U. S. response on hostages being delivered

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher arrived in this North African capital today to deliver the U. S. government's formal reply to Iran's conditions for releasing the 52 American hostages held for more than a year.

No details of the reply he carried with him were made public.

Christopher arrived in a special

U.S. Air Force plane accompanied by a group of officials including the Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, Harold Saunders.

They went directly to the hilltop American Embassy for urgent consultations with U.S. Ambassador Ulrich Haynes.

The American officials refused all comment. They were expected to deliver the U.S. reply to Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia later in the day or Tuesday.

In Washington, State Department officials said it was highly unlikely that Christopher would meet with Iranian authorities, who have been using Algeria as an intermediary. But they said the United States remains willing to hold face-to-face talks.

"We have a year's story to tell, and if Algeria is to act for us, they have to be fully informed," said one U.S. official who asked not to be identified.

Department press officer Sondra McCarty said in a prepared statement that the U.S. response, which had been prepared over the last week, would be given to the Algerian Foreign Ministry for transmittal to Iranian officials in Tehran.

Algeria has been a go-between in indirect negotiations between the United States and Iran aimed at ending the hostage crisis, which entered its 54th week on Sunday.

Christopher met with Algeria's ambassador to Washington, Redha Malek, four times last week.

The State Department said Christopher was accompanied to Algiers by Deputy Treasury Secretary Robert Carswell; State Department legal officer Roberts Owen and Arnold L. Raphael, a special assistant to Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, as well as Saunders.

It was learned that U.S. officials decided to make personal delivery of the American response to Algerian Foreign Ministry officials instead of transmitting it through normal diplomatic channels so that there would be no misunderstandings or questions about the U.S. position.

The Iranian Majlis, or parliament, voted on Nov. 2 to set four conditions for release of the hostages: A U.S. pledge not to interfere in Iran's internal affairs, the lifting of a freeze on some $8 billion in Iranian assets in this country, the cancellation of all American legal claims against Iran and the return of the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

U.S. officials have said that the first two demands would be less difficult to resolve than those involving an end to legal claims and the return of the shah's wealth, which they said could pose serious obstacles that could take protracted negotiations to settle.

Although Iranian officials had pressed the United States for a quick response to the demands, State Department officials said last week that time was needed to carefully study the official transcripts forwarded from Tehran.

"It's not a simple, you get a letter in the mail and you sit down and write an answer and drop it in the letter box the next morning," department spokesman John Trattner said.

"It's the welfare and lives of 52 people."

Christopher left Washington unannounced at 1 a.m. EST on the flight to Algiers.

Fate of tax cut bill is uncertain at best

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic-controlled 96th Congress opens its lame-duck session Wednesday uncertain of what it will accomplish. Unclear, too, is the fate of a $39.8 billion tax cut bill endorsed by President-elect Ronald Reagan.

The measure was drafted by the Senate Finance Committee and is supported by both Sen. Russell Long, D-La., the committee chairman, and Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who will assume Long's role in January when Republicans take control of the Senate for the first time since 1914.

Howard Baker of Tennessee, who will become majority leader in January, said Sunday he thinks the bill "will pass the Senate. I think we can move pretty promptly on a tax bill."

But what happens in the House, he added, is another matter.

There, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the Ways and Means Committee chairman, says he will not move to block the bill following his defeat Tuesday.

But Ullman, whose committee would likely take up the measure, says he also would not want to move any Senate-passed bill forward unless President Carter and the Democratic leadership concurred.

So far, Carter and his economic advisers are sticking with their argument that a tax cut now would be inflationary and should be delayed until next year.

And Carter could still veto any tax cut passed this session. Baker said Sunday he had "grave doubts" the president would sign any tax cut passed during the lame-duck session.

The Finance Committee bill includes about $22 billion in individual tax cuts and nearly $18 billion in cuts for business.

Reagan said last week, "it would be fine with me" if the Finance Committee bill won speedy approval.

Even before reaching the president's desk, however, any tax cut faces several other obstacles:

—House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. has said he doubts the lame-duck session will pass any legislation except appropriations bills needed to keep the government running.

—Expedient action on a tax cut could be frustrated on the Senate floor by what one top congressional staff member called a lot of bitter, "wounded tigers," who might prevent passage from being a "neat and speedy process."

—Additional time could be taken up if Democrats, who will also see their House majority cut 33 seats come Jan. 3, try to push through pet projects.

—And the volume of work facing the lame-duck session may be enough in itself, Ullman said, to prevent any consideration of a tax cut.

Indeed, the lame-duck session must pass 10 stalled appropriations bills — without which most federal agencies have no money to operate — or extend further the stopgap financing that has kept the government going since the fiscal year began Oct. 1.

The stopgap bill Congress adopted before recessing for the election allows agencies to spend at the fiscal 1980 level until Dec. 15.

The lame-duck session, the first since 1948, also has before it:

—Action on the overall of the federal budget for the fiscal year. The House and Senate must still reconcile differing versions of the measure, which is sure to have a multibillion-dollar deficit.

The House Budget Committee was taking up the matter this afternoon.

—The Alaska "lands" bill, which would protect some 100 million square miles of federal lands in Alaska from development. Differing versions have passed the House and Senate.

—An industry-financed "superfund" to clean up hazardous wastes.

—A complete revision of the federal criminal code, which appears to have a good chance of passage. It is supported by both Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who will step down as Senate Judiciary Committee chairman in January, and Sen. Strom Thurmond, his successor.

Gas hampers mine investigation

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Heavy concentrations of methane gas inside a Boone County coal mine are hampering investigations into the cause of an explosion that killed five miners, officials said.

Inspectors from the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration, the state Department of Mines and the United Mine Workers entered the mine Sunday, just hours after the bodies of the men were taken from Westmoreland Coal Co.'s Ferrell No. 17 mine at Robinson.

"They're still working getting the methane out," Jack Perry, president of United Mine Workers District 17, said Sunday. "It could be a long, drawn out affair."

Clarence Justice, a Westmoreland spokesman, said crews were trying to restore a devastated ventilation system.

"We really don't know how long it will take," he said.

Perry predicted the investigations will continue for a week.

The five miners, sent to repair rail tracks in an unused section of the mine 300 feet down, reportedly died instantly when a pocket of methane gas exploded Friday. Their bodies were found late Saturday.

Steve Anderson, Westmoreland's director of communications, said the cause of the accident appeared to be "improper ventilation that was not carrying off the methane."

Mine ventilating systems are designed to circulate fresh air to miners and prevent a buildup of explosive gases. Large fans force air down ventilation shafts, and canvas sheets draped at intervals across the mine shaft funnel the air into the various tunnels.

Jack Hamrick, a Westmoreland safety official, said investigators were assessing the extent of the blast damage and trying to determine why the mine's ventilation system had allowed methane to build up.

The force of the explosion hurled cinder blocks more than 150 feet and overturned a conveyor belt several hundred yards away, rescuers said. Rescue workers trying to reach the men were repeatedly driven back by gas and fumes before the singed bodies were recovered.

Company officials identified the victims as Herbert Kinder, 22, of Madison; Howard Gillenwater, 28, of Alkal; Howard Williamson, 39, of Peach Creek; Carlos Dent, 39, of Hewitt; and Fred Pridemore, 26, of Hewitt.

Funerals will be held Tuesday. The bodies are at the office of the state medical examiner for tests on carbon dioxide and methane in the blood of the victims.

Sandra Gail Workman, a Westmoreland miner who was hospitalized for a work-related accident, said she might have been the sixth victim.

"If I had come out of the hospital a day sooner I probably would have been with them," she said, adding she was discharged Friday.

"We called (Howard) Gillenwater 'Hot Dog.' He was always singing and laughing," Miss Workman recalled.

"Carlos Dent was always a big cutup, but he never bothered anyone," she said. "Hubert 'Butch' Kinder carried on with you. But he was helpful. If he thought I was doing something I shouldn't, he'd stop me and he'd do it."

Masked robbers take jewels worth $16,000 from home

Two men, dressed in pinstripe suits, wearing ski masks and wielding a machine gun and pistols, robbed a Midland couple and their daughter at their Midland home early Sunday night, tied them up and absconded with more than $16,000 in jewelry and a shotgun.

No one was hurt in the incident.

Robbed at their west-side Midland home at 3615 W. Storey Ave. were Kenneth Latta, his wife Sue, their teen-age daughter, Kim, and her visiting girl friend.

Midland Detective Capt. Billy Ray today said a man, in his early 30s and wearing a blue suit, was wielding the machine gun and was hooded with a ski mask. The man in the gray suit then put on his ski mask. He was carrying a pistol.

"They were made to lay face down in one of the bathrooms, and (their) hands were tied behind them" with a cord, the captain said. But the cords "weren't tied very tightly," and the victims were able to free themselves and call police.

Shortly after the robbery, police found Latta's abandoned car, which the robbers had allegedly stolen, a few blocks from the Latta residence.

Ray said much of the jewelry, including diamonds and turquoise, was taken off the Lattas. Also taken in the 6:45 p.m. robbery was a shotgun, he said.

The case is being investigated by Midland Detective Sgts. Frank Bartlett and Roy Harrison.

More major earthquakes expected in California

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — California may be in for a series of major earthquakes at least as strong as the one that jolted the northern coast of the state over the weekend, a top government scientist says.

"The cycle of renewed activity seems to be restarted," Robert E. Wallace, chief scientist for the U.S. Geological Survey's Office of Earthquake Studies, said Sunday.

Six people were injured but none killed in Saturday's quake, which caused little damage for its magnitude — 7.0 on the Richter scale, officials said.

The quake was the second-strongest to strike the United States since 1959, records indicated. It was weaker than the 8.4 earthquake which rumbled through Anchorage, Alaska, in 1964.

Wallace said there have been more quakes in the 5.0 to 7.0 range in the past 1½ years than in the previous decade.

"A fairly long period of quiescence has come to an end in California," he said, adding the state's major faults have remained largely quiet since the 1906 San Francisco quake, estimated at 8.3 on the Richter scale.

Saturday's tremor occurred 15 to 40 miles off the California coast northwest of Eureka, said Jerry Eaton, chief of seismology for the Geological Survey office in Menlo Park. The area, about 250 miles north of San Francisco, is one of the most quake-prone in California.

More than a dozen aftershocks followed the quake, the strongest of them recorded as 4.8 to 5.2, geologists said. But their strength withered Sunday and they came less often, said geologist John Longshore of Humboldt State University.

The quake upset tombstones, caused 300 feet of a freeway overpass to collapse, and knocked at least two houses from their foundations. Bottles and cans tumbled from store shelves and some pulp factory machinery was damaged, said Humboldt County disaster official William Chambers.

Rodeo is a real family affair for these Texans

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It's not easy being a mother when your little girl is face-first in the dirt and 1,500 pounds of steak with the horns still attached is barreling down on her.

It's at times like that Jan Edmondson reconsiders her rodeo career and the role model she provided for her seven children.

At 13, daughter Dawnita is the youngest of the 12 top-ranked bull riders on the all-women's professional rodeo circuit. She faces some tough competitors when she puts her 110 pounds atop a 1,300 pound Brahma and they fly into the arena.

Mom, for example. At 37, Mrs. Edmondson is the oldest of the top 12 bull riders.

And last year's world champion in women's bull riding was Tonya Tucker — Mrs. Edmondson's 20-year-old daughter and Dawnita's half-sister.

All three grew up on Jan's father's ranch in Garden Valley, Idaho, where the family produced rodeos. While their dad does that, the kids ride rodeos across the country and in Mexico, spending the school year in Ponder, Texas, 30 miles north of Fort Worth.

"It's just a sport to us," shrugs Mrs. Edmondson, a grandmother-to-be who has been in pro rodeo for 25 years. "All my kids ride. They start out on calves when they're 2 or 3 then work their way up to steers and bulls."

Mrs. Edmondson, Dawnita and Tonya squared off with nine other women for the 1980 Cowgirls Rodeo Association National Championship Finals, which began Saturday.

When it was over Sunday, Mrs. Edmondson had split 3rd and 4th place in the bareback bronc riding, tying with another woman but sharing the prize money. Tonya split 1st and 2nd in bronc and bull riding and left the rodeo with world championships in both events, said rodeo public relations director Rylon Nilson.

Dawnita's results were not available immediately.

Dawnita's bull was so feisty it mashed the eighth-grader's leg against the chute and tossed her sky-high about two seconds out of the gate. Tonya was riding with a broken hand and was flung to the dirt before the six-second qualifying time was up.

Mrs. Edmondson opted not to ride the bulls because her three broken ribs hurt and she was afraid further injury would jeopardize her chances in the bareback bronc finals.

Not that mishaps are anything new to her.

"You're talkin' to the wreck of the rodeo circuit, honey," she smiled painfully. Her cheekbone is broken, the result of an August encounter with an angry bull.

Their biggest fear in the ring is for each other.

When her mother is in the ring, "I'm scared all the time," Dawnita says. "Especially after watching her get hurt in rodeo after rodeo."

Mrs. Edmondson says her stomach somersaults when her girls are on top of one of the snorting beasts about to charge from the chute.

"If they were scared, I wouldn't allow it," she says. "But as long as they keep a clear head, there's not going to be any serious injury."

Mrs. Edmondson plans to give the sport up "when I get too old. But I haven't gotten there yet."

Tonya thinks she'll probably go into semi-retirement once she marries later this year, but "if I have kids, I'd let them do it if they wanted to."

Dawnita is a bit more skeptical.

"I'd hope there would be better things for them to do," she sighs.

