Water, sewer rates going up

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Water and sewer rates will be going up in June, so the city can finish selling $4 million in revenue bonds to complete an expansion of the Paul Davis Well Field.

Midland City Council voted Tuesday for the increase during a regular session in City Hall Council Chambers.

Minimum water and sewer rates will be upped $1. Water rates past the minimum charge will be increased 13 percent.

Apartment owners will find their water bills going up, also, although Assistant City Manager Fred Poe explained the rates won't be as high as for residential users.

Apartments will be charged a minimum $2.50 per unit, which allows each unit 2,000 gallons of water. If more water is used, the charge will be according to a rate structure, he said.

High interest rates are the culprit behind the need for raising water and sewer rates. Although interest rates appear to be dropping, the city probably will have to pay at least 7 percent interest when the remaining bonds are sold, said Poe.

When the voters approved the bonds last September, skyrocketing interest rates weren't considered. In October 1979, water rates were increased 10 percent to have enough revenues to back the bonds.

Revenues from this summer also could make a difference, Poe noted. If it is a dry summer and the city continues to grow — which means an increase in the amount of water sold to residents — then revenues also would rise.

"Without this rate increase, we wouldn't have enough revenues to make the annual payments on the additional $4 million in bonds yet to be sold," he said.

In March, $3.8 million in revenue bonds were sold for expanding the water pollution control plant. Work on that project has started, according to John Lowe, director of public utilities.

Besides needing more revenues for the well field expansion, another (See COUNCIL VOTES, Page 4A)

TESCO will ask for rate increase

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Texas Electric Service Company will make its annual request Thursday for a rate hike — this time for a 17.7 percent systemwide increase.

"The primary reason for this request is the impact of inflation on the cost of providing electric service to our customers," said Winston Barclay, TESCO manager in Midland.

Compounding that inflation cost is the expiration of a contract for fuel which puts TESCO out buying natural gas at today's market prices.

The request, which will be filed with cities served by TESCO and with the Public Utility Commission in Austin, would provide an additional $123 million in revenues.

This is the fourth consecutive year TESCO is filing for increased rates. The last three granted — the most recent in October 1979 — amounted to an average 32.6 percent increase.

Barclay explained that hardest hit by inflation are construction costs of the power plants being built to provide customers with electricity made with lignite and nuclear fuels. He also noted that the costs of service lines, distribution substations, labor, meters, office supplies and almost all other items necessary to provide electric have gone up.

Because of the progress of the construction program, about half the electricity to TESCO's customers comes from lignite rather than natural gas and oil, said Barclay.

TESCO's major longterm contract for low-cost natural gas will expire Dec. 31, 1980.

Barclay explained that Old Ocean is a gas field near Houston. The contract began Jan. 1, 1961, and was to run 20 years. TESCO built the pipelines and compressor stations needed to get the natural gas up to this part of the state. Even with escalation costs built into the contract, that natural gas still cost much less than buying on the market.

The "low price fuel contract," said Barclay, began with gas costing 23½ cents per million btu's. It now costs 29½ cents. Current market price is more than $2 for the same amount, he said to show the contrast in costs.

Looking at the overall system, loss of that contract will mean an increase (See TESCO WILL SEEK, Page 4A)

No test exemptions for high schoolers

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Midland high school students will not be exempted from taking final exams next year as a result of Tuesday's school board meeting.

In a 5-to-1 vote with Trustee Johnny Warren absent and Joyce Sherrod dissenting, trustees chose to eliminate the exemption. The old rule allowed students who had no more than four absences, an unmarred classroom conduct record, a passing grade point average and parental permission to be exempted from the hour-long tests administered at the end of the quarter.

Since the district will be returning to the semester system next school year, students will be required to take the two-hour finals, according to Tuesday's decision.

The exemption was the subject of much debate on the policy's advantages and disadvantages. According to proponents of the policy, who were mostly teachers, the exemption policy helped increase school attendance and provide a disciplinary tool in the classroom.

However, opponents — mostly parents — noted the policy handicapped students who need the experience of taking finals as a preparation for the lengthy exams at colleges and universities.

Also, the establishment of on-campus suspension centers at the two high schools would provide the additional discipline tool, trustees noted.

Mrs. Sherrod suggested strongly the board should survey teachers' opinions before making a decision. But her suggestion was overruled by the trustees' vote.

Although the policy is being eliminated, the school district can reinstate the exam exemptions if it desires, said Dr. James Mailey, school superintendent.

In another action, trustees approved a policy which pays an additional amount for school employees obtaining degrees from a fully accre-

Tornadoes kill five in Michigan

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Downtown Kalamazoo looked like a jigsaw puzzle with several pieces missing today after several deadly tornadoes ripped through the city and outlying areas, killing five people and causing $40 million in damage.

"It reminds me of a bombed out city," said Gov. William Milliken after a 45-minute tour of the damage Tuesday night.

Two tornadoes in Kalamazoo, a city of 90,000, and twisters in four adjacent townships in Van Buren County — Bangor, Arlington, Waverly and Armenta — injured 65 people and left about 1,200 people homeless, officials said.

Kalamazoo Mayor Edward Annen Jr. said the damage figure could increase after more inspection today. Milliken declared a state of emergency in Kalamazoo and the four townships.

City officials originally said seven people had died but that figure was reduced to five early today when it was discovered that one of the reported victims had not died and another had been counted twice, according to officials at Bronson Methodist Hospital.

By early this morning, Kalamazoo police had reported one looting arrest and one arrest for a curfew violation.

Red Cross officials said most of the homeless apparently were staying with friends and relatives although three emergency shelters were established.

The tornadoes touched down during the Tuesday evening rush hour, tearing apart the city's pedestrian mall, sparking scattered fires and knocking out utilities. The top of the 10-story Industrial State Bank was ripped off and virtually every window broken, said witnesses.

Gas fee overturned by court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration conceded today that the president's dime-a-gallon gasoline fee will not go into effect Thursday as planned, even though the government is seeking to quickly overturn a judge's decision blocking the levy.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, Treasury Secretary G. William Miller urged Congress to delay action on the fee while the appeal is pending.

Energy Department general counsel Lynn R. Coleman said the administration decided not to press for an appeals court order that might allow imposition of the fee by Thursday, the day it was scheduled to take effect.

"This means the fee does not go into effect Thursday," Coleman told reporters.

Instead, Coleman asked for — and received — from U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. an order that requires companies that would be affected by the fee to maintain appropriate records, giving the administration the ability to quickly impose the fee if the appeals court reverses Robinson's decision of Tuesday which blocked the levy.

Coleman said the administration would file later today its appeals briefs with two appellate courts — the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia and the Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals.

The appeals court for the District of Columbia normally rules on lower federal court decisions in Washington, but the emergency court would also be involved in this case because it was established to hear appeals on petroleum matters.

Coleman said each court may hear different issues in the case. Miller, testifying before a House Ways and Means trade subcommittee, said, "While the matter is thus before the courts, I strongly recommend that the subcommittee defer its own review of the issue."

However, subcommittee chairman Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, said he had no intention of again postponing his panel's vote on legislation to block the fee that had been scheduled to take effect Thursday.

And in another indication of congressional opposition to the levy, the Senate Finance Committee voted 13-3 today to approve a resolution that would overturn the fee.

Miller said that the fee was an important measure to reduce U.S. reliance on imported oil. "For the Congress to reject this measure ... could only be interpreted as a flight from the hard economic realities faced by the nation."

The trade subcommittee was expected to approve a bill to overturn the fee later today as momentum against the politically unpopular measure grew in both chambers of Congress.

The subcommittee had been scheduled to vote on the blocking bill Tuesday, but delayed that vote one day to give Miller a last chance to state his case.

Miller said that rejection of President Carter's dime-a-gallon fee would send the wrong message to U.S. trading allies and to oil-exporting nations.

"Our prospects for exercising world leadership in any area of policy would be compromised," Miller told the panel.

Vanik told reporters Tuesday, "I think the oil import fee is dead. We're just arguing about how to bury it." And House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., although supporting the fee, predicted the House would overturn it "in a walk."

In the Senate, where similar legislation has been introduced, a 75-19 non-binding test tally Monday indicated broad support for repeal.

Robinson ruled that the president had exceeded his authority by trying to impose the charge on all gasoline, whether refined from domestic or imported oil. Robinson said a 1962 law gives the president the power to regulate only imports.

If repeal succeeds, or if Robinson's ruling holds, the drive to produce the first balanced federal budget in 12 years could be in jeopardy.

The Senate has voted to use $100 million of the $10 billion estimated annual revenue from the fee to balance the fiscal 1981 budget. The House, however, is not relying on fee revenues for its version of a balanced spending program. The differences will be resolved in a conference committee.

Carter had first envisioned the fee as being added to the price of each barrel of imported crude oil. But he later decided to apply it to gasoline, regardless of its origin, but not to other petroleum products.

It was that change, Robinson said, that led him to block the fee, which has been challenged by consumer groups, congressmen, an oil company and petroleum marketers.

Carter's program calls for the fee to be collected from importers, but for them to be reimbursed by gasoline refiners, who would be permitted to pass the charge on until it was felt at the pump.

Robinson said Carter's powers are limited to regulating foreign — not domestic — oil by the Trade Expansion Act. The law permits the president to control imports that reach levels high enough to threaten national security.

Saudi Arabia hikes oil price by $2

NEW YORK (AP) — Saudi Arabia has raised prices for all grades of oil by $2 a barrel retroactive to April 1, an oil industry source in New York said today. The new price will be $28 a barrel.

The source, who asked not to be named, said his information was from "unimpeachable sources."

In London, a Mobil Corp. spokesman "unequivocally" confirmed the increase and said the move caught his company by surprise.

A spokesman for Exxon Corp. said he understood that the Arabian-American Oil Co. (Aramco) had been notified of the $2-a-barrel Saudi oil price increase. Aramco is owned by Mobil, Texaco Inc., Standard Oil Co. of California and Exxon.

In Paris, an oil company source said the company had received a telex message this morning from its agent in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, saying that Saudi Arabia was about to announce an increase.

But the source did not have details and could not confirm the reported increase from the current price of $26 per 42-gallon barrel.

Saudi Arabia provides about 7.4 percent of U.S. oil needs. A $2-a-barrel increase in oil prices would raise average U.S. gasoline and heating oil prices by about a penny a gallon.

Bankruptcy petitions: More will be filed this year than ever before

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Brad and Kathleen Calhoun, a young married couple, were cruising near Easy Street a few years ago.

They had a child, good jobs and their annual income topped $20,000.

Today the Calhouns, like thousands of other couples, are in bankruptcy court.

More than 300,000 people and businesses are expected to file bankruptcy petitions for the year ending June 30, the highest number since the government started keeping such figures in 1948.

"Times are tough, and for the last six months times have been getting even tougher," says John K. Pearson, assistant U.S. trustee for Kansas and Colorado.

Nowhere is the onset of recession more apparent than in the nation's bankruptcy courts, where everyone from the overextended credit-card user to the down-on-his-luck businessman goes for protection from creditors.

Brad Calhoun was in the insurance business in Tulsa, Okla., when the couple bought their first home. Soon, they bought a new, bigger home. Then Brad got a better job in Houston.

But the cost of living there was high. And Kathleen, pregnant with their second child, encountered medical problems and had to quit her job. She was in and out of hospitals for the next two years, medical insurance didn't begin to cover it all.

The Calhouns moved to Pratt, Kan., to be near Kathleen's parents. Brad, 27, took a job at half the pay and Kathleen, 26, began to recuperate. But the family budget was ailing.

"It seemed like we were always borrowing money to pay our bills," Mrs. Calhoun says now. "We'd take out a loan to consolidate our bills, but then we owed the loan company."

The Calhouns couldn't make any headway. When they filed for bankruptcy this spring they listed more than $18,000 in debts. Their assets were less than $5,000.

"When Brad first mentioned filing for bankruptcy to me, I said, 'No immediately,'" Mrs. Calhoun says. "But he couldn't do well in his job because he had so many bill pressures, so we went ahead and filed."

Federal officials attribute some of the rise to changes in the bankruptcy code that took effect in October. The new law allows individuals who file for bankruptcy to keep more of their possessions, restricts the right of creditors to repossess property and simplifies the filing procedure.

But other factors, including rising unemployment and unstifled inflation, also are to blame, they say.

Personal bankruptcies in the nation reached a peak of 224,354 during the 1974-75 recession year when individuals accounted for more than 88 percent of the filings, federal records show. The number declined steadily after 1975, but increased again in 1979. For the year ending June 30, 1979, individuals filed 196,976 bankruptcy petitions, about 87 percent of all filings.

The stigma once associated with bankruptcy has diminished, officials say, but it hasn't disappeared altogether.

"A lot of people are still very narrow minded about it," says Kathleen Calhoun. "But people are just going to have to overlook that and swallow their pride — that's what we had to do."

"For us, it got to the point where I don't think we would have gotten our bills paid and stayed married. We have a good marriage, but I don't know what would have happened if we'd still had those pressures and not had the money to spend on anything we wanted."

73-year-old violinist in third career

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The violin man touts artistry and craftsmanship and poo-poo's retirement. He's 73 and is into his third career — making "fiddles."

"A violin-man has to be many things..." said Denver "Slim" Pettitt, the Big Spring violin maker who figures his craftsmanship comes within a notch of Stradivari and Guarneri workmanship. "He (violin maker) has to be an artist; he has to be a craftsman."

Pettitt, who looks part Indian and part cowboy, is both.

"Artists are very temperamental, and they don't care about your criticism, they're very nonchalant."

Craftsmen are different. "They're work-a-holics, because they don't know when to quit," said the lanky, 6-foot-1 craftsman with large hands that do the delicate work of an artist. "They don't mind criticism."

Pettitt, a poor country boy who made his first violin at age 17, was in Midland's Broken Spoke Restaurant on Tuesday to tell the Midland West Rotary Club about his violin making.

Of course, he leans heavily toward craftsmanship, which to him is carving pieces of maple and spruce into a shape, and artistry, which is working out "the slightest detail."

"The real craftsmen are honest people in their work, and they are their own very best critics," Pettitt said. "When they do something, they want it to be the very best."

Pettitt recalled the time — some 50 years ago as he was just getting into making the concert-quality stringed instrument — when a master violin craftsman admonished him to be humble but proud and exacting.

"Be a violin maker; don't be a smart-aleck," the artisan had said. "You've got more than you can do to copy the old masters."

Since he was 17 and carved that first violin, Pettitt has had a violin in the making almost every year until 1971. At that time he retired as a heavy construction foreman for Texas Electric Service Co., and plunged headlong into making violins for $1,000 and up per instrument.

Just how he got into carving violins is the making of a legend.

"I was raised a widow-woman's boy," he said, "and everything I ever got, I had to make it."

He was born 42 miles southwest of Sweetwater in Nolan County, went to high school at Hermleigh in Scurry County, got married, brought forth a family and roamed Texas and Mexico as a "boon chaser." made good money in construction work but squandered it.

When he was approaching 40, Pettitt decided to settle down "because that rolling stone hasn't collected any moss and never will." Anyway, he reasoned, "Life begins at 40." For the next 28 years, he worked for the electric company and made his home in Big Spring.

He was just shy of 65 in 1971 when the company suggested he retire. Pettitt didn't cotton to the idea, but he abided.

"I'm the same or better than I was," he insisted. "I think life begins at 65."

Not resolute to retire to idleness, he set up a "rat's nest" in his garage and settled into violin making.

"I'm going to build me a fiddle shop and build me fiddles," he told himself back then. "Just as well be in Big Spring as anywhere else."

Pettitt said he has "lost track" of the number of violins he has made and is reluctant to say how many he makes in a year's time.

Pettitt is convinced that he's a master at violin making; few are. And last year, the judges at the International Violin Makers Contest at Phoenix, Ariz., judged two of his violins as the best among the "100 and some odd" violins made by 85 artist-craftsmen throughout the world.

His "Yellow Rose of Texas" violin was chosen as the best playing and best toned instrument, and his "Lone Star" fiddle was named the "prettiest" of the lot.

Pettitt's talk is backed by proof — sight, sound and feel — and by the judgment of master musicians.

"I'm neither German nor Italian," he said, "but in modern days, I can't be beat."

MidTran taking steps toward expansion

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

MidTran is beginning the first step towards expanding its system with approval by Midland City Council to file an application with the U.S. Department of Transportation for 10 more buses. The council met in a regular session Tuesday in City Hall Council Chambers.

Joyce Fisher, director of MidTran, explained to the City Council the grant application would provide 10 buses — four with wheelchair lifts — a supervisor's vehicle and related equipment.

"Some of you may feel it's too much too fast," she said. "However, it will take at least six months to get the approval from the Urban Mass Transportation Agency. And then we (MidTran) will have to come back to you (the council) for appropriation of funds to buy the equipment."

MidTran is a public transportation system that began rolling in February by utilizing a subscription service for workers and a demand-responsive approach for others.

Ms. Fisher pointed out the need for more buses, citing an over-demand for the subscription service with a long waiting list and a demand for the charter service.

"THE PUBLIC IS getting frustrated in not being able to use the service," she said.

Switching the demand-responsive service to check-point service in June should increase revenues to what is projected. By the time the grant is approved in six months, the city will have time to evaluate the overall performance of MidTran, Ms. Fisher said. However, if approved, it should be at least a year before the buses would be here.

Revenues from the airport service and missed runs were questioned by Councilman Tom Sloan. Ms. Fisher claimed the revenues are slowly rising from that service and admitted some runs have been missed.

Also approved for MidTran were payment for liability insurance for MidTran buses and advertising for bids for renting MidTran bus drivers' uniforms.

G. Thane Akins presided over his first City Council session as mayor, while Steve Davidson sat for the first time as Place 4 councilman.

G. Gordon Marcum II was elected mayor pro-tem, taking over the position held last year by Doris Howbert.

THE SALE OF airport revenue bonds was approved to purchase new hangars from Rich-Air Co., Basin Flying Service and Browne Aviation, but the move came after a lengthy discussion on the city's ability to continue its policy of owning all hangars.

Councilman Carroll Thomas questioned whether the city should continue its policy. "I think we're approaching the limit of that practicality," he remarked.

The council decided to buy one hangar for $64,648 and sell bonds amounting to $750,000 for the other improvements.

INCHING THROUGH the 62-item agenda at the pace of a snail with iron-poor blood, the council approved the animal-fowl code ordinance changes. The update was needed before completing annexation of 6.5 square miles of land north of Midland.

Problems faced by the council in this last annexation move, however, have prompted the panel to consider a new policy on extending water service to persons outside the city limits.

Gerald Nobles Jr., whose land is located west of High Sky Girls Ranch, was denied his request for water service.

And the City Council decided to look at annexing a window pane area before agreeing to water service in that location. The area — if recommended for annexation by the Planning and Zoning Commission — is surrounded by the city of Midland and is bounded by Johnson Street, Cotton Flat Road, Carter Avenue and Interstate 20.

OFF-CENTER STREET intersections will get some straightening out after the council approved the work. Scheduled for straightening are the intersections at Golf Course Road and Lamesa Road, Illinois Avenue and A Street, and Garfield Street and Wall Street.

The council decided to go with a recommendation for downtown street lighting from Fred Baker, director of public works. High pressure sodium lights cost less to operate, he said, but he has been unable to get a rate schedule from Texas Electric Service Co.

Councilman Tom Sloan objected to the lights, saying he thought they make "everyone look jaundiced," and the council voted on conventional lighting.

Scientists study records, believe area can expect more quakes

NEW PALTZ, N.Y. (AP) — The San Francisco Bay area can expect increasing numbers of "moderate to strong" earthquakes in coming years, some of which could do severe damage, scientists say after studying historical records of earthquakes in the region.

Scientists from the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park, Calif., told a symposium on earthquake prediction at Lake Mohonk Tuesday that the Bay area seems to be emerging from a half century of "seismic quiet" that followed the disastrous 1906 San Francisco earthquake.

But seismologist William L. Ellsworth said the increased earthquake activity does not mean a repeat of the 1906 earthquake is likely.

"The good news is we may not expect another 1906-type earthquake for another 50 to 70 years. The bad news is we can expect moderate-to-strong earthquakes in the region at a higher rate from now on," Ellsworth said.

He said the anticipated earthquakes would range in size from magnitude 5 to magnitude 7 on the Richter scale. The Richter is a standard measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.

The 1906 earthquake, which killed 700 people and started fires that caused an estimated $400 million damage, occurred before the Richter scale was devised, but has been estimated at 7.9 on the scale.

About 70 scientists from 11 nations are attending the five-day earthquake conference here, sponsored by Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory.

The Menlo Park scientists base their prediction on a study of records collected by Tousson Topozada of the state Division of Mines and Geology in Sacramento, Calif. Topozada dug into newspapers and other old records to compile a catalog of California earthquakes since 1769.

Ellsworth, Allan Lindh and W.H. Prescott of Menlo Park concentrated on Topozada's records for the Bay area since 1855, shortly after the gold rush.

During the following half century, they found, earthquakes of magnitudes of 5.25 or greater occurred on the average about once every four years along the rough boundary of the 1906 quake — from south of San Jose to Point Arena.

After the 1906 shock, the number of earthquakes declined, and only four were recorded above magnitude 5.25 in the next 48 years.

But a new era of increased activity began with twin shocks measuring 5.5 in 1955, and has continued with five other shocks above magnitude 5.25 since then, on average of one every four years, Ellsworth said.

"We see a return to a pre-1906 pattern and we can fully expect there will be a continuation of moderate to strong quakes for the next several decades," he said.

The explanation lies in the fact that great earthquakes like the one in 1906 act to relieve stresses that accumulate in the Earth's crust.

In divorce case, butler discloses Khashoggi's penthouse brothel

By LINDA DEUTSCH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A British butler, the latest witness to surface in the bitter $2.5 billion divorce case of Adnan and Sorya Khashoggi, says in a sworn affidavit that the Saudi Arabian billionaire ran a house of prostitution.

The butler, James Flannery, said he quit in disgust when Khashoggi imported "an endless stream of young women" from Europe, Texas and California to an exclusive penthouse in New York owned by his brother, Essam.

Flannery's affidavit, filed in Superior Court Tuesday, was the latest volley in the court battle between Khashoggi and his estranged wife, Sorya, whose suit is the largest divorce action on record.

Mrs. Khashoggi seeks half the fortune her husband made as middleman in arms purchases by Saudi Arabia. She had five children by Khashoggi.

Flannery also disclosed he has a daily diary in which he recorded the Khashoggi brothers' activities and business deals over the last three years.

He offered to produce the diary in court.

In his affidavit, filed on behalf of Mrs. Khashoggi, Flannery said he quit in March after he refused orders to throw some of the women out and "particularly after one of the girls had an epileptic seizure."

Flannery said he and his wife, a French maid, worked for Essam Khashoggi for nearly three years and quit in March.

"I developed complete disgust with Adnan because the Olympic Towers' residence had been turned into an actual bordello," the butler said in the affidavit.

His affidavit also focused on Adnan Khashoggi's alleged decision to move his vast business empire to California.

Mrs. Khashoggi's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, filed the butler's affidavit in support of a motion to prove California courts have jurisdiction in the Khashoggi divorce suit. The state has liberal community property laws.

Mitchelson said in the document that alleged importation of prostitutes from California would be evidence of California contacts by Khashoggi.

A hearing on the crucial jurisdiction question is scheduled in Los Angeles Friday but is unlikely to be decided immediately.

