Kermit crater continues to grow...and grow...

KERMIT — Most earth-moving activity in the crater located two miles southwest of Kermit near FM Highway 115 calmed down somewhat Wednesday afternoon.

However, early this morning the crater resumed the rapid pace at which it continues to devour more chunks of earth.

The activity surrounding the geological spectacle also is continuing at the same fast pace established Tuesday when the crater was born.

Local and state law enforcement officers are continuing to monitor the 250- by 200-yard chasm.

The last witnessed amount of activity occurred early this morning when a sheriff's deputy reported that 10 feet of earth fell from the south side of the crater followed by a drop in the water level, a Winkler County Sheriff's Department official said.

Early Wednesday morning sheriff's deputies said they could hear loud splashes that sounded like thunder during the dark as more huge chunks of earth fell into the water.

Around the northwestern edge of the crater, large cave-like indentations can be seen in the depression's wall, leaving precarious ledges which may fall at any moment.

A red warning ribbon about 100 feet from the edge has been erected by law enforcement officers to keep interested bystanders away from the area.

Oil industry personnel, news media and law enforcement officials are now the only individuals allowed near the area. Most sightseers and curious bystanders are prohibited by law enforcement personnel from entering and viewing the crater.

This was the first part of a plan of action to protect the public, said Henry Jones, Winkler County commissioner.

When the crater activity has settled down for some time, law enforcement officials will attempt to knock down the edges of the sinkhole which would reduce the danger of persons sliding into the crater, a Winkler County Sheriff's Department official said.

How they plan to accomplish that is unknown at this time. However, there was talk among Winkler County officials of dynamiting the edges.

Cracks in the earth showing possible surface weaknesses have been located within about 50 feet of the 62-barrel-a-day T.G. Hendrick-A No. 3 oil well which caused Shell Oil Company personnel to voluntarily plug the well as a precaution should the crater erode its way to the well, according to a Texas Railroad Commission spokesman.

Cracks have been observed as close as 200 yards from FM Highway 115. Buck Swinford, Highway Department maintenance engineer, said should the cracks get closer to the highway, the Highway Department will have to block off the road and route traffic away from the area.

Petroleum in the Shell Oil Co. tank farm was to be emptied sometime this morning as a precaution should the crater expand into the area, according to sheriff's department officials.

Late Wednesday, the hole was less than 300 yards from the tanks, which hold a total of 122,000 barrels, according to a spokesman for Shell in Houston.

What caused the crater remains an enigma for geologists visiting the area. However, those geologists interviewed declined to speculate as to the underground conditions which might have created the large and still growing sinkhole.

Hank Krusekops, a Midland geologist for the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates the oil and gas industry in the state, told The Associated Press today that water could have seeped into salt deposits below the ground, causing them to melt and weaken the ground.

A 24-inch water pipeline had been broken by the crater's movement near the northeast side of the depression, according to a sheriff's department official.

Plenty of theories explain origin of 'big ole hole'

By SUSAN BAKER
Staff Writer

KERMIT — "Looks like West Texas is finally getting its Grand Canyon," said Winkler County Sheriff's Deputy R.A. Davis. Revving the engine on his balloon-tired, three-wheeled motorcycle, he spun away in the dust and headed toward the opposite end of the "big ole hole."

Davis was tired. He had been on almost constant duty at the site of the mysterious Kermit sinkhole since it had first begun opening up Tuesday morning. "Got tired of just walking around out here, so I brought this bike out."

In contrast to Tuesday, when the dynamic action of the hole had brought a sizable crowd of onlookers from nearby Kermit, much of the general public was not allowed into the area Wednesday.

But each member of the small crowd of Winkler County law officials, oilfield workers and members of the press gathered at the hole's edge had his own theory as to its origin.

"This field has been operating for almost 50 years," remarked one veteran oilman from Wink. "I reckon it's just had so much fluid pumped out of it for so many years that there just isn't much left in the ground, and it gave way."

Another man pointed to a blackened stain on the inner side of one of the crater's walls. "There was a well there, back in 1963," he said, "that blew out after it was plugged up. The fire came straight out of the ground, and I bet that had something to do with it."

But nobody is sure what caused the huge opening, which began Tuesday morning and rapidly grew to hundreds of yards in diameter. "Just looks like a big ole hole to me," said an older onlooker.

By Wednesday, most of the boiling and crumbling action of the hole as it collapsed had ceased and a sense of waiting and anticipation settled over the group.

"Looks like it's slowed down quite a bit," said Davis from his perch on the three-wheeler. "I'm tired of waiting. I wish I could take some dynamite to it right now. I'm afraid someone is going to get hurt."

The possibility of using dynamite became more and more of a reality as officials viewed the largest fissure on the southwest edge of the crater. "Maybe the best thing would be to blow it before it goes by itself," said Davis.

Meanwhile, officials roped off the entire area from about 100 feet away from the hole to prevent curious onlookers from getting too close to the crumbling edge and the waiting continued.

The mystery surrounding the crater has gained statewide coverage, stirring a strange sense of pride in area residents.

"Be sure you say that it's a Wink hole!" declared one Wink resident. "No, no, it's a Kermit hole for sure!" said a Kermit man.

"You know, something like this happened once in a cornfield down in Mexico," said Highway Department maintenance engineer Buck Swinford. "And that turned out to be a pretty big volcano, Popocatepetl. Kind of makes you think."

Swinford was keeping a careful eye on the crater, as any further growth could threaten Farm Road 115 only about 100 yards away.

"This reminds me of a lady we had running for county judge a few years back," he said. "She said she'd get Kermit a lake if she got elected."

"Well, I don't know how much of her doing it is, but it looks like we got our lake!" he added, referring to County Judge Francis Clark.

Meanwhile, Deputy Davis was ready to call it a day. "They just called in and told me I could have off until midnight," he said. "That's the best news I've heard all day!"

On that note, he loaded the three-wheeled Honda into the back of his sheriff's department jeep, and made tracks for home.

Sanatana officials say they won't locate new sign plant here

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Santana Industries probably won't be locating a safety exit sign manufacturing operation using radioactive materials in the Midland area.

Following a meeting this morning with State Health Department officials, Peter J. Biehl, president of Santana Industries, said the company is backing out of its plans to locate in Midland.

"I am disappointed at the reception we've had lately," Biehl said. "At this point, the Midland-Odessa area probably will not figure into our ultimate plans."

Biehl said Santana Industries is still enthusiastic about a Texas location and added the company is reassessing its position. He declined to disclose any locations.

Biehl denied that the company has ruled out plans to actually manufacture the signs in Texas. But Joe Gorrell, licensing supervisor for the health department's Radiation Control Division, said Santana Industries will be submitting a new application for a distribution operation only.

Gorrell said Santana Industries probably would import fully-manufactured signs — which use the radioactive material tritium — from Europe.

Some storage of the signs in Texas may be involved, he said.

Biehl denied that Santana Industries had any corporate connections with American Atomic Corporation, which had a poor safety record in Arizona.

Biehl is a former president of American Atomic, but claimed he is no longer connected with the company.

Gorrell said it was his understanding that several of the people involved in Santana Industries also were involved with American Atomic.

Biehl said he felt Santana had been given a thorough and objective review by the State Health Department.

Santana's permit was almost to the approval point when the health department discovered Santana's lease on a building in Midland County had expired and wasn't renewed. A firm's location must be inspected and approved by the health department before a permit can be issued.

The company had planned to set up a plant in a building half a mile from the KOA campsite and south of Midland Regional Airport. But the building's owner — Dale Leverett of Odessa — said earlier this week the lease had expired and he had heard nothing from Santana after informing them two weeks ago of the situation.

The public wasn't aware Santana was in the final stages of moving to Midland until last week. At that point the public began raising objections to the firm on the basis of a parent company's operations in Tucson, Ariz.

Known as American Atomic, the plant was forced to close by the state after some tritium was lost and large amounts of the radioactive material were found in a nearby neighborhood.

Gorrell said earlier this week that Santana had met the requirements in its application and a permit for it to operate could be issued sometime in the next two weeks.

But after the health department became aware Santana had lost its lease, the agency called in Santana for a closed meeting this morning to iron out the problems.

One Midland woman had written to the health department requesting a public hearing on Santana's planned operations, and reported she had been backed by numerous other residents.

Congress prepares to override veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress today formally delivered to President Carter its death sentence for his dime-a-gallon gasoline fee and prepared for an expected easy override of his promised veto.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, abandoning hopes that Carter's veto would be sustained in the face of overwhelming votes Wednesday in both the House and the Senate, said an override effort could be completed by late today.

The House sent the repeal legislation to Carter today by a simple voice vote as House leaders capitulated and decided to accept without further delay the Senate's approach of attaching it to a bill extending the national debt ceiling.

Both Carter and the Democratic leadership in Congress were roundly trounced Wednesday when the House voted 376-30 and the Senate 73-16 to repeal the fee.

Both votes were well over the two-thirds margin that must be delivered in both chambers to override a veto.

Today, O'Neill, D-Mass., told reporters that Carter would still veto the bill in the face of a near-certain override "to show to our European allies that the president is doing everything he can with regard to the oil situation."

O'Neill predicted that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would respond to the killing of the oil fee by increasing oil prices by up to 20 percent "in 60 to 90 days."

In agreeing to take the Senate version of the bill, the House resolved the only remaining difference between the chambers on the issues.

Wednesday's votes dealt Carter one of the severest congressional energy defeats of his presidency and drew bitter criticism today from Charles Schultze, chairman of his Council of Economic Advisers.

"It was disturbing, it was serious, it was inexcusable," Schultze said on NBC's "Today" show.

If Carter follows through on his veto threat, he could become the first Democratic president to have a veto overridden since Congress in 1952 forced an immigration bill into law over Harry S. Truman's protest.

Carter has cast 21 vetoes, including two this year, all of which have been sustained.

His Republican predecessor, Gerald R. Ford, cast 66 vetoes and was overridden on 12 of them by the Democratic-controlled Congress. The last override came Sept. 30, 1976 on Ford's veto of an appropriations bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

While the House passed a simple bill to knock down the fee outright, the Senate attached it to a 30-day extension of the federal debt limit.

Divorce tore him apart

Friends shocked by sheriff's death

By KAY CRITES
Staff Writer

ANDREWS — The portrait painted by friends is one of a deeply religious man, tremendously in love and slowly being torn apart by the turmoil of divorce.

A man who wasn't sleeping, wasn't eating and who had been hospitalized earlier for a nervous condition.

Early Tuesday morning, the last thread snapped as Andrews County Sheriff J.A. "Bud" Gregory shot his estranged wife in the chest and head. He then called the sheriff's department dispatcher, explained the situation and asked her to send Chief Deputy Wayne Farmer and Peace Justice R.G. "Rags" Ragsdale, both old friends, before turning his .41-caliber service revolver on himself.

Gregory had been extremely depressed over the pending divorce suit, filed by his wife in May the week after he won an unopposed spot on the November ballot for his fifth term as sheriff.

When Farmer and Ragsdale arrived at the sheriff's home shortly after 8 a.m., where Willa Dean "Biddy" Gregory had remained after the separation, they found the house locked. Farmer broke a front window to gain entrance to the home.

Mrs. Gregory was slumped on the couch; Gregory was beside her with a single wound to the head. There was no sign of a struggle.

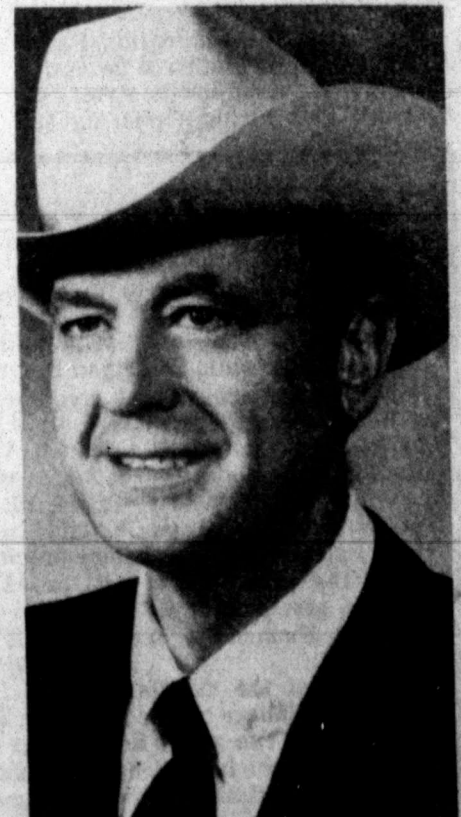

MRS. GREGORY was fully clothed, apparently ready to go to work. She had been a payroll secretary for the past 13 years for the Andrews Independent School District.

Deputy Farmer also found a note left by Gregory containing a list of relatives to be notified in the event of his death. Part of the list had been photocopied, leading deputies to speculate it had been prepared the day before the shooting.

The sheriff's department dispatcher said Gregory came into the office earlier Tuesday morning and spoke with her briefly before leaving. It is now believed Gregory returned to the office to get his revolver.

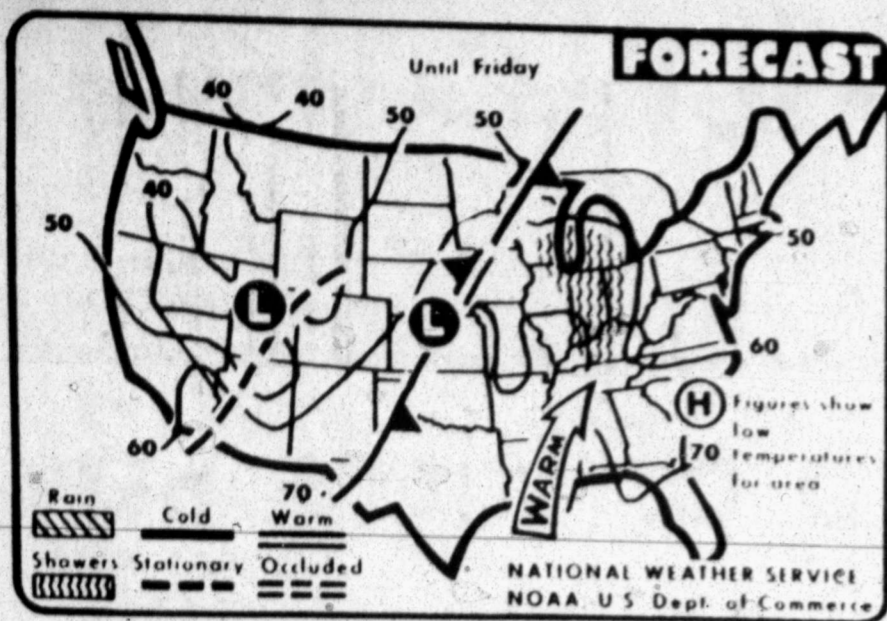

James Roberts, editor of the Andrews County News, said he didn't think Gregory's death really sur-

Guard patrols Grand Island

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP) — National Guardsmen patrolled past twisted and shattered buildings early today as federal officials pledged to help this Plains city recover from devastating tornadoes that destroyed nearly 600 homes and businesses and killed at least four people.

Nearly 200 people were injured, at least four critically, when as many as seven twisters rumbled through dozens of blocks of the city of 40,000. The body of one teen age girl was blown nearly a block by the battering winds.

Bill Shreffler, assistant city attorney, said workers continued to search for more possible victims, but "we have no numbers" of the missing.

"Nobody really knows how many deaths there are," said Gov. Charles Thone, who inspected the devastation by helicopter. Estimates of the death toll Wednesday reached as high as 35, but Thone later said the final tally would be lower than expected.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Danford Stout, who huddled with his family in a cellar as the twisters reduced his home to splinters. "You know, I ain't much of a church-goer, but I still believe in the good Lord and I prayed when we were down in that basement."

His friends say sheriff was torn up by divorce

prised the sheriff's closer friends, but all were shocked that he shot his wife.

"Gregory was real open about the fact that when they got back from Kansas, she had filed for divorce," Roberts said. Shortly after the May 3 primary election, the Gregorlys traveled to Kansas to see their first grandchild.

"He kept sending people over there to talk to her about him coming back."

ACCORDING TO COUNTY JUDGE

R.D. Bennett, the couple had separated before, but always reconciled. "All his friends tried to cheer him up," Roberts said, "and it worked pretty good until Monday afternoon. He became real depressed."

"He was at church Sunday and dressed fit to kill. He looked real good. In fact several people said Sunday afternoon he was in a better mood, and then something changed."

The sheriff's unexpected and violent death has caused a great deal of turmoil in the community.

Mayor Maurice Simmons remarked, "This has really saddened the community, but in the end they'll all pull together. It may even strengthen it in some way."

JUDGE BENNETT perhaps provided the best insight into "Bud" Gregory during the few weeks before his death. Bennett's office was just around the corner from Gregory's and apparently they talked quite often.

"It's shocked everyone and, of course, those of us here who were close to the sheriff and his wife — we were more affected by it than perhaps you would be normally."

"In retrospect, he was a man that was liked. He was a very dedicated fellow to something he believed in. But he was emotional. The separation from his wife had just overcome him."

According to Bennett, Gregory was hospitalized two days early last week for a "nervous condition."

He also said Gregory was extremely sensitive and would sometimes take common occurrences as a personal affront.

"People who committed a burglary did it not for the swag but to do him personal injury — that's how he sometimes saw it. Yet, he'd bring these same people in here and do everything he could to make them comfortable."

BENNETT ADDED that

Gregory kept his jail immaculate and made sure the prisoners were well fed. "He had so many kind qualities about him that were good, yet when he got mad — he was real high tempered."

Gregory apparently expected he and his wife would reconcile again, Bennett said. "But evidently Mrs. Gregory was adamant that they shouldn't; that it wasn't in their best interests."

And he told about the time last week when Gregory came in to talk to him. "He said he hoped everything would work out. We were just talking about it and all at once he just got up and walked out. It seemed to disturb him just to talk about it."

Bennett also said Gregory had been having trouble sleeping and hadn't been eating as he should.

"But it just never entered my head that he might commit suicide, and he dearly loved his wife. If you had asked me prior to this if he might have killed himself, I would have said yes. But not his wife. He loved her too much. When he talked about her he always had something nice to say. And he valued her influence in the community."

GREGORY WAS DEEPLY

religious, according to the judge, and was highly emotional about it. "He tried his best to live a Christian life, but he would let events sometimes sway him."

During his 15 years as sheriff, Bennett said, Gregory worked hard to keep Andrews County "clean," especially of narcotics.

"That seemed to be the thing he worked harder on. His feeling seemed to be about the children who are involved."

Wayne Farmer, former chief deputy and now interim sheriff, had worked for Gregory for 14 years.

"He's been fair to us. We have a lot of respect and admiration for him. He ran an excellent sheriff's department. He was well-known throughout the state; almost every agency recognized his name," Farmer said, his words cut short by his effort to control his tears.

It had been a long day — Gregory's death, his being sworn in as interim sheriff and then shortly after midnight Wednesday, another suicide.

"I'd give anything if it (Gregory's death) hadn't happened," he told the mayor.

"Bud has his faults like all of us do, but as far as the department, he devoted his full time and everything he had to it."

ANDREWS WAS ALREADY

rocking from a suicide-murder Saturday night. The Gregorlys' deaths seemed almost too much to accept, topped off by a Wednesday morning suicide — five gunshot deaths in five days.

"We're just hoping it's finished," Roberts said.

"Things in Andrews seem to happen in cycles," said Farmer. "There'll be three accidents or three fires. It's not a set rule, but it's common enough that people around here recognize and notice it."

Ironically, there are similarities among the three incidents. All three were related to marital problems.

In the first, Jesus Escarcega broke into his estranged wife's home Saturday night and shot her in the head before turning the weapon on himself. He was found semi-conscious and later died at Permian General Hospital.

Both Escarcega and Gregory stopped after killing their wives to notify someone of the deed. Escarcega walked next door and told a neighbor before killing himself. Gregory called the sheriff's dispatcher.

About 12:36 a.m. Wednesday, a passing motorist reported a body 3.3 miles west of Andrews. Donald H. McBeth, 52, of Andrews was found lying beside his vehicle with a shotgun wound to the head. The justice of the peace ruled suicide.

Gregory and McBeth were both estranged from their wives, and both lived in the same apartments. But as far as deputies can determine, the two did not know each other.

GREGORY WAS BORN and raised in East Texas, the youngest of seven children. His father died when Gregory was six, and he worked at various jobs throughout his school years. During World War II he joined the Navy, and upon his discharge was employed by Petrolite Corporation at a wax plant near Kilgore. He met Willa Dean Carl, his future wife, in 1948; they were married in 1949.

In 1953, Gregory went to work for Mobil Oil, the old Magnolia Petroleum Co., as a roustabout.

The job was in Andrews. They arrived the week after Thanksgiving in 1953.

Seven years later, when Mobil threatened to move the Gregorlys, now numbering five, he went to work for Tret-o-lite Co. They were transferred anyway, in January 1961, to South Texas for two years. In 1963, Magna Chemical Co. offered him a job in Andrews, and Gregory accepted.

In 1964, he ran for sheriff. He won and since then has been virtually unopposed for the office.

Funeral services for "Bud" and "Biddy" Gregory were to be at 2 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church chapel.

Sunny, warm forecast Friday

Another cloudy morning with a clearing, warm day is expected for Friday. A sunny day with a warm afternoon Friday is expected to reach a high in the upper 90s.

Warm southerly to southeasterly winds will again enhance Midland's warming trend, with the breeze to be a light 10-20 mph.

The low tonight will be near 70 degrees as the nights continue to be fair, with no rain in the forecast.

Interim sheriff named

ANDREWS — At 2 p.m. Wednesday Chief Deputy Wayne Farmer was sworn in by Andrews County Commissioners as interim sheriff until Jan. 1.

Farmer was chosen as interim sheriff, following Sheriff J.A. "Bud" Gregory's suicide Tuesday, to fill in until a new sheriff is elected in November.

"I can speak for the city and as an individual to the Sheriff's Department," said Mayor Maurice Simmons, "when I say I think he (Wayne Farmer) is the best man we could have found in the county of Andrews."

In the May 3 primary elections, Gregory won an unopposed spot on the Democratic ballot. The Republicans did not hold a primary and therefore did not have a candidate.

According to speculation, the Democratic executive committee will select a name to replace Gregory's on the ballots. Due to the circumstances, write-in candidates also are expected to abound.

Webster challenges Rep. Hance for position

"We are people who do not want to be ruled or want to rule others," J.D. Webster said today in explaining the stand of the Libertarian Party during the announcement of his candidacy for the 19th Congressional District seat.