Artist Vincent Van Gogh, shown in a self portrait done in 1888, may have suffered from glaucoma, according to Dr. James Ravin, an ophthalmologist art lover. Ravin notes that in some of Van Gogh's self portraits one of the artist's pupils appears larger than the other. (AP Laserphoto)

Afternoons stay warm

Soft breezes and warm temperatures. Sounds more like an advertisement for a tropical island in November. But that was the situation Sunday in Midland, and the weatherman says that perfect autumn weather should continue to hold through Tuesday.

Progress made on Helsinki

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The United States indicated progress by both East and West today toward breaking a deadlock over an agenda at the 35-nation meeting to review compliance with the Helsinki agreements on human rights and detente.

Legal experts said they had no idea how or if the conference could proceed beyond the opening without an agenda. An Eastern source said the Soviet Union rejected all moves toward a compromise Sunday during mediation efforts by Swiss delegate Peter Troendle, named by diplomats over the weekend to mediate the East-West dispute.

No thought to second term: Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan says he hasn't given any thought yet to a second term but as he approaches his first term as the oldest man ever to take the presidential oath, Reagan says he feels fine.

Eyesight influenced work of masters

CHICAGO (AP) — Renoir was nearsighted. Rembrandt was farsighted. Van Gogh had glaucoma. Monet had cataracts. And according to an ophthalmologist-art lover, their eye problems contributed to the greatness of their art.

Isolated child dies

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Richard Joel Bradley Jr., who spent the three years of his life separated from others, playing with sterilized toys and calling masked nurses "mama," has died of cancer, doctors say.

Historically, she said, the most successful treatments for the deficiency involved bone marrow transplants from exactly matched siblings. No suitable donors were available for either Ricky or Jamie, she said.

DEATHS

Manuela Rubio

Rosary for Manuela Rubio, 79, of 1206 W. Dakota Ave., will be recited at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with Jessie Guajardo officiating.

Patsy Y. Brady

Graveside services for Patsy Yvonne Brady, 3 1/2-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morgan Brady Jr. of 2200 S. Lamesa Road, will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Resthaven Memorial Park directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Isolated child dies

The little boy, born without the natural immunities that protect humans from disease, died in his sleep Sunday at Duke Hospital. Doctors said his sterile environment could not protect him from lymphoma, a kind of cancer that spreads through the white blood cells.

Manuela Rubio

Services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church with the Rev. Jim Foelker officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Patsy Y. Brady

Survivors include two sons, Frank Ordunez of Dos Palos, Calif., and C.R. Navarrete of Midland; three daughters, Irene Sosa of Midland, Aneta Galaviz of Big Spring and Domitila Luna of Los Angeles, Calif.; two brothers, three sisters, 23 grandchildren, several great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Klan jury still deliberating

Prosecutors argued that the Klansmen and Nazis, who arrived at the rally site in a nine-vehicle caravan, went to the rally "spoiling for a fight" and filled with "bigotry, hatred and prejudice."

Odessa woman held for murder

They found the body of Lonnie Crayton, 43, lying on the floor with a shotgun wound to the chest, police said. Ms. Rabon first told police she was cleaning the single-shot weapon when it discharged, striking Crayton in the chest. However, police said she later changed her story.

One miscellaneous permit was issued to the City of Midland for a sign at 105 N. Main St. Estimated cost is $8,000.

Americans keep clipping those coupons, survey says

By the Associated Press

Americans are clipping more coupons than ever before, despite a campaign by one of the country's biggest food chains to do away with coupons completely.

Thirty-nine percent of the shoppers questioned by the A.C. Nielsen Co. recently released nationwide survey said they used more coupons than they did a year earlier. An additional 17 percent said they used coupons "somewhat more." Thirty-seven percent said they used about the same number of coupons as they did in 1979 and 7 percent said they used fewer.

The Nielsen study indicated that 76 percent of all households — more than three families out of four — use coupons. Other surveys have put the figure at 90 percent.

The anti-coupon campaign of a Washington-area chain which argued that shoppers would be better served if manufacturers lowered prices on all items instead of issuing coupons. Giant also said low-income consumers — who need the savings most — use coupons least because they do not buy the magazines and newspapers where the offers appear. And it claimed that fraudulent use of coupons, particularly through misredemptions, costs consumers millions of dollars.

Early this year, Giant prepared and distributed a film on coupons, including an interview with Esther Peterson, the president's adviser on consumer affairs. At the time, Barry Scher of Giant said the company would like to see coupons eliminated. "There are alternatives to coupon programs," he said.

Eileen Katz of Giant's consumer affairs department said in a recent interview that the store "received a lot of mail on the issue." She said the letter writers favored doing away with coupons by a three-to-one margin "if consumers could be assured of lower prices, of a trade off."

Giant no longer makes any coupon offers of its own, although it continues to accept manufacturers' coupons. Ms. Katz admitted the anti-coupon effort did not draw any widespread support from the rest of the industry, but add "It wasn't an active ongoing campaign. We just felt it was something we wanted to bring to the attention of the public and we did."

The Nielsen survey, meanwhile, found that use of coupons by low-income consumers has risen, although it still lags behind that of the general population as a whole. Sixty-nine percent of the low-income households questioned by Nielsen said they used coupons — up from 51 percent in a similar survey five years ago.

Richard H. Aicrim, director of marketing research for the Nielsen Clearing House, said there several possible reasons for the increase in coupon use, particularly among low-income consumers. Among the reasons, he said, were "a more broad availability of coupons in the marketplace," new ways of delivering coupons and growing media coverage of couponing which "has made consumers more aware."

The Nielsen study indicated that consumers are skeptical of the claim that eliminating coupons would lower prices. A total of 22 percent of those questioned said they thought prices would go up; 19 percent said prices would go down; and the rest were not sure or did not answer.

Seventy-two percent of the people surveyed said they liked coupons "very much;" 23 percent said they liked them slightly; and 5 percent said they disliked them.

The highest use of coupons, according to the Nielsen survey, is in the North and East Central regions. The least use of coupons is in the Southeast. Whites are more likely to use coupons than non-whites, the survey found, and people over 30 are more apt to use coupons than those under 30.

Arson suspected in fire that damaged garage

Midland firemen were kept busy Sunday with three fires in the city. One of the fires under investigation was believed to be the work of an arsonist.

A garage fire reported at 2:03 p.m. at 1321 E. Cuthbert Ave. required three fire units to extinguish the fire. Although the blaze took only 10 minutes to put out, heavy damage was reported to the garage.

The fire marshal's office has tentatively ruled the cause of the fire as arson. The case is still under investigation.

Another fire reported at 1:53 p.m. at 100 N. Calhoun St. required four units to extinguish.

The entire structure sustained heavy damage, a fire department spokesman said. Malicious mischief was ruled as the cause of the blaze, the report said.

Earlier Sunday, firemen responded to a fire at Rainbow Motel, Room No. 5, 2403 E. Indiana Ave. However, the fire was extinguished when firemen arrived about 10:30 p.m. Sunday.

In other incidents reported by the Midland police department included:

—An unidentified man suffered a 12-inch long knife wound across his abdomen near midnight Sunday at the El Rancho Grande Club, 409 E. Scharbauer Drive. The wound was one-fourth-inch deep, police said. The man was treated at Midland Memorial Hospital.

—Salvador Garcia reported a broken windshield at 506 N. Lee St. Sunday night.

Actor's skull has role

WEST WINDSOR, N.J. (AP) — George Frederick Cooke, who was a hit in Great Britain as a Shakespearean actor in the 18th and early 19th centuries, makes his television debut this week — in the only role he could play.

What's left of him will be on center stage when Hamlet lifts a skull and intones, "Alas, poor Yorick." Cooke's skull will be used in the Mercer Community College production of the Shakespeare play.

Cook one of the first British actors to become famous in the United States.

Jury may investigate python's killing of baby

DALLAS (AP) — Police say they will ask a grand jury to investigate the death of a 7-month-old girl who slowly suffocated after being attacked by an 8-foot python that may have tried to swallow her.

Sgt. Gus Rose, investigating the bizarre death of Tami Lynn Duboe, said the reticulated python was kept as a pet, and he will present the case to a grand jury.

"It could have been hungry, and probably was," Rose said, after the snake forced its way out of a 30-gallon aquarium early Saturday and crawled into the baby's bed.

Neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eugene Duboe said the python — named Illusion because it changed color as the light changed — said the creature was docile and unaggressive.

"He (Duboe) would let it out of the cage sometimes and it would crawl around for a minute or two and then just back into a corner and stay still," said Lennie Mager, a neighbor who tried to calm the hysterical parents after the child was found Saturday morning.

"I didn't ever see it do anything that was aggressive."

Mager said he and his wife spent almost 30 minutes trying to find out what happened to the shaken mother. Mager said he accompanied Duboe back to the apartment and looked at the infant.

"The child was bloody, and the snake had two slash marks on the side of its neck," Mager said. The child's father shut the snake in the head after trying to cut off its head with a knife.

"It (the snake) was lying on the floor by the crib and still moving, squirming on the floor, I guess from reflexes," Mager added. "I was sick all day yesterday."

Pathologists said the baby's head was covered with "dozens" of needle-sized puncture marks and that one set of bites was U-shaped, an indication the snake may have tried to swallow the baby.

Dallas Zoo herpetologists say the snake may have killed the child in self defense after crawling into her crib.

But Dr. Bernhard Grizmek, an animal behavior expert, said although pythons normally defend themselves by biting, "constriction is typically used against prey."

Jim Walker, a reptile keeper at the Dallas Zoo, said there have been "documented cases of pythons eating babies. That particular species of python has a rather nasty disposition."

"When they get hungry," he said, "they get pretty voracious and would strike toward a person."

Walker said the python has a hinged lower jaw that can open wide enough for the reptile to swallow a small pig.

Pythons kill their prey by coiling around their victims, then applying tremendous pressure when they feel the prey exhale. The animal is thus prevented from breathing and slowly suffocates.

Wichita Falls has rash of Sunday shootings

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Dusk was welcome in this North Texas city Sunday night. It marked the end of the most violent Sunday anyone can remember — a bloody day of gunfire that left four men dead and a fifth hospitalized with gunshot wounds.

"Offhand I can't think of any time when this has happened before," said Police Chief Curtis Harrelson after Sunday's incidents, which apparently were unrelated.

"It just happens to be odd for any day, Sunday or any day of the week," Wichita Falls police officer Billy Henderson said. "It's out of the ordinary to have that many killings on one day in a town this size."

Harried detectives in this city of 100,000 said the shootings seemed to be unrelated and there appeared to be no logical reason for the sudden outbreak of itchy trigger fingers.

The first outburst was reported about 1 a.m. CST when a woman shot and killed a man she said was trying to break into her apartment. The victim was identified as Jimmy Don McCallister, of Wichita Falls.

About 12 hours later, two men shot it out on an eastside street, police said.

Witnesses told investigators the men began arguing about 1:30 p.m. and one man fired a .22-caliber rifle, striking his opponent three times in the chest, police said. The wounded man returned fire with a .410-gauge shotgun, killing the first man, police said.

The rifle victim died en route to a nearby hospital, police said. The victims were identified as Oliver Evans, 34, who died en route to the hospital, and Keith Hutchinson, 25, both of Wichita Falls.

About 2 p.m., a man and woman found the body of a fourth shooting victim on the north end of Lake Wichita Dam, investigators said.

The man apparently had been beaten and shot in the head, but authorities did not know how long he had been dead, Henderson said.

The body was sent to Dallas for an autopsy and the victim's identity was being withheld, Henderson said.

A fifth man was in stable condition in Wichita General Hospital today after he was shot three times with a .22-caliber pistol, police said. The victim, Ronnie Adams, apparently was shot during a family argument, investigators said.

Vatican disavows historian's criticism of Martin Luther VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican disavowed a German Catholic criticism of Martin Luther after it threatened to put a chill on Pope John Paul II's meeting with Lutheran leaders during his visit to West Germany next week.

A Vatican specialist on relations with the Lutherans, Monsignor Aloys Klein, said the criticisms of the leader of the 16th Century Protestant Reformation in a booklet distributed by the German Bishop's Conference did not reflect the position of the Roman Catholic Church. He said church officials in West Germany were publishing an epilogue to correct the statements.

The pope in his weekly blessing Sunday to the crowd in St. Peter's Square also sought to soothe the angered German Protestants by emphasizing his plans to meet with them during his five-day visit beginning Saturday.

"I consider this visit particularly important also from an ecumenical point of view, all the more since it comes on the 450th anniversary of the famous Augsburg Conference," he said.

The Augsburg Confession was an unsuccessful attempt by Lutherans to achieve doctrinal reconciliation with the Roman church.

About half the 63 million West Germans are Protestants, and most of them are Lutherans, while about half are Roman Catholics.

The booklet that angered the Lutherans, "Short History of the German Church," was by Catholic historian Remigius Baumer and was issued to give background information on the pope's visit.

In it Baumer said Luther's "Reformation brought no reform, but the splitting of the Church."

It also said Luther's writings were not original but were just a re-hash of the arguments of most Catholic interpreters of the Bible in the Middle Ages.

Baumer followed this with a newspaper interview in which he said only a "complete idiot" could expect the pope to apologize for the excommunication of Luther.

A spokesman for the Lutheran Church, Dietrich Sattler, told another German newspaper the booklet angered many Protestants and "has not made members of the Lutheran Council eager to meet with the pope." But he said the council would go through with the meeting.

The German Bishop's Conference indicated in a statement that it was unaware of what Baumer had written and would publish a new addition with an "explanation."

White lobbying to save his job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Party Chairman John White has been making telephone calls to prominent Democrats as he lobbies hard in an effort to hold on to his job despite his party's election losses last week, sources say.

White reportedly is asking to stay on as chairman until next fall, when he hopes to return to Texas and run for public office, probably for governor.

