Reagan prepares for Washington sessions

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan, armed with a detailed strategy he says can make his promised tax and spending cuts a reality, prepared today to fly to Washington for the first time since being elected president two weeks ago.

In five days in Washington, he will meet with the man he defeated, Jimmy Carter; with congressional leaders of both parties; and with the transition staff he picked to help guide the transfer of power.

He is due to arrive in Washington in the early evening, fly by helicopter to a government guest house and, 30 minutes later, address by phone the nation's Republican governors, meeting in Philadelphia.

On Sunday, Reagan and former Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, chairman of a committee of 14 prominent Republican economists who drafted the detailed spending and tax cut plan, met reporters.

But neither would describe specifics from the proposal except to confirm that it is a detailed plan to implement Reagan's campaign promises to cut government spending by 2 percent annually and federal income taxes across the board 10 percent for the next three years.

After a 45-minute session with the economic advisers, Reagan told reporters: "It's all there in the paperback, some light weekend reading." He carried two large black, three-ring binders, which he said contained summaries of the recommendations.

"We're going to do what I said throughout the campaign we would do. These are plans for implementation, reducing the cost of government, reducing the burden on the people and getting a prosperity that would be shared by all," Reagan added.

Shultz said the report could reshape government and revitalize the economy.

"Strong and decisive things can be done," Shultz said, adding that a top priority is controlling government spending.

He had harsh words about the present state of the economy:

"If we have had a recovery at all, it is a very fragile one," Shultz said.

"The situation the governor will inherit is very gloomy. The rate of inflation is very high. The budget is hemorrhaging. It is a very bad scene."

Asked if the planned budget cuts would reduce government services for the poor, Reagan replied indirectly that the plan was not designed to "deprive people.... We're still talking in the areas of extravagance" to find budget cuts.

Shultz said his panel, which includes three former directors of the federal Office of Management and Budget, did not attempt to produce new economic proposals.

Instead, he said, the panel's report is designed to be "a workable...comprehensive and coordinated strategy" to meet Reagan's tax and spending cut goals, control inflation and balance the budget.

Shultz would not say what the timetable for balancing the federal budget would be. He said he personally believes that it is "doubtful" the budget can be balanced by 1982 but that a balanced budget is "possible" by 1983.

Reagan has promised a balanced budget by 1983 and said he thinks it can be done earlier.

The president-elect's Washington schedule includes five meetings with Senate and House leaders, two national security briefings, a Thursday afternoon visit with Carter in the White House and several meetings with political supporters and aides. No news conferences or speeches, other than tonight's telephone hook-up, are on tap, however.

It might be said that Indian Summer is officially over in Midland. Six inches of snow Sunday and today made even a trip to church an adventure. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

Fall storm dumps rain, sleet, snow

Compiled from Associated Press wire reports

A church bus skidded on a rain-slick road and overturned, killing two passengers, as a fall storm dumped up to 13 inches of snow, sleet and rain on Texas and Oklahoma, officials said.

The National Weather Service reported about 4 inches of snow across the Texas Panhandle and up to 8 inches in the south and across Southwest Texas. Thirteen inches of snow fell on the Southwest Texas community of Alpine, 10 inches covered the Sweetwater area and 9 inches was reported in Lubbock.

In Oklahoma, snow and sleet pelted the western and central parts of the state. Icy highways in the Oklahoma Panhandle were "in pretty bad shape," a police dispatcher said.

On Sunday night, members of the East Side Church of Christ of Austin, Texas, held a special memorial service for the two people killed when their church bus hit a slick spot on U.S. 183 near Luling and rolled over. Gireen Jones, 46, and Bessie Grant, 43, were killed and 35 other passengers were injured, police said. The bus was on its way from Austin to Corpus Christi, according to authorities.

Herbert Partridge, 29, a passenger, said he received cuts and bruises when the bus overturned.

"When the bus went over, things kind of went black," Partridge said. "When I came to, I was lying on top of two men."

Elsewhere, driving conditions were reported to be extremely hazardous in snow-blanketed sections of Texas, especially in rural areas, bridges and overpasses. Officials urged motorists to restrict travel.

The Department of Public Safety reported that all roads in Lubbock, Wichita Falls and Childress were snow-covered and dangerous.

"We got a bunch of ice, and a bunch of snow on top of that," said a Department of Public Safety spokesman in Lubbock. "It all adds up to one big problem: it's slick and hazardous any way you want to go out of Lubbock."

The National Weather Service reported that early Monday, most secondary roads from the Big Bend area northeast to San Angelo were closed, and main arteries were passable only with extreme caution.

In Amarillo, with snowdrifts three to four feet deep downtown, cars and trucks were stranded on the clogged thoroughfares and police said roads were "a mess."

Travelers in West Texas were urged to stay off the streets except when absolutely necessary.

It was cold and wet across most of the rest of the state, also creating hazardous driving conditions.

Early morning temperatures ran from 26 in Amarillo, to 29 in Midland and Lubbock, a chilly, snowy 32 in Abilene.

Snow covers area; Midland gets six inches

By DAVID CAMPBELL

Six inches of snow blanketed Midland and most of West Texas Sunday, giving Midland youngsters a day off from school, leaving Alpine law enforcement officers wondering and stranding travelers in area towns.

The snowfall which started at 1 a. m. Sunday and continued until about 3 a. m. today was the result of an upper air disturbance situated near El Paso, said the National Weather Service.

A cold front which swept through the Tall City Thursday and Friday provided ideal conditions for the snowfall.

Youngsters were having a field day in the snow as schools in the Midland and Odessa area were closed. Only The University of Texas of the Permian Basin was reported open.

Reports concerning a Midland Girl Scout troop stranded at a camp near Alpine this weekend turned out to be false, but apparently nobody told the Alpine Police Department.

Girl Scout Troop 212 along with the Cadets and Senior High Adventure group arrived safely in Midland at 5 p. m. Sunday, according to Ava Jane Warren, executive director of the Midland Girl Scout Council.

HOWEVER, AN Alpine Police Department spokesman, as well as some area radio and television stations, were reporting the 40-member organization was still stranded at the camp this morning and the phone lines to the camp were out of order.

U.S. Highway 87 between Lamesa and Big Spring and Texas Highway 176 between Andrews and Big Spring were reported closed, said a Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman.

No major accidents were reported as a result of the snow, the DPS said. There were several motorists who had run off the road because of the ice. But, they were able to get back on the highways with some help from DPS patrolmen, the spokesman said.

The Midland Police Department reported five minor automobile accidents during Monday's early morning hours. However, they were in the fender-bender category, the report said.

Midland Regional Airport was officially "open" this morning, said an airport official.

HOWEVER, RUNWAYS were covered with snow and slush which made landings and take-offs difficult.

Only one commercial airliner arrived and took off at the airport Sunday, he said.

Private planes were reported to be landing, said the spokesman.

"Runways are not much better than the highways," the spokesman said.

"We're just sitting here this morning watching all the cars slide off the highway (Highway 80)."

The National Weather Service recorded 39 inch of precipitation in the Midland area during the last 24 hours which brought the November total to .40 of an inch.

The yearly total is up to 16.23 inches.

Tax roll discrepancies attributed to computer errors

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

A $94.4 million error in the tax rolls was attributed to computer errors made by the City Tax Office, Mayor G. Thane Akins announced this morning during a news conference in City Hall Council Chambers.

The discrepancy came to the public's eye last week during a meeting of the Midland Independent School District board. Upon a closer look, the tax roll totals for the city, Midland Memorial Hospital and Midland College districts also were wrong.

Akins said the City Council had known for three weeks about the discrepancy in the figures and since then "we have attempted to find the source of the errors without success." It was first brought to their attention at an Oct. 28 council meeting.

He explained that this past year, all properties in Midland County were reappraised by the tax office, which serves as the tax office for the school, county, college and hospital districts. And for the first time, Cathode Ray Tube displays were installed in the tax office. Entries and changes on the tax roll could be fed directly into the computers.

In the past, said the mayor, all property valuations within each taxing body were totaled by hand. But last June, the first run on the computer was made to obtain totals for budget purposes. These totals were reduced to effective tax valuations.

The tax rate of each jurisdiction was applied and this provided an estimate of tax revenue for budget purposes, Akins said in a news release.

Subsequent runs on the computer after changes by the Board of Equalization and the City Council on appeals indicated the first run was high by about $88 million on the MISD tax base, causing the estimated tax revenue for the school district to be low by about $840,000.

For the city, the tax revenue is low by $74.3 million, putting the city's estimated income $330,000 below what had been expected.

The hospital and college districts also have deficits, but Akins said he didn't know the exact amounts.

Also contributing to the discrepancy were tax-exempt properties which had been added into the tax rolls. Akins said these properties are owned by the city or by non-profit groups.

"To say that we regret these mistakes and their consequences is an understatement," Akins said. "We have been proud of the operation of the tax office for many years. And for a mistake of this magnitude to occur and not be discovered and reported immediately is simply not typical of our tax office."

He explained that the MISD board may be forced into a position of raising its tax rate, which would require going through the legal procedures of advertising the new tax rate, holding public hearings and briefing out new notices.

After reviewing the tax office and trying to discover the source of the mistakes, Akins said some improvements have been suggested. One calls for keeping a running total and retaining the "hard copy" sheets which had the changes on them.

Any change in personnel in the tax office isn't foreseen, he added.

The city's loss of $330,000 will be made up by cutting programs, borrowing money or taking money out of the unappropriated surplus, according to the mayor.

As for the computers, Akins said with a laugh, "I've always had a lack of confidence in the computer."

Iraqi forces report sinking Iranian gunboats

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi forces attacking Susangerd sank 12 Iranian gunboats in the Karkheh River on the outskirts of the city, the Baghdad command said today. Iran said it sent in tanks and troop reinforcements behind rocket-firing helicopter gunships in what appeared to be a last-ditch effort to hold the southwestern highway city against the invaders.

Kuwait, meanwhile, lodged a formal protest with Iran over a second Iranian rocket attack on a Kuwaiti border post, an incident that renewed fears the two-month-old Persian Gulf war could spread to neighboring oil-rich nations. After the first attack, last week, Saudi Arabia and other Gulf nations pledged support of tiny Kuwait.

Tehran Radio said troop reinforcements, supported by tanks, shot their way through an Iraqi siege and entered Susangerd at midday, joining other defenders "in the valiant city." Military communiques from Baghdad and Tehran said hundreds of killed and wounded lay in the embattled streets of Susangerd. Both sides claimed Sunday they had killed 500 of each other's soldiers in house-to-house fighting there.

Today's Iraqi communique said in addition to sinking the gunboats, its forces destroyed 10 rocket-launching bases, eight Iranian anti-tank missile launchers and 22 military vehicles in Susangerd, and that "the enemy lost a huge number of soldiers killed in the operations Sunday night and early Monday."

The Tehran broadcast did not say where the reinforcements were sent from. A probable source is the city of Ahwaz, which has the largest army garrison in southwestern Iran and is 30 miles to the north.

A Baghdad communique said Iraqi forces in the drive to capture Susangerd killed 40 Iranian soldiers in mid-morning battles. It conceded 34 Iraqis killed in the morning fighting in Susangerd and elsewhere on the battlefield.

The communique claimed Iraqi troops sank 12 boats in the Karkheh

River, which runs along the north-eastern outskirts of Susangerd, to close all routes of escape to the city's garrison and Islamic revolutionary guards. Susangerd is 20 miles east of the Iraqi border and 30 miles north-west of Ahwaz, the capital of Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province that the Iraqis are trying to squeeze in a pincers movement.

A communique from the Iranian general staff said Iranian fighter planes bombed the Iraq's southern naval base of Um Qasr again and sank two enemy warships.

In Kuwait, meanwhile, the Cabinet held an emergency session to compose a protest of the Sunday attack and decided to summon the ambassadors of Arab, Islamic, and non-aligned nations to a briefing, according to State Minister for Cabinet Affairs Abdul Aziz Hussein. He said the Iranian ambassador was called to the Foreign Ministry and handed the protest.

Hussein told reporters the Kuwaiti government also was sending memos to the United Nations, the 40-nation Islamic Conference Organization and Cuban President Fidel Castro, this year's chairman of the 94-nation Non-Aligned Movement.

Pope calls for unity against atheism

The robe of Pope John Paul II swirls about in the wind as the pontiff celebrates mass before hundreds of thousands in Mainz, West Germany. It was the fourth stopping point for the pope during his tour of the country. (AP Laserphoto)

MAINZ, West Germany (AP) — Pope John Paul II today called on Protestants to unite with Catholics against atheism, saying "we owe it to God and to the world...to keep up the dialogue."

Meeting here with Protestant leaders, the pontiff repeatedly referred to Martin Luther, the rebel German theologian whose break with the Roman Catholic Church 500 years ago launched the Protestant Reformation.

"Today I come to you, the spiritual inheritants of Martin Luther; I also come as a pilgrim. In a changing world, I come to set a sign of union in the central secrets of our faith."

Although his primary purpose is to inspire a renewal of faith among Roman Catholics, who make up nearly half of West Germany's population of 63 million, the pontiff's five-day visit also is aimed at developing stronger ties between Catholics and the Protestant followers Luther.

"We must keep up the dialogue and the contacts. We must leave no stone unturned. We must do what creates unity. We owe it to God and to the world," he told leaders of the Council of Evangelical (Lutheran) Churches in Germany.

