Midland man hurt by train

A 28-year-old Midland man was seriously injured Tuesday when he was struck by a train at the intersection of Lee Avenue and Front Street. The accident occurred about 4:30

Injured was William Earl Edwards, 1222 E. Estes Ave. Edwards was listed in stable condition in Midland Memorial Hospital this morning.

According to reports, a Santa Fe train operated by Santos Tijerina of Big Spring, was westbound approaching the Lee Street crossover. Edwards was walking northbound, also approaching the crossover.

Police said that as the train reached the intersection, Edwards made a dash to beat the train, trying to get across the tracks in front of the locomotive. The train struck the 31-yearold Midlander, knocking him across the intersection.

Edwards sustained head injuries and was taken to Midland Memorial emergency room by ambulance.

Political 'war' expected if Tower quits Senate

By GARTH JONES AP Political Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - If Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, resigns to become secretary of defense, as some speculate, it would mean another all-out political war between Texas Democrats and Republicans.

Although the dust is just beginning to settle from the GOP sweep of Texas in the presidential race, a special Senate election would stir everything

However, it's hard for a number of Democratic, and Republican, leaders to believe it could happen.

"I don't believe it's true for one minute," said National Democratic Chairman John White, who may be a candidate if there is a vacancy for Tower's seat. "My immediate reaction is that it is just a bunch of horsefeathers.

"I just don't see how it could happen," said a prominent Republican campaigner who did not want to be quoted, "but it will be a hell of a race if it does happen.

The Texas speculation started after published reports that President-elect Ronald Reagan might select Tower to be secretary of defense and Texas Gov. Bill Clements might name for-Tower until a special election could be

"That's the nuttiest thing I've ever heard," Clements said of the report.

"I have not been offered the job of secretary of defense," said Tower. "I understand that several names are going to be presented to Presidentelect Reagan.

Some close Tower associates in Texas predicted he would take the cabinet job if offered.

The most likely Democrats to oppose Connally, if he is appointed, would be Robert Krueger, ambassador-at-large to Mexico who lost a hot race to Tower in 1978 and former Attorney General John Hill, who lost to Clements in 1978, and White.

Hill and White were active in the next spring or summer. recent Texas campaign for President

Jimmy Carter and both are probable candidates for the Democratic nomination in 1982 to oppose a second term by Clements

Under state law, Clements would name a temporary successor to Tower if Congress is in session to be sure Texas is represented. He must call a special election within five days after a vacancy occurs for the next 60 to 90 days to fill the remaining four years of Tower's term.

After Lyndon B. Johnson was elected vice president in 1960, he resigned as a Texas senator and Tower won a 'high man' special election in 1961. Later, the Texas Legislature changed state law to require that U.S. Senate races must be won by a majority vote, with a runoff if necessary.

Tower won the 1961 special election and was re-elected in 1962 with considerable help from liberal Democrats unhappy with the conservative faction of the party, particularly Connally. He was re-elected in 1972, defeating Barefoot Sanders, Dallas, now a federal judge. Connally was head of Texas Democrats for Nixon that year but did not support Tower.

"I couldn't pretend that there would be no interest but it's a bit premature to indicate any definite plan,' Krueger said from Washington. "I think clearly I would look at it very closely and there certainly would be that possibility. This speculation has been around for some time."

White said "if there is any substance to it, I might think about it (running for the seat). Right now I wouldn't give it a second thought."

White said he thought Tower would be just as powerful as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, which he is slated to become in the 1981 Congress, as he would be as defense secretary.

"I sure don't see Connally coming up here as a freshman senator. White said

Hill also said he thought it was premature to comment.

"I'm still interested in public service but I think at this time I will not

White plans to leave his position mer Gov. John B. Connally to replace as Democratic chairman this winter

WASHINGTON (AP) - John C. White, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said Tuesday night he expects to leave his post this

White, a strong supporter of President Carter, had become a controversial figure after last summer's national convention when he clashed with backers of Carter rival Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

The DNC head said he expects to call an election in late February to allow Democratic leaders to vote on a candidate all factions can agree on.

White said he hopes to leave in early March "if all goes smoothly." "The only way I would stay on is if we cannot work out an orderly transfer with a consensus candidate," White said. "If we're going to get into a brawl, we'll take another look at it (his departure).

'The process still must go on," said the DNC chief, stressing the need for an orderly transition of power in the party that suffered major setbacks in the Nov.

White said he was "reasonably optimistic" that an acceptable candidate for a new DNC leader can be found in time.

He said he had already informed Carter that he wanted to give up the post

He said he had no plans for what he would do once he leaves the DNC post.

Reagan's lawyer in line for top Justice position elect Ronald Reagan's personal lawyer, William French Smith, is the clear choice to become attorney general in the new administration and choices for other Cabinet posts are narrowing, sources on Reagan's transition team report.

Several sources said Smith, 63, a longtime Reagan confidante, seems assured of being selected for the top Justice Department spot, while former Treasury Secretary William E. Simon is likely to return to the job he held under President Gerald R.

Reagan was in Washington today to receive a national security briefing and meet with Republican members of Congress. He is expected to review a narrowed list of Cabinet candidates before leaving for California on

The top few choices for the Cabinet positions were compiled by a group of close advisers headed by Smith who met Monday at Smith's downtown Los

Smith, a New Hampshire native who received his law degree from Harvard University, is a senior partner in the law firm of Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher. He has been on the advisory board for the Center for Strategic and International Studies, a conservative research group at Georgetown University here.

Sources on the transition team said Reagan had made no formal decisions as of Tuesday, but is expected to make his choices and extend formal Cabinet offers beginning next week. One aide cautioned that Reagan would not necessarily follow the advice of his advisers in all instances and might choose candidates not on the final lists.

Two sources involved in the shaping of the new Republican administration said Simon, another of the 19 members of the "kitchen cabinet" that prepared the list of candidates, was the only person being seriously considered for the Treasury Department

However, other sources said that while Simon was the front-runner, he was not the only candidate for the job. Also mentioned were two other former treasury secretaries -George P. Shultz, now vice chairman of the Bechtel Corp., a worldwide engineering and construction firm based in San Francisco, and John B. Connally, a former Texas governor and Walter Wriston, chairman of Citi-

A congressional source said Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, is "all but certain" to be selected as Reagan's defense secretary. Tower, who is in line to take over as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee when the Republicans take control of the chamber in January, "has been made a promise" on the Pentagon job by the incoming administration and quietly has been informing his staff. according to the source.

But Reagan told reporters Tuesday that he did not know if he would pick the conservative Texan, and other sources in the transition office said Tower was one of a number of men under consideration for defense. They include William Casey, Reagan's campaign chairman and a senior member of the "kitchen cabinet;" Gen. Alexander Haig, the retired NATO commander who served as President Richard M. Nixon's last chief of staff; Connally; and Texas Gov. William Clements.

Shultz and Haig were also said to be the leading contenders for secretary

Despite a $84 million difference in Midland College's tax values, trustees decided not to raise the college district's tax rate during Tuesday's meeting.

The large difference in tax values, which has been attributed to a mistake in the city's tax office computer. will cost the college about $113,000 in tax revenues, said Dr. Al Langford, MC president.

degree from Missouri Valley College in Marshall, Mo. After graduation, he was a member of the Phillips 66 basketball team for four years. The team became one of the finest amateur squads in the nation.

Kleine joined the Permian Corporation in 1956. He is a member of the Midland YMCA Metropolitan Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees at Missouri

In 1971, Kleine was elected to the Missouri Valley College's Athletic Hall of Fame.

In another action, trustees approved an audit report of the college's income and expenses by Main Hurdman and Cranstoun, certified public accountants.

The yearly audit again showed the college was financially sound, noted H.A. Tuck, public relations director.

MC Trustee Reagan Legg explained the major legislative proposals to the Texas Legislature which begins its session in January.

Included in the proposals are the following: -Legislation promoting full formula funding for community and junior colleges. -Reimbursement for statutory exemptions on tuition. -No increases in required tuition fees for community and junior colleges.

-Funding for TEX-SIS, an information gathering organization operated by Navarro College. -And removal of age limits for co-op students. Trustees approved and agreed to provide support for

Soviets step up campaign to save SALT II treaty

MOSCOW (AP) - The Kremlin stepped up its campaign today against scuttling the SALT II treaty, and urged instead that negotiations be revived towards broader limitations on nuclear arms.

The commentary in the Communist Party daily Pravda was one of the strongest statements in the Soviet effort to dissuade President-elect Ronald Reagan from his stated intention of renegotiating the unratified treaty signed in 1979 by Presidents Carter and Leonid Brezhnev.

"To throw that which already exists overboard is not difficult," Pravda said. "But wouldn't it be wiser to broaden the field of offensive strategic weapons, to put into action those channels of negotiations that have been frozen in recent times through no fault of the Soviet Union?"

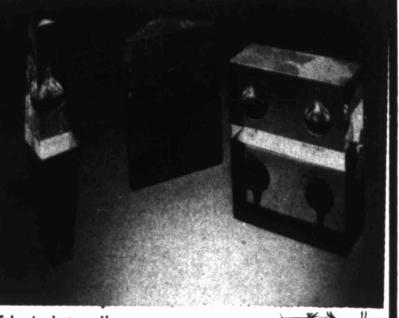

Pravda made no direct reference to Reagan's stand on SALT II. But he noted that Reagan's last campaign speeches talked of new negotiations with the Soviets on the issue. "The further development of events will show what he had in mind in this regard," Pravda said.

"From the Soviet side, it has been noted more than once that there is no type of arms whose limitation or banning the Soviet Union is not prepared to negotiate."

"The Soviet Union is ready to reach agreement on the limitation or banning of any weapon, and first of all nuclear weapons, on precluding the production of new types or systems of weapons of mass destruction," Prav-

Witness revises Garwood testimony

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) - A prosecution voluntarily. Garwood and his lawyers have argued witness in the court-martial of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood has toned down under cross-examination his accusations that Garwood menaced other American prisoners of war in Vietnam.

Army Sgt. 1st Class Robert Lewis III, a former POW, retracted several portions of his testimony Tuesday after prodding from Garwood's lawyers.

Garwood, 34, is on trial on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy during nearly 14 years in Vietnam. He returned to the United States last year after passing a note to a foreign businessman in Hanoi saying he wanted to be repatriated.

The government contends he remained in Vietnam

he was a captive.

Lewis, under questioning by chief defense counsel John Lowe, said he had seen Garwood carrying a weapon at a Vietnamese POW camp but added that Garwood had never threatened an American.

Lewis, who earlier said that Garwood interrogated prisoners, later said that Garwood acted more as an interpreter than interrogator.

Lewis also backed off an earlier admission that Garwood was known by a Vietnamese name that translates as "brave liberation fighter." He said the name he had heard previously was different.

Texas senator admits lying, pleads guilty

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Houston Sen. Gene Jones says he lied two months ago when he denied using state employees to work on his unsuccessful re-election bid and the Houston Democrat now has pleaded guilty to those charges.

State District Judge Tom Blackwell Tuesday ordered Jones to pay a $2,000 fine and $10,000 in restitutions. Jones also was placed on probation for one year as a result of the Class A misdemeanor conviction for official misconduct Prosecutors said Jones, a Democrat, used state employees and equipment to mail out fund-raising letters for his campaign. The allegation initially was made by Mike Richards, the Houston Republican who beat Jones Nov. 4.

The matter were brought to Travis County District Attorney Ronnie

Earle by Richards' aides. Jones, 46, is an associate dean at the South Texas College of Law. He was called to the witness stand by defense attorney Roy Minton, who asked if the senator "knowingly had people working in your office...solely and only on campaign matters.'

Jones replied, "That is a fact. Yes, At a September news conference,

Great American Smokeout's fourth edition set Thursday

The Great American Smokeout enters its fourth year Thursday as a day for smokers to give up the habit.

The premise of the smokeout is that if a smoker can give up cigarettes for one day, he or she can give them up for good. However, for many smokers, even a few hours without a cigarette is difficult.

The American Cancer Society, which sponsors the project, estimates that last year some 5 million American smokers made it all the way through the day without having a cigarette and 9.9 million others tried but failed.

The local chapter of the ACS offers some tips to smokers participating in the special day who expect a difficult time Thursday:

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The lawyer leading evangelist Lester Roloff's umpteenth battle against state licensing of his children's homes says the outcome of this fight could determine if only the state can decide how to

"This is a very important case, however, it goes," attorney William Ball said during a break in Tuesday's civil trial. "It could determine whether there will be methodology other than the state's chosen means for the

The State of Texas long has argued that Roloff needs a state license to operate his homes for wayward youth and courts previously have ruled in

The evangelist, however, has steadfastly refused. He has testified the state has no right to license what the Lord has called him to do.

Roloff recently shifted control of his homes from Roloff Evangelistic Enterprises to his People's Baptist Church of Corpus Christi. He argues that the state cannot require a license because the constitution guarantees separation of church and state. Assistant Attorney General David Young, who is seeking $46,000 in civil penalties and an order forcing Roloff to get a license, put on the state's short case Monday. Testimony continued today in the suit. "Comprehensive, suffocating, minute surveillance is a very, very dangerous thing where First Amendment liberties are involved," Ball said. The Harrisburg, Pa., lawyer said State District Judge Charles Mathews' ruling could also decide "whether to carry out a religious ministry to children one has to be under state control." Since Monday, Ball has called residents of the homes, Roloff officials,

During Tuesday's testimony, Ball tried to show the state laws concerning child care facilities are vague. Hazel Baylor, an associate commis-

Part four: Headed for Hollywood

'Sign before they change their minds'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the fourth in a 16-part series of excerpts from "Where Is the Rest of Me?", an autobiography by president-elect Ronald Reagan with Richard G. Hubler.

By RONALD REAGAN with Richard G. Hubler

Several years of Iowa winters (I was now an announcer for WHO radio in Des Moines) had given me a yen for warmth and sunshine. Since baseball announcers never get summer vacations, I had talked the station into sending me with the Chicago Cubs on their training trip to California's Catalina Island, and it evolved into an annual excursion.

In 1937, I stopped in Hollywood first to visit singer Joy Hodges, an alumna of WHO. Joy had had a number of parts in pictures, and I told her about my own dream of acting.

She got right to the point. "Take off your glasses," she said. Her reaction made me want to get rid of glasses forever. She gave me the name of an agent, and at 10 the next morning I was sitting across from Bill Meikleohn, who promptly got me a screen test with Warner Bros. a few days

AFTER THE TEST, I was told it would be several days before Mr. Warner could see the film, and that I would be expected to stick around. "No," I said, "I will be on the train tomorrow - me and the Cubs are

They were unbelieving, but I was adamant. It was only on the train that suddenly the horrified feeling came over me that maybe I had blown the whole thing. Actually, through ignorance I had done the smartest thing it was possible to do. Hollywood just loves people who don't need Hollywood.

The next day in Des Moines, a wire was delivered. It said: WARNER'S OFFERS CONTRACT SEVEN YEARS, ONE YEAR'S OPTION. STARTING AT $200 WEEK. WHAT SHALL I DO? It was signed by Bill Meiklejohn. I sent a reply: SIGN BEFORE THEY CHANGE THEIR MINDS - and then I velled

IN 1937 THERE WAS a Spanish Civil War going on, the Japanese were again fighting in China, and Hitler repudiated the Versailles Treaty but I wasn't mad at anyone. My color could only be painted in a light rosy glow. I would don my shining armor and journey to Hollywood.

Four days after my arrival, I was slated to play the lead in a picture called "Love Is On the Air." Studios made two kinds of pictures: A's and B's. This was a B — but I didn't know it. All I knew was I was starring in my first movie — and I would do eight pictures in 11 months.

At least one familiar experience was mine in that first picture: leadingladyitis. June Travis was the love interest, and it was only natural that I should carry the plot into after-hours.

