News conference highlights

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here are highlights of President-elect Ronald Reagan's nationally broadcast news conference Thursday. Details on Page 2A.

U.S.-IRAN

— Reagan said it would be a mistake for Iranian leaders to await his inauguration in hopes of a better deal to free the American hostages. He said he would offer his help to President Carter in any way to win their release.

TRANSITION

— Reagan is organizing a bipartisan transition team and said there "could very well" be one or more Democratic members of the administration. He declined to speculate on appointments, including whether he might name Henry Kissinger as secretary of state.

U.S.-SOVIET

— Reagan said he planned no communications with the Soviet Union before his inauguration. He said he would not do anything to indicate the United States is disunited while President Carter is still in office.

ALLEN

— Reagan said Richard V. Allen has rejoined him after temporarily stepping aside as foreign policy adviser late in the campaign amid allegations of wrongdoing.

BAKER

— Reagan said he expects Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, a moderate and former rival of Reagan for the GOP presidential nomination primary season, to become majority leader of the Senate. "His position is solid," Reagan said.

ECONOMY

— Reagan said his first priority will be winning congressional approval of his economic proposals, including a 10 percent cut in tax rates.

ACCESS

— Reagan promised an open presidency, and said he will consider the views of all Americans, including fundamentalist Christian groups that helped him win the White House. Reagan also promised frequent news conferences, saying he views such exchanges as a vital part of "letting people know what's going on in government."

GOP PLATFORM

— He reiterated his support for the Republican Party platform, which calls for a federal anti-abortion amendment and opposes the Equal Rights Amendment.

PLO

— He said he still thinks the Palestine Liberation Organization is a terrorist group, saying the PLO's leaders were never elected by anyone. He said he would do whatever possible to assist peacemaking efforts in the Middle East.

President-elect Ronald Reagan gestures as he takes a question from a reporter during his first news conference as president-elect Thursday. Vice President-elect George Bush, the former Midlander, stands behind the president-elect. Reagan promised a substantial role for Bush in the new administration, saying Bush is a "valuable asset" whose skills will be put to use. (AP Laserphoto)

Land use study slated here

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Nine members of the Urban Land Institute will be in Midland next week analyzing data on south and east Midland and the feasibility of relocating Midland Air Park.

The announcement was made in a news conference this morning in the Midland Chamber of Commerce by Mike Williams and Charles Priddy, chairman of the Objective for Midland program.

A study of the south and east sides of Midland with intention to implement programs in that area was the primary target of the Objectives program. Williams was hired to work toward that objective and since July he has been compiling data for the ULI panel.

The panel will arrive Sunday. During the week, the members will tour the community and speak with community and civic leaders. At 9 a.m. next Friday in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton, the panel will reveal its recommendations on improving that area and the future direction of Midland Air Park.

Priddy noted the ULI study will provide an analysis of the residential, commercial and industrial development of south and east Midland and provide recommendations to encourage further redevelopment activities.

"They volunteer their work with no pay," Priddy said of the panel members. The Objectives program is paying for the ULI panel's expenses and for the ULI staff members who also will be here.

The Objectives chairman recalled that 12 years ago, the ULI came in to study downtown Midland. "Their recommendations have been helpful in development of Midland," Priddy said.

Data collected by Williams fills a 2-inch thick notebook which has been sent to each panel member for preliminary study. "It addresses quality of housing in that section of the city and potential for residential construction," he said in citing a few areas under study.

The area eyed in his study is bounded by Big Spring Street, Wadley Avenue, Fairgrounds Road and Florida Avenue. "It's one-third of the land area in the city," he explained.

Priddy added that while this area encompasses about 1,500 blocks, only about 200 are filled up on a house-to-house basis.

"There are many vacant lots and dilapidated housing. We want to know how we can consolidate the area into a viable economic portion of our community. Should industry be pointed in that area? Should we have auxiliary medical and library services in that area?"

"We find the entire gamut of human problems in that area," and how to resolve or relieve them is the purpose in calling in the ULI, Priddy said.

Once the recommendations are made by the ULI, Priddy said the Objectives committee will work with governmental bodies in trying to implement those ideas. Their interest in the ULI study already has been exemplified with the governmental bodies pitching in to pay expenses.

Williams said he "is extremely optimistic about what we might achieve" with the ULI recommendations. "I've seen a lot of people get involved in assisting us with the research."

Shopping center scheduled

Groundbreaking on Westwood Village, a contemporary designed retail shopping center, is scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday. The shopping center is being developed on 13 acres of land at the northeast corner of Illinois Avenue and Midland Drive.

Completion of Phase I of the project is scheduled for fall, 1981.

The project will consist of about 140,000 square feet of retail space and will feature a large new Safeway Super Store and a Skillern's Drug Center. The remaining areas will allow lease space for small retail businesses and restaurants.

The development of the center will be divided into two phases. Phase I will consist of the construction of the Safeway store, the Skillern's store and 30,000 square feet of lease space. Phase II will follow with 60,000 square feet of additional retail space.

The Safeway Super Store will be one of the largest stores of the chain in West Texas. The full service grocery will feature special departments such as a natural food center, a beer and wine section, a delicatessen and bakery, a photo and gift counter and a pharmacy.

Westwood Village will be contemporary in design featuring an exterior of exposed wood and tan stucco walls. An open mall courtyard area with fountains and gardens will connect the retail areas.

Developers for the project are G. Adair Ratliff of Fort Worth and HBF Corp. of Midland. Architects are Barnes-Seagraves of Fort Worth.

The general contractor for the project is HBF Construction Inc. of Midland, and the electrical contractor is Midwest Electric of Midland.

Telephone rates going up next week, company says

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell will impose an interim telephone rate hike next week, but the temporary charges will amount to less than half the permanent increase the company has requested, a company official said.

The company has indicated it will exercise its option to institute interim rates because prolonged hearings have delayed a Public Utility Commission decision on its proposed $326.3 million increase past statutory deadlines.

Under the law, Bell can impose the interim rates as long as it assures it will make refunds to its customers should the temporary rates exceed the charges ultimately approved by the commission.

The company did not release a tariff showing the impact of the new rates on individual customers, but a company official told The Dallas Morning News the new charges would amount to less than half of the company's requested increase.

"Any rates implemented under bond will roughly parallel the Public Utility Commission's staff recommendation of $152.3 million," said Paul Roth, vice president for revenues and public affairs.

The News reported today that the new rates are expected to be filed Monday and be effective on Tuesday.

Roth said the company needs the full $326.3 million increase, but believed "the staff recommendation is a good reference point" for interim rates until a decision is reached.

Strom wants death penalty back

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, about to become chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, says he'll do "everything I can" to press for re-enactment of the death penalty for some federal crimes.

"It helps to deter crime. We have so much crime," the South Carolina Republican said Thursday.

"As a circuit court judge in South Carolina," he told a news conference, "I had to send four people to the electric chair. It was my duty to do it. I had no alternative. I think the death penalty helps to deter crime, and I expect as chairman of this committee to do everything I can to bring about a reduction in crime in this country."

Thurmond will replace Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., as committee chairman thanks to the Republicans' winning control of Congress for the first time since 1954.

The bill Thurmond supports would restore capital punishment for treason, espionage and first degree murder, including the assassination of the president, other high-ranking federal officials and visiting dignitaries. It also would cover kidnapping resulting in a death.

Last June, the Senate Democratic leadership headed off a move to pass a death penalty law favored by conservative Republicans.

The Supreme Court struck down a federal death penalty statute in 1972, ruling the law unconstitutional because it had been administered in a capricious and haphazard manner. Several states have since adopted new capital punishment laws that have been upheld by the court.

Thurmond also said that blacks and other minority groups have nothing to fear from Republican control of the Senate. Blacks, he said, "have one of the best friends they could have in me. I believe in equality for all. I've always tried to treat them fairly and squarely."

Thurmond was once allied with the Dixiecrats, Southern Democrats who opposed the civil rights platform of the regular Democratic Party in 1948.

He became a Republican in 1964 and campaigned for GOP presidential nominee Barry M. Goldwater against President Lyndon B. Johnson, who had been instrumental in congressional passage that year of the Civil Rights Act.

He said he "wouldn't hesitate to confirm" a black to the Supreme Court, but said it was "not absolutely necessary" to have one replace Justice Thurgood Marshall when he leaves the bench.

Marshall, 72, the court's only black justice, has given no he plans to step down, although he has had health problems.

Thurmond noted that he and Kennedy compromised on a pending proposed revision of the federal criminal code this year and said he hoped to have Kennedy's cooperation next year.

But Thurmond said he would like to restore the full power of home-state senators to block presidential judicial nominations, a system Kennedy challenged.

And Thurmond reiterated his opposition to school busing to achieve racial balance and his support of restrictions on abortions and voluntary public school prayers.

But he was cool toward the idea of enforcing those ideas through constitutional amendments. "You can't put everything into the Constitution," he said.

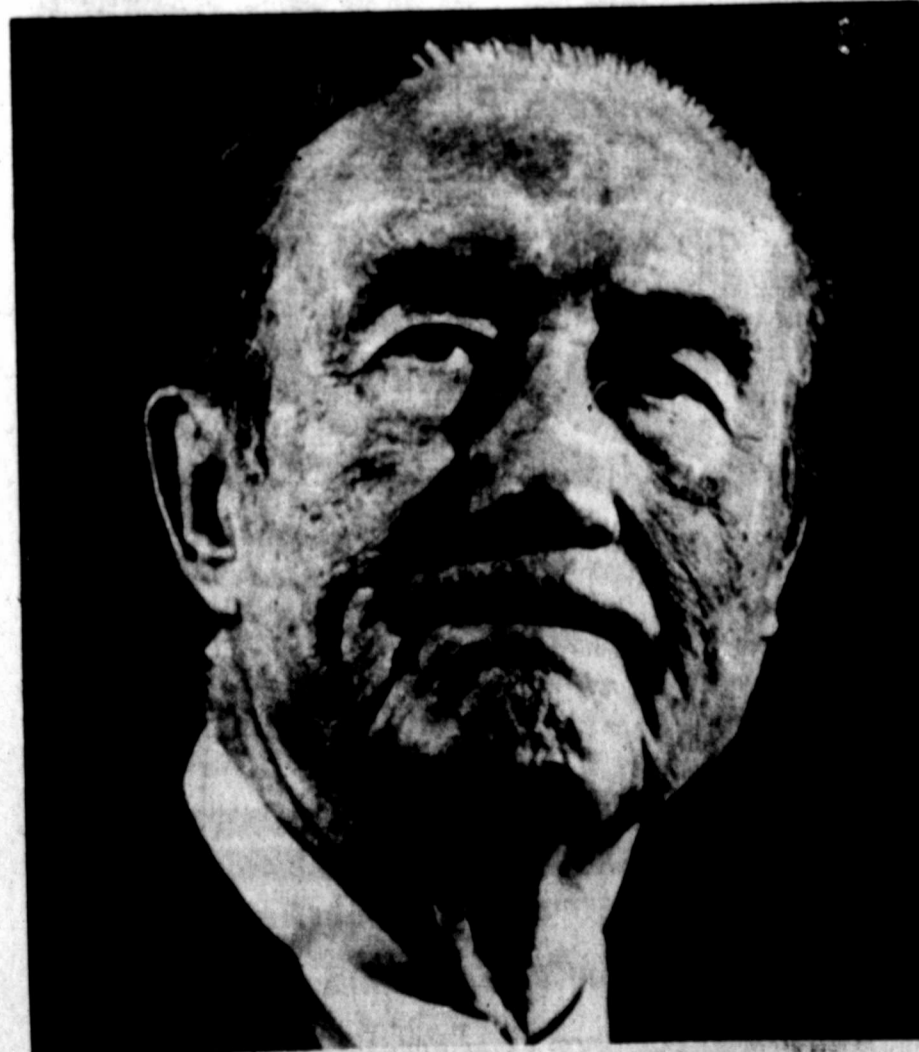

Canada's homicide rate drops for third year since death abolished

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's criminal homicide rate dropped sharply again in 1979 — the third annual decrease since the Canadian Parliament abolished the death penalty in 1976.

Figures released Thursday by Statistics Canada showed the rate, including murder, manslaughter and infanticide, fell 6.5 percent last year. The Canadian federal agency reported 579 homicide incidents last year compared with 616 in 1978 and 637 in 1977.

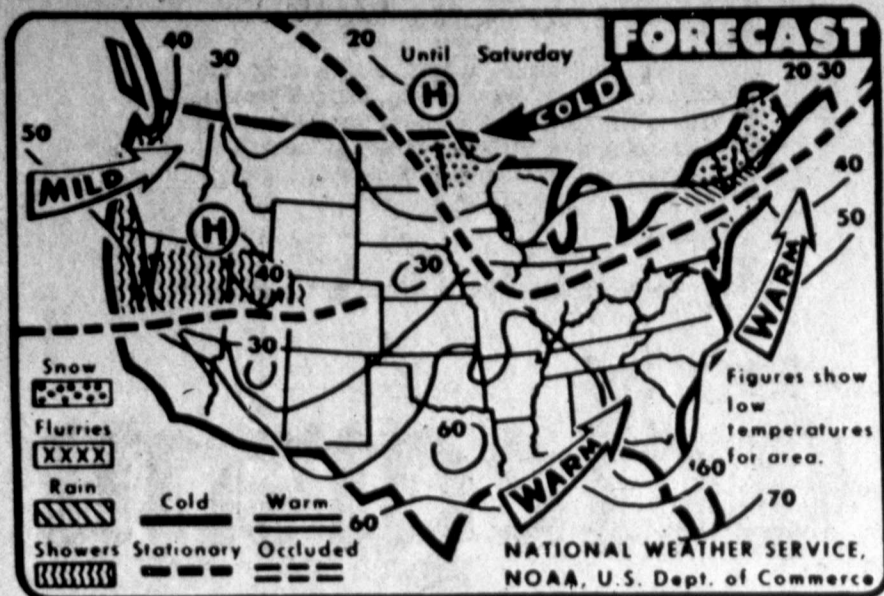

Murder accounted for 92 percent of the homicide incidents. The murder rate — 2.48 victims per 100,000 population — was the lowest since 1974, the agency said.

South Carolina Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond, about to become chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said Thursday at a news conference in Washington that he would press for re-enactment of the death penalty because he thinks it "helps to deter crime, and I expect as chairman of this committee to do everything I can to bring about a reduction in crime in this country."

Prime rate jumps again

NEW YORK (AP) — The prime lending rate stood today at 15.5 percent, its highest level since May, but one of the nation's top banks said the latest increase did not necessarily mean the key lending rate will continue to climb in the months to come.

The rate has been inching upward since August. On Thursday, following the lead of No. 3 Chase Manhattan Bank, bankers across the country raised the rate from 14.5, where it stood after a one-half percent boost last week.

The jump — sparked by sharp increases in banks' cost of acquiring funds — was the largest single-day rise since it rose a full percentage point, to 14.5, on Oct. 19, 1979.

In the last three months the prime rate has climbed 3 1/2 points.

Chase said the jump does not ensure the prime rate will keep rising in the near future. It attributed Thursday's increase to rises in its cost of acquiring funds, adding, "Indeed, this increase does not fully reflect the increased cost of funds to Chase."

The rise in open-market rates was underscored Thursday when the rate on federal funds — uncommitted reserves that banks lend one another — rose as high as 15.5 percent.

In addition, banks are paying nearly a full percent more on six-month savings certificates as of Thursday. The rates on those certificates, which are an important source of banks' funds, are tied to the discount rate on Treasury bills. In the government's latest auction, the discount rate jumped to 13.269 percent from 12.284 percent.

When banks' cost of acquiring money goes up, they usually respond by raising their lending rates. The prime rate applies to loans taken out by a bank's top-rated corporate customers, while other businesses pay even higher rates.

ODESSA — Deputies for the Ector County Sheriff's Department this morning were continuing their investigation into the theft of a large sum of money from an Ector County business Thursday.

Deputies said employees of Odessa Block and Supply, 2500 W. 42nd St., were counting money on a desk inside the building a little after 1 p.m. Thursday. They reportedly left the money on the desk and walked into the back part of the business.

Another man who was not employed by the business was in the building at the time, deputies said.

When the employees realized what they had done, they rushed back to the front, but the other man was hurrying away. The money that had been left on the desk was gone, officers said.

Deputies refused to say how much money was taken in the incident, but said it was in denominations of $20. One report indicated the amount was $2,000.

Cattlemen optimistic about Reagan

By DAVID CAMPBELL
 Staff Writer

A Reagan administration may be good for cattlemen and farmers if knowledgeable people are placed in top administration posts in the Agriculture Department, says John S. Cargile, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

The San Angelo rancher and other area ranchers will be involved in the TSRA board of directors meeting today and Saturday at the Midland Hilton.

In a press conference this morning at the Hilton, Cargile said cattlemen want to remain independent and free from excessive government interference in the industry.

Other than that, he said he hoped Reagan would put personnel who knew agribusiness in top posts in the Department of Agriculture.

However, Cargile did not have any recommendations for those posts.

Concerning the upcoming Texas legislative session, Cargile said his organization would like to see more funds for agricultural research at many state colleges and universities.

In past sessions, there has been a trend by the legislature to reduce agricultural research funds.

Research, he said, is the reason many agricultural goods can be bought at a reasonable price by the consumer.

Red meat supplies will be down somewhat this year, but there will be no shortages of beef, Cargile said. However, that reduction was brought about by a reduction in pork supplies.

Poultry supplies, on the other hand, will be up despite the effect of last summer's heat wave on the industry.

He predicted a modest increase in beef prices, but nothing drastic.

Since the beef referendum failed, Cargile noted that funding for beef promotion will have to come from voluntary sources. An immediate need for the cattle industry at this time,

Cargile said, is to develop some form of adequate funding for promotional purposes.

During the two-day session, Cargile said the association will be discussing the illegal alien problem as it relates to the agriculture labor market.

"The (Carter) administration has done very little to control the flow of aliens in this country," he said.

The development and execution of a sound policy, Cargile said, would be beneficial to everyone.

Other topics to be discussed during the meetings include reports concerning brucellosis, agricultural use of ad valorem taxes and the proposed coastal zone management program.

Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association is a non-profit organization which provides a wide range of services from theft protection to land use to its members.

The 103-year-old organization has a total of 14,500 members in the United States, Mexico, Canada and South America.

Arson suspected in Thursday fire

Fire Department officials suspect arson in a house fire Thursday morning that caused heavy damage to the attic and light damage to a washroom.

Firemen were dispatched to the fire at 2509-B Haynes Ave. at 9:03 a.m. and spent slightly more than two hours extinguishing the blaze.

The house was occupied by Mike LaBorde and owned by Jack Ladd.

Another house fire at Stokes Avenue and South Fort Worth Street at 11:28 p.m. Thursday completely destroyed an abandoned shack. Firemen were in service for 39 minutes.

Midland police are investigating a reported attempted rape. The 18-year-old woman told police that a man followed her home from Wadley Barron Park around 2:45 p.m. and entered her apartment. She asked him to leave and he did.

But about 4:30 p.m., he returned and said he had lost his billfold in the apartment. The woman let him in and he asked for a glass of water. The 18-year-old told police the man then grabbed her on the couch and tore her blouse off.

She said she screamed and he ran off.

The man was described as a white male, 21 to 23 years of age, 5-foot-9 inches to 5-foot-11 inches tall, weighing 150 to 155 pounds with brown hair.

An employee of Steak and Egg Kitchen, 606 Andrews Highway, reported the loss of $788.21 between Sunday and Thursday. She told police the money was supposed to have been deposited, but never reached the bank.

Officers are also looking into the theft of a western saddle and blanket from a storage unit at 1010 Holiday Hill Road. Carol Ann Moore told police someone had removed the lock from the storage door, stolen the two items — valued at $400 — and replaced the lock.

The manager of the storage units said he found the unit open Thursday and notified Ms. Moore.

