Khomeini ready to 'finish enemies'

Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has called for a cultural revolution "to finish the enemies of God," wipe out remnants of Iranian life as it was under the deposed shah and place Moslem clergy in charge of education, Tehran radio reported Satur-

The foreign minister stopped in Stockholm for consultations with Swedish Socialist leader Olof Palme after attending a meeting of the Socialist International in Oslo, Norway.

Saturday was the 224th day in captivity for the 53 Americans held by Islamic militants in Iran.

Reports of Khomeini's newly announced "Cultural Revolution" were carried on Tehran radio and monitored by Western reporters in Tehran. European newspapers also reported Khomeini's statement.

According to Tehran radio, Khomeini said: "For a long time the necessity of (a) Cultural Revolution which is an Islamic task was demanded by the Moslem nation. It is feared that if we lose the opportunity and no positive steps are taken, we will be left with the culture of the old regime, like the time that the universities were in the service of colonialism and only very few committed Moslems could get to the universi-

Antitrust battles long, costly for both sides

By The Associated Press

Copiers, cameras and computers have been involved in antitrust suits - court battles generally brought by the Davids of industry against the Goliaths. Sometimes, the federal government takes on industry itself.

Almost always, the fight is long and costly for both sides - long enough that one client, one case, could be a life's work for an antitrust lawyer.

Many such suits are settled out of court - sometimes generously. And federal antitrust law provides for damage awards to be automatically trebled.

A federal jury in Chicago on Friday returned the latest, largest antitrust award, awarding MCI Communications Corp. $600 million - automatically trebled to $1.8 billion - from American Telephone & Telegraph Co. AT&T said it will appeal.

AT&T faces about 40 similar antitrust suits, and has settled some out-of-court - including one by International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., which sought $125,

In that settlement, AT&T agreed to buy $2 billion in products and services from ITT and promised to deposit $200 million with ITT by 1984. ITT dropped its suit.

An antitrust suit filed in 1969 by the federal government against International Business Machines Corp., has been on trial in federal court in Manhattan since May,

The government, which charges IBM monopolized the systems industry and wants IBM split up, completed its case on April 26, 1978. IBM has been presenting its defense since then. The case is now struck from the rear.

expected to wind up this summer, and appeals are expected.

Also in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, a federal jury awarded Berkey Photo, Inc. $37.6 million in 1978, after another jury determined Eastman Kodak Co. had illegally monopolized the amateur photographic markets since

U.S. District Judge Marvin E. Frankel threw out part of the award, and the U.S. Court of Appeals later vacated all but $990,000. The appeals court said a re-trial could be

In another major case, a federal judge in Hartford, Conn., ruled in 1978 that Xerox Corp. could not be forced to pay antitrust damages to SCM Corp., despite Xerox's 10-year domination of the plain-paper copying industry.

The jury had awarded SCM $37.3 million in damages from the Stamford, Conn.-based Xerox. But U.S. District Judge Jon O. Newman overturned the award and rejected SCM's claim for $500 million.

SCM of New York had claimed in the 1973 suit that Xerox illegally dominated the industry in violation of antitrust law. The judge found the only injury was related to patent law. .

Antitrust suits aren't the only litigation that produce huge awards. In 1978, a jury awarded 18-year-old Richard Grimshaw of Orange, Calif., $127.8 million in damages against Ford Motor Co.

The suit stemmed from a 1972 accident that left Grimshaw severely burned and maimed when the Pinto in which he was a passenger exploded in flames after being

Recent derailment raises safety questions Midland prepared for accidents, chemical spills

By SUSAN BAKER Staff Writer

The railroad has played an important role in the development of the city of Midland, which owes its beginning in part to the extension of a Texas and Pacific line from Fort Worth to El Paso.

But the derailment of two tank cars carrying a toxic chemical last week in Garland stirred a number of questions about the safety of the railroad here - how the city is prepared for a similar disaster, what safety measures have been taken by the railroad and local law authorities, and what responsiblity individal motorists have toward avoiding cartrain accidents.

Law officials evacuated some 8,000 Garland residents from their homes when the derailed cars began leaking a highly poisonous chemical, styrene

THE TRAINS CARRY "everything, from refinery products to new cars," including a large amount of toxic chemicals.

According to Missouri-Pacific train master R. Hanfeld, most of the harmful substances are carried on "through" trains, those that pass through Midland without stopping to load or unload the material. Many of these trains are on east coast-west coast through routes, he said.

The only place in Midland where chemicals change hands is at the Dowell Division of Dow Chemical Co.'s regional station, where tanks of hydrochloric acid are unloaded for

"Probably the most dangerous chemical we handle is vinyl chloride, but we also carry large amounts of LPG, or liquid petroleum gas," Hanfeld said. He added that, in the event of a rupture, the explosive LPG would be just as dangerous as vinyl chlo-

HANFELD NOTED that numerous derailments have occurred in the area, but no ruptures. "We work very closely with the Department of Public Safety and the local police depart-

Safety measures taken by Missouri-Pacific to avoid catastrophe are numerous, Hanfeld said. "We provide the fire and police departments with information on emergency procedures and our handling of toxic materials. And we have a computer system that provides us with information regarding safety procedures," he said. He added that Missouri-Pacific is the only major railroad using this equipment

The railroad also has available an information hotline in Washington, D.C., called Camtrack, which can be called any time of day for advice in the event of an emergency. "We have that telephone number stenciled on the sides of most of our tank cars," said Hanfeld.

In case of a serious accident, the city of Midland is prepared, claimed Assistant City Manager Fred Poe. 'In the event of a derailment and rupture, we'd just follow the regular emergency procedure that we have set up for emergencies of any kind."

POE SAID arrangements have already been made for the city to have at its disposal any equipment it would few phone calls."

The police and fire department switchboards are provided with phonenumbers of the city manager, mayor and civil defense coordinator. They would be alerted in case of an emergency and would set up a central headquarters from which to operate.

"If evacuation was necessary, that would be done by the police and fire departments," he said. This would probably be accomplished door to

The police department also has the power to override all television channels so that an emergency message could be broadcast.

But the rails are the scene of another type of accident that is far more common in this area - collisions between trains and cars. And, according to Lt. Herman Wicker, head of the traffic division of Midland Police Department, the train is seldom at fault in such accidents.

"Every train-car accident we've had has been a violation on the part of the vehicle. We have yet to find any trains in violation," he said.

Five or six such collisions happen every year in Midland, Wicker said.

"Although this is not really a high number, the damage is almost always severe and these accidents are frequently fatal."

WICKER SAID THE worst traincar accident he can remember occurred about four years ago, in which four young people were killed at the intersection of U.S Highway 80 and the Bankhead Highway, on the west end of town. The scene was out of the Midland city limits at the time, but the city limits have since been expanded to a point where the intersection is included.

'The car was stopped on the tracks, and they must not have been able to get it started again," he said.

"Most people don't realize that it takes a train at least one mile to stop after the brakes are first applied -they can't just stop instantly if something is in their way," said a Missouri-Pacific spokesman.

According to Wicker, the speed imit for trains while in city limits is 25 mph. "The trains are really good about obeying the speed limit," he However, conductors of trains can

Man credits long life to simple things

By ED TODD

In another 854 years, Will Johnson will be as old as Methuselah. He's 115, or so he says, and plans on getting much, much older. "Oh," sighed the old man, "I might (live to be 130.)"

"Lord, have mercy!" shouted his oldest daughter, Jessie B. Johnson Marion, 63. More than not, the old man credits the simple things for his enduring

"Oh, I just worked all my life," said Johnson, a black man who was born in slavery in Texas on May 4, 1865. "I don't know nothing but It's work, plus a wholesome attitude, good soul food, Indian blood, and a few daily sips of gin which, he contends, has kept him alive this long. Hard work was the main thing.

"YES, SIR," said his daughter, "...this man worked hard." Mostly he farmed, broke and trained horses and picked cotton, lots of cotton, in East Texas.

"Oh," said Johnson, who gets around fairly well, "I picked it better than I could pull." His record in picking cotton was 900 pounds in a Workdays are far into his past. "Oh, no," said Johnson, who is as alert as he is spry. "I don't do nothing now. Just piddle around the house now and then. I'm too old to work.

Naturally, Johnson remembers his younger days, especially the early ones, as if they weren't that long ago. He recalls nothing first-hand of slavery. "I don't know; I don't know any more than what my daddy told me.'

Mostly, he shies from talking about slavery, from belaboring the "heydays" of the Klu Klux Klan, and from those "hard times.

'I like to think about it (the good times)," said Johnson. He recalls barbecuing pigs, squirrels, rabbits and opossums, and fixing other good vittles, such as cornbread, black-eyed peas and pinto beans.

Some of those "good times" were with the white folks. Fact is, he and the infant son of his father's Master Crawford nursed from the same nanny at the same time.

"We nursed (from) the same nanny together," Johnson said. "He'd get one, and I'd get the other. "I was raised most with white people," said Johnson. "Everything their children had, I had. I didn't suffer for nothing in them days.'

'We must love one another here on earth" and live righteously. Otherwise, "You get up crooked; you lay down crooked," he said in alluding to living and dying.

"Happiness will help anybody," said the old man, who reasoned that "Heaven is on earth."

His daughter's words bear out his righteous-living philosophy. "We're all brothers and sisters," said the daughter, whose physique, eptness in making flapjacks sans recipe, and congeniality have given her

Summer is here, the sun is cooperating, and school-weary youngsters, as well as adults, are beginning to think in terms of long, lazy hours in the sun at one of Midland's five city pools.

The season also presents its share of assorted hazards, and safety precautions for water as well as sun exposure should not be overlooked.

According to recreation superintendent Em Carnett, who is also Red Cross water safety instructor for this area, about 22 lifeguards have been hired for duty at the five pools. Each pool has a different number of guards depending on its size.

All Midland lifeguards are required to take a 24-hour advanced lifesaving course, and then are tested and certified by the Red Cross as advanced lifesavers. To teach swimming, they must also complete a water safety instructor course.

No drowning has ever occurred in a Midland pool during working hours, according to Carnett. "One drowning occurred about 10 years ago, when the pool was not open and there were only a few feet of water standing in it," she said.

She attributes this good track record to an adequate number of lifeguards as well as good management.

No flotation devices are allowed in any of the pools, not even the inflatable bands some children wear around their arms when learning to "The danger factor with flotation devices is that a small child could float out to an area where he couldn't stand up, and then slip off," Carnett said. "The arm bands give children a false sense of confidence, and they think they can do the same things with them off as with them on.

"We're very careful to enforce all the rules, such as no running, only one person on the diving board at a time, no glass containers, no swimming in the diving areas, and adult supervision of small children," she said.

Overexposure to the sun's rays presents another hazard associated with summer activities. According to a Midland dermatologist, too much sun can cause sunburn, premature aging, wrinkling, and in extreme cases, skin cancer.

"This is especially true here in West Texas, where the sun's ray's are particularly intense," he said.

Persons with fair complexions are especially vulnerable to the sun's damaging effects. These persons have fewer protective pigment cells in their skin to help block out the sun than those with darker skin.

Precautions should always be taken before any extended exposure to the sun, the doctor said. Protective clothing should always be worn, and a sunscreen containing PABA compound should be applied to those areas that are exposed. "Most preparations on the market contain PABA," he said.

"Above all, don't spend hours baking in the sun to get that suntan," he added. "This is probably most harm-their ballots. Although they customarily vote for their states' winning candidates, the constitution does not require them to do so.

Should a majority fail to agree on a candidate, the decision becomes the responsibility of the House of Representatives. The Senate only elects the vice president.

Editor's note: Now pay close attention because it begins to get tricky.

On Jan. 5, 1981, the 97th Congress will convene. Three days later, on Jan. 6, the two houses will meet in joint session, with Vice President Walter Mondale as presiding officer, to count the electoral ballots.

Before the counting of ballots begins, Mondale will name one Democrat and one Republican from each house to act as tellers. They then will tabulate the electoral votes from the individual states.

When the ballot counting has ended, Mondale will announce the result to the joint session. If no one has 270 or more votes for president, members of the Senate will depart the House chamber and the House will begin the selection of a president from among the three contenders with the most votes, presumably Anderson, Carter and Reagan.

At the same time, the senators will convene in their own chamber to select a new vice president from the two nominees with the highest number of votes - in all likelihood Reagan's running mate and Mondale himself. Since each senator has but one vote * and there are only two candidates, the selection of vice president should be an easy task.

Not so in the House. The constitution provides that in selecting a president in the House, each state will cast one vote. Thus, states like Alaska, Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming, which have only a single congressman, have as much to say as California with 43 congressmen, New York with 38 or

In the current Congress, the Democrats control 28 state delegations and the Republicans 13. Nine states' delegations are split evenly between Democrats and Republicans.

If that breakdown were to prevail in the new Congress, the Democrats would have a clear majority of states and presumably could elect Carter. But if Reagan were to carry his home state of California by a heavy vote against Carter and Anderson, would the Democratic controlled delegation feel free to vote against the will of the people? The same question would arise in delegation after dele-

With the delegations having an equal number of Republicans and

Democrats, there is a real question as to how each would determine the recipient of their one vote for presi-

Even though Anderson might win the popular vote in a number of states, it is difficult to know how he might fare in the House, where all the voters would be Democrats or Republicans and not independents.

The process has not been tested since 1825, when the house had to select a president because no one of the four candidates in the 1824 election won a majority in the Electoral College.

The contenders in the Electoral College were Andrew Jackson with 99 votes; John Quincy Adams with 84; William Crawford with 41 and Henry Clay with 37. Since the House was required to choose from only the top three, Clay was eliminated but worked shrewdly behind the scenes to aid Adams.

Although Jackson led in both electoral and popular votes, Adams was elected presidnt and Clay was named secretary of state. Jackson fumed and fussed for four years. He finally got even by defeating Adams handily

Since 1925, there have been numerous occasions when it appeared that a presidential election might be tossed into the House. The most famous possibility occurred when President Harry Truman in 1948 faced the Dixiecrats led by Strom Thurmond and the "Progressive Party" headed by Henry Wallace, as well as the Republicans whose nominee was Thomas E.

Truman upset all forecasts with a tidy triumph in the Electoral College although he lost narrowly against the combined popular vote of his opponents. The next near-even election came in 1960, when John F. Kennedy won the Electoral College yet only defeated Ricard M. Nixon by 100,000 in the popular vote.

of George Wallace to Nixon and Hubert Humphrey-in 1968. In the end, it fell short of its mark. Last time out, in 1976, former President Ford came up fast from being way behind at con-vention time. President Carter won by 37 Electoral College votes.

You can note from this rundown that our presidential races are getting closer all the time. The entry of John Anderson, it seems to me, could make the 1980 elections tighter than ever.

Open-air evangelism is a time-honored Army tactic, and the robust effusion of it came at the biggest gathering of Salvationists in their 100year history in America.

The officials said it was hoped the marines' presence-would help restore order to the outer islands in this South Pacific archipelago 1,100 miles east of Australia.

Natives on Espiritu Santo, the second largest island, and Tanna, a small island, are attempting to se cede from the country which has been jointly run by Britain and France since 1906. The 72 islands are due to become independent July 30.

Although the Americans are long gone, the memory of the GIs and their vast quantities of jeeps, trucks and canned food lingers on in the minds of many Melanesians and gives rise to the bizarre "cargo cult."

On Tanna, some Melanesians are members of the John Frum Society. They believe John Frum was an American medic who will return from Yasur volcano with all the consumer durables, or cargo, that they saw during the war.

The cult keeps a World War II American medic's jacket with Red Cross insignia on the sleeves as a holy relic. Members have adopted the Red Cross as their emblem and crude crosses dot the jungle trails of the · island.

Carter wants Hussein

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter will fry to convince King Hussein of Jordan to join a renewed effort to decide the political future of Palestinians in Israeli-occupied territories, the president said in remarks made public Saturday.

Hussein is scheduled to arrive in Washington on Monday. He will meet with administration officials Tuesday and Wednesday in a state visit that U.S. officials hope will lead to improved relations with the Jordanian leader who was once America's closest friend in the Arab world,

The president's remarks came in a question-and-answer session with representatives of American Jewish publications on Friday. A transcript of the meeting was made public by the White House on Saturday.

Asked if Hussein is ready to take an active part in Middle East peace talks, Carter said he plans to use his first meeting with the Jordanian monarch since the signing of the Camp David accords to "use all the persuasive power that I have" to convince him to join the negotiating process set up by the accords.

Hussein was furious because he wasn't consulted before Carter summoned Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and

The durable monarch, who lost the West Bank of the Jordan River to Israel in the 1967 war, is making his first trip to Washington in two years and is to meet with President Carter Tuesday.

In Washington on Saturday, Carter said he would try to persuade Hussein to take part in the Palestinian autonomy talks, but he did not specify the extent of the king's participation. Is-rael, Egypt and the United States have been negotiating the autonomy issue under provisions of the accords set at Camp David, Md. in 1978. Hussein was not consulted at that time the accords do contemplate Jordan's participation in the West Bank's future.