We reached the point in the script I eagerly awaited — the scene where boy gets girl and you go into the clinch. The director said "Action" and that's just what he got. I moved in like there was no tomorrow, and the next thing I knew the studio came undone. I discovered that a kiss is only beautiful to the two people engaged in doing it. If you REALLY kiss the girl, it shoves her face out of shape. Your lips should barely meet, and yet you must give the impression of a fervent kiss.

AND THAT WAS NOT my only fault. My head was casting a shadow in the path of her light; my collar was pulled out of shape by the position of my arms, all in all, I had to draw back and start over with the realization that work is work, and fun is fun, and kissing was more fun at the high

After my first picture had been released, Bill Meiklejohn assured me it was safe to send for my parents, Nelle and Jack. Fan mail had started to arrive, so Jack charge of ordering the necessary photos and stationery and set up a system for handling what would turn out to be thousands of

Not all of my movies were in the "B" action epic class. Occasionally I garnered bits and smaller supporting roles in the A's. On one of these, I played a radio announcer in "Hollywood Hotel." The star was one of the top box-office figures in Hollywood, Dick Powell.

I was one of thousands drawn to this very kind man. Sometimes our paths took us in different directions and months would pass without our seeing each other. Still in later years w interruption had occurred. He always seemed to feel such genuine pleasure

JUST ABOUT THIS TIME I was assigned a good part in a top comedy, 'Brother Rat." The story centered around three military academy cadets always in trouble, played by Eddie Albert, Wayne Morris, and me. My part was easily good enough to provide a steppingstone to stardom, but unhappily, I learned there is room for only one discovery in a picture. Eddie Albert stole all the honors, and deservedly so.

As far as the gay, exciting life of Hollywood was concerned, I was still a Midwest movie fan. I had a feeling there must be an exotic night life going on into which I had not yet been initiated. I would be a long time finding out that the people of Hollywood are very much like the people next door. However, the publicity department saw to it that I dabbled a bit in cafe society to secure those candid photographs needed for fan magazine

There was a big Warner premiere coming up, and one day a publicity man asked me to escort a young girl who had recently done a great deal for sweaters in a Mervyn LeRoy picture. She was very young and very beautiful and we were both very scared - she in a gown borrowed from wardrobe, and I in a dinner jacket from the same place. And so Lana Turner and I went to the premiere in a taxi because I was afraid to drive my old convertible. I hadn't learned how easy it was to rent a limousine and play big shot.

Midland's snowy test

Permian Basin residents got a chance earlier this week to test their "winter survival" skills when snow blanketed much of the West Texas area.

The six inches of snow that fell in Midland was the greatest amount to be recorded so early in the season, according to weather officials at the National Weather Service here. But it wasn't the heaviest snowfall ever recorded in Midland.

Those individuals who've lived in the Tall City at least six years can remember the heaviest snowfall received in a 24-hour period at least the heaviest snowfall since the National Weather Service began keeping records in 1930. That snowfall came on Jan. 23 and 24, 1974. A total of 6.8 inches fell at that time.

Despite the fact that the snowfall Sunday failed to set a record for most snow in a 24-hour period, it gave Tall City residents a test of their driving skills as the cold snow stacked up on city streets, making them slippery and treach-

Midlanders and many other hard-pressed to deal with such extremes in the cold weather cycle. In most cases cities don't find it feasible to maintain the heavy snow-moving equipment that must be maintained by northern cities. Motorists simply have to rely on their own skills and their good luck — to get safely to and from their destinations.

Of course slick streets didn't constitute the only problems brought about by the snow. Air travel in much of the Permian Basin virtually came to a standstill throughout the snowy period. Other transportation also was hampered.

And, of course, the accompanying cold temperatures made life miserable for all those who had to be out in the weather. Fortunately the unexpected winter storm will not go down in the record books as a human killer.

Snow, on an infrequent basis, may be pretty and an exciting winter season visitor for most youngsters and some not-soyoungsters. But having seen what many of our northern neighbbors live through on an almost daily basis in the winter months, we can and do appreciate even more the relatively mild weather experienced in Midland.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Soviet treaty violations get little response

WASHINGTON - For reasons that are not clear, the Carter administration has proved reluctant to call the Soviet Union to account for two glaring breaches of solemn treaty promises reported by U.S. intelligence agencies.

The two episodes — a Sept. 14 underground nuclear test and last year's germ-warfare accident in Sverdlovsk - provided convincing evidence that the Kremlin has been systematically violating provisions of two arms-control treaties with the United States. The agreements are the Threshold Test Ban Treaty of 1976 and the bacteriological weapons ban signed in 1972.

Intelligence sources told my associate Dale Van Atta the September nuclear explosion was somewhere between 160 and 650 kilotons in size. Many experts conclude that the wide divergence in measurement data suggests that the actual intensity of the blast was around 400 kilotons.

Today's birthdays: India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is 63 years U.S. officials could not ignore the old. Television personality Dick Caincident, as they have often done in previous cases, because even the lowest yield estimate was well above Thought for today: I destroy my the 150-kiloton limit permitted by the enemy when I make him my friend threshold treaty. So the United States President Abraham Lincoln (1809officially expressed "concern" to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

The violation of the germ-warfare treaty could be even more serious. The Sverdlovsk disaster, which killed hundreds of Soviet citizens by the release of deadly anthrax bacilli, was apparently the final evidence needed to persuade the CIA that the Russians have been developing biological weapons for offensive use, probably since World War II.

In late April 1979, Sverdlovsk residents were jolted by a loud explosion, probably in a laboratory at the biological warfare installation in the Chakalov district of the city. Clouds of anthrax bacilli were released.

Reservists at the military base were the first to die. Next were workers at a ceramics factory downwind, where ventilators sucked in concentrated quantities of the anthrax germs.

The official Soviet explanation was that the victims, who died within six or seven hours, had contracted anthrax from an illegally slaughtered cow. A classified CIA report dated April 4, 1980, notes that, however, the deaths "were caused by pulmonary anthrax as opposed to gastric or skin anthrax, which would be more likely if anthrax-contaminated beef were eaten or handled."

'The ceramics factory was sprayed inside and out with chloramine, and large areas around the military installation were graded and covered with asphalt," the CIA reported. "Wild animals in a small forest near the (facility) were allegedly killed, and most dogs in the city district were picked up and destroyed."

The exact number of casualties was covered up, but analysts have estimated the toll at between 200 and 1,000. "Unconfirmed reports claimed that the installation commander, a general officer, committed suicide following the first casualties," the

WATCH ON WASTE: Amtrak may not have succeeded in making the trains run on time, but it has managed to get the severance paychecks in on time to a onetime vice president who was given the heave-ho.

The bureaucrat in question is Carole Foryst, who was dismissed by the taxpayer-funded railroad last month for "policy differences." As a cushion against unemployment, Foryst was granted severance pay at her old salary - upwards of $50,000 a year. The checks are to keep coming until next January.

Foryst had no trouble finding something to do. She volunteered for the "truth team" sent out by the Republicans to promote Ronald Reagan across the country. This was no great wrench for the former railroad veep. While she was still at Amtrak, she had worked enthusiastically for Reagan on her own time.

The Amtrak officials who fired Foryst may live to regret their judgment. She's contesting the dismissal and is contemplating legal action.

As for the severance pay, Foryst said she hasn't cashed any of the checks she has received. She also points out that a scant two weeks before she was derailed, the rail system's board of directors voted unanimously to reappoint her to her of-

In the First Congressional District. Democrat Roy Dyson was running far behind the GOP incumbent, Robert Bauman, until the conservative Republican became enmeshed in an unsavory homosexual scandal. Dyson immediately declared he would make no mention of his opponent's personal tragedy - and he didn't. Dyson won without taking advantage of Bauman's troubles.

In the Fifth District, incumbent Democrat Gladys Spellman suffered a massive heart attack four days before the election. Her Republican challenger, Kevin Igoe, called off further electioneering, and was soundly defeated.

Winner and loser both deserve commendation for choosing decency over expediency.

Making money comes first

"I'm sure of that, Professor. But it seems to me if universities are all starting companies you will become more interested in market potential than in the results of your work. In a few years you'll only be doing experiments to enhance the companies you

"We are already," Applebaum chortled. "You know the gene I was splicing? Well, we think we can sell it to the telephone company people to put in their Princess phones, so they can reproduce any color phone they want without painting them. It's probably the biggest breakthrough in gene communications made so far. The business school is very excited about it. If it does as well as we think it will I've been promised a big bonus as well as stock options at $44 a share."

I said, "I guess what I'm driving at is that if the universities have a vested interest in their laboratory work, who will do the pure research which is so vital to the nation?'

"The students," Applebaum said. 'They're not included in our profitsharing plan. They can do anything they want in the labs as long as they don't interfere with our commercial projects.

"But you seem to be changing the entire complexion of what a university is supposed to do.

'That's easy for you to say. Do you know a white rat now costs $65? Viruses are going up, bacteria have doubled in price, and monkey glands are out of sight. A grant from NIH hardly pays for rubber gloves any more. We're in a squeeze, son, and we have to go where the money is."

"Isn't there a danger that if you do research you won't exchange information with any other scientists because you're trying to protect your trade secrets?"

"I don't know if it's a danger or not, but you can bet your sweet life we're not going to let the people at Harvard and Stanford know what we're up to. They'll just take our findings and try to sell them before we do. We're not in research for our health. I have to go now. I've got a board meeting and they want me to tell them when we can launch our advertising campaign for our new garbage-eating bacteria. It could be our biggest Christmas item this year."

Liberals gnashing teeth as Reagan launches new GOP era

WASHINGTON - On election night, many liberals whose heads can't control their passions had to be kept away from hemlock and high bridges. A Reagan administration? Egads, it went against everything they had been taught to worship, largely chic intellectualism.

In my role as comforter, I had to tell them there would be little that was chic in the new government, but not to worry, Reagan is a reasonable man who governed California pretty well. Attempting humor, I explained that the reason Eugene McCarthy, once their guru and hero, endorsed Reagan was that McCarthy has always felt that any hyped-up, driving president was a menace, and that if a president was inclined to sleep in the afternoon—as the estimable Calvin Coolidge did in the '20s - the Republic was better for it.

So assuage your grief, I told my beral acquaintances. There is good liberal acquaintances. There is guest reason to expect that the new president will spend a fair amount of his day in sensible activities like napday in sensible activities like nap-ping, riding his horse or even cruising on the "Sequoia" (it is hoped that the presidential yacht will be bought back, Selling it was a major scandal during the Carter administration.)

A week after that Tuesday of conervative mandate, my liberals were emplaining that the Moral Majority, mplaining that the Moral Majority, the National Conservative Political etion Committee, and other zealous angs would soon be marching trough Washington streets, occupying the best restaurants and other ublic accommodations. Was the PTL polace Johnny Carson?

Out, tut, I told them, remembering trurge for hemlock, it's true that moralists are first-rate at raising ney for their designated candidates, but they are an uncertain lot in the voting booth. Exit polls by ABC-TV showed that only eight percent of the voters claimed religious conviction as the sole determinant in their vote, and two-thirds of them went for Born Again Jimmy.

Moreover, the issues which liberals ring their hands over when their minds fill with the Moral Majority apparition have already been settled in the Democratic Congress.

Federal funding of abortion has been knocked down time and again by that genial man from Illinois, Congressman Henry Hyde. Anti-busing amendments are far more popular in Congress than motions to insist on this questionable approach to im-prove education for black young-

Fritz Mondale's scheme to establish a national network of childcare centers, dominated by thoughts of Washington bureaucrats, was sound-

Washington bureaucrats, was soundly defeated years ago.
So, other than pillorying homosexuals, throwing dead cats at theater marquees advertising X-rated films, and burning down pornography shops, the moralists have little work here that is properly theirs.
But liberals are such naggers. They were somewhat relieved by my assurances on the moralist agenda, but what about those poor defeated senators - Bayh, Culver, McGovern and Church? Weren't they crushed by the Moral Majority's cruel weights?

Wrong again, I said gently. Those gentlemen were living on borrowed time. It is clever and self-serving for them to now claim that righteous, well-funded pecksniffery did them in. It would be more honest for them to admit that their own liberal views never did fit the constituencies of their conservative states, and that the bad news they got Nov. 4 was long

Well, with the election two weeks behind us, my liberal friends are less agitated and more curious. What is this Reagan going to do? What he's going to do, I said, getting their calm attention for the first time since their election night trauma, is to try to put together a responsible government, cut federal spending, get a grip on the national debt (heading for one trillion dollars), consolidate social programs, make business and industry feel better, and strengthen American presence and self-respect in the world.

Of course, those are generalities, but there are signs. Names float from the Reagan camp about who will be in which influential job; the list includes moderates as well as conservatives. but no fanatics. Since Republicans are a minority in the population, Reagan must choose all political shades in the GOP to staff his government. Let's hope he finds a good place for Sen. Jacob Javits, as well as West Coast conservatives. It will be an interesting mix.

Proposals by black intellectuals like, say, Dr. Walter E. Williams of Temple University, for breaking the dependence of poor blacks on the paternalistic federal government are circulating. Reform of welfare and Social Security are high on the agenda, with an eye to stopping fraud. A federal spending cut of $13 billion early in the year is a goal, and so is tax relief to show Americans that Reagan can achieve without causing national disorder.

There was strong impetus for a conservative "New Deal" to become dominant as long ago as 1966. The Vietnam War and Watergate prevented the Nixon administration from bringing it about. President Ford had all he could do just to get people to believe a little bit in their country again — and he deserves credit for that. Jimmy Carter meant well, but executed poorly, and that is sad. Now, Ronald Reagan, with no inherited war or major scandal, takes command of government, a strong, conservative Senate on his right hand, and has the opportunity to fashion that conservative "New Deal."

Meanwhile, liberals can regroup. heal their wounds, and try to do something truly creative for a change. If Reagan's "New Deal" fails, the public will be eager to see what the liberals have.

Toxic waste regulation has loophole

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The much-heralded, cradle-to-grave federal monitoring of toxic waste that begins today has a loophole that may allow tons of industrial poisons to escape detection, a senior environmental offical says.

Some New England states are taking steps to plug the hole with their own legislation.

The 2,000 pages of regulations produced by the Environmental Protection Agency are considered the best available protection against improper or illegal handling of hazardous

The laws demand that almost every generator, transporter or disposer of toxic industrial byproducts report exactly what it does with the waste through an elaborate paperwork sys-

"There's one serious exception and that's the small industry that produces less then 1.000 kilograms (2,200 pounds) of waste each month. They don't have to comply with the new 'regs' and they can and will use that loophole to get away with murder," said Hugh Kaufman, EPA's chief hazardous waste investigator.

For example, EPA figures show that only 5,100 of the 47,000 generators of toxic waste in New England, are considered large operations and thus covered by the strict reporting requirements

The majority of producers in New England, "particularly Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, produce less than a ton of toxic waste a month and ... they can dump it anywhere," says Kaufman.

He predicted "a ton of poison will wind up in a town dump somewhere. Being exempted from the paperwork and monitoring, there is no reason why the small generators should pay $100 a drum to dispose of waste at an approved landfill when they're free to haul it to the local dump for pennies a load," he said.

The EPA regulations allow the small generators to dispose waste in municipal landfills and dumps where the cost is a fraction of what disposal at an authorized chemical site would

New Hampshire functions under the EPA exemption, but Thomas Sweeney, head of the state's toxic waste section, says the state will lower its exclusion-limit to 100 kilograms by January.

Kaufman says the people who wrote the EPA regulations also wanted a lower exclusion.

"The working level technical people were all against the 1,000 kilogram exclusion, they saw it as the dangerous loophole it is," Kaufman says.
"But pressure from the top, both political and corporate, killed the ef-

In Rhode Island no one is exempt and everyone must report every-

Vermont has set its small generator exemption at 220 pounds.

George Kaplan of Maine's hazardous waste office says his state is "holding with the 1,000 kilogram limit, but it may be lowered in the Kaplan says Maine has modified EPA's regulations and has forbidden small operators from dumping toxic waste in unlicensed sites.

But he's concerned about monitoring the small dumpers.

