Body of Tito moved to Yugoslavian capital

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The body of President Josip Broz Tito, the World War II hero who forged his own brand of decentralized communism and preserved Yugoslavia's independence from the Soviet Union for more than 30 years, was being brought to Belgrade today to lie in state until funeral services Thursday.

The last surviving founder of the Third World movement of non-aligned countries, Tito died Sunday afternoon in the hospital in Ljubljana, capital of the Slovenian Republic in northwest Yugoslavia, where he had been a patient nearly four months. Born on May 7, 1892, he would have been 88 on Wednesday.

The government ordered seven days of national mourning and prepared for an influx of foreign leaders for the state funeral. The body was being brought to Belgrade by special train and was to lie in state in the Federal Parliament building. Burial was to be near the Museum of the Revolution in a Belgrade suburb.

Thousands lined the streets of Ljubljana as Tito's light brown casket, draped in the Yugoslav national flag, was taken to the train station and placed aboard the presidential "blue train." Then, at the only stop, in Zagreb, second largest city, the coffin was taken off the train so thousands more could pay their final respects.

Tito's two sons were accompanying his body on the train to Belgrade.

Although Yugoslavs mourned the only leader many of them had ever known, his death had been expected for several months, and the two collective leadership groups he put together to succeed him as president and head of the Communist Party were already in firm control of the government and the party.

Lazar Kolisevski, the 66-year-old president of the Macedonian Republic, was sworn in as "president of the presidency," a title that will rotate annually among a nine-man collective made up of representatives of Yugoslavia's six republics, two autonomous provinces and the Communist Party.

Steven Doronjski, 61, a Serb from the autonomous province of Vojvodina, was expected to become party president. He will share his power with 23 other members of the party presidium representing the republics and the autonomous provinces.

Tito, elected president-for-life in 1974, devised the two collective leadership groups and gave a large amount of autonomy to the regional governments in an effort to keep the centuries-old rivalries and hatreds among the Serbs, Croats, Slovenes, Bosnians, Macedonians and other fiercely nationalist ethnic groups from wrecking the national unity his dominant leadership and personality created and held together.

Foreign leaders of all political faiths united in paying homage to one of World War II's last surviving heroes. President Carter termed him "a towering figure on the world stage," while the Soviet leadership hailed him as "the outstanding leader of the communists and all workers of Yugoslavia, and a leading figure of the international communist and workers' movement."

Carter also praised Tito's "resolute determination to maintain Yugoslavia's independence," a reference to his break with Stalin in 1948, while Moscow Television praised his "struggle against imperialism and colonialism."

Carter, in a thinly veiled reference to the fears in some quarters that the Kremlin might try to coerce post-Tito Yugoslavia back into its close orbit, said "America will continue its long-standing policy of support for Yugoslavia and do what it must to provide that support." But Western and East European diplomats in Moscow expected the Soviet leaders to bide their time and take a friendly, encouraging attitude toward Tito's successors in hopes of forging a "mini-detente" that would serve Soviet interests.

Tito had withdrawn in recent years from the day-to-day management of government and spent most of his time when not traveling abroad on his Adriatic island estate. But he remained active and in full control of the main lines of domestic and foreign policy until a circulation stoppage forced the amputation of his left leg on Jan. 20 to prevent gangrene.

Clements delivers Reagan endorsement

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, winner of the Texas Republican primary election, got a boost Monday from Texas Gov. Bill Clements, who said he thought Reagan could carry Texas in November.

President Jimmy Carter coasted to an easy win in Saturday's Democratic primary.

"I am doing what I said I would do 18 months ago," Clements told a Capitol news conference. "I am enthusiastically abiding by the decision of the majority and declaring my support of Gov. Reagan.... I fully believe he can win the support of conservative Democrats and independents as well as all Republicans."

Clements added he thought "Mr. Reagan pretty well has the nomination locked up."

The Republican governor also commented on the big block of voters that marked "uncommitted" on Democratic ballots Saturday.

"I think this 19 percent obviously said, 'We don't like either one of the Democratic candidates,' and I think Mr. Reagan will get these votes in November," Clements said.

Clements said he had not talked with Reagan or George Bush since the GOP primary.

He repeated he would not accept a cabinet post under a Republican president under any circumstances. He also said again that he considered it a patriotic duty for anyone to accept the post of vice president if it was ever offered "and I would do the same, but there is no indication of that."

U.S. Rep. John Anderson, who dropped out as a GOP presidential aspirant, was scheduled to start a petition drive in Texas Monday to get on the November ballot as an independent candidate.

Carter easily overwhelmed Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. — more than 2-to-1 — in the Democratic popularity contest Saturday.

There was no sign the aborted hostage rescue try affected Carter's predicted win over Kennedy.

On the other hand, there was ample evidence that Bush's last-minute campaign drive almost caught front-runner Reagan, who was not declared victor until early Sunday.

The latest unofficial results on the presidential preference primary:

With 99 percent of the Democratic vote counted, Carter had 766,704 or 56 percent, Kennedy 310,701 or 22 percent and uncommitted 256,240 or 19 percent. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who withdrew but still had his name on the ballot got a small vote.

With 99 percent of the Republican vote counted, Reagan had 263,616 or 52 percent; Bush 237,379 or 47 percent and 7,923 or 1 percent uncommitted.

Reagan's win in the GOP popularity poll indicated he would get 65 of Texas' 80 delegates to the national convention and Bush 15.

The large uncommitted vote among Democrats puzzled party officials. Some said it was caused by farmers protesting Carter's economic policies, others said some Democrats traditionally vote uncommitted, and others said it was a sign the voters did not like either candidate.

In the statewide races, State Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, upended Texas Railroad Commission John Poerner of Hondo, who after serving on the important oil and gas regulatory body for two years was seeking a six-year full term. Temple will meet former state Sen. Hank Grover, Houston Republican, in November. Grover was victor in a three-man GOP primary race.

Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, Kerrville, survived a strong campaign against him by former magazine editor Jim Hightower, Austin, an avowed consumer advocate. Nugent meets Austin attorney H.J. "Doc" Blanchard, who had no GOP opposition.

The top upset in statehouse circles was the defeat of the dean of the Texas Senate, Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, by former Bryan City Attorney Kent Caperton, who has a GOP opponent in November.

Pre-primary public opinion polls indicate the November battle between Carter and Reagan will be bitter and close in Texas. Reagan carried Texas in the 1976 nomination fight against President Gerald Ford, then Carter defeated Ford in Texas by 129,000 votes.

The Democratic popularity poll on Saturday's ballot had no direct effort on selection of delegates to the national Democratic convention, where the presidential nominee will be named. The delegate selection process began Saturday in precinct conventions but will not be completed until the June 20-21 state convention in San Antonio.

Bush, Kennedy take same stand on importance of late primaries

DALLAS (AP) — George Bush and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the catch-up candidates, are arguing parallel themes — that the front-runners are likely to prove weak this fall in the big states where White House elections are won and lost.

But while they try to make that case, Ronald Reagan and President Carter are gaining delegates and approaching the point where the taunts of their challengers will be academic.

Bush claimed a "stunning" lift for his campaign in an unexpectedly close second-place finish in the Texas presidential primary election on Saturday. But it's late in the game to claim comfort in second place. Moreover, while Bush, an adopted Texan, was making a race of the popular vote, Reagan was running up his delegate count.

In the delegate competition, the former California governor won a landslide, 65 nominating votes to 15 for Bush.

Overall, in that primary and five weekend GOP conventions and caucuses, Reagan gained 150 Republican delegates, to run his nationwide total to 639. It will take 998 to win the nomination.

Reagan won more delegates over the weekend than Bush has won in the entire campaign. The former United Nations ambassador now has 135 delegates.

Carter upped his national delegate count to 1,137 of the 1,666 he needs for renomination. Kennedy has 654.

The president won easily in the Texas Democratic primary, but it didn't count. The 152 delegates are being selected in a separate caucus-convention system that began as soon as the primary election was over.

The popular vote could offer a clue to Carter's eventual strength, since a voter had to cast a Democratic ballot in the primary in order to prove party credentials to take part in the caucuses.

Robert S. Strauss, Carter's national campaign chairman, said the president would gain enough Texas delegates to be assured of nearly 80 percent of the nominating votes he needs to win.

Strauss said that will approach 90 percent after the next set of primaries, in Indiana, North Carolina, Tennessee and the District of Columbia on Tuesday. Among them, those states will award 223 Democratic delegates.

Iran releases bodies of Americans killed in rescue attempt

By The Associated Press

The bodies of the eight U.S. servicemen killed in the failed hostage rescue mission in Iran were turned over today to a Greek Catholic Archbishop who said he would take them on a flight to Switzerland on Tuesday for transfer to the United States.

Iranians said they found a "possibly American" helicopter abandoned in the desert after four helicopters violated Iranian airspace Sunday, the official Pars news agency reported today. But in Washington, Defense Department spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Gordon Peterson said there was no such violation and the helicopter was the one abandoned during the failed April 25 mission to rescue 53 Americans from Tehran.

The bodies of servicemen killed in that mission were handed over Archbishop Hilarij Capudji, who was accompanied by Swiss Ambassador Eric Lang and the papal representative in Iran, Monsignor Annibale Bugnini, the radio said.

Capudji said he will fly with the bodies Tuesday to Switzerland where he will turn the remains over to the International Red Cross for transfer to the families in the United States.

An earlier Tehran Radio broadcast said Capudji would deliver the bodies to the Vatican. There was no explanation for the change in plans. However, Capudji, who spent three years in an Israeli jail for running guns to the Palestinians, has not been authorized to act for the Vatican.

Capudji expressed gratitude to revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini for Iran's "humanitarianism" in handing over the bodies, according to a London-monitored broadcast. "The return of the bodies is a symbol of the sublime spirit of Islam devoid of the slightest political motivation," he was quoted as saying at a meeting with Khomeini today.

The Americans were killed when a helicopter and transport plane involved in the aborted U.S. rescue mission collided on the ground.

Iran's official Pars news agency said a helicopter was found abandoned in the desert more than 370 miles southeast of Tehran on Sunday. It said wandering tribesmen near Birjand in the Kavir-e-Lut desert reported seeing the four helicopters Sunday, but when police and revolutionary guards arrived to investigate they found only one helicopter on the ground.

Pars said the other three helicopters apparently had gone but the remaining helicopter evidently had mechanical trouble and the pilot abandoned it.

In Washington, Peterson said

"there has been no violation of Iranian air space" by American aircraft since the April 25 mission.

A violation, he said, would be "the unauthorized penetration of another country's airspace."

Peterson said the crew and classified documents aboard the abandoned helicopter were rescued at the time but the helicopter was not destroyed out of fear of calling Iranian attention to the rescue mission.

He said it landed when a signal light warned of a possible impending failure in the main rotor blade.