THE POPE AND THE Protestants acknowledged their differences, including their split over church rituals.

"It is painfully known to us that we have still not achieved full agreement with the brothers and sisters of the Roman Catholic Church in the understanding of the Eucharist," said Bishop D. Eduard Lohse, chairman of the Lutheran Council.

He said the Lutherans, who make up half of West Germany's inhabitants, "await with patient hope an open invitation from the side of your church that we will be welcome as guests and friends at the celebration of the Eucharist in your church, without having to pay the price of our own church membership."

The meeting with Protestants was the first of several scheduled for the pontiff today, the third day of his West German tour. He emphasizes Christian unity in remarks prepared for an audience representing Methodists, Quakers, Mennonites, Greek Orthodox and others.

He also planned to meet with representatives of the nearly 30,000 Jews in West Germany, many of them survivors or children of survivors of the Nazi holocaust.

LATER TODAY, THE pope meets with West Germany's Catholic bishops in Fulda, where 230 feminists and homosexuals marched on Sunday protesting discrimination against them by the Catholic church.

Speaking Sunday to a crowd of 300,000 at a U.S. Army airfield near here, the pope denounced war, appealed for better East-West relations and urged governments to respect human rights and religious freedom.

At an open-air Mass, the pontiff recalled the horrors of World War II, in which Mainz was virtually destroyed by Allied bombs.

Calling it a "period of terrible destruction, of indescribable suffering, of violation and contempt for human life," he asked that the "infamous atrocities" of the war never be repeated.

"Let us pray to God that this terrible lesson of history will impress upon people all over the globe respect for the rights of every individual and every nation," the pope said to loud applause.

AFTER CELEBRATING THE Mass in German, the pope directed a statement to his American hosts at the Mainz-Finthen U.S. Army Air Base, six miles south of this city of 200,000.

"Make it our aim to work for peace and to strengthen one another," he said, quoting in English from St. Paul.

The Mass was opened to more than 10,000 Americans stationed in the area. West German police said "several thousand" Americans attended.

The pope called on delegates to the East-West conference now meeting in Madrid to "enter a permanent dialogue" and renew their efforts in the cause of world peace and "in full recognition of the rights of each and every individual and people, including religious freedom."

Civil disobedience under way at Mormon Temple

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — Two supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment chained themselves during the weekend to the gate of a new $12 million Mormon Temple, and other ERA activists planned demonstrations as a week of dedication ceremonies gets under way today.

As many as 5,000 members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, which opposes the ERA, are expected each day at the dedication ceremonies to be held through Friday, Mormon spokesman Elwood Spendlove said Sunday.

Sonia Johnson, a ex-communicated Mormon, and other leaders in the pro-ERA camp announced plans for civil disobedience at the temple to draw attention to what they believe is an attempt to deny women equal opportunities in the workforce.

The two ERA supporters who chained themselves to the gate Saturday and Sunday said they did so in protest of church leaders' views on women's roles. The proposed amendment to the U.S. constitution would prohibit discrimination based on sex.

Church officials at the temple had no plans to stop the demonstrations "other than just ignore them," he said. Spencer W. Kimball, Mormon church president, was to speak at today's ceremonies.

One of the women who chained herself to the gate of the temple Saturday was Coleen Miller, a 39-year-old mother of three from Kent, Wash.

"This is outrageous for me to have to do this for my rights," Ms. Miller said.

"The reason for this prevention of ratification is not moral as they claim, but economic. A vast number of church-owned businesses employ a multitude of women at discriminatory wage scales," said Joan Schrammeck, 24, of Seattle, the other woman in chains.

"That's incorrect," said Brent Nash, chairman of Mormon churches in Washington state. "We oppose ERA on the basis of a moral issue. It destroys the definition of the family — which we believe is God's definition."

The two women remained chained overnight, with sleeping bags and warm clothes, until about noon Sunday.

The Mormon church's Seattle temple is actually located in nearby Bellevue, overlooking the intersection of Interstate 90 and Interstate 405.

The five-story temple contains 208 rooms of varying sizes covering 115,000 square feet of floor space.

Four Mafia families are believed living in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — The long arm of the Mafia stretches from Southeast Texas to Dallas and reaches into gambling and pornography operations across the state, a Dallas newspaper says.

The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday that at least four Mafia families are believed to operate in the state.

"There is nothing new about organized crime in Texas," said Aaron Kohn, former director of the New Orleans Crime Commission. "It's intricate, interwoven, but not concealed from anyone who chooses to find it."

Quoting an unnamed source in the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council, the newspaper said Carlos Marcello, an alleged New Orleans Mafia boss, "definitely has influence" in Dallas.

Marcello, 70, has long been connected to Texas, Kohn told the newspaper.

"The Marcello gambling network always included major areas of Texas," he said.

Kohn said Marcello had a "very close relationship" with Joe Civallo, whom the FBI named as the leading Dallas Mafia figure in the 1960s, according to the newspaper.

C.T. Burney, chief of the Dallas Police Department's organized crime unit, said at least four local companies are owned by Mafia families — including Marcello, the Gambino family of New York, and the Giancana family of Chicago.

But Burney noted that "there is nothing illegal about owning a company," although police "try to keep up with what's going on at these companies."

Houston Mayor Jim McConn said at a Friday news conference that authorities believe Mafia money is being invested in Houston pizza parlors, banks, vending machine businesses and other legitimate enterprises.

Quoting an unnamed source in the Austin Organized Crime Task Force, the newspaper reported that the Mafia also is involved in producing child pornography in Texas.

"They shoot this stuff in motel rooms, private homes, anywhere they can, and yes, it is controlled to a large degree by the (Mafia)," the source said.

The House select committee on child pornography concluded earlier this year that a large part of "kiddie porn" was made in Texas and shipped to California.

Two men killed in crash of Royal Air Force jet

ELGIN, Scotland (AP) — A Royal Air Force jet crashed today after flying into a flock of birds soon after take-off and two of the 20 men aboard were killed, an RAF spokesman said.

The spokesman said the Nimrod maritime patrol jet was downed after flying straight into the flock and sucking birds into its engines.

Designed to detect enemy submarines in wartime and used in peacetime for surveillance of North Sea oil and gas fields, the British-made four-engine jet was the first of its type to crash since the RAF began using them a year ago.

The plane crashed in a wooded area in rain a few miles from its base at Kinloss near this town on the west coast of Scotland. Two of the surviving airman were injured, one seriously. The rest were unhurt.

The names of the dead and injured were not immediately released. The Nimrod normally carries 13 or 14 crewmen. The RAF said the downed aircraft had 20 men aboard because it was on a training flight "of special interest" involving a joint exercise with a Royal Navy submarine.

Materialism in Russia

Even in the Soviet Union where the state takes priority over the individual and the political system supposedly benefits all the state's workers, materialism appears to be alive and well.

Recently, a newspaper article by the Associated Press noted that demand for American jeans in the Soviet Union is intense. The article said a young Russian paid a month's salary for a pair of jeans bearing the label of a famous United States jean maker.

Unfortunately, she became the victim of a jean counterfeiter's ring. When she washed the jeans they became a shapeless, splotchy blob, according to the news report.

Apparently, the Soviets have attempted to counter demand for Western jeans with Russian-produced products. But the jeans produced in the Soviet Union just haven't caught on and swindlers have prospered.

Maybe Soviet leaders are trying to ignore the real reason Western jeans are so popular in Russia. It's not just that the quality of the Soviet-produced jeans is inferior, although that certainly seems to be a contributing factor.

Rather, it seems that those jeans with the large, Western label have become something of a status symbol in the Soviet Union.

Perhaps young Russians feel a little closer to the freedom America represents when they don their Western-made jeans. Perhaps, in a way, wearing jeans from the United States represents something of a minor revolution for Soviets who otherwise must button their lips in regard to the Russian government and the broken promise of the communists.

In recent months the world has witnessed the strikes in Poland and the almost unbelievable concessions granted by the Polish government, alias the Soviet Union.

The Politburo fears materialism on the part of the working masses of the Soviet Union because of what it represents, a growing awareness of the inability of the government of the Soviet Union to provide for the people it supposedly represents.

In the decade of the 1980s, the awareness of the Soviet people undoubtedly will increase. They'll demand more than they've ever demanded before. That will be a test of the Kremlin's power over them.

It will be a textbook-perfect example of the differences between the communistic and capitalistic forms of government and their abilities to serve the people they were created to serve.

Mob's new racket: Dumping toxic waste

WASHINGTON — The Mob has moved into a lucrative racket spawned by public concern over the environment. Underworld-connected firms are engaged in the illegal dumping of poisonous and explosive industrial wastes for unethical businessmen who want to get around the new controls that go into effect this month.

These new federal regulations require an accounting of toxic wastes that may have been stored for years on the premises of chemical and other industrial plants. To avoid the ruinous expense of proper disposal, these firms are rushing to get rid of the wastes any way they can. That's where the Mob comes in, according to law-enforcement authorities.

A typical example illustrates the savings that can be made by breaking the law: A tank-truck load of chemical waste that costs $40,000 to send to a legitimate disposal site can be disposed of for half that amount by the Mob, which can drive an 8,000-gallon tank truck to a wooded area like the New Jersey Pine Barrens and dump it in eight minutes flat.

State and federal investigators have found dumping operations linked to organized crime in New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

— A Bridgeport, Conn., trucking company, owned by associates of the late crime boss Carmine Galante, dumped 6,000 barrels of poisonous, explosive waste on a Connecticut farm. The same company was also involved in illegal dumping near a Rhode Island pig farm, where the waste blew up and burned out of control for three days.

— An alleged waste dumping tycoon on the East Coast is John Albert, owner of the Samson Tank Cleaning Co. of Bayonne, N.J. The company was recently indicted for illegal dumping in New Jersey and Massachusetts. According to a police affidavit obtained by my associate Tony

Jack Anderson

Capaccio, Albert has "an extensive criminal history and is a known associate of New Jersey and New York crime members."

— Trucks leased to Samson were involved in a major environmental hazard on Staten Island last year. The trucks hauled poison-saturated industrial filters to a dump site operated by the Chelsea Terminal Co. The waste was then deposited in bins owned by Jersey Sanitation Inc., which, in turn, is owned by organized crime figure Frank Stamato Sr. and George Katz, a New Jersey businessman indicted in the ABCAM scandal. Among the substances illegally dumped at the site — as identified by New York organized crime investigator John Fine — were lye, radioactive waste, PCB-laden oil, explosive petroleum ethers and a highly flammable suspected carcinogen, epichlorohydrin. The toxic materials seeped into a creek flowing into the Arthur Kill waterway.

— In Orange County, N.Y., according to a confidential memo prepared for Gov. Hugh Carey, investigators discovered toxic waste being dumped illegally in the Al Turi landfill site in Goshen. The landfill was operated by organized crime figures Thomas and Nick Milo and Vincent DeVito. DV Waste Control Corp., owned by Nick Milo and DeVito, obtained a permit from the state's Department of Environmental Conservation to dump sewage sludge at a sod farm in Or-

CHARLEY REESE

No evidence to support disarmament lobby position

Charley Reese

Ronald Reagan's victory precipitated migraine headaches among several categories of people. One category which is now fluttering its collective hand is the disarmament lobby.

Sometimes I think we live in the age of phony issues. Sometimes it seems that almost every issue people chatter the loudest over is really a non-issue. The disarmament lobby, for example, is all publicly upset over President-elect Reagan's decision to withdraw the SALT II treaty from consideration.

I don't know why any rational person would be upset. SALT II was already as dead as a salted mackerel long before Ronald Reagan received his lands'lide. Even the old and more liberal Senate had already turned up its nose so high that President Carter had withdrawn the treaty from consideration.

As for the Soviet Union, it will be the least upset since it is fully aware of what SALT II is and is not. The Soviets know that SALT II represented a windfall in their continuing effort to con the United States. They know that only someone as naive as President Carter and his flock of McGovernites would have ever agreed to that particular treaty in the first place. They must have been dumfounded that any American could be so stupid.

Furthermore, they have no intention of disarming and know that they are comfortably ahead of the United States in every single military category which counts. What the Soviet Union likes best about strategic arms limitation talks is not the treaties, but the process which they have used successfully to lull American leaders to sleep while the Soviets prepare for war.

I heard three face-to-face SALT II pitches by the state department and they were alarming and disgusting. Alarming that we had such stupid people in high places and disgusting that they would resort to such deception and misrepresentation to sell a bad treaty to the American people. You may recall the Carter Administration spent well over $700,000 of our tax bucks trying to peddle it.

Their basic arguments were: (1) Nuclear war is horrible. It is, but it does not follow that the alternative to ratifying SALT II is a nuclear war. (2) We couldn't win an arms race. That is demonstrably false since the Soviet Union has been straining its economy to the breakpoint while we have been frittering away our resources on social programs, spending less than five percent of our gross national product on defense. (3) The alternative to SALT II is an arms race. That, too, is false. The Soviet Union has been racing all during the negotiation process and under SALT II will continue to race while our capacity would be hamstrung.

No, SALT II is a terribly bad deal for us and the Soviets know it. As Soviet defector Lev Navrosov pointed out, future historians will look upon the entire SALT process as a Margin-of-Line, an elaborate illusion of timid people afraid to face reality.