'We don't have the manpower to station people at every town dump and along every road to watch for illegal dumping," Kaplan says. We're going to rely a lot on the municipalities to watch their own dumps. It's in their own best interest because they'll be held responsible for any chemicals that are dumped

Massachusetts follows the 1,000-kilogram exemption but has tried to close the loophole by imposing major demands on how the small producers ship their waste.

It also is working on new regulations to lower the limit.

Connecticut also accepts EPA's 2,-200 pound exemption and forbids dumping in unapproved landfills.

Threatened Polish strike called off

Dallas firm suing Iran

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Inde-pendent union leaders in the central Polish city of Czestochowa called off a threatened strike today after being assured their grievances with local government leaders would be resolved by mid-December, the official news agency PAP reported.

But a sit-in by about 25 workers at the government mining office in the southern city of Katowice entered its second week today. The workers are protesting what they say are delays in implementing terms of the agree-ment which ended strikes in the Sile-sian fields in September.

In Czestochowa, the local chapter of the independent trade union Solidarity had threatened a walkout after regional government officials su-

Jonestown is ghost town

JONESTOWN, Guyana (AP) — Two years after the People's Temple massacre, Jonestown is a ghost town, with a dozen guards and workers keeping out the curious and the jungle vegetation.

The area around the main pavilion where the Rev. Jim Jones exhorted more than 900 of his followers to drink poisoned punch and "die with dignity" on Nov. 18, 1978, shows no trace of the 913 suicides and murders.

Survivors said some of the members of the cult were forced to drink the death potion but most of them did so willingly.

Another member of the temple, Larry Layton, 33, is being held on murder charges in connection with the slaying of U.S. Rep. Leo J. Ryan, three reporters and a People's Temple defector at an airstrip a few hours before the massacre, but he may be released soon because witnesses against him have refused to return from the United States to testify.

Layton was acquitted last May of the attempted murder of two other defectors. Vern Gosney and Monica Bagby. But if he returns to the United States, he could face federal charges of conspiracy to kill the California congressman and the four others who died with him.

They were killed after a visit to Jonestown to investigate charges that Jones was keeping members of the cult at the settlement against their will. Jones reportedly ordered them murdered because he was convinced Ryan intended to destroy Jonestown.

When Jones learned that some of the people with Ryan had escaped, he ordered his followers to commit "rev-

Two-thirds of the cult's liquid assets in Guyana have been used to pay the Guyanese government $770,000 for the two Guyana Airways planes damaged in the shooting of Ryan and his party and for cleaning up Jonestown after the massacre.

The United States is seeking $4.3 million to cover the cost of shipping the bodies back to the United States and the cost of burying 545 victims whose bodies were never claimed.

A total of 765 suits seeking about $1.8 billion in damages have been filed against the People's Temple. Most of the suits charge wrongful death and have been filed by relatives of persons who died in the massacre.

OAKLAND (AP) - Mourners held hands and sang softly in the Garden of Remembrance in Evergreen Cemetery to mark the second anniversary of the Peoples Temple mass murder-

The cemetery is the burial place for about 500 of the 913 members of the cult who died on Nov. 18, 1978 in Jonestown, Guyana.

Many of those attending Tuesday's 20-minute service, held under the auspices of the interdenominational Guyana Emergency Relief Committee of San Francisco, were relatives of the Jonestown dead.

A Christmas memorial service on behalf of the children is planned for Dec. 23 at the cemetery, Ms. Norwood said, and a monument may be erected in their memory.

New breeds in mortgages

By JAMES M. WOODARD Copley News Service

You may have decided you just can't afford to purchase a home in today's market – or qualify for a mortgage loan. But wait. Consider these

You may be able to purchase a home with a ortgage loan interest rate of only 9 percent. That's a third lower than currently prevailing

Or if your monetary reserves are embarrass-ingly low at the moment and you don't have the cash to swing the deal, you may take advantage of a program that will pay most of your down payment, and much of your closing costs, taxes, financing fees and insurance. Sure, there's a catch. You must share a Sure, there's a catch. You must share a portion of the profit you realize when the home is sold with "Mr. Good-guy" who helped you acquire the home in the first place.

It's the newest breed of home financing programs, often described as "creative financing" techniques. The basic objective is to put more people in a home-buying position.

This new technique, usually identified as "shared equity programs," is really quite simple — and in some cases very effective. In return for extra assistance in financing his home, the buyer agrees to share a portion of his future buyer agrees to share a portion of his future profit with his benefactor.

The extra assistance is in the form of a bstantially lower interest rate on the home loan or advancing funds for payment of a large chunk of the down payment and other purchase

Such plans are now most frequently used in California and Florida, but their popularity is spreading throughout the country.

The first plan of this type to be offered home buyers was a very simple, basic program. The buyer receives a mortgage loan carrying an interest rate that is one-third lower than the currently prevailing rate.

The buyer, in turn, promises to give the lender one-third of the profits from the future sale of the house. The lower interest rate results in lower house. The lower interest rate results in lower monthly payments and helps the buyer qualify for the loan.

A new plan, recently announced, is structured to meet the needs of home buyers who generate a good income and can handle large monthly pay-ments without a problem, but are low on immediate cash.

This plan pays 75 percent of the required down payment, plus half the closing costs, taxes, financing and insurance costs. A plan offering a combination of benefits in these two concepts will very likely be announced soon.

For information on plans that might be available in your area, check with a local broker active in residential sales.

Q. How rapidly is the value of farm and ranch increasing?

A. The value of farm and ranch land has tripled in the last 10 years. In 1970, the average price paid for this land was $196 per acre. Today, it's about $640 per acre.

'Catalog' can help evaluate those coins

By GARY L. PALMER Copley News Service

Copley News Service

If you're like most people, no doubt tucked away in the back of a dresser drawer somewhere there's a box of old coins. Handed down from one generation to the next, an odd assortment of unusual coins, some gotten in change — many no doubt of foreign origin and kept just because they were "different."

And very likely you've wondered about the value of some of those foreign pieces — what their worth is in the land of origin and their value in U.S. dollars.

Tracking down that information would keep a novice busy for a long time. In fact, the dyed-in-the-wool numismatist would no doubt spend long hours of "homework" before ascertaining the real worth of a box full of those foreign coins.

But long-time collectors and fledgling numismatists are offered a valuable tool for procuring the necessary information with just one mammoth, comprehensive book — the 1981 edition of the "Standard Catalog of World Coins" from Krause Publications Inc., Iola, Wis.

The giant tome, telephone-book size in dimension, contains 2,000 pages and lists virtually every coin issued in the world from about 1760 to 1980.

More than 72,000 different coins are listed by date and mintmark and 39,000 actual size illustrations make it easy to determine a coin's origin and value.

Brighter future seen for mobile home

Mobile Homes Si! Mobile Homes No!

It's not graffiti – it's the economic consensus.

That is to say, any dispassionate analysis of the current economic scene would suggest that the alling mobile home industry (sometimes called "manufactured housing") has a bright future. As bousing prices and interest rates continue to soar – and home ownership becomes out of reach for all but a small percentage of American households – mobile homes (which currently sell for a mere average $19,500) absolutely must grow, and rapidly.

This year, the high interest rates are clobbering the mobile home industry, just as they are clobbering housing generally. Eventually, however, it has to change: "Mobile homes' long-pull prospects are what makes this industry attractive. We think the manufactured housing market will grow at a 15 percent clip once the current downturn runs its course," said Value Line's Allen K. Bachrach.

But, noted Bachrach, "The long-term outlook for the recreational vehicle (RV) industry (including the 'motor home' industry) is gloomy.

Everybody knows why: gasoline. The industry's sales are rocked by its unavailability and also hurt by its high price. Also, recreation vehicles are a luxury item, and consumer incomes are being

Said Bachrach, "Our estimates assume demand for these vehicles will remain well below historical levels.'

Dave Humphreys, president of the Virginia-based Recreation Vehicle Industry Association (RVIA), even conceded, "The industry peaked at aroun 600,000 vehicle sales in both 1972 and 1978. Most people don't expect to see those kinds of numbers again." (RVs include travel trailers, motor homes and campers.)

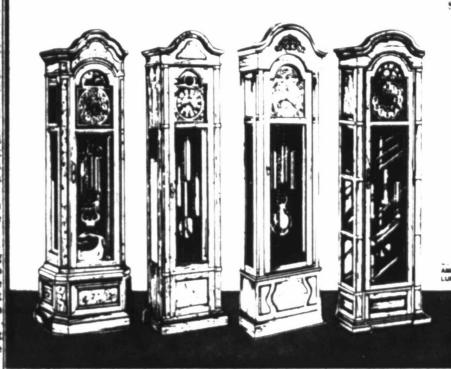

Indeed, sales fell by 50 percent last year and then again this year. For the full year of 1980, sales will be only 150,000 to 200,000.

But that doesn't mean the market will evaporate. Humphreys points to consumer surveys indicating that people who already own recreation vehicles do not expect to stop playing the game. They should be repeat customers. They just won't travel so far. Most believe that hotel and motel prices will continue to

And there is an affluent, sports-oriented market that will exist no matter what the masses are

- President Carter says measures, and a conhe hasn't decided whether to sign a $9 billion appropriations bill that would prohibit the Justice Department from seeking court-ordered busing to desegregate schools.

A top White House aide, however, said vetoing the legislation might be futile, blocking only the needed appropriations. Carter might choose instead to challenge the constitutionality of the anti-busing amendment in court, he said.

Carter, asked at a State Department reception Tuesday night if he plans to sign the bill, replied: "I don't know. I'll et you know."

Ray Jenkins, a White House special assistant, said Carter would make no decision before the bill reaches his desk.

There also is concern at the White House, he "The options are a veto or a signing with a strong statement of protest," he said.

While Carter was weighing the possibilities, President-elect Ronald Reagan was endorsing the anti-busing amendment.

Reagan told reporters during a visit to Capitol Hill on Tuesday that while he believes "heart and soul" in civil rights, he thinks busing has been a failure and supports efforts to end it.

The anti-busing provision would bar the Justice Department from spending money in court suits seeking busing to achieve racial balance in schools. Individuals could sue to impose mandatory busing, and courts could order busing on their own initiajobs today after a six-day strike.

The employees still have no new contract, but officials of the three striking municipal unions ordered their members back to work - at least for one day - as long as "meaningful" contract talks continued.

'We have not resolved all of the issues but the labor leaders have agreed to ask all their people to go back to work as long as there is meaningful discussion at the bargaining table," Mayor Tom Bradley said after a bargaining session late Tuesday.

Bradley has refused to identify the single unsettled issue until it is resolved. But he predicted it would be settled by Thursday. "The issue is something that can be resolved," he said.

The most visible sign of the strike was some 30,000 tons of debris that had accumulated since the walkout began last week, and Bradley said the cleanup would begin immediately.

Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices surged in heavy trading Tuesday, resuming last week's rally, as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks reached its highest close in nearly four years and inched toward the 1,000-

"The market is making a run for the roses," said Monte Gordon, an analyst for Dreyfus Corp.
The Dow Jones industrial average was up 11.69 at 997.95, the highest close since it finished at 999.75 on Jan. 3, 1977. Earlier in the day, the index had been up as much as 12.29 to 998.55.

The blue-chip average has gained in six of the past seven sessions for a net increase of 65.53 points.

The last time it was over 1,000 was when it hit 1.001.99 during trading on Jan. 4, 1977. And the last close at over 1,000 was Dec. 31, 1976, when it reached 1,004.65. The record close was 1051.70 on Jan. 11, 1973

Advances outnumbered declines by almost 2-to-1 in the overall tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume came to 70.38 million shares, up from the 50.26 million shares that changed hands Monday. It was the fourth largest volume ever, and was near the 71.63 million total recorded last Friday.

On other financial markets Tuesday, the value of the dollar, which jumped sharply Monday as interest rates rose, fell back against all major currencies except the British pound Tuesday. Gold prices rose on major bullion markets at home and abroad, rising $8 an ounce in London to close at $620. In later New York trading Republic National Bank quoted bullion at $618, up $4.50. In the bond market, prices rallied, recovering from steep losses earlier this week in what some analysts said reflected better-than-expected numbers in the latest money supply report.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial stocks picked up 2.30 to 159.84, and S&P's 500-stock composite index rose 1.95 to 139.70.

Oil stocks were among the to 82; Texaco was up 1/8 at 45%; Occidental Petroleum gained 11/4 to 35%; Phillips Petroleum was up 1 at 56%; and Charter rose 1 to 24 1/4.

Law loosens control of moving industry

> By JEFFREY MILLS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans planning a move will have new incentives to shop around for a mover under a new law that will soon deregulate the industry, greatly increasing competition.

The law, passed with industry and consumer support, largely ends the Interstate Commerce Commission's tight control over the household moving industry.

Changes in the law, signed by President Carter Oct. 15, include:

-Permitting movers to offer binding promises of what the move will cost. Movers now give non-binding estimates under a federally required formula, and customers frequently are dismayed to get a bill that is higher than the estimate.

-Increasing movers' freedom to raise or lower prices. Charges for similar work now are uniform under the regulations, but the change will allow companies to undersell the competition.

-Setting standards for informal dispute settlement panels established by movers to resolve controversies.

For the one in five families that moves each year, the basic difference between one mover and another has been the name on the side of the truck. The price was determined by the weight and distance moved and would have been the same for any interstate

The ICC now is framing rules on how to carry out the new law and will make them effective after a public comment period ends Dec. 11.

The industry is already preparing for the changes. One company, for example, has proposed a 5 percent discount for senior citizens, and more discount offers

"Now, we can offer things like, 'If you move between October and April, we'll give you 15 percent off.' This would reduce our load during the summer, which is the peak period, and it would allow more choice for consumers," said Jack Thorne, vice president of American Red Ball Transit Co., an

Indianapolis-based moving company. "It used to be that if we gave out a $1 ball-point pen, the ICC construed that as an illegal rebate. But now, you will be seeing a lot of offers similar to those the airlines advertise. Companies could offer a special rate between two cities or offer discounts to corporations that agree to move their people with that mover." Thorne said.

He added that not all companies in what is traditionally a low-profit industry are expected to survive in the new competitive situation.

The report says the government should be prepared to impose a 45 mph speed limit during severe energy shortages and should require U.S. automakers to meet fleet mileage averages of 38 miles per gallon in 1990. The law now requires automakers to meet an average of 27.5 mpg by 1985, but does not go beyond that.

The study says the country could also save 75,000 barrels of oil a day in 1990 by requiring state auto inspection programs to check tire pressures. It says the average motorist's tires are underinflated by 4 pounds per square inch, resulting in a 3 percent drop in fuel economy.

It recommends removing controls in and thereby cut oil use by 430,000 barrels a day in 1985.

The study also recommends a greatly expanded government program to sell oil leases off the U.S. coast, saying current environmental safeguards in the leasing program are "overly cumbersome, protracted and counterproductive." A steppedup program could result in increases

The report said 140,000 barrels of oil could be saved daily by promoting use of radial tires, which improve mileage, and improved lubricants.

Reagan also criticized Carter's "windfall" profits tax on oil companies, saying it was taking away revenue the oil industry needed to spur exploration. The report partially agreed, recommending that newly discovered oil and oil extracted using expensive recovery techniques be exempt from the tax.

Some NOW accounts have strings attached

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Consumers across the country will be able to earn interest on the money in their checking accounts starting next year. But the strings attached to the accounts may leave depositors with a loss instead of a gain.

The conditions governing the new interest-bearing checking accounts will vary from city to city and institution to institution. As a general rule, however, you will have to keep a substantial amount in your checking account — $1,000 or more in some places — if you want to avoid hefty service charges. In many cases, the account will cost more in fees than it will earn in interest. And the less money you leave on deposit, the more you will pay.

Bob Walters of Sheshunoff & Co.

Inc., an Austin, Texas, consulting firm, explained: "Banks are going to say, 'Look. I don't mind paying interest to somebody who's keeping a lot of money in my bank. Why don't we divide our checking accounts into the people who have money and the people who don't?""