J.D. Webster

Webster, 28, of Midland, is opposing incumbent Kent Hance, a Democrat from Lubbock, for the seat Hance won only two years ago. Hance had no opponent in the Democratic primary and the Republican Party failed to put up a candidate for that spot.

Webster criticized Hance for having an attitude that he described as "to get along, you have to go along" in voting on issues.

The incumbent failed to show up for a vote on funding the Department of Energy and as a result the DOE got $30.3 billion, said the challenger.

Hance voted in favor of funding Chrysler Corporation, said Webster. Instead of funding the automobile industry, the newcomer to the political scene suggested the government give Americans who purchase U.S. manufactured cars a tax credit. This in turn would boost sales for the auto industry.

Saying the country needs a strong defense, Webster claimed a volunteer force is sufficient and criticized Hance's vote in favor of reinstating the draft.

Primarily, the Liberation Party stands for "deregulation of the entire economy. We stand for the American dream." This includes phasing out every federal bureaucracy, he added.

The state party currently is working on getting the required number of signatures for its candidates to be placed on the November ballot, according to Webster.

The party has 17 paying members in Midland County and 3,000 statewide, he said.

The candidate is married and the father of two children. He holds a degree in biology and is continuing his education at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Where to vote

Democrats will go to the polls Saturday to decide the fate of three statewide runoffs.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m., said Midland County Democratic Chairman Darrell Smith.

Polling places have been combined for this runoff.

Democrats in precincts 6, 7, 9 and 27 will go to West Elementary School. Voters at precincts 1, 3, 10 and 25 will pull levers at the fire station on Edwards Street and Golf Course Road.

Voters in precincts 8, 12, 14, 20 and 23 will go to the fire station at Golf Course Road and Garfield Street. The fourth polling place, to be at Lee High School, will combine precincts 15, 18, 19, 26 and 28.

Polling place No. 5 will be at South Elementary School and include precincts 2, 5, 16, 17 and 24. The sixth polling place is at Bonham Elementary School and is for voters in precincts 4, 11, 13, 21 and 22.

In one of the runoffs, John C. Phillips is pitted against James P. "Jim" Wallace for justice of the State Supreme Court.

The other two races involve the Court of Criminal Appeals. Mike McCormick who is challenging incumbent W.T. Phillips for Place 2. For Place 3 Edith Roberts is trying to unseat incumbent Tom Davis.

An important election

Texas' Democratic and Republican Second Primaries will be held Saturday and, regrettably, voter turnout is not expected to be good.

There aren't that many races in these primaries, to begin with, and in Midland County no local candidate will be involved in a runoff. Statewide only three judicial positions will be listed on the Democratic ballot. The Republican ballot features no statewide races.

What that all boils down to is a pretty anti-climactic election. Traditionally, many voters don't bother to go to the polls when there's no presidential — or at least gubernatorial — candidate's name gracing the ballot.

In this instance, however, a poor voter turnout would indeed be a sad occurrence because voters in the Democratic runoff will be nominating a judge for the Supreme Court and two judges for the Court of Criminal Appeals.

Selection of the judicial nominees is extremely important to Texans because of the impact of the decisions they'll be making in their respective positions. We cannot discount the impact judicial decisions have upon our society. Thus, our selection of the jurists who serve on these respective courts is a matter demanding careful consideration.

Prior to the May primaries The Reporter-Telegram endorsed John C. Phillips for the Democratic nomination for associate justice of the Supreme Court. We also endorsed Democratic candidates Mike McCormick for Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 2, and

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, June 5, the 157th day of 1980. There are 209 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1968, Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York was shot and mortally wounded at a Los Angeles victory celebration after winning California's Democratic presidential primary.

On this date: In 468 B.C., the Greek philosopher Socrates was born.

In 1940, the battle of France began in World War II.

In 1947, Secretary of State George Marshall outlined a program to help Europe rebuild economically after World War II. It became known as the Marshall Plan.

In 1967, fighting erupted in the Mi-

Tom Davis for Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 3.

We again recommend voters cast their ballots for these three men. We'll briefly review for you their qualifications.

Phillips has been an associate justice of the Third Court of Civil Appeals since 1964. He would bring much experience and learning to the state's highest court.

Those who know Judge Phillips describe him as a "good, solid, sound judge" who has not attempted to write law on the bench, but merely interpret it.

McCormick served the criminal appeals court as briefing attorney prior to becoming an assistant Travis County district attorney. He is a youthful and energetic lawyer.

It's our opinion that McCormick would bring to the Court of Criminal Appeals a respect of the people's needs balanced against the rights of the accused. McCormick, too, opposes reversals based largely on technical points, a factor in the increasingly heavy burden of cases on appeal.

Judge Davis is a thoughtful and respected jurist who was first a district judge in Vernon, then a commissioner on the criminal appeals court. He was appointed judge when the court was expanded.

He has headed programs for continuing education at Sam Houston State University and is the best choice in his race.

These men are our choices of the candidates seeking the Democratic nominations. We hope when you review the qualifications of all the candidates you will agree with us.

HEMISPHERE REPORT

Peso and Mexico's economy safe for the foreseeable future

"The peso lost 9 centavos," the Mexico City daily proclaimed in a brief front-page story.

That meant, as the newspaper, El Dia, went on to say, that the dollar had risen on the exchange market in the Aztec capital from 22.89 pesos to 22.96 pesos in one week.

The change amounts to less than four-tenths of a cent per dollar and is hardly liable to make any difference at all to the foreign visitor.

The tourist changing a $100 bill at that rate would make an extra 39 cents. The big investor with $1 million would be ahead $3,951.

All that is not really enough to influence people one way or another.

What is intriguing, though, is the apparent effort to stir speculation in Mexico over the future of the peso.

On May 16, a columnist in El Dia, Mexico's Marxist daily, reported what he termed the danger of another flight of capital from Mexico.

He said that U.S. Federal Reserve estimates were that private Mexican deposits in U.S. banks had grown to where they "permanently" amount to over $4 billion.

He wrote that "the famous flight of capital of 1975 and 1976 — which almost paralyzed the productive activity of the country and provoked the devaluation — reached an intermediate figure — its exact amount was never able to be determined — between $4 billion and $5 billion.

"That is to say we are now at the same ominous level as then."

William Giandoni

Whether or not the figures El Dia quoted are accurate, it is inaccurate to suggest that Mexico is in a situation similar to that existing on the eve of the devaluation of the peso almost four years ago.

The difference is enormous. Roughly $30 million a day.

Whereas in 1976, Mexico was a net importer of petroleum, now Mexico is in a position to export around 1 million barrels a day to an oil-thirsty world.

Now Mexico's problem is not how to earn more hard cash, but rather how to handle all that it does earn and what to do with its excess oil revenues.

Wealth is a problem that Mexico has never had to face before.

Interestingly, one of the serious recommendations that international bankers are making is that Mexico deposit some of its extra-dollars in foreign banks so as not to worsen inflation. That would account for the

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Is peacetime pork barreling being used?

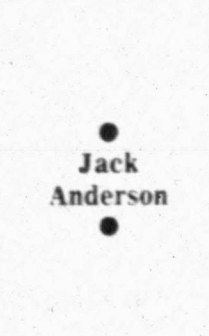

WASHINGTON — The patriotic rhetoric that is "accompanying the Pentagon's pending massive budget increase serves to obscure a sordid, politics-as-usual fact of life: the American flag is being wrapped around one of the biggest peacetime pork barrels in history.

While Senate and House hawks raise shrill alarms about Soviet military superiority, the private talk in Capitol cloakrooms centers on more practical considerations — how to ensure fat defense contracts for home states and congressional districts. Here are some examples of the super-patriots' super-salesmanship:

— The powerful Texas delegation — led by Rep. Jim Wright, the House Democratic leader, and Sen. John Tower, ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee — is demonstrating once again that it can bring home the bacon. Without even a vote, Wright succeeded in getting approval of $10 million to study expansion of production on the F-111 fighter-bomber, which General Dynamics builds in his district. And when the White House eliminated $112.9 million for A-7K attack planes produced by Vought Corp. in Grand Prairie, Texas, the Texans bullied the administration into restoring the money.

— Fairchild Republic's plant in Hagerstown, Md., was to have closed production of the A-10 anti-tank plane this year after delivering a final order of 106 aircraft. But under pressure from the Maryland delegation, the administration agreed to increase the production run to 198 A-10s and extend it over four years. Rep. Beverly Byron, D-Md., even managed to secure a $30 million House authorization to produce a new two-seater version.

— Frank Saltinshek used to be the House Armed Services Committee counsel. Now he's a lobbyist for Grumman Aerospace Corp. A legislative aide told my associate Peter

Jack Anderson

Grant that Saltinshek "is hovering around constantly" and "calls every day." His efforts apparently paid off: The House granted Grumman $500 million of the Pentagon budget increase.

— A weapon's performance sometimes runs second in importance to political clout. Northrup's F-18 plane, for example, has had problems with landing gear malfunction, leaky fuselage and faulty wing design. But Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif., in whose district Northrup manufactures the F-18, had no difficulty getting approval for an increase in this year's plane orders from 48 to 72, at an additional cost of about $500 million.

— The House Armed Services Committee staff, noting that the Patriot missile had performed properly in only five of its last 12 test shots, cut back its budget by $90 million. But the missile's builder, Raytheon, is in a district next to House Speaker Tip O'Neill's. After a few words in the right places, the committee reinstated the $90 million. One Capitol Hill veteran remarked wryly: "The 'speaker's lobby' is appropriately named."

ART BUCHWALD

All Jimmy Carter wants is for you to trust him

WASHINGTON — Whenever I get depressed about the economy, I go over to visit with one of the Administration's leading forecasters, Arnie Hackle. Arnie shares his office with Madame Tula, the fortuneteller over Doc Dalinsky's Drugstore. He could have an office at the White House, but he needs the use of Madame Tula's tea leaves to make his predictions for next fiscal year.

"You economists blew it again," I said to Arnie.

"How did we blow it?" he asked.

"You predicted a mild recession and you wound up with a hurricane."

"I think you're just reacting to the bad economic news that has been coming out. It's true the depth of the recession is deeper than we predicted, and the speed of it is faster than we thought, and it's sharper than we expected, but in the long run we expect to see a turnaround after the summer is over, providing the erosion of purchasing power is reduced."

"I understand that," I said. "But can't you Carter people even organize a good recession?"

"The model we used checked out perfectly in the lab. What we failed to take into consideration was that the Consumer Price Index, driven up by higher interest rates on mortgages, would reach a peak where no one could afford to buy a house. Now that mortgage rates are sliding down, we expect to see an upturn in the building industry either before or after the end of the year."

"But by the time they come down everyone will be out of work and no one will be able to afford a house at any interest rate."

"That is the conventional wisdom, but we economists have to ignore it if we ever hope to get the big bubble out of inflation. Once we get the bubble out, we can go to high single digit numbers."

"Is the bubble the underlying cause of the rate of inflation?"

"No, but it is the thing you can see in an inflationary cycle," Arnie said.

"Once the bubble is broken, then you can start work on monetary and fiscal safeguards to maintain the status quo."

"Your unemployment figures were way off, Arnie. What happened there?"

"When we planned this recession, we made allowances for a 7.5 unemployment rate, which we felt the Administration could live with. What we didn't count on was that more people would be out of work than we allowed for. They threw our model all off, and now we've had to re-calibrate our figures."

"That must have caused the Administration a great deal of hardship."

"It isn't easy to make a recession work if the people refuse to cooperate by violating our projections."

"Can you see the recession bottoming out in the near future?"

"It might after a few more dips. Then again you wouldn't want it to bottom out before we get our inflationary expectations too high."

"From what you've told me, the Carter economic game plan is right on target."

"I would say so, providing we reduce inflation, balance the budget, and get people back to work as soon as possible. Taking into account that all these factors will be operating in the price of oil and food, we should have the economy on the track by 1984, providing no one asks for a raise, and everyone buys a new car."

"What does Carter want us to do until then?"

"Trust him."

Italian politician dead at age 72

ROME (AP) — Giorgio Amendola, 72, a prominent leader of Italy's Communist Party and a staunch opponent of the Fascist regime of the late dictator Benito Mussolini, died at a Rome clinic early today after a long illness, clinic officials reported. Amendola joined the Italian Communist Party in 1929. He was arrested by the Fascists in 1932, set free shortly afterward and exiled. After living in France and Tunisia where he directed his party's clandestine publications, he returned to Italy in 1943 to become a top leader of the guerrillas who fought the Nazis in Lombardy and the Piedmont regions in northern Italy during the Nazi occupation of the country. At the end of the war he was elected a member of the Constituent Assembly and since then had been a deputy in all post-war parliaments. Amendola was a member of the party's directorate and central committee. He was among party leaders who condemned the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968.

PORT KLANG, Malaysia (AP) — A fire and several explosions hit the waterfront area of this Malaysian city today, killing three persons, injuring about 150 others.

Potts saves himself with appeal

ATLANTA (AP) — Jack Potts saved himself from the electric chair with an execution-eve decision to renew his appeals, saying he'd learned a condemned man could use publicity to help other prisoners.

Potts, 35, who fired his attorneys last fall and said he was ready to die, announced his decision to appeal Wednesday evening, just 15 hours before he was to be executed at the Georgia State Prison near Reidsville.

U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley of Atlanta granted an indefinite stay of execution until Potts' appeal could be heard.

Earlier Wednesday, O'Kelley and an appeals court in New Orleans had rejected appeals by others in Potts' behalf. The condemned was to have died at 10:30 a.m. today.

The newly launched appeals could delay his execution for two years, lawyers said.

Potts, facing twin death sentences for the kidnapping and murder of 24-year-old Michael Priest in May 1975, had fired his lawyers last fall and said he was ready to die.

When his mother visited Wednesday afternoon, Potts still was resolved to die and his last words to her were, "Goodbye mother, I'll see you in heaven," she said.

But at 7 p.m., after hours of pleading by his brother and a former girlfriend, he changed his mind, just 15 hours before he was to be executed at the Georgia State Prison near Reidsville.

"Jackie Potts is not afraid to die," said a statement written by anti-death penalty lawyers and signed by Potts.

"His new religious faith (Catholicism) convinced him that he could be of assistance to other people," the statement said. "He discovered that he could use the media attention that had focused on him to publicize the inhuman and unconstitutional conditions under which all the inmates of the Georgia State Prison at Reidsville have suffered."

Priest's mother, Mary, was furious when she learned from a television report that Potts had won a stay of execution.

"Why doesn't he just get it over with? He has played with us — everybody — for five years," the suburban Atlanta hairdresser said. "You know what I think of when I see the taxes taken out of my paycheck every week? I'm helping to support the man who killed my son."

Potts changed his mind after his brother, John, and former girlfriend, Diane Nicholson, spent hours "begging him constantly" to renew his appeals.

"We just began hugging each other" after he signed a note saying he wished to renew his appeals, said Mrs. Nicholson, who had not seen Potts in 12 years until Sunday.

In his note, Potts appointed Millard Farmer and Andrea Young, who had been trying to persuade him for days to renew appeals, as his lawyers. Associates in Atlanta rushed previously prepared papers to federal court.

The stay will remain in effect until O'Kelley holds a hearing on Potts' petition for review of his case. No date was set for that hearing.

Potts' mother, Carolyn, who maintains her son did not commit murder, said, "He's been doing some wonderful work, work he would like to go on with."

Carter intervention failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is offering his services as a mediator in the congressional deadlock over a 1981 federal spending program, but House and Senate budget writers are reported no closer to a compromise.

Carter intervened Wednesday in a 50-minute meeting at the White House with the chairmen of the House and Senate budget committees, Rep. Robert N.

Gaiamo, D-Conn., and Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C.

Carter's opposition to a defense-oriented budget compromise rejected by the House last week angered Hollings, who called the president's position the "height of hypocrisy."

And after Wednesday's meeting, Gaiamo said, "Hollings and I aren't any closer."

The budget dispute is threatening to bankrupt some government programs, including federal jobless pay, disaster relief and black-lung benefits.

Besides setting spending targets for fiscal 1981, starting Oct. 1, the new budget package would raise the 1980 budget ceiling and permit action on additional current-year spending.

Federal unemployment benefits to about 600,000 jobless workers were expected to run out of money Friday. The benefits go primarily to former federal employees and workers in the auto and steel industries hurt by foreign imports.

Cop slain

TERRELL, Texas (AP) — A police officer here was shot to death early Thursday with his own service revolver, officials said.

William Robert Stout, 29, apparently was flagged down as he drove through an apartment parking lot, hit in the head and shot shortly after 1 a.m., police said.

Ronnie Eugene Davis, 22, of Terrell, was arraigned on a murder charge before Justice of the Peace L.T. Smith. He was jailed on a $100,000 bond.

Stout had worked for the Terrell Police Department since August.

Victims' families want profits in escrow

CHICAGO (AP) — The story should be told, but no writer and no lawyer should profit from the macabre tale of mass-murderer John Wayne Gacy Jr., says the older brother of the last of Gacy's 33 young male victims.

"It's the idea that people are just going to, I don't know how to put it exactly, you know, make money off it, that disgusts me," said Kenneth Piest, a 26-year-old medical student.

The story of America's most notorious multiple slayer is potentially worth millions in book and other media rights. The issue of just who should reap those profits is at the center of a suit by Harold Piest, father of the slain 15-year-old Robert Piest.

IN A TELEPHONE interview from his parents' suburban home in Des Plaines, Ill., Kenneth Piest said only the public should profit from artistic works exploring Gacy's pathological mind.

Gacy, 38, now on Death Row, was sentenced to die in the electric chair after being convicted March 12 in the sex-related slayings of 33 young men and boys. Most of the bodies were exhumed from shallow graves in a crawl space under Gacy's home near Des Plaines.

The suit was filed against Gacy, his two Chicago defense lawyers, a Houston writer, the writer's California literary agent and the agency. It asks a Cook County judge to place into a court-run escrow account profits derived from any exclusive media rights to the story.

On May 27, Circuit Court Judge George Higgins granted a second 10-day restraining order, blocking Gacy, the writer, the agent and his literary agency from using any profits derived from the case. A hearing on the matter is set for this Friday.

A NEW ILLINOIS LAW already bars Gacy from making money by selling his story. The law orders that profits from sales of a convicted felon's story be held in a state escrow account to pay claims awarded to relatives of the victims.

But James Corrigan, the Piest lawyer, said the family thinks the law should cover more than just Gacy's profits.

"Their point is that if a book is published, Gacy and his lawyers and others should not be unduly enriched," Corrigan said.

Gacy has signed a contract assigning exclusive rights to his story to Houston writer Clyde Burleson and Burleson's West Coast literary agent, Robert Goldfarb, according to Goldfarb. Gacy also has released his defense lawyers, Sam Amirante and Robert Motta, so they can freely discuss their involvement in the case.

BURLESON AND GOLDFARB said they plan to interview Gacy and retrace his life to delve into the psychological forces that drove the man.

"I'm just not a sensationalist guy," said Burleson, 46, whose first book, "The Jennifer Project," was about the recovery by the CIA of a sunken Soviet submarine from the Pacific Ocean.

"I think the driving question in this Gacy thing is: 'Why, why did the man do it?'" Burleson said. "I want to do an insider's book to crawl around John Gacy's head, to walk the streets he walked."

"It is either going to be a work of the quality of 'In Cold Blood' or 'The Executioner's Song' or it will not be at all," said Goldfarb. "It's got to be an important work."

Kenneth Piest, referring to Norman Mailer's Pulitzer Prize-winning book, "The Executioner's Song" — a "true life novel" about convicted killer Gary Gilmore's 1977 execution by a Utah firing squad — said: "We don't fear the serious kind of thing on it, but that takes time."

GOLDFARB SAID HE THOUGHT the Piest suit was groundless.

He said: "No money has changed hands. No money has been pledged."

The suit originally included Amirante and Motta. But Higgins excused them, and they agreed to place their profits under court control.

But Amirante said: "I think it's absurd. Why go after the lawyers? Why not the prosecutor, or some reporters?"

David Goldberger, of the American Civil Liberties Union, who represented Amirante and Motta at the May 27 hearing, argued safeguard against prior restraint of publication.

KENNETH PIEST SAID HIS father's suit is not aimed at preventing publication, but only at possible gross commercial exploitation.

The Illinois law barring Gacy from gaining financially from his crimes — dubbed the "Son of Sam" bill for the New York murders committed by former postal clerk David Berkowitz — took effect Sept. 22. Its sponsor, state Sen. Lynn Martin, said she introduced it to block book profits to a Rockford man convicted of murdering his six sleeping children in 1978.

"I just couldn't believe it," Mrs. Martin said. "The thought that he might profit financially by killing his kids made me sick."

But she said the law should not be extended to block writers, movie or television producers and lawyers from financial profits derived from works about crime.

The story of mass-murderer John Wayne Gacy Jr. is potentially worth millions in book rights and the issue of just who should reap those profits is the basis of court case by a relative of a Gacy victim. The suit was filed against Gacy, his defense lawyers, a writer and a literary agent. The suit is asking the Cook County judge in Chicago to place into a court-run escrow account profits derived from any exclusive media rights to the story. (AP Laser-photo)

Mortgage program action expected

Action of some sort should take place in Washington, D.C. this week on bills concerning the Single Family Mortgage Revenue Financing Program, Harry Clark predicted Wednesday during a meeting of the Housing Authority of the City of Midland.

Clark, chairman of the Housing Authority and the Midland Housing Finance Corporation, gave a rundown on the program's progress through Congress during the board meeting held in Hillcrest Manor.

Sen. Russell Long's bill, which favored the low interest mortgage program, was to be voted on Wednesday, said Clark. Rep. Al Ullman has a bill in the House which would try to eliminate these programs.

Clark said there will be a lot of controversy over the two bills. But in case Long's bill passes, the city and county finance corporations are set to go on another program.

The MHFC sold $35 million in revenue bonds in late 1979 in its first bond program here. Of that money, about $7 million remains to be handed out and will fund about 100 more houses, said Clark. The money has been reserved for several months, but funding has been slowing recently.

The Housing Authority board declined taking action on seeking monies from the city's Revenue Sharing funds for housing rehabilitation. Clark said even though there are legalities involved if the city uses taxpayer's money for upgrading private property, the board in the past has requested — but not received — those funds.

Fred Kester, secretary for the Housing Authority, said a public hearing on uses of Revenue Sharing funds hasn't been set yet. He was told by the city manager that the city is waiting to see if Revenue Sharing funds are appropriated by Congress again.

The housing board held its annual meeting at Hillcrest Manor to meet and talk with the residents. Hillcrest Manor, operated by the Housing Authority, was built with federal money to provide housing for low income and handicapped senior citizens.