Inherent in the disarmament lobby position is an almost psychotic flight from reality. There is no evidence to support any of their arguments. History shows that arms races do not result in wars, that wars result when there are imbalances of power, real or perceived.

The reality the disarmament people are fleeing from is that the Soviet Union is run by men who adhere to an evil ideology, a basic part of which is the axiom that communism and capitalism cannot coexist on the same planet.

The huge war machine of the Soviet Union is an effect of the ideology, not a cause of the present danger. The leaders of the Soviet Union know, as Von Clausewitz pointed out, that war is only another method of accomplishing a political goal. Until there is a fundamental change in the leadership of the Soviet Union, the Soviets will never disarm because they fully intend to use their arms to dominate the world. If we unilaterally disarmed tomorrow, we would be dead or enslaved the following day.

Given this reality, we are deluding ourselves to believe that strategic arms can be limited. The only reason the Soviets signed SALT I was that it gave them a military advantage. To the communists, a treaty is only another weapon with which to wage war.

I'm praying that the President-elect will not be overwhelmed by the disarmament lobby and that he will leave the SALT process on the shelf until we have re-built our military strength. Only when faced with insurmountable strength and only when they are convinced they can no longer con us into committing suicide will the Kremlin leadership seriously consider genuine negotiations.

Like the farm boy, they are not going to buy the cow as long as the milk is given to them free.

INSIDE REPORT

Will Democrats cooperate during the transition period?

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A key Democratic senator on the appropriations committee was quietly passing word to colleagues to "resist at all costs" the predictable effort of committee Republicans to boost the defense appropriations bill due for committee mark-up soon after the rump session of Congress convened last week.

Here is the first critical test for Democrats in a Senate that comes under Republican control in January: Will they follow the spirit of bipartisan cooperation proclaimed by Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan for the transition period? Or is their anti-defense mind-set so fixed in concrete that, in effect, they will exploit the lame-duck session and their disappearing majority to repeal the Nov. 4 election?

The quiet word being passed out of the office of just-re-elected Sen. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas to colleagues and Pentagon lobbyists leaves little doubt about the answer. Instead of bending to the big blow of Nov. 4 that decimated the anti-defense ranks of Senate Democratic liberals, the answer is a resounding "down with defense."

That atmosphere is quite different from the surface mood of bipartisan back-scratching set by a magnanimous post-election Jimmy Carter and a Ronald Reagan thankful for small favors from the outgoing administration. Whether it lasts or not, this mood remains pervasive in the immediate election aftermath. One member of Reagan's transition team pointedly declined a "juicy inside tip" from a Republican mole in the Pentagon casting doubt on the Stealth aircraft, which Carter's men see as America's salvation 10 years hence.

Evans

The contrasting mood of politics-as-usual on Capitol Hill points to the Senate as the scene of the first great post-election struggle over an issue that, as much as any other, symbolizes the cleavage between Carter and Reagan, liberals and conservatives and the old and the new Congress: national defense.

Confident of his own re-election last summer, Carter worked behind the scenes to prevent Senate action on the $157 billion House-passed defense bill. Delaying it to post-election would give him the option of a possible veto, plus the clout of a new four-year term to influence voting in the Senate.

The decisive nature of the defeat suffered by both Carter and liberal legions in the Senate has now put the long-suffering bloc of defense-minded senators on top — but not until the new Congress comes to town in January. To build a modest defense foundation that will be radically expanded next year, Reagan transition planners want the Senate to pass the House bill with or without amendments before adjourning for Christmas.

But some Republican leaders of the defense bloc are dreaming larger dreams. They will push hard to increase the bill by about $4 billion in new weapons authorized by Congress but not financed in the House bill. If these increases are voted down, as Bumpers wants, they privately threaten to filibuster final passage of the bill, preferring a simple resolution to permit continued defense spending at current levels rather than a truncated bill for the year that started Oct. 1.

But that approach invites political disaster for President Reagan. If the defense money bill fails to pass this year — after the long, intentional delays visited on it by the Carter administration — a brand new start must be made in the new Congress next year.

Down that road lies the danger of unacceptable delay. Two defense bills — one for the year already started and one for the new fiscal year — would have to be sent Congress together, with Rep. Joseph Addabbo of New York, a bonded liberal, in the driver's seat as chairman of the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee. It is almost inconceivable that the first of those two bills would get through Congress before July.

Such sorry fiscal management of the national defense should be unthinkable. If the Democrats who survived Nov. 4 show a particle of the spirit of compromise promised by President Carter, the long-delayed defense bill now stalled in the Senate will be rushed to the president's desk with the additions Reagan needs.

If not, the defense bloc can only bide its time by voting whatever it can get for now, sending a truncated bill to President Carter before adjournment. The long, expensive buildup toward Reagan's promised "margin of safety" will then start in January, but at least the foundation would be in place for a supplemental appropriation and a new defense bill for 1982.

MYSTERIOUS MALADY: When the Russians' Afghan puppet, Babrak Karmal, extended his visit in Moscow, presumably for reasons of health, State Department Kremlin-watchers speculated that his illness was political — and might be terminal.

Now that he has reappeared, with the announcement that his mysterious health problems were solved and he was going back to Kabul, the analysts are still mystified. The speculation is that the Soviet leaders couldn't come up with a replacement for their beleaguered satrap — but are still looking.

Jenrette to make decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Jenrette, convicted of bribery and conspiracy in the FBI's Abscam investigation, says he has no desire "to go down in history as the member that's been expelled from Congress."

The South Carolina Democrat planned to announce today his decision on whether to quit in the face of possible expulsion.

Jenrette was convicted Oct. 7 in the FBI's Abscam investigation and the House ethics committee voted last week to begin studying whether to recommend House punishment as well.

The committee could decide to take no action against Jenrette or recommend punishment ranging from expulsion to a restriction of House privileges.

Jenrette would have to relinquish his seat in January in any event — he was defeated in a re-election bid Nov. 4.

Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., also convicted of bribery in the Abscam probe, was expelled from the House Oct. 2, on the committee's recommendation. Jenrette said he does not want that to happen to him.

Hours after Thursday's committee vote, Jenrette told reporters: "I don't have any desire to go down in history as the member that's been expelled from Congress."

But he said he'll stay in Congress despite that risk if he can find no other forum to speak out against what he called the "Nazi tactics" of the Abscam investigation.

Jenrette said he might resign if he felt he could accomplish that with a national speaking tour.

He has said he will appeal his conviction on the contention that the FBI created the bribery crime and entrapped him into appearing to accept it.

A federal jury convicted Jenrette and Richmond, Va., businessman John Stowe of splitting a $50,000 bribe from FBI agents posing as representatives of two fictitious Arab sheiks wanting Jenrette to introduce an immigration bill to allow them to live in the United States.

Videotapes show Jenrette discussed the Jurors questioned in Abscam 'mistrial'

NEW YORK (AP) — Jurors in the Abscam trial of two congressmen were going to court today for questioning by a federal judge who was asked to declare a mistrial in the case.

The mistrial request arose Friday, at the end of the first week of the bribery-conspiracy trial, after a key government witness gave a juror a cup of water.

U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt was to question at least two of the jurors today before deciding whether to allow the witness, undercover FBI agent Anthony Amoroso, to resume his testimony before prosecutor Thomas Puccio.

Reps. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., and John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., are accused of sharing $50,000 in payoffs from FBI agents who posed as representatives of a wealthy Arab. The fictitious sheik was seeking help in settling his immigration problems.

The incident Friday occurred while the judge was holding a conference with lawyers at the bench.

As the judge was preparing to leave court, defense attorney Michael

Tigar rose and said, "We have a problem."

Tigar told the judge he had information that Amoroso may have had a conversation with a member of the jury while the conference was in progress.

Pratt then questioned the FBI man, who had been sitting in the witness chair on the side of the bench nearest the jury box during the conference.

Amoroso told the judge that the juror closest him asked for a cup of water on behalf of the juror to her left. He said he poured a cup from a nearby jug and passed it over without any conversation.

Kathleen Murphy, wife of the lame duck congressman, testified she "noticed agent Amoroso panting with his mouth."

According to Mrs. Murphy, the agent made facial gestures suggesting he was thirsty, and "as he did this," she said, several members of the jury "looked at him."

She contended there was an exchange of words between Amoroso and one or two jurors before the agent passed the cup.

introduction of such a bill with the agents and at one point said, "I have larceny in my blood."

The tapes also show Stowe receiving the $50,000 from the agents last Dec. 6 and Jenrette telling the agents in a telephone conversation later that "everything's fine."

But Jenrette denied ever getting the money and told the court he was referring in the telephone conversation to what he thought was Arab financing for a plant in his district to save jobs.

Strike enters its fifth day

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As trash piled up in the streets for a fifth straight day, officials of the nation's third largest city were meeting to discuss a new contract proposal from striking municipal unions, officials for both sides said.

The proposal came after two days of informal bargaining. Mayor Tom Bradley and several City Council members sat in on the talks in an attempt to halt the strike by sanitation workers, engineers, traffic controllers, airport custodians and recreation and parks employees, among others.

"There has been a full exchange of views," Bob Leemon, business representative for the 6,400-member Local 347 of the AFL-CIO City Employees Union, said Sunday.

The garbage is piling up at an estimated rate of 5,000 tons per day, mostly in front of single-family residences that are served by the city Bureau of Sanitation. Most businesses use private contractors for trash collection.

Striking animal control officers worked Sunday, rescuing animals from the several devastating fires that swept through Southern California. Leemon said his union gave its approval because it was an emergency.

Leemon said he thought progress was being made toward resolving the strike that began Thursday. However, the weekend bargaining was accompanied by talk of possible further legal action against Local 347, the 3,000-member Architects and Engineers Association and the 1,200-member Superintendents Association.

"If nothing is resolved today, the city management is going to have to reassess the entire situation tomorrow," city administrative analyst Jerry Selmer had said earlier Sunday. "There has been discussion today of possible court action today."

A Superior Court judge had ordered the unions not to strike, but the city attorney's office said that only about 50 percent of the picketers who marched around City Hall last week were served with the court order. The process servers reportedly were unable to find union leaders to serve them.

About 5,000 workers did not show up for work last Friday, and Leemon said he expected the same number of no-shows today.

The striking workers, about 20 percent of the city's total work force of 28,500, were demanding a 10 percent pay increase and a 3 percent benefit boost retroactive to July 1, Selmer said.

He said the city had offered a 9 percent pay raise and a 3 percent benefit package, retroactive to July 1, for the 1980-81 year. He said the city was willing to provide the 10 percent pay raise but that it would have to be retroactive to a date later than July 1.

Leemon has refused to confirm or elaborate on the union's demands, and he would say nothing of the new proposal.

"We expect the trash to continue to accumulate until we reach a settlement," Leemon said.

The average salary for Local 347 members is $15,400 annually. The engineers average $22,680 and the superintendents average $21,752, the city said.

Engineers, designers picketing Lockheed

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Some 2,800 engineers and designers at Lockheed California Co. went on strike early today in a contract dispute and threw up a picket line at the aircraft builder's headquarters here, a union spokesman said.

"We are on strike," said union spokesman Eddie Marko.

A Lockheed spokesman said "we've expected them to do just that" since Saturday, when negotiations reached an impasse.

Engineers and tool designers overwhelmingly rejected the company's contract offer Sunday, said Richard Cappelletti, president of the Engineers and Scientists Guild, Lockheed section.

He said the two units, which develop and design all Lockheed aircraft, voted 88.8 percent and 94.4 percent, respectively, in favor of a strike at midnight Sunday.

Walter Van Delinder, the union's assistant contacts administrator, said the crucial bargaining point was cost of living raises.

"They (management) haven't offered anything," Van Delinder said. "Lockheed California has given the blue collar workers a cost of living (provision) but they haven't given us any indication they're going to give us one."

Cappelletti said his union sought a 21 percent wage increase and time and a half for overtime in addition to the cost of living increase.

Van Delinder said Lockheed had "offered some adjustment to the salary, but we turned down the whole contract." He said union members earn from $400 to $1,000 a week.

According to Lockheed spokesman Jim Ragsdale, all the union members worked at Lockheed's Los Angeles County facilities. He said the company, which employs 28,000 people, would continue to operate normally despite the strike.

Ragsdale said he expected a quick resumption of negotiations, which began in September.

State, union investigating third steel mill fatality

BALTIMORE (AP) — State, union and company representatives today were investigating the death of a 32-year-old man at Sparrows Point mill, the third fatal accident at the Bethlehem Steel Co. yard in less than a year.

David M. Piempel Sr., 32, of Glen Burnie, died after falling 50 feet from a mechanical lift Saturday, officials said.

The electrical construction employee had been working south of the plant's coke ovens near the coal chemical processing area when the accident occurred, according to a company statement.

Quick-thinking 4-year-old helps save father

RANDALL, Minn. (AP) — When Jeff Jaschke's father caught his hand in a corn picker, Jeff brought the machine to a halt, turned off the power, ran for help, and brought the tools that were used to extract his father's hand.

Not bad for a 4-year-old. Jeff's quick action is credited with saving his father's life.

Ernest Jaschke, a rural Randall farmer, was unloading corn about two weeks ago while Jeff and Greg Jaschke, 2, watched from a wagon. Suddenly Jaschke screamed out and hollered to Jeff that his hand was caught in the corn picking machine. Within minutes, Jeff had run to the tractor, climbed on and brought it and the power take-off to a halt, preventing his father from being pulled into the machine. He then ran to the house to tell his mother, Mauraine, what had happened.