Hussein rejected the accords partly because he played no role in their formulation and believed they would not lead to Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories.

Another obstacle to Hussein's participation was the legitimacy gained by Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization - a trend boosted last Friday when the European Economic Community said the PLO must be "associated" with Middle East peace talks.

Horse show industry agrees to federal ban

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The organized horse show industry has agreed to help the U.S. Department of Agriculture enforce a federal ban on show participation of horses subjected to painful chemical treat-

Horses are sored by using chemicals or devices that make them flinch at each step, producing the flourishes that closely resemble the high-stepping gait sought in many classes like the Tennessee Walking Horse. They are usually left with scars on their legs just above the hoofs.

Despite initial enactment of the federal ban in 1970 and strengthening amendments in 1976, the USDA has been unable to block continued soring of horses because its power is limited to those whose horses are demonstrably sore after performing.

Peaches will be harder to find

AUSTIN - Texas peaches won't be as scarce as "hens' teeth," but they will be harder to find this summer, says Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Some 313,000 bushels - less than half of last year's 750,000-bushel crop — of peaches will show up at the marketplaces. The cutback is due to two March freezes which hurt most of the Central Texas crop. However, harvesting has begun in South and East

Texas, and some peaches should be appearing in retail outlets. Central Texas peaches that escaped freezes are beginning to size. Hail storms destroyed fruit in some North Texas orchards that escaped earlier freezes. Though the crop will be smaller, buyers will still get more for their money from a Texas peach," Brown said. "The local fruit is picked when it is ripe to provide a sweeter, juicier peach. Out-of-state peaches are picked green so that they will with-fand the rigors of cross-country shipping."

Texas third in vegetable harvest

AUSTIN - Texas harvested enough heaps of vegetables in 1979 to make the Lone Star State No. 3 nationally in fresh-vegetable production. The Texas cash crop yield was valued at $230.8 million. The harvest of 2.2 billion pounds of fresh vegeta:

bles was 9 percent below 1978's crop but the value rose by 8 percent. Spring and summer onions, valued at $50.8 million, brought in more money than any other crop. Other crop values were cabbage, $29.3 million; cantaloupes, $29 million; waterfrelons, $23.1 million, and carrots, $20.3 million.

Nationally, California ranked No. 1 in the output of fresh vegetables. Florida came in second; Texas, third; New York, fourth, and Arizona, fifth.

More sheep, lambs on feed.

AUSTIN - Sheep and lambs are moving into feedlots at a steady pace, as 117,000 are on feed for slaughter, according to Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

The number is 34 percent above a year ago, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service survey's.

Drought conditions in 1979 led to the shortage of sheep and lambs that year.

"The strongest fabric markets are still cotton," he said, "and history shows cotton fares better than other fibers in a recessionary period such as our nation is entering."

Energy outlook optimistic

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. - America's long-term energy outlook has an optimistic glow, a major oil company executive said at the Cotton Foundtion's sixth annual conference here.

The United States has the technology to produce more coal, oil, gas and nuclear energy, said D.L. Bower, vice chairman of the board of Standard Oil Co. of California.

"We also have the potential to become the world leader in developing synthetic fuel and alternate energy resources," he said.

For the short term, gasoline for cars and trucks and diesel fuel for agriculture and other uses should be in ample supply but at somewhat higher prices. Fuel price trends will continue upward, Bower predicted, due to increasing cost of imported oil and price control phase-out on domestic production.

The challenge of the 1980s is to free the nation's competitive market system from unnecessary controls and restrictions that thwart maximum ef-

AREA REPORT

Democrats to choose sheriff's candidate

ANDREWS - The Andrews County Democratic Party's executive committee today is to select one of three nominees for the party's candidate for sheriff in the Nov. 4 general election.

The opening for the county's top law enforcement officer was created on June 3, when Sheriff J.A. "Bud" Gregory, 53, died by a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head.

Gregory, sheriff since 1964, was going into the general election unopposed.

Nominees for candidacy are Wayne Farmer, Gregory's chief deputy who was named interim sheriff; Alton Montgomery, who was defeated by Gregory in the May Democratic Party primary election, and R.W. "Tip" Tipton, 52, former Andrews police

The selection is to be made at 2 p.m. today by the executive committee, which consists of Barbara Sullivan, county chairman; and Jerry Glover of Precinct 1, E.W. McDowell of Precinct 2, Ed Prit-chard of Precinct 3, and H.D. Hankins of Precinct

The committee's selection should be a shoo-in, for the Republican Party offered the Democratic Party no competition for sheriff in the primary.

Earl to visit Big Spring

BIG SPRING - The 11th Earl of Aylesford, otherwise known in England as the Lord-Lieutenant of the County of the West Midlands, and his wife are to visit Big Spring in October to participate in the dedication of a Texas Historical Commission marker honoring Joseph Heenage Finch. Finch, the seventh Earl of Aylesford, once brought to Howard County the English peerage title now inherited by the present earl and purchased the old Cosmopolitan Hotel, a ranch and a saloon while living in Big Spring. He died here.

Finch was a close friend and traveling companion of the late Prince of Wales, King Edward VII.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) - A 20-year-old man

joited from bed by the sound of a car crash pulled two injured teen-agers from the burning sports car, rescuing one as flames licked at his tennis shoes.

"The only thing that went through my mind is that These are human beings. You've got to get them out, or you're going to have to live with this the rest of your life," said Tom Barkdull III. He said he easily pulled one youth from the Mercedes 450SL, but the second was unconscious and jammed beneath the steering wheel. So Barkdull climbed into the small back seat and tugged him A fire broke out under the car's hood after the crash early Friday.

"The fire had melted his tennis shoes," Barkdull said of his efforts to save the second youth. Barkdull, on vacation from Florida State University, was in bed when the speeding car sideswiped a tree and felled a utility pole guy wire before landing in front of the Barkdull home in this Miami Barkdull dressed quickly and raced outside to find the car on fire.

"The front windshield was gone and the flames were coming inside the car," he recalled.
"The passenger was conscious, but delirious," said Barkdull. "I pulled him out through the passenger's window." He then got inside to free the driver, whose feet and arms were already being burned.
"He definitely saved their lives," said Fire Lt. Bill

Napier. "We got there in five minutes and the whole car was engulfed in flames. We had 15 men there and we used 400 gallons of water to put out the fire.'

Woman axed to death Friday inside her home

WYLIE, Texas (AP) - A 30-yearold housewife at home alone with her baby was surprised by a killer who hacked her to death with an ax and left her body in a blood-splattered laundry room, police said Saturday.

Police identified the woman as Betty Gore, and said it was believed she was last seen alive about 9:30 a.m. Friday. The body was found by neighbors about 11:30 p.m. Friday.

Justice of the Peace John "Buddy" Newton, who ordered an inquest, said evidence indicated Mrs. Gore, a former fifth grade schoolteacher, lived long enough to put up a struggle.

'There was blood all over the place," he said. "She was damned near dismembered ... axed between the eyes. It was horrible. Police Chief Royce Abbott said he had no suspects and no motive in the slaying, which probably took place during the day Friday. Detectives found small, bloody footprints in the house, but Abbott said he drew no conclusions from the prints. Mrs. Gore's body was fully clothed, and no valuables were taken from the $75,000 home in this small town 25 miles northeast of Dallas, he said. Abbott added that there was no sign of Abbott said Mrs. Gore's husband, Allen, who is in the electronics business, had left Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport on Friday on a 12:30 p.m. CDT flight to St. Paul, Minn.

Dr. Dick Sewell and other neighbors found the body after Gore called them and said he had been unable to reach her by phone.

The Gore's 1-year-old daughter, Bethany, was crying in her crib. A second daughter of the Gores, Alisa, 5, was spending the day with friends when the killing occurred, Sewell

Newton said the murder weapon was the Gores' own ax. "With the size of that ax, a 5-year-old child could have done it. Any adult man or woman could have done it."

He said the murderer may have washed off blood in the bathtub of a bathroom in the house. Sewell, who helped clean up the bathroom, said it appeared the killer took a shower before leaving.

Sewell, who lives two doors from the Gores, said the killer probably entered the house through the garage, where the ax was stored. "The door was open, and the utility room opens onto the garage. We think whoever did it knocked on the door, she opened it - and whammo," the dentist said.

Various liberal groups rally peacefully in Miami

MIAMI (AP) - A march organized to protest racial injustices in Miami became a forum for promoters of various liberal causes Saturday as blacks, elderly women, homosexuals and left-wing fringe groups rallied peacefully in an area ravaged by rioting four weeks ago.

After the march, about 300 people gathered in front of Miami's Metro Justice Building to listen to a series of speakers.

Police reported no incidents during the two-hour rally

During a similar rally on May 17, angry blacks overturned cars in the beginning of three days of the city's worst race rioting. The riots, which claimed 17 lives, were ignited by a Tampa jury's acquittal of four white ex-policemen on charges connected with the beating death of black businessman Arthur McDuffie

"We want to bring attention to the injustice that is happening in this community," Golden Franks, national secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said at the beginning of Saturday's march. The march started at Manor Park, in the Liberty City district, as some 50 blacks and three whites gathered for a brief prayer and then set off on a 32-block journey toward downtown.

Singing "Ain't Gonna Let No One Turn Me Back Now" and carrying signs with such slogans as "Racism Begets Revolution," the crowd quickly grew. Schoolboys on bicycles, grandmothers, college students and others joined the procession.

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - Arizona and New Mexi- Navajo and Apache counties in Arizona to avoid co officials disagree whether Rio Puerco, awash with radioactive liquid last year after a tailings dam spill, is now safe for humans and livestock.

The spill last July at United Nuclear Corp.'s Church Rock, N.M., uranium mill released nearly 100 million gallons of contaminated liquid into the Rio Puerco, which flows through portions of New Mexico and Arizona.

The Arizona Department of Health Services has warned families living along the Rio Puerco in

Largest flag unfurled today

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the help of Boy Scouts, American Legion volunteers and passing tourists, Len Silverfine unfurled the largest flag in America on Saturday — a two-acre, polyester Old Glory bigger than a football field There was no flying in breezy sunshine for the gigantic banner, however. The red, white and blue expanse was spread out across the green grass near the foot of the Washington Monument.

The flag is 210 feet high and 411 feet long. Each of its 50 white stars measures 13 feet from tip to tip; each of its 13 alternating red and white stripes stretches 16 feet tall.

Silverfine, a former New York advertising executive, doesn't expect the flag's 86,310 square feet to always be just lying around. He plans to raise the gigantic banner next year on the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge in New York City, where it will face the Statue of Liberty and greet visitors to this country.

Four years ago Silverfine began a similar project and hoisted a 76,000-square-foot-flag on the bridge only to see it tear after only eight hours. Silverfine, determined to try again, began a campaign for a new flag, this one 20 percent larger.

Saturday's unfurling was only the flag's second since it was completed near Evansville, Ind. It took eight seamstresses six weeks to sew the flag together, and the final work had to be done at an airport because of space problems.

More than 100 persons pulled at the seven-ton flag to spread it on the grass after it had been lifted from a special truck with a crane. The display was short-lived. About two hours after the banner was unfolded, Silverfine was using a bullhorn to direct spectators in refolding the flags.

The banner's debut here was the highlight of the capital's Flag Day ceremonies, which also featured appearances by the U.S. Army Band and representatives from each of the military services.

At Fort McHenry in Baltimore, where Francis Scott Key was inspired to write the national anthem during the War of 1812, Flag Day was marked by a more mundane flag but no less ambitious a project. Organizers' were hoping that Americans across the nation would pause at 2 p.m. to join in saying the Pledge of Allegiance.

Silverfine said one day he hopes his flag will be as much a symbol of America as Key's "The Star-Spangled Banner" and he rejects any idea that his project is needlessly extravagant.

"Is the Statute of Liberty extravagant? Is the Washington Monument extravagant?" he asked an

After his first flag tore apart during the 1976 Bicentennial, Silverfine enlisted the help of Paul Woolard, president of Revion Inc. Woolard, also the flag project's president, said more than a dozen corporations are key sponsors and $300,000 to $400,-000 has been spent.

Silverfine said he will need another $550,000 to build a special rigging to hoist and lower his enormous Stars and Stripes from the steel girders of the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge.

Herbert Rothman, an engineer advising the project, said the inability to lower Silverfine's first flag is what led to its tearing in the wind as dezens of ironworkers who helped raise it stood by with tears

- A Fort Worth teacher whose classroom was described as 'emass confusion" and "really wild" lost his appeal Saturday to the State Board of Education.

Dr. Virginia Currey of Arlington, the lone board member voting against the motion to affirm Bowen's decision, said Glenn had only two days notice that the board of trustees intended to fire him, "We've got to stand firm on due process and notification," she said.

William Sarsgard, board member from Fort Worth, said Glenn was notified three times a hearing to terminate his contract was being held and responded to one of the notices. "There was plenty of due process," said Sarsgard. Glenn was hired during the 1975-76 school year under a probationary contract. On Oct. 30, 1978, he accepted a continuing contract for 10 months, beginning Sept.1, 1978. That same fall Glenn was advised he was being placed in the Teaching Assistance Program to improve his teaching methods.

Dr. Richard Burnett, assistant supervisor of personnel, evaluated. Glenn's class and classified it as "one of the worst instructional situations I have seen since I've been in public education.'

Burnett particularly cited Glenn's inability to control his students.

Dr. Sarah Jones, program director for science, evaluated Glenn on four occasions and described his classroom as 'mass confusion.'

In a flight over the volcano, scientists noted the ash from Thursday's eruption was darker than that of the May 18 and May 25 eruptions, said Don Eaton of the Federal Emergency Manage ment Agency. However, they are unsure what that indicates, he said.

When you've arrived... Meadowpark

What is Meadowpark?

Meadowpark, a project of Citizens Savings & Łoan Association, will be a Planned Unit Development of attractive patio home and townhome clusters. Meadowpark will consist of up to 200 attached and detached patio homes and attached townhomes on nearly 60 acres in north Midland. The development is inside the city of Midland and receives all municipal services, including police and fire protection, and water and sewer ser vices. Patio home clusters will have seven-to-eight residences each.

Meadowpark Owners' Association

Common recreation facilities and park areas are managed by the Meadowpark Owners' Association. Purchasing or building a patio home on your own lot automatically makes you a member of the Meadowpark Owners' Association. The Association provides management and maintenance of the common park areas, playgrounds, tennis courts, and swimming pool. At the homeowner's option, the Association may also maintain the exterior portion of your residence.

A low density development.

Meadowpark residents will enjoy a great deal of room and privacy because of the very low density of the development.

In Phase I, ample landscaped park areas and recreation areas comprise nearly 49 per cent of the total. Patio home lots account for about 26 per cent. A low density of 2.5 residences per gross acre allows for privacy. (Many fine residential developments average more than four residences per gross acre.)

The cluster arrangement of Meadowpark is not only attractive, but also restricts traffic flow on residential streets. Spacing between streets helps minimize street noise. Onstreet parking is prohibited, so that streets become areas for family activities-including bicycling, walking or jogging, and children's games.

parking spaces.

Texas Electric will inspect your home at each stage of construction and will certify that the completed structure has earned 135 "E-OK" points. A number of insulation and design factors contribute to the rating. For example, exterior walls will have at least R-19 insulation ratings, with attics insulated to an R-26 minimum.

As a Meadowpark homeowner, you own the lot on which your home is located, all of the improvements on the lot, and an interest in the common areas and facilities.

Meadowpark homes will offer two or more enclosed patios, affording a relaxed, suburban lifestyle. This allows for very little yard care and a great deal of privacy. Interior patios are not included in the general landscaping, but homeowners may contract with the Owner's Association to provide their landscaping.

General landscaping includes attractive entrances off of FM 868 (proposed Loop 250) and North "A" Street, berms for noise and visual barriers, trees, ground cover and grass. Clusters of live oaks and red oaks will be used throughout, and poplar and flowering trees will be used at various locations. Sidewalks connect the visitor parking area with the front entrance of each lot, as well as provide walkways between clusters. Each residence has a minimum of two garage Have you arrived?

Today's active family seeks a comfortable home with large rooms and closets, the best appliances, but a minimum of yard care and upkeep. Meadowpark offers great opportunity for outdoor recreation, and an informal, suburban atmosphere in which there is a balance between neighborliness and privacy.

Extras such as tennis courts, swimming pool with cabana, bathhouse and deck area, playgrounds and landscaped park areas are available to all through the Meadowpark Owners' Association. Each home is designed to be energy efficient. Each is designed for a lifetime of real living.

When you've arrived . . . Meadowpark.

What does it cost?

Patio homes and townhomes start in the low eighties and range up to $150,000. Of course, you may request additional features in planning with your builder which may affect the final sales price.