The financial statement showed that receipts and expenses are over the budget, but there is still more money coming in than going out.

Gideon rejects professor's statements

By KAY CRITES
Staff Writer

"We have been bombarded with all sorts of information, spoon-fed a steady diet of innovative personnel procedures, trained and retrained, and a gap still remains today between social scientists, who study law enforcement, and the police themselves in determining what makes good policemen."

That's the opinion of Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon who spoke Wednesday to Lions Club members in rebuttal to a speech last week in which Professor Ray LeGrande said the average policeman today, just entering law enforcement, is an undertrained, undereducated, lower class, suicidal "lad."

LeGrande, who said he had been a police officer for several years, now teaches criminal justice management at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin. However, Gideon noted that, although LeGrande had been on a police force, he had never had any "street" duty.

And he disagreed that officers were under-trained, undereducated and that current selection procedures gave the job to those who could read and write best.

"For the past 12 years, (starting with the passage of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration) the academic community has focused its attention on the chemistry of law enforcement in the United States."

They placed main emphasis on the attributes of a "good" policeman, Gideon added.

State law requires prospective law enforcement applicants to submit to a psychiatric or psychological examination.

Midland uses a psychiatrist.

"We also require that an officer entering service here have not less than a high school diploma and be of excellent moral character." He noted that 50 percent of Midland's officers have degrees of some kind. Two had recently earned their master's. And several others are working on their master's.

A new officer just out of basic training earns $1,065 per month in Midland.

Chief Gideon also said that state law currently requires 240 hours of basic training for new officers and that figure will soon rise to 320, which is what Midland currently uses.

"We're constantly working on the training-education aspect. We want to provide fair, quick and impartial service to the citizens, and we're doing everything within our power to do that here."

where they start working part time for us at 18. When they turn 21, we put them through the police academy. While cadets, they ride with officers and work in various departments. When they've completed the program, they are re-assigned.

"But can you imagine me running an ad for policemen: well educated, bachelor's degree, world travel experience, and familiar with lower, middle and upper class societies and our starting salary?"

Chief Gideon also said that state law currently requires 240 hours of basic training for new officers and that figure will soon rise to 320, which is what Midland currently uses.

"We're constantly working on the training-education aspect. We want to provide fair, quick and impartial service to the citizens, and we're doing everything within our power to do that here."

Baby safe after ride with car thief

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — An 11-month old boy abducted when thieves made off with his mother's car was found unharmed 10 miles away, strapped in his car seat and abandoned upside down in a gutter, police say.

His relieved parents sobbed when they were reunited with the infant. But police said there was no sign of Patricia Elliott's 1980 Pontiac.

"I'm sure the individual who stole the car must have been quite surprised, to say the least," said police Lt. Donald Smith.

Child dies from accident injuries

Seven-year-old Joseph F. Clark of Midland died Wednesday from injuries suffered in a traffic accident Sunday.

Clark was admitted to Midland Memorial Hospital Sunday with a concussion and facial and scalp lacerations. Hospital employees listed his condition as serious.

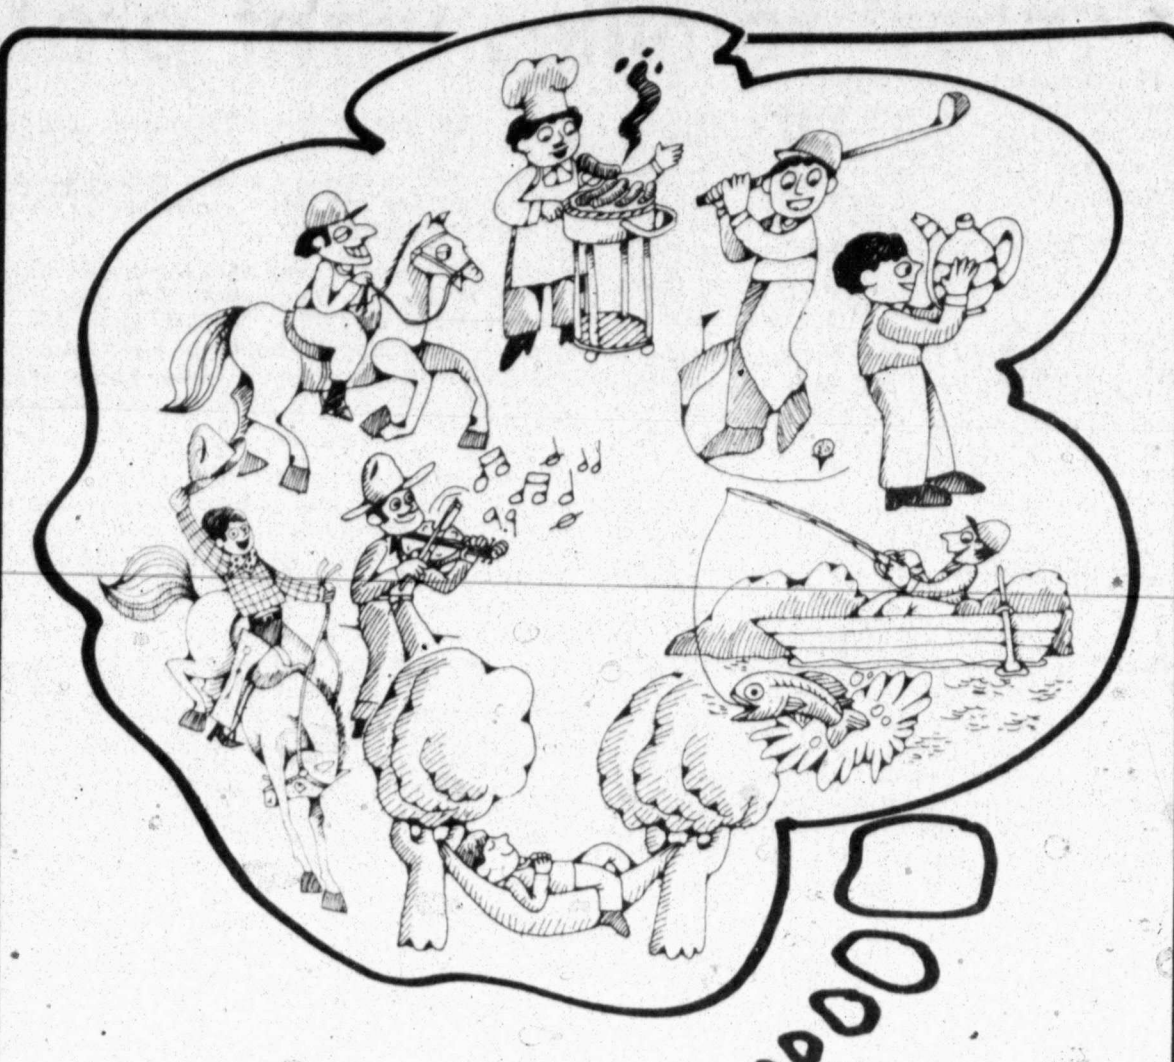

Tuesday, that condition was changed to critical. And, about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, the child died.

The traffic accident involved a pickup driven by Leonard George Porter, 44, of Midland — Clark's stepfather — and a tractor-trailer semi-trailer driven by 19-year-old Robert Cowan of Midland. Porter was reportedly eastbound on County Road 60. Cowan was southbound on County Road 1150. The two vehicles collided at the intersection. Porter and Clark, who was a passenger in Porter's vehicle, were taken to Midland Memorial Hospital by backup ambulance. The first ambulance slid out of control on rain slickened streets on the way to the accident.

Porter's condition also has been changed to critical.

Services for Joseph Clark are being handled by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Draft in Afghanistan running into increasing resistance

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A draft launched by the Soviet-backed government in Afghanistan to replenish the ranks of its army is running into increasing resistance, Afghan and Western diplomatic sources say.

In one incident, high school students celebrating the introduction of a new national flag in April were drafted on the spot, leaving their bewildered mothers pleading for their return, a reliable Afghan source said.

Afghan parents have used the disorganization and chaos in the rebellious countryside as a means to help their sons avoid the draft. Others have asked influential family friends to intervene on their behalf.

Western military analysts believe that the normal strength of the army, once put at 80,000 men - has now dwindled to half that number. In addition, Afghan troops escorting Soviet armored columns have been largely ineffective "because most Afghans are loath to fire on their own people," a foreign military analyst said.

"Much of the Afghan army has just melted away since the Russians arrived last December," said a West European source. "If they had 40,000 men under arms, I would say they're lucky."

Many of the outlying areas of Afghanistan have been under the control of anti-communist Moslem Afghan rebels, complicating the Kabul government's difficulties in conscripting soldiers.

A recent broadcast by the state-run

Radio Afghanistan provided an indication of the stern warning the Marxist regime is offering potential draft resisters:

"Those who have been recruited and conscripted for military service shall report with partial fervor to appointed centers," it said. "If any person does not comply with this sacred order, he will be subject to severe punishment."

Except for the career officer corps, nearly all of Afghanistan's army is in uniform because of conscription, with a two-year tour of duty.

Casualties and desertions, compounded by problems with induction, have forced the government to lower the draft age to 16 in recent weeks, and to refuse to discharge soldiers completing 24 month's duty, said the sources, who asked not to be identified.

Kabul parents have sent their sons to the countryside to escape induction, and family friends with influential posts in the ruling Marxist party have been asked to get special exemptions, a former Afghan official now living in exile said.

Because the two-year-old guerrilla war has so disrupted government machinery, escaping the draft is an almost riskless undertaking, the official said.

"There certainly is a conscription drive on in Afghanistan," a Western military specialist said. "But outside the towns, the regime has no way to have people report to the colors."

Government goon squads have made nightly sweeps through Kabul looking for able-bodied teen-agers and deserting draftees, informed sources said.

One source, who held a responsible government job before the 1978 Marxist coup, said the conscription drive is aimed at areas where the government fears the local youths are potential rebel recruits.

According to his information, more than one-third of the country's 216 districts were failing to meet their draft quota.

CHICAGO (AP) — Jazz legend William "Count" Basie says he intends to get some rest before taking up the baton again.

Basie, 75, was released Wednesday from a local hospital where he had been treated for a viral infection and fatigue.

Mayerick Protestant politician slain

CARNCLOUGH, Northern Ireland (AP) — A Mayerick Protestant politician who once belonged to Northern Ireland's main Roman Catholic party was killed in a hail of bullets as his wife drove him to a village hall meeting.

There were fears the shooting of John Turnley could mark the start of a fresh wave of sectarian killings as the British government prepares a new plan for Protestant-Catholic power-sharing in this strife-torn British province.

More than 2,000 persons have died in sectarian violence in Northern Ireland since 1969.

Police said three masked gunmen drove up alongside Turnley's car as it approached the hall Wednesday night, opened fire and sped off. Turnley died instantly. His wife, who was not hit, was hospitalized suffering from shock.

Britain dissolved the local parliament, the Protestant-dominated Stormont, in 1972.

Subsequent attempts at power-sharing have failed. A local executive with Catholic representation in 1974 provoked widespread Protestant protest strikes and lasted less than six months before Britain resumed direct rule.

Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey, a fervent nationalist, has recently stepped up pressure for reunification of Ireland.

But reunification is bitterly opposed by Northern Ireland Protestants who fear domination by the Irish Republic's 3 million Catholics.

Police later found a burned out automobile, possibly abandoned by the killers, several miles outside this County Antrim village, 25 miles from the capital, Belfast, where Turnley lived.

Turnley, in his mid-40s, was a controversial local figure who joined the largely Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party several years ago.

He quit after a row with the party leadership. But Turnley remained out of step with the majority of his fellow Protestants by joining the small, bisectarian Irish Independent Party.

The party favors a Northern Ireland independent of either Britain or the neighboring, overwhelmingly Catholic, Republic of Ireland, and urges the withdrawal of British troops from the province.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government is working out fresh proposals to restore a degree of local autonomy to Northern Ireland, with special representation for the Catholic minority, outnumbered 2-1 by the 1 million Protestants.

It is expected the proposals will be unveiled by the

Begin reveals talks with King Hussein

ATLANTA (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has disclosed that his government tried to negotiate a peace settlement with Jordan's King Hussein over the disputed West Bank territories, the Atlanta Constitution reported today.

The newspaper said no accord had been reached. In an interview with three American journalists, Begin startled members of his own staff when he discussed details of some attempts to reach a settlement with Hussein, the Constitution said.

The 67-year-old Israeli leader said negotiations were launched by the Labor Party government and later attempted by his own former foreign minister, Moshe Dayan.

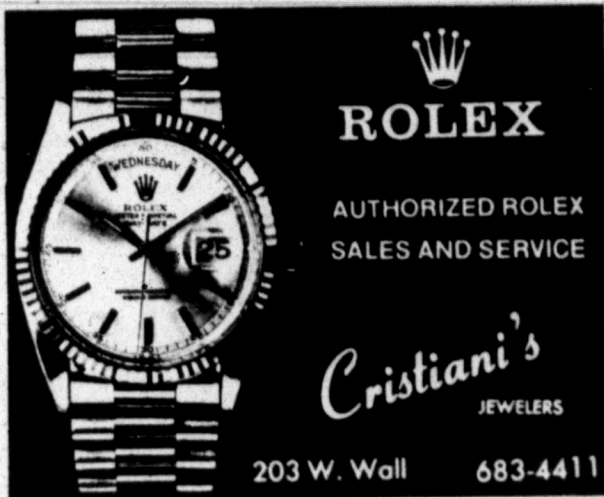

Among the American journalists were Bill Shipp, associate editor of the Constitution, and James L. Whyte, vice president and general manager of the Amarillo Globe News.

Under the proposal offered Hussein, Israel would have retained total control of Jerusalem, maintained troops at strategic points in the West Bank and offered Jordan a free port at Haifa, Begin said.

He said Israel also would have given Jordan parts of the West Bank, including the valley of the Jordan River, the paper reported.

"The little king said 'totally unacceptable, under no circumstances,'" Begin said, adding that Hussein insisted on total control of the entire West Bank and East Jerusalem.

Begin also revealed that Israel plans to reinforce present settlements on the West Bank and establish 10 new ones, the last to be set up on the West Bank.

Female Secret Service agent killed by robbers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A female U.S. Secret Service agent was fatally shot when she and her partner were approached by two robbers while on a stakeout near Los Angeles International Airport, authorities said.

Agent Julie Cross, 26, was dead at the scene and the two suspects, who fled, remain at large, an officer at the Los Angeles Police Department's Venice division said Wednesday.

The Secret Service had no immediate information on whether Ms. Cross was the first female agent to be killed in the line of duty.

Police were unable to confirm initial reports that she was killed with her own service revolver during a scuffle with the robbers.

Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner in Washington said Ms. Cross and her male partner were investigating a counterfeit case when they were approached by two armed men with stockings pulled over their heads.

Police said the suspects may have been involved in a minor automobile accident as they sped away from the scene. Neither man was believed injured in the scuffle with the Secret Service agents.

Warner said records show the dead agent was last based in San Diego and may have been in Los Angeles on a temporary assignment.

It was not immediately determined whether the robbers were linked to the agents' undercover counterfeit investigation.

Brothel paying taxes

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — The police chief of this Great Lakes port town wasn't having any luck in closing Ethyl Brand's brothel, so he called for help from the state Treasury Department.

Ms. Brand is still in business — but now she goes to a department office twice a month to hand over her prostitutes' income taxes.

"It's the first time we've gotten one of these women to agree to withhold taxes, and so far she is doing it religiously," said Byrl Claxton, supervisor for the department's intelligence unit. "Now we hope to try this in other areas."

"We have a rather unique and unusual situation here," concedes Police Chief Edward Edwardson.

The tax cases began with police raids on four brothels near the Sault Ste. Marie shipping locks in December 1978.

The Treasury Department used records seized from Ms. Brand's house to calculate her gross annual income at between $60,000 and $75,000.

They told her how much they thought she owed, she hired her own accountant and he made the department a counteroffer.

Ms. Brand began withholding income tax from her employees' wages six weeks ago. The department and the state attorney general's office have filed a $23,000 tax claim against one of Ms. Brand's competitors.

Claxton said Ms. Brand pays taxes of $120 to $150 per month based on an average daily wage of $50 for each prostitute. He said Ms. Brand's staff varies from three to six women. Some earn up to $600 per day.

Ms. Brand, whom Claxton described as a friendly and likable middle-aged woman, was "legitimately out of town for a couple of weeks" and could not be reached for comment, said Edwardson.

The chief blames a small police force and lack of funds for his troubles cracking down on prostitution, which is illegal in Michigan.

"I decided to proceed with the Treasury angle, thinking that if we could hurt them in the pocketbook, we might accomplish our objectives when we couldn't do it through the normal process of arrest and interrogation," he said Wednesday.

General Chun tightens military grip on South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Military strongman Lt. Gen. Chun Doo-hwan tightened his grip on South Korea today with the announcement that he will head a standing committee to handle the nation's day-to-day affairs.

The announcement was made by South Korea's ruling council, which said the committee has 39 top military officers and 12 bureaucrats, and 13 subcommittees generally patterned after the lines of the defunct National Assembly.

Only four members, all generals including Chun, were on the original parent council, officially called the Special Committee for National Security Measures.

The announcement said 13 of the standing committee members, six generals and seven civilians, will head the subcommittees, each with five to eight members.

The government set up the special committee Saturday to enable the military to take near total control of the government to rule the nation under continuing martial law.

The 25-man committee headed by civilian President Choi Kyu-hab included eight cabinet ministers and two other civilians. But the real power center is believed to be the standing committee announced today.

The makeup of each subcommittee was not immediately announced but sources said it was made up predominantly of military personnel including many field grade officers. Civilian bureaucrats headed the subcommittees dealing with legislation and the judiciary, foreign affairs, economy and science, finance, agriculture and fisheries, construction, commerce and resources.

The subcommittees, staffed by military officers, were those on steering, home affairs, finance, education and information, public health and social affairs, and transportation.

These subcommittees will advise the president on his overall supervision of martial law affairs and be charged with coordination and control in the planning and execution of national policy matters for national defense and security, the announcement said.

Martial law was declared following the assassination of President Park Chung-hee (Oct. 26). It was extended to the entire country when anti-government student demonstrations erupted May 17, sparking the closing of universities and widespread arrests, including that of dissident leader Kim Dae-jung.

After insurgent demonstrators seized the provincial capital of Kwangju — Kim's native area 150 miles south of Seoul — for more than one week last month, the ruling generals tightened up their control over the nation by setting up the junta-like council.

The student rebels had demanded an end to martial law, a speeding in the timetable for democratic reforms, and most importantly, the resignation of Chun, who was both defense secretary and acting head of the Korean CIA, the nation's secret police.

Last week, Chun formally resigned the CIA post, but held on to the command of defense security. With his chairmanship of the new standing committee, however, it was considered likely that whoever becomes titular head of the CIA will have to take his orders from Chun.

Iran executes 12 for drug crimes

By The Associated Press

Twelve more Iranians were executed today in Hamadan and Jourghan, about 125 miles southwest of Tehran, for drug offenses. More than 70 have been shot for similar crimes in the last two weeks as part of Iran's drive against drug smuggling.

Revolutionary Judge Sadegh Khatkhati, leading the campaign, donned a military uniform and led 150 revolutionary guards in a raid on the village of Jourghan where they rounded up 30 people. Shortly afterward, Tehran radio said seven of them were executed.

Earlier, Tehran Radio said the revolutionary court in Hamadan sentenced five persons to death for drug offenses and taking part in prison riots. One of them, Albert Danielpour who was member of a wealthy Jewish family, was also convicted of spying for Israel, supporting former prime minister Shapur Bakhtiar and drug smuggling.

CBS' 'Guiding Light' was season's most outstanding soap

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC walked off with 10 awards and CBS' "Guiding Light" was honored as the season's outstanding soap opera during the 7th annual Emmy Awards show for daytime programming.

Phil Donahue was cited during the live broadcast Wednesday as outstanding host of a talk, service or variety series, and his syndicated "Donahue" program won an Emmy as the best show in the category.

ABC had the most nominees, 32, while NBC had 16, CBS eight and the Public Broadcasting Service three. In addition to the 30 awards won by ABC, NBC took five, CBS four and PBS one.

Douglas Watson — Mackenzie Cury in NBC's "Another World" — was named the season's outstanding actor, and Judith Light, who plays Karen Wolek in "One Life to Live" on ABC, the outstanding actress.

Competition for best game show honors ended in a tie between NBC's "Hollywood Squares" and ABC's "The $20,000 Pyramid." Peter Marshall of "Hollywood Squares" was cited as outstanding game show host.

Awards in technical and some other categories were presented in earlier ceremonies.

Here is a list of the daytime Emmy winners:

—Daytime Drama Series: "Guiding Light," CBS.

—Game or Audience Participation Show: "Hollywood Squares," NBC, and "The $20,000 Pyramid," ABC, tie.

—Talk, Service or Variety Series: "Donahue," syndicated.

Orphaned dog improving after complicated delivery

LONGVIEW, Wash. (AP) — Poodle-Mama, a tiny dog orphaned by the May 18 eruption of Mount St. Helens, is recovering after a complicated delivery that left her with an infection, veterinarians say.

"She's doing better, quite frankly, than I hoped for at this point," Dr. R.A. Mitchell Jr. said Wednesday.