"Dad said to come quick, his hand is in the roller of the corn picker," Jeff told his mother, who then ran out to her husband.

"I checked for severe bleeding and ran in and called our neighbors who were here like lightning," she said.

By the time the neighbors arrived, Jeff had brought out tools and wrenches needed to loosen the rollers. Within a half hour, Jaschke was in the emergency room of St. Gabriel's Hospital in Little Falls.

Jaschke is still hospitalized with injuries to the four fingers on his right hand. He underwent a second operation last Wednesday and it appears he may lose his middle finger, Mrs. Jaschke said.

"It really paid to have him (Jeff) out there," Mrs. Jaschke said. "I don't know how long it would have been otherwise."

Two killed, 36 hurt in church bus crash near Luling

LULING, Texas (AP) — Members of an Austin church today mourned the deaths of two church members killed when their bus began slipping across a rain-slicked highway and flipped over just outside this Central Texas town.

Thirty-six others in the congregation were injured when the bus began hydroplaning and overturned on a curve of U.S. 183 Sunday morning, authorities said.

"I was almost asleep until the bus started to skid and then I woke up," said Herbert Patridge, 29, who was sitting behind the driver. "The bus just started hydroplaning... and flipped on its side when it hit the ditch. I remember a lot, but I'd love to forget."

Patridge said he received several cuts and bruises when the bus flipped over.

"When the bus went over, things kind of went black. When I came to, I was lying on top of two men."

Authorities said the church-owned bus was carrying 39 people from the East Side Church of Christ in Austin to Hillcrest Church of Christ in Corpus Christi for a singing worship service.

The bus had traveled about 50 miles on the 200-mile trip when the accident occurred, said Larry Todd, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

East Side church members held a special memorial service Sunday night in Austin for the victims, identified as Grlleen Jones, 46, and Bessie Grant, 43.

"They were both sitting right there in the third row behind the driver," said DPS Trooper Johnny Kuykendoll, glancing at the twisted wreckage. "They were the only ones killed. Why?"

Edward Jones said his wife, Grlleen, was sitting just across the aisle from him.

"I was just scratched on the leg, not really hurt at all," Jones said. "Everything was happening so fast, I'm not sure what happened. Before anyone knew what was going on, we were going off the road and then we were lying in a ditch."

"I'm trying my best to hold up," he said. "With the help of the good Lord, I'll make it."

Pat Reaves, head nurse at Davis General Hospital in Luling, said 38 people, including the two women who died, were brought to the hospital. She said four people were admitted for treatment, but none appeared seriously hurt.

Seven others were transferred to hospitals in Seguin and Austin, she said.

Legally blind man kills his girlfriend with sulfuric acid

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A legally blind man accused of murdering his girlfriend by forcing sulfuric acid down her throat says he didn't realize what he had done until he saw the woman's acid-seared body at an Austin funeral home.

Larry Townsley, 30, admits killing the woman he claims he was going to marry at Christmas, but says, "Even after what I did, I'll love her forever."

Co-workers at the Texas Commission for the Blind found the body of Pauline Blair, 40, sprawled in the bedroom of her mobile home after she failed to report to work Monday morning.

Her hair had been chopped off and her nude body doused with acid.

In a telephone interview Friday night from city jail where he is being held on $100,000 bond, Townsley told The Austin American-Statesman, "I didn't mean to kill her. I didn't realize what I'd done until I saw her at the funeral home. I didn't intend for it to go that far."

Townsley, who has partial vision, said police had allowed him to see Ms. Blair twice at the funeral home, and it was not until then that he became aware of the effects of the acid.

"I didn't really know how strong that acid was. I didn't know what it would do to her," he said.

Townsley said he poured acid on Ms. Blair and burned her with a cigarette lighter after he thought she was dead.

"I don't know why," he said. "If she was dead, no one could have her anyway, so what difference does it make what she looks like."

"I'm not a violent man. I'm really not," he said. Townsley said his fiancée had told him she was being blackmailed by another man, and this had strained their relationship.

"I'm not saying he killed her — I did," Townsley told the newspaper. "But it's a big reason why I did what I did. I can't blame anybody else for what I did, but I feel that contributed."

The newspaper said it had not been able to substantiate Townsley's blackmail allegations, and police declined comment.

"I know I'm going," said Townsley. "I could get anywhere from five to 99 years for this. I don't care what happens to me. My biggest worry now is Pauline — and the kids."

Townsley and his wife, Beverly, have two children, aged 7 and 8. He is a client of the Texas Commission for the Blind in San Angelo.

Joy flying teenagers probably won't be tried in adult court

DALLAS (AP) — A teen-ager who took a joy ride with two friends in a stolen airplane — and came perilously close to a collision with a jetliner — never had formal in-flight training and became airsick during the escapade, police say.

Authorities said it was unlikely that the three boys, whose identities have been withheld, would be tried as adults in the incident since there were no injuries. They could be charged with juvenile delinquency.

"I think they realize how serious it was, that they could have been killed, or killed somebody," said Youth Division Investigator Billie Mills, who has talked with the boys — one age 15, the others 16.

According to police, the boys entered the grounds of Cooper Airmobile, a private air charter concern at Dallas Love Field, on Friday night and clambered onto an unlocked twin-engine Piper Seneca belonging to Sound Communications Systems Inc. of Houston.

The Seneca does not need an ignition key. The youngest of the group apparently knew his way around airports and convinced a security guard and an air traffic controller he was authorized to fly the airplane, authorities said.

"The kid that piloted it was going to flight school, but he's just in ground training," said FAA spokeswoman Hollis Walker.

The 15-year-old later told police he did not know how to fly but had watched his father operate corporate airplanes before. He fired up the $25,000 airplane and taxied onto a runway, police said.

The air controller's first hint that something was amiss came when the plane was already off the ground and turned the wrong way after asking to go south, said control supervisor Bill York.

Tower operators said they lost radio and radar contact with the plane almost immediately, but within a few minutes a Southwest Airlines pilot said the craft suddenly appeared in his glide path as he was attempting a landing. He said it had been flying "erratically" toward a head-on collision, but dipped just under his path as it approached.

The teen-agers later said they never saw the Boeing 737, authorities said.

A police helicopter cruising a residential district saw the plane flying less than 50 feet above the rooftops and gave chase. He also notified Love Field controllers who were able to make radio contact with the craft.

After 45 minutes in the air, the airplane turned back toward Love Field, shepherded by the police helicopter, although the boys later told investigators they never saw the chopper either.

Part two: Reagan recalls college

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the second of a ten-part series of excerpts from "Where Is the Rest of Me?", an autobiography by president-elect Ronald Reagan with Richard G. Hubler.

By RONALD REAGAN with Richard G. Hubler

When I was 9 years old, we moved to Dixon. It was 90 miles from Chicago, 10 times as big as Tampico, with the Rock River running through the middle. It was to be home to me from that moment on until I was 21. All of us have to have a place we go back to, Dixon is that place for me. There was the life that has shaped my body and mind for all the years to come after.

It was a good life. I never have asked for anything more, then or now. Probably the best part of it all was playing football. Sure, I played basketball, went out for track and swimming; but those were games. Football was a matter of life and death.

MY POOR EYESIGHT had a great deal to do with my love for football. It never occurred to me that I was dreadfully nearsighted; I simply thought that the whole world was made up of colored blobs that became distinct when I got closer. I never cared for baseball, for example, because when I stood at the plate the ball appeared out of nowhere two feet in front of me. Then I discovered football: no little invisible ball — just another guy to grab or knock down.

The family finally realized my condition during a ride in the country. My brother could read the highway signs and I couldn't. I thought this was odd. I borrowed my mother's glasses. Putting them on, I suddenly saw a glorious, sharply outlined world jump into focus. I shouted with delight — the miracle of seeing was beyond believing. The miracle, of course, wore off and I began to hate the big glasses I had to wear. I hate them to this day.

IN THE SUMMER of 1926 I got a job I was to keep for seven summers; that of lifeguard at Lowell Park. I was paid $15 a week to save lives. Lifeguarding provides one of the best vantage points in the world to learn about people. During my career at the park, I saved 77 people. I guarantee you they needed saving — no lifeguard gets wet without good reason. Not many thanked me, much less gave me a reward. The only money I ever got was $10 for diving for an old man's upper plate that he lost going down our slide.

I got to recognize that people hate to be saved: almost every one of them later sought me out and angrily denounced me for dragging them to shore. "I would have been fine if you'd let me alone," was their theme. "You made a fool out of me trying to make a hero out of yourself."

But I loved lifeguarding — and I was saving my money. Ever since my first job at 14, digging foundations for a construction contractor, I'd been saving for college — a particular college. While I was still in grade school, my hero had been the high school fullback and captain. He went to Eureka College. I had never seen Eureka College, but it was my choice, too.

I ARRIVED AT Eureka College in the fall of 1928, and fell head over heels in love with it. I still think, after years of traveling the United States, that it is one of the loveliest colleges in existence. And thanks to friends I was already slated for a fraternity house — Tau Kappa Epsilon.

I had wanted to get in Eureka so badly that it hurt. The obstacle was money — not my marks. I was broke. Nevertheless, I had some reputation as a swimmer and a football player. The tuition was $180 a year and I had brought with me about $400 from my summers' earnings. The officials gave me a scholarship for half of my tuition and a job for board: washing dishes in the fraternity house. Later I got a post called "cleansing tableware" in a girls' dormitory. In my junior and senior years I managed to earn my way as the swimming-pool lifeguard and official coach.

THE START OF MY SOPHOMORE year was the year of the great market crash, but the only crash Eureka was interested in was that of body against body. We had five full football teams on the field — and I was on number five. Eventually I was tagged to play right end on the second team, then guard. Then one Saturday I started, and for the next three seasons I averaged all but two minutes of every game.

I also was investigating a new, wonderful world, possibly more fascinating than any other: drama. In Dixon High School I had been lucky enough to be under the instruction of a new English teacher named B.J. Fraser. From him I learned almost all of what I know about acting today (and if the people back there will quit shouting, "That's not much!" I'll be quite happy.) At Eureka I had continued much the same career by joining the dramatic society and enrolling in the dramatics course which was part of the English curriculum.

It was during one of our plays that I contracted a disease I call "leading-ladyitis." In this case it was aggravated by the fact that the leading lady was a senior, and every boy has to have at least one experience of an older woman in his life. Actually, it is a theatrical phenomenon and comes about through the process of living a part to a certain extent. In my case, it was short-lived because we had two weeks' rehearsal and one performance. Today, however, if I could give one bit of advice to youngsters starting out in theater or movies I'd say: don't marry your leading man or lady until you've done another role opposite someone else. Leading-ladyitis is an infatuation that won't hold up, once the play is over and you each go back to playing yourselves.

GOP governors list 'changes'

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Republican governors, reflecting their party's newly won power in Washington and in the nation's statehouses, want to see some changes made — and they want a voice in what happens.

Meeting here, the governors laid out an agenda for changes they hope will come under the Reagan administration. Gov. Richard Snelling of Vermont, chairman of the Republican Governors' Association, said Sunday that the world "would be better off if (the proposals) could be accomplished in the first 200 days" of Ronald Reagan's presidency, which begins Jan. 20.

The problems laid out in the agenda will have to be met for the party to cash in on its Nov. 4 landslide, the governors said. They also said that, regardless of which party holds power in Washington, they as governors are closer to the problems of the people than are federal officeholders.

"I think the Republican Party is about to become over the next few years a majority party of the United States," said Snelling, adding that "we want to participate in shaping programs which will achieve the goals that we've been talking about for these many years."

Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, chairman of the group's Policy Forum, led off Sunday's meeting with a list of his "wants" from the Reagan administration and from congressional Republicans.

The list includes continuation of revenue sharing, fighting for its life in the lame-duck session of Congress; tax cuts; federal spending limits; streamlining federal grant programs; and a stronger state voice in federal expenditures at state and federal levels.

The governors also attacked federally mandated programs that lack adequate financing and criticized what they called federal intrusion into local responsibilities, such as law enforcement and education. They also said environmental regulations should be left to the states.

States join Montana tax fight

By The Associated Press

At least six Midwest and Southwest states have announced plans to join the effort, now before the U.S. Supreme Court, to strike down Montana's 30-percent tax on coal mining.

Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller said Saturday that he and three other state attorneys general are asking the U.S. Supreme Court to hear the case. The tax was upheld by the Montana Supreme Court.

Miller's arguments to the nation's highest court are in the form of a "friend of the court" brief filed in conjunction with the attorneys general of Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin.

In Montana, one of the chief defenders of the tax, Assistant Attorney General Mike McGrath, said similar action is planned by officials from Texas and Kansas. Texas participated as a friend of the court when the Montana Supreme Court considered the case in April.

The suit against the tax was filed by a number of out-of-state utilities and coal companies.

"The Montana 'severance tax' taxes coal mined in the state at a rate of 30 percent of its value," said Miller. "This cost is passed along to energy consumers in Iowa and other states in the form of higher fuel bills."

In their brief, Miller and other opponents of the tax claim it is unconstitutional because it "impedes or frustrates federal policy or objective."

