thanks to a law just passed by Congress and signed by President Carter.

The Hostage Relief Act of 1980 also provides education benefits for spouses and children of the hostages in Iran, plus any medical expenses related to the captivity.

The pay and allowances will remain tax free up to two years for any hostages hospitalized after they are released for illnesses or injuries resulting from their time as captives.

If any die for a hostage-related reason while captive or within two years after release, their pay will be tax free that full year as well as the time they were held hostage.

Surviving dependents would be eligible for job training benefits.

The act also requires that any hostage paychecks not allotted to relatives go into a special savings fund earning the high interest rate of Treasury notes.

Finally, it provides re-education benefits for hostages who decide to go into some other line of work after their release.

The pay and allowance checks have been going regularly to hostage families since the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was seized last Nov. 4.

They range from about $17,000 annually for the lowest paid Marine guards to about $70,000 for the highest paid diplomats.

The base pay for the foreign service hostages range from about $21,000 to $50,112 a year. A 9.1 percent pay raise for most of them went into effect this month, but $50,112 is still the maximum a foreign service official can be paid.

In addition, they get a 25 percent hardship allowance for working in Iran and family allowances ranging from $1,800 to $6,500 a year.

The hostages who work for the military are paid between $8,000 and $33,- 000 a year plus an 11.7 percent pay raise that went into effect this month.

They also receive housing allowances, subsistence, flight or other incentive pay, family separation allowances and foreign duty pay totaling $9,000 to $22,000 annually.

Local Republicans happy

But three Democrats win here

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The Republicans were elated in Midland County on Tuesday night. "I'm so happy I don't know what to do about it," said Grand Old Party supporter J.C. Barnes Jr. "We're all going to go and dance in the street after awhile," jested a delighted Barbara Culver, judge of the 318th State District Court and a staunch GOP'er.

Both were caught up in the political jubilation at the jam-packed Republican Headquarters in the downtown Midland Center early on the night of general election.

Like other Grand Old Party loyalists, the judge and Barnes were overwhelmed with the Ronald Reagan victory over President Jimmy Carter.

BUT THE REPUBLICANS didn't win all, despite the dramatic effect of the Reagan landslide victory. "We say that (a Republican landslide), but at the local level, Democratic candidates did very well," said Harris Kerr, a Democratic Party leader. "Our local Democratic candidates did very well."

Three won. Three lost. Pat Baskin, 53, the frontrunner on the Democratic Party ticket in Midland, won the 142nd State District judgeship by a 2-to-1 margin over Republican Jay H. "Timber" Floyd, 37. The vote was 21,072 to 9,883.

Durward Wright, 48, the independent Democratic Party candidate for Commissioner of Precinct 1, won re-election in handily undoing challenger Jeff Barber, 55. Wright, who first was elected to the $19,500-a-year post in 1968, pulled in 4,583 votes over Barber's 2,613.

C. DeWayne Davis, 60, a retired high school government teacher, corralled 2,710 votes to wrestle the commission of Precinct 3 from Republican challenger Alexandra Morris, 46. She attracted 1,686 votes.

THREE OTHER DEMOCRATS lost, and those defeats at the polls put a gloom over the already dismal Democratic Party Headquarters which, unlike the GOP center, was noticeable without revelry, without a crowd without joy.

Only a smattering of people, including a rejected and dejected Joe W. Carr, the party's candidate for sheriff, were there. They reluctantly and sorely accepted President Carter's defeat.

Carr, 41, lost to Republican Sheriff Dallas Smith, 38, by a hefty 21,823 to 9,334 votes.

Peace Justice John Biggs, who is into his 70s, lost to GOP newcomers Charlie Sprayberry by a relatively narrow 15,581 to 14,743 votes.

And Charlie Jones's effort to be constable was turned back by Republican Tom McGinnis, who defeated Jones by 16,298 to 11,613 votes. Both are deputy constables who were seeking to succeed the late Constable Jack Merritt, who died in office at the age of 76 last summer.