Homeowners are assessed a monthly maintenance fee which provides for landscaping (except that within each lot area), upkeep of the grounds, care of recreational facilities, outdoor lighting, and real estate taxes and insurance for the common areas and facilities.

Citizens Savings & Loan Association serves as both developer and permanent lender, and you may wish to visit with one of our loan officers about interim financing and permanent mortgage for your Meadowpark home. We will be pleased to supply a list of reputable builders who will execute your selected Meadowpark plan.

Where is Meadowpark?

The Meadowpark community is located on 59.91 acres northeast of the intersection of North "A" Street and FM 868 (proposed Loop 250). It is convenient to Garfield and Big Spring Streets as well. Nearby are newly developing shopping centers and a regional mall, Midland College, schools and Midland Air Park. Country clubs are close by as well. Meadowpark was conceived by Citizens Savings & Loan for homebuyers looking for carefree living at affordable prices. ### Director says state prisons destroy people

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The head of a group that lobbies for prison reform says three state prison directors have "created a myth" that Texas has one of the best prison systems in the country.

Executive Director Charles Sullivan of CURE Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants - says Texas' "large human warehouses are dinosaurs, and really they should be done away with - period. They. destroy people.

Sullivan was interviewed on the radio program State Capitol Dateline for broadcast over the week-

He said past prison directors O.B. Ellis and George Beto and current director W.J. Estelle "created a myth that we have one of the best - if not the best - system in the country." It's "certainly not the worst, but it's certainly not the best. It's got a lot of problems," Sullivan said.

Ellis became prison director in 1948, Beto in 1961 and Estelle in 1971.

Sullivan said the federal suit filed by inmate David Ruiz against the prison system "has demythologized" the prison system. I think what has happened is people are seeing more than just showcase units. I think the Texas taxpayers were sold a bill of goods ... that they for rehabilitation. ... that they had this great institution known

Sullivan said Texans do not realize that at least 40 percent of the prisoners who are released return to

He suggested U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's yet-to-be-announced ruling in the Ruiz case may include a "lid" - or maximum population figure based on the amount of prison space.

Asked if Justice's ruling might bring about major changes in Texas' criminal justice system, Sullivan said, "Not only the state but probably in the coun-'try." He said the Ruiz suit "is the most comprehensive lawsuit ever filed against a prison system in this country."

Sullivan said CURE will ask the 1981 Legislature to allow prisoners who work to be paid $1 a day, with 50 cents of each $1 going to the state compensation for victims of crime. He said this would provide $3 million a year for the fund.

Governor says prisons face serious problems

DALLAS (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements says the Texas penitentiary system faces "a very, very serious problem" and the state will need two or three new prisons before the end of the decade.

Clements, who spoke Friday to the Texas Motor Transportation Association, said, "We have 27,000 inmates and we have to take care of them. We will have to have two or maybe three more prisons in the next 10-year period."

Clements also told the association he was serious about enforcing the 55 mph speed limit in Texas. He said the U.S. Department of Transportation has sent him three letters, each "progressively meaner" warning that if Texas motorists do not slow down to 55, the state could lose $300 million in federal high-

Friends pay tribute to 'old mountain man' Snelson to serve on board

LONGVIEW, Wash. (AP) — Volcano victim Harry Truman's independent spirit was the kind from which legends are made, friends said Saturday at a memorial service for the man who refused to leave his home on Mount St. Helens.

Laughter as well as tears marked the service, which drew about 120 people to the American' Baptist Church in Longview, about 35 miles west of the volcano. "Harry loved the mountain and he loved the attention," said

Richard Ice of Oakland, Calif., president of American Baptist Homes of the West. "He was sure of the mountain," said Ice, a friend of the family who said he was raised like Truman's nephew. "He'd said that Mount St. Helens 'wouldn't dare blow up on me. "Harry seemed invincible. And that's the stuff that the legend was made of."

Truman, 84, is one of 45 people listed as missing from the mountain's devastating May 18 eruption. Mud and debris covers the spot where he owned a small lodge at Spirit Lake at the northern base of the mountain.

The confirmed death toll stands at 24. Truman refused to leave the lodge and told reporters in the days before the eruption that if the mountain blew - even though it didn't dare - he would hole up in a secret cave with a keg of

Uncle Sam's windfall squeeze on oil

By BILL MODISETT Staff Writer

Congress has shown not only great wisdom in the final content of this legislation, but also great courage in dealing with one of the most controversial issues that

The date was March 27 and President Carter was talking to congressional leaders about a bill Congress had just passed. There are more than just a few independent oilmen in Midland who would term Carter's statement pure malarkey. What most of the oilmen would call it cannot be

The president was alluding to the Crude Oil Windfall Profit Tax Act of 1980. The measure was approved by Congress March 27 and the president signed that piece of legislation into law April 2.

Lhe tax has been in effect for two months now. Its repercussions have been harsh on the independent oil industry from royalty owners, to bankers, to ofl producers. That's not to say it doesn't affect the major oil companies. It does. But Midland's independents say it hurts them

Today, Midland's independent oil producers speak harshly about the tax, about the "war" Carter declared on energy three years back, about the selection of the president's "generals."

And they talk about the awakening of the American public to the realities of that tax, a tax they claim is nothing more than another revenue-raising boondoggle intended to feed a runaway bureaucracy and

They also speak of the possibility of testing the law's constitutionality in the Information from the White House Press Office says the windfall profits tax "is an excise tax on domestic crude oil." The tax was passed, according to the news release, because otherwise domestic oil producers - those who produce oil within the United States - "would receive enormous windfall profits - that is, profits they would not otherwise have had - as a result of the elimination of controls on the prices of oil. and from the OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) price increases."

Government estimates indicate the tax will generate some $440 billion by the end of . 1990. But since the tax is an excise tax and deductible in computing normal income taxes, the government will realize only a net revenue increase of $227.3 billion.

The money is intended to be funneled into three particular areas: (1) assistance to low-income households hardest hit by rising energy prices, (2) increasing the nation's public transportation systems and (3) initiating a major new investment in alternatives to imported oil such as solar energy, gasohol and synthetic fuels.

That's how the tax was "sold" to the American public, say some Midlanders who aren't at all happy with the outcome and the tax's potential impact on the Tall

They say the tax will have more of an impact on independent oil producers, of which Midland has an abundance, than it will on the major oil companies because the majors derive a large percentage of their profits from oil produced overseas oil not subject to the tax levy.

They refute a claim by the White House

Charles D. Fraser

Press Office that "it is not a tax on the energy consumers." Eventually, consumers will pay the tax, they say.

And they question he very need for the tax in the first place.

"Government is trying to obtain tax revenue and they picked an industry that's politically unpopular and sold the American people on this tax," commented Charles D. Fraser, president of The First National Bank of Midland.

"The government doesn't intend to use this tax to reduce the federal debt," Fraser continued. "They intend to maintain the current level of debt and spend this, too." Oilmen are concerned because their industry was singled out for this type of

W. Watson Laforce Jr. taxation, but they point out that it becomes doubly bad when the tax revenue is not used wisely by the federal government. If the government will do it to the oil industry, who's to say the government next won't single out another industry to tax, the oilmen contend The tax wasn't needed, Fraser says. 'The federal income tax is a pretty good windfall profits tax," he added. Complaining about the concept of the tax, he adds, "It's a bad form of taxation and it's a bad tax."

W. Watson LaForce Jr., an independent oil producer in Midland, sees only futility in the structuring of the use of the tax. "We don't believe they're going to use the tax to develop any other form of energy. We don't see that scenario."

The oilmen are disillusioned, in part, because of the quality and expertise of the men President Carter chose to help him fight his energy war.

"It was a political deal from the start," said LaForce. "It never was an energy deal. It was a political deal.

"It would be like asking me to represent the environmentalists when I have no environmental background."

Obviously the oilmen are upset that top-level individuals from the oil industry were not chosen to help guide the nation's energy policy. The United States, they contend, should fight an "energy war" with people "who understand energy." "You cannot fight a war with people who don't know or who are negative toward the industry and that's what we've got legislatively," LaForce emphasized. he tax really has nothing to do with helping us out with energy, with energy development," he concluded. But to back up a little, how is the tax impacting the independent oil industry in Midland?

"The impact is just less capital available," says Fraser. He says whatever amount of money the tax pulls out of the oil industry is that much less available for loans to oil producers.

That means a potential slowdown in drilling activity because independent producers to a large extent depend heavily on bank loans to finance their operations.

The paperwork burden resulting from the new tax is also creating an overhead burden for the independent, Fraser noted. Unlike a major oil company, the independent cannot pass that added cost along to the consumer, Fraser says.

Still, Fraser does not foresee any "fundamental slowdown" in the oil activity of the Permian Basin. Where the hurt comes is that money oilmen would have reinvested in exploration and production will now be pulled out of the industry

Midland's general economy should not suffer from the affects of the tax, LaForce and Fraser agreed.

"We have not seen the impact and we probably won't be able to see it," Fraser pointed out. That's because the strength of the local economy will overshadow the ill effects of the tax. But the oilmen will feel the tax's teeth. "It's going to be detrimental," forecast LaForce. "How detrimental is not known at this time."

"It's very difficult to quantify," chimed in the banker.

One way in which the tax will hurt is the prospective new independent oilmen who will be disenfranchised because of the levy, says LaForce. "It will just eliminate the new people trying to get out into the business," he speculated. stablished independents have income from "old crude" they can fall back on to fund new endeavors, LaForce said. But a new oilman is having to drill new production. "From a new man looking at the economics, it might be rather discouraging percentagewise."

It will hurt when new people stop coming into the oil industry here, both men conceded, not from a total economy standpoint, but from the standpoint of fresh ideas. "The new blood is what makes this thing go," commented LaForce.

But neither LaForce nor Fraser want to indicate that the tax will mark a death blow to Midland. It won't, they say, because Midland's economy is so strong.

"I don't want to say for a minute that people oughtn't to come out here and get into the oil business," LaForce

The first individuals really seeing the impact of the tax, say the oilmen, are the royalty owners. They were taxed at the rate of the major oil companies, although

Royalty owners fighting mad

By BILL MODISETT Staff Writer

It's starting to sink in now, the harsh reality of this thing called the 'windfall profits tax.'

Ed Thompson, executive director of the Midland-based Permian Basin Petroleum Association, vividly recalls the day a couple of weeks ago when a woman strode into his office, anger stretching the lines of her

'Somebody had told her that we had been the ones who led the fight and since we didn't stop it from passing, she assumed that we were to blame for it," Thompson explained. The woman was going to "slap the hell out of me," the executive director said. He was merely the recipient of anger directed at the federal government, Congress, President Carter, the Department of Energy and any other persons or organizations having any dealings whatsoever with the creation of the Windfall Profit Tax Act of 1980.

the RUN

Thompson can laugh about the incident now. But it wasn't funny at the time. It certainly was no laughing matter to the woman. She was mad. The windfall profits legislation was signed into law by President Carter April 2. A "royalty owner," the woman had just received her first oil royalty check from which the "windfall profit" was deducted. Her check, normally in the amount of about $2,000, had been reduced to about $800.

The windfall profits tax had consumed more than 60 percent of her

She wanted to vent her anger on someone semi-official. Thompson seemed as likely a candidate as anyone, at least anyone close to home. That scenario likely will be repeated over and over again until the tax's full impact is realized, say oil officials in the Midland area. "I think most of the royalty owners" checks are going to be affected about like that," sighs Thompson. He's a little tired of fighting the federal government over the enactment and implementation of this tax. But he won't stop, because the association won't stop. The association has been fighting the tax ever since it was conceived and announced to the general public by Carter about three years ago. 'Like the man says, you've got to bite the bullet and keep going after them." No explanation needed of who "them" refers to. From most aspects, the independent oil producers in the Permian Basin view the tax as misdirected, to use one of the few repeatable terms affixed to the levy. It's hard to find anything good about something that lowers one's personal income.

But the windfall profits tax, according to Thompson, has started to accomplish one thing beneficial: Individuals who thought before that the tax would never touch them have learned they were wrong.

More importantly it has served to unify independent oilmen. He says they now know the tax will be "more detrimental to them than anything that has ever happened. So, it got their attention.'

Meanwhile, in the Permian Basin there's growing anger, fanned by months of frustration.

It's a frustration the oilmen say will

Inside the Stardust, 700-plus country fans were dancing, drinking, talk ing and waiting - especially waiting. As the time crept closer to 9:30 p.m., a feeling of anticipation filtered through the crowd. They were ready for the man.

Outside, in his special bus, Hank Williams Jr. was enjoying his 71/2 year-old son, Shelton, who had flown in to be with him. In general, Hank was just taking it easy before showtime.

NOT A SIMPLE MAN, but one with simple tastes, Hank's speech is slow-moving, deliberate and direct.

His likes include "the woods, Rugers (brand name for a special type of firearm), huntin' and fishin', the outdoors; no concrete and no people.

"My house looks like a zoo. I kill all them poor defenseless animals. I love to blast them," he explains, laughing. "If anybody don't like it, that's too bad. Golf and tennis don't turn me on; me and a lot of other guys.'

THESE OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES are more than hobbies with Hank. As he explains it, he is "really strong into them. I've been to Africa a couple of times, Alaska a couple of times, Costa Rica, Guatemala...that's the Hemingway in me - that's what Merle says (Merle Kilgore, long time friend and fellow performer).

His interests include all aspects of mountaineering. In fact, in 1975 he was in an accident, a mountain fall, that almost cost him his life. His group had been at the "divide between Salmon, Idaho and Wisdom, Mont., which is a rugged part of the world.

"I WENT DOWN BACK FIRST, head first. And the whole thing started." That's all little slide rock and you can't control it, you can't stop it once it

After the 482 foot fall, Hank, surprised to be alive, reached up to feel his face, or as he recounts it, "what wasn't there."

"I SHOULD HAVE LOST THIS eye," Hank says, pointing to his right

one, "it was out of its socket."

It took six hours and three different aircraft to get him to the hospital.

They weren't disappointed.

Producer Larry Butler pays the price

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Larry Butler, who albums became the country's top record producer by spearheading the rise of Kenny Rogers, is paying the price of success.

He gets 200-300 calls a day, is too busy to take a lunch hour, and has had up to four unlisted telephone eyes

His harried secretary politely tells callers who want him to produce their records: "If you'll send us a tape, he'll be glad to listen to it.

It might take three months, but he'll review it on nights, weekends, whenever.

Busy? During a recent recording session for Bobby Goldsboro, Butler was in the studio from Tuesday evening to Saturday, with just four hours off for

It's that kind of commitment that earned Butler a Grammy award this year as the nation's No. 1 record producer. It was the climax to a stint in which he produced hits for Rogers like "The Gambler," "Lucille" and the current "Don't Fall in Love with a Dreamer," which Rogers sings with Kim Carnes.

Now there are T-shirts proclaiming: "Larry Butler Is My Record Producer.' But Butler, 38, had to overcome pill addiction cold turkey - to qualify for all this acclaim. "The doctor said I had a choice - quit or die," he recalls. He was taking 30-40 pills a day. After whipping his habit, he began producing Donna Fargo, Goldsboro, Julie Andrews, Steve records, and five years ago he and Rogers began Lawrence and Edie Gorme, Billie Jo Spears, Hank

Rogers. "I've seen 12- and 14-year-old kids scream- their money on. They're listening to what people are ing at the sight of him, women throwing them- singing to them. The days of 'Yeah, yeah, yeah' are selves at him, and grown men with tears in their over."

"People want to be entertained, and he does with showmanship," Butler says. "Plus, he's one of the sharpest business-minded artists I've ever worked with. And he cuts great records.

As Rogers' producer, Butler reviews songs and suggests material. After the songs are selected, he directs the recording session - instructing the musicians and background vocalists.

In searching for material, his quest is for emo-

"You go for a record that brings tears or makes you want to smile," he says. "Records should reach your emotions. If they don't, you've failed.

"I don't like records that preach to people, but ones about lives and what can be enjoyed. I'm a sucker for love. When it's right, it's beautiful. When it's wrong, it's disastrous.

"The one thing everyone has experienced is love or the loss of love.

·Butler, a former resident of Pensacola, Fla., was a member of The Gentrys, a 1960s rock band probably best remembered for its hit "Keep on Dancin'."

In addition to Rogers, he has produced records for Debby Boone, Mac Davis, Bobby Vinton, Roy Clark, profible brigade of hit singles and Thompson and the Earl Scruggs Revue.

What the film lacks in plot, it makes up for in suspense, containing a minimum of dragging moments. The background for why what's happening is happening is rather disjointedly pieced together. But, many suspense lovers won't care, what with all the potential for violence lurking around each

A rather nifty scene involving a nude sweet young thing who turns into a jeering, slightly decomposed not-so-sweet thing adds the perfect touch for those who like sex with their violence. .

What is perhaps lost on those who came only for the suspense is the frightening reality of the thought patterns in Nicholson's mind.

