Congress overrides Carter's veto, killing dime-a-gallon gas fee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, following the lead of the House, today overrode President Carter's veto and crushed his dime-a-gallon gasoline fee.

The vote was 68-10, well above the two-thirds majority needed to brush aside Carter's veto of a congressional measure repealing the fee.

It was the first time a Democratic-controlled Congress has failed to sustain a Democratic president's veto since Harry S. Truman was overridden in 1952.

Carter vetoed the bill Thursday, saying the fee was needed to help conserve imported petroleum. But two hours later and with no debate, the House voted, 335-34, to override the veto.

Today's Senate vote administered the final death blow. While either chamber of Congress can sustain a veto, two-thirds votes in both houses are needed to override one.

Arguing unsuccessfully for the veto to be sustained, Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., told the Senate that failure to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil only makes military action in the Persian Gulf region that much more likely.

"We need to take some strong medicine and unfortunately this body is unwilling to do that," Hart said.

But Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., denounced the fee as "bad economic policy and bad energy policy."

The Senate margin was narrower than the nearly 10-1 override vote in the House. The original Senate vote rejecting the fee and setting up the veto confrontation was 73-16.

As in the House, a large number of Democrats joined with Republicans to override the veto.

Carter cast 21 previous vetoes, all of which were sustained. Although no Democratic president had been overridden since 1952, Republican Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford had a total of 19 vetoes overridden.

Democrats have controlled both houses of Congress for the better part of the last 50 years.

In his veto message Thursday, the president told Congress that while he knew the fee was politically unpopular, members should rise above politics and let him impose it. He called the levy an important step in oil conservation, "good policy and good common sense."

His veto took two hours to reach the House and two minutes to discuss. "We've talked the matter to death," said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, as the roll call was ordered.

Carter wanted the fee to help the nation begin withdrawing from its 8-million-barrel-a-day consumption of foreign oil. But opponents — Democrats as well as Republicans — called the fee a $10.3 billion tax on drivers that would serve little purpose but to help balance the budget.

The president announced the fee last March 15 and it was to have gone into effect May 15. But a federal judge blocked it, saying Carter overstepped his authority in trying to place the levy on all gasoline instead of limiting it to oil imports.

The administration is appealing that order. However, an override of Carter's veto could make the outcome of that appeal a moot issue. It was not immediately known if government lawyers planned to pursue the appeal if the veto is overturned.

Carter reiterated his claim Thursday that he moved to impose the fee in part because congressional leaders urged him to do so last winter.

Without naming names, Carter lambasted "public officials" whom he said are unwilling "to face the political heat when the time comes to make a tough decision for the benefit of this country." He made the remarks to reporters in the Oval Office as he signed the veto message.

The bill passed both houses Wednesday by wide margins — 376-30 in the House and 73-16 in the Senate.

The fee-repeal bill contains an unrelated measure extending the nation's present $879-billion debt limit — and with it all the government's borrowing power — until the end of June.

That authority technically expired at midnight Thursday.

Midlanders relieved

Glad Santana is staying away

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Santana Industries' decision to back out of a plan for locating a plant near Midland has left several residents sighing with relief.

The company — which had planned to locate a small plant south of Midland Regional Airport — was on the last legs of getting a permit from the Texas Department of Health when its lease on the building expired. Santana failed to renew the lease, causing the health department to halt approval of the application.

The company was planning to manufacture exit signs for buildings using tritium, a radioactive gas.

What concerned citizens was the use of a radioactive material and a parent company's bad track record in Arizona. American Atomics Corporation in Tucson was forced to close a year ago after losing a large quantity of tritium and traces of the material showed up in the nearby neighborhood.

Joe Gorrell, licensing supervisor with the Radiation Control Division of the State Health Department in Austin said it was Santana's idea to withdraw its application for a Midland facility.

Santana officials met with state health officers Thursday morning in a private session. Gorrell said the company is opting for distributing its products in Texas, probably from a Dallas or Houston area base. But, the company has decided not to manufacture any products with tritium in the state. Instead, the company is considering locating its manufacturing plant in England.

Santana's action "is probably better for everyone," said

Gorrell. "It seemed like everyone was getting upset about it. I don't think the plant would have been a problem, but now we can all forget about it."

After hearing of Santana's decision, Maxine Hannafin of Midland said she was "relieved to hear they have chosen not to open a plant here." One of the leaders in trying to get a public hearing on the company's plans, Mrs. Hannafin said she was concerned about how the plant was going to operate.

Ray Moudy, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, said that while the chamber didn't take a stand one way or the other on Santana, he was relieved the application had been withdrawn.

"I'm sure the citizens of Midland are going to be relieved over this development," Moudy said. "The chamber never supported or opposed the project, but we were concerned about public reaction if it (Santana) had gone ahead with it."

Moudy said he was concerned over the bad publicity Santana's parent company had received in Arizona and "that we might be faced with the same type of situation."

From the health standpoint, Dr. James Humphreys had "mixed feelings" about Santana's proposed Midland plant. As acting director of the Midland City-County Health Department, Dr. Humphreys said his concern was over the fact he "couldn't find out any accurate information on tritium and how much would be discharged."

"I don't feel we could afford to run off industries," he said, "but I would rather see something not get started than to find out later it could be dangerous."

And for the city's chief sanitarian, Jewel Smith, "It's just one problem we won't have to worry about."

He failed to get discount

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A 71-year-old man has been charged with soliciting prostitution after allegedly offering to purchase the services of a prostitute — if she would give him a senior citizen's discount.

"I'm on retirement and only have $15 to spend," the man allegedly told the flashily-dressed woman, who turned out to be an undercover police officer making her rounds Wednesday.

Activity slows near Kermit crater

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

KERMIT — Thursday was a day of measurement for the slow-moving crater located about two miles southwest of Kermit near the Shell Oil Company oil tank farm on FM 115.

Activity in the now 160- by 250-yard crater has slowed substantially. The new measurement of the crater's dimensions was determined by a Winkler County Sheriff's officer using a tape measure, according to a Winkler County Sheriff's Department spokesman. Earlier estimates by the Sheriff's office had set the measurement at 200 by 250 yards.

Most of the human activity surrounding the crater Thursday dealt with some form of measuring the effects of the crater. At the eastern edge of the "big ole hole," a white nylon line with red plastic ribbons about a foot apart had one end tied to a metal stake and the other end dropped over the crater's edge.

According to an oil company consultant, the line was used to determine the crater's movement during a period of time by observing the ribbon nearest the edge of the crater.

Near the southeastern edge, cracks in the soil continued to grow as the ground started to show signs of slumping. Pipelines in the area are being carefully monitored by various oil pipeline companies should the ground near the southeast part of the crater give way.

A popular method for determining the movement of the earth involves placing two sticks or rocks on each side of the crack and then laying a stick between the two objects. If the ground moves, there should be a space between the stick lying on the ground and the two objects, an oil field maintenance man said.

From the reports of a geologist, Shell Oil Company has determined that the tank farm, now approximately 1,100 feet away, is in no immediate danger from the crater's movement, said Fran Bulawa, employee relations specialist with Shell Oil Company.

Bulawa said the geologist noted most movement of the crater was to the southeast, away from the tank farm. However, the company will continue to monitor the crater's movement and take any necessary action should it threaten the facility, he said.

Wayne Scherschel, a geologist with The University of Texas at El Paso, arrived in Kermit Thursday to study and monitor the crater's development, according to a UTEP spokesman.

The University of Texas at El Paso has been studying the Kermit area for quite some time, the spokesman said.

Early Thursday morning, Winkler County deputies reported feeling a tremor near the crater. However, the Earthquake Information Center at Golden, Colo. recorded no seismic activity in the area.

Earlier this morning, the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Kermit began monitoring the crater's movement toward FM 115 which is estimated to be about 300 feet or more from the highway, a department spokesman said.

GOP agrees; Demos fight

By The Associated Press

A tale of two meetings, one might call it. The Republicans met and agreed to forget old squabbles. The Democrats met and agreed on very little beyond continuing their present squabble.

The meeting at the White House on Thursday between President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy ended with Kennedy vowing to press his challenge to the president for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Across the continent, Ronald Reagan met with former President Gerald Ford, the man who beat Reagan for the 1976 Republican nomination, and Ford said he would "campaign wholeheartedly" for his former opponent in this fall's election.

"I have every intention of continuing in this campaign," Kennedy said after he talked with Carter for about an hour in the Oval Office.

"I am convinced Gov. Reagan can be elected, and I certainly hope he is elected," said Ford after a meeting at his Palm Springs, Calif., home with Reagan. "I look forward ... to campaigning for him."

The outcome of the two meetings could not be predicted by background.

Ford and Reagan waged a knockdown battle in 1976 and after Ford narrowly won the nomination, Reagan gave him very little help in the election that Ford lost to Carter. Ford thought of jumping into this year's battle, at one point saying Reagan was too conservative to be elected.

But all that was forgotten, Ford said.

"Yes, I thought there was a problem of Gov. Reagan being elected," he said Thursday when asked about his past criticism.

"But," he added, "I can just as truly say today that I think Ron Reagan can be elected president."

Questioned about Reagan's limited support of him when he ran against Carter, Ford said, "There was more written about that than was ever justified in fact."

Reagan said he offered to help Ford in 1976 but there "was probably a failure at the staff level to get together."

Ford said "the governor in the last three or four years has moderated some views we had differences over in 1976." He said he "doesn't look back" but only ahead to the goal of defeating Carter.

Defeating Carter, in the battle for the Democratic presidential nomination at least, is also what Kennedy has in mind, although the two men do not have the long history of acrimony that Ford and Reagan do.

"I'm a candidate for the nomination and I'm going to press my candidacy forward and advance my views of the issues," Kennedy said after his White House meeting.

Carter, asked whether he expected Kennedy's support, said "I didn't pin him down on that." He also said he didn't ask Kennedy to drop out, adding, "That's a judgment for him to make."

Carter, in fact, has been making conciliatory moves toward the Massachusetts senator.

Hospital praises Ulrich's work

The Midland Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees convened briefly in a special meeting Thursday afternoon to formally accept Hospital Administrator Wayne E. Ulrich's notification of resignation.

Although Ulrich was not present at the meeting, board members read a copy of his resignation and publicly commended Ulrich for his work at MMH. The board voted unanimously to recommend acceptance of his resignation to the Board of Directors.

The unscheduled meeting was set to discuss both Ulrich's resignation and the possibility of creating a position for a director of the respiratory therapy unit. Creating the position would involve changing the hospital's bylaws.

Further, the board members discussed a candidate for the position, Dr. Wayne McKenna, a pulmonologist from Dallas. Since Dr. McKenna has already interviewed for the position, he requested a decision on the assignment from the Trustees, as well as the Directors, by July 1.

Tevis Herd, president of the board of Trustees, explained, "We felt like we needed to meet quickly to get these matters resolved."

The board then went into executive session to discuss salary recommendations for McKenna.

Much of the meeting, however, was laced with controversy regarding the Texas State Open Meetings Law. Since media members were given only a few hours notice of the special meeting and no agenda, some reporters objected openly during the meeting.

The hospital's attorney, Ted Kerr, explained that the Trustees' meetings were not governmental meetings and therefore did not come under the jurisdiction of the Open Meetings Law.

But objections came loudly and hotly from some members of the press. Besides the Open Meetings issue, reporters objected to the board's beginning its meeting some 20 minutes before press members had been advised it would start.

Solons try to shut off draft filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's allies are setting the stage for a showdown over whether they can end the filibuster standing in the way of the administration's already-delayed draft registration program.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd promised to file a debate-limiting petition today to shut off Sen. Mark Hatfield's campaign to kill the registration plan by talking it to death.

That sets up a Senate vote Tuesday on whether to invoke cloture. If 60 senators vote for cloture, debate would end after 100 additional hours.

Hatfield predicted he would win the first cloture test. Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., a leader of the registration supporters, said the vote would be close.

Byrd said that if the first attempt fails, he will try again later in the week. He predicted the Senate would shut off debate "early on" and that registration would be approved.

The Senate is debating whether to spend $13.3 million to begin registration this summer of young men at post offices throughout the country. The House already has approved the plan.

Nunn told his colleagues that registration "can make a critical difference" by saving time in mobilizing recruits in an emergency.

Under questioning by Hatfield, Nunn acknowledged that registration would make it easier for the country to return to a draft. "I do not believe we are going to be able to protect this country without going to some form of draft," Nunn said.

Carter, however, has not called for renewal of the draft. Congress would have to approve separate legislation before the draft could be reinstated.

Wisdom of the chiefs

Almost lost in the furor over President Carter's attempt to reduce the amount of money earmarked for defense was the undisputedly important role played by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Called in to testify before a House subcommittee considering the budget last week, the Joint Chiefs, respectfully, parted ways with their commander-in-chief and addressed, rather, the need for more defense spending than the amount included in Mr. Carter's budget.

Such an inclination for a military man to speak his own mind several years back would have been considered an act of total insubordination, likely to bring harsh retribution when promotion time rolled around. That retribution yet may befall the Joint Chiefs, who apparently believed what they were saying was worth the risk.

What they did say was important. Their comments came out not in the terms of reactionaries or extremists, but of generals and admirals truly concerned about their nation's defense posture. They said, in effect, that the military must have more money to do its job.

All five of the Joint Chiefs said so, but they made their remarks politely and respectfully, in the manner befitting officers with a loyalty to their leader. That's the way it should be.

Unfortunately, all too often both in the military and in private industry constructive comments that could be made by subordinates go unsaid because of the fear of retribution.

That fear — and the real retribution, in some cases — keeps a lot of creative talent bottled up. No one individual, leading the nation or a corporation, can have all the answers to all the questions that arise or can provide the solution to all the problems or know all the needs.

It's sad that such fears keep subordinates from speaking up because their comments often can mean the difference between success and failure.

Apparently this is what was on the minds of the Joint Chiefs when they testified before the House subcommittee, pushed their fears of retribution aside and spoke with candor.

Ideally, of course, Mr. Carter would now realize his Joint Chiefs are steering him in the right direction and throw his support to them. Due to the political implications, he probably will not.

But the fact remains that the Joint Chiefs had the courage to go against President Carter and, perhaps, the nation's security will be enhanced because of their efforts.

CHARLEY REESE

Supporting Israel brings respect to United States

Charley Reese

Those who dream of ending the United States' special relationship with that pesky little Israel in order to achieve some wonderful new alliance with all of those oil-rich Arabs should take careful note of the recent meeting of 32 foreign ministers of Islamic nations.

The mighty brotherhood of Islam did three things: (1) easily condemned the United States for its failed rescue attempt in Iran, an attempt in which not one Iranian was even injured; (2) considered a request from the Palestine Liberation Organization to re-admit the Soviet puppet regime in Afghanistan; and (3) greeted a plea from the Afghan rebels for Islamic censure of the Soviet Union with embarrassed silence.

Let's be clear about this. The Islamic Conference's foreign ministers condemned us for trying to rescue hostages held by terrorists, decided to consider re-admitting the Soviet puppet regime into the conference, and turned down an Afghan rebel plea for them to break diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union because of its ruthless, bloody invasion of a Moslem nation.

So firmly entrenched in our State Department is the foolish notion of a U.S.-Arab alliance that I feel like repeating it for a third time.

We must learn to look at the Middle East through clear eyes and not be lulled into false hopes by wishful thinking, anti-semitism or the Arab-oil corporation lobby.

It will help if you just forget the Arab-Israeli conflict for a moment. For the sake of clearing our heads, forget all moral considerations temporarily. Simply look at the Middle East from the selfish viewpoint of what's in the best interest of the United States.

If you are going to do that, you must look at the Islamic world as it really is. As Eric Hoffer, the waterfront philosopher recently pointed out, there is not one single developed Islamic nation in the world. Islamic unity, like Arab unity, is pure myth. As the foreign ministers just demonstrated, nobody is more unconcerned about the welfare of one moslem than another moslem.

The alleged incompatibility of Marxism with Islam is also pure myth. One of the largest moslem populations in the world is inside the Soviet Union, but you have never heard of any moslems in the Soviet dissident movement, have you?

The religion of Islam teaches obedience. It is entirely compatible and in fact prefers a dictatorial, authoritarian government. It places a high value on force and violence. There is no more devout moslem than Libya's dictator, Qaddafi, and no one more firmly in the service of the Soviet Union, unless it's Yasir Arafat, another devout moslem, and head of the PLO.

Islam also places a low value on truth so you can no more judge the Islamic world by its rhetoric than you can Jimmy Carter. What they say, what they mean, and what they will do are separate and unrelated.

The fact is that despite surface protests, the Islamic world probably admires the Soviet Union. The Soviets are doing in Afghanistan precisely what a moslem leader would do. Remember, one moslem has no regard for another and they both admire force and strength.

U.S. prestige was high when we re-supplied Israel in the Yom Kippur War but plummeted when we failed to back the Shah. Since the taking of our hostages, it has gone lower than the devil's feet.

The basic fallacy of the college boys in the State Department is that they think they are dealing with westerners who wear funny clothes. The Islamic mind is not like the western mind. It interprets restraint and concessions as weakness and of all the sins there is no greater sin than weakness.

As Lawrence of Arabia said in a candid moment, "It is very difficult to make friends with an Arab and if you do, the friendship won't last and if it does, it won't be worth much."

The great irony is that the more firmly we support Israel, the more firmly we resist terrorism and blackmail, the more the Islamic world will respect us. Please note that no Soviet embassy has been seized in a single Islamic country.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell says that the possibility of John Anderson being elected is a "fantasy." Which means that the latest polls are psychedelic experiences.

We have seen many such fantasies recently. In Washington State real estate salesmen used to point up at Mt. St. Helens and say, "That extinct old thing erupt? Only a fantasy. You're gonna love this house."

As the Shah of Iran once said, "That decrepit bearded fanatic overthrow me? Such fantasy."

Intelligent members of Congress falling for the same kind of "sting" operation used to trap street crooks? Now, that's what I call a fantasy.

Yes, Jody, — life itself is a fantasy — complete with obedient children, friendly headwaters, clean movies, five-cent cigars and the old two-party system.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Vesco probe seeping into the White House

WASHINGTON — The Senate Judiciary Committee is about to lift the lid on the Robert Vesco influence-buying attempt — a scandal that reaches into the White House.

The Justice Department has closed the case after a two-year grand jury investigation. But the grand jury's conscientious foreman, Ralph Ulmer, has complained about the department's handling of the case.

In a private, two-hour session with Senate investigators, he alleged that the prosecutors had papered over Vesco's attempt to buy favors from the White House. Ulmer used the term "cover-up," though he was careful not to discuss actual grand jury proceedings.

Now the Judiciary Committee is planning to call upon him to testify under oath, sources told my associate Gary Cohn. An internal memo, prepared for the committee's chief counsel, notes that the traditional rule of grand jury secrecy creates "a serious problem." It concludes, nevertheless, that there is a legitimate constitutional basis for hearing the foreman's testimony.

As long as the Senate committee respects grand jury secrecy, the memo explains, it can still legally inquire into the procedures followed by the Justice Department attorneys.

I broke the story of Vesco's attempt to buy his way out of legal difficulties. At the request of then-Attorney General Griffin Bell, I briefed the top Justice Department brass. His deputy, who has taken his place, Benjamin Civiletti, was present.

After the briefing, Civiletti pledged: "Give us the information, and we'll pursue it. At least three people, maybe four, are involved in crime." In good faith, I submitted my evidence to the FBI and testified before the grand jury.

But the White House tried to discredit my story. As part of this effort, President Carter's personal attorney, Charles Kirbo, investigated me. He was taped advising a witness "not to be too open with the FBI" — advice that might constitute obstruction of justice.

Yet Ulmer told Senate investigators that the prosecutors tried to keep the grand jury from hearing the incriminating tape. One Justice Department prosecutor, Thomas H. Henderson Jr., "tried to lead the jury by the nose," Ulmer said.

The Justice Department also ignored two lie detector tests, which indicated that a White House crony might have committed perjury. He was Spencer Lee IV, who was paid $10,000 to be an intermediary between Vesco and the White House.

Vesco delivered a $12 million worth of stock through a complex financial maneuver to a Georgia group that claimed to have White House connections. Lee flew to Nassau to help set up a dummy corporation to launder the proceeds from the sale of the stock.

Then he flew immediately to Washington for conferences with White House aide Richard Harden, who later reported the contact to President Carter. The President then wrote a note to the Attorney General asking him to "please see Spencer Lee of Albany."

Lee testified that he confessed the whole plot to Harden who persuaded him to abandon it. This was confirmed by Harden in his own sworn testimony before the grand jury. But Lee failed two lie detector tests, and telephone records showed he was in touch with Vesco a year after he supposedly had broken off the relationship. Harden never submitted to a lie detector test.

The grand jury never got to question President Carter in the case. He was permitted to give his version of the events on videotape, without cross examination. On most questions, he pleaded loss of memory.

HALL OF HEROES — Many American scientists, diplomats and teachers perform services to the countries where they are stationed without recognition for their quiet efforts. One was Wallace McKay, a Peace Corps volunteer from Wheeling, W. Va.

McKay's unsung research in the wilds of Colombia enabled authorities in that country to limit crop damage from a particularly bothersome species of bird. The Colombians are grateful for his achievement, which has not been publicized in this country as it should have been.

After three-and-a-half years in Colombia, McKay and an old school friend took off on a long-planned vacation to visit ancient ruins at Nazca, Peru. Their light plane crashed, and both were killed.

I am pleased to award Wally McKay a well-deserved, if posthumous, place in this column's Hall of Heroes.

SAUDI SUNPOWER — While the federal government is taking its sweet time developing solar energy in the United States, there's one area of the world where it's pushing ahead vigorously in the solar field — Saudi Arabia. The Department of Energy has signed a five-year agreement with the Saudis to help them develop an alternative energy source against the day when their oil wells dry up. American taxpayers are footing one half of the $100 million tab. DOE officials say several future projects will be built in the United States, but most of them so far are in Saudi Arabia.

SLOW BOATS — It will take 47 days, according to a secret Pentagon assessment, to reinforce our military forces in the Persian Gulf area. This has led Gen. E.C. Meyer, the Army chief, to press for faster ships. "Fast sealift appears to be cost effective, politically viable and reasonably obtainable," he argues in a memo intended for official eyes only. In his opinion, the "Navy should be told to procure sufficient fast sealift to deploy the Army, whether to Europe or to a contingency or both at the same time."

TODAY IN HISTORY

- Today is Friday, June 6, the 158th day of 1980. There are 208 days left in the year.
- Today's highlight in history: in 1944, Allied forces landed on the beaches of Normandy in France, D-Day in World War II.
- On this date:
 - In 1755, American patriot Nathan Hale was born in Coventry, Conn.
 - In 1966, James Meredith, the first black admitted to the University of Mississippi, was wounded in an ambush as he marched in a racial protest.
 - In 1967, Israeli troops carved a 30-mile-wide front along Egypt's Mediterranean coast.
 - In 1968, Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York died after being shot at a celebration in Los Angeles after his victory in California's Democratic presidential primary. A 24-year-old

- Jordanian, Sirhan Sirhan, was charged as the assassin.
- Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon named Elliott Richardson as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to replace his new adviser, Robert Finch.
- Five years ago: Britain voted to stay in the Common Market, ending a political debate over the nation's role in Europe.
- Last year: Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza declared a state of siege in an attempt to break a general strike and put down spreading insurrection.
- Today's birthdays: The exiled Tibetan leader, the Dalai Lama, is 44. Comptroller General Elmer Staats is 66.
- Thought for today: I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country — Nathan Hale (1755-1776).