BASKIN, WHO WILL succeed retiring Judge Perry D. Pickett, Tuesday night said he was "very grateful" to the voters who gave him the victory and whisked him into the $50,000-a-year judgeship.

"I mostly am thinking of my family and friends, who had organized and got involved" in the campaign, he said in victory. More than 700 Midland families worked in his campaign or contributed to its operation, he said.

Baskin will succeed Pickett, 64, who has held the judgeship since 1954, when then Texas Gov. Allan Shivers appointed him to the post.

"He (Pickett) contacted me to congratulate me," Baskin said in a telephone interview from Theatre Midland, where he was throwing what turned out to be a victory celebration.

Pickett's congratulations may have been offset by piercing barbs from Bill Shaner, the chairman of the county's Republican Party.

Shaner was disappointed that his candidate, Floyd, had lost his bid for the judgeship for the second time in four years, and seemed somewhat annoyed that Baskin had won in his initial try for the court job.

"IT LOOKS AS though we still have a Democrat-controlled district court judiciary in Midland County," surmised Shaner who, like Baskin, is an occasional amateur dramatist at Theatre Midland. "I hope that he will do his best to keep politics out of the 142nd (district courtroom)."

Floyd, who had put together a party at the Midland Country Club for his campaigners, briefly dropped by the Midland County courthouse to check the votes and greeted fellow GOP'ers at Midland Center.

Floyd was foiled in a 1976 attempt to wrest the judgeship from Pickett. He lost 14,747 to 10,705.

Another two-time loser was Barber. He lost to Wright in a race for the commissionership in 1972. That year, Barber won only two of seven voting boxes to compile 2,717 votes against Wright's 3,036. He outpolled Wright in absentee votes.

"I was hoping he (Wright) would win it (the absentee box), and I would win the election," Barber, who seemed somewhat subdued even before all votes were in, said.

Wright interpreted his victory as a confirmation that he "had delivered what they (voters) expected. I represented them fairly."

"I AM EXCITED about the dynamic growth of Midland County, and I'm happy to be a part of the continued growth of Midland County," the commissioner said.

Another candidate who will be a political part of Midland County's surging growth is Davis, who stayed at his rural home rather than drive downtown to celebrate his win over Ms. Morris.

"We're just elated and grateful and very humble about the whole thing," Davis said. "I'm particularly pleased about the minority turnout here and the (turnout) of the people in Midland."

Davis said he will work fairly and justly represent the people in his precinct and will work with the political subdivisions.

His opponent wished him Godspeed. "I want to congratulate Mr. Davis on the race that he won," said Ms. Morris, "and wish him a constructive and productive four years."

Incumbent Dallas Smith nails down another term as Midland's sheriff

By KAY CRITES
Staff Writer

When the first box came in, it seemed as if challenger Joe Carr might pull off an upset for the Midland County Sheriff's slot. But as more and more results flooded into the Midland County Clerk's office, it became clear that it was not to be.

Carr lost to incumbent Dallas Smith with a preliminary final tally of 9,334 to 21,823. Carr carried four boxes out of 29, which includes absentee, and tied Smith in another precinct. But those four victories were overwhelmed by precincts 8, 13, 14, 15, 19, 21, 26 and 28—all of which scored more than 1,000 votes for Smith. Smith also gained a resounding lead in absentee ballots, with 5,130 to Carr's 1,326.

"What can you say?" said Carr after the last box had been counted.

"He beat me. We ran a good, clean race. We eliminated a lot of the name-calling and mud-slinging and he beat me and that's it."

Carr also thanked all who voted for him and for those who worked on his campaign.

As for the victor, entitled to another four years in office, Smith said, "I'm very grateful."

"What makes you feel good is that I feel this is an indication of the general public's support for the concepts, programs and ideas we have implemented. I think it's an approval of what we have been doing," he remarked while waiting for the final official tally to come out of the county clerk's office.

"I felt very pleased in the campaign effort with the financial support and the volunteer help and the ladies who helped with the mail-outs and the group that helped put up yard signs. The efforts went smoothly and were a little more enjoyable and a little more relaxed, perhaps, than four years ago.