The news agency said senior officials from Kerman Province and the police went to the site today and there are plans to transport the helicopter to Tehran.

An American commando force landed in the Dasht-e-Kavir desert, more than 125 miles west of Birjand on April 25.

The next day the militants holding 50 of the hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4 announced they were transferring some of the captives to other cities to foil any other rescue operation that might follow.

In the following week, the militants said they had moved groups of their captives to eight cities, and they added Arak and Mahallat, about 155 miles southwest of Tehran, to the list.

However, they said some of the hostages were still held at the embassy, and the Foreign Ministry is still holding three embassy officials who were there when the militants seized the embassy.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said Sunday night the idea of an international tribunal had not been discussed by the government and has not been submitted to Khomeini.

Police report gunshots from London embassy

LONDON (AP) — Police reported "what sounded like two or three shots coming from the direction of" the besieged Iranian embassy here today.

The reported gunfire came as negotiations with at least three Arab gunmen appeared to stall. The gunmen held 18 or 19 hostages in the building for a sixth day.

British officials, meanwhile, held separate meetings with the Jordanian and Algerian ambassadors here in a continuing diplomatic bid to end the siege with the help of Arab envoys.

Deputy Assistant Police Commissioner Peter Nievens told reporters that police were investigating the "significance" of the apparent sounds of gunfire from the direction of the embassy.

He said the gunman with whom police were talking on a field telephone at the time did not tell them what had happened.

Nievens noted the shots were "spaced," but it was not immediately known if any of the captives was harmed.

Earlier today, a police spokesman said the gunmen declined an offer of breakfast made when they spoke at 10 a.m. over a field telephone between the Scotland Yard negotiators and the embassy. The last meal sent in was at midday Friday, but there is believed to be a store of food in the embassy.

That phone conversation was the first contact reported by police since the gunmen freed a 36-year-old Syrian captive suffering from a stomach complaint Sunday night.

He was the second hostage with stomach trouble freed since Thursday, and the fifth captive released since the siege began Wednesday. Police had sent in two packets of antibiotics but the medication apparently did not work. There was no immediate word that any of the other captives are suffering from the affliction.

Foreign Office chiefs met with the Jordanian, Kuwaiti and Syrian envoys in London Sunday after the gunmen called for them to act as go-betweens with the British government.

British sources termed Sunday's session "very preliminary," indicating the government has not yet agreed on what is negotiable in the politically thorny crisis.

More meetings were expected today with a slight chance of thunderstorms tonight. 2A

Students gather at Kent State

Rally marks 10th anniversary of violence

By M.R. KROPKO

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Ten years after the bloodshed at Kent State University, students and anti-war activists again gathered on the school's Commons. But this time, the demonstration was peaceful and the only security people present were dressed in dark blue suits and ties.

Sunday's rally, marking the anniversary of the May 4, 1970, fatal shootings of four students, was attended by about 1,500 people who chanted anti-draft slogans and heard several anti-war activists denounce the Carter administration's policies and the U.S. economic system.

During the anti-Vietnam War protest 10 years ago, Ohio National Guardsmen fired on students gathered at a nearby parking lot and on adjacent Blanket Hill. When the 13-second hail of bullets was over, four students lay dead and nine others wounded.

On Saturday night, between 1,000 and 1,500 people took part in a traditional, silent candlelight march. An all-night vigil followed, with those present taking turns holding lanterns at the sites where the four students — Sandra Scheuer, Allison Krause, William S. Schroeder and Jeffrey M. Miller — died. Just before noon Sunday, a crowd of students and non-students marched across the campus chanting slogans and carrying anti-war and anti-draft banners. The march ended at the Commons.

The crowd marked the time of the 1970 shooting — 12:24 p.m. — with a moment of silence, followed by the tolling of the school's victory bell 20 times, once for each student killed in protest activity on American campuses over a nine-year period.

Alan Canfora, one of the students wounded 10 years ago and an organizer of the Sunday rally, said, "I've seen more spirit of determination here than any time since 1970."

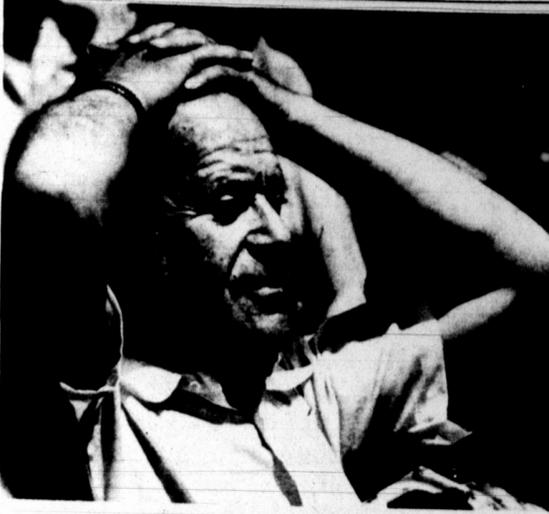

The best-known speakers at the rally were feminist Bella Abzug, lawyer William Kunstler, publisher David Dellinger and black leader Kwame Ture, formerly known as Stokely Carmichael.

Their speeches called for student activism in the 1980s to protest what they said was a growing threat of war involving the United States.

Ms. Abzug told a cheering crowd: "We are not going to allow ourselves to have a repeat of Kent, Ohio. We are not going to let ourselves be dragged into a war in the Persian Gulf.... We, the people, and women especially, are not going to tolerate a society that has no soul."

Kunstler, well-known as a defender of political activists, has had a long involvement on behalf of the Kent State plaintiffs in nearly a decade of civil litigation following the shootings.

A workable solution

The United States has at its disposal the ability to stop the illegal migration of Mexican nationals into this country.
Gov. Bill Clements, upset by the foot-dragging in Washington on the illegal alien problem, is supporting a realistic solution to the problem, a solution which could benefit both the United States and Mexico, and pave the way for better relations in the future.
Under the plan being supported by the governor, Mexican nationals would be given work permits which would enable them to enter this country legally and perform jobs before returning to Mexico.
The idea holds great potential, bringing to mind the old bracero program of days gone by. That program, you may recall, was not sainted. There were allegations of abuse by some officials.
Still, it seems that such a program could be rotated, thus making it available to Mexican nationals interested in participating. It would be important, of course, that it be subject to close scrutiny to avoid the abuses witnessed under the bracero program.
Some individuals — notably the minorities — may complain that such a system would allow aliens to take jobs away from minority workers and to hold down wages. We don't think so.

Texas is not Detroit. It is experiencing a boom period. Plenty of jobs are available; there just aren't enough workers to go around in many areas.
In addition, all too often it seems most Americans turn up their noses at more menial jobs, jobs the Mexican nationals risk their lives to come to this country to get.
Mexico and the United States haven't always been the best of neighbors and the Mexican national influx has created tensions. It is extremely important that the United States maintain as good a relationship as possible with the nations in this hemisphere. Newly found Mexican oil is not to be considered meaningless to the U.S.
It seems to us that establishing such a program to allow Mexican nationals to come to this country in bracero fashion to beef up our labor pool would be of benefit to both countries. It would give U.S. employers workers they need and it would give Mexican nationals jobs and earnings they are seeking — and not finding in Mexico.
We believe the proposal has merit and is certainly worth pursuing.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Vance quit because of Carter ineptitude

WASHINGTON — Contrary to most news accounts, it was not President Carter's new militancy alone that drove Cyrus Vance to resign as Secretary of State. An even more compelling reason was the president's woeful ineptness in directing foreign affairs.
Vance was too much the gentleman to mention his real misgivings in public. These were expressed by a senior Foreign Service officer who resigned a few days earlier. Thomas R. Hutson quit as U.S. consul in Moscow because "the Carter administration doesn't have a clue how to conduct foreign policy."
Hutson declared out loud what many despairing Foreign Service officers have been saying privately. They deplore the lack of professionalism in Carter's exercise of diplomacy. As Hutson put it, "we have a bunch of amateurs running foreign policy." Here are just a few cases in point:
— The Israeli-Egyptian pact was a stunning blow to America's Arab allies. Whom did the president send to explain it to them? His son, Chip Carter, accompanied by national security advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski. Jordan's King Hussein invited Brzezinski to a luncheon, but dispatched Chip to eat with the children. In Saudi Arabia, the sophisticated Saudis included Chip at the meals, but excluded him from important discussions. Said one source gravely: "I do not send my child to negotiate important matters."
— The Iranian horror not only jeopardized the western world's oil supply, but threatens world peace. Whom did Carter choose to negotiate a settlement? His honcho, Hamilton Jordan, who has no diplomatic background. Jordan sneaked into Europe disguised in a gray wig and false mustache. He dealt with a couple of dubious backroom operators who claimed to have connections in Iran. This wasn't diplomacy; it was comic opera.
— The president dispatched boxing hero Muhammad Ali on a diplomatic mission to Black Africa. Sophisticated African leaders were incensed. Snorted one: "Carter sends his top diplomats to Europe, Asia and the Middle East. But whom does he send to Africa? A boxer! Nigerian parliamentarians, meeting behind closed doors with American officials, protested angrily. Another African diplomat was more amused than angry. "We do not mix politics and sports," he quipped. "Isn't that what you Americans say?"

— Latin-American leaders, with their machismo psychology, are uneasy about doing business with a woman. Yet the president repeatedly has sent his wife, Rosalynn, on important diplomatic missions to Latin America. "She's not someone that a head of state will discuss serious matters with," complained a congressional leader. The Brazilians were irritated when Carter selected Rosalynn the last minute to represent the United States at President Joao Figueiredo's inauguration. A White House official, informed of Brazil's displeasure, shrugged and said: "Who cares about Brazil?"
— HALL OF HEROES - When hysterical Moslem mobs sacked the U.S. Embassy in Pakistan last November, hopelessly outnumbered U.S. Marine guards were forbidden to fire their weapons. Two of them died doing their job in the chaos.
They had help from two brave Drug Enforcement Administration agents, Bill Powers and Randy Sayles. The agents helped the combat-trained Marines delay the crowd and enabled embassy personnel to gain sanctuary in the embassy's third-floor vault area. They were exposed to intense heat, smoke and sniper fire.
I nominate Powers and Sayles,

CHARLEY REESE Carter deserves respect for hostage rescue effort

Charley Reese

It's strange that events put me in the position of defending President Jimmy Carter. I opposed his election in 1976, predicted he would be the worst president ever, and remain convinced that he is just that.
Yet some of the sniping which immediately followed disclosure of the attempt to rescue our hostages was shameful.
Disappointment almost choked me when the news came. If ever a people needed a taste of success in national affairs, we do.
Yet no venture more graphically illustrates how success or failure hinges on both the human element and blind chance than a military operation. To undertake any military action is to risk failure. No amount of planning and training can eliminate the possibility that some unforeseen circumstance or unpredictable human act will set off a chain of events that will topple the most elaborate plan.
President Carter cannot be blamed for the failure of the mission.
Senators Frank Church of Idaho and Jake Javits of New York took him to task for violating the war powers act by not consulting Congress. The Congress needs to clean up its own act. It can't keep a secret. It cannot even guarantee the loyalty of its members and staff.
To tell the Congress anything which depends on secrecy for success is to condemn it to failure in advance.