"In recent years, the federal government...has fashioned an energy policy which favors the use and production of coal, particularly the low-sulfur coal found in the western states, as a substitute for oil and natural gas," it said.

"By increasing the severance tax on its coal to an unprecedented level, the state of Montana has increased the cost of coal to its sister states to such a degree that it undermines important federal policies which favor a relative increase in the consumption of coal."

The brief filed by Texas Attorney General Mark White declared, "If Texas were autonomous, it would use its own energy resources for domestic purposes and export the remainder at the price level of the world market. Texas would not need Montana coal."

White said federal energy programs and the U.S. Constitution should prevent any state from "inordinately benefiting from any federal response to a national problem."

Kansas Attorney General Robert Stephan cited similar arguments, even though no Montana coal is sold in his state. Kansas utilities have contracts to buy millions of tons of Wyoming coal — taxed at 17 1/2 percent — during the rest of this century.

"The citizens of Kansas are captives of state tax policies in other states which are, therefore, in a position to take extraordinary and unreasonable economic advantage of their plight," Stephan said.

Montana argues that the 30-percent tax, which is the nation's highest, is needed to deal with the impact of coal development on the state's sparsely-settled plains, and to prepare for the day when the coal is gone. The tax is expected to bring the state at least $54.9 million this fiscal year, half of which goes into a trust fund.

Reagan to call on Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan visits Congress this week and likely will find members debating whether to challenge him to make the federal spending cuts promised in his campaign.

Reagan, seeking to establish good relations with Congress, will meet with Democratic and Republican leaders Tuesday, after flying to Washington from California today.

Both the House and the Senate are scheduled to work this week on a binding federal budget for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

The House version calls for spending $631.7 billion, leaving a deficit of $25 billion. To reach that figure, Reagan would have to cut planned expenditures $17 billion, roughly the 2 percent by which he has said the budget could be pruned.

The Senate version proposes spending of $633 billion, with a deficit of $17.9 billion, but does not mandate a spending cut.

The House version is sponsored by Rep. Robert

Gaimo, D-Conn., the Budget Committee chairman. He said it would enable Reagan to make good on claims that 2 percent could be trimmed by eliminating waste and fraud.

But Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker has accused Gaimo of "playing political games with us" and has said Reagan should be given "a fair shot" at making spending cuts after he takes office.

In other matters on Capitol Hill this week: —The Senate is expected to consider a three-year extension of a multibillion-dollar revenue-sharing program for cities and counties. Its supporters say the aid is vital to continuing a variety of basic services. The House passed its version last week.

—Also on the Senate agenda are bills appropriating $9.57 billion for the State, Justice and Commerce departments and related agencies and $10.57 billion for the Interior Department.

The Justice Department measure has been delayed by arguments over an amendment that would block the department from spending money.

Dakota, and three mountain schools in N. Carolina, Georgia and Alabama.

The entire membership of the chapter participates in preparing the items—all home-cooked and ready to eat or to freeze, and just in time for Thanksgiving.

Co-chairmen of the sale are Mrs. Joe Bob Warren and Mrs. Donald N. Ewan. Committee members are Mrs. Clarence Scharbauer Jr., Mrs. Louis Michaelson, Mrs. Richard Ham and Mrs. Black Hadden.

DEAR ABBY

Tongues wagging over doctor's advice

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Who am I to refute your medical authority concerning whether psoriasis can be cured by dog-licking or not? (He said he wouldn't recommend it because a dog's saliva contains certain chemicals that could do more harm than good.)

All I know is this: Our dog had a nasty cut on his leg, and when I took him to the vet, he refused to bandage it, saying it would prevent the dog from licking the wound. The vet maintained that the dog's saliva contained certain healing properties that could do more for the dog than HE could. — BARBARA IN WORCESTER

DEAR BARBARA: I have received a rash of letters attesting to the healing powers of the dog-licking treatment. The mail is running 20 to 1 against me, but I'm not licked yet.

DEAR ABBY: I have a gentleman friend I've been going with for three years. He is 58 and I am 53.

On his birthday I gave him a friendship ring, which he accepted with much pleasure.

When my birthday rolled around, he completely forgot it. Naturally I was hurt, but reminded him (in a kidding way) toward the end of the day. He quickly bought a birthday card (one of those humorous ones), stuck a $20 bill in the envelope and handed it to me that evening.

The following day, I returned the $20 with a letter telling him it was demeaning to my character to accept money from a man.

He feels that I was wrong in returning the money. He said, "If it had been a diamond bracelet, you wouldn't have returned it."

I said, "A diamond bracelet is a gift, but money, regardless of the amount, is more of a 'payment.'"

Who is correct? Is it proper for a lady to accept a gift of money from a gentleman today? Or does it still carry the same connotation as years ago? — NEW YORK but I love him, too. Please tell me what to do. — ALL TORN UP

DEAR TORN: Take your mother's advice. A man who would encourage a 14-year-old girl to lie and sneak behind her mother's back to see him is bad news.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to get together with STYMIED IN BUFFALO. Her description of the gentleman who sees her only Wednesday and Saturday nights fits the description perfectly of the man I'm dating. He told me from the start that he could see me any nights of the week EXCEPT Wednesday and Saturday. — BUFFALO'D IN BUFFALO.

Hardy hikers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A coast-to-coast hike is bridging the generations as it spans the continent.

HikaNation is a Pacific-to-Atlantic backpacking project which counts among its 150 participants John Stout, a 68-year-old retired machinist, and Jamie Pyles, an 11-month-old girl being wheeled cross-country by her parents.

The trek, sponsored by the makers of Postum and the U.S. Department of Interior, started in San Francisco in early April and expects to reach the Washington Monument next spring. The 4,500-mile hike represents the first time a group this size has backpacked together across America. The aim is to focus attention on the need for more trail—as more Americans become active hikers.

Diabetes meeting speakers named

The Midland American Diabetes Association and the Midland County Medical Society are hosting a meeting directed toward diabetes Thursday.

Speakers are Dr. David Schade from The University of New Mexico, and Dr. Holbrook Seltzer from Dallas, both innovators in the area of diabetic research.

Dr. Schade will discuss his research with the insulin pump and Dr. Seltzer will discuss his research in islet transplants.

Meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the banquet area of the Midland Hilton. Each physician will speak for 30 minutes and allow 15 minutes for questions from the audience.

"The opportunity to hear persons interested in finding a cure for diabetes is worthwhile of your time and effort," said Melinda Cherryhomes, public education chairman for the Midland area chapter. "We encourage you to bring your family and friends to this meeting."

Since no funding for speakers is available to the local chapters, the Midland chapter is asking local groups to help meet expenses of bringing physicians to this area. A contribution may be sent to Sandy Miller, P. O. Box 2101, Midland, TX, 79702.

New edition cookbook 'bigger and better'

"We've done it again!" said Mary Breunig, wife of the Dallas Cowboys' middle linebacker, Bob Breunig, "and the all-new 'Second Edition of the Dallas Cowboys Wives' Cookbook and Family Album' is even bigger and better than last year's popular book."

"Bigger and better" means that this season's cookbook contains not only all new favorite Cowboy recipes, candid snapshots, and family sketches from the married players; but pictures, recipes and sketches from the single players, rookies and coaching staff as well.

The "Second Edition," which has just been released in the Metroplex, is a fund-raising effort on the part of Mary and other Cowboy wives to benefit the children of Happy Hill Farm. All proceeds from the book go directly to the children. Located just southwest of the Metroplex, the Farm provides residential care and vocational training for boys and girls who suffer from severe learning disabilities and handicaps.

The wives have compiled the new recipes from their famous husbands, teammates, and coaches into a volume that will please Cowboy fans and those who are just interested in good food. The "Family Album" section of the book contains pictures of the players, their families and friends. Fans will be surprised to learn that some of the single players are gourmet cooks. Tony Dorsett has a recipe for "Scallops Provence-Style." Not to be outdone, Jo Lynn White, wife of Quarterback Danny White, has shared her favorite "Whipped Short Breads" recipe.

Mary came up with the idea of compiling the cookbook two years ago. With the help of some of the other wives and the Children's Home staff, she produced one of the most popular cookbooks shown in the Metroplex last year.

Several thousand copies were sold to Cowboy fans, scattered from Alabama to Alaska. The small Children's Home staff, which handled all of the packaging and mailing of the books, worked frantically trying to fill the orders before Christmas.

The Breunigs, who are among the Farm's most ardent supporters, have been helping the children almost from the beginning of the work some five years ago. Bob has served on the Board of Directors since 1977.

Most of the children who live at the Farm come from the Dallas-Fort Worth area. They have been referred by school counselors, psychiatrists and psychologists, and the juvenile justice system. Many of the children, due to their severe emotional and educational problems, have gotten into trouble.

Nestled in the hill country, about an hour's drive from the city, Happy Hill Farm is able to offer its children the best of both worlds. It is far enough away to provide a rural atmosphere, yet close enough to take advantage of all the recreational, educational and cultural opportunities of the big city.

The Farm is multi-denominational. It does not receive federal or state aid. Operating funds to sustain the program have come from hundreds of individuals throughout the state. Corporations and foundations in the area are assisting with capital funds for the Farm.

The cookbooks may be ordered directly from the Farm for $8.95, plus $1 for sales tax, postage and handling. The address is Dallas Cowboys Wives' Cookbook, Happy Hill Farm, Star Route, Glen Rose, TX, 76043.

Love and medicine equal, says physician

By JACK WILLIAMS
Copley News Service

Dr. Paul Brenner is a physician who claims to have healed by the sick.

He has learned to cast aside the protective, professional shield that separates doctor and patient. He has learned to accept love and medicine as healing agents in equal doses.

He has learned, moreover, that health is the appreciation of life.

When he left the practice of traditional medicine four years ago (he practiced obstetrics and gynecology for 10 years in La Jolla, Calif.), he sought out the chronically and terminally ill, feeling that his medical background might help ease their burden.

"They did a number on me," he says. "They were telling me the story of my lives. Their family histories, everything. I was saying, 'Hey, I have the same problems.'"

"In listening to these people for a prolonged period of time, I realized there was double healing going on. In both directions. Between doctor and patient."

The barriers between patient and doctor that Brenner had felt during his career in traditional medicine were eliminated. He began to appreciate the power of love and emotion as a force for health, reaching such conclusions as:

"The sick person is an untapped natural resource of health."

"We are our greatest limitations. If people believe they are going to live more than five years they're gonna live more than 15."

"I believe that love heals, and if enough people believe that, it can be true."

Brenner does not attempt to speak for the medical profession when he questions the traditional "shield" physicians erect between themselves and patients. He seeks, instead, to see physicians get closer to their patients and for the profession to accept alternative medicine as well as the traditional techniques.

His belief in the validity of healing through love and-or faith is so secure, he has spoken publicly in behalf of "Resurrection," a Universal motion picture which addresses the healing potential of individuals.

"The time has come," says Brenner, "to integrate the two paths (healing and medicine)."

"Both are stuck in the belief that theirs is the only way."

As the medical profession is fighting an uphill battle against such diseases as cancer, Brenner sees a tendency toward more personal care for patients. He sees physicians dealing more with "the quality than the quantity of life."

"Cancer," he says, "is a beautiful metaphor to give us a little humility. We think we can change everything, but we are running out of reserves."

"Chronic lung disease and renal failure are accomplishing the same thing — metaphors for where our society is in relationship to the universe."

Brenner, 47, still counsels the terminally ill. He also teaches at The University of California at San Diego Medical School. He has written a book on pregnancy and plans to write others on birth and healing.

"I love traditional medicine," he said. "If I'm hit by a car, get me to the hospital."

That's not to say, however, that Brenner hasn't re-examined some of his early lessons and beliefs.

"We're told to maintain a shield in dealing with a patient in medical school," he said. "This indoctrination is so powerful that it is hard to walk out of the office at the end of the day and immediately get rid of it."

"You don't walk out as Superman, then change into Clark Kent in a phone booth on the way home. That shield has got to affect your personal life. It's a lot easier to be one person all the time."

Brenner also sees a need for physicians to become receivers as well as givers.

"Most doctors, as well as psychologists and social workers, are great givers and not good receivers," he said.

Brenner said he learned to be a receiver when he developed a more intimate rapport with the seriously ill patients he counseled after giving up his earlier practice.

"It became clear to me," he said, "that they were telling me things so that I wouldn't have to undergo the same strains."

These people, he said, had been victimized by chronic stress, which leads to illness.

"They had resentments over 20 to 30 years," he said. "This prolonged stress leads to distress, which leads to disease."

Brenner said he also met people who, though suffering from terminal diseases, were vibrant, loving and giving.

"People," he concludes, "can die healthy."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Removing furniture stains

DEAR HELOISE:

I know people should cut out the hints that might some day be useful. Unfortunately, I didn't...so could you please tell us how to remove white stains from furniture? — Mrs. G. Johnson

How could I refuse! Two things usually cause white rings — heat and water.

And since it's rather hard to keep up with everyone to make sure nobody sets a drippy water glass or a cup of hot coffee down on the prize credenza, sooner or later the inevitable is going to happen.

If it's a fresh water ring, a soft cloth and a little elbow grease should buff it out. If it's been there awhile, try using an oil-based furniture polish and a lot of elbow grease. Mayonaise has been known to help in some cases but, there again, it's the oil that does the trick.