"And then don't forget the most important ingredient is where you have a family with a wife who understands the work and late hours and time it takes to organize these efforts," Smith remarked.

Smith also praised the work of his campaign manager, Bill Mathis.

"He's a very successful man in his efforts in that he is an excellent idea man and does a good job of proposing solutions to potential problems that might develop," Smith said.

Smith emphasized that Mathis' efforts were also volunteered.

"Of course, there's no end to the number of people involved in these efforts," Smith added.

As for his opponent, Smith said, "I certainly wish Joe Carr and his family well in their future endeavors."

Craddick, Martin, Rendall, Shuffield win unopposed contests in Midland

Not every local race in Midland's general election was a down-to-the-wire heated contest. Several office seekers were unchallenged in their bids. And while they were assured of winning, not one received unanimous approval by the 32,890 voters who cast their ballots.

Tom Craddick, a Republican who has served in the State Legislature since 1968, won his bid for re-election from the 68th District with 22,946 votes.

His strongest support came from heavy Republican precincts, such as 7, 13, 9, 15, 21 and 28. Precinct 5, which votes at Carver Cultural Center, only reported 83 votes for Craddick out of 722 cast Tuesday.

County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry said that precinct's votes would be checked again today for any possible errors.

Vern Martin, a Republican, kept his seat for a second four-year term as district attorney for the 142nd district.

Of the local uncontested races, he garnered the least amount of votes—18,968. His fewest votes also came in Precinct 5, in which 58 voters out of 722 pulled the lever for Martin.

Robert Rendall beat out a Republican opponent in the primary to run unchallenged for the job of county attorney and take it with 20,639 votes.

The vote only backs up the action last week of Midland County Commissioners who appointed Rendall to replace the current county attorney who resigned. Until his swearing-in Monday, Rendall had been an assistant county attorney.

Frances Shuffield was given approval by the voters to take over the job of county tax assessor-collector from Elmo Linebarger by grabbing the biggest share of voters among the uncontested races—23,941.

Running on the Republican ticket, she is a deputy assessor in the county tax office and has worked there 14 years.

Iran ignores Hussein's peace offer

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran ignored Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's latest peace offer and flew bombing missions today over two villages in central and northern Iraq, wounding three civilians, the Baghdad military command said.

The command also said Iraqi warplanes scored direct hits today on the big military base in Iran's northwestern city of Mahabad, set ablaze an oil pipeline in the northernmost sector of the battlefield near a 300-mile front, including Khorranshahr, Iran's chief port of entry on the Shatt al-Arab. They have cut off Abadan, 10 miles southeast of Khorranshahr, and are keeping Ahwaz, the provincial capital, and Dezful, the military headquarters for the province, under constant artillery attack.

Iraq had full control of the Shatt al-Arab under a 1937 treaty negotiated by the British. It ceded the eastern half in 1975 to Iran in exchange for the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's agreement to stop supporting a Kurdish rebellion in northern Iraq. Hussein when he went to war six weeks ago abrogated the 1975 treaty, charging that Khomeini's incitement of the Shiite Moslem majority in Iraq to overthrow the Sunni Moslem government in Baghdad violated Iran's pledge in the treaty not to interfere in Iraqi affairs.

Iraqi spokesmen after the start of the invasion also demanded that Iran return to the United Arab Emirates the three small islands at the mouth of the Persian Gulf which the shah seized in 1972 to give Iran control of the shipping lanes in and out of the gulf.

Reporting from the battle lines, Pars, the official Iranian news agency, said Iraqi shelling of Abadan continued through the night and there was fighting at various points along the Bahmanshir River, on the east side of the city. But Iranian forces "prevented the aggressive enemy's progress toward the city," Pars said.

Some Tucson residents to cast ballots today

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — People who did not get to vote because polling places ran out of ballots were being given another chance today in metropolitan Tucson.

The extended voting could affect at least 31 of Pima County's 221 precincts, said elections clerk Maria Duarte.