His passing the buck type of blame to his wife and his sense of ownership over her and his son are uncomfortably close to the actuality that exists in many relationships. Her appologizing and coverup for his cruelty and the manner in which his guilt manifests itself are also quite real.

This type of dominant-dependent, master-slave relationship is graphically drawn to the point that its sickness is laid bare for all to see and shudder. At

Midland birth rate booming

By SUSAN FAHLGREN Staff Writer

If you've noticed an increasing number of waddling pregnant women or teeny-tiny babies lately and have considered not drinking any more water, don't worry. The water's fine; Midland's birth rate is just on the

In 1957, Midland had its record number of births - 1,684 - according to Midland Memorial Hospital records. Since that time, Midland and the nation has seen changing moralities, abortions and birth control. The trends turned toward zero population growth. 1973 brought the all-time low in Midland births with only 815 babies

But, the 80s decade seems to be making up for the decline that came during the 60s and 70s. Since 1978, the numbers have been increasing. That year 1,196 new faces arrived at the hospital; the following year another 1,293 were born. Already this year, Midland's infant count is up by another 696; and is expected to exceed 1,500 for the year.

ALTHOUGH MOST PEOPLE in the "baby business" have noticed a boom, few can agree on the cause for the increase.

"I don't know why, but there sure is a baby boom...definitely," said Katy Linehan of Upstairs, Downstairs, a baby and maternity shop in Midland. "It occurred to me that its because the economy is so good here. Usually when business is slow and the economy is poor, there are fewer births. But, we're in a booming area."

Mrs. Linehan said her store has been open for 21/2 years and that many of her first customers are returning on second and third pregnancies.

· Further, she said, "they seem to be a little bit older with husbands who are established (in their work). A lot of these girls having babies are not the youngest. Generally, they are in their mid-twenties to early thirties," she noted

"I don't know why it's (the birth rate) increasing," she said. "We support it and we promote it."

Flo Peden of the Calico Barn, another baby shop here, said she's noticed the increase, too.

"Yeah, there are more pregnant women and more babies. Maybe it's in the water," she mused.

SERIOUSLY, MS. PEDEN said she thinks the increase is due to an overall population increase here. "New people are moving in to Midland. There are many new families and, of course, they bring more pregnant women and more babies. I've been noticing it for the last three to six

In fact, the increase actually began before that.

According to Liz Logan, a medical aide for Midland obstetrician Atilano Diaz, the increase has been since May of 1979. Since then, she said, Dr. Diaz and the other obstetricians in his office have been performing "about 10 to 15 more deliveries a month," which

"There is a high influx of young people in Midland," Ms. Logan said. But, one factor she thinks could be adding to that general increase is

IN APRIL 1979, the U.S. Congress passed Senate Bill 995 to amend the Civil Rights Act. In brief, the new law forced all companies to carry maternity insurance for all its employees.

Previously, companies with a greater number of female workers would not carry the insurance because its cost was too high. Other businesses would not carry it because they had more male employees and thought it was not necessary to have maternity coverage.

What this new law means is that working couples can collect maternity insurance benefits from either or both their employers

Ms. Logan said in Midland the insurance change has meant a lot to couples contemplating children. Doctor fees for a normal, non-surgery birth in Midland range from about $500 to 800, she said.

If the doctor's fees are added to a hospital bill, the cost is somewhere between $750-1,200, Ms. Logan said. Because of this, couples are going to seriously consider their finances before deciding to have a baby. With insurance, they don't have to worry about the money as much, she said.

And, many Midland couples apparently have been taking advantage of the insurance. Ms. Logan said where her office used to carry about 60 percent of its patient load as insured patients, since May of last year the number has increased to about 85 to 90 percent

Ms. Logan said that while the demography of Midland changed, so has the description of the average Midland mother.

"A HIGHER PERCENTAGE are working women," she noted. "The largest number of them are over 23 and are having their second or third

She, too, pointed to the movement of young couples into the Midland area, particularly from the oil industry, as a reason for increased popula-

"When there's an influx of young couples in this area," she said, "we can feel it pretty quick." Many of the couples are coming from the northeast United States, as well as from Texas and other southern states, she added.

Dr. Luis C. Montaldo, an obstetrician in the same office, said he thinks young couples having several children is "more common than it was two to three years ago."

with is responsible for "about 60 percent of the deliveries in Midland," Dr. Montaldo said they see a large in-crease in births. "We're doing more deliveries every month, an average of 50 to 60."

Dr. Montaldo said, "The economy of this area has something to do with it." Coming from Detroit only six months ago, he pointed out the birth rate here is more favorable than that

Midland Memorial Hospital's nursery has been fuller than this in recent days. Two weeks ago, 30 newborns were crowded into every available crib...and a few cabinet drawers. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain) of Detroit with its depressed economy and its high unemployment rate.

Both Dr. Montaldo and Ms. Logan said that new obstetricians have been added to the area to meet the growing demand. Maudie Rains, obstetric coordinator at Midland Memorial Hospital, confirmed their statements, saying three new physicians have come to Midland within the past

MS. RAINS, WHO predicted 1,500 births this year in Midland, said she believes her estimate will fall short of the actual count. The birth rate this past March - 147 - was a record number not exceeded for more than 15 previous years.

Ms. Rains attributed Midland's rise to basically three things: An increase in the number of blue-collar workers, family planning and a greater "family involvement" with the actual

"There's growth in Midland," she said, "more blue-collar workers are coming down here from other states." Like others, Ms. Rains believes the changing and ever-increasing personnel with the oil companies here accounts for that influx of workers. Further, she said, "these people now are planned parents," althoughthere are still many young unwed teen-agers having babies.

And "the attitude of the couples having the babies now is beautiful.' Many fathers have taken active roles the birth of their ehildren, she

"IN 1959, THEY were out in the hall or having a few beers with the guys,' she explained. Now, however, they are in the delivery rooms, helping the operating room staff, taking pictures, or just watching the miracle of their own child's birth.

Whatever the cause, Ms. Rains said at any given day in the MMH nursery, there are about 20 newborns in cribs.

Donna Smith, an instructor with the Certified Childbirth Educators in Midfand, agreed that the interest in "family deliveries" has increased. After four years of business here, Ms. Smith said she has increased her staff from two to 10 teachers with each having one or more classes. She also offers two classes on Caesarean

"I really think it's because there are a lot of people moving in to Midland," Ms. Smith said. "Very few of our students are 'hometown' cou-

Heat, drought

An inch or more of rain fell over most of Midland County last weekend and gave a boost to agricultural prospects. The eastern part of the county received a second rain about midweek. The moisture couldn't have come at a better time for young cotton which had been stressing during the extremely high temperatures of the first week in June. The moisture and milder temperatures have been a help to both farmer and gardener.

TOMATO PLANTS often fail to set a normal crop of fruit because of the dropping of blossoms, which occurs about the time the flowers are fully developed. Several environmental factors cause blossoms to drop, but the trouble appears to be especially prevalent when the soil moisture is low and the plants are subjected to hot, drying winds. Temperatures considered favorable range from 55 to 69 degrees F. at night and 70 to 85 degrees F. during the day. Temperatures above 55 degrees for at least part of the night are required for first fruit set. Night temperatures above 75 degrees in the summer months inhibit fruit set - causing blossoms to Two effects of high temperatures on most commercial and garden varieties seriously limit fruit production. The first is that temperatures approaching 90 degrees effectively prevent pollination, hence no fruit develop. The second is pollen sterility which occurs at temperatures above 90 degrees. A lack of viable pollen also prevents fruit development. The net effect of both conditions results in flower drop.

LIGHT INTENSITY interacts with temperature so that while full sunlight is not detrimental to growth and fruit development at the lower temperatures of spring and fall, it is increasingly so as temperatures rise in the summer.

The effect of high light intensity is primarily one of reducing vegetative growth. The leaves become twisted, the growing tips are more or less dormant and few flowers are produced. The plants may remain in a dormant condition until rains bring lower temperatures.

PLANT BREEDERS have developed varieties that will set fruit at lower and higher temperatures than those mentioned above. Among the varieties sold commercially, the larger-fruited varieties are generally more affected by summer conditions, while the smaller-fruited (cherry type) have more

Most of the early-season varieties will set fruit at lower temperatures. Some of these are Early Girl, Burpee's Big Early, Sweet 100, Early Boy, Spring Giant and Spring Set. Larger fruited varieties of the Ponderosa type are very subject to blossom drop; therefore, do not grow these where summers are usually hot and dry. The varieties Summerset, Hotset, Summer Prolific, Improved Summertime and Porter have been developed for freedom from blossom drop in the hot, dry areas of the Southwest.

SOME NEWER VARIETIES that will set better in lower and higher temperature ranges are Big Set, Bonus, Whopper and Fantastic.

Aside from variety choice there are two methods that can be used to extend the harvest. Partiallyshading tomato plants with cheese cloth or slats lowers the light intensity and temperatures during

Also, the application of a growth regulator, such as Sure-Set, can prevent shedding of flowers and stimulate fruit development when the problem is low night temperature early in the spring.

A growth regulator known as PIX which has been used on cotton has been granted EPA clearance for the 1980 season. This material applied at the first white bloom stage at one pint per acre will control evegetative growth. It actually shortens the internodes or joints and thus can improve uniformity of

Some beneficial results reported by using PIX on cotton include: Matures earlier, retains more bolls, Improved harvest efficiency and higher yields.

Some states have found that PIX applied to cotton under moisture stress can reduce yields. It may be a useful tool in that it now provides the producer with a method for controlling vegetation.

Devices may aid disaster victims

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — New methods to spent hours studying hopsital emergency techniques move debris and treat broken bones after a tornado or volcano have been developed at Michigan State University for a worldwide disaster-aid project.

MSU researchers developed a device which weighs 20 pounds and can lift 500 pounds and also designed a universal kit for treating broken limbs.

The lifting apparatus was created by a team of industrial designers from MSU's Department of

The aluminum and steel design, an extension of the basic lever, consists of a long rectangular bar with a handle and winch at the top and a footrest and lifting arm at the bottom.

Designers Ron Kemnitzer and Roger Funk say the device cost about $30 to build and requires little physical strength and no instructions to operate.

"It can be easily used by survivors of a disaster, who may be under much stress at the time," Kem-nitzer said. A three-member team of MSU graduate students

It's made of heavy-duty cardboard impregnated with wax to resist deterioration and contains pictures of first-aid techniques. Four compartments in the box hold corrugated paperboard splints for arms and legs, basic implements for putting a victim in traction, and a first-aid kit to treat shock and bleeding.

The entire kit is light enough for a child to carry, cost about $6 to assemble and could treat 15 people said MSU graduate student Nancy Blechman

The two MSU innovations were among 67 submitted from 21 countries as part of a project sponsored by the United Nations, the Red Cross and the International Council of Societies of Industrial De-

Next legislature likely to face state employee unionization issue

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Generally speaking, organized labor and its causes generate about the same response from Texas legislators as would Jane Fonda's presence at a Daughters of the American Revolution meeting - interest, maybe enthusiasm, but not endorse-

So probably not too many lawmakers wept bitterly when Travis County District Judge Herman Jones ruled that Comptroller Bob Bullock has no authority to deduct union dues from his employees paychecks, without specific authority from the legislature. Bullock delighted members of the Texas AFL-CIO, and startled nearly everyone, when he told the 1979 convention of union leaders that he favored unionization of state employees - and would allow his workers to check off union dues.

THAT CAUSED Gov. Bill Clements to perform his Mount St. Helens imitation, and swear a mighty oath that he'd have legislation to block Bullock from carrying through with those plans.

The dispute has led to the unlikely - and probably temporary - situation of Clements and the Texas Public Employees Association finding themselves on the same side in the dues check-off issue

TPEA, which represents some 32,000 workers, has been criticized by Bullock as having been ineffective in getter better working conditions and higher salaries for state employees.

Unionization, he indicates, is the only way to achieve that - and the dues check off provision was seen as a major step in encouraging unioniza-

ATTORNEY General Mark White, who defended Bullock's position in court, issued an opinion in January (on a request from Bullock) to the effect that the comptroller could deduct union dues (and other charges) from payrolls, and could 'adopt the suggestions of employees regarding wages, hours of work and conditions of work' while not recognizing a union as such.

Thus far, unionization appears to be gaining slowly among state workers - more slowly. in fact than some observers expected. Part of the reason may be nothing more than the fact that Texas hasn't been, in the past, a strong union state. Unions are becoming more a part of the Texas economic scene, however, and public employees seem to be drifting gradually in the direction of union membership.

ONE SCHOOL of thought has been that Clements' oft-repeated demands for reductions in the numbers of state workers would stampede them into unionization but Clements' efforts have, to some extent, been stalled, with a number of state agencies' governing boards saying 'thanks but no thanks' to the government's proposal.

Another important factor in the prospects for or against unionization is salaries. Clements has complained that some state employees are overpaid - while Bullock, last year, reported that at least 58,000 state workers, and perhaps as many as 108,000, were making so little they could qualify for food stamps.

Texas state government employs some 200, 000 people (including those in higher education institutions, who make up some 40 percent of the

It all began in 1890 when First National opened for business to serve the sprawling ranch country of West Texas. Within a few months the bank had become a full-fledged partner in the growth and improvement of the community. It financed the the county's first public works program which was initiated by the county commissioners when, on September 19, 1890, they "ordered the judge to hire three men and a team and wagon to fill Abilene Street to grade in front of J. J.

Westmoreland's building." The project was discussed with W. E. Connell, cashier of The First National Bank, and he advanced them $25 to pay for the work. When the bank was one year old youngsters and adults alike headed for the fields to take advantage of a new bounty law passed by the 22nd legislature. The Commissioners Court authorized payment to 47 bounty hunters for 923 dozen rabbit skins, at $1.00 a a dozen - 20 coyote hides at $2 each, and two wildcat skins, at $2 each

As the bank marked its 10th anniversary in 1900. county commissioners met in regular session and agree to pay W. G. Pemberton $338.86 for compiling the county's tax rolls - $100 cash and the remainder when the taxes started coming in. At the same meeting; they approved a a $12.75 bill for repairs to the courthouse and jail windmill and a $1.50 bill from the Midland Livestock Reporter (later to become the Midland Reporter-Telegram). As the bank marked its 11th birthday a petition was being circulated in Midland to incorporate the town and form a city government. The election was held on September 29, 1901 - and the incorporation was approved by a vote of 93-69.

And so, through the years, the bank continued to grow as Midland grew. There was a world war, a depression, and oil boom and decline, and another world war.

On July 25, 1950, just a few days after the banks birthday, the City Council apparently was convinced Midland was on the grow. Its population had jumped in the past 10 years from 9,000 to 21,000 and was continuing to grow every week.

New office buildings rose. including the new home of The First National Bank at the corner of Wall and Colorado. It was occupied on Labor Day, 1959.

By 1960, the city's population reached 62,000 - almost triple that of 10 years previously

And now - 20 years later. with Midland a virtual metropolis...and the bank grown to a 24-story skyscraper with the largest deposits of any independent bank in the state, it seems that the only things that have really changed through all of those years since 1890 are sizes, shapes and structures. Midlanders are still the proud, hard-working people the first settlers here were. The bank still strives to serve these people in the best way it can ... and trust and faith in the future is still part of the philosophy at First National

First National is, and always has been, a great bank to call you own!

PRESIDING over the five-day sessions will be Bishop C.C. Coleman of Dallas, who also supervises four other conferences in Texas which comprise the 8th Episcopal District. Presiding elders of the Midland conference are the Rev. G.R. Patterson of Wichita Falls and the Rev. Jonah Parker, host presiding elder, of Abilene. It was reported that the Rev. E.J. Lott of Abilene, who has served some 30 years as a presiding elder, is ill but plans to attend at least one day's session if doctors agree. He is known by friends of the church as "Father Lott" and is credited with establishing a "firm foothold for the church" in West Texas.

the independents got a "tax break," in a manner of speaking.

THE TAX WAS promoted as an excess profits tax on "Big Oil," the men say. But now the royalty owners and others are realizing that it wasn't a tax on Big Oil; that they'll be the ones footing the bill.

That hurts because it is the royalty owners traditionally who put money back into the independents' pockets to explore for more oil. Now there'll be less of that money.

Next, the tax will impact the producer himself, LaForce and Fraser say. They'll begin to feel the pinch when less loan money is available. But the last person it comes down to will be the American consumer.

"It is not just a tax on Big Oil," stressed Fraser. "It's a tax on anyone who has oil and gas properties."

Ed Thompson, executive director of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, agreed, adding, "It ends up being a tax on the consumer."

It will hurt the consumer because taking money away from the domestic oil industry gives the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries a free rein to set prices on the oil the United States imports wherever they please.

WHAT THIS ENTIRE episode has accomplished, Fraser says, is to increase the price of gasoline while delaying development of alternate sources of energy. "And every year that goes by we're having to do it (drill for more oil) at an inflated cost," he noted.