The party's executive committee meets Dec. 18. An election is scheduled for the end of February.

White's spokesman, Bob Neuman, said White has not decided whether to seek a new term.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Vague answer will not work

Dear Dr. Solomon: Whenever I have my annual physical examination, my doctor first sits down with me to discuss how I've been and whether I've had any problems. Usually, I'll make some vague response about everything being the same, and he'll then proceed with the physical examination. A few weeks ago, we went through the same routine, even though I've been depressed lately because of a death in the family. When I think about it now, I get angry with myself for not telling him how I was feeling. I wonder if other people have the same difficulty confiding in their doctors about their emotional problems. — Mrs. E. P.

erally reluctant to talk about any emotional problems.

If you are still troubled, I suggest you arrange another appointment with your physician. Just as with a physical illness, you do not have to wait until your next scheduled annual examination to discuss a problem with your doctor.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I saw a television program in which a paramedic used a defibrillator. Will you explain what it is and how it works? — Mr. E.N.

Dear Mr. N.: A defibrillator is a piece of equipment that permits a doctor or, as in the television program you saw, a paramedic to shock the heart with an electrical impulse. In a patient who has had a heart attack, the defibrillator can correct an irregular rhythm or, if the heart has stopped, can help start it beating correctly again.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give person replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Dear Mrs. P.: Unfortunately, your experience is not unique. It has been well established that a person's emotional state and physical health are intertwined — that one affects the other — and physicians are interested in both. As patients gain confidence in their doctors, they generally feel freer to share with them their emotional as well as physical problems. Apparently, you have not yet reached that point.

Interestingly enough, a study by the Johns Hopkins for Metropolitan Planning and Research has shown that patients may reveal more of their inner feelings through responses to a written questionnaire than they do face to face with their physicians. In the study, a number of patients who had appointments at a pre-paid group practice completed a questionnaire designed to screen for symptoms of depression. After the office visit, the doctors then recorded their evaluations on the patient's problems.

The results showed that while 20 percent of the patients revealed some degree of depression on the test, the doctors were able to detect depression in only 15 percent of those with depressive symptoms. A follow-up study a year later found that about half of those who had indicated they were depressed were still depressed; in addition, 15 percent of the patients not initially depressed had become so. Dr. Janet Hankin, senior research associate at the Center, suggests as one possible explanation that patients tend to discuss their physical problems with their doctors, but are gen-

Court trial ordered for poker parlor suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who sued two poker parlors for failing to keep his wife from gambling her way into debt is entitled to have his lawsuit tried in court, the California Court of Appeal has ruled.

The clubs had won a summary judgment in Superior Court. But the Court of Appeals reversed that order Wednesday.

Robert H. Wynn said his wife was a compulsive gambler who suffered heavy losses playing cards at the two clubs during 1973.

Wynn said the two clubs agreed in writing that if he paid his wife's $1,750 debt, they would deny her further access.

But in 1977, when his wife started gambling again and lost about $30,000, Wynn said, he sued the clubs.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

You need perfume on the inside too

Well, when I got as far as the city of Troas, the Lord gave me tremendous opportunities to preach the Gospel.

But Titus, my dear brother, wasn't there to meet me and I couldn't rest, wondering where he was and what had happened to him. So I said good-bye and went right on to Macedonia to try to find him.

But thanks be to God! For through what Christ has done, He has triumphed over us so that now wherever we go He uses us to tell others about the Lord and to spread the Gospel like a sweet perfume.

As far as God is concerned there is a sweet, wholesome fragrance in our lives. It is the fragrance of Christ within us, an aroma to both the saved and the unsaved all around us.

To those who are not being saved, we seem a fearful smell of death and doom, while to those who know Christ we are a life-giving perfume. But who is adequate for such a task as this?

Only those who, like ourselves, are men of integrity, sent by God, speaking with Christ's power, with God's eye upon us. We are not like those hucksters—and there are many of them—whose idea in getting out the Gospel is to make a good living out of it.

Better, but still low

While it's hard for those of us living here to believe, we may just have to accept the fact that Midland's population count for 1980 will go down in the history books as 70,291.

Mayor G. Thane Akins already has noted that the city really doesn't have any means of challenging the census count short of conducting its own census here. That wouldn't be too feasible.

Have Midlanders really been "fooled" about the population here? Are we the victims of too much growth too quickly? Did we simply think that because of all this new construction — tall, gleaming glass and steel buildings — we have more people living here than are actually here?

Perhaps that is the case. But there are other indications of a growing city, too. Traffic apparently is increasing throughout the city. Demand for rental housing units and new homes remains exceedingly high. Businesses continue to report a high volume of transactions.

Maybe Midlanders have been blinded by all that is around them. We can live with the fact that our city's population has only increased by 18 percent since 1970's census.

Even 18 percent is a respectable increase in population, we suppose.

But we really think the Census Bureau missed the mark again.

Season of the hunter

On crisp fall mornings throughout much of the nation, men and women bundle up in clothing designed to turn away the morning chill, grab their rifles and head out into the mountains and fields in search of game.

This is the traditional season of the hunter, a time of year enjoyed by thousands of Americans.

But while hunting as a sport provides recreation and diversion for many Americans, it can also prove deadly for its participants. Each year hunting accidents claim all too many lives needlessly.

It doesn't have to be that way. Hunting safety programs are numerous and readily available for all ages of hunters. They teach hunting "basics," like firearms safety, hunting etiquette and first aid.

This year Midlanders and the thousands of other West Texans who head into the hills and fields should not go unprepared. First they should participate in a hunter safety program.

Let's all strive to make this the safest, most rewarding hunting season ever.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Nov. 10, the 315th day of 1980. There are 51 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 10, 1483, Martin Luther, the leader of the Protestant Reformation, was born in Eisleben, Germany.

On this date: In 1775, the Continental Congress established the U.S. Marine Corps. In 1871, explorer Henry Stanley located missing Scottish missionary David Livingstone in central Africa.

In 1928, Hirohito was enthroned as emperor of Japan.

And in 1965, former President Eisenhower suffered a heart attack, from which he recovered.

Ten years ago, the Soviet Union released two U.S. generals, their pilot and a Turkish officer whose plane had strayed across the Soviet border.

Five years ago, Angola became independent of Portugal in the midst of civil war.

One year ago, the U.S. Justice Department was ordered to deport Iranian students in the U.S. illegally as the American hostages ended their first week of captivity in Iran.

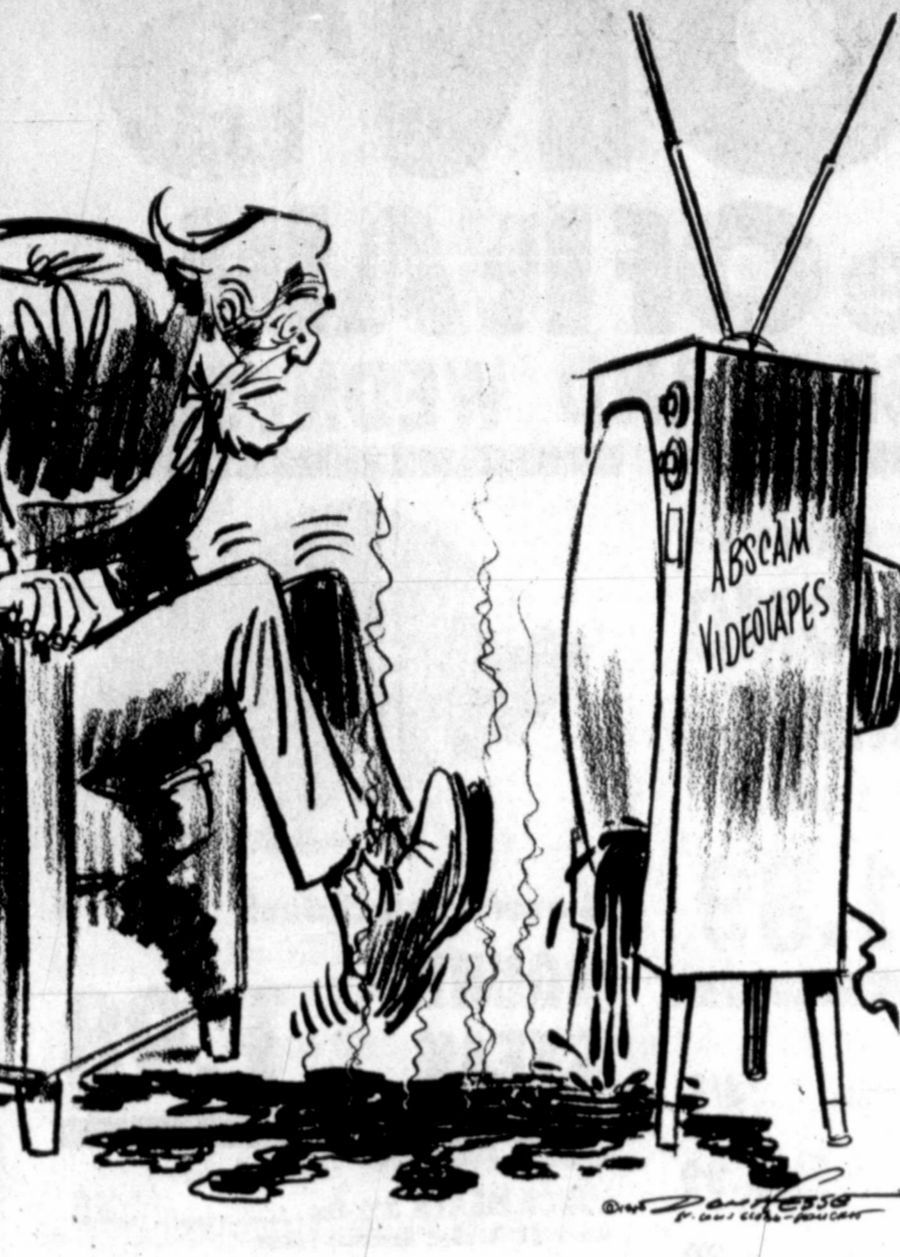

Today's birthday: Actor Richard Burton is 55 years old.

WASHINGTON-MERRY-GO-ROUND

Thompson, Murphy to fill spotlights next

WASHINGTON — Today two more congressmen are scheduled to go on trial for allegedly succumbing to the temptations offered by FBI undercover agents in the ABSCAM operation.

The pair, Reps. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., and John Murphy, D-N.Y., profess their complete innocence of the bribery charges against them. The only misbehavior in the ABSCAM caper, they insist, was on the part of the FBI men who posed as representatives of a favor-seeking Arab sheik.

But the scenes filmed by the FBI's hidden cameras will make a devastating case against Murphy and Thompson. Similar videotapes, played at the trials of two House colleagues, helped to convict them.

The secret videotapes, sealed by court order, have been reviewed by my associate Gary Cohn. Here's a preview of what the jury will see and hear at the trial of Murphy and Thompson. (Two unwitting middlemen, Philadelphia attorney Howard Criden and New Jersey building consultant Joseph Silvestri, will also go on trial).

— On Oct. 9, 1979, Thompson and Criden met FBI agent Anthony Amoroso, who was posing as the fictitious Arab's bagman, in a Washington, D.C., townhouse. Evidently coached by Criden to blow his own horn — and blow it loud — Thompson told Amoroso: "Let me say this. My Democratic county chairman is a county chairman because I got tired of being the county chairman ... He's also the state chairman because I don't want to be the state chairman, and that's the whole state of New Jersey."

Could he help the "sheik" with his immigration problems? Deportation

"can be stalled," Thompson said. "But it's very difficult. Very difficult."

"Well, that's what the money is for, isn't it?" asked FBI agent Amoroso.

"Yeah," said Thompson. "Well, I'm not asking for any money." Instead, he suggested the sheik deposit $300,000 or $400,000 in some Trenton, N.J., banks of Thompson's choice. "Would that be any problem?"

It would, of course, because such deposits couldn't be filmed by the hidden cameras. After Thompson left, the disappointed FBI men had two stormy sessions with Criden, who reluctantly brought the congressman back for a second try. A briefcase — stuffed with $50,000 on camera — was waiting.

"Frank understands the situation," Criden announced. "OK," said Amoroso. "I just want to make sure you understand. There's the briefcase."

"Howard, you take care of that for me," said Thompson, and Criden picked up the briefcase.

— On Oct. 20, 1979, Murphy and Criden met the two undercover operatives at the Hilton Inn near Kennedy International Airport. Again, Amoroso had packed $50,000 into a suitcase in view of the hidden cameras.

favorite of Wall Street but has fervent support from the supply-side economic clique and a wide Republican spectrum in Congress ranging from moderate Rep. David Stockman of Michigan to conservative Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina.

They and other Republican politicians want to see senior Cabinet members whose names are not household words. That would take political courage for Reagan. So would appointment as secretary of state of a name that is familiar: Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson. Some of Reagan's Nixon-Ford advisers (especially Bill Simon) bitterly oppose Jackson, but he would be a departure from the unhappy Republican past and an opening to coalition politics.

The last three presidents to begin new administrations — John F. Kennedy, Richard M. Nixon and Jimmy Carter — were shackled by hairline victories. Not so Reagan, who faces unlimited possibilities with no need to embrace names and policies of a past more associated with failure than success.

CHARLIE REESE

Best survival organization still the political party

There is a thriving industry in the land called survivalism. Books, guns, and storable food are the main commodities, but the basic premise of the whole industry is that some calamity will befall the U.S. which will cause society to disintegrate.

It is largely balderdash. Calamities may indeed befall our dear land — runaway inflation, a nuclear war, or a collapsed economy, but none of them is likely to unleash the anarchy on which the survival industry is based. Quite the contrary, they are most likely to unleash the exact opposite — extreme order and dictatorship.