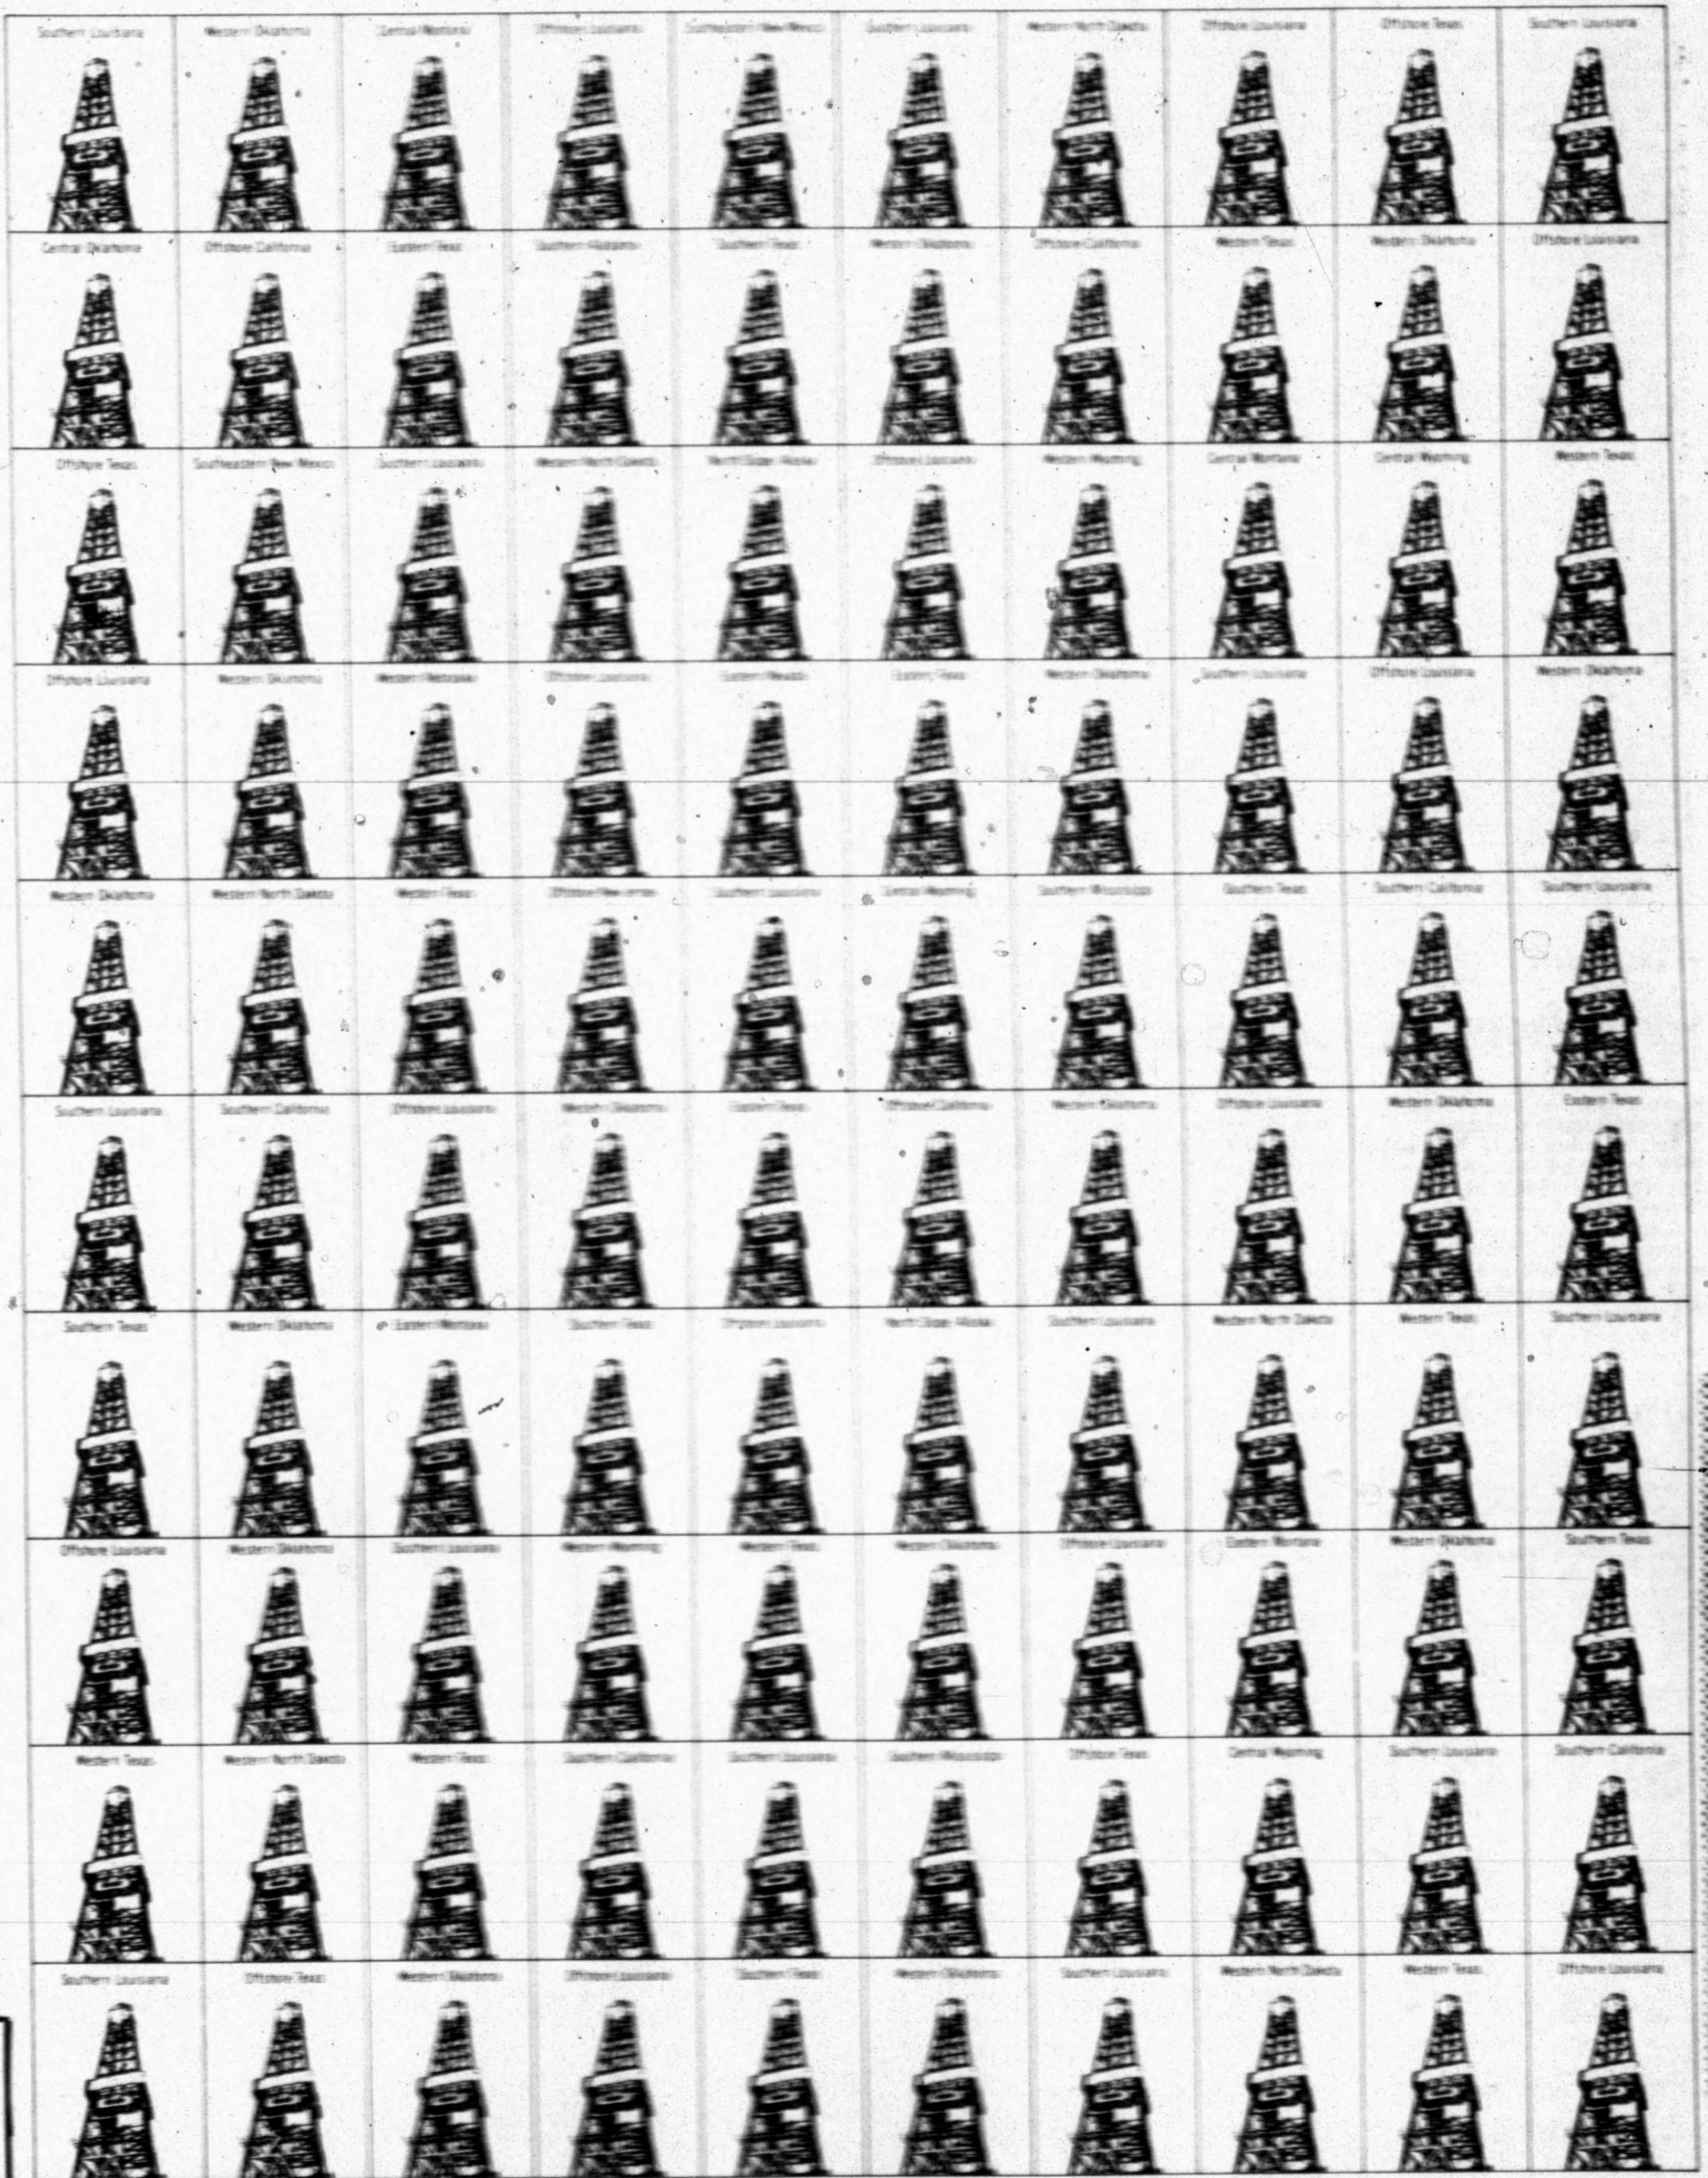

Mitchell performed a Cesarean section on the dog Monday after three puppies were born normally. A fourth was stillborn and Mitchell operated again Tuesday when the mother developed infection.

Mitchell said he could provide a firmer prognosis on the mother's chances in another day or so. He cautioned that a relapse was possible for such a small dog.

"I would say she's ahead of schedule compared to what we expected," he said.

The eight-pound poodle-terrier captured the attention of animal lovers when a picture of her peering from a humane society cage ran in newspapers across the country.

Her three puppies were in good condition and the dog, named Poodle-Mama by animal shelter workers, was allowed to nurse them for a short time Wednesday.

100 chances to reduce America's dependence on foreign oil.

This year Conoco is drilling more than 100 wildcat wells in the United States—exploring alone or in partnership with other companies. We're looking for new deposits of oil and natural gas from Alabama to Alaska, from waters off the east coast to waters off the west coast.

In addition, we're participating in drilling some 1,200 wells in the U.S. this year to develop known deposits—deposits originally discovered by wildcats.

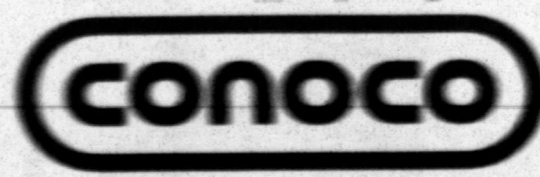

Just to drill the 1980 wildcats, Conoco is risking about $100 million. And it's a risk. On average, only one out of every six U.S. wildcat wells finds any oil or gas. And only one out of every 55 makes a significant discovery.

But Conoco's stepped-up drilling efforts (made possible in large part by higher earnings from our petroleum operations) are producing results. Last year we made 15 U.S. discoveries, and we've had five so far this year.

While it's too soon to know how many of these discoveries will be significant, we are encouraged. The more discoveries we can make here at home, the less oil America needs to import. So we'll keep putting money into wildcats. It's one part of Conoco's $2 billion effort this year to develop more energy.

Couple indicted again

J.L. Nichols, 28, and his wife, Beverly Ann, 32, both jailed last week and indicted for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, on Wednesday were handed down similar indictments stemming from their allegedly banishing two lawmen from their house south of Midland.

Both are in Midland City Jail in lieu of posting bonds. Nichols was also indicted by the Midland County Grand Jury for the unlawful possession of a prohibited weapon, a 12-gauge sawed-off shotgun, which he allegedly used to repel Midland County Deputy Constable Tom McGinnis and Midland police narcotics detective Mike Mann from their property on May 27. Mrs. Nichols reportedly was wielding a .38-caliber pistol.

The lawmen were attempting to serve the Nichols a warrant to search their house for marijuana when the threat allegedly took place.

The Nichols couple later turned themselves over to law enforcement officials after a contingent of about 25 lawmen, including police, sheriff's deputies, Texas Rangers and Department of Public Safety troopers, converged on the Nichols homestead.

Israeli troops attack in southern Lebanon

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops attacked Palestinian guerrilla positions in southern Lebanon today, the 13th anniversary of the start of the 1967 Middle East war. Throughout Israel, troops were on full alert.

The military command announced that an Israeli force struck the port of Sidon during the early morning hours and killed a number of guerrillas. An army spokesman declined to comment on a report from Beirut that Israeli missile boats fired rockets at a beachside coffee house near Sidon, killing one Lebanese civilian and wounding three.

The Israeli attack was aimed at deterring guerrilla attacks on Israel and preventing the guerrillas from organizing such actions, the spokesman said.

It was during the 1967 Six Day War that Israel captured the West Bank of the Jordan River from Jordan, the Gaza Strip and Sinai Peninsula from Egypt and the Golan Heights from Syria.

The Atlanta, (Ga.) Constitution and the Amarillo (Texas) Globe News said Prime Minister Menachem Begin, in an interview in Israel with three American journalists, disclosed that his government tried to negotiate a peace settlement with Jordan's King Hussein over the disputed West Bank territories. The report said no accord had been reached. Among the journalists were Bill Shipp, associate editor of the Constitution, and James L. Whyte, vice president and general manager of the Globe News.

In Beirut, the military commander of Al Fatah, the largest guerrilla army in Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, said his forces would avenge the terrorist attacks Monday that maimed the Arab mayors of Ramallah and Nablus, injured seven Arabs in Hebron and blinded an Israeli bomb expert in El Bireh.

"These revolutionary operations will take place within the next few days or weeks," Khalil Al Wazir was quoted as telling the leftist newspaper As Safir. He blamed the Israeli government for the attacks.

Israel Radio said, meanwhile, that the government investigation of the bombing was now centered in the West Bank city of Hebron and at the nearby ultra-nationalist Jewish settlement of Kiryat Arba. There has been speculation the bombers were out to avenge a May 2 guerrilla ambush in Hebron in which six Israeli settlers were killed and 16 injured.

The radio said investigators believe a single terrorist squad carried out all for attacks, planting bombs first in Nablus and then working south to Hebron.

Arab merchants tried to stage a general strike to protest the bombings, but Israeli troops cracked down hard on would-be strikers, cutting locks and hoisting shutters to force them to open.

Most stores on the West Bank and in Jerusalem were opened today, but some West Bank merchants said they feared reprisals from Palestinian militants who organized the protest.

Midland detective sergeant wins shooting competition

ODESSA — Midland Det. Sgt. Jerry Compton won first place in a shooting competition held here Wednesday against approximately 50 officers in the El Paso FBI office area.

The El Paso FBI office covers an area bounded by the Texas-New Mexico border, Midland-Odessa on the east, and Big Bend to the south. It does not extend into the Panhandle.

Officers are expected to fire with a handgun and riot shotgun. Compton fired a perfect score with his service revolver, and missed only three birds with the shotgun on the skeet range.

"Jerry is a tremendous shot, especially pistol shot," said Police Chief Wayne Gideon.

The competition, held in Odessa for the first time, is an annual tournament for graduates of the FBI National Academy. It's sponsored by the El Paso office, and bureau firearms training agents conduct the competition.

Previously the competition has always been in Midland.

Junior Rodeo starts tonight

The American Junior Rodeo Association's rodeo will kick off tonight at the Joe Thorpe Championship Rodeo Arena with performances slated for 7:30 nightly through Saturday.

Events include barrel racing, bronc riding, calf roping, bull riding and other special attractions.

As the rodeo winds down, the band warms up. Shade Country of Midland will perform country sounds outside until around midnight. Admission to the dance is $3 per person.

Rodeo admission is also $3. John Karney of Sterling City will be the announcer.

Concession stands will serve soft drinks, hot dogs and sweets.

Tour bus crash kills at least 20

JASPER, Ark. (AP) — A tour bus from Texas with 34 persons aboard careened off a "suicide curve" and plunged 50 feet down a rocky ravine in a mountainous area of northern Arkansas early today, killing at least 20 people. Police said the brakes apparently failed.

"In 27 years with the state police, it's the worst I've ever seen," said Capt. Billy Bob Davis, commander of Troop 1 of the Arkansas State Police at Harrison. He estimated the death toll at 21. One of the 21 was missing and presumed dead.

"It looked as though the brakes apparently had failed," Davis said. Frank Wise, administrator of the Boone County Hospital at Harrison, said 13 persons were treated there for injuries. One was listed in critical condition. The condition of the others was not immediately available.

State police said the passengers were all from the Dallas area. Some of the victims still were trapped under the bus and surrounding timber four hours after the accident occurred.

Davis said the bus was northbound down a steep hill of the two-lane Arkansas Highway 7, a scenic route. It traveled along a ditch on the right side of the highway for more than 200 feet, then hit a culvert and veered off the road, landing nose down in rugged terrain 50 feet below the shoulder of the highway, he said.

Keith Hopper, a spokesman for Central Texas Trailways in Dallas, said the bus was chartered by Mrs. R. W. Jacobs of Irving, Tex. The tourists apparently "had no affiliation with any organized group."

Hopper declined to comment on state police reports that the brakes had failed.

Davis said the driver and three or four passengers were thrown out of the bus. At least four were found on the highway. Davis said the driver, who has not been identified, was among the dead.

A nearby resident heard the crash and alerted authorities. Elmer Dunn, 61, of Grand Prairie, Texas, was among those who received minor injuries.

Dunn said the group left Dallas early Wednesday for a trip to Branson, Mo., and Eureka Springs, Ark.

He said he was riding on the left side of the bus, toward the rear, and was almost asleep when the bus ran off the road in a curve.

The windows were knocked out from the impact of the crash. Dunn said he hit the back of the seat, then slid to the floor and crawled out a window.

Young man competent for trial

A jury in 142nd State District Court Wednesday ruled that 18-year-old Keith Wright of Beasley was competent to stand trial for the capital murder of Leona White, 48, a part-time bartender at Price's Bar on Midland's east side, in the early morning hours of Sept. 27.

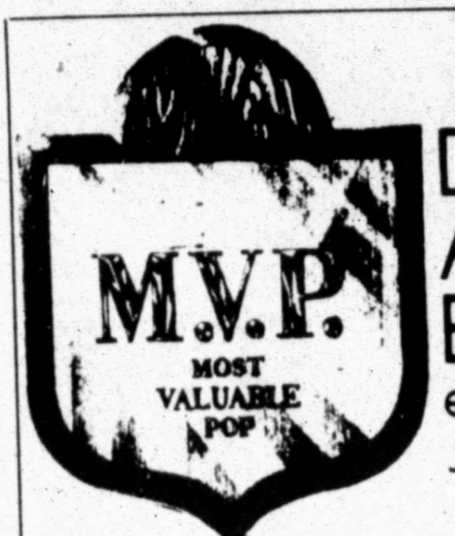

The indictment against Wright alleges that he killed the woman with a pipe in the course of a robbery.

Ms. White reportedly left the bar after work — about 1 a.m. — and with a money bag. Police found her body in a patch of weeds near the Missouri Pacific Railway tracks about five hours later. Police said she had been beaten about the head. Police recovered an iron pipe which they said might be the murder weapon.

Date for the trial has not been set. The competency hearing was held in Judge Perry D. Pickett's court.

Wright is being held in Midland County Jail in lieu of posting a $150,000 bond. His defense attorneys are Tryon Lewis and Edward T. Garza. Assistant District Attorney David Joers represented the state in the hearing.

Carter to keynote families conference today in Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Four years after candidate Jimmy Carter pledged to give citizens a voice in the role of government in family life, President Carter is backing up the promise in person.

Carter was scheduled to deliver the keynote address today at the opening session of the White House Conference on Families, a $3 million project postponed once because of a battle between liberal and conservative factions and still clouded by controversy over such issues as abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment.

The Baltimore meeting, which runs through Saturday, is the first of three. Similar sessions will be held June 19-21 at Minneapolis and July 10-12 at Los Angeles. Altogether, they are to attract delegates from 48 states and seven territories.

Fears that the conference will erupt into a shouting match over abortion and the ERA appear to have abated.

Executive director John Carr said while those issues are sure to come up, they aren't likely to dominate the sessions. He said at least 36 states forwarded recommendations for the three conferences on changing work policies to accommodate families, but fewer than half that number even mentioned abortion.

After compiling the ideas presented at seven regional meetings over the last year, the conference staff found that government insensitivity and economic problems were of greatest concern. They were followed by suggestions of support for diversity in families, child care, education, health care and the need for help in balancing work and family demands.

A Gallup poll commissioned by the conference showed that eight out of 10 persons listed family life as the most important or one of the most important elements in their lives. At the same time, however, as many as half those surveyed expressed dissatisfaction with their own family life, while 37 percent said they were unhappy with the future facing families.

The high cost of living and energy costs were the problems most often cited as facing families. Alcohol and drug abuse and a decline in religious and moral values were listed most often as harmful to family life. About 750 delegates from 19 states were expected at Baltimore, and Carr said, "I sense that a lot of them are not looking for a fight, but trying to look for ways to help the American family."

Delegates were both appointed and elected in an effort to balance conflicting points of view, and Carr said they represent a cross-section of American society. More than 25 percent are non-white, about 40 percent are men and about 10 percent are poor, he said.

AT WIT'S END

Suffering through the post-natal depression

By ERMA BOMBECK

Researchers are finally getting down to some real serious studies on the post-natal depression. Do you know what they've discovered?

You're not supposed to have a good time after the baby is born.

It's something a lot of us suspected, but were never really sure about.

My post-natal depression was longer than most. I went into it seven months before the baby came and it lasted until the kid was 17. Then it began to taper off. Had it not been for "As the World Turns" and pacifiers, I'd have slipped into humming and braiding my hair. Every day I'd put a pacifier into whatever part of his face was open, get a plate full of buttered noodles and sit in front of the TV set and watch someone who was worse off than I was.