Mitchelson contends the Khashogis' widespread business contacts in California give the state jurisdiction in the case. Khashoggi's lawyers say Mrs. Khashoggi, a British citizen is "a carpetbagger."

The Khashoggi brothers deny California was their base of operations.

In the affidavit, the butler quoted Essam Khashoggi as telling him in October 1979: "Adnan has determined that America, California particularly, is the best place for the future of the Khashoggi business interests."

IRA to hear guest speaker

Carolyn Schneider, a reading specialist, will be the speaker at the Permian Basin Council of the International Reading Association.

The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Region 18 Education Center located at Midland Regional Airport.

"The Effects of Direct Instruction on Improving Reading Scores and Related Inservice" will be the topic of Mrs. Schneider's speech.

As the author of learning activities and reading series, she has done consultant work nationwide in reading and specializes in reading improvement at all grade levels.

Last year, Mrs. Schneider organized and provided inservice training for the Houston Independent School System's new reading program for low achievers. The program produced increases in the standardized reading scores of the low achieving student.

Officers for 1980-81 will be elected during the meeting. The public is invited.

TESCO will seek 17.7 percent hike

(Continued from Page 1A) in fuel costs per kilowatt hour from 1 cent to 1 1/2 cents, said Barclay. At one time, the Old Ocean contract provided about 40 percent of the fuel for TESCO. With more fuel coming from lignite, the gas contract makes up about 32 percent of the total fuel. Increased fuel costs don't have to be approved by the Public Utilities Commission, but Barclay said TESCO felt it should let the public know these higher costs will start in January. The proposed rate increase must be approved through the cities in TESCO's system. And if there is a

Jury set for federal coal fraud trial

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A jury has been seated in a federal coal fraud trial that could last for weeks, even months, and include testimony by politically prominent witnesses. The prosecution contends that seven Alabama political and business figures used their offices in a series of unrelated schemes to take illegal financial gains from coal contracts, land leases or personal loans. Prosecution arguments were to begin today. The seven defendants were indicted on racketeering charges by a federal grand jury in October. Mail fraud, wire fraud and extortion charges have also been lodged against some of the defendants.

Council votes to hike sewer and water rates

(Continued from Page 1A) problem may have surfaced, Lowe advised the council. That problem is a discrepancy in figures quoted by Texas Electric Service Co. for installing electric lines to the well field and a pump station. Lowe said the first figures were about $200,000. And getting those figures was a problem as they finally came into his office in August, shortly before the bond issue in September. He had requested them the previous spring. Lowe recently received a revised estimate which is $85,000 above the first figure. What he can't understand is that the latest figure is for four wells instead of five as was included in the first estimate, he said. The council delayed any action on an agreement with TESCO until May 27.

Cool, cloudy weather noted throughout Permian Basin

Rain wasn't falling this morning in the Permian Basin, but all-area communities reported cloudy skies and cool, damp conditions. The National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport this morning issued a forecast that included a 30 percent chance of rain today with that rainfall possibility continuing through tonight and Thursday. Rainfall probability for tonight also is 30 percent, but will decrease to 20 percent on Thursday. If the rain materializes, it probably will come in the form of showers and thunderstorms, according to the weather service. So far this month, Midland has received .92 inch of rain. The Tall City has received 2.56 inches so far in 1980. Temperatures will cool off slightly because of the cloud cover. Low tonight is expected to drop to near 60 and the high on Thursday should reach only 80. Tuesday's high in Midland was 80, far short of the record high 102-degree reading set on that date in 1960. This morning's low reading of 55 degrees didn't come close to breaking the record low for this date, 41 set in 1953. Winds tonight should blow out of the southeast at 10-15 mph. Thunderstorms moved eastward out of West Texas today, spreading over most of the state.

Coquina Oil 'walking on air' — Council approves plans for walkway

Midland will be getting another pedestrian walkway above a street, in a similar fashion to that of First National Bank's. Midland City Council approved Tuesday a request from Coquina Oil Co. to construct a second floor level pedestrian walkway. This will connect an old office building with a new one that is going up, said a spokesman. In other action, the council purchased a new landfill site, approved amendments to the city's electrical code, approved water and sewer service to Pittsburgh Plate Glass plant. The St. Louis Helicopter Services Inc. received permission to land a helicopter inside city limits. The helicopter will be lifting air conditioning units to the roof of Midland Park Mall on May 20. The council will send a warning to Budget and Dollar rental car agencies that if they don't pay the rent on time, it will be considered a breach of contract and the offices will be closed at Midland Regional Airport.

Getting into a steep situation, David Gonzales and Robert Aldana, employees of a local roofing company, tear old shingles from the roof of Bellview Baptist Church on North Big Spring Street. The roofers expect the reroofing will take several days and several thousand shingles to complete. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

Iran postpones hostage decision

By The Associated Press BUT BEHESHTI TOLD reporters the parliament must first choose a prime minister and Cabinet, and also discuss "the plans of the new government," including education policy and the Islamic "cultural revolution." "It doesn't mean that we want to delay the discussion of the problem of the hostages," he said. "Parliament will discuss it at the first possible chance." Beheshti earlier said the hostage issue would not be debated in parliament before mid-June. His comments today seemed to indicate the debate would be later than that. The Parliament, which Beheshti said would probably convene in the next week or two, will be dominated by members of the Islamic Republican Party, many of whose members favor putting the hostages on trial as spies. IN OTHER developments today: —Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, the revolutionary court judge who sentenced many of the deposed shah's ministers and generals to death, said he was resigning his post fighting drug syndicates. Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr had criticized Khalkhali for leading an effort to destroy the huge marble tomb built for the shah's father. Bani-Sadr had insisted the tomb be turned into a museum. —The official Iranian news agency, Pars, said Iranian authorities had arrested 1,135 persons on narcotic smuggling charges and confiscated drugs weighing more than five tons. —An Iranian Oil Ministry spokesman announced a new agreement for Iran to sell oil to China. He did not disclose terms. —The former director of the Iranian National Oil Co. predicted during a news conference in Paris that Khomeini would be overthrown. He said there are elements in Iran's armed forces ready to rebel. —The Iranian armed forces joint staff said two unidentified planes violated Iranian air space Tuesday night, but flew off after Iranian fighter jets took off from Bandar Abbas Air Base in southeastern Iran. —The armed forces said an Iranian air force Phantom jet collided with a minibus while being move to the runway at Bandar Abbas Air Base and six guards on the bus were killed. An inquiry was launched. —The Interior Ministry said Iran's revolutionary regime will prosecute foreign journalists involved in plots and keep American travelers under surveillance to guard against conspiracies. A MINISTRY SPOKESMAN said after a Tuesday night meeting of the Revolutionary Council that the government will be on the lookout for journalists who come to Iran with press cards issued abroad and "sometimes take part in conspiracies," Pars reported. "Our officials will be on the alert, and those whose actions conflict with their work as journalists will be prosecuted, just as some have already been detained." This was an apparent reference to free-lance journalist Cynthia Dwyer of Buffalo, N.Y., arrested on charges of being a CIA agent. The spokesman added that "Americans, who are not journalists and who have entered Iran will be kept under surveillance until the reason for their trip to Iran has been clarified and it has been proved that they do not intend to conspire against Iran or take part in sabotage activities." KHOMEINI'S GOVERNMENT has been taking extra precautions ever since President Carter's attempt to rescue the American hostages was aborted 200 miles east of Tehran April 25 because of equipment problems.

Sheriff's deputies probing armed robbery, auto theft

Midland County Sheriff's deputies and the district attorney's office are investigating an armed robbery and auto theft which occurred around 9 a.m. today in north Midland County on Texas Highway 349. "We know who it is," said Midland County sheriff's investigator Tommy Jones. However, he and District Attorney Prosecutor David Joers were reluctant to discuss circumstances of the reported shootout in which no one was hit. The robbery, reportedly by a man and a woman, began in Midland County. According to reports, the two then took the man to a caliche pit on the George Glass ranch north of Midland on the Martin and Midland county borders. The man involved in the robbery apparently fired four shots at the victim, whose name was unknown early today. The couple then took the victim's pickup. The pickup was recovered around 11:30 a.m. 15 miles east of Andrews on Texas Highway 156. An all-points bulletin was put out by the Sheriff's Office for a woman in her 20's wearing a red plaid flannel shirt, jeans and hiking boots and a man with long brown hair, green eyes, red cap with the words Reda Pump on it, yellow shirt, jeans and Dingo boots. The man was reportedly armed with a large caliber blue steel revolver and should be considered dangerous, according to the bulletin. The couple should be in possession of about $500, mostly in $20 bills.

Supporters, opponents gather for ERA vote

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Supporters staged an all-night vigil in the Capitol rotunda and opponents, led by Phyllis Schlafly, planned to hand out homemade bread as lobbyists for and against the Equal Rights Amendment prepared for today's crucial vote in the Illinois House.

The lawmakers were swamped with feverish appeals Tuesday and faced more today as lobbyists engaged in last-minute calculations of support.

Rep. John S. Matijevich, an ERA sponsor, said he had received "good indications of movement to our position," but declined to say whether ERA had the 107 votes needed to pass.

Earlier, Rep. Penny Pullen, an ERA foe, estimated supporters were five votes short of approving the amendment, which has been the subject of a dozen battles in the state legislature.

ERA has failed six times in the Illinois House and four times in the Senate in the past eight years. It has passed each chamber once, but not in the same year. If approved by the House today, it must still go to the Senate.

The amendment to ban discrimination on the basis of sex has been ratified by 35 of the 38 states needed to make it part of the U.S. Constitution. Five states have rescinded their ratification, but validity of that action is in doubt.

Supporters have said if they weren't certain of winning they'd delay the vote. Jim Edgar, chief lobbyist for Republican Gov. James R. Thompson, said: "I think it's vital that they don't call it unless they have the vote."

Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, a Democrat and ERA supporter, was considering coming to Springfield for the vote but "it would depend on her schedule," said Robert Saigh, her press secretary.

On Tuesday, two more lawmakers reported receiving calls from President Carter; Thompson lobbied for ERA from his bed where he was confined with a bad back; and hundreds of chanting, singing ERA supporters rallied in the Capitol rotunda.

Molly Yard, an organizer for the National Organization for Women, shouted to the crowd that "I am tired of asking men for my rights."

NOW said more than 1,000 people also appeared at a hotel for briefings on lobbying techniques, then scattered to contact lawmakers.

Reps. J. David Jones, a Springfield Republican, and William L. Harris, a Marion Democrat, said they received calls from President Carter Monday night seeking support for ERA.

Harris said he was still undecided and Jones said he would withhold his vote for ERA until the Senate takes up the issue first. Two other legislators earlier had said they received calls from Carter.

NOW, which is coordinating this year's Illinois ERA ratification drive, has estimated it would spend at least $100,000 on the effort.

Two to enter TMI containment

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — A pair of engineers weighed down by double layers of protective clothing and two air supplies apiece will venture into the Three Mile Island reactor containment building on May 20, plant officials say.

William Behrle, 36, and Michael Benson, 27, are only scheduled to stay 15 or 20 minutes.

But they will be the first humans to enter the radiation-drenched building since March 28, 1979, when the reactor leaked radiation and came within an hour of a meltdown.

Senior TMI official Robert Arnold said the two engineers will gather radiological data that, until this point, has only been available through calculations or remote measurements.

Behrle and Benson are expected to identify "hot spots" in initial cleanup work areas and measure radiation levels around cooling and ventilation equipment. The pair will also measure radiation levels near the stairwell and elevator areas, to gauge the feasibility of maintenance work and future, more extensive entries.

Officials said the two engineers, both volunteers, will receive a radiation dose of about one rem to the whole body. Federal regulations permit a quarterly allowable exposure of three rems.

The men will wear standard commercial diving dry suits under standard radiation protection clothing.

They will each carry a self-contained breathing apparatus with a 60-minute air supply, as well as a seven-minute emergency breathing device. But if the primary air source malfunctions, they will leave the building immediately.

Behrle and Benson will also carry hand-held radiation detection instruments and two-way radios to stay in constant touch with personnel outside the containment building.

While they won't be able to see the reactor vessel, officials said they will have a view of air filtration equipment, cooling fans, electrical cables, an elevator, a stairway, and some minor instrumentation.

'Superfund' to clean waste sites OK'd by Senate panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise bill to create a "superfund" to clean up abandoned hazardous waste sites has been approved by a House committee and sent to the floor.

The House Commerce Committee gave 21-3 approval Tuesday to the bill which provides for private industry and the federal government to contribute equally to a fund that could reach $600 million by 1984.

Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., who drew up the compromise, said it "can begin to address what may very well be the environmental issue of the 1980s — that is our ability to clean up the environment from damages that come from the inappropriate disposal practices of the past."

But Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., argued, "The industry has made a deal to get rid of the liability portions of the bill in return for their acquiescence in a very small fund that will be funded only half by them and the rest of it by the public."

The compromise measure shelved a proposal approved by the panel's transportation and commerce subcommittee that would have given victims of hazardous waste leaks more authority to obtain damages.

The compromise version also provides that no industry fees can be collected without an equal federal appropriation. That feature, said Sierra Club spokesman A. Blakeman Early, gives the chemical industry incentive to urge Congress to keep the federal contribution small.

The committee rejected a Gore amendment to double the size of the fund to $1.2 billion and finance it with a 75 percent contribution from industry and 25 percent from government. Florio said the Environmental Protection Agency claims the amount in the bill is enough for the next year.

The bill calls for creating a national inventory of what is stored in inactive waste sites and a priority list of which sites are most liable to endanger the public.

Who's ashamed now?

The president of the United States had just been defending his economic policies. His opponent charged that the president ought to be "ashamed" for being satisfied with his record.

The opponent noted, "We've got 7.5 million people out of jobs. In the last four months alone, 500,000 Americans have gone on the unemployment rolls.

"Anybody who says that the inflation rate is in good shape now ought to talk to housewives. One of the overwhelming results that I've seen in polls is that people feel that you can't plan anymore. There's no way to make a prediction that my family might be able to own a home or put my kid through college. Savings accounts are losing money instead of gaining money. Inflation is robbing us.

"That is a very serious indictment of this administration. It's probably the worst one of all."

Sound familiar? The president who was told he ought to be ashamed of his record was Gerald Ford. The gentleman scolding him was Jimmy Carter. It occurred on Oct. 22, 1976, in the third Ford-Carter debate prior to the election that boosted Carter to the presidency.

At that time the unemployment rate was 7.5 percent, down from the peak 9 percent experienced during the 1974-75 recession.

Inflation stood at 4.2 percent for the first nine months of 1976 and was to finish out the year at 4.8 percent. Even that was down significantly from the 7 percent inflation rate experienced during 1975 and the alarming 12.2 percent rate suffered in 1974.

Credit was plentiful and could be acquired for a prime interest rate of 6.5 percent.

What has changed since that time?

Well, in the fourth year of Jimmy Carter's presidency we have suffered three more rounds of federal deficits, the unemployment rate has jumped from 6.2 percent to 7 percent, signalling the start of a new recession which is expected to boost the jobless rate to 8 percent or more.

About 1.2 million Americans lost jobs during the past four months. The inflation rate for the first quarter of this year was 18 percent. Credit rapidly dried up in most areas of the nation, with the prime rate on interest hovering around 18 percent.

And what does Jimmy Carter, who's currently making a bid for re-election, have to say in his own defense?

Well, he noted recently that the economy has "turned the corner." What corner?

Jimmy Carter should be ashamed of his record.

Today is Wednesday, May 14, the 135th day of 1980. There are 231 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On May 14, 1787, a convention began in Philadelphia to draw up the American Constitution.

The inscription should be changed to fit the current ppk situation: Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses — and while you're at it, empty out your hospitals and send us your criminals.

Fidel Castro remains a thorn in United States' side

WASHINGTON — There's nothing new about the mess we're in over Cuba. For two decades, Communist Cuba has been a thorn in our sides. Until Fidel Castro's gone, or some U.S. President gives up, it's likely that Cuba will pain us for decades to come.

And yet, early in the Carter Administration, a pleasant mirage appeared suggesting a new era of better relations between Cuba and the United States. Carter withdrew the ban on travel to Cuba by U.S. citizens, and suspended surveillance overflights by our planes. He arranged for "interest section" offices, representing the two nations, to be opened in Washington and Havana. Doves flew about the mirage, and soft Latin music was heard.

Ambassador Andrew Young spoke of how Cuban troops aided stability in Africa. Sen. Frank Church hugged Castro in Havana, and saw good days ahead. Another pilgrim, Sen. George McGovern, renewed his vows for peace. Then Sen. James Abourezk, seized with love for Cuban friends in Havana, strummed his guitar, sang with them, and declared that, "All Communists got rhythm."

Some of the most fascinating meriment was provided by large groups of American capitalists lured by entrepreneurs to Havana, where they panted at the prospect of getting only a whisker-length away from El-Supremo himself, Fidel Castro.

Ostensibly, these businessmen, spending anywhere from $1,000 to $2-500 of their firm's tax-deductible

Intelligence reports Khomeini is ailing

WASHINGTON — The American hostages in Iran may outlast their tormentor, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, if intelligence reports about his health are correct.

The reports claim that the Iranian oracle — weakened by a heart attack, plagued by prostate problems and slowed by old age — shows symptoms of physical deterioration. He has become feeble, his movements faltering, his voice wavering.

The only question, according to the intelligence reports, is whether the ayatollah or his government will collapse first. He sits cross-legged in his shrine in Qom, aloof and scowling, while a power struggle rages around him.

Rebellion has flared up in north-western Iran. Kurdish guerrillas, carrying weapons air-dropped by the Soviets, have attacked government outposts. They are the shock troops for the Soviet-supported Kurdish Democratic Party, which hopes to carve off an independent Kurdistan from Iran.

The Soviets are also stirring up other rebellious ethnic minorities, intelligence reports allege, as part of a strategy to destabilize and dismember Iran. Throughout the country, violence has also erupted between militant Moslem Hezbollah and radical Marxist Fedayan.

Even the ruling Revolutionary Council is irreparably split between Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti's religious activists and President Abolhassan Bani Sadr's moderates. The populace is at the mercy, meanwhile, of arbitrary revolutionary prosecutors, local revolutionary committees and armed militants.

The taking of hostages, for example, has caught on. The militants are now likely to resolve contract disputes or other grievances by seizing hostages. And the Bureau for the Battle Against Corruption, an appendage of the prosecutor's office, functions as a vigilante band enforcing Moslem standards.

Presiding over all this is the ailing, 80-year-old Ayatollah Khomeini who has become an Iranian Mao Tse-tung, seemingly untouched and untroubled by the chaos he has created.

KENNEDY'S CHARACTER: By any realistic reckoning, Ted Kennedy's attempt to wrest his party's nomination from the incumbent president has failed. Only a miracle could keep Jimmy Carter from renomination in August, and this does not seem to be the year for political miracles. It was the voters' doubts about Kennedy's personal character that doomed his candidacy. I contributed to those doubts by publishing my own findings, which contradicted his account of the Chappaquiddick tragedy.

But in fairness, Kennedy's performance under political fire deserves notice. He has been deserted by the very Democratic leaders who beseeched him to save the party by running against Carter. Kennedy has been vilified by pack journalists, and his character has been assailed by Carter's hired guns.

Exit polls revealing personal data, politics

WASHINGTON — There was a time in this country when a person's vote was his or her own business. But that was before someone invented the "Exit Poll." The Exit Poll is taken as the voter leaves the booth on Election Day and makes it possible for the TV commentators to tell us what group voted for which candidate and why. It does nothing for the voting process, but it helps fill time on the air.

This is how the exit poll works. As Gradson steps out of the voting booth at Public School 35, pollsters from the three major networks close in on him.

"Are you Jewish?" one of the pollsters asks.

"No, I'm not Jewish."

"You don't look Jewish," another pollster says. "Italian?"

"I'm not Italian. Hey, what's going on here?"

"Spanish American?" the third pollster asks.

"My great-grandfather was Irish and my great-grandmother came from Wales."

"Catholic or Church of England?"

"I happen to be a Christian Scientist."

"Great," says the first pollster. "We don't have anything on the Christian Science vote yet. Mind telling us how much you make a year?"

"I certainly do."

"Over $35,000 or under? You don't have to give us the exact figure."

"Listen, I'm illegally parked and if you don't mind ..."

Art Buchwald

"Are you a college graduate?"

"I do happen to be a college graduate."

"Good, now just tell us your age and we'll get down to business."

"I'm 34. Who are you guys?"

"We'll ask the questions. Are you a registered Democrat or Republican?"

"I happen to be a Republican."

"That's better. The more you play ball with us the easier it will be on you."

Another pollster says, "Tell us who you voted for, Reagan or Bush?"

"I think that is my business."

"It happens to be ours too. We have to get this information on the evening news, so just stop stalling."

"I happened to vote for George Bush."

"Why?"

"Do I have to tell you why I voted for Bush?"

"Of course. It doesn't mean anything if you just voted for Bush. The viewers have to know why the Christian Science vote is going for him."

"I voted for Bush because I didn't want to vote for Reagan."

"So your vote wasn't pro-Bush, it was anti-Reagan?"

"I also happen to like Bush."

"Why don't you like Reagan? Is it his age or is it that you don't trust him?"

"I don't dislike Reagan. I just think Bush would have a better chance of beating Carter."

"Then your Bush vote was actually an anti-Carter vote?"

"No, it was a Bush vote. It stands to reason if I'm a Republican I would like to see Carter beaten."

"Are you against Carter because of the way he's been handling foreign affairs or domestic ones?"

"Both. Now may I go?"

"How many bathrooms do you have in your home?"

"That night Gradson turned on his set to watch the evening news. The announcer said, "Early returns show that while Reagan and Bush are still running neck and neck, Bush is running surprisingly strong in the Christian Science neighborhoods by a margin of two to one, particularly with college graduates making over $35,000 a year who own their own homes and have an average of two and half children. Bush's strategy of concentrating on Christian Science Reading Rooms apparently paid off, but Reagan campaigners were not willing to concede the state mainly because Reagan was taking the 'Moonie' vote, particularly among those who hadn't finished high school and were making $14 an hour, selling Bibles at the airport."

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Having the same name as a syndicated muckraker can be a headache, as another Jack Anderson in Washington can attest. He works as a speech writer for House Minority Leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., and some of the calls he gets are clearly intended for me.

"Usually the phone rings about midnight," the innocent Jack Anderson sighs, "and it's some drunk from Indiana."

Recently, Anderson fielded a call from "the sexiest voice I've ever heard," he recalled. "She said, 'Do you know me?' I said 'No.' She said, 'You'll know me real soon.'"

Unfortunately for my homonymous friend on Capitol Hill, that was the last he ever heard from the lady. Obviously, the call was not intended for me, since I am a notorious party dud. Perhaps it was for John Anderson, the presidential candidate.

WATCHDOG BITES? Sens. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., and John Danforth, R-Mo., have led the congressional fight to sink the Federal Trade Commission. Ford, especially, feels the FTC is behind some recent hometown press attacks on his attempt to destroy the FTC, the consumers' most effective watchdog in Washington. When a Kentucky newspaper printed a story that Ford deemed particularly damaging to him, he demanded that FTC Chairman Mike Pertschuk write to the paper in Ford's defense. Pertschuk, faced with budgetary extermination, complied.

CONSULTANT CUT: One of the ways federal agencies get around congressionally imposed limits on personnel is the use of consultants who sell their expert services as private contractors. The Office of Management and Budget has ordered a 15 percent cut in the use of these outside experts, but many agencies are resisting the directive.