We are prone to think of our government as bumbling and ineffective, but, once freed from the restraints of our self-indulgent democracy by a crisis, I believe you would find that the one thing a government can do well is impose order on unruly mobs.

The killing of four students on the Kent State campus is universally regarded as a tragedy. It certainly was, but it also ended the campus disorders promptly. Just imagine what would happen under martial law, which would surely be imposed in a national crisis, when the guard and police are ordered to fire into mobs at will. No mob can stand up to massed automatic weapons.

Some survivalists like to point to race riots as an example of what they imagine will happen, but here again, just think it through. The standard tactic in dealing with race riots has been to contain the riot within the black neighborhoods and let it run its

Nervous newsmen and television fans may imagine, as they watch buildings go up in flames, that the government has lost control of the situation, but in fact it is in control. It has set up a perimeter defense and the riot can't get out. It is the black neighborhood which burns and mostly blacks who are killed and injured. It is a mistake to underestimate the power of government to impose order when it chooses to do so.

That is not to say that accumulating a moderate amount of food stores isn't a wise thing to do. There could be some temporary disruptions. I personally believe every home ought to contain some weapons with the proviso, of course, that everyone in the home is taught to handle and operate them safely. Law enforcement, even in a non-crisis, usually operates in an after-the-fact mode.

But I wouldn't be bamboozled into spending all your savings to prepare for a long period of time in which there is no government order at all. It just won't happen.

As for the communist dictatorship some are forecasting, the last place you want to be in that event is in one of these silly armed retreats. The next-to-last place you want to be is on the mailing list of one of these silly paramilitary organizations. Retreats are easily identified and disposed of and mailing lists make dandy identifiers of the people you want to catch if your vocation happens to be the secret police.

Anonymity and conformity are the survival techniques for dictatorship. When Israel Prime Minister Menachem Begin was commander of the Irgun, the Jewish underground army fighting the British in Palestine, there was a $50,000 price on his head and some 85,000 soldiers were looking for him. They never found him, for he was living openly in a hotel or house or apartment.

As Begin put it in "The Revolt," "...but in none of those places, the permanent or the temporary, were there any bodyguards or alarm signals. Everything was simple and everyday. An average citizen. A family. An open house. Neighbors that 'knew everything.' No secrets. The secret was there was no secret. An open underground. And the eyes of the British Intelligence were blinded."

My point is not to tell you how to live but to point out that a lot of the people who are trying to tell you — for a price — don't know what they are talking about.

The best defense against the calamity of the survival industry is peddling political action before it occurs.

Rep. Phil Crane, the Illinois Republican, put it well: "If the United States goes, there won't be any safe havens anywhere in the world."

For those who love liberty, this country is our Alamo. There aren't any countries which will open their doors to American refugees, and we would all do better to invest our time and resources in the political process to produce effective leadership than to fantasize about being mountain men or guerrillas.

The best retreat is still the polling booth and the best survival organization is still the political party.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan appointments will reveal course of administration

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Among the myriad choices confronting president-elect Ronald Reagan are two which will tell whether his administration follows pedestrian Republican predecessors or sets a radical new course for the nation.

Choice No. 1: Will Reagan follow widespread advice and dump two of his campaign's national security advisers, Richard Allen and William van Cleave?

Choice No. 2: Will he pick a prestigious Wall Street favorite with high governmental experience as secretary of the treasury, or risk the establishment's scorn with an unknown but brilliant iconoclast named Lewis Lehrman?

The choices are important both in themselves and for symbolic content. Purging Allen and van Cleave, advocates of true defense preparedness and toughened foreign policy, could be a move back toward the very detestant policies that have weakened the nation. Avoiding the establishment's displeasure in filling the Treasury post would signal the embrace of economic orthodoxy.

Taken together, those two steps would signify Reagan's intention to replicate the Nixon-Ford administration: eight years of declining world prestige and a deteriorating economy, accompanied by the Republican Party's stagnation. They have acquired a sheen only in contrast to the four Carter years that followed.

Indeed, widely speculated choices for senior Cabinet posts are all Nixon-Ford retreats. So are many of the advisers in place for the transition. In addition to their advantages of numbers and proximity, these Nixon-Ford veterans wear the cloak of respectability. Their appointment without instant approval from commentators who never wanted Reagan for president anyway.

The transmutation of Ronald Reagan as Gerald Ford's political executor might have been unavoidable had he won narrowly, as expected. Some far-sighted supporters now tell him that his landslide carries a mandate that not only permits but requires him to build an administration with new and distinct policies, however unfamiliar and radical to establishment eyes.

The fate of Dick Allen, Reagan's Washington consultant on foreign policy the past four years, is a test case. Some Reagan advisers have copied the Queen of Hearts, who in ordering off Alice's head insisted: "Sentence first — verdict afterwards." Before conflict-of-interest charges against him could even be studied, these advisers were spreading word that he was gone from the future administration (even if retained to help plan the transition).

There is no evidence of complicity by Henry A. Kissinger (who telephoned Allen condolences about his troubles.) But Allen is viewed by conservative Republican politicians as a safeguard against the return of Kissinger or Kissinger-style detentism. In urging Allen to fight his detractors, one such politician wrote him: "You cannot lose this battle, for it is at the heart of the fight for the mind and soul of the Reagan administration's foreign and defense policies."

Van Cleave, Reagan's principal adviser on arms control, has no ethical charges against him. But when the Reagan campaign Oct. 29 repudiated his public statement that the Reagan administration might have to increase defense spending more than 7 percent a year, there were echoes of President Ford's sacking of James Schlesinger as defense secretary for refusing to cut defense spending. Like Allen, van Cleave has been privately read out of the new administration by some Reagan insiders.

As for the key Treasury post, publicly-mentioned possibilities are, to the man, Nixon-Ford alumni: William Simon, Alan Greenspan, Charles Walker. All are publicly committed, as is Reagan, to sustained tax reduction. But since none of them supported that policy in their Nixon-Ford incarnations, the question arises: Would they opt for caution and respectability in a Reagan administration?

That question cannot be asked about Lew Lehrman, a 42-year-old Yale- and Harvard-educated self-made millionaire from New York City and an innovative economic theorist. At the Treasury, Lehrman would insist on supply-side theories with radical tax reduction. He would start reviving the dollar by moving toward a return to gold backing. He is no favorite of Wall Street but has fervent support from the supply-side economic clique and a wide Republican spectrum in Congress ranging from moderate Rep. David Stockman of Michigan to conservative Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina.

They and other Republican politicians want to see senior Cabinet members whose names are not household words. That would take political courage for Reagan. So would appointment as secretary of state of a name that is familiar: Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson. Some of Reagan's Nixon-Ford advisers (especially Bill Simon) bitterly oppose Jackson, but he would be a departure from the unhappy Republican past and an opening to coalition politics.

The last three presidents to begin new administrations — John F. Kennedy, Richard M. Nixon and Jimmy Carter — were shackled by hairline victories. Not so Reagan, who faces unlimited possibilities with no need to embrace names and policies of a past more associated with failure than success.

Winterize your home against insects, pests

Winterizing your home doesn't also mean weatherstripping and storm windows. To "winterize" against insects and crawling pests means Johnston's No-Roach.

Johnston's No-Roach is odorless and easy to apply. A thin coat of Johnston's No-Roach brushed in cabinets, on baseboards, on door sills and window sills can keep cockroaches, ants, spiders and silverfish from making your home their comfy winter haven.

One application of Johnston's remains effective for months, too.

No need to move dishes or food when you use Johnston's No-Roach.

The easy-to-use brush applicator allows you to get into the cracks and crevices where roaches creep in. Just brush the colorless, odorless coating where you want it. It dries quickly to form an invisible barrier against the pests that stays effective almost all winter.

Keep your family comfortable and healthy this winter. Winterize your home against roaches and other crawling pests with Johnston's No-Roach.

Johnston's No-Roach is available at Furr's, M System, Albertson's, 7-11, Walgreen's and your favorite grocery stores. Johnston's is distributed by Winn-Dixie from Fort Worth.

Ford to recall additional cars due to engine fan problems

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. will recall an additional 523,000 cars to replace engine fans that could throw off their blades and injure someone if the hood is up, Ford said today.

The campaign, the eighth of its kind, brings to about 2 million the number of Ford vehicles recalled in the past three years to fix engine fans.

Cars involved in the latest recall are 1973 and 1974 Ford models equipped with the 5.7-liter (351 cubic inches) V-8 engine and air conditioning, and 1977 Mercury Cougar and Ford Thunderbird and LTD-II models with the same engine and air conditioning.

Seven people have been injured by broken fans on those cars, spokesman John Emmert said. He said he did not have a count of how many had been injured overall.

A Detroit-area mechanic was killed by a blade in 1977. Each recall has involved fan assemblies of slightly different design, Ford said, though all are of the so-called "flex fan" with flexible steel blades attached to a hard steel hub.

Blades break, Emmert said, because they "may be subject to high stresses as a result of resonant vibrations during normal engine operation."

Between 1970 and 1977, about 6.2 million vehicles received the fans.

Court refuses to reinstate fine against AFL-CIO

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today rebuffed the government's attempt to reinstate a $10,000 fine against the AFL-CIO for illegal political campaign spending.

The justices, without comment, left intact a lower court ruling that the fine is not justified.

The Federal Elections Commission filed a complaint against the AFL-CIO in 1978, charging that two of the union organization's entities had transferred money in violation of the Federal Election Campaign Act.

The AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education Fund is a non-partisan group that urges voter registration and political participation. It

Pope says taxes are 'a form of justice'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II told European fiscal experts today that taxes were "a form of justice," although it may sometimes be difficult for governments to levy them in a fair manner.

Citing the words of Christ to "render unto Caesar what is Caesar's, and unto God what is God's," the pontiff said it was the duty of any government to promote the common good of its citizens.

The pope conceded that "legal and just taxation is a difficult thing."

Iran, Iraq trade oil site attacks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq claimed its helicopter gunships set fire to gas installations in besieged Abadan and its tanks killed 74 Iranian troops, while Iran reported its forces destroyed two Iraqi oil terminals on the Persian Gulf and killed 185 enemy troops in Iraqi-occupied territory.

An Iraqi communique said waves of its gunships pounded a natural gas storage center and a gas pipeline in Abadan, the last Iranian stronghold along the Shatt al-Arab estuary at the northern end of the Persian Gulf. It said Iraqi infantry and tanks killed 74 Iraqis in ground assaults on the city's northern and eastern gates. The communique acknowledged 11 Iraqis killed.

An Iranian communique said Iranian forces attacked Iraqi troops Sunday on the northeastern bank of the Bahmanshir River, on the northeast side of Abadan, inflicting losses on the invaders and driving them back from the edge of the waterway. The communique also said Iranian airborne forces and artillery "crushed" Iranian forces on the road linking Abadan and Mahsahr, 50 miles to the east.

Another Iranian communique said navy commandos stormed Iraqi oil loading terminals at Al Bakr and Khor Alamaya, on the Persian Gulf, and "completely destroyed" the two facilities. "Iraq will not be able to export any oil through the Persian Gulf" as a result of the "suicide operation mounted by Iran's naval heroes," the communique said.

Drugs may cause sex problems

CHICAGO (AP) — Some drugs that help alleviate high blood pressure and other circulatory or heart problems can also curb the sex drive and render male patients impotent, a doctor says.

In an article published in the Archives of Internal Medicine, Dr. Chris Papadopoulos of South Baltimore General Hospital warned that the sexual side effects may cause some patients to stop taking their medicine.

"Knowledge of the sexual side effects of the drugs and proper counseling of the patient are vital," the doctor said.

Papadopoulos said a reduction in dosage or substitution of an equally effective drug with less of a potential effect on the patient's sexual functions could alleviate the problem.

Papadopoulos, who also is associated with the University of Maryland School of Medicine, reported his findings in the October edition of the American Medical Association publication.

The study focused on the effects of 16 drugs on male patients. Papadopoulos said, "The effects of drugs on male sexuality are far better described and understood than is their influence on the responses of females, partly because the male response is more visible and quantifiable."

The 16 drugs examined are prescribed for various circulatory problems.

DEAR ABBY

Which has final right: Mother or unborn child?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you told that woman not to have an abortion regardless of what her husband wanted. But you added, "It's YOUR body."

Abby, once a woman has conceived a child, it is not only her body, there is ANOTHER body to consider, another life — the life of her unborn child.

For a woman to abort her child is murder, and there is just no other way to look at it. — GOD-FEARING CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: Please read on for another view:

DEAR ABBY: Since so many women and ministers read your column, I would like to present the Biblical view on abortion:

A woman has the right to abort an accidental pregnancy if she so chooses.

The fetus is not a living soul, but a living organism. It is a part of the mother's body — connected by the umbilical cord. The fetus is not a human soul until the umbilical cord is severed and the fetus takes its first breath of air and is able to survive on its own outside its mother's body.

The Bible clearly states: "God breathed into Adams' nostrils the breath of life, and man BECAME a living soul" (Genesis 2:7). — BIBLE STUDENT

DEAR ABBY: Last Halloween eve, our 11-year-old daughter (I'll call her Tina) went trick-or-treating with three girlfriends.

Tina happens to be very tall for her age. One woman answered her door with treats in hand, looked at Tina and said, "Oh, you're too old for trick-or-treating." Then she gave treats to the other girls who were all much shorter, and Tina was turned away empty-handed. She felt so hurt he left her friends and came home in tears.