The NOW accounts — the letters stand for "Negotiated Order of Withdrawal" — were introduced in New England in 1972. They spread throughout the region and into New York and New Jersey, but were prohibited elsewhere.

The debut of NOW accounts on a national basis is coming as a reult of legislation passed by Congress to eliminate many of the regulations governing the banking industry. Banks, savings and loan associations and other financial institutions in all 50 states will be allowed — but not required — to offer interest-bearing checking accounts beginning Jan. 2,

The maximum interest rate on the NOW accounts, set by a federal panel which is overseeing deregulation in the banking field, will be 5¼ percent a year. That's the same amount that commercial banks are allowed to pay on passbook savings accounts and is quarter of a percentage point less than savings and loan institutions can pay.

Figuring out whether a NOW account is a good deal will require some complicated calculations. Among the things you will have to look at are the average amount of money you now keep in your checking account, the number of checks you write every month and the fees you already pay for checking.

Suppose, for example, you keep about $250 a month in your checking account. At present, you earn no interest on that money. You also get free checking, however — no monthly service fee and no per-check charge. If you open a NOW account that pays 5½ percent a year, compounded daily — you will earn less than $1.15 a month on your $250. If, in exchange for earning interest, you have to pay fees of more than $1.15 a month, you will lose money with a NOW account

Suppose, however, you already pay a service charge for your checking account. Most people do. The interest on a NOW account may be big enough to offset the higher fee you will have to pay. You will have to compare the exact terms offered by different institutions and add up the dollars and cents.

Prospective mafia trial jurors asked if they had seen 'Godfather' movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A key question in selecting a jury for the recently ended Los Angeles Mafia trial was whether jurors cooperation." had seen the movie "The Godfather," secret transcripts show.

Most jurors had, and were repelled by only one scene — a severed horse's head left in a movie mogul's bed as retribution by the Mafia, according to transcripts of jury selection unsealed by U.S. District Judge Terry Hatter after the case concluded.

"I think the thing that disturbed me the most was the horse," said one prospective juror. Others echoed that opinion. One prospective juror was dismissed after she said she would be prejudiced against Mafia members.

"My opinion of the Mafia, from what I have heard, is not very good," she said. "I really never heard anything good about

Other unsealed transcripts showed that the government's star witness, Aladena "Jimmy the Weasel" Fratianno, calmly discussed committing two murders in 1949, bringing his total of confessed killings to 13.

They also revealed that one defendant claimed he had received implied immunity for cooperating with the FBI.

At an evidentiary hearing on Oct. 14, the lawyer for defendant Louis Tom Dragna argued that FBI agents promised Dragna they would not use against him confidential information he gave

"There was an implied understanding that if Mr. Dragna decided to help the FBI that anything he said would be kept in a confidential manner," argued lawyer Howard Weitzman. "The key issue is the confidential nature of the situation, and the fact Weitzman lost his bid to bar the testimony of FBI Agent Jack Barron. The agent told jurors that Dragna phoned him in October 1976 asking for a meeting and later came to the agent's house. He testified that Dragna admitted he was then acting boss of the Los Angeles family of La Cosa Nostra, filling in for the jailed Dominic Phillip Brooklier.

In Friday's verdicts, Dragna, 59, and Brooklier, 66, were found guilty of racketeering and conspiracy. Three other defendants were convicted of racketeering and extortion charges. All five defendants were acquitted in the slaying of a Mafia informer.

Barron said that Dragna answered questions about the mob and identified various men as Mafia members. But he said Dragna never actually turned informer and did not speak to him again.

The secret transcript revealed that a second FBI agent, John Nance, who was present at the Dragna meeting but was never called to testify, told a grand jury, "It was my understanding. that he (Dragna) had been told if he cooperated what he would say wouldn't be used against him.

The hearing transcripts also indicate Hatter discussed continuing protests to his decisions to close the hearings and jury selection to the press and public.

A legal protest of Hatter's decision to close portions of the trial was filed by the Los Angeles Times and is currrently pending before the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

One of the most publicized crimirals of the century, Sutton died Nov. 2 in Spring Hill, Fla., according to his sister, Helen Mottola, with whom he ent his final days. The body was own here and buried Nov. 7 without ablicity in Holy Cross Cemetery in is native Brooklyn.

Undertakers and cemetery workers had refused to confirm the burial. The cause of death was not disclosed.

"It was strictly his wish that it be entirely private," she said in a tele-phone interview from Spring Hill, exlaining that he wanted to protect his amily from another round of publiciy. "We've had enough of it all of our ives," she said.

And Sutton's passing would have one unnoticed. That would have been keeping with the way he had lived, a world where he said his happiest noments were spent robbing banks.

By his own estimate, Sutton roberies netted close to $2 million. His areer in crime began with shopliftng groceries in Brooklyn in the late $20s and ended in 1952 with a prison

He is perhaps best known for his ft-quoted answer on why he robbed s: "Because that's where the

He became one of the most notori-is criminals after a watershed day in 1929 when he was walking down Broadway and saw an armored truck making a delivery to a business firm. He was intrigued to see the guards waved into the building because of their uniforms. "That afternoon 'Willie the Actor' was born," he recalled. Disguised as a Western Union messenger, he made his first big score at a Brooklyn jewelry store in 1930, netting $130,000 in gems. He got his nickname from a police inspector who arrived to investigate the robbery of a Brooklyn bank that

Sutton had hit for $48,000 in cash. "Looks like Willie the Actor has been here," the inspector remarked. Subsequently, Sutton was never without a disguise, posing as a postman, window cleaner and even a policeman. He never rented a uniform

At age 51, as he was waiting to be shipped back to Sing Sing prison for 30 years to life on a bank conviction he swore was a setup, Sutton said he "was completely through.

"Sure, I'd pulled some big jobs, but I'd spent half of my adult life in jail paying for these crimes...I had made a science of crime. And yet I'd lost."

Seventeen years later, on Christmas Day 1969, Sutton tasted freedom again. Less than two months later, ailing, stooped and broken, the once dapper criminal whom a New York City police commissioner had dubbed "The Babe Ruth of Bank Robbers," applied for welfare.

He also went straight for the rest of his life, claiming: "I'm a living illustration of the adage that crime does

The holidays bring the spirit of joy, along with food, fashion, fantasy and traditions. It isn't too early to begin thinking about and planning for this fabulous time of the year.

Holiday fashion for 1980 will be low key, attractive and memorable. In many costumes there will be a certain sportswear ease that is dressed up through fabric and trims. Suit dressing will continue from day into the evening simply by changing into an elegant blouse and adding simple sparkle accessories.

SHAPES

From dressy shorts and culottes to above-the-knee skirts (two inches below knee continues to be most popular length); skirts will have fullness and movement around the knee; blouses with ruffles and frills; jackets will be the classic blazer and blousons; the sweater will be a very important item in airy knits and with delicate touches.

FABRICS

Taffetas, either in solids, moire or plaids. Velvets and velveteens, airy gauze fabric and other cottons. Mohair, angora and light weight wool will be seen in cable and lacy texture

COLORS

The barely-there neutrals and powder pastel, plus red, white and the very predominant black.

ACCESSORIES

Velvet and satin ribbons on blouse Belts and comberbun will accent the waist. Belts will be seen in metallic leather, suedes, patent and velvet. Lace collars will accent a dress or blouse. Shiny decorative buttons and sparkly trims with accents on lace trims. Bags will continue to be small beaded bags or fabric and leather clutches.

SANTA CLAUS — FRIEND OR FOE?

Treat Santa Claus as the spirit of joy and giving. Children will then probably place Santa beside their

Quit smoking for 24 hours

By ABIGAIL VAN

BUREN DEAR READERS: Tomorrow will be the a good-humored, upbeat effort to encourage smokers to give up ciga-rettes for 24 hours — just to prove to themselves that they can. It's sponsored by the American Cancer Society on the theory that anyone who is able to quit for 24 hours can quit forever.

According to the Gallup organization, in 1979 nearly 15 million Americans attempted to give up cigarettes on Smokeout day. Five million succeeded for the full 24 hours; one to three days later, 2.3 million were still off cigarettes, while another 7.8 million said they had cut down considerably.

The key element for decorating for any season is color,'' says Gladys Bowman, stylist for the National Candle Association. "Lighter colors are more dominant in spring and summer decorating, while darker hues are better for fall and winter. a few changes in inexpensive accents can give a home a whole new look to correspond with what is happening outside.'

Lighter color throw pillows, for example, can be replaced by pillows in darker hues. Accessories with summer looks can be rotated with brass accents - such as ashtrays, candlesticks and figurines — for a warmer tone. Candles, says Mrs. Bowman, are among the most versatile and economical of seasonal decorating resources.

Severely diabetic women can now have healthy babies, say doctors

By KEVIN McKEAN AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Many severely diabetic women, including some who have been told it would be too risky for them to have children, can now have healthy babies due to advances in controlling diabetes during pregnancy, doctors say.

A panel of doctors Monday told a Symposium on Diabetes Management in the 1980s that diabetes should no longer be a reason to avoid pregnan-

"A pregnancy complicated by diabetes is not without problems, but now we are able to manage these patients in such a way that the chances for the life of the baby are the same as for a normal pregnancy," said Dr. Kurt Fuhrman, head of a program for pregnant diabetics in East Germany. Dr. Lois Jovanovic, who runs a similar program at Cornell University Medical College in New York, said recent work has shown that "no matter how bad your kidneys or your eyes are from diabetes, the kids come out spectacular. These old wives' tales have to be revised."

FUHRMAN, Ms. Jovanovic and Dr. _ in their blood.

Karl Irsigler of the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute in Vienna, Austria, told the symposium that women who enter an intensive diabetes control program before the eighth week of pregnancy can reduce the risks to near normal.

Risks probably would become completely normal, they said, if women were started on the program before they conceive.

The key is home glucose monitoring. Under the program, women learn to perform a simple lab test at home that enables them to measure the amount of glucose - a kind of sugar

Diabetics have an elevated blood glucose level because their bodies lack the ability to make the sugarcontrolling hormone insulin.

Administration of insulin, either orally or by injection, allows diabetics to make up for the lack of the hormone. But even with daily injections, blood sugar levels in diabetics still fluctuate more than in normal people. This can damage small blood vessels, including those in the retina of the eye and the kidneys, and in pregnancy it can harm the fetus.

DIABETIC WOMEN TRADITION-ALLY have faced an infant mortality rate as high as 15 percent and higherthan-normal rates of congenital mal-formations and other problems.

But Fuhrman said infant mortality was down to only 2.5 percent in the 350 diabetic pregnancies since 1977 at the Karlsburg Institute in Karlsburg, East Germany. Normal infant mortality in developed countries varies from 2 percent to 5 percent.

Fuhrman said 5 percent of the babies born to the 350 women were malformed. He added that there were no defects in the babies born to the 110 women who started the program before becoming pregnant.

Ms. Jovanovic said her patients spend a week in the hospital to learn the blood sugar test and then measure their blood sugar levels seven times a day. There was only one malformed baby, no deaths, among the 59 preg-nancies she has studied to date, she

The blood sugar test — which requires pricking a finger with a sterile needle — takes less than a minute to perform, she said.

Washing a lace tablecloth

Someone gave me some old lace tablecloths. How

Even the local drycleaner would not guarantee it. Can you help? — Mrs. R.L. Hardy

The following tip from Kay Fecci will work equally well on a lace tablecloth:

"I bought a vinyl flannel-backed tablecloth the same size as my crocheted tablecloth. When I wash and starch the cloth, I place the

WASHDAY DATA

Dear Heloise: My washing machine has an automatic fabric softener dispenser. The manufacturer recommends diluting the softener by adding enough water to make a cup. This got to be a nuisance to do Now I take an empty softener bottle, remove the

RECYCLE TIP Dear Heloise: My children receive such pretty gift wrappings on their special days, that I hate to throw

I save the larger pieces, iron them flat and line their dresser drawers with the cute wrappings. Each drawer has a different paper, so it helps them learn to identify where their clothes go by the paper design (socks in the drawer with the clown paper, pants with the rabbit, etc.). Besides, the paper comes in quite handy, as one day I needed to wrap a gift and had no other paper. I simply selected a fresh looking piece of paper out of a drawer and ended up with a pretty package.

Developers would like to turn this vista into coal mines and plants by mining the Alton coal fields that lie just beyond this lookout at Bryce

Development vs. scenery in Utah

Coal companies in now-familiar battle

By GEORGE TIBBITS Associated Press Writer

YOVIMPA POINT, Utah (AP) -The view from this overlook at the southern tip of Bryce Canyon National Park is spectacular: peach and white sandstone spires in the park and often much of southern Utah and the Grand Canyon Plateau, vistas hundreds of miles distant.

In the next century, if developers have their way, the view may include mething else — a strip mine less han four miles away. Coal fields near Alton, Utah, would eed the proposed Allen-Warner Val-ey Energy System. But environmentalists say the system would be a fisaster for two national parks -Bryce and Zion — and for water-poor anchers in Kane County, south of tryce.

The $4 billion AWV system calls for wo plants generating 2,500 mewatts of electricity, 90 percent of it and for California. Two slurry lines th a combined length of 256 miles uld pipe coal to the 2,000-megawatt Valley plant near St. George, Utah.

Project participants are Southern California Edison, Pacific Gas & Electric, Nevada Power Co. and the City of St. George. 'Utah International Inc. would mine the coal.

Development vs., scenery is becoming a familiar bat/le in southern Utah, where not so lor, g ago a new county road was a maj or project. That changed when developers began to eye two of the region's few resources - libundant minerals and even more ab undant space. Soon to beggin construction is the $5 billion, 3,00%-megawatt Intermountain Power Project near Lynndyl. The plant, also to send most of its power to California, was first planned for Salt Wash but was moved 120 miles west after Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus said it would harm air at Capitol Reef Nations I Park, 10 miles away.

The 13.5 billion Kaiparowits Power Project was to have mined coal for Calife mia utilities on the Kaiparowits Plate au, about 45 miles east of the Alto a fields. It was scrapped in 1976, Vegas and the 500-megawatt Warner the plateau — again to provide coal for California and for export to

The Bureau of Land Management recently issued its final environmental impact statement on the AWV project, recommending against the Warner Valley plant on grounds its smoke would damage air quality and reduce visibility at Zion National Park, about 35 miles northeast.

The Environmental Protection Agency earlier made a similar judgment and separately recommended that the federal Office of Surface Mining declare the Alton fields unsuitable for mining because mines would raise noise levels at Bryce Canyon and spoil the view.

Late this year or in early 1981, the interior secretary is to rule on the AWV's permit application. "We will pursue the application until we get the permit," says St. George utilities director Rudger McArthur. "In a nutshell, we're going to pursue until we conquer.'

But victory might not come easily. Environmentalists worry the reserwoundfin minnow and the roundtail ties.

chub, two rare fish in the Virgin

Ranchers near the mine fear the slurry lines' 3 billion-gallon annual thirst will drain their wells.

"Water is pretty scarce," says Caroline Lippincott, a rancher in Johnson Canyon near the Alton fields. "When I drive through Las Vegas and see all those lights, I think, 'We're going to export all of Kane County's water for that?"

AWV backers say there's a critical need for power. Nevertheless, the staff of the California Public Utilities Commission has recommended the state's utilities not participate in the Warner Valley plant, saying the Allen plant's output alone would meet the state's needs. The staff recommended scrapping Warner Valley and fueling the Allen facility with central Utah coal brought in by rail.

McArthur says that won't help St. George, whose 14,000 population is expected to double every decade through the end of the century. He says Warner Valley is essential because the city has only interim agreebut a new mine has been proposed for voir for Warner Valley will kill off the ments to buy power from other utili-

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — There are so many inknowns in the explosion of a Titan II missile silo near Damascus that experts from the Center for Disease Control have been unable to draw any onclusions from a survey of people who became ill

Dr. Chuck S tutzman of the CDC in Atlanta said

Dr. Chuck S tutzman of the CDC in Atlanta said Monday that 'after a month of work "we're having trouble making a correlation."