What can be done to help the independent oil industry?

Thompson noted that various oil industry groups are studying the possibility of a constitutionality test of the law in the federal courts. Gov. Bill Clements said not long ago he anticipates the state filing such a challenge in the near future.

But the Texas Attorney General's office said last week the idea still is being studied. No decision has been reached at this time on whether to file

According to Thompson, the PBPA would join in any suit filed challeng-

But he went on to point out that such action requires electing to the Congress individuals more favorably disposed to private industry.

"I don't see something that's going to happen overnight to eliminate the tax," Fraser shook his head.

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) -Isao Aoki of Japan birdied the last two holes and tied struggling Jack Nicklaus for the lead after the third round Saturday in the 80th U.S. Open golf championship.

Aoki, a slender 37-year-old and a veteran international golfer, putted his way to a third consecutive 2-under-par 68 and a 204 total, six shots under par.

Nicklaus, playing with Aoki in the final twosome, squandered a 2-stroke advantage with some shoddy putting down the stretch. He finished with a round of par 70 and a share of the top spot.

It set up a dramatic confrontation for Sunday's final round of the most prestigious of all the world's tests of golfing great-

Rangers ragged in 7-6 loss

TORONTO (AP) - Roy Howell's sacrifice fly scored Garth lorg in the bottom of the ninth inning Saturday, capping a two-run rally and giving the Toronto Blue Jays a 7-6 victory over the Texas Rangers. Trailing 6-5 entering their final atbat, the Blue Jays loaded the bases for the fourth time in the game - on three walks. Barry Bonnell came home with the tying run when Bud Harrelson bobbled Damaso Garcia's grounder and, with one out and the outfield drawn in, Howell hit a fly ball to deep left field to win the game. Tom Buskey, 3-1, came on in the sixth inning. Bob Babcock, the fifth Ranger pitcher, took his second loss in as many decisions.

Rusty Staub's three-run homer in the first had gotten the Rangers started and Texas hurlers snuffed three bases-loaded Toronto threats before the Blue Jays rallied.

With one out in the first, Bump Wills doubled and Al Oliver walked. Staub then hit the first pitch from Louis Leal just inside the foul pole for his third home run of the year.

In the fourth, Wills' sacrifice fly scored Tucker Ashford. And in the fifth, Staub doubled and scored on Pat Putnam's double.

Frias added a run in the Texas sixth when he scored after eluding the tag of catcher Ernie Witt in a run-down.

Lloyd Moseby singled home Otto Velez with the Blue Jays' first run in the second inning. Toronto added two runs in the third on an RBI single by Garcia and John Mayberry's runscoring double.

MILWAUKEE (AP) - The hitting streak of Cecil Cooper ended at 22 games Saturday when the Milwaukee Brewers' first baseman popped out on his last trip to the plate against the Kansas City Royals.

Cooper had been hitless going into the ninth inning on Friday he came through with a two-run homer that kept the streak alive.

Drama unfolds during 24-hour Le Mans race

LE MANS, France (AP) - The dramatic battle for the Le Mans 24 hours road racing classic went into Sunday with the tough pace taking a regular toll of early leaders.

Californian Dick Barbour, with Britons John Fitzpatrick and Brian Redman, kept the lead with a blistering pace in their Porsche 935 turbo in a "win or bust" attempt. Barbour finished second here last year. Shortly after 1 a.m. and nine hours' racing, the Rondeau of France's Henri Pescarolo and Jean Ragnotti, which had a slight lead over Barbour for over three hours, abandoned the race with a blown head gasket. A second Rondeau was one lap behind Barbour, driven by former Le Mans winner Jean-Pierre Jaussaud and builder Jean Rondeau. And back in third, after a broken fuel injection pump belt dropped him from the lead to 13th, was Belgian Jackie Ickx. Seeking a record fifth win here, he powered relentlessly up the field to threaten Barbour with the faster, open Porsche 980-80. In several previous races here, Ickx has made such a comeback.

Midlander Hall has design on winning

'I have to consider myself an innovator'

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) - Looking pride, satisfaction and a sense of out his office window at land flatter than the oval race track at Indianapolis, Jim Hall leans back in his chair, folds his hands behind his head and says, "It worked out very smooth-

Hall is the 44-year-old championship auto racing team leader whose cars have won two of the last three Indy 500 races - the only three he has entered.

The most recent victory - the one that "worked out very smoothly" this year - caps a 26-year career as a driver, designer, developer and race team leader, a career highlighted by dozens of achievements and marred by just as many frustrations.

Now that his Indy-style "ground effects" car has become the one to watch the rest of this race season, achievement are obvious when Hall "I have to consider myself an innovator," he said during an interview at his Chaparral Cars headquarters, an unimposing cluster of brick and cinder-block buildings a few miles south of Midland. "I never have been a 'The personal satisfaction I get is to look at the circumstances, the regulations, and decide what would be the ideal machine to fit that category. And I'm not afraid to try something new. I do it on a scientific, engineering basis with a lot of research ... and I've done it several times.'

The facts support the claim, Hall, as lean today as when he was named U.S. Road Racer of the Year in 1964, has been a dominant figure in the field of auto design and development for nearly two decades. His innovations have been outlawed by racing's governing bodies more often than those of any other designer,

"I had some regulation problems with the sport," he said matter-offactly, "where everything I built for a while turned out to be illegal.'

The first instance came in 1967, while Hall was still active as a driver. when he installed a movable airfoil, or "wing," on the rear of his Chaparral racer to force the car downward onto the track.

"I was the first guy to put a wing on a car in modern times," he said. The airfoil is now on almost every Indystyle racer, but not the wing Hall invented.

"The way I did it was a little more sophisticated than the way it's presently done because the angle of the wing could be changed by the driver. That system was disallowed by the international sanctioning body in 1968 for no good reason, in my opinion, and I did take that a little personally. As you know, it's in almost universal use now, so at least I had one good idea in my lifetime."

That statement was deliberate irony, since Hall had another shocker for the racing world just two years

His Chaparral 2-J featured a motor-driven fan to create a partial vacuum under the car, increasing downforce and allowing greater cornering speeds. It was banned in 1971, and Hall quit driving.

He returned in 1973 as a team leader, still quietly burning with his major (See HALL, Page 4C)

Lundquist finds stroke

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) - Dale Lundquist found her putting stroke and shot the best round of her career, a 6-under-par 66, to grab a command-ing 4-stroke lead after the third round of a $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament Saturday.

The closest golfers to her total of 12-under-par 204 with the final set for Sunday were Beth Daniel, who shot a 70, and Pat Bradley, who had 69. Both were at 208.

Lundquist is in her fourth full year on the tour and never has finished better than a third-place tie. She has won only $9,190 this season, never finishing higher than 18th. But this has been her tournament from the start.

She was the sole leader after the first round with a 68. Her 70 Friday tied her for the second round lead with 1979 rookie-of-the-year Daniel at 6-under-par 138 on the par 72, 6,029yard Ferncroft course.

After she rediscovered her putting touch on the practice green after Friday's round, she bolted away from the pack Saturday.

"I only had 28 putts today, a little improvement over 35 yesterday," said Lundquist, 26. "I was moving my head (on Friday's putts) and getting a little anxious to see where the ball was going. "When I'm playing my best, I'll pick an imaginary target and imaginary line where I want to hit the shot and right before I take it (the club) back my mind goes blank," she said. "I get too analytical with myself." Lundquist and Daniel remained tied through eight holes Saturday. But the aggressive Lundquist took charge on the par 5 ninth hole. She made an eagle there and followed it with birdies on the 10th and 13th. Daniel, playing in the next group, birdied the ninth but gave the stroke back with her bogey at 11 to drop into a tie with Bradley Lundquist's final birdie came at the 18th hole. She tapped the ball in after barely missing an eagle with a 25-foot

The four par 5 holes were the keys to her round, bringing her an eagle and three birdies.

Warwick upsets Gerulaitis

LONDON (AP) - Australia's Kim Warwick, ranked No. 57 in the world, upset Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States 6-3, 6-4 in windy weather Saturday and unexpectedly reached the final of the Queen's Club grass courts tennis championships.

Defending champion John McEnroe, less troubled by the conditions, used his heavy service to defeate Victor Pecci of Paraguay 6-4, Gerulaitis was the No. 2 seed. Warwick was unseeded, but had had a comparatively easy passage to the semifinals with no seeds in his path.

Warwick will challenge McEnroe in the final Sunday for a prize of $17,500. The tournament is an important warm-up event on grass before Wimbledon.

captures Amateur PORTHCAWL, Wales (AP) -

David Evans became the first Welshman to win the 95-year-old British Amateur Golf Championship Satur-day when he defeated South Africa's David Suddards 4 and 3 in a 36-hole final played in torrential rain. Evans, a 6-foot-5 rugby international player who works in his father's fish and chip shop, led by four holes after the morning round and withstood the 26-year-old public relations man from Durban with booming drives on the Royal Porthcawl

With a group of 100 Welshman cheering him on, Evans moved to a 5-up lead with nine holes to play. With five holes to play he also was 5-up. before Suddards won the 32nd hole with a birdie two.

But it was only the South African's fourth win of the day, and Evans finished him off with a 20-footer for the necessary half at the next green. Suddards had been outdriven by up to 40 yards on the day.

Evans began the day by winning the second through the fourth holes capped by a 12-foot putt - and reached the morning turn 2-up. So heavy was the downpour that John Salveson, chairman of the championship committee, and members of the greenskeeping staff stayed a round ahead of the players to make sure the greens were playable.

At the seventh hole, the flag stood in the middle of a puddle, and a new hole had to be made.

Suddards scored his first success at the ninth, where Evans missed the green and took three more to hole

The rain eased as Evans took two of the next three and stood 4-up after the 12th. At the next hole, however, Evans hit his second shot into the sand and couldn't recover. It left him

The next two holes were halved, and Suddards missed a chance on the 16th green when he three-putted to halve again. Evans went 4-up at the 17th and both halved 18th.

David Graham of Australia, the current PGA champion, had a 72 and was at 217. Seve Ballesteros of Spain, who won the Masters and the 1979 British Open, was disqualified after failing to make his starting time for Friday's second round.

The defending American titleholder, Hale Irwin, had a 73 and was at 213.

Nicklaus' problems down the stretch served as a crushing disappointment to the proud man who owns a record collection of 15 major professional championships.

He's led or shared the lead all three rounds here.

But he was far from happy. "I had an opportunity to run away and hide from the field and I gave it all away," he

He bogeyed the 15th when he three-putted, leaving his first putt some five feet short. He missed a 12-footer for birdie on the 16th. He missed an even shorter one for birdie on the 17th. And, with an eagle opportunity on the 18th, he ran a 25-footer some five feet by the hole and missed it coming back. It was a three-putt par.

At one time, however, Nicklaus had it in his hand.

He dropped birdie putts in the 20-30 foot range on the fourth, fifth and seventh holes and appeared ready to move away from the field as he did with such regularity in other days.

But this time it was not to be. His putts wouldn't fall and the pesky Aoki stayed with him, lurking just off his shoulder.

Nicklaus kept booming the drives some 20 yards beyond Aoki. But they kept leaving the greens with matching pars. It all turned around on the final few holes when Aoki's long putts fell and Jack's short ones did

'Skeets' hurdles back to top of pack

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) - World record holder Renaldo "Skeets" Nehemiah showed Saturday that he was back from the injuries that have plagued him most of the year, winning the 110-meter hurdles event at The Athletics Congress Outdoor Track and Field Championships. The fluid Nehemiah, hampered by a torn cartilage in his left ankle, a "hip tilt" and an Achilles tendon injury in 1980, skimmed over the hurdles in 13.49 seconds in edging Dedy Cooper, the runnerup in 13.56.

Franklin Jacobs of Fairleigh Dickinson University also repeated as champion. The diminutive high jumper took his second straight crown, clearing 7 feet, 41/4 inches. "I am very pleased with this pered his overall winning streak to 13. "I

"I feel I am capable of 7-8 or 7-9 this year," added the 5-81/4 Jacobs. "Since I do not have the opportunity to win a gold medal this year in the Olympic Games, my goal is the world record (7-81/2).

Dwight Stones, a five-time national champion, finished third at 7-3 and was very upset.

"This facility is really bad," he said about Mount San Antonio College. "It realy held me back. Everything is wrong; the surface, the wind, everything. They keep having to sweep the surface too much; I wasted three jumps today.

Like Jacobs, long jumper Larry Myricks became a national champion for the second year in a row. Myricks won in dramatic fashion, soaring 27-11/4 on his final attempt).

In a thrilling men's 100-meter race, Auburn University freshman Stanley Floyd extended his winning streak to 11 in finals, nipping James Gilkes of Guyana. Both were timed in 10.19 seconds, and after the race, Gilkes went around waying his right hand as if he had won.

Five are selected for Hall of Fame

Former Southwest Conference foot ball All-Americans Dicky Maegle of Rice and Tommy Nobis of Texas have been elected to the Texas Sports Hall of Fame.

Also elected were Baylor Athletic Director Jack Patterson, former National AAU hurdles champion at Rice, former World Series catcher Gus Mancuso and the late Fred Cobb, who developed four NCAA golf championship teams at North Texas State.

The five were elected in preferential balloting by a 21-man committee composed of members of the Texas Sports Writers Association and they will be inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame during Cotton Bowl week at Dallas in December.

Maegle popped into the national headlines in the 1954 Cotton Bowl game when Tommy Lewis of Ala-bama jumped off the bench to tackle him and prevent a touchdown. How-ever, Maegle was awarded a 95-yard touchdown. He scored four touchdowns in the game and rushed for 265

Maegle averaged 6.6 yards per carry for Rice and played seven years in the pros, earning all-pro honors as a defensive back for the San Francisco 49ers in 1957.

Nobis was an All-American linebacker at Texas in 1964 and 1965, winning the coveted Outland Award as the outstanding interior lineman in 1965. He was an All-Pro linebacker for the Atlanta Falcons in the National Football League.

Patterson was track coach at Houston, Baylor and Texas. He was the high point man in the 1937 SWC meet. He led Baylor and Texas to three SWC titles each as a coach.

He took over Baylor's ailing athletic program and made it competitive and financially stable.

Grange has 77th birthday

INDIAN LAKE, Fla. (AP) Harold "Red" Grange thought he would let this birthday slip by quietly. He was wrong.

Too many people remembered the hero of the gridiron who helped boost pro football to a major sport. Grange turned 77 on Friday. That was the jersey number he wore during his dazzling football career, when he earned the nickname "Galloping

"I wore 77. Now I've finally arrived at my football number. And I don't know whether that's good or bad," Grange quipped. "I do know it means I'm one year older."

Letters, cards and telephone calls poured in steadily. Before noon, Grange had already been greeted by 40 callers, "It's been a steady string." "I planned to stay home and have a bottle of champagne with my wife. But all I've been doing is answering the telephone.

At the University of Illinois, he once raced for four touchdowns in 12 mi-

During the 1920s, the blazing speed and electrifying performances of the brilliant Chicago Bears halfback catapulted the game from deep inside sports sections to front-page headlines across the country. "Yes, I think I brought some attention to the game," Grange said modestly.

racing passion - finding a better way to keep the car flat on the ground at high speeds and through corners.

That search culminated in the 'ground effects" car, named the best-engineered car at Indy in 1979 even though it did not win. This year, Johnny Rutherford drove it to victory and a record purse. But Hall is not sure he'll be returning to the brickyard in 1981. The reason, ironically, is that he was so successful.

He formed a limited partnership in 1978, with some local business friends, to finance a three-year program for victory at Indianapolis. It did not take him that long.

'We were fortunate to win the first year, but I thought I had blown the whole deal. But everybody stuck in there, they realized my program was to study the Indy racing, learn about it and try to win it in the third year and, by golly, I've done that. But my partners did it mostly for the fun, and they may not want to stick with it, so I may have to reorganize my pro-

"I used some principles we developed for the suction car plus modern aerodynamics I saw in other cars and I combined that for a system on the Indy-style car. The air flow under the car ... pulls the car down to the track."

Hall, bitten by the racing bug at age 19 when he borrowed his brother's sports car to enter an amateur race in New Mexico, has a degree in mechanical engineering from the California Institute of Technology

"I have the right background for what I'm in," he said drily. He also manages an independent oil company, and - when he has time - he's an aerobatics pilot in a World War IItrainer he rebuilt himself.

But his consuming interest continues to be auto racing.

"It takes a certain individual that's, willing to take the risk," he said. 'There's been automotive competition ever since they built the second one. I think it's just human nature to do that."

Parsons on pole

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) -Benny Parsons, who once drove a cab in nearby Detroit, gave himself a sweet ride Saturday to take the pole position for the Michigan 400 Grand National race away from Cale Yarborough.

Parsons wheeled his Chevrolete Monte Carlo to a lap of 163.662 mph on Michigan International Speedway's 2-mile oval, nudging Yarborough into the second starting position for Sunday's 400-mile race.