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan still is not prepared to take on Jimmy Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans

Novak

LOS ANGELES — Ronald Reagan concluded the first day that the Republican presidential nomination was undeniably his with a singularly uninspired performance pointing to this harsh reality: He is far from ready to take on Jimmy Carter and his resourceful Georgia politicians.

The event here was a $500-a-plate fund-raiser before sleepy-eyed Republicans, including a goodly number of Sacramento lobbyists, at the palatial Beverly Hills Hotel. Only the day before, George Bush finally quit. Yet, not one word came from Reagan about reaching his once impossible dream of 12 years standing. As he had in two earlier speeches that day, Reagan dispensed the usual homilies; the Beverly Hills faithful stifled yawns.

They would have appreciated hearing the hopes and fears Reagan felt at this moment of triumph (which he confided only to friends at the head table). But no staff aide so advised the candidate, indeed, no such advice was expected. Reagan that night was a lone eagle saying what he felt like saying, just as he had been the last three months. The image of Reagan as the marionette manipulated by clever assistants could not be further from the truth.

From the moment the autocratic John Sears was sacked as campaign manager Feb. 26, Reagan has functioned on his own as major-party candidates seldom do. While that did not disrupt his march toward the Republican nomination, it could prove fatal against President Carter. Important questions have not been answered: Who will tell Reagan not to alienate the blue-collar vote by senseless union-baiting? Who will tell him that proclaiming his unrequited love affair with corporate business, particularly big oil, can only hurt him? Who will convince him to turn the other cheek to Carter campaign attacks on Reagan's record as governor of California, making sure the spotlight stays on Carter's record as president?

Nobody has replaced Sears in fulfillment of these functions. Local politicians who visit the Reagan campaign plane come away worried that his aides seem afraid of him. What frightens them is not their even-tempered chief but the history of bloody staff purges the last two years, unprecedented in a successful presidential campaign.

New York lawyer William Casey, Sears' nominal successor as campaign manager, is far removed from the candidate. At Reagan's side is Edward Meese, a sleek San Diego lawyer who was his chief of staff as governor and whose opinion Reagan values most. When Sears demanded in February that Meese must go, he took on one old survivor too many; Sears was fired instead. But Meese's valued opinions are seldom volunteered. "I would say Ed does not squander his influence," one Reagan insider noted. When Reagan flirted with disaster by seeming to come out against the minimum wage, Meese did not contradict him; others had to pull him back from the brink. As in Sacramento, Meese on the campaign plane seems more buffer than adviser. His capacious briefcase is becoming famed as the final resting place for myriad memos and position papers sent Reagan.

What Reagan needs for trial-by-combat against Carter is an adviser who is experienced in national politics, has intuitive political skills and is both familiar with and unawed by Reagan. The exact fit for that description is veteran Los Angeles political operative Stuart Spencer, who managed Reagan's first campaign for governor in 1966 but was Gerald R. Ford's chief tactician against Reagan in 1976.

Spencer was more than willing to come aboard the Reagan plane as traveling adviser. But a rancorous debate within Reagan's inner circle included attacks on Spencer that, in the tight little world of politics, inevitably got back to him. By the time word finally was given Spencer that Ron and Nancy would be thrilled to have him back after all these years, it was too late. Spencer had signed on for an independent anti-Carter operation this fall.

Two longtime Reaganites purged last year by Sears are back. Mike Deaver last week began traveling with Reagan for the first time in nearly a year. Lyn Nofziger is signing on as press chief, the job he first held in the 1966 campaign. Both bear the scars of rejection by their chief, but that may reduce reluctance to offer

Reagan uncongenial advice.

Reagan often this year has risen above his available advice. Instinctively realizing the political potential of tax reduction, Reagan has rejected pleas by establishment economists that he modify his proposals. He understands that his attack against using unemployment to fight inflation, while abrasive to country club Republicans is catnip for Democrats.

But Reagan may be enticed into the political abyss if he lets Carter's experts at negative politics change the campaign's frame of reference to the 1960s in Sacramento. Reagan's automatic response will be to defend his own record, rather than attacking Carter's. Whether a skilled, unafraid adviser is at his side to prevent him from doing so may determine the immediate course of American history.

In a recent column, we inadvertently reported that public employees unions had raised $1 billion — not $1 million, as was the case — to fight tax reduction in California.

Reward offered for agent's killer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Secret Service, offering a $25,000 reward, has set up a special task force to find two men wanted for the slaying of Julie Y. Cross, the first woman Secret Service agent killed in the line of duty.

Ms. Cross, 26, who joined the Secret Service less than a year ago, was shot to death by two would-be robbers as she sat in an unmarked car on a stakeout of a counterfeiting operation near Los Angeles International Airport.

Larry Sheafe, special agent in charge of the Los Angeles Secret Service office, said Thursday Ms. Cross and her partner, Lloyd Bulman, were apparently tagged as potential robbery victims by their two assailants merely because they were alone in a parked car on a dark street Wednesday night.

Bulman, who scuffled with the assailants, was not injured.

Sheafe said there was no connection between the slaying and the counterfeiting stakeout that later resulted in the arrest of one suspect.

Sheafe, who called a news conference following Ms. Cross' death, told reporters he was "tired, upset and very much convinced that we will find the people who did this." He said a special task force had been set up to handle the search for Ms. Cross' killers.

The British-born Ms. Cross, who had served with the San Diego Police Department and later with the Secret Service there, transferred to Los Angeles only a week ago. Her brother is a former San Diego policeman and her former husband is a San Diego detective.

Sheafe reconstructed the events that led to her death.

He said Ms. Cross and Bulman, seated in a car, were approached by two men. One brandished a .357-caliber Magnum at Bulman, who was in the driver's seat. They struggled over the gun while the second man went around to the passenger side and grabbed a shotgun from the front seat.

Ms. Cross was one of 21 women agents in the Secret Service, which has had women on its force since 1971.

Gems stolen

MARSEILLES, France (AP) — Gangsters extorted $2.4 million in gems from a Marseilles diamond dealer during the night by threatening to kill one of his children, police said.

Elie Guigui told police four masked, armed men entered his home as he was eating dinner with his wife and four children.

Two men shut Mrs. Guigui and the children, aged 13 to 23, in a room and held them at gunpoint while the others forced Guigui to give them the combination to his office safe.

When they couldn't open it, they telephoned Guigui's home and threatened to kill one of his children. He then explained how to open the safe.

New flower drying course offered at Midland College

Midland College is offering a three-hour short course which explains the technique used for drying fresh flowers in a microwave oven. The class will meet 7-10 p.m. on June 25.

"Flower drying is a new course," said James Bramlett, director of the MC Department of Community Services. "It was not included in our catalog and we would like everyone to be aware that the course is available."

During the three-hour session, Jennifer Cochran demonstrates the drying process and follows that by discussing ways to assemble the dried flowers into seasonal arrangements.

"By holding the course in late June, students will have the balance of the summer months to gather flowers and practice the microwave process," Bramlett noted.

The session is limited to 25 students and course fee is $5. Supplies cost an additional $5 and may be purchased from Mrs. Cochran during the class.

Those wishing to reserve space in class may pre-register now in room 156 of the MC Administration Building. The office is open from 7 a.m. to noon and 12:30 to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

Leadership Midland ends second successful year

Leadership Midland, the community leadership training program begun in 1978 as a joint effort of the Midland Chamber of Commerce and Midland College, completed its second year Thursday with a final session in which Objectives for Midland were examined and discussed. Participants also indicated their choices for volunteer service.

"We have had a most successful year and are very pleased with the enthusiasm and dedication demonstrated by members of the 1979-80 group," said Reagan H. Legg, chairman of the program.

The 41 members of the class will be honored Tuesday evening at an awards dinner in Midland Center, which will be attended by the participants, their spouses and members of the Leadership Midland Advisory Committee.

New Orleans curfew defeated

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — By a narrow margin, New Orleans' City Council has turned down a proposal to fight teen-age street crime by imposing a curfew in the tourist-jammed French Quarter.

The council also voted 4-3 to reject a plan for a city-wide curfew for teen-agers. That plan was offered when the proposal for a curfew in the central business district was attacked as discriminatory.

A steady parade of blacks, from ministers to teen-agers, stepped to the microphone in the crowded councilroom Thursday to say the proposed French Quarter curfew was a racist law aimed at blacks.

"Why not just take all the black people in the city, lock them up and throw away the key?" Jesse Turner asked council members.

Others warned that a curfew would bring a campaign of civil disobedience.

The votes against an 11 p.m.-6 a.m. curfew climaxed an effort to get a grip on juvenile crime, which has rattled the tourist industry.

Black councilman James M. Singleton had voted in favor of a city-wide curfew and was a leader in the fight to bar teen-agers from the French Quarter, which was described during the debate as "a natural preying place."

But he switched his vote to oppose the French Quarter ban after coming under attack by citizens.

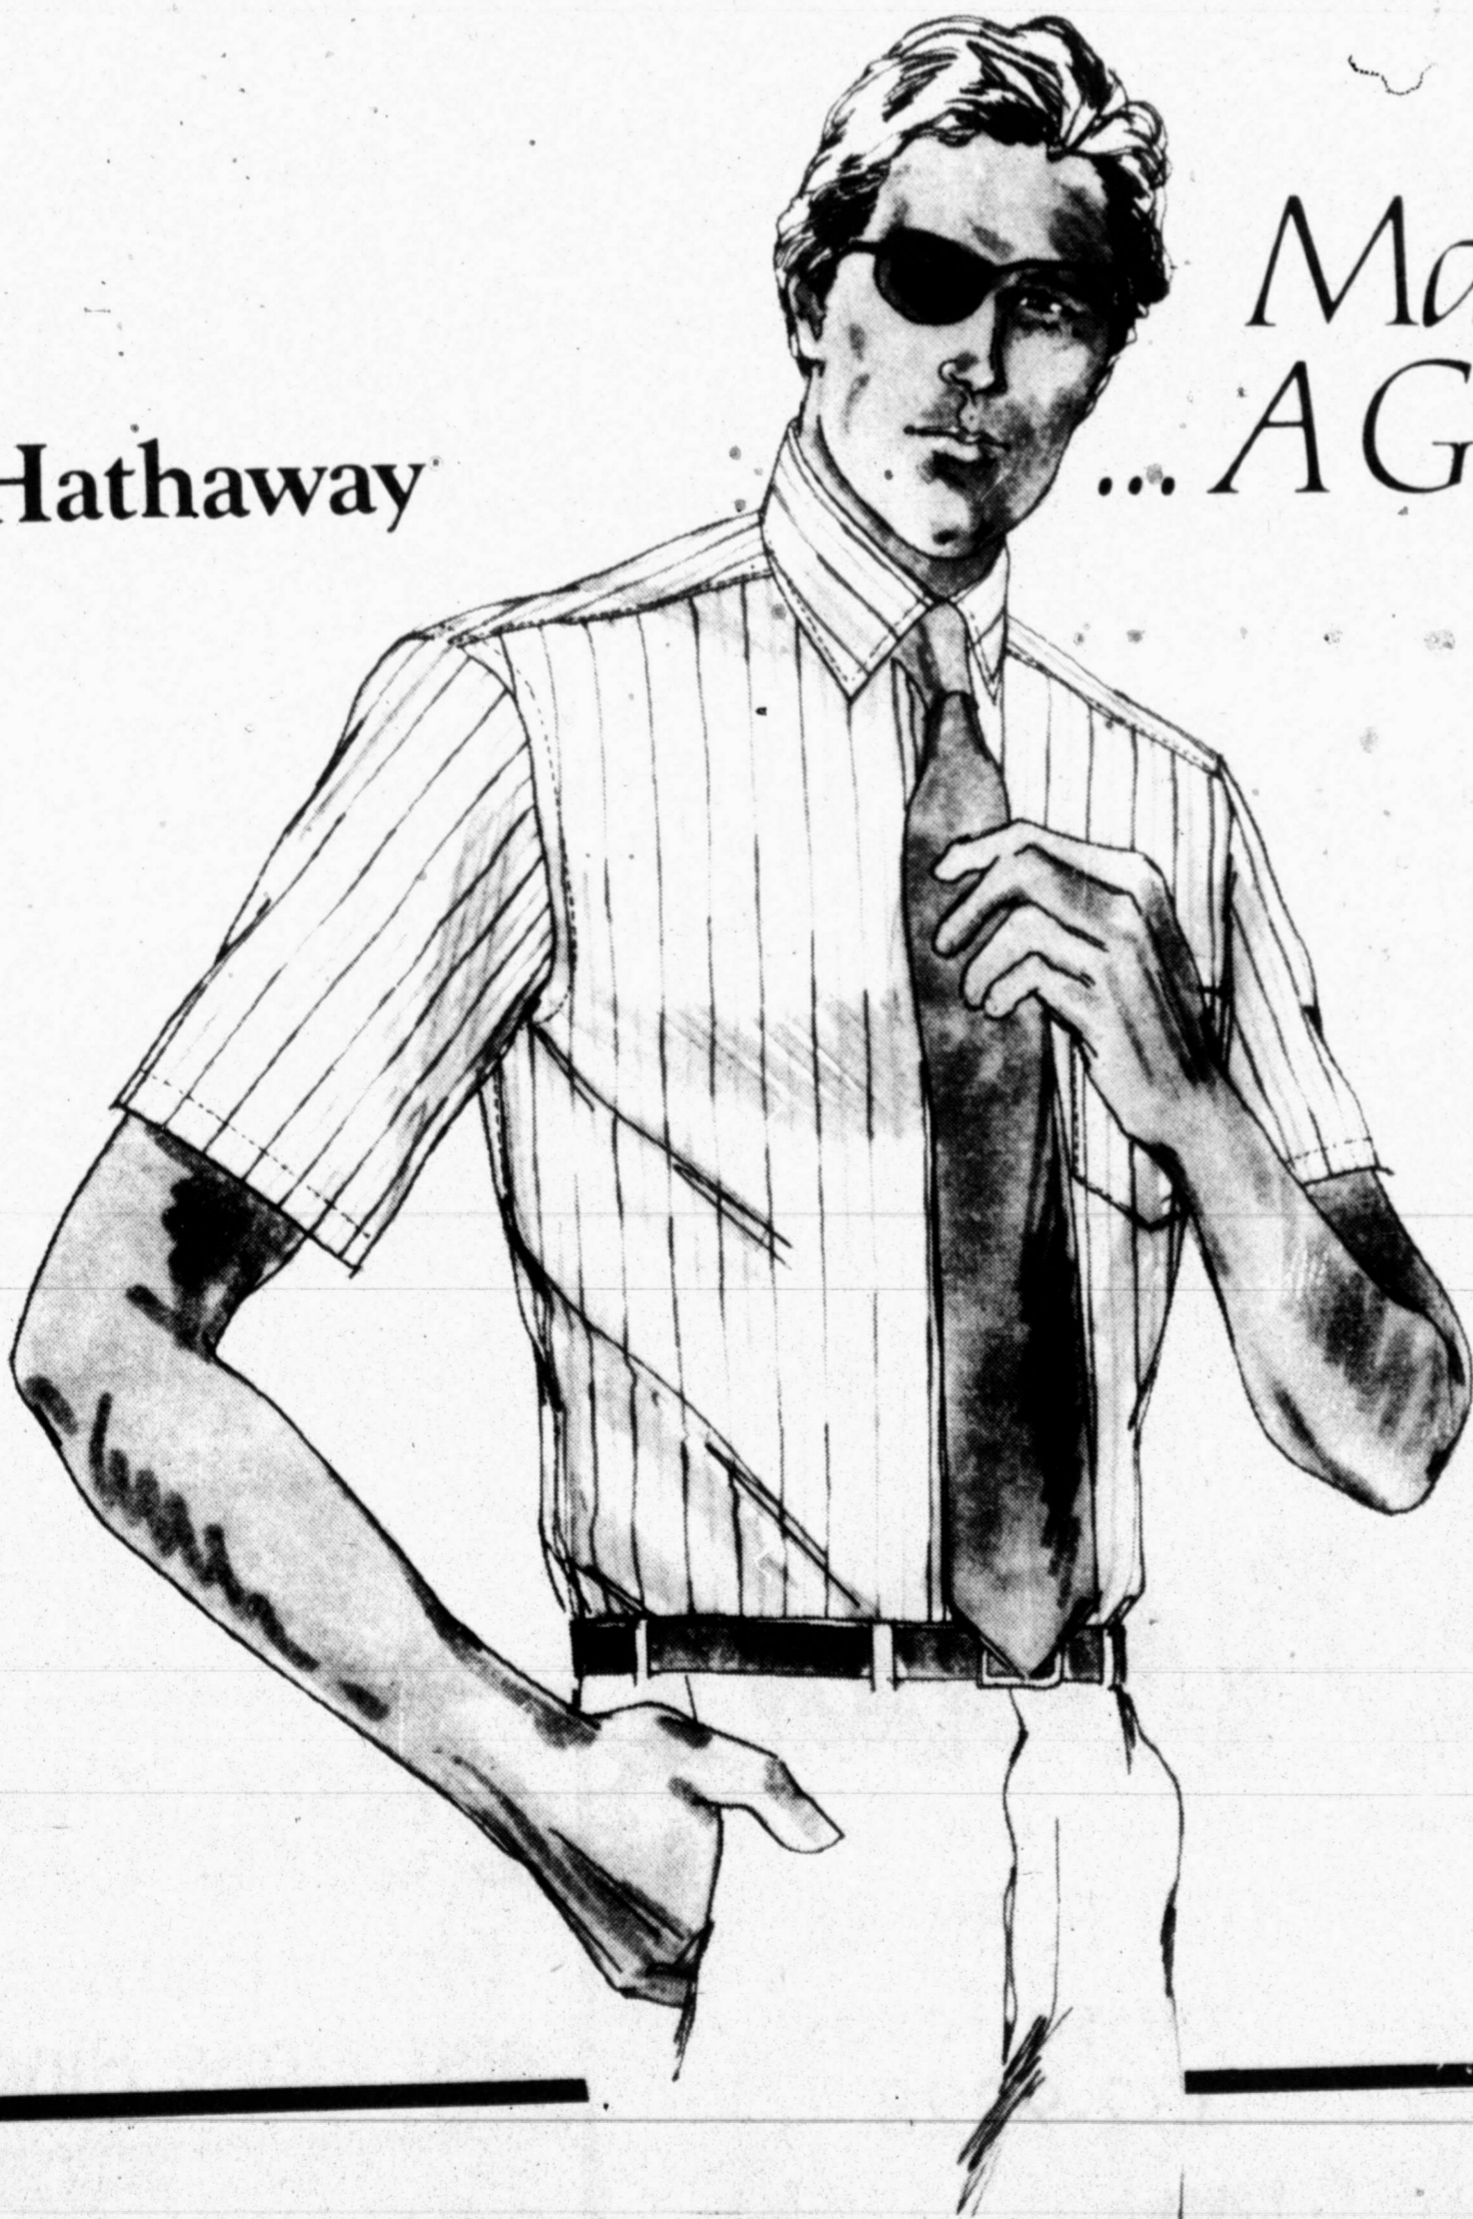

"I want to apologize to you publicly because we both worked very hard on this," he said to Councilman Michael Early. Early said later Singleton "was getting a different feedback from his district than I got from mine."

Councilmen who opposed the curfew said it wouldn't work, arguing it was a violation of freedom and that it would punish 100,000 teen-agers.

But Early, a co-author of the curfew proposal, said recently, "Better than 50 percent of the major crimes (in New Orleans) are being committed by people under the age of 17."

The boy died Wednesday in a Midland hospital following injuries he suffered in a traffic mishap Sunday in Midland.

He was born Nov. 23, 1972, in Midland and attended Greenwood Elementary School.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Porter of Greenwood; a sister, Jennifer Clark of Greenwood; and his grandparents, Una Knous of Duluth, Minn., and Leonard Porter of Tryon, N.C.

Pallbearers will be Gary Dodd, C.F. "Hank" Chambers, Sam Moore and A.J. McCright.

Honorary pallbearers will be Connie Poyner, Kelly Jo Somers, Travis Kolas, Mitchell Waller, Mike Pulse, Damon Dublin, David Walker, Shawn Elliot, Adam Harris, Cathy Harris, Juanice Elliot and Perry Phillips.

The family has requested that memorials be directed to the Greenwood Baseball League, Star Route B, Box 25, Midland 79701.

Simon O. Subia

Rosary for Simon O. Subia, 1520 S. Terrell St., will be recited Sunday at 8 p.m. in Thomas Funeral Home Chapel, with funeral mass said at 10 a.m. Monday morning at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

Subia, 50, died Thursday in a Midland hospital after a three-month illness.

He was born in Big Spring and had lived in Midland for the past 42 years. He had worked for B and M Machine Shop for the past 10 years, and was a member of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

Survivors include his wife, Thoma Subia; two sons, John Subia of Houston and Joe Subia in the U.S. Army; three daughters, Jeanette Florez of Midland, Josephine Costello of New Hope, Minn., and Ruby Sanchez of Los Angeles, Calif.; four brothers, Agapito O. Subia of Kansas City, Mo., Hilberto O. Subia and Guadalupe O. Subia, both of Los Angeles, Calif., and Domingo O. Subia of Midland; two sisters, Mrs. Vincente Granado and Juanita Subia, both of Midland; and 10 grandchildren.

Raymond Churchill

BIG SPRING — Raymond L. Churchill, 85, of Big Spring died Thursday in a Big Spring nursing home.

Graveside services were to be at 10 a.m. today in Foster Cemetery in Sterling City with Herman Beauchamp officiating, directed by Ross Funeral Home of Sterling City.

Churchill was born Jan. 12, 1895, in Voca. He moved to Sterling City in 1906 and attended schools there. He was a veteran of World War I and received a Purple Heart. He was engaged in ranching in the Roscoe area.

Survivors include a daughter, Betty Lou Churchill of Glendale, Ariz.; a brother, Chester Churchill of San Angelo; a niece, Wesley Benton of Kingsland; and two nephews, Paul Churchill of San Angelo and Winston Churchill of Richardson.

Jesse Young

CRANE — Jesse Wayne Young, 56, of Dallas, died Tuesday in Amarillo after an apparent heart attack.

Services will be at 4 p.m. Saturday in the Larry D. Sheppard Funeral Home chapel in Crane with burial in the Crane Garden of Memories.

Young was born Dec. 8, 1923, in Mountain View, Okla. He was a World War II U.S. Navy veteran and a truck driver for Santa Fe Co.

Survivors include his wife, Charlotte Young of Dallas; five daughters; two sisters, Lois D. Mariss of Hobbs, N.M., and Faye Dement of Angleton; four brothers, O.C. Young of Lubbock, Paul A. Young of Abilene, Gayle N. Young of Crane and S.M. Young of McCamey; and seven grandchildren.

West Bank terror bombings condemned by U.N. council

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — With the United States abstaining, the U.N. Security Council condemned the terror bombings that crippled two West Bank Arab mayors, criticized Israel for failing to adequately protect Palestinian civilians living under its occupation and urged it to compensate the victims.