Two accidents Thursday resulted in minor injuries to those involved.

At 5:04 p.m. David Earl Butcher of Odessa was southbound across Wall Avenue. Debbie Chaney Forbis of 2410 W. Storey Ave. was eastbound on Wall. The two vehicles collided in the 4700 block of West Wall on the north service road. The impact caused the vehicles to collide a second time.

Ms. Forbis was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room, where she was treated and released.

At 10:24 p.m., an accident with injuries was reported at the intersection of Louisiana Avenue and Main Street. Sandy Olgin Rodriguez, 602 N. Terrell St., was westbound on Louisiana. Bobby Dewayne Dobson, 311 Cottonwood Ave., was northbound on Main. The two vehicles collided, injuring Nora Rodriguez, a passenger in the Rodriguez vehicle, and Dobson and Cozie Dobson, a passenger in the Dobson vehicle.

All were treated at Midland Memorial emergency room and released.

Ambulances were dispatched five times Thursday and six people were transported.

Reagan plans changes in dealing with Soviets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan says he will not "intrude" in President Carter's foreign policy but will make a change in the way the United States deals with the Soviet Union once he takes office.

And, he said, Iran should not expect to benefit by continuing to hold its American hostages until Reagan becomes president on Jan. 20.

"I hope the Iranians will not have any idea there will be any profit to them in waiting," Reagan said.

At a news conference Thursday, his first such meeting with reporters following his landslide election victory on Tuesday, Reagan also said the people who engineered his successful election campaign will be in charge of planning his take-over of power.

The Republican president-elect went directly from the news conference to a private meeting in downtown Los Angeles with the leaders of his transition team and some of the men who served in his "kitchen cabinet" while he was governor of California.

Much of the news conference was devoted to foreign policy questions, and Reagan made clear that while he hopes to maintain the traditional non-partisan nature of American foreign policy, he expects to make some immediate changes.

For instance, he rejected Carter's contention that strategic arms limitation talks between the United States and the Soviet Union are too important to await resolution of such international crises as the Soviet's occupation of Afghanistan.

"I don't think you simply sit down at the table with the Soviet Union to discuss military arms, for example," Reagan said. "You discuss the whole attitude, world attitude, as to whether we're going to have a world at peace or whether we're simply going to talk about weaponry and not bring up these other subjects."

"In other words," he said, "I believe in linkage."

Carter, recently asked whether he would ask for Senate approval of the SALT II treaty while the Soviets kept troops in Afghanistan, said the treaty was so important it should be ratified "under any circumstances."

Reagan has vowed to throw out the current arms treaty with the Soviets and begin again to gain a tougher treaty. He was asked if he would communicate with the Soviets during his transition to power to begin such negotiations.

He said that he and Vice President-elect George Bush do not "want to do anything that indicates that we are not a unified country and that we are in any way trying to speak with a different voice than the administration."

"The president is still the president," he said. "We are not going to intrude and we are going to recognize the fact that this administration is still in office and that foreign leaders must be aware that the president is still the president."

Reagan also announced that William Casey, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., and former Ambassador Anne Armstrong, the three people who headed his election campaign, would now be in charge of the transition.

Edwin Meese, Reagan's chief of staff, will be transition director and will work with the president-elect's other top campaign aides, Reagan said.

He also said many of the same people who advised him on policy matters during the campaign will continue to serve in a similar capacity in the coming 2 1/2 months before he takes office.

They include former Treasury Secretary William Simon; retired Gen. Alexander M. Haig; Caspar Weinberger, former budget director and secretary of health, education and welfare; and George Shultz, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors.

On other issues, Reagan said: —It would be "just fine" with him if Congress went ahead and considered a tax-cut proposal during its lame-duck session before he takes office.

He would give special consideration to finding qualified blacks and members of other minority groups to fill Cabinet posts and that he hopes to name his Cabinet by late November or early December.

—His staff had examined allegations against Richard V. Allen "and we find absolutely no evidence of wrongdoing whatsoever." Published reports said Allen, Reagan's chief adviser on foreign policy during much of the campaign, had profited personally from his position in the administration of President Richard M. Nixon. Allen has denied the allegations.

—He will listen to the advice of such campaign supporters as members of the Moral Majority.

Cynthia Dwyer: America's 53rd hostage held in Iran

By CHARLES HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

Somewhere behind the walls of Tehran's Evin Prison, a middle-aged American woman sits in a cell "hopeful, patient," a lonely figure forgotten by many in the fury and confusion of Iran.

"I am well, clean and eat well," she wrote recently in the first letter to her family in two months. She assured them she remains in strong spirits despite her ordeal.

CYNTHIA DWYER, 49, is in many ways the "53rd hostage." Friday is her 166th day in captivity.

Last April 10, five months after the other Americans were taken hostage in Tehran, the free-lance writer left her Amherst, N.Y., home to travel to the Iranian capital — to write about the troubled country, her husband later explained.

On the night of May 5, revolutionary guardsmen took her from her Hilton Hotel room. Tehran newspapers said she was accused of being a CIA agent. She dropped from sight.

In the months since, the Swiss Embassy, representing U.S. interests in Iran, has appealed repeatedly for information about Mrs. Dwyer and for permission to visit her. The Iranians have confirmed she is being held, but otherwise have made no response and given no indication of any formal charges against her, says the U.S. State Department.

HER HUSBAND, Dr. John Dwyer, chairman of the English department at the state college in Buffalo, N.Y., met privately Tuesday with Secretary of State Edmund Muskie during Muskie's trip to Buffalo.

"I'd requested the visit with him," Dwyer told a reporter. But Muskie could report no progress. "He assured me they are doing everything they can. But I knew that." The professor's voice was strained as he discussed his wife's plight.

Dwyer scoffs at the allegation his wife was a spy. Her sympathies for the Iranian revolutionary cause were well known within the academic community in Buffalo, he said, and she believed the U.S. news media presented a one-dimensional view of Iran — that of the hostage crisis.

"She was more interested in the other story, away from the embassy, away from the angry crowds," Dwyer said.

MRS. DWYER, a former copy editor and occasional writer for The Humanist magazine, planned to offer stories to Buffalo newspapers or other publications on her return. The Iranian National Guidance Ministry has acknowledged that she had proper press credentials.

Why then was this idealistic, graying mother of three arrested as a spy?

"Incredibly unfortunate timing," said her husband. "She was there at the time of the rescue attempt. They wanted to get somebody and they got her."

After the failure of the U.S. commando attempt to rescue the hostages on April 24, Iran's revolutionaries went on a nationwide manhunt for American "agents" supposedly linked to the operation. Many foreigners were apprehended, among them Cynthia Dwyer — apparently the only American caught in the dragnet.

REPORTS FROM Tehran said she was questioned for several days at an army barracks before being moved to Evin, the city's main prison and the site of dozens of executions over the past 1 1/2 years.

Dwyer finally heard from her in late August, two one-page letters in one envelope. She said she was "hopeful, patient" and in good condition. Swiss Embassy officials also received two letters from her, asking that they intervene on her behalf.

Her latest letter, received by her mother in early October, again was just one page. "Maybe that's a requirement," Dwyer suggested.

He said she gave few specifics of her incarceration — "a lot of it was personal" — but did meticulously list her prison diet: "Bread and butter, eggs, cheese, rice with chicken, lentils, yogurt, tea and fruit."

DWYER SAID he detected no note of despondency, "and I don't think she's just putting on a brave front." But he said she plainly was writing the letters with the knowledge that they would be perused by others before being mailed.

The Dwyers' three children — Benjamin, 14, Daniel, 12, and Susannah, 9 — "are doing very, very well," Dwyer said.

"We talk about it all the time. Nothing is kept from them. ... They were in the next room when I went to see Muskie."

His young daughter "may not understand it completely. But she knows her mother is being held and wants her back," he said.

He was asked what he believes can be done to win the release of his wife, and of the other Americans being held in Iran. "The main thing we can do is hope the Iranians get some stability in their government. The main thing we can do is not jeopardize that. ... A kind of patience and keeping our fingers crossed."

Judge will not rule now on constitutionality of law

MIAMI (AP) — A federal judge says that despite a request to do so, he will not rule on the constitutionality of Dade County's new "English-only" law until the county is accused of violating someone's constitutional rights.

U.S. District Judge Edward B. Davis said Thursday it would be "premature" to rule on the controversial anti-bilingual ordinance passed in Tuesday's election before the county implements it.

The ordinance prohibits the Dade government from spending taxpayers' money to promote any language but English or any culture but American.

Confused county officials, uncertain about the impact of the law, have speculated it could affect everything from multilingual airport signs to an office that helps Cuban refugees become U.S. citizens.

The county attorney is studying the ordinance and trying to answer the "thousand questions," said County Manager Merrett Stierheim.

American and what isn't. Beyond that, the courts will have something to say in the matter," Stierheim said.

The Dade Commission in 1973 had declared the county bilingual, with English and Spanish as the official languages, as a goodwill gesture to the Cuban exiles who settled in the area after Fidel Castro took power.

The campaign for the anti-bilingual law began this summer as most of the 125,000 Cubans from the "Freedom Flotilla" settled in south Florida.

The Spanish-American League Against Discrimination asked Davis on Wednesday to declare the new law unconstitutional, claiming it violated the rights of Spanish-speaking people to equal protection under the law.

After an informal conference with lawyers for all sides, Davis ordered the county to respond to the complaint within 10 days. He told league attorneys that he did not think emergency and hospital services would be curtailed.

County Manager Merrett Stierheim also said he has no plans to eliminate Spanish-speaking operators at the county's emergency center or cut other vital services "unless I'm otherwise instructed by the County Commission or the courts."

Church urges PLO recognition

NEW YORK (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization is the "only organized voice of the Palestinian people" and should be a party to peace negotiations in the Middle East, says the National Council of Churches.

But the PLO should make an "unambiguous statement" recognizing Israel's right to exist, the Council urged in a policy statement adopted Thursday.

The 9,000-word statement, which evaluates the problems of the Middle East and tries to balance the interests of Arabs and Jews, was adopted at the semi-annual meeting of the council's governing board. The agency represents most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations in the United States. Jewish organizations were alarmed by the statement.

The National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council called it "a major disservice to the cause of peace." The American Jewish Committee said the statement endorsed the "concept of a PLO state" on Israel's borders, which would add "another explosive powder keg" to an already strife-torn region.

But while council officials felt the PLO "appears to be the only body able to negotiate a settlement on... behalf" of the Palestinians, the statement was not recommending a PLO state.

GOP Senate conservative

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three prospective committee chairmen in the new Republican-controlled Senate say they will push for a strategic bomber, bigger military paychecks and a federal death penalty — but not for Ronald Reagan's tax cut plan.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., in line to chair the Senate Finance Committee, announced Thursday he will press for approval this year of the committee's $38.9 billion tax cut plan rather than Reagan's proposal for a 30 percent tax cut.

But Sens. John Tower, R-Texas, and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., announced plans for the military and death penalty bills as Republicans prepared to run the Senate for the first time in 26 years.

Tower is in line to chair the Senate Armed Services Committee and Thurmond should head the Senate Judiciary Committee in the 97th Congress convening in January.

Republicans captured a 53-47 Senate majority in Tuesday's elections on the coattails of Reagan's presidential sweep.

Democrats still hold a 243-192 House majority in the new Congress after losing 33 seats.

Dole told a news conference that he will try to get the Senate committee tax cut bill through the "lame-duck" Congress convening next Wednesday.

"It's not precisely the bill Gov. Reagan supported," Dole said. "But the economy needs this legislation now."

Senator Robert Dole

Senator John Tower

Reagan proposed a 30 percent tax cut — 10 percent in each of the next three years — although he said later that the second and third year cuts would depend on the state of the economy.

But Dole said Thursday, "I'm not certain you can do that ... without fueling the fires of inflation."

The pending Senate bill, he said, "will stimulate the economy without heating up inflation."

Dole could give no examples of the size of individuals' tax cuts under the Senate bill. But he said the total for individuals would be about $22 billion in 1981 and the total for businesses about $17 billion.

At another news conference, Thurmond pledged to seek congressional approval next year of a death penalty bill. He said he favors that penalty for treason and murder.

In Dallas, Tower told reporters that "the likelihood is that we will authorize a penetrating bomber" in the next Congress.

He said it could be either a stretch FB-111; some version of the B-1 which President Carter cancelled in 1977; or an entirely new plane. Congress has already instructed the Pentagon to tell Congress which bomber it wants by next March.

But, Tower said, the most urgent need is for a pay and benefit hike to halt the flow of skilled people out the military services.

Congress approved a $1 billion, 11.7 percent military pay raise this year. But Tower said, "We're going to have to go back to the well again." He did not say how big the new increase should be.

He said a peacetime draft "is not required at the moment" but said a draft may be needed in the future if volunteer force enlistments fall too low.

And Tower said "SALT II as presently drafted is dead." But he predicted the Soviets will accept Reagan's proposal to renegotiate the U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty to make it more favorable to the United States.

Senator pleads Abscam innocence

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., the highest-ranking public official accused in the FBI's Abscam investigation, has pleaded innocent to charges in a nine-count bribery-conspiracy indictment.

U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt on Thursday set Feb. 17 for trial of Williams; Angelo Errichetti, state senator and mayor of Camden, N.J.; Alexander Feinberg, a Cherry Hill, N.J., lawyer and friend of Williams; and George Katz, a businessman and former fund raiser for New Jersey Democrats.

The defendants were released on their own recognizance. Pratt said a due-process hearing would be held Dec. 15 to determine if there was any government misconduct that may have denied the defendants their rights. Such a finding would eliminate the need for a trial.

The FBI's undercover Abscam investigation has resulted in the indictment of six congressmen and Williams. Two congressmen have been convicted. Two others, Reps. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., and Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., both losers in Tuesday's election, will stand trial before Pratt in Brooklyn on Monday.

Williams, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, said after the hearing that he was innocent of the charges and that he had no plans to leave his Senate seat.

He and his co-defendants were charged with bribery and conspiracy involving the senator's alleged promise to sponsor a bill that would have allowed a phony Anab sheik to immigrate to the United States.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., faces a battery of newsmen as he leaves U.S. District Court in Westbury, N.Y., Thursday. Williams and three co-defendants pleaded innocent to a nine-count Abscam bribery-conspiracy indictment. (AP Laserphoto)

Prize money offered floats

More than $1,500 in prize money is being offered this year to sponsors of floats entered in the non-commercial category of the 10th annual Midland Chamber of Commerce Christmas Parade.

The annual parade will be at 10 a.m. Nov. 22. It is being sponsored by the retail committee of the chamber. Last year, the parade drew an estimated crowd of more than 30,000 spectators.

More than 400 invitations have been mailed to area schools, churches, bands and organizations. There is an entry fee.

All groups that would like to enter the parade and compete for the non-commercial prize money are urged to telephone the chamber office, 683-3381. Entry deadline is Nov. 14.

Theme of the 1980 parade is "Christmas Around the World." Floats will be graded on the basis of use of color, adherence to theme and general design of the float.

Commercial groups are invited to enter a float, but they will be competing for trophies only.

Americans listened

Ronald Reagan probably didn't realize what he was sitting atop Monday as he closed out his quest for the presidency.

National pollsters didn't realize it. Political observers didn't realize it. Incumbent politicians didn't realize it. Even those seeking political office didn't realize it.

All the polls indicated the presidential election of 1980 would be a squeaker. Just prior to the election, in fact, the polls termed the election "too close to call."

So what happened? Everyone's aware now that Reagan was swept into office on a swell of conservatism that also gave back to Republicans control of the Senate and resulted in a markedly more conservative House of Representatives.

The Reagan landslide victory over President Jimmy Carter was the result of not one but many factors — economic, prestige, shame, frustration. Perhaps the vote also was one of anger, to a degree. But clear messages can be drawn from the results.

Americans were tired of being caught up in an inflationary squeeze that threatens their personal security.

Americans were tired of being pushed around by every little pipsqueak country that thinks it can get away with terrorism and blackmail.

Americans were tired of their government being so firmly entrenched in their daily lives that it hinders rather than serves them.

Americans were tired — and ashamed — that 52 of their countrymen continue to be held by Iran in direct violation of international law.

Along came Ronald Reagan and running mate George Bush with a promise and a vision. It was not a promise of a "new deal." It was not a promise of a "new frontier." It was not a promise of a new anything.

Rather, it was merely a promise to allow Americans the opportunity to regain some of what they have lost, not only in the past four years, but perhaps in the last 10.

Americans want a change. Ronald Reagan and George Bush have offered to help them effect such a change. Americans listened to what they said and believed.

The landslide really shouldn't have been such a surprise.

CHARLEY REESE

Truth of Pericles' words still apply for America

Centuries before the birth of Jesus a man spoke to his countrymen with words that are applicable to us in these dangerous days. His name was Pericles.

"Fix your eyes on the greatness of Athens (America) as you have it before you day by day, fall in love with her, and when you feel her great, remember that this greatness was won by men with courage, with knowledge of their duty, and with a sense of honor in action."

You hear a lot of talk of weapons and of dollars and of systems, but it is well to remember, "Men make the city, and not walls or ships without men in them."

Yes, the United States needs the tools of war that our politicians have shamefully neglected, but more important than any weapons system are the men who will fight with them. We need "men with courage, with knowledge of their duty and a sense of honor in action."

The fundamental flaw of the volunteer army concept, as it is now practiced, is the belief that you can buy such men. You can't. You can buy mercenaries and you can buy peacetime soldiers, but you can't buy the kind of men who win wars. It is all logical and the logic explains not only why mercenaries are unreliable but also why you can't buy war winners.

To win in war you must be willing to die. Obviously, no amount of money is worth dying for. That's why the true mercenary, though he may be skillful and brave, never sacrifices himself if he can help it. His primary objective in war is surviving, not winning. That's why the volunteer forces engage in deceptive advertising and talk about travel and vocational training instead of war, which is the true purpose of the military profession. If we were honest and said, "How much do you want for getting killed?" we wouldn't get any takers at all.

Men won't die for money, but they will die for love. Men die, and in their dying win wars because they love their country, love their families or love their comrades, but it is always love which drives the man to endure the unendurable and to make the ultimate sacrifice.

The best of the men and women now serving are serving out of love. Sure, we should pay them more, but if pay is all we have to offer, then no matter how much it is, it won't be enough. You recruit lovers by loving.

If we are going to attract and hold in the armed forces the kinds of people we need to survive the threat of Soviet imperialism, then we, as a nation, are going to have to give the military the respect and love it deserves.

We do that by paying as much as we can afford, by giving them the best equipment and the best training money can buy, but more than that we must personally take it upon ourselves to teach our children to respect and honor the role of the military. We do that by telling our children about their great accomplishments, by revering and honoring our dead, by keeping faith with and honoring our commitments to veterans.

It is easy to do because truth is with the military. Whatever social value you name, be it freedom or material prosperity, it has been attained and protected by military action. It was the military which created this country and which has preserved it. It was the military which ended the Holocaust. Every accomplishment of mankind has been made possible by the military men who provided the iron ring of protection within which others could, in peace, study the arts and sciences.

I would like to see a country in which every editor would refuse to print a letter from some envious little twit complaining about military retirement pay. Freedom of speech does not mean we have to provide a soapbox for every ignorant, ungrateful slob with the price of a 15-cent stamp.

I would like to see a country in which every college president fired those draft-dodging PhDs who sit safely in their classrooms, poisoning the minds of their students with lies about the American armed forces.

I would like to see a country in which no politician would dare not vote for an adequate defense and which no bum would dare insult a man or woman in uniform for fear of being beaten by every civilian in sight.

There is no greater love than that of a man who would give his life for another — and no lower, no fouler, no more stinking pile of garbage than the person who doesn't appreciate it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Iranian student roundup revealed INS woes

WASHINGTON — When President Carter was casting about for a way to punish Iran for seizing the hostages a year ago, he ordered the Immigration and Naturalization Service to go after Iranian students who were staying illegally in this country. It was an unfortunate choice of weapons.