Knowing that an honest report on the number of consultants would subject them to the 15 percent cut, the agencies have simply under-reported their use of private experts. The OMB has now insisted on more accurate, detailed information on the hitherto vague consultant budgets.

Ship's captain didn't see bridge

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The captain of the Summit Venture, the ship that slammed into the Sunshine Skyway Bridge last week, killing at least 34 people, says he didn't see the bridge until it collapsed over the bow of the vessel.

Capt. Hsuing Chu Liu was not at the helm at the time. The ship was being guided out of Tampa Bay by John Lerro, an area pilot.

Liu told a Marine Board of Inquiry Tuesday he saw nothing ahead when Lerro ordered that the vessel be thrown into reverse and to drop anchor. There was a blinding rainstorm at the time, he said.

The five-member board, composed of three Coast Guard officers and two members of the National Transportation Safety Board, planned to question Lerro and other members of the vessel's Chinese crew. The hearing is expected to last two weeks. The hearing resumes today.

The 608-foot freighter crashed into a bridge piling Friday morning, and the 1,400-foot center span of the bridge collapsed. Eight vehicles, including a Greyhound bus with at least 23 people on board, fell 150 feet into the bay.

Three more bodies — two women and a man — were found Tuesday in the bay near the bridge, bringing to 34 the number of bodies recovered. Police said they believed the wreckage under the bridge held another victim, the missing husband of a woman whose body was found. He would be the 35th victim.

Two suits were filed Tuesday in the case. One, filed by the state of Florida, sought $75 million damages and asked a federal court not to allow the Summit Venture to leave Tampa. The other suit, filed by Hercules Carriers Inc. of Liberia, owners of the ship, asks to be declared blameless and requests a finding that the accident happened because of bad weather.

Liu testified he first became concerned something was wrong when Lerro, 37, ordered lookouts to stand by the anchor. That was at 7:31 a.m., three minutes before the crash.

Ninety seconds later, Lerro ordered a hard left turn, the anchor dropped and the ship to full reverse, Liu said. But the Summit Venture plowed ahead, smashing into the bridge, he said. The ship bounced off the bridge, veered left and swung right, still moving ahead for two to three minutes, he said.

Liu said he didn't know why Lerro ordered the emergency maneuvers, but said they didn't help. It takes four minutes to stop the vessel, he said.

Visibility was so poor in the rain, he said, he couldn't see the bow of the ship or the buoys marking the channel. The bridge was visible on radar as the ship approached, but even that was partly obscured by interference from the storm, he said.

Liu, 50, of Taiwan, said he didn't know the position of his ship, or ask any questions of the pilot. He said he thought Lerro knew the waters better than he did.

According to state records of the Board of Pilot Commissioners, Lerro has been involved in and cleared of seven incidents during his four years as a Tampa Bay pilot. The incidents ranged from minor groundings to bumping a main pier on the Skyway Bridge Feb. 16 when he was piloting the 706-foot Jonna Dan.

Tampa Bay disaster forewarned

By BILL KACZOR

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Months before two shipping disasters took 57 lives in Tampa Bay, a member of the state Board of Pilot Commissioners told the panel that it must revoke the licenses of incompetent harbor pilots or face catastrophe.

"There appears to be a high incidence of casualties (ship mishaps) attributed to a small number of pilots," Capt. R.E. Schaefer wrote in a November memo to other members of the panel that reviews such accidents.

"I suggest that we investigate some of these casualties and revoke the license of any incompetent pilot before a major catastrophe results," wrote the Pensacola harbor pilot who is a former Navy officer.

Schaefer's memo was found Tuesday in the board's records. Those records also show that in its five-year history, the panel has received 236 mishap reports, filed by the pilots themselves, but never disciplined a pilot. Casualties can be anything from "smelling the bottom" — hitting bottom — to groundings and collisions.

Although the great majority are minor and the fault of equipment breakdowns or ship crews, two of the most recent casualties have been deadly:

— On Jan. 28, the tanker Capricorn and the Coast Guard Cutter Blackthorn collided, sinking the cutter and killing 23 crewmen.

— Last Friday, the phosphate carrier Summit Venture rammed the Sunshine Skyway Bridge near the same spot and sent a 1,400-foot section of the bridge and at least 35 persons tumbling 150 feet into the bay. Only one survived.

Schaefer was on the casualty review panel for several years and the only member who dissented from "no further action" findings. He was replaced about five months ago, but said it was a normal change of membership and had nothing to do with his criticism.

Negotiators set $38 million to study passenger rail routes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Compromising between the $55 million proposed by the House and the $5 million by the Senate, negotiators have agreed that $38 million is the right figure for studying new passenger rail routes.

The corridors proposed for improved service include the so-called Texas Triangle between Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio.

The House and Senate have to give final approval to the compromise authorization approved Tuesday by a conference committee. Actual appropriation of the funds is a separate process.

The compromise is included in a measure designed to complete Amtrak's Northeast Corridor with a $750 million authorization and to preserve some of the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad's freight service.

The bill, which does not specify how the funds should be divided among the routes proposed for new corridors, recommends that the studies should be completed by February.

The compromise also includes a $25 million authorization for new Amtrak equipment, although its use would not be limited to the new corridors.

The House had passed an authorization for $50 million in equipment and $55 million for study and design of 13 new intercity rail corridors.

The Senate, under pressure from farm-belt senators anxious to speed the compromise along because of the Rock Island situation, reluctantly approved a $5 million bill for studying the new corridors' feasibility.

The Carter Administration had objected to the emerging corridors proposal as being too costly in a year when the balanced budget is the hottest topic.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., the chief Senate negotiator, said he doubted that President Carter would veto the bill although he still hears complaints from the administration that the $38 million is too high.

The compromise deletes the House mention of a possible $850 million authorization at a later date from "windfall" profits tax revenue to complete work on the new corridors.

Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, a supporter of the Texas Triangle, said the compromise should be sufficient to determine the new corridors' viability.

Ed Muskie urges allies to impose sanctions

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, in his diplomatic debut, urged the European allies today to implement economic sanctions against Iran in the interest of the trans-Atlantic partnership and the Americans held hostage more than six months.

Muskie's call for solidarity came at a closed meeting of the NATO Defense Planning Committee. Some of the Europeans have threatened to ease the sanctions on Iran rather than lose current lucrative contracts.

"I understand the ability of some to wash their hands of this problem," a U.S. official said. But he stressed that the fate of the hostages, while not technically a NATO issue, is of vital concern to the United States.

Muskie and U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown met with some success in forging a unified stand on an issue of more direct concern to the Europeans — the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The alliance agreed to strengthen its military forces in response to the Soviet intervention and announced a proposal to create a second NATO naval squadron to replace U.S. ships diverted from the Mediterranean Sea to the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean.

"The alliance is very alive and kicking," NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns told a news conference after the 4-hour meeting of defense and foreign ministers of 13 NATO countries.

Luns said the Soviet intervention had created "a rather exceptional situation" and that the ministers agreed to increase their commitments in Europe to free U.S. forces for use in other hot spots.

Luns said NATO would study the proposal for the second squadron, made this morning by The Netherlands. It would be designed to replace U.S. ships, including the aircraft carrier Nimitz, which was sent to the waters of Southwest Asia in response to events in Iran.

In his speech, Muskie pressed for a relentless economic and diplomatic campaign against Iran and for "the fullest possible implementation" of the sanctions approved by the European Economic Community last month but now under review.

The House and Senate have to give final approval to the compromise authorization approved Tuesday by a conference committee. Actual appropriation of the funds is a separate process.

The compromise is included in a measure designed to complete Amtrak's Northeast Corridor with a $750 million authorization and to preserve some of the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad's freight service.

The bill, which does not specify how the funds should be divided among the routes proposed for new corridors, recommends that the studies should be completed by February.

The compromise also includes a $25 million authorization for new Amtrak equipment, although its use would not be limited to the new corridors.

'Adventure in Communications' scheduled to be presented here

A telephone that doesn't have to be dialed, a satellite communications system and a conversable television set are three innovations Bill Haehnel, Southwestern Bell science demonstrator, uses in his new program.

"An Adventure in Communications" is scheduled to be presented to Midland civic clubs the week of May 19.

Haehnel said his demonstration highlights key technological innovations of the communications industry during the past 100 years.

"Americans," said Haehnel, "take all forms of communications somewhat for granted. We have the most dependable and affordable telephone service in the world, but building today's modern telecommunications system has not been easy or inexpensive. The story has been and continues to be a real life adventure as we strive to anticipate and respond to the needs of our customers."

The 25-minute program illustrates how today's sophisticated communications products and services have evolved.

Using a variety of props and demonstrations, Haehnel offers a glimpse of the communications marvels of the future. For example, a typical home communications service projected for the near future is a telephone that, through verbal instructions, operates a household appliance or rings a neighbor's phone.

The program includes a miniature satellite communications system like the one used by the Bell System in processing 44 million long distance calls a day.

Haehnel illustrates how the Bell Telephone Laboratories' invention of the transistor in 1947 revolutionized American life and set today's accelerated pace of technological innovations in communications.

He explains how Custom Calling Features, now available to many Southwestern Bell customers, is made possible by an Electronic Switching System, or ESS.

"ESS, the most advanced method of transferring calls from one location to another, saves the Bell System about $1 billion in reduced maintenance expenses each year and is capable of handling a tremendous volume of calls at blinding speed," said Haehnel.

Southwestern Bell plans to offer new services and products designed to make the home and office more efficient, according to Haehnel. "We are dedicated to answering tomorrow's communications questions today."

Haehnel begins and ends the demonstration by talking with Sparky, a glassy-eyed television set. The program offers persons an historical perspective and appreciation of how basic scientific research and development have improved and expanded the standard of living in America, he said.

Mailbox Improvement Week is time to repair

Warm weather has settled down for the summer and Postmaster D.E. Holster is suggesting that "it's time to do something for your winter-weary friend, the mailbox."

The perfect time for this work, he said, is during Mailbox Improvement Week, May 19-24.

Residents of Midland are urged to examine their mailboxes to determine whether they have been damaged during the winter by weather or vandalism—particularly those located along rural routes.

"Some boxes may need only painting," said Holster. "Others may need to be replaced. Mailbox Improvement Week is a good time to decide the best way to improve your mailbox. A damaged or improperly placed box will make it difficult for rural letter carriers to leave that special letter or package."

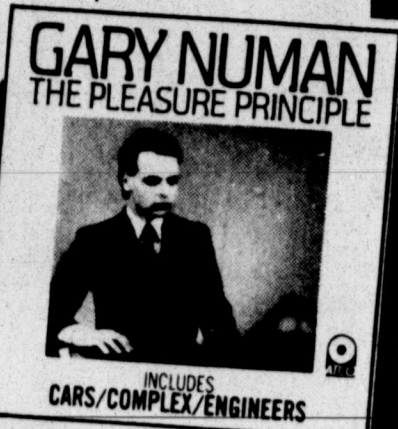

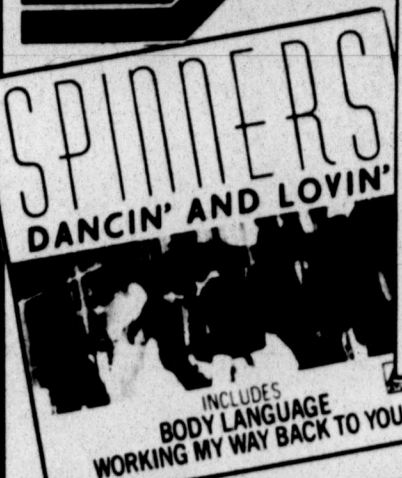

The Postal Service doesn't restrict customers to a specific type of mailbox, but does say that all boxes—whether standard or custom made—must meet certain specifications for size, strength and location. A variety of approved commercial mailboxes are available for use with decorative posts.

"Customers should check with the Midland Post Office for specifications," the postmaster advised.

"I would remind people that the mailbox regulations have been written with safety and efficiency in mind," Holster said. "You should not use massive farm equipment or heavy objects like plows and milk cans filled with concrete to hold up mailboxes. Supports of this type are potential accident hazards."

North A Street to be closed four months for construction

A segment of North A Street will be closed to traffic Thursday and should remain that way for the next four months, according to Fred Baker, director of public works for the city of Midland.

A Street is being widened to accommodate five lanes of traffic, he said. One of those lanes will be a continuous left turn lane to reduce delays for north-south traffic.

South Texas Construction Co. is the contractor for the job. Baker said most of the work will be behind the curb, but the city is closing the street for the work.

Drivers making use of A Street will have to find an alternate route, Baker said.

The intersection of Cuthbert Avenue and A Street also will be closed during the first phase of the work. But Louisiana Avenue and A Street intersection will remain open for east-west traffic.

When the first segment is complete, the Louisiana intersection will be closed for widening A Street from that intersection down to Tennessee Avenue. During that phase, the Cuthbert intersection will be opened.

"We ask the public to bear with the inconvenience and take care in the immediate area," Baker said.

Elliot Arnold dead at 67

NEW YORK (AP) — Elliot Arnold, the author of more than 25 books on such topics as the Wild West and World War II, has died at age 67.

Born in Brooklyn, he had lived in Tucson, Ariz.; Beverly Hills, Calif.; and New York. He died Tuesday at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York after a brief illness.

Among his best known books were the 1967 bestseller "A Night of Watching," which told how the Danish underground smuggled 8,000 Jews into Sweden in 1943, and "Blood Brother," the story of a fictional Apache Indian chief, which was the basis for a film and television series called "Broken Arrow."

One of his first jobs was at the old

Brooklyn Daily Times at age 15. After graduating from New York University in 1934, he joined The New York World-Telegram as a feature writer and rewrite man until enlisting in the Army Air Corps in 1942.

Arnold and actor Marlon Brando were collaborating on a movie about American Indians when Arnold fell ill several months ago.

Staff Sgt. Alvin D. McFarland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin J. McFarland of Midland, has been named outstanding noncommissioned officer of the quarter at K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base at Guinn, Mich.

The sergeant is a 1971 graduate of Lee High School.

Navy Seaman Donny R. Thorp, whose wife, Penny, is the daughter of Virgel and Dora Walsmith of Midland, has completed basic training at the Naval Training Center at San Diego.

During the eight-week training course, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Sgt. Frederick J. Bernet Jr., whose wife, Lisa, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Wallace of Big Spring, has arrived for duty at the RAF Alconbury at Huntingdon, England.

Sgt. Bernet is a maintenance specialist previously assigned at McGuire Air Force Base, N.J.

Staff Sgt. Danny W. Fischer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Fischer of Midland, is a member of an organization that has received the U.S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award at RAF Welford, Welford, England.

The U.S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award is earned by members of an Air Force unit for exceptionally meritorious service or outstanding achievement that clearly sets the unit apart from similar units.

Colleen A. Wood, whose husband, William, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Wood of Midland, has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of staff sergeant. Sgt. Wood is a personnel specialist at Dyess Air Force Base at Abilene.

Mrs. Darrell M. Stephens, whose wife, Debra, lives in Big Spring, recently was assigned as a bridge specialist with the 814th Engineer Company in Hanau, Germany.

Stephens is a 1978 graduate of Big Spring. He is the son of Jerry D. Stephens of Big Spring.

Navy Electronics Technician 3rd Class Bruce E. Thompson, whose wife, Carole, is the daughter of Jay and Pat Thompson of Andrews, was graduated from Basic Electronics Technician School.

The course was conducted at the Navy Service School Command, Great Lakes, Ill. Students received introductory instruction on electronic circuit concepts, radar principles and the basics of radio transmitters and receivers. In addition they studied the procedures for repairing amplifiers, transmitters, receivers and power supply lines.

Ignacia Cano, whose wife, Juanita, lives in Hobbs, N.M., recently completed One Station Unit Training at Fort Benning, Ga.

One Station Unit Training is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications, and combat operations. This qualifies the soldier as a light-arms infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad. Cano's mother, Elvira Cano, lives in Big Spring.

Capt. David G. Bradford, son of retired Air Force Maj. and Mrs. L.G. Bradford of Big Spring, is a member of the 91st Strategic Missile Wing, winner of the Charlie S.D. Trail Award at Minot Air Force Base at Minot, N.D.

The award was given to the unit in recognition of its superior logistics achievements during 1979.

Arthur L. Martin, whose wife, Sheila, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Bartlett of Lamesa, has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of technical sergeant.

Sgt. Martin is a personnel technician at Ramstein Air Base at Landstuhl, West Germany.

Curtis Kile recalls his moonshine days

SWEETWATER, Tenn. (AP) — These days, Curtis Kile tends to his pigeons and idles around his rural Monroe County home. But he recalls with a smile his days spent working at a moonshine still in a barn behind his home.

Federal revenue agents arrested Kile several times for his moonshine involvement, and he said he had once been convicted of conspiracy to build a still. He spent two months at a medical facility for federal prisoners in Springfield, Mo.

Two moonshiners set up a still in the now-rusting barn near his home. At its peak, the still yielded 240 gallons of the rotgut whiskey each week. Kile, 46, said the contraband liquor was transported 70 miles southwest to Chattanooga and sold there.

"They were running it," the freckled Kile, dressed in a battered cap and worn work clothes, said. "I was just carrying the sugar and doing whatever they told me."

The moonshiners moved their still from the barn after six months and headed into neighboring McMinn County. The federal revenue agents caught up with the 'shiners there and raided the still, Kile said.

The Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, which regulates liquor production, says the days of moonshining are over.

The bureau's pursuit of illegal manufacturers and the increasing price of sugar, a major moonshine ingredient, contributed to the 'shiners' demise. Some would-be consumers were scared off by the danger of lead salts, which dissolved into moonshine distilled in auto and truck radiators. A consumer ran the threat of blindness or even death by ingesting the lead.

After his stint at the federal prison institution in Missouri, Kile wrote a series of rambling articles under a byline which identified him as "moonshine editor."

During his newfound career as a writer, Kile decided to establish a moonshiners' organization, saying that he wrote on behalf of other moonshiners. But as far as he knows, he is the National Moonshiners Association's only member and it never conducts meetings.

Food stamp program likely to stay alive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The approximately 21 million Americans who receive food stamps are getting some assurances from Congress that the subsidies won't be halted next month.

A Senate-House conference committee on Monday approved a $3.3 billion expansion of the food stamp program aimed at keeping it alive through the end of the fiscal year that ends Sept. 30. The previously approved $6.2 billion for food stamps is about to run out.

The action by the conferees removed one more major obstacle that could force an interruption in the program next month. The measure now heads to the floor of the Senate and House, where leaders will press for speedy approval this week.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has said Congress must complete action on the whole package by Thursday, or he will notify state officials that food stamps will be suspended on June 1. However, some congressional leaders believe the Thursday deadline is flexible.

The bill approved by the Senate-House conferees contains an additional $300 million on top of the authorization that passed the House overwhelmingly last week.

The measure would also authorize $9.7 billion in food stamp spending for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. But the conferees acknowledged that the figure is probably far less than will be needed to cover the cost of food stamps for that fiscal year.

With unemployment expected to reach 8 percent by the end of 1980, the Congressional Budget Office estimated that it will take $10.4 billion to finance food stamps through September 1981.

Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said the $9.7 billion was needed to get the measure through the House, where members are committed to a spending ceiling even if it proves unrealistic.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Jesus prayed for you

Now I am leaving the world, and leaving them behind, and coming to You. Holy Father, keep them in Your own care—all those You have given me—so that they will be united just as We are, with none missing.

During My time here I have kept safe within Your family all of these You gave Me. I guarded them so that not one perished, except the son of hell, as the Scriptures foretold.

And now I am coming to You. I have told them many things while I was with them so that they would be filled with My joy.

I have given them Your commands. And the world hates them because they don't fit in with it, just as I don't.

I'm not asking You to take them out of the world, but to keep them safe from Satan's power.

They are not part of this world any more than I am. Make them pure and holy through teaching them Your words of truth.

As You sent Me into the world, I am sending them into the world.

And I consecrate Myself to meet their need for growth in truth and holiness.

I am not praying for these alone but also for the future believers who will come to Me because of the testimony of these.

My prayer for all of them is that they will be of one heart and mind, just as You and I are, Father—that just as You are in Me and I am in You, so they will be in Us, and the world will believe You sent Me.

I have given them the glory You gave Me—the glorious unity of being one, as We are—

I in them and You in Me, all being perfected into one—so that the world will know You sent Me and will understand that You love them as much as You love Me.

Father, I want them with Me—these You've given Me—so that they can see My glory. You gave Me the glory because You loved Me before the world began!

O righteous Father, the world doesn't know You, but I do; and these disciples know You sent Me.

And I have revealed You to them, and will keep on revealing You so that the mighty love You have for Me may be in them, and I in them."

Ugandans accept new government

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Commercial life returned to near normal in Kampala today as Ugandans accepted their second military government in a year.

Banks, the post office and the main food market reopened under military guard. Streets were crowded.

Aides said Godfrey Binaisa, ousted as president by a military commission that supports exiled former President Milton Obote, remained in his official residence in Entebbe, 21 miles from Kampala. A military spokesman denied reports that he would be tried on corruption charges.

It appeared that Binaisa was being kept in State House by a guard of troops from neighboring Tanzania, which invaded Uganda to overthrow dictator Idi Amin 13 months ago and still keeps 10,000 soldiers as the strongest armed force in the country.

The chairman of Uganda's military commission, Paulo Muwanga, told reporters by telephone that negotiations have begun with other Ugandan factions to obtain their support. The factions included the Front For National Salvation — the largest Ugandan exile force that fought against Amin — and the Save Uganda Movement, the second largest Ugandan exile force.

Muwanga met with Front leader Yoweri Museveni, the regional cooperation minister under Binaisa, and claimed Museveni backed the military commission. Museveni could play a key role since more than 40 percent of the 7,000-man Ugandan army are from the western region, Museveni's home area, and are believed loyal to him.

Muwanga said, however, that Obote would not be asked to join the new government. "We don't intend to do so. That's a definite no," he said. Obote, contacted at his exile residence in the Tanzanian capital, said only that he was "carefully studying" the military commission's position paper.

Muwanga and two army commanders took control of Kampala on Sunday. On Tuesday they announced that a commission including officers from all battalions will name a military government soon to replace Binaisa's civilian cabinet and prepare for the elections already scheduled for December.

Muwanga was the titular leader of the coup as chairman of the legislature's military commission, supposedly an advisory body with no military powers. The troops to make the coup work were supplied by two other members of the commission, the army chief of staff, Brig. David Oyite Ojok, whom Binaisa tried to fire last Saturday, and the army commander in chief, Maj. Gen. Tito Okello.

All three are supporters of Obote, who has been an exile in Tanzania since Amin ousted him in 1971. Two other members of the military commission who might have opposed them were out of the country. Obote announced before the coup that he would return to Uganda on May 27 to run against Binaisa for the presidency, and said last weekend that he would not accept an invitation from the military to take over.

Muwanga in a broadcast statement accused Binaisa, who took office last June, of incompetence, intrigue and corruption on a massive scale. A source close to Muwanga said he was sure Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere would not support such a corrupt person.

Nyerere has tried to get the head of Uganda's interim parliament, Edward Rugumayo, to take a hand in the Ugandan coup, but Rugumayo refused to leave northern Tanzania and go home, apparently because he feared he would be arrested or killed, informed sources said.

They reported Nyerere was "extremely angry." Nyerere met with Rugumayo in the northern Tanzanian town of Arusha on Monday. He urged him to return immediately to Kampala and hold a meeting of the council, which Nyerere regards as the most important organ of the Ugandan government, the sources said.