Furthermore, if Senator Church persists in demanding a public post mortem of the operation, he deserves a cream pie in the face now and defeat in November. If there is a politician in Washington with demonstrably worse judgment than the president, it is Church. From his flirtation with Fidel Castro to his assault on Somoza to his gutting of the CIA to his reckless rhetoric over the Soviet troops in Cuba, Church has shown himself to be a silly opportunist. With guys like him on our side, 50 enemies can take a year's vacation.
The less said publicly about the mission the better. We know all we need to know now. For once, let's not spill our guts in an orgy of self-whipping. It is probable we have friends in Iran and a public autopsy of the operation could cost them their lives.
Most of all let us remember that the enemy is Iran, not President Carter. I have heard Americans play Polly Parrot to Iran's disgraceful excuses for leaders who are liars of the first order.

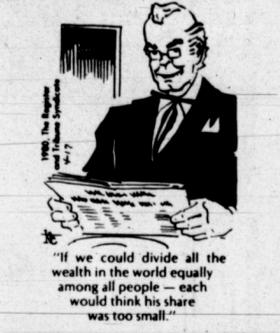

The president has every legal and moral right to rescue the hostages or to bomb Iran into the Stone Age for that matter. Iran committed an act of war when it seized our embassy and took our people. Since then, the behavior of Iranian officials has been reckless, reprehensible, disgusting and crazy. Their foreign minister, Mr. "Goat's Bad Breath," their twit of a president, "Bandy Sadder," and Main Madman have earned a bad death many times over.
As for the timing of the operation upsetting our allies, to heck with them. Their foot-dragging, timid support has nothing to do with President Carter's admittedly erratic foreign policy. It has everything to do with the shift in the balance of power toward the Soviet Union and their tendency toward appeasement.
Everytime I hear a journalist or politician refer to another nation as a friend, I want to throw up. As a Turkish colonel instructed me once, nations are not friends; sometimes they have the same enemies.
Then there are those Nervous Nellies who are so scared of bloodshed that they would do anything to avoid it. Well, you can't listen to those people. Once you adopt their attitude — peace at any price — you might as well haul down the flag and replace it with a white sheet.
The failed mission did not fail entirely. It sent a message to Europe, Japan, the Soviet Union and Iran: the patience of the American people is not unlimited and we are not afraid to start big trouble over 50 American citizens.
It was a little late, but God bless the president for finally sending it.

INSIDE REPORT:

Fritz Mondale courted as Democratic alternative to Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Vice President Walter F. Mondale has emerged over the last month as healer in the fractious Democratic party and consensus choice of Democratic politicians to replace Jimmy Carter as nominee for president.
This revolt is passive, not active. It waxed a little when Cyrus Vance quit as secretary of state; it waned a little when Sen. Edmund Muskie replaced him. Mondale has absolutely no complexity in disloyalty to his chief, although his political aides know more about the ferment than they pretend. Its success, a very long shot, hinges on whether President Carter's decline can be stopped.
The private consensus within the party is that Carter probably cannot be salvaged and is, therefore, a probable loser to Republican Ronald Reagan. There is near-unanimous opinion that the one man able to heal his party, bind together its Carter and Kennedy wings and defeat Reagan is Fritz Mondale.
Mondale's role as party savior stems from his barnstorming as surrogate for Carter without engaging in shrill invective against Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, a moderation that has lowered his esteem among the Carter political team lately. While Kennedy himself resents Mondale as seller of a liberal birthright for a mess of Carter pottage, lesser Kennedyites nationwide acknowledge their man cannot make it and that the vice president is the best alternative.

Evans Novak
This has been the pervasive subject behind the scenes. Two separate sources report hearing Mondale's top aide, Richard Moe, talk confidentially about it (though Moe denied it to us.) Other politicians have heard similar talk from Al Barkan, political action chief for the AFL-CIO.
Typical was conversation during a dinner party April 25 between three Democratic senators: Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York, William Bradley of New Jersey and Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut. Talk turned to Carter's low political estate and a possible non-Kennedy alternative. All agreed there is only one: Mondale. But how to do it? They were stumped.
There would be no chance unless Carter loses more big state primaries to Kennedy June 3 and falls embarrassingly behind Reagan in the polls. He then might lose a floor fight at Madison Square Garden to unbind his pledged delegates, if the convention found a non-Kennedy alternative.
The growing legion of covert Mondale men contains recruits who would surprise the White House. One influential backroom Southern Democrat, long a Carterite, gave us his glum assessment that Carter can neither be stopped for the nomination nor elected in November. But if Carter could be stopped, would this Carterite be for Mondale? "In a minute, friend, in a minute," he replied. "So would a lot more of us."

Despite distaste toward Mondale in Kennedy's inner circle, Teddy's foot soldiers would gladly accept Fritz. Sonny Dogole, Philadelphia businessman and Democratic financial patron, backs Kennedy as the only available alternative to Carter. But Dogole, an old-time associate of Hubert Humphrey, would eagerly support Humphrey protegee Mondale.
Dogole was among many potential Mondale backers attending the April 27 banquet of the Coalition for a Democratic Majority, a defense-oriented group deeply unhappy with Carter. But Mondale is also the favorite within the detente-oriented, anti-Carter Americans for Democratic Action, the antithesis of CDM. ADA loves Mondale for his dovishness; CDM accepts him, hoping his running-mate would be Moynihan, CDM national co-chairman.
Mondale bridges this gap because, after early Teddy-baiting in Iowa, he has avoided the escalating verbal excesses of the Carter-Kennedy fight. In his speeches just before Pennsylvania's April 22 primary won by Kennedy, Mondale ignored orders to flail away against Kennedy in tune with Carter television commercials. "Fritz gave his standard Humphrey speech instead," a Carter operative grumbled.

The Carter team was also upset when Mondale insider Mike Berman, running Carter's campaign in Michigan, disregarded orders to push Sen. Donald Riegle aside as introducer of Mondale at the party dinner in Detroit April 12, two weeks before the state caucuses won by Kennedy. Riegle proceeded to shred the Carter administration's economic policy. There was no overt rebuttal from Mondale.

None of this constitutes any break between the White House and the vice president who has collaborated more congenially with his president than any predecessor in memory. It merely underlines Mondale's reluctance to tie himself into the straitjacket of the Carter problem now causing the party revolt. That is why more and more Democrats are covertly looking to him as their last best chance.

Mark Russell says

That story about Walter Cronkite being John Anderson's running mate was ridiculous. Naturally, it's the other way around.
The story broke in the middle of a day already filled with confusion. Early reports indicated that Walter Cronkite would be secretary of state and that Sen. Edmund Muskie would be Anderson's running mate.
But, an update revealed that John Anderson would be secretary of state and that Muskie's running mate would be Dan Rather.
Cronkite issued a statement saying that he wasn't about to give up his title as most trusted man in America just to get into politics. Which would be like your kindly old grandfather becoming a bookie.

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

Nine killed at Pope's Zaire Mass

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP) — Pope John Paul II today expressed sorrow for the nine persons trampled to death at a Mass in Zaire, then carried his pilgrimage to the Congo Republic to urge the nation's Marxist leaders not to interfere in the work of the Roman Catholic Church.

The pontiff crossed the muddy Congo River by ferry from Zaire earlier today to begin the second stop on his African tour.

In remarks prepared for a meeting with the Congolese president, the pope called the church "a spiritual institution" that "transcends national boundaries." He said it has a mission of saving souls while the state's task is to keep order in society. A realization of this difference, the pontiff said, will prevent confusion and conflict in church-state relations.

He sounded a similar note in a homily prepared for delivery at an open-air mass in Brazzaville.

"I have no doubt that the authorities will continue to give you genuine freedom of religion, as well as the possibility to work as good citizens for the development of your country," the homily said.

The pontiff arrived here to a joyous welcome from Congolese Catholics and the tolling bells of the Sacre Coeur Cathedral.

After a five-hour stop in the Congo, the pope was flying back to Zaire for an overnight stay in Kisangani, the chief city in northern Zaire.

The Congo, a former French colony now run by a military regime, has an estimated 600,000 Roman Catholics among its population of 15 million. In March 1977 the archbishop of Brazzaville, Cardinal Emile Biayenda, was murdered, apparently by relatives of President Marien Ngouabi, who was killed in a coup a few days earlier. But the Vatican says church-state relations have improved considerably since then.

The trampling deaths and 72 injuries occurred Sunday in Kinshasa, Zaire's capital, when the iron gates to the plaza in front of the People's Palace were opened at dawn and the huge crowd rushed forward. Hospital officials said seven women and two children died in the crush.

"People just swept in," trampling others underfoot, said Sister Gertrude Kosecka, a Polish missionary in Zaire for 40 years who was caught in the crush and suffered chest injuries.

The pope was not told of the deaths until later and went ahead with the Mass, which he celebrated on the white concrete steps of the building. But an evening program of folk dancing and other native entertainment was canceled at his request.

The Mass lasted five hours, and during it the pope consecrated eight new bishops, including seven Africans from Zaire, Burundi and Sudan and a French-Canadian missionary living in Djibouti.

Seated on an ebony throne about 50 feet from President Mobutu Sese Seko, Zaire's authoritarian leader, John Paul urged the new bishops to speak out on the "ethical aspects of society each time that the fundamental rights and liberties of people and the common good demand it." There was no visible reaction from Mobutu.

Rep. Drinan bows to 'will of the Pope'

Rep. Robert F. Drinan

BOSTON (AP) — Rep. Robert F. Drinan, a five-term Massachusetts Democrat and a Jesuit priest, has bowed to the "will of the pope" and will not run for re-election because the Roman Catholic Church has banned priests from secular political activity, a Jesuit spokesman said.

"It is the intention of His Holiness that no priest should be involved in politics, and Father Drinan has very graciously accepted the ordinance," the Rev. Richard Lynds, director of communications for the Society of Jesus in New England, said Sunday.

Drinan, who has favored legislation permitting the use of government funds to pay for abortions, a position contradicting the church opposition to abortion, had no comment Sunday.

"He needs some time alone," said an aide, Dorothy Reichard. Drinan scheduled a news conference for today in the 4th District, which in 1970 made him the first priest ever elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

News of his withdrawal brought at least a half dozen candidates into the field, furiously collecting 2,000 voter signatures needed on filing petitions in time for a 5 p.m. Tuesday deadline in what Democratic officials called a "big scramble."