The INS, for years a budgetary stepchild of the Justice Department, had enough problems already. The Great Iranian Student Chase was an assignment it didn't need.

The confidential findings of Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., chairman of a House Immigration subcommittee, make it apparent that the attempted crackdown on illegal Iranians has hurt the INS more than it has Iran. A special "management review" by a team of experts from the President's Management Improvement Council confirmed that the immigration agency is — to put it bluntly — a bureaucratic nightmare.

From the files of the various investigations, my associate Lucette Lagnado has compiled these disturbing facts:

— INS has spent more than $3.3 million so far in its will-o'-the-wisp search for Iranian students who have no legal right to remain in the United States. Yet after nearly a year, the supposed crackdown is still lumbering along.

— Even though crisis situations are a predictable part of its official workload, INS seems to be institutionally incapable of handling the periodic crises that arise. The agency has not even had simple contingency plans available, and has greeted every special circumstance as if it were a bolt from the blue.

— The recent Cuban refugee influx brought a typically panic-stricken response from INS. Some 800 employees — a substantial proportion of the agency's staff — were thrown willy-nilly into the breach. Because advance contingency plans were lacking, many of these personnel were taken off important assignments.

Mountains of paperwork continue to pile up at INS, because it lacks a proper computer system. Instead, it must rely — among other things — on "mini-computers" left over from a botched attempt to automate the agency's files. Each of 39 INS regional offices keeps its own files, with few ways to coordinate information in Washington.

— What information the INS does have is often unreliable. For instance, in the search for deportable Iranian students, it turned out that many of the schools which enroll foreign students had either changed their locations or had gone out of existence. In the Washington, D.C., area alone, 40 percent of the schools were either nonexistent or out of reach.

— Even Iranian diplomats proved difficult to track down. The State Department advised INS that 226 Iranians were no longer entitled to diplomatic status, but to this day, nearly 40 of these bogus diplomats have still not been found. Much of the blame for this lies with Foggy Bottom, which gave the immigration service unreliable information.

Some of INS' problems are its own

Five years ago, India's supreme court reversed Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's conviction on two electoral offenses.

One year ago, Sen. Edward Kennedy announced he would challenge President Carter for the Democratic Party's presidential nomination.

Today's birthdays: Singer-songwriter Joni Mitchell is 37 years old. Evangelist Billy Graham is 62. And soprano Joan Sutherland is 54.

Thought for today: There is no substitute for brains, but the next best thing is silence. — Anonymous.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan's cautious campaign kept him from attacking Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

DES PLAINES, Ill. — Only six days before the election, Ronald Reagan finally fired at the fat Jimmy Carter targets of economics and incompetence — a delay explaining how a potential Republican landslide became a cliffhanger subject to change by Iran's release of the hostages.

Reagan's belated start on what he should have been doing for months, coupled with favorable response to his debate performance, buoyed his final days of campaigning through tightly-contested states. The beginning of despair two weeks earlier turned to guarded optimism. Reagan's private polls showed him seven percentage points ahead nationally — enough to counter an estimated 1.5 to 2 percent surge by Carter because of a hostage release.

But why so late in doing the obvious? That question evoked anger and regret among senior advisers in the forward cabin of Reagan's chartered jet. They blame anemic Reagan campaign strategy relying on public opinion surveys. "The damn polltakers took over," one adviser complained. Those polltakers put stress on building Reagan's positive image.

So it was that economics did not become Reagan's overriding theme until mid-October. Not until the day before the debate were weeks-old television commercials attacking President Carter's credibility finally put on the air. Not until Thursday morning, Oct. 30, in a New Orleans airport hangar, did Reagan systematically assault Carter's competency.

Evans

Novak

Recalling Carter's 1976 campaign promise of a government as good as the American people, Reagan told the New Orleans rally: "He only gave us a government as good as Jimmy Carter, and that isn't good enough."

That and other applause-getting lines were brand new. Ken Khachigian, a 36-year-old California public relations man who once wrote speeches for Richard Nixon, months ago applied for a job with the Reagan campaign, which turned him down as too expensive. Three weeks ago, with Reagan's rhetoric and poll ratings sagging, it was decided no price was too high. Thus, Khachigian's prose became Reagan's rhetoric in New Orleans and across the country.

Reagan's revived oratory coincided with post-debate good news. When Reagan arrived in New Orleans, senior adviser Stu Spencer immediately conferred with regional coordinator Kenny Klinge, who had new voter trackings: Reagan forging ahead in traditionally Democratic Louisiana and Missouri and no worse than even in overwhelmingly Democratic Arkansas.

In Pittsburgh that day, Reagan labor operative Michael Balzano, who had experienced trouble finding union officials for a Friday breakfast with Reagan, suddenly discovered plenty. The astute Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio told friends that Reagan had clinched the election when he closed the debate by asking Americans whether they were better off or worse off economically after four years of Carter.

Yet, that highly-effective closing inexplicably was missing from Reagan's new economic-incompetency speech. He also omitted, in describing his 30 percent tax cut, any talk about incentive to invest, to save and to work; Reagan's defense was the tax cut as a Keynesian counter-cyclical recession-fighter.

Despite these imperfections, Reagan at long last was saying most of the right things. He ingored Carter's wild 11th-hour swings at him. Most importantly, the Republican presidential candidate was concentrating on bread-and-butter issues without the masochistic Republican call for sacrifice and austerity, ending his speeches with a vision of America based on growth instead of scarcity. That this came so late is blamed by Reagan's bitter senior aides on the two California technicians who have dominated strategy: pollster Richard Wirthlin and advertising executive Peter Dailey. Against the instincts of Reagan's political aides, they insisted on avoiding harsh criticism of Carter and even Carter's record for fear of alienating undecided voters.

Since their polling data showed national unawareness of Reagan's post-Hollywood career, Wirthlin and Dailey insisted on running for two full months a lugubrious commercial on Reagan as governor of California. William Casey, Reagan's powerless campaign chairman, tried in vain to change the campaign's course. Not until the campaign's last week did Casey and the advisers aboard the plane — James Baker, Lyn Nofziger and Stuart Spencer — get the attack on Carter's competency launched.

Once begun, Reagan stuck to it diligently — even in an overly long speech to uncomprehending high school students at Des Plaines in Chicago's critically important suburbs. He assailed "a record of almost complete economic failure" as the enthusiastic teenagers booed the prime interest rates and budget deficits.

Had this started eight weeks earlier, Reagan's victory Tuesday might have been more apparent. Since it wasn't launched until late, the Reagan campaign had to take the chance course of hostage politics.

It was bad year for third parties, too

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was a bad year for the third parties, too. Like the Democrats, the also rans also limped.

But both the Libertarian Party, which thinks that government ought to limit its role to protecting the nation and fighting crime, and the Citizens Party, which thinks corporations have too much power, said 1980 established them as permanent fixtures on the political landscape.

The Libertarian Party spent $3.2 million on its campaign for nominee Ed Clark, and had hoped to finish with "double digit" figures — at least 10 percent of the vote.

Clark always told reporters he would not win but he would get "millions of votes." He had to settle for about 880,000 votes, 1 percent of the total. He went back to his job Wednesday as a lawyer for the Atlantic Richfield Co. in Los Angeles.

Environmentalist Barry Commoner, candidate of the new Citizens Party, had hoped to win 5 percent of the vote, qualifying the Citizens Party for federal financing. But Commoner won only about 220,000 votes. He left Wednesday on a Caribbean vacation.

"We all thought we'd do a little better, but no one I've talked to is crushed," said Citizens Party spokesman Steve Dombrosk.

The Citizens Party's big moment in the campaign came when it ran a network radio commercial describing the campaigns of its big league competition — the Democrats and the Republicans — as "bullshit."

An uproar ensued, and the party flickered into the public eye, for a moment.

The Citizens Party represented a coalition of the remnants of the peace and environment movements.

Commoner advocated ending "corporate control of the economy" and told followers Tuesday night the party now must become the rallying point for "progressive forces."

Both parties said they would be back with candidates for Congress in 1982. The Libertarians intend to nominate a candidate in every House and Senate race — something the Republicans and Democrats don't do.

"Our big accomplishment was building local organizations," said Libertarian spokesman Tom Palmer. "We knocked on eight million doors."

The Libertarians also managed to get on every ballot in America — the first third party since 1916 to achieve that. The Citizens Party was on the ballots of 29 states and the District of Columbia.

The Libertarians said they elected Mary Shell as mayor of Bakersfield, Calif., and two state legislators in Alaska.

But they had hoped to finish second in Alaska, behind Ronald Reagan and ahead of Jimmy Carter, a most unpopular figure in Alaska. They didn't.

Miss Israel bookies' choice

LONDON (AP) — Miss Israel, 18-year-old student Anat Zimerman, became the bookmaker's favorite today to win the Miss World beauty contest next week.

Ladbroke's, the London bookmaker, opened betting on the annual extravaganza and called the odds on Miss Israel at 11 to 2, meaning a $2 wins $11 plus the original stake.

It posted the first odds after photographs of some of the 66 entrants appeared in newspapers here. The odds are expected to change as publicity widened before the Nov. 13 judging in London's Royal Albert Hall.

Other girls leading in the betting were Miss United Kingdom at 6 to 1, Miss France and Miss Jamaica 8 to 1, and Miss Ireland and Miss Switzerland 10 to 1.

Miss USA, 17-year-old blonde receptionist Brooke Alexander from Kailua, Hawaii, was quoted at 12 to 1, along with Miss Australia.

Miss USA, a championship basketball player, said she is related on her father's side to Abraham Lincoln's grandmother, Lucy Hanks.

Gina Swainson of Bermuda, the 21-year-old reigning Miss World, told a reporter today that she invested her $12,000 first prize money.

'Perfect guest' has several invitations

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — From time to time, in keeping with the democratic processes and for want of a better idea, this podium is turned over to the patient public who make these thrice weekly ravings possible so they may have their day in court.

Quite a few readers have been taken with my modest boast of being the perfect guest. "Cheerful, attentive, tidy. Capable of a two-minute shtik on almost any topic of conversation from Afghanistan to Zen... I even make my own bed."

That description of my traveling repertoire resulted in many invitations from across the land, including a standing invite from editor Becky Barber of the Grants, (N.M.) Daily Beacon, who assures me that the ambiance in uranium country is without parallel.

Winnie and Saul Siegel, who write

Ravona Smith, 17, daughter of William and Charlene Smith, 121 Thornridge St., is the Downtown Lions Club's Junior Lioness of the Week. Miss Smith, a senior at Lee High School, is a member of the student council, junior council, chorale and all-region choir.

that they recently moved to Santa Cruz, Calif., inform me that I "sound like a splendid guest: it does not sound as if you store things in other people's houses as you take off for the trip of a lifetime, nor would you bring a package of Miso as a house gift."

Of that, dear sir and madam, I am perfectly innocent. I have never brought a package of Miso as a house gift, since I do not even know what Miso is or does.

Still, the Siegels wrongfully suspect that I am a Californian: "What gave you away was your reference to available two-minute conversations on a variety of subjects. This is the absolute perfect amount of time for a California conversation. I would like to call to your attention Truman Capote's remark that everyone he knew who moved to California lost two I.Q. points a year for each year lived there."

Mulligan's Stew

Well, I am glad Capote and the Siegels said it, as I am still receiving several invitations to a hanging each month because of what I wrote about imperious restaurant hostesses who delight in sitting you where you don't want to sit.

"I am perplexed over the descriptive words you used for hostesses," writes Gertrude Riley, of Winnetonka, Wis., who has been a hostess for 15 years. "Hostile, Teutonic, surly, hellions... Have you ever watched the footwork of a hostess and her waitresses? Would you have a better understanding if you walked in their footsteps?"

Like several other guardians of the "Wait to Be Seated" sign, hostess Riley offered to cook my goose if ever I dropped by her restaurant.

In a recent column I lamented the demise of filler writers on big city newspapers, the ingenious trivia curators whose job it was to even off columns of hot type with odd facts.

"Weep no more," writes Robert J. Scott from Lancaster, Pa. "Fillers are alive and well here among medium-sized city newspapers. It seems the old filler writer never really passed away."

They line up to buy 'asaderos' from small West Texas cheesemaker

SAN ELIZARIO, Texas (AP) — Eugene Licon says his customers come from as far away as the East Coast, but sometimes he has to disappoint them.

"Persons come from New York and Chicago to buy as many 'asaderos' as I have. Most of the time I have to tell them I can't sell them more than 20 packages at one time," Licon said. "The governor of Chihuahua (Mexico) enjoys my asaderos so much that he had some sent to him while he was in Argentina."

So what are asaderos? They are light, stringy cheeses shaped like pancakes, and some people like to eat them so much they are willing to spend their Sundays standing in line, Licon says.

"Last Sunday the line was so long I was forced to sell only two packages per person so that some of my other customers would have some to buy," he said.

He realizes he could modernize his operation, install machines, and increase production. But he fears the quality of his handmade cheese would decline if he did.

"Making asadero cheese is a tradition with us. No one nowadays wants to go to the trouble of making it by hand. But for us it is still a matter of pride," Licon said. "If we enlarged the business it wouldn't be the same."

Most of his customers are people who queue up daily at his dairy in this West Texas community near El Paso, and Licon said rationing of the handmade delicacies is routine.

He uses milking machines on his dairy cows, but insists on using a generations-old recipe for asaderos handed down by his wife's grandmother. He said his is the only dairy in the Southwest that makes them by hand.

The method calls for mixing sweet milk with milk that has been soured with rennet, a substance found in the stomach of unweaned calves.

"If the combination is too sweet, the asaderos will come out too rubbery, and if it is too sour, they will turn a dark color," the fussy cheesemaker said.

The mixture is boiled for half an hour, churned, cooked some more and then rolled and flattened into tortilla-like shapes. Each flat, round slice must be made by hand while it is still hot.

Licon said other makers of asadero cheese began using shortcuts in the production about 20 years ago, and the quality slumped. At the same time his business increased so much that he had to build his herd of dairy cows up from five to 160 head.

Along with the extra business came a lot of hard work. Licon says he must rise at 4 a.m. every day to start milking his cows.

"We're open every day," he said. "Cows don't stop producing milk because it's Sunday."

Man arrested in case involving 3,000 pounds of missing cheese

AMARILLO (AP) — An Arkansas man arrested in this Panhandle city on charges of stealing 3,000 pounds of cheese is being held in the Potter County Jail pending possible removal to Arkansas, according to FBI officials.

FBI agent Scott Hendricks, who arrested Wayne Lee Lindsey Wednesday, said the man has the right to a removal hearing, which is similar to extradition. Lindsey was indicted by a federal grand jury in western Arkansas Oct.

31 for theft from an interstate shipment, said William E. Kell, special agent in charge of the Arkansas FBI. The cheese — Wedge Daisy Super Jack — was valued at $3,700 and had not been recovered Thursday night, he said.

GOP lost this time

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Republican elephant bank containing $1,500 was stolen from a GOP headquarters on the city's south side by burglars who rifled the files, a party worker said.

Charlie Mellenbruch, manager of the GOP office, said the burglars removed a vent, entered through the roof of the one-story building then strolled out the back door with the bank, three TV sets, walkie-talkies and office equipment.

"We were sort of expecting something like this ever since the headquarters in Austin were burglarized about two weeks ago," she said.

Policeman wounds man

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas police officer shot and wounded a former mental patient after a foot chase that ended when the man reached for a pistol in his waistband, police said.

Police said the 32-year-old East Dallas man, whose gun was unloaded, was shot in the throat and chest Thursday. He was taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital where his condition was unknown Thursday night.

Homicide Lt. Mel Southall said charges of aggravated assault on a police officer were being prepared against the man.

Cable firm wants OK

DALLAS (AP) — Warner Amex Cable Communications officials have asked for permission to begin installing cable lines, despite a petition circulating among Dallas citizens that could cancel the company's cable television franchise.

The petition calls for a special election next April to allow Dallas voters to approve or reject Warner. Dallas city council has awarded Warner Amex exclusive rights to provide cable television in the city.

Warner spokeswoman Anne Hall said the company does not want to wait six months to learn the outcome of a referendum before it begins installing service connections.

Boy Scout office burns

IRVING (AP) — A two-alarm fire damaged the national headquarters building of Boy Scouts of America late Thursday, a spokesman for the organization said.

There were no injuries, officials said. The only person in the building at the time of the fire was believed to be a security guard.

Mike Whittaker, assistant national news editor for the organization, said no damage estimate was immediately available. Firefighters in this Dallas suburb were not immediately able to determine the cause of the blaze.

Fire damage was confined to the second floor of the building, but there was apparent smoke damage throughout the four-story building, Whittaker said. The offices were to be closed today, he said.

An Iraqi soldier comforts a crying baby held by his sister in the Iraqi occupied city of Khorramahahr, Iran Thursday. Most of the population before the war were ethnic Arabs, the girl and baby belonging to a family who said they stayed in their home throughout the heavy fighting. (AP Laserphoto)

Iraqi doctors fighting to save the life of captured oil minister

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraqi doctors are fighting to save the life of Iran's captured oil minister, who suffered a "massive hemorrhage caused by serious wounds" sustained at the Abadan battle-front, the Iraqi press said.

It was the first report that 30-year-old Mohammad Jawad Baguir Tonguyuan was wounded when he was captured a week ago, and was surprising since he seemed to be in good health when European TV networks filmed him in captivity.

There was no immediate explanation for the apparent mystery. Iran has demanded his release, citing "all international norms and treaties," but Iraq refuses on grounds he and others captured with him are "prisoners of war."

Iraq said its tank-led infantry, backed by rocket-firing helicopter gunships, killed 60 Iranians and suffered 21 dead in "noose-tightening" operations around Abadan as the war entered its 47th day today.

Tehran Radio conceded heavy fighting raged in the eastern districts of Abadan after Iraqi troops crossed the Bahmanshir River into Iran's besieged refinery city on the northern fringes of the Persian Gulf.

But the broadcast said Iranian forces were holding out and that they retaliated Thursday in a fierce battle along the Abadan-Mahshahr highway about two miles east of Abadan. It said Iranian Phantoms attacked Iraqi positions along the Bahmanshir River, leaving the ground "littered with Iraqi dead." Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai visited the war front and declared, "We will fight to our last breath. We will show (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein that he can never become the region's gendarme." Iran's official Pars news agency said.

It said Iranian warplanes also bombed Iraqi positions near Ahwaz, the capital of Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province 70 miles north of Abadan, and outside Dezful, the garrison city 80 miles further north and midpoint of Iraq's 300-mile invasion front.

The agency claimed 160 Iraqis were killed in fighting in Susangerd, 25 miles north of Abadan, Iran's last stronghold on the Shatt al-Arab whose capture would give Iraq complete control of the estuary that constitutes its only outlet to the Persian Gulf.

The Tehran command said Iran's snipers and gunners near Khorramshahr, the oil port 10 miles north of Abadan that the Iraqis seized two weeks ago, were still keeping the invaders from seizing the bridge over the Karun River

Nixon visits Soviet embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was like old times — Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger talking to foreign diplomats.

When Soviet ambassador Anytoly Dobrynin threw a party Thursday night to celebrate the 63rd anniversary of the Russian Revolution, Nixon was the surprise guest.

The former president said he decided to come from his New York home for the celebration "on the spur of the moment ... I decided just a few days ago."

Nixon flew to Washington late

Thursday afternoon and when he entered the embassy several blocks from the White House, one of the first persons he saw was Kissinger, his former secretary of state, who was standing in a receiving line.

"Henry, you come with me," said Nixon, taking Kissinger by the arm and propelling him to the head of the line to greet Dobrynin.

Many of the diplomats crowded around Nixon to hear him extol President-elect Ronald Reagan, only two days after Reagan's landslide victory over President Jimmy Carter.