Several residents of the community of Guy and other small communities near the silo reported mysterious ailments, which some residents blamed on a fog-lilice cloud that reportedly settled over the area after the Sept. 19 blast.

"There has been some disagreement among ourselves" about the interpretation of symptoms reported by people who were interviewed, Stutzman said. The symptoms, which included nausea, burning lips, chest pains, and dizziness, were not specific and barrd to connect.

Stu'aman said it is also hard to determine what chemicals the residents were exposed to, even though scientists know what chemicals were in the silo at the time of the explosion.

"It could be that the products were burned up in the explosion," he said, adding that it also was pressible the chemicals were changed by the blast.

Dr. Robert Young, director of the Arkansas Health Department, asked the CDC to investigate after local doctors were unable to determine the cause of the asymptoms.

Rosalynn recalls husband's landslide re-election defeat

By MAUREEN SANTINI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - First lady Rosalynn Carter says she did her best to aid her husband's re-election bid and now has "the most detached feeling I have ever had" when she reads about the plans of his successor.

"I worked as hard as I could to make sure we got to continue what we started," said the strong-willed Mrs. Carter as she recalled her husband's landslide defeat to Republican Ronald Reagan.

'The things he (Reagan) is talking about now, we were already doing," she said, citing President Carter's efforts to balance the budget and the government hiring freeze she says is already in effect.

She declared that Carter "redefined the Democratic philosophy" and will be remembered as a great president. He lost the election, she said, because of a protest vote of frustration.

Mrs. Carter calmly recounted her experiences during the campaign and her feelings on leaving the White House in an informal session Tuesday with a small group of reporters in the family living quar-

Later, perhaps thinking she had not adequately conveyed the pain she has experienced since Election Day, she had her press secretary call reporters to say the first lady has had some bad moments since the long and grueling campaign ended Nov. 4.

One was on Election Day, when the president's own pollster had said the campaign was doomed even before the polls closed. Mrs. Carter said she had cried "a little bit" in the privacy of her own bedroom after returning from the end of the campaign and seeing tears in the eyes of son Chip's

Another sad moment came last week, she said, as she read through her old speeches and thought how convincing they were. She heard a trumpet blare and looked out the window to see her husband bidding farewell to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. She broke down and cried, she said.

Echoing what Jimmy Carter himself told reporters a day after the election, the first lady said she did not see the defeat as a personal rejection of her husband, but frustration over the economy, unemployment and the hostages in Iran.

"It's frustrating. Of course, it's frustrating," she said. "But when you have done all that you can possibly do, that's all you can do. It was just by neighbor's pet deer said. "But when you have done all that you can out of our hands. I could not have done more. Jimmy could not have done more.

There were two "worst" moments the last four hostages was aborted last April.

"But just like the election, it (the rescue mission) planned so carefully and so detailed. It was just not Bud Jamison, roaming about. She tried to coax the supposed to be. That was the worst time for Jimmy," the only time he was unable to sleep.

More power for states asked

GOP governors see landslide as mandate

By DON McLEOD AP Political Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Emboldened by their party's election gains, the country's Republican governors are demanding more power for states and less federal spending as they seek to fulfill their perceived mandate. But a leader of the governors says the depth of the voters' commitment remains to be seen.

We have interpreted their votes to be a blanket endorsement of the principles we have advocated for many years," said Virginia Gov. John Dalton, chairman of the Republican Governors' Association. "Yet to be determined is whether they are willing to pay the price of those principles.'

Dalton said Tuesday that the states may face backlash at home if Washington levels off its spending, as the governors demand. He said the public may resist any reduction in services or increases in state and local taxes to make up for federal

"We have all encountered many times the reality that those constituents do not always make the connection between reduced taxes and reduced public services, especially if the services being reduced apply to them," Dalton said.

The governors, in a resolution before their convention closed Tuesday, passed a resolution calling for reductions in federal taxes and spending, restoration of the states' share of the revenue sharing program, consolidation of federal bloc grants, an end to unfunded federal mandates on state and local governments, and relief from Medicaid costs.

The resolution demanded that within 200 days of the inauguration of Ronald Reagan as president, that the new Republican president and the new Congress act "to reform the American system of federalism by returning significant governmental authority to the states and localities where government is closest and most responsive to the people it serves."

Reagan, former governor of California, told the governors Monday by telephone that he strongly supports their "new federalism" proposals and "couldn't be more delighted."

Dalton said the party's post-election euphoria "will encounter some grim realities, as we try to sort out the general mandate to our party and our president from the general rejection of a Democratic administration, and translate the results into specific accomplishment.

"There is no doubt that the people of America have made a strong statement," Dalton said. "What remains to be seen is exactly what it was that they said.

There also is the problem of getting Congress to cut the strings which would release tax sources to the states or to bear the onus of raising the money only to let state and local officials get the credit for spending it.

'We're only asking them to give us back responsibility and the revenue source. We're not asking them to give us another penny that they're not now," said Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, floor leader for the resolution.

"And why should we not expect when they give us a responsi-bility to do that has been theirs, that they don't give us the opportunity to raise the money?" Alexander asked.

Alexander, who as a young aide to Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., drafted the original revenue sharing bill and saw it struggle through Congress, recognizes the political difficulties.

But he said because of the Nov. 4 elections which gave the Republicans the White House, control of the Senate and four new governors, "this is the first time in 50 years when we've had an opportunity to make a significant change in the direction of

Alexander said many people in Washington have been against relinquishing power and tax sources to the states but that that has been changed by the new Republican grip on the federal

"There may be some Republicans who oppose these things, too," Alexander conceded. "But they'll have to stand up now and vote against it if they feel that way.'

Man, accused of killing wife, waives extradition

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Authorities say an Albuquerque man being held by police in Clearwater, Fla., has agreed to waive extradition to New Mexico, where he is wanted in connection with the shooting of his wife.

The man, Thomas Crump, 38, was arrested in Clearwater Monday during a fight at a hotel. A check by authorities determined Crump was wanted in New Mexico and Nevada. Bernalillo County Sheriff's Capt. John Sands said Tuesday

Florida authorities reported Crump had signed a waiver of extradition to New Mexico. Sands said Crump, however, refused to waive extradition to Nevada, where he is wanted for the slaying of a prostitute and the shootings of two men.

The body of Rhonda Crump was found in July near an irrigation ditch in southwest Albuquerque. Crump was arrested on the same day the body was discovered, but was later released when police could not locate the weapon used to kill

Clearwater detective Sgt. Ray Emmons told Albuquerque authorities Crump had told of a series of killings and attempted killings and robberies in a three-month spree that began in

Use of birth-control pills increases need for vitamins

Dear Dr. Solomon: My daughter tells me her doctor gave her a number of dietary suggestions when she began using birth-control pills, What has one got to do with the other? Will you please explain? — Mrs. C.D.

Dear Mrs. D. - Various drugs can affect the absorption of vitamins or increase vitamin requirements. According to Dr. Daphne A. Roe, professor of nutrition at Cornell University, oral contraceptives increase the need for folic acid, riboflavin, and vitamin C. Therefore, those who use birthcontrol pills should include in their diets plenty of green leafy vegetables, milk, fortified cereals and

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father has been placed on a reducing diet, and my mother is doing her best to tacked it late Sunday, the follow the doctor's instructions. When she shops, for example, she avoids canned fruits packed in heavy syrup, and chooses low-calorie items instead. The trouble is that the low calorie items are not always low in calories. When I visited my parents over the weekend, I checked some of the products they have been using, and was surprised at how often there were only slight differences in the calorie content of so-called low-calorie foods and similar itmes that did not claim to be low in calories. If my mother took the time to check the labels of the products she buys, she would be aware of this; but shouldn't the consumer have the right to expect that an item that is designated as being low in calories actually is? — Mr. F.J.H.

Dear Mr. H. - You have an important ally who agrees with you and has done something about it. The Food and Drug Administration has ruled that foods marked either "low-calorie" or "reduced calorie" must meet specific standards.

In the case of low-calorie foods, the product must contain no more than 40 calories per serving, and no more than 0.4 calories per gram. (One gram equals 0.035 ounces.) Similarly, an item labeled "reduced calorie" must be at least one-third lower in calories than a similar food in which the calories are not reduced. The FDA's regulations apply to all foods used in special diets for the purpose of weight diabetes.

Other provisions of the regulations include a requirement that foods labeled as being reduced in calories must be at least the nutritional equivalent of the foods with which they are compared. They must also indicate the basis on which the claim is made - for example, that a canned fruit contains fewer calories because it is packed in water. In addition, both the "low-calorie" and "reduced calorie" versions must list complete nutritional information, including the number of calories per serving; the amounts of protein, carbohydrates, and fat they contain; and the percentage of U.S. Recom-mended Daily Allowances for protein and seven vitamins and minerals.

Shopping for low-calorie items should be a lot easier for consumers as a result of these regula-

Brett named MVP

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Brett was taking life easy in Palm Springs, Calif., far from Kansas City's harsh November winds, when he learned Tuesday that he'd finally won the award he wanted most.

In a landslide, Kansas City's 27year-old third baseman was named the American League's Most Valuable Player.

"IT'S LIKE THE Cy Young if you're a pitcher," Brett said from his vacation retreat. "This is the one I really wanted." Although honors and awards have poured in since Brett ended his spectacular season, he was apprehensive about his chances of winning the MVP.

"There's a little anxiety, you don't want to build your hopes up too high," he said. "I remember one year (1976) I thought I had a good chance at it and didn't win. That left me a little upset. Thurman (Munson, Yankee catcher) got it. So I learned not to be too confident about winning."

BRETT WON even though he played in only 117 games. Injuries sidelined him three different times and forced him out of more than 40 games.

Nevertheless, he challenged the magic 400 batting average until late in the season and finished at 390, highest in the major leagues since Ted Williams hit 406 in 1939. With 118 RBI in 117 games, he became the first player in 30 years to drive in more runs than games played, with a minimum of 100 RBI.

He also became the 15th player in AL history to win both the batting crown and the slugging percentge title in the same year, leading the league with a .664 slugging mark.

Only Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper, with 122, had more RBI.

The injury-prone Brett sat out 45 games. Only Gabby Hartnett, who hit .344 in 116 games with the Chicago Cubs in 1935, won the award while playing in fewer games than Brett's

"If a guy was a 117 or 120 (game) type of player, then I think you could question his being MVP," said Brett's manager, Jim Frey. "But George would have played every inning but for injuries. You say 117 games and you think of a guy who's not exactly an every-day player, a guy you're platooning. But that's not George.

"We're talking about a guy who was second in the league in RBIs, a guy who was still around .400 late in the season," Frey said. "His stats were beter than guys who played 150 and 160 games."

Brett received 17 first-place votes, nine seconds and two thirds from the 28-member panel of members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

HIS 335 POINTS far outdistanced New York's Reggie Jackson, the 1973 MVP, who had 234 points, including five first-place. Yankee relief ace Rich Gossage was third with four first-place ballots and 218 points, followed by Royals' outfielder Willie Wilson with one first-place vote and 169 points. Milwaukee's Cooper was next with 160 points, followed by Baltimore first baseman Eddie Murray, 106, and Yankee catcher Rick Cerone with one first-place and 77 points.

The 3-8 Redskins come calling Sunday. Then Thanksgiving Day it's the 4-7 Seattle Seahawks.

After that, Landry can relax. The Cowboys play the 8-3 Oakland Raiders, the 7-4 Los Angeles Rams and the 10-1 Philadelphia Eagles.

"I'd rather have a competitive schedule," Landry said Tuesday when asked his druthers over the upcoming opponents. "You've got to go out and prove you can win and by beating two out of three in the those last three games we should go into the playoffs."

He added "It's how you are playing against good teams that is important. If you aren't playing well against good teams, you might as well not be in the playoffs because you won't be going very far."

Landry said his 8-3 team had certainly better take the Redskins seriously.

"I would hope we wouldn't be lulled to sleep just because the Redskins have a 3-8 record," said Landry. "When a team with eight losses (the Giants) beats you I don't see how you can be too confident." The Cowboys, who trail the Philadelphia Eagles by two games in the National Conference Eastern Division, said Washington "would love nothing better than to beat the Cowboys in their home park."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The University Interscholastic League stripped South San Antonio of its district football title Tuesday and approved runnerup San Antonio East Central as the district's representative in the playoffs.

East Central will play San Antonio Holmes in a bi-district playoff game Friday night.

The UIL's state executive committee acted on testimony that Coach Dennie Hays' son, Russell, a wide receiver and safety, lived with his parents in the East Central district after staying briefly with his father in the South San Fieldhouse.

AS A RESULT of Hays' ineligibility, South San has to forfeit the eight games it won in an 8-2 season.

Coach Hays pleaded that the executive committee of District 29-5A twice had declared his son eligible but after two hours of arguments before the state committee, he urged a decision even if it meant South San fans would "roll my head down the street."

"I'll take that — let's go," he said.

Hays told a reporter complaints about the eligibility of his son had intensified after South San defeated East Central, 20-9. South San finished with a 6-1 district record. East Central and Eagle Pass tied for second, with East Central getting the playoff berth as a result of its victory over Eagle Pass.

THE DISTRICT CHAIRMAN first certified South San as district champion, then the district committee voted, 3-2, on Monday to certify East Central.

This vote was short of the majority required of the eight-member committee, but the state committee allowed the addition Tuesday of two more signatures to make East Central eligible for the playoffs.

Coach Hays said he moved into the South San Fieldhouse on Feb. 1.

after Midland High School had fired him as a coach. He said his son joined him in March but later the family bought a house in the East Central district, with the first payment in June.

Testimony disclosed that the district committee ruled Hays eligible on Aug. 15 and again on Nov. 4, but reversed itself in the Monday vote at Eagle Pass.

Principal Reggie West of East Central, the chairman of the district committee, said Coach Hays called him on Sept. 16 and told him he had moved into the South San district. West said he checked the address personally, and it was a small trailer house, which apparently was Under UIL rules, a senior transfer student such as Hays must have a bona fide residence within the district.

"I feel trappped," said Hays. "I feel I did what was right. I wish I had

"But I'm going to accept what you do. If you say Russell playing for me was wrong, it was wrong."

The state executive committee rejected, 4-1, the motion by UIL

Executive Director Bailey Marshall to block any District 29-5A representative from playing in bi-district.

The state committee also refused to second a motion that would have put every team in the district on probation for the remainder of this school year and the 1981-82 school year.

UIL Athletic Director Bill Farney made the motion, stating he thought the district committee "should be warned it needs to follow" UIL rules. He was referring to the two rulings declaring Hays eligible.

Army-Navy tilt lacking luster

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Army-Navy football matchup, once one of the game's annual classics, has fallen upon hard times.

Navy has dominated the series the past seven years, winning six times to even the 80-year-old rivalry at 37-37, with six ties. The Middles' program appears to be more stable than that of the Cadets.

Despite the diminished national interest in the service game, both Navy coach George Welsh and Army coach Ed Cavanaugh said the rivaly was as heated as ever at the academies.

"The same intensity, the same flavor exists at Navy and Army," said Welsh Tuesday at a pre-game news conference here.

Cavanaugh described the game

Cavanaugh described the game, scheduled here Nov. 29, as "what college football is all about.
"It's just a game among young men seeking college degrees and also playing football," Cavanaugh said. "Some coaches forget that football is part of the educational system." Cavanaugh said he hears coaches of major powers complain about the intense pressure on them to win to hold their jobs.

"The Army-Navy game has just as much pressure," said the first-year head coach. "It's just as exciting as it was 50 years ago. The same intensity and effort go into the game."

The general interest, however, has dropped to a level that convinced officials of both academies to move the site of the game from the 105,000-seat John F. Kennedy Stadium to Veterans Stadium across the street.

DePaul close second in balloting by scribes

NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky, whose five national collegiate basket-ball titles ranks second only to UCLA's 10, grabbed the top spot in The Associated Press 1980-81 preseason poll Tuesday as DePaul finished a close second and defending champion Louisville a distant third.