Abby, tall children — especially girls — are very sensitive about their height. I suppose they should be taught to develop a tougher defense against insulting remarks about their size, but it might help if you published this letter to remind people that today some 11- and 12-year-olds are nearly full-grown. Thank you. — TINA'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Thanks for a little reminder with a big message.

DEAR ABBY: TICKTOCK TAMMY may get rid of late-night guests who overstay their welcome by having a grandfather clock that chimes every 15 minutes, but it didn't work for me. I have had a chimer and a cuckoo clock in my living room for months, and not one guest left because the clocks chimed and cuckooed.

I had the cuckoo clock set one minute later than the grandfather clock, and right after one chimed, the other cuckooed. Some guests remarked on how "funny" it was, but they all stayed until after midnight. Not one person said, "Well, it's getting late, I think we'd better go."

One guest said, "Doesn't that chiming and cuckooing drive you nuts?" I answered, "No, but you'd better go before it drives YOU nuts!" — CUCKOOED IN CALIFORNIA

Birth defect kits under scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal health agencies today proposed restrictions on the use of commercial test kits that can help detect crippling or fatal birth defects in fetuses.

The regulations proposed by the Department of Health and Human Services are intended to make sure that healthy fetuses are not aborted because of false interpretations of the test results.

The test kits, whose sale is pending approval by the Food and Drug Administration, measure the amount of alpha-fetoprotein, or AFP, in a pregnant woman's blood. All fetuses produce AFP. It is found in the amniotic fluid and some normally passes into the mother's blood.

But if too much AFP is found, it can mean the child will be born dead or with a crippling neural tube defect. Children who survive suffer spina bifida, a spinal column disorder.

But a high level of AFP also can indicate twins, triplets, a dead fetus, a threat of a miscarriage or an incorrect estimate of the fetus' age, the government said. The FDA's proposed rules would restrict the use of the kit to approve testing programs "that can perform the screening test properly and provide all necessary follow-up procedures," the agency said.

The rules would require that a woman with a high AFP level undergo further tests, including a second blood sampling, sonography and, if necessary, amniocentesis to pinpoint the cause of the high AFP level.

Sonography uses sound waves to tell the size and shape of the fetus and can detect twins and give an estimate of the age. In amniocentesis, a doctor inserts a needle into the womb and draws out a small amount of amniotic fluid. The latter procedure carries a small risk of causing miscarriage.

Two other federal agencies, the Center for Disease Control and the Health Care Financing Administration, proposed complementary regulations to require laboratory performing the tests to step up their quality control procedures.

The government said 5,000 of the 3 million babies born in the United States each year suffer neural tube defects.

Test checks mother's milk for pollutants

Now that breast-feeding has become fashionable again, more prospective mothers should be asking their doctors for a test to determine if their milk contains traces of pollutants, some of which cause cancer, said a Texas A&M scientist.

The test involves taking a minute amount of fatty tissue from the abdomen, a process almost as painless as a blood test, said immunologist Dr. David McMurray of Texas A&M's College of Medicine.

While any physician could probably conduct the biopsy, there are still few laboratories around the state to analyze the tissue, and the delay might be lengthy, he said.

But as more of the population — especially young people of child-bearing age — moves to urban areas of Texas, the demand for such information is bound to increase, explained McMurray.

McMurray, with support from the National Institutes of Health, is studying the effects of carcinogens and malnutrition on the antibodies passed from mother to infant through breast-feeding.

He said the testing of a sample of fatty tissue is preferable to analyzing the colostrum and milk because carcinogens such as PCBs are easier to spot in fat.

Since scientists don't yet know the full effect of small traces of pollutants in the milk on the newborn baby, many mothers may choose not to breast-feed if they know they have small amounts of PCB, DDT or other toxic chemicals in their system.

Another are McMurray wants to study is whether the nutritional status of the mother can affect the low-level carcinogens in the milk her baby drinks.

But other tests by McMurray have done much to persuade him breast-feeding is beneficial under normal circumstances.

Research carried out both with laboratory rats and human volunteers in Colombia points to the positive effects of breast-feeding, although there is evidence that mothers who are malnourished produce less milk and that their milk has less of the antibodies needed to protect a nursing infant from viruses.

Across the nation, as more research is focused on the chemistry of mother's milk, other scientists are rediscovering the wheel. A few highlights, as outlined in a copyrighted story by the New York Times, include the following:

— Protection from an antibody group called IgC in mother's milk lasts for several months to a year until the baby slowly develops its own IgC.

— Another kind of antibodies known as IgA are useful in warding off intestinal infection, a major cause of infant disease and death, and are abundant in mother's milk although the infant cannot manufacture these for some months.

— Milk cells known as macrophages, or "big macs," attack harmful microorganisms and can stop the growth of some cancer cells.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Freeze up hints for potatoes

DEAR HELOISE:

We harvested a lot of potatoes from our garden this year and we would like to know the secret of freezing them. I have tried it before, but without success.

I read your column daily and I told my husband that if anyone could help us with this little problem, you could. Thanks for doing so. — Elizabeth Singleton

You are most welcome! But, most of the thanks go to the folks at our local County Extension Office.

If you ever get stuck with a problem pertaining to the freezing and canning of foods, look up these folks in your part of the country, friends. They have a wealth of information on these and other subjects just waiting to be shared with you.

But, back to the potatoes...

Seems there is really not much involved in the process of freezing them. However, I must tell you, new potatoes frozen in this manner may not be of the highest quality when thawed. Even so, to my knowledge, it is the only procedure recommended to date.

Here's what to do:
Select small potatoes and scrub them well in cold water to remove the skins or wash and scrape off the skins.

Heat in boiling water five to eight minutes, depending on size. Drain, cool, package and freeze immediately.

These potatoes can be used in most any potato dish, (except french fries), and keep well in the freezer for several months. One other thing...

Work with only a small amount of potatoes at a time when freezing them and don't get in a big hurry. Haste makes waste or something like that.

This time I hope your efforts are more successful and that you will be enjoying your potatoes all winter — Hugs, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When lighting votive candles, the flame of the match used to burn the matchstick down to the fingers holding it before the candle would light.

Quite by accident — I had been holding an extra match in my mouth — I found the flame would not travel as fast on a damp matchstick.

The tip of the match burned longer too, enabling me to hold the lighted match long enough to light the candle. — Ethelyn Vernon Always Chubby? You needn't stay that way.

Cindy Hogan went from size 15 to size 7 at Pat Walker's. Even if you have a lifelong history of being overweight, you can acquire the slender figure you've always wanted at Pat Walker's—easily, safely and pleasantly. Read how effectively the program worked for Cindy Hogan, the attractive young woman shown here.

"I've always been chubby. My uncle has told me that I've never been little. The last time I weighed what I weigh now was in the sixth grade. From then on I started an upgrade with my weight. I'd go on a diet and lose, but the day I'd stop starving the weight would start piling back on.

"I really found it hard to believe when the counselor at Pat Walker's told me I should be wearing a size 7 or 5, because at that time I was in a 15. As you can see by my latest picture, I'm in size 7 shorts. Now I'm even getting hand-me-downs from my little sister.

"The counselors at Pat Walker's really encouraged and cheered me on. They taught me how to eat the foods I like and still not become the 'old chubby me.'"

Don't Procrastinate

Haven't you endured long enough the embarrassment and unhappiness that are part of being fat?

The time to do something about it is NOW. The place is Pat Walker's. At our elegant salon, you can lose pounds and inches with dignity and in complete privacy—without stringent diets or strenuous exercises, without even having to change from your regular street clothes.

Furthermore, once you have your perfect figure, you can maintain it forever on your own; no further treatments will be necessary.

Neither a gym nor a spa, Pat Walker's can give you all these advantages:

- a proven program of weight reduction

Saturn's moons named after giants

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The latest Saturn moon discovered by Voyager 1 is unromantically designated S-15. But the tiny object may one day bear the name of a giant.

"The satellites of Saturn are all named after giants and Titans from mythology," said Bradford Smith, a Voyager scientist and member of the international panel that must find a name for at least six recently discovered moons of Saturn.

Voyager 1 spotted the 15th moon over the weekend as it soared toward a Wednesday rendezvous with the sixth planet. The unmanned space probe found two other moons last month. The naming process, which begins with a meeting in England next April, won't be completed until 1982 when the names are adopted by the full general assembly of the International Astronomical Society.

The planet itself takes its name from the Roman god of agriculture.

All but one of the nine previously discovered and christened moons were named after the Titans, giant offspring of the ancient Greek Earth goddess Gaea and her husband Uranus, ruler of the heavens. Among them are Tethys, Hyperion, Iapetus, Phoebe and Rhea. The largest moon is called Titan, after the mythological race itself.

The exception is the moon Enceladus, named for a 100-armed giant who was killed by the goddess Athena.

And though most of Saturn's moons were named for heroic Titans, at least one, Mimas, was an evil creature, with the head of a man and the body of a serpent, who also warred against the gods.

The international society's nomenclature task force will name not only the new moons, but also the distinct features, such as craters, that Voyager is expected to find this week on Saturn's larger moons. Smith said names for such features "will be drawn from the mythology of all cultures and nations."

"There is a strong tendency to center around Mediterranean mythology (in the search for names)," said Smith, a University of Arizona astronomer. "But we go to great lengths to avoid that and to look to the myths of other cultures."

When a moon is found by a specific astronomer, the discoverer usually is allowed to recommend a name that fits the pattern. Smith said that doesn't apply to the three new moons so far spotted in Voyager photographs since that has been a team effort.

Names for moons and features chosen by the task force in April will be submitted to a Working Group for Planetary System Nomenclature. Then the names go to the society's execution committee, which must approve and submit them to the full membership in 1982.

This is a computer composite of photos taken October 30 by NASA's Voyager I from about 11 million miles away from Saturn. This composite shows the capability of the Voyager narrow-angle camera to portray scenes not visible to the human eye by reducing the contrast between the rings. (AP Laserphoto)

Guardsmen help fight forest fires

By Associated Press National Guardsmen and firefighters from a number of states today joined the battle against dozens of forest fires, some believed deliberately set, that have consumed more than 17,000 acres in mountainous eastern Kentucky and West Virginia.

West Virginia state forester Asher Kelley said dry and windy conditions fueled the weekend blazes that scorched more than 10,000 acres. Most of the fires were reported in Mingo, Logan and Wayne counties.

In Kentucky, where weekend fires consumed more than 7,000 acres, Forest Service spokesman Charles Crail said many were set intentionally.

"Somebody might be mad at the governor, or mad at their neighbor," he said. "Some do it just for pure meanness."

Crail said other fires were started by hunters "running deer with fire."

Meanwhile, in New Mexico, a forest fire ignited by a fallen power line charred an estimated 320 acres of ponderosa pine and other timber before it was contained in the mountains north of Mora, N.M., officials said today.

After a helicopter tour Sunday, Kentucky Adj. Gen. Billy Wellman activated 30 National Guard members at Hazard and 20 at Jackson to help fight fires.

Hazard and Perry County were among the areas hardest hit, said fire control official Charles Prather at the state Division of Forestry in Frankfort.

Prather estimated that at least 100 fires — some as large as 100 acres or more — were still burning in eastern and south-eastern Kentucky, where he said about 7,000 acres of forest burned Saturday.

With no significant rain for more than two weeks, and none forecast through mid-week, Prather said, "We're planning for another week at least of having to do battle with them."

The U.S. Forest Service had its own fire problems, with about 20 blazes in the 666,000-acre Daniel Boone National Forest in eastern Kentucky, Crail said.

U.S. Forest Service crews from Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee were fighting the fires in the national forest area and a crew from Florida was en route, Crail said.

The state division has no firefighting aircraft, except for observation purposes, Prather said, and because of the steep terrain, "We can't use crawler tractors in eastern Kentucky."

In the national forest, Crail said some aerial help was available.

"It's like a big military operation," he said.

"Each crew has about 20 men, and we have two helicopters with buckets and another on order with a belly tank" to drop water on the fires.

The U.S. Forest Service's eastern region headquarters said it was rounding up firefighting crews in Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin to help fight the fires in the Daniel Boone National Forest.

The crewmen were told to assemble Monday morning in Duluth, Minn., then fly to Detroit to pick up more before traveling to Lexington, Ky.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY:

Novelist Kurt Vonnegut was born on this day, as were actors Robert Ryan and Pat O'Brien, and comedian Jonathan Winters. In the year ahead, personal finances benefit from a change in a business relationship, and you begin to get much more fun out of life. Romance remains prominent in your plan, and a move to a new residence is a distinct possibility. Imaginative and sentimental, you need to project yourself a bit more forcefully in your personal relationships.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An overly eager associate may stand in the way of progress. Be patient but firm. Only endorse those projects and products in which you have total faith.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Matters concerning privacy are especially important to you now. You would be wise to make a major decision on your own. Think over your options before taking any action.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Travel is likely to play a key role today. Legal papers are a source of interest, concern. Be careful not to show irritation if associates surprise you with an alternative business plan.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): To avoid possible embarrassment, handle all of the minute details connected with a financial transaction personally. Loved one may have misunderstood something said in jest.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep long-term career goals in mind. Mate, partner offers a new perspective of an old dilemma. You are about to receive some good news regarding employment. Play your cards close to your chest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your self-control will surprise and please loved ones. To avoid dissension, discuss decisions with mate. Higher-up slows new interest in an old idea. Allow extra time to reach appointments on time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Serenity is the key to greater joy in your personal life. Follow up on a creative idea if holding for a fatter paycheck. Old acquaintances can be a source of valuable contacts, information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Something in the mail could set your spirits soaring today. Guard your reputation for efficiency by meeting all deadlines. A domestic misunderstanding can have rather comical results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Meet new challenges head on! Postponing a financial decision will only compound any difficulties that already exist. Rest and relaxation help to put you on the right track.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A heart-to-heart talk gives your spirits a needed lift. Your keen memory could help to advance some personal aims. Financial returns will be greater than expected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Decisions made early in the morning may have to be reversed later on. Think carefully before taking action. Some troubling domestic confusion will be cleared up in the near future.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Discussions with co-workers about earning power may disturb the peace for a short while. Lay your cards on the table when talking with mate.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ104 ♥94 ♦85 ♣QJ976
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♠ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Although you have a decent hand, there is nothing you can do with it at the moment because any new suit bid by you would be forcing. Your wisest course is to pass and hope that partner can reopen the bidding. Change one of our low clubs to a low spade, however, and we would venture two spades.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQJ54 ♥9 ♦A875 ♣1062
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—We do, on occasion, stretch a bit and jump to two no trump with 18 points instead of the prescribed 19. However, with prime values and a good four-card major, there is no reason to suppress the suit. Bid one spade. There is hardly any risk in this action. Should partner pass, chance for game must be negligible. And if he bids again, you will have a better idea of what the final contract should be.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q105 ♥AQ8 ♦A985 ♣K32
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—To this point, you have sounded like a person with a minimum bid and no particular liking for partner's suit. Actually, you have a maximum for your previous bidding and a fine fit for both his suits. It is time to tell him of this—take a jump preference to three spades.