The papal policy was disclosed Sunday in a brief statement relating to Drinan's case from a spokesman for the Rev. Edward O'Flaherty, New England provincial of the Society of Jesus.

While the spokesman said the order came from Pope John Paul II, a Vatican official was quoted as saying each bishop decides how the order is to be applied. There has been no explanation on whether the order applies only to elective office.

Priests have been politically active for more than a decade in heavily Roman Catholic Latin America and in the Philippines, Asia's lone Roman Catholic country, guided by a school of thought called the "Theology of Liberation."

But a speech given by the pope in Mexico City last year was interpreted by some as a warning to the clergy not to interfere with the politics of the countries in which they are working.

This is not a new rule," said William Ryan, a press officer for the National Conference of Catholic Bishops in Washington. "Father Drinan is being reminded about something that's been on the books for some time."

However, Ryan was unable to explain why the regulation was being enforced now.

A spokesman for Cardinal Humberto Medeiros, head of the Boston Archdiocese, who has said he opposed priests in politics, said the order was a matter for the Jesuit provincial and the cardinal would have no comment.

In 1974, when Drinan was seeking a third term in Congress, his provincial said he had received the Vatican's permission to run.

However, in 1974, after Drinan had received the Vatican's permission to seek his third term, Medeiros said, "I still stand on what I said about priests in politics when I first came to Boston. In this area, there is no room for priests in politics. We have all kinds of wonderful lay persons for that."

The only Roman Catholic cleric holding national office in the United States, Drinan planned to seek his sixth term in November, said Jerome Grossman, National Democratic Committee member for Massachusetts and chairman of the Committee to Re-Elect Drinan.

Grossman said Drinan received final word Saturday that no exceptions will be made to the order. Grossman said Drinan appealed after hearing about the order for the first time about a week ago.

"He did question the order," said Grossman. "But from talking with him, I can say he never wavered in his acceptance of the will of the Pope. He is not going to run as long as this order applies to him."

Drinan, 59, was dean of the Boston College Law School when he was first elected to Congress in November 1970. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Boston College, and bachelor's and master's degrees in law from Georgetown University Law Center in Washington, D.C. He also holds a doctor of theology degree from Gregorian University in Rome.

...La Florecita Day Nursery, a local United Way agency, recently held its first annual Spring Gathering. Parents were able to view their children's artwork and sample many desserts prepared by the nursery's board members.

The purpose of the program was manifold: to collect gold bond stamps for the nursery's goal of trading them in for a television; to provide parents and board members an opportunity to exchange ideas and to allow time for parent-staff dialogues.

In all aspects, the program was successful; but all in attendance will probably agree that the afternoon's highlight was the children's performance of "The Pledge," "Little Cabin in the Woods" and "Where is Thumbkin..."

'Can't dance to bebop': What's it for?

Copley News Service

VISTA, Calif. — A big, white-on-blue line drawing of Duke Ellington hangs on the wall over Stanley Dance's record player.

It dominates his office, smiling down on the massive collection of records, books, tapes, even piano rolls, on the books, the furniture, the desk, everything.

Arrayed beneath the drawing hang three photographs — Earl Hines, Ellington chatting with Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie and Ellington with Count Basie dueting on dove-tailed grand pianos.

A casual visitor could come to the conclusion that Ellington and other jazz musicians have played an important role in the life of Dance, and the visitor would be correct.

Dance, who moved one year ago with his wife of 35 years to a Spanish-style home nestled in a semi-rural Vista hillside, has at the age of 69 long been considered the biographer of a whole generation of jazz artists, particularly Ellington.

A critic, writer of untold numbers of magazine articles, an important chronicler of the history of jazz, Dance is widely recognized and respected for his understanding of music and his rapport with musicians.

On sitting down with him in that record-lined study dominated by the portrait of Ellington, I first wondered why a man in his line of work would choose to live in such an out-of-the-way spot. Vista, lovely place that it is just north of San Diego, is not regarded as one of the focal points of the world of jazz.

"I've never lived in a big city, but always near one," Dance replied. "As a young man I lived in Essex, 47 miles from London. Then later my wife and I lived in Connecticut, 43 miles from New York. Now we've moved here."

Dance, a talkative, genial man, began writing about jazz, as so many others do, as a fan.

He did not do well as a schoolboy in Britain, so his father sent him to a boarding school, where a few of his friends were the sons of record company executives.

"Boys always brought a few of their records with them to school, but these boys brought all the pop records of the time. Naturally, we played them all until we were sick to death of them."

"But they had other records, these funny things by people like Jelly Roll Morton and His Hot Peppers, and

Death rates also higher for the underweight people

CHICAGO (AP) — Thin may be in — but a few pounds more might be much healthier, say researchers who compared two weight studies.

Overweight people long have been known to have a higher death rate than those of average weight. But it now appears that underweight people also have higher death rates than people whose poundage is average, a group of researchers has concluded.

The researchers, in an article published in this week's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, challenge a 1959 insurance companies study which said the lower a person's weight, the lower his risk of death.

Their conclusion was reached after they took information on body build and blood pressure collected from insurance companies in 1959, and compared it with information gathered from a random sample of 5,200 people in the Boston suburb of Framingham from 1948 through 1972.

Paul Sorlie, a member of the research team who is on the staff of the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute in Bethesda, Md., said although the Framingham results were published in 1972, it was not until 1979 that they were compared with the 1959 insurance study.

Sorlie said the Framingham study is more reliable because it was taken from the general population, whereas the earlier study was compiled from information about people who have insurance policies. That means that persons whose illnesses made them ineligible for insurance were automatically excluded from that survey, he said.

Another insurance industry study in 1979 found an increased death rate in people who were at least 20 percent underweight.

It is not known why underweight people in the new study had a greater mortality rate than average weight people. The article says it may be that among persons of below-average weight, there are some who had lost weight because of illness.

Sorlie said that since weight charts used by doctors are based on information from insurance companies, people don't get the best advice on what an ideal weight maximum would be for them. He said the charts just show generalizations and there is really no way to make a broad statement on what an individual's weight limit should be.

"If you went into a doctor's office and asked him what was a good weight for you he would give you a table based on life insurance data," Sorlie said. "Our point is that as you look at a more general population, you are going to get people who have a variety of weights — for a variety of reasons."

The study divided Framingham residents into five weight groups. The death rate among women was highest for the most overweight and the most underweight, while the death rate for men was highest for the most underweight.

Researcher Dr. William B. Kannel, former head of the Framingham study and now affiliated with Boston University, says the new findings do not mean obese people do not need to lose weight. But he says some Americans may be overdoing their diets.

Rule of thumb for teeth

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You told the mother of a 17-year-old boy who still sucked his thumb, "It's a harmless habit formed in infancy which provides the thumb sucker with a feeling of pleasure and gratification."

Thumb sucking is NOT always harmless. It can cause teeth to protrude, and in some cases it can cause the upper jaw to become deformed.

Some children who have sucked their thumbs in infancy escape without damaging their teeth or jaw formation, but if a child continues to suck his thumb after the age of 4, an orthodontist should be consulted. — OHIO ORTHODONTIST

DEAR ORTHODONTIST: Thank you for suggesting that a good rule of thumb to follow (excuse the pun) is: "Thumb sucking is harmless unless continued after the age of 4." Now let's hear it from a woman who's been at it for 36 years:

DEAR ABBY: I can't resist writing in regard to the mother of a 17-year-old thumb sucker. I thought your answer was excellent. I wish I had had that reassurance years ago.

I am a 36-year-old mother of three, and I still suck my thumb! When I was a baby my mother would shove my thumb into my mouth as a pacifier to quiet me. Too late she realized I formed the habit of thumb sucking, and she did everything she could think of to stop me. She painted my thumb with iodine, bandaged it, and even strapped my hands to the bedpost at night. Nothing worked. Whenever I grew tired (even in high school) I'd suck my thumb. The kids teased me unmercifully, but even that didn't make me quit. I just became more skillful in hiding my habit.

After I was married I tried hiding it from my husband, but sleeping in the same bed made it impossible. Eventually he found out, but luckily it didn't matter one bit to him.

To this very day I can't fall asleep unless I have my thumb in my mouth. I've tried hypnosis, but I'm one of those people who can't be hypnotized. I went to a psychiatrist and he said, "It's harmless. Forget it."

I'm curious. Am I the oldest thumb sucker on record? — TACOMA READER

DEAR READER: If I hear from a thumb sucker over 36, I'll let you know.

DEAR ABBY: A SAN DIEGO BIOLOGIST wrote to say that animals are NOT less cruel within their species than humans. He submitted that ant colonies engage in warfare often to the death, as do baboons and other animals who fight fiercely for mates and territory. To support his theory you cited the praying mantis (female) who kills the male immediately after mating, then you added facetiously, "How's that for a lovely thank-you?" Abby, did you know they crossed the praying mantis with a termite? It didn't stop the termite's nasty appetite, but at least now, before eating your rafters, he says grace. — BILL CLAYTON, BREA, CALIF. (Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Troupe brings dance 'into students' lives

By LILLIAN SWANSON
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — As the glow of bright stage lights reflected off a hardwood dance floor, Trina Collins guided a class of private-school students through elementary steps. "Let's do it again," she told her young charges at the Winston-Thurston school. "But this time — relax!"

Mrs. Collins is artistic director and chief choreographer for the modern dance company Danceteller, which spent a two-week Artists-in-Schools residency at the Pittsburgh school.

"The main thrust of the program is to give the students the experience of working with a dance company," she said between rehearsals. "Because we're dancing, we're working all the time. We want to give them a total feeling of what's involved."

Sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts, the six members of the troupe put dance into the classrooms through several means.

Kindergarten students are taught to stretch their arms and legs into the shapes of alphabet letters. Dancers perform before an audience of fourth-grade painters armed with water colors and brushes.

But learning is not a one-way street.

"As an artist, you have to have the innocence of children," said Mrs. Collins, who studied under Martha Graham and Alwin Nikolais.

"Working with kids reminds you of the energy of children, the self-consciousness of adolescence and the individuality of all people, which starts so young."

Danceteller, formed five years ago, is based at Wilson College in Chambersburg, where the 36-year-old Mrs. Collins is dance director.

The troupe's method of dance often verges on theater, using a modern style that blends voice and music into a zany and entertaining performance.

"You can't categorize us into any tradition, as you can other dance companies," she said, adding that the troupe is unusual, too, because of the time it spends on the road.

Samplers add local color

The most fun thing about traveling is discovering local color — something completely different from the way things are back home — and the next best thing to being there is to bring a bit of the place back with you.

One of the easiest ways of doing that is with a few well-chosen words added to your stitching.

Our grandmothers knew how effective that was when they stitched verses into their samplers. Get some of that fabulous Aida cloth, the kind with even mesh, and, with three strands of cotton floss, simply cross stitch your letters on to the plain fabric.