Students give 'Windows' a standing ovation

"There's nothing going on."
 "When are they going to get started?"
 "Are they going to be in those boxes?"
 Shhh....

The shushing sounds were followed by coughing sounds. Then a voice called out, "Y'all shut up," and silence filled Theatre Midland as the Alamo Junior High eighth graders settled back to see the Pickwick's latest production, "Windows."

Unlike most Pickwick productions, "Windows" is not a fairy tale, or a remake of a fairy tale, or a remake of a remake of a fairy tale. It is a musical, written about teen-agers' feelings toward their peers and adults — more specifically parents and teachers. The songs express love, hate, desire for understanding, fear of failure and the conflicting pressures many teen-agers feel they are faced with in becoming adults.

Patricia Bowman Edwards wrote the original play and book which was titled "Open A New Window." She based her story on a questionnaire she sent through the high school fine arts departments of the Dallas Independent School system.

With her permission, the Pickwicks took her script and rewrote it. Their adaptation is called simply, "Windows," and, as teen-agers themselves, it is more in keeping with their view of today's youth.

What the original cast did with 14 performers, the Pickwicks are doing with eight. At times, they do need more projection in some of the songs. However, the way the play is staged here, more than eight "Windows" will be shown to the public Saturday at 2:30 p.m. and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $2 and reservations may be made by calling 682-4111.

In a community as family-oriented as Midland, this play offers a real opportunity for parents and their children to share an hour together. There are statements made in the production that all can identify with and possibly learn a little more about how it feels to be on the other side of the generation gap.

When asked by their principal, Clifford Bailey, how they felt about the play, the Alamo students responded with a standing ovation.

A Review

might be too confusing and each individual character would not come out as strong.

Otherwise, the play is very well done.

Cast members are John Dennett, Shallete Dunnam, Ann Hunt, Dee Ann Jones, Andy Kimbrough, Karen Price, Don Stroud and Laura Wolf. All were involved in rewriting the play except Andy, who joined the cast late. Gary Lyons was also involved in the adapting process.

Swoosie Kurtz no play for this young Broadway star

NEW YORK (AP) — Producers sigh when they see an actor's resume that insists the mien is, say, Prufrock J. Smith. It's an old actor's ploy, using weird, fake first names to draw audition-time attention. It's no ploy for Swoosie

Kurtz, though. Swoosie is for real. She was named after "The Swoose," a famous B-17 bomber her dad, Col. Frank Kurtz, flew in the Pacific early in World War Two. "It was a hybrid plane, made from various parts salvaged from other B-

17s," she explained. "It got its name from an old Kay Kyser song about a bird that was half swan, half goose."

Miss Kurtz, who goes around and about clad in one of her father's old flying jackets, opened on Broadway not long ago in "The Fifth of July," the new play by Lanford "Talley's Folly" Wilson. In the show, starring Christopher Reeve, late of "Superman," she plays a drug-addled ex-radical who now lives in Carmel, Calif., and whose husband is pushing her into a singing career.

Just before that, she toiled Off-Broadway, playing a Dublin housewife with an 18-year-old son in Hugh Leonard's "Summer." She was barely out of her teens when she first drew fine notices here in the original cast "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-

In-The-Moon Mari-golds," the Pulitzer Prize drama. A respected actress possessed of a brisk wit and a keen sense of the absurd, she's been on Broadway three times before "Fifth of July." Also got a Tony nomination for her work in "Tartuffe."

She reckons she got wound up in the acting dodge because, as the daughter of a military man, she moved around a lot — 17 schools in her childhood past — and this made her a little strange.

"You have to channel your neuroses into something, and it might as well be theater," says Miss Kurtz. She studied her craft at the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art.

Why not? She shook her head. "It's a total mystery to me. I think it's going to happen, though. It's not a question of if, it's a question of when."

Unlike Meryl Streep, to whom she often is compared in terms of acting ability, her work in theater, the fine reviews, the Tony nomination, and a Drama Desk award haven't yet made her a hot item in Hollywood.

Why not? She shook her head. "It's a total mystery to me. I think it's going to happen, though. It's not a question of if, it's a question of when."

She nonetheless ventures a theory — not sourly, though — that achievement in theater here "doesn't mean a damn thing to them out there. They say, 'Huh?'"

She grinned and offered the tale of a famous English actress of impeccable theatrical credits who finally had a go at Hollywood. She was taken to an agent who inquired:

"So tell me, what's done, which play ya done?" And she said, "Do you mean this morning?"

But she hastens to add she's not a snob about moviedom. She'd love to make more films, although the stage is where she feels most at home.

THE ELEPHANT MAN
"BRILLIANT" No film more artistically daring and emotionally overwhelming has come along this year. John Hurt gives a performance that is unforgettable. John Gielgud is excellent, and Anne Bancroft is almost too grand to be true.
"The Elephant Man" is a handsome, haunting new film. Mr. Hurt's extraordinary performance is truly remarkable. Fascinating.
"A BEAUTY!" A tale of redemption and transcendence, of the hunchback of London Hospital, of the noble phantom who wanted to go to the opera, of Beauty and the Beast.
"An extraordinarily touching movie. John Hurt is amazing, and Anthony Hopkins, Anne Bancroft and John Gielgud give performances of rare quality."

Bishop, once respected leader, now an outcast

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (AP)—For years he was hailed as the man who would lead Rhodesia's blacks to control their own destiny. Today this African land's first black prime minister is an outcast.

Abel Muzorewa now is denounced as a murderer, traitor and white puppet in the parliament of Zimbabwe, the name of this former British colony since independence six months ago.

The 55-year-old Methodist bishop is often jeered in the streets, and mostly he leads the life of a recluse in a $120,000 mansion in the well-to-do Salisbury suburb of Borrowdale.

"Muzorewa is a broken, bitter man," a family friend confided recently. "He can't understand how he was the idol of the people a year ago and the pariah today."

Shunned by former aides as well as the new black leaders of Zimbabwe, the U.S.-educated cleric spends less time in parliament, the Executive National Assembly, and more in the pulpit of the American-funded United Methodist Church.

"He's too proud to sit in the Assembly and be insulted," a white legislator said, referring to the attacks on the bishop by guerrilla armies of the two guerrilla armies who fought a seven-year war for independence.

Few of his old foes — the black nationalists of Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union (Patriotic Front) or Joshua Nkomo's Patriotic Front — will concede that Muzorewa played a role in steering the country to black-majority rule after nine decades of white domination.

"You killed our children, you murderer," one member of parliament shouted at the diminutive figure in the Assembly recently. "Go back to your white masters."

It wasn't always that way. In the early 1970s Muzorewa — educated at the Central Methodist College in Fayette, Mo., and Scarritt College in Nashville, Tenn. — was a power to be reckoned with in Rhodesia, as the country was then known.

He mobilized blacks throughout the country to overwhelmingly reject proposals of the British Conservative Party government at the time to end a rebellion against Britain by the white government of Prime Minister Ian D. Smith, begun in 1965.

The deal would legitimately have kept the reins of power in white hands indefinitely, and Muzorewa formed the United African National Council to fight it while most other nationalist leaders — including Mugabe and Nkomo — were in political detention.

For his efforts, Muzorewa was hailed as a hero by the blacks, secretly encouraged by the nationalist leaders in Smith's jails and banned by the white government from traveling around the country — or, for a time, leaving it.

Later as the guerrilla war escalated in 1974 and the nationalist leaders were released to negotiate a settlement with Smith, Muzorewa was chosen as their overall leader.

But while the bishop pressed for peace, the militants wanted more war.

The United African National Council split into factions, and Muzorewa and other moderates struck a deal with Smith called the "internal settlement." It excluded the militant guerrillas and led to elections won by the bishop in April 1979.

Muzorewa, as prime minister in a nominally black government but with whites wielding most of the power, was denounced by the guerrillas as a puppet.

And it did seem that his white-officered army, air force and police mounted deadly raids against guerrillas loyal to Nkomo and Mugabe in neighboring knowledge of their prime minister, avowedly a man of peace.

The rise and fall of Muzorewa as an African prime minister took 10 months and was a unique milestone in the continent's contemporary history.

He was the first black leader to allow himself to be voted out of power when he signed a British-drafted constitutional accord with Nkomo and Mugabe last Dec. 21, after four months of talks in London.

That settlement led to a Dec. 29 cease-fire in the war followed by elections in February when Muzorewa's party was crushed. He won only three of the 100 seats in the Executive National Assembly. Fifty-seven were won by Mugabe, 20 by Nkomo and 20 others were guaranteed under the constitution to whites of Smith's Rhodesian Front Party.

Tax cuts leading Reagan program

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect Ronald Reagan's legislative proposals, if enacted, would make sweeping changes in government policies and programs including abortion and automobiles, wages and welfare. Taxes and government spending would go down and speed limits could go up.

Reagan will have a Republican-controlled Senate and a markedly more conservative House, though still under Democratic rule, to help him.

The centerpiece of the new president's program, as outlined in his campaign pledges, is a three-year, 30-percent tax cut that he plans to send Congress immediately after he takes office Jan. 20.

But even on that, a top Reagan adviser said Tuesday, the former California government is willing to compromise and accept something less, at least for next year.

The adviser, who asked not to be identified, predicted Reagan and Congress probably would settle on a total tax reduction of about $40 billion, retroactive to Jan. 1.

One result of Reagan's landslide victory Tuesday is that President Carter's proposal for a 1981 tax cut totaling about $27 billion probably won't receive serious consideration by Congress. Carter may not even formally submit it before leaving office.

Reagan's economic advisers plan to meet Nov. 14 to map the basic economic strategy of the new administration.

But the Reagan adviser said it already is "pretty well set" that the new president will submit to Congress two major tax initiatives, the Kemp-Roth tax cut plan and a proposal for accelerated tax depreciation allowances for business investment.

The Kemp-Roth plan provides for a cut in individual income taxes of 10 percent a year for three years, beginning in 1981.

"Congress, rather than the president, writes the final bill," the adviser said. "As for whether we get it all at once, that's going to be tough, but Reagan's commitment is to a 30 percent cut over three years, and that's a solid commitment."

The Kemp-Roth bill, named after chief sponsors Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. Bill Roth, R-Del., would reduce individual tax rates from the current range of 14 percent to 70 percent, to a range of 12 percent to 67 percent.

Reagan also has promised to eliminate gift and inheritance taxes and adopt tuition tax credits for children in private and parochial schools.

Reagan's economic advisers also plan to move quickly to prepare proposed spending reductions from the fiscal 1982 budget that Carter will send Congress before leaving office.

According to Alfred Hodder, Medic Alert president, a non-profit organization with headquarters in California, one in five Americans—approximately 40 million people—has at least one or more "hidden" medical problems. These include diabetes, allergies to insect bites or drugs, asthma, even a lower-than-average pulse rate from frequent jogging. The emblem even can inform medical personnel that a person's contact lenses should be removed.

Engraved on the back of the Medic Alert bracelet is the wearer's medical problem, along with an ID number and an emergency telephone number. Emergency personnel can dial the number collect from any location in the world. Pecan queen candidates prepare for competition

It was a scene of beauty recently when several Midland women gathered for indoctrination and a photo session for the upcoming Midland County Pecan Harvest and Queens Festival. Cathy Harris, who is in charge of all the arrangements, welcomed the participants and their parents, and thanked them for entering the queen competition.

Lerli Fitzhugh, 1978 State Pecan Queen and the present Miss West Texas, told the girls some of her experiences and travels during her reign as queen. Linda Bond, who will be the emcee for the festival, also spoke to the group concerning some of the dance routines. Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Reese, who are producing the show, explained some do's and don'ts about the staged activity.

R.B. Henderson spoke about the pecan show itself and encouraged the group to invite all of their friends and neighbors to the festivities. Playing the piano in competition will be Kelli Badgett, Sara Stone and

Diamonds glitter in museum display

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Both rough and cut diamonds are on display in Hillman Hall of Minerals and Gems, a permanent exhibit at the Carnegie Museum of Natural History here. Diamonds in the rough on view range from a small Arkansas stone to a large crystal from Sierra Leone that, if cut, would yield a large canary diamond. One diamond crystal from Russia is still embedded in the kimberlite from which it came. One cut treasure in Hillman Hall is a 16-carat, canary-yellow diamond from India. Glittering in "The Garden" is a necklace consisting of two aquamarines weighing 84 and 30 carats, 35 zircons and five diamonds.

Feminists react with gloom

By MARLENE CIMONS (c) 1980, The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — In the aftermath of a sweeping conservative Republican victory — both in the White House and in Congress — most feminists reacted with predictable gloom Wednesday over the fate of the Equal Rights Amendment and pro-choice in abortion, while their conservative counterparts heralded a return to "traditional" values of family and the home.

"I'm on top of the world," said Phyllis Schlafly, national chairman of Stop ERA and a member of President-elect Ronald Reagan's national security task force. "It's a tremendous victory for the Republican platform — which took a clear-cut stand against ERA, and for a human life amendment to the constitution, and for traditional family values."

However, Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women — which did not endorse President Carter for re-election — blamed feminist losses on issues which she said voters felt were more critical than the GOP stands on ERA and abortion.

"It is a catastrophic defeat," she said. "But what really happened was that the economy, foreign policy, inflation, unemployment and Iran — those were the things people were voting on. They weren't voting on social issues like abortion, ERA or the return to yesteryear. The conservatives are interpreting this as a mandate for their social policies. We might pay for it — but it's not our defeat."

Bobbie Greene Kilberg, vice chairwoman of the Reagan-Bush women's policy board and a member of the advisory board of the National Women's Political Caucus, said she believes that a Reagan presidency will be good for women.

"I have been in the women's movement a long time and could only support a candidate with a strong commitment to women — Gov. Reagan has that," she said. "I think he will be positive for women. I happen to believe it."

"I think he will move legislatively and administratively to remove remaining discriminations against women," she continued. "I think he's going to appoint women in large numbers and will do better than President Carter did. If you look at the last four years, there has not been one single major new initiative in the area of women's issues from the Carter White House. Look at Reagan's record in California — he signed 14 pieces of legislation on women's rights."

Smeal was not impressed with this statistic. "There are 800 federal statutes that discriminate on the basis of sex," she said. "If we get 14 statutes in eight years, it will take us 457 years to get equality."

"That's just silly," Kilberg said. "Remember — Gov. Reagan signed that legislation before the women's movement had taken off, before it was popular to do so, when no one else was doing it."

She paused. "The issues that will impact on women the most in the 1980s are the economy and peace," Kilberg said. "You need jobs for women who wish to have a career and you need economic security for women who wish to stay inside the home, so they are not forced into the marketplace unless they want to be. The vote in this country Tuesday was not the result of the 'new right' or the Moral Majority — it was people responding to what they felt was a bankrupt Democratic philosophy."

Iris Mitgang, national chairwoman of the National Women's Political Caucus, described the results for women as "mixed."

"We will have the largest number of women in Congress in history — I think it's 21 — although we did not support all of the women, she said.

"And we picked up three Republican feminist seats in Congress — in New Jersey, Rhode Island and Illinois. All the women ran well. And for the first time in history, being a woman was not an issue."

Mary Estill Buchanan, the Republican feminist who challenged incumbent Democratic Sen. Gary Hart in Colorado, was defeated despite the endorsement of the caucus — a tough choice for caucus officials, they said, since Hart had supported feminist issues. In Florida, a Republican woman, Paula Hawkins, not a feminist, won a U.S. senate seat. She was not endorsed by the Caucus.

The women's movement lost several of its other champions, notably Democratic Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, defeated in her bid for the Senate seat from New York, and Indiana Democratic Sen. Birch Bayh, the Senate's most vocal ERA proponent.

"Of all the losses for feminists, Holtzman and Bayh are among the most difficult to swallow," Mitgang said. "The whole swing of the Senate is going to be difficult — but women's issues don't rise and fall with each election. We have to remind ourselves that the ERA was finally extricated from committee during Richard Nixon's tenure in the White House. Our struggle will continue."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Safety tips for the kitchen

HI THERE!

Today I'm going to talk to those of you who spend a lot of time in the kitchen — working, not eating, that is.

Did you know that those of us who do kitchen duty account for almost half of the adhesive bandages used? Ouch!

Kitchen accidents still rank high on the list, and a lot of them could be prevented if we organized our kitchens a little better, and conditioned ourselves to look for safer ways of doing things.

SHARP KNIVES

Take knives, for instance. How many of us just shove them into a drawer right along with every other type of kitchen utensil? Not only is this risky but it dulls the blades. Use a sturdy knife rack, placed out of reach of any inquisitive little hands. Same goes for those ice picks. Store them in a safe place and stick a piece of cork on the pointed end.

Keep your knives sharp, as a dull knife can slip and cut your hand. The same goes for a sharp one, so don't use your thumb as a knife-stop. Use a cutting board for slicing.

When opening canned goods, don't try to remove the cut-off lid with your fingers. Use a fork tine or dinner knife to lift the lid out of the can, then carefully dispose of the sharp lid.

WATCH THOSE FINGERS!

When using a blender, food processor or electric mixer, keep those fingers away from the blades — even when the appliance is off. Those blades are sharp. Unplug the hand mixer before removing the beaters, just in case...

Washing dishes by hand? Be careful putting in glassware and sharp instruments. Don't pile dishes on top of your glassware — wash glasses first. Don't drop all those sharp and pointed utensils into the soapy dishwasher, either. If they need to soak, put them in a pan on the counter top for a few minutes. Then wash them one at a time.

Don't try picking up pieces of broken glass with your hands. Wear rubber gloves. Pick up any fine slivers with a wet paper towel.

GRATER SAFETY

Have a grating chore ahead of you? When you get down to that last half inch of carrot, cheese, or whatever, stop and put that small piece aside for some future use that doesn't call for grating. You can end up with skinned knuckles and fingers if you try grating it.

So, dear hearts, enjoy your culinary skills to the hilt but use caution and common sense to prevent any unnecessary cuts and bruises when preparing that labor of love for your family and guests. — Heloise

CLEAN-IT CUE

Dear Heloise: My flannel-backed vinyl tablecloth is one of my most treasured possessions. It's still beautiful though many years old because I found out how to keep it lovely by having an idea and taking a chance.

When the cloth began to get limp and lusterless, I first put it on a flat surface, scrubbed it thoroughly with a brush, dishwashing detergent and a little non-abrasive cleansing powder.

After rinsing well, I let it dry in the sun. The following day I applied clear liquid vinyl (the kind used to preserve vinyl car tops).

When the first coat was dry, I applied a second coat. The tablecloth has never become stiff, but body and luster was restored. — Mrs. R.F. King

THANK YOU, MOM
Dear Heloise: On my birthday I send my mom

My idea has proved a winner, as my daughter, now grown, has picked it up and does the same for me. — Bettie Diflore

DEAR ABBY

He's gay — and will stay that way

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I've never seen a problem like mine in your column, but I hope you can advise me. I am in love with a man who by his own admission is a homosexual. He is a very fine person, and we think the world of each other. Abby, I have been in love with him for several years — I don't care if he is a homosexual. He would make a wonderful husband and companion.

Do you think he could ever change and forget about men if he really tried? Maybe I should tell you that he has never encouraged me in a romantic way — never kissed me or even held my hand. He has friends galore, but isn't interested in any particular man.

What are a homosexual's chances for changing? I won't give up unless I am certain it is absolutely hopeless. I can't stop thinking about him. I've never been in love, like this before. Please help me. — IN LOVE IN JERSEY

DEAR IN LOVE: A homosexual's chances for changing his sexual preference are zero — unless he is VERY strongly motivated to change. From what you say, he appears to be perfectly satisfied the way he is. Do yourself (and him) a favor and give up.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman barber who styles and cuts men's hair in one of the better barber shops.