Answer On Market Page

A.—Despite the fact that you have taken only a preference (when you probably should have raised to three diamonds at your second turn) and might not have a very robust hand, partner is still looking for something. Do not make the mistake of rebidding three no trump—if that's where partner wanted to play, he could have bid that himself. You should confirm your good support for partner's first bid suit by going on to four diamonds.

1 ♠ Dble. ?

What action do you take?
A.—Your hand is too good for a raise to two spades over the takeout double—it is worth about 11 points in points in support of a spade contract. Redouble, then bid spades at your next turn—that is the accepted way to describe a holding of this sort.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

Polish court rules in favor of union

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Polish Supreme Court ruled today in favor of the nation's biggest independent union, Solidarity, and registered its charter without the hotly-disputed clause asserting the Communist Party's supremacy.

The moved overruled a lower court decision that the clause be inserted in the charter and defused a showdown between the government and Solidarity, which threatened to strike Wednesday if the high court rejected its appeal.

Union leader Lech Walesa arrived at the downtown Warsaw court house a few minutes before the court convened, and there were plans for him to call off strike preachers plans at a televised news conference this afternoon.

The Supreme Court's presiding judge, Witold Formanski, said in an oral explanation that the lower court had "no right to either cross out any sections of the charter, nor to add anything."

The Polish government indicated Sunday it was not giving any ground in the case, and began restricting foreign correspondents in an apparent move to limit coverage of possible new strikes.

Dozens of foreign correspondents were denied entry to the country at Warsaw's international airport. Correspondents already in the country on visitors visas were called to the passport office and were expected to be told to leave Poland.

Customs guards said the government has ordered that only reporters permanently based in the country would be allowed to remain. These presumably would include the resident foreign correspondents of the New York Times, the British and West German news agencies and West German television. The Associated Press and United Press International employ Polish citizens as their full-time correspondents.

In the legal showdown, Solidarity asked for cancellation of a lower court's order last month including in the union's charter a clause affirming the supremacy of the Communist Party.

Solidarity, which claims to represent 10 million of Poland's 18 million workers, said the clause undermined the independence promised the unions during the labor uprising last summer. They said it wasn't needed since the union recognizes Article 3 of the Polish Constitution, which states the party is the "leading political force of society in the building of socialism."

"This constitutional provision is clear enough and there is no need for any additional interpretation," one of Solidarity's chapters said in an article Sunday in a Silesian newspaper.

But PAP, the official news agency, indicated that the government would insist on acceptance of the amendment of its charter. It said more than 20 smaller independent unions have made declarations affirming the party's leadership role, so "there is no need to remind how great an importance this declaration has in the statutes of the new trade unions, a declaration which determines the ideological face of the new movement."

Solidarity said earlier if the Supreme Court ruled against it, it would launch a series of strikes in selected industries around the country, beginning Wednesday. It was distributing detailed strike instructions to its members during the weekend, and Walesa and other officials of the union met in Warsaw Sunday. But they refused to tell reporters what they decided.

Warsaw Radio said there would be no victors in a strike, "only the vanquished."

Polish television showed film of joint Soviet-Polish military exercises believed held in northern Poland. It appeared to be a warning of Soviet military intervention if a new strike wave broke out.

Head lice gone

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Business is back to normal today at the University of Tulsa. The head lice apparently are gone, officials say.

Classes and business operations were canceled Friday, when the university "fumigated every building on campus," Jim Lamb, assistant director of university relations, said Sunday.

"As far as I know, it's ended," said Lamb.

The outbreak of the tiny, blood-sucking parasites was discovered a week ago when two women students reported they had lice. By Thursday, about 200 of the 6,200 students at Oklahoma's largest private university were found to have lice.

Lamb said the fight against the lice almost stalled when the university ran out of a special shampoo that helps infested people get rid of the pests. Some 196 cases of shampoo had to be airlifted from Houston.

The chemicals used in fumigation — the same kind used to keep lice out of the Tulsa County Jail — were safe for people, but Lamb said "some of us were afraid that we'd lose plants that were too big to move" from offices and classrooms. A post-fogging check of the plants indicated they had survived, he said.

Whether the university has truly won the war against the head lice remains to be seen, Lamb said.

"The kids have to keep after them," he said. During the next few weeks, those being treated for lice must "wash with the shampoo three times to be on the safe side."

Beirut bombings return

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two booby-trapped cars exploded today in a crowded public square in predominantly Christian East Beirut and first reports indicated 20 people were killed and 50 wounded, police said.

The square, in the residential neighborhood of Ashrafieh, was filled with lunch hour crowds when the bombs exploded within five minutes of each other, witnesses said.

One bomb went off outside a pharmacy and the second exploded in a parking lot facing a movie theater about 500 yards away, a police spokesman said.

The spokesman said 19 cars parked near the Sunset movie theater went up in flames as fire trucks and ambulances rushed to the square to help get the victims to hospitals.

Shops quickly closed around the stricken areas and streets were deserted. Only militia forces of Lebanon's rightist Phalange Party, which controls Beirut's eastern half, were supervising rescue operations, the spokesman said.

It was the fifth such explosion in East Beirut since Phalangist military commander Bashir Gemayel cracked down on the main rival militia of former President Camille Chamoun's National Liberal Party on July 7.

East Beirut has been hit by a wave of car bombings and in recent weeks militias of Gemayel and Chamoun have repeatedly clashed. An estimated 300 people have died in the violence since July.

Some police sources say the car bombings may be the work of disgruntled NLP supporters.

Gemayel has also been accused by leftists of seeking to proclaim a breakaway Christian state in Phalangist-held areas, which cover about one-fifth of 4,015 square-mile Lebanon.

Gemayel denied the allegations Sunday in a magazine interview.

Gemayel's Phalangists are also locked in a feud with the militia of former Christian president Suleiman Franjeh, who controls Zagaratha province on the northern edge of Mount Lebanon. Franjeh is an ally of the Syrian peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

Franjeh blamed Gemayel for the massacre of his elder son Tony, his wife and 3-year-old daughter along with 30 supporters at the Franjeh summer villa in the northern town of Ehdn on April 13, 1978.

Gemayel has escaped two assassination attempts since. In the last attempt, his 19-month-old daughter and four bodyguards were killed.

Pope sees bitter Mideast conflict

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II said today a Middle East settlement that does not address the Palestinian problem and the question of Jerusalem "could spark an ever more bitter conflict."

The pontiff, receiving credentials from a new Egyptian envoy, said: "Any so-called peace which would not take into account all the elements of divergency and which would not ultimately include all the parties who are directly concerned would risk being ineffective and could spark an ever more bitter conflict."

He told Ambassador Moustafa Kamal el-Diwani at a Vatican ceremony that he has followed closely President Anwar Sadat's "efforts to build a lasting peace."

"And I am happy to receive from you the confirmation that the efforts will continue despite all difficulties," the pope said. "In fact, precisely because the tensions and dangers have increased in recent times, the work of peace... must go on."

Speaking in English, Pope John Paul told the envoy that peace efforts "must be intensified until a comprehensive peace is achieved - a peace which provides for an equitable solution to all aspects of the Middle East crisis, including the Palestinian problem and the question of Jerusalem."

The pope did not mention Israel or any other country except Egypt in his brief remarks.

In recent months, Pope John Paul has spoken out several times on the status of Jerusalem and the plight of the displaced Palestinians.

In an official position paper issued June 30, the Vatican warned that "any unilateral act tending to modify the status of the Holy City would be very serious" and called for safeguards enforced by an international body to guarantee religious rights of Jews, Moslems and Christians in Jerusalem.

Israeli military forces occupied the eastern half of Jerusalem during the June 1967 war. Israel formally annexed the city in August this year.

Zimbabwe factions fighting

BULAWAYO, Zimbabwe (AP) — Fighting intensified today between rival black nationalist guerrillas camped around Bulawayo, Zimbabwe's second-largest city, with security sources reporting at least 18 persons killed and more than 60 wounded.

The fighting erupted Sunday with a clash in which at least one person died and 34 were wounded, police said.

It was the worst fighting between the rival guerrilla armies of Prime Minister Robert Mugabe and Home Affairs Minister Joshua Nkomo since the country gained independence from Britain on April 18, following Mugabe's February election victory.

Hundreds of blacks were fleeing the black townships near the fighting and police sealed off the area to prevent anyone from entering.

Today's fighting erupted at about 5:30 a.m. local time and continued past noon with automatic weapons fire, machine gun bursts and the explosions of artillery shells and mortar rounds heard in the city.

Among those killed today were three blacks who were driving past the scene of the fighting and one white man, security force sources said.

About 50 national army soldiers manned roadblocks in trucks and armored vehicles deployed around the area of the fighting, the South African Press Association reported.

Guerrillas, dressed in civilian clothing, opened fire on the army at one point, SAPA said. It gave no details.

Zimbabwe's army is made up of former members of the two guerrilla armies and troops of the former Rhodesian army, who fought the guerrillas in a seven-year war in defense of white-minority rule.

More than 3,000 armed members of the two former guerrilla armies have been temporarily housed in camps in Bulawayo's black townships.

Sunday's clash followed an attempt by Nkomo supporters to disrupt a rally by Mugabe's party in this Nkomo stronghold.

He told Ambassador Moustafa Kamal el-Diwani at a Vatican ceremony that he has followed closely President Anwar Sadat's "efforts to build a lasting peace."

Giants club Dallas Cowboys

Just your routine, run-of-the-mill 38-35 NFL contest

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — It was just your routine, run-of-the-mill 38-35 National Football League game. Nothing special, unless you consider that the New York Giants had the 38 and the Dallas Cowboys the 35.

slippery, the Giants went for the flea flicker. Simms handed off to Perry, who faked an inside run and then pitched back to the quarterback, who fired to Friede.

would expect it?" Certainly not the Cowboys. Van Pelt positively glowed over the victory. He's one of the few Giants who were around the last time New York beat Dallas.

Tony Dorsett (33), who had 183 yards rushing for the Dallas Cowboys Sunday in New York, watches in dismay as the Giants surround Gary Woolford, center, after his interception with seconds remaining to insure the Giants of a 38-35 upset victory. (AP Laserphoto)

Simms threw for 351 yards and three touchdowns. Friede caught seven passes for 138 yards. Heater and Perry gave New York 117 yards on the ground. The Giants needed all those good numbers plus five interceptions to overcome a 183-yard game by Tony Dorsett, who scored two touchdowns for Dallas.

Fire claims Ted Sitton

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — The death of Chuck Sitton, 24-year-old son of Abilene Christian University football coach Ted Sitton and a former All-America player, was just one of many tragedies to strike the beleaguered team this year.

That same night, the mother of offensive coordinator Don Smith died in California. Later that same week, starting running back Steve Worthey was hospitalized with what Roberts said was an emotion-related illness.

Eagles increase lead to two

By The Associated Press

Phil Simms passed for 351 yards and three touchdowns and Joe Danelo kicked a 27-yard field goal with 1:07 remaining to enable the New York Giants to snap an eight-game losing streak with a 38-35 upset of the Dallas Cowboys in National Football League action Sunday.

more as Miami surprised Los Angeles. Woodley completed scoring passes of 31 yards to Tony Nathan, 6 yards to Nat Moore and 2 yards to Bruce Hardy and ran for TDs of 6 and 10 yards.

down passes, two of them to James Scott, and Walter Payton scored on a 50-yard run and a 54-yard pass reception to lead the Chicago Bears to a 35-21 victory over the Washington Redskins.

The loss dropped Dallas two games behind the Philadelphia Eagles in the National Conference East race, The Eagles raised their record to 9-1, best in the league, by handing the winless New Orleans Saints their 10th straight loss, 34-21.

Steve Fuller drove Kansas City 91 yards in 11 plays, capped by Arnold Morgado's 1-yard touchdown run with 40 seconds left, as the Chiefs nipped the Seahawks. Seattle had gone ahead 30-24 on a 2-yard touchdown run by Jim Jodat with 4:10 to go.

Tommy Kramer passed for 295 yards and two touchdowns and Kurt Knoff returned an interception 67 yards for a TD as the Minnesota Vikings blanked the Detroit Lions 34-0. The Lions committed seven turnovers and Detroit quarterback Gary Danielson was sacked eight times by the aroused Vikings' defense, which posted its first shutout since 1975.