Copycat recipe a good one

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Recently a friend vacationed on a small island, well-known to avid shell collectors, off the west coast of Florida.

No, she didn't find a rare shell. Instead she brought back a different sort of treasure: a jar of sauce served at one of the island's restaurants and sold in some of the island's shops. She bestowed the sauce on me, along with a copycat recipe for it.

Tried in our kitchen, we found the copycat recipe produced the same sweet-sour flavor and rather thin consistency of the original. The ingredients used are those listed on the jar label, but we used tarragon as the "spice." You may want to experiment with another seasoning. Our sauce's tarragon flavor was decidedly noticeable because the herb had been home-grown and dried.

Island Sauce is just the kind of dressing many Americans favor for slaw and citrus salads. It would go well as a dip for fried fish or clams instead of tartar sauce. I loved it with cold meat-loaf sandwiches and think it would be equally delicious with sliced egg and/or ham sandwiches.

ISLAND SAUCE

1 tbs. sugar
1 tbs. flour
2 tsps. salt
1/4 tsp. white pepper
2 tsps. dry mustard
1/2 cup water
2 egg yolks from large eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 cup white vinegar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
2 tbsps. honey
1/2 tsp. dried tarragon leaves, crumbled
1/2 cup corn oil
In a heavy 2-quart saucepan whisk together the sugar, flour, salt, pepper and mustard. Gradually whisk in the water until smooth. Whisk in the egg yolks until blended. Add the vinegar, syrup, honey and tarragon. Whisking constantly, cook over moderately low heat until thickened — about 5 minutes; do not let boil. Off heat, gradually whisk in the oil. Store in a tightly covered container in the refrigerator. Sauce will thicken somewhat after chilling. Should sauce separate, at serving time whisk with a fork to blend.

U.S. winners upset

By Dan BERGER
Copley News Service

A year ago, Henri Gault and Christian Millau, publishers of the French food and wine magazine Gault-Millau, Le Nouvea Guide, staged what they termed a Wine Olympics, pitting wines of the world against each other in various categories.

While I am generally unexcited about such events, given the vagaries of wine "competitions," it's always fun to note how an American wine "beat" a more publicized and far more expensive wine from another nation, usually France or Germany.

Invariably when these events produce curious results, someone wants to repeat them, to see if they were staged properly (whatever "properly" means).

When a 1976 Trefethen Chardonnay from Yountville was scored as better than a handful of pricey white Burgundies at the Gault-Millau event, I was not surprised. The '76 Trefethen is a handsome, fruity wine that was a sleeper from the day it was released. (The fact that I like the '77 Trefethen even more than the '76 is immaterial.)

In any case, Robert Drouhin, head of the Burgundy wine firm Joseph Drouhin, was unhappy over the way French Burgundies did in the '79 event, so he challenged the editors of the magazine to bring the top-scoring American Pinot Noirs and Chardonnays and put them up head to head with the best from his caves.

On Jan. 8, a series of reputable judges gathered and scored, and the results were interesting.

The winning wine of the white taste-off was the aforementioned '76 Trefethen, again, ahead of a 1976 Drouhin Puligny-Montrachet, a wine that sells for more than twice the price of the Trefethen. (The '76 and '77 Trefethen Chardonnays, however, are both long since off most shelves.)

Third in the white category was a 1975 Freemark Abbey (Napa) Chardonnay with a '78 Drouhin Puligny-Montrachet fourth.

Losing 92 inches cut my weight problem down to size

"When I bought these size 18 jeans, I weighed 202 pounds," says 5'4" Sandy Camp of Dangerfield, Texas. "I managed to take off 20 or so on my own, but then I was stuck. That's when I went to Pat Walker's."

No-sweat exercise is the secret

After her introductory treatment on Pat Walker's Symmetricon passive exercise unit, Sandy knew that she'd come to the right place. She felt rested and relaxed — not sweaty and exhausted. She didn't even have to change into exercise clothes. And before many weeks went by, she could see how her figure was being toned and firmed up. Sandy eventually lost 13 inches from her waist, 12 inches from her tummy, 11 1/2 from her hips, and several inches in other areas.

Complete privacy is your privilege

If wearing a leotard embarrasses you... if you don't like revealing your figure problems to a roomful of strangers, then Pat Walker's is your kind of place.

Every aspect of your weight loss program — from counseling sessions about sensible eating habits, to Symmetricon treatments — is totally private. We think you deserve that.

Today, even Sandy Camp's husband loves to buy her new things to wear, now that she's down to 124 pounds and size 8. Sandy's success story could be yours. Make an appointment for a free, no-obligation consultation at Pat Walker's. Cubs, Diablos try 2 games tonight

Midland and El Paso were again foiled by the weather Sunday, but will make up for it with doubleheaders at 6:30 p.m. tonight and again Tuesday at Cubs Stadium.

Although the sun was peeking through the clouds by game time Sunday, Midland Cubs General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., had called off the Cubs-Diablos game earlier in the day.

Jon Perlman, 2-2, winner of his last two starts, and Steve Viskas, who levelled his record at 2-2 with a three-hitter against Amarillo in his last start, will be Manager Randy Hundley's pitching choices for tonight's twinbill.

Clark, from San Diego, like Viskas, had a 16-5 record at Quad Cities in the Midwest League with a 2.53 earned-run-average, figures that earned him an invitation to the Chicago Cubs camp at Mesa, Ariz., this spring.

Segelke was tossed out of last Friday's game with Amarillo after hitting shotstop John Flannery in the helmet with a pitch.

Cubs' Steve Viskas goes for No. 3 against Diablos.

ed on the previous pitch, a bunt attempt, Segelke yelled at Flannery 'You shouldn't have done that, Buddy,' which Luhr felt constituted a threat.

Perlman, after suffering losses in his first two starts, scattered 11 hits to beat Amarillo, 15-1, in his last start, which makes the Baylor University grad 1-1 in games in which the Cubs have scored 15 runs.

In order to get Clark in the rotation, Henry Mack, 1-1, who went the route in a 4-2 loss to Amarillo the last time out, will miss a turn. The Cubs' Little League Clinic Saturday morning and Cubs Sun Visor Night Saturday were washed away and Rigney plans to reschedule both for May 24...

Rangers lose game, Comer

By CHARLES RICHARDS ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)— Baltimore has won three of its last four games, indicating to Oriole manager Earl Weaver that "we might finally be back on our way."

But the Texas Rangers got a much gloomier outlook from Sunday night's 9-5 loss: another serious dent in the pitching staff.

Steve Comer, complaining that "I've never felt pain like this," gave up a two-run homer to Ken Singleton and lasted only one-third of an inning before he left with a sore shoulder.

"I've had pain before but not like this," said Comer. He noticed the soreness during his pre-game warm-ups and it got almost unbearable in the first inning, he said.

"This is the first time my shoulder has ever hurt, and I'd say it could be serious. At 26, I'm pretty young to call it quits, so I've got to be optimistic, but I've never felt pain like this before," said Comer, whose 17 victories last season topped the Ranger staff and were fifth in the American League.

Singleton's fifth-homer of the season came on a 3-1 changeup and cleared the fence in right-center after Pat Kelly had singled off Comer's hand.

"It was quite obvious from watching Comer warm up for the first inning that he wasn't 100 percent and that we were going to tag him," Singleton said.

That was a good feeling, considering that Comer had the Orioles in his back pocket last year, taking three victories against them in as many starts, including one shutout and a 0.75 ERA.

After Singleton's home run, Comer hit Eddie Murray on the foot and gave up a single to Terry Crowley, and Ranger manager Pat Corrales brought in Dave Rajsich in relief.

Miller not the only Midlander in NFL draft

When Nebraska All-American Junior Miller, the former Midland Lee football and basketball standout, was picked by the Atlanta Falcons as the seventh player in the National Football League draft, few eyebrows were raised. It was expected.

Miller was a shoe-in for the first round. The Sporting News had predicted the Atlanta choice before the draft. Junior was one of the plums.

A lot has been said and written about Miller before and since the draft, but there were two other Midlanders selected in the draft, giving the Tall City three pro draft picks in the same year. There's probably no other city its size that can make the same statement.

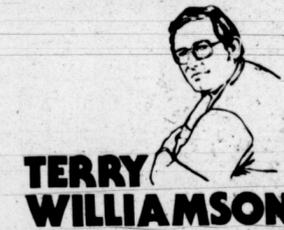

Baylor's Keith Bishop, another Lee graduate, and Texas A&M's James Zachery, a Midland High star, also went to professional teams this past week. Bishop was selected by the Denver Broncos in the sixth round as either a guard or center while Zachery was picked in the 11th round by the New York Jets as a linebacker.

Most observers felt that Denver took a chance on selecting Bishop, but if things work out, it could be one of the best moves in the draft. Bishop tore up his right knee in the first game of the season last fall against Lamar University. He didn't have the exposure that is usually needed for a college senior, but going in the sixth round is considered pretty good for an offensive lineman.

"I was elated at going in the sixth round to Denver. That's really the team I wanted to be with," Bishop said. "A month before the draft, Denver gave me a physical and I met with the coaches. Later, line coach Whitey Duvell came to Waco and gave me a workout. I knew they were interested and now they have given me a chance and it's all up to me now."

"Denver drafted only two offensive linemen, so I feel I have a real shot at making the team. One of the players they took was guard John Havekost of Nebraska, and we were good friends when I was at Nebraska for two years," Bishop noted.

The other lineman taken by Denver was tackle Laval Short of Colorado. Bishop has been working hard to get his knee back in shape. "I've got no gripes with Baylor. They have treated me super since the injury. Trainer Skip Cox gave me a good workout schedule and the doctors here did a good job with the leg. By getting the leg fixed right, it has given me the chance I've wanted."

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Bishop hasn't signed a contract with Denver as of yet, but he is scheduled to report to a mini-camp in Denver Wednesday.

Zachery, on the other hand, was not too pleased with his 11th round selection by the Jets, but he was probably hampered in the draft since he played as a defensive tackle his last two years at A&M.

"The Jets had contacted me before the draft and said they would probably take me if I was still available. I thought I should have gone earlier in the draft, and I was a little disappointed," Zachery said. "I know a lot of teams thought I was too small to be a tackle and I guess they didn't want to take a chance on me as a linebacker."

"It was unfortunate that I wasn't able to mature as a linebacker here (A&M). Sometimes you have to do what is best for the team and it was nice to know that you could help at several positions, but it sure didn't help me as far as the pros are concerned," Zachery said.

Zachery, who had the distinction of being the only football player at A&M to be a member of the Corps, still feels he has a good chance of making it in the pros. "The Jets drafted four linebackers and I would have to say right now that everyone seems pretty equal. I'm the fastest of the four with 4.75, but Penn State is known for great linebackers and the Jets drafted (Jeff) Mehl out of there."