Every time I went to the pediatrician, I'd try to search the faces of the other mothers for some sign of exhaustion. I only saw one mother "break," and that was when her son, a real hellion, had skated across the carpet "shocking" everyone with his static electricity, rearranged the furniture, licked the drinking fountain, taken a book away from another child, and finally submerged his hand in the aquarium. She just sat there, numb, and finally, said softly, "Think piranha."

Another rare moment of honesty that suggested motherhood was less than perfect came one Mother's Day in church when a new priest looked out and said to the mothers, "I know what you're thinking. You're tired. You feel pulled in nine different directions. You think no one understands you and you're saying to yourself, 'Mary and her one kid. Big deal!'"

According to the new theory, ambivalent feelings are perfectly natural. It doesn't mean you love your child any less, it means you're realistic about the demands on your personal life.

A new mother in Colorado wrote recently about her two children, ages two years and three months. She put the toddler on a potty seat so she could bathe the baby. She lathered up the baby when the meter man appeared. The dog suddenly went into heat. The phone rang. The toddler jumped up and overturned the potty on the new shag rug. He then stuck his head in between the washer and the wall to see what the meter reader was doing and got stuck. The baby got cold and began screaming. Strange dogs began running through the house. She moved the washer and her son emerged bleeding. "What would you do?" she asked.

"I'd do now what I should have done years ago... cry!"

Beloved oak falls

CHICO, Calif. (AP) — People had picnicked under it for more than a hundred years, gazed in awe at its massive 9½-foot diameter and 153-foot spread, and, after it fell of old age three years ago, children played on its branches.

As lumberjacks cut up the remains of the great, 1,000-year-old Hooker Oak recently, one spectator with a camera said, "It was almost as beautiful lying on the ground as it was standing."

Some of the wood will be for sale as mementoes and some will be used for city tables or park benches.

DEAR ABBY: I just read an article stating there is now conclusive evidence that second-hand cigarette smoke is damaging to the non-smoker.

I am a non-smoker, but my wife smokes enough for both of us. She has quit several times but she's never been able to kick the habit for good. Her excuses are that when she quits smoking she gains weight, and smoking "relaxes" her.

I've even heard her say, "Well, a person has to die of something," which is the most stupid excuse of all.

What worries me now is the fact that we have three small children who are the innocent victims of secondhand smoke in our home. Abby, I know my wife would quit if she could because she's really tried. You've probably heard from hundreds of heavy smokers who have quit for good. Which method is the most successful? Cold turkey, cutting down gradually, hypnosis, stop-smoking clinics? Or are there other methods?

Please help me to help my wife without being a nag. FREDDY IN ENCINO

DEAR FREDDY: The best thing I've ever seen on how to quit smoking is the new booklet titled, "Clearing the Air." It contains a variety of sensible approaches. What may seem silly to some may work a miracle for others. It may take a while for your wife to find the combination that will work for her, but if she really wants to quit smoking, she can. The booklet is free to anyone who wants it and can be obtained by writing to: Clearing the Air, Box A, National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md. 20205

Please let me hear from you in six months, Freddy. And if any of my readers send for this booklet, I would appreciate a progress report from you, too. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I are having a difference of opinion.

He says it is not possible for a girl to get pregnant the first time she goes to bed with a guy. I say it is.

Who is right? VIRGIN (age 15)

DEAR VIRGIN: You are. Trust me...not him.

DEAR READERS: A reader who prefers to remain anonymous sent me the following day brightener:

You put your bra on backward, and it fits better.

Your son tells you he wishes Anita Bryant would mind her own business.

You want to hang up the clothes you wore home from the party and you can't find them.

SENIOR PARTIES

Nancy Marie Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfree L. Brown, was honored with a courtyard buffet party Friday following graduation exercises.

The dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Nugent Brasher and Mr. and Mrs. John W. LeSassier in the Brasher home.

Thirty-eight guests attended. Out of town guests were Mrs. Loretta B. Herring of Snyder, Mrs. W. H. Thompson, Kim Thompson and John Cooper of Tulsa, Okla.

A senior graduation luncheon was held at Casita Gerardo honoring Leslie Dean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Dean, 3200 MaMar.

Mrs. John T. Hampton and Mrs. Catherine H. Murphy were hostesses. Eighteen fellow graduates and their mothers attended.

Russell Wickman and Shane Kail, graduating seniors, were honored recently with a hamburger and hot dog supper by Mrs. Woodrow Wickman and Mrs. Gene Kail and Mrs. Smith.

Guests were Bryan Raschke, Shawn Mowles and Mark Gilmer.

Home Furnishing News

Mirrors have been used for many years to beautify the home. Their decorative value is just as great as their usefulness. The silvery reflections of a mirror in a room create motion and add a dimensional depth that can completely change a room.

In a small room for instance, one wall with a large mirror can give the illusion of a more spacious room. It can also add light in a room that does not get enough outside light. Placed across from a window it will reflect the image and light of the window in the mirror.

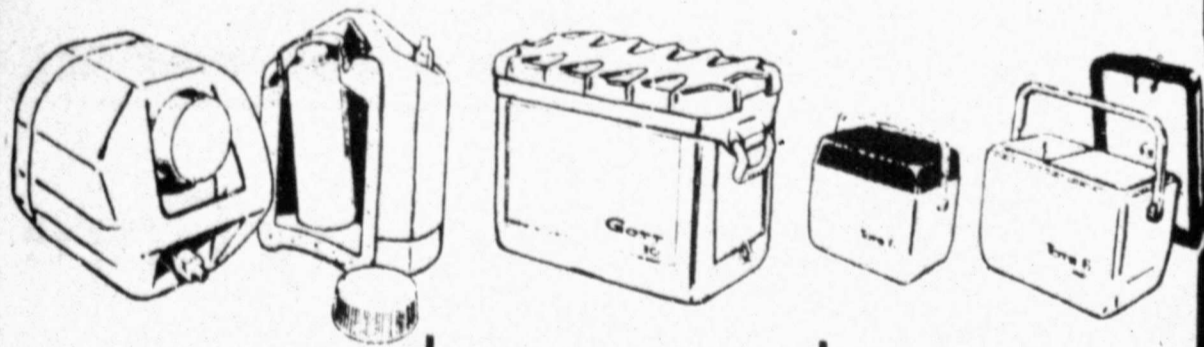

You might also like to try mirrors with a new twist. Instead of one large one, create a wall montage of rounds, ovals, and rectangles, all with unusual frames for a sparkling group that can become a focal point of your room.

For small or large mirrors and any other decorative accessories you may need. See us, we carry a large selection of decorative items for your home. You are always welcome to come in and browse around.

Homemade flour tortillas not hard to make

By SANDI BREEDEN
Lifestyle Writer

Although she is the third generation of her family to live in the United States, Sylvia Cevallos has not forgotten her Mexican heritage in the art of cooking.

Sylvia's great-grandparents were the last of her family to be born in Mexico and the other two generations have been in Midland "for years." Sylvia was born and raised in Midland.

Even though she is married, (she and husband Joe live at 801 W. Michigan with their two children, three-year-old Leslie and five-month-old Holly) and works full time, Sylvia still finds time to cook homemade tortillas at least twice a week and several other favorite Mexican foods from her own recipes.

"Some weeks I don't cook them and my husband doesn't like that," she said with a laugh. Calling the brown spots on the tortillas "freckles," Sylvia said Leslie doesn't like the "freckles" and will remove them before eating the tortilla.

Promising that the tortillas are not hard to make, Sylvia said the "Carne Con Chile Colorado" and "Calabaza" are not hard to prepare, either.

FLOUR TORTILLAS

2 1/2 cups unsifted flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1/2 cup lard or shortening
1 cup water

Put flour, baking powder and salt in mixing bowl and stir to mix. Add lard or shortening. Add water gradually, tossing with hand to make a stiff dough. Form into a ball and knead thoroughly until smooth and flecked with air bubbles.

Divide dough in to 11 balls for regular size, seven-inch, tortillas. Each ball should be rolled out as thin as possible.

To cook, drop the tortillas onto very hot, ungreased griddle. Cook until "freckled" on one side (about 20 seconds.). Lift from edge and bake on other side for same amount of time.

CALABAZA

2 tbsps. butter or margarine

1 lb. (about 4 small) zucchini or other summer squash sliced
1 small onion chopped
1/2 cup water
1 large tomato peeled and diced
1 can whole kernel corn
Heat butter or margarine in wide frying pan and stir in squash, onion and 1/2 cup water. Cover and cook over high heat, stirring frequently for about six to 10 minutes.

Mix in tomato and corn. Cover and cook until vegetables are tender, stirring frequently. Add water if needed and salt and pepper to taste.

CARNE CON CHILE COLORADO

1 lb. pork chops chunked
1 tbsps. of shortening
1/2 tbsps. of flour
2 cups water
1 small onion
chili powder

Brown chunk of pork and onion in shortening in frying pan. Drain some of fat. Add flour to meat and brown. Add water; cook a few minutes and then add chili powder (amount depends on how red you want sauce). Cook on medium heat until sauce thickens and meat is tender.

Bread provides daily nutrients

Bread, in one form or another, has been considered the staff of life for over 4,000 years. In all those centuries, there haven't been that many changes in the basic product, and what changes there have been can hardly be called "advances."

The heavy, healthy slices that were produced in your grandmother's hearth have been replaced by fluffy, air-filled slices found on today's grocery store shelves. Nutritionists contend that the enriched flour used to make white bread is not particularly good for the health of consumers.

There is a healthy and inexpensive alternative, though, and you can make it yourself in less than an hour. What's more, this bread even looks different. It's flat, resembling a tortilla, and offers some interesting new recipe possibilities.

To make this bread, you combine two cups of whole-wheat flour, half a cup of soy flour, one-fourth of a cup of brewer's yeast, and two-thirds of a teaspoon of salt. Add one and a half cups of water, stirring the mixture around until the moisture is absorbed. Knead the dough for three of four minutes until it begins to feel "springy." This is your basic bread building block!

Divide the dough into 12 separate pieces. Each chunk should be approximately the size of a golf ball. Use a rolling pin or your hands to flatten the pieces into a tortilla or pancake shape, probably between 7 and 8 inches in diameter.

Pop these flat cakes on to a dry, hot griddle, much as if you were preparing pancakes for breakfast. After about one minute, the dough will begin to form small bubbles on its surface. The bubbles let you know that the griddle is not too cool. If the dough begins to burn, you'll know the griddle is too hot. Hopefully, this will not require too much experimentation.

In another minute, if you peek at the underside of the flat cake, you should see that it is brown in spots, indicating it is ready to be flipped over. In under two minutes, the second side should be browned and the bread can be removed from the griddle.

This is all there is to it. With a bit of practice, you can easily produce a three-day supply of bread in under 45 minutes. But the best news is yet to come. This flat bread, using natural ingredients, will provide you with 40 percent of your daily protein requirements. Wheat flour and soy flour, by themselves, are excellent sources of protein, but when they are combined in this fashion, the overall protein value of each ingredient is increased by 32 percent.

American book sales up sharply

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Americans are paying out a lot of bucks for their books.

According to estimates released by the Association of American Publishers at its annual business meeting here recently, book sales in 1979 totaled some $6.332 billion. This was an increase of 9.3 percent — or $539.7 million — over 1978 sales.

The highest percentage increases were recorded by Subscription Reference Books — sales of $383.5 million, an increase of 12.4 percent — and College Textbooks — an increase of 12.1 percent to $825.6 million.

Elementary and Secondary Textbooks rose 11.6 percent on sales of $930.1 million, while Mass Market Paperback Books rose 10.6 percent on sales of $673.3 million.

In other action at the meeting, Leo N. Albert, chairman of Prentice-Hall International Inc., was elected chairman of the AAP, succeeding Alexander C. Hoffman, group vice president of Doubleday Inc.

Martin Levin (Times-Mirror) was elected vice-chairman of the AAP, a trade association which represents the majority of book publishers in the United States.

Kimberly Gwen Harrelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harrelson, was recently awarded the Village Kiwanis Club scholarship. The Midland High School senior was active in the A Cappella choir where she lettered. Miss Harrelson was also active in the homemaking department. She plans to attend Midland College to study home economics.

Melinda Cravens, Midland High School senior, is a recipient of a Village Kiwanis Club scholarship. Miss Cravens plans to attend Midland College next fall. She is a member of the National Honor Society, Future Teachers of America, Who's Who Among American High School Students, president's cabinet, student council and Hero-FHA.

Report says more research needed on lead poisoning

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has spent $10 million since 1972 studying what to do about slum children who poison themselves by eating the lead in peeling paint — and the latest report calls for still more research.

"I am at a loss for words to describe my nausea," said V.E. Gray of the environmental hazards research division of the Department of Housing and Urban Development in an unusually candid memo to his superiors, after he read the 88-page report.

He said that "maybe the best thing about the report" is that it was so poorly done that few people would read it.

The report was prepared at a cost of $253,986 over 20 months by the National Academy of Sciences, which was chartered by Congress and does most of its research under government contract.

Copies of the report and of Gray's scorching assessment were made available to the Associated Press.

"I once thought that the 1972 NAS report was not very good and 'did not cast much light on the subject of lead poisoning,' but compared to this latest document the 1972 report was a light-house and the recent report a firefly," Gray wrote.

"This report is a good example of the intellectual masturbatory activities engaged in by NAS at federal agency expense," he added, contending it merely reviewed previous research.

The government has been worried about lead — in the air, water, food and paint — since the early 1970s, when it was estimated that lead in paint, eaten by children, killed hundreds and caused irreversible brain damage, permanently lowering IQs.

The new study, not yet formally issued, is the second NAS effort within a week to come under attack.

Last week questions were raised about a study saying that no solid proof existed to link fat and cholesterol consumption with diseases of the blood vessels and heart in healthy people. Critics said some of the report's authors have ties with the food industry.

Raphael G. Kasper, the NAS official who supervised the lead paint study, defended it as a worthwhile expenditure of government money.

He said two dozen outsiders commented on the study at length and only officials at HUD found fault.

As for Gray's complaint that the study merely reviewed old research, Kasper said, "That's exactly what people come to the academy for. The value of getting together a group of experts is to evaluate the state of knowledge, to synthesize what's known."

As for Gray's complaint that the study merely reviewed old research, Kasper said, "That's exactly what people come to the academy for. The value of getting together a group of experts is to evaluate the state of knowledge, to synthesize what's known."

Singer's Fright

Country music singer Tanya Tucker makes her acting debut in "Amateur Night at the Dixie Bar and Grill," as a singer who gets stagefright when it comes time for her to perform. The World Premiere movie will be telecast on "Thursday Night at the Movies," Thursday, June 5, 1980, on NBC.

This is a common problem experienced by many singers. Some rise above it, and others, of course, disappear for a few years because they find it too difficult to face the crowds. Barbara Streisand admits she doesn't want to hold anymore concerts because she's not comfortable on stage. Carly Simon also grappled with — and finally overcame — this problem.

Your horoscope

By JEANNE DIXON

Friday, June 6, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Those born on this date have much talent and a great deal of personal charm. In the months ahead, concentrate on turning some daydreams into reality! Avoid the quicksands of impulsive speculation and the last quarter of 1980 will see you on solid financial ground. A domestic change will work to your advantage, and you could find yourself managing a new household of business by Thanksgiving. Romantic partner may want more of your time and attention than you are accustomed to giving just one person. Be gentle if you must disappoint this person!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): At work, pay attention to detail. Higher-up is quick to spot errors, omissions. Late afternoon will probably be the best time for meetings, conferences.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Work at steady pace and steer clear of an associate who likes to gossip. If married, make greater effort to get along with spouse's friends and relatives.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Best results are those connected with tasks which require mental agility rather than physical strength. One who has taken the lead in the past now desires partner to set the pace. This reversal may be only temporary.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Concentrate on the task at hand. Evening is perfect time to get together with good friends. Steer conversation away from depressing topics.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Domestic affairs take a turn for the better. Special hobby or project is source of pride, pleasure. Avoid choosing sides in a domestic dispute. Discourt gossip about close friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Build up cash reserves through wise investments. Some real bargains are available to comparison shoppers. Real estate transactions can be highly profitable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ingenious idea can bring extra income. Do not allow close friend's extravagance to influence your spending habits. Keep light rein on purse strings. Unproductive relationship deserves closer scrutiny.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Seek new contacts, make friends. Older person is willing to share specialized knowledge. Accept offer with enthusiasm. The more things you can do for yourself, the less you will have to depend on others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Resist impulse to take risks where romance or money is concerned. Devote more effort to getting at the root of a domestic problem. Missing piece of puzzle is close at hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Not a good day to ask for favors at work. Stuck to projects that can be handled independently. Others are consumed with their own problems. Routine matters should go smoothly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Those nearest and dearest to you offer comfort and inspiration. Friend's approval of new project contributes to your peace of mind. Postpone shopping expedition until finances are better.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Seek the assistance of a congenial associate and meet all deadlines. Mate is willing to lend helping hand in a pinch. Use extra care when handling cash. Count your change.

West led the ten of spades and declarer correctly decided to eschew the finesse. He judged that his best chance to bring home thirteen tricks was to set up the diamonds, so after winning the ace of spades, he cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. The king of trumps and another to the queen put him in dummy for a second diamond ruff, but when the king failed to appear, the grand slam went up in smoke.

Our first principle of probabilities makes it clear that six missing cards are unlikely to divide 3-3. Even if we add in the chances of dropping a doubleton king of diamonds, we are still not up to an even money bet to establish the diamonds. And if the Deaf-blind couple says handicap makes them live in virtual isolation

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Darkness and silence are conditions Leonard and Betty Dowdy have to live with, but isolation is something they'd rather do without.

Both are deaf and blind, and although they can communicate with others, few are willing to take the time to do so, Mrs. Dowdy says.

"Kansas City does not have enough people interested in deaf-blind," she said. "I have some friends, but they don't telephone me often. I am out of circulation."

Leonard, 52, and Betty, 56, have been married 23 years. Leonard has a long-time job in an assembly plant, and his wife works at the University of Kansas Medical Center near where they live.

Dowdy has been blind and deaf since he had meningitis when he was 18 months old. Mrs. Dowdy was born deaf, and gradually lost her sight as an adult to a creeping disease called retinitis pigmentosa. Talk with her, and it's obvious she remembers how to communicate through facial expressions.

The couple have traveled to Europe and they read the New York Times in Braille. They can "communicate on practically any level with anybody," says Mary Lynn McCarty, the 27-year-old woman who helps the Dowdys with grocery shopping and other tasks they can't handle alone. Because both can speak, communication with others is made easier. Both also can finger-spell, a sign language that they can feel by wrapping their fingers around the hand of the person who's talking.

Folk religious festival draws big crowds in Taiwan

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

PEIKANG, Taiwan (AP) — Folk religion is flourishing on this island as caravans of pilgrims make their way by foot, covered wagon, motorcycle and bus to worship a sea goddess sacred to both sides of the Taiwan Straits.

"I've been to the Ma Tzu festival at Peikang," say sassy red and yellow pennants carried by jaunty pilgrims, snapping from motorcycles and festooning tour buses.

For two weeks every year hundreds of thousands of Buddhists stream across Taiwan to this small town on the east central coast to say "happy birthday" to the goddess Ma Tzu. Firecrackers, dragon dancers, neon-lighted floats, even self-flagellation, are part of the contemporary ritual.

Ma Tzu is regarded as the patroness of all who travel on the waters. She is said by some to have lived 700 to 900 years ago on the Fujian coast of the mainland, and with divine power she saved her father's fishing boat in a storm.

The Ma Tzu festival traditionally has been celebrated on both the mainland and Taiwan. Mainland authorities emphasize a new policy of religious freedom but still try to discourage superstition.

Taiwan itself currently is experiencing a religious revival and a surge in new temple construction. Authorities here have been trying to discourage costly religious celebrations and remind citizens they ought to put money in the bank.

Despite their urging, the Ma Tzu celebrations in Peikang are said to generate nearly $300,000 annually in purchases of offerings.

The experience of Ma Tzu is one of molten piety in the temple and ferocious gaiety in the streets. Fortunes in simulated paper money go up in sacrificial smoke from a temple furnace. The air is acrid and sweet from firecrackers and incense.

From more than 1,000 temples across the island, local gods are carried in sedan chairs and rickety blue-and-white-striped covered wagons to the great shrine of Ma Tzu.

Some pilgrims wear matching T-shirts and baseball caps that say "Kaohsiung Vegetable Market — Ma Tzu Festival" and quickly they hoist their gods over a sacrificial fire.

Mechanized floats with neon lights, steam-snorting dragons, Chinese rock 'n' roll bands and beauty queens career among worshippers and hawkers. Dragon dancers coil through alleys. Tough-looking kids in matching tiger-general jackets set off firecrackers and light bonfires of debris.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

My, what a difference!

When Adam sinned, sin entered the entire human race. His sin spread death throughout all the world, so everything began to grow old and die, for all sinned.

[We know that it was Adam's sin that caused this] because although, of course, people were sinning from the time of Adam until Moses, God did not in those days judge them guilty of death for breaking His laws—because He had not yet given His laws to them, nor told them what He wanted them to do.

So when their bodies died it was not for their own sins since they themselves had never disobeyed God's special law against eating the forbidden fruit, as Adam had.

What a contrast between Adam and Christ who was yet to come!

And what a difference between man's sin and God's forgiveness! For this one man, Adam, brought death to many through his sin. But this one man, Jesus Christ, brought forgiveness to many through God's mercy.

Adam's one sin brought the penalty of death to many, while Christ freely takes away many sins and gives glorious life instead.

The sin of this one man, Adam, caused death to be king over all, but all who will take God's gift of forgiveness and acquittal are kings of life because of this one man, Jesus Christ.

Yes, Adam's sin brought punishment to all, but Christ's righteousness makes men right with God, so that they can live.

Adam caused many to be sinners because he disobeyed God, and Christ caused many to be made acceptable to God because He obeyed.

The Ten Commandments were given so that all could see the extent of their failure to obey God's laws. But the more we see our sinfulness, the more we see God's abounding grace forgiving us.

Before, sin ruled over all men and brought them to death, but now God's kindness rules instead, giving us right standing with God and resulting in eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Sponsors say accusations won't hurt ERA chances

By T. LEE HUGHES

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois House backers of the Equal Rights Amendment, shrugging off the aftermath of a controversy over alleged vote-buying, say they still hope to call for a vote on the proposed amendment this month.