The extension also could change the outcome of some local races, according to county Republican Party Chairman Emmett McLoughlin.

It was not determined immediately how many voters were affected.

More than 80 percent of the voters registered showed up Tuesday to cast their ballots in local and state races, including Sen. Barry Goldwater's close battle with Democrat William Schulz.

County election officials blamed the huge voter turnout for the shortfall in ballots. Those who did get to vote gave Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., a 10th full term in the House of Representatives from the 2nd District.

With 89 percent of the precincts counted, Udall had 102,902 votes, or 58 percent, to 69,855, or 39 percent, for Republican businessman Richard H. Hiff.

Redford protests look-alike

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Actor Robert Redford apparently doesn't like the idea that a Republican candidate in the U.S. Senate race in Indiana is being promoted as a Redford "look-alike."

Redford has sent a telegram to U.S. Rep. Dan Quayle protesting the use of his name and photographs in connection with Quayle's campaign to unseat Sen. Birch Bayh.

In the telegram, sent through Warner Communications Inc. in New York on Friday, the film star said Quayle has been referred to throughout the campaign as the GOP's answer to Robert Redford.

"After comparing your record with that of Sen. Birch Bayh, it is clear to me that I am much more supportive of Bayh's views than yours," the telegram said. "I therefore find the connection with your campaign particularly insidious."

Quayle was not available for comment.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Diabetics may follow vegetarian diet

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is it possible for a diabetic to be a vegetarian? My son, who has diabetes, was a vegetarian while in college, but later started eating everything. Now, 12 years later, he says he would have been better off if he had continued with the vegetarian diet. Is it possible for him to go back to such a diet at present? — Mrs. I.K.

Dear Mrs. K. — Although it is possible for a diabetic to follow vegetarian diet, I would urge your son to discuss the matter thoroughly with his physician before undertaking it. In addition, unless his doctor is very knowledgeable about food exchange, a discussion with a dietician also would be very much in order.

You do not indicate the type of vegetarian diet your son is thinking of adopting. Strict vegetarians eat only plant foods; lacto-vegetarians eat plants and dairy products, but no eggs; and lacto-ovo-vegetarians eat plant foods and dairy products as well as eggs. As you might suppose, the strict vegetarian faces more problems than do those who follow either of the other two diets.

All of us need complete proteins for the building and repair of tissues. Nine of the 20 to 22 amino acids which go to make up protein are not manufactured in the body in sufficient amounts, but must be obtained from the foods we eat. These nine amino acids are contained in animal foods such as cheese, eggs, milk, fish and, of course, meat and poultry. These foods are complete proteins; plant foods, such as cereal, grain, legumes, seeds, and vegetables, generally are incomplete.

A strict vegetarian menu will not contain vitamin B12 which is found in foods of animal origin, and may lack calcium, iodine, iron, riboflavin and vitamin D. If your son is a strict vegetarian, his doctor or dietician may recommend he take a vitamin B12 supplement. Minerals such as calcium and riboflavin, which normally are provided by milk, can be obtained from dark green and leafy vegetables. A dietician also can show how plant proteins can be combined so that they complement each other to meet the body's protein requirements.

If your son is a strict vegetarian, complete protein foods such as cheese or eggs can be combined with vegetables that contain protein, such as dried beans.

In any event, your son should have a thorough discussion with his physician and, if indicated, a dietician, before he embarks on any drastic change in diet.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have read that increasing the consumption of polyunsaturated fats in relation to saturated fats can help reduce cholesterol levels. Are the polyunsaturated fats also lower in calories? — Gail

Dear Gail: Polyunsaturated fats have many calories as saturated fats. Individuals with a weight problem who increase their intake of polyunsaturated fats should be careful to avoid excessive weight gain.

Typhoon Betty bears down on Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Heavy rain and winds up to 100 miles an hour buffeted the east coast of the main island of Luzon and the Bicol region southeast of Manila as Typhoon Betty bore down on the Philippines.

Forecasters said metropolitan Manila will get heavy rains and gusts up to 62 mph this afternoon, with the weather gradually worsening as the typhoon's eye passes about 80 miles northeast of Manila Wednesday morning.