Meanwhile, in another move sure to infuriate the Israelis, the Common Market was reported ready to declare publicly for the first time that the Palestine Liberation Organization should be directly involved in Mideast peace negotiations and any settlement.

THE 15-MEMBER U.N. Security Council voted 14-0 Thursday night for an Arab-sponsored resolution condemning the bombings and demanding Israel end its 13-year-old occupation of Arab lands "including Jerusalem."

The United States abstained, balking at three references to Jerusalem in the resolution. "The resolution contains a number of provisions which we cannot approve and as a whole it is incomplete," U.S. Ambassador Donald McHenry told the council.

Three months ago, President Carter disavowed the U.S. vote for a similarly worded Security Council resolution to Jerusalem. Carter said the vote March 1 had been a mistake because he had wanted all mentions of Jerusalem deleted. Then-Secretary of State Cyrus Vance took responsibility for the breakdown in communications with McHenry.

McHENRY, COMMENTING ON Thursday's vote, noted that the sad situation reflected in the resolution "and the equally sad murder of Israeli citizens at Hebron" were "part of a broader tragedy — the continuing Arab-Israeli conflict." Palestinian terrorists killed six Israelis in Hebron May 2.

"The council has the responsibility to keep in mind its action the range of these events and other factors bearing on the dispute, a fact which, regrettably, is not the case in the present resolution," McHenry said.

The resolution "condemns the assassination attempts on the lives of the mayors" and "expresses deep concern" that Israel failed to adequately protect civilians in the occupied territories. It urged Israel to compensate the victims, demanded an end to the occupation and called on all countries to deny Israel aid for use in connection with Jewish settlements on occupied Arab lands.

IT WAS THE SIXTH time in three months that the council has either rebuked Israel or insisted on the rights of Palestinians to determine their own future.

Israeli Ambassador Yehuda Blum, noting that Israel also condemned the West Bank bombings, complained that the recent string of U.N. votes made no mention of Palestinian guerrilla attacks on Israel.

Blame for Monday's assassination attempts has focused on ultranationalist Israeli extremists who have threatened to silence Arab proponents of a Palestinian state in the West-Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza.

NABLUS MAYOR BASSAM Shaka, whose legs were blown off at the knees by one of the car-bombs, was transferred to Jordan Thursday after an infection developed in one of his thighs. Doctors in Nabulus operated on Shaka Wednesday night to clean the infection. He underwent further surgery shortly after arriving in the Jordanian capital.

The second wounded mayor, Kerim Khalaf of Ramallah, was reported in improved condition. He lost his left foot to a boobytrap.

In a front-page story from Brussels, the British newspaper The Guardian said the Common Market heads of state, who meet in Venice next Thursday, would "formally recognize" the PLO in a special declaration and call for its involvement in peace negotiations.

A WEEK AFTER THE Common Market summit, the leaders of four market nations — West Germany, France, Britain and Italy — are due to meet Carter at an economic summit, also in Venice.

Police probing appliance thefts

Midland police are investigating the thefts of three gas ranges and a garbage disposal from four houses under construction here and they say there's little doubt the thefts are related.

Chuck Romain of Odessa reported the thefts Thursday to police. Victim was listed as Ramcon Corp.

The appliances were taken from houses under construction by Ramcon at 5115 Sunnyside Drive, 5114 Sunnyside Drive, 5126 Storey Ave. and 5128 Storey Ave. According to police reports, the thefts occurred during a period of time ranging from May 28 until Thursday.

In nearly all the instances, the houses were entered forcibly, the stoves were disconnected from the gas outlets and they were loaded into a vehicle that had been driven up to the rear door.

Good physical evidence is lacking, police indicate, because of the lapse of time between the occurrence of the crime and its discovery.

There are no leads in the case at the current time, police said.

China and Soviet Union sign trade agreement

PEKING (AP) — China and the Soviet Union, bitter political enemies, signed a new trade agreement for 1980 today after more than a month of negotiation, Chinese and Soviet sources said.

On Thursday, Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping called the Soviet Union "the main danger of war today," and said the most important thing is to oppose Soviet "hegemony" or expansionism.

But despite the unfriendly relations, the two sides still carry on normally with some contacts, including the trade talks and boundary river navigation meetings.

Under the new agreement, Soviet sources said the trade volume would be slightly below last year's approximately $500 million. The annual agreements are arranged to have trade exactly balanced so no cash payments are involved.

China's official Xinhua news agency reported only that a 1980 trade agreement had been signed by Soviet Vice Foreign Trade Minister Ivan Grishin and Chinese Vice Foreign Trade Minister Zheng Tuobin.

Xinhua said Chinese Foreign Trade Minister Li Qiang attended the signing ceremony and met with Grishin, who arrived in Peking on Thursday to sign the agreement. Zheng later gave a banquet for the Soviet delegation, it added.

The Soviet delegation of experts from the Trade Ministry arrived in Peking on April 24, the Soviet sources said.

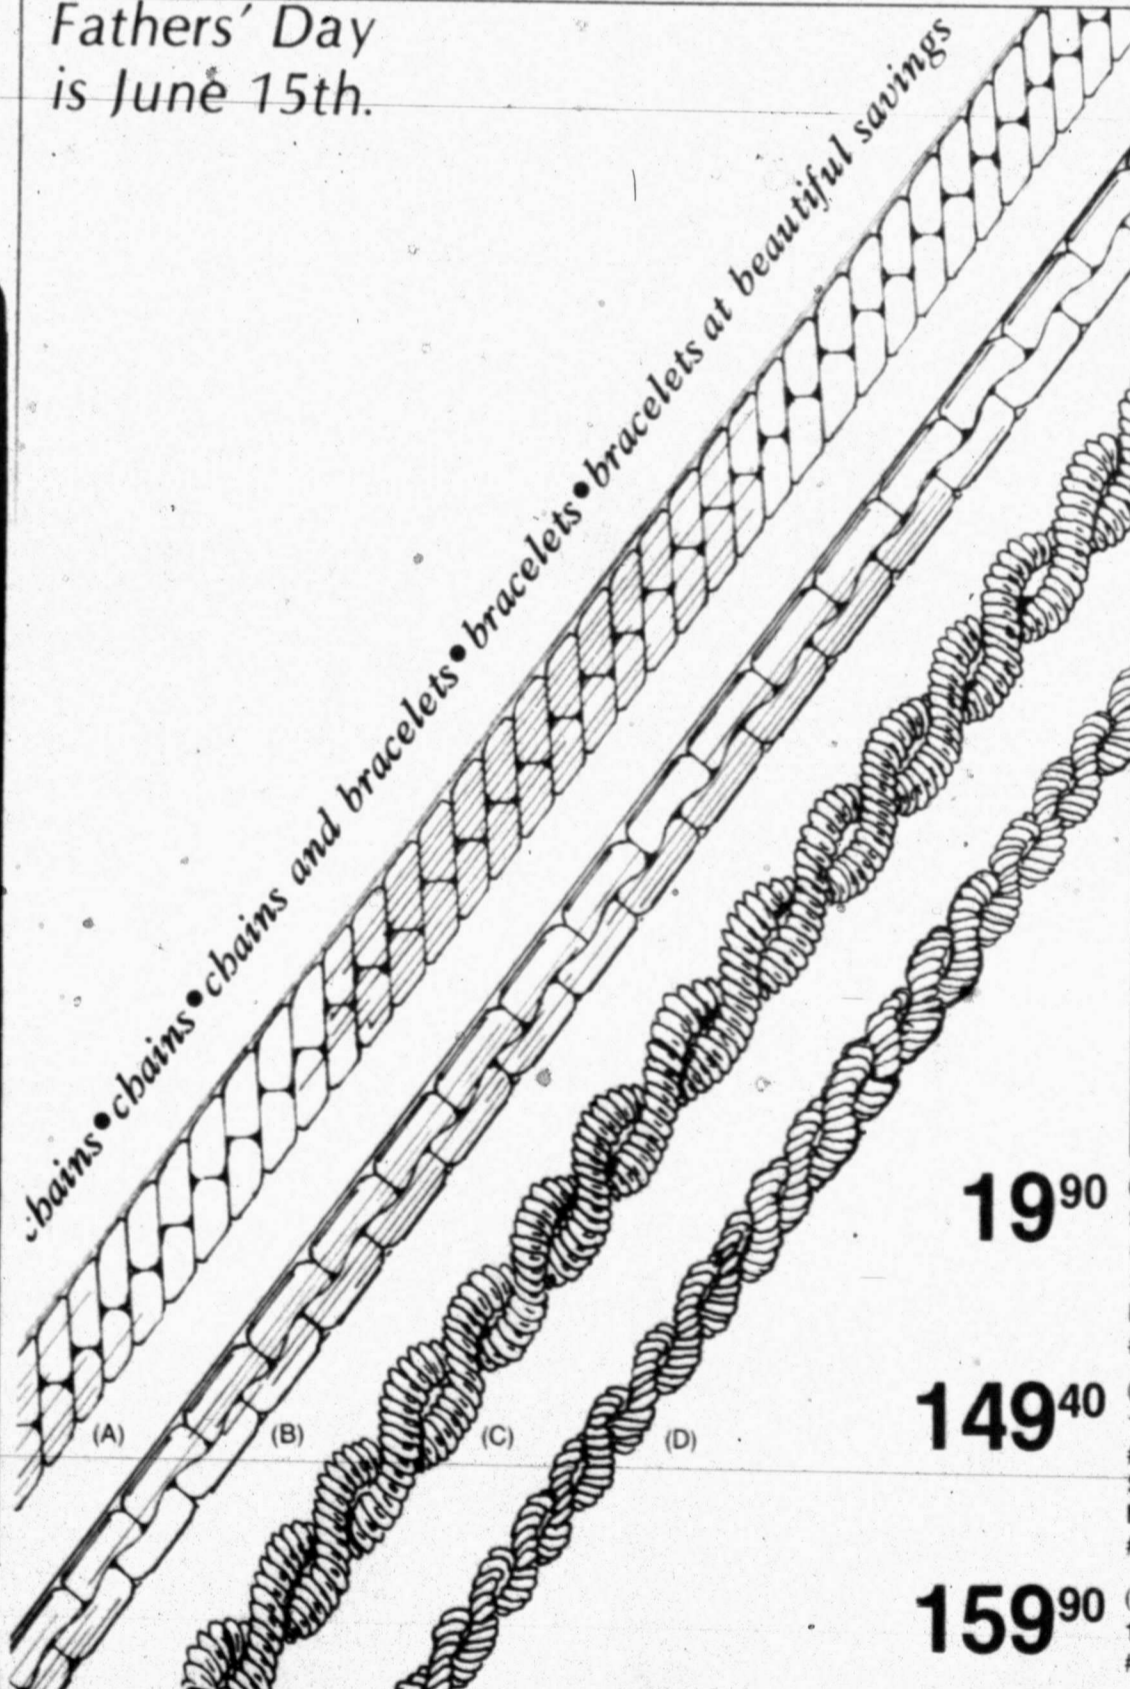

They said cars and trucks would be among Soviet exports to China. Traditionally, they added, Soviet imports from China have included textiles, everyday goods, ores and metal.

Grishin is to visit Gullin and Canton before returning home, the sources said.

Talks on normalizing China-Soviet relations opened in Moscow last October with a second round planned in Peking this year.

But after the Soviet troops moved into Afghanistan to join the Marxist government's fight against Moslem rebels, the Chinese declared in January that to continue the talks now would be inappropriate.

Bus latest victim of 'Suicide Curve'

JASPER, Ark. (AP) — Lorene Fancher has lived near "Suicide Curve" for eight years and knows the screeching sounds of trucks plunging into the ravine below. But the bus accident that claimed 20 lives "was the biggest and longest crash of them all."

Federal officials were working today to determine what caused a chartered tour bus from Texas to leave a twisting mountain road in darkness and careen 50 feet down a steep, wooded ravine.

The accident was the worst in Arkansas history, said Maj. Buren Jackson of the state police. The bus driver and 19 of the 32 passengers were killed and the other 13 were injured.

Some relatives were asked to identify jewelry, rather than the bodies themselves, because the bodies were badly battered. Four of the victims were decapitated.

"It looks as though the brakes apparently had failed," said Capt. Billy Bob Davis, commander of the Arkansas State Police at Harrison, a town of 9,000 20 miles north of the ravine.

Ross Goodwin, vice president of Central Texas Buslines Inc., which owned the bus, said the bus's brakes had been checked last week. He declined further comment.

Jim Selby, state Highway Department district engineer, said he found "no evidence" that the brakes were used after the bus passed the crest of the hill about two miles above the site of the wreck.

Newton County Sheriff Ray Watkins and Coroner C.J. Easley said it appeared the driver of the bus may have tried to use the ravine as a braking mechanism. They speculated Jimmy Thigpen had given up his life in an effort to save others.

"I tell you one thing, he was one hell of a bus driver," Easley told the Dallas Morning News. "He laid that bus in on an embankment to stop it. He eased it in there on an angle, not straight on. If he hadn't done that, all of them would have been killed."

The twist in the road, known to people in this town of 400 as "Suicide Curve," has been the scene of numerous past accidents. The crash of the bus occurred just past the point where a 1,000-foot escape lane is currently under construction.

Patches of the highway bear deep grooves that produce vibrations and warn-motorists of the curves in two-lane Arkansas 7, which winds through the Ozark Mountains.

Passengers said they remembered hearing "a grinding noise" or "the bus hitting some rough places" before the crash.

Davis said the bus traveled along a shallow ditch, then hit a culvert and plunged down the embankment, cutting through trees like a bulldozer.

"We were all praying and some of us must have been crying because we were so scared," said Jessie Morgan, 67, of Irving, Texas. She suffered broken ribs and cuts when she was thrown two seats forward.

"I was stuck between the seats. I caught a hand that was just swinging there... Oh, it was so dark."

At least four bodies were found on the highway.

The passenger list had indicated 34 people were aboard the bus. However, authorities later determined that one of those listed, Enola Sheeley, injured her toe just before the trip and stayed in Dallas.

"I sure thank the Lord I wasn't on the bus," she said.

Central Texas Buslines owned and operated the bus, which was on a sightseeing trip from the Dallas area through the Ozarks. The company is a member of National Trailways Bus System, a group of more than 50 independently owned motor coach carriers.

A spokesman for Trailways Inc., the parent company based in Dallas, said such accidents were rare among charter bus operations but "they are always tragic."

Driver hailed as hero

JASPER, Arkansas (AP) — Veteran bus driver Jimmy Thigpen lost his life in the tragic accident that killed 20, but his skill saved 13 others from mutilating death, authorities say.

Thigpen, a driver for 30 years, used the rocky ravine where the Central Texas Bus Lines tour bus crashed to slow the vehicle after the brakes apparently failed Wednesday.

"I'll tell you one thing: he was one hell of a bus driver," Newton County coroner C.J. Easley told the Dallas Morning News. "He laid that bus in on an embankment to stop it. He eased it in there on an angle... If he hadn't done that, all of them would have been killed."

Easley and Newton County sheriff Ray Watkins conducted an all-day investigation Thursday after the early morning crash and concluded Thigpen gave up his life to save his passengers.

The coroner said every person sitting on the right side of the bus was killed as the bolted seats were wrenched from the floor by the impact. The entire right side of the bus was a mass of jumbled metal.

"I've never seen so much mutilation in my three years as a coroner," said Easley, who has lived in Jasper for 37 years.

Federal investigators from the National Highway Safety Board and the Federal Highway Administration are also looking into the cause of the accident.

Ross Goodwin, vice president of Central Texas Bus Lines Inc., said Thursday that the brakes had been inspected last week. But he declined further comment until he inspects the site and the wreckage.

Watkins said it appeared Thigpen missed an off-ramp on treacherous Highway 7 that was under construction and designed to help drivers whose brakes fail on the steep grade.

Thigpen was apparently aiming for the ramp, officials said, but skidded on the shoulder, left the highway and crashed into the ravine.

Midland man faces suit

A Mississippi man who alleges he suffered disabling injuries two years ago when a case of dynamite thrown from a truck by a Midland man struck him has filed a lawsuit in federal court to recover $75,000 in damages.

The plaintiff, Fredrick Eugene Kelly, alleges negligence against Richard "Pee Wee" Huff of Midland and Tinsley & Son Drilling Corp. of Odessa.

The petition alleges that Huff, with "callous disregard" for the safety of Kelly, "was throwing...crates of dynamite from the back of the truck onto the ground" and that Kelly was picking the crates up and storing them when the mishap occurred on June 5, 1978. Huff had delivered the dynamite to the job site, and Kelly was ordered to assist in the unloading of the explosives, the petition says.

The petition, filed with the deputy district clerk in the Midland-Odessa Division of the U.S. court system's Western District of Texas, did not say where the mishap happened.

The plaintiff is demanding a jury trial.

Man shot at softball game

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — An unidentified gunman shot and killed a man and then apparently opened fire at random into a crowd watching a women's softball game at a city playground, police say. Another person was wounded in the shooting.

"We're mystified," said a Richmond police investigator who said there was no known motive nor suspect in the Thursday night incident despite dozens of witnesses.

Damon Mealy, 24, of Richmond, was pronounced dead at the Medical College of Virginia Hospital a half-hour after the shooting. A hospital spokesman said Mealy had been shot once in the heart.

Pamela Mealy, 17, of Richmond, was shot once in the leg and was kept at MCV for treatment, a hospital spokesman said.

Police at the scene said they did not believe Miss Mealy was a deliberate target of the gunman. However, a report on the incident filed by police early today said Miss Mealy was shot in the leg while attempting to run from the gunman who had just shot her brother.

Detective Jimmy Jones said Mealy was approached by a man on the basketball court who had been asking others at the playground where he could find Mealy.

When the gunman met Mealy, he asked the victim's identity, said, "Yeah, I thought so," then pulled out what was believed to be a small caliber handgun and fired, Jones said.

Police and witnesses said the gunman then started firing, apparently at random, at a crowd of several hundred people watching a softball game.

Cadillac lawsuit moved

A civil lawsuit alleging that Midlander Travis Pieper could not get satisfactory repair of his allegedly defective 1979 Cadillac has been transferred from 70th State District Court in Odessa to the federal court's Midland-Odessa Division in Midland.

Pieper, who maintains that the car "is of inferior quality and workmanship and has numerous defects throughout," also alleges that any repairs made to the car were "superficial and inadequate."

He is charging the defendant, Cadillac Motor Car Division of the General Motors Corp., with breach of warranty and is seeking a judgment of $42,000 — three times the "actual" value of the sedan. Pieper also is alleging that the car, purchased in Santa Fe, N.M., does not meet requirements of the Texas Consumer Protection Act.

Attorneys for the defendants asked that the federal court take jurisdiction of the matter, since GM is an out-of-state corporation.

Election runoffs Saturday

Saturday will see voters in five area counties casting ballots in ten runoff races.

In Ector County, Jerry Davis will face Jack L. Hubbard for the spot on the Democratic ballot for sheriff, and on the Republican ballot Leslie Ely and Fred Rabe both seek the post of Constable Precinct 1 on the November ballot.

Dawson County has three runoff elections — J.E. Airhart, incumbent, and Arlie Williams vying for Commissioner Precinct 1; and Alton Addison, incumbent, and Jim Nance for Commissioner Precinct 3. Dawson County's tax assessor-collector is resigning, so Diane Hogg and Wistelle Whitaker face a runoff for that position.

Two commissioners races in Crane County boast runoffs with T.N.

White and Gordon Hooper opposing each other for Commissioner Precinct 1 and Dolan "Tip" Tipton and Basil Chaffin for Commissioner Precinct 3.

In Crockett County, Frank "Pancho" McMullen Jr. and Sostenes DeHoyos will be on the runoff ballot for Commissioner Precinct 1. And voters in Crockett and Reagan counties will have a chance to pick their man in the runoff for district attorney, 112th district. Seeking that position are Bill Mason and Jack Schulze.

Mrs. Diane Nicholson of Atlanta clasps the hand of John Lozier of Nashville, Tenn., Thursday across the fence around the Georgia State Prison at Reidsville, Ga. She helped convince Jack Potts to seek a stay of his execution scheduled for Thursday in the electric chair. Lozier had come to demonstrate against the death penalty. (AP Laserphoto)

Potts pressured to stop execution

REIDSVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Condemned killer Jack Potts would be dead if his family and friends had not pressured him into making a last minute appeal, his brother says. Potts was afraid to renew his appeals "and scared not to," John Potts, 39, of Marietta, said Thursday. "He had fully intended to go ahead with the sentence," said John Potts. "Had it not been for friends and family putting a lot of pressure on him, he would have carried it out." He said Potts was in good spirits after making the decision: "He looked 400 percent better. Yesterday, he was real depressed. Today, there was a lot of joy; he was feeling great."

God, had been scheduled to die in Georgia's electric chair Thursday. On Wednesday night, he decided to renew his appeals and quickly was granted a stay of execution by a federal judge. If he had been executed, Potts would have become the first person to die in Georgia's electric chair since 1964. Potts — who was convicted in 1975 of the kidnap and murder of Michael Priest, 24, of Roswell — asked attorneys from the Atlanta-based Team Defense project to file an appeal on his behalf. "I think he just realized how precious life is. It was a lot of individual things," John Potts said. Throughout the day Wednesday, John Potts and Diane Nicholson, a former girlfriend of the condemned man, had pleaded with him to change his mind and renew the appeals process. Potts' mother said she believed her son was "talked into" renewing his appeals. "If I had a choice of Jackie being executed today or a month from now I would choose today. When I hear the word 'commutation' used, then I'll feel relieved," she said. Potts had said he opposed any appeal that would only postpone his sentence and said he was in constant pain from a wound suffered in a shoot-tout with police. He also complained of conditions in prison and said in announcing the appeal that his case and the attention it brought on conditions had helped other inmates. "I don't think Potts has changed anything for Death Row inmates," said Commissioner of Offender Rehabilitation David Evans. Mary Priest, the mother of the man Potts has acknowledged he killed, told reporters: "He used you and you know it. It's been a performance he's done for five years."

Heavy border fighting erupts, scores killed

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Scores of Russian paratroopers and Moslem rebels are reported being killed in fierce battles in eastern Afghanistan's Pech River Valley. The valley, a rebel stronghold, lies in the shadow of the 14,000-foot Hindu Kush mountains, close to the Pakistani border some 100 miles east of Kabul, the Afghan capital. Jamal Ahmed, a spokesman for the Hezbi-Islami, a fundamentalist Moslem rebel group, told reporters in Islamabad Thursday that Soviet planes dropped paratroopers into the valley in mid-May. He said in one of their bloodiest encounters with the anti-communist rebels that 64 insurgents were killed and that the Soviet casualty toll was even higher. There was no independent confirmation of the report. Ahmed also said that on May 15 guerrillas destroyed part of a natural gas pipeline running from the northern Afghan province of Balkh to the Soviet Union. The guerrillas broke the pipe open and ignited the gas, which burned for three days, Ahmed said. The Soviets are the only customers for Afghanistan's natural gas, the country's most lucrative export, and have been largely responsible for developing the resource. Some Afghans claim, however, that Moscow is not paying enough for the gas. Some 85,000 Soviet troops were poured into Afghanistan in December to help the two-year-old Marxist regime there put down the rebellion by anti-communist Moslem tribesmen who control much of the countryside. The Soviet newspaper Pravda reported Thursday that the insurgents had intensified their anti-Soviet campaign, using growing spring caravan traffic from Pakistan to spirit men and arms into Afghanistan. The Pravda article on the life of Soviet troops in the battle-torn land said nothing about combat involvement or casualties among the Soviets and instead, described rebel tactics against unidentified forces. It did say, however, that rebel activities were at a high level. The lengthy report by Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper, said the Afghan rebels have reduced the size of their individual fighting units to 30-40 men, and "they like to use ambushes at bridges and arrow places."