Rep. John Matijevich, a North Chicago Democrat, said Tuesday the vote will be called when sponsors feel they have the 107 votes needed for House approval, and "we are optimistic that can be done before June 30," when the Legislature is to adjourn.

But Rep. Michael Ma-

Slavery charged crew boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury charged a migrant labor crew leader and two assistants Wednesday with kidnapping two farm workers and holding them as slaves.

Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said a two-count indictment was returned in U.S. District Court in Fayetteville, N.C., against crew leader Tony Booker Jr. and assistants J.D. Rollins and Tony Gibson.

They were charged in one count with kidnapping and carrying away Gary L. Walters with intent to hold him as a slave on April 20, 1979, in Johnston County, N.C. The other count charged the three with a similar offense on the same date against another worker, Joseph D. Romeo.

The workers had been recruited from Orlando, Fla., to work in farms in eastern North Carolina. All those involved in the incidents are white. The defendants could not be immediately reached for comment.

digan, D-Chicago, House majority leader, said a "hard count" of votes for ERA "has not been taken at this time."

The last time supporters hoped to call ERA in the House was May 14, but they abandoned their plans when they came up two votes short.

Rep. Thomas Hana-

han, D-McHenry, an ardent ERA foe, accused supporters of trying to buy votes and said at least a dozen lawmakers had been improperly approached to support ERA.

An inquiry by state law enforcement investigators resulted in one case being turned over to the Sangamon County state's attorney for possible prosecution. A county grand jury is to hear the case starting Thursday.

The case reportedly involved an allegation by Rep. Nord Swanstrom, R-Pecatonica, that he was offered $1,000 by a volunteer for the National Organization for Women to vote for ERA.

Matijevich said he did not feel the vote-buying allegations had cost ERA support in the House.

"I don't think that there's been slippage based on the allegations," he said. "Most of the air has been cleared ..."

Since 1972, the proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution has been defeated six times in the House and four times in the Senate. If it passed, the House it would still face a vote in the Senate, where supporters expect an even more difficult battle.

The amendment to ban sex discrimination has been ratified by 35 of the 38 states required for it to become part of the U.S. Constitution. Five states have rescinded their approval, but the validity of that action is in doubt.

California tax rebel still defiant, despite defeats

Jarvis says opponents ran 'totally dishonest' campaign

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For Howard Jarvis, what the voters gave, the voters have taken away. But the 76-year-old tax-cutter remains defiant.

As returns came in Tuesday night, showing that Proposition 9 — his plan to slash state income tax rates in half — was losing badly everywhere, he treated reporters to a strong dose of vintage Jarvis.

Opponents, he said, had run a "totally dishonest" campaign, a "con game." And he vowed to "shove it up the ears" of public employee unions, who led the No-on-9 campaign, with a new initiative cutting their jobs and pensions.

But election returns indicated the public is far less receptive to Jarvis' message than it was in 1978 in overwhelmingly passing Proposition 13, his $7 billion property tax cut.

Final returns showed Proposition 9 with only 39 percent of the vote. It lost in all 58 counties.

And an Associated Press-NBC News poll of more than 2,000 voters at polling places showed that even the homeowners, whose banner Jarvis bore in 1978, were 58 percent against Proposition 9.

Clearly the heralded California tax revolt, which was supposed to sweep the nation, has run into a roadblock.

Ralph Flynn of the California Teachers Association, one of the largest contributors to the No-on-9 campaign, on Wednesday proclaimed "a new era of hope" and called the election "the lathurrah of an aging demagogue."

Instead of letting Jarvis make the election a referendum on government waste, as he had in 1978, Proposition 9 opponents implied that Jarvis himself was turning away from the spirit of Proposition 13.

They said Proposition 9 would give more than half its annual $4 billion-plus in tax benefits to the wealthiest eighth of taxpayers.

They recruited prominent supporters of Proposition 13 as public symbols of the difference between the two measures. They even made a campaign commercial urging voters to "join the supporters of Proposition 13, vote No on 9."

While that ad, and another poking fun at Jarvis as a bogus Santa with a bag of goodies for the rich, filled airwaves in the final weeks of the campaign, Jarvis ran short of funds — and apparently of friends as well.

The colorful, name-calling style of invective that helped change an obscure aging veteran of conservative political wars into a national symbol of the fed-up taxpayer also made enemies.

This year, when Jarvis labeled an entire county "lousy" and its government "crooked" in a profanity-filled interview with a college newspaper, there was only shocked silence, and an embarrassed appeal for an apology from a supporter — which Jarvis brushed aside.

Another time he suggested, after trading insults with a campus audience, that a female heckler belonged in a brothel.

"One of the key factors was Howard Jarvis' transformation from a folk hero to a foul-mouth in the late stages of the campaign," said Keith Hearn of the California State Employees Association, another major donor to the

No-on-9 effort.

In the last week of the campaign, Jarvis confirmed reports that Butcher-Forde, the high-powered Orange County consulting firm that handles his campaigns, had tried to tone him down.

Asked in a telephone interview Wednesday whether there was any truth to opponents' claims that his image had hurt the campaign, Jarvis said, "I don't think there is much validity to it, but I think there is some."

Opponents, he conceded, ran "a very, very well-planned and a very good campaign, despite the fact that for the most part it was totally dishonest."

He said the public apparently believed the allegations that Proposition 9 was for the rich, which he denied, and that most of the elderly would get nothing from it because they pay no income taxes, which he confirmed.

The issue of the elderly was "very effective," he said. Old people, symbolized by the aging widow being forced out of her home by property taxes, were among the strongest allies of Proposition 13.

But Jarvis said he is undaunted. "I wrote (Proposition) 13 in 1962 and it took us 16 years," he said. "I'm the last guy in the world to walk away because of one defeat."

After the bitterness of Tuesday night, Jarvis was full of plans Wednesday — to sue one opponent or another, to get on with his next initiative, or possibly two, to regain the momentum of the tax revolt.

"All the people that voted against 9 in this election, they're going to find that they're going to have to pay through the nose for the next two or three years and they're going to be sorry," he predicted.

Silence deafening

OSAGE, Iowa (AP) — Osage can't do without its town whistle. After only one day, city leaders have abandoned their plan for a 30-day experiment to see how the community could cope without hearing the siren at 7 a.m., noon, 1 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The council had decided in May to use the month of June as a test period during which the whistle atop the old water tower would remain silent — except as a fire alarm.

So when the whistle shut up Saturday, many Osage residents thought it was the end of an era.

But it seems the town of 3,800 couldn't cope. For more than 60 years, the whistle has been part of the town's habits. It is believed it first was sounded to summon residents to work, announce lunch-breaks and tell them when to go home.

Few Osage residents work that schedule any longer, and last month the City Council received complaints that the siren was so loud it was causing a disturbance and interrupting children's naps.

But at Monday's meeting, Lola Truax and Ruth Ginder complained about the deafening silence. They brought along a petition with 103 signatures calling for an immediate end to the experiment.

Councilmen said the first day of the test period caused other residents to complain, too.

They said parents have long used the siren to enforce rules that children be home by the last whistle or else.

They also were told residents of nursing homes rely on the whistle to pace their days. Mrs. Truax said one blind Osage woman regulates her day by the siren.

At the close of the discussion, the council voted 5-1 to stop the experiment.

Guerrillas strike in South Africa

By CYNTHIA STEVENS
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Guerrillas of the African National Congress have launched their first strike against South African industry, and the raid poses the biggest threat yet to the last ruling white minority government on the African continent.

It also is expected to increase support for the tens of thousands of non-white pupils who have boycotted schools for six weeks to protest the government's policy of inferior education for non-whites under laws of apartheid, or racial segregation.

The explosions late Sunday at three South African oil refineries set ablaze millions of dollars worth of petroleum products. The attack was the most sophisticated act of sabotage undertaken since the African National Congress was banned two decades ago.

In claiming responsibility for the raid, ANC spokesman Francis Melli said Monday in London "these attacks are part and parcel of our general offensive against the enemy (South Africa's white rulers)." He said the strategy would continue.

The African National Congress was banned in 1960 after leading a protest against carrying identity cards which sparked a riot in which police killed 69 blacks. After nationwide riots in 1976, in which more than 600 blacks were killed, the group began to make some headway in its guerrilla struggle.

An estimated 4,000 black students fled the country for military training abroad. Records of security trials over the last few years include evidence of guerrilla training in African National Congress camps in the Soviet Union, Tanzania and Angola.

The government, alarmed by the increasing numbers of guerrillas slipping across the borders, apparently via Mozambique and Swaziland, is training black regional battalions to keep them out, and is expected to step up arrests of guerrilla suspects at home following Sunday's attack.

The spectacular blasts at facilities of Sasol, the South African coal, oil and gas corporation, follow a series of guerrilla assaults in the last year. At least 70 blacks have been tried since January in connection with attacks on police stations, attempting to blow up railway lines and other sabotage.

According to surveys here, the guerrilla actions increasingly are winning sympathy from the country's 19 million black majority.

Three guerrillas killed by police after they took 25 hostages in a suburban Pretoria bank siege last January are widely revered as heroes in black communities, as are dozens of black youths brought to trial each year on charges of terrorism.

Prime Minister P.W. Botha has urged the ruling Nationalist Party of Dutch-descended Afrikaners to allow improvements in black status to avoid a revolution against the 4.4 million white minority. He has met severe resistance from conservatives.

The conservative wing's refusal to discuss the current unrest — or to work toward granting non-whites equal education and political rights — has fueled a campaign for the release of jailed ANC leader Nelson Mandela.

Mandela, formerly head of the nationalist group's military wing, has been detained in the maximum security prison on Robben Island, off Cape Town, for 16 years. More than 55,000 people have signed petitions in the past few months demanding he be released from a life sentence for plotting revolution.

During his 1963 trial, Mandela, a lawyer, said he did not deny that he planned sabotage but added: "I did not plan it in a spirit of recklessness, nor because I have any love of violence."

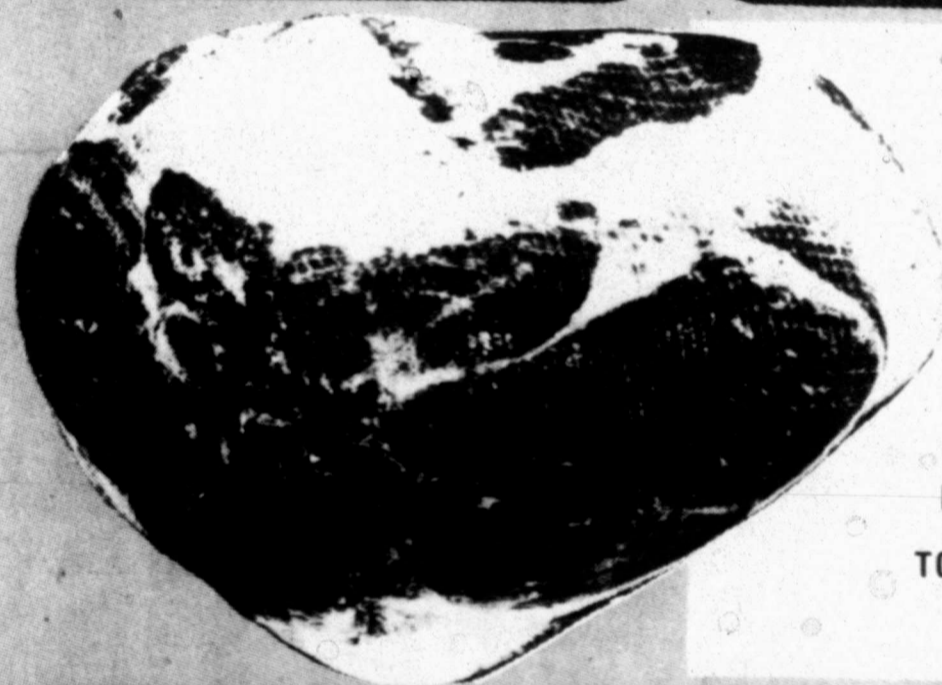

"I planned it as a result of a calm and sober assessment of the political situation that had arisen after many years of tyranny, exploitation and oppression of my people by whites."

Hog-corn ratio explains current pork crunch

WASHINGTON (AP) — No single indicator tells the full story about profits in the livestock business, but the hog-corn ratio is worth examining in view of the crunch being felt in the pork industry.

For the last couple of months, the ratio compiled by the Agriculture Department has averaged about 11.9 nationally. That is the number of bushels of corn equal in value to 100 pounds of live hogs sold on the market.

Put another way, a 100-pound hog theoretically would bring enough money, so the farmer could buy 11.9 bushels of corn.

When the ratio is up around 20 bushels or more — as it was early in 1979 and for 18 months before that — it can mean corn prices are exceedingly low or that hog prices are high, or a little bit of both, as the case may be.

The main point is that when the ratio is higher, hog producers have a measure of profitability that does not exist when the indicator falls to levels of recent months.

According to USDA records, the hog-corn ratio is the lowest in since it averaged just over 12 in all of calendar 1974.

In that year, the records show, hog prices nationally averaged around $35 per 100 pounds, with corn bringing about $2.90 a bushel at the farm. Based on the latest information for mid-May, corn prices at the farm nationally averaged about $2.40 a bushel. Hogs brought $28.50 per 100 pounds.

A year earlier, corn was $2.35 a bushel — only 5 cents less than last month — but hogs brought $43.20 per 100 pounds, meaning a ratio of 18.4 bushels of corn for each 100 pounds of live hog.

The main cause of the depressed hog prices, according to USDA experts, is that producers have boosted production sharply the last year, resulting in an abundance of pork that is expected to continue until farmers reduce their swine herds.

Comparatively, dairy farmers are enjoying a relatively high milk-feed ratio, which averaged 1.53 in May. That is the number of pounds of cow feed farmers can purchase by selling one pound of milk, based on average prices. A year ago, the milk-feed ratio was also 1.53 pounds.

But, unlike hog producers, dairy farmers have the benefit of government price supports for milk. Those are adjusted twice a year to reflect rising production costs.

Moreover, when dairy farmers produce a surplus of milk, the government buys butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk to take up the slack and thus maintain prices at the minimum support level.

Hog farmers, like those who produce other meat animals and poultry, do not have federal price-support guarantees. Thus, when surpluses occur prices decline until the supply decreases — or the demand increases — sufficiently to boost them again.

More use of grain may continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world increase in use of grains for livestock feed, responsible for a large part of America's rising grain exports, probably will continue during the next year, Agriculture Department analysts say.

Although they are just beginning to consider projections of world feed and non-feed grain use for 1980-1981, the analysts say the continued growth, though at a slower rate than in past years, should be maintained despite the U.S. economic downturn.

"Quite likely it will be another slow year," said one who asked not to be named. "But it (use of grain for feed) will probably increase again slightly."

After feed use of grain rose a yearly average of 15 million tons during the first nine of the 1970s, worldwide use of grain for feed in 1979-1980 is expected to rise just 8 million tons, the USDA estimates. That would be a 1.5 percent increase this year compared to the average yearly rate of 2.1 percent.

The U.S. grain sales suspension (to Russia) coupled with the poor 1979 Soviet grain crop is limiting feed availabil-ty," the USDA says.

"The slowdown in feed use this year," the department says, "can be attributed to smaller crops in a number of countries, moderation in economic growth, larger supplies of high-protein feeds and a slowing in livestock and poultry production in several major producing countries."

And if Russia and the United States are not considered in world grain usage patterns because of their traditional fluctuations in livestock feeding patterns, a constant, steady growth in feed grain use emerges, the USDA says. It is that long-term pattern that has kept exports high.

"For these countries in aggregate, there was not a single year when overall feeding did not rise," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service says.

"Between 1970-1971 and 1978-1979, the non-U.S. world feed use of course grains grew by 100 million tons and trade rose by nearly half of that," the agency says.

The primary reason, the USDA says, is an im-

A&M official recognized for his ag contributions

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Dr. Perry L. Adkisson, deputy chancellor for agriculture for the Texas A&M system, has been given the Alexander von Humboldt Award for 1980 for the most significant contribution to American agriculture over the past five years.

The award, which includes $10,000 in cash, was given for Adkisson's research and developmental work on integrated pest management.

Adkisson said part of the honor should go to 250 other scientists from 15 major U.S. universities working under him on the $3 million program, which involves using the best features of chemical, biological and cultural control methods to protect crops.

"There is no doubt they are recognized as the world's outstanding group in this field of work," said Adkisson, who received two other major honors in the past month.

He was inducted into the National Academy of Sciences last month and received Kansas State University's distinguished alumnus award earlier this month for service to agriculture.

Last year, Progressive Farmer magazine named Adkisson "Man of the Year in Service to Texas Agriculture."

Rabbits may furnish meat for U.S. tables

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department experts say rabbit meat could become as common on your dinner table as beef, pork and chicken.

But before cattlemen and other livestock producers jump to a conclusion that rabbits soon may crowd them out of business, the experts add that the bunny industry faces some big problems, namely diseases and high commercial feed costs.

"Many people enjoy rabbit meat," the department says in a report. "The demand already exceeds supply in such big cities as San Francisco, New York and Boston."

Research scientists at Oregon State University are working on improved rabbit management and feeding and the disease problems. One project involves an attempt to develop hybrid rabbits that are more resistant to disease and can reproduce more effectively.

Peter R. Cheeke, director of the university's rabbit research center, said the rabbit's potential as an important food source is yet to be fully exploited.

"Even now, three does and one buck usually produce 96 to 120 offspring annually," Cheeke said. "These supply enough protein to meet the yearly needs of a family of four."

Baseball playoffs begin in Austin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Defending champions Palmer in Class B and DeSoto in AAA, as well as Windthorst — a team that has lost more games than it has won — are among 20 teams seeking state titles at the schoolboy baseball tournament.

Carrollton Turner in AAAA, La Grange in AA and Colmesnell, a runner-up last year to Palmer, also are returning to the tournament, which opened today at 8:30 a.m. and winds up Friday night.

Colmesnell, 19-4, and Windthorst, 8-10, are matched in the opener.

Palmer defeated Colmesnell, 6-3, for the title in 1979 and has three all-tournament players returning from that championship team — pitcher-outfielder Paul James, first baseman Brian Almand and catcher-pitcher Wayne Mathis.

Colmesnell returns two all-tournament players — second baseman Kevin Davis and outfielder Charles Hanks. Pitcher Darren Bean has a .511 batting average.

Of the nine Palmer regulars, the lowest batting average is .321.

In Class A, Bart Covin of Diana New Diana is hitting .533; Paul Pawelek of Falls City .488; Stacy Little of Pottsboro .453; and Waskom has two players — Tommy Bowen and Herbert Johnson — each hitting .481.

In AA, Chris Jackson and Phil Riney of Aledo are listed as .600 hitters.

Pitcher Paul Ewell and catcher Chris Spear of DeSoto both are 1979 all-tournament players, but Kevin Smith is the team's leading hitter at .384.

Austin Westlake, another AAA team, features shortstop Kelly Gruber, a first-round choice of the Cleveland Indians in the recent pro draft, and pitcher Calvin Schiraldi, a Texas Longhorn baseball recruit.

Pitcher John Machin of Carrollton Turner has been selected to the North squad for the schoolboy all-star game, and sophomore third baseman Scott Lee of Houston Cypress Creek apparently has the best average in AAAA — .500.

Here is the schedule for Thursday's semifinals, which will be played at two fields.

Class B
8:30 a.m., Colmesnell vs. Windthorst.
10:30 a.m., Palmer vs. Johnson City.

Class A
2 p.m., Pottsboro vs. Waskom.
3:30 p.m., Falls City vs. Diana New Diana.

Class AA
6 p.m., Linden Linden-Kildare vs. Crockett.
7:30 p.m., La Grange vs. Aledo.

Class AAA
1 p.m., Wharton vs. DeSoto.
2:30 p.m., Austin Westlake vs. Snyder.

Class AAAA
6 p.m., Pearland vs. Carrollton Turner.
8 p.m., San Antonio Roosevelt vs. Houston Cypress Creek.

Russians revise tourist figures

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow Mayor Vladimir Promyslov said Thursday that about 75,000 foreign tourists are expected at the Moscow Summer Olympics, a significant decrease from previous Soviet estimates.

Speaking at a news conference, Promyslov gave no explanation for his figure, which does not include athletes and officials. Previous Soviet estimates have spoken about 250,000 foreign tourists.

Senior Soviet tourist officials said in April that tourism at the Moscow Games would be a success despite some countries' plans to boycott the Olympics over Soviet military involvement in Afghanistan.

They told a news conference April 18 that sales of Olympic tours were good in Spain, France and Italy that there was no sign of a significant reduction in British tourists and that Scandinavian reservations were holding stable.

But officials have indicated U.S. tourists could number as few as 3,000 to 4,000, compared to an original plan for 15,000 to 20,000 visitors before the United States pulled out of the Games.

Before West Germany decided May 15 to boycott the Games, about 10,000 West German tourists had been expected.

Promyslov estimated that with tourists, athletes and other Olympic visitors included, foreigners at the Games would come to about 100,000 people. He said that with a smaller number of people than was originally estimated, they could be served in a better fashion.

Promyslov also maintained that the "anti-Olympic campaign by the Carter Administration has experienced a complete failure." He noted that 85 countries have officially said they are coming, and said Moscow officials are still awaiting replies from 26 more countries.

He said Soviet citizens will be free to come into the city during the games, and that their purchases at Soviet shops will not be restricted. There have been rumors in recent months that special scrip might be issued to restrict citizens' purchases of hard-to-get goods that are expected to be plentiful in stores during the Olympic period.

Carner to tackle hex

MASON, Ohio (AP) — JoAnne Carner has won five U.S. Amateurs, two National Opens, 27 professional tournaments, but not one Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship.

The LPGA, which began today, is rapidly becoming the same hex for Carner that the Men's Open was for Sam Snead, who never won that tournament.

"I have no idea why I don't play well in the LPGA," said the 41-year-old Carner, making her 10th attempt at this, the first of three major titles for the women.

This may be the year that Carner shatters her LPGA jinx. For one thing, the match is being played on her type of course. The 6,313-yard Nicklaus Golf Center's Grizzly layout, just north of Cincinnati, favors a long hitter like Carner.

"The favorite? Me," she said. "I never think beyond me. If I'm worried about someone else, I'm not thinking about my own game."

And her game has led to anxieties after four victories in her first six starts in 1980.

"I missed the cut for the first time in the Kemper in my eighth tournament. I was just burned out. I was not only winning tournaments, but I was doing something every Monday for four straight weeks. It caught up with me," she said.

Scarbery optioned

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox optioned pitcher Randy Scarbery to their Iowa farm club of the American Association, a move that has left the right-hander surprised and shocked.