SWC coaches anticipate exciting football season

By Associated Press

Defending co-champions Arkansas and Houston were picked as the teams to beat again for the 1980 Southwest Conference football championship in a summer poll of league coaches, but at least four other schools were rated talented enough to win it

In a poll of SWC coaches compiled by Bill Morgan and Tom Turbevile of the SWC office with the help of sports information directors, there was one unanimous opinion: It could be the wildest of SWC campaigns.
"It will be tough again," said Texas Tech Coach Rex Dockery. "I think Arkansas and Houston will be the preseason favorites but there are a lot of good teams. Texas should challenge and Baylor is coming off a good season so that should carry over."

COACH F.A. DRY of Texas Christian concluded: "Texas A&M, Arkansas and Houston, not necessarily in that order. are Top 20 teams. I know everybody will be better but we feel we'll be able to step on the field with the rest of the league." Texas A&M Coach

Tom Wilson said "I believe that the Southwest Conference is the toughest league in the nation today, so every conference game will be like a war. Houston, Texas, and Arkansas are the three that most folks will favor. But don't sell any team short."

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Has God failed? No!

OH, Israel, my people! On, my Jewish brothers! How I long for you to come to Christ. My heart is heavy within me and I grieve bitterly day and night because of you. Christ knows and the Holy Spirit knows that it is no mere pretense when I say that I would be willing to be forever damned if that would save you tiod has given you so much, but still you will not listen to Him. He took you as His own special, chosen people and led you along with a bright cloud of glory and told you how very much He wanted to bless you. He gave you His rules for daily life so you would know what He wanted you to do. He let you worship Him, and gave you mighty promises.

Great men of God were your fathers, and Christ Himself was one of you, a Jew so far as His human nature is concerned, He who now rules over all things. Praise God forever!

Well then, has God failed to fulfill His promises to the Jews? No! | For these promises are only to those who are truly Jews. | And not everyone born into a Jewish family is truly a

Just the fact that they come from Abraham doesn't make them truly Abraham's children. For the Scriptures say that the promises apply only to Abraham's son Isaac and Isaac's descendants, though Abraham had other children too.

This means that not all of Abraham's children are children of God, but only those who believe the promise of salvation which He made to Abraham.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Reactions to alcohol differ with individual

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am a young woman who rarely drinks alcoholic beverages. Recently, however, I attended the wedding of a very dear friend of mine and had some wine. Rather than relaxing me, it made me very sleepy. I could better understand this reaction if I had had hard liquor, and I wonder why the wine affected me as it did. Was my reaction unusual? I am in good health and not on any medication. — Ms. K.C.

Dear Ms. C.: You seem to believe that if you drink wine instead of whiskey you will be more immune to the effects of the alcohol; if so, you have a mistaken impression. It is not what you drink that determines your reaction to the alcohol, but how much of it

While the amount of alcohol in equal quantities of various drinks differs, most drinks are served in such a manner as to provide approximately the same amount of alcohol. For example, if you drank five ounces of wine at the wedding, you consumed about three-quarters of an ounce of alcohol. This is the same amount of alcohol contained in one and one-half ounces of 100-proof vodka or whis-

A drinker's reaction is related to the build-up of alcohol in the blood. When a blood-alcohol level of 0.05 percent is reached - that is, one part alcohol to 2,000 parts of blood - a person may experience a feeling of well-being and relaxation. At a level of 0.10 percent, however, the individual's ability to walk and talk is affected. At 0.20 percent, some drinkers begin to stagger, become sleepy or go on crying or laughing jags. At signifi-cantly higher levels, coma results and death may even occur.

Reaction to alcohol is very individualized, and reliance only on the percentage of alcohol in the blood as an indication of intoxication can be very misieading. Factors other than the amount a person drinks also influence the response to alcohol. They include the person's weight; whether he or she ate before beginning to drink; the kind of mixer, if any, used in the drink; and the amount of alcohol an individual consumes in a given period

Two people may each have a single drink containing the same amount of alcohol in the same period of time; but if one weighs 200 pounds and the other 160 pounds, the heavier person's blood will show an alcohol level only half as high as the lighter person's. By the same token, a 100-pound individual will have a blood-alcohol level three times as high as the 200-

The rate at which alcohol is absorbed into the blood is slowed when there is food in the stomach, particularly high protein foods such as cheese, meat and eggs. The type of mixer also affects absorption, with water and fruit juice slowing the process, while carbonated mixers speed it up

The body needs about an hour to process each half-ounce of alcohol consumed. A person can help control the blood-alcohol level by making each drink last at least an hour, or by limiting the amount of alcohol used in the preparation of the drink.

Laughter is best medicine, says doctor-comedian

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) - There is more that meets the eye, ear, nose and throat to Dr. Bill Miller. This cut-up aims for the funny bone.

The 28-year-old emergency room physician bills himself — a unique phenomenon for any M.D. — as "the only doctor in the United States doing comedy intentionally.

After spending three days a week stitching up knife wounds and setting fractured limbs at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center, Miller sheds his green smock and heads for the Laff Stop.

He strides onstage, grabs the microphone and becomes a standup comedian - the "warm-up" act for headliners at the Newport Beach club.

"I'm not fed up with medicine," he explains, "I just like show business better." Most of his jokes are on himself. And while laughter from his audience is often matched by criticism from colleagues who feel he cheapens the medical profession, Miller sees a similarity between his two jobs.

In both instances, he says, "You're taking an ill from someone and making it better."

A class clown from grammar-school days, the Los Angeles native admits he was never that fervent about his medical aspirations. "A doctor, I guess," he would reply whenever asked what he wanted to be when he grew up.

Miller took time out from dissecting frogs as pre-med student at UCLA to enroll in acting and drama courses as well. Before leaving California for Northwestern University Medical school, Miller found himself before his first audience on amateur night at the Comedy Store in Los Angeles.

When I went on stage and heard the first laugh, I was hooked," he recalls, "It's worse than narcot-

Midland sales tax rebate reveals gain over 1979

Total 1980 sales tax rebate figures for the city of Midland show a healthy 45 percent gain over last year's figures, according to a report released this week by the State Comptroller's office.

Midland received a total of $2.6 million in rebates this year, compared to last year's figure of $1.8

Rebate figures for Odessa show a 20 percent increase, with the town receiving $3 million as compared to last year's total of $2.5 million. Big Spring recorded an increase of 21 percent, receiving rebates totaling $500,000 this year as opposed to $400,000 last year.

Local figures seem contradictory to the statewide picture, however. According to State Comptroller Bob Bullock, the total amount of rebate money to be shared among the 936 Texas cities is $65.3 million, down from last year's figure of $67.7 million.

Bullock said the small decrease may indicate consumer caution about the economy and spending

Sales taxes paid by Midland County this year totaled $150 million, with Ector County paying $200 million, and Howard County reporting sales tax payments of $30 million

He searched out similar opportunities in Chicago, he said, and during his first year at Northwestern, professors would regard his sliding grades and urge him to decide between comedy and medicine. He didn't listen. Instead, he wrote his own pre-

Business community underwrites teaching of free enterprise system in city's schools

By DAVID CAMPBELL

Sometimes American business can become too involved conducting business. Unfortunately, it can neglect teaching students about the system which allows it to survive.

However, the system has an answer. A San Antonio businessman and the Midland business community will provide students with the opportunity to learn about free enterprise - free of charge to the Midland taxpayer.

Brunell Harvey, president of Bruco, Inc., has set up a business and made a reasonable profit of providing West Texas schools with the materials to instruct third through sixth grade

Midland students in the basics of America's economic system. By this fall about 2,800 books of "Americanomics - The Way America Does Business," will be placed in Midland public and private schools to aid teachers in free enterprise instruction. And so far, 13 Midland businesses have volunteered to help underwrite the costs of providing the materials.

Also, the book will help school districts comply with the state legislature's mandate to provide free enterprise instruction. Texas school districts are now required by Senate Bill 1040 to provide economic education to all students by 1981-82. But the bill has given school systems a "free hand" to determine what methods and materials they can use to fulfil the law, Harvey

The Midland school district did not ask Bruco to provide materials, he said. He went to them and asked if the district was interested in a product which has worked in two other school

San Angelo and Big Spring school districts have already incorporated the teaching materials in their free enterprise courses, according to Harvey.

The workbook, which is published in San Antonio, should provide elementary students with a simple and direct approach. to free enterprise, he said. The book is an 11-part educational supplement which teaches the fundementals of capitalism.

There are two series of Americanomics - Part I for kindergarten through third grade and Part II designed for fourth to eighth grade students. Both books are written where students can learn easily the basics of capitalism, the San Antonio business

Before he developed and compiled "Americanomics," the San Antonio businessman broadcasted and later wrote a 51-part series on free enterprise entitled "A Minute for Free Enterprise." First used for employee awareness, the series later was put in schools.

Nice work if you can stand it

CINCINNATI (AP) — Women job hunters might do well to consider driving a taxi.

Officials of taxi companies here say women are generally more courteous to passengers, get fewer traffic tickets, have fewer accidents than men, and tend to stay with the job longer

But it isn't easy work, and it can be danger-

Jan Holland, 37, a former criminal investigator, began driving a taxi seven years ago because, she said, her former job caused too much stress

Then her cab was stolen a couple months ago - "the only really bad incident I've had," she said. After picking up a fare, she said, "Suddenly this guy grabbed me around the neck (and) ordered me to stop the cab right on the expressway. He pushed me out, got in and drove away.'

When police located her taxi back in Cincinnati, she picked it up and finished her shift. Women sometimes also have to overcome parental objections to driving a cab. "My mother took me aside and asked what I would do if a passenger wanted to go to a house of prostfution," said Brenda Schreiber, 30. "I teased her and said I'd just have to learn where they were."

Arthroscopic surgery holds out new hope

By CYNTHIA KYLE

LANSING, Mich. (AP) - In a postage stamp-size operating room, there's new hope for bad knees, tennis elbows and even some arthritis under one of medicine's most sophisticated

With minuscule vacuums and motorized files, orthopedic surgeons are scraping away diseased tissue, sucking up bone chips and smoothing out ragged bones in America's first arthroscopic surgery center, at Lansing's new Ingham Medical

It is designed to make repairing the human body's most hidden bones and joints easier and less awkward for orthopedic sur-

And the streamlined operations - sometimes called "Band-Aid" surgery because the tiny punctures are covered with sterile pads, not closed with stitches - are also easier on the body's healing system than traditional surgery.

Dr. Lanny Johnson, a surgeon at the hospital, showed off the new center by demonstrating the procedures on a woman suffering from grinding pain in her right knee.

"It's like you have eyes in the joint," he said as he slid slender, silver tubes into the woman's leg, held in his lap. "Some artists work in oils. Some artists work in watercolors. We work in arthroscopy.

In just minutes, he had made a quarter-inch slit in the woman's knee, inserted a needlelike tube with a bright light at the end and peered into the depths of the joins

In barely an hour, he had sanded away damage and gently sucked bone chips out of the joint.

All the while, his hands never touched the knee directly. He operated through the pencil-thin instruments holding a series of prisms and connected to cameras.

Neither did he ever look directly at the fragile bones and joints, but monitored the delicate work instead on a small television screen hanging from the ceiling. Without the special lenses, he could not have seen the furry particles on an arthritic bone or the tiny tissue connections.

In many cases, people can go home the same day as the surgery, take only aspirin for the slight pain and use the repaired arm or leg much sooner than they could after traditional cutand-sew work, he said.

Aithough science does not yet have the instruments to explore such cramped places as finger joints, surgeons can look into most joints and repair almost anything but ligaments with their tiny

In the past, bone specialists could not always see the body's fine internal structures even with their eyes, he said. After hours of open surgery, they were often forced to take out, rather than . repair, damaged parts, leaving people with less mobility or stiffness.

Arthroscopic surgery has been performed for some 40 years, since it was developed initially in Japan.

Although it was done at Ingham Medical in 1972, the center was not begun until a few doctors, interested in the special surgery and among its American developers, pushed for its opening.

Now, as many as 60 patients a week are wheeled into the special operating suite where arthroscopic work is most commonly done on the knee.

"There is less pain and discomfort for the patient in this type of work than in the past. There is better healing," Johnson said. There also are advantages to the work for surgeons, eventhough it takes a fine sense of direction and delicacy to maneuver sensitive equipment through the body, he said.

"We weren't used to using small instruments like these before," he said. "It takes different eye and hand coordination. Your orientation has to be very good for this type of work.

Despite the dramatic strides, doctors are just on the threshhold of real medical miracles, like tiny darts to hold tissue tears and super glue to mend bones, he said. "I think it's just the beginning," he said. "But we still haven't got to making people young."

Rent-a-cow service provides new opportunities for dairies

DALLAS (AP) -Dairy farmers who find expensive cows are milking them dry can now hoof it on down to East Texas and rent a whole herd for about a buck a cow per day

Quality Holstein Leasing, Inc., a division of machine tool company Borg-Wagner, rents out the bovine food factories for $31 per 1,000 pounds of cow-on-the-hoof about $1 per cow per day.

"It's a unique business," says Dave Marler, general manager of Quality Holstein. "I'd be pretty safe saying we're the largest in the United States.

When Quality Holstein was founded two years ago, it had two employees and a one-room office, he said. But now the company, located near Tennessee Colony, Texas, has 24 workers and leases 5,000 cows to about 300 dairy farmers in 25 states - mostly in the Southwest.

Leasing can keep

farmers off the horns of a credit dilemma, allowing them to save their borrowing power for other purchases. A single dairy cow can be a hefty investment, easily costing $1,200 or more, Marler said.

"This is very attractive, because everyone has only so much borrowing power," he said.
"It keeps the local credit line clear, and that's extremely important to the farmer.

"It makes a lot of sense. In leasing, you don't have a big out ay out front. You just have your monthly lease payment. So you let the cow pay for herself." A healthy cow can pay . expense.

well over the life of the five-year lease, Marler says. He estimates milk from a "good average cow" 'totals 50 pounds a day, worth about $6.75 at the dairy plant. Costs tota' about $3 a day - $1 for the lease and $2 for food. So each leased cow can boost a dairy farmer's herd income by $3.75

At the end of the fiveyear lease, the farmer can buy the cow for 20 percent of the original purchase price. Otherwise, it's sold as beef

The farmer also gets a tax break, Marler said, writing off the leasing costs as an operational

Reservation Mohawks on warpath

ST. REGIS, N.Y. (AP) - The head of the New York State Police on Saturday promised a swift end to the armed confrontation between two rival groups of Mohawks at the St. Regis Indian Reservation on the U.S.-Canadian border.

Superintendent William 6. Connelie told a group of Indians outside tribal headquarters that state police were "going to come up with some kind of agreement before the day is over. You will have the support of the state and the state police.'

Meanwhile, state police Maj. Robert Schneeman, who handled negotiations Friday, discounted earlier reports of an agreement aimed at reducing tension.

Robert Morgado, secretary to Gov. Hugh L. Carey, said earlier Saturday that the "tribal" Indians had agreed to pull back from their positions along a state road if a temporary "strong post" of state troopers was set up on or near the reservation. Schneeman said he had not heard anything about that reported

The dispute between Mohawk's who follow traditional Indian customs and beliefs and the so-called "tribal" Mohawks, who elect their leaders and are recognized by state and federal presence of the tribal Mohawks threaten their culture

Both sides seemed to be remaining calm Saturday afternoon, despite the presence of armed encampments about a mile-and-ahalf apart. The atmosphere behind the traditional Indians' barricade was relaxed, and spokesmen said they were open to

Tribal Indians had reduced their numbers' since Friday, when about 200 of them lined a state highway a mile from the traditional Indian encampment.

Seventy heavily armed state troopers were sent to the reservation Friday after the two factions set up their positions. Troopers manned barricades on the median of a highway separating the The governor's office said 40 of the troopers were withdrawn

Saturday after the agreement was reported to have been reached. A spokesman, Steven Morello, said separate talks with both sides could begin as soon as Sunday.

The long-simmering dispute between the two factionx over control of the reservation's government was brought to a boil Friday when the tribal Mohawks demanded the ouster of the traditionalists.

The Capp Finish-It-Yourself House

... comes complete with financing.

When you build a Capp Home the financing comes right along with the quality building materials and high level of personal service. New qualified Capp customers can count on getting the money they need to build the home they want. Capp provides the hard-to-find construction money to pay for the labor and materials to build your home plus a firm commitment for a long term mortgage. The interest rate on this mortgage won't be set until 1981 when some experts predict interest rates will probably be lower.

When you build with Capp you win in every way. You can build a custom home designed to your specifications, that comes with a full complement of finishing materials. You can pay today's low price and by managing the finishing process yourself you can save thousands compared to the cost of having an ordinary builder construct the same house on the lot and foundation you provide. Plus, with Capp's financing program, you get all the money you need today and then get a long term morgage at next year's expected lower rates.