Only few boats remain in Cuba's Mariel harbor

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — With reports of only two shrimp boats and 30 small pleasure craft remaining in Cuba's Mariel harbor, officials here are hoping the Freedom Flotilla is finally near an end. "Hopefully, the job will be done in another day," said Tom Casey, refugee coordinator for the Federal Emergency Management Agency. "But I don't really believe it. I think we're going to be here for a while, waiting for the stragglers." If the information on the remaining boats is correct, officials say the vessels could ferry fewer than 1,500 refugees to Key West. A group of 16 boats arriving Thursday night pushed the 48-day total to 110,002 refugees, said Coast Guard spokesman Joe Amato. Among the arrivals Thursday were 101 refugees rescued by the Coast Guard from a 38-foot fishing boat, "Veronica Express," that began sinking 25 miles north of Cuba. Several hundred of the latest arrivals were from Cuban jails, and Casey said more than 700 refugees currently were going through exclusionary hearings. The Carter administration has said Cuban criminals among the refugees will be deported. The emergency agency has estimated that some 30 percent of the refugees ferried here in the boatlift have been in jail, most for political or trivial crimes, Casey said. The Coast Guard also was watching for a handful of captains who slipped through a blockade that took effect May 15 after President Carter called for an end to the boatlift. Two Cuban-American boat captains were arrested Thursday on charges of conspiring to import refugees. Carter said on Thursday he expects full prosecution of the captain and 74 passengers of the Red Diamond V, a Panamanian freighter that carried in 731 refugees Tuesday. "There should be no misunderstanding of my intention," Carter said in a statement. "Illegal boat traffic in refugees is unacceptable to the U.S. It will be stopped. Those who attempt to evade this order will pay very severe penalties under our laws." Meanwhile, dozens of Cuban-Americans are here anxiously scanning each arriving boat for relatives. Jose Macias of Miami has been here 32 days looking for his wife's family.

Art Deco sculptures destroyed

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Art Deco sculptures on the facade of the Fifth Avenue Bonwit Teller building under demolition have been destroyed to the dismay of Metropolitan Museum of Art officials who expected to add them to the museum's collection. The 15-foot high bas-relief panels, each depicting partially-clad females, were smashed by jackhammers on Thursday after the building's developer decided they would be too expensive and troublesome to preserve. Art appraisers and museum officials — who expected to add the works to the museum's 20th century art collection — were stunned by the action. One appraiser has estimated the sculptures' value at several hundred thousand dollars. "Architectural sculpture of this quality is rare and would have made definite sense in our collections. Their monetary value was not what we were interested in," said Ashton Hawkins, the museum's vice president and secretary of the board of trustees. Developer Donald J. Trump is demolishing the building to make way for a $100 million, 62-story structure of apartments, offices and stores. He had said several months ago that he would give the sculptures to the museum if the cost of removing them was not prohibitive. But Donald Baron, a vice president of the Trump firm, said Thursday that the company decided not to save the panels because "the merit of these stones was not great enough to justify the effort to save them."

Jobless rate up in May

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's unemployment rate shot up to 7.8 percent in May, the highest in 3 1/2 years, while inflation at the wholesale price level continued to cool significantly, the government reported today.

Since March, a rapidly developing recession has swelled unemployment by 1.6 percentage points — the largest two-month climb since World War II, the Labor Department said. Some 1.7 million Americans were added to jobless rolls in April and May.

The unemployment rate rose 0.8 percent for a second straight month, climbing from 6.2 percent in March to 7 percent in April and then 7.8 percent in May. It was the highest rate since November 1976.

At the same time, the Labor Department said wholesale prices during May rose by a mere 0.3 percent, down from April's 0.5 percent rise and the smallest monthly increase since September 1977.

The latest price figures suggest significant easing in inflation later this year for consumers, who have been confronted with prices rising at an 18 percent compound annual rate during the first three months of this year. During April and May, wholesale prices were rising at annual rate of only 4.6 percent.

Wholesale refers to the stage of production for goods just before they reach consumers. Prices at that level are considered a good barometer of subsequent retail price changes.

The economy has been deteriorating since early spring with unusual speed, and some economists believe the recession may approach the dimensions of the 1974-1975 recession, the worst economic downturn since World War II.

The recession has created more unemployment than the Carter administration predicted, but government economists say the downturn apparently is helping to cool inflation by dampening consumer demand.

During May, the number of unemployed persons increased by 889,000 to 8.2 million, with most of the increase due to layoffs and job eliminations. Total employment declined by 166,000 to 97 million.

The Labor Department said jobless rates rose significantly for all groups of workers, but teen-agers apparently were hardest hit. Their unemployment rate soared by three percentage points to 19.2 percent, the largest monthly increase in that category since 1953.

The unemployment rate for both adult men and women stood at 6.6 percent, marking the first time in two decades that the jobless rate for men has been as high as that for women.

Unemployment increases were especially high among workers in construction and manufacturing, particularly in the auto industry. Employment among blue-collar workers fell by 450,000 during May, but white-collar employment was up by 200,000 jobs.

The government said that over the past three months, employment has declined by nearly 1 million jobs, with most of the drop hitting adult men. The sharp drop in jobs wiped out two-thirds of the employment gains that had occurred since May 1979, with total employment up only about 500,000 in the past year.

The government also said that the total labor force swelled by 725,000 in May to 105.1 million as large numbers of young people entered the job market.

The Labor Department provided the following breakdown on jobless rates for different groups of workers:

— Adult men, 6.6 percent in May, up from 5.9 percent in April.

— Adult women, 6.6 percent, up from 6.3 percent.

— Teen-agers, 19.2 percent, up from 16.2 percent.

Houston mobs premiere of 'Urban Cowboy' film

HOUSTON (AP) — Sporting cowboy boots and hats and snap-button shirts, hundreds of Houston socialites mobbed the premiere of "Urban Cowboy," a film about the patrons of Gilley's country-western club in nearby Pasadena, and a party afterward for its star, John Travolta.

Some 1,800 persons paid the $125 ticket price to rub shoulders with the cast, director James Bridges and producers Robert Evans and Irving Azoff at the movie's first public screening Thursday.

Later, 3,500 people packed a party 30 miles away at Gilley's, where much of the movie was filmed. The three-acre barn-like club is listed by the Guinness Book of World Records as the world's largest nightclub.

The audience at the premiere cheered skyline shots of Houston, and burst into applause whenever Travolta took a plug of chewing tobacco or hit the dance floor for the two-step.

The film is based on a 1978 Esquire Magazine article by Aaron Latham about Gilley's and the people who frequent it.

"Urban Cowboy" is Travolta's first film since "Moment by Moment," which co-starred Lily Tomlin. He rocketed to fame with "Saturday Night Fever" in 1977 and "Grease."

Christie given 15-year sentence in South Africa

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — An Oxford-educated university researcher, convicted of aiding and abetting black nationalists fighting to overthrow white rule in South Africa, was sentenced today to 15 years in prison under the Terrorism Act. His lawyer said he would appeal.

Renfrew I. Christie, 30, a white accused of nuclear espionage by gathering information about this country's energy potential to leak to black militants, was found guilty on five of seven charges Wednesday.

Pretoria Supreme Court Justice F. Eloff sentenced Renfrew today to 10 years under one charge, and five years under the other four — all sentences to be run concurrently.

Christie, who was detained in October shortly upon his return here after completing a doctorate at Oxford University, had pleaded innocent to all charges.

Christie, a former deputy president of the National Union of South African students, was employed at the University of Cape Town, researching the history of the country's coal mining industry.

His conviction and sentencing occurred the same week saboteurs blew up two oil-from-coal refineries, and one conventional one, in a simultaneous, three-pronged attack on one of South Africa's vital industries.

It was the first industrial sabotage by black nationalist guerrillas. The outlawed African National Congress, with which Christie was linked during the trial, claimed responsibility for the attack.

Losses sustained by Sasol — the South African Coal, Oil and Gas Corp. — from the attack exceeded $7 million.

Brown gets bill to save dog's life

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A bill to save the life of Sido, the dog condemned to death in a will because her late mistress feared the animal wouldn't receive proper treatment, has been sent to the governor.

The Assembly and Senate approved the bill Thursday, putting it on the desk of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. for his signature.

The bill, SB2059, would overturn the portion of Mary Murphy's will that required her pet be killed.

Ms. Murphy, a San Francisco resident who died last December, specified Sido's death in her will because she feared the 10-year-old collie-sheepdog mix would not receive proper care after her death.

But Richard Avanzino, president of the San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, took Sido into his home and filed suit in a state court challenging the will. A hearing on his suit is scheduled for June 17.

There was no discussion of the bill in the Assembly, which approved it 75-0. The Senate later concurred in minor Assembly amendments by a 28-0 vote, sending the bill to Brown.

Aardvark seeks rematch in patent fight

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Two aardvarks fought it out in Tampa — in fact, they made a federal case out of it. Alvin won. But Mr. Zot wants a rematch.

Both aardvarks are toys, and the fight was a patent infringement case. Alvin the Aardvark, marketed by Kenner Products Co., was represented by four lawyers at a pretrial hearing Thursday. Mr. Zot was represented by his owner, 77-year-old Truman W. Powell of nearby Zephyrhills.

U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman called the aardvark case "refreshingly different" and confided he played with the Alvin that Kenner submitted as an exhibit.

"Had a lot of fun playing with it, in fact," Krentzman said.

Mr. Zot is a plastic toy Powell invented in 1965 and patented in 1971. When you squeeze Mr. Zot's tail or abdomen, compressed air forces a long string "tongue" with a piece of metal on the end to shoot out from an elongated snout.

The metal picks up magnetized toy ants.

Alvin the Aardvark is a plastic toy invented in the mid-1970s by Dennis Merino and William Hamblin, both of Bell, Calif.

When you squeeze on a bulb attached to Alvin's tail, compressed air forces a long plastic tongue with little plastic teeth on the end to shoot out from an elongated snout. The tiny teeth pick up cloth ants.

Merino and Hamblin sold Alvin the Aardvark to Kenner in April 1977 for $15,000 and royalties. Kenner put it on the market just in time for Christmas 1978.

Powell's lawsuit contending Alvin the Aardvark infringed on his patent rights from Mr. Zot.

Not at all, Krentzman ruled Thursday. He told Powell and the four Kenner lawyers there was no patent infringement because there is enough of an engineering difference in the way each aardvark sticks out its tongue.

It was a hearing to determine whether Powell's lawsuit against Kenner should go to trial or end right then.

Krentzman decided it was over, but Powell, a former seaman and prize fighter who says he holds 30 patents for a variety of inventions, said he'd appeal.

The invention was named after the ant eater in the comic strip "BC," who says "ZOT!" every time he catches an ant, Powell said.

But Mr. Zot has never been marketed. There's only one model, the one Powell made himself. He said he offered it to General Mills, the parent company of Kenner, back in 1965, but General Mills wasn't interested.

He said he also offered it to Mattel and Whammo, "and ... everybody else who makes toys. But nobody wanted it. And then this thing, Alvin, pops up."

"We're not saying that Mr. Powell didn't have a good product," said Kenner lawyer Edward O'Toole of Chicago. "We're only saying one thing: that our product is of a substantially different design."

Town hunting for barber

SAMBURG, Tenn. (AP) — Most small towns want their own doctor, their own dentist or maybe a crack at big industry. Not Samburg. It wants its own barber.

The 463 residents of this no-frills West Tennessee hamlet have gotten along nicely with just the basics: a post office, a fish company, four churches and groceries, a couple of cafes and six motels — to catch the overflow crowd that converges on nearby Reelfoot Lake each summer.

But long hair and a long ride have sent city fathers on a mercy mission.

"The closest barber is in Tiptonville," Mayor John Van Cleave said Wednesday. "Our people have to drive 14 miles to get a haircut and gas is getting so high, and some of our people are old and crippled and they can't get out like they used to."

There's one beauty parlor in town, the mayor said, but unisex hair cutting apparently hasn't caught on in rural Tennessee. The beautician doesn't cut men's hair.

With that in mind, the Samburg town commission voted Tuesday night to try to recruit a barber — preferably their old one.

"We had one here," Van Cleave said. "But he left a few years ago."

The barber — his name has slipped Van Cleave's mind — is believed to be somewhere in Kentucky.

"We're going to try to get him back. We're going to do everything we can, but he might not want to come back," the mayor said. "He's getting pretty old himself."

The building where the barber shop was located is now part of City Hall. But when the barber was still in business, most remember it as a favorite gathering place.

For $2, you could ease into a chair and help solve the world's problems, take a turn at the checkerboard — and even get a haircut.

Cancer insurance not all it's cracked up to be?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cancer insurance frequently is sold to people who do not realize that the policies don't cover many medical costs caused by the disease, a government study said today.

The study, done for the National Credit Union Administration Board, joins others in criticizing cancer policies and the way they are sold. The board may use it as justification for a crackdown on federal credit unions that encourage their members to buy the policies.

"We estimate, on the basis of 45 case histories, that cancer insurance will pay at most 29 percent of the cost of a cancer for the first three years of the disease," the report said.

18 killed in blast

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Eighteen farmers were killed and six wounded when their minibus hit a land mine believed planted by Moslem insurgents, the Defense Ministry said today.

A spokesman said an army field report gave no other details of the incident except that it occurred late Wednesday afternoon on a road on Jolo island, 600 miles south of Manila.

Jolo is a stronghold of the Moro National Liberation Front, spearhead of a 7½-year-old rebellion for Moslem rule in about a dozen southern Philippine provinces.

DISCUSSING THE COMPLICATED clauses that limit what cancer policies cover, the report said, "Except for those who are experts on cancer, literacy is probably not enough to understand these limitations."

The report by Abt Associates, Inc., of Cambridge, Mass., said some policies are written to cover only cancer confirmed through microscopic examination of tissue or blood cells. However, it said, "Some 10 percent of cancers are not so diagnosed, even by autopsy, and are thus uncovered...."

"In some cases, particularly where obtaining a tissue sample imposes pain and risk to the patient, the doctor is content to rely on clinical evidence. The insurance company, however, expressly rejects diagnoses on clinical evidence," the report said.

THE REPORT SAID THE policies also can cover only treatment, thereby excluding costly medical tests and rehabilitation after surgery. Clauses limiting coverage to $50 a day for hospital stays do not come close to meeting the charges at many hospitals, it said.

Jim Barr, vice president of the National Credit Union Administration, said, "We don't endorse cancer insurance, but some of our (state) leagues do. We are looking at that question."

Asked about possible regulation by the administration, he said, "We wouldn't care for that."

THE HEALTH INSURANCE Association of America, which represents companies selling health insurance, said in a statement: "We can damn any and all unethical sales practices. We have spoken out against them in the past and have been working with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners to resolve problems that exist in the selling of dread disease policies, which constitute less than 2 percent of the health insurance market."

The policies and tactics used in selling them have been widely criticized by consumer groups, congressional panels and others. The House Committee on Aging reported in March that some cancer insurance "is close to being a worthless product."

Mexico now channel for illegal drug traffic from South America

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Illegal Mexican drugs are being eradicated but the country has become a channel for heroin and marijuana from South America to the United States, authorities were told Wednesday.

Ninety-four percent of known opium and marijuana fields have been wiped out and the remainder will be destroyed by the end of this year, said Samuel Alba Leyva, attorney general of Mexico.

He joined attorneys general from New Mexico and California at a border crime conference here. Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt told 150 delegates that crime problems spanning the border "are too important to be left to diplomats in Mexico City and Washington, D.C."

Terry Grimble, director of the Arizona Drug Control District in Tucson, described drug traffic from South America through Mexico to the United States. It has created addiction and crime problems in Mexico, he said.

Southbound traffic includes $47 million in stolen property and $625,000 worth of stolen cars from California alone, said George Deukmejian, California attorney general.

American cars which sell legitimately for $20,000 in Mexico are stolen in the United States and peddled at half price south of the border, Deukmejian said.

Jeff Bingaman, New Mexico attorney general, complained that federal enforcement policy is outdated, complicated and lacking in direction.

"We don't know what we are trying to accomplish with the policies," he said. "Cuba is a perfect example to show that we have no goals, no policy and no well-conceived program."

The conference continues Thursday with closed investigation seminars and a luncheon speech by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

Pigeons get shock at Milan's cathedral

MILAN, Italy (AP) — The man who has been long struggling to save the spires and statues of Milan's Gothic cathedral from pollution and smog has resorted to electric shock to keep pigeons, and their droppings away from the white-pink marble monument which is the city's pride.

The network of low-tension electric wires put all around the "Duomo" during recent cleaning works has proved highly successful, causing no fatalities among the birds, and Milan authorities are thinking of supplying the anti-pigeon device to other city monuments threatened by birds droppings, said to be as detrimental as chemical pollutants to marble structures.

Carlo Ferrari, head of the church administration handling the preservation and restoration of the cathedral, said his electrical system has been approved by the local Animal Welfare Association for its "absolute harmlessness."

"The cost was not prohibitive because the wires were installed during a major maintenance work," Ferrari said. But he refused to disclose the amount the church spent for the device.

The anti-pigeon device is powered by 9-volt batteries, delivering light electrical shock every two minutes to keep birds away.

Wires are almost invisible and do not adversely affect the "artistic purity" of hundreds of statues and spires adorning the 17th century cathedral.

Vance urges approval for SALT II agreement

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — In his first major speech since quitting as Secretary of State, Cyrus R. Vance has called for ratification of the strategic arms limitation treaty this year, saying Soviet aggression in Afghanistan should not interfere with that goal.

Speaking at Harvard University's commencement Thursday, Vance said, "As a symbol of our hopes for a more peaceful world, as a commitment to work toward better security through arms control and as a process of trying to work out differences with an adversary, this treaty stands at the very heart of a sensible and far-seeing American foreign policy."

Hinting at his resignation over the abortive rescue mission in Iran, Vance also said it was a "dangerous fallacy" to substitute military action for diplomacy.

He also said maintaining America's military strength and global military balance was "important to our own safety, to a strong foreign policy free of coercion, to the confidence of allies and friends."

But Vance warned against the "self-indulgent nonsense" of wishing American military power could solve any threat.

He also cautioned his audience against what he called "a dangerous new nostalgia," a "longing for earlier days when the world seemed, at least in retrospect, to have been a more orderly place in which American power could, alone, reserve that order."

The former secretary, who resigned the post in April, called for steadiness and calm in dealing with foreign problems, not threats and erratic shifts in outlook.

"Neither we nor the world can afford an American foreign policy which is hostage to the emotions of the moment," he said.

The nostalgia erodes confidence in leaders, because it encourages impossible expectations, he said. And it "leads us to simplistic solutions and go-it-alone illusions, diverting our energies from the struggle to shape change in constructive directions. It is self-indulgent nonsense, bound to lead us into error, if not disaster."

America's real problems require long-term solutions, he said. "It will not do to reach for the dramatic act, to seek to cut through stubborn dilemmas with a single stroke."

Among the 25,000 people at the commencement exercises was Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, attending the graduation of his niece, Caroline, daughter of the late President John F. Kennedy. She was among 1,487 undergraduates receiving degrees.

Before Vance's speech, 11 persons received honorary degrees, including CBS newscaster Walter Cronkite; psychoanalyst Anna Freud, a daughter of Sigmund Freud; Joan V. Robinson, a British economist, and John Blum, an American economist.

Also, Octavio Paz, a Mexican poet; Bayard Rustin, civil rights leader; Richard Wall Lyman, president of Stanford University; Robert Merton, sociologist; Helen Frankenthaler, artist; Ernst Mayr, former Harvard zoology professor; and Herbert Hart, professor and philosopher of law.

Former secretary of state Cyrus Vance pauses as he receives applause Thursday from Harvard University students, before delivering his first major speech since he quit to protest the failed American rescue attempt of the hostages in Iran. Storm-ravaged Nebraska town will be sealed off

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP) — National Guard troops today manned roadblocks around Grand Island to keep away sightseers and would-be looters as residents of the Nebraska City worked to rebuild the homes and businesses devastated by a string of killer tornadoes.

"Recover? Of course they will. They're Midwesterners," said Mayor Robert Kriz, his fist jutting into the air. "They'll do just fine."

The seven storms that churned through the town of 40,000 on Tuesday claimed six lives — four people who died in the funnel clouds and two who suffered heart attacks while doing cleanup work.

By Thursday night, city officials had reduced the list of persons missing to 34, down from more than 70. Assistant City Attorney Bill Shreffler said he doubted there would be many more casualties as the unaccounted-for were located.

"Our feeling now is that they probably aren't victims," Shreffler said.

The storms destroyed some 600 homes and businesses in five sections of the city. Shreffler said the scattered nature of the devastation was hampering officials working to put together an estimate of the damage.

Utility crews worked around the clock to restore electricity, water and sewage facilities.

Meanwhile, Nebraska National Guardsmen joined law enforcement officers in patrolling storm-battered sections of the city for a second night.

Maj. Gen. Edward Binder, commander of the Nebraska National Guard and a veteran of tornado duty, said looting had been held to a minimum and he would beef up his patrols if it became a problem.

"I've talked with the law enforcement people and they've had some minor stuff. But, generally, it's been very light," Binder said.

The troops Thursday night again enforced a dusk-to-dawn curfew and manned barricades at major entry points to turn away potential looters and the curious. City officials planned to seal the city off through Sunday.

"It's better to be safe than sorry," said Police Chief Howard Bacon.

Kriz said city officials also made plans to ensure residents are protected from slipshod contractors who might try to prey on the need for quick rebuilding.

"We're not going to let outsiders come in and sell these people a bill of goods," Kriz said. "We had that problem on a hailstorm a few years ago."

The mayor said city officials, inspectors and local contractors have formed a board to certify any outside builders wishing to do tornado repair work in Grand Island.

"If they're going to come in here, they have to go before the board and get certified," he said. "We don't want anyone to get taken."

A tornado fund has been established to help the city's residents, sparked by a $10,000 gift from the Omaha World-Herald.

Social factors shape demands

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

What do color and design of home furnishings products, how people live, marketing basics and the revitalization of American cities have to do with one another?

According to a group of experts who gathered in New York recently to discuss all of the above, social factors shape demand for products. And so a group of about 300 home furnishings designers, manufacturers, magazine people and marketers listened avidly as experts such as James Rouse, the developer, predicted a rebirth of American cities and Phillip Hawley, chief executive of Carter Hawley Department Stores, dissected the factors which determine whether or not consumers buy products.

The audience was equally absorbed in a report of color preferences of American consumers and a prediction of likely future colors by House & Garden Magazine, sponsor of the seminar.