Abby, you wouldn't believe the number of men who come into this shop with wax in their ears. I've seen wax buildup so thick it's a wonder they can hear. I'm not talking about poor, ignorant people. My clients are intelligent, well-dressed and well-to-do or they couldn't pay the kind of money I charge for a haircut.

I don't have the nerve to tell them. If I did, I'd probably never see them again, and I don't want to lose any clients.

If you have a solution, please print it. I can't be the only barber with this problem. — ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Try this on those with the wax buildup: "I once had a client who thought he was going deaf. He went to an ear doctor who examined, his ears, then performed a simple ear irrigation to flush out the wax. The painless procedure took less than 10 minutes, after which the patient's hearing was restored immediately." They'll get the hint.

Soviets denounce imperialism, warn aggressors during parade

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union denounced "American imperialism" and warned it would give a "crushing rebuff to any aggressor" as it paraded its military might through snow-whipped Red Square today on the 63rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The ambassadors of the United States, most of its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Japan and China boycotted the parade, just as they did the May Day celebrations, to protest the Soviet military intervention against anti-communist Moslem rebels in neighboring Afghanistan.

Some 5,000 crack troops, backed by tanks, artillery and missiles in tight formation, moved through the brightly decorated square under the gaze of President Leonid I. Brezhnev, Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov and others who stood atop the Lenin Mausoleum in blustery 30-degree temperatures.

Ustinov, in full dress uniform, told the massed soldiers, sailors, airmen and commandos that "the forces of oppression, militarism and aggression and the actions of American imperialism and the aggressive NATO bloc oppose the peace-loving trend in international politics."

He said the world situation demands "constant vigilance and the strengthening of our defense potential," and that the "Soviet armed forces have everything necessary to give a crushing rebuff to any aggressor."

The military parade, an annual event, appeared to contain no major changes from last year. It involved about 220 vehicles and weaponry ranging from light, air-transportable infantry vehicles to multi-round rocket launchers and anti-aircraft and surface-to-surface missiles.

As T-72 tanks, the nation's main battle tank, rolled by at about 10 miles per hour, a Moscow radio announcer praised their "strong armor" and said "their crews are well protected from nuclear blast and radiation."

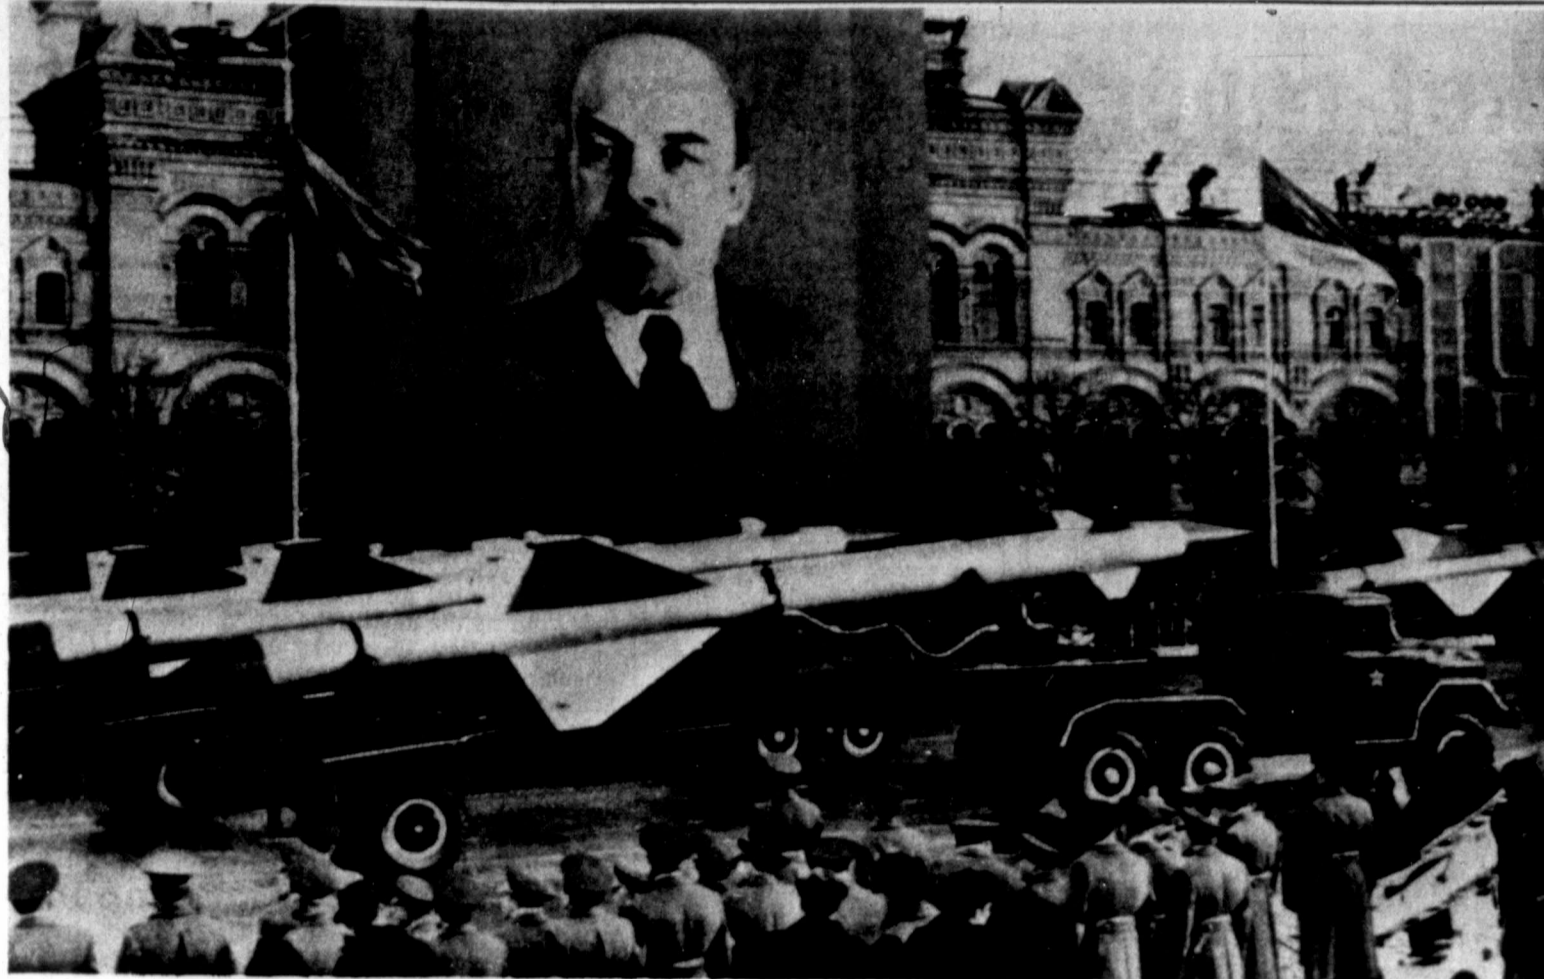

The military parade was followed by hundreds of thousands of Moscow workers, who marched in loose formation with hundreds of banners, floats and red flags.

A huge portrait of Vladimir I. Lenin, the founder of the Soviet state, dominated the square just outside the Kremlin. Red balloons soared overhead and live and recorded marching music reverberated off the walls of the Kremlin and the massive GUM department store nearby.

Brezhnev and other leaders saluted the military marchers — led by 172 youthful drummers — and waved to the mass of civilians. The marchers carried portraits of Soviet officials and escorted floats praising Soviet policies.

Missing from among the leaders on the 40-foot-tall mausoleum was Alexei Kosygin, 76, who resigned as premier last month because of failing health. His replacement, Nikolai Tikhonov, was present for the parade.

Ethiopian leader Mengistu Haile Mariam, a close Soviet ally, also stood with Brezhnev on the mausoleum reviewing stand. Brezhnev, 73 and reported suffering from a variety of ailments, looked healthy and mounted the stand without difficulty, accompanied by an aide who stood close by.

Communist warns Polish unions

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania, taking a hard line on the eve of the 63rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution in the neighboring Soviet Union, warned Poland's biggest independent union its rejection of a clause affirming party supremacy will not be tolerated.

But a senior adviser to Solidarity, which claims half of Poland's 20 million workers, said it might be impossible to dissuade the rank and file from launching a lengthy nationwide strike Wednesday if the Polish Supreme Court does not remove the clause from the union's charter during an appeal Monday.

"Who is interested, what reasons speak for it, to keep away from statements which determine the socialist character of the Solidarity trade union?" Kania said in a speech delivered Wednesday in Krakow and broadcast nationwide on Thursday.

"I don't know any reason workers' interest would speak for it. This brings harm to Solidarity itself, creates unnecessary tensions, which may raise doubts on the purity of intentions" of union leaders, Kania said.

"Today one has to say there are borders which no one can cross. Everybody who hits at socialism hits at the independent existence of the nation. And we will defend socialism as one who has to defend the independence of Poland with all consequences resulting from it."

Kazimierz Barcikowski, a member of the party's Central Committee, echoed Kania, saying in a separate speech, "Nobody with common sense can submit passively to this dangerous gamble with the fate of our nation and the state."

Kania's declaration was his first public speech since he and other Polish leaders returned from a lightning trip to Moscow Oct. 30 for a meeting with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

Following the Kremlin talks, Polish officials and Solidarity leader Lech Walesa agreed to defer a decision on the controversial clause to the Polish Supreme Court.

But Walesa said his group will not compromise on demands that the phrase be removed; if it is not, he says the union will call a strike and that workers will stay off the job "for a week, for a month if we have to."

Solidarity leaders maintain the clause breaches the agreement that ended nationwide strikes last summer. The pact allowed unions to function free of party control for the first time ever in the Soviet bloc.

Egypt wants news blackout during Rapid Deployment test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first maneuvers of the United States' new Rapid Deployment Force are to begin next week, but Egypt, site of the exercise, has insisted on a news blackout of the operation.

American officials say they're puzzled. The first of about 1,400 soldiers plus airmen and eight A-7 ground attack planes are to arrive in Egypt Monday. The overall movement from the United States will continue until Wednesday.

The Army troops will then move from the Cairo West Airport into the Egyptian desert for 10 days of maneuvers, beginning Nov. 15.

The Pentagon was expected today to announce the operation, which will be the first test of the unit, designed to be dispatched rapidly in case of a crisis.

But American officials who asked not to be identified said Egyptian authorities have barred any on-the-spot news coverage of the arrival or the maneuvers.

Pentagon officials say they are puzzled about Egyptian reasons for requiring the blackout because Defense Minister Ahmed Badawy gave details of the impending exercise last month in an official Middle East News Agency dispatch.

However, the officials acknowledged the Egyptian action could reflect some concern about highlighting the presence of U.S. troops at a time when Arab countries are split over the Iran-Iraq war.

Although the deployment of elements of the 101st Airmobile Division from Fort Campbell, Ky., to Egypt is the first U.S. action of its kind in the Middle East in more than 20 years, senior military officers are cautioning against regarding this as a demonstration of any U.S. ability to project major forces and their equipment over thousands of miles from the United States to the Middle East.

Gen. Volney Warner, who oversees the Rapid Deployment Force, said in a recent interview that "it would be erroneous" to portray the exercise, called "Bright Star," as such a demonstration.

Warner said that, because of a shortage of strategic airlift and sealift, the United States will not be able to project until about 1985 a force big enough to confront a serious Soviet threat to the Middle East-Persian Gulf area.

"We need to be able to project at least 2 1/2 divisions," Warner said. "As things stand, we can't do this now in a timely fashion."

At the same time, Warner said that the movement of the infantry battalion, its helicopters and weapons to Egypt and next week's maneuvers with Egyptian forces "is a signal that we can project at least a small force and that we are serious about projecting a capability."

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices showed another broad loss today in the wake of Thursday's selloff.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, off 17.75 Thursday, dropped another 1.88 to 933.53 by noon.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market rose sharply Wednesday in an initial wave of enthusiasm over Ronald Reagan's landslide victory in the presidential election.

But the rally was quickly cut short Thursday when most of the nation's large banks raised their prime lending rates from 14 1/2 to 15 percent.

In today's economic news, the government reported that producer prices of finished goods rose at a 9.6 percent annual rate in October.

Precious-metals issues continued to tumble as the price of gold fell below the $600-an-ounce level in world markets.

Homestake Mining was down 2 1/2 at 72 1/2 in active trading; ASA rose 2 1/2 to 75, and Dome Mines dropped 3 1/2 to 10 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index lost .12 to 74.14. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.28 at 330.97.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 18.11 million shares at noon, down from 25.19 million at the same point Thursday.

Auto prices boost index

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wholesale prices jumped 0.8 percent in October, equal to a 10.6 percent compound annual rate, and the nation's unemployment figure edged up one notch to 7.6 percent, the government reported today.

October's jump in the Producer Price Index contrasted markedly with September's 0.2 percent dip. The increase was fueled by rising automobile prices and significant boosts in the cost of sugar, meat and other foods, the Labor Department said.

Higher prices for motor vehicles in the new model years accounted for half of the overall rise in the index during the month, the report said.

For the first 10 months of 1980, wholesale, or producer, prices have accelerated at a 12.4 percent annual pace, a rate very similar to the double digit mark of 1979 and further evidence of inflation's persistent nature despite the recent recession.

Wholesale prices had risen 1.5 percent in both July and August.

Unemployment, meanwhile, inched up 0.1 of a percentage point from 7.5 percent in September, the department said. But behind the nearly stable figure, there was significant movement. The unemployment rate for adult men declined over the month to 6.4 percent, while the rate for women rose sharply to 6.8 percent.

Unemployment among teen-agers rose to 18.4 percent last month following a decline in September. The number of unemployed workers, at about 8 million, returned to its August level following a September dip. Joblessness was up 1.7 million from October 1979, with adult men accounting for about 1 million of the over-the-year increase, the department said.

The factory work week rose, reflecting the nation's apparent emergence from the sharp but short recession that began late last winter.

On the inflation front, the Labor Department reported that wholesale prices at the finished goods level rose 0.8 percent, with half the jump caused by higher prices for cars and trucks.

Sharply rising food prices accounted for most of the rest of the advance.

The introduction of 1981 model vehicles in October followed large price decreases in September, when Detroit closed out its 1980 model year with across-the-board discounts to dealers.

That dip in September became an instant campaign issue in the presidential campaign, with Republican nominee Ronald Reagan accusing the Carter administration of "jimmying" the figures. The claim was strongly denied by government officials.

The Producer Price Index includes three categories: finished goods, which are ready for sale to consumers; intermediate items, which are semi-processed; and raw or crude materials, such as iron ore or grain.

In October, intermediate goods rose 0.9 percent, compared with 0.6 percent the month before. Raw material costs climbed a steep 1.9 percent after rising 1.3 percent in September and about 6 percent in both months before that, the department said.

All of the figures are adjusted for seasonal variations.

Janet Norwood, commissioner of Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, cautioned that the sharp price increases in semi-finished and basic materials "could be troubling" if they continue.

"Price movements in these products should be watched carefully in the coming months," she said.

At the same time, she said, the data for October "show some small improvement," particularly in the construction and manufacturing industries, which were hit hard by the recession.

When the effect of car prices is subtracted from other finished goods, wholesale prices rose only about 0.4 percent last month, about a 5 percent annual rate.

"That's sort of encouraging," said Craig Howell, a Labor Department economist. However, he had a more pessimistic message for the months ahead because of the sharp advance in sugar and other food prices as well as costs for such intermediate goods as steel, scrap metal, textiles and paper.

"This will put pressure on consumers in coming months," Howell said. "On the food front, rising sugar prices (which climbed 23 percent) will have a big impact. Sugar pops up in 100 other places."

Price changes at the producer level often are reflected at the consumer level within a few weeks or months.

The department said prices for all consumer foods moved up 0.5 percent over the month. After declining in September, wholesale prices for beef, veal and pork rose moderately. Prices also jumped for dairy products, bakery goods, processed poultry, eggs, flour and milled rice.

However, fresh fruit and vegetable prices were sharply lower, as were the cost of fish and roasted coffee.

Energy goods at the finished level declined 0.4 percent, the same as in September. From April through October, these prices have edged down at an annual 2 percent clip, in dramatic contrast to the 72 percent increase during the preceding six months.

Gasoline prices in October moved down a modest 0.2 percent, marking the fifth consecutive monthly decline.

Before seasonal adjustment, the Producer Price Index stood at 252.2 in October. That means that a marketbasket of items that cost $100 in the 1967 base period cost $252.20 last month.

Based on this index, consumer food prices have increased 8.5 percent from October 1979 to last month; energy prices climbed 30 percent; and capital equipment, which are used to produce other items, rose by 11.4 percent.

In economic developments Thursday: —The nation's banks raised their prime lending rate by one full percentage point to 15.5 percent in the biggest one-day increase in more than a year.

The prime peaked at 20 percent last April, but dropped to as low as 10.75 percent at some banks this summer.

Several top economic forecasters said they are optimistic about Reagan's ascension to the White House, but warned that he will not be able to cure rampant inflation and weak economy overnight.

Any success will take time, they said, adding that inflation could actually accelerate before beginning any long-term descent.

When the effect of car prices is subtracted from other finished goods, wholesale prices rose only about 0.4 percent last month, about a 5 percent annual rate.

"That's sort of encouraging," said Craig Howell, a Labor Department economist. However, he had a more pessimistic message for the months ahead because of the sharp advance in sugar and other food prices as well as costs for such intermediate goods as steel, scrap metal, textiles and paper.

"This will put pressure on consumers in coming months," Howell said. "On the food front, rising sugar prices (which climbed 23 percent) will have a big impact. Sugar pops up in 100 other places."

Price changes at the producer level often are reflected at the consumer level within a few weeks or months.

The department said prices for all consumer foods moved up 0.5 percent over the month. After declining in September, wholesale prices for beef, veal and pork rose moderately. Prices also jumped for dairy products, bakery goods, processed poultry, eggs, flour and milled rice.

However, fresh fruit and vegetable prices were sharply lower, as were the cost of fish and roasted coffee.

Energy goods at the finished level declined 0.4 percent, the same as in September. From April through October, these prices have edged down at an annual 2 percent clip, in dramatic contrast to the 72 percent increase during the preceding six months.

Gasoline prices in October moved down a modest 0.2 percent, marking the fifth consecutive monthly decline.

Before seasonal adjustment, the Producer Price Index stood at 252.2 in October. That means that a marketbasket of items that cost $100 in the 1967 base period cost $252.20 last month.

Based on this index, consumer food prices have increased 8.5 percent from October 1979 to last month; energy prices climbed 30 percent; and capital equipment, which are used to produce other items, rose by 11.4 percent.

In economic developments Thursday: —The nation's banks raised their prime lending rate by one full percentage point to 15.5 percent in the biggest one-day increase in more than a year.

The prime peaked at 20 percent last April, but dropped to as low as 10.75 percent at some banks this summer.

Several top economic forecasters said they are optimistic about Reagan's ascension to the White House, but warned that he will not be able to cure rampant inflation and weak economy overnight.

Any success will take time, they said, adding that inflation could actually accelerate before beginning any long-term descent.

On the inflation front, the Labor Department reported that wholesale prices at the finished goods level rose 0.8 percent, with half the jump caused by higher prices for cars and trucks.

Sharply rising food prices accounted for most of the rest of the advance.

The introduction of 1981 model vehicles in October followed large price decreases in September, when Detroit closed out its 1980 model year with across-the-board discounts to dealers.

That dip in September became an instant campaign issue in the presidential campaign, with Republican nominee Ronald Reagan accusing the Carter administration of "jimmying" the figures. The claim was strongly denied by government officials.

The Producer Price Index includes three categories: finished goods, which are ready for sale to consumers; intermediate items, which are semi-processed; and raw or crude materials, such as iron ore or grain.

In October, intermediate goods rose 0.9 percent, compared with 0.6 percent the month before. Raw material costs climbed a steep 1.9 percent after rising 1.3 percent in September and about 6 percent in both months before that, the department said.