The other two linebackers taken by the Jets were Jeff Dziama of Boston College and Jim Zidd of Kansas. Everyone knows, however, that the Jets are looking to improve on defense, an area of major concern.

"In all, I'm just happy to have been drafted. The Jets are young and they seem to be going with young guys. It could all work out."

Whether any of the three ever become solid pros or not, Midland has been the winner. We would put any of the three on any team.

Folk, Thompson kick old image

Well, kick the bridesmaid image. Odessa's Ron Folk, a former golf pro, and Steve Thompson have finally won Midland Country Club's Ernie Nelson Partnership golf title.

This is the pair that has been wearing the runnerup ribbon in this annual event like a yolk. They finished second to Graham Mackey and Ron Leverich in 1978 and was second again last year to Randy Geiselman and Steve Whiteside. It was getting to be an old habit.

But Sunday all that ended as Folk and Thompson combined for a final round 67 for a three-day score of 206. Now they have the image of defending champions for a year, and that has to be a lot sweeter.

Defending champions Geiselman and Whiteside, the Longhorn and Aggie Odd Couple, led the tournament through two rounds, but ballooned to a 73 Sunday for a third place finish at 209. Ed Brooks, a former professional from Odessa, and James Wright came in with a 69 Sunday to take over second place with a 208.

Fourth place went to Jobe Moss and Bucky Sheffield with a 213, but they got that after a card playoff against Jess Claiborne and John Farquhar. Mackey and Leverich, the '78 champs and first day leaders, were not among the top five teams.

James Savage and Cliff Richey posted a three-day 218 to win the President's Flight by a two stroke margin, but the first flight was a real battle between Milton Nichol-Craig Adams and Raymond Eaves-Leon Anderson. Both finished at 223, but Nichol and Adams won on a card playoff.

Walt and Gus Locker won the second flight by two strokes with a 219 while the third flight went to Buck Watkins and Jeff Dewesse with a 219, a three stroke victory.

Noel Sikes and Doug Peacock took the fourth flight by two strokes with a 225, but the fifth flight had another card playoff with R. L. Wright and Fred

Sims center of Lions attention

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)— Any doubts about Billy Sims' ability to play football were laid to rest over the weekend. Now, all the Detroit Lions have to do is sign the Oklahoma All-American to a National Football League contract.

Sims, the 5-foot-11, 210-pound running back whom the Lions made their No. 1 pick in the NFL draft last week, was the center of attention at the Lions' special three-day camp for rookies and free agents.

Velez' 4 homers in doubleheader ties American record

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
 It was a special day for designated hitters Otto Velez and Darrell Porter. While Velez tied an American League record with four home runs in a doubleheader, Porter made some significant history of his own with a triple and a single.

Velez is happy to be playing full-time and Porter is happy to be playing at all. After spending six weeks in a drug and alcohol rehabilitation center, Porter drove in three runs and scored a fourth in only his second appearance of the season, leading Kansas City to a 5-3 victory over Boston Sunday.

Velez did his part to make the first Sunday in May "Designated Hitter's Day" by smashing three homers, including a grand-slam and a solo game-winner in the 10th that gave Toronto a 9-8 victory over Cleveland. Then he launched the Blue Jays to a 7-2 triumph in the nightcap with a three-run homer in the first inning.

Velez became the 11th AL player to connect for four homers in a doubleheader. Graig Nettles of the New York Yankees was the last entry in this category in 1974. Stan Musty of St. Louis and Nate Colbert of San Diego hold the major league mark with five.

PORTER, who rejoined the Royals April 25, received a long, warm ovation from the Kansas City crowd when he came to bat in the first inning. In his first appearance Friday night, the home fans welcomed him back with an enthusiastic two-minute standing ovation. "It's wonderful the way the people accepted me," he said.

Porter tripled in the first for his first hit of the season, driving in Hal McRae. "I thought it was gonna be an out, to tell you the truth," he said. "It carried farther than I thought it would. It's that extra five pounds I'm carrying."

In the third, Porter singled home two more runs and came around to score on a single by John Wathan. "I'm very satisfied," he said. "I feel real good at the plate and it's amazing I'm seeing the ball so well."

In his last two at bats, Porter drove balls to the warning track that were hauled down. "Porter didn't miss the fat part of the bat all day, did he?" said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "The meaty part of Velez's bat looked awfully big, too."

"I hit a couple of fastballs and a slider," said Velez, whose home run output went from three to seven, while his runs-batted-in total doubled from 10 to 20.

His grand slam in the opener was the first of his career. In the 10th inning, Toronto Manager Bobby Mattick flashed the hit sign on a 3-pitch, and Velez powered it over the right-center field fence.

"In that kind of situation you got to be sitting on a fastball and he gave me one away," Velez said. "I just wanted a base hit to win it. In that kind of situation you got to go full. I got lucky and it worked out."

Yankees 10, Twins 1—Reggie Jackson, knocked down by an apparent brushback pitch for the third game in a row, retaliated with a long home run. He then triggered a six-run fourth inning with a leadoff single. Jackson hit the deck in the second inning off loser Jerry Kosman, 2-2. Jackson exchanged words with Kosman and catcher Butch Wynegar and then drilled a 430-foot homer to dead center, his sixth of the season and 375th of his career.

Spinks beats Isaac in eight

SAN CARLOS, Calif. (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Leon Spinks, possessing much more discipline than when he beat Muhammad Ali two years ago, is confident his latest victory will put him on the road to another title.

Spinks outclassed Kevin Isaac Saturday, battering him to a staggering finish in the eighth round of their nationally televised fight. Although not down for the 10-count, Isaac still was declared knocked out, under state boxing rules.

"He had to fall," said Spinks, now 9-2-2 as a pro. "He fought too hard to get to the eighth." Spinks disposed of Isaac in a flurry of some 20 rights and lefts that settled the issue. Isaac sagged to the canvas, clearly unable to go on. He struggled to his feet, but referee Rudy Ortega stepped in to halt the slaughter.

The 27-year-old ex-champ considers his fight against Isaac, before 1,722 fans at the Circle Star Theater, another session in his education. "Sure, I'm still learning," Spinks said after the fight. "There's never a time to stop learning. I'm trying to build up a library. Or maybe I should say dictionary is the better way to put it."

Spinks did a complete job of helping Isaac, a mediocre 12-6-2, to fritter away his energy. It was the same story right from the first round.

The homer put him in 23rd place, one ahead of Rocky Colavito, on the all-time list. Jackson said his response to the knockdown pitch pleased him.

"It is a very exhilarating feeling," he said. "I'm swinging the bat pretty good right now. Maybe they're trying to intimidate me. I'm glad to do well when there's a challenge, but I don't like them. I guess some people still feel they have to put me through the test."

Tigers 4-0, A's 0-1—Detroit's Milt Wilcox beat Oakland 4-0 with a four-hitter, but Mike Norris matched that performance with a four-hit, 1-0 shut-out to give the A's a split in their doubleheader with the Tigers.

Norris, 4-0, reduced his earned run average to 0.44 in outdueling Dan Schatzeder, who allowed no hits through 51-3 innings. The first hit and the only run for the A's was Jeff Newman's homer.

Brewers 11, White Sox 1—Robin Yount's grand slam homer highlighted a six-run eighth inning and Jim Slaton and three other pitchers combined for a four-hitter to lead Milwaukee past the White Sox. The triumph was the fourth straight for the Brewers while the Sox, who have lost six of their last seven, suffered their fourth consecutive defeat. Angels 4, Mariners 3—Carney Lansford doubled twice, driving in two runs and scoring one in California's victory. Lansford doubled to drive in the first of three first-inning runs. Don Baylor followed with a sacrifice fly, his first RBI in 10 games, and Joe Rudi singled in another run. Lansford's RBI double in the fifth proved to be the game-winner.

Astros' dazzling glove work beats Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP)—If execution accounts for much, watch out for the Houston Astros as contenders again in the National League West.

Manager Bill Virdon's club, touted for Nolan Ryan and its pitchers, also came up with two sparkling plays affixed Sunday to boost its early season record to 16-6.

Luis Pujols, a bull-necked young catcher, blocked off the plate to aid Keith Hernandez of the St. Louis Cardinals in the first inning. Later, with three outs to go, first baseman Art Howe chipped in a game-saver which preserved the margin of Houston's 4-2 conquest.

The importance of Howe's accurate throw to third for a forcout after scooping up Tony Scott's two-on, none-out bunt was acknowledged by Virdon.

"If the ball's bunted that direction, that's the play he has to make," the Astros' boss observed. "It's important for us, because we don't really score an abundance of runs."

Right-hander Ken Forsch, 4-0, also praised Pujols for the catcher's tag on Hernandez near the start.

"The runner beat the throw," Forsch said of Pujols' plate-blocking maneuver ahead of a throw that arrived from Terry Puhl in right field.

Unser takes first run

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Teams and equipment may change, but successful racing strategy is constant, three-time Indianapolis 500 winner Al Unser said Sunday after taking his first practice laps at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Unser was the first driver on the track Sunday, the second day of practice for the May 25 race. As with Saturday's start, there was relatively little action on the 2 1/2-mile track.

Only a half-dozen cars had taken practice turns by mid-afternoon, with Tom Bagley's run at 186.916 mph the top speed. Rookie Tim Richmond was the fastest on opening day at 185.491.

Unser is with the Longhorn Racing Team, driving a Penske-Cosworth that Bagley piloted to a ninth-place finish last year. The 40-year-old Unser, who finished 16th in the season-opening race at Ontario, Calif., three weeks ago, still is looking for the right race setup for his car.

"Your strategy is always the same, you want to win the race," said Unser, who conquered Indianapolis in 1970-71 and 1978.

Dodgers outlast Phils

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies won the appeal, but lost the game.

Even at that, manager Dallas Green wasn't completely dissatisfied.

"I've been trying to build character, so I've got to be pleased to see that kind of effort," Green said. "The easiest thing to do when you're losing 9-0 is just play out the game and go home."

Despite a bizarre first inning which included a backfired appeal play that netted the Dodgers four runs, Green's never-say-die team eventually came back to wipe out a nine-run deficit Sunday.

The Phillies fell short at the end, though, losing 12-10.

"I worked like heck to keep the score down, but I just couldn't do it," Green kidded, referring to that upside-down first inning which ultimately provided the Dodgers with their winning runs.

With one run across, the Dodgers' Dusty Baker hit into a force play, scoring another run. But Baker had batted out of turn in Ron Cey's place and after the Phillies appealed, Cey was declared out and the runners sent back to their bases.

Given a second chance to hit, Baker belted one over the left field wall at Veterans Stadium for a three-run homer and a 4-0 Dodgers lead.

The Dodgers decided the game when Derrel Thomas scored in the ninth on a bases-loaded passed ball and Mickey Hatcher followed with a two-run double.