Philadelphia's Ron Jaworski completed 21 of 32 pass attempts for 323 yards and hit big Harold Carmichael for TDs of 10, 6 and 25 yards.

Brian Sipe passed for two touchdowns and rookie Charles White scored on a pair of 5-yard runs as the Browns beat the Colts for their fifth consecutive victory. Cleveland, 7-3, leads Houston by one-half game and Pittsburgh by one game in the AFC Central.

Lynn Dickey completed 24 of 33 passes for 244 yards and Tom Birney kicked field goals of 50, 39 and 24 yards to carry the Green Bay Packers to a 23-16 triumph over the San Francisco 49ers.

The Giants' upset was the biggest of the day, but it wasn't the only one. The Denver Broncos surprised the San Diego Chargers 20-13, the Miami Dolphins tripped the Los Angeles Rams 35-14, the Kansas City Chiefs defeated the Seattle Seahawks 31-30 and the Cleveland Browns edged the Baltimore Colts 28-27 — all four winning on the road.

Sipe completed 15 of his first 17 passes and finished with 22 of 29. Baltimore's Bert Jones, who completed 27 of 39 passes for 289 yards, tossed two scoring passes in the final 1:27 to pull the Colts to within one point with 19 seconds remaining. But an onside kick failed, and the difference was a missed conversion attempt by Steve Mike-Mayer in the second quarter.

The Atlanta Falcons overcame a 24-6 halftime deficit and beat the St. Louis Cardinals 33-27 on Ray Strong's 21-yard TD run with 4:42 gone in overtime. The victory, coupled with Los Angeles' loss, gave the Falcons, 7-3, a one-game lead over the Rams in the NFC West. Steve Bartkowski completed 31 of 47 passes for 378 yards for Atlanta, while Jim Hart threw for 344 yards on 25 of 43 for St. Louis.

Rob Lytle and Dave Preston ran for one touchdown apiece and Fred Steinfeld kicked two field goals to carry Denver past San Diego. Dan Fouts completed 29 of 45 pass attempts for 363 yards for the Chargers.

In other games, Pittsburgh's defense forced two first-quarter turnovers to set up 10 quick points and the Steelers withstood a 302-yard, three-touchdown passing show by Tampa Bay's Doug Williams to beat the Bucs 24-21.

Joe Ferguson's third touchdown pass of the game, a 31-yarder to Frank Lewis with six seconds to play, gave the Buffalo Bills a 31-24 victory over the New York Jets.

Rookie David Woodley passed for three touchdowns and ran for two touchdowns. Heater and Perry gave New York 117 yards on the ground. The Giants needed all those good numbers plus five interceptions to overcome a 183-yard game by Tony Dorsett, who scored two touchdowns for Dallas.

Coach Sitton was hospitalized with ulcers for five days during the most intensive two-day-a-day practices, Roberts said, and the entire team has been plagued with injuries.

NEW YORK had just taken over at the Dallas 47 with 2:22 to play when linebacker Brad Van Pelt, who had two interceptions, stacked up Robert Newhouse on a fourth-and-inches.

Services were scheduled for today at the Highland Church of Christ in Abilene.

"I thought to myself then, we can't lose now," said Simms. "I knew we'd get it down and score."

On Aug. 17, the day before Abilene Christian's fall practices began, Greg Pratt died at an Abilene hospital after he was suddenly and mysteriously stricken with an unknown illness.

The route they took was unexpected. With a heavy rain making the ball

ACU sports information director Garner Roberts said doctors later determined Pratt suffered from sickle cell trait, which caused his blood cells to curve and clog his veins and arteries.

Baylor is no SWC freak

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

The 1980 version of the Baylor Bears is no freak of football nature like the 1974 Southwest Conference champions.

One. We are in charge of our own destiny. This is a much different situation.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said as much Saturday several hours after his Bears had clinched at least a co-championship with a 42-15 thrashing of Arkansas that could have been much worse.

"THIS YEAR'S team is no 'Miracle on the Brazos.'" "Cotton With Character" is what a bumper sticker said which Teaff had in his hand in the press box after the game.

They can clinch their second Cotton Bowl visit this century by defeating the Rice Owls in Houston Saturday.

"Cotton Bowl '81-Believe It!" T-Shirts is what the Baylor players wore during the Razorback rout. Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz believes.

"In 1974, we lost three of our first six games. ... Then something sort of electric happened," said Teaff. "This time we've been leading since Day

"Baylor undoubtedly will go to the Cotton Bowl and be a great representative," said Holtz. Teaff was still visibly irritated at what he considered a slight by an unnamed Cotton Bowl official.

Paige is shocked by announcement

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Southern University's athletic director has resigned his administrative post effective Dec. 1, the university president announced Monday.

"I was driving home and listening to my car radio and this guy (a Cotton Bowl official) was talking about Houston and Texas being in the Cotton Bowl and never mentioned Baylor," said Teaff. "You would have thought he would say Baylor had an outside chance.

Dr. Roderick Paige, TSU's athletic director since 1971, said he was "shocked" by the announcement, adding that he had expected it to come later in the year.

"I don't mind telling you it irritates me to hear that kind of talk. The same thing happened in 1974." In 1974, Baylor won first SWC title in 50 years.

"It's one of those things to be expected with the new man," he said.

TEXAS GREATLY aided the Bears' cause by defeating Houston 15-13 to give the Baptists, generally regarded as a second division team in preseason analysis, a two-game lead over the field.

Paige said he had tendered his resignation to new TSU president Dr. Leonard H.O. Spearman in October.

In other games Saturday, Texas Christian won its first game of the season by overcoming a 17-point lead to upset Texas Tech 24-17, and Southern Methodist stayed in the bowl spotlight with a 34-14 victory over Rice.

Under his direction, TSU teams have won eight national championships, 28 conference championships, produced 81 All America players and three Olympians.

Bowls can sign teams next Saturday, and scouts are hot after the 7-2 Mustangs who travel to Lubbock next week to play Texas Tech.

Raider move could ignite war

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle concedes it's possible that if the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission wins its suit to bring the Oakland Raiders to Los Angeles, the move could spark another legal war over pay television proceeds.

In other games Texas, which is 6-2 and a bowl possibility, is at Texas Christian while Texas A&M travels to Arkansas.

If the suit is successful, it is believed by many that Al Davis, the club's managing general partner, would pursue the growing cable television market for home games at the Coliseum.

Those contracts bring each team $5.85 million a year.

But there is some question whether Davis would have to share revenue from pay TV equally with the 27 other NFL clubs, as is the policy with commercial TV contracts.

"That's been our policy since 1962," he said. "But I think you might have to put 'obliged' in quotes." Asked whether there is a provision for that in the NFL constitution, Rozelle replied, "I'm not sure it's covered, but it's been the spirit of the NFL since its inception (to share equally)."

Wallace wins Global 250

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Rusty Wallace of Valley Park, Mo., won $7,000 and the Global 250 Sunday from his fifth-position, third-row spot at the Texas World Speedway.

Joe Ruttman of Upland, Calif., rolled to a second-place finish and took home $5,000, and David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., earned $3,500 with his third-place win.

It's time for SWC math quiz

DALLAS (AP) — The Baylor Bears clinched at least a tie for the Southwest Conference championship Saturday with its win over Arkansas and Southern Methodist chances all but died for appearing in the Dallas classic despite a win over Rice.

Baylor is 8-1 for the season and a perfect 6-0 in SWC action and must lose to both Rice and Texas, in a Nov. 22 game at Waco, to blow its opportunity to go to the Cotton Bowl.

If Baylor stumbles the worst it can do is 6-2, and Houston, Texas and Southern Methodist could match that record by winning the remainder of their games.

SMU has two games left, at Texas Tech next Saturday and in Dallas against Arkansas on Nov. 22.

Houston also has two games remaining, at Texas Tech on Nov. 22 and against Rice on Nov. 29.

Texas has three games to play. The Longhorns are at Texas Christian next Saturday, at Baylor Nov. 22 and in Austin against Texas A&M on Nov. 29.

SMU has two chances, both of which hinge on Baylor losing both its games and both the Mustangs and Texas winning the remainder of theirs.

Should Texas lose any of its last three games, SMU can't go to the Cotton Bowl no matter what happens to Baylor. The only alternatives left would be a 2-way tie with Baylor or a 3-way tie involving Baylor and Houston, and the Bears would advance either way since they beat both.

On the other hand, Texas can go to Dallas on Jan. 1 only if SMU gets knocked out of the running. The Longhorns would advance in a 2-way tie with Baylor or a 3-way tie involving Baylor and Houston by virtue of wins over both teams.

But in any 3-way or 4-way tie involving SMU, the Mustangs would get the nod. Unless one team has beaten all the others, the SWC breaks the deadlock by sending the team that has gone longest without a Cotton Bowl appearance. That would be SMU, which hasn't been since its 24-9 loss to Georgia in 1967.

SMU's losses in SWC play have been to Baylor and Houston. Houston lost to SMU and Texas Tech.

Houston, the Cotton Bowl host team on three of the past four years, can't go by any calculations. The Cougars would lose to Baylor in a 3-way tie involving SMU and to Texas in a 3-way tie involving the Longhorns.

Baylor made its only appearance in the Cotton Bowl in 1975 in a 41-20 loss to Penn State. Texas went to the Cotton Bowl six straight times from 1969-74 and returned in a 38-10 defeat to Notre Dame in 1978.

Paul angered by Winfield

CLEVELAND (AP) — San Diego Padres outfielder Dave Winfield is trying to manipulate the re-entry draft in professional baseball, says the president of the Cleveland Indians.

Winfield, the offensive leader of the National League San Diego team for several years, has played out his option and is a free agent. He reportedly is seeking a long-term million dollar-plus contract.

But Gabe Paul, head man of the American League Indians, says Winfield is trying to fix the game.

Under the draft rules, 13 teams may select negotiating rights to a free agent; the selection is made in reverse order of the past season standings.

The New York Yankees have publicly said they are seeking to buy Winfield's services. Because the Yankees finished high in the standings last year, they pick late in the draft, raising the possibility that 13 teams could pick Winfield before the Yankees' turn comes.

But Paul said Winfield has sent the Indians and several other clubs a polite letter explaining why he doesn't want to play for them, although, he writes, he has nothing against the city or the team.

The purpose of the letter, as Paul sees it, is to make it possible for the Yankees to obtain draft rights to Winfield.

"What Winfield is doing defeats the whole spirit of the re-entry draft procedure. No one has done this before as brazenly as he has," Paul said.

Jim Campbell, general manager of the Detroit Tigers, said he received a similar letter.

"It's unfair for any player to try to do this. I'm all for allowing every club who wants a player the right to go after him. But this isn't what the owners and the other players agreed to, so it's not right for any of us, players or owners, to blatantly try to defeat the principle of the rule," Paul said.

Paul said he intends to select Winfield despite the player's apparent advance letter.

Roaches is not ordinary ice cream truck driver

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas A&M, fit all too well into the "Odd Job Department" of past Oiler players. Johnny Dirden drove a cement truck before signing an Oiler contract. Guido Merken, another specialty teamer, was discovered while playing on a slow pitch softball team.

The comparison was too much to resist for sports writers and sportscasters. No sooner had Roaches completed his abortive touchdown run against the Broncos than broadcasters were shouting "And just a year ago, this guy was driving an ice cream truck."

Actually, Roaches said, he was working for Arco Chemical as a process operator when he decided to seek a tryout with the Oilers prior to this season.

"They made it sound like some guy came in off the street who had never played football before and started doing what I did," Roaches said.

"I did drive an ice cream truck but that was last summer and it was only because I owned four or five trucks. I was only doing that because I was looking for something else. It should be put in its proper perspective."

Roaches' return against the Broncos, although it was wiped out, proved it could be done.

Millsaps Majors are No. 1?

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Alabama's mighty Crimson Tide football team has been beaten. So have Texas, Penn State and Pittsburgh. And Notre Dame's been tied.

But the Millsaps Majors — playing with only two coaches and no athletic scholarships — have an undefeated season.

Millsaps, with a team dedicated to playing "just because it's fun," capped its season Saturday at Jackson with a 84-0 rout of Landmark College.

The Majors marched through the likes of Fisk, Sewanee, St. Leo and Maryville on the way to the 9-0 record.

The college makes more money from charging for parking when teams like Mississippi and Mississippi State play at nearby Mississippi Memorial Stadium than it does from its football program.

"We have the ideal situation here that, because of the lack of publicity, the lack of big fan support and the lack of all that glamour and shine, we're out there playing football because we want to," said Claude Arnett, a senior pre-med major whose 3.6 grade point average is one of the best on the team. "We don't do it for the money and the women and whatever else they get. We do it just because it's fun."

That is not the sort of attitude supported by programs which revere football.

"The question is, 'why should it be?'" said Dr. Bob King, Millsaps dean of academics. "It doesn't exist in its own right. It exists for the students — for the ones who participate and the students who watch. But it primarily is for the students who participate."

Millsaps' place in NCAA Division III football allows it to pursue athletics without letting it get in the way of academics. Division III rules don't allow scholarships and frown upon recruiting and the resulting courting of athletes.

Football Coach Harper Davis, in his 17th year at Millsaps, has one assistant, a small office and a departmental secretary. But he makes it home for dinner most nights.

Big salaries earned by pro athletes from big-name schools don't make the Millsaps players jealous, just angry.

"How much do pro athletes make a year?" Arnett asks. "That's absurd. I mean what do they do? I mean sure, they're talented, but what about teachers and doctors? Pro athletes make more money than upper-class professionals."

Borg, McEnroe gain finals

By The Associated Press

Tennis giants Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe will meet in the finale tonight in the $175,000 Stockholm Open championship. Their meeting was assured Sunday when both scored straight-set semifinal victories.