"The only consolation I can find is that Bill (Veck) and Roland (Hemond) promised me they wouldn't let me rot in the minor leagues," said Scarbery, his voice quivering and tears welling in his eyes. "And I have to take them at their word."

Bamberger ready to work

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tanned and trim George Bamberger, claiming he never has felt better, is ready to return as manager of the Milwaukee Brewers.

And Bamberger, credited by General Manager Harry Dalton with having done the most to transform the Brewers from perennial losers to winners, says he just may keep the job longer than the rest of this season.

"I really feel great," Bamberger told a news conference Wednesday. "I really feel I could have come back to work three weeks ago. I'm anxious. I don't think I'm edgy now. I probably will be Opening Day... I don't mean Opening Day. I mean Friday night."

BAMBERGER, WHO had five coronary bypasses in an eight-hour operation March 26, three weeks after he had suffered a mild heart attack, was given a clean bill of health Wednesday after a physical examination.

A crowd of close to 50,000 is expected when Bamberger returns as manager, relieving Acting Manager Buck Rodgers, when the Brewers open a home stand against the Detroit Tigers Friday night.

Bamberger, who managed the Brewers to 93 victories in 1978 and 95 last season, had said April 5 he probably would retire after this season. But he said Wednesday he may return next season if the team plays well.

"How we play — that will be the big decision," he said. "If the ballclub plays bad, I should be relieved," he said. "If it plays good, there's a good chance I'll be back. If I think we're playing good ball and they want me back, there's a chance I'll be back. I'll make a decision at the end of the year. But I have to feel I did a good job."

DALTON HESITATED when asked if he expected the Brewers will play better under Bamberger than they have under Rodgers.

"That would be a most unfair inference because Buck has done a fine job," Dalton said. "I don't want to say yes, we'll do better."

"But George is a unique individual, and there's something about him I think people respond to," he said. "He more than anyone changed this club from a loser to a winner. George Bamberger in the lockerroom would help any club."

"You don't get a lot of managers like Bamberger," he said. "When he says he wants to work for you, you're pretty fortunate. We're thrilled he's ready to come back. We hope he's here quite awhile. A lot of that is George's own wishes."

The immensely popular Bamberger, who the previous two years often drank beer with partying fans in the County Stadium parking lot after games, said doctors have placed no restrictions on his beer consumption. But Bamberger has imposed his own restrictions.

"The only bad thing about beer is the calories, not the beer itself," he said. "I can't drink those five or six beers anymore unless I don't eat for the day. I lost 23 pounds, down to 183, and it cost me $235 to get four suits altered. I can't afford to gain any weight."

Bamberger, who said he had seen the Brewers play twice on television during his convalescence, said he thinks they can catch the first place New York Yankees in the American League East.

"I feel we have a great ballclub," he said. "I feel we can win the pennant. But to this point, I don't know why the pitching's been a little erratic. I'm sure they're going to be more consistent."

IN EFFORTS to achieve consistency, Bamberger said he will depart from Rodgers' policy of removing starting pitchers when the Brewers have big leads in order to give relief pitchers work. Rodgers, who will resume his former duties as third base coach, believes relief pitchers are more effective when they pitch often.

"My thinking is different," said Bamberger, whose starting pitchers led the league with 61 complete games last season. "We can't all think the same. I believe the starters have got to do the job. I want six or seven inning pitchers. I don't like starters to be proud of their complete games."

"I can't take anything away from Buck Rodgers," he said. "He's done a great job, no doubt about it, and he will manage again in the big leagues."

"But if you've got a starter who's got great stuff, why take him out and bring in a guy when you don't know what kind of stuff he's got?" he said. "I believe that if you ever win 10, 12, 14 games in a row, you get to win with your starters getting complete games about five games in a row."

Diablos belt Tulsa, 6-3

By The Associated Press

Daryl Sconiers, Tom Bhagwat and Mike Bishop hit home runs Wednesday night as the El Paso Diablos took a 6-3 Texas League baseball victory over the Tulsa Drillers.

In other Texas League action, Jackson beat Amarillo, 10-7, and Shreveport edged San Antonio, 3-2.

Sconiers had a two-run homer and a run-scoring triple, Bhagwat had a two-run homer and Bishop had a solo homer.

Mel Barrows had a solo homer for the Drillers in the eighth inning when Tulsa scored all three runs. Joel Crisler, 4-5, was the winning pitcher. Perry Morrison, who pitched the final two innings for El Paso, was credited with a save. Chuck Lamson, 1-4, was the loser.

Cleveland's pulse soars

CLEVELAND (AP) — Some people in Cleveland aren't going to take the National Basketball Association's decision to move its 1981 All-Star Game to another city lying down.

Cleveland's Growth Association "is going to pull out all the stops" to keep the game at the Coliseum in suburban Richfield next year, said association President Bill Bryant.

In a column published in Thursday's editions of the newspaper, Plain Dealer sports editor Hal Lebovitz also assailed the move, saying, "The move is ridiculous, unprecedented and shouldn't be allowed to happen. In a sense, it borders on grand theft."

The NBA board of governors voted Tuesday to stage the event in Los Angeles next year instead of in Cleveland as originally planned. The move was made as part of a change in philosophy aimed at alternating the game between two major media centers, Los Angeles and New York.

"We stopped the Defense Control Administration from taking 433 jobs out of Cleveland by putting up a great fight, and we're going to go all out to prevent the NBA from taking away what they already promised us," Bryant said.

He said the Growth Association had put into motion plans for a national ad campaign noting that Cleveland would be the site of two all-star games next year. The major league baseball all-star game is scheduled for Cleveland next summer.

"Plans have been made," Bryant said. "Being punitive to a city that has been selected is something we can't let them get away with. It's irresponsible and unparalleled in American sports."

Americans dominate Open

PARIS (AP) — For the first time in at least 25 years, three Americans have reached the men's semifinals of the French Open tennis championships, including the scrappy, consistently strong finisher on these clay courts, Harold Solomon.

Solomon, runnerup here in 1976 and No. 6 seed this year, upset Argentina's Guillermo Vilas 1-6, 6-4, 7-6, 7-5 in a three-hour, 39-minute duel under a blazing sun Wednesday at Roland Garros Stadium.

Sweden's Bjorn Borg, playing near-perfect tennis in his bid for a fifth men's crown here, dispatched Italy's Corrado Barazzutti 6-0, 6-3, 6-3, and will meet Solomon in a semifinal match Friday toward the $53,000 men's title.

In the other semifinal, Jimmy Connors will face Vilas Gerulaitis in an all-American match. Along with Solomon, they are dreaming of becoming the first American to win the French title since Tony Trabert defeated Sven Davidson of Sweden in 1955.

Chris Evert Lloyd, defending her women's crown here, faced Czech Hana Mandlikova in a semifinal match today. In the other semifinal toward the $42,500 women's crown, Romania's Virginia Ruzici faces Australia's Dianne Fromholtz.

After his upset victory of Vilas, Solomon was asked how many times he had played the reigning champion, Borg.

"Too many," Solomon said, adding that he has never beaten him and has failed to win a set in their last three or four matches.

Solomon, 27, nonetheless said he had a new strategy to play Borg. But he would unveil it only on these slow clay courts where he put Vilas into the category of upset losers along with No. 2 seed John McEnroe and No. 2 women's seed Billie Jean King.

For his part, Vilas indicated he has been sick but he refused to use that as an excuse for his loss. He had stomach cramps on Monday and asked for, and was granted, a 45-minute delay in the starting time of his match with Spain's Manuel Orantes.

The decision to grant the delay, for which International Tennis Federation President Philippe Chatrier has taken responsibility, brought a protest from Orantes, who defaulted to Vilas rather than play the delayed match.

The Association of Tennis Professionals, a group representing most of the touring players, said it will seek a fine against the French organizers, and on Wednesday it appeared that the whole affair would be thus contained.

As has been the case throughout this two-week tournament, with its grueling best-of-five set matches for the men, the Solomon-Vilas match was not without its freak incidents.

In this case, a broken ball, which came on a Solomon passing shot winner touched off a howl from the pro-Solomon crowd when the umpire ruled the point replayed.

Goetzmann, also played in the Future Legends at Austin, was medalist in the San Antonio Invitational, third medalist at Woodlands Invitational in Conroe. At San Antonio and Woodlands he hit holes-in-one.

Petersen is from the same prep team that produced Tim and Denny O'Connor, both former all-conference players at MC. Mike has been a tournament medalist 11 times and qualified for the state junior championship the last three years. He was recently in the Missouri Valley championship, shooting a 69 at Green Valley CC in Sioux City, Iowa.

Chaparrals sign two golfers

Steve Goetzmann of Austin Westlake and Mike Peterson, Heelan High, Iowa, have signed golf letters of intent to Midland College for next fall, MC athletic director and men's golf coach Delgor Poss announced today.

Goetzmann played on the AAA state championship team and was named all-state and all-tournament three years. As a senior, he was District 12-3A medalist. While in high school, he qualified for the Western Junior Amateur, Junior Heritage Classic at Hilton Head, S.C.; Future Masters and Junior World championship at San Diego, Calif.

Brune signs

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have signed Canadian Football League star Larry Brune, a strong safety who was drafted by the Vikings in 1976.

Brune, 6-2, 200 pounds, was a seventh-round pick out of Rice and a teammate of quarterback Tommy Kramer, now a Viking starter.

Hockey's old hero retires

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Middle-aged hockey fans who have watched Gordie Howe play through five decades and perhaps thought maybe they could do it too, will have to look for new hero.

The seemingly ageless wonder from Saskatchewan, whose teammates could and did call him "Gramps," retired Wednesday, saying he will stay on with the Hartford Whalers of the National Hockey League as director of player development.

"I probably have another half year in me," he said. "I'd hate to go out after 32 years and find out in the middle of the winter I've run short."

But Howe, who broke into the Detroit Red Wings in 1946, said he still feels "good enough to play" even though he will confine any future ice time to old-timers' games.

Howe has said in the past there is no Fidrych earns victory

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, the American League Rookie of the Year in 1976, picked up his first victory of the season Wednesday night as Evansville posted a 4-2 decision over Denver in an American Association game.

The injury-prone righthander, who made "Bird" watchers out of Detroit Tigers fans in 1976, went 6½ innings, giving up one run, seven hits, striking out four and walking three. He is now 1-4 with the Triplets.

one shining moment that stands out in his career, but Wednesday he said the "fulfillment of a dream" was the 1979-80 season when he could play in the NHL with his sons, Marty and Mark.

It was the chance to play with his sons that brought Howe out of his first retirement. He had quit the Red Wings in 1971 and was chafing in a front office job. Then he was offered a deal by the Houston Aeros of the fledgling World Hockey Association to play with Marty and Mark.

The Howes came to Hartford in 1977 to play for the team then called the New England Whalers, of the WHA. When the WHA was merged into the NHL for the 1979-80 season, Gordie Howe was welcomed back to the league he had thrilled for a quarter of a century.

"The thrill by the fans all over the arenas last year was something to remember and if I try again and have to quit before the season is over, it won't mean as much. I have nothing left to prove."

His name is scattered all over hockey records books and the entries may be hard to break for current and future generations of NHL players.

The 52-year-old Howe has played in 2,421 major league hockey games in both the NHL and WHA. He has scored 1,071 goals, 801 in the NHL, a league record.

The next closest player in terms of games played is Howe's old teammate at Detroit, Alex Delvecchio, with 1,549 games, according to the statisticians in the Whaler's front office.

One of Howe's biggest milestones came Dec. 7, 1977 when he scored his 1,000th professional goal against the Birmingham Bulls of the WHA in Birmingham, Ala. Then on Feb. 29, 1980, he got his 800th career goal in the NHL.

Whaler Coach Don Blackburn called Howe's career "the greatest sports story ever written."

Players honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Carlton and Mike Schmidt, both of the Philadelphia Phillies, are the National League pitcher and player of the month for May, the NL office said Wednesday.

Carlton went 6-1 during May with a 1.65 earned run average. He struck out 70 batters and walked 24 in 60 innings pitched, allowing 11 earned runs on just 40 hits.

Party boat fishing is fun

Party boat fishing is probably one of the most entertaining and hilarious fishing comedies going these days in offshore sportfishing terms. The reason? Forty anglers, experts and novice, are on the same boat and anything can happen.

We fished offshore two weeks ago out of Port Aransas on the Wharf Cat, an 85-foot catamaran all-aluminum fishing boat. A similar craft out of Fisherman's Wharf caters to long-range red-snapper fishermen and takes 12 hours of riding and fishing. However, the Wharf Cat caters to half day anglers more interested in catching surface fish in the Gulf of Mexico.

Leaving dockside at 8 a.m. each morning, it returns around noon and takes the angler no more than 10 miles out. And for the time spent, there's no angling entertainment that can quite match it.

As the fishing grounds are approached, the captain begins delivering instructions over the ship's loudspeaker and anxious anglers go frantic to secure their favorite position on the boat. They grab leashed rod and reels, a ribbonfish for bait and drop lines into the stained-green Gulf.

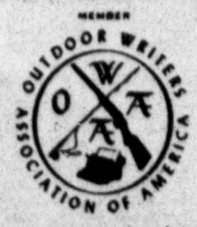

Anglers line the rail wall-to-wall with lines in all directions. Hookups usually begin immediately. On this last trip, sand sharks from three to 15 pounds were taking every bait dropped in the water. Later, we nicknamed our ship the Shark Cat because of the frenzied run of sharks. However, a few Jack Creval's (jackfish) were also hitting the ribbonfish baits.

There's always some kind of action observed at each stop the ship makes. However, the most amusing action comes from the anglers. These people, some from Alaska and Japan, are on their first trip and want to catch a

KENNY REDIN'S

Fin & Feather

Texas offshore fish. They are unfamiliar with the rented tackle, thoroughly confused about how to properly hook ribbonfish and are totally mystified when a fish hits the bait and streaks toward China.

We've seen rods and reels fly overboard, anglers fall into the water and watched deckhands gaff a shark, swinging him overboard and slapping another angler in the face.

The wildest scene is when a hooked fish takes several 100 yards of line off the reel. When a jackfish is hooked, they make two or three long runs, then bore deep, straight under the boat, which is when the fun begins.

Anglers latching on to a jackfish run the rails, following the fish. He goes over neighboring anglers, under their lines and sometimes follows the fish around the entire boat. By that time, if he is lucky, the fish is ready for gaffing and no less than five and no more than 30 are tangled.

Strangely enough, the fish is usually landed by the angler who hooked it in the first place. Deckhands are experienced and cope with the problems out of routine.

In fact, line tangles aren't considered big problems on party boats. But they are amusing. Unless the fish will not cooperate or rough seas hamper fishing conditions, most anglers take home a nice mess of saltwater fish. Even sand or blacktip sharks are as edible as red snapper. Smaller sharks are considered prime table fare.

From now until mid-September, migratory gamefish species such as king mackerel, spanish mackerel, ling, dolphinfish keep the Wharf Cat hopping. For more information, contact Fisherman's Wharf, P.O. Box 387, Port Aransas, 78373.

Baseball owners to take vote today

CHICAGO (AP) — The owners of major league baseball's 26 franchises are scheduled to meet this afternoon at a Chicago hotel to take a ratification vote on the agreement reached May 23 with the players association.

The contract agreement, which extends through the 1983 season, was hammered out during a marathon 17-hour bargaining session in New York, averting a threatened strike by the Major League Players Association.

The key issue in the bargaining had been compensation for free agents. That item was put off and a four-man committee of players and owners will be appointed to discuss the issue and make recommendations by Feb. 1, 1981. If approved by both sides, the recommendation would become part of the contract.

Airman Eddie L. Kirkland

Airman Eddie L. Kirkland, son of Anna M. Kirkland of Lamesa, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the community college of the Air Force.

Kirkland will now receive specialized instruction in the weather service field.

Capt. David G. Bradford, son of retired Air Force Maj. and Mrs. L. Galen Bradford of Big Spring, is a member of the 91st Strategic Missile Wing, Minot Air Force Base, Minot, N.D., winner of the Omaha Trophy.

The Omaha Trophy, first awarded by the citizens of Omaha nine years ago to the Strategic Air Command (SAC), is now an annual award presented to the best wing in SAC.

The wing at Minot set a new record for SAC, by becoming the first missile wing to capture the award. Selection criteria is based on evaluations in combat readiness; security and the unit's overall contribution to the accomplishment of the SAC mission.

Richard E. Crandall, son of retired Air Force Lt. Col. and Mrs. E.H. Crandall of Big Spring, was commissioned a second lieutenant and awarded a bachelor of science degree May 28 upon graduation from the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Lt. Crandall has been selected for pilot training at Reese Air Force Base, Texas.

More than 72 percent of the 900 members of this year's graduating class will go to pilot or navigator training. The remainder will pursue graduate degrees at universities throughout the country or be assigned to operational Air Force units.

Marine Lance Cpl. Joe L. Perez, son of George and Maria Perez of Lamesa, has been meritoriously promoted to his present rank while serving with 1st Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

He received the accelerated promotion in recognition of outstanding performance, duty proficiency and demonstrated professional abilities.

Pvt. John R. Winton, son of Marvin R. Winton of Big Spring, recently completed training as a cannoner under the One Station Unit Training Program at the U.S. Army Field Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla.

One Station Unit Training is a 13-week period which combines basic combat training with advanced individual training.

Students learned the duties of a howitzer or gun section crewman and received instruction in handling ammunition, setting fuses and preparing charges, communications and maintenance.

Staff Sgt. William E. Berry, son of Betty Berry of McCamey, recently was awarded a safe driving certificate while serving with the 13th Armor in Illshelm, Germany.

Berry received the award for driving military vehicles one year with no accidents or traffic violations.

Navy Aviation Electronics Technician 2nd Class Doyle E. Hazle, son of John D. and Georgia I. Hazle of Midland, has completed the Avionics Intermediate Course.

During the 28-week course at the Naval Technical Training Center, Millington, Tenn., students gained the knowledge and skills needed to operate and maintain airborne communications, radar, navigation and anti-submarine warfare systems. In addition to the technology of these systems, they studied mathematics, circuitry and electronic theory.

Parole revocation upheld

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—The Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the revocation of probation of Steve Chilian, who pleaded guilty in Midland County to felony theft, receiving a five-year probated sentence.

Chilian's parole was revoked for failure to report to his probation officer as required, and for failure to pay restitution and supervisory fees.

Chilian appealed on grounds that the order to report to the probation officer was "too vague" to show to whom and for what period of time he was to report.

The appeals court commented that the order "may leave much to desire as a form when it is read as a whole," it was "not too vague to support revocation on the ground that the appellant failed to report to the probation officer as required."

In another opinion, the appeals court returned to Midland County the case of Andrew Richards Jr., convicted on March 17, 1976, of possession of heroin and sentenced to 10 years in prison.

The trial court, on the same day, revoked Richards' probation on another conviction, based upon the heroin possession charge.

The appeals court said "the trial judge based his findings of fact on his personal recollection of the facts of the case as well as his files and records."

"None of those files or records are before this court," the opinion comments.

PABA good for sunburn

Dear Dr. Solomon: Because I have fair skin and burn easily, my dermatologist has recommended I use an ointment that contains PABA when I am out in the sun. What is PABA? Is it a chemical? — Anna.

Dear Anna: PABA is short for para-aminobenzoic acid. It is a part of the vitamin B complex and is found in liver, yeast, wheat germ and molasses.

PABA soothes the pain of burns and is effective in preventing and treating sunburn. In fact, people who ordinarily burn with only slight exposure to the sun sometimes are enabled to remain in the sun for hours after applying PABA ointment.

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE
Powell glad to be 'back in the saddle'

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary Jody Powell perhaps best displayed the general glee of President Carter and his aides finally to be out on the campaign trail. Between events during a recent 12-hour day in Ohio, Powell was overheard singing Gene Autry's theme, "Back in the Saddle Again."

Powell also found himself receiving frequent congratulations during the day for being exonerated on charges of using cocaine at a New York disco. He graciously accepted the good wishes, without pointing out that it actually was White House Chief of Staff Hamilton Jordan who had received the clean bill a day earlier.

Although the president has made supposedly "non-political" trips in the last month, the Ohio journey was the first time in a long while that Carter, who was holding a rally, was exposed to an outdoor crowd of thousands — a Secret Service agent's nightmare.

As Air Force One neared Columbus, reporters and agents lined up at the back of the aircraft to use the bathrooms before landing. One agent, who looks and sometimes acts like actor Walter Matthau, emerged from the lavatory and declared: "Never go into combat with a full bladder."

Later, just before Carter arrived at the Cleveland airport, an angry queen bee, soon joined by thousands of others, attached herself to the front tire of a Secret Service car. The Secret Service quickly summoned a local bee expert who scraped the queen off the tire with a charge card and deposited her in a cardboard box containing honey. The rest of the swarm followed.

On a recent visit to Carter's campaign headquarters, Powell and Jordan joined the president in his limousine for the short trip. When a reporter jokingly pointed out that he had never seen such an accumulation of power in one place, Powell replied facetiously, "Usually the Secret Service doesn't let us ride together."

At the headquarters, the entourage was ushered upstairs in a tiny elevator that held only about five people. The president, his agents and Powell crowded in. Jordan was left to take the stairs, three at a time, up to the fifth floor.

Amy Carter, like 3,558 other Washington youngsters, walked 23 miles last month for the March of Dimes and earned $750 in pledges.

Like the other kids, Amy got a T-shirt for her efforts. But unlike the others, Amy's shirt was presented to her during a White House ceremony to which reporters and photographers were invited.

Before the president's daughter arrived, one reporter asked spokesmen for the March of Dimes whether the occasion was held because Amy had collected the most money. No, said one. But E.E. Hager, director of chapter development for the local March of Dimes, said Amy was currently leading in the money race. But that was incidental to the T-shirt presentation.

No one told Amy, who reportedly hit up as many members of the White House staff as she could to get the pledges. As she posed for the photographers, a reporter asked whether she knew she had collected the most money. "I did?" she asked with surprise.

Those 'Taxi' guys to co-star in 'Love, Max'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those "Taxi" guys, Tony Danza and Danny DeVito, are using their vacation from the popular TV series to co-star with three orangutans in a movie called "Love, Max."

What a difference a hit series can make. Before "Taxi," Danza was carving a career as a prize-fighter in Manhattan. DeVito was earning a fair living as a character actor in films.

Now Tony is starring in features ("Hollywood Knights") and TV movies ("Murder Can Hurt"), and Danny has formed his own production company to develop movies.

Over at Goldwyn Studios the pair is spending off-series weeks in "Love, Max," which may do for orangutans what Clint Eastwood did for chimpanzees.