With the score tied 9-9, Thomas started the inning with a single and took second on a base hit by Gary Thomasson. Steve Garvey then singled to load the bases before catcher Keith Moreland let one of reliever Dickie Noles' pitches get by him. That allowed Thomas to race home with the lead run, and Hatcher followed with his double.

Pirates 13, Braves 4—Willie Stargell and Dave Parker each drove in three runs to lead Pittsburgh over Atlanta. Stargell got three hits, including an RBI double and a two-run homer, as the Pirates collected 15 hits against five Atlanta pitchers. Parker drove in runs with a fielder's choice, a single and a sacrifice fly.

The victory went to Jim Bibby, 4-0, who scattered eight hits. "For about the first six innings, Bibby was struggling like a dog with rabies," said Pirates catcher Ed Ott. "After that, he started to pop the fastball and really got things together. He got himself together, and we gave him a lot of support."

Reds 3-5, Cubs 2-4—Cesar Geronimo's first homer of the season helped Cincinnati snap a five-game losing streak by beating Chicago in the first game of their doubleheader.

Junior Kennedy's initial career grand slam home run capped a five-run rally in the sixth inning of the nightcap, helping the Reds come back from a 4-0 deficit.

Padres 4-2, Mets 3-4—Joel Youngblood booted Dave Winfield's eighth-inning single to right field, allowing Gene Richards to score the winning run as San Diego defeated New York in the opener of their doubleheader. Elliot Maddox keyed a three-run second inning with a bases-loaded single to help New York win the second game.

Giants 8-4, Expos 4-4—Jack Clark knocked in three runs and Terry Whitfield doubled home a pair as San Francisco won the opener of its twin-bill from Montreal. Andre Dawson drove home the go-ahead run in a four-run seventh inning, leading the Expos past the Giants in the nightcap. The Expos trailed 4-1 in the nightcap before their game-breaking rally.

Five is magic number for NY in may ways

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP)—The magic number is five for the New York Islanders, in more ways than the obvious five victories that stand between the eighth-year National Hockey League franchise and its first Stanley Cup championship.

It has been five years since the Islanders won three games in a semifinal playoff series, a figure they matched Saturday night by beating the Buffalo Sabres 7-4 to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven set. That victory, New York's 11th in a row over Buffalo in postseason competition, was their fifth straight in the playoffs over Sabres goalie Don Edwards.

Also, it has been five years since they became only the second team in NHL history to win a series after losing the first three games. That record is one Buffalo will have to match if it is to advance.

Beyond that, Lorne Henning scored the team's fifth shorthanded goal of the playoffs at 2:59 of the third period. The tally gave New York a 5-2 lead and pulled the Islanders within one of the record for shorthanded goals in a playoff, set last season by New York Rangers.

Further, center Bryan Trottier scored twice in Game Three Saturday night, giving him eight goals this postseason and tying a club record set by Paul Parise set— you guessed it— five years ago.

Evening TV Schedule

Charlie Brown

Charlie Brown, a volunteer decathlon contestant in his school's Junior Olympics competition, runs his little legs off and his big heart out as other Peanuts cheer him on, in "You're the Greatest, Charlie Brown." The animated Peanuts special will be rebroadcast Monday, May 5, on CBS.

The charming, vulnerable Charlie Brown is most known for his desire to be famous, loved and simply not slow-witted. Part of a troupe of Peanuts characters, who are both tomboyish and coquettish, the classic strip retells the joys and the pains of growing up.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K1097652 ♠AJ9 ♦J9 ♣5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 Pass Pass 1 ♦ 2 ♣ ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—If you were not a passed hand, a bid of two spades would be adequate, since it is forcing. Now, however, partner might pass with a holding that could produce a slam! We suggest that you take the bit firmly between the teeth and jump to four spades—no invitational sequence will do your hand justice.
Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠J10 ♥Q762 ♦K953 ♣K42
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1 ♣ Dble. 2 ♦ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Opposite a partner who could make a vulnerable takeout double, you have a pretty good hand. Don't let the opponents shut you out of the auction. You have sufficient values for a bid of three hearts, so make it.
Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠KQ10 ♥QJ532 ♦KQ9 ♣A9
 What is your opening bid?
 A.—While we would not fault you if you chose to open one heart, one no trump is the proper opening bid. Possession of a five-card major suit does not bar you from opening one no trump. Consider what might happen if you open one heart. Either a one spade or a one no trump response would leave you with a difficult rebid problem. One no trump describes both the shape and strength of your hand accurately.
Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠A985 ♥7 ♦J965 ♣AQ93
 The bidding has proceeded:

Newcomers win RRC nominations

By JOHN HOTARD
Associated Press Writer

There will be a new face on the Texas Railroad Commission when it convenes next January — either Democrat Buddy Temple or Republican Hank Grover.

Both won nomination Saturday for a full six-year term on the three-member commission, with Temple upsetting incumbent John Poerner and Grover swamping two opponents.

Incumbent Democrat Jim Nugent beat back a strong showing by Jim Hightower, running for office for the first time. Hightower resigned as editor of the liberal Texas Observer magazine and ran as a populist candidate. The pair fought for the two years remaining on a six-year role. Nugent had been appointed in 1978 to serve until this general election.

Grover, a former state senator from Houston who ran a good race for governor six years ago on the Republican ticket, had little trouble defeating Austin real estate broker John Thomas Henderson and Weatherford auto dealer E.W. "Billy" Kidd.

Grover will face Temple in the general election. Nugent's opponent then will be former State Sen. H.J. "Doc" Blanchard, an Austin lawyer and lobbyist, who had no primary opposition.

The third member of the commission, Mack Wallace, was not up for re-election. Poerner, 48, was commission chairman, a job passed among the three members.

Both Poerner and Nugent were appointed to their powerful posts by former Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Poerner, a South Texas rancher, had campaigned for a proposed high speed train system for the "Texas Triangle" — Houston, Dallas and San Antonio.

Besides the oil and gas industry, the commission regulates public utilities and transportation. Last week it took control of surface mining as Texas became the first state to gain such control from the federal government.

Poerner entered state politics as a member of the Texas House in 1969 as a Republican but returned as a Democrat in 1971 and 1973. Gov. Briscoe appointed him to fill a commission vacancy in 1977 and he was elected to the final two years of that unexpired term in 1978.

Temple, member of a wealthy East Texas family with interests in timber and publishing enterprises, joined the Texas House in 1973.

But now Temple, 38, says he is more of a moderate conservative.

He termed Poerner a lackadaisical commissioner who "did little to influence things." He referred to the Texas Triangle as a "boondoggle," and said the commission has too long been a "private club" for special interests.

Poerner and Temple had favored decontrol of oil and gas.

"I just feel very, very happy and very proud of all the people who embraced my candidacy early and all the work they've done," Temple said early Sunday morning. "I think that was the difference."

Once an aide to former Sen. Ralph Yarborough, the 37-year-old Hightower stumped the East Texas lignite country, railing at what he called environmental destruction.

Nugent, at 57 a successful Kerrville attorney and once a power in the Texas Legislature, said a railroad commissioner must be a judge and not an advocate.

Caperton scores upset in bid for legislature

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

A woman at the giant killer's headquarters in Bryan answered the telephone Sunday, "Senator Caperton's office."

Well, not Sen. Caperton yet, since Kent Caperton still has a Republican standing between him and the Texas Senate. But one could understand the elation flowing from the state's greatest political upset of 1980.

Caperton, 31, trumped Sen. Bill Moore of Bryan, the fearsome "Bull of the Brazos," who had served in the Senate since 1949, who chaired the powerful Senate State Affairs Committee and could kill a bill with a word, in Saturday's Democratic primary.

Moore, 61, trailed Caperton throughout election night and fell 45,167 votes to 41,314 in unofficial returns.

Conservative business interests, which contributed heavily to Moore's campaign, lost a powerful friend.

Senior senators are expected to scramble for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's favor in appointing Moore's replacement as head of the State Affairs Committee, which deals with taxes, state regulation of business and just about any subject Hobby chooses to send to it.

Caperton, former Bryan city attorney, is a trial lawyer and received $25,000 from the political action arm of the Texas Trial Lawyers' Association. Trial lawyers can be found each session fighting bills that would make it harder for injured Texans — and their attorneys — to win lawsuits against doctors and manufacturers.

"I'm sensitive to the medical community," Caperton said in a telephone interview Sunday. "I have family members who are doctors. So I am probably more moderate on medical malpractice than other trial lawyers."

The Republican nominee for Moore's seat in the Senate is N.A. McNeil of College Station, a Texas A&M University professor.

Caperton calls himself a "moderate conservative" and says he opposes new state taxes and favors some kind of law allowing the use of wiretaps but limited to "very, very rare circumstances."

Five senators had opponents in the primary, but only Moore was defeated.

Winning Democratic nominations to new terms were liberal Sens. A.R. Schwartz of Galveston — who will replace Moore as dean of the Senate and Carlos Truan of Galveston and conservative Sens. Jack Ogg of Houston and Grant Jones of Abilene.

Four House members were defeated in the Democratic primary: conservatives Mike Ezzell of Snyder and Joe Gibson of Waco and liberals Dave Allred of Wichita Falls and Fred Head of Athens.

Speaker Bill Clayton said the primary would not change the House's conservative complexion. He also said it would not alter the 117 votes he says he has for an unprecedented fourth term as speaker.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, Clayton's principal challenger for the speakership, claimed he gained five votes and now counts 69 of the 76 he must have to win. He also said the primary would result in a "more public interest-oriented" legislature.

Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, relinquished his seat to run for Congress, and Sens. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, and Bill Braecklein, R-Dallas, decided to retire from the Legislature.

There were spirited races to succeed them. Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, defeated Temple lawyer James Carroll, 28,839 to 28,055, in a cliffhanger and will meet Republican Bill Buckner in the November general election.

Congressional races close

DALLAS (AP) — A youthful political newcomer may have given longtime Texas Congressman Jack Brooks the fright of his political life in the Democratic primary, but if so, Brooks kept it to himself.

The veteran of 14 terms in the U.S. House read a victory statement Saturday night and went to bed while crucial returns poured in through the night.

Totals compiled by the Texas Election Bureau alternately showed Brooks with a fraction over or under the necessary 50 percent majority.

Late Sunday night returns showed Brooks with a hair's breadth margin over 50 percent to W.L. "Bubba" Pate's 43 percent. Pate, 31, a bus company manager in his first political race, chased Brooks throughout the night Saturday and could force the veteran legislator into a June 7 runoff if the results change again.

District Judge John Brookshire gathered just under 7 percent of the tally.

Ironically, Brookshire had withdrawn from the race complaining of the high cost of campaigning, but was unable to get his name off the ballot in time for the primary. The winner of the Democratic primary will face no GOP opposition in November in District 9.