THE WILDCATS, whose fortunes will pivot around 7-foot-1 sophomore center Sam Bowie, collected 30 of 59 first-place votes and 1,131 points in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sport writers and broadcasters. Rich jackpot in racing championship on tap

By MIKE HARRIS AP Motorsports Writer

Championship racing, better known as Indy car racing, is akin to a man who has survived a long fever.

Once the fever breaks, the patient quickly begins to regain health.

The split two years ago between the U.S. Auto Club (USAC) and the thendissident Championship Auto Racing Teams (CART) rocked the sport and looked for a long time like the sentence of doom for the big money Indy circuit.

But, despite the ego problems and power struggles that have kept USAC and CART from mending their differences, the champ cars appear on the verge of a great resurgence.

Lending credence to that is the recent announcement that next year's series will have a $1 million point

Part of the comeback by the champ cars from the brink of disaster is an improvement in the quality of the racing, due in large to the emergence of ground effects. The new ground-hugging aerodynamics give the lowslung racing bullets more stability and allow them to run closer together.

Another factor is the emergence of CART as a viable sanctioning body.

Now that the power of USAC, the longtime sanctioner of champ car racing, has apparently been limited to the Indy and Pocono 500's, CART's PPG Indy Car World Series has become the focal point of that division of auto racing.

And CART, once thought to be only a short-term tool for the top car owners and drivers to use in muscling USAC into giving them more imput in the rules and purses, is being turned over to proven professionals. John Frasco, hand-picked to head

John Frasco, hand-picked to head the renewed efforts of CART, is a big bear of a man who has been CART's legal counsel since 1979 and now is its executive director.

With executives like Frasco, car owners and builders like Midland's Jim Hall and Roger Penske and drivers like Johnny Rutherford, who drives for Hall; Al Unser, who drives for Midland's Bobby Hillin; and Bobby Unser at the forefront, champ car racing may be ready to regain the powerful position it held not too many years ago in the auto racing world.

Frasco, 41, is a partner in a prestigious Detroit law firm and a formidable man at the negotiating table.

And he's a man with plans.

"My first responsibility is to build a stable organization in order to conduct and promote a series," Frasco said

"Looking to 1981 and beyond, we have to have an organization that can handle the administration, the promotion and the business aspects of the series, which include television, sponsorships and such sorships and such.

"The biggest difficulty I see right now is to make sure we all understand the problems we are actually facing.

"First, you look at the stands at a lot of races and they're not filled. Another thing is that some of the traditional racing sponsorships are not there anymore.

"But the conflict between the sanctioning organizations is behind us now, and I truly mean that. I don't think that'w a factor anymore, other than taking a little time to settle down."

"We know our direction now," Frasco added, "We're not in a fight with anybody. We're going to promote a series with a game plan, and I think we will achieve what we have set out do.

In boys action Greenwood rolled over the Buffs 62-41. Stanton lost the varisty girls' game 65-27 and the junior varsity contest 52-24.

The boys played nip and tuck basketball for the first quarter and a half. With 3:02 left in the half Stanton held its biggest lead of the night, 18-14. Then the Buffs went cold. For the next three minutes the Rangers held Stanton scoreless while running off seven straight points. At the buzzer, the Buffs recored another bucket. The half ended with Greenwood on top

IT APPEARED that the Buffs tired considerably in the late going. During the final eight minutes of play, several Buffs appeared to tired to get back of defense. Greenwood took advantage of the situation by playing five on three or four defenders, flipping in several easy buckets.

Rex Evans headed the Rangers attack with 13 points. Tedd Brooks added 11 markers to the Ranger attack. Adolph Garza lead the Buffs with 10 points.

Stankovic signs with Tornado

DALLAS (AP) - Mike Stankovic, the Most Valuable Player for the Memphis indoor soccer team last year, has been obtained by the Dallas Tornado in exchange for a first-round draft choice.

Dallas General Manager Kent Kramer said Tuesday the Calgary Boomers - formerly the Memphis Rogues — will receive the Tornado's first-round draft choice in 1980 and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Islanders whip St. Louis Blues with Bossy

By The Associated Press
After missing a chip shot in front of the net against the Minnesota North Stars the night before, Mike Bossy swore it wouldn't happen again.

"When I got up this morning," said the New York Islander right wing, "I promised myself I wasn't going to miss one from that close again. I hadn't scored a goal in three games, so I thought it was a lack of concentration. I don't want to sound greedy, but if I have the opportunities, I feel I should score."

Bossy's determination paid back the Islanders threefold Tuesday night, when his three goals led New York to a 7-2 National Hockey League victory over the St. Louis Blues.

Bossy, with prior seasons of 53, 69 and 51 goals and 17 goals and 5 assists in his last 11 games, was set up on all three goals by linemates Bryan Trottier and Clark Gillies.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A Pima County Superior Court judge has denied a request by former University of Arizona football coach Tony Mason to sever his trial from seven other persons on charges of illegal use of recruiting funds

A state grand jury indicted Mason, six assistant coaches and American Airlines freight supervisor Michael Hoffman on 88 felony charges in July They are accused of defrauding the university of $13,000 by charging for recruiting trips that never were Chargers face Dolphins Islanders Coach Al Arbour: "Our persistence and pursuit were just great, especially at the start of the second period. And of course, when the Trottier line starts motoring, they explode. When that Bossy's hot, he's really hot. He's the greatest goal scorer I've ever seen.

He won't seek a trade to the American League, where he could be a designated hitter, he said Tuesday. Instead, he'll try to win a new fielding position with the Cincinnati Reds, catching no more han 50 games next season.

"It's up to the Reds to tell me what glove to bring down (to spring training)," Bench said. "I'm going down with the thought of winning a job down there. I'm afraid I'm going to be going after somebody. "If I go down and take a position away from somebody, then that's the way it's got to be."

Bench said that 13 years of catching full time in the major leagues was enough, and he didn't want to subject his weary legs and back to additional physical abuse.

Reds president Dick Wagner has said the club could honor Bench's request to catch no more than vice a week, but he wouldn't guarantee that Bench could play when he wasn't catching.

Lakers win game, but lose Magic with knee injury

By The Associated Press The Los Angeles Lakers won a game — but it may turn out to be a most costly victory.

Magic Johnson, the Lakers' brilliant backcourt leader, suffered suspected cartilage damage to his right knee and had to be helped from the court during the second quarter of the Lakers' 107-94 National Basketball Association victory over the Kansas City Kings Tuesday night.

Dr. Robert Kerlan, the Lakers' team physician, examined Johnson and said the injury was "a suspected tear to the posterior horn of the medial semi-lunar cartilage." X-rays and further tests were scheduled for today to determine the extent of the

"I went to cut, to pick up my man, and the knee said, 'I'm not going with you," said Johnson, the second-year man who leads the league in assists and steals and ranks 10th in scoring with 22.4 points per game. "I heard something pop or crack."

In other NBA games Tuesday night, the Philadelphia 76ers beat the New York Knicks 113-99, the Atlanta Hawks topped the San Antonio Spurs 97-93, the Phoenix Suns stopped the Dallas Mavericks 102-91, the Boston Celtics edged the Chicago Bulls 113-112, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the San Diego Clippers 104-94, the Golden State Warriors topped the Washington Bullets 103-97, the Indiana Pacers beat the Detroit Pistons 102-97, the Houston Rockets outscored the Seattle SuperSonics 138-118, the Milwaukee Bucks defeated the Utah Jazz 126-93 and the Portland Trail Blazers downed the Denver Nuggets 122-103

Jamaal Wilkes led the Lakers past Kansas City with 34 points, 20 of them in the second half. Three long jumpers by Wilkes in the last three minutes sealed the victory

Norm Nixon added 18 points for the Lakers and Jim Chones had 16 points and a career-high 17 rebounds.

76ers 113, Knicks 99 Julius Erving scored seven of his 30 points in an 11-point Philadelphia surge in the final 4:45 as the 76ers pulled away from the Knicks to win for the 15th time in the last 16 games. The triumph avenged two early season losses to New York and increased their lead over the Knicks to three games in the Atlantic Division.

Hawks 97, Spurs 93 Atlanta broke its 10-game losing streak as Eddie Johnson scored 24 points, including the clinching basket on a baseline jumper with 20 seconds left. George Gervin had 35 for San Antonio, including the Spurs' first 14 points of the game.

The Hawks were bolstered by the rebounding of center Wayne "Tree" Rollins and forward Dan Roundfield, who have been injured for much of the season. Rollins grabbed 15 rebounds and Roundfield 12.

Cavaliers 164, Clippers 34 Cleveland, leading 71-70 in the third quarter, broke the game open with 11 consecutive points and coasted through the final period. Suns 102, Mavericks 91

Len "Truck" Robinson scored 24 points and Dennis Johnson added 23 as Phoenix raised its record to 17-3, best in the NBA. The expansion Mavericks, meanwhile, dropped to 3-18, the worst mark in the league.

Warriors 103, Bullets 97 Golden State won its fourth in a row as guards Lloyd Free and John Lucas combined for 55 points and 13 assists. The Warriors jumped out to a 16-4 lead at the start and never trailed.

Pacers 102, Pistons 97 Centers Clemon Johnson and James Edwards helped Indiana dominate play in the final period as the Pacers handed Detroit its 16th defeat in 20 games. Johnson scored seven points as the Pacers moved from an 81-81 tie to a 92-87 lead midway through the fourth quarter, then Edwards scored five points down the stretch to turn back a late Detroit rally.

Celtics 113, Buils 112 Larry Bird scored four points, made a key steal and grabbed three rebounds in the final four minutes as the Celtics edged the Bulls for their fourth consecutive victory. Boston overcame a seven-point deficit in the final period to pull it out.

Rockets 138, SuperSonics 118 Houston raced to a 68-51 halftime lead and coasted past Seattle as Moses Malone scored 33 points and pulled down 16 rebounds. Malone got 23 of his points in the second half to keep the Sonics at bay.

Judge says NFL rule will stand

tEW YORK (AP) - Afederal judge has upheld a National Football League rule that bans chief executives of its teams from investing in other professional sports franchises, but has left the door open for a possible appeal by the North American Soccer League.

The NASL had filed a civil antitrust suit in September 1978, charging that NFL owners were trying to squelch competition from professional soccer because of the soccer league's growing popularity.

However, U.S. District Court Judge Charles S. Haight Jr. ruled Tuesday that the NASL "failed to prove that defendants conspired to restrain trade" in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

The judge, however, stayed the lifting of an injunction on the ban pending appeal by the soccer league.

NASL attorney Stephen A. Brenner said the league's board of directors would review the court decision at its Dec. 1 meeting in Chicago.

The judge said that the NFL cross-ownership ban did not fall within the boundaries of the antitrust laws since NFL teams comprise a "single entity" in acting in concert against the NASL. Brenner said in a statement that such a finding was "unprecedented, and we believe, in

"This decision appears to be inconsistent with over 20 years of judicial decisions concerning the legal status of the NFL and its member clubs," the NASL attorney said.

Research says surgery 'better' in treating angina

By PAUL RAEBURN Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A new computerized treadmill test developed at the University of California indicates that surgery is a better treatment for angina than a commonly used drug, a researcher says.

The new test provides the first objective measure of the health of angina patients, said Dr. Milton Hollenberg, who developed it and used it to compare patients who underwent coronary artery bypass surgery with those treated with the Earlier studies indicated surgery improves the ability of Hollenberg said angina victims to exercise without chest pain. But this is the first accurate measurement of how much more effective surgery is than the drug, Hollenberg said.

Hollenberg, who was presenting his results today to a meeting of the American Heart Association in Miami, said in a telephone interview Sunday the test will not resolve the controversy over whether bypass surgery prolongs life.

Angina, a condition in which blocked arteries prevent an adequate supply of blood from reaching the heart muscle, is routinely measured by asking patients to walk or run on a patient's effort," said Hollenberg. The computer generates a treadmill until they experience uncomfortable chest pains,

Electrocardiogram readings taken during and after the exercise give doctors a rough idea of the severity of

Hollenberg said his new system uses a computer to analyze the electrocardiogram, removing subjective factors such as the patient's will to exercise on a given day

"It's a more objective test, not so critically dependent on the score for each patient, rating the severity of disease.

Harvard rejects genetics project, seeks another

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Although Harvard University has decided not to enter into a genetic engineering venture, it is still looking for ways to make money that won't compromise its academic values, says President Derek Bok.

"I believe that the university should continue to consider various means of participation in ventures of this kind," Bok said Monday after announcing that Harvard had decided against joining one commercial enterprise to earn money for its operating expenses.

"If so, the university might obtain a badly needed source of additional funding to strengthen its teaching and research while benefiting the public through hastening the translation of basic knowledge into useful products and devices," he said.

Despite an endowment of $1.6 billion, one of the largest in American education, Harvard said it needs more money.

Bok said he made the decision against the venture to avoid compromising the values of the nation's oldest university.

Under a proposal Bok presented Oct. 21 to the faculty, Harvard would have become a 10 percent to 15 percent stockholder in an independently-run company to develop for commercial use discoveries made by Mark Ptashne, a biochemistry professor, in the field of recombinant DNA.

The field involves the splicing of genetic material to create altered life forms under laboratory condi-

In his statment Monday, Bok said, "The preservation of academic values is a matter of paramount importance to the university, and owning shares in such a company would create a number of potential conflicts with these values.

"After consulting with the faculty, I have concluded that Harvard should not take such a step, even on a limited, experimental basis, unless we are assured that we can proceed without the risk of compromising the quality of our education and research."

Among the questions that Bok and the faculty raised were whether business considerations would lead to secrecy in the handling of commercially valuable discoveries and inhibit free exchange of information among faculty and students; whether involvement in a business would divert professors from their normal academic duties; and whether the university's actions would seem to encourage professors to engage unduly in outside business activi-

"It is possible that questions such as these can be answered satisfactorily and that the participation of Harvard and its professors in commercial ventures can be structured in ways that are wholly consistent with its academic values," said Bok.

Job hunting leading other Washington 'pastimes'

By TOM RAUM Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defeated Democrats and their staffs might be expected to spend the lame-duck session pushing pet projects through Congress in a last hurrah.

But they've been too busy looking for jobs.

Job-hunting has become the chief activity and obsession on Capitol Hill, where the number of unemployed could reach into the thousands in January, when Republicans take over the Senate and gain considerable hiring power in the House. Burt Hoffman, an aide to deposed House Majority Whip John Brademas, is among the soon-to-be-jobless. But he claims he finds "a little justice even in this election."

Hoffman for years has been organizing various election pools, collecting money from fellow House employees and assume the chairmanship of the House Ways a from reporters. He usually enters the pools himself and fares Committee from defeated Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore.

But when the results of his latest effort — a pool for the 1980 presidential election — were posted, more than a few eyebrows were raised. The winner was Hoffman himself. Coming Rostenkowski decide which of the two posts to accept. in second was another Brademas aide, Judy Briggs.

'Both presumably will need the money, facing as they do the prospect of unemployment in a couple of months," Hoffman wrote in announcing the results. To win the $106 jackpot, Hoffman accurately predicted the Reagan landslide that some have blamed for helping knock his boss out of office.

While many Democrats were out of a job, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois found himself with one too many. Rostenkowski, now deputy majority whip, can either take over from Brademas as whip — a key leadership post — or assume the chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Both jobs are among the most powerful in Washington. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. has said he will let Gibbons said with a sheepish grin.

But Rostenkowski seems to be having a hard time making up his mind. Nearly every day someone asks him whether he's made up his mind yet.

'Nope,'' has become his standard reply. He says he'll decide by Dec. 8, the day Democrats organize for the next year's

Meanwhile, Majority Leader Jim Wright was discussing Rostenkowski's plight with reporters the other day. Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., who was within earshot, suddenly froze in rapt attention.