The news in color direction today is not necessarily in specific colors, said Nadine Bertin, the magazine's color program director. Instead, "it is in the words being used — words like softer, warmer, misty, muted, quiet and tinted. This tells us that loud, bright and bold colors are not in the vocabulary of future colors. Extremes are out. Delicacy, subtlety, and peaceful co-existence are what we are reaching for," she said.

According to Ms. Bertin, the color news is occurring at the far ends of the palette — the deep colors and the pastels. Consumers are definitely more interested in using color in the home and they are more adventurous than some of the retailers from whom they shop, it was noted.

A number of manufacturers who recently increased the use of color in their products have found that color alone helped them to increase sales substantially. For some products, such as carpeting, window coverings and wall coverings, color may be the most important single factor in a decision to buy or not.

Color must do something good to the psyche, because the seminar was one of almost unrelieved cheer. These times, with the economy reeling and retail sales off, have most gatherings of merchants and manufacturers crying the blues. But the participants at this meeting foresaw the future with rose-tinted glasses.

The bellwether speaker was James Rouse, whose company developed Boston's Faneuil Hall Marketplace, the new town of Columbia, Md. and is helping to redevelop the inner harbor area in downtown Baltimore.

Using Baltimore as an example — a city that in the early 1960s was moribund but which is now enjoying prosperity, he said — Rouse claimed that "in the 1980s and 1990s, the transformation of the center city will be as massive as the explosion of the suburbs was in the 1940s and '50s."

He predicted these positive changes not only for big cities but in smaller cities of about 150,000 population, cities that are not considered important or even viable today.

According to Rouse, Baltimore's civic and business leaders organized to head off disaster following a 1952 report which concluded that the city faced bankruptcy in a decade unless something radical was done.

After a slow start with just two new office buildings, the city's new structures now include 20 office buildings, four hotels, a rebuilt harbor, new hospitals, 2,000 apartments in the inner harbor area and 2,000 more in planning, as well as over 10,000 rehabilitated housing units within 10 minutes of downtown.

If all this talk about cities seems far afield from the sales of home furnishings, it is not. Prosperity leads to more jobs, good retail sales and more home building. And that building leads to further prosperity and greater availability of new products.

Predicting that the 1980s will be the decade of the home, Phillip Hawley, president of Carter Hawley which owns some of the nation's better-known department stores, said that the baby boom of the 1940s and 1950s will be the housing boom of the 1980s.

Conference stuck on issues

BALTIMORE (AP) — Delegates to the White House Conference on Families, admonished by President Carter to look for "creative, compassionate" solutions to problems facing modern families, are trying to downplay simmering differences over issues like abortion and gay rights.

About 700 delegates from 18 states and territories were meeting in small work groups today to begin drafting the recommendations that will be forwarded to Congress and the president. Suggestions from the Baltimore conference will be blended with results from similar meetings planned later for Minneapolis and Los Angeles in a final report.

Conference chairman Jim Guy Tucker made an early appeal for restraint, urging the delegates to be as sensitive, thoughtful and patient in their conference deliberations as they would in resolving an individual family dispute. "We clearly do not all disagree on everything," he said.

But verbal conflict erupted anyway during a session on families and human needs.

Marian Wright Edelman, president of the Children's Defense Fund, challenged that argument: "I will not accept the view that only some of us believe in traditional family values."

Practicing their ballplaying skills in preparation for this weekend's Family Fair at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church are Lorenzo and Linda Ramirez, fair chairmen. The annual event is Saturday and Sunday from noon to 10 p.m. on the church grounds, located at the corner of N. Tyler and Cherry Lane. Prizes, games, raffles and homemade Mexican and American food will be available. It's a great weekend treat! (Staff Photo)

Study shows drug prevents rare angina

BOSTON (AP) — A new drug is highly effective in relieving spasms of the blood vessels that feed the heart, a condition that doctors say may often be a cause of the crippling chest pain called angina, researchers say.

In a study published today, doctors said they tested the drug, nifedipine, on a rare, hard-to-treat form of the heart pain called variant angina. Unlike other, more common kinds of angina that afflict millions of Americans, variant angina is caused exclusively by spasms of the heart arteries.

However, doctors are principally interested in spasms for the suspected role they play in more typical kinds of angina as well as heart attacks.

"This drug has a potent, long-lasting, anti-spasm effect," said Dr. Elliott Antman, who directed the research.

The study, headed by doctors at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, was published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Nifedipine is already commonly prescribed for all kinds of angina in Europe, but it has not been cleared for general use in the United States.

Doctors once believed all angina was caused by hardening of the arteries. Deposits form on the walls of the arteries and cut down the supply of blood to the heart. This lack of blood produces the agonizing pain called angina.

In recent years, however, doctors have found that angina may also occur when spasms contract the arteries and reduce the blood flow. Doctors are still not sure how many angina victims suffer from spasms instead of — or even in addition to — hardening of the arteries. But Dr. Eugene Braunwald, one of the Boston researchers, has estimated that they may be a problem for 25 to 30 percent of heart patients.

In the Boston study, doctors looked at the effect of nifedipine on Prinzmetal's, or variant, angina, a condition that fewer than 5 percent of all angina patients suffer. This disease is unique because it is known to be caused exclusively by artery spasms.

Doctors gave nifedipine to 127 variant angina patients at medical centers around the United States.

Here's real American cooking

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

If Nika Hazelton hadn't married an American she might never have written a present-day treasure: "American Home Cooking."

As she states in her introduction, this book "is an attempt to bring back the dishes that make people say, 'How well I remember...' — the food people cooked and ate with pleasure before American home cooking was vulgarized by synthetic and convenience foods or scared into complicated reproductions of foreign cuisines."

Nika herself has an international background. She was born in Rome, grew up in Switzerland and educated in England. But since 1955 she has lived in the United States and is one of our most respected writers on food and wine. Many of her cookbooks are concerned with continental food, but she cooked American meals for her husband and two sons because they enjoyed American fare.

An inveterate traveler, Nika knows the United States well. At a moment's notice she has always been ready to roam, to research and to enjoy what America has to offer — from July 4th weekends in Pennsylvania at the Kutztown Folk Festivals to tracking down some of California's best regional dishes.

Mrs. Hazelton's introductions to recipes are written with her usual wit and her recipes are practical. For the sake of goodness, "American Home Cooking" deserves a prominent place on cookbook shelves. She never cops out as some other authors do, by presenting "receipts" copied verbatim from antique cookbooks. These writers don't bother to give up-to-date instructions useful to cooks nowadays.

Instead, Nika Hazelton gives us her own versions of traditional American dishes still worth making. In "American Home Cooking" there is, for example, a great recipe for Yellow Pea Soup with Allspice, just as her Michigan-born husband remembers it from his youth — a marvelous dish to serve for Sunday night supper with homemade bread, salad and dessert. And, thank heavens, there's my own childhood favorite — Chop Suey — a dish so many of us used to love to eat in those upstairs Chinese restaurants that were inexpensive but used the freshest ingredients in their cooking.

When I came on the recipe for that all-American dish, Creamed Chipped Beef, in Nika's book, I thought: That's worth serving at brunch. What a change from Eggs Benedict, Crab Quiche, Shirred Eggs with mushrooms and chicken livers or what have you. Offered with popovers as Nika suggests, what could be more fun than Creamed Chipped Beef?

NIKA'S CREAMED CHIPPED BEEF

¼ pound dried beef, snipped into pieces
4 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups half-and-half or light cream or milk
Freshly ground pepper
Salt
2 tablespoons minced parsley (optional)
Popovers

If the beef is only slightly salty (a taste will confirm this), rinse under running cold water. If it is very salty, cover with boiling water, let stand 3 minutes, and drain. Heat the butter in a deep frying pan. Add the beef. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, for about 3 to 5 minutes. Stir in the flour

Legion honor given

BOSTON (AP) — Marguerite Yourcenar, the first woman to join the Immortals of the French Academy, has been awarded the French Legion of Honor.

"Madame, you are a great writer," said French ambassador to the United States, Francois de Laboulaye, as he pinned on the gold, white and green medallion hanging from a scarlet badge.

Dressed in a black taffeta gown trimmed in white lace at the neck, Ms. Yourcenar, who will be 78 Sunday, received the Legion of Honor Thursday in a ceremony at the French Library in Boston.

The ambassador bent to brush first one, then the other cheek in the traditional Gallic gesture.

and cook, stirring all the time, for 3 minutes. Stir in half-and-half, cream, or milk, and cook until sauce is thickened. Season with pepper and if necessary (taste first) a little salt. Sprinkle with parsley if desired before serving with popovers.

DEAR ABBY
Man's backyard is a dog's world

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I decided to have our breakfast and read the Sunday paper out-of-doors on our patio. In your column that day was a letter from Irene Cupido, an animal welfare worker. She stated that dogs usually bark to convey some kind of message: They are either hungry, frightened, cold, lonely or in some kind of trouble.

Meanwhile, our breakfast was ruined by the loud and constant barking of dogs in the adjoining backyards. This has been a continuing problem in our block with seven barking dogs who never seem to let up.

Why must we suffer this annoyance because seven dog owners choose to neglect the pets they have imprisoned in their yards?

At this point, I know of no practical solution except to poison the dogs, which, of course, I would not consider. Yet I cannot help but wonder about a society that places a dog's rights before those of a human.

Please use my name — KENNETH E. MARICLE, RICHMOND, VA. DEAR MR. MARICLE: Has the Richmond Police Department heard about this? There are laws about disturbing the peace. Why not disturb THEIR peace until YOUR peace has been restored?

DEAR ABBY: I never dreamed I would be writing a Dear Abby letter, but here I am.

I am an attractive widow who has fallen in love with a wonderful widower. We discussed marriage and any possible sex hang-ups that could present problems. As it turns out, he likes breasts with nipples, and I don't have any! You see, I was born with "inverted nipples." (They are there, but turned inward.)

My first husband never complained, so I never thought anything about it until I met this man. Can a problem like this be solved at my age? (I am 60.) I really love this man and want to be a complete woman for him.

I have never heard of another woman with this problem. Please help me, Abby. I don't want to lose him to someone else and I'm afraid I might. — WORRIED IN IDAHO

DEAR WORRIED: Your problem is not as unusual as you think it is. Fortunately inverted nipples can be corrected surgically. It is a relatively simple procedure and can be done under local anesthesia. Be sure the doctor who performs this procedure is a Board Certified Plastic and Re-construction Surgeon. Your family physician or county medical association can recommend one.

IF YOU HAVE ANYTHING TO SELL YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO ADVERTISE. CALL 682-5311

CONFIDENTIAL TO J. IN MODESTO: A very perceptive man once said, "Beauty is a gift. Charm must be cultivated. A beautiful woman is one I notice. A charming woman is one who notices ME."

CONFIDENTIAL TO those who have sent for Abby's booklets: Please, please be patient. I am literally deluged with orders and am getting them out as quickly as possible.

Computers help people with human problems

CHICAGO (AP) — Computers, for all their dehumanized image, sometimes can help people with some human problems. Carole Murphy, who is striking out on her own for the first time at age 46, has learned.

Married 23 years and now in the process of divorce, she is seeking a job, an apartment of her own, a whole new way of living. She's one of thousands of middle-aged women who grew up in traditional roles, married, had children and now, for whatever reasons, are facing life alone.

Recently, sitting at a computer terminal, Mrs. Murphy fed information about her interests, her abilities and her values into a new system called "Discover," seeking an objective way to evaluate the experience of her lifetime.

By eliminating those she felt were not realistic, Mrs. Murphy trimmed the list to 17, reviewed the detailed information about those, and then zeroed in on the one job she had performed for pay — interior decorating.

She then asked the computer for information about schools where she could brush up on her decorating skills. It listed 58 colleges in Illinois — two close to her home — and gave other information, such as courses available and tuition.

Before leaving the machine, she also took Discover's course in "decision making," hoping to improve her skills in that area. Altogether, she worked at the terminal about eight hours over a three-day period and believes she may be back for additional work.

"I know finding a career is not going to be easy," Mrs. Murphy says, "particularly when I have so many other pressures — the divorce, the children both in college, where to go from here. I have a lot to learn. But with so many emotional factors going on at once, the computer is helping me find a logical direction to go."

Discover's databank contains information on about 600 jobs — 92 percent of the labor market. It also provides information about all U.S. two-year and four-year degree-granting institutions and all graduate and professional schools, as well as more than 11,000 trade and technical schools.

So far the system, marketed by IBM, is available in some two dozen public schools and colleges around the country, with more expected to be added soon.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, June 7, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Those born on this date are likely to be long-lived, so be sure to salt away some savings for the future! A sensitivity to others' feelings sometimes prevents you from standing up for your rights, but during the rest of 1980 it is very important that you assert yourself at critical moments in career, business affairs. In the fall, there is a need to cut some old ties and replace them with new ones. True love may have been elusive in the recent past, but situation is about to change! Someone both gentle and strong enters the picture.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look over possessions and discard those no longer needed. Think about holding a yard sale or putting an ad in the newspaper. Children love to explore. Be sure to keep an eye on them when visiting unfamiliar places.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Work-related matter may interfere with family plans at last minute. Explain situation as clearly as possible to loved ones. Romance may be uppermost in your thoughts tonight. If so, be sure mate is in same mood!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis is on consolidating recent gains and making plans for the future. Go over personal finances and make sure no bills have been overlooked.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Recent events should have reduced or eliminated past cash flow problems. A tendency to expect too much of others could make social plans go awry. Be willing to try unusual work methods suggested by a new friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Contact friend who has been out of touch for awhile. Someone who has done you many favors in the past may now need special assistance. You have golden opportunity to repay an old debt.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tend to domestic chores before setting off in search of pleasure. Young relative may be a better ally than you realize. Short trips are apt to be rewarding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Keep in close touch with family members. Not a good day for gambling, speculation. Do friend a favor. Be discreet about another's indiscretions. Loved one is in mood to confide hopes, dreams.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Efforts to achieve greater harmony with mate will meet with success today. Take advantage of generous offer in afternoon. Outdoor activities contribute to a brighter mental outlook.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Things done on the spur of the moment will bring greater pleasure than planned activities. Get in touch with those who share your interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be extra careful where transportation is concerned. Special sale item may not be advertised to be. Any promises made to children should be fulfilled.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Guard against an urge to be extravagant. Friends like you for what you are, not what you have. Brief encounter with attractive stranger could develop into a delightful new relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Small but unexpected gift can bring great pleasure. In romance, let events take their natural course. Any aggressive moves will meet with resistance.

While there are certain fixed principles for the management of card combinations, the play of the hand can never be reduced to an exact science. Which finesse to take, or what suit to develop, may often be a sheer guess, with one line offering as good a chance as another. However, if you find that you are misguessing in a majority of the cases, there are grounds for suspicion that your technique may be faulty.

Given two possible lines of play, it goes without saying that you should choose the one offering the better chance. We do not expect the average player to learn a host of mathematical odds. Many times simple logic will provide the clue to the winning line.

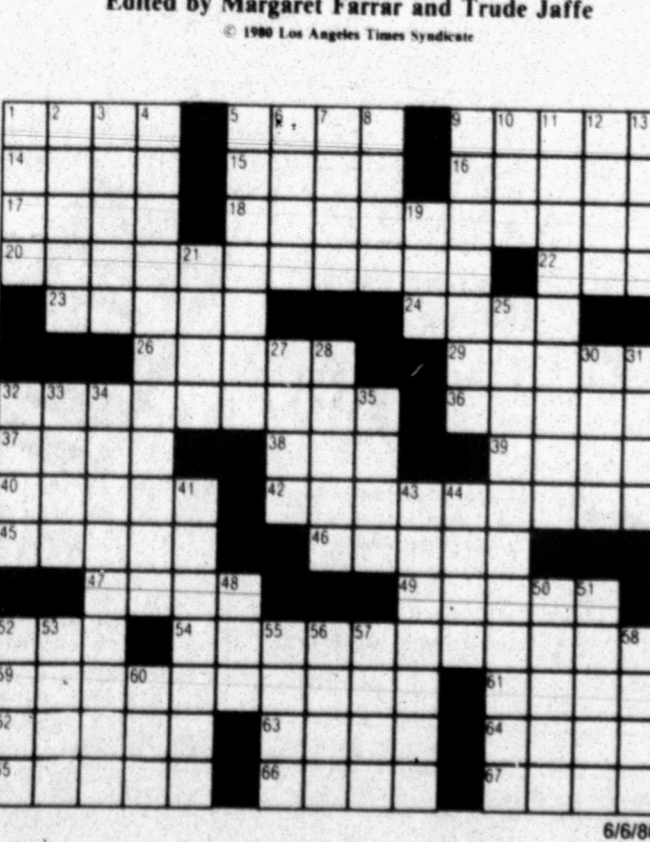

We are not thrilled with North's action. It is doubtful whether he should keep the bidding open after his partner's one heart opening bid, much less raise hearts, which is the most encouraging simple response North could make. Wild horses couldn't keep South out of game after

While declarer's play might have worked, it did not offer the best odds. The location of either king was a 50-50 chance, so the club finesse had as equal a chance of success as the one in trumps. However, there was another consideration: If the heart finesse succeeded, declarer's troubles would not be over — he would still need a 2-2 split which, we have seen, is considerably against the odds.

To put it in simple terms: A straight finesse is a better chance than a finesse plus a break in a suit. Therefore, the club finesse was the only proper play.

Ford will back Reagan, 'forgetting the past'

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Gerald Ford, noting Ronald Reagan has "moderated" some views that once disturbed the former president, says he'll campaign for the man he battled for the 1976 GOP nomination and the party's almost certain presidential candidate this year.

Ford, after meeting with Reagan on Thursday, said he will "wholeheartedly" hit the campaign trail for the conservative Republican.

Reagan, who has defeated all major rivals and is now unopposed for the Republican nomination, flew to Ford's Palm Springs home for a private meeting. He starts his first post-primary tour today with a three-day swing through four states.

Ford endorsed Reagan just one week ago after saying earlier this year that Reagan was too conservative to be elected. At a joint news conference with Reagan after their meeting, he brushed aside questions about his past criticism of Reagan, saying it is "vitaly important" that Reagan defeat President Carter.

"I am convinced Gov. Reagan can be elected, and I certainly hope he is elected. I look forward not only to campaigning for him, but I look forward to having influence and input in whatever way that he feels essential if he becomes our next president," Ford said.

Reagan said his meeting with Ford — only the second time they've talked face-to-face since the 1976 campaign — "is the first of many meetings. We are going to be working together. We will do this on a fairly regular basis."

Ford said he and Reagan did not discuss whom Reagan might pick as a running mate and that he suggested only that he not be considered.

Responding to questions about his past criticism of Reagan, Ford acknowledged, "Yes, I thought there was a problem of Gov. Reagan being elected. But I can just as truly say today that I think Ron Reagan can be elected president."

Asked what changed his mind, Ford replied: "He's shown he's a pretty good vote-getter in a few primaries around the country."

Ford added that Carter's record on both foreign and domestic issues gives Reagan a strong platform. "The economic policies of the Carter administration are a disaster," he said.

Questioned about Reagan's very limited support of him after he defeated the Californian for the 1976 nomination, Ford replied, "There was more written about that than was ever justified in fact."

Reagan said he had offered to help Ford in 1976 but there "was probably a failure at the staff level to get together." He said he wouldn't allow that to happen in 1980.

Kennedy man to be Demo keynoter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's selection of a Kennedy supporter to keynote the Democratic National Convention is but the first stitch in an effort to sew together a now divided party.

But the final stitch, a conciliation with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, could be some time in coming.

He'll think about topic

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — What kind of a keynote speech will Rep. Morris K. Udall make at the Democratic National Convention in August?

Thursday, after accepting President Carter's invitation to give the keynote speech at the convention, Udall said he would have to think about the speech for a while before coming up with specifics.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, tapped by Carter to keynote the upcoming convention, rejected suggestions Thursday that Kennedy should withdraw from the race although Udall conceded Carter probably had the nomination locked up.

"If Sen. Kennedy wants to go on to the convention and have his name put into nomination, he has every right to do that," the Arizona Democrat said. "There's nothing magic about party unity 24 hours after the polls close on the last primary."

Recalling his own unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976, Udall said having a candidate's name in nomination could elate that candidate's supporters and cement an eventual reconciliation.

The soft-spoken westerner readily admitted he felt his selection was an attempt by the Carter camp to unite the party.

"They've got some fences to mend. I think they understand this," he said. "The fact I had endorsed Sen. Kennedy probably was deemed by some to be a big plus."

He said the theme of his keynote address would be "unity ... bury the hatchet."

Udall, long allied with the liberal wing of the party, was one of the first congressional supporters of Kennedy's challenge to the incumbent president.

But he said he didn't believe Kennedy, despite strong showings in the final primaries, could wrest the nomination from Carter.

"The fact is Carter has 300 more delegates than he needs," the Arizona Democrat said. Udall said Kennedy would have a very difficult time "trying to unlock any (Carter) delegates at a convention."

"I'm going to do what I can to get the Democratic nominee elected," Udall said. "I'll try to strike a blow for party unity this fall."

Udall said he hoped the probable selection of Ronald Reagan as the Republican nominee would help unite Democrats behind Carter. And he admitted he was worried about the bid of the former California governor.

Reagan men hired by Taiwan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A public relations firm headed by two close advisers to Ronald Reagan, who advocates re-establishing official relations with Taiwan, has been employed by the nationalist Chinese government since 1977.

Michael Deaver of Deaver and Hannaford confirmed the firm has been doing public relations work for Taiwan, but said he saw nothing wrong with the arrangement. He also said Reagan had not objected to the arrangement.

"We would never have taken this client if we thought there was a conflict," he said in a telephone interview from Sacramento, Calif.

Deaver confirmed that the Los Angeles firm he heads with Peter Hannaford was hired by Taiwan to do editorial work in November 1977 at a fee of $2,500 monthly plus an expense allowance of $2,000 monthly. The fee was doubled to $5,000 monthly a year later.

The firm served as Reagan's public relations counselor from the time he left office as governor of California in 1975 until he announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination last November.

Both men continue as informal, nonpaid advisers to Reagan. Deaver has been discussing joining the campaign on a formal basis, but he said he has not yet made a decision on whether to do so.

M & B Seal will add final touch to your lot

Sometimes it seems the businessman does not see his driveway with the same, critical gaze of his customers. It is the first thing the prospective customer sees, and the first thing he feels as he drives in.

Is it clean, smooth, black and bluish-free? Or is it messy, spotty, cracked and pot-holed?

If the driveway and parking lot are unsightly and uninviting, even potentially to one's car, it could turn business away, to some other more attractive, better-tended location.

M & B is a perfect answer to your problem... they will come to your place and give you an on-the-spot, free estimate for a patching, if necessary, and seal coating all the asphalt surfacing. If you take advantage of their good services, they will use the highest quality seal coating. They will do the job right.

After a seal coat by M & B, your drive or lot will be black, smooth, clean and inviting. It may be walked on in four hours, and after 12 hours, vehicular traffic will not affect the surface. The decorative effect of new coating is pleasing to your clients.

Call Ronnie Bryant, 697-3808, or Joe Matlock, 694-1480, and get that free estimate without delay. Let the first impression your business makes be a GOOD one!