GED lets dropouts back in

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: May I use your column to help all those kids who have dropped out of high school and wish they hadn't?

If you are a dropout and now regret it, you don't have to settle for the lowest paying job all your life and be referred to as "uneducated." And you don't have to go back to high school for two or three years to get your diploma, either.

Every state in this country offers a high school diploma by examination. The exam is called the "General Education Development" test. It is offered to everyone and is even accept ed for college entrance.

Abby, this may not be news to you, but it was news to me, and I'm sure there are thousands, maybe millions

After kicking myself for five years for having dropped out of high school, I learned about G.E.D. from a friend. Exactly three months later I had my high school diploma. I then passed my college entrance exams and I'm now going to college.

I am very grateful to the person who told me about G.E.D., and I'm sure your readers will be grateful to you if you pass on this information to them. -SACRAMENTO READER

DEAR READER: Thanks for a helpful tip. Anyone interested in obtaining a high school diploma may call any high school in his community for the necessary information. Or write to: General Education Development Testing Service, American Council on Education, 1 Dupont Circle N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

"Her progress was above average, due to natural ability. But basically, I think, there was just that fire, and, I think it's still there.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - You've likely heard of jazz musician Louis Armstrong. But did you know that his wife, Lillian Hardin Armstrong, also was a musician?

Mrs. Armstrong is one of thousands of women who are documented in the new two-volume reference book, 'Women's History Sources: A Guide to Archives and Manuscript Collections in the United States.' Material for the book was gathered in a four-year nationwide survey conducted at the University of Minneso-The goal of the project was to create a reference tool for scholars by identifying and locating primary sources for research. 'We did create a reference tool," said Andrea Hinding, St. Paul, survey director and editor of the book. "What we also did was to find and create the compendium of women's history in this country. "Women's History Sources" records reference material on American women from colonial times to the present, from Abigail Adams to Muriel Humphrey. Entries in the book are brief, with just enough information to let scholars know what is available in the 18,026 collections that are represented. But even in outline form, the women's stories emerge. Included are women who were astronomers, attorneys, engineers, homemakers, legislators, nuns, outlaws, physicians, poets and stage-coach drivers. Two kinds of women in American history have generally been known to scholars and the public, Ms. Hinding said. There are prominent women -Abigail Adams, Susan B. Anthony and "Women's History Sources" reports new information about many of them. At the same time, she said, "we know about women as victims, exploited mill girls, women who died in childbirth. There are stories in the book about pain and failure." But mostly, Ms. Hinding said, the book records the experiences of women who fell in between fame and failure. "It tends to be an account of achievement, or at least survival."

The book project was funded with a $500,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and $100,000 from the University of Min-

In a convection oven the hot air is constantly recirculated above, below and around the food. As the heat from the air is transferred to the food, the air is whisked away and replaced by more hot air in

It means foods are cooked faster, more evenly and at lower tem-

European background prepares caterer for varied experiences

By WANDA MOUTON Lifestyle Editor

A cook who wants to learn the business has to be willing to move around, according to Stuart Whipple of Midland. And he's done it all-from Europe to the United States.

"I've probably worked in every area of cooking." said the former chef now turned caterer. He has served as cook at country clubs, hotels and monasteries. He has also owned two restaurants and taught a cooking school.

"Every restaurant operates differently and a cook has been in the business for 23 years. Though American-born, his cooking background is largely European, having lived in France for three years and Luxembourg for 14 years.

He began work in the kitchens when he was 14 and has been in the business for 23 years.

"It's all learned experience," he says. "In Europe, a person either has to go to an accredited hotel for three years or work as an apprentice. That's what I did. That first year, it's all nasty work-kitchen cleanup, etc .- to see if you can take it."

After the apprenticeship, students who are ready for testing show up at a hotel school where they are required to pass a rigid written examination and a cooking examination.

The chefs showed me to the kitchen where a whole line of ovens stood before me," he remembers. He was given instructions for what he was to cook and allowed three hours to follow through. "I passed with flying colors," he says.

"I got an excellent training in Europe," he said. "There, the chefs still cut their own meat and prepare everything from scratch-sauces, pate, stock, etc. In the United States, everything now is portion controlled and many cooks never learn to cut meat properly. Also, no one seasons.

"So much of it here in the U.S. is just knowing how to prepare a baked potato and prime rib. His favorite memories in Europe are of owning in 1976 the "Auberge Simmerschmelz," a French cuisine restaurant and hotel in Luxembourg. The restaurant was located in a 200 year old steel foundry which had been converted into a hotel and restaurant. There were only 14 rooms, but they were beauti-

He added that the grounds were also lovely, with trees, winding walks, parks and a trout pond which he stocked for cooking.

Stuart often served outdoors where 350 stone tables were available for seating. "The restaurant was outstanding," he said. We had tableside flambee and 39 different selections of

But the hours were long. "When I first bought the place, it was in sad shape," he said. "It hadn't operated in seven years and I worked an 18-hour day to get it back in good shape."

And he thinks that this caring is the secret to a chef's success. He admits that the image of chefs as temperamental is true, but their concern for their work is the reason, plus others. "In America, a cook or even a chef is too low-paid for what he has to know, the work he has to do and the hours he has to work," he said. "It's the same in Europe, but there, a chef is still considered a respected profession." "Recipes handed down for generation after generation-that's the beauty of French cooking," he believes. But inflation is catching up and is resulting in the formation of "nouveau French cooking."

"It's lighter because the creams and sauces are left out," he said. He explained that a chef's job today is principally management. "He does basic preparation, but you don't find one on the lines cooking. He's in the office figuring food costs, labor costs and booking par-

He enjoyed his ownership of his first restaurant in 1975 which consisted of a restaurant/skating rink/swimming pool complex located in the Moselle wine region of Europe.

Though it was a short-order place serving mostly hamburgers, steaks, etc., he had time to open a cooking school for English-speaking students in the Stuart's specialty in catering is cold buffet and he especially enjoys the challenge of smaller parties that other caterers won't touch, such as cocktail parties, weddings, communions, etc.

He remembers the opening in 1969 of a deluxe theatre in Luxembourg. "I was a lowly cook then, but worked with the three best chefs in Luxembourg," he said. In preparation for the opening, they constructed the entire area-bridges, trees, skyscrapers, buildings-in sugar.

"It was quite an elaborate affair." His experience as institutional cook at a monastery was unlike any other, however. 'It was a reform school run by monks and nuns for kids," he said. "A cook there who was 77 years old and who had worked at the monastery for 57 years was quite resentful of this cowboy American taking over what he thought was his kitchen when I was made head chef."

"Every afternoon he would hit the excellent wine cellar. And those monks had the kids eat boiled potatoes while they dined on steak and wine.

'One Sunday afternoon, while visitors were there, I slipped in steak for the kids instead of their regular boiled potatoes. It met with such approval by the visitors that it continued to be their daily fare. From then on, they got what the monks got."

That was one conclusion to be made from the massive tasting staged recently at the elegant Stanford Court Hotel here prior to the 12th Heublein National Auction of Rare Wines.
Of the 125 wines tasted off tables in the center of a Universal Metals & Machinery offers Seiko's Model 4NE-600 Turning Center. Incorporates many functions: Improved cutting capability, permanent tool setting, 12tool turret head, and self-diagnosis. Minit mum costs, maximum efficiency.

Universal has a new line of tools

Universal Metals & Machinery wishes to announce (Fanuc) CNC Control (6T). that we are the distributor for the Hitachi Seiki line of machine tools.

Hitachi Seiki makes a full line of N.C. controlled machine tools. UMM has been looking for these for over 14 months. After many trips and great expense, we have selected Hitachi Seiki.

While Hitachi is not one of the biggest builders of machine tools in Japan, it is one of the top companies in technology. This is demonstrated by the design of their N.C. machines. NE series lathes have spindle speeds to 4,000 rpm.

This allows full use of all the new coated carbides and ceramic cutting tools. The NE Series Lathe bed and headstock is designed for maximum cuts and very little change in the size of parts over the day as shop temperatures change.

NE Series machines are using the general numeric electronic problems. There is one board, not five, with compilete board repair service and multiple repeat cycles. Who needs N.C. Machine Tools? Do you want to: Cut machining costs?, increase your productivity with your pressent work force?, simplify set-up?,increase quality, accuracy of work?, increase the scope of your supervision?, to meet delivery date and schedule work better?, run parts in lots of three or more?, do you want to control

This control features as standard CRT tube, so-

LeResche said his report apparently was not explicit enough for the judge, but that Hodges' ruling on Thursday was a "setback of very small magnitude that can be very easily remedied.'

Eskimos claim lease victory in Alaska

Jon Buchholdt, spokesman for the North Slope Borough, said the Eskimos were the winners in Hodges' ruling.

"The state will now have to be more honest about the terrible consequences this (oil development) could have on these people," he said.

North Slope Eskimos had challenged the sale of state offshore tracts on grounds that oil activity would drive away the bowhead whales that they have traditionally taken for

They also said that in preparing for the sale the state had violated the federal Endangered Species Act and Marine Mammals Act, and the state

Eskimos and environmental groups also challenged the sale of federal tracts in the December sale. A decision on that challenge is pending in

Inflation fight pledged

VENICE, Italy (AP) - Western European leaders pledged today to fight inflation and unemployment and blamed oil price increases for the world's economic woes.

In a report prepared for the end of their two-day summit meeting, the nine Common Market leaders said oil price hikes, including those announced this week in Algiers by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, were "not justified." The OPEC nations said that as of July 1, they would observe a $32 minimum for a 42-gallon barrel - an increase of $1 to $2 by four of the nations. Saudi Arabia appeared ready to stick, for now, with its $28 price, the lowest among the cartel's 13 member nations

"The repeated character of these hikes carries obvious dangers for international stability," the report said. It said the conference denounced oil price increases and would make them a key issue at a world economic summit here later this month.

"Under present circumstances, increases in prices of crude oil are not justified by objective considerations," the report said.

Optimists count on low interest

NEW YORK (AP) - As the recession rapidly worsens, many of Wall Street's optimists are counting on low interest rates to cushion the economy's fall:

After all, they reason, it was tight and expensive money - as encouraged by the Federal Reserve that tipped the economy over the edge into its present slump.

The bank prime lending rate, which peaked at 20 percent earlier this year, dropped in the past week to the 12 percent-to-12.5 percent range. And one prominent follower of the credit markets, Henry Kaufman of Salomon Brothers, predicted that the rate

AUSTIN — Officials in the Texas Savings and Loan Department and the Federal Home Loan Bank. Little Rock, may have to settle at the court house their differences over the types of accounts which savings and loan associations may offer.

Joseph E. Settle, president of the Little Rock agency, says the office may seek a "cease and desist" order from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board against use of transfer accounts, if associations fail to voluntarily stop using such accounts as of Monday (June 16.)

Texas officials report 18 to 20 associations in Texas are using such accounts, with others authorized to do so, under "no-objection letters" issued by the department. Basically, such transfer accounts are for moving funds automatically from an interest-bearing savings account to cover drafts written on a checking That two-account system is different from the "NOW" (negotiable order of withdrawal) accounts which are authorized under congressional legislation, H.R. 4986, as of Jan. 1, 1981. Some Texas savings and loan industry officials are taking the position that the transfer accounts are authorized, at least indirectly, under the financial reform legislation signed by President Jimmy

However, Settle doesn' appear to agree with that position, possibly because of a Washington, D.C., court case which held that a two-account system in use there amounted to a subterfuge to get around a ban on paying interest on checking accounts. Texas officials agreed that "it is safe to say that at the present time there is a conflict" om the way they and Little Rock interpret the state of the law.

The State Board of Insurance has set a public hearing for 9 a.m. July 2 in Room 142, State Board of Insurance Building, to consider adjustment in rates or premiums for worker's compensation insurance. Texas Employment Commission has determined that the average weekly wage of manufacturing workers in 1979 exceeded by $20 or more the average wage for such workers in 1978, resulting in a weekly benefit increase of $14 maximum and $2 minimum, effective Sept. 1. Because of that TEC determination, the SBI must

But just as the blacks in Miami are frustrated over unfulfilled presidential promises of jobs, justice and compassion, so are other Americans frustrated. That frustration stems from the topsy, turvy turns of the economy, the ever-present threat of war spawned by international hostilities, the unresolved hostage crisis and numerous other factors.

Many Americans now are exhibiting frustration over the men who apparently will be the Democratic and Republican nominees for president this year, President Carter and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

It is the potential expression of that frustration that keeps the two politicians on the edge of their seats, so to speak, during the remaining months of this cam-

The expression of that frustration can get an incumbent president thrown out of office or it can give a presidential challenger the key to the Oval Office. For independent candidate John Ander: son, that expression could be an only hope

That was a bit of a scare last week when a faulty computer at the Pentagon put out a false alarm that Russian missiles were headed our way. There will be a complete investigation beginning with the computer operator, Orson Welles.

As sometimes happens with the metal detectors at airports which get out of adjustment and buzz at your dental work, the Pentagon went bonkers when a stewardess popped open a bottle of champagne on a flight from Washington to Toledo.

Immediately, our vast strategic network of defense capability was activated with precision speed, which means somebody had to wake up the bugler at our Air Force base in Greenland.

By Middle East measure, Saudis are prosperous. Taxes are minimal. Most have televisions, an air-condtioner, a sufficiency of food and clothing. Many have cars or even videocassettes. Housing is short, but Saudis firmly resist living in highrises, detesting them as impersonal. In 1975, only thousands went to school, now there are 1.3 million students. Rivadh University had 50 students in 1958. Now, 60,000 Saudis attend universities here, free of any costs, and are paid $200 a month to do so. Another 14,000 are sent at government expense to study in the U.S. Medical care and hospitalization are free to every citizen. When specialized treatment is required, patients are flown to wherever in the world it is available. Despite their conservatism, Saudi citizens are afflicted with a modest case of rising expectations. The future looks good, but there is some fretting in the press over shortcomings and the priority problems of manpower and national security. With foreigners making up 60 percent of the work-force, the cry is "replacement of a foreigner by a Saudi national by 1985." Saudis vastly prefer college to vocational schools, and it is doubtful that the 1985 goal will be met unless greater numbers of women are allowed to work. Presently, there are women doctors, nurses, teachers and beauticians all working with permission of their male "guardians." One woman pediatrician has a male secretary, another woman writes a column and does a radio show. Soon, there will be banks opened exclusively for women and staffed by women. Clearly, more Saudi women will be working, and this will present problems with Islamic law. However it comes out, Saudi women will be light years away from the level of Western emancipation. The Saudi royal family, with approval from the ulema (religious leaders), has succeeded thus far in managing such problems, and maintaining a unified society. At present, the monarchy is the only possible viable government. A plan for representative groups to be organized has been difficult to implement.

Saudis seem satisfied to have access to local governing councils or to exercise the right to public audience with the king or a prince where problems can be aired and favors granted. Saudi royalty does not hold itself divine. A king is buried under the same pile of rocks any other citizen is. No monuments here, or in prospect.

There is tribal pride in this Bedouin tradition, sorrow rather than anger when corruption occurs, and even members of the royal family suffer the death penalty when Islamic law so Though we Americans too often think of Saudis as nomadic herdsmen

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Don't you care?

To The Editor:

OP-ED

In regards to "Way things are," I personally am incensed at your regard for marijuana. I think your philosophy stinks.

Nobody but nobody knows for certain what grass does to your body, your reproductive organs or anything else. How would you feel if the woman you love bore you a limbless child because you treated yourself to grass? Or an even more severly handicapped baby because of your stupidity. Or, are you too wrapped up in yourself to care? Have you no respect for yourself?

Have you never seen someone less fortunate than yourself and felt regret and compassion? Anger because it possibly could have been prevented? And what will you do when the "pleasant" (?) buzz of pot disappears, get your kicks in bigger, lousier ways? Do you really need pot to have a good time? If you do, you need help.

Deadliest drug

To The Editor:

The pastor of a large church in this city recently said that booze is the greatest drug problem among teenagers. He could have said that it is by far the greatest drug problem among men and women also, in fact it is the most addictive of all drugs.

Millions are spent every year to treat alcohol (drug) patients, but in spite of this the liquor crowd will see that the amount of the mixed drink tax is given to the news media. They never publish the cost of receiving that money. The cost is staggering, not considering the suffering, divorce, crime, lying, robbing, even murder, and most things that are undesirable in our society.

I read an article recently in a newspaper about the drinking problem in France. They have reached the saturation point and are now spending millions advertising for people to quit drinking. It is evident that this will soon be the case in America, if the present trend continues, and the lack of spiritual leaders to speak out. Let this be real clear: The only cause of alcoholism is alcohol. It might be interesting to read the liquor laws, or better the lack of liquor laws in Texas. We surely need to get the problem before more concerned Christians and pray for the correct way to address this spiritual, moral and physical problem.

Closed minds

I recently attended the June 10 School Board Meeting as a parent from Lamar Elementary. We were objecting to the removal of our principal, Lee Roy Shannon, after just one year at Lamar.