Gibbons is the highest-ranking Democrat on the Ways and Means Committee after Rostenkowski - and he'd get the powerful committee chairmanship if Rostenkowski decides to

Scratch the surface and find a Texan

WASHINGTON (AP) - It's been said that you can scratch the surface of Washington and find a Texan almost anywhere.

That holds just as true outside of the vast federal machine as it does on

Take, for example, the case of the Washington Star's new film critic, Pat Dowell.

For Texas credentials - she was born in McAllen, raised in Dallas, went to college at Rice University and had her first job related to film at KPFT-Pacifica Radio in Houston.

Ms. Dowell, 32, started writing about movies as a free-lancer after she moved to Washington in 1974. She became the critic at the Star earlier this fall, and it is her first full-time job.

"It's a change of pace," she said about her work at the capital's evening newspaper. "I find it very exciting. There's really nothling I'd rather do.

Ms. Dowell, a selftaught critic, sees her job as offering something of a consumer guide that includes information about movies showing outside the commercial theaters.

"You have to try to help people make an informed choice," she said. "You have to look a lot further for an interesting film than you used

Her preferences among recent releases include Woody Allen's "Stardust Memories," "The Stunt Man" and

He didn't feel free

NEW YORK (AP) -Following a nagging conscience is not always easy, but Anthony DeLuca Jr. says he didn't expect the difficulties he encountered when he decided to turn himself in, nine years after escaping from prison.

DeLuca said he had a hard time convincing skeptical New York authorities last week that he was the same Anthony DeLuca Jr. who escaped from Riker's Island prison in 1971. Warrants for his arrest apparently had been tossed in the dead file at the district attorney's office and authorities had some trouble finding them.

"They'd have never found that warrant if it wasn't for making them dig through the dead files," DeLuca said Sunday night in a telephone interview from the Bronx House of Deten-

When the warrant was found, two Bronx detectives went to Florida to bring DeLuca back "We always get our man," quipped one corrections official, "even if he has to turn himself in and then argue with us to take him.' DeLuca still had four years to serve on a New York burglary conviction when he escaped. He headed for Florida and his background was never discovered, even though he later served a 4½-year term there for DeLuca, who says he used to be a drug addict, was released on parole a year ago. He began working in a West Palm Beach drug treatment center for youths. Finally, he recalls, he was happy. But it did not last. "I started getting agitated with my friends and sometimes I started getting agitated with the kids," he said. "Something was bothering me that someday someone might come up and arrest me. "I wouldn't feel free in my mind. So I just went ahead and turned myself in. Maybe they'll give me a break. Maybe not," he

He said he will feel bad if he is sent back to finish his sentence, but added he will not regret turning himself in. "No, I'll feel free then when I walk out. I'll be a free man," he said. This is my hometown and I want to help some of the kids that were in the same predicament I was in," he said. "If they let me loose that's what I'm going to do."

Beware of Greeks bearing gifts! The Trojans learned that lesson to their cost, and many bridge players would be better off if they constantly bore it in mind.

Although South's hand counted to only 21 points in high cards, his tens and nines gave the hand so much body that its actual worth was nearer 23 than 21. So his opening bid of two no trump was fully justified. North raised to game in the hope that his seven-card suit vould be useful. West led the fourth-best of his longest and strongest suit, and East's jack was taken by declarer's queen. The diamond suit would normally produce seven tricks except for one slight problem: he spots in the suit would force declarer to win the and there was no entry ack to dummy to cash the est of the diamonds. And rer could not afford to a diamond lest East win and return a heart through the king, allowing the defenders to collect four hearts and a diamond.

Declarer found an elegant solution. At trick two, he led the king of hearts! Delighted to gain the lead, West reeled off four heart tricks. Declarer's first discard was the offending nine of diamonds. After West took his hearts, declarer was able to win the next trick, cash the ace of diamonds and overtake the ten to run the suit and make his game.

Even if West could not see the problem, he should have wondered why declarer had been so generous in handing him the heart suit. If it was right for declarer to play hearts, it had to be wrong for the defenders to do so. West should simply exit with a low diamond and, if declarer put him back on lead with a heart, play another diamond. Now the best declarer can do is to come to eight tricks.

Secession talk in Canada

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) - Revolutionaries in three-piece suits are gathering over martinis in the comfortable lunch spots of Edmonton these days. Oil executives and other businessmen are discussing secession from Canada.

The troubled Canadian confederation is under attack from the west, just months after separatists in French-speaking Quebec lost a referendum that would have led that eastern province down the road toward independence.

In Quebec the issue was language and culture. Here in the West. particularly in oil-rich Alberta province, it's money

The western separatist movement still appears small, but it is growing. The anger it reflects could eventually reshape Canadian political life.

Western distrust of the power centers in the East is rooted deep in Canadian history. It has been heightened by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's recent efforts to assert federal authority over the powerful provincial governments through reform of the constitution. The resentment exploded Oct. 29 when Trudeau unveiled his national energy plan.

The complex proposals call for federal energy taxes that would slow the growth of the Alberta government's petroleum revenues and undermine provincial ownership of natural resources, a long-standing constitutional principle here.

The plan would also reduce foreign ownership of the Canadian oil industry and slash away at oil-company profits, moves that strike at the heart of an industry that has made Alberta Canada's richest province.

The Trudeau government believes that Canada's oil wealth must be distributed more evenly across the country.

In the past three weeks, hundreds of Albertans have packed meetings of embryonic separatist organizations. Separatist bumper stickers are cropping up on the avenues outside the oil-company skyscrapers of Edmonton, Alberta's capital. A movement previously laughed off by many has suddenly taken on a serious look, v since such respected Albertans as Calgary oilman Carl O. Nickle have declared themselves Alberta Firsters.

'Separatism, if it becomes necessary, is better than groveling to Ottawa," said Nickle, president of Conventures Ltd. and a former member of the national Parliament.

Nickle recently joined Western Federation, a separatist group whose goal is to unite Canada's four western provinces -Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia — into a new nation. The organization claims a membership of 30,000, half in Alberta

Some on the fringe of the movement talk about eventual union with the United States, though few supporters of that idea can be found

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed carefully avoids any identification with the separatists. But their rancor serves his political goal — to force Trudeau to negotiate a new energy package more

"The Ottawa government is attempting to poach on our ownership of a depleting resource, and that's got the people of this province very, very upset," Lougheed said in an interview. Lougheed is deploying a number of weapons in the fight with Ottawa. He is threatening to cut Alberta's oil production, which would force eastern Canada to import more foreign oil; he is holding up construction of vitally needed new oil projects, and he is challenging parts of Trudeau's plan in court. British Columbia, a natural gas producer, and Saskatchewan, an oil producer, also are resisting Trudeau's program.

The confrontation is partisan in some respects. The West is a stronghold of the Progressive Conservatives, the opposition to Trudeau's Liberal Party. The Liberal majority in Parliament has no members from the three Westernmost provinces.

In his successful national election campaign last winter. Trudeau pledged continued restraint on Canada's domestic oil prices, currently less than half the world price. His proposed plan would allow the basic price to rise to $27 per 42-gallon barrel by 1984, about $5 less than what Alberta has demanded.

The plan also would take steps toward loosening the grip U.S. multinationals have on the Canadian oil industry and increasing Canadian ownership.

To Lougheed's Progressive Conservative government it all poses the threat of a slowdown in the oil business here, and that means a loss of jobs.

Said the premier: "The government in Ottawa is prepared to subsidize Chrysler Corp. and yet attacks corporations that come here and develop Alberta jobs and Alberta management when they are very much under the control of the provincial government.

One major Canadian oil exploration firm has already announced it will do all its drilling next year in the United States.

Support for secession in Alberta long lagged well below 10 percent in public opinion polls. It shot up to 23 percent in one telephone survey made just after Lougheed, in a defiant television is RESORT PROPERTY in BUSINESS PROPERT address Oct. 30, announced his counter-measures against Trudeau's plans.

"There's a separatist feeling out there, and it could gain a lot of momentum if Ottawa pushes it," said Stanley Roberts, head of the Canada West Foundation, a "Western power" research group. Nevertheless, many Albertans don't seem to take the prospect

"I think 99.9 percent of those discussing separatism would prefer to stay in Canada," said one Edmonton investment dealer who asked not to be identified. "They would just prefer a system be worked out so we don't get hammered between the eyes every

The separatist movement here has the air of a country club uprising. Its adherents are largely the more affluent, those who would be hit hardest by the siphoning off of the oil money.

Town orders 10,000 burgers to go

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - "Ten thousand burgers to go." ordered the residents of Fountain Hills, Ariz.

"Coming right up," responded White Castle of Columbus. Then, cooks for the Columbus-based hamburger restaurant chain turned to their grills and Saturday began to prepare 9.999 hamburgers and one cheeseburger for the 10th anniversary celebration of Fountain Hills. They will be boxed, sacked 12 to a bag and frozen in coolers for air freight shipment Thursday from Port Columbus to Phoenix. The burgers, and about 105,000 sliced pickles, will be met at the airport by armed guards and a refrigerated truck for delivery to Fountain Hills about 50 miles away.

Among the town's 4,000 residents are more persons who have moved there from Ohio than from any other state.

The idea for the White Castles came from two of them, Robert and K.C. Evans formerly of Columbus, who settled in Fountain Hills four years ago. Mrs. Evans and another transplanted Ohioan, Carol Braithwaite, were appointed head of the Fountain Hills Chamber of Commerce White Castle Committee.

The hamburgers sell for 26 cents and cheeseburgers for 32

The Fountain Hills Chamber of Commerce is paying $3,800 for the burgers — about 12 cents each more than the normal price but the cost includes dry ice and packing containers for the cross-country flight. The burgers will be sold for 50 cents each in five Fountain Hills restaurants Saturday during a fiddlers' contest in the town park. All the burgers, that is, except the cheeseburger. That one belongs to Chamber of Commerce President Bruce Rogers, who says he ordered it because he prefers cheeseburgers.

Tammie Gates, manager of the chamber, says the giant take-out order also was an effort to get into the Guinness Book of

There is no such Guiness category, Ms. Gates said. "But the man in New York told me if we can get it documented, we'll have a real chance of getting in."

'Happy Day' here again?

AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - ABC may have found a hit in a retooled sitcom salvaged from the endangered Days," rebounding from the strains of old age, appears to be headed back toward old form.

This figured to be the last season for "Happy Days," ence the flagship comedy of a healthier ABC lineup. For one thing, "Happy Days" entered its seventh year without Ron Howard, who provided the series with character weight when it threatened to soar off in flights of silliness.

Howard, who played straight man (in both connotations) Ritchie Cunninghan to Henry Winkler's Fonzie, was lured from ABC by a fat multiproject deal at NBC. Also absent is Donny Most, the goofy Ralph Malph.

Both characters are supposed to be in the Army. That left a core of support characters and The Fonz — not, it seemed before the season, the ingredients of success. None but Fonzie of the regulars was demonstrably capable of carrying a series solo; and Fonz seemed to be no character at all anymore, just the leather-clad remnant of a spent craze.

But in its season premiere last week "Happy Days" crackled with the old vitality, suggesting more the pleasant, well-crafted comedy of seven years ago than the human cartoon it became under Fred Silverman's handiwork.

Almost inescapable childhood disease near extinction

ATLANTA (AP) — Measles, the pink-spotted disease that was almost an inescapable part of an American childhood only 20 years ago, could be just two years from extinction in the United States.

Federal public health officials are closing in, riding the success of a drive to immunize the nation's schoolchildren against measles and other common vaccine-preventable diseases.

"We are attempting to eliminate measles as a native disease in the United States by October 1982," said Dr. Alan Hinman, director of the immunization division of the national Centers for Disease Control.

In the 1950s, about half a million people each year — mostly children spent several days coughing, sniffling, running fevers and sprinkled with the distinctive itchy spots of the measles

The highly contagious measles virus was spread, usually in the classroom, by the coughing and sneezing of those about to show their spots. Introduction of a measles vaccine in 1963 had an immediate and drastic effect, cutting the annual measles count by more than 90 percent.

But as measles and other childhood diseases became rarer, parents grew lax about getting their children vaccinated. By April 1977, public health officials estimated that 20 million children lacked protection against one or another important disease. The immunization drive launched in 1977 has been a success, Hinman said. Now 90 percent of the nation's schoolchildren are fully protected and the figures are even better for kids first entering school.

As a result, only 13,597 cases of measles were counted last year, the all-time low. In the first 44 weeks of 1980, the CDC recorded 13,095 cases of measles, slightly ahead of last year's pace. So far this year there have been eight deaths from measles.

Not only are the number of cases dropping, the remaining cases are increasingly isolated. More than 75 percent of the nation's counties - and the entire states of Idaho, Iowa, Oregon, South Dakota and Wyoming have had no measles cases at all this

"It's a disease which is focal now, both in time and place," Hinman said. "Nearly 10 percent of the cases this year were from Milwaukee, which had a major outbreak." More than 1,000 cases of measles were recorded in the Milwaukee outbreak last

The next frontier is among 10- to 20-year-olds, who fell into something of a vaccination gap as they grew

'They missed both measles and vaccination, many of them," Hinman

Others were vaccinated too young — age 15 months is recommended — or were given the less-exective killed-virus vaccine. Among those who receive live vaccine after their first birthday, the CDC estimates that more than 90 percent are protected against measles.

The current measles battle plan includes vaccination programs in the military and immunization requirements for admission to college similar to the elementary school immunization rules now on the books in all 50 states.

As the fight against measles progresses, Hinman expects to be hearing about more outbreaks among groups who have, for one reason or' another, resisted immunization.

Public health officials in Erie County, N.Y., for example, traced a meales outbreak to unvaccinated members of a religious group, the World Wide Church of God. The group doesn't forbid vaccinations, but does support church members who refuse the shots on religious grounds. In the outbreak last spring, 39 of 112 patients were members of the church.

Only nine of the 39 sick church mem-bers had been vaccinated. The church members, said Dr. Richard Judel-sohn, Erie County's communicable disease control officer, "seemed to be the spreaders."

There have been a few similar outbreaks of measless recently, but they are not common and not a major problem, Hinman said.

"It's the kind of thing we expect to hear more of," he said. "As you remove the rest of the cases, these relatively uncommon things stand

Sadat sitting on sidelines, three years after making peace with Israel

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Three years after he amazed the world by bolting from his Arab brethren to launch a separate peace with Israel, President Anwar Sadat is sitting on the sidelines, waiting to see what Ronald Reagan and next year's Israeli elections do to the peace process and waiting out his Arab foes and their

The third anniversary Wednesday of Sadat's historic visit to Jerusalem finds peace negotiations at a halt, bogged down in disagreement over autonomy for the Palestinians in the territory captured by Israel in the 1967 war, Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank and Israel's determination to hold on to East Jerusa-

In the past three years of negotiations, Sadat turned repeatedly to President Carter to pressure Israel into making concessions. But Reagan repeatedly promised during his campaign to provide stronger support for

AP News Special

Israel. Sadat is studying the president-elect, looking for signals that will indicate how forceful he will be with the Israelis, if he pressures them at all.

He is also waiting to see whether the general election in Israel next spring results in the replacement of Prime Minister Menachem Begin, his partner in the peace initiative and the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize.

That partnership has resulted in no modification of Begin's opposition to real autonomy for the Palestinians or his support of Jewish colonization of the West Bank. Sadat's aides say privately that it will be worth waiting six more months if Begin is replaced by a more accommodating leader.

The third focus of Sadat's attention is the rest of the Arab world, the nations that joined in condemning him for abandoning the war with Israel. But the Middle East today is a different place from what it was in 197.

The fall of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran removed the protector of the West's Persian Gulf oil. And his replacement, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, frightened his conservative oil neighbors in Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates because they feared he would export his fundamentalist Islamic revolution and unsettle their regimes.

This forced the gulf Arabs to turn discreetly to the United States for assurances of military aid. In the middle is the Arab world's biggest recipient of such aid, Sadat's Egypt. His aides confirm that he has been telling the Saudis the time has come for Saudi Arabia and Egypt to renew open friendly ties. But because the Saudis and the other Arab states broke with him, it is up to the Saudis to make the first overture toward normalization, the Egyptians say.