All of the figures are adjusted for seasonal variations.

Janet Norwood, commissioner of Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, cautioned that the sharp price increases in semi-finished and basic materials "could be troubling" if they continue.

"Price movements in these products should be watched carefully in the coming months," she said.

At the same time, she said, the data for October "show some small improvement," particularly in the construction and manufacturing industries, which were hit hard by the recession.

Chrysler closing plants

DETROIT (AP) — While long-term layoffs of domestic autoworkers dropped for the 14th week, Chrysler Corp. announced it will close three plants, including a small-car plant that worked steadily through the current slump.

Next week's closure, designed to hold down inventory, will be the first at the subcompact plant in Belvidere, Ill. since production of Plymouth Horizon and Dodge Omni cars started there in November 1977.

According to reports from the five major producers Thursday, open-ended layoffs in the industry total 182,765, down from 190,855 last week.

Meanwhile, car production this week should rise 1.1 percent to 156,233 from last week's 154,504, the trade publication Ward's Automotive Reports said.

That would be 14 percent below output in the same week last year, 180,629.

Chrysler is the only company to close assembly plants next week. The three — which employ 10,000 workers — are the big-car plant in Detroit, the light truck plant in Warren, Mich., and the Belvidere plant.

Another 1,200 workers will be added to the indefinite layoff list, now unchanged from last week at 33,300, when work resumes on one shift in Warren on Nov. 17. The second shift had been restored in June when the Fenton, Mo., truck plant was closed for good.

General Motors Corp. said its indefinite layoffs had fallen to 96,000 from 102,000 last week. GM has no temporary layoffs.

Ford Motor Co. said its indefinite furloughs had fallen to 50,980 from 52,980. Ford will have no temporary furloughs.

American Motors Corp.'s open-ended layoffs dipped to 2,475 from 2,575 as the company rehired 100 employees at Kenosha, Wis. AMC planned no temporary layoffs this week or next.

Volkswagen of America has no layoffs.

Truck sales of all manufacturers have been hurt far more than cars in the current slump. Chrysler's domestic truck models have fallen 46 percent so far this year against a 32 percent decline for its cars. GM, however, is recalling 300 workers to a medium-duty plant to handle increased orders later this month.

Omni-Horizon was an immediate hit when it first appeared, and the car was hard to buy after the gasoline crisis of spring 1979. Production was limited to 300,000 a year, the number of engines Volkswagen supplied under contract.

However, in October sales of Omnis and Horizons fell 16 percent from what they were in October 1979, and the supply on hand is now about 95 days' worth, little changed in the past month. Automakers generally like a 60-day supply.

FBI beginning Atlanta probe

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta police are beginning to probe if any or all of the cases are related.

At a news conference Thursday, Brown discounted speculation that the use of outside detectives indicated a lack of confidence in his police department.

"I would match our police bureau with any in the country," he said. "I have 1,000 plus 1 percent confidence in our investigators. We will continue to rely on them as our primary source."

Brown said the assistance of the five detectives was arranged through the Police Executive Research Forum, a Washington-based organization of chief executives of city, county and state police agencies.

"To our knowledge, this is the first time a police agency has tapped other police agencies" for assistance, Brown said.

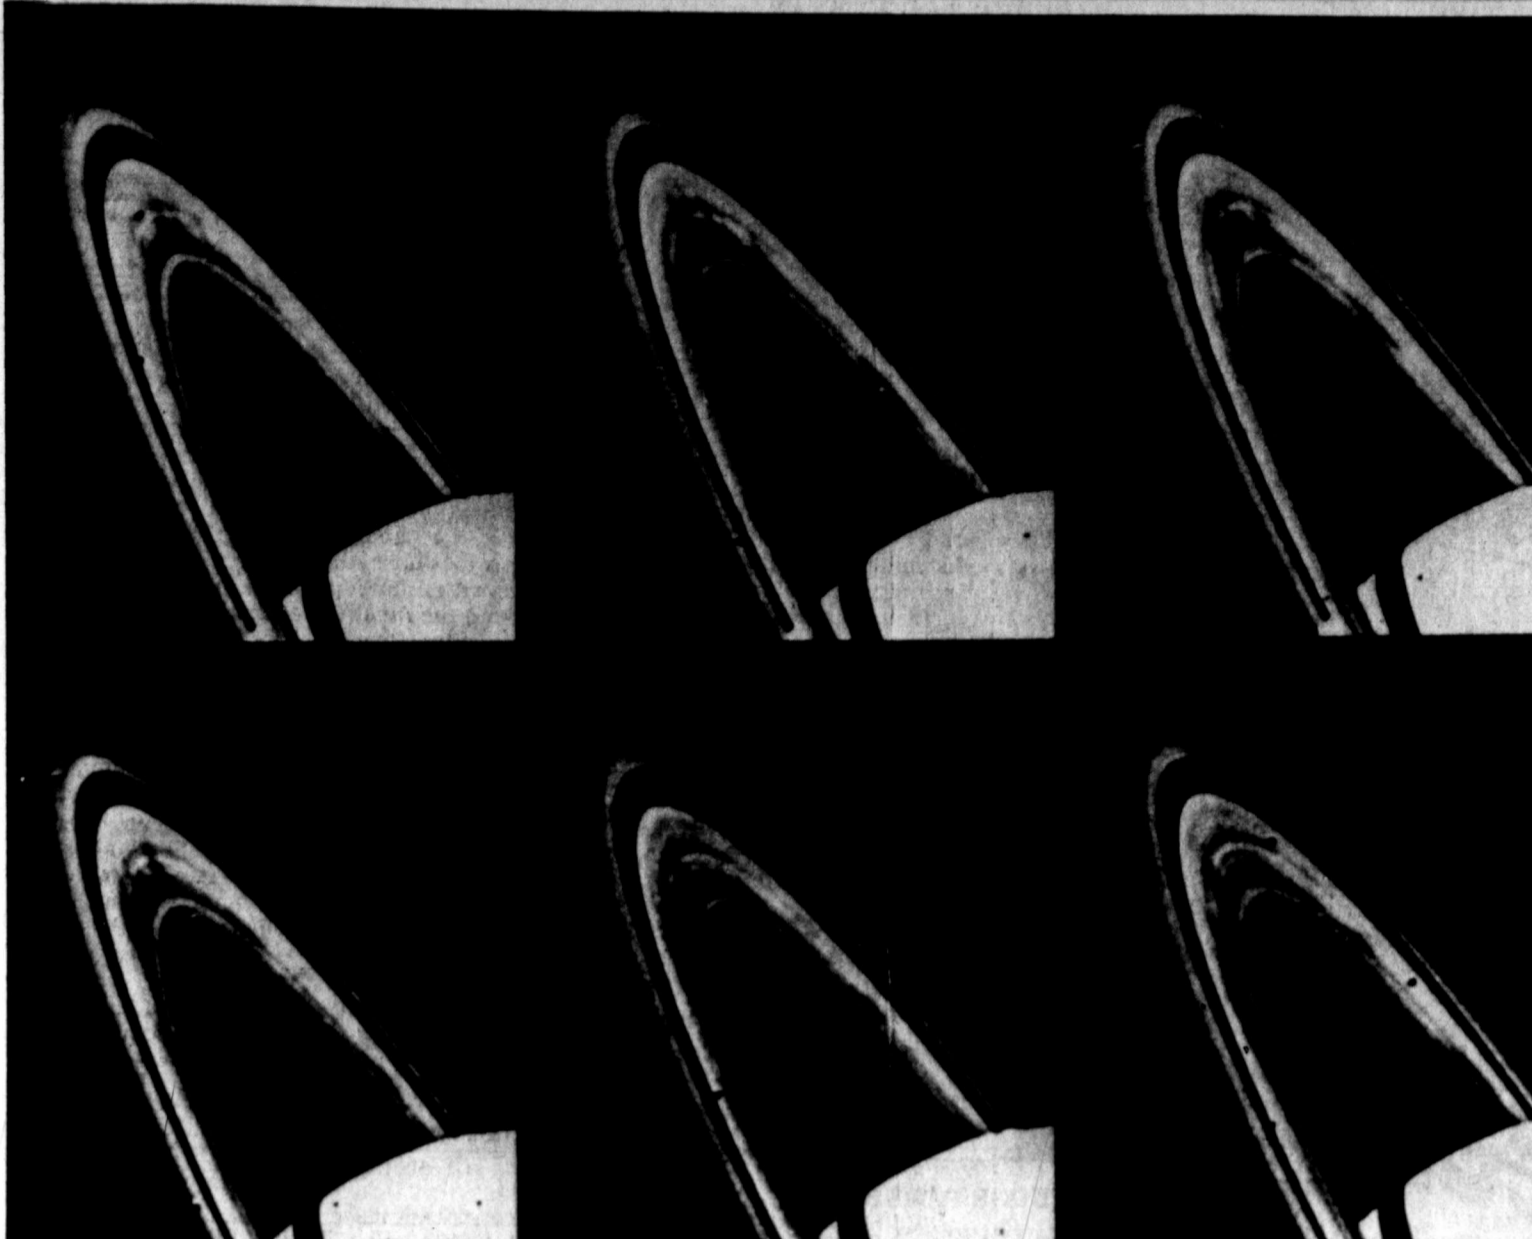

The public safety commissioner said the special task force decided to seek the help of the five detectives in an effort "to see that we leave no stone unturned."

Meanwhile, city police prepared to welcome an elite group of the nation's most successful police detectives.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown said the detectives — from Los Angeles, Oakland, Calif., New York, Detroit and Stamford, Conn. — will arrive here Monday to act as consultants to the investigation.

The special 35-member police task force has been working around the clock to solve the slayings and disappearances, which began in the summer of 1979.

The investigation, which has included door-to-door canvassing in neighborhoods where the children lived, has turned up little evidence, and police say they have not been able to deter-

In this sequence of six pictures, dark spokelike features in Saturn's rings are seen revolving around the planet with the rings' orbital motion. The images were taken in sequence (from upper left to lower right) approximately every 15 minutes at a distance of about 14.9 million miles by NASA's Voyager 1 spacecraft on Oct. 25, 1980. Surprises in Saturn's rings

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Voyager 1 spaceship, just days from a close encounter with Saturn, is tantalizing earthbound scientists with photographs revealing dozens of previously undetected ringlets within the giant planet's shimmering rings.

The latest photographs from the robot laboratory — a billion miles from home and still 4½ million miles from the sixth planet — show rings within rings, ringlets of particles in what were thought to be empty spaces between rings and more bands of colored planetary clouds than current theories anticipated.

Most puzzling to astronomers are the fingers of darkness, which first appeared in photographs two weeks ago, reaching across the rings.

"With any scientific investigation of this magnitude, (many of) our longstanding theories — those cherished interpretations of the universe around us — are going to become casualties," Bradford Smith, head of Voyager's photography team, predicted Thursday.

Speaking at a Jet Propulsion Laboratory news conference, he said: "Our pre-Voyager knowledge of Saturn is poor. Much of what we are seeing and will see is new, (so) I think we can predict that much of what we thought we understood will be found to be wrong."

The spaceship will come closest to Saturn on Wednesday, when it will soar within 80,000 miles of the cloudtops.

After 38 months in space, the ship and its payload of scientific instruments are generally in good condition, said project manager Raymond Heacock. And no major problems are expected as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration mission approaches its climax.

Voyager pictures taken Monday showed a complex structure within the rings, which are believed to be frozen particles like dirty snowballs that reflect light and therefore appear to shimmer.

Scientists believed there were six rings, barely three miles wide but stretching nearly 300,000 miles from the planet, with dark divisions that were considered empty gaps.

But Monday's photographs have changed that concept, said Smith, a University of Arizona astronomer.

Voyager 1 showed "many, many individual ringlets — literally dozens, perhaps hundreds of these structures" spreading like ripples through the rings. And at least one of the gaps contains not less than four bright ringlets of particles.

But "the most baffling surprise that we have come up with yet" is the discovery of dark spokes or fingers reaching thousands of miles across the brightest parts of the rings, he said.

The dark structures form, remain intact three hours or more and then dissipate and form again.

"We don't even know whether they are dark because that's the nature of the particles or whether they're dark because there are simply fewer particles there (to reflect sunlight)," Smith said.

Photographs of the surface of the planet — mostly a ball of hydrogen gas with 815 times the volume of Earth — also are producing surprises.

Like Jupiter, Saturn has only clouds for a surface but "has none of the psychedelic features" that Voyager photographs revealed in Jupiter's atmosphere. "In fact, it looks rather bland," Smith said.

Earth-based telescopes and the less-sophisticated Pioneer spacecraft that visited Saturn in 1979 showed almost no surface features.

Now, Smith said, "we find that the features are there but they're at low contrast, (probably because of) some sort of overlying haze" above the clouds.

In fact, there "is an enormous number of (dark) belts and (light) zones" that circle the planet. "I counted something like two dozen of these alternating belts and zones...in just the southern hemisphere alone," he said.

Texan indicted on slavery charges

HOUSTON (AP) — A seafood company owner has been indicted on federal peonage and slavery charges after a Brownsville man complained that his brother was smuggled here from Mexico and held captive at an oyster processing plant. Assistant U.S. Attorney Hayes Jenkins said the charges against Benjamin Harrison Nelson were "very, very rare."

Nelson, 41, was indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday on two peonage charges, two counts of kidnapping with intent to hold a slave, and aiding in the transportation of an illegal alien. He owns Jeri's Seafood Inc., of Smith Point on Galveston Bay.

In an affidavit filed with INS, the chauffeur said his brother had left the plant once was brought back at gunpoint.

Nelson could be sentenced to a maximum of 25 years in prison and fined $22,000. He could not be reached for comment Thursday night.

Houston carpenter Nicolas Martinez-Delgado, 47, was charged with transporting the aliens to Nelson. Earlier charges against Nelson's son, Walter Neal, 17, were dropped.

Mail could be delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service says changes in airline schedules may force it to relax speedy-mail-delivery standards — but not anytime soon.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger told the service's board Thursday that schedule changes since the standards were adopted in 1972 may force alterations in the guidelines also.

The standards are that a letter going up to 50 miles should be delivered the day after it is mailed. A letter going up to 600 miles should be delivered in two days and one going farther should get there in three days. The goal has been to meet the standards 95 percent of the time.

The standards are met consistently for letters carried short distances by truck, but not for letters sent longer distances by air.

After the standards were established, the Postal Service showed improvement in meeting them. But the trend toward improvement has changed in recent years and Bolger said changes in airline schedules are responsible.

Because of sharply higher fuel costs and industry deregulation, airlines have reduced or eliminated flights to many cities.

"If this trend continues, we may have to change our service standards," Bolger said.

He told the board: "Our last resort is to lower our standards. But we are looking at alternatives. ... If we can't reach the goals because of changes in the transportation situation, we should make them more realistic," he said.

A spokesman, who requested anonymity, said after the meeting: "What we are trying to do in the two-day and three-day areas can't be done. That is why the standards might change."

But he said any change in the standards would not come soon.

Prisoners pardoned

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — President Julius Nyerere pardoned 1,919 prisoners to mark the start of his fifth successive term Wednesday, the Home Ministry announced.

Those freed included 21 pregnant women, 64 breast-feeding mothers and prisoners with records of good behavior who had less than a year left to serve.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

South, declarer at six hearts, presented his opponents with a trick that he did not have to lose. But the trick was "twice blessed," for it returned 100 percent interest immediately.

Once North jump raised hearts, South's hand became enormous. He started to cuebid, since he wanted to convey to his partner that a grand slam was laydown if North had both red kings and the heart and club aces.

When North failed to cuebid these cards, South contented himself with six hearts.

West led the king of clubs, and when dummy appeared, it seemed that even a small slam was in jeopardy. South had no losers except in the diamond suit, but he might easily lose two tricks there.

Looking at all four hands, it is obvious that the diamond finesse is doomed to fail. Had declarer relied on that chance alone, he would have been defeated. Fortunately, his technical skill was equal to the task he had set for himself.

Declarer won the opening lead in dummy and immediately ruffed a club with the nine of trumps. After drawing the outstanding trumps in two rounds, declarer cashed the ace and king of spades. Dummy was re-entered with a trump and the ten of spades was led. When East followed with a low spade, declarer sluffed his three diamonds!

West was rather surprised to find himself winning a spade trick, but he was not exactly pleased with the unpleasant choice of alternatives he now faced. If he led a diamond, it would be in the jaws of declarer's ace-queen tenace. If he exited with a black card, declarer would ruff in dummy while discarding the queen of diamonds from his hand. Either way, the defenders would score only a spade trick.

What if East produced an honor on the third round of spades? Declarer would ruff, and would have to fall back on the diamond finesse for his slam. However, he would be no worse off than when he started.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cocktail set is chortling. Real estate agents are making new lists. And resumes are flying as the federal city prepares for a Ronald Reagan presidency.

From the salons of Georgetown to the corridors of Capitol Hill, Washington's power brokers and its bureaucrats are trying to assess the meaning of the Republican landslide that captured the White House and the Senate as well.

For some, the change means being out of work. For others, months or years of work on projects, regulations or legislation will grind to a halt.

And for countless Republicans who have been sidelined during four years of a Democratic presidency and Congress, Reagan's election means another courtship with the political and social circles that run this company town.

"You'll see a lot of cocktail parties," said one Washington insider. "That's how all those corporate types do business. The Carter people made fun of these parties and made a point of never attending them. But that's where contacts are made — and how many contacts did Carter's team have?"

A Capitol Hill real estate agent, who asked not to be identified, said he already had drawn up lists of congressmen most likely to sell and hoped to make a killing on the new Congress.

Elsewhere, in the various departments and agencies where policies are made and regulations enforced, the realization of the Democrats' defeat was still setting in.

"I'm numb," said Jody Bernstein, general counsel at the Department of Health and Human Services. "I'm still trying to sort it out. I was surprised at the extent of the victory. I was expecting a close election, a real squeaker, but I was shocked at the losses in the Senate."

At the State Department, one high-ranking official said Reagan should be given a chance.

"These have not been the two most euphoric days of my life," said the official, a liberal lawyer who would not speak for attribution. "But I don't think we should make assumptions of what he'll do with this unruly world. We shouldn't lock them in. They may

Baby named 'Reagan Bush'

DALLAS (AP) — He may never be president. He may not even get elected to the student council.

But four-day old Reagan Bush will have one of those names that's hard to forget.

"We felt it was a unique opportunity to name him after two great Americans," Scott Bush said.

Born 15 minutes before election day at a Dallas hospital, little Reagan kept his mother from voting, but not his dad.

The proud father made it to the polls and said he voted, of course, for Reagan and Bush.

Wary Washington wondering about effects of new Republican regime

WASHINGTON (AP) — The civil rights conviction of two former FBI officials who ordered warrantless break-ins in the search for left-wing terrorists in the early 1970s may have little effect on today's FBI.

Edward S. Miller, convicted Thursday along with W. Mark Felt, said the decision will not harm the FBI, which he called still a "great and grand organization."

An FBI spokesman said agents now have specific guidelines in such cases.

Felt and Miller, who rose through the ranks under the late J. Edgar Hoover, were the highest-ranking FBI officials ever to be convicted of a crime. The U.S. District Court jury found them guilty of conspiracy to violate the civil rights of friends and relatives of members of the radical Weather Underground by approving illegal searches at their homes in 1972 and 1973. Felt was once the bureau's No. 2 man and Miller the chief of its intelligence division. They could face up to 10 years in prison and $10,000 in fines if the convictions are upheld upon appeal.

Miller told reporters that FBI officials today should not have to go through his ordeal because "we didn't have the same kind of guidance that today's FBI has."

FBI spokesman John Morrison confirmed that the bureau has specific written guidelines from the attorney general on the legality of investigative techniques. There also is a presidential directive permitting warrantless break-ins in certain foreign intelligence cases, he said.