Painting sells for record $5.2 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Vincent Van Gogh's oil painting "Garden of the Poet" has brought $5.2 million at auction, the highest price ever paid for any art work other than for one of the "old masters," according to Christie's auction gallery.

The $5.2 million sale Tuesday was the highest price ever paid for an impressionist painting or for a painting auctioned in the United States, breaking the record set the day before when a Picasso was sold here for $3 million, Christie's spokeswoman Elizabeth Shaw said.

Prices for five other paintings auctioned at Christie's Tuesday night also broke records for works by each of the five artists represented, Ms. Shaw said.

She said the 28-by-36-inch Van Gogh, painted in 1888, was sold to an anonymous telephone bidder.

The $5.2 million superseded a record price for a Van Gogh sold earlier in the evening. "Public Garden," an oil, was sold for $1.9 million.

The six record-setting paintings were among 10 impressionist and modern paintings sold at the auction from the collection of Henry Ford II. The painting, which depicts two lovers walking along a garden path, was created specifically as decoration for Paul Gauguin's room.

Christie's said Tuesday's sale, which was attended by more than 1,000 people, netted $25.5 million, the most lucrative impressionist and modern art auction ever in the United States.

The only painting that ever fetched more than Van Gogh's "Garden of the Poet" was "Juan de Tareja," an oil by Velasquez which was sold for $5.5 million in 1970.

Carter, Reagan win two more primaries

By the Associated Press

President Carter and Ronald Reagan are closing in on the delegate strength needed to clinch nominations for the White House, and both aim to get there before the month is out, with primary elections to spare.

While Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Republican George Bush talk of comebacks in the 15 primaries still to come, the frontrunners' numbers tell more than the challengers' words.

Democrat Carter and Republican Reagan added to those numbers Tuesday with victories in the Maryland and Nebraska presidential primary elections.

The president moved within 301 delegates of a nominating majority; to wrap it up he needs just 26 percent of the Democratic delegates yet to be selected.

Kennedy would have to gain nearly 79 percent of the remaining delegates in order to catch Carter. For Bush, the numbers are even more ominous. He'd have to win 97 percent of the remaining Republican delegates in order to achieve a nominating majority. The former U.N. ambassador bluntly described his comeback strategy as "a tough scenario."

Carter won Maryland with 47 percent of the vote to 38 percent for Kennedy. In Nebraska, it was Carter 47 percent, Kennedy 38 percent.

The president picked up 32 delegates in Maryland to Kennedy's 26. The Nebraska delegate score: Carter 14, Kennedy 10.

Kennedy, campaigning in Albuquerque, N.M., noted that there wasn't much distance between the candidates in Tuesday's delegate count. But since Carter is the overwhelming leader, even a tie is very much to the president's advantage.

Reagan beat Bush 48 percent to 41 percent in Maryland, and won Nebraska's preferential primary with a towering 78 percent of the vote.

Nebraska Republicans elected their delegates separately, and Reagan delegates led for all 25 convention seats, Rep. John B. Anderson, who he is out of the Republican race and running as an independent, took 6 percent of the vote and no delegates.

Reagan, campaigning in Saginaw, Mich., said his two victories convinced him, "I'll be the winner." He said he might gain the 998 delegate votes he needs "before the big final Tuesday." That's June 3 when nine states, including Reagan's California, hold GOP primaries.

Bush, in Las Vegas, said his motto was "on to Michigan, on to Oregon." They vote next week, Michigan for 82 Republican delegates, Oregon for 29.

Bush said his only chance is to do well in those primaries and "get a psychological boost" for the final contests. "It's a tough scenario, but that's all that's left," he said.

His strategists already have acknowledged that a defeat in Michigan next week might force Bush to reassess the campaign he still insists will go on to the GOP convention.

Board wants 'cold turkey' switch to metric system

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Metric System Advisory Council has called for a cold-turkey break from inches, ounces and the other measures we are used to.

The council Tuesday approved a resolution suggesting industry go to packing products in metric sizes — rather than using existing sizes and listing metric equivalents.

The council was formed to recommend ways for the state to assist in the transition to the metric system. At Tuesday's meeting, council members said consumers can be confused by the decimals and fractions needed when converting from the English system to the metric measurements.

What they want to avoid, for example, is milk sold in quart containers that would also show that the container has .95 liters of milk. They would prefer milk sold by the liter.

Council member Walter Cunningham of Houston favored the cold turkey approach. He said listing both systems of measurements confuses shoppers and breeds resentment to the metric system.

"I can think of no surer way to slow (the conversion to the metric system) down," said Cunningham.

Frank Eikenburg of Plano agreed, saying the switch might be difficult for some consumers to accept at first. "But we might as well go ahead and bite the bullet now or 10 to 20 years from now we will have really messed ourselves up," he said.

Alice Kidd, a council member representing the Texas Education Agency, agreed that trying to maintain both systems causes confusion. She said public schools in Texas now teach the metric system separately, without dwelling on comparing metric measurements with their English system equivalents.

Charles Forester of the Texas Department of Agriculture said a switch to metric sizes could create business expenses that will be passed on to consumers.

The council also heard a report concerning the switch to metric measurements at Texas gas stations. Staff member Chuck Newell said over 1,000 service stations in the state now pump gas by the liter.

"Indications are that several other oil companies are now in the process of converting to metric pump dispensers in Texas, but the conversion is not to the point where the companies wish to make the conversion public," Newell said.

He said pump conversion is progressing rapidly in Texas coastal areas, but much more slowly in North and West Texas.

Nuke plant defies state, releases gas anyway

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Power & Light Co. has defied a state Health Department order by releasing radioactive gas into the atmosphere from a damaged nuclear plant, raising the issue of whether the state can regulate such plants within its borders.

Arkansas Power & Light said the Health Department had no such authority.

Utility officials said the first release was at 5:07 p.m. Tuesday at the Arkansas Nuclear One Reactor near Russellville and lasted 66 seconds.

The company said the actions "have not threatened the health or safety of the people of Arkansas and were taken with the authorization of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission."

The gas was trapped in the containment building of Unit 1 of the plant in Russellville after a seal on a reactor coolant pump failed Saturday. About 45,000 gallons of radioactive water spilled into the containment building, producing an accumulation of radioactive gas in the building.

The utility said it planned to vent the gas in small increments over a period of several days and that it should be completed by noon Thursday.

Earlier Tuesday, Dr. Robert Young, director of the state Health Department, ordered the release of the gas delayed 48 hours.

Arkansas Power President Jerry L. Maulden told a news conference Tuesday night that the NRC, not Young or the Health Department, had regulatory authority over the nuclear facility.

"The question really is where does the final authority lie in regulation of nuclear energy," Maulden said. "Our understanding is that it lies with the NRC."

"In the final analysis, it's difficult to have more than one master," he said. "The one agency designated by law, by Congress, is the NRC. If you move away from that, you move into a no-man's land."

Maulden said Young only told utility officials that he had some "concerns."

"We probed as to the concerns, because they were not clear, and as to what would happen in the 48-hour period, what would be done, and that was not clear," Maulden said.

Young said, "One would think that when you were dealing with something that concerns public health and welfare it would be more prudent to take time to be safe."

Young said he wanted the release of the gas postponed 48 hours so that an independent analysis of the gas could be conducted by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

AP&L issued a one-paragraph statement saying a delay would serve no "useful purpose" and that the release had been approved by the NRC.

Maulden said Young did not say he wanted an independent analysis of the gas until after the first release of gas was over.

AP&L had offered to have a Health Department representative or an EPA representative monitor an NRC test on a remaining sample of gas from the nuclear facility, Maulden said.

Young said he called Maulden at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday and told him that under state law and the Health Department rules, he was ordering the company to halt release of the gases for 48 hours.

"As soon as I had read the order to them," he said, "he advised me that they had decided to go ahead."

Young said he wanted the delay because "there had been two or three analyses done on the amount of radioactivity in there and there was quite a bit of discrepancy in them."

Gov. Bill Clinton, contacted Tuesday during a speech at Pine Bluff, said Young wanted "other views" about the effects of the release than those of the utility and the NRC. He said he backed Young's decision.

He conceded, however, that the question of whether the state has the authority to keep AP&L from releasing the gas was "cloudy" because the NRC has ultimate regulatory control over the nuclear plant.

"On the face of it, the NRC has the authority to let them go ahead," Clinton said. "But I think the state Board of Health has some degree of authority in this."

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A year ago, after being married 30 years, I came home and found a note on the kitchen table say, "So long!" My husband and I had been bickering for several years, but I never thought he'd leave me. (He is 65 and I am 60.)

I worked our entire married life, as we have no children. He refuses to sit down and talk to me or anyone else. All he says is there is nothing to talk about. We both belong to two groups that meet once a month for dinner. When he sees me at these affairs, he sits with me and even pays for my dinner. When I run into him in restaurants, he'll join me and pick up the check, but as soon as I ask him what the future is for us, he turns off and clams up.

I'm still living in our home and paying all the bills. He knows that I have a well-paying position and can support myself, so he makes no effort to send me any money.

I am going crazy wondering what his intentions are. What do you suggest? Should I just sit tight until he makes a move? — WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Since he left a note saying "So long," and hasn't lived with you since, you can assume that he has deserted you. A lawyer can tell you where you stand legally. Socially, you're a woman without a husband.

DEAR ABBY: I recently came across a book that described masturbation as a "valuable tension safety valve."

As a woman of 77, brought up to Others competing were Valencia Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wallace, Dina Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson and Mary Angela Cornelius, daughter of Maggie Cornelius.

A woman without a man believe that "self-abuse," as it was called in my day, would lead to idiocy, I was startled and confused.

During all my 44 years of married life (and five children) I never once experienced an orgasm. Now, as an old widow, I self-induced one, and found it wonderful! Am I on the path to perdition? Is single ecstasy wicked?

Being of a logical turn of mind, I cannot see how an occasional self-indulgence is harmful. Certainly no one else is involved or harmed. How can such a glorious, exciting and relaxing experience be wrong, harmful or dirty? — ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Masturbation is normal, natural and universal. The only harmful aspect is the guilt it produces in those who have been programmed to believe it is wrong, harmful and dirty.

DEAR ABBY: I have a next-door neighbor who invites me and my family over for dinner often. (I'll call her Millie.) I really enjoy her company, but her cooking is the absolute pits! You wouldn't believe what she can do to a simple roast and mashed potatoes. When I tell my kids we are eating at Millie's, they say, "Oh, Mom, do we have to go?" It's so bad, I've seen her own family leave the food practically untouched.

When I invite Millie and her gang here for dinner, there is never anything left over. Last time I made hamburgers, and her kids said, "Mom, find out how to make these — they're great!" Abby, the recipe was so simple, a 5-year-old could have thrown it together in 10 minutes.

I hesitate to offer Millie any help because she really doesn't seem interested in cooking. It's just another chore to her. Several times when she's invited us to dinner, I have tried to get out of it by saying, "I'm sorry, I've already got my dinner started." Then she says, "Well, bring it over and we'll pool our dinners." I end up pooling mine, and she ends up chucking hers. So what should I do? — MILLIE'S FRIEND

Grocery trip called educational for kids

PROVO, Utah (AP) — If kids can learn from television's Sesame Street show that "C" is for cookie, then why not take them to the supermarket where they can learn that "O" is for orange juice or "B" is for bread?

Dr. Floyd Sucher, an educational specialist at Brigham Young University, believes that the local grocery store just might be one of the most valuable learning centers in the community for preschoolers.

"The typical supermarket contains about 10,000 items that you can use as an excellent resource for first-hand teaching," he says.

Sucher, professor of elementary education and past chairman of the department of Elementary Education at BYU, has compiled his research into a book, "A Parent's Guide to Early Childhood Development in the Supermarket," to be published this year.

It is his theory that weekly trips to the supermarket, if properly structured with educational goals, can enhance a child's ability to read, write, think and even to learn moral principles.

"If parents go through and name and discuss all the products in a grocery store, the child's vocabulary would expand automatically," Sucher explains.

Corn is one item that Sucher suggests in his book as a starting point for teaching multiple principles. Under the area of concept formation, a child would learn that corn is used for many products — muffins, tacos, corn flakes, margarine, cereal — and that it can be purchased frozen, canned or fresh.

With a few ears of corn serving as a teaching tool, the child can see and feel its texture and be taught where it comes from and how it grows.

To develop auditory perceptions of letter sounds, the parent can point out other products that begin with the letter "C," such as carrots or cranberries, Sucher advises.

This principle can be reinforced at home with a "sound box" — where several objects that begin with the same letter sound are placed in a box, or sometimes mixed with objects that are dissimilar, so the child learns to distinguish differences.

Math skills can be learned when the corn is weighed and when it is paid for at the checkout counter.

"A child can do some rather high levels of thinking in the process of analyzing, and then eventually synthesizing the way things are put together," Sucher says. "There is no place quite like a supermarket where you can go and teach all these concepts."

Touring Europe topic of auxiliary program

PERMIAN BASIN GEOLOGICAL AND GEOPHYSICAL AUXILIARY

Permian Basin Geological and Geophysical Auxiliary met for a luncheon meeting at Midland Hilton.

David Kleinbeck presented a program entitled "Europe on a Shoestring."

Co-chairmen were Mrs. Ken Green and Mrs. Fred Wetendorf. Hostesses were Mrs. Jerel Pierce, Mrs. Patrick Gordon, Mrs. Charles Fishel, Mrs. Robert Jefferies, Mrs. David Dunn and Mrs. Robert Trentham.

Guests were Mrs. Donnie Weiner, Mrs. Richard Cramer, Mrs. Scott Cramer, Mrs. Ray Scurlock, Mrs. Peggy Armstrong, Mrs. Helen Ball, Kathy Fuszek and Katherine Neff.

Membership prizes were won by Mrs. Gerald Anderson and Mrs. Joseph Wolfe.

Women interested in information about joining the auxiliary may call Mrs. Max Crunk, 694-1564.

WESTSIDE EXTENSION HOME-MAKERS

Westside Extension Homemakers met in the home of Mrs. J. M. Reace, 2413 Cuthbert.

Mrs. Eunie Davis was elected president. A guest was Dean Adams.

Program was presented by th Golden Rainbow 4-H Club. Jason Collier, 4-H member, gave a demonstration on growing cotton and a demonstration on dental care. Amy McCary and Dian Adams lectured on baby care and members were given tips on "trouble shooting" on an electric motor and how to repair and maintain this motor.

Members discussed the annual exhibit and salad luncheon held annually on the second Friday in October. This is the only fund-raising project of the extension clubs and council. It is set this year for Oct. 1.

Next meeting is May 21 in the home of Mrs. C. D. Bradley, 3210 Sinclair. Mrs. Bradley will lecture and demonstrate on refinishing furniture.

BOOK REVIEW UNIT, MIDLAND WOMAN'S CLUB

The Book Review Unit of the Midland Woman's Club met recently at the Midland Woman's Club for installation of officers and a book review.

Mrs. Charles Lutrick reviewed the humorous book, "My Dish Towel Flies at Half Mast" by Mary Lutzkir, mother of five children who moved from New York City to Edison, N.J., a suburban town.

Mrs. Stanley Erskine installed officers for 1980-81, presenting each with corsages of different flowers from her garden. New officers are Mrs. J.P. Wilkinson, president; Mrs. Billie Gilbert, first vice president; Ruth Cochran, second vice president; Martha Gould, secretary; Mrs. T.L. Bond, treasurer; Mrs. Martha Hall, assistant treasurer; Mrs. W. Earle Chapman, historian-reporter; Mrs. Robert Bechtel, Midland Woman's Club director, and Mrs. James Smith, Woman's Club alternate.

Mrs. Lutrick introduced guests: Esperanto is an artificial universal language proposed by a Russian physician in 1887. Its reception in the United States, however, was unfavorable.

Mrs. F.D. Breedlove, outgoing president, presided over the meeting, thanking Mrs. Gilbert for her blue ribbon mass flower arrangement of roses and spring flowers she won at the Sunday Midland Rose Society Rose Show. It decorated the head table.

Members and guests were greeted by Mrs. Ruth Cochran and Mrs. Joe Birdwell. Invocation was given by Mrs. C.E. Bissell.

ALTRUSA CLUB OF MIDLAND INC.

Sgt. Steve Otto of the Midland Police Crime Prevention Department was the speaker when the community service committee presented the Altrusa Club program at Midland Hilton.

Officer Otto noted that burglary is alarmingly on the rise in Midland. "Last year there were 385 homes burglarized in Midland (over one per day); and there have already been 161 during the first quarter of this year," he said. He noted that many of these burglaries could have been prevented had the owners taken proper security measures and eliminated incentives.

Introduced by Beverly Dyer, chairman of community services, Sgt. Otto was complimentary of Altrusa Club's block parties, at which a member of the crime prevention department is always a guest speaker. The parties are held to explain how neighbors work together to eliminate possible burglaries.

He said this citizens working together to watch each other's homes and report suspicious persons in the area is a tremendous help to the police department.

Anne Kendall, Altrusa information chairman, announced an orientation initiation to be held in her home in late May for new members.

Carol Hastings was named as a director.

Roberta Wornell, chairman of vocational services, discussed the club's annual spring garage sale to be held Saturday and Sunday at the home of Annie Ford, 913 Country Club Drive.

Drug checks criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's new plan to speed up removal of unsafe or ineffective drugs from the market has been criticized by a consumer group whose suit forced the change.

The Public Citizen Health Research Group said the proposal announced Monday by the Food and Drug Administration will help the drug industry at the expense of consumers.

The FDA proposal would halve, from two years to one, the amount of time a manufacturer is given to test a drug and come up with evidence to refute a decision that the drug is ineffective or unsafe.

But Sidney Wolfe, who heads the consumer group, contended that even one year is too long for consumers to be exposed to drugs which have failed to meet government standards.

He maintained that the proposal did not fulfill the requirements of a federal court ruling announced last summer. And he asserted that the FDA is placing the interests of the drug industry ahead of consumers.

"They seem more interested in protecting the health of the drug industry than the public in keeping these junk drugs on the market," he said. Americans spend $4 billion annually on over-the-counter drugs. Wolfe estimated that half that amount is spent on products containing ingredients which haven't been proven safe or effective.

Congress has required the FDA to review all non-prescription drugs for safety and effectiveness. Of the 1,141 ingredients checked, the FDA found that 754 lack evidence either of safety, effectiveness or both, Wolfe said.

FDA spokesman Wayne Pines challenged Wolfe's conclusion. "These are old ingredients that merely lack, in many cases, modern evidence of effectiveness," he said. "We think those products can safely remain on the market while this testing is going on."

Under FDA's system, a drug was put in Category I if it was proven safe and effective, Category II if it was unsafe or ineffective and should no longer be marketed, and Category III if it was believed to be safe or effective but lacked the scientific proof to confirm it.

The suit successfully challenged the use of Category III.

FDA's old procedures called for an independent panel to review a category of drugs, have its report published and let the public comment for up to 120 days. Then, FDA would issue a tentative monograph of acceptable ingredients which would be open for comment for 60 days. FDA would follow with a final standard and give a company up to two years to disprove that a product was unsafe or ineffective before its sale was discontinued.

The new procedure is similar, requiring the agency to publish a tentative monograph and then allow one year of testing before offering a final monograph. No drug found to be unsafe or ineffective could be marketed after that time.

This regulatory change is subject to a public comment period lasting 60 days.

White blood cells help this bacteria

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bacteria that cause the mysterious Legionnaires' Disease are helped, rather than hurt, by some of the human body's white blood cells which protect the body against other diseases, researchers say.

That explains why the disease, which is a type of pneumonia, is hard to fight, Rockefeller University scientists told the American Society for Clinical Investigation Monday.

The bacteria belong "to a select group of pathogenic (disease-causing) bacteria that evade the body's defenses by parasitizing monocytes," Drs. Marcus Horowitz and Samuel Silverstein told the meeting.

Monocytes are white blood cells. The Legionnaires' disease bacteria enter the monocytes where they thrive instead of being killed, the researchers said.

The disease takes its name from a 1976 outbreak in Philadelphia in which 29 persons were killed and a number of other persons became ill. Most of the victims had attended a state American Legion convention at a Philadelphia hotel.

After the 1976 outbreak attracted global attention, researchers were able to pinpoint the cause of the bacteria, but not how it spreads. Outbreaks of the disease have been reported around the world since 1976.

Horowitz said in an interview that he studied the monocyte-bacterium relationship because the Legionnaires' disease organism had been found inside white cells in the lungs of victims.

"But it wasn't known how the bacterium got there," he said. "We weren't sure whether they grew in the white cells or were ingested by the cells earlier, as the cells are supposed to do when they fight invaders."

The scientists infected human monocytes maintained in a laboratory culture with the same strain of Legionnaires' disease bacterium that caused the Philadelphia outbreak.

The researchers found that the bacteria multiplied rapidly within the monocytes, but did not grow well in the culture medium outside the cells.

Eventually, the disease bacteria destroyed the monocytes and growth stopped at this point, they noted.

DAR chapter meets

The Lt. William Brewer Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met recently at the Woman's Club. Mrs. John N. Parker, regent, opened the meeting with a short business meeting to adopt the budget for the coming year.

Dr. Dorothy Wyvell gave the national defense report consisting of excerpts from "The Eleventh Hour," a book by Gen. Lewis W. Walt, USMC (Ret).

Mrs. Helena Gaston, Americanism chairman, reported on the naturalization ceremonies when 51 persons became American citizens at the Federal Court in Midland. Mrs. Gaston attended as a representative of the chapter.

The luncheon honoring the scholarship winners from Lee and Midland High Schools was opened with the ritual and a prayer. Susan Elaine Roop is the LHS recipient, while Stephanie Gayle Estes is an MHS recipient.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. John Fitz-Gerald, program chairman, introduced Mrs. John Rhea and Mrs. John Cross, who presented a program on the 89th Continental Congress of DAR in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Cross and Mrs. Rhea attended as chapter delegates. Mrs. Cross stated that DAR currently has 210,000 members in 3,112 chapters.

Guests attending were Mrs. Jack Estes, Mrs. James R. Roop, Stephanie Estes, Mrs. C.W. Chancellor, Mrs. Jack Ferguson, Mrs. H.N. Phillips and Mrs. Paul Scherzer.

Hostesses were Mrs. M.A. Bonner, Mrs. W.E. Bryan, Mrs. James Hardwick, Mrs. J.A. Hord and Mrs. Francis H. McGuigan.

Artist shows how to paint cotton

The Midland Porcelain Art Club met recently at the Midland Woman's Club for a presentation by guest artist, Mrs. Johnnie Estes of Lamesa, who demonstrated the painting of cotton.

She has developed her own techniques for painting this feature of the West Texas area. Twenty-four members were present for the demonstration and luncheon.

A highlight of the meeting was the installation of new club officers for the coming year. Nona Moore, club member, installed the officers. She presented each with a flower of a special color relating to the job of the officer.

Volunteers discuss picnic

Plans were discussed for the picnic to be May 20 for patients of the Big Spring State Hospital at Comanche Trail Park in Big Spring during the meeting of the Midland Volunteer Auxiliary to the hospital. A report on the rummage sale held in Big Spring was given during the meeting which was held at Grace Presbyterian Church. Dorothy Strawn and Nita Saylor were hostesses for the meeting. Anyone wishing to be a volunteer in this organization should contact Nita Saylor at 694-1194.