If the damage is extensive, some rings, especially heat rings, may not come out. But try rubbing lightly with toothpaste or silver polish. These products are slightly abrasive. If that doesn't work, then refinishing may be the only answer...

Hum-m-m! On second thought, maybe you should follow everyone around who's carrying a glass... — Heloise

FABULOUS FIFTIES
Dear Heloise: For card

players who are stroke victims or have hand injuries:

Put one inch of loose sand in a horizontal planter or loaf tin. As dealt, cards can be placed in the sand with the good hand, thus leaving the good hand free to play cards as needed.

Quite a therapy, mentally and physically, not to have to slow up the game. — Florence Thompson

STORAGE IDEA

Dear Heloise: During the winter months we always had a problem keeping stocking caps, mittens, scarves, etc., in a convenient place by coats.

One day I spied an inexpensive plastic shoe-bag with 12 pockets and a hanger on top.

I hung it by the coat closet and it works great. A pair of mittens or gloves fit in one pocket, a stocking cap in another.

Now we can see what we want at a glance with no more digging through every drawer in the house. — Bobby Fuller

RECIPE FILE

Dear Heloise: Whenever I find a great recipe, I write down the name of the recipe and which book it was in because I have lots of recipe books and several recipe boxes.

I keep this list in a special cross-reference file box. Then, when I'm out of ideas, I just look in my index box and know where to look for that special dish. — Ann Noren

Magic works like charm for professor

By R.D. GERSH
Associated Press Writer
NO FOLK, Va. (AP) — Old Dominion University Professor Fred Culpepper has a magical way with his industrial arts education students. And a few teaching tricks up his sleeve.

Disappearing coin tricks. Knotted rope tricks. Torn newspaper tricks. Magic tricks.

"Methods classes in education can be terribly dull for both teacher and students, so I consciously looked for something to pop it up," Culpepper said.

Presto! It works. The 55-year-old Culpepper has been conjuring with magic since a child's fascination led him, while stationed with the Navy in Chicago during World War II, to study with a master named Tarbell who "taught me the ropes — literally and figuratively."

Culpepper, who has been at ODU since 1962, used magic when he taught high school industrial arts, and now he uses it when he teaches teachers.

"There's a certain amount of showmanship a teacher has got to possess to keep the attention of the students. We are competing with TV programs, and unless it's darn interesting the kids just turn you off," he said.

He has none of the magician's reputed hesitancy about letting out the tricks of his trade.

Magicians' secrecy "is the greatest trick of them all," he said. "All this stuff is written up in books that are in the public library. They just get uptight if somebody does the same trick better than them."

Part of the magic is that teaching students how to make coins reappear or torn newspaper sheets whole does more than give them a repertoire of tricks.

"The youngsters are taking these tricks and showing them to friends and in this way are getting experience in presenting material," Culpepper said.

"Since our work is highly manipulative, it fits in with teaching them to direct people's attention to what they want to show."

It actually is an aid to education, not just entertainment, he says.

"It gets them over the stage fright of standing up and teaching a lesson. It's easier when they have something in their hands to play with."

Culpepper relies on tricks that use readily available material — coins, chalk, paper. But not cards.

You have got to make a choice

Oh, my dear Corinthian friends! I have told you all my feelings; I love you with all my heart.

Any coldness still between us is not because of any lack of love on my part, but because your love is too small and does not reach out to me and draw me in.

I am talking to you now as if you truly were my very own children. Open your hearts to us! Return our love!

Don't be teamed with those who do not love the Lord, for what do the people of God have in common with the people of sin? How can light live with darkness?

And what harmony can there be between Christ and the devil? How can a Christian be a partner with one who doesn't believe?

And what union can there be between God's temple and idols? For you are God's temple, the home of the living God, and God has said of you, "I will live in them and walk among them, and I will be their God and they shall be my people."

That is why the Lord has said, "Leave them; separate yourselves from them; don't touch their filthy things, and I will welcome you.

And be a Father to you, and you will be My sons and daughters."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Alcohol has both effects

Dear Dr. Solomon: I belong to a bowling team that meets once a week, after which we generally go out for a few beers. At our last get-together, we began talking about the effect of alcohol on sex. Some of us claimed that a few drinks would increase sexual ability, while other said the opposite. We agreed I would write you to see if there is an answer to this question. — Johnny

Dear Johnny: Because of individual differences in the reaction to any drug, the answer to your question must be qualified. Alcohol may increase a person's sexual drive when it is consumed in small amounts, since it would tend to reduce emotional inhibitions. However, when alcohol is consumed in large amounts for an extended period of time, it may produce an opposite result, partly because of its effects on hormonal levels and on the nervous system.

It appears that both sides of the argument can be said to be correct.

Dear Dr. Solomon: During the time my mother-in-law was ill with cancer, the medical aspects of the disease were overwhelming; however, my wife and I had anticipated them and, with the help of family and friends, we were able to cope. What we were not prepared to deal with were the number of legal problems we encountered, such as the disposition of property and the closing of savings and checking account. In regard to the medical problems, we received a tremendous amount of help from the hospital's social work staff, but there was no one available to help us through the legal maze. Has anyone ever given any thought to providing legal assistance for the families of patients suffering from a terminal illness? — Mr. D.J.

Dear Mr. J.: Although I personally am not familiar with any effort to provide legal counseling to patients and their families, I have learned that the Oncology Social Work Program at the Duke University Medical Center is planning some activity in this area. Staff members will study the legal needs of cancer patients and their families and will identify the resources available to help meet those needs. The area to be assessed include such subjects as child custody, estate planning and financial responsibility for treatment.

Program director Bev Rosen points out that medical and legal considerations cannot be handled as completely separate issues since stress affects the patient's physical and mental condition. Patients would be better able to cope with their illness and treatment if they knew their affairs were settled and their families provided for.

The trend in the treatment of patients with a terminal illness increasingly in the direction of family involvement, with various kinds of assistance begin offered the patient's spouse, children and other close relatives. Extending this philosophy to include help with legal problems may simply be a matter of time.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Caesar, Chicago firehouse mascot, dies after 9 1/2 years

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Caesar, the Dalmatian dog who beat Chicago Fire Department bureaucracy to stay on as a firehouse mascot, is dead.

The 9 1/2-year-old dog, adored by firefighters, paramedics, neighborhood kids and adults, was put to sleep this week. He was cremated and his ashes will be preserved, although

Aviation seminar set Wednesday

The Lubbock General Aviation District Office will present an Aviation Educational Seminar at Midland College Wednesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

Calvin Pitts, a member of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will speak on aircraft icing, stalls, spins, crashworthiness testing and other related research programs.

Pitts, 45, of San Jose, Calif., has 7,000 flight hours and an engineering background with HARCO Aircraft Corp. He currently is a pilot/project officer at AMES Research Center.

Pitts will also highlight what NASA is doing toward research and testing for general aviation aircraft.

Pilots attending the seminar may register for a chance to win a $50,000 airplane to be given away by the General Aviation Manufacturers Association "Safe Pilot '80" sweepstakes award program.

The program is co-sponsored by Hank's Flite Center and Beggs Aviation in cooperation with the Lubbock General Aviation District Office Accident Prevention Program.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

firemen said it had not been decided where.

Caesar long had been suffering from arthritis, probably contracted from riding fire wagons in harsh weather.

"Up to about two years ago he would ride every run when the alarm sounded," engineer Mike Kovac said Friday. "But it got so he couldn't make the jump all the way up on the fire truck and he would just sit there shivering and couldn't go along. His old bones just hurt him too much. He was frequently taken to the vets for treatments in the last several years."

Caesar was a puppy when a Playboy bunny gave him to the firehouse as a gift.

"The dog had a good disposition," said Lt. Peter Qualizza. "But he had his share of fights, all right. He had maybe 1,000 fights with other dogs and lost 999 of them."

"Caesar received more recognition at this corner than we did in all the years we've been here."

With winter approaching, firemen said Caesar's arthritis was getting very painful and the decision was made to destroy him.

Drew sets new Cowboy mark

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Not only does Drew Pearson now own the all-time Dallas Cowboys' receiving record, but he's not half bad at prophecy either.

Pearson surpassed Bob Hayes on Dallas' all-time list Sunday in a 31-21 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

He snared one of three touchdown passes off the arm of Danny White, who bounced back with an excellent outing after serving five interceptions in a 38-35 upset loss to the New York Giants a week ago.

"I felt all week that he would come out of this and have one of his best games ever," said Pearson, as the Cowboys ran their record to 8-3, two games behind Philadelphia in the National Conference Eastern Division.

White hurled touchdown passes of 18 yards to Preston Pearson, 58 yards to Tony Hill and a final 14-yarder to Drew Pearson.

Drew's touchdown catch tied Hayes' record for 365 catches and he caught another one to break it.

AFTER THE interview session following the game, Pearson went to the telephone and called his father, who is critically ill with cancer in New Jersey.

Pearson kept two footballs — the one he tied the record with and the record-breaker.

"I rank it right along with making the National Football League's All-Decade team and being named All-Pro for three years," said Pearson.

After the record catch, Pearson said, "My brother (Andre) ran out of the stands. He was one of the first to greet me."

Dallas' 8-3 record puts the Cowboys in excellent wild-card position should they fail to catch the Eagles.

The luckless Cardinals dipped to 3-8.

St. Louis jumped to a 14-0 lead behind Ottis Anderson's 51-yard touchdown and Jim Hart's 69-yard scoring pass to Mel Gray, who had to leave the game with a sprained ankle.

White answered that salvo with the first of his scoring passes, but Hart wasn't through. He nished Pat Tilley with a 66-yard pass for a touchdown.

A 58-yard White to Tony Hill connection cut the score to 21-17 St. Louis at halftime.

IT WAS all Dallas in the second half as White flicked the 14-yarder to Drew Pearson for the score that gave the Cowboys a 24-21 lead.

Tony Dorsett, who rushed for 122 yards, dashed 11 yards for a fourth-period score. It was Dorsett's 17th 100-yard day as a Cowboy, tying Calvin Hill's club record.

St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan, who sprang a four-man line defense on the Cowboys, said, "You've got to give Dallas credit. They just played better than we did."

"We started out with the 4-3 defense because we were hurting at linebackers, but they adjusted quickly."

Hart said, "We do better against the Cowboys than a lot of teams we play, but we still can't beat them. They aren't that invincible, but they always seem to win."

Dallas' Drew Pearson (88) is congratulated by teammates after third-quarter TD pass against Cardinals at Texas Stadium Sunday that helped make him Cowboys' all-time leading receiver. (AP Laserphoto)

Fake field goal pays off

Bum, Oilers cityslick Bears, 10-6

CHICAGO (AP) — You're trailing by six points, the first half is almost over and you're eight yards from the goal line on fourth down. So you try for a field goal, right?

Not necessarily.

The Houston Oilers had almost everybody in Soldier Field thinking they were going to attempt a 25-yard field goal as the first half of Sunday's game against the Chicago Bears neared the close.

But Houston Coach Bum Phillips called a special play, one that the Oilers last used two seasons ago in a game against New England.

OUTPLAYED in the first half with the Bears leading 6-0 and seconds remaining on the clock, Tom Fritsch lined up for a 25-yard field goal attempt.

Holder Gifford Nielsen then took the snap from center and shoveled a pass to Tim Wilson, who went around right end for the touchdown and a 7-6 halftime lead. Houston went on to win 10-6.

"I felt like it was a perfect situation because they just knew we were going to go for it (the field goal)," Phillips said. "I thought it was an excellent strategic move."

"The Bears wanted to block the field goal so they were loaded on the left side," said Nielsen. "The right side was open a bit, and that's where we went."

NIELSEN added that if the Bears hadn't lined up overloaded on one side, the Oilers could have taken a five-yard delay of game penalty and still have been within easy field goal range.

Earl Campbell rushed 31 times for a career-high 206 yards, with all but 68 yards coming in the second half when the Oilers controlled the ball and kept the Bears from scoring.

The win gave the Oilers sole possession of first place in the American Conference Central by improving their National Football League mark to 8-3.

Houston's other score came early in the second half when they took the opening kickoff and moved from their own 30 to the Chicago 12-yard line on the running of Campbell. Fritsch then booted a 29-yard field goal.

Chicago's scoring came in the first half on field goals of 27 and 22 yards by Bob Thomas as the Bear record dropped to 4-7 in the National Conference Central.

THE HERALDED running duel between Campbell and Chicago's Walter Payton was won by Campbell, who boosted his league-leading total to 1,800. Payton gained 60 yards in 18 carries and now has 360 for the season.

"He had a super day," Payton said of Campbell. "What else can I say? As for myself, we didn't run enough."

"It's a pleasure for me, being in the league only three years, to be compared to someone like Walter Payton," said Campbell. "Now I'd just like to get me a Super Bowl ring before I get too old. I think this year we've got a good chance."

Bears end suspense to make UT the Pride Bowl

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer

Now that all this build-up has been settled, the Baylor Bears and Texas Longhorns can play in Waco Saturday just for the pure joy of knocking each other loose from their helmet straps.

The Bears made a "Pride Bowl" out of what was supposed to be the Southwest Conference's big Nov. 22 shootout.

They beat Rice 16-6 Saturday to earn the right as the host team in the Cotton Bowl, leading a parade of five Southwest Conference teams into post-season play.