In addition, a document introduced at the trial shows the FBI has proposed that a special court established to approve government wiretaps also rule on warrantless break-in requests. The court has not decided whether it has authority to do so, and legislation to give it that power has yet to pass Congress.

Felt and Miller admitted approving the break-ins but said they were authorized by Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III, who succeeded Hoover.

Gray, who was indicted with Felt and Miller but faces a separate trial, refused to comment on the verdict.

Felt told reporters he and Miller acted "in the best interests of the country," but the Justice Department said the warrantless break-ins violated the Fourth Amendment protection against unreasonable searches.

"I spent my entire adult life working for the government and I always tried to do what I thought was right and what was in the best interest of the country," Felt said. "The jury didn't agree with me."

Miller added, "We tried to do our job for people, and I think we did a good job. We did the job the only way the job could be done."

Stronger reaction came from Norman Philcox, national president of the Society of Former Special Agents of the FBI.

Speaking from Amherst, N.H., Philcox said FBI agents are "scared to death to conduct investigations because they are afraid that five or 10 years later they may be charged with some technical violations of a crime in connection with their investigation."

Miners trapped by explosion

ROBINSON, W. Va. (AP) — An explosion ripped through a Boone County coal mine this morning, apparently trapping five miners, authorities said.

Spokesmen for the Boone County Sheriff's Department and state police said the explosion occurred about 6:45 a.m. at Westmoreland Coal Co.'s Ferrell Mine in Robinson, a small unincorporated community near the Logan County border in southern West Virginia.

The sheriff's department reported that five men were apparently trapped, and attributed its information to Westmoreland. Coal company officials could not immediately be reached for confirmation.

Authorities said smoke was pouring from the mine shaft and that Westmoreland had called in its own rescue squad.

Emergency workers at the scene were trying to determine the extent of the damage, authorities said.

Jurors request legal clarification

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Deliberations in the trial of five reputed underworld figures went into the fourth day today, as jurors grappled with a relatively new organized crime law.

The jurors sent notes to U.S. District Judge Terry Hatter on Thursday, saying they needed help understanding conspiracy charges against the five defendants.

The seven women and five men have also asked to hear again portions of testimony by the government's star witness about the gangland slaying of San Diego underworld figure Frank "The Bomb" Bompensiero.

The five defendants are charged with four counts each — racketeering, conspiracy, extortion and obstruction of justice — stemming from alleged attempts to extort money from pornographers and bookmakers in the Los Angeles area and the slaying of Bompensiero.

Just before they retired for the evening Thursday, the jury sent a note Hatter saying they want to review testimony by Aladena "Jimmy the Weasel" Fratianno concerning a series of alleged meetings at the home of Palm Springs millionaire Tommy Marson. The jurors also wanted to know on what dates the FBI said those meetings took place.

Fratianno, a confessed Mafia executioner who turned informer, claimed it was at these meetings that two defendants — Dominic Phillip Brooklier and Samuel Orlando Sciortino — plotted the killing of Bompensiero, who informed for the FBI.

Brooklier and Sciortino, who say they are innocent, claim they never visited Marson's house until a month after Bompensiero was gunned down on Feb. 10, 1977.

An FBI surveillance team photographed Sciortino visiting the Marson home, but that was in March 1977.

The jury's earlier request Thursday asking for an explanation of the racketeering and conspiracy charges brought attorneys rushing to the court.

The note asked, "Can you please explain in layman's terms the law of conspiracy on counts one and two?"

The first two counts of the indictment, charging racketeering and conspiracy, are so-called

Receptionist receives hard shell modeling course

JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer

They said she was beautiful, promised her the heavens and offered a contract to make her a star: A contract for modeling classes. The price? A few hundred dollars.

But this woman, who asked to be identified only as Anne, weighs 200 pounds. She is also savvy about the world of models. She works as a receptionist for a Manhattan modeling agency.

Anne was shopping for a self-improvement course—to learn makeup, poise, style. They gave her the hard sell instead.

"One school just raved about me," she recalled. "They said, 'You have terrific legs and beautiful hair, and if you'd lose 15 pounds and take our modeling course, you could work as a model.' I knew that was a lot of baloney, but I wonder how many people do."

Sad to say, many don't. Thousands of young women—and men—succumb to the allure of the mannequin mart, spending millions for courses that offer little hope of modeling success, experts say.

Those who aspire to the dazzle of modeling are "a very young, vulnerable group," said James Kadamus, chief of New York's vocational education regulatory agency. The average modeling student is between 16 and 20 years old, he said.

With appeals to vanity—and sometimes hollow promises of modeling glamour and wealth—these teenagers are often recruited for a few weeks of lessons costing $300 to $1,200 or more.

"Some schools operate like fast-food franchises—they get the kids in, get their money, and get them out," said Mark Sconce, co-director of the Nancy Bounds School in Omaha, Neb.

"The good schools don't operate like that. We're tired of being tarred with the same brush as these other schools which make such a botch of it," he added.

"Some of the schools tend to come on as if everyone's going to be on the cover of Vogue," said John Peterson, chief of private post-secondary education in California. "They tend to puff up the chances of employment in modeling. They're very smooth."

New York and California are among 27 states that regulate modeling schools. The Federal Trade Commission is devising a national rule for private vocational and trade schools aimed at ending abuses such as hard-sell techniques and inflated placement and earnings claims.

The New York Education Department recently charged the Barbizon School in Buffalo with a number of violations, including use of unlicensed teachers and high-pressure sales tactics. Kadamus says the charges reflect problems typical of the industry.

However, Charles Nemes, owner of the Buffalo school, says the alleged violations occurred before he purchased the school. He says he plans to prove to the state that he'll run the school differently.

Nationwide, only four modeling programs out of about 500 are accredited by the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools. Most don't offer the minimum six-month course and could not meet NATTS job placement standards.

Along with modeling training, most schools offer self-improvement classes, which can be useful. Banks send tellers to help them deal with the public; lawyers enroll to improve their courtroom manner.

"Ninety-nine percent of the girls who come to my school want to learn how to walk, how to make themselves up," said Nancy Bounds.

The Plaza 3 school in Phoenix produces 3,000 graduates a year. About 85 percent enroll for self-improvement, says owner Helen Rogers.

But where the aim of schooling is modeling careers, the record is bleak, say state regulators and modeling agents.

Most states don't require modeling schools to report their placement records. New York does. "Our statistics show that very few of the people who go through modeling schools are going to get a job as a model," said Kadamus.

Of 2,500 students enrolled in 17 New York schools in 1978-79, just 20 percent got a job in the six months after graduation. "But some of them may have just worked once," Kadamus said.

And few of those who do get work modeling can earn a living wage: In Phoenix, just five of the 50 models working for the Plaza 3 agency are able to work full-time, says talent chief Holly Eller. Those top five models earn between $8,000 and $15,000 a year.

Murals cover security gate

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a treasure trove of art along one of New York City's busiest thoroughfares, totally hidden from the daylight visitor.

At dusk and the end of the business day, however, merchants close protective metal gates down over their storefronts, revealing huge murals that bring new life and color to what was once a drab night scene along Harlem's 125th street, transforming ominous barriers against crime into works of art.

The man behind this ambitious urban beautification effort is a Panama-born artist, Franco Gaskins, whose paintings are also on view in the more traditional surroundings of downtown art galleries.

For the past 18 months, Gaskins has been changing the face of this famous street with gallons of acrylic paint and lots of imagination.

It all began when the owner of a fashion boutique, tired of facing a sea of graffiti on his iron security gate every morning, called in Gaskins to do something about it.

While the owner simply wanted a fresh paint job—a task the painter admits he wasn't too proud to undertake—the artist in Gaskins said, "Why not do something more creative?"

"My first inclination was to paint a snow scene on the gate," Gaskins remembers. "But then I thought, why not a spring landscape that would bring a little warmth to one of our typical Harlem winters?"

To the owner's surprise and ultimate delight, he painted a pastoral scene, replacing garish spray-paint graffiti so typical of the New York scene. The graffiti have never returned.

"My phone rang the next day—from another merchant wanting a painting on his gate—and it hasn't stopped ringing since," Gaskins recalls.

After 35 or so gates, Gaskins says, landscapes remain the easiest to do. The average 10-by-10-foot gates take approximately four or five days to complete when work can be done only before or after business hours. But on a Sunday, when businesses are generally closed, Gaskins can complete one of his "gate paintings" in one day.

Viewing one of his murals from a distance, the impact is stunning. A close-up examination reveals the difficulties the artist must overcome in transferring his ideas, not onto canvases, but rather onto an expanse of accordion-like metal where no part of the surface is completely flat.

First, months and sometimes years of urban dirt and grime must be removed from the gates, a task which Gaskins and his assistants accomplish with a household detergent.

Following this cleaning process Gaskins applies an overall background wash in a color dictated by the theme he has in mind. After sketching in the details with charcoal, the real work begins. Hills, clouds, valleys, trees, buildings, monuments, geometrics and figures emerge through deftly applied acrylic paint.

"I've always used acrylics," Gaskins says. "It dries fast, it's more flexible than oil paint and the colors last forever."

With a touch of whimsy he can usually incorporate some element into a mural that identifies it with the type of business behind the gate. A setting sun in one, for example, is actually a phonograph record establishing that the business inside is a stereo shop. A colorful rainbow sweeping across another work ends in a painter's brush, meaning, of course, there's a paint store behind the shutters.

Gaskins' tour de force is three gigantic murals commissioned by the F. W. Woolworth Co. for the company's large 125th street unit.

One vast panel depicts the black man's heritage and shows a proud African king and his subjects before imposing monoliths and temples. Another, "Harmony Among the Races," features people representing the races of mankind. In his third mural, Gaskins returns to his landscape theme.

Gaskins says he will not be happy until he's painted one full block of 125th street completely.

"On every gate that comes down at night I want people to see a Gaskins mural. Merchants are becoming 'gate conscious' all along the street," he says with pride. "In a most positive sense it's like 'keeping up with the Joneses,' where if one store owner has a Gaskins mural the merchant next door wants one too."

As a testimony to community pride, not one mural has been marred with graffiti. "I'd like the whole impression to become a tourist attraction in New York," Gaskins says.

Delay rejected in suits against Iranian assets

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge has rejected a government request that 96 suits against Iranian assets in this country be delayed, saying the Carter administration has the power under executive order to do what it is asking the court to do.

The Iranian assets are a crucial factor in the effort to reach an agreement with the Iranian government to get the 52 American hostages freed.

But several American banks and companies have obtained attachments against the Iranian funds as the first move in seeking recovery of billions of dollars allegedly lost when the new revolutionary regime in Iran defaulted on loans and contracts and nationalized foreign-held property in Iran.

U.S. District Judge Kevin Duffy on Wednesday rejected a government motion seeking the right to intervene in the lawsuits and appeal his order of Sept. 26, upholding attachments against the Iranian assets granted by other judges.

Duffy at that time sent the various cases back to the original judges for separate trials of the claims. He said Wednesday that if all the government wants is delay, there is no need to intervene in the lawsuits.

5-5A hostilities head into home stretch

Reb infantry faces Eagles' aerial might

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

Midland Lee's ground crunching infantry attack will take to the Memorial Stadium turf at 8 p.m. today, seeking to ward off a District 5-5A football challenge from the dangerous and high scoring Abilene High Eagles.

There is no district championship in the offering for either team, but from a fan standpoint, this one could ignite enough fireworks to keep all happy.

Lee's Calvin Riggs, who has 759 yards through the first eight games, will be out to pad his margin for the district rushing lead. Riggs, the thunderous 190-pound junior fullback, has been the bread and butter of the Rebel fortunes this season. He owns a 29-yard rushing lead over Big Spring's Bobby Earl Williams, a margin so slim that Riggs' will have to push in his last two games this year.

AND THE Eagles bring to town highly touted quarterback Loyal Proffitt, a three-year starter at AHS who has thrown for 828 yards and five touchdowns to rank second in the league passing statistics behind Abilene Cooper's Lanny Dycus.

That pair should give emotional returns to all who view this outing.

"Proffitt has dealt Lee some real miseries in the last two years, and I think he is a great quarterback," Lee coach Spike Dykes stated this week.

"Abilene has been up and down, hot and cold this year, but they have a tremendous offense and they can score a lot of points. Midland High is the only team to hold them to three points this year. The Eagles scored twice against Permian, and they have been the only team to score against them this year."

And if Dykes is worried about the possible air pollution generated by Proffitt's fallout bombs, AHS boss Louie Spinks has had a few sleepless nights thinking of Lee's awesome ground game.

"Calvin Riggs is the best runner in the league and he is running behind the best offensive line in the league. Lee is big and very physical. And those two guards (Keith) Brown and (Irl) Conally should be against the law against our small kids. Those two can be devastating."

Washington sets shooting record in 116-95 win

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Bullets set an all-time team record Thursday night, sinking 64 percent of their shots en route to a 116-95 romp over the Dallas Mavericks.

And star forward Elvin Hayes says he knows why the Bullets are suddenly clicking.

"When we take the ball inside, it opens up everything else," said Hayes after the victory, the Bullets' second in a row. "Once their guards started sagging in on us, our guards were getting the wide-open shots."

"We're starting to run our offense right," added Hayes, who sank 10 of 17 from the floor and finished with a game-high 26 points. He also pulled down 12 rebounds.

Rookie Wes Matthews sank 10 of 12 shots and Kevin Grevey, nine of 15, to finish with 24 and 19 points respectively. And Wes Unseld made eight of nine shots, hauled down 10 rebounds and scored a season-high 17 points.

Grevey got 13 of his points in a third-period surge in which the Bullets broke open what had been a close game. The Bullets outscored the Mavericks 38-23 to take an 88-67 lead into the final period.

In the only other National Basketball Association contest Thursday night, Utah slammed Cleveland 112-96.

It was the same old story for Utah, which won't ever tire of the plot: Adrian Dantley and Darrell Griffith scoring like crazy.

That pair combined for 59 points as the Jazz improved their record to 9-5 and the Cavaliers dropped to 4-12.

Baby dumped in Rangers' office

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A woman who dumped her baby in the Texas Rangers' office, frustrated by her paternity suit against a Ranger player, says team officials made the player change his mind about accepting custody of the boy.

The woman, who has asked not to be identified, said Thursday that she and shortstop Nelson Norman agreed he would take custody of the child after his birth, but that club attorneys dissuaded him.

Rangers officials have denied her charges as "absolutely erroneous," saying that involving themselves in a paternity suit would be a conflict of interest. However, Ranger attorneys said they did offer to recommend an attorney to Nelson.

The 8-month-old boy was abandoned in the baseball's teams offices by the woman who claimed the infant was Norman's illegitimate son. She sat the child on a couch, announced her intention of abandoning it and left.

The woman's attorney, Steve Porter of Dallas, said her actions were the result of her frustration "because Nelson is in the Dominican Republic and she is here and it's hard for the proceedings to move along."

Red Wings take 3-2 victory over Canadiens

By The Associated Press
Ted Lindsay didn't make many friends on the ice when he was carving out a Hall of Fame career as a player. Yet, as a coach, he's got lots of supporters — his players.

Not that the Detroit Red Wings have given Lindsay much support with their performances on the ice. Because of that, Lindsay was being primed for the unemployment line after a month behind the bench — he served as the Wings' general manager for the last three years.

So his charges took stock Thursday, then went out and played their best game of the season to knock off the struggling Montreal Canadiens 3-2.

Flyers 8, Kings 2
The Flyers extended their unbeaten streak to nine games while ending Los Angeles' non-losing skein at 10 games. Rick MacLeish scored three goals, Bill Barber had two and Bob Dailey had three assists in the rout, which boosted the Flyers to a 9-3-2 record. They haven't lost since Oct. 18.

The Kings' Charlie Simmer got his league-leading 15th goal and has scored a point in each of the team's 13 games. It was the first loss for LA since Oct. 14 and only their second defeat of the year.

Islanders 4, Bruins 2
Boston continued to struggle as Mike Bossy scored twice on power plays for the Islanders and rookie goalie Roland Melanson held the Bruins at bay. Boston, which got a pair of power-play goals from rookie Steve Kasper, hasn't won since Oct. 12 and has just one tie to show for its last nine games.

Rockies 3, Whalers 3
A brawl that resulted in 166 penalty minutes marred an otherwise tight game in which Ron Delorme scored twice for Colorado and Blaine Stoughton had a pair of tallies for Hartford.

Mojo, OHS are nearing title game

Odessa Permian and Odessa High square off with San Angelo Central and Big Spring, respectively tonight in District 5-5A action while Lee entertains Abilene and Midland travels to Abilene for a date with rugged Cooper.

Permian and OHS are nearing their big shootout for the 5-5A championship and a berth in the state playoffs in three weeks.

Mojo sports an 8-0 record and is 5-0 in league play while OHS is 7-1 on the year and 4-1 in 5-5A. Permian could lose to San Angelo and it wouldn't matter since the Bobcats are 0-8 on the year. The Bronchos need a win over the Steers to get their chance to play the cross-town Panthers for the title next weekend in W.T. Barrett Stadium.

Coach John Wilkins' Panthers have seven shutouts in eight games and one more shutout in the next two games would break the school record. The Black Cats also have 10 shutout wins in their last 11 going back to the final three games of last year.

OHS, meanwhile, has a lot of offense, but gives up a lot of points on defense.

Midland (5-3-0) faces (4-4-0) while Lee (4-3-1) takes on Cooper (6-1-1).

Lanny Dycus of Cooper and Loyal Proffitt of Abilene are the No. 1 and No. 2 passers in the league, so both the Bulldog and Rebel secondaries will get severe tests tonight.

Rangers sign pair

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers of the American League signed pitchers Charlie Hough and Ken Clay to multi-year contracts Thursday.

The knuckleballing Hough, who was 2-2 with a 3.96 earned run average, signed for four years and Clay, who was 2-3 with a 4.60 ERA, signed for two years, the Rangers announced.

Cowboys, Patriots picked to win

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

When the Pro Picker chews on chalk, he winds up gagging, so this week, let's look for some upsets.

Among the chart's underdogs are three teams who share or hold first place — Detroit, Cleveland and New England. Playing it boldly, the Picker likes that trio and two others, St. Louis and Kansas City, for Sunday upsets.

Last week's 11-3 straight up (5-9 with the points) left the season's log at 72-52-1 for those of you who care only about winners and losers, and 48-77 if you're silly enough to be concerned with margins of victory.

The picks:

Cardinals 24, Falcons 21
Sorry, but we're still not convinced about Atlanta. St. Louis almost knocked off Dallas last week and can be tough at home. Atlanta favored by 2 points.

Bills 30, Jets 14
The Jets are in disarray, limping with a load of injuries. Buffalo in a dogfight in the AFC East, can't let up now. Buffalo favored by 3½.

Raiders 20, Bengals 10
Jim Plunkett is the comeback of the year. He's got the Raiders tied for the AFC West lead and rolling. Oakland favored by 6½.

Browns 27, Colts 20
Cleveland is convinced this will be its year, at last. The letdown could have come last week against the Bears. It didn't, and maybe it won't. Baltimore favored by 3½.

Cowboys 24, Giants 7
Speaking of limping, look at the Giants. Blue Cross could cancel coverage if the injured reserve list gets any longer. Dallas favored by 10.

Chargers 24, Broncos 14
Denver's secondary has undergone some position shuffling because of injuries. That's music to Dan Fouts' ears. San Diego favored by 8½.

Lions 17, Vikings 14
A chance for Detroit to certify its claim as the best in the NFC Central. Minnesota favored by 1½.

Chiefs 24, Seahawks 14
Everybody knows Seattle gets claustrophobia in the Kingdom where the Seahawks have yet to win this season. Kansas City keeps the streak intact. Seattle favored by 3.

Rams 35, Dolphins 14
Vince Ferragamo tied a Los Angeles club record with five touchdown passes last week when the Rams gained 486 yards. Los Angeles favored by 10.