Female firefighter quits

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Linda Eaton, the firefighter who gained national attention when she fought a court battle for the right to breastfeed her baby at the firehouse, has resigned. The 27-year-old Miss Eaton took the action on Tuesday, but her reason was not made public. She promised to give the details at a news conference today. Miss Eaton, who was the city's only female firefighter, won an Iowa Civil Rights discrimination ruling against Iowa City. That decision has been appealed by the city.

Teachers are now adopted

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — "I hereby put myself up for adoption," said Alice Woertendyke of Kamiah, Idaho. That's a little unusual for a teacher who retired in 1975. But as she sailed off with her husband on a merchant marine ship to see the world. Mrs. Woertendyke was adopted by six deaf fourth-graders at the Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding. Mrs. Woertendyke has been sending the children photographs from her ports-of-call, and the children have been writing back every other week. She is one of a thousand new adoptees, all participants in an "Adopt-a-Grandteacher" program sponsored by Xerox Education Publications in "Weekly Reader," the national newspaper for grade-school children. Betty McClendon, a teacher from Canton, Ga., suggested the program after she received a letter from a recently widowed, retired teacher who asked children to write to her. Xerox Education Publications worked with the National Retired Teachers Association last fall to obtain names of retired teachers who wanted to correspond with children. The NRTA put an advertisement in its national journal and thousands of "Grandteachers" responded. The Grandteachers picked the grade level they desired and, in some cases, the area of the country.

Play 'recession game'

By ERMA BOMBECK

I'm waiting for someone to boycott the "Spending Olympics" being held this year in the United States.

Somehow the president's message just hasn't filtered down to the people yet. A couple of us were in the supermarket the other day when Mayva threw a couple of lawn chairs in her basket.

"Mayva," I said, "you don't need those lawn chairs. Didn't you hear the president a few weeks ago invite you to a recession?"

"I know, and we can't go," she said, then added brightly, "But Herb and I are sending a check!"

Peggy pursed her lips into a pout and said, "Spoilsport! Spending money is the only adventure left that hasn't killed research rats."

Adventure! Peggy had put her finger on it. Spending in this country has become one big game. You buy a car and bands play, balloons fly and someone hands you a $500 rebate.

You buy a water bed and get a free pair of cowboy boots. You purchase a freezer and get a three-months' supply of hamburger. You purchase a subscription to Reader's Digest and you get a shot at the big sweepstakes.

Inside every bag of dog snacks is a coupon for 1/2 off the next one you buy. Send in three soap labels and win a trip to Europe.

Spending is fun. Have a hamburger at McDonald's and while you're there, if your ticket stubs match up you may win $10,000. Baseball players on strike? Who cares? Play baseball while you're flying American airlines and you may be the big winner and fly free for a whole month.

For awhile, banks entered the Spending Olympics, but they were rank amateurs compared to manufacturers. If you opened a savings account for $10,000 and left your money in for three years, they gave you a rain bonnet in a plastic carrying case and gave you a choice of suckers from the Lollipop Tree.

If you took the same $10,000 and made a down payment on a condominium, you got a microwave oven, a chance on a cabin cruiser, a weekend with the Royal Family in Monaco, and a part in a Burt Reynolds movie.

The only way I can see it is the government is just going to have to "sell" a recession to the people with a Recession Sweepstakes. Make a game out of it. The first one to end up at the end of the week without spending more than he makes will be given a free ticket to pass IRS audit, collect $200 tax-free and have a chance to live in the greatest financially-sound country in the world... Switzerland!

Couple married in Houston

HOUSTON — Traci Lynn Anger of Houston and Randall James Holt of Lubbock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry S. Holt, 2300 Stutz Place, Midland, exchanged wedding vows at 7 p.m. Saturday in the chapel of the First Baptist Church here.

The bride is the daughter of Douglas P. Anger of Beaumont and the late Nola R. Anger of Houston.

The Rev. Dennis P. Anger of Oak Grove, La., brother of the bride, officiated the ceremony.

Honor attendants were Nicholas F. Holt of Lubbock, brother of the bridegroom, best man, and Holly Henkhaus of Houston, maid of honor.

Other bridal attendants were Mrs. Ralph Bistline of Houston, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Diane Lokay of College Station and Mrs. Michael Wall of Houston, both bridesmaids.

Rachel Bistline and Lauren Bistline, both of Houston and nieces of the bride, served as flower girls.

Groomsmen were Phillip A. Holt of Midland, brother of the bridegroom, Ralph Bistline of Houston, brother-in-law of the bride, and Paul Borgan of College Station.

After a wedding trip to Corpus Christi, the couple will live in Midland during the summer while the bridegroom works for Gulf Oil Corp. The couple will return to Lubbock in the fall where the bridegroom will resume his studies as a petroleum engineer.

Mrs. Randall James Holt

Special out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Spooner and Mrs. Alma Holt, all of Odessa, grandparents of the bridegroom.

All-female state trooper class population dwindles

SEA GIRT, N.J. (AP) — The all-female class of New Jersey state troopers, which stood at 104 cadets three months ago, has dwindled to 36 as the rigors of training and the demands of the job take their toll at the half-way point in the course.

There's no single explanation for the high attrition rate, State Police Academy officials say, and they are not sure if more women will leave.

"We still have a real variety of reasons (for women leaving)," said State Police Superintendent Clinton Pagano. "We lost one of our better candidates (this week)...She didn't think she could stand the sight of blood, and in the case of an emergency she stated she would not be able to respond."

Three women were dismissed because they did not meet physical, academic and medical standards, he said.

By comparison, all-male trooper classes usually have dropout rates of less than 50 percent, officials said.

"I just wasn't ready right now to give the commitment," said Charlene Zelaukas of Willingboro, at 18 the youngest class member. "It's a big commitment. In the last three weeks, they drilled it into us that it would be a 24-hour job, something like that. I said I am not willing to give up my private life yet."

Miss Zelaukas has taken a job as a bank teller and she is considering becoming a security guard or corrections officer. She said she had no regrets about leaving Sea Girt and wanted someday to return.

Carolyn Miller, 33, of Newark, said she was forced to leave because of an enlarged thyroid gland.

"I was really disappointed," said Ms. Miller, mother of a 14-year-old son. "I was already seeing myself on the road." She has returned to college and waitressing.

"I don't think some of the women were aware what the training was like," she said. "Before I left, some of the girls said it was really rough, which I didn't find it to be. I expected it to be like Army training, which it was."

The women entered the 20-week course on Feb. 13 after the state police, under pressure from the federal government to hire more women, decided an all-female class was one way to draw women to the force.

Since New Jersey's state police began actively recruiting in 1975, only two women have completed training and have been hired. This class is due to graduate on June 27.

Overweight women have another worry

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a new health danger for overweight women: a greater risk of having breast cancer.

That's the result of a study released Sunday by Canadian doctors at a meeting of the American Society of Clinical Investigation.

Not only do overweight women have a greater chance of getting the cancer, but their survival rate after treatment is lower, the study said.

Obesity has long been associated with high blood pressure, heart trouble and other health problems. The study involved 750 breast cancer patients at the Princess Margaret and Sunnybrook hospitals in Toronto.

Dr. Norman F. Boyd told the meeting that the study has shown the reason for the apparent relationship between weight and survival of cancer. But, he suggested, it may be tied into hormone levels. Studies show heavier women tend to have higher hormone levels.

Looking at the factors that increase the chances of a person getting cancer, the study said, "weight was the only risk factor found to be associated with statistically significant differences in survival."

Using 140 pounds as a dividing line, the study showed that 62 percent of the women who had cancer and weighed less than that weight were free of cancer after five years, compared to only 45 percent above that weight.

Court refuses to consider 'pill suit' filed by father

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who sued his former lover for becoming pregnant after, he says, assuring him she was on birth control pills has lost a bid to have his case heard in the state Court of Appeal.

The court said Monday it would be an unwarranted invasion of privacy for it to supervise lovers' promises.

"Though the presentation of the matter as a legal issue is somewhat novel," wrote Appeal Court Justice Edwin F. Beach, "the social conditions underlying it have existed since the advent of mankind."

The dispute arose when Roni D. Lasher brought a paternity suit against Stephen Kleinberg. Kleinberg admitted he was the father of her child but filed a countersuit for $200,000 against Ms. Lasher for "fraud, negligent misrepresentation and negligence." Kleinberg contended he suffered because of his obligation to support a daughter he did not want. He contended he had sex with Ms. Lasher because she told him she was taking birth control pills.

Harvest savings from garden

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Millions of Americans have learned to harvest savings from family vegetable gardens, but would-be farmers who get too ambitious or rely heavily on gimmicks can end up wasting money.

"If you're interested in growing plants, learn the basic principles and use your head," advises Ernest F. Schaufler, a professor at the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

"You need light, nutrients, supporting media, water and optimum temperature," says Schaufler. "No gadget or gardening miracle can substitute for these factors."

The gardening boom began in the early 1970s when food prices soared, and it has continued ever since. The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that more than four families in 10 now have household plots. In 1977 alone, home gardeners harvested $14 billion worth of fruits and vegetables.

The growth is not confined to the country. Urban gardening programs where city residents share public land in community plots are expanding. One such program, in Los Angeles, helps low-income families lease land and teaches them about planting, harvesting and preserving.

Ron Baker, manager of the program, which is run by the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of California in Los Angeles, said the three-year old project started with 2,000 participants. This year, Baker expects 30,000 gardeners to join. "The interest is there," he said.

Successful gardening, however, takes planning. "Think small," advised one Agriculture Department expert. You may dream of big savings from a big garden, but the size could end up defeating you.

A USDA book, "Gardening for Food and Fun," points out that gardening is hard work and warns: "Things have to be done at certain times during the growing season for best results. This could interfere at times with things like golfing, fishing or weekend outings." A 10-foot-by-10-foot plot should provide enough vegetables for a family of four — if everything grows — without requiring more time or effort than you are willing to devote.

Keep family tastes in mind when you decide what to plant. A bushel of home-grown peppers is no bargain if no one in the family will eat them. Look for vegetables that are easy to grow. Salad bowl lettuce, tomatoes, bell peppers, eggplant, zucchini squash and New Zealand or hot weather spinach are among the simpler varieties.

Don't get carried away with fancy equipment. Cornell's Schaufler warns against "brightly packaged, short-cut gardening gimmicks." He adds: "Know what you want to accomplish before spending money for any item. The convenience might be worth the time and effort it saves you, but only if your time has a high value."

When buying seeds, look for the words "packed for" and the current year on the label. Some vegetable seeds will last for a couple years, but it is best not to take chances.

Have your soil tested to find out whether the soil is acid or alkaline and what kind of nutrients it needs. Your County Extension Service will do the test for a small fee.

Once your garden is planted, you will have to water frequently, particularly if you have sandy soil. As a general rule, it's time to water when you can stick a 10-inch trowel straight down in the soil and it comes up almost dry. One good watering is better than two or three light sprinklings; the moisture has to get to the roots of the plants to do its work.

School objectives panels formed

Concerned about the future of Midland's education? Want to do something about it?

During Tuesday's trustees' meeting of the Midland Independent School District, the board organized seven committees which they felt would address certain needs and some educational goals established by the Objectives for the 80's committee, according to Ed Runyan, president of the trustees.

The committees would assist the school administration and be responsible in developing recommendations which would help achieve those objectives, Runyan noted. And he suggested that a committee of interested Midland citizens provide the essential input needed to make certain recommendations.

The seven committees are divided into specialized areas. A report to the board regarding the committee's findings and recommendations would be made sometime during the 1980-81 school year.

The committees and their chairmen are:

Objectives for Midland, Parker Humes. This committee would be responsible for coordinating school district goals with the Objectives for Midland goals so that maximum progress can be achieved.

Administration Organization, Marshall McCrea. This committee will examine and make recommendations regarding the school district's administrative organizational structure.

Personnel, Ed Runyan. This committee will review all personnel policies and procedures including screening, interviewing, hiring and on-going procedures. Recommendations would be made to insure the school district is following sound and modern personnel practices.

Facilities, Johnny Warren. The committee will review and make recommendations regarding all school district facilities to insure they will meet future educational requirements with emphasis on modern construction practices.

Discipline, Ron Britton. This committee will determine the district's present discipline situation and recommend changes, if any, which would maintain a well-disciplined environment in the schools.

Future planning, Joyce Sherrod. This committee will investigate and inform trustees regarding future developments in education, facilities, and teaching methods which will affect future education.

Educational Supervisory Personnel, Bill Jackson. The committee is responsible for examining practices and policies regarding school principals. Special emphasis is placed on the principals' training and development.

Persons interested in joining a committee should contact the committee chairman.

Refugee may be gold mine of military information for U.S.

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Cristo Paz Martinez may be only a well-informed fibber or a double-talking agent. But if he is what he claims — a Cuban navy communications expert — Martinez may be a gold mine of information for the U.S. military.

Martinez was interrogated here by military intelligence officers and faces more interviews with the FBI in Miami.

Special Agent Arthur F. Nehrbass said if it is true the 23-year-old Martinez was a lieutenant in charge of communications at a Cuban base in Mariel, he is the first "Cuban military deserter" to reach the United States in the boatlift. There have been some ex-military personnel among the refugees.

Martinez arrived here Saturday and, instead of being immediately shipped to other processing centers, was given a temporary job helping feed other refugees.

The kind of information officials think he might have was exemplified when he was told about the Cuban attack Saturday on a Bahamian patrol boat about 30 miles north of Cabo Lucretia, Cuba. Martinez said it could have happened because there are two Russian submarine installations near there.

Pointing to a large map of Cuba, Martinez said Russian sub bases are located in the inlet just south of Cabo Lucretia and in an inlet about 10 miles east.

Group wants to show incurable to the 'Exit'

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

LONDON (AP) — Flooding into a basement office in London's Kensington district are thousands of letters from people who want to know how to kill themselves.

They want to pay $11.50 for a controversial do-it-yourself guide to death that has been compiled by Britain's 45-year-old Voluntary Euthanasia Society, which recently renamed itself 'Exit, the right to die with dignity.'

The booklet was written by a committee of doctors, lawyers and social scientists, and publication is planned for June or July if the society's lawyers decide it is not illegal.

Exit will not give details in advance. But it says the guide lists four bloodless methods, including specific instructions on fatal overdoses of pills available at drugstores without a prescription.

The organization, which has long pressed unsuccessfully for liberalized euthanasia laws, has held up publication while its lawyers decide whether it could be prosecuted. Suicide has been legal in Britain since 1961, but — as in the United States — "aiding and abetting" suicide is an offense, punishable here by up to 14 years in jail.

"We are deeply concerned with the plight of the dying, and determined to go ahead and publish," Exit's secretary, Nicholas Reed, 32, said in an interview.

The suicide guide is intended primarily for the painfully and incurably ill and aged persons who are incapacitated.

Reed contended there is increasing public acceptance of the viewpoint that it is better to die than to linger on when incurable disabilities "make each day and night a death in life."

He concedes that Exit's rule that the booklet will be sold only to members of three months' standing, is scant precaution against its being acquired by the healthy in despair, including the impulsive.

The British Medical Association, dismayed by Exit's plans, declared in a recent statement that the booklet was liable to wide abuse and "may discourage people suffering from acute depression from seeking help."

In New York, A.J. Levinson, president of the Concern for Dying, an American equivalent of Exit, said the organization "is not opposing it (the booklet) but we're not promoting it."

"Anything that makes people conscious of the problems that dying people have is good, but anything that encourages suicide I'm not so sure about," she said.

The Samaritans, an international suicide-prevention organization, takes a dim view of the booklet. Jean Burt, its joint general secretary in Britain, said most survivors of suicide attempts are glad to be still alive, but "Once people know how to do it, they probably will, and then there's no second chance."

"It's fear of bungling it that stops many people," Ms. Burt added. Exit argues that it is precisely because dying, like living, can be a risky and painful business that it compiled its booklet.

Reed cited an 80-year-old woman doctor who injected herself with what she believed was a fatal dose of morphine — 10 grains. She survived, but with brain damage, incontinent and barely mobile.

Since Exit announced last fall that the booklet was finished, membership in the society has soared from 2,000 to more than 6,000, including about 100 Americans. The membership fee is $6.90 a year for residents of Britain, $23 for foreigners and $68 for life.

Most of the sheaves of letters Reed produces come from middle-aged or elderly people who say they are healthy and happy now but want the information just in case. But a sprinkling of members intend to use the booklet right away.

"Mostly they regard it as a safeguard," Reed said, "but we have about 10 people just waiting for it to come out."

Some new members describe watching parents or others they loved die slowly and in agony and say they do not want it to happen to them.

A 36-year-old New Jersey teacher wrote of his father-in-law's lingering death. "What I watched made me realize, if possible, I would prefer to make my own decision," he said.

Another member wrote: "I'll just feel better, knowing where the exit is."

Reed says he has had only two calls from unhappy teen-agers. Exit wants euthanasia legalized under strict controls and says its booklet is a "second-best."

"Doing it yourself is never as reliable as getting professionals to do it," Reed said. He pointed out that the booklet is not practical for the severely disabled who would have to ask for help.

The plight of such desperate people is well publicized in the current London and New York theater hit "Whose Life Is It, Anyway?" — about a young quadriplegic who longs for death but is physically incapable of killing himself.

"I suppose in a sense we should measure our success by the number of members we lose," said Reed.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Weight not only factor

Dear Dr. Solomon: After losing 25 pounds over the past three months, I thought I would be in good physical condition. Yet I still get winded when I walk any distance even though I'm not quite 40 years of age. How do you account for this? — Murray

Dear Murray: Weight control alone is no guarantee of physical fitness. I can only guess from your letter that exercise is not a regular part of your routine. If you are seriously interested in physical fitness, weight control, regular exercise, and a nutritious, well-balanced diet must all be a part of your program. If you would like to read further about it you can find more information in my book, Dr. Solomon's Proven Master Plan for Total Body Fitness and Maintenance.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been told by my physician to restrict my intake of sodium, and do not find this to be a hardship. What I do find difficult is determining the amount of sodium in the foods I buy. Many package labels show the amount of sodium added to the food, but not the total sodium content. Can anything be done about this? — Mr. F.T.

Dear Mr. T.: Help may be on the way. The Council on Scientific Affairs of the American Medical Association is supporting legislation that would require the labels on food packages to show total sodium levels, not just the amount added to the food. Dr. Philip White, who directs the AMA's Department of Foods and Nutrition, points out that by listing only the added levels, food manufacturers and processors overlook 30 percent of the sodium in foods.

Legislation requiring the listing of the potassium content of foods also is being supported since patients on sodium-restricted diets, as well as those taking diuretics, may have to eat foods rich in potassium.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Various times you have advised dieters to eat slowly. Will you explain why this is helpful in efforts to lose weight? — Cindy

Dear Cindy: As I note in my book Doctor Solomon's Easy, No-Risk Diet, your stomach is 20 minutes ahead of your brain. In other words, from the time you put food into your mouth and it arrives in your stomach until your brain responds by saying, "I've had enough," there is a 20-minute time lag. So each meal should last at least 20 minutes.

Although dieters should make it a point to eat slowly regardless of the particular food they happen to be consuming, Dr. Henry A. Jordan, a University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist, suggests that soup at the start of a meal can be particularly helpful in this regard. He explains that hot soup must be eaten more slowly and more deliberately than other foods.

Dr. Jordan reports on a study of more than a thousand volunteers, all of whom were at least 15 percent over their ideal weight. Those who had soup for lunch took in an average of almost 55 calories less per meal than other subjects who took part in the study.

Families sue Cryonics Society for failure to preserve bodies

CHATSWORTH, Calif. (AP) — The lure of life after death proved a trap for the families of nine dead people whose frozen bodies were to be preserved at a cemetery here until they could be revived, says an attorney.

Instead, the bodies rotted inside their crypts, causing the families disillusionment and grief, says Westwood lawyer Michael Worthington.

Three families represented by Worthington have filed suit in Los Angeles County Superior Court, seeking $10 million in punitive damages, $500,000 for emotional suffering plus several thousand dollars in expenses.

Worthington says it's a story with elements from science-fiction tales or late-night horror movies about mad scientists.

He believes it was faith in cryogenics — the freezing of bodies for revival in the future when cures are available for fatal diseases — that led families to entrust their deceased loved ones to the now-defunct Cryonics Society of California.

The bodies, including those of two children and a 24-year-old man, were to be kept frozen with liquid nitrogen in an underground mausoleum at Oakwood Memorial Park in this Los Angeles County town, in the hopes that someday those people would live again.

But even if cryogenics — or cryonics, as the society dubbed its process — is someday perfected, these nine people will never be revived.

When investigators opened the tomb in March, instead of a gleaming white-and-steel laboratory, they found badly deteriorated bodies in wooden shipping boxes, Worthington said.

"People will believe in it until it's absolutely proven that they've been defrauded," said Worthington. "You cannot shake their confidence. They couldn't live with themselves otherwise."

The families' suit, alleging breach of contract, fraud and negligent misrepresentation, names the former Cryonics Society of California, the affiliated Cryonic Interment Inc., the two groups' former president, Robert Nelson, and mortician Joseph Klockgether of Buena Park.

Newport Beach attorney Robert Winterbotham, speaking on behalf of Nelson, told a different story. "Everyone knew that it was an experimental venture. What happened was that the heirs made promises of a financial nature and they didn't keep them and the society had to shut off the care system," Winterbotham said.

John Hager, a Los Angeles attorney representing Klockgether, said his client shouldn't be named in the suit. He said Klockgether was simply performing services as a mortician for Nelson and "in many cases, he wasn't even paid for what he did."

Los Angeles Police Department investigator George Hawes said police are not involved in the matter because the families who are suing live out-of-state.

The purported possibilities of cryonics began attracting interest in the early 1970s. Despite costs ranging as high as $50,000, people were attracted by brochures such as that from the California society.

"Stated simply, you may have a positive chance of surviving clinical death," the brochure said.

That chance was enough to attract the families of two dying children, a boy from Orange County, Calif., and 8-year-old Genevieve de la Poterie of Canada, who died of cancer in 1972.

Also drawn to the society were the families of a young man, a couple in their 50s and several elderly persons from as far away as Iowa, Michigan and New York, all of whom had terminal illnesses.

Worthington said the families became members of the nonprofit society before entrusting the bodies to the affiliated Cryonic Interment Inc.

You are what you eat, says restaurant menu

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Folks who eat lunch at the Faculty Club at Stanford University get more than a meal. They get a lecture from the menu, want it or not.

Everything on the menu is rated by how much damage it'll do. The roast beef and Jarlsberg cheese sandwich, for example, is rated FF-1000-CC.

The F's stand for saturated fat, the C's for cholesterol and the numbers for calories.

Better settle for the artichoke casserole — it's only F-400-C.

Only in California — and only on the campus of a high-powered, heavy-thinking, prestigious university — would the menu offer such a nudge, giving you a poke in the conscience when you want to eat something unhealthy.

It is not unusual for restaurant menus to offer waist-watcher plates or even to whisper the caloric content of dishes.

But here the menu goes beyond that, rating each dish relative to the others.

So a dish with two F's would be twice as bad for you as one with one F. An FFF dish would be even more hazardous to your health and an FFFF dish would be a dietary timebomb.

Scientists suspect that saturated fats are a culprit in heart and blood vessel disease and strokes; cholesterol is linked with those ailments, too, as well as hardening of the arteries.

The menu was instigated by Stanford professor Ron Bracewell, a radio astronomer who, when president of the Faculty Club, became concerned about whether his colleagues were eating well.