McEnroe, who revengeed Borg's record fifth Wimbledon victory with a triumph in the U.S. Open, overpowered fellow American Bob Lutz 6-3, 6-3. Borg, making a rare appearance in his native Sweden, took American Gene Mayer 6-2, 7-5.

Oddly enough, Borg has won only once in Stockholm, and that was in 1975 Davis Cup play. Since his victory over McEnroe last summer, Borg has suffered through a four-month drought, first he has experienced since he was 16.

They will be meeting for the fourth time in 1980. Prior to his Wimbledon victory Borg beat McEnroe in January in a tournament at New York's Madison Square Garden. That tournament counted toward the 1979 Grand Prix championship, however.

Top-seeded Tracy Austin won $22,000 by turning back fellow American Sherry Acker 6-2, 7-5 in the $125,000 Stuttgart Grand Prix. The 17-year-old Austin, who also received a sports car, won the tournament for the third straight year.

Betty Stove of the Netherlands and Hanna Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia whipped Americans Anne Smith and Kathy Jordan 7-5, 6-4 to win the doubles crown.

Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia collected the $13,125 first prize for his come-from-behind victory over American Brian Teacher in the $70,000 Hong Kong Tennis Classic. It was the sixth Grand Prix tour victory over Lendl.

He lost the first set, in which there were four service breaks, 5-7. Then Teacher broke the 20-year-old Czech's service in the fourth game second set a 4-1 lead. Earlier Teacher won a point with a delicate volley that Lendl angrily hit out of the open-air stadium — an action that resulted in a $200 fine.

Top ranked prep teams come away with wins

By The AP

With the battle for district races and playoff berths coming down to the wire, only one of the 40 ranked teams in The Associated Press schoolboy football poll took it on the chin during the crucial ninth weekend of play.

Defending state champion Temple, ranked first in Class 5A, stomped outgunned Cooperas Cove, 70-0, as backup running back Grady Broadus accounted for three touchdowns and set up another with a 50-yard interception return.

No. 2 Port Arthur Jefferson rolled to a 55-6 win over Nederland. Jefferson quarterback Todd Dodge secured his place in state gridiron history by moving into the No. 2 spot on the all-time 5A passing list.

Dodge hit 20 of 32 passes for 308 yards and three touchdowns to raise his career tally to 4,343 career yards. That places him behind only Tommy Kramer, the Rice University and Minnesota Vikings signal-caller who performed his high school heroics at San Antonio Lee.

No. 9 Wheeler in Class 2A was the lone loser, falling to Canadian, 20-14.

In other games involving top-ranked teams third-ranked Gregory-Portland doused Calallen, 22-6; Andrews, No. 4, overran Sweetwater, 29-8; and fifth-spotted Wichita Falls Hirschi blanked Iowa Park, 14-0.

Sixth-ranked Corsicana clipped Dallas Madison, 28-22; and Huntville, No. 10, defeated Brenham, 28-10.

Childress, ranked No. 1 in 3A, blanked Lockney, 28-0; second-ranked Stamford outlasted Colorado City, 28-22; third-rated Pittsburg blasted Wmnsboro, 50-0; fourth-spotted Edna shut out Kenedy, 32-0; and Allen, No. 5, stomped Whitesboro, 42-14.

Longshots win at Sunland

SUNLAND PARK, N.M. (AP) — Miss Classyqua and General Te, a pair of prohibitive longshots finished first and second Sunday in the inaugural $140,299 All-American Sale Futurity at Sunland Park.

Miss Classyqua, a 35-to-1 shot, captured the first place purse of $70,149 with a nose victory over General Te, who went off at odds of 43-to-1 in the 400-yard race for 2-year-old quarter horses. Miss Classyqua, a filly owned by Joe Scherr of Valley City, N.D., and J.D. Anderson of Tahlequah, Okla., paid $71.00 to win, $21.20 to place and $10.80 to show. General Te earned $23,850 for second place and paid $22.20 and $10.80. Soul Long got up for third and earned $14,029 from the total purse while paying $6.00 to show. A rare triple dead heat for first occurred when three horses in the final race on the card hit the finish line together. The three horses that tied for first were Moon Barb, Teddy's Table and Grins Spirit. Track officials said it was the second triple dead heat at

Memphis State to axe coach MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Plagued by three straight losing seasons, Memphis State University football Coach Richard Williamson has been told he won't be back for the Tigers' 1981 season. Dr. Thomas Carpenter, MSU president, told Williamson on Sunday that many Tiger fans have suspected all year long — that Memphis State will start looking immediately for a new coach. Williamson, 39, played for Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama and Arkansas before coming to Memphis State in 1975. His Memphis teams' have a 30-34 record, and the Tigers are 1-8 this year. Carpenter said earlier this year he would not make a decision on the coaching situation until the end of the season. However, Williamson went to Carpenter on Sunday afternoon to ask for an immediate decision on his future and that of his assistant coaches. "He was told he would not be back," Bob Winn, Tiger sports information director, said Sunday. Carpenter said a settlement on the remaining year of Williamson's $37,500-per-year contract would be worked out. Advertising executive Bill Tanner, one of the athletic department's major financial contributors, said this weekend the university can afford to recruit a big-name coach. Tanner said Memphis State, with the help of wealthy athletic boosters, offered Larry Brown, basketball coach at the University of Southern California, $125,000-per-year package when Memphis was looking for a replacement for Wayne Yates two years ago. He said

WASHINGTON (AP) — Though stunned by Ronald Reagan's landslide, 33-year-old Sandy Dickey nodded off last Tuesday night secure in the belief that her own career in government, like that of her Democratic boss, had at least four years to run.

As she waited for the coffee to brew Wednesday morning, Miss Dickey learned how quickly the promise of politics can turn to quicksand. Though she works for a senator whose term isn't up until 1984, Miss Dickey is about to join hundreds of other Capitol Hill employees in an elite unemployment line.

"It just didn't dawn on me until I heard it on television that morning that the Republicans would control the new Senate," she said. "None of us had any idea ... we just didn't anticipate it."

Any congressional staff member's fortunes, of course, are as fickle as those of the boss. But the irony for Miss Dickey, who works, for $21,500, on the Civil Service subcommittee headed by Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., is that his job security was affected not one bit.

"The senator was in sort of a daze himself that day," she recalls. "He walked up to me and just said 'I'm really sorry. I don't have the subcommittee anymore.'"

The changeover in Senate control could boost the ranks of the congressionally unemployed to a number rivaling that of the new jobhunters in the executive branch, where 2,900 people serve at the pleasure of the president.

In 1978, about 1,300 were thrown out of work at the Capitol, even though Democrats retained control of both Houses. The loss of all committee chairmanships in the Senate and the defeat of four incumbent chairmen in the House is certain to boost that figure much higher this time. Moreover, the change in Senate control probably means the departure of Sergeant at Arms F. Nurdy Hoffman who holds rein over scores of support jobs, ranging from elevator operators to computer specialists.

Thus, jobhunting on the Hill, where a new senator typically will get up to 2,000 applicants for an average of 30 or so positions, will be more brutally competitive than ever as the Democrats count their losses.

And Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the new chairman of the Finance Committee, expressed a similar sentiment over the plight of the Democrats. When he was greeted with applause by committee staffers gathered for his first post-election news conference, he said with a smile: "Ah. Job applicants already."

Those with experience have often landed safely in the past.

"I gave myself three days to be depressed," she said. "Now it's time to pull myself together, to recognize that I'm part of something that hasn't happened in 25 years and try to make the best of it."

Once a Shelby County employee in Memphis, she campaigned for Sen. Jim Sasser and then joined his staff in Washington three years ago, soon to transfer to the subcommittee post offered by Pryor.

"I came because this is the center of politics," she said.

"I've had a chance to work on lobby reform, on sunset legislation for government regulation, on civil service reform ... I don't really want to go back to Memphis."

"But then, I can't be closing any doors. Not now."

Reagan's inner circle most important

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan says his approach to government depends on consultation with close advisers, a system he used as governor of California.

This makes Reagan's inner circle of extra interest and importance to the nation as these people could well play a vital role in running the country.

Here are brief sketches of a dozen Reagan advisers:

RICHARD V. ALLEN: He served as Reagan's chief foreign policy adviser until resigning late in the campaign when questions were raised about some of his business dealings while on the federal payroll.

Reagan now says an investigation found no wrongdoing and Allen could be in line for the job of national security adviser. Allen, 44 and considered a hard-liner, worked for several months on the staff of Henry Kissinger, ex-president Richard Nixon's national security adviser, early in the Nixon administration.

MARTIN ANDERSON: A domestic affairs expert who believes that government should have less influence on the lives of individuals, Anderson is credited with selling Nixon on the all-volunteer army.

A Stanford University scholar, the 44-year-old Anderson is likely to become domestic affairs adviser to Reagan. He believes it is time to begin eliminating unnecessary government programs and agencies.

EDWIN MEESE II: Meese, 48, is a law professor at San Diego State who is likely to become White House chief of staff.

He served as a coordinator for Reagan while he was governor of California, summarizing various proposals and helping Reagan reach decisions. Meese has said that he does not have political ambitions but is strongly loyal to the president-elect.

MICHAEL K. DEEVER: The campaign trouble-shooter, Deever also worked for Reagan in Sacramento and he and his family are close to the Reagans.

The 42-year-old public relations consultant has often been asked to deal with touchy personnel and political problems and associates say he seems able to get along with almost anyone.

VERN ORR: A regent of the University of California and campaign controller, Orr was Reagan's state budget director.

He reportedly was well respected by state officials for his grasp of technical details and persuaded Reagan to drop his opposition to state income tax withholding.

E. PENDLETON JAMES: James, 50, is a personnel executive who has been compiling a talent list for the incoming administration.

A former corporate personnel officer, James also served as a recruiter under Nixon and ran his own personnel recruiting firm.

RICHARD WIRTHLIN: Wirthlin is a polling expert who has worked for Reagan for more than a decade.

He urged Reagan to direct his campaign to blue-collar workers, emerging a hero of the successful campaign. Wirthlin is a former economics professor at Brigham Young University.

JAMES A. BAKER III: This Texas lawyer has worked for President Ford and Vice President-elect George Bush.

A low-key individual, Baker has handled management problems during the Reagan campaign, including the negotiations over the presidential debates.

WILLIAM E. TIMMONS: The 49-year-old Timmons has operated a Washington lobbying firm for the last four years, previously having worked on House and Senate staffs and in the White House.

He was White House liaison with Congress under Ford and Nixon and is an experienced political pro known and liked by Republicans across the country.

DREW LEWIS: An unsuccessful candidate for governor of Pennsylvania in 1974, Lewis operates an employment agency and has been active in campaign politics.

A former associate of President Ford, Lewis worked for Reagan this year and reportedly had a hand in moderating efforts by some party members to dump GOP Chairman Bill Brock.

WILLIAM CASEY: Casey, 67, was chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission under Nixon and is now a New York tax lawyer. He was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress two years ago.

A conservative but practical politician, Casey helped manage Reagan's campaign. He was a proponent of efforts to convince Ford to join the ticket.

Abscam jury selection beginning

NEW YORK (AP) — Reps. John M. Murphy of New York and Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey were going to federal court here today for the start of jury selection in the nation's latest Abscam trial.

Murphy and Thompson, both Democrats defeated last week in their bids for re-election, were accused in a five-count federal indictment of bribery and conspiracy. Prosecutors contend they shared portions of bribes totaling $100,000.

The money was offered by undercover FBI agents who posed as representatives of fictitious wealthy Arabs. The government has alleged the money was in return for the lawmakers' agreement to introduce private immigration bills on behalf of the phony Arabs.

U.S. District Court Judge George C. Pratt was to open the proceeding by disposing of several pre-trial motions, including the formal severance of a third defendant, Philadelphia lawyer Howard Criden.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last week that Criden, who was convicted of Abscam charges in August along with Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., should not be tried again until an appeals panel rules on his motions for dismissal, including a double jeopardy claim.

The appeals court said the trial of Murphy and Thompson could begin now without Criden or be postponed pending the outcome of his appeal. The government decided Friday to proceed immediately.

The other defendant, Keyport, N.J., businessman Joseph Silvestri, was severed several weeks ago.

Murphy, 54, and Thompson, 62, are specifically charged with conspiracy, bribery, illegally receiving compensation for services relating to government matters and abetting in interstate travel in aid of a racketeering enterprise.

Murphy also is charged with receipt of an unlawful gratuity, while Thompson is accused of aiding and abetting Murphy in the commission of that offense.

If convicted of bribery, the most serious charge, each could receive up to 15 years in prison.

Thompson, who is from the Trenton area, is a 13-term House veteran who took over as chairman of the House Administration Committee in 1976. Murphy is a nine-term representative from Staten Island who chaired the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

Under House rules, both have temporarily given up their committee chairmanships pending the outcome of the case.

Both men say they are innocent.

Neither Murphy nor Thompson was filmed accepting any money. Videotapes were key in previous Abscam prosecutions, which ended in convictions for Myers and Rep. John W. Jenrette, D-S.C.

DON'T WAIT FOR RETIREMENT TO START PLANNING FOR IT...

Start now. Consider starting your own Individual Retirement Account. If you work for a firm which does not have a retirement plan you can save up to $1500 or 15% of your wages each year and defer taxes on this amount until you retire.

Or, if you've recently retired from a company and are looking for ways to invest your previous plan benefits, you may wish to "roll over" all or a portion of these benefits into an IRA.

The IRA offers you compounded interest on your retirement savings while sheltering the savings until you have a lower tax responsibility.

Opening an IRA is as easy as opening a Savings Account. Come by and see our Personal Services Group for details.