TOKYO (AP) — A Greek shipping magnate ordered a $14.3 million yacht for his daughter's birthday, and Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, the builder, will launch it next week, a company spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the 208-foot-long, 22-room yacht was ordered last year by Evangelos P. Nomikos, 75, owner of Marcedo Compania Naviera, an international shipping company operating tankers, for his daughter Effie.

ROME (AP) — The Italian government raised the price of cigarettes by up to 22 cents a pack as part of an austerity package aimed at cutting back consumption, especially of imports.

The hike, decreed Monday, brings the price of popular foreign brands to $1.45, while smaller increases were decreed for national brands.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The General Assembly voted to extend to June 30, 1984, the life of the U.N. Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees.

Reagan aides say September was the turning point

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was Sept. 4 and as Ronald Reagan's chartered jet carried him toward Florida and Louisiana, his campaign was in trouble, beset by a series of stumbles in its early days.

His once-huge lead in the polls after July's Republican convention was shrinking and Reagan was on the defensive after a flap about his policy toward Taiwan, his declaration that the Vietnam War was a noble cause and his attempt to link President Carter to the Ku Klux Klan.

In retrospect, Reagan's strategists now view that trip as the turning point in the campaign, the day they began to shift the focus from Reagan's missteps to the Carter administration's record.

In the two-state southern swing,

Reagan accused Carter of leaking military secrets about new bomber technology for political gain — to show that U.S. defenses were not in the bad shape that Reagan claimed.

The charges coincided with the start of a congressional investigation of the news leak, and the issue suddenly dominated the headlines and threw the president on the defensive.

"We took the battle to him. That gave us a week to solidify our organization and get back on track," said Reagan pollster Richard Wirthlin.

"Since then, our vote has progressed on almost the precise course we had hoped," Wirthlin said.

THE SEPT. 4 trip also marked the first day that Stuart Spencer, a savvy Republican strategist and manager of former President Gerald R. Ford's 1976 race, began traveling on the candidate's plane. He steered Reagan away from trouble and picked up political intelligence from old allies.

From the beginning, Reagan's strategy was to attack Carter's record on the economy and inflation, particularly in big midwestern and northeastern states where layoffs in the auto and steel industries, as well as in coal mines, pushed state unemployment rates above the national average.

Reagan knew he had to convince blue-collar workers and other traditional Democrats to desert their party. He pledged to beat inflation and give them a 30 percent tax cut over three years.

Over and over, he recalled for audiences that he has a lifetime union membership after serving six years as president of the Screen Actors Guild.

"Look, I know what it's like the first time you pull that Republican lever because I used to be a Democrat myself," Reagan told a crowd outside a barroom in the Democratic stronghold of Hudson County, N.J. "I can tell you it only hurts for a minute, and then you'll feel just great."

He also vowed to bolster America's prestige throughout the world and to make America a militarily strong country that adversaries would be forced to respect.

REAGAN ALSO PAID careful attention to the South. In particular he made repeated trips to Texas and Florida, hoping to crack the regional base that helped put Carter in the White House in 1976.

"It's been the South that's been the real battleground for us," Wirthlin said. "The South broke open for us the second week of October" as the president portrayed Reagan as a warmonger and claimed he would divide the country. "Jimmy Carter's mean streak helped him in the Midwest but hurt him in the South," Wirthlin declared.

In the end, Reagan carried every southern state except Carter's native Georgia.

The debate with Carter a week before the election was a boost for Reagan, his strategists said. "It added to the momentum and put to rest the question of competence and compassion," Wirthlin said.

After the debate, charges that Reagan was dangerous or radical "were not sticking to the wall," Wirthlin said.

It was around the time of the debate, said Reagan aide Jim Brady, that independent candidate John Anderson slumped in the polls.

"The big movement came when the Republicans started to come home, when Anderson's support started to break up," Brady said. "The moderates and liberals were in Anderson's camp. When that fell apart, they came to us, and all Carter was left with were the Kennedy Democrats."