There was a rumor that medical school faculty members were boycotting the club because the food was too rich for their blood.

So Bracewell went to the Stanford Heart Disease Prevention Program, which, with the help of a dietician, came up with the rating scheme. Has it changed faculty eating habits?

The Heart Disease Prevention Program says it cannot discern much of a change, but Mario Scherrer, manager of the club, said diners ate 125 hamburgers (FF-900-CCC) a week in 1973 but only 26 in a recent week. "It sounds like a good idea, but I haven't made any decisions based on it," said Kenneth Harker, a senior physics research associate.

His fellow diner, Fred Crawford, was having an F-900-C meal, soup and salad, but he said, "There are days when I have a Frenchburger (that's a cheeseburger on French bread — an awesome FFFF-1200-CCCC) and I'm still here to tell the tale."

But student waiters at the club say the professors are becoming more conscious of what they're eating than they might want to admit.

"People say, 'Oh, OK, I'll be good to myself,'" says Mark Sitzer.

"Sometimes people change what they order after they hear what everyone else at the table is ordering."

Waiter Doug Townes said sometimes diners, half joking, become irritated with the tell-all menu. "They say, 'Why do you tell me what I don't want to know?'"

Many states raise legal drinking age

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Georgia will do it in four months. New Hampshire and Massachusetts did it last spring. Florida and at least eight other states are thinking about doing it, too.

The issue being discussed in statehouses — and high schools and colleges — is drinking or, more precisely, how old people should be before they may legally consume alcoholic beverages.

A new Georgia law will go into effect Sept. 1 boosting the age from 18 to 19 but exempting young people in the armed forces. Other states — Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey and Tennessee — also raised the minimum legal drinking age during the past year.

But Dr. Gerardo Gonzalez, a University of Florida researcher who runs a college alcohol awareness program called "Bacchus," contends such laws are backfiring.

"My feeling is that raising the drinking age causes more problems than it solves," Gonzalez said after a recent visit to the University of New Hampshire to talk to college officials about the effects of the new law in that state.

"What they have found are problems like their residence assistants being assaulted by students when they try to enforce the new law, and increasing (traffic) fatalities among the 18 to 20 age group," said Gonzalez.

When the issue came up in the Florida Senate earlier this month, it was sent back to committee after a joking suggestion by Sen. Jack Gordon, D-Miami.

Gordon drew hearty laughs when he suggested an amendment to prohibit people between the ages of 34 and 36 from drinking, noting statistics that show that age group has the highest incidence of alcoholism.

Gordon also raised the main argument against raising the legal drinking age, saying it's hypocritical to permit 18-year-olds to vote and serve in the military but bar them from buying a drink.

Proponents all along have argued that the higher drinking age would reduce the number of alcohol-related highway deaths.

"The No. 1 killer of young people in this state is not cancer. It is not heart disease. It is alcohol-related accidents," said Democratic Rep. Fran Carlton.

"Raising the drinking age will help to save the lives of young people who are dying by the hundreds in alcohol-related accidents."

Gonzalez and others contend there's no such proof.

"While the efforts are well-intentioned, the evidence does not support such a move," Gonzalez said.

"In Massachusetts, they have found an increase in DWI (driving while intoxicated) arrests in teenagers," he said. "We get the opposite effect of what it intended."

The same thoughts were voiced in Washington at the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, which picked "Bacchus" as a national model.

"There's no conclusive evidence that the drinking age makes any difference because young people are drinking at a younger age, prior to any age limit," said institute spokesman Paul Garner.

"Let's face it, most of the kids get the liquor out of their homes anyway."

Garner and Gonzalez say what's needed are programs like "Bacchus" to inform young people about what will happen when they drink to excess. Death in an automobile should be high on the list, they say.

"I think it's pretty well established that laws in and of themselves do not change social customs," Gonzalez said. "What we need is to support a comprehensive and sustained commitment toward alcohol education — drinking and driving, the effects of alcohol on grades, and some of the other negative consequences."

Gonzalez' program is used on at least 14 college campuses around the nation.

This afternoon's stock market report

New York Exchange

NATIONAL (AP) - Selected noon national prices for American Stock Exchange issues.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices moved up today, with most oil stocks rising as Saudi Arabia increased the price of its oil by $2 a barrel.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 2.82 to 819.71 in the first two hours of trading, as advances outnumbered declines by a margin of almost 3-1 among New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Saudis, whose price has been below the price charged by other oil exporters, notified oil companies they have raised the price of a 42-gallon barrel by $2, to $28.

Most oil stocks were up for the second day in a row. Getty climbed 1 1/2 to 73 1/2 and Conoco rose 1/4 to 45 1/4.

But Mobil, which is a major buyer of Saudi oil and said it was surprised by the increase, fell 1/4 to 67 1/4.

A federal judge ruled Tuesday that President Carter's proposed gasoline fee, which would have boosted gasoline prices by 10 cents a gallon, was illegal.

That helped spark a rally that raised the Dow average by 11.69 points.

General Motors fell 1/4 to 44 1/4 after reporting sharply lower auto sales for the first ten days of May. General Foods, which reported higher earnings, was up 1/4 to 28 1/4.

Retail stocks were strong. Federated Department Stores rose 3/4 to 28 and Sears Roebuck climbed 1/4 to 17 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index of common stocks rose 35 to 60.89 in the first two hours of trading, as volume on the Big Board totaled 19.46 million shares, compared to 14.05 million shares at the same time Tuesday.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 2.12 to 253.54.

NEW YORK (AP) - Homebuyers aren't likely to rush into the marketplace now that prices seem to have stabilized and mortgage rates have dropped even faster than they rose. They have learned to be wary.

"There are a lot of scared buyers out there," is the way Robert J. Mylod describes the market. "People know we're in a recession; they're still waiting to find out how severe."

Mylod, president of Advance Mortgage Corp., a lender, reasons: "A 12 percent rate may appear a bargain to a person who looked at 17 earlier, but his tendency will be to see if rates aren't going lower still."

Still, according to some current forecasts being made by knowledgeable housing people, it might not be wise to wait too long. Prices, and interest rates too, they say, may head higher again next year.

In the meantime, economists expect the existing home market, in which sales fell from a rate of 4 million units last summer to 2.7 million in March, to get back on its pinnings before the new home market rebuilds.

In fact, Jack Carlson, operating head of the National Association of Realtors, believes the existing market might already have seen its worst and that sales will now build slowly for the rest of the year.

For new housing, however, "It will be next spring before we see any kind of life," Leonard Santow, an economist, told a conference sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders.

Panelists at the meeting suggested that the new home market, where sales are below a million starts a year, may be hindered by cautious buyers and a slowness of lower interest to be reflected in mortgage rates.

Still, says Mylod, "there is a reservoir of backed-up demand," that eventually will feed into the market. "Some areas have real shortages, and inventories of completed houses are low." And, he added, "Most Americans still perceive housing as their best inflation hedge."

A lot of housing people agree.

Jay Janis, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said at the home builder's conference that low production this year and into 1981 could precipitate more sharp price increases in 1982 and 1983.

Kenneth Rosen, University of California at Berkeley economist, concurred. Price surges in 1981 through 1983, he said, would be comparable to what occurred in the 1977 and 1978 economic recovery.

Carlson and other housing authorities are on record with essentially the same outlook for prices. Carlson also foresees a return sometime next year to sharply higher mortgage rates, perhaps 20 percent.

For the most part, they reason that as demand rebuilds inflation must return because the underlying causes of inflation have not been dealt with by Washington. Carlson, an economist, is vehement.

"Unfortunately," he said in a statement issued last week, "no one seems to have noticed that this highly touted balanced budget is not coming because of a responsible administration or Congress, but will be achieved — if it will — at the sole expense of the American taxpayer."

Federal taxes, he argues, must rise by $900 for each household this year and by another $1,200 next year if balance is to be achieved. This, he states, is the biggest tax increase in U.S. history, and will result in a record percentage of income being absorbed by government.

Government spending of this size, he concludes, will quickly rekindle the ashes of this year's recession and lead to even greater inflation by next year, reflected in both housing prices and mortgage costs.

In other words — and once again, it appears — if the cautious buyer remains wary too long he might miss the house.

Mylod, president of Advance Mortgage Corp., a lender, reasons: "A 12 percent rate may appear a bargain to a person who looked at 17 earlier, but his tendency will be to see if rates aren't going lower still."

Still, according to some current forecasts being made by knowledgeable housing people, it might not be wise to wait too long. Prices, and interest rates too, they say, may head higher again next year.

In the meantime, economists expect the existing home market, in which sales fell from a rate of 4 million units last summer to 2.7 million in March, to get back on its pinnings before the new home market rebuilds.

In fact, Jack Carlson, operating head of the National Association of Realtors, believes the existing market might already have seen its worst and that sales will now build slowly for the rest of the year.

For new housing, however, "It will be next spring before we see any kind of life," Leonard Santow, an economist, told a conference sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders.

Panelists at the meeting suggested that the new home market, where sales are below a million starts a year, may be hindered by cautious buyers and a slowness of lower interest to be reflected in mortgage rates.

Still, says Mylod, "there is a reservoir of backed-up demand," that eventually will feed into the market. "Some areas have real shortages, and inventories of completed houses are low." And, he added, "Most Americans still perceive housing as their best inflation hedge."

A lot of housing people agree.

Jay Janis, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said at the home builder's conference that low production this year and into 1981 could precipitate more sharp price increases in 1982 and 1983.

Kenneth Rosen, University of California at Berkeley economist, concurred. Price surges in 1981 through 1983, he said, would be comparable to what occurred in the 1977 and 1978 economic recovery.

Carlson and other housing authorities are on record with essentially the same outlook for prices. Carlson also foresees a return sometime next year to sharply higher mortgage rates, perhaps 20 percent.

For the most part, they reason that as demand rebuilds inflation must return because the underlying causes of inflation have not been dealt with by Washington. Carlson, an economist, is vehement.

"Unfortunately," he said in a statement issued last week, "no one seems to have noticed that this highly touted balanced budget is not coming because of a responsible administration or Congress, but will be achieved — if it will — at the sole expense of the American taxpayer."

Federal taxes, he argues, must rise by $900 for each household this year and by another $1,200 next year if balance is to be achieved. This, he states, is the biggest tax increase in U.S. history, and will result in a record percentage of income being absorbed by government.

Government spending of this size, he concludes, will quickly rekindle the ashes of this year's recession and lead to even greater inflation by next year, reflected in both housing prices and mortgage costs.

In other words — and once again, it appears — if the cautious buyer remains wary too long he might miss the house.

British workers ignore strike call

LONDON (AP) — Most of Britain's 26 million workers ignored a call for a 24-hour nationwide shutdown today by labor unionists opposed to the economic policies of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her Conservative government.

As the shutdown appeared to be developing into a massive rejection for union bosses and militants, Conservative lawmakers introduced a motion in the House of Commons "congratulating the people of the United Kingdom for ignoring the day of no work."

The Day of Action called by the Trades Union Congress, a loose confederation of 112 labor unions, to protest mounting unemployment, worsening inflation and severe cutbacks in government spending got off to a half-hearted start.

The response to the shutdown plan appeared patchy and London was affected only slightly. Most major industrial concerns reported "more or less" normal turnouts by their employees.

The Confederation of British Industry, representing more than 12,000 major employers, reported the effect "in most areas appears to be minimal. Most workers are making this a day of action by working normally."

None of the nine London-based national newspapers published after print unions staged a walkout, although provincial papers were on the streets. The anti-union, rightwing Freedom Association published a 12-page tabloid in London and all 250,000 copies were sold out by dawn, the Association said.

Most public transportation was running. The state-run British Rail system said some intercity trains were not operating but most local trains were running "almost normally."

London Transport, which carries millions of commuters into the capital every weekday, reported most subway trains and buses were running after a feared walkout by signalmen did not materialize.

However, thousands of commuters took no chances and drove to work. London's parks, turned into emergency parking lots, were full by mid-morning. Many commuters found other means of transportation: bicycles and motor scooters the most popular.

Customs men at London's Heathrow Airport also joined the protest, and travelers were told to expect long delays.

It was also impossible to get a London hotel room. They were all snapped up by business houses so key members of their staffs could sleep in town Tuesday night and get to work on time this morning.

Staunch Conservatives vowed to get to work to show their support for Mrs. Thatcher. Many spent the night in sleeping bags and makeshift beds in factories, offices and shops.

Other workers took the day off and stayed home whether or not they supported the anti-government protest.

The Trades Union Congress stopped short of ordering a general strike of the 12 million workers affiliated with it. Instead it urged them to stay off work and take part protest marches and other demonstrations around the country.

Mrs. Thatcher and her government ministers, arguing that Britain is sick of labor unrest and union militants, were hoping most workers would ignore the call. She called for "all those who believe in backing Britain" to go to work.

The Conservatives swept the Labor Party from power in a general election May 3, 1979, amid widespread public anger over a wave of strikes the winter before.

Students demand end to martial law in Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The government deployed troops and armored personnel carriers in front of the capitol building today as some 20,000 students marched toward it demanding an end to martial law.

At least 200 students were arrested by riot police using tear gas and clubs in a vain effort to break up the demonstration, one of the largest in years.

"Lift martial law! Lift martial law!" the students chanted as they marched. Some ducked into alleys to regroup when police blocked their way.

Traffic was paralyzed on all eight lanes of the Chongro, one of Seoul's busiest streets, and many stores lowered steel shutters as the students marched past.

Outdoor demonstrations and political gatherings are banned under martial law, declared after the assassination of President Park Chung-hee on Oct. 26. The government says it will not lift martial law until political stability is fully restored.

North Korea, meanwhile, called for a meeting Thursday of the Military Armistice Commission to protest an exchange of fire between a U.S. Army patrol and unknown persons in the demilitarized zone on Monday. There were no casualties in the incident.

North Korea called the episode a "serious provocative act."

The U.N. Command told North Korea on Tuesday it was investigating the exchange of fire, which took place south of the joint security area of the truce village of Panmunjon.

The Command said the patrol "fired illumination rounds to light up the area of the shooting incident and it appears that trajectory of the rounds may have resulted in some of the canisters falling near or across the military demarcation line."

Zimbabwe's parliament opens amid pageantry

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (AP) — Zimbabwe's first parliament was officially opened today amid British-style pageantry and African tribal drumming, dancing and singing in the streets.

Bewigged clerks in the former British colony's first independent parliament and a mace-bearing sergeant-at-arms sat solemnly in the dimly-lit legislature as a brass band outside played military marches.

Field guns fired a 21-gun salute from nearby Cecil Square, a park where the first white settlers pitched tents and hoisted the Union Jack in 1890.

Vintage British jet-fighters which up to six months ago hammered guerrilla camps of Robert Mugabe, the current prime minister, screamed overhead.

And guerrillas and government troops who fought each other in a seven-year war that cost more than 20,000 lives staged a guard of honor as thousands of blacks danced, sang and clapped to tribal tom-toms and castanets.

Didymus Mutasa, a political prisoner of the former white minority government for two years until he went into exile in 1972, was unanimously elected speaker of the parliament.

Then, in a custom dating back to the Middle Ages when British speakers were reluctant to accept the job after several predecessors were beheaded, Mutasa's black proposer and white seconder dragged the startled speaker from his seat and thrust him into the official speaker's chair.

13 Midlanders arraigned after drug round-up

Thirteen Midlanders have been formally arraigned and bond set on charges of delivery of narcotics.

Municipal Judge James FitzGerald set bonds Tuesday at $20,000 for first-degree felonies, $10,000 for second-degree, and $5,000 for third-degree. He began setting bonds Tuesday morning and continued throughout the day.

Charged were Edward Alvarado, 2439 Whitmore Boulevard, No. 40-B, delivery of marijuana, $5,000 bond; Aroetha Childs, 1304 S. Mineola St., delivery of marijuana, $5,000; Tara Kay Childs, 1304 S. Mineola St., delivery of methamphetamine, $5,000 and $20,000; George Larry Clegg, delivery of cocaine, $20,000; Troy Coleman, 1304 S. Mineola St., delivery of marijuana, and two cases on delivery of praludes, $5,000 on each count.

Also, Carl Donnell, 606 Spraberry Ave., delivery of marijuana, $5,000; Joe Louis Granado, 507-F W. Estes St., delivery of amphetamines, $5,000; Leslie Hickey, 1005 S. Mineola St., delivery of marijuana, $5,000.

Sam Marshal King, 1908 E. California Ave., delivery of marijuana, $5,000; Larry Stephenson, Chandelle Apartments 2100 W. Wadley Ave., delivery of hashish, $10,000; Raymond Velarde Jr., 1318 E. Golf Course Road, delivery of marijuana, $5,000; John Ybarra Villarreal, 1202 S. Fort Worth St., two counts of delivery of marijuana and one of delivery of cocaine, $5,000, $5,000 and $20,000; and Joe Young, Chaparral Apartments, 4201 N. Garfield St. No. 116, delivery of methamphetamines, $20,000.

Early this morning, Donnell, Velarde, King, Alvarado, Aroetha Childs and Stephenson had been released on bond. The others were in County Jail.

Police are still searching for four people they were unable to locate Tuesday.

The arrests were the final stage in a three-month undercover drug investigation by the narcotics division of the Midland Police Department.

Investigation is continuing, according to Police Chief Wayne Gideon.

Indonesian president's widow dies

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Fatmawati Sukarno, the third of the late Indonesian President Sukarno's seven wives, died at the government hospital here today after suffering a heart attack, the Indonesian Embassy said.

An embassy spokesman said Mrs. Sukarno, 56, stopped here Tuesday after a pilgrimage to the Moslem holy city of Mecca.

Her remains were brought to the Indonesian Embassy for prayers before being sent home to Indonesia. Her five children were expected to arrive here later today.

Clements, Armstrong sit on new prison site deal

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he knows that the possible location of a state prison in Starr County hinges on his year or so.

"That's why I'm governor," he said Tuesday in response to reports that Starr County officials consider him the key to the controversy.

The State Board of Corrections negotiated secretly to pay $7.8 million for the 5,293-acre La Casita Farms and then voted to approve the purchase a day before a supposed deadline set by the owner.

However, Clements and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong blocked the deal until it could be investigated and local residents given time to learn more.

Clements and Armstrong sit on the approval board which reviews land purchases for the prison system. The three-member board will decide the matter May 22.

"The communities themselves need to be a strong advocate and part of the process," Clements told a news conference.

He was in the Rio Grand Valley for a series of public appearances and political receptions.

In a meeting with local newspaper editors, the governor emphasized the state should not build prisons where people oppose them. But he added he could not understand why the relatively poor, rural county did not want the maximum security facility.

"We should not do something that the people of the community don't want to happen," he said.

"I don't know why in the world they would object to a prison. I personally think it would be a good thing for the county."

The prison would employ 300 with an annual payroll of $3 million.

County officials say they are afraid of losing tax revenues when the property goes off the rolls. Businessmen are concerned that industry will not locate in a prison community. And officials of the crowded school system fear a worse situation if prison employees with school age youngsters move to town.

Clements, the state's first Republican governor since reconstruction, has traveled to this traditional Democratic part of Texas several times since January. His frequent visits are seen by some local observers as an attempt to boost Republican strength for the upcoming presidential battle.

South Texas was considered a key factor in putting Texas in Jimmy Carter's camp in 1976. The failure of Democrats to turn out the vote in this overwhelmingly Hispanic area two years ago is considered one factor in Clements' win.

Man is charged in cocaine theft

Mark Allen Dimney was to go before the Midland County grand jury today in connection with the theft of about 180 grams of cocaine from Midland Memorial Hospital.

The missing cocaine has a street value of about $20,000.

Dimney is formally charged with burglary of a building.

According to a spokesman with the narcotics division of the Midland Police Department, the cocaine was stolen during the past six to eight months and was reported to police about two weeks ago.

The missing narcotic was discovered during a routine inventory. Dimney was later arrested and released on $3,500 bond.

day she left her purse inside the house. She and her husband were in the front yard. Around 9 p.m., her dog in the back yard began barking, but she did not check to see why.

The next morning, Mrs. Hart discovered the purse missing. Also in the purse were keys, credit cards, a check book and personal papers.

Entry had apparently been gained through the back door, which was open while the Harts were in the front yard, police said.

Palm Beach takes national net lead

Palm Beach, Fla., emerged as the team to catch after the second day of play Tuesday at Midland College in the Women's National Junior College Tennis Championships.

Palm Beach took the team lead with 17 points through two days of action while five teams are still in the hunt with 14 points each. Palm Beach is likely to score more points before the tournament wraps up Friday since they still have two singles players and a doubles team left in the tournament, more than anyone else.

Midland College is one of the four teams in the mammoth logjam for second place. Also having 14 points going into today's round are Broward, Fla.; McLennan, Tex.; Tyler, Tex.; and New Mexico Military Institute.

Leading Palm Beach Tuesday were singles players Alexi Beggs, seeded sixth, and unseeded Beau Wigley. Both won two matches Tuesday to advance to the quarterfinals, which begin at 9 a.m. today. Also the Palm Beach doubles tandem of Beggs and Christy Turdo, seeded third in doubles, are also alive after two wins Tuesday.

Beggs reached the quarters at the expense of Midland College's Brenda Burgess and No. 9 seeded Margie Waters of Peace, N.C., while Wigley advanced through a lighter run. Beggs and Turdo are where they should be in doubles play.

Midland College, however, did have a big surprise when sophomore Debbie Smith, seeded 11th, defeated McLennan's Louella Seymour before pulling of a big 3-6, 6-2, 6-1 upset over fourth seeded Kristin Getz of Peace.

MC's singles hopes now rides on the shoulders of Smith since Burgess is out as is No. 19 seeded Teresa Landry, who lost to No. 7 seed Janet Kniffin of Tyler in the fourth round.

Navarro's Mary Renaud, the tournament's No. 1 seed is still alive as are the No. 2 and 3 seeds Wendy Fine of Broward and Ninni Strombach of NMMI. No. 8 seed Suzanne Mathews of McLennan is the only other singles survivor at this date.

Midland College also has a doubles tandem alive and well as Landry and Burgess teamed for a double victory Tuesday. They won by a 6-1, 6-2 count over Stewart-Hitschmann of Barton, Kan., before defeating Hawkins-Backwell of NMMI, 6-3, 6-2, neither team seeded and the MC team is the No. 2 seeds in the doubles competition.

MC almost got another lift in the doubles competition from the team of Smith and Hankins. They lost to Mathews-Seymour of McLennan, the No. 9 seeds, by a 4-6, 6-3, 7-6 count, but MC duo was up by 5-2 in the third set before losing on the tie breaker.

Kniffin and Robin Falls of Tyler, the top seeds, are rolling along, losing only two games in two matches Tuesday. The No. 4 seeds Getz and Waters of Peace are also still alive as is the team of Wendy Fine and Fran Vale of Broward, seeded No. 5.

Renaud and Nora Moreno of Navarro, the No. 6 seeded doubles team, is still alive as is the unseeded team of Teresa Fallaschek and Schwartz of St Gregory, Okla. The only other doubles team left in the doubles competition is the team of Kelly Driesenga-Patty Gogolin of Muskegon, Mich., the No. 7 seeds.

Baseball owners offer new proposal

NEW YORK (AP) — A new proposal covering the key issues in the baseball contract dispute has been presented by management negotiators to the Major League Players Association.

The offer was made during two hours of talks Tuesday. The two sides then adjourned so Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, could study the package proposed by Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners.