The lineup reads like this:

COTTON BOWL, Jan. 1, Dallas: Baylor 9-1 vs. Alabama 6-2.

BLUEBONNET BOWL, Dec. 31, Houston: Texas 7-2 vs. North Carolina 9-1.

HALL OF FAME CLASSIC, Dec. 27, Birmingham: Arkansas 5-4 vs. Tulane 6-3.

HOLIDAY BOWL, Dec. 19, San Diego: SMU 7-3 vs. WAC champ, probably Brigham Young.

GARDEN STATE BOWL, Dec. 14, East Rutherford, N.J.: Houston 5-4 vs. Navy 7-3.

All that bowling will kick some $2 million into the coffers of the SWC.

In other games Saturday, SMU was stunned 14-0 by Texas Tech, Arkansas blew a 24-point lead but nipped Texas A&M 27-24 and Texas outlasted Texas Christian 51-26.

Baylor has a 7-0 SWC mark with Houston and Texas battling for second place with 4-2 ledgers. SMU 4-3 and Texas Tech 3-3 are in contention for third place.

IN GAMES Saturday besides Texas-Baylor scuffle, Arkansas is at SMU, Houston is at Texas Tech and TCU is at Texas A&M.

The Baylor-Bama matchup is about the best the Cotton Bowl could have hoped for. In fact, Alabama could have gone to the Orange Bowl.

"We're happy with the way things worked out," said Field Scovell, head of the selection committee.

Scovell was in the Crimson Tide dressing room after they had lost 7-0 to Notre Dame.

"When you go into the losing dressing room, it's a rough place," said Scovell. "I don't like it. The kids are down, the coaches are down. You never see anybody's face, just the tops of their heads."

One Alabama official told Scovell the players wanted to come to Dallas instead of the Orange Bowl because "they liked the idea of going somewhere they could get cowboy boots and cowboy hats."

BAYLOR Coach Grant Teaff said the Bears "started preparing for the moment right here in this (Rice) dressing room two years ago. We lost to Rice in 1978 and since then we have lost only five games. After that game, we dedicated ourselves to becoming a better team, one worthy of being a conference champion."

"We had a good nucleus coming off last year's Peach Bowl team, but still I didn't entertain any thoughts of being league champions this year."

SMU Coach Ron Meyer told representatives of the Holiday Bowl "I'll guarantee you we'll play better in San Diego than we did today. We just couldn't get untracked."

SMU halfback Craig James pretty well summed up the SWC season when he said "The world's crazy." Only Rice, TCU, Texas A&M and Texas Tech didn't get bowl bids.

By The Associated Press

TENNIS—John McEnroe survived erratic play to beat Gene Mayer 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 and win the Wembley, Eng., for the third straight year... Ivan Lendl upset Brian Teacher 6-7, 6-3, 6-3, 7-6 in the Taipei finals... Andrea Jaeger cashed in on Tracy Austin's hamstring injury to capture the Florida Federal women's tournament when Austin forfeited minutes before the match... Hana Mandlikova overcame Virginia Ruzici 5-7, 6-2, 7-5 to win the Dutch International Indoor Championship.

GOLF—Greg Norman of Australia fired a two-under-par 70 to finish at 284 and post a one-stroke victory over countryman Brian Jones in the Dunhill Australian Open... Norio Suzuki of Japan won the $300,000 Toshiba Pacific Masters tournament for the second straight year, beating countryman Masashi "Jumbo" Ozaki on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff. The two had tied at 282 over the regulation 72 holes, with Suzuki shooting a final-round 71 and Ozaki a 75. Tom Watson carded a closing 70 and finished in a third-place tie at 283 with Ed Flori and D.A. Weiringer.

AUTO RACING—Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C., won the Los Angeles Times 500 NASCAR stock car race for the second straight year at the Ontario Motor Speedway. Finishing behind Parsons in the 500-mile race were Neil Bonnett, Cale Yarborough, Bobby Allison and Dale Earnhardt... Defending champion Geoff Lees of Britain, leading from start to finish, won the 27th annual Macao Grand Prix in the record time of one hour, 35 minutes and 27.94 seconds... World champion Alan Jones of Australia spreadeagled the field in winning the 45th Australian Grand Prix, easily beating Bruno Giacomelli of Italy.

MARATHON—Greg Meyer won the Atlanta-Boavista Marathon in 2 hours, 16 minutes, 40 seconds. Brazilians Edson Bergara and Ronald Taylor finished second and third, respectively, in 2:22:43 and 2:29:01. The top woman was Lorraine Moller of New Zealand, who was seventh overall in 2:39:10... Joyce Smith of Britain beat Canada's Jacqueline Gareau in the Tokyo International Women's Open Marathon covering the 26-mile, 385-yard course in two hours, 30 minutes, 27 seconds.

HORSE RACING—Niatross shattered his world record for the one-mile pace with a clocking of 1:52.15 at Hollywood Park. Driven by trainer Clint Galbraith, Niatross set his ninth track record, breaking the mile mark for a race of 1:52.45 he had established at Syracuse, N.Y., on Aug. 16. The 3-year-old colt, winner of 34 of his 36 harness races, has earned $1,275,563 so far this year.

Tech quarterback Ron Reeves said he was too busy to notice the cold and safety Ted Watts said the only reason he noticed it was because his jaw, broken two years ago, hurt. But fans, cheerleaders and game officials, from left to right, shivered through Texas Tech's 14-0 upset of SMU in the Jones Stadium fridge Saturday. (Photos by Ted Battles).

You know him as FBI agent, but in old days...

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — This FBI agent was a D and a Vandal before turning pro.

Dwight Morrison has been with the Federal Bureau of Investigation for 17 years. He's been based in Los Angeles, Seattle, and for the past two years, in Olympia.

He worked on the Patty Hearst case and set what may be an FBI record for the most arrests in a year — 205.

But some recall Morrison from the court rather than the field.

Remember Bob Cousy, Bill Sharman and Ed McCauley? They were all members of the 1955 Boston Celtic team — the first team in National Basketball Association history to average over 100 points per game for the season.

Morrison was the starting center for that Celtic team.

"Those were great days. We were the runners, we had a lot of high-scoring games and we were the team everybody wanted to see when we were on the road."

"We played a heavy schedule — 99 games the first year I was there. Many times we would play a game in New York, run to the station to catch a train, travel all night and all day and get out and play the next night. It was very tiring," Morrison said.

"I didn't score a lot of points on that team. Those three (Cousy, Sharman and McCauley) all averaged 20 points per game. I was a rebounder and defensive player."

"I played center on defense and big forward on offense. Most of the guys I guarded were a lot bigger than I was. But I had a couple of rebound records for the Celtics, which Bill Russell later obliterated," said the 6-foot-8 father of four.

As a high school junior, Morrison led the Walla Walla High School Blue Devils to a 22-7 season only to be upset in the first round of the state tournament. In 1950, as a senior, Morrison's Blue Devils were 18-1, but again, they were upset in the state tourney.

In his four years at the University of Idaho, the Vandals posted season records of 15-14, 19-13, 15-12 and 16-8. Morrison still holds the career rebounding record at Idaho, even though Gus Johnson averaged over 30 rebounds per game in one season for the Vandals.

Morrison was tabbed by Boston in the second round of the 1955 NBA draft.

"When I went to training camp, I knew I was in the big leagues because these were veteran players taller than I was," he said.

"I started in about two-thirds of the games. And I got to play against some of the all-time greats. George Mikan came out of retirement and played in my second season with Boston. And I got to play against Bob Pettit and Cliff Hagen."

"Three things happened in my first year at Boston. It was the first year for national television for pro basketball. The Celtics were the first team to average over 100 points a game for the season, and it was the first year of the players' association," he said.

After two years, he decided he wanted to become a doctor, so retired from pro basketball to attend the University of Washington.

He later signed with the Baltimore Bullets, played 25 games and was released.

"I was too honest with them. I told them I wanted to go to med school and then I wasn't accepted. When I didn't get into med school, I wished I hadn't been so honest with them," Morrison said.

He returned to Seattle where he became a special agent for the FBI.

Why should Walker wait out 4 years college eligibility?

By DAVE KINDRED
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Next summer, if not this winter, someone will go to Herschel Walker and say, "Herschel, you're ready. Let's go get their money."

If the kid from Georgia is as bright as all accounts make him out to be, he will be the first college football player to go to the pros early. But he will have to take the pros to court before they will let him play. The next few hundred words tell why.

Herschel Walker is 6-foot-2 and 220 pounds. He runs the 100 in 9.5. Should you take a quick glance at the television and see a brute in No. 34 barreling around right end, you know him. You can tell by the massive thighs. His power is tangible. His speed is astonishing. Yes, one look at the screen and you know it is Earl Campbell.

ONLY IT isn't. It is Herschel Walker. At 18, Walker is ready for the National Football League. Players that young normally need time to mature physically. Look, if Herschel Walker gets any stronger by finishing four years of college, he could invade Afghanistan on foot and send the Russians packing.

Herschel Walker is ready for the NFL. Only misty-eyed romantics in love with boohah-boohah and rah-rah would have Walker wait for graduation. Let's say he has a plain old 1,500-yard year as a freshman this fall. Then the next year he wins the Heisman Trophy. What would he gain hanging around Athens two more years? He'd get tackled another 700 times probably, taking 700 runs off his professional life. He ought to play one more college season, then turn pro.

Magic Johnson was ready as a sophomore at Michigan State. At 17, Bobby Orr was ready. Straight out of high school, Willie Wilson was ready. And now Herschel Walker is ready.

THERE'S a difference in these four fellows, though. Basketball, hockey and baseball take talent whenever they find it, making rich young men of Johnson, Orr and Wilson.

No such luck for Walker.

Article 12 of the National Football League bylaws says, in part, "No player shall be eligible to play or be selected as a player unless 1) all college eligibility of such player has expired . . .

That means Walker, and all college players, are locked into room-and-board jobs for at least four years.

"If a college football player wants to go into the pros, he has every legal right to do it," said Bob Woolf, the Boston attorney who specializes in sports.

The NFL's Article 12 is a transparently unconstitutional restraint on a player's right to make a living. The unfortunate lawyer arguing for the NFL in a trial of this restraint would have a better shot at convincing a judge that football is due legal immunity not given to basketball, baseball and hockey.

The wonder is that no one has ever tested the rule.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said, "It is just a freak of history, just one of those things that boggles the mind, that nobody has ever challenged the NFL on this. The NFL lawyers admitted to us once that if they were ever challenged, they probably would have to come up with a hardship draft like basketball's."

Jay Moyer, counsel for the NFL, confessed he is "somewhat surprised that there hasn't been more pressure on us over it." Moyer guesses players such as Billy Sims and Brad Budde haven't tested the NFL rule because "most who are able to play early find they are not disadvantaged by a college education. They do hone skills and prepare physically."

Garvey's guess is less kind to the NFL. The rule survives, he says, not because it is right or just; it survives because the NFL has so much money even Earl Campbell couldn't carry it all.

GARVEY believes the law, as made in the Spencer Haywood basketball case of the late '60s, is unmistakably clear in its declaration that players are free from a league's arbitrary rules on eligibility to turn pro. So plain is the law that the original subterfuge of the National Basketball Association's "hardship draft" now has been stripped away in favor of the "undergraduate draft."

The draft itself, Garvey believes, is vulnerable. Bob Woolf: "The whole draft system could be defeated in court."

Surely as Article 12 is unconstitutional, so, too, is a draft that limits a player's choice of work to one team. Just this summer UCLA basketball star Kiki Vandeweghe said he wanted to work in Los Angeles or New York, nowhere else. Yet the new Dallas Mavericks drafted him, and Vandeweghe had no choice. It was Dallas or go back to grad school Had IBM, AT&T, Xerox and General Motors so conspired to limit the opportunity available to a prospective executive, the Justice Department would have gone into overdrive prosecuting anti-trust cases.

So why doesn't someone test in court the legality of the NFL's Article 12?

WHY DOESN'T someone test the antitrust implications of the draft?

"The NFL has very deep pockets," Garvey said. "Yazoo Smith challenged the draft in 1968-1968 and the case is still at the district court level. The NFL can get up, say, $10,000 from each team to outspend any plaintiff. If a college kid knows the NFL can hold him up in court for two or three years, he'll shy away from filing suit."

Jay Moyer, NFL counsel, very solemnly: "It would take the force of law to make us draft a college-eligible player. We would do all we could possibly do to prevent it."

Woolf says the NCAA is adamantly opposed to the drafting of undergraduate football players. That is because football bears so much of a school's financial burden for athletics. Moyer says the NFL is "under a lot more pressure to keep Article 12 than to abandon it, pressure even from the U.S. Congress, where in the '60s we avoided legislation on the issue only by assuring a committee we would keep the rule."

AT BOTTOM this is a money issue.

The colleges don't want Herschel Walker and Billy Sims to stay in school to become brain surgeons. They want the Heisman guys to take them to big bowl games and get them on national television.

The pros want the colleges to stay strong and healthy because they are a farm system that doesn't cost a cent.

But what happens when the money interests collide?

What happens when, say, the woebegone New Orleans Saints finish a second straight 0-16 season and announce they will use their No. 1 draft choice to sign Herschel Walker, the sophomore sensation from Georgia?

With Walker, the Saints would win games. With Walker, the Saints would sell tickets.