We were told by Dr. Maily that he was moving Mr. Shannon because his talents as a principal were needed at Pease Elementary next year. I believe that the students, parents and teachers at Pease are very fortunate to be getting such a fine principal. With their help and support, Mr. Shannon will do a very good job for them. We will be watching Mr. Shannon's career through next year to be sure his "talents" are not needed somewhere else again at the end of the year.

What upset me was that at the end of the meeting, the School Board members said they had already made a decision on this issue in a closeddoor session of the executive board on May 30, and they were not going to change their minds. Why bother to be put on the agenda of a School Board meeting if the elected School Board members have closed minds going into the meeting. The reason we have School Board members is to represent the school community, and in this role they should get out and speak to the parents, teachers, students, etc. of the concerned area before a decision is made. From what I saw at this meeting, they are not representing the school community as they should. During the ten years we have lived in Midland, we have felt that we have a well-educated, informed and involved community. We hope that the School Board members remember this prior to making decisions in the future. We realize that the elected board members have every right to reassign staff members within the school district, but we hope they take into consideration the impact these moves have on the future of our chil-

A woman's place

I find it rather sad that a lawyer in Midland would make the statements he did about the officers who arrested a man at the airport being women.

If the women did beat the man then he has a right to have a court decide if, they were justified - especially since witnesses claim he was beligerant, rude mouthy and drunk.

But I don't feel the lawve make an issue of the officers being women. If the police department felt they couldn't handle people like the one arrested - they wouldn't have assigned the officers to that area.

I'm surprised the man would want the public to know of his bad behavior

Fin and facts

To The Editor:

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has, for several months, featured an outdoor column, "Fin and Feather," by Kenny Redin Mr. Redin travels extensively on hunting and fishing trips from his home in the Texas Panhandle. He seems to be knowledgeable on the techniques of both subjects, but his concern for facts is woefully lacking.

In his Sunday column of June 1, 1980, he states that Port Aransas is "a sleepy fishing village on South Padre Island,..." Now any journalist of regional if not national renown is expected to do his research properly, or have his editor do it for him, at least on major items. He is also expected to be objective, giving acknowledgement for favors, etc., but not to the point of selling his soul to outside interests. If not he soon loses his credibility, his readers, and his value to the newspapers which carry him. Port Aransas, at the north end of Mustang Island, is 125 miles from South Padre Island as the crow flies, closer to 175 by highway. This transcends mere carelessness with facts.

It does make one take a closer look at his earlier column in which he, first, described the fishing, housing, and eating accommodations in Cuba, and second, praised the amity, the industry, and the high standard of living of the Cubans, as well as the stable and accepted political structure of that island. I questioned his observation and judgment at the time, but in light of the recent turmoil in Havana, I now question his objectivity and motives. The besmirching of a journalist's integrity also casts a shadow over those papers which persist in carrying his column.

I realize that the lifeblood of a newspaper is a high standard of journalism, one which attracts many readers and therefore advertisers to its pages. The inclusion of writers who know not accuracy and objectivity, or for ulterior motives, care not for them, should be a matter for the reader, and therefore for the editor. Surely there are other outdoor writers more acceptable to an American reading public. Hugh GaWhite

EDITOR'S NOTE: The comments made by Mr. Redin in his Dec. 23, 1979 column, based on a visit earlier, which you oppose, apparently consist

"En route, we witnessed lush tropical settings, fields of citrus orchards, tobacco plantations and sugar cane plots. Palm trees, flowers and plants lined the highway of what we once thought was a barren island. After 20 years of isolation, the Cuban people are supposedly happier and the countryside seems full of life and

We would point out Mr. Redin wrote that the Cuban people were "supposedly" happier and that the above were his observations at the time he was there. We regret that you find this cause to suspect him of having "ulterior motives" or that publishing the column "casts a shadow" over the newspaper.

On the first point, you are correct. Port Aransas is indeed on Mustang Island, not South Padre Island, and Mr. Redin and The Reporter-Telegram stand corrected. Thank you for calling it to our attention.

Mixed up Muskie

To The Editor:

Secretary of State Muskie's stated solution to the problem of the criminal element among the Cuban refugees is to ask Castro to take them back. Has he got both oars in the water? Does he actually think Castro will take back what he with Machiavellian duplicity sent here? This is the same kind of windmill fighting in which Don Quixote Carter engages. #### Facts and figures

To The Editor:

The J. Murphy Horton letter, May 4, was titled "The Facts, Please" and caused me at last to dig into the chaos which catches my papers. I couldn't find the latest but I know they are there. Somewhere?

Of trade figures in 1978 an estimated $60 billion Arab investments in U.S. Over $7 billion in contracts to American companies annually, another $3.5 in architectural contracts alone. At least half a million American jobs depend directly on Arab purchases of American goods and services, but the spinoff ripples much at that time American crude imports were 31 percent from Arabs but they catch 100 percent of the Devil for our problems. For Mr. Horton to refer to Iran as an Arab nation is exactly like calling the U.S. a Mexican nation. Don't blame him though because the Zionist-influneced media have regularly equated OPEC with Arabs and never once have I heard Venezuela, Nigeria, Indonesia, nor a couple more catch it because of crude prices. Have vou - ever?

I never loved the major oil companies because of their bloody history of monopoly practices, not even when fuel was cheap. I further believe their loyalty like 90 percent of our people is first to their bank roll and they will charge what they can and pass any extra tax on to the consumer. Nor do I believe they should (nor any group including labor unions) get effective control over one or a combination of things vital to the nation.

Facts are too hard for most folks to swallow. They want pap, not meat; they want emotions, not education. I got sick of teaching long ago both in public and Sunday School but being afflicted with incurable pedantry I will give you this. "Foreign aid and a Zionist dictated foreign policy has brought the American economy to exactly the cycle in events the loss of WWI, war reperations, and money manipulation brought Germany at the beginning of the complete collapse in 1923." On June 19, for days hence, the Texas Air Control Board will close the 30-day citizens' comment period on Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company's application for a permit to construct a fiber-glass manufacturing plant 21/2 miles southwest of our city's westernmost residential section, and will decide whether or not to grant the per-

In general, the plant will consist of two furnaces wherein sand plus additives will be reduced to a molten state, with fiberglass the finished product. Indicated furnace operating temperatures are around 3,000 degrees F., and waste gases from burning either fuel oil or natural gas and from reducing the glass components will be emitted through one stack, common to both furnaces. The proposed plant operating schedule is for 24 hours per day, 365 days out of the Several air pollutants will be emitted which, under certain air direction and velocity conditions, could be quite hazardous to the health and welfare of our community. Among these are sulfur dioxide and nitric oxide in substantial quantities, and it is my belief that respiratory ailments and afflictions will result among some of our city's populace.

It seems TACB is informed that our "prevailing winds" are from the south and southeast, and it is thought that plant emissions for the most part will be blown north harmlessly, west of Midland. But I have examined the files for last year's wind direction and velocity in the U.S. Dept. of Commerce's NOAA office here (National Weather Service, at the airport) for every day in the year 1979, and I find that a significant proportion of Midland's winds originate out of the southwest.

This plant will be so located that any winds blowing from an azimuth of from 195 degrees to 270 degrees (from a direction of S 15 degrees W to due west) will blow pollutants from its smokestack into, through and over some part of our city. Citizens who are concerned, as I am, may wish to write comments to the board, and they will be received up to June 19th. Address your letters, referring to Permit Application No. C-6719, to: Mr. Bill Stewart, Executive Director, TACB, 6330 Hwy. 290 East, Austin, Texas 78723. Please don't delay; we are in the eleventh hour, and time is of the essence!

20-year jinx

To The Editor:

In 1840 William Henry Harrison was elected president of the United States. President Harrison would die in office the next year.

Twenty years later (1860) Abraham Lincoln was elected president and he would be assassinated in office after being elected to a second term. Twenty years later (1880) James

Garfield was elected president and would die in office the next year, the victim of an assassin's bullet. Twenty years later (1900) William McKinley was re-elected to a second term as president, and he too would die in office the next year, also the victim of an assassin's bullet. Twenty years later (1920) Warren Harding was elected president. Dur-ing the third year of his presidency,

Mr. Harding became ill and died. Twenty years later (1940) Franklin D. Roosevelt was re-elected to a third term as president, and he too would die in office in 1945 after being elected to an unprecedented fourth term. Twenty years later (1960) John F. Kennedy was elected president and again the 20-year jinx was effective and President Kennedy would die in office at the hands of an assassin's bullet. Twenty years later (1980) and at present four candidates are still striving to be elected to the office of the president of the United States.

Considering the 20-year jinx it is extremely important who are selected for the vice presidential candi-

One of my grandchildren received a Raggedy Ann doll for her birthday and she is really delighted with this old-fashioned toy of yesteryear. I've got to confess that I, too, am delighted for I'm pleased that such a gift makes a big hit with children when toy manufacturers seem to be dealing with mechanical toys and gimmicks.

So many toys these days are merely to "entertain" a child and after a few 'windings" they are tossed aside because the child has lost interest. Dolls talk, walk, grow hair and even toss balls, all by the mere turn of a key. So many toys are run by batteries or plugged in — and that is all the child

A doll that can be cuddled, even though it cannot talk or mechanically walk across a room, may be the one that is loved most throughout childhood years. And obviously Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy, who date back to the 1920s, are surviving big in our computerized world!

That's good too, proving as it does the point that certain things do remain the same. We need such stabiliz-

Change is wonderful if it improves something, but I wonder if it isn't a bit foolish to get carried away just for the sake of changes, and maybe even change to something worse, or to something that hasn't even been proven to be better. Change is great if it remains in its proper perspective. But it seems that sometimes we are too preoccupied with only the "new" — with what is "happening." Once in a while we would do well to remember that, with all our new gimmicks and advances in science, human nature has remained pretty much the same. If every generation thought it was starting from the beginning of history, it would turn out a pretty sorry world.

Human history is a magnificent pageant of successes and failures. And we have always learned from the past the things necessary for going forward into the future. The first step on the moon was a dramatic achievement. But so was the discovery that man could grow plants to feed himself, or weave cloth to clothe him-

So it doesn't hurt to look back on the long history of mankind and the wonders that have been achieved. Look back on courage, on self-reliance, on endurance, on fortitude, all the heritage that the past has given us. This is the way to find a true evaluation toward a glorious future.

Appreciate the lessons of the past. They can be a symbol of what each of us should do to realize full potential in life. Realize that we are the products of thousands of years of men and women facing problems and finding

Perhaps one answer to your particular problem may be in realizing that the problem is not new. Every problem has been faced thousands of times in the past and overcome. Willa Cather once said. Of course no one should dwell on the past or on failures, but they have know-how to guide us into new successes. Thomas A. Edison wanted to make a nickel-iron-alkaline battery. He performed 50,000 experiments and failed 50,000 times. Someone asked him, "Aren't all these failures disappointing to you?"

'Not at all," he replied, "for I have learned 50,000 ways it cannot be done . and therefore I am 50,000 time nearer the final successful experiment."

Of course that successful experiment came and Edison made his battery. He was a genius, that is true, but a large part of his genius was that he never quit, he never yielded to disappointment. Utilize your disappointment to advantage and let the past help you think positively about your

Planner seeks to preserve Peking's ancient imperial city

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

PEKING (AP) - A leading urban planner has called for the preservation of Peking's ancient imperial city, a ban on highrise buildings nearby and elimination of pollution that smudges its crimson walls and dark-

Professor Wu Liangyong called Old Peking, with its 3,000-year history, one of the greatest ancient cities. He said it "epitomizes the best of urban design in all periods of Chinese

Professor Wu, dean of civil engineering at Qighua University, made his proposal at a recent city planning agency reported.

In April, the Secretariate of the Communist Party Central Committee called for making Peking a clean and modern city. Wu, who studied urban design in Great Britian, has added esthetics to the blueprint. He also has given a boost to urban planning, a science and art highly developed in ancient China but much neglected in the rush to reorganize society and modernize at virtually any cost.

Wu said overcrowding must be reduced and limits must be set on business activities near the old city of the emperors which once was regarded as the center of the cosmos. Peking conference, the official Xinhua news currently is experiencing a surge in construction of all kinds. Apartments are going up, roads are being built, streets are being torn up in a turmoil of capital construction.

"No highrise buildings should be built around the protected ancient edifices," Professor Wu said. To reduce overcrowding, he advocated satellite towns and green belts in the outer suburbs. He called for city centers with highrises in the adjacent suburbs.

Old Peking, he said, is known as a "horizontal city" and is characterized by neatness, harmony, symmetry and the systematic arrangement of buildings according to

The focus of the area is the Forbidden City of crimson walls and cchretiled roofs. The city covers 24 square miles, slightly larger than the area of Manhattan Island in New York, and is built along a central axis with orderly streets. Low houses with courtyards are interspersed with buildings, groves and lakes. "It is altogether a work of exquisite landscaping in which nature and human skill have merged," Wu said.

In the past, he complained, the ancient city was ignored as an entity and fell victim to superficial proletarian notions of progress. Walls on the north, east and west were torn down to make way for subways. The great gate towers were armolished because they were in the

During a debate in the 1950s some called the gate towers Peking's "beautiful necklace," but others called them "the shackles handicapping Peking's modernization."

The houses in the imperial city: Professor Wu said, should be preserved and new houses should not exceed three stories. New buildings, he added, should harmonize with the old in their design. He called for guidelines for the height, style, color and distance between buildings. Pollution, too, must be controlled.

Wu said. "A clear sky with occasional patches of white clouds is indispensible to the air that harmonizes with the yellow glazed tiles, white marble balustrades and red ochre columns of the imperial palace," he said. Highrise buildings and smokeladen chimneys would overshadow the impressive ancient structures and spoil their beauty," he said.

DEAR HELOISE:

DEAR HELOISE

Do you remember when young girls would begin early to plan their home by starting a Hope Chest? Well, aside from my Hope Chest (affectionately called by my family, a "Hopeless Chest"), I have a Hope Chest scrapbook filled with pictures.

As I browse through magazines, I sometimes come across a really nice idea for furniture arrangements, decorating ideas or just about anything pertaining to homemaking. I even have a special place. for the type of house I would like to have some day.

I use a regular notebook and divide it into sections -"Houses," "Bathroom "Kitchens," etc. - and then start cutting out pictures.

Do this and eventually, plastic gloves you bought? you'll have a nice collection of forgotten.

large rubber band over each up to the wrist.

Even though movement may be slightly restricted you have considerable freedom inside the "mitten." Job done. throw them in the trash can.

Those bags some newspapers are delivered in or bread bags would be O.K. to use too. Cut the tops off to the desired length.

Just for Kids

A CLEVER CLOSET CAPER

DEAR HELOISE I was rearranging my closet one day and needed something to separate the clothes on the rod. I used a piece of cardboard and a plastic lid and drew a circle on the cardboard. Then, used a smaller lid and drew another circle inside the larger one.

I cut the big circle out, then the little circle, so I now had a piece of cardboard shaped like a doughnut. Made a slit on one side and hung it on the closet rod.

I labeled one circle "blouses." another "pants." another "dresses" and so on.

My mom and I are proud my clothes are now separated so neatly.

Barbara Haas

And I'm proud of you for being so smart! And you know what? I just thought of something else... One could save plastic margarine tub lids (eightounce size) to make the circles out of. You'll have sturdy dividers much like those you see in stores on ready-to-wear racks of clothes.

You could use masking tape as labels. But, whatever you decide to use, your idea is great and thanks for letting us in on it.

TODDLER TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

After having five children, I finally learned a way to teach a toddler to put on his own:

Put the coat, lining side up, with the collar at the feet of the child.

Have the child bend over. put his arms in the sleeves. then toss it over his head. The coat will be on.

Sounds complicated on paper but it really is simple. After a couple of practice tries, any toddler can do it and everyone will think your child is so smart. Just zip him up and you're ready to go.

This is so neat for those of us who have a 2 year old and a new baby and not as many hands as we need. Linda Booth

CATALOG CUE DEAR HELOISE:

I'm a catalog addict and used to checking this and that and then searching for the items I wanted to consider ordering

My new plan is to go through the catalog and turn down the corners of pages featuring things I am interested in. Several days later, I go through again and wonder why I turned that page down. Then I go through the catalog again and order what I really want. . M.B.

FILING SYSTEM

DEAR HELOISE:

Everyone has favorite old magazines. For future reference: 18 take each magazine and number it, also its index page, which I rip out. I place both the magazines and index pages in order, making separate stacks. The magazines go in storage: I put the index pages in a ring binder notebook (1 use a hole punch to make them in the future, I refer to the index for the article needed and pick out the correspon ding magazine.

YOU SEE 'EM ALL! DEAR HELOISE:

With an old spice rack and some small empty bottles that fit the rack, you can always find your straight pins, small and large safety pins, paper clips, thumbtacks, nails...