The plot: Danza inherits $5 million from his circus-owner father with the stipulation that he must keep three oranges from harm for five years. DeVito is a circus hand who helps Danza guard the apes from villains who want to break the will.

Jessica Walter and Stacey Nelkin also star in the movie, produced by Robert L. Rosen and directed by Jeremy Joe Kronsberg from his own script.

I dropped by Goldwyn's Stage 3 to watch the action. The oranges were before the camera, so the human actors were available to talk.

Tony Danza, 27, was shirtless and looked as if he still could go the limit as a middleweight. He remains dazzled by what has happened to him in the past two years.

"It's the typical Hollywood story," he remarked. "A guy walks into Gleason's gym looking for somebody to play in a boxing picture. The next thing I know I'm flying out to Hollywood for a screen test."

Pickwicks announce summer plays

The Pickwick Players, Midland Community Theatre's performing group of young people, announces an exciting bill of three summer plays for children including "Jack And The Beanstalk," "Peck's Bad Boy," and "Imagine That."

Season tickets are now on sale at $4. Individual shows cost $2. Tickets may be purchased at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Avenue.

This summer marks the 17th year of Youth Theatre at MCT. For those who missed the recent Pickwick's auditions, it is not too late to join the company. The summer season began Monday and runs for ten weeks until August 9.

Students not available for all ten weeks may still join and work a portion of the season. The program involves intensive training and practical experience in all aspects of play production. For more information call Debbie Wadell at 682-2544.

John Torchia, right, and his son, John Jr., walk away from their wrecked house in Neptune, N.J., Wednesday. The Torchias escaped the house unhurt after a former boyfriend of Torchia's daughter crashed his plane into the house, shown in background. (AP Laserphoto)

NEPTUNE TOWN-SHIP, N.J. (AP)—Aviation officials are trying to learn whether William Fischer intentionally crashed a stolen plane into the home where his former girlfriend was sleeping.

Fischer, a licensed pilot, was killed in the fiery crash, but 24-year-old Karen Woolley, her son Brian, 3, and her father escaped unharmed through a bedroom window as fire consumed the house.

"To me, to determine that he crashed into the house on purpose is very hard at this time," said Police Chief Walter Gilbert. "Certainly, it's not your ordinary plane crash."

The crash followed several days of rage by Fischer over the couple's break-up, authorities said.

Skimming the treetops, Fischer's twin-engine airplane made seven passes at the house, owned by Mrs. Woolley's father, John Torchia.

Suddenly, the aircraft plunged into the house, setting it afire and throwing Fischer, 31, of Ocean Township, a former Eastern Airlines flight attendant, into the backyard.

Mrs. Woolley had been spending the night with her family after filing criminal mischief and assault charges against Fischer on Tuesday, police said.

She charged he beat her with a hammer, broke her television set and tore out the telephone, said Gilbert.

Lt. Ray Penniston said authorities didn't know if Fischer knew about the charges or that Mrs. Woolley was spending the night in her father's house. Their homes are back-to-back.

Fischer took off from Monmouth County Airport in nearby Wall Township at about 5 a.m. after apparently stealing the $25,000 Piper Aztec from the Garden State Aviation Co., Penniston said.

Neighbors said he buzzed the Torchia and Woolley houses at very low altitudes and at one point sheared the top off a tree. On the last pass, the aircraft sliced through power lines and plunged into the Torchia house.

"I was trying to get the number of the plane," said John Casey, 65, who lives about a block from the crash site. "He made a left bank and he got caught up in the wires and then he hit the house at full blast."

Casey said it appeared Fischer's engine stalled during his final pass, but other neighbors said the pilot was turning the plane's power on and off.

Fischer had been going with Mrs. Woolley, who is separated, for about 18 months before breaking up about a month ago, Penniston said.

Mickey Bressler, Ocean Township Public Works superintendent, said Fischer had been employed in the township's road department since March 31 and was "a good worker who did a good day's work."

The fire destroyed Torchia's Cape Cod-style house and a garage and blackened the rear of Mrs. Woolley's home. No other homes were damaged and there were no other injuries.

Presbyterians end governing assembly

DETROIT (AP)—Officials of the United Presbyterian Church hope peace-making efforts at the denomination's nine-day governing assembly will solve conflicts over women's roles and church property that have driven some disaffected congregations to quit.

But some congregations, motivated by "cultural conservatism," may remain disenchanted, he said, and seek to quit as others already member denomination as the assembly ended Wednesday.

"We've provided the tools to work pastorally and to seek reconciliation," said the church's presiding moderator, the Rev. Charles A. Hammond of West Lafayette, Ind.

A "conscientious objectors' status" for congregations not yet complying with a year-old requirement that women be included among church officers "will be helpful to some congregations, but not to others," he said.

The new provision allows regional presbyteries to grant three-year, renewable exemptions from the requirement, as long as congregations are seriously examining it and moving toward adherence.

About 1,300 of the church's 8,700 congregations have not complied.

The denomination has allowed women clergy since 1956.

In another controversial matter, the assembly amended the church constitution to specify that local congregations hold property in trust for the whole church, a long-time tradition not before put into church law.

The step was taken because of a 1979 U. S. Supreme Court decision that said it would not regard uncodified church traditions in handling disputes over church property unless links to the denomination were explicit.

Once the amendment is ratified by regional units and goes into effect, it should halt the flight of congregations, said William P. Thompson, the church's chief administrative officer.

Twenty-eight congregations pulled out in the last year, most seeking to take church buildings

Love Canal calls aid offer inadequate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government has made a new offer to help permanently relocate fearful residents of the chemically contaminated Love Canal area of New York state, but is still refusing to buy their present homes.

"We are offering them the same kind of assistance that is offered to the victims of the Mount St. Helens volcano," Barbara Blum, deputy administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said Wednesday after meeting with community leaders from Niagara Falls, N.Y., site of the canal.

She said the federal help would include low-interest loans to buy homes elsewhere but repeated that "the government cannot and will not buy homes" outright.

That offer, said Lois Gibbs, president of the Love Canal Homeowners Association, leaves residents "no better off today than they were before." But other community leaders at the meeting said they wanted to review the federal offer before commenting.

Last month, President Carter declared a state of emergency in the Love Canal neighborhood, where long-buried toxic chemicals have been leaching to the surface, creating serious health problems.

The latest federal action would designate the situation as a disaster, which would qualify the area for more federal aid, including the loans, said EPA spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

New York state had purchased the homes of more than 200 families closest to the chemical dump after the hazardous situation was discovered two years ago.

When a federally sponsored pilot study last month showed evidence of chromosome damage among families living farther from the dump site, about 700 more homeowners demanded permanent relocation.

Never Again Sale

Not with this merchandise.
Not at these prices.

An open letter to our customers:

Fifteen years ago, Pier 1 was a retailing innovation. Searching out exotic merchandise overseas, it was our pleasure to introduce rattan king chairs, hibachis, seagrass rugs, and Indian bedspreads to many Americans.

Our merchandise was new to your eyes, and amazingly affordable. We bought thousands of things from sixty countries and stacked them up for your approval in our eccentric stores.

As years passed, we somehow strayed from our original concept. Our merchandise grew common to your eyes. We became predictable.

But never again.

Today, we want to rededicate ourselves to the concepts that once made us famous... to comb the markets of Canton, Calcutta, Ankara, Rabat, and Ouagadougou... to search where few venture... to bring home the unusual.

We don't wish to be predictable, but rather to be special in the marketplace.

But, first things first. We need to purge many items from our inventory which do not represent this new direction. Many of the items are popular, but often found on the shelves of other retailers.

I urge you to take advantage of this opportunity... a philosophical clearance sale. It will not be repeated.

Shallow gas strike finals

Queen gas production was opened in the Noelke, Southeast field of Crockett County with completion of Three B Oil Co. of Monahans No. 1 Shannon Dee.

The well, eight miles east of Iraan, finalized for a calculated absolute open flow of 570,000 cubic feet of gas per day, natural, from open hole at 850 feet, where seven-inch casing is cemented, and total depth of 2,010 feet.

No fluid was reported with the gas.

The Queen was topped at 1,700 feet. The elevation is not available.

Wellsite is 2,173 feet from north and 1,020 feet from east lines of Archer, County School Land survey No. 4.

CRANE PRODUCER

Bass Enterprises of Midland No. 2-A Nellie W. Harris is a new well in the Bayview, West (Glorieta) pool of Crane County, 12 miles southwest of Crane.

On 24-hour potential test, the well pumped 55 barrels of 34-gravity oil and 41 barrels of water, through perforations from 3,258 to 3,360 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 782-1.

Location is 5,501 feet from northeast and 467 feet from southeast lines of section 39, block 1, H&TC survey.

A re-entry project, it originally was completed in the W.E.R. (Clear Fork) field.

STONEWALL AREA

The third well has been completed in the Short (Conglomerate 5700) field of Stonewall County, 20 miles northeast of Aspermont.

It is E. C. Johnston Co. of Longview No. 1 Long Estate-Kegler.

Operator reported a 24-hour natural flowing potential of 140 barrels of 39-gravity oil, through a 14/64-inch choke. Gas-oil ratio was not reported.

Completion was through perforations from 5,659 to 5,663 feet.

The well is one location northwest of other conglomerate production and 2,056 feet from south and 2,467 feet from east lines of section 1, BBB&C survey, abstract 37.

TERRY WELL

Getty Oil Co., operating from Midland, filed potential test on its No. 2 E. A. Tapp, the ninth well in the Corrigan (Fusselman) field of Terry County, four miles northwest of Welch.

One location north of other Fusselman production, the well finalized for a daily flowing potential of 172 barrels of 35.3-gravity oil, through an 18/64-inch choke and perforations from 11,516 to 11,526 feet.

The pay was acidized with 250 gallons.

Wellsite is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 2, block C-38, psi survey.

BORDEN OILER

A Strawn well has been completed in the Myrtle, North field of Borden County, four miles west of Fluvanna.

It is Laguna Petroleum Co. of Midland No. 1 R. B. Ellis.

The third well in the field, it finalized for a 24-hour pumping potential of 10 barrels of 41-gravity oil and five barrels of water, through perforations from 7,812 to 7,818 feet. The zone was acidized with 6,000 gallons.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 465, block 97, H&TC survey. The site is 5/8 mile south and slightly east of one of the other Strawn producers.

COKE PRODUCER

Natamas North America Inc. of Midland No. 10 Higgins has been finalized as the 11th well in the Higgins Ranch (Canyon) field of Coke County, seven miles northeast of Carlsbad.

On 24-hour potential test it flowed 292 barrels of 44-gravity oil, no water, through a 20/64-inch choke and perforations at 6,062-073 feet after 1,000 gallons of acid. The gas-oil ratio is 1,798-1.

Wellsite is 1,900 feet from south and 1,300 feet from east lines of section 76, block Z, EL&RR survey.

UT well completes

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. of Midland has potentialized its No. 2-81 O.D.C., fourth well in the Dominion (Silurian oil) pool of Terry County, two miles north of Seagraves.

The operator reported a daily pumping potential of 151 barrels of oil and 120 barrels of water. The gas-oil ratio is too small to measure and the gravity was not reported.

Completion was through perforations from 13,335 to 13,350 feet after a 3,000-gallon acid treatment.

Total depth is 13,396 feet. Wellsite is one location north of Silurian production and 1,980 feet from north 660 feet from east lines of section 81, block DD, John H. Gibson survey.

WARD FIELD WELL

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 2-OC State has been completed as the fifth well in a southeast extension area to the Block 17, Southeast (Delaware oil) pool of Ward County, 4.5 miles northwest of Poyte.

It completed for a 24-hour pumping potential of 50 barrels of 39.4-gravity oil and 358 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 1,100-1.

The pay, behind perforations from 4,973 to 6,399 feet, was fractured with 73,900 gallons.

Total depth is 6,630 feet, 5.5-inch pipe is set at 6,629 feet and plugged back depth is 6,605 feet.

The pay was topped at 4,973 feet on ground elevation of 2,655 feet.

The wellsites offsets production and is 560 feet from south and 710 feet from west lines of section 24, block 17, University Lands survey.

HOWARD PRODUCER

North American Royalties Inc. of Midland No. 1 Riddle, staked and drilled as a wildcat one mile west of the Isac (Pennsylvanian, upper) field of Howard County, has been completed from the Spraberry and assigned to the Spraberry Trend Area field.

The well, two miles north of Knott, finalized for a daily pumping potential of 83 barrels of 34.8-gravity oil and 35 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,532 to 8,003 feet after 3,500 gallons of acid and 71,000 gallons of fracture solution.

Total depth is 10,825 feet, 5.5-inch pipe is set at 8,122 feet and plugged back depth is 8,069 feet.

The pay was topped at 7,532 feet on ground elevation of 2,638 feet.

UPTON PRODUCER

C. F. Lawrence & Associates Inc. of Midland No. 1 Lane, re-entry project seven miles northwest of Rankin in Upton County, has been completed from the 10,600 Bend pay in the Amacker-Tippett, South multipay pool.

The well finalized for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 1,250,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 10,432 to 10,444 feet. The zone was acidized with 1,000 gallons.

The gas-liquid ratio is 4,133-1 and gravity of the fluid is 58 degrees.

Total depth is 10,590 feet and plugged back depth is 10,470 feet.

Four and one-half-inch casing is set on bottom.

The project, originally drilled by Atlantic Richfield Co. as No. 1-10 Cordova, is 650 feet from north and east lines of section 10, block 1, MK&T survey.

Opener, field wells, projects reported in West Texas, New Mexico counties

Gulf Oil Corp. announced plans to re-enter a former Devonian and Ellenburger producer in the McElroy, North multipay field of Crane County and attempt to complete it as a shallow-pay discovery.

The project, No. 9-G McElroy Ranch Co., is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 18, block 42, T-5-N, T&P survey and eight miles north of Crane.

The old total depth is 12,256 feet. It will be plugged back to 8,710 feet.

FISHER ACTIVITY

Theron Vaughn of Midland spotted location for a 4,000-foot wildcat nine miles north of Rotan in Fisher County.

Scheduled for tests of the Noodle Creek and Flippen lime, it is No. 1 Colwell, 467 feet from north and 2,143 feet from west lines of section 126, block 2, H&TC survey.

The site is a twin to a 6,212-foot dry hole and 1 5/8 miles northwest of the Rotan (Flippen sand, Canyon, upper Hope lime and 3,372) field.

Vaughn also announced plans to re-enter three dry holes in Fisher County and test them as wildcats.

He will cleanout to 3,700 feet in the former O. E. Hall of Fort Worth No. 1 Mrs. Mae Harvey, a 6,366-foot failure one mile west of the one-well Bonner (Flippen oil) pool which produces at 3,573 feet.

Location is 467 feet from north and east lines of section 3, block 2, T&P survey. It is four miles northeast of Sweetwater.

It will be operated by Vaughn as the No. 1 Mae Harvey.

Vaughn will cleanout to 3,800 feet at the former Fletcher Oil & Gas Drilling Corp. No. 1 L. D. Rainbolt, a 5,458-foot duster approximately eight miles northeast of Sweetwater.

It is 1.5 miles southwest of the Sylvester (Strawn, Strawn 5335 and Goen oil) pool.

It will be operated by Vaughn as No. 1 Rainbolt. The hole was abandoned by Fletcher in January 1958.

Location is 467 feet from north and east lines of section 28, Bastrop County School Land survey No. 322.

Vaughn will cleanout to 4,700 feet at the former Lester & Duffield Inc. and Plymouth Oil Co. No. 1 L. D. Rimmer, a 6,702-foot dry hole 1/2 mile southeast of Terrell Oil Co. of Hamlin No. 1 Jake T. Weir, a recently completed Canyon oil discovery.

This re-entry is 467 feet from south and east lines of section 182, block 1, BBB&C survey.

Vaughn will operate the project as No. 1 L. D. Rimmer.

The Terrell opener was completed through perforations at 4,14-4,245 feet.

The location is five miles north of Hamlin.

Field wells take potentials

Caddo Corp. and G. Fred Reiff Inc. of Dallas No. 1 Tipton has been completed in the Mistake (Strawn) pool of Nolan County, five miles southeast of Herrndon.

The well, the second active producer in the field, finalized for a daily pumping potential of 10 barrels of 40.6-gravity oil and 15 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,102 to 5,147 feet after 1,000 gallons of acid and 10,000 gallons of fracture solution.

The Canyon sand was topped at 4,117 feet and the Strawn sand was hit at 5,120 feet on Kelly bushing elevation of 1,982 feet.

Total depth is 5,210 feet and the 4.5-inch pipe is cemented at 5,203 feet.

Rhe well, one location northeast of the other Strawn producer, is 1,500 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 42, block 19, T&P survey.

REEVES WELL

MGF Oil Corp. of Midland No. 1-10 Worsham is a new well in the Worsham (Delaware sand) field of Reeves County, 14.6 miles southeast of Pecos.

The operator reported a 24-hour

Yates Petroleum Corp. of Artesia, N.M., announced potential test on an Abo gas discovery in Chaves County, 21 miles northwest of Elkins.

The strike, No. 1 McClellan-Federal "MB," was finalized for a daily flow of 1,400,000 cubic feet of gas through a 1/2-inch choke. Flowing tubing pressure was 230 pounds.

Completion was from pay behind casing perforations from 3,930 to 3,960 feet.

Total depth is 4,650 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set at 4,241 feet.

The opener is two miles southeast of Fred Pool No. 1-24 Corn, an abo gas discovery completed earlier this year from 3,822 to 3,860 feet.

The Yates Petroleum discovery is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 31-5s-25e.

LEA PROJECT

Harvey E. Yates Co. of Roswell, N.M., No. 1-19 Superior-State has been spotted as a 13,650-foot project in the Austin (Mississippian) field of Lea County, N.M., 12 miles south of Tatum.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 19-14s-36e.

It is 2,290 feet from north and 330 feet from east lines of section 22-18s-27e and 1/2 mile west of the West Artesia Grayburg Unit. Ground elevation is 3,458 feet.

MIDLAND RE-ENTRY

Mobil Producing Texas & New Mexico Inc. will re-enter a Dora Roberts (Devonian) field producer and plug back for an attempt to reopen Wolfcamp production in the Virey multipay field of Midland County.

The project is No. 8 Reynolds-Parks, eight miles southeast of Odessa and one mile east of the depleted Virey (Wolfcamp) field discovery.

The re-entry is 1,980 feet from north and 2,080 feet from west lines of section 26, block 41, T-3-S, T&P survey.

COKE PRODUCER

Marshall & Winston of Midland No. 1 Billie Hanks has been completed in the Bloodworth, Northeast (Canyon 5750) field of Coke County, three miles southeast of Silver.

pumping potential of 8 barrels of 45.5-gravity oil and 14 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,040 to 5,108 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 2,460-1.

Total depth is 6,150 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set on bottom.

The pay was treated with 1,000 gallons of acid.

Wellsite is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 10, block C-6, psi survey.

YOAKUM WELL

Blanks Energy Corp. of Midland No. 1 Pharr has been completed as the sixth well in the Henard (San Andres oil) pool of Yoakum County.

Drilled as a wildcat, it is 1 3/8 miles northeast of the closest other San Andres oiler.

It completed for a daily pumping potential of 36 barrels of 33.3-gravity oil, through perforations from 5,226 to 5,288 feet after 2,100 gallons of acid and 2,850 gallons of fracture solution.

Total depth is 12,540 feet and 4.5-inch casing is set at 5,407 feet. The plugged back depth is 5,344 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 310, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 115 barrels of 38.4-gravity oil, through a 12/64-inch choke and perforations from 5,678 to 5,690 feet.

The pay was acidized with 1,200 gallons and fractured with 40,000 gallons.

The gas-oil ratio is 3,261-1.

Hole is bottomed at 6,100 feet, 5.5-inch casing is set at 6,092 feet and plugged back depth is 6,011 feet.

The new well is 3/4 mile south of production in a west extension area to the field.

RUNNELS TESTS

W. W. West of Midland staked No. 1 Leon W. Frerich as a 4,900-foot wildcat in Runnels County, seven miles west of Winters.

It is 1,500 feet southeast of the N.A.M. (Overall) field and one location southeast of one of the field's three Fry oil wells.

Drillsite is 1,600 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of J. L. Norwood survey No. 70, abstract 825.

Petroleum Exploration Inc. of Abilene staked No. 1 T. A. Smith as a 4,850-foot wildcat three miles southwest of Winters in Runnels County. Location is 1,725 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of H&OB survey No. 601.

The site is 2 5/8 miles north of the Dick Richardson (Gardner lime) field and in the vicinity of the Winters, West (Palo Pinto, King and Capps oil) pool. It also is 1/2 mile east of a 4,465-foot failure.

YOAKUM DRILLSITE

Blanks Energy Corp. of Midland No. 3 Pharr is to be drilled as a 7/8-mile northeast stepout to the Henard Oil pool of Yoakum County, three miles north of Plains.

Scheduled on a 5,400-foot contract, it is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 310, block D, J. H. Gibson survey, abstract 1495.

UPTON RE-ENTRY

C. F. Lawrence & Associates of Midland will deepen from 10,450 to 10,600 feet the former ARCO Oil & Gas Co. No. 2-10 Cordova, a former Bend oil well in the Amacker-Tippett, South multipay field of Upton County.

Lawrence will attempt to recomplete from the Bend. The project will be operated as No. 2 Lane.

Location is 925 feet from north and 2,240 feet from west lines of section 10, block 1, MK&T survey.

Midland district office reports 53 more oil, gas projects

Fifty-three projects, including nine wildcats were announced last week in Railroad Commission of Texas' District 8 as operators reported intentions to drill 156 new projects in the Permian Basin of West Texas and New Mexico.

District 8 is headquartered in Midland.

District 7-C, headquartered in San Angelo, reported 19 wildcats and 31 field projects for a total of 50 proposed oil or gas tests.

Southeast New Mexico accounted for 19 of the 118 new field operations spotted in the Basin.

Federal judge disqualifies himself for second Hell's Angels drug trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal judge Wednesday disqualified himself from presiding at the trial of seven members of the Hells Angels motorcycle gang charged with various racketeering and drug offenses.

U.S. District Judge Stanley A. Weigel said he has presided over Hells Angels cases in the past and that he could be considered prejudiced. He was replaced by Judge William H. Orrick.

The trial of the seven Hells Angels will begin after conclusion of the current trial of 18 defendants on similar charges.

Weigel said he had already heard "a great deal of evidence" detrimental to two of the defendants in the second trial, James Brandes and Sergey Walton.

Also, Weigel said he presided in a case in which he found Walton's wife guilty of a felony firearms charge.

The judge said his "impartiality might reasonably be questioned" in a