Catholics set waiting period for weddings

MIAMI (AP) — The Archdiocese of Miami, hoping to reduce divorce rates by making it tougher to wed in haste, is setting a four-month waiting period for South Florida Roman Catholics who want to marry in the church.

"Since the happiness and well-being of married couples is of special concern to us, we are asking for more serious preparation for marriage in the Catholic church," Archbishop Edward A. McCarthy said Wednesday.

The new guidelines are effective Sunday. They apply to the 1 million Catholics in the Miami archdiocese, which includes Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, Martin and Monroe counties.

About half the Roman Catholic dioceses in the nation have adopted similar policies, said the Rev. Timothy Lynch, who helped prepare the guidelines here.

Catholics will have to give their parish priests four months' notice if they want to marry in the church. Priests will then assess the couple's readiness for marriage with a 143-question quiz, personal counseling and possibly consultation with family and friends, church officials said.

In the quiz, men and women will be asked separately if they agree or disagree with statements like the following:

- I am often bothered by the belittling remarks my future husband-wife makes about me.
- A problem is that when we have offended each other, my future husband-wife refuses to talk about it.
- I worry that either of our families will cause friction between us.
- I have grown up with good feelings about sex.
- It's not a best. You cannot pass or fail it," said Terry Reilly, co-director of the Miami archdiocese's Family Enrichment Center.
- A priest will not base his determination solely on the inventory. He will base it on that and a lot of his good common sense and pastoral experience.

Priests are being asked to refuse marriage ceremonies if either prospective partner is a non-practicing Catholic with no intention of returning to the faith, if it appears likely the couple will be separated for an extended period after they are married, if either is under 18.

Firestone extends rebates

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. says it is extending through July 15 its offer to pay $100 to any of its employees or retirees in the United States who buy a new car.

The program was originally offered to Firestone's 69,500 U.S. employees and retirees for the month of April only.

It is an attempt to spur purchases of new 1979 or 1980 cars made in North America, and in turn increase tire sales.

Firestone said Wednesday that it has decided to extend the incentive payments, retroactive to May 1 and to continue the program for purchases through July 15.

It said that to date, about 425 of its employees and retirees have received $100 checks.

The offer is in addition to any rebates made available by automobile companies and applies to any new 1979 or 1980 car or station wagon manufactured in North America by either American Motors, Checker (which manufactures cars as well as cabs), Chrysler, Ford, General Motors or Volkswagon.

High doses not necessarily toxic

Dear Dr. Solomon: I don't understand how scientists can come to any conclusions from their tests on rats and other animals. They feed them such huge quantities of the substance being tested that it's no wonder the animals get cancer. Why don't they use more reasonable doses in their tests? — Gill.

Dear Gill: Before responding to your specific question, I must point out that high doses of a substance do not necessarily prove toxic — that is, it may cause weight loss, adversely affect various organs, and even result in death — but it does not necessarily cause cancer.

The National Cancer Institute describes one study in which 120 pesticides and industrial chemicals suspected of causing cancer were tested at the highest doses mice could tolerate and still survive. After two years of treatment only 11 of the chemicals were found to cause cancer in the mice.

The reason huge quantities of chemicals are used in research on animals is to increase the possibility that the tests will reveal which chemicals have the potential for causing tumors. These tests have to be sensitive enough to detect substances with even a low cancer-causing potential.

The use of high doses increases the possibility of detecting chemicals with a carcinogenic potential because the cancer rate among the animals being tested rises accordingly. The alternative would be to vastly increase the number of animals being tested, with a corresponding cost in time and money. Moreover, when high doses of a substance do not cause cancer, we have greater assurance that it is not carcinogenic.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Every time I go for my annual physical examination, my doctor tells me to lose weight. At 40 years of age, happily married, and with four children, I cannot accept sex appeal as a rationale for losing weight, even though I know I'm carrying about 40 pounds more than I should. Can you give me any reason why I should make myself miserable by going on a diet? — Charles.

Dear Charles: One reason for you to lose weight is so that you can remain happily married. A number of studies have shown that excess weight is associated with a variety of diseases. Now, Dr. Ernest J. Drenick, of the Veterans Administration Wadsworth Hospital Medical Center in Los Angeles, reports that excessive extra weight increases the risk of early death by a very wide margin.

Dr. Drenick studied 200 obese men who averaged more than 300 pounds each. Those 25 to 34 years of age had 12 times the death rate of men of normal weight in the same age bracket. Among those 35 to 44 years old, the death rate was six times higher. Fifty of the 200 men died during the seven-year course of the study.

Shedding excess weight is much more than an exercise in cosmetics. It could be a matter of life and death.

Spread of urban violence feared

NEW YORK (AP) — Many Americans are worried that the racial violence that erupted last month in Miami could flare in other cities this summer, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

The public rejects the explanation that the Miami violence that left 16 dead and caused damage estimated at $100 million was due solely to special problems in Miami. Thus, they fear more violence, although almost no one expects problems in his own city or town.

The AP-NBC News poll was taken May 28-30, about two weeks after the Miami riot.

Fifty-three percent of those questioned said racial disturbances are likely in other American cities this summer. Only 24 percent said the Miami troubles were caused by localized problems and thus, violence was not likely in other cities.

Five percent volunteered that special problems triggered the Miami violence, but that other cities are likely to have turmoil as well. Eighteen percent had not heard of the Miami riot or were not sure.

There were no significant differences between the attitudes of blacks and whites on this question. While 53 percent of the blacks expect more trouble this summer, 54 percent of the whites took that view. Twenty-one percent of the blacks said the Miami violence was based on local problems, while 25 percent of the whites said that.

The violence erupted May 17 in Miami after an all-white jury in Tampa acquitted several former white Miami patrolmen of beating a black man to death. But black leaders also pointed to frustration in the black community over the massive efforts to help incoming Cuban refugees get jobs and other assistance at a time when unemployment was high among blacks.

Despite the public's expectation of violence, only 9 percent of the public said they expect racial trouble in their area in the next six months. Eighty-seven percent said they expect no problems and 4 percent were not sure.

One interesting finding of the poll is that fewer black Americans say they are better off than they were 10 years ago.

In March 1978, a special AP-NBC News poll of blacks found 73 percent said blacks in America were better off than 10 years before. Eleven percent said blacks were worse off and 12 percent saw no change.

This latest AP-NBC poll said 58 percent of the blacks said their situation had improved in the past decade, down 15 points from 1978. Seventeen percent said blacks' situation had worsened and 22 percent said there had been no change. In both cases, the remainder were not sure.

While there has been a change in black attitudes, there has been none in white attitudes on black progress. In both 1978 and in the latest poll, 84 percent of the whites said blacks' situation in America had improved, while 4 percent said it had not.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls based on 1,615 interviews, the results should vary no more than 3 percentage points either way because of sampling error. That is, if one could have talked last week to all Americans with telephones, there is only one chance in 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of other reasons. Differences in the exact wording of the questions, the timing of the interviews and how the interviews were conducted could also cause variations.

Parents can't collect damages for anguish

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has ruled that parents may not collect monetary damages for their mental anguish over the accidental death of a child.

The court issued its interpretation of the Wrongful Death Act on Wednesday and struck down a $25,000 award to a Corpus Christi surgeon who heard a car strike his child and was present when the 11-year-old boy died.

Robert Madalin died on Sept. 14, 1974, after a car struck him while he played in the street outside his home. His father, Dr. Herbert Madalin, said he heard a scream and a thud and rushed to the street where he found his son bleeding.

A jury awarded Madalin $25,000 for his mental anguish as part of an $85,000 jury verdict in the case.

James Bedgood, the driver of the car, and Robert Sorenson, the car's owner, appealed the mental anguish judgment.

The Supreme Court, in ordering a new trial, said "no recovery may be had for mental anguish, grief, bereavement, or loss of companionship."

Only actual financial damages can be recovered, the court said.

Justice Franklin Spears, in a separate opinion, said courts should allow damages for a parent's mental anguish.

"A plaintiff's recovery should not be limited to loss of financial contribution and services. If proven, damages for loss of companionship and society and damages for mental anguish are also proper elements of recovery," Spears said.

He said the actual damages rule has been developed by judges as an interpretation of the Wrongful Death Act passed by the Legislature.

"This judicial construction of the act makes the life of the child valueless," he said. "The pecuniary loss rule is based on antiquated concepts evolved in the rural 1800s, and it is totally unrelated to the present-day realities of modern society."

Spears said, "The true value of children is not in their potential for financial contribution, but in the rewards which flow from the familial relationship, i.e., love, comfort, assistance, and companionship."

Indians attack expedition

PUCALLPA, Peru (AP) — A band of Indians with bows and arrows attacked a German expedition in the Peruvian jungle when the explorers rafted into Yaminahua tribal territory, the expedition leader said.

Heinrich Maulhart, 49-year-old veteran jungle explorer and owner of a tourist lodge near this Ucayali River port town, some 525 miles northeast of Lima, said no one was injured in the May 24 attack.

Maulhart said he and three other Germans, a Peruvian employee and two Indian guides escaped after destroying their attackers' unguarded dugout canoes.

The attack was made by Yaminahuas, attacked enemies of the Machiguenga tribe which the expedition's guides belonged to, Maulhart said.

He said the attack was on the remote Manu Chico River, some 280 miles east of Lima in the high, mountainous jungle state of Cuzco.

There have been other attacks by Indians in the region visited by the German explorers.

In 1969, two French explorers and Bob Nichols, chief correspondent for Lima's English-language Peruvian Times, were stoned to death as they traveled the Madre de Dios River. They were killed by Machiguenga Indians.

"I make four or five-week expeditions like this into different areas of the jungle every May, but this is the first time I have been attacked," Maulhart said.

Yarbrough wants to go to island medical school

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough, awaiting a ruling on his appeal of a perjury conviction, wants an Austin judge to let him go to medical school in the Caribbean.

Austin lawyer Waggoner Carr, representing Yarbrough, said Wednesday his client has asked for permission to leave the country. Carr said Yarbrough, 38, "wants to get the threads of his life together."

State District Judge Mace Thurman of Austin, who presided at the trial, will decide if Yarbrough can leave the country. Last week Carr asked Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle if the prosecutor would oppose the move. Carr said he has not had a response from Earle.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

This is really living!

WELL then, shall we keep on sinning so that God can keep on showing us more and more kindness and forgiveness?

2, 3 Of course not! Should we keep on sinning when we don't have to? For sin's power over us was broken when we became Christians and were baptized to become a part of Jesus Christ; through His death the power of your sinful nature was shattered.

* 4 Your old sin-loving nature was buried with Him by baptism when He died, and when God the Father, with glorious power, brought Him back to life again, you were given His wonderful new life to enjoy.

5 For you have become a part of Him, and so you died with Him, so to speak, when He died; and now you share His new life, and shall rise as He did.

6 Your old evil desires were nailed to the cross with Him; that part of you that loves to sin was crushed and fatally wounded, so that your sin-loving body is no longer under sin's control, no longer needs to be a slave to sin.

7 For when you are deadened to sin you are freed from all its allure and its power over you.

8 And since your old sin-loving nature "died" with Christ, we know that you will share His new life.

9 Christ rose from the dead and will never die again. Death no longer has any power over Him.

10 He died once for all to end sin's power, but now He lives forever in unbroken fellowship with God.

11 So look upon your old sin nature as dead and unresponsive to sin, and instead be alive to God, alert to Him, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Salinas tried confusion

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Eagle Pass banker-rancher Enrique Salinas tried to confuse state bank examiners by disguising his financial trial when he owned a Carrizo Springs bank shortly before it collapsed, a former bank officer has testified.

Salinas is being retried on federal charges of misapplying funds from the Citizens State Bank in Carrizo Springs, closed in June 1976 by Texas Banking Commission because of questionable financial deals.

Salinas, 38, was convicted in August 1977 along with Citizen State Bank President Lewis Woodul and Sanchez on charges of conspiracy, misapplication of bank funds and falsifying bank records.

Salinas was sentenced to 12 years in prison, and fined $25,000 by the late U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.. Woodul was sentenced to five years in prison and Sanchez, four.

But the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the misapplication of funds convictions, leaving intact the other convictions.

Salinas, free on bond, still faces a five-year prison term and a $10,000 conviction on those intact convictions.

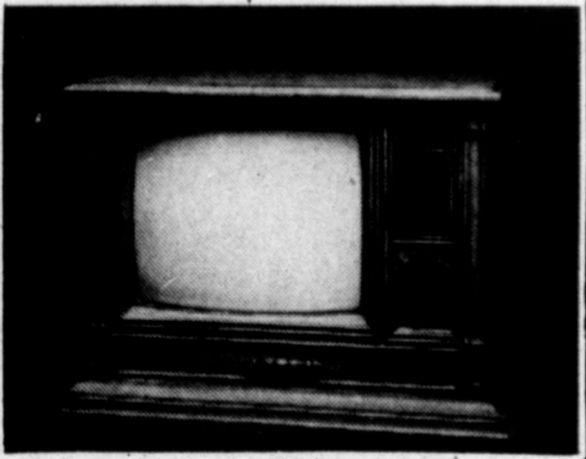

Both Woodul and Sanchez have testified against Salinas this time as part of an agreement to avoid further prosecution, officials said.

James Robert Nance, executive vice president of the bank when it closed, testified Wednesday that he arranged loans of $60,000 to Woodul and Sanchez while knowing the money was going to Salinas.

Salinas converted the two loans into cashiers checks and deposited into a Mexican bank.

Builder of log home beating housing crisis

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — All you people with high-interest home mortgage loans, eat your hearts out; Moose Pass resident Brian Forbes is building his house out of logs and he figures it will cost him only about $4,000.

Of course, we should mention that Forbes is a master log cabin builder and that he got his logs free through a timber-cutting permit and that he has managed to scrounge most of his other building materials. And we shouldn't forget that by the time his house is finished, Forbes will have invested thousands of hours of hard labor in it.

Building log cabins is what Forbes does for a living, although he'd prefer you call them log homes instead of cabins. He points out that the word "cabin" implies a log structure hastily erected.

His homes, he says, are engineered and designed to be standing long after most "stock" or 2-by-4 dwellings have settled into dust.

And Forbes has a degree in structural engineering from Portland (Ore.) State University, which makes it hard to argue with him about the practicality of log houses.

The method of construction used by Forbes is the most difficult and time-consuming of all. It's called the chinkless or full-scribe method, a type which apparently originated in Scandinavia.

"The full-scribe method is taught mostly in Canada now," Forbes says. "People in the United States are just starting to pick up on it."

With the full-scribe method, the underside of each log is hollowed out to fit the contour of the log beneath it. This provides an airtight, watertight, fit, with no horizontal surfaces to transmit moisture to the inside of the house.

The main disadvantage of the full-scribed log house is that it is time-consuming to build.

The 1,000-square-foot log home Forbes is now building will have a bedroom, a living room and a kitchen on the main floor and a one-bedroom loft. Heat will be provided entirely by a wood-fired stove. Water for cooking and bathing is hauled by hand from a stream 300 yards away.

Forbes lives with his wife, Nancy, and 9-month-old son, Ira, on a small chunk of land surrounded by the Chugach National Forest. He built a house of two-sided logs on the site in 1972, but that house burned in the winter of 1978 after sparks from a chimney fire fell on the shake roof. The chimney fire, he believes, was caused by a defective spark suppressor.

The Forbes were in Seward when the fire occurred. Luckily, their neighbors spotted the blaze and saved the smaller 12-by-18 guest cabin by throwing snow on it. They are now living in the smaller cabin while Forbes completes their new home.

Forbes will leave soon for Oregon, where he is being contracted to build a 1,600-square-foot solar-heated log home near Mount Hood in the Cascade Mountains.

"Logs adapt very well to solar heat because they retain so much heat," Forbes says. "They have what we call high specific heat."

There are many other advantages of the log house, Forbes says. Logs are a labor-intensive method of building and there is less waste of forest products in building with logs because the entire log is used.

In addition, there are fewer steps in the building. The log itself forms the outside finish, the framework, the insulation and the interior paneling.

John Edward Bishop

Bishop graduates

John Edward Bishop has graduated with a Doctor of Medicine degree from The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio.

Dr. Bishop is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Bishop, 2615 W. Golf Course Road. He is a 1974 graduate of Midland High School and attended The University of Texas at Austin.

The degree candidates, 93 men and 37 women, who finished their studies this spring were honored at a convocation and reception May 31.

Principal speaker was Dr. Carlos Pestana, professor of surgery and associate dean for student affairs in the medical school.

Dr. Bishop will now enter an internship in Internal Medicine in San Antonio, to be followed by an Ophthalmology residency at the University of Texas Teaching Hospitals in Houston.

OPEC to try for unity

By ROBERT MCCARTNEY

ROME (AP) - The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is trying - for the fourth time in 15 months - to reunify its oil prices. Industry sources say that consumers could pay more as a result. Oil ministers of the 13-nation group will meet in Algiers, Algeria Monday to try to put their prices back in line. The ministers may also put final touches on a long-range plan that would call for automatic oil price increases linked to world inflation, growth rates and currency fluctuations. But the ministers would have to agree on a unified price structure to serve as a starting point before their long-term price plan could take effect. OPEC's crude prices have been in disarray since early 1979, when militant members began to add "surcharges" to their previously-agreed prices. As a result some members are currently asking as much as $7 a barrel more than others for virtually identical grades of oil. Iran, for instance, has fixed a price of $35 a barrel for its light-quality crude. Saudi Arabia, however, charges only $28 a barrel for its Arab light oil, which is practically the same as Iran's. A barrel contains 42 gallons. Oil-ministers of both states said last month that they did not believe OPEC could reach agreement at Monday's meeting. Saudi Arabia's minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani reportedly said OPEC "hawks" would have to lower their prices to permit an accord. Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, accounts for almost a third of OPEC production. Saudi leaders believe the militants will eventually have to reduce their prices because of weak demand for petroleum due to abundant supplies. Oil companies in Japan and Europe have already refused to buy Iranian oil on grounds that it is overpriced. But oil industry sources doubted that Iran or other OPEC militants will be willing to lower their prices, at least at this meeting. "OPEC has always tried to unify its prices by raising them," said a leading Italian oil company's crude buyer who declined to be identified. He noted that despite the large quantities of available oil, free-market or "spot" prices are currently closer to Iranian than Saudi levels. That indicates the market has not weakened enough to force price "hawks" to come down. Industry sources speculated that the Saudis would raise their prices at Algiers to demonstrate their desire for unity but would not go as high as the militants. The sources suggested that a boost of between $2 and $4 a barrel was possible for Saudi oil. Since December the Saudis have raised their prices twice by $2 a barrel in a move toward compromise. In each case, however, other OPEC members simply hiked their own prices as much as the Saudis and left the group as disgruntled as before. After OPEC price unity collapsed at the start of last year, ministers met in Geneva in both March and June, 1979, to try to find a compromise. At those meetings they agreed on a price for Saudi Arabian light, the traditional benchmark or reference price, but also allowed hawks to add surcharges or other premiums. A meeting in Caracas last December, OPEC failed to reach any agreement despite three days of intense negotiations. The group left each country free to fix whatever price it wanted. Since then OPEC has divided roughly into three major factions. The militants, including Iran and African producers such as Algeria, Libya and Nigeria, have set prices of roughly $35 to $38 a barrel. Algeria has set OPEC's highest price of $38.21 a barrel for its top-quality crude, although $3 of that price can theoretically be refunded if the buyer invests in oil exploration for more Algerian oil. The moderate group, including Kuwait and OPEC's number-two producer Iraq, has set its prices at approximately $30 a barrel. "Dove" Saudi Arabia stands alone with its $28 price. Other OPEC members, whose prices generally fall between the moderates and the hawks, include Venezuela, United Arab Emirates, Qatar, Indonesia, Ecuador and Gabon.

Operators announce wildcat projects, field activity in West Texas counties

Aminoil USA Inc., operating from Midland, spotted an 8,400-foot wildcat in Scurry County, five miles south of Fluvanna. It is 990 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 349, block 97, h&TC survey and 1.5 miles north-east of Strawn production in the Hatway field which has two wells. The wildcat will be drilled as No. 1 Beaver.

COTTLE WILDCAT Bettis, Boyle & Stovall of Graham No. 1 Mack is a 6,200-foot wildcat in Cottle County, 10 miles south of Paducah. The prospector is 2 1/4 miles southwest of the Tippen, Southwest (Conglomerate) field and 467 feet from south and east lines of MET&P survey, abstract 174.

NOLAN EXPLORERS Two wildcat operations have been announced in Nolan County by WEST-TEX Drilling Co. of Abilene. No. 2 Compton is 3,092 feet from south and 1,600 feet from west lines of section 49, block 1-A, H&TC survey and 1,500 feet northeast of WEST-TEX No. 1 Compton, an active wildcat. It also is one mile northeast of the JMM (Canyon oil) pool. Scheduled on a 7,200-foot contract, it is 10 miles southwest of Maryneal.

The second wildcat is WEST-TEX No. 3 Compton, also scheduled to 7,200 feet 10 miles southwest of Maryneal. Location is 3,494 feet from south and 468 feet from west lines of section 49, block 1-A, H&TC survey and 1,000 feet north of No. 1 Compton.

STONEWALL TEST Moore Investment Co. of Abilene will dig No. 1 Cannon as a 6,000-foot wildcat 4.5 miles northeast of Old Glory in Stonewall County. Location is 468 feet from north and 2,714 feet from west lines of section 9, BBB&C survey. It is one mile east of one of the two wells in the Carothers (Bend conglomerate oil) pool.

FISHER EXPLORER Seago Oil Co. of Abilene announced location for a 5,000-foot wildcat in Fisher County, nine miles southeast of Sylvester. It is No. 2 Smith, 1,263 feet from south and 330 feet from west lines of section 14, E. Miles survey No. 219. The drillsite is one location north of 4,100-foot Canyon production in the Noodle Creek, Northwest multipay field.

CROCKETT AREA J. Cleo Thompson of Dallas No. 1-36 University is a new 9,500-foot wildcat 10 miles west of Ozona in Crockett County. Operator staked location 1,320 feet from south and 1,220 feet from east lines of section 36, block 31, University Lands survey. The site is 2 3/8 miles east of the Ozona, West (Strawn) field and 3/4 mile southeast of an undiscovered depleted Strawn gas discovery.

CLASSCOCK WORK Champlin Petroleum Co., operating from Midland, has announced a pair of projects in the Conger, Southwest (Pennsylvanian) oil pool of Glasscock County, 15 miles southeast of Garden City. The company also announced potential tests on the ninth and tenth wells in the field. No. 5-A 1. W. Terry is 660 feet from north and 2,100 feet from east lines of section 4, block A-866, EL&RR survey. Contract depth is 8,800 feet. The location is 1/2 mile north and slightly west of Pennsylvanian production and one mile east and slightly north of a well from the same zone. The pool has four producers.

Champlin No. 2 J.E. Watson, also scheduled to 8,800 feet, is one mile east and slightly north of a Pennsylvanian well and 1,980 feet from north and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 3, EL&RR survey and 18 miles southeast of Garden City.