All the Saints need to convince Walker that Article 12 is easily defeated. It should be a snap to get an injunction against the NFL while the case is in court, allowing Walker to play until a decision is handed down.

Then the young man could carry the ball 300 times a season for maybe $300,000 more than Georgia could give him.

College football on TV is paradise

By WILLIE SCHATZ
Special to The Washington Post

Forget apple pie, mom and the flag. College football has 'em all whipped. Can there be anything more American than watching the future of our country (male variety) smash, crash and bang its collective head and body for the greater glory of old Siwash U?

Saturday afternoon's slice of life is brought to you, with pride, courtesy of the American Broadcasting Co. and the National Collegiate Athletic Association — a marriage apparently made in heaven.

There are no mistakes, no bad plays, no blown assignments. All is well in the land of the student athlete. And hey, aren't these players putting on a great show and giving 150 percent? This is America's Saturday afternoon, when nothing can go wrong. If you look and listen long enough, Florida Field becomes the Elysian Fields.

So when Ohio State coach Woody Hayes punches out Clemson's Charlie Bauman in the Gator Bowl (for which Hayes was fired), announcer Keith Jackson sees, hears and speaks no evil. When Pittsburgh is embarrassing Syracuse 43-6, Bill Flemming does everything possible to keep it close. No routs allowed.

No scandals, either. Academic machinations and other extracurricular maneuvers off the field have this year reduced the Pacific 10 to the Pacific 5 for Rose Bowl purposes, which means the season was over before it started for USC, UCLA, Arizona State, Oregon and Oregon State.

ABC Aired one preseason analysis of the troubles, twice put on Penn State coach Joe Paterno with stories on the evils of recruiting, then all but sealed its corporate mouth.

"We don't feel the college game is an appropriate format to get into scandals," says Donn Bernstein, college football coordinator for ABC. "If there's an issue in a game, we'll do it as we did with the Big Ten-Illinois controversy about (quarterback) David Wilson's eligibility. But there's no time or place to take an in-depth look at it."

"That doesn't mean we push it under the rug. We've never skirted an issue, and we haven't done that on this one. Many times we've done things the NCAA doesn't want us to get into."

"It's put a scar on the college football front and made the sport suspect, but it's had no effect on the gate or the numbers of people watching. People like their leisure, and they're not going to give it up easily."

Bernstein is only half right. More people are watching in the stadiums than in living rooms. Attendance is up, but ratings are down for the fourth straight year.

From a record high rating of 14.1 and 10 million homes in 1976, the numbers have fallen faster than the fortunes of the Democrats. Last year the show drew a 8.7 rating. This year it's lower still.

"I don't know why there's been a drop," Bernstein says. "Each little bit nips at you. Year to year it doesn't seem like much, but it's pretty significant over three years."

"I think it's a variety of answers. In the early season the baseball pennant races hurt us, and so did the good weather. It's certainly not what's on against us, because there's nothing. Maybe it's too much football, but every time I think that, we put on a game and it goes overboard."

THE PROBLEM surely isn't lack of variety. There are 23 Division I games during the season, plus assorted Division IAA, II and III shows. Naturally everyone wants Notre Dame-Alabama, Michigan-Ohio State, Oklahoma-Nebraska and USC-UCLA every week.

Sorry, folks. That might play in Peoria, but not in too many looking out for No. 1. And since there are far more have-nots than haves, revenue-sharing is the order of the tube.

With a national appearance worth $800,000 to the two teams and a regional going for $422,000, competition is cutthroat. In Division I there are no guarantees. You want it; you earn it. Without revenue-sharing, there would be a revolution making 1976 look like a picnic on the Potomac. The guarantees for the other three divisions wouldn't pay for Oklahoma's practice jerseys.

"THE VITAL signs of college football are very strong," says Tom Hansen, NCAA television coordinator. "Our relationship with ABC is quite good. I think they care very deeply about the sport and are genuinely interested in its well-being."

He must be right. Why else would the network allow itself to be subject to those ridiculous 15-second promotions in which participating schools pass themselves off as paragons of academia?

15-3 Phoenix Suns lack killer-instinct?

Prep playoff pairings

By The Associated Press

John McCloud thinks his Phoenix Suns lack a "killer" instinct — but they've been murdering just about everyone in the National Basketball Association this season.

Along with the Philadelphia 76ers, the Suns have the best record in the league at 15-3 following Sunday night's 119-107 triumph over the Portland Trail Blazers.

"We get complacent sometimes when we get a comfortable lead," says McCloud. "We seemed to come out flat for the second half."

The Pacific Division leaders got off to a big early lead and held a 12-point advantage at the half, 64-52. But the Trail Blazers eventually cut the Suns' lead to two points in the fourth quarter before

Phoenix put the game away with a 10-2 spurt. Lakers 110, Mavericks 102

Earvin "Magic" Johnson scored 24 points and chalked up eight assists to lead Los Angeles over Dallas. The Lakers took a 22-5 lead and led by as many as 24 points before the Mavericks rallied in the closing minutes.

Bulls 114, Bucks 108

Artis Gilmore scored 24 points and Larry Kenon added 20, leading Chicago over Milwaukee as the Bulls broke a four game losing streak.

Nets 89, Pistons 80

Mike Newlin scored 28 points to lead New Jersey over Detroit. Newlin, who shot 80 percent from the field, scored his final point on a technical foul against Detroit Coach Scotty Robertson in the final two minutes.

If you can make the most from the least, you'll make out all right.

If you are perplexed by that, just ask the Boston Bruins and Los Angeles Kings what it takes to win in the National Hockey League. On Sunday night, the Bruins and Kings were the ultimate opportunists — and each came away with two points.

"We didn't give them any big, big chances, like 2-on-1 and 3-on-1 breakaways," said Boston goaltender Rogie Vachon, whose first shutout of the season and 50th of his career paced the Bruins to a 1-0 victory that snapped Philadelphia's 13-game unbeaten streak.

Canadiens 5, Jets 1

Montreal won its seventh game in the last nine while Winnipeg extended its hapless skid to 13 games without a win. Mark Napier had three assists for the surging Canadiens, who outshot the Jets 40-17.

Rangers 7, Whalers 3

Anders Hedberg scored three goals and set up another and Don Maloney had a goal and three assists as New York snapped a nine-game winless streak with a 46-shot attack. The loss stretched the Whalers' non-winning slide to eight games.

"We controlled the puck all night, didn't just throw in," said Hedberg. "I felt Friday night, when we tied Pittsburgh in the last nine seconds, we were beginning to get our game, starting to play as we can. It has to help to blow out a team. It helps just to beat somebody."

Oilers 5, Black Hawks 4

Chicago's winless streak reached eight games thanks to Wayne Gretzky, who had a goal and two assists. The Oilers jumped to 3-0 and 4-1 leads, then held on.

"I knew it was going to be a crazy game," said Oilers Coach Bryan Watson, "and I'm just glad our kids were able to hang on."

"The effort simply is not there," complained Hawks Coach Keith Magnuson. "I'm sure they know it. In fact, the effort hasn't been there for quite a few games."

Sabres 8, Nordiques 1

A five-goal third period clinched Buffalo's victory, which featured two-goal games by Craig Ramsay and Tony McKegney. Derek Smith and Danny Gare, McKegney's linemates, each had a goal and two assists.

Rockies 4, Flames 3

Merlin Malinowski scored twice to propel the Rockies to victory, snapping Calgary's modest four-game unbeaten string. Malinowski has seven goals this season — he had a total of eight in his first two NHL seasons.

Irish beat Bama to keep jinx intact

By Associated Press

The jinx is still intact. No team has ever won three consecutive national college football championships. Alabama became the eighth team to try and fail. The fifth-ranked Crimson Tide, hoping for a Sugar Bowl at undefeated, top-rated Georgia, suffered its second setback of the season Saturday, a 7-0 loss to sixth-ranked Notre Dame that left the unbeaten-but-tied Irish one of five teams with a realistic chance at No. 1 when the shooting ends on Jan. 1, 1981.

The others are Georgia, of course, along with third-ranked Florida State, which was idle Saturday, fourth-rated Nebraska, Notre Dame and seventh-ranked Ohio State. Like Florida State, Nebraska and Ohio State, five others have just one loss — eighth-ranked Pitt, No. 9 Penn State, No. 12 Baylor, No. 13 Brigham Young and No. 15 North Carolina — but are probably too low in the ratings to have a serious shot at the top rung in the final Associated Press poll.

Bear Bryant, the Alabama coach, had said during the week that a loss undoubtedly would drop the Crimson Tide out of the national picture and that seems to be the case. Alabama settled for a Cotton Bowl date with Baylor.

Bama's successor as national champion probably will come from either the Sugar Bowl (Georgia-Notre Dame) or Orange Bowl (if Nebraska, rather than Oklahoma, is Florida State's opponent). The rest of the postseason lineup goes like this: Rose Bowl — Ohio State-Michigan winner vs. Washington.

Fiesta — Ohio State-Michigan loser vs. Penn State. Gator — Pitt vs. South Carolina. Liberty — Purdue vs. Missouri.

Sun — Nebraska-Oklahoma loser vs. Mississippi State. Holiday — Brigham Young-Utah winner vs. Southern Methodist.

Bluebonnet — North Carolina vs. T.exas. Tangerine — Florida vs. Maryland. Hall of Fame — Tulane vs. Arkansas. Garden State — Navy vs. Houston.

Peach — Virginia Tech vs. opponent to be named, probably Stanford or Indiana.

Independence — McNeese State-Southwestern Louisiana winner vs. opponent to be named, reportedly Southern Mississippi.

Alabama's demise did not eliminate the Southeastern Conference from another national king. Top-ranked Georgia boosted its record to 10-0 with a 31-21 triumph over Auburn, ending Alabama's three-year reign — and eight of nine — as SEC champs.

However, Georgia still has a regular season game left with Georgia Tech while Notre Dame must play Air Force and Southern California, which suffered its first defeat — to go with an earlier tie — in a 20-10 setback to Washington.

The history of an overlooked radical movement, composed of Jewish emigrants to the United States and the newspaper that became their voice for 87 years, is explored in "Free Voice of Labor — The Jewish Anarchists," a documentary airing today on PBS, Channel 13.

Interviews with participants in the movement, many of whom are now in their 80s, and their children help update the movement's history and its impact on descendants of the anarchists and on society as a whole.

Romance is happiest when loved one recognizes your creative talents and encourages their development. Career gets a big boost in March or April, and associates will show their appreciation for the splendid job you did on a "top priority" project. Be careful not to underestimate your abilities or sell them too cheaply. That highly desirable raise or promotion must be actively pursued. Too much modesty can impede progress.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The chances are excellent that you will be the recipient of pleasant surprise. Advance a project that has suffered setbacks. Roundtable discussion is informative.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The emphasis is on the fulfillment of hopes, wishes, dreams. You could get a second chance with love. Romance holds a surprise for those who are willing to forgive and forget.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may feel the urge to put an associate in his or her place. Think of a more positive way to win points. Patience pays off. Extra funds become available.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Financial pressures lessen. Tend to routine matters during the morning, and look for an opportunity to mix business with pleasure later. Partners who pull together soon pull ahead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep your performance up to your usual high standards—a promotion may hang in the balance. Travel entails unavoidable expense. You may want to renew an old friendship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Face up to an increase in family responsibilities. Legal problems can be successfully resolved. Romance is both exciting and fleeting. You may have to revise this evening's plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Concentrate on work routine, making the best possible use of your talents and time. Teamwork can boost profits considerably. Higher-up plays a major role in career choices.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stick to projects already under way. Mate is your best confidant, ally now. Celebrate the arrival of good news! New friends listen to investment ideas. Lay your cards on the table.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A special awakening is possible where a business or career venture is concerned. What once seemed difficult is now easy. Friends, relatives assist your efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be alert to new opportunities, options. You feel warmed by the attention of an admiring acquaintance. Children can contribute to loved one's happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A short business trip is enjoyable. Mate, spouse desires a large portion of your time this evening. Try to fulfill partner's needs without ignoring your own.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Special dream nears maturity. Any kindnesses you show to others will be amply rewarded. Let mate know how you really feel about a social engagement. Promise made under duress may be broken.

GOREN BRIDGE

Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♣ Pass
1 ♣ Pass 1 NT Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Even though partner has denied any particular fit for your suit, we would make an effort to get to game. Your hand has great playing potential, and your trump suit is sound. We suggest a jump to three spades. Since you did no more than bid one spade on the previous round and you are a passed hand, this is not forcing—just invitational.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKQJ10754 ♥5 ♦75 ♣83
The bidding has proceeded: West North East South
3♦ 4♥ Pass 5♦
Pass 6♦ Pass?
What do you bid now?
A.—What is the purpose of North's six club bid? He is saying: "Partner, I am forcing you to bid a slam. I have first-round club control, so you don't have to worry about the opponents' suit if you wish to consider a grand slam!" Since partner, in effect, is making a grand slam try without a single spade honor, he must surely have all three side aces. Therefore, we would trust his bidding and contract for seven spades.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ63 ♥AQ1094 ♦8 ♣K62
What is your opening bid?
A.—There are hands with four spades and five hearts where we would open one spade to facilitate a rebid. However, this is not one of those hands. For that action to be considered, the spades would have to be considerably stronger and the hearts weaker. Open one heart, and worry about your rebid when you hear partner's response.