Brooks read a statement about midnight saying, "I want to thank all the people who have worked so hard to make this victory possible," and went to bed.

Later, Pate, who manages the Continental Bus Co. in Beaumont and teaches at Lamar University, said, "The results show we're in a runoff and if that is the case, I'm looking forward to it and I'm optimistic about the outcome."

Pate boasted of being more conservative than Brooks, while Brooks pointed to his 28 years in Congress and his position as chairman of the Government Operations Committee.

Runoffs due in judicial races

By KATHLEEN CARROLL
Associated Press Writer

Michael J. McCormick won't be old enough to sit on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals until just two weeks before the November general election.

But that is the least of his worries today.

"Well, we'll have to get ready to go to work," the 34-year-old former prosecutor said Sunday as primary returns gave him 40 percent of the vote, pushing him into a June 7 runoff race with veteran appeals court Judge W.T. Phillips, 67.

McCormick was not the only challenger to force June showdowns with incumbents. In a surprising turnout, only one of three high court jurists on the ballot was re-elected. Three must gear up for runoff battles and a fifth was defeated.

Judicial races are traditionally the most low-key in Texas elections and until now, incumbent judges were almost insured of re-election.

But the campaigns for two Supreme Court and three Texas Court of Criminal Appeals spots were the most visible in recent memory with candidates crisscrossing the state in their bids for a bench seat.

Since there are no Republican candidates for the Court of Criminal Appeals on the November ballot, Democratic candidates focused on Saturday's primary.

"We feel like we ran on the issues," said McCormick, who took a leave of absence as head of the Texas District and County Attorneys Association to run against Phillips. Phillips, who ran second in the primary with 33 percent, was elected in 1976 to fill an unexpired term.

Dallas attorney John E. Humphreys, 54, finished a close third in the race.

Making his second bid for a Court of Criminal Appeals berth, Houston attorney Marvin Teague, 46, ousted incumbent Judge Leon Douglas, 64, a staunch law-and-order jurist known for his dissenting opinions.

Teague, a criminal defense lawyer, advocated more judicial sensitivity in his campaign. Douglas was seeking his third term on the court.

In a third appeals court race, Judge Tom Davis, 58, could not muster the necessary margin and will meet Austin attorney Edith Roberts in June. Houston attorney Walter Boyd finished a distant third.

Propositions gain strong support in GOP primary

By KATHLEEN CARROLL
Associated Press Writer

Texas Republicans surprised even Gov. Bill Clements with their overwhelming nod of approval toward two of his pet projects: wiretapping for law enforcement officers and an initiative and referendum process.

The two non-binding propositions were basically a GOP opinion poll as the governor sought moral support for the legislation his aides say will be introduced during the next session.

Clements' office had predicted 70 percent of Republican voters would vote for the propositions, but the victory margin was greater than 80 percent on both issues.

Clements' aide James Kaster said the governor's office already has drawn up initiative and referendum legislation that will be introduced in both the House and the Senate. The proposed bill would require a petition of about 345,000 qualified voters — or 15 percent of the turnout in the last governor's race — to force a vote on a constitution change.

It would take 230,000 signatures — or 10 percent — to force legislative consideration of a state law change. The signatures must be gathered in a 180-day period from at least 190 of Texas' 254 counties.

Legislators could approve the proposed change, pass and alternative or refuse to act on the petition. But if lawmakers took no action, the issue would go directly to the general public for a vote.

Any alternative passed by the Legislature would go to a ballot along with the citizen-initiated measure.

Several initiative and referendum measures have been introduced in the Legislature since 1977, but have never made it out of committee.

A wiretapping bill still is in the works, Kaster said, with a decision still out on whether to include investigations of possession or sale of marijuana.

The proposal has the support of close Clements' supporter James Adams, head of the Department of Public Safety and former No. 2 man in the FBI.

Under Texas' present

3-year-old law, wiretapping is prohibited except under federal court order. Clements' tentative proposal would authorize DPS-installed wiretaps for law enforcement officers investigating drug cases.

Clements has said the measure is crucial to Texas' battle against drug traffic. He said the bill would be more restrictive than federal wiretapping laws, curbing the chances for abuse.

The pay was acidized with 5,000 gallons. The total depth is 17,077 feet, 5.5-inch casing is set at 16,018 feet and plugged back depth is 13,950 feet. The discovery topped the Wolfcamp at 10,368 feet and the pay at 11,682 feet on ground elevation of 2,958 feet.

Other tops include: Delaware lime, 3,300; Delaware sand, 3,300; Cherry Canyon, 4,260; Bond Springs, 12,456; Atoka, 13,450; Morrow, 14,112; Mississippian, 15,861; Woodford shale, 16,100 and Silurian at 16,187 feet. Total depth is 6,200 feet, 4.5-inch casing is set at 6,051 feet and plugged back depth is 4,792 feet.

The Lamar was topped at 4,607 feet and the Delaware was entered at 4,637 feet. The pay was topped at 4,678 feet on ground elevation of 2,604 feet.

Premium not in demand

By The Associated Press

Seen much leaded high-test gasoline around lately? It's rapidly disappearing, the victim of changing auto fuel requirements and slumping demand.

"Leaded premium demand is almost nil... and it is going down," said Tom Liberti, spokesman for Standard Oil Co. (Ohio).

Liberti said Tuesday that Sohio is phasing out the sale of leaded premium gasoline at its 300 BP Oil Inc. service stations in six Eastern states and the District of Columbia.

OPEC members will review their long-term strategy on price hikes

By ROLAND PRINZ

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' meeting in Taif, Saudi Arabia on Wednesday will not decide on immediate oil price increases, but will review the cartel's long-term strategy on prices and production, an OPEC spokesman said here today.

The spokesman, Edward Omotoso of Nigeria, said oil ministers attending the May 7-10 meeting were expected to discuss a report on OPEC strategy drafted by a group of policy experts in London earlier this year.

It was believed that the long-range plans provide for automatic price increases based on the value of the dollar, inflation rates and economic growth statistics in major industrialized countries.

In theory, that system could also lead to future price cuts.

However, such a program presumably would require a unified OPEC oil price and the cartel's prices currently are in disarray. The spokesman said the ministers hoped to fix a standard price at their meeting in Algiers, Algeria on June 9.

The OPEC secretariat is not in a position to give you an average oil price at this time," Omotoso told the Associated Press. "Another attempt to reach a unified price will be made in Algiers."

OPEC prices currently range as high as $35 dollars a barrel and go for even more than that on the international spot market. At their last pricing conference in Caracas, Venezuela in December, the OPEC oil ministers failed to reach agreement on a unified oil price.

Saudi Arabia, the cartel's largest oil exporter, was reported last week to be planning an increase in its current $26 a barrel oil price. At the same time, Saudi press reports said Saudi Arabia might press other OPEC members to cut their prices in order to restore order in the pricing system.

Some oil analysts predicted a Saudi increase to $30 dollars for a 42-gallon barrel, a hike that would raise U.S. gasoline prices by about two cents a gallon.

Meanwhile, Algeria's Energy Minister Belkacem Nabi was quoted today as saying his government had decided in principle to cut off exports of liquefied natural gas.

The Paris daily Le Matin quoted Nabi as saying the revenue from crude oil exports is sufficient to meet Algeria's hard currency needs.

Algeria, which in the past supplied about 1.5 percent of America's natural gas imports, recently suspended LNG deliveries to the United States after the existing contract expired and the two countries were unable to reach agreement on a new price.

Negotiations are continuing with Algeria seeking to triple the current gas price and raise it eventually to the level of OPEC oil prices.

Racketeering trials set

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Seven state senators and coal mining figures were going to court on racketeering charges today as jury selection begins before U.S. District Judge Frank McFadden.

The charges against two former state senators, a member of the Alabama House, a former Alabama Power Co. executive and three officials of Drummond Coal Co., the state's largest coal company, stem from an 18-month investigation.

The defendants, who have attracted some nationally known attorneys, are former state Sens. Joe Fine of Russellville and Eddie Hubert Gilmore of McCalla, state Rep. Jack Biddle III of Gardendale, former Alabama Power Vice President Walter Johnsey, and Drummond officials — President Gary Neal Drummond, Vice President Larry Drummond and Secretary-Treasurer Clyde "Sapp" Black.

All of the seven defendants also face at least one charge of mail fraud, wire fraud or extortion.

The charges against the seven defendants were handed down in a 19-count indictment by a special federal grand jury that met for 18 months on orders from former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell.

McFadden, in pre-trial motions, denied defense requests to have the media barred from the trial and for a change of venue.

Havana visa office to close following attack on Cubans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing what it calls an "intolerable and dangerous situation," the United States is closing its visa office in Cuba after Friday's melee, which has left 380 Cubans stranded inside the U.S. diplomatic mission there.

The decision Sunday will cut off legal immigration to the United States from Cuba but will not affect the illegal seafight operation that has brought more than 12,600 Cubans to Florida from the port city of Mariel since mid-April, U.S. officials said.

In Friday's brawl, American diplomats in Havana said, busloads of security agents attacked a large group of Cubans, mostly former political prisoners, who had gathered at the U.S. Interests Section in the one-time American Embassy to seek visas. Fifteen people were injured, five seriously.

Under U.S. guidelines for immigration from Cuba, former political prisoners are given preferential treatment. But the group that massed at the interests section Friday, which included 250 former prisoners, has complained about long delays in the processing of their visa applications.

State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman reiterated Sunday the U.S. position that the Cuban government was responsible for the delays.

Granma, a Cuban government newspaper, said Saturday this allegation was a "cynical lie." It added that Friday's large gathering in front of the interests section was "evidently organized" by the United States and was therefore a "new provocation."

In explaining the U.S. decision to close the visa office in Havana, Ms. Stockman said the "present situation, with its lack of security or protection for people who have legitimate business with us is intolerable and dangerous."

"The United States cannot continue to operate these programs without the guarantees and cooperation of Cuban authorities." Diplomatic functions not related to the issuing of visas will continue, she said.

When the fighting erupted Friday, many of the visa-seeking Cubans fled the scene, but some 450 others escaped to safety inside the seven-story, seafront building which served as the embassy until diplomatic relations were broken in 1961. It was reopened as the interests section in 1977.

Since Friday, about 70 Cubans have voluntarily left the mission.

An Opportunity to Train For a Better Job
Midland College will conduct a special training program for employment opportunities as an Industrial Maintenance Mechanic or an Electrician with Michelin, America's fastest growing tire company. The classes are free through the Texas Industrial Start-up Training Program and may qualify the trainee for employment at the new Michelin plant in Midland. Trainees will receive no monetary compensation for attending the pre-employment training. Classes will be held during evening hours beginning July 28. Instruction will include: Blueprint Reading, Technology, Mathematics, and Shop Work. Previous experience in plant maintenance is desired, but no previous experience or training is required.