A MANAGEMENT spokesman acknowledged the proposal deals with the most serious issues in the talks — compensation for teams who lose players to the free agent draft and the percentage of television revenues to be paid to the players pension fund.

In a story in today's editions, The Cincinnati Enquirer reported what were said to be highlights of the management proposal.

They included: —Substantial revision of the proposal covering selection rights for clubs losing "ranking players" in the free-agency re-entry draft.

—A 70 percent increase — to $14.4 million from $8.3 million — in the clubs' annual contributions to the player pension and insurance plan.

—Increases in player allowances for regular season and spring training expenses.

Potvin's power play goal gives Islanders 4-3 victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Perhaps it will take another 46 years before somebody scores a power play goal in overtime, in a National Hockey League playoff final. And if it does take that long, it's doubtful anyone will remember that Denis Potvin's tally at 4:07 of extra play was only part of the strange proceedings that marked the New York Islanders' 4-3 triumph over the Philadelphia Flyers.

It was strange because the overtime wouldn't have been needed if Potvin hadn't nudged the Flyers' first goal into his own net Tuesday night. It was strange because after all the predictions of brawls and stick attacks on Philadelphia forwards by New York goalie Bill Smith, the only "fight" involved the Flyers' mild-mannered Jim Watson.

NEXT TIME will be Thursday, when the teams resume this best-of-seven set. Until then, the Islanders can savor what went right and the Flyers can ponder what went wrong.

"They were sounder than we were tonight and that's why they deserved to win," Quinn said. "We were generally — specifically in the first period — outplayed."

It took New York just 1:31 to rebound from Bridgman's goal. At 12:02, Mike Bossy sent his third shot of a flurry past Philadelphia goalie Pete Peeters to give the Islanders the first of three power-play tallies. Potvin made it 2-1 at 2:20 of the second period, but Bobby Clarke pulled the Flyers even with Strange Goal No. 2.

from in front at 17:08.

"I made a couple of bad mistakes, but we didn't get burned," said Smith, a winner in 12 of his 14 playoff decisions this spring.

SMITH'S WORST clinker came at 13:10 of the third period. Rick MacLeish had the puck to his right, and Smith made the cardinal goaltending sin of not hugging the goalpost with his right arm and leg. MacLeish found "an opening one fist wide," according to Persson, and banked the puck into the cage off the back of the goalie's knee.

"I forgot about it before the (goal judge's) red light went on," said Smith.

Abilene sets tourney

ABILENE — A Men's Open Church Slow Pitch Softball double elimination tournament will be held here June 20-21 with entry deadline June 12. Entry fee is $60. ASA rules will govern play. Contact Larry Carpenter or Joe Snow III (915-673-9430).

Miller, in a memorandum sent Sunday to all players, warned that the players could expect "a few crumbs" from the owners in return for an agreement.

"The current problems result from the attitude of the clubs," Miller said in his memorandum which The Associated Press obtained on Tuesday. "They offer no indication of any intention or desire to conclude an agreement with the Players Association, and the club owners have never had any such intent."

The memorandum continued: "The players will not allow an unsatisfactory agreement to be forced down their throats, and neither the negotiating committee nor the executive board will recommend a sell-out agreement. But the owners seem bent on testing the unity and resolve of the players."

STRANGER STILL was referee

Andy Van Hellemond's decision to call Watson for holding John Tonelli at 2:08 of overtime. In overtime, it is assumed the referee will take the little ball out of his whistle, skate with his eyes closed, and only punish offenses that result in loss of life or limb.

"They aren't called very often, but if there is an infraction, it should be called — and that was an infraction," said Coach Al Arbour after his Islanders improved their road playoff record to 8-1 and boosted their overtime record to 5-1 by taking the first game of their first-ever Stanley Cup final. "Winning the first one is a lot better than being one down."

The Islanders were one down after 10:31 when Mel Bridgman was credited with the first of three odd Philadelphia goals. Smith went behind his net to clear a loose puck, but left it in order to avoid a collision with teammate Bob Lorimer. Philadelphia's Mike Busniuk kicked it to Bridgman, who fell and lost control of the disc.

Cubs come home after rain closes San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO — A torrential downpour cost the Midland Cubs an opportunity to come away from here with a split in their Texas League series with the San Antonio Dodgers when the final game of the six-game series was washed away.

The Cubs are off today, but return to action Thursday as Tulsa and Arkansas from the TL East begin a 10-game invasion of Cubs Stadium.

Manager Randy Hundley will start either Henry Mack, 1-2, or Jon Perlman, 3-3, against Tulsa at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

However, Tuesday was not without its news. The Cubs lost lefthander Bill Earley, 0-2, to Wichita. Earley moves up to replace Randy Martz, Chicago's No. 1 draft choice out of the University of South Carolina in 1977. Martz broke an ankle sliding into second base. It was a tough break for the native Pennsylvanian, who was off to a 5-1 start and probably would have been called up to Chicago with a couple of more strong starts. Martz, who pitched at Midland in 1977 and 1978, will be out six to eight weeks.

Martz had won four straight and had six complete games under his belt with the Aeros of the American Association, where the DH is not used.

Earley posted a 13-8 record last year, primarily as a starter, and had more complete games than any pitcher in the Chicago organization with 10. However, this year the former Miami, Ohio, University southpaw has been used primarily in relief and was par-

IT SAT UNDER Smith's legs

like a box under a Christmas tree until Potvin — trying to slide the puck into Smith's pads — nudged too hard.

"I got really upset. Here you are trying to make a great play and it ends up in the goal," said Potvin, who wrenched the goal from his helmeted head by scoring two goals and setting up the one by Stefan Persson that tied the game 3-3 with 3:42 left in regulation.

"I had a lot of scoring opportunities tonight, didn't I?" he joked, aware he had participated in four of the game's seven goals.

There was no joking in the Flyers' quarters. Philadelphia worked 80 games to get the home-ice advantage for every playoff round, only to come up flat in this opener and lose the home edge. Now, the advantage can return only in a seventh game.

"We've come up with some stinkers in the past, and they were stinkers," said Flyers Coach Pat Quinn. "You just shut the book on it, learn from it,

Rangers can't afford Norman luxury

It isn't hard to figure out why the Texas Rangers farmed out Nelson Norman, their day-dreaming shortstop with the bright future. After a weekend in Arlington Stadium, it's evident that this is a team that can ill-afford the luxury of a Norman.

The guys that are trying make enough mistakes without the additional burden of an infielder who, they say, sometimes acts and often plays like he really doesn't care.

One of the victims of the Rangers' mistakes was Ferguson Jenkins, who was going for his 251st victory Friday night. Jenkins gave up a first-inning homer to the Chisox' Bob Molinaro and then strung together nine straight shutout innings, thanks to Richie Zisk's tying solo homer in the second. That should have nailed down No. 251 for Fergie, but the Rangers got a couple of runners caught off base with some finger-in-ear base running, so when Claudell Washington singled with one out in the 11th, stole second and took third on catcher Jim Sundberg's wild throw to second, Jenkins gave way to Sparky Lyle and Jim Kern, who bailed him out of the only real trouble he had all night. Then, Zisk hit his homer in the 11th to win it.

Rangers can't afford Norman luxury

Naturally, it was a disappointment for Jenkins, "I wanted that game real bad. I had super stuff. I felt like I was 25 years old out there." One thing for sure, Jenkins didn't look the 36-year-old righthander.

The next night, Gaylord Perry looked more like 45 than the 41-year-

Ali, Holmes fight is on, but when and where?

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali will try to capture the world heavyweight championship for an unprecedented fourth time, but when and where is up in the air.

"I've agreed, Holmes had agreed, the money's there, everything's set," Ali said Tuesday, denying reports that the $12 million bout had fallen through.

"The fight is on," said Don King, who is co-promoting the bout.

The bout originally was scheduled to be held July 11 in Rio de Janeiro's 165,000-seat Maracana Stadium.

"The soccer field people down there don't want the field messed up with all the chairs, so we're shopping around for another place," Ali said from his Deer Lake, Pa., training camp. "But the fight's on. It's on."

Murad Muhammad, a co-promoter, said a legal maneuver had delayed making the bout official, "but that was all taken care of at noon Monday. We're back on the track."

He also verified that the people who operate the Brazil stadium had balked "and we don't want to mess their grass up, so the fight's being moved. We should be able to announce the new location in a few days."

King said several sites were under consideration. "I would like to see it held in Caesars Palace (in Las Vegas), the Superdome in New Orleans, any of the big arenas."

King said he has been contacted by a number of people wanted to stage the fight, including Detroit's Joe Louis Arena; the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich.; Chile, the Philippines and Brunei, an Islamic sultanate on Indonesia's Borneo, west of the Philippines.

The legal problem, Muhammad said, was solved when Greg Campbell, who had obtained a court injunction, was unable to come up with enough money for a fight between Ali and the winner of the Mike Weaver-John Tate bout. Weaver is the World Boxing Association heavyweight champion.

"This is Ali's last hurrah," King said of the bout with Holmes. "It's an historical event anyway you look at it."

Midlander takes 8th

Mike McCloud, 25, took eighth place in the novice division field of 28 in the Central Texas Body Building competition at San Marcos over the weekend. The Midlander is training for the Junior Mr. Texas competition later this year.

old spring chicken he is in reality in lasting less than three innings as the White Sox took a 5-1 lead with a burst of four hits. The Rangers battled back to tie it at 5 in the seventh, but then one of those little mistakes that a good team can ill-afford squandered a splendid relief job by young Danny Darwin, who had given up just one hit in four innings. With one out, an infield hit and single to right put runners of first and second, and brought in relief ace Jim Kern who did his job by getting Bruce Kimm to ground a snappy-inning-ending double play ball to shortstop Bud Harrelson and he flipped it to Bump Wills at second. Wills simply dropped the shoulder high toss and the result was a two-run inning.

The Rangers had the opportunity to go ahead in the seventh, but again some bad base running on a dropped pop up bailed the Sox out of potentially a big trouble.

Perry's premature departure may be in part attributable to the strong wind. When he went to the resin bag for his notorious new pitch, the Puff Ball, the wind blew away the resin dust as he released the ball that it wasn't the distraction it has been.

Just as we were marveling at the speed with which Friday's 11-inning game was played, the Saturday night game dragged on like some of the early-season games at Cubs Stadium... 3:25 minutes. And just like Midland fans, the Metroplex baseball folks arrive late and leave early. In fact, Jim Morrison's three-run homer in the top of the ninth Saturday which made it 10-6, emptied Arlington Stadium like a police raid on a speakeasy.

With all the petty mistakes, who doesn't make them this time of year, the Rangers still could contend for the pennant. Mainly because Eddie Chiles will give them a chance to play together long enough so that those little ol' mistakes can be ironed out.

Fred Lynn hits for the cycle

By The Associated Press
When is a triple better than a homer? When it follows a homer ... and a double ... and a single.
Fred Lynn's drive off the wall in center field in the eighth inning went for a triple as he hit for the cycle for the first time in his career to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 10-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins Tuesday night.
"I'd rather have the triple because I've never hit for the cycle," Lynn said. "I only had one triple last year. So I've gotten my quota for this year. I made good use of it."
Lynn doubled in the first inning when the Red Sox scored once, hit a two-run homer off loser John Verhoeven to give Boston a 6-5 lead in the fourth and singled in a run in the sixth before his run-scoring triple in the eighth completed the cycle.
Last year's batting champion had a slow start at the plate, but he now has three homers in the last three games, and 13 hits and 10 RBI in his last five outings.

Royals 4, Yankees 1
Rennie Martin had started a game on Saturday, but scheduled Kansas City starter Paul Splitteroff injured his back during warmups and Manager Jim Frey called on the slender right-hander to pitch with two days' rest.
He responded with 5 1/2 innings of hitless ball and went on to post the victory as the Royals scored all their runs in the third inning, two of them on a homer by Willie Aikens that hit the facade of the third deck in right field.
Martin was relieved in the seventh inning after allowing only one hit, a sixth-inning single by Ruppert Jones. It was his longest major league outing to date.
White Sox 6, Brewers 5
There were seven homers in the game, but it was Thad Bosley's a pinch-hit single in the 10th inning that sent home the winning run.
Wayne Nordhagen, who earlier had hit one of three homers by Chicago, singled with two outs in the 10th off losing pitcher Reggie Cleveland. Pinch-runner Bob Molinaro went to second on a single by Harold Baines and Bosley followed with his game-winning hit.

Solo homers by Nordhagen, Junior Moore and Jim Morrison helped the White Sox to a 5-4 lead going into the ninth, but Robin Yount tied the game with a solo homer.
Cecil Cooper, Sixto Lezcano and Gorman Thomas homered for the Brewers.
Tigers 4, A's 3
Richie Hebner's two-run triple in the first inning sent Detroit on the way to victory over Oakland, which still leads the AL West.
Kirk Gibson homered for the Tigers, and Dave Reversing also had a solo shot for the A's, who got a sixth complete game from Matt Keough although he lost his third game in seven decisions.
Jack Morris, 4-4, was the winner with relief help from Pat Underwood and Aurelio Lopez.

Cincinnati lives by Knight

By The Associated Press
Ray Knight didn't want much. "I was just hoping to get a base hit," the Cincinnati third baseman said.
But he more than doubled his expectations Tuesday night with two home runs in the same inning, one a grand slam, to lead the Reds to a 15-4 rout of the New York Mets.
Knight thus became the first Cincinnati player and only the 11th in National League history to slug two homers in one inning.
Not bad for a hitter stuck in an 0-for-15 slump.
"I thought I might never get a hit again," Knight said. "I'm basically a contact hitter and was starting to get desperate over my long hitless streak."
Knight said he had spent a long time in the batting cage during pregame practice, then left the field to go under the stands into an enclosed practice area.
"Harry (Spillman), my good buddy, threw me about 100 pitches there," Knight said. "That got me going. I found my stroke."
But he didn't necessarily think it was a home run stroke.
"It didn't cross my mind to try for a homer," Knight said. "I swear all I was trying to do was make contact. I was just trying to get any kind of hit."
Expos 3, Astros 2
David Palmer and Woodie Fryman teamed up on five-hitter and Andre Dawson and Larry Parrish doubled home runs as Montreal defeated Houston.
Palmer, 2-0, gave up all five of Houston's hits before needing relief help in the eighth from Fryman, who recorded his fourth save.

While Palmer was baffling the Astros, Houston starter Nolan Ryan was having his problems, losing for the third time in four decisions.
"I should have won the game. I gave it to them in the first inning," Ryan said. "As far as pitching, it was probably my best of the season. My velocity was good, my location was good and I started getting my curve over."
Braves 7, Phillies 3
Bob Horner, batting .051 at game time, snapped out of an 0-for-21 slump and drove in his first run of the season with a single as Atlanta downed Philadelphia.
Horner's RBI single sparked a two-run rally in the second inning off Randy Lerch, 0-5, and gave the Braves a 4-1 lead. They later wrapped it up with a three-run eighth, one on Dale Murphy's homer.
Giants 5, Pirates 0
Vida Blue pitched a four-hitter for his first shutout since 1978, and Jack Clark hit a home run and knocked in two runs to lead San Francisco over Pittsburgh.
Pittsburgh's Bert Blyleven, 0-3, made a strong showing in his first pitching appearance in two weeks. The right-hander, who quit the team on April 30 but rejoined the club last week, allowed six hits in eight innings.
Blue, 4-2, struck out nine, walked only one and did not allow a runner past first base until the ninth.
Padres 3, Cardinals 2
Gene Richards' RBI single with two out in the ninth capped a two-run rally, leading San Diego over St.

Louis.
Trailing 2-1 going into the ninth, Von Joshua doubled and took third on a groundout. Jerry Turner, hitting for Rollie Fingers, 3-3, singled to score Joshua with the tying run.
Jerry Turner took second on a passed ball by catcher Ted Simmons and reliever Jim Kaat, 0-1, intentionally walked Dave Winfield to set the stage for Richards' winning hit.
Dodgers 4, Cubs 2
Reggie Smith slugged a solo homer and singled home another run to lead Los Angeles over Chicago.
Bob Welch, 2-1, earned the victory, scattering nine hits, including Dave Kingman's two-run homer in the first inning, his seventh.
Smith homered in the bottom of the first and Los Angeles went in front to stay with two runs in the third.
Rams ink Johnson
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—The Los Angeles Rams announced Tuesday that they have signed their first-round draft choice, defensive back Johnnie Johnson of Texas, to a series of one-year contracts covering six seasons.
Johnson was the 15th player selected in the National Football League's draft of collegiate talent last month.

"I'm seeing the ball real good," he said. "I have great concentration right now. I can tell just by the way I take a pitch how I can hit. Mike (Marshall) threw me two screwballs the last time up. The last one was close but I held up—I had great concentration and knew I would hit the next one well."
Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch said, "I'll tell you this about Fred Lynn. You pitch him down and he might get a hit. You pitch him up and he will get a hit."

West Germany holds key to Olympic boycott

By The Associated Press
Any chance of an effective boycott of the 1980 Summer Olympic Games in Moscow apparently now hinges on West Germany.
The West German National Olympic Committee is expected to vote Thursday on whether or not to join President Carter's call for a boycott of the Games. Several countries have indicated they might follow West Germany's lead.
But Carter's plan to show displeasure with the Soviet Union's actions in Afghanistan suffered a severe blow Tuesday when the French Olympic Committee decided to send a team to Moscow.
"The athletes are in a very difficult psychological state, and our decision was very much influenced by the concern we have for their morale," French committee President Claude Collard said of the unanimous decision in favor of participating in the Games. "We refuse that our athletes be used for political ends."
The Soviet news agency Tass immediately reported the French decision but failed to mention that Norway and Argentine voted against attending.

In Washington, the Carter administration was pictured as "extremely disappointed" with the French decision. Asked if the French vote would influence the West German NOC, one source, who asked not to be identified, said: "That is a risk. The German vote is the most significant because many nations have said they would follow Germany. No other nation said it would follow France."
Among those nations expected to follow Germany's lead are Australia, Japan, the Netherlands, Portugal and possibly Denmark and Italy. Denmark and Italy have announced they are planning to attend the Olympics but have reserved making a final decision until May 24, the deadline for accepting invitations to the Games.
The new nation of Zimbabwe also announced Tuesday that it will compete at Moscow. The former British colony of Rhodesia had just been admitted to the world Olympic movement.

Watson aims Indy 500 rookies meet wall for bonanza

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Tom Watson will be shooting for the biggest prize in the history of golf this week in the Colonial National Invitation.

The rest of the elite, 102-man field will be trying for a $54,000 first prize. Watson, however, will be going for more than one-quarter million dollars, $254,000.

"I'll be thinking about it on every shot," said Watson, who is dominating the game with an iron-fisted authority that hasn't been exhibited in years.

Only Watson is eligible for the huge prize. It works this way: The winner's share of the $300,000 total purse is $54,000.

In addition, the Texas Bonanza is being offered this year for the first time. The sponsors of last week's Byron Nelson Classic and the National Invitation have put up a $250,000 prize for any man who sweeps the two tournaments.

Watson, who scored his third consecutive Byron Nelson victory last Sunday, thus stands to win $200,000 from the Bonanza plus the $54,000 winner's share of the tournament purse.

And, of course, he is favored to do just that. Quite simply, he's the best player in the game. And he's riding a hot streak right now, one of the hottest golf has ever known.

He has won five times this year. He has won his last three starts. And, almost incredibly, he has led or shared the lead in the last 12 tournament rounds he has played.

For three consecutive years he has won the Vardon Trophy, been Player of the Year and leading money-winner. No one else has won any one of those three honors for three consecutive years. He's won all three for three consecutive years.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Being a first year driver at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway can have its pitfalls. Jan Snea, the youngest of the three racing brothers from Spokane, Wash., Tuesday added his name to the growing list of Indy rookies who have had a sudden and violent introduction to the Speedway wall.

The 26-year-old driver, whose brothers, Tom and Jerry, are Indy veterans, barely got an introduction to the crew members on the Dayton-Walker team before he was back on the outside looking in.

Snea, who was hired on Monday to drive veteran Salt Walther's backup car, made only a few laps around the 2 1/2-mile track before losing control and sliding through the infield grass and back across the track into the wall on turn two.

He wasn't hurt, but a spokesman for the Walther team said the car won't be fixed in time to be qualified for the May 25 Indianapolis 500. So the youngest Snea was out of a ride.

If he doesn't catch on with another team today, it'll be next year before he has another opportunity to drive in the Indy race. That's because no Indy driving tests can be started after 5 p.m. CDT today.

Those rookie hopefuls who have started tests by then will be able to complete them. The tests include 20 laps at 160 mph and 20 more at 170 or better.

This could wind up being dubbed the year of the rookie at Indy, with nearly two dozen of the first-year drivers hoping to get into the 33-car field.

Don Whittington, the defending world endurance driving champion, but a raw rookie at Indianapolis, already has made the race day lineup, along with Dick Ferguson and Roger Rager.

In all, 19 positions on the starting grid were filled on the first weekend of time trials, with the other 14 spots up for grabs this weekend.

The action was intense Tuesday, with 10 rookies among the 24 drivers to make it onto the track during the day's practice.

"They've run a couple of races, come up with a good sponsor and some money and decide to come to Indianapolis." The other new Indy drivers making an appearance on the track Tuesday were Tom Frantz, Gordon Smiley, Bill Alsop, John Wood, Greg Leffler, Phil Caliva, Rich Vogler, Ron Shuman and Bill Whittington, Don's younger brother.

Defending champion Rick Mears and the two older Snea brothers — already qualified for the race — also got onto the track, as did veterans Tom Bigelow, Dick Simon, Bill Vukovich, Sheldon Kinser, Jerry Karl, Gary Bettenhausen, Bob Harkey, Rick Muther and the only 1979 rookie, Howdy Holmes.

Jim McElreath, who already has qualified one car for the race, also was out in his backup car. Gusty winds held down the speeds, with only the three qualified cars topping 180 mph on timed laps.

"A lot of rookies have been hitting the wall, and that's an indication of something we should be examining about our sport," the two-time Indy winner said. "We've got too many rookies with too little experience."

Two consecutive balks by Jackson Mets pitcher Brent Gaff allowed the Tulsa Drillers to take a 5-4 Texas League baseball victory Tuesday night.

In other Texas League action, El Paso beat Amarillo, 7-2, and Arkansas swept a doubleheader from the Shreveport Captains, 1-0, and 2-1.

No games were scheduled today, a day set aside for travel. Gaff's balks came in the fifth inning with the score tied at 3-3. Cha Cho Gonzalez was on third and Bill Klimas was on second when Gaff's attempt to pick off Klimas resulted in a balk call.

Gonzalez scored and Klimas moved to third. As Klimas danced off third base before the next pitch, Gaff was called for another balk and what turned out to be the winning run scored.

Jackson scored another run in the eighth to bring the score to the final 5-4 margin. Chuck Lawson, 1-2, was the winning pitcher and Jack Lazorko got a save for Tulsa. Gaff was the losing pitcher.

El Paso exploded for six runs in the seventh inning as the Diablos took a 7-2 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox. The outburst included a bases-loaded triple by Daryl Scioners.

Joel Crisler, 2-4, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Eric Show, 1-1.

Kelly Paris raced home with the winning run in the sixth inning as the Arkansas Travelers beat the Shreveport Captains, 1-0.

Eddy is man without team

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The first order of business for new Texas-San Antonio basketball coach Don Eddy will be actually finding a team to coach.