THE ONE REMAINING worry, the Reagan strategists said, was an "October surprise" such as release of the American hostages in Iran. It didn't happen, although two days before the election the Iranian Parliament set terms for the hostages' release.

Reagan spent the final days of the race in GOP areas like Dallas and Houston, Grand Rapids and Saginaw, Mich., Dayton and Cincinnati, Ohio, and finally Peoria, Ill., calling Republicans home.

"You put Governor Reagan in any given spot and give him average media coverage, and he'll swing the vote up," Wirthlin said.

The debate was beginning of the end for Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the end, the campaign boiled down to two main issues: the economy and war and peace. Both worked against Jimmy Carter.

Carter couldn't overcome his own record and he failed to convince the voters that Ronald Reagan was too reckless and right-wing to occupy the Oval Office.

His last chance may have been the televised debate a week before the election — a one-on-one confrontation that Carter had insisted on.

The reassuring image of the Republican nominee projected before an audience of more than 100 million belied Carter's efforts to portray Reagan as trigger-happy.

As he was restoring luster to his own image, Reagan attacked the president on the economy where he was most vulnerable, asking voters whether they were better off or worse than they were four years ago.

INFLATION STOOD AT 12.7 percent and unemployment at 7.5 percent. Fifty-two Americans had been held hostage in Iran for a year.

Within 48 hours, Carter knew the situation was desperate. During a week-long campaign blitz, he tried frantically to refocus the spotlight on Reagan.

At first, it worked. Carter campaign polls had shown him trailing Reagan by 3-4 points after the debate. But by Saturday, the president held a slight 0.3 percent lead.

Overnight, it fizzled: Sunday's polls revealed that the president was down by 2-5 points. By Monday — the day after Carter had temporarily suspended campaigning to assess the conditions set by Iran for release of the hostages — the outcome was inevitable: he trailed by 7-10 points.

In the pre-dawn hours of Election Day, as Air Force One flew to Plains, Ga., for Carter to cast his own ballot, press secretary Jody Powell ordered a drink and braced himself to deliver the omen to his boss.

Before the president voted, he knew.

HE MAY HAVE suspected even before his week-end surge.

On Thursday, there was a small crowd for the president's appearance at a Polish club in Philadelphia and only polite applause from Jewish leaders when Carter made his strongest pledge ever in support of Israel.

On Friday, in Florida, Carter admitted the outcome was in doubt. And one of his most trusted advisers told reporters aboard Air Force One the campaign was suffering a "pause in momentum."

The post-mortem offered by Carter's aides blamed the defeat on the hostage statement and dual problems of inflation and recession.

Since his nomination at the Democratic convention in August, the president set out to depict Reagan as a dangerous right-winger who repeatedly had advocated military intervention in world crises and was likely to blunder into war.

Blaming inflation and unemployment on increases in oil prices, Carter played up his achievements on energy and the Middle East and stressed the necessity for calmness and stability in the Oval Office.

As the campaign progressed, Carter went so far as to declare bluntly that the election was a choice between war and peace. As evidence, he seized on Reagan's rejection of the pending SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union.

RACE BECAME AN issue, too. Carter lashed out at use of "code words" such as states' rights and intimated that Reagan was peddling racism. Later, he said Reagan's election could divide "black from white, Christian from Jew."

But when asked directly whether he believed Reagan was a racist or a warmonger, the president always backed down, denying he had intended leave such an impression.

Nevertheless, the insinuations took their toll. Carter became known as a mean fighter, and a backlash threatened the general perception that the president was a decent man.

As the campaign reached its final month, Carter was forced to concede his error publicly. He pledged to abandon personal attacks.

Thereafter, the president contented himself with quoting Reagan's own words. Sometimes they were more than a decade old, such as the former California governor's suggestion that those who can provide for their own retirement should be exempted from Social Security. Repeatedly, Carter insisted the former actor wanted to make the pension system voluntary.

AND HE HAMMERED away ceaselessly at war and peace, in the final days singling out nuclear proliferation as the most important issue facing the nation.