One of the new wells is Champlin No. 1-A 1. W. Terry, 18 miles southeast of Garden City. It finished for a daily flowing potential of 113 barrels of 44.2-gravity oil and 14 barrels of load water, through a 24/64-inch choke and perforations from 8,143 to 8,392 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 11,168-1 and pay was acidized with 4,500 gallons and fractured with 17,000 gallons. Location is 3,700 feet from south and 1,250 feet from east lines of section 4, EL&RR survey.

The second new well is Champlin No. 2-A 1. W. Terry. It finished for a daily flow of 28 barrels of 42.4-gravity oil through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 8,316 to 8,526 feet after 2,500 gallons of acid and 92,600 gallons of fracture fluid. The gas-oil ratio is 11,143-1. Location is 1,000 feet from north and 2,600 feet from west lines of section 4, EL&RR survey.

WARD OILER A flowing well has been added to the War-Wink, South (Wolfcamp) field of Ward County, eight miles west of Pyote. The well, Union Oil Co. of California No. 1-18-19 University at the extreme southwest edge of the field, finished for a daily potential of 173 barrels of 42.8-gravity oil and 58 barrels of water. Completion was through a 20/64-inch choke and perforations from 11,136 to 11,251 feet after 4,000 gallons of acid and 60,000 gallons of fracture fluid. The gas-oil ratio is 2,168-1. Location is 933 feet from north and 1,980 feet from southwest lines of section 19, block 18, University Land survey and 7.5 miles west of Pyote.

REAGAN WELLS Brotherton Production Co. of Midland No. 1-11 University is a new well in the Farmer (San Andres) area of Reagan County, 10 miles southeast of Big Lake. The operator reported a 24-hour flowing potential of 40 barrels of oil, no water, through a 1/2-inch choke and perforations from 2,338 to 2,416 feet. The gravity of the oil is 36 degrees, and the gas-oil ratio is 300-1. The pay was acidized with 3,000 gallons and fractured with 15,000 gallons. Total depth is 2,585 feet, 4.5-inch pipe is set on bottom and hole is

Houston firm spots wildcat in Scurry

Independent Exploration Co. of Houston spotted an 8,600-foot wildcat in Scurry County, six miles southeast of Scurry.

It is No. 1 Hart, 462 feet from north and west lines of section 132, block 3, H&GN survey and 3,500 feet north-west of the Scurry Byrd (Cisco) field which produces at 6,644 feet.

STERLING AREA HMH Operators of Midland No. 1 Gunter is a new well in the Conger (Pennsylvanian) pool of Sterling County, nine miles southwest of Sterling City.

The operator reported a 24-hour flowing potential of 78 barrels of 48-gravity oil and 10 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,184 to 8,065 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 4,884-1.

and the flow was gauged through a 14/64-inch choke. Total depth is 8,240 feet, 4.5-inch pipe is cemented at 8,200 feet and plugged back depth is 8,105 feet. Location is 1,200 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 26, block 22, H&TC survey.

LYNN WELL MH&O Co. of Fort Worth No. 4-A C.S. Davis is a new well in the YWO (San Andres) field of Lynn County, six miles southeast of Wilson. On 24-hour potential test, the well pumped 4 barrels of oil and 100 barrels of water, through perforations from 4,358 to 4,360 feet after a 500-gallon acid treatment. Gravity is 35, and the gas-oil ratio is too small to measure. Total depth is 4,552 feet, 4.5-inch pipe is set on bottom and hole is plugged back to 4,365 feet. Location is 730 feet from south and 2,173 feet from east lines of section 12, block 1, GWT&P survey.

REEVES PROJECT C. H. Wagner of Tarzan staked location for a 250-foot test in the Pamela 150 field of Reeves County, 16 northwest of Toyah. It is No. 1 Mary G. Zanka, 770 feet from north and east lines of section 17, block 59, psi survey.

CROCKETT GASSER J. Cleo Thompson of Dallas No. 6 P. L. Childress has been completed from the Canyon 7520 gas pay one mile south of the Ozona, Northeast multipay field of Crockett County, 11 miles east of Ozona. Operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 1,330,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The gas-oil ratio was 43,001-1 and gravity of the condensate is 65 degrees. Completion was through perforations from 8,614 to 8,633 feet after a 3,500-gallon acid treatment. Location is 1,260 feet from north and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 8, block GH, GC&SF survey.

Some folks don't think commercial a very funny idea

HOUSTON (AP) — Jack-in-the-Box restaurant officials may have been clowning around in ordering a sweet-looking granny to "waste" their symbol in a television commercial, but some people don't think the idea is funny.

"I really think it's a cruddy commercial," Dr. Patrick Brady, a clinical psychologist at the Houston Child Guidance Center, said Thursday.

"It (the commercial) suggests an association of violence with something that is family-oriented. The main audience is kids. They think old ladies are blowing up the Jack-in-the-Box."

Brady says some children are using firecrackers to blow up their jack-in-the-box toys.

The commercial, part of a campaign to change the fast food restaurant's image, shows an elderly lady saying "waste it" when asked what to do with the clown that is the company's symbol.

Workers then destroy the clown by blowing it up.

Pat Miller, spokeswoman for Foodmaker, Inc., the Ralston Purina Co. subsidiary that operates the restaurants, said complaints about the commercial have been "minimal" at the company's San Diego, Calif., headquarters.

"We're very sensitive to this subject," she said. "We didn't intend to offend anyone."

Ms. Miller said the company was changing its image "in a very dramatic way. We're not known for the clown. We're known for our great tasting food."

She said the clowns are being removed from the company restaurants and are being donated to children's hospitals and playgrounds.

Houston attorney Henry Radoff said he is researching a possible federal lawsuit to halt broadcasting the commercial, but Ms. Miller says that the "grandma" commercial is leaving the air this week.

She said the "explosion" commercial will continue to run, as will a second spot showing the clown fading away into the sky.

Radoff says his 4-year-old son refuses to go to the restaurants now because "he's afraid the clown is going to blow up when we drive in there."

He says he complained to the Federal Communications Commission about the ad, but received a letter saying the FCC had no authority to intervene.

Ms. Miller says the only organized protest to the demise of the friendly clown stems from a group of students at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif.

Execution of Jewish leader increases fear in Iran

By The Associated Press

Albert Danielpour, a leader of the 40,000 Jews living in Iran, was executed by Iranian authorities possibly to hide the severe torture he suffered during months of imprisonment on charges of drug smuggling and spying, an expert on Iranian affairs says.

Tehran Radio said Danielpour and four others were executed Thursday in Hamadan, 175 miles southwest of Tehran, for drug offenses and taking part in prison riots. Danielpour, a member of a wealthy family, was also convicted of spying for Israel and supporting former Prime Minister Shapur Bakhtiar.

The fear of Iranian Jews and their families inside and outside of Iran, coupled with the execution of Danielpour, underscores the belief that Jewish life in Iran has worsened considerably in the 16 months since Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime came to power.

Menashe Amir, Iranian affairs analyst for Israeli Broadcasting, said Danielpour was between 45 and 50, and lived in Tehran but had business interests in Hamadan.

While visiting Hamadan three months ago to look into a business dispute, the people opposing him in the matter had him taken to court, Amir said. He was arrested, tried and sentenced to death.

Amir said Danielpour had been severely tortured in prison, and authorities may have executed him to hide the fact from observers from the International Red Cross.

He said that Danielpour's drawn-out trial may have been an attempt to extort money from the wealthy leader, and that a strongly anti-semitic atmosphere in Hamadan encouraged the court to condemn Danielpour to death.

"The execution ... of Albert Danielpour amounts to juridical murder," said Nathan Perlmutter, national director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the Jewish organization based in New York.

"The all-consuming hatred of the Khomeini government for the United States and for Israel has transformed a great civilization into a maddened mob."

Moshe Katsav, a member of the Israeli Parliament, said the execution of Danielpour was another in a series of events that has heightened the fears of the Iranian Jewish community.

"The behind-the-scenes campaign we have conducted until now has proven ineffective," Katsav said of efforts to aid persons such as Danielpour. "We may have to change our tactics."

He said quiet pressure to release the Jewish leader was applied on Iran by many international figures, including from Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky.

Katsav said that leaders of the Iranian Jewish community, centered mostly in Tehran, were afraid to act to protect the community because of fear.

"There are now more than 60 Jews in Iranian prisons," he said. "We have grave fears for those in prison and for those out of prison, who are clearly not free."

Among those in jail are Abraham Baruchin and his 80-year-old father Yitzhak. They are charged on 14 counts that include economic crimes — the family owns a hotel chain — and links to Israel and the United States. Both are under threat of the death penalty, Katsav said.

Restrictions imposed on all Iranians have been especially hard on Iranian Jews, Katsav said. Rules limiting travel outside Iran to 45 days once every two years, and requirements that travelers leave behind hostages to guarantee their return, have affected Jews more than other groups, he said.

This is because Jews, more than other groups, are more mobile, with families outside Iran's borders. Bans on exporting capital make emigration impossible for many.

About 30,000 Jews have left Iran since Khomeini took power. Most live in the United States.

ERA pushing ahead despite indictment of NOW volunteer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A National Organization for Women volunteer has been indicted on charges she offered a $1,000 bribe for a lawmaker's vote for the Equal Rights Amendment, but the push for ERA ratification in Illinois is continuing undaunted, its supporters say.

"We're going to go ahead with the vote this spring," NOW spokeswoman Kathy Bonk said Thursday. "I think (the indictment is) unfortunate, and we hope she'll be proven innocent, but the campaign will definitely be moving ahead."

The FBI, which also had been investigating allegations of improper attempts to influence lawmakers' votes on ERA, said it had found no evidence of federal violations and was ending its inquiry.

A Sangamon County grand jury on Thursday indicted Wanda Brandstetter, a Chicago businesswoman, on charges of offering a $1,000 bribe to freshman Rep. Nord L. Swanstrom to vote for the constitutional amendment.

It depends on attendance, not on outside factors."

Gov. James R. Thompson, who has been lobbying on behalf of the ERA, said, "I don't think the indictment will have any impact on changing votes."

states have rescinded their approval, but the legality of that action is still in question.

Ms. Brandstetter was charged by the grand jury with one count of bribery and one count of soliciting a lawmaker to commit official misconduct by trying to get him to accept the offer.

NRC members favor venting gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — After hearing the advice of experts, most members of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission say they will endorse a plan to release trapped radioactive krypton gas into the air around the disabled Three Mile Island nuclear plant.

Four of the five commissioners, including chairman John F. Ahearne, indicated Thursday they will approve the proposal when it is formally considered next Tuesday. If the plan is approved by a majority, the commission said it would begin the venting sometime around June 24.

"There's a lot of material all of us would like to think through until the vote," Ahearne said after all but commissioner Victor Gilinsky expressed approval of "controlled purge" of the gas.

The remarks were made at the end of a 2½ hour meeting to consider the NRC staff recommendation to vent the trapped gas on 30 separate days over a 60-day period. Most of the session was spent in a review of that advice.

"Each day there are things going on inside the plant that we can't account for," said Harold Denton, director of the NRC Office of Nuclear Regulation and a proponent of venting. "It's that unknown risk that worries me. It's the fact that something may happen while we're waiting. I'd like to get in there with a number of people soon."

Denton did not elaborate on what might be happening inside the sealed plant.

Krypton gas has been trapped inside since the plant was disabled in an accident March 28, 1979. Its removal would be the first physical step toward decontamination of the nuclear facility.

Of 12 proposed methods to remove the gas, the NRC staff chose venting in 15-to-30 minute bursts as the quickest and safest plan.

The staff plan calls for the gas to be expelled evenly in varying directions from the plant, with resulting radiation doses far below federal safety standards.

But commissioner Joseph Hendrie questioned whether anyone could promise absolute safety when there is a possibility that too much gas could escape in a quick burst.

"What could happen is an unacceptable radiation dose to the population. You could really roast somebody," Hendrie said. Later, he rescinded that statement after staffers advised that they "couldn't conceive" of such an occurrence.

Supporters say they still plan to bring the proposed amendment banning sex discrimination to a vote in the House, possibly as soon as next Wednesday. They say they have the 107 votes needed to win if all House members are present.

"I can't see that this (indictment) is going to affect any of our votes," said Rep. Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, a chief ERA sponsor in the House. "Our calling measure passed in the House, it would then go to the Senate where it faces an even tougher battle."

Phyllis Schlafly, who heads STOP ERA, declined to speculate on whether the indictment would help defeat the amendment in Illinois. "I still just don't think they have the votes. I think we will continue to defeat ERA," she said.

Illinois, the only major northern industrial state not to approve the ERA, has been the target of a major ratification effort this spring.

The amendment has been ratified by 35 of the 38 states needed to make it part of the U.S. Constitution. Deadline for ratification is March 1982. Five

Bill would restrict export of hazardous U.S. products

WASHINGTON (AP) — The use of developing nations as "garbage cans" for potentially hazardous products that cannot be sold in the United States would be blocked under legislation now before Congress.

"What is at stake here is the integrity of the label 'Made in USA,'" says Rep. Michael D. Barnes, D-Md., the bill's sponsor.

Barnes, testifying Thursday before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee, said his legislation would restrict the export of hazardous American products.

"Under current law, companies can pretty much export whatever they can convince unsuspecting people abroad to buy," he said.

Many developing countries, Barnes said, lack the money and technical expertise to support a sophisticated regulatory system such as that in the United States.

And he said the so-called corporate dumping has injured American foreign policy as well.

Opposing the proposal was Howard E. Bauman, vice president of the Pillsbury Co. of Minneapolis. He said Pillsbury considers the bill "overly restrictive, potentially detrimental to the exports of foods and commodities and could result in large amounts of unproductive and unnecessary paperwork."

He said Barnes' bill could place U.S. firms in a noncompetitive position overseas.

Among exports the bill would block, Barnes cited:

- Children's sleepwear treated with the flame-retardant substance TRIS. The Consumer Product Safety Commission banned U.S. sale of such garments after research showed TRIS is a cancer-causing agent.
- Pesticides not registered for use in the United States or banned by the Environmental Protection Agency because they "posed unreasonable hazards to human life, wildlife or the environment."

Barnes also told the panel that "foreign-produced food contaminated by banned pesticides exported by the United States continues to seep back into the United States and other developed countries."

He quoted Food and Drug Administration estimates that at least 10 percent of U.S. food imports in 1979 contained residues of pesticides banned in the United States.

Soviets add two cosmos into space

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has fired two more cosmonauts into space in an apparent test mission for the new Soyuz T2 craft. Soviet accounts of the mission left it unclear if the men would link up with the orbiting Salyut 6 space station.

The latest crew was sent aloft Thursday night, just two days after a Soviet bloc Intercosmos mission carrying Soviet commander Valery Kubasov and Hungarian Bertalan Farkas undocked from the Salyut and returned to earth in Soviet Kazakhstan.

Tass said Lt. Col. Yuri V. Malyshev, the mission commander, and flight engineer Vladimir V. Aksenov would be testing the new systems aboard the Soyuz T2 and conducting joint experiments with the Salyut which has been circling the globe since Sept. 29, 1977.

The station currently is manned by Leonid Popov and Valery Ryumin who were sent into orbit April 9 aboard Soyuz 35, a series of shuttle craft which the "T" series evidently will replace.

While this is the first time the "T" has carried a crew, a similar ship was launched last Dec. 16, linked with the Salyut and remained docked with the orbiting craft until March 24. The Salyut was unmanned at the time.

Parks and Wildlife accused of exploiting state's environment

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission seems more interested in exploiting the state's environment than protecting it, according to a conservationist leader.

Ned Fritz, chairman of the Texas Committee on Natural Resources, was backed by leaders of several other environmental groups Thursday as he assailed the commission in a news conference at commission headquarters.

"I am more concerned about the chairman (Perry Bass of Fort Worth) than any other member," Fritz said.

He said he twice had been denied a position on the commission's agenda to address his complaints to the six commissioners face to face.

Fritz was finally allowed to speak to the commission after a day-long meeting that ended about 6 p.m.

Bass simply replied, "Thank you" after Fritz's comments.

At the news conference, Fritz said Bass and other commissioners had "meddled" and overruled staff scientists on environmental matters.

He said examples included a reversal of the Parks and Wildlife's position on proposed water releases from Possum Kingdom Lake into the Brazos River and withdrawal of opposition to the dredging of a harbor at Rockport.

Fritz also complained that the commission had allowed an oil company to drill on Hale Ranch State Park, contrary to past policy of requiring directional drilling from outside park boundaries.

"I feel ... that the commission does not have sufficient concern for the environment ... but is overridden by concern for exploitation, particularly private exploitation," Fritz said.

Decisions to reverse positions taken by staff experts have been made without a public hearing or a public vote in possible violation of the Texas Open Meetings Act, he said.

The Possum Kingdom decision was made after Bass conferred privately with several other commissioners, according to the letter signed by the agency's executive director, Dickie Travis.

"The problem is that Commissioner Bass is acting in a manner that is basically illegal," said Sharon Stewart of Lack Jackson, immediate past president of the Texas Environmental Coalition.

Violations of the open meetings law can be dealt with in essentially two ways — criminal charges or lawsuits to invalidate actions taken.

"I don't consider either option a good option, but if the commission doesn't take stock of the way they conduct business, we may have no other choice," Ms. Stewart said.

Fritz recommended that the commission: — Re-endorse staff recommendations in cases where it had reversed them.

Croatians responsible for blast

NEW YORK (AP) — Croatian "freedom fighters," possibly those who took responsibility for a bombing at the Washington home of the Yugoslavian ambassador, are probably responsible for the recent bombing of the Statue of Liberty, says the FBI.

Both blasts occurred on the same day this week. Similar letters, written in Croatian and claiming responsibility for the Tuesday night blast, were received by The New York Times and NBC News, said the FBI-Police Department Terrorist Task Force.

The blast, which resulted in no injuries, caused moderate damage to a room at the base of the monument containing historical documents. There was no damage to the giant national landmark.

M-Cubs return home tonight

Hope to snap temporary slump

Midland's Cubs return home from a 10-game road trip into the hostile Texas League East Division to open a six-game homestand with a Two-Bit Beer Night game against the Amarillo Gold Sox at 7:30 tonight at Cubs Stadium.

The stand will be highlighted by Sunday's 6:30 p.m. game when the San Diego Chicken will make its long-awaited Cubs Stadium appearance.

Saturday night will be Kowasaki T-Shirt night.

The revamped Cubs were 4-6 on the recent swing through Tulsa and Little Rock, which was a big improvement over the 1-9 posted against the same clubs in the Tall City.

The Cubs' roster has been shaken up in the last three weeks with outfielder Jared Martin, shortstop Jesus Alfaro, catcher George Enright and pitcher Vinny Valentini joining the club from Wichita.

Midland, however, did lose pitcher Steve Viskas, 4-2, to the American Association Aeros.

Alfaro takes a .360 batting average and a nine-game hitting streak into tonight's game. Hottest bat in the Midland lineup, however, belongs to first baseman Joe Hicks, who is 14 for his last 34 trips, a nifty 412 clip.

The power in the lineup is being supplied by outfielder Randy La Vigne, who leads the team in doubles, 10, homers, six, and runs-batted-in.

ing pitching mid tonight against the Gold Sox.

CUB QUICKIES — Midland is 2-30 in doubleheaders, 1-5 in extra innings and 4-30 in one-run decisions. Midland has played before 28,773 fans on the road, an average of 2,800 per game, which, if they are drawing as well against other teams at home, Texas League attendance is booming.

Cubs at home

Tonight—Amarillo, Two Bit Beer Night, 7:30 p.m.
Saturday—Amarillo, Kawasaki T-shirt night, 7:30 p.m.
Sunday—Amarillo, The San Diego Chicken, 6:30 p.m.
Monday—Amarillo at 7:30 p.m.
Tuesday—Amarillo at 7:30 p.m.
Wednesday—Amarillo at 7:30 p.m.

NCAA track meet begins in wind

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sprinters Mike Roberson of Florida State and James Sanford of Southern California had the same feelings, the same results, the same amount of wind and the same disappointment Thursday night at the NCAA Track and Field championships.

"I was running really relaxed," Roberson said after blistering the University of Texas' fast Memorial Stadium track with a clocking of 19.95 seconds in a trial heat of the 200-meter dash.

Unfortunately for both runners, the wind in each race was 3.39 meters per second. For a sprint race to be eligible for record consideration, the prevailing wind must be no more than 2 meters per second.

If Roberson's record had been acceptable, it easily would have smashed the collegiate mark of 20.83 by Clancy Edwards of Southern Cal in 1978 and it would have approached the best time by an American, Tommie Smith's 19.83 in the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City. The fastest clocking in the world is 19.72 by Italy's Pietro Mennea last year, also in Mexico City.

Had Sanford's time not been wind aided, he would have bettered the collegiate record of 10.02 he set May 11 at Los Angeles. And he would have come close to the American and world marks of 9.95 established by Jim Heinz at the 1968 Olympics.

Sanford, beaten last week for the first time this year in the 100 by Houston's Carl Lewis, also was impressive Thursday night in his trial heat in the 100 and on Southern Cal's 400 meter relay team.

In the 200, Sanford won his heat in 20.21, beating defending champion Greg Foster of UCLA. The race was marred by a wind of 2.76 meters per second.

Hawaii, Arizona to tangle

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Hawaii's young, surprising Rainbows, the talk of the Islands and the darlings of the College World Series, take on tough, battle-scarred Arizona Friday night for the NCAA baseball title.

The Wildcats have earned the final hard way. They were upset by St. John's 6-1 in their opener, but battled back through the losers' bracket to reach the title game.

Arizona outlasted Pac 10 rival California, 11-10, Thursday night in an error-filled slugfest to determine which club would meet Hawaii. The Rainbows had been beaten 6-4

Wednesday night by the Wildcats.

"Not in our wildest dreams did we think we'd be playing for the title in the College World Series," Hawaii Coach Les Murakami said late Thursday after learning that Arizona would be his Rainbows' opponent.

Dozens of telegrams and telephone calls from Hawaii Thursday night wished the Rainbows well, team spokesman Ed Inouye said.

While Hawaii received a bye into the championship game because the Rainbows stayed undefeated in the tournament longer than any other team, California and Arizona staged a typical Pac 10-dominant to earn the right to the final.

"Everytime we play them it's the same kind of game," said Cal catcher Tom Colburn, who did his part by driving in three runs with a homer and a triple Thursday night. "They don't quit, we don't quit. If we only had one more inning."

"This was a typical game," said Cal Coach Bob Williams. "Usually, the team with the last at-bat wins."

Coach Jerry Kindall of Arizona agreed, saying, "I have a lot of sadness for California. They're from the same mold."

Cal built an 8-3 lead in the fourth, with the big blow coming on a two-run homer and single by Colburn and solo homers by Dan McDermott and Ron Jensen.

The Wildcats scored five runs in a big fifth inning to tie the score 6-6, on singles by Clark, Crist and Don Hyman, doubles by Dwight Taylor and Terry Francona, and sacrifice flies by Wes Clements and Pat Ruesesser.

The Golden Bears made it 10-6 when they capitalized on two Arizona errors, the big one a costly overthrow of first base by game winner Jeff Morris.

Coaches ask for fairer treatment from media

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Paterno and Dick Vermeil, two of the nation's top football coaches, suggested Thursday that newspapers be more fair in dealing with collegiate and professional athletes.

Paterno, coach at Penn State, and Vermeil, head of the professional Philadelphia Eagles, told sports editors they would like to have a mutual meeting ground with newspapers.