Eddy, 44, who compiled a 208-119 record in 12 years at Eastern Illinois, was named Tuesday as coach of the new-born UTSA Roadrunners.

UTSA officials announced last February that its first athletic school plans to its first athletic teams in the 1981-82 season, headed by an NCAA Division I basketball team.

For that reason, Eddy will be a coach without a team next season. He said he will devote the time to recruiting high school and junior college players and building support for the fledgling Roadrunners.

"He knows the challenge. He knows it's going to be tough. We feel very confident that if anybody can do the job, it's Don Eddy," said UTSA Athletic Director Rudy Davalos.

UTSA must play 46 of its 54 games against other Division I schools in the first two seasons. Davalos is preparing a schedule he said could include as many as six Southwest Conference teams.

Eddy has already sought advice from Alabama-Birmingham coach Gene Bartow, who started his Division I team from scratch two years ago and posted a winning record this season.

"Pat" McMullan, recipient of the Distinguished Service Award; and Harry Miller, outgoing president of WTGS.

Jons receives WTGS life membership

By Joe Salman
Oil Editor

The West Texas Geological Society presented its annual awards and announced its 1980-81 officers at the annual meeting Tuesday noon in the Midland Hilton.

Dick Jons, a geologist with the L. R. French Co., received the society's top award — life membership in the society. Jerry Sides received the Dedicated Service award, and J. P. H. "Pat" McMullan was presented the Distinguished Service Award.

The new officers are Bill Thorsen, president; Toby Carleton, president-elect; Bruce Pearson, first vice president; Dan Kozak, second vice president; Bob Swanson, treasurer, and Mary Van der Loop, secretary. Harry Miller is the out-going president.

The society also announced the annual scholarship recipient. She is Charlene Bynum, a senior at Midland High School. She plans to major in geology at Texas A&M University. Larry Woltschlag, chairman of the Scholarship Committee, presented her with the $1,500 scholarship.

Jons is a past president of WTGS and has served on many of the society's committees. He also served as treasurer, vice president, and president of the Permian Basin Section of the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists. That organization also has honored Jons with honorary life membership.

His professional career includes work with Seaboard Oil Co., Ralph Lowe and Monsanto where he was exploration manager.

Jons was responsible for the discovery of the Coral Canyon field and was a member of the team that led Ralph Lowe to the discovery of the Indian Basin area. With Monsanto, he was primarily responsible for the discovery of the Block Creek and Burton Flat Morra gas fields.

Service Award, is senior explorationist for West Texas with The Superior Oil Co. He has been with that firm 31 years.

He started with the company as a geological scout and during his career has served in many capacities in every area of the Permian Basin.

He has served on many committees with WTGS, and was president in 1975-76.

At the national level, he has served the AAPG on several committees. The Permian Basin Section of SEPM recently honored Sides with honorary life membership.

McMullan, recipient of the Distinguished Service Award, manager of the Midland Sample Cut the last 18 years.

His award recognized his outstanding service to the Midland Oil Scout Association and his work with Midland Sample Cut.

Miller presented the annual development paper to the WTGS membership Tuesday.

Eleven WT wildcat projects reported

Eleven more wildcat operations have been announced in West Texas counties.

Aminoil USA, Inc., operating from Midland spotted an 8,750-foot Ellenburger explorer in Borden County.

If successful in that zone it will reopen that zone in the Myrtle, North field 16 miles northeast of Gail.

Slated as No. 1 Evans, it is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 464, block 97, H&TC survey. Ground elevation is 2,679 feet.

DAWSON EXPLORER

Andover Oil Co. of Midland staked its No. 1-43 Terry as a 12,000-foot wildcat in Dawson County, 1.5 miles north of Lamesa.

It is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 43, block 35, T-6-N, T&P survey. Ground elevation is 3,003 feet.

It is 1.5 miles southeast of RK Petroleum No. 1 Davis, recently completed as an unidentified discovery at 6,866 feet.

HOWARD AREA

Phillips Petroleum Corp. No. 1 Castle "A" is a new 10,500-foot wildcat in Howard County, 6.5 miles northwest of Big Spring.

The drillsite is 660 feet from south and 1,730 feet from east lines of section 26, block 34, T-1-N, T&P survey. It is 1 1/8 mile west of the Moore San Andres field. There are several shallow dry holes in the area.

HOCKLEY COUNTY

Diamond Shamrock Corp. of Amarillo No. 1-10 Paul B. Keele is to be drilled as an 11,500-foot wildcat in Hockley County, four miles south of Snyder.

It is 3.5 miles northwest of the Ropesville (Clear Fork) field and 1,000 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of lab. R 10, league 9, Donley County School Land survey.

KING PROSPECTOR

Gunn Oil Co. of Wichita Falls staked No. 1-A J. J. Gibson as a 6,000-foot wildcat in northeast King County, 14 miles northeast of Guthrie.

Drillsite is 1,780 feet from north and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 2, A. L. Jacobs survey, abstract 677. It is one mile northeast of the Probable (Canyon oil) pool which produces at 4,475 feet and one mile southwest of the Prudence (Atoka gas) pool which produces at 6,136 feet.

MARTIN EXPLORER

Laguna Petroleum Co. of Midland No. 1 Heald Estate will be drilled to 12,500 feet in an attempt to reopen the Bizeo (Mississippi oil) pool of Martin County, 15 miles northwest of Lenora.

It is 2,000 feet from north and 2,120 feet from west lines of section 7, block 36, T-3-N, T&P survey.

It is 5/8 mile southeast of the field's depleted discovery well.

REEVES WILDCAT

The Superior Oil Co., operating from Conroe, spotted its No. 2 Camp Unit in Reeves County, eight miles north of Pecos.

The prospector, scheduled to 6,600 feet, is 850 feet from northwest and 2,250 feet from southwest lines of section 3, block 4, H&GN survey.

It is 1 1/4 miles northeast of Delaware gas production in the multipay MiVida field. The Delaware gas is from approximately 5,000 feet.

HALVEY PROJECT

Halvey Energy Co. of Midland announced plans to re-enter a 13,270-foot dry hole in Reeves County and test to total depth as a wildcat.

It is No. 1 Blake Unit, 990 feet from north and east lines of section 40, block 55, T-5, T&P survey and 14 miles west of Pecos.

The originally was drilled and abandoned by Louisiana Land and Exploration Co. in July 1975.

It is a south offset to a well in the Athens (Devonian gas) pool.

Congress may delay for two years energy building code

By JUDITH BENDER
Newsday

WASHINGTON — Despite widespread agreement that conservation can make a major contribution to ending the nation's energy dependence, Congress appears poised to delay for two more years a long-awaited national energy building code.

The House and Senate Banking Committees, which are responsible for the Building Energy Performance Standards program being developed by the Department of Energy, have revision, but they argued that changes could have been made while allowing the program to be implemented with only a few months of delay.

The proposed standards limit the amount of energy, measured in BTUs (British thermal units) per square foot, that a building could consume. They vary according to the type of building and the climate, but they are designed to be 30 percent more stringent than most current building codes. The rules leave it to designers and builders to figure out how to save energy. Officials estimate that by 1990, the proposal could mean a saving of the equivalent of 216,000 barrels of oil a day.

The proposal stirred the wrath of the building industry, which objected to the plan's complexity and cost — particularly when the industry is in a sharp downturn. James Schuyler, of the National Association of Home Builders, argued that home builders were already using energy-saving techniques.

That was challenged by environmentalists, consumer advocates and Maxine Savitz, assistant secretary for solar energy and conservation, who argued that a new housing survey taken by the Tennessee Valley Authority found "70 percent of the homes without ceiling insulation, 89 percent with only single glazing of windows and 85 percent without floor insulation."

"Some people try to argue that the market will push builders to provide the energy savings," she said, "but it's clear it has not. The biggest problem in a delay of this sort is that people will be saddled with energy-inefficient homes, and that's unfair to the consumer."

Savitz said she had been unaware until last week that the committees were considering a delay. But she said the department could use the time to come out "with a better package," presumably resolving some issues raised by various groups.

Congressional committee staff members said the department's proposals were "unworkable and unenforceable," although there was general agreement that drawing them up was a difficult task. Said one staffer: "I suspect that the bottom line is that the builders will be back later on, and if they have their way, these regulations will never be implemented."

ENERGY OIL & GAS

quietly sent to the floor legislation giving the department until August 1982 to issue the rules.

The decision followed heavy lobbying by home builders and engineers. It stunned environmental and consumer groups. Some of their members said they feared the delay could mean the death of the program.

According to a staff aide, the House committee decided on the delay rather than have the department promulgate rules that "people could later shoot holes in.... If the standards were flawed, then improving energy conservation would be affected adversely."

Asked whether energy officials had been consulted about the delay, the aide said they had not, "but I think they breathed a sigh of relief."

Under a mandate of the 1976 Energy Policy and Conservation Act, energy officials have been working for more than three years — at a cost of more than $30 million — to come up with energy-related building performance standards. The proposed standards have generated controversy and opposition, even among those who now are protesting the delay.

Alan S. Miller, an attorney with the Natural Resources Defense Council, said the delay is "tantamount to killing the program." He and other environmentalists said the rules produced by energy officials were complex and sufficiently flawed to require

FAIR offers patrol gas supply

WASHINGTON (AP) — A private organization is offering 500 gallons of gasoline to the Immigration and Naturalization Service to increase the Border Patrol's rationed supply.

"In a recession, we can't afford to accept unlimited illegal immigration, to leave our borders open," Roger Conner, executive director of the Federation for Immigration Reform, said Tuesday.

The organization, which sought to have illegal aliens excluded from the census count used for legislative apportionment and distribution of federal funds, said fewer illegal immigrants are being apprehended along the Texas border.

FAIR pointed to the reduced gasoline supplies for INS vehicles and the transfer of agents from Florida to Texas because of the Cuban refugee influx as the causes.

"We have concluded that the most direct assistance we can provide today is to pay for needed gasoline to the overworked Southern Region, covering the southern border east of El Paso," Conner wrote to David Crossland, acting INS commissioner.

Tests staked in WT areas

South Ranch Oil Co., Inc., of Midland No. 1-34 University is to be drilled as a 12,600-foot Devonian project as a two-mile southeast outpost to the Block 5 (Devonian) pool of Andrews County.

It is 14 miles northeast of Andrews and 1,900 feet from north and 767 feet from east lines of section 34, block 5, University Lands survey.

The drillsite is 300 feet north and west of a 5,390-foot San Andres dry hole.

WINKLER AREA

Gifford, Mitchell & Wisenbaker of Midland has refilled for permit to drill its No. 1 Ten Bears "A" in the Cheyenne (Capitan) area of Winkler County, nine miles northwest of Kermit.

Scheduled to 3,750 feet, it is 2,169 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of section 14, block C-23, psi survey.

The original permit had expired.

Water wheel planned

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — The massive wood and cast-iron water wheel that supplied power to machinery in the historic Wilkinson Mill until 1829 will be recreated and installed in the basement of the mill.

Patrick Malone, director of the Slater Mill Historic Site, which includes the stone Wilkinson Mill, said that the construction of the wheel and the eventual reconstruction of the millrace that funneled water to it from the Blackstone River were the last major projects in the restoration of the mill.

Wildcats, field work reported in Basin

Aminoil USA, Inc., operating from Midland, announced location for a wildcat two miles north of Roscoe in Nolan County.

The 7,350-foot operation is No. 1 T.A.S., 467 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 34, block 23, T&P survey.

Drillsite is surrounded by depleted wells in the Rowan & Hope, Northwest (Canyon sand) field. The pool has three wells that produce at an average depth of 5,980 feet.

CROCKETT WILDCATS

Two wildcat sites have been announced in Crockett County.

MRJ Corp. of Houston will drill No. 1 George L. Thompson 2.5 miles southeast of Iran and 467 feet from south and 7,538 feet from east lines of section 71, block 1, I&GN survey.

Contracted to 2,500 feet, it is 1 7/8 miles northwest of the lone well in the Noelke, West (Felder gas) field which produces at 838 feet.

MRJ also will drill No. 2 George L. Thompson as a 2,500-foot wildcat in the same area. It is 5/8 mile north of the Felder producer and 467 feet from south and 4,469 feet from east lines of section 71, block 1, I&GN survey.

MENARD EXPLORER

Trans-Western Exploration Inc. of Midland spotted its No. 1-57 Arthur Sears as a 3,400-foot wildcat in Menard County, 14 miles northwest of Mertzon.

It is 760 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 57, GWT&P survey, abstract 344. Ground elevation is 2,219 feet.

The drillsite is 1 1/4 miles southeast of Nazera (Goen) field. The pool also formerly produced from the Strawn.

No. 1-57 Arthur Sears also is 5/8 mile west of a 3,900-foot dry hole.

IRION PROSPECTOR

Moran Exploration Inc. of Midland will drill a Canyon wildcat in Irion County, 12 miles northwest of Mertzon.

Scheduled on a 7,600-foot contract, it is No. 1-14 A. A. Sugg, 2,130 feet from north and 1,830 feet from east lines of section 14, block 6, H&TC survey.

If successful in the Canyon, the well will reopen the O. H. Triangle (Strawn) pool.

UPTON PROJECT

A 1 5/8-mile northeast outpost to Wolfcamp production in the Davis multipay pool of Upton County has been staked by Mobil Producing Texas & New Mexico Inc. No. 3 TXL "T."

Contracted to 10,600 feet, it is 33 miles north of McCamey and 660 feet from north and east lines of section 17, block 41, T-5-S, T&P survey. It is 2,733 feet northeast of Mobil No. 2 TXL "T" — an active project.

IRION WELL

Fortune Drilling Co. of San Angelo No. 4 Winterbotham "D" has been completed from the Canyon D oil zone in the Dove Creek multipay pool of Irion County.

The well, a north offset to production, is nine miles southeast of Mertzon.

It finished for a 24-hour flowing potential of 31 barrels of 40.7-gravity oil and 75 barrels of water, through a 12/64-inch choke. The gas-oil ratio is 1,806-1.

Completion was from pay behind casing perforations at 6,421-6,535 feet. The zone was acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 54,000 gallons.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 32, block 21, H&TC survey.

TOM GREEN WELL

Texcan Resources Corp. of Houston No. 8 Johnson has been completed as the third well in the Christoval, North (Swastika oil) pool of Tom Green County, 4.5 miles north of Christoval.

It finished on the pump for 30.09 barrels of 36-gravity oil and two barrels of water, through perforations at 3,378-3,382 feet after 250 gallons of acid.

A northeast offset, it is 490 feet from southeast and 957 feet from southwest lines of J. Heinrich survey, abstract 537.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, May 15, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Distinguished actor James Mason—who shares your birthday—continues to win new admirers, both young and old. You, too, have great charm and a winning personality. An excellent head for business serves you well during the next few months, and at times, you appear to have the Midas touch! Do not be afraid to move forward vigorously. You will need to bring all your creative abilities to bear if you are to triumph in a runaway economy. Harmony makes romance great source of satisfaction, and many singles born on this date head for the altar. You feel on top of the world when you think of the love and luck you enjoy!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do homework before presenting new idea. Have all facts, figures at your fingertips. Do not underestimate your worth. Ask top dollar if negotiating new contract.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your encouragement means a lot to someone who is feeling down in the dumps. Show how much you care. A thoughtless remark could cause hurt, resentment today. Peaceful atmosphere at home is particularly welcome after an emotional showdown.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Important relationship may demand a financial investment but results prove it was warranted. Key to success is adequate planning, attention to detail. Do not allow yourself to be pressed into making commitments you cannot keep.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Listen to advice of mate, romantic partner if you want savings to grow faster. Keep long-term objectives in mind when considering employment situation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You cannot afford to invest the amount of money that associate is discussing, so stop day-dreaming. Make greater effort to live within means. Buy fewer items on credit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Talk with experts before signing contract, agreement. You could have some doubts about an important personal relationship. Try to resolve them before making a further commitment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stand up for your rights. One who tries to take advantage of you may want to see how much you will take without making waves. Be assertive, but not aggressive, when approaching superior.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money situation is due to improve. Emphasis today is on returning items you have borrowed. Be careful not to lend something which is not yours to loan.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Love relationships are highly favorable. Work requires greater self-discipline. Change of residence or employment is distinct possibility. Excellent time to sell property, extra possessions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Attention to detail reduces chance of costly error. Work done at home will suffer fewer interruptions than that done in office environment. Make sure to meet all deadlines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Give new ideas, programs more time to develop. Jealousy may crop up at unexpected moment. Your fears are without foundation. Relieve tension by working on hobby or artistic project.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take the time to do best possible job even if friend or co-worker tries to rush you. Thoroughness pays off. New plan should remain on back burner until you have decided how to promote it.

The stage was set for a classic, though unusual, deceptive maneuver. Hamman covered the jack of spades with the queen. East naturally produced the king and declarer won the ace. After drawing trumps in two rounds with the king and queen, Hamman led a club to the king and club back, fetching the jack and the ace.

West had no way of knowing that it was essential to shift to a diamond. Not unnaturally, he presumed Hamman had to have a second spade in his hand in view of his play of the queen at trick one, so he continued with a spade. Hamman ruffed, discarded a diamond on the ten of clubs, ruffed a club and returned to his hand with a spade ruff to sluff another diamond on the fifth club.

Thus, Hamman ended up making an overtrick on a hand where no other declarer managed to come to ten tricks.

'Haywire' most difficult for producer Bill Hayward

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Haywire" wasn't just another producing job for Bill Hayward. Each day he watched his own life and that of his family re-enacted for the camera.

It's not hard to see why he would call "Haywire" the most difficult show he has ever produced. "Haywire" is based on the best-selling book by Hayward's sister, Brooke Hayward, which recounts the story of their famous show business family. Their father was Leland Hayward, a super-agent and super-producer of such Broadway hits as "South Pacific" and "Mr. Roberts." Their mother was Margaret Sullivan, one of the most famous actresses of her day.

The three-hour movie, which airs Wednesday night on CBS, tells of a family that had everything — fame, glamor, talent, money. Still, it wasn't enough to save the Haywards from divorce, alienation and suicide. Miss Sullivan killed herself in 1960 and daughter Bridget took her life nine months later. Bill Hayward spent time in a mental institution, escaped, stole a car and was arrested.

"If I were approached again, I don't know if I would do it again," he said of the film. "It was terribly trying. It was like going through some terribly expensive form of therapy."

He said it was like experiencing time warp to see other people act out the situations through which he had lived. "But," he said, "I also discovered that I could actually divorce myself from the reality of the moment, and while I never completely lost my sense of deja vu, I was able to look at individual scenes and eventually the entire project with objectivity."

The movie stars Lee Remick as Miss Sullivan, Jason Robards as Leland Hayward, Deborah Raffin as Brooke, Dianne Hull as Bridget and Hart Bochner as Bill. Linda Gray plays Hayward's wife after her remarries, and Richard Johnson is Miss Sullivan's next husband.

"I was stunned by Lee Remick," Hayward said. "It was so difficult for me to visualize anyone playing Maggie. When Lee started, I knew it would work."

"I'm very familiar with mother's voice. We screen her movies frequently. Blythe Danner was originally considered because she has that same voice and aura," Hayward said. "She had been told all her life she had a voice like Maggie Sullivan. But when we were ready to start she wasn't available."

Hayward said his sister Brooke "started the book as therapy for herself. Actually, my memory of the event was that it started out to be a book about Bridget. Then she came across the idea of doing interviews and it got bigger and bigger."

Not many people are as familiar with Leland Hayward as with his actress wife. He was one of the movies' biggest agents, then became a Broadway producer. The real Hayward appears briefly in a scene showing a television set tuned to "The Ed Sullivan Show."

"There are lots of wonderful stories about Leland," Hayward said. "But you can't go out and film those stories. It was a difficult screenplay."

"Maggie was terribly secretive. We knew she was an actress, but we didn't know what that meant. We'd seen her in several plays. She didn't like to make movies and she never let us see any of them."

He said he has not yet shown "Haywire" to his own children. "I don't know what my son, who is 15, would make of it," he said. "He never knew his grandmother, but he did know his grandfather."

Hayward said he was in Hawaii making a movie when he learned that Brooke had sold her book to Warner Bros. for the movie.

"I was kind of appalled because Maggie was such a private person," he said. "I said who's going to play Maggie? Forget about that — who's going to play me?"

"Brooke said she thought I ought to produce it. The people at Warner Bros. thought I was dead. They had no idea what happened to that weird kid in the book."

He said he took on the job of producing the movie because he thought he could make it more accurate, although Warner Bros. originally was suspicious of turning the project over to a member of the family.

Hayward was associate producer of "Easy Rider" and worked in one level or another on such Peter Fonda films as "Hired Hand" and "Wanda Nevada." He also produced other movies, and was involved in the TV series "The Rogues" and in the production of "A Bell for Adano," which his father had produced on Broadway.

'Mork and Mindy' on way down

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As ABC kicked the legs out from under its biggest hit last season, one of the interested observers was Pam Dawber. Of "Mork and Mindy," the victimized series, she is Mindy.

"This show," she says, "has given me power. It has made me well-known. It has put me first in line for jobs."

"Because of that, I don't have to look at the job as the beginning and ending of my career. If it goes down the drain next year, I'll be OK. But it would be a shame."

It would have seemed ludicrous a year ago to suggest that down the drain was a possible destiny for "Mork and Mindy." It was an instant, unparalleled success, and it was just beginning. "Mork" would last, it seemed, as long as the frenzy of its star, Robin Williams, could last.

But ABC unwittingly submarined "Mork and Mindy" by trying, unsuccessfully, to use it as a Sunday-night battering ram against CBS.

"We were all very worried about the move, but we didn't think it would hurt the show as much as it did," Miss Dawber says. "We were surprised. Very surprised, and very sick."

Worse, ABC tinkered with the image of the show. The network tried to sex it up with a Raquel Welch episode and a silly, bouncy, unfunny episode with the Denver Broncos cheerleaders. Mork, the visiting alien goof, lost his appealing innocence. ABC lost a powerful hit.

ABC finally moved the show back to its comfortable Thursday night slot, where it showed signs of slow recovery, and the network hopes to restore some of the show's lost charm.

"Please," she asks, in mock prayer to the powers at ABC, "don't move it in the middle of the season."

For such a young show — it began in spring 1978 — "Mork and Mindy" has suffered a full quota of difficulties. Besides the problems of the Sunday night adventure and cast resentment over the attempt to titillate, there was a noisy dispute between Miss Dawber and the network over money. She reportedly resented earning substantially less than her $15,000-a-week co-star, Williams, and demanded that her contract be renegotiated.

"Glad you brought that up," she says. "I don't know where that all began, about my being upset about Robin's salary. He does make more than I do, and he should. I make more than I should, for that matter. We all do. It gets to be like Monopoly money after awhile."

"But I just thought that the network was treating me with no respect, and I asked that my contract be renegotiated. I don't know where they got all of that other stuff."

Anyway, being the lesser light in "Mork and Mindy" isn't entirely bad, she says. "Robin's being used to death, like poor Fonzie — Henry Winkler. He's already shown his whole ball of wax. I don't want to be burned out — that's something Robin's got to worry about."

"But (because of "Mork") I'm considered in the industry a credible good actress, I think I've shown that I can deliver a line and have people believe it." She has landed a lead role in an upcoming TV movie, "The Girl, The Gold Watch and Everything," and is preparing for a stage tour in "My Fair Lady."

And there is always that "Mork"-wrought good place in line for jobs, a benefit she may have to cash in sooner than anyone might have dreamed.