Eagles 30, Saints 14
Philadelphia has the NFL's best record with 8-1. New Orleans has the NFL's worst record, 0-9. Who do you think will win? Philadelphia favored by 9½.

Steelers 20, Bucs 13
No more fooling around for Pittsburgh. Injuries or not, the season is reaching its serious stage. Pittsburgh favored by 6.

Packers 21, 49ers 19
Green Bay is showing signs of life. Just ask the Steelers. Green Bay favored by 4.

Bears 20, Redskins 7
Two teams going nowhere in a hurry. Home team gets an edge. Chicago favored by 3½.

Patriots 24, Oilers 20
A Monday night goodie. If it can control Earl Campbell, the rest will fall into place for New England.

Ken Brown in Aussie golf lead

MELBOURNE (AP)—England's Ken Brown shot a 1-under-par 71 Friday to take a 1-stroke lead over Greg Norman of Australia, after the second round of the $125,000 Mayne Nickless golf tournament at the Royal Melbourne Golf Course.

Brown birdied the first two holes and then parred all until the 18th when he suffered his only bogey of the day.

Norman, the world match-play champion, jumped into second place with a 3-under-par 69 for a two-round total of 140.

Norman, who finished the round with consecutive birdies, was not even supposed to be playing in the tournament as he was diagnosed as suffering from physical and mental exhaustion earlier in the week.

Australian Ian Stanley holds third place by himself at 141, one stroke out of second and one stroke ahead of a quartet of golfers in fourth place.

Bullpups storm past Abilene Cooper, 41-28

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

The fireworks were not over, however. Cooper came back again to tie the score on a 31-yard pass and the extra point came with 6:15 left in the half to tie the game, 14-14.

Midland went ahead, 21-14 with 3:59 left when Williams scored from the eight. Salas' kick was true once again, but Cooper scored on the final play of the first half when the quarterback ran 10 yards after being unable to find an open receiver in the end zone. The kick failed and MHS held on to a 21-20 lead at intermission.

At halftime, the San Jacinto 8th grade band marched along with the Midland Freshman band.

Midland started the second half much the same way as the first by scoring on a 13-yard run, by you guessed—Williams. Salas kicked the extra point for a 28-20 lead with 4:13 left in the third period.

COOPER MARCHED DOWN the field with Royal getting off a beautiful 60-yard run to the Bullpup 24. With 15 seconds left in the period, the Cougars scored on a quarterback sneak and then Royal banged over for the two-point conversion to tie the game, 28-28 going into the final period.

Midland then erupted for 13 points on TD runs of 24 yards by fullback John Hibbitts and a 2-yard run by Williams. After the final TD by the Pups, Whalen chose to try for the two-point conversion, but it fell short, making the final score 41-28.

A 40-yard pass from Sears to Carrasco, set up the final TD.

Midland is now 8-0 on the year and Cooper is 3-5-0. Teddy Terrazas, David Sneed and Lonnie True—

Sherman surprise leader in 6-5A

District 6-5A really has been wild this year. Lewisville, pre-season favorite to win the title and go a long way in the Class AAAA state playoffs again this year, stands 1-2 in the league and it is Sherman's Bearcats who are on top with a perfect 3-0 record.

Lewisville dropped a 10-6 decision to the Bearcats last week and that was one of six misses in 36 games by this corner last weekend. The reason for the interest in 6-5A is the fact that no matter who wins that title, it will have its hands full with the 5-5A champion in the first round of the bi-district playoffs in three weeks.

Sherman only stands 4-4 on the year, but the Bearcats have lost to Plano, Highland Park and Irving in non-district and the rough schedule has done nothing but help Sherman in moving into 6-5A this season.

Anyway, on the year, the record stands 149 correct and 33 incorrect for a percentage of .820. Last week, with the 30-6 record, the percentage was an .833.

So now, on with this week's predictions:

MIDLAND LEE faces Abilene High in Memorial Stadium tonight and the Warbirds have been tough on the Rebels winning the past two years. Coach Spike Dykes' crew played a fine defensive game last weekend against Odessa Permian and once again, defense will be the difference tonight as the Rebels win, 21-8.

MIDLAND HIGH has a mighty tough chore in Abilene's P.E. Shottwell Stadium tonight in taking on the talented Abilene Cooper Cougars. Quarterback Lanny Dycus will be the difference in a good ball game, probably the best in 5-5A. The Cougars to chalk up a 21-14 victory.

ODESSA HIGH may be looking towards the 5-5A showdown with Odessa Permian Saturday night when the Bronchos play Big Spring in W.T. Barrett Stadium. Johnny Subia and Company will capture their eighth win in nine outings with a 27-7 victory over the Steers.

ODESSA PERMIAN, like OHS, may be looking ahead to next week's shootout with the Bronchos, but the Mojo defense will take care of the San Angelo Central Bobcats in the Concho City tonight, 24-0. Three touchdowns and a field goal will do it as Permian posts its eighth shutout in nine games this season.

OTHER GAMES: Sherman can nail down the 6-5A title with a victory tonight over the Wichita Falls Coyotes. The game is in Sherman and with that I'm going with the Bearcats to win, 14-10. In other games, Denton over Denison, 20-13; Lewisville over Wichita Falls Rider, 27-12; Fort Worth Dunbar and O.D. Wyatt are unbeaten in District 7-5A. Wyatt, 16-0 loser to Permian earlier in the season, will post a 17-14 victory to win the title; Southwest over Trimble Tech, 28-8; Eastern Hills 20, Arlington Heights 14 and Paschal 20, Western Hills 6; Plano and Lake Highlands stand 4-1 in District 13-5A and Plano has already beaten Lake Highlands.

The Wildcats will post a 26-6 win over R.L. Turner; Berkner 20, Newman Smith 7; Greenville 14, Lake Highlands 12; Pearce over Richardson, 33-19; Pinkston, Carter and Sunset all share first in 12-5A with 3-1 marks. Carter will knock off Sunset, 20-19; Pinkston 30, Kimball 17; W.T. White over Thomas Jefferson, 32-13; South Oak Cliff is 5-0 and Roosevelt 4-0 in 11-5A. South Oak Cliff is open this week and Roosevelt will take a 24-14 win over Spruce; Samuel 20, Bryan Adams 0; Skyline over Woodrow Wilson, 21-8; Highland Park 33, Lakeview Centennial 0; Garland over North Mesquite, 23-20; South Garland 21, Wilmer-Hutchins 8; L.D. Bell stands 5-0 and Trinity Euless 4-1 in 9-5A. Bell will beat Irving, maybe, 20-19, and Trinity will take a 27-14 win over MacArthur to bring up the title game next week between Trinity and Bell for a state playoff berth.

Other 9-5A games, Duncanville 26, Grand Prairie 12; South Grand Prairie 30, Nimitz 16; Richland and Arlington tangle for the District 8-5A title tonight. Going with Richland to take a 22-21 victory; Bowie over Haltom, 20-13 and Lamar over Burleson, 26-13. Arlington Sam Houston stands 3-2 and is open this week.

Alabama picked to come back

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

A lot of national championship hopefuls teams were happy when Alabama's 28-game winning streak came to an end last weekend, but Louisiana State wasn't one of them.

The Tigers, who are more concerned with Southeastern Conference rather than national honors this season, had hoped to end a 29-game Alabama winning streak this Saturday.

"Oh, God, they'll be wild next weekend," was the first reaction from LSU Coach Jerry Stovall when he heard that the Crimson Tide had been upset by Mississippi State.

Bama will carry a No. 6 ranking when it takes the field as a 19½-point favorite against LSU in Tuscaloosa on Saturday. Stovall doesn't buy it. "I don't care what the ratings say, the University of Alabama is the best football team in the United States and Bear Bryant is the best coach in America."

With its winning streak a thing of the past, you can bet that Bryant won't let Alabama look ahead to next week's long-awaited clash with Notre Dame, the new No. 1 team. The pick is ... Alabama 31-0.

Last week's score was 52 right and 17 wrong for a 754 percentage, bringing the season count to 408-165-8-712. Against the points, the count was 19 right, 15 wrong and one tie for .559 and 83-60-2-580 for the year.

The only game matching members of The Associated Press Top 20 takes place in Jacksonville where the world's largest outdoor cocktail party pairs second-ranked Georgia with No. 20 Florida in the Gator Bowl.

Georgia is a seven-point favorite against a Florida team that is 6-1 on the heels of last year's 0-16-1 disaster and could boast the greatest turnaround in history by the end of the season. On the assumption that Georgia won't be as fired up as it was for George Rogers and South Carolina last week, this is the Upset Special of the Week ... Florida 17-14.

Notre Dame (19½) at Georgia Tech: It really won't matter whether the Irish are looking ahead to next week's war with Alabama ... Notre Dame 42-7.

Virginia Tech at Florida State (16): The Seminoles may have a month off after this one if ABC-TV shifts the windup with Florida from Nov. 22 to Dec. 6 ... Florida State 33-3.

Southern California (7) at Stanford: The legs of USC's Marcus Allen against the arm of Stanford's John Elway ... Southern Cal 37-31.

Kansas State at Nebraska (29½): The Cornhuskers are rolling toward their Nov. 22 shootout with Oklahoma ... Nebraska 42-0.

Illinois at Ohio State (26): The Buckeyes are in a three-way race for the Rose Bowl, but Illinois isn't one of the three ... Ohio State 42-21.

Oregon at UCLA (13): Bruins recapture some of the magic after losing to Arizona ... UCLA 27-13.

Louisville at Pitt (No Line): Penn State is the only toughie the Panthers have left ... Pitt 48-6.

North Carolina State at Penn State (18): Pitt is the only toughie the Nittany Lions have left ... Penn State 34-13.

Oklahoma (19) at Kansas: A warm-up before the Sooners' shootouts with Missouri and Nebraska ... Oklahoma 38-14.

Arkansas at Baylor (5½): Who can figure out the Southwest Conference? Second Upset Special ... Arkansas 24-21.

Southern Methodist (7) at Rice: The Owls are a surprising 4-4 and the last time that happened was 1972. They'll have something to say about the SWC race with Baylor and Houston coming up after ... SMU 27-14.

Houston at Texas (2): Houston's on the way up, Texas is going the opposite way, until now ... Texas 22, Houston 17.

Texas Tech (9) at Texas Christian: Just because the SWC's such a wacky league, the Third Upset Special ... TCU 21-20.

Garbacz, playing her second year on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, made seven birdies against one bogey on the windless 6-135-yard, par-74 Hanayashiki Golf Course in Central Japan.

Americans Barbara Barrow, Vicki Ferguson and Sally Little and Japanese veteran Yuko Moriguchi all shared second place with 4-under 70s.

Beth Daniel, considered one of the favorites for the first prize of $26,250, completed the first round with a 2-under 72 for an eighth place tie.

Conflict benches Aggies' Mosley

After being demoted to second string quarterback, Mike Mosley twice refused to serve in a mop up role at quarterback against Texas Tech in a sideline confrontation with Texas A&M coach Tom Wilson. The following Monday, Mosley was shifted to second string safety and hasn't played quarterback since, according to a Fort Worth Star-Telegram story, report said today.

"The toughest thing for me has been accepting this mentally," Mosley said. "I had three good years here, then all of a sudden, bang, I'm not needed any more. I've never had anything this disappointing in my life." Wilson said "You're on a subject I really don't want to talk about. Mike is a very gifted athlete. As soon as he learns what he's doing in the secondary he'll play more and more."

We've got a good blend of veterans and kids and we're going to continue that blend and we're going to continue with the 25-man theory. I think we have a chance to repeat it. It's that simple. We don't need to make a lot of changes. But we have to make some changes because I don't think any team can stay stagnant and continue in a winning situation. And I think Pittsburgh proved that to some degree this season..."

Ivan Lendl beat Sherwood Steward 6-2, 6-1 in the Hong Kong tennis classic while Brian Teacher beat Tim Gullikson also advanced. Advancing to the women's semis were Wendy Turnbull, Sharon Walsh, Susan Leo and Marcie Louie...

Andrews eyes 2-4A title

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

Andrews of District 2-AAAA has the chance to clinch its district crown with a win tonight in front of the home crowd.

Sporting a 6-0 district mark and 8-0 season record, Andrews hosts the second-place Sweetwater Mustangs, who carry a 5-2 district record and are 6-3 overall. Sweetwater is the only team with any hope of wresting away Andrews' title aspirations, but those chances appear very slight with only two weeks left in the season. Tonight's game is the last of the regular season for Sweetwater.

For Andrews to drop the district crown, it would have to lose to Sweetwater this week then drop its last game of the regular season to Snyder (2-4, 2-6) next weekend.

UNDEFEATED Rankin, a District 6-A power, is another squad looking to nail down a playoff berth. The Red Devils, ranked third in the Harris Rating System, can clinch a playoff spot with a win over Grandfalls tonight. To close the regular season Rankin travels to Buena Vista.

Reagan Country travels to Mason in an attempt to stop the Puncher express. Mason can claim a playoff berth with a win over the Owls in the District 9-AA outing.

Crane, 1-7, 1-0, and Denver City stand on top of the four-team District 6-AAA race after the first weekend of district play. Crane travels to Seminole (1-7, 0-1) while Denver City hosts Coahoma.

STANTON, with the weekend off, will be playing a lot of attention to the Seagraves-Plains match in Seagraves tonight. A Seagraves victory would assure Stanton of a tie for the District 5-AA title. The Buffs could take the title outright with a win over Ropes Nov. 14.

Should Plains get by Seagraves the Cowboys would claim the district title no matter what the Buffs did against Ropes. Because Plains gained 11 first downs to Stanton's 10 in their 0-0 tie two weeks ago, the Cowboys would take the title.

Over in District 6-AA, McCamey (7-2, 1-0) is favored to take the district championship. The Badgers opened the district race with a 35-13 win over Marfa last Friday and is tied with Clint for the top rung in the four-team league. Van Horn journeys to McCamey tonight then the Badgers close out the season with a game at Clint.

One area school just playing out the season in District 2-AAAA is Lamesa. Tonight the Golden Tornados travel to Ector. Both teams are mired in the bottom half of the district standings.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas operators reported 31 oil discoveries and 48 gas discoveries during the last half of October, the Railroad Commission said Thursday.

Through the first 10 months of the year, the commission said, operators have reported 605 oil discoveries, an increase of 175 from the same period last year, and 1,197 gas discoveries, an increase of 201 from last year.

Public land open to bit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department, in one of its largest single decisions on public lands, Thursday opened 16.6 million acres in nine Western states to energy development.

The decision came following a wholesale review ordered by Congress of the government's land decisions made during the early part of the century.

The change will allow companies to lease promising areas to explore for oil, gas, coal, geothermal resources and nonmetallic minerals has as potash and phosphate.

While the decision affects a large amount of acreage, department officials said most of the land was not known to contain energy reserves.

Wyoming had the most land affected by the order with 7.78 million acres.

Other states involved are Arizona, 48,500 acres; California, 81,540; Colorado, 1.19 million; Idaho, 23,500; Montana, 312,602; Nevada, 123,300; New Mexico, 3.12 million, and Utah, 3.99 million.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Have you made a down payment on heaven yet?

We are so glad that we can say with utter honesty that in all our dealings we have been pure and sincere, quietly depending upon the Lord for His help, and not on our own skills. And that is even more true, if possible, about the way we have acted toward you.

My letters have been straightforward and sincere; nothing is written between the lines! And even though you don't know me very well (I hope someday you will), I want you to try to accept me and be proud of me, as you already are to some extent; just as I shall be of you on that day when our Lord Jesus comes back again.

It was because I was so sure of your understanding and trust that I planned to stop and see you on my way to Macedonia, as well as afterwards when I returned, so that I could be a double blessing to you and so that you could send me on my way to Judea.

Then why, you may be asking, did I change my plan? Hadn't I really made up my mind yet? Or am I like a man of the world who says "yes" when he really means "no"?

Never! As surely as God is true, I am not that sort of person. My "yes" means "yes."

Timothy and Silvanus and I have been telling you about Jesus Christ the Son of God. He isn't one to say "yes" when He means "no." He always does exactly what He says.

He carries out and fulfills all of God's promises, no matter how many of them there are; and we have told everyone how faithful He is, giving glory to His name.

It is this God who has made you and me into faithful Christians and commissioned us apostles to preach the Good News.

He has put His brand upon us—His mark of ownership—and given us His Holy Spirit in our hearts as guarantee that we belong to Him, and as the first installment of all that He is going to give us.

Widow sues Exxon

NEW YORK (AP)—A woman who contends her husband was driven to suicide by overwork has filed a $6 million lawsuit against Exxon Corp.

Rose M. Seymour of Queens filed the suit Wednesday in Manhattan State Supreme Court on behalf of the estate of her late husband, William. Seymour was in charge of the cargo-freight section of Exxon's international division until his suicide on Jan. 31, 1979.

Mrs. Seymour contended Exxon had been informed by a psychiatrist that her husband had mental problems, worsened because he was burdened with too much work.

A spokesman for Exxon said an internal investigation showed "we are not responsible." He declined further comment.

Psychiatrist Dr. Francis Kane was also named as a defendant in the suit. He also refused comment.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Form of treatment for bladder cancer still not been found

Dear Dr. Solomon: Every so often I read that progress is being made in the treatment of cancer. Apparently, cancer of the bladder must be the exception that proves the rule. My brother recently was diagnosed as having bladder cancer, and when I started making inquiries to learn more about it, I found there really is no satisfactory form of treatment. How serious a disease is bladder cancer, and is anything being done to find a cure? — Bill

Dear Bill: Bladder cancer is a serious disease for which a satisfactory form of treatment has still not been found. The incidence of the disease has increased 20 percent over the past quarter-century, while the death rate has decreased only slightly.

Bladder cancer mostly affects men over 50 years of age. In the United States, about 30,000 people will be diagnosed as having the disease during 1980, and almost 10,000 people will die from it. The most common, first noticeable symptom is blood in the urine.

Physicians at Johns Hopkins and nine other hospitals nationwide are now engaged in a study to determine the most effective form of treatment. A number of specialists in different fields — urology, oncology, pathology and radiotherapy — will evaluate three different types of treatment. They include the use of a variety of drug combinations; the use of new drugs; and different combinations of chemotherapy, surgery and radiation treatment.

Dr. Patrick C. Walsh, chairman of the department of urology at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine and one of the physicians heading the study, says these new approaches are being tried since it has become clear that the treatment of bladder cancer is more complex than previously believed.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What's the score on the advisability of exercise for pregnant women? If I have to give up my tennis for the health of myself and my baby, I'll do so; but I sure would miss it. Any suggestions? — Bonnie

Dear Bonnie: Part of the difficulty in giving a definitive answer to your question is that studies concerning the effect of exercise on pregnant women are fairly new. But one person who should know as much about the subject as most authorities as Dr. Caryle Crenshaw, co-director of the division of perinatal medicine at Duke University, and head of its high-risk obstetrics clinic. In general, Dr. Crenshaw recommends that women not try to increase the amount they exercise after becoming pregnant because the uterus requires more the heart's output as the baby grows. In addition, in cases where the fetus seems small for its age, or where the mother has high blood pressure or other problems, she may require bed rest without exercise.

In women who are generally in good health, however, moderate exercise is not only permissible but advisable. Women should realize, though, that as the pregnancy advances, they will become less agile and may be more prone to fainting, and should adjust their activities accordingly.

Superdome hail damage claim pending

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Dome Stadium Commission's insurance advisory committee says it should know within two weeks an insurance company's decision on a $500,000 claim for hail-stone damage to the roof of the Louisiana Superdome.

The claim is pending before the Reliance Insurance Co. of Philadelphia, Pa. Paul Peckham, head of Superdome engineering, and Clay Plaisance, the commission's architectural consultant, told the commission Wednesday that more than 20,000 brace covering the dome were found in the merru roof.