Both coaches, along with Lefty

Driesell, Maryland's basketball coach, said that they would try to set up meetings with representatives of the news media and their profession in an effort to open up communications between the two vocations which, in the past, have had an adversarial relationship.

The three coaches, and Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, were members of a panel during the seventh annual convention of the Associated Press Sports Editors, the association of sports editors who are members of The Associated Press.

"This was a good affair for me," said Paterno. "I learned something. The coaches are looking for ways to communicate."

Paterno said it would be a good idea for five or six sports editors to meet with representatives of the coaches football association in an effort to open up communications.

All three coaches agreed that it would be useful for newspapermen who are covering their teams to meet with the athletes before the season starts and try to explain the relationship between the two.

In fact, Vermeil said he would hold a clinic during the pre-season training camp among the writers and the players at Westchester, Pa., where the Eagles train.

"We do have a problem," Paterno said. "Instead of two groups being excited by the same thing, it is slowly deteriorating. We don't trust you and you don't trust us."

"Now I don't feel very comfortable about what I say. I now find myself very uptight in any conversation with news people," Paterno said. "We've got a lot of people uncomfortable with each other."

The Golden Bears made it 10-6 when they capitalized on two Arizona errors, the big one a costly overthrow of first base by game winner Jeff Morris.

Rangers feel wrath of red-hot Royals

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The way the torrid Kansas City Royals are playing, it may not matter how well or how poorly their opponents are performing.

The Royals just keep on winning.

"It just doesn't matter. It's not a case of just having one or two guys hitting. We've got a whole team hitting," said Frank White, whose three-run homer got the Royals going in their 8-0 trouncing of the Texas Rangers Thursday night.

White has hit safely in 13 of his last 15 games, and the Royals have won 14 of their last 18.

Kansas City's eight hits off starter Jim Kern, 2-8, were by eight different batters, and by the time the night was over the Royals had pounded out 14 hits against four Texas pitchers. Five different Royals stole bases in the game.

Kern, the league's premier reliever last season, was forced into his first mound start in four years because of injuries that sidelined three Texas starters. But troubles that have bothered him earlier this season were evident again against Kansas City.

White and Amos Otis hit homers, U.L. Washington tripled, Clint Hurdle and Willie Aikens doubled and three other Royals singled before Kern departed in the fifth.

Three successors couldn't stem the tide. Meanwhile, Kansas City's Dennis Leonard, 5-5, was virtually untouchable. The Rangers got only three singles, by Mickey Rivers in the third, Rusty Staub in the fourth and Al Oliver in the ninth.

"The thing that he did tonight that he hadn't done against us before is he threw a lot of off-speed stuff and got it over," Texas catcher Jim Sundberg said.

It was the second straight game that Texas batters were stifled on three hits.

"Since I've been here, I've never seen performances like we've had back to back. We've got to put this behind us and go out and get a win," said Texas' Richlie Zisk.

Asked if he looked good because the Texas hitters were doing so poorly, Leonard said:

"I don't know about that, but it's the first time all year I've been able to get every pitch where I wanted it," Leonard said.

"We looked listless, but maybe it was because that guy on the mound (Leonard) didn't help any," Texas Manager Pat Corrales said. "He threw the ball well."

With starting pitchers Steve Comer and Danny Darwin on the 21-day disabled list and Ferguson Jenkins out since May 27, Texas has gone to the bullpen for its starting pitchers the last two games, and had no one fresh in reserve.

Tech taskmasters offer predictions to local boosters

By TED BATTLES, Sports Editor

Texas Tech may have a fast break in basketball and it may have the wide receiver speed it so longed for last football season if predictions by cage coach Gerald Myers and football assistant Bob Patterson come true.

Myers told Raider exes Wednesday night at their annual barbecue in the American Legion Hall that Tech strengthened itself in the two areas where it was weakest last year.

"It was a good recruiting year for us," Myers pointed out. "We had a good shooting club last year, but were weak in other areas, such as rebounding and ball handling."

"We signed Bubba Jennings (Clovie, N.M.) and he may be the best guard prospect we've ever had at Tech. He's only five-10, but has arms that hang to his knees, can dunk and averaged 33 points last year. We also recruited a 6-8 out of Grayson County College and a 6-6 out of Tyler. They should give us depth inside and the rebounding strength we missed last year when we were last in the conference."

MYERS ADDED. "And we will fast break and run if we can get the rebounds."

Another big plus for Tech's hoopssters will be the return of junior Jeff Taylor. He's 6-4 with quickness to go with his jumping ability. Defensively, he's a leach. "We figured it up last year and the players he guarded last season made only 21 per cent of their shots."

Patterson, pinch-hitting for head coach Rex Dockery, revealed that Renie Baker, a transfer from Blinn JC, and Jamie Harris, McKinney, are recruits who could give Tech the speed at wide receiver that was so missed a year ago when opposing defenses bunched up against the Tech running game without fear of being burned by the long bomb. Tech simply didn't have the speed to exploit the opposition's defenses.

Patterson also predicted that the Raiders will be "extremely good" up front and Ted Watts "one of the better backs in the country" will head up a strong secondary that will also include Fort Stockton's Tate Handle at strong safety.

TECH LINES: James Rudolph

Patterson also predicted that the Raiders will be "extremely good" up front...

the 1,000-yard-plus workhorse out of the backfield, but Patterson looks for great things from Norman Hill, a 6-2, 205, running back out of Nashville. "If he doesn't play wide receiver or defense, he's so good everybody wants him."

Patterson noted that Midland's playing for Tech this season will be linebacker Rusty Maroney, offensive tackle Blake Feitt, "who we weren't smart enough to recruit, but walked-on and won a scholarship"; defensive tackle Herb Pearce and linebacker Jeff McCowan.

Patterson revealed that Alan Swann, defensive back from Odessa, recently underwent leg surgery three weeks ago after missing much of last season as a result of an injury.

Prospects look better for Tech this season if for no other reason than that the first four games will be at home and the opener will not be against Southern California. "That was some hill to climb last year," he said noting that UTEP will take the "Trojans' place."

Eddie Robinson goes shopping for mound help

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers approached other major league teams Thursday with a shopping list of veteran hurlers that could help shore up an injury-riddled pitching corps.

"There are one or two veteran pitchers we might be able to get. It's merely talk so far. I talked to several general managers at the baseball meeting in Chicago today," said Rangers General Manager Eddie Robinson.

"It's not anybody who would knock your eyes out, I don't think," he added.

Robinson ruled out Los Angeles pitcher Don Sutton, but declined to elaborate further, except to say the most serious possibilities were one pitcher from the National League and two from the American League.

Starting pitchers Steve Comer and Danny Darwin are on the 21-day disabled list — Comer with a sore shoulder and Darwin with a broken finger. Another starter, Ferguson Jenkins, hasn't pitched since May 27 because of a sore shoulder.

Jim Kern, honored as the league's top relief pitcher last year, started for Texas Thursday night, his first starting assignment in four years.

It was the second straight game the Rangers turned to the bullpen for a starter. Reliever Dave Rajsich started the second game of Texas' doubleheader Wednesday against the Chicago White Sox.

The alternative to a trade, Robinson said, would be calling up Brian Allard, 5-3, from Texas' class AAA farm club at Charleston, W. Va.

"We're just not certain that's the move to make at this point," Robinson said.

The Rangers activated Rusty Staub Thursday and inserted him into the lineup as the designated hitter in the cleanup spot. Staub went onto the disabled list after breaking a finger April 30. He was hitting .412 when he got hurt.

Robinson said the team hasn't decided whether to put third baseman Buddy Bell, a .318-hitter, onto the disabled list. Bell, who had missed a few games with a hurt back, pulled a muscle in his rib cage Tuesday against Chicago and team officials said the prospect was glum about his chances of returning soon.

Cardinals continue downhill slide with 2-1 setback to Mets

In National League games Thursday night, the Montreal Expos blanked the Chicago Cubs 2-0, the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1. Meanwhile, the American League game between the Toronto Blue Jays and the Minnesota Twins was postponed because of heavy rains.

Rowland Office hit his first home run of the season, a two-run shot in the seventh inning, to back the six-hit pitching of Scott Sanderson and lift Montreal over Chicago.

After Warren Cromartie beat out a one-out bunt, Office slammed the first pitch by starter Dennis Lamp, 4-5, over the right-field fence.

Sanderson, 6-3, struck out eight and walked two.

Mike Jorgensen's bases-loaded pinch single in the ninth drove in Steve Henderson to give the Mets their victory over St. Louis.

Henderson singled and stole second, Joel Youngblood walked and Alex Trevino beat out a bunt. Then Jorgensen batted for Doug Flynn.

George Hendrick put the Cardinals ahead in the second with a home run.

Prospects look better for Tech this season if for no other reason than that the first four games will be at home and the opener will not be against Southern California. "That was some hill to climb last year," he said noting that UTEP will take the "Trojans' place."

Can Funches really deliver the punches?

NEW YORK (AP) — Barry Funches is a fledgling pro heavy-weight fighter who is a veteran mailman...and if that isn't an invitation to one-liners, what is?

—“Is he stamped for greatness?”

—“Can he go the route?”

Enough.

So, Funches, who is thought to be 31 — “Just say I’m over 25” — will make the latest of his appointed rounds as a fledgling pro when he fights Melvin Epps in a scheduled eight-round fight Friday night at the Madison Square Garden’s Felt Forum. The main event will be a 10-round welterweight bout between Luis Resto, 12-4-4, of New York and Juan Hiladgo, 18-2, of Miami.

Fighting is no joke for Funches, who after a 40-fight amateur career spread over several years decided to try the pros.

“I thought I’d try to get an idea about what’s it like, and try to to make some money,” said Funches, who has been a deliverer of mail for almost nine and years and who has been delivering punches for money for about two.

The money is important for Funches, a native of the tough Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn who is trying to pay his wife’s way through nursing school.

“The biggest purse I’ve had is $750,” said Funches who is 3-1-1 and will equal his top payday against Epps, 3-1, of New York who is a substitute for Luis Acosta, an Argentine with an 8-0 record.

“He didn’t want to fight me,” said Funches, sounding like a fighter.

But in these days of really physically big heavyweights, Funches might be built more like a mailman — 6-foot, 195 pounds.

“I’m used to fighting big guys,” said Funches. “The last guy had 50 pounds over me.”

On April 18 at the Felt Forum, Funches knocked out 250-pound Lou Esa in the sixth round.

He really delivered that night.

Enough.

New York’s Hayes trips featherweight Sibaca

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Gerald Hayes of New York scored a split decision over South African featherweight champion Bashaw Sibaca in a 10-round fight Wednesday night.

Two judges scored the fight 99-96 and 97-96 for Hayes while the third had Sibaca winning 96-95.

Sibaca showed tenacity and guts, but Hayes packed the punches. He rocked Sibaca on numerous occasions with left hooks, followed by right crosses and punched his way to victory.

Light on his feet

'The Shining' not very scary movie

By the Associated Press
"THE SHINING," billed as a "masterpiece of modern horror," fails in one vital regard: it isn't very scary. Stanley Kubrick offers the intriguing premise of a man who takes his wife and young son to a Colorado Rockies resort where he is caretaker during the winter doldrums. The hotel seems empty, but a variety of phantoms are registered, including a former employee and the family he murdered. They help push the husband into a murderous rampage. Kubrick is master of visual images, and many of the scenes display his brilliance.

'The Empire Strikes Back' recreates cocky role of star, Harrison Ford

NEW YORK (AP) — On screen, Harrison Ford is best known as the wise-cracking, tough-talking Han Solo, who recently recreated his "Star Wars" role in "The Empire Strikes Back."

Off screen, Ford isn't so cocky. In fact, he's a very relaxed, soft-spoken man who enjoys reminiscing about how he decided to become an actor when he flunked out of college three days before graduation.

"That was 1965," recalled the handsome 36-year-old actor, "and it was presumed that you had to have a degree to have a job. I did a couple of plays in college, but I never considered acting as a possible career. Then, as I thought about it, it seemed like a terrific way to make money. At the time, I didn't know how difficult it was."

According to Ford, the hardest aspect of show business was to get started and to get those first jobs. "The odds are impossible," he said. "If you submit to the odds, you're dead. I was inordinately lucky from the beginning."

The beginning came shortly after he arrived in Los Angeles. Spotted in a play in Laguna Beach, Ford was sent to see the head of casting at Columbia. It was the first time he had ever been in a movie studio.

"A little guy smoking a cigar and holding two telephones greeted me," he remembered. "He said, 'Who sent you?' When he didn't recognize my name, he took my age and my weight and said, 'If anything happens, I'll give you a call.'"

Figuring that was it, Ford walked toward the elevators and was about to leave. Instead, he went to the men's room.

"If I'd gotten on the elevators I would have missed his assistant who came running out saying, 'Come on back. He wants to talk to you.' I went back and he said, 'How would you like to be under contract?' I didn't even know what that was."

"He said 'it's a seven-year contract and I'll start you at a 150 bucks a week.' I said okay and that's how I became an actor. I still don't know how that guy decided he wanted me, but that's the game."

Actually, the acting game wasn't all it was cracked up to be and Ford quickly became disillusioned with his $150-a-week movie contract.

"Their idea was to revise the 1930s system of building stars," he explained. "They shipped me off to the studio barber to get my hair pompadoured like Elvis Presley and all kinds of unnatural things. It didn't work out too well and I left after a year and a half.

"What's appreciated in this business," said Ford, "is some kind of individuality. If they mold you, they have to mold you in some shape or another and it sure won't be your own. You have to find your own solution to the problems. Even if it takes you a little longer, it's still the best way."

Ironically for Ford, shortly after he was released from his contract with Columbia, he found himself in a similar situation with Universal Studios. After playing bit parts in television shows, Ford decided to begin looking for another career. He turned to carpentry and was about to become immersed in his new trade when George Lucas offered him the role of a dragster in his film, "American Graffiti."

Country music pilgrims prepare for annual fair

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fifteen thousand pilgrims arrive next week from as far away as Japan to worship the wine and twang of country music at the ninth annual Fan Fair.

This is not Plymouth Rock, and the Mayflower isn't headed this way, but the 15,000 will form their own not-so-tiny colony beginning Monday.

For $35 a person, the country music fans get to attend four days of concerts, a celebrity softball tournament, a fiddling contest, and stroll through an exhibition area displaying guitars and other things even remotely associated with country music.

ALL THIS PROMPTS AN invasion of Instamatic-carrying, casually dressed refugees from factories in places like Birmingham, Evansville and Sheyboygan, who come to pay homage to the snappy guitar lick and the mournful, pour-your-heart-out country song.

With the men in shiny cowboy boots and the women in discount store tennis shoes, and most everyone dressed in brightly colored T-shirts proclaiming things like "I Love Country Music," it's a convention of Middle American culture.

THERE WILL BE 274 booths at the Municipal Auditorium exhibiting things like clothing, records, musical instruments and souvenirs. Record companies also sponsor booths, where singing stars appear to sign autographs and pose for pictures — occasionally triggering tempers among pushing, exuberant fans.

But the main attraction is foot-stompin' country music. You won't be able to go to many country music concerts across the country next week because most of the major stars are here to perform: Ronnie Milsap, Barbara Mandrell, Conway Twitty, the Oak Ridge Boys, Brenda Lee, Eddie Rabbitt, Moe Bandy, Roy Drusky, Boots Randolph, Bill Monroe and others.

THERE'S COUNTRY MUSIC here year-round, but the four days of concerts and the booths are arranged especially for Fan Fair.

The festival begins Monday with a celebrity softball tournament involving teams representing country music stars like Miss Mandrell, the Oak Ridge Boys, Loretta Lynn, Johnny Cash, Larry Gatlin, Twitty and others.

Tuesday, there's a square dance and the softball continues. Then there are three concerts Wednesday, four on Thursday, four Friday and two Saturday. The Grand Masters Fiddling Championship wraps up Fan Fair on Sunday.

THE CONCERTS OFFER 25 hours of all kinds of country music — progressive, traditional, bluegrass, Cajun, even some gospel.

The most energetic pilgrims will head for the bars at sundown, attacking the beer and the bourbon, and asking the leisure-suited house bands to play "Behind Closed Doors" for the 17th time in the week.

Some will make the trek to see Cash's palatial home on Old Hickory Lake. Even though it's 40 minutes one way from downtown Nashville and gas is $1.18 a gallon, that's a minor expense for those who journeyed here from England and Switzerland for the week.

THE ACTIVITIES ARE co-sponsored by the Country Music Association and the Grand Ole Opry.

Nan Martin in new role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nan Martin has been signed for a role in "True Confessions," adapted from the book by John Gregory Dunne.

The movie stars Robert De Niro and Robert Duvall as the brothers who become a priest and a detective.

Tony Awards to be Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Tyler Moore and Jason Robards will be co-hosts for "The 34th Annual Tony Awards" special on CBS on Sunday, June 8.

The presentation of awards for excellence in the theater will come from the Mark Hellinger Theater in New York.

SUNDAY SPECIAL:

MC short courses will begin June 9

Summer evening short courses begin the week of June 9 at Midland College with a variety of classes ranging from How to make Your Own Lingerie to beginning karate.

James Bramlett, director of MC Department of Community Services, noted that five of the courses are geared toward beginners, and intermediate courses in most of those will be offered later in the year.

A three-evening course in defensive driving will be taught by Jack Moore on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, from 7 to 10 p.m.

This a classroom course taught with the use of audio-visual equipment and instructor dialogue. Classes are limited to 35 students and the course fee is $15.

Karate I, Tae Kwon Do, is a four-week course for beginners and teaches the Korean art of self-defense. Lee Yoo Sun, course instructor, stresses mental and physical discipline and the defensive techniques used against one or several opponents.

Classes meet 7-9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and the course fee is $32.

For those who have no prior instruction in the art of belly dancing, Karen Sharma offers a beginner's course which emphasizes building muscle tone and improves posture.

Belly Dancing I is limited to 20 students meeting 7-9 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays. The course fee is $16.

Joe Salman holds a four-week course in beginning bridge which covers the Goren method of introduction, bidding, play of hands, leads and scoring.

Bridge I classes meet 7-9 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays and are limited to 16 students. Course fee is $16.

The principles of real estate are explained in a three-semester credit hour course, Real Estate 1302, meeting 7-10 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays over a period of four weeks.

Supervised by Don Harvey and a staff of qualified instructors, information covers the fundamentals of the realty profession including salesmanship and brokerage. The MC Business Office should be contacted regarding the course fee.

Students interested in learning the basics of watercolor art will benefit from Judy Morrison's classes which begin June 9 and continue through June 25.

Watercolor deals with composition and perspective. Students should bring their own paper, brushes, colors and water container to the first class.

Course fee is $15 and classes meet 7-9:30 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays for three weeks.

A beginning course in oil painting will be taught by Judy Morrison and is limited to 18 students.

Oil Painting I includes demonstrations and participation in painting, design and technique. Students furnish their own supplies and cost is up to the individual. The fee for the course is $18 and classes meet 7-10 p.m. Tuesday and Thursdays for three weeks.

Interior decorating I taught by Ellen Hinson, explains the basics of using color, design, texture, wall paper, fabric, carpet and draperies. Classes are limited to 25 students who will prepare individual projects.

The fee for the course is $12 and classes meet 7-9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays for three weeks.

Aerobic Dancing is a new course added to the schedule this summer and will be instructed by Carole McCarter.

Each 90-minute session includes both exercise and dance movements accompanied by disco, ballroom and ballet music.

Classes meet 8-9:30 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursdays for four weeks and the course fee is $12.

How to Make Your Own Lingerie will be taught in two three-hour sessions beginning at 7 p.m. June 12 and ending June 19.

Course instructor Jennifer Cochran will demonstrate ways to obtain proper fit and construction when making slips, canisoles and other undergarments. Classes are limited to 18 students and each should bring their sewing machines to both sessions. The course will cost $18.

Pre-registration for the above courses is in progress now in room 156 of the Midland College Administration Building. The office will remain open 7 a.m.-noon and 12:30-3:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. More information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

Circus priest likes nomadic life

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Rev. David Hennessey's congregation is just a bunch of clowns — and daredevils, lion tamers, acrobats and roustabouts. "Father David," as he is called, is America's only full-time minister to circus people.

"The nomadic life suits me," said the Roman Catholic priest. "The traveling, the fresh air, dealing with young, strong-hearted people. It's the cleanest entertainment in the world."

Hennessey, 68, an Englishman who was a ship's cook before becoming a priest, was assigned to the circus ministry with Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus 18 months ago by the U.S. Roman Catholic Church Commission for Peoples on the Move. The appointment was ratified by the Vatican.

Hennessey administers Communion from a card table on a sawdust-covered floor next to the tiger cage — or sometimes in front of the elephants. With two or three performances six days a week, Mass is sandwiched between the matinee and evening performances on Saturday and Sunday.

"There's no glamour attached to my job, but to me it's very satisfying, from a priestly point of view," said

Hennessey, who travels in a battered old trailer.

"It's very important for these good people to have some sort of religious oasis, I'm doing something that needs doing," he said in a recent interview before the circus' arrival here for a two-week stand now underway.

About a third of the 300-member circus company are Catholics, but all 300 are members of Hennessey's flock. The priest usually sits at a card table backstage reading theology during the performances. "I'm within striking distance if there's a mishap," he said.

"We've never had any real serious accidents since I've been here," Hennessey said, crossing himself. "We've had, thank God, slight accidents, where a person has been incapacitated for a while but not put out of commission for good."

In addition to his regular duties, Hennessey counsels the circus troupe on personal problems, visits the ill or injured, teaches catechism classes and officiates at weddings and baptisms.

While in Philadelphia, for example, Hennessey planned to arrange for a Polish-speaking priest to baptize a baby born recently to one of the Polish teeterboard performers.

Long distance rates climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will cost you more, starting Friday, to make a long-distance telephone call.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. will raise long-distance rates by 5.1 percent, the first increase since 1976.

The exact amount of increase will vary depending on the frequency and timing of customers' calls. For example, according to Bell, a three-minute, direct dial weekday call from Washington to Los Angeles will cost $1.37, seven cents more than now.

A person-to-person, operator-assisted call Washington and Los Angeles will go from $3.55 to $3.75.

The increase was approved Wednesday by the Federal Communications Commission, a week after the FCC turned down as larger than warranted a 10.5 percent rate increase sought by Bell.

Bell spokesman Pic Wagner said the increase will produce $568 million in new annual revenues for the entire telephone industry, of which $499 million will go to Bell. The difference between the two figures reflects the payments that Bell makes to independent phone companies that are connected to the long-distance network.

Man gored by buffalo

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo. (AP) — A herd of about 20 buffalo attacked and gored a man who tried to pet a buffalo calf at Hot Springs State Park here, authorities reported Tuesday.

Reuben Jenkins, 37, of Riverton, was gored at least eight times in his back, chest, throat and legs, and was in critical condition in Memorial Hospital's intensive care unit, a hospital spokesman said.

Hot Springs County Sheriff Walter Harvey said Jenkins apparently got out of a car and was trying to pet the calf when the buffalo attacked in the incident Tuesday.

Jenkins' companions alerted medics, who treated him on the scene and then transported him to the hospital, Harvey said.