In Sadat's view, the war between Persian Iran and Arab Iraq has served to demonstrate the frailty of Arab solidarity. Libya and Syria, two of the most militant opponents of Sadat's peace with Israel, lined up with Iran. Jordan is Iraq's most outspoken supporter, and Saudi Arabia is quietly siding with Iraq.

Sadat has said the Arabs should fall in behind him and quit what he calls their petty feuds. And the war is exhausting Iraq's military strength, removing a challenger to Egypt's position as the Arab world's strongest military power.

Bones are 60 million years old

DALLAS (AP) — An expert has determined that bones discovered by a brick company employee belonged to a mososaur — a 60-million-year-old, 30-foot aquatic reptile.

After years of scrapping clay to make bricks, Luvenson Davis of Ferris thought he had found his first dinosaur Friday.

But Southern Methodist University paleontologist Bob Slaughter Monday declared the fossil that of a mososaur, a member of the lizard family that lived at the same time as dinosaurs.

If enough of the animal's bones are found, Slaughter indicated he would attempt to reconstruct it.

School still recovering from fiery plane crash that happened years ago

By ALAN ROBINSON Associated Press Writer

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) - It's been 10 years since Marshall University lost its football team in a fiery plane crash in the treetops just short of Tri-State Airport, but Nate Ruffin still hears the eerie silence of that foggy night.

"I'll never forget that sight. There wasn't any moaning. There was just the jet fuel burning," said Ruffin, a defensive back who was not traveling with the team because of an injury. He went to the scene when he heard of the accident.

The Thundering Herd was on its way back from East Carolina University in Greenville, N.C., on the night of Nov. 14, 1970, after a 17-14 loss. Investigators said that Frank Abbott, the pilot of the chartered Southern Airways DC-9 charter, brought the plane in too low.

The trees sheared off its wings and the plane came to rest in a fiery wreck 1,700 yards short of the hilltop runway. The airport had not been equipped with radar.

Seventy-five people - 37 were members of the team and the rest were coaches, crew members and fans — were killed in the accident, the worst in collegiate sports history. There were no survivors. It followed by just two weeks the wreck of a plane that had been carrying the Wichita State University football team. Thirty-one people were killed in that

Marshall had long been a football weakling and had not managed to win more than four games in any season since 1965. But after the crash, Huntington's 60,000 residents began try-

NEW YORK (AP) - The judge in the Abscam trial of two lame-duck congressmen was interviewing one of the four alternate jurors today to determine whether she was improperly influenced by a "Lou Grant" television

Stephen Kaufman, lawyer for Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., said Thompson's defense would take about the same amount of time but he declined to detail his list of witnesses. Outside the courtroom, however, Thompson told reporters he planned to testify.

Prosecutor Thomas Puccio told Pratt he would rest his case Thursday or Friday. Among the witnesses remaining to be called by the government was Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., who was expected to be sworn in late today or Thursday morning.

Given that timetable, Pratt was told, the defense will rest next Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving. The next scheduled court day is the following Monday. Pratt indicated he would probably sequester the jury during deliberations.

Much of Tuesday was spent with the defense trying to portray severed co-defendant Howard Criden as "working both sides of the street," arranging payoffs from undercover FBI agents, posing as representatives of favor-seeking Arab sheiks, but passing none of the money along to the congressmen.

Murphy and Thompson, with 44 years combined service in Congress, are charged with accepting portions of $100,000 in bribe money in return for agreeing to help fictitious Arabs with immigration problems.

A former law partner of Criden's testified Monday that Criden told him Thompson had netted $30,000 from the two October 1979 payoffs while Murphy had received $15,000 from his meeting. Thompson allegedly received $10,000 from the Murphy payoff in return for introducing the New York congressman to the bribers.

Bottom 'dropping out' of old coal-mining town

By BOB ROBINSON Associated Press Writer

FAIRMONT, W.Va. (AP) - The bottom is literally dropping out from under Fairmont, which like many Appalachian towns sits on brittle earth atop a honeycomb of subterranean coal caverns.

Fairmont's caverns are the remains of 19th century coal mines carved out of the hard-scrabble Marion County hillsides. Thousands of tons of Pittsburgh seam coal were cut out and shipped off.

But now the coal is gone and Fairmont people live with unseen danger. Every so often, one of the remaining coal pillars crumbles, allowing the earth above to shift and sink. Generally, it's a slow process, but it can eventually twist and crush buildings as if they were made Fairmont's subsidence problem first appeared two years ago at a big apartment building and three houses at Second and Walnut streets.

"The gas lines pulled apart, the electric lines snapped." recalls one former householder who asked not to be identified. "The doors wouldn't shut and the cabinet doors wouldn't open. Nobody knew what was going on. Within a couple weeks, the buildings were deserted.

Some residents cleared out on their own. Others were routed when officials condemned the structures. Across the street, the Rev. William Reid waited, sure his red brick Central Church of the Nazarene would be

He didn't have to wait long. The plaster walls started cracking this summer.

To the federal government, mine subsidence has become an expensive worry. The U.S. Office of Surfac'e Mining expects to spend $5 billion over the next 15 years trying to correct mine subsidence.

But the money is slow in coming — it's collected froin a special assessment on each ton of coal mined - and it has to be spread over other agency responsibilities as well, such as 200 underground mine fires and 3,500 coal refuse piles nationwide.

West Virginia alone has some 52,900 acres of coal refuse, 89,000 acres prone to subsidence, 1,200 acres of burning material and eight underground fires, said OSM spokesman Dick Leonard.

"We've only collected 7 percent of the money needed to correct the adverse effects of unregulated mining," said Leonard. The government already has spent large sums trying to shore up Fairmont's labyrinth: $314,500 in 1979 and a separate $640,000 effort this year. The OSM plans to spend another $200,00% to stop subsidence under Reid's church, which lies just to the west of the downtown business district. And federal and state officials are trying to find $2.8 million to make sure that downtown area remains stable Those figures come from a just-released U.S. Bureau of Mines report that says coal pillars "may be failing in what could be referred to as a domino effect (that could) continue eastward to eventually affect this whole section of downtown Frairmont."

The report was made by geologist Jesse Craft after the OSM responded to urging by Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., whose office, was alerted to the problem by a lobbying campaign — organized by Reid.

"Within four hours after I contacted Sen. Robert Byrd's office, I got a call from the OSM," Reid recalls. Craft's study, using hundreds of core drillings and television came ras lowered into the caverns, showed that control of sur'/ace water and a stabilization program

"The water system apparently has been part of the problem," said Reid. "You had water running all over the Wayne Duerr, a biologist with the Bureau of Mines, said moisture and weathering often lead to erosion of the remaining coal pillars.

"The pillars are sitting on clay, and when the clay gets wet, and one topples, you've got problems," he said. "If one goes, then you have a lot more weight on the

The stabilization program Craft suggested would entail blowing a slurry of fly ash and water into the caverns. The slurry hardens into a sort of concrete. Craft said the project would take 21/2 years to complete.

Farmers' incomes could rise sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new projection by the Agriculture Department shows farmers' net income, overall, could jump sharply next year after sagging miserably in 1980.

And if all goes well farmers may pump billions of dollars back into the economy in 1981 as they buy needed tractors, combines and other capital equipment, officials said Monday.

After plunging by one-fourth this year, net farm income could soar by as much as one-third in 1981.

In its first projections for the coming year — figures that are considered highly tentative — the department's Economics and Statistics Service said net farm income for 1981 could range between $27 billion and $32 billion.

This year, plagued by drought, high interest rates, tight credit and inflation, farmers are expected to have a net income collectively of between $23 billion and $25 billion, the agency said. Net farm income in 1979 was $31 billion.

The 1981 forecast was included in a brief summary of an "agricultural finance" report scheduled to be released in about two weeks.

Reduced crop yields, particularly corn and soybeans, have helped drive up commodity prices this fall. Brisk domestic and foreign demand also is bolstering prices.

Meanwhile, J. Dawson Ahalt told the department's annual agricultural outlook conference, which opened Monday for a four-day run, that farm production expenses will continue to rise next year but that farmers' gross income will rise faster.

"With good harvests and no major inflationary jolts next year, we could see net farm income return to the 1979 level," Ahalt said.

He is chairman of the department's World Food and Agricultural Outlook and Situation Board.

The report said anticipated "lower interest rates and a decline in the rate of increase in production expenses" also are expected to be major factors in next year's improved income outlook.

"As a whole, farmers are likely to be in an improved financial position by the end of 1981," the report said. "However, hog and poultry producers' incomes are expected to improve only marginally while producers of vegetables, fruits and nuts are forecast to have lower incomes in 1981."

The report said farmers in droughtstricken areas "will enter 1981 heavily burdened with debt" while those not affected by the dry weather "should be in a stronger financial situation."

Gross investments by farmers in 1981 could total nearly $41 billion, compared to less than $12 billion this year and 1979's level of $21.6 billion, the report said.

"The reduction in 1980 reflects widespread postponement of purchases of capital items because of low income prospects and high interest rates," it said.

"Delayed capital purchases and re-

House passes bill assuring gasohol credit card sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has joined the Senate in supporting legislation prohibiting oil companies from some practices that could discourage sales of oil-saving alternatives to gasoline, such as gasohol.

Legislation passed by the House on a voice vote Monday would forbid oil companies from banning the use of their credit cards to buy gasohol. The measure prohibits the companies from imposing on retailers any unreasonable policies that could discourage sales of alternatives to gasoline.

A similar proposal was passed by the Senate last summer. House sup-

Exports expected to rise 20 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new projection by the Agriculture Department shows exports of U.S. farm commodities in the fiscal year that began on Oct. 1 are expected to soar 20 percent in value to $48.5 billion, the 12th year in a row they have reached record levels.

The estimate, announced Monday, was the first solid figure for the 1980-81 fiscal year. Previously, the department had said farm exports would increase again, probably to a range of $40 billion to $45 billion.

Farm exports, dominated by grain and oilseeds, rose to $40.5 billion in 1979-80, up from about $32 billion the previous year.

"Higher prices will likely account for four-fifths of the increase ... this year, with volume increasing about 4 percent," the department said.

The actual volume of farm exports was projected at 163.9 million metric tons, up from 137.4 million in 1979-80. Those also were record tonnages. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds.

Officials said U.S. imports of agricultural products are expected to increase by about $1 billion to $18.5 billion this fiscal year.

The export value projected to 1980-81 includes: Grain and feed, $24.2 billion; oilseeds and oilseed products, $12.2 billion; cotton, $2.2 billion; to-bacco, $1.4 billion; fruit, nuts and vegetables, $3.0 billion; sugar and tropical products, $1.1 billion; live-stock products, $3.6 billion; dairy products, $200 million; and poultry products, $600 million.

porters said it now appears differences between the two versions can be resolved and the bill sent to President Carter before the end of the year.

Proponents of the legislation called

Proponents of the legislation called the measure "a step toward energy independence." They rejected claims that the bill is an unprecedented government intrusion into private contracts.

"It simply provides the freedom to market a product that has a tremendous potential in this country," said Rep. Thomas Daschle, D-S.D.

"This removes arbitrary roadblocks," said Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan. "To get all these beautiful synthetic fuels to have some impact, you have to sell them."

The bill was prompted by the decisions last spring of three major oil companies to prohibit gasohol purchases on their credit cards. Exxon, Gulf and Texaco almost immediately reversed the credit policy after intense public pressure from Midwestern members of Congress.

At the same time, some retailers were accusing the oil companies of threatening them with economic reprisals if they sold gasohol.

Republican Reps. Henry Hyde of Illinois and Thomas Kindness of Ohio led opponents of the legislation, arguing the bill would force oil companies to extend credit for the purchase of what is effectively a product competing with their own.

"Competition is in the public interest," Hyde said. "But while the oil companies might well be exhorted to promote competition, it is something else for us to require that they subsidize their competition."

Kindess, arguing against "helterskelter" action, said, "Gasohol is being made available. Oil companies are accepting gasohol sales on their own credit cards. Market forces and public acceptance have brought this about."

Rep. Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, a congressional leader of efforts to expand gasohol use, acknowledged the oil companies are effectively complying with the bill's provisions now. But he said imposing legal restrictions was the only way to head off future problems similar to those reported last spring.

Gasohol, a blend of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol, can be easily substituted for unleaded gaso-

Water deficits exist in many areas

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's too early to tell for sure, but a couple of government weather experts say much of the country is still very dry and could be in serious trouble again in 1981 if depleted soil moisture reserves are not replenished by next spring.

Severe drought, along with a crippling record heat wave, bit deeply into U.S. crop production last summer. The weather caused huge losses to the 1980 crops of corn, soybeans, cotton and other commodities.

Although wheat output was a record, the harvest — particularly the big winter wheat share of the crop — barely escaped the searing heat and drought that hung on in the Great Plains last summer.

Two Agriculture Department meteorologists, J. Larason Lambert and Raymond P. Motha, told the department's annual Agricultural Outlook Conference today that weather quirks "played a dominant role" across much of the world in 1980, including the losses to heat and drought in the United States.

As of Nov. 1, weather had improved soil moisture readings substantially in many areas, Lambert and Motha said in a report prepared for the conference.

"However, long-term supplies (of moisture) are not nearly as good as last year at this time for much of the U.S.," they said. "Important agricultural areas in Florida and the central Great Plains currently have the most serious water deficits."

In Montana and the Pacific Northwest, moisture conditions for winter wheat "are much better than last year" and soil moisture reserves have improved substantially, the report said.

Looking at the Midwest, where the Corn Belt produces most of the nation's corn and soybeans, the experts said "above-normal rainfall in August and September" helped restore soil moisture in most of the hard-hit western part of the region.

But additional moisture will be needed this winter before next spring's planting season progresses too far, it said. "This is indeed quite possible, but subsoil moisture deficits are quite a bit greater ... (in southwest portions of the Corn Belt) than a year ago.

"On the other hand, many northern and eastern parts of the belt have quite abundant soil moisture, so that even with less than normal winter precipitation, excessive water may cause problems for field work next spring."

A related report issued by the government on Tuesday said winter wheat generally across the country was in "fair to good" condition through mid-November, "although more moisture was needed in most areas."

Fall planting of wheat was nearly completed in most states, except in California, and an estimated 88 percent of the crop had emerged from the soil, it said. That compared with 83 percent emergence of the newly seeded crop a year ago.

Hog prices may average $50, USDA experts predict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hog prices may average around $50 per 100 pounds of live weight in the first half of 1981, about $16 more than farmers got in the first six months of this year, says the Agriculture Department.

But department experts say the boost—a result of producers' cutting hog output in the face of sagging market prices earlier this year—may not offset the higher costs of feed in the coming months.

Robert D. Remmele of the department's Economics and Statistics Service said Tuesday that cash costs of producing hogs for market in 1981 may average nearly $52 per 100 pounds, up from an estimated $43 this

Although hog slaughter in the first half of 1981 is expected to decline from a year earlier, prospects in the second half are "much less certain at this time," Remmele said.

"The decline in meat supplies, along with growing consumer incomes and inflation, is likely to cause retail pork prices to increase 25 percent or more in 1961 from 1960 levels," he said.

Drinking binge can damage heart

Bolin A MART

Midland - Odessa

By KEVIN McKEAN AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - That New Year's Eve party or that drinking binge every now and then may be damaging to your heart even if your overall consumption of alcoholic beverages is moderate, a new study says.

The finding is an important warning in light of recent evidence that mild drinking may help prevent heart disease, according to researchers from the Medical College of Wisconsin.

Their report was being presented today to the American Heart Association scientific meeting in Miami Beach, Fla. "While there seems to be a protective effect of alcohol at derate levels, it's probably countered by drinking occasional large amounts," said Dr. Harvey W. Gruchow, the biostatistician who headed the study.

"Our study suggests that this 'binge effect' is independent of total consumption.... The crucial variable is not so much how much they're drinking as the difference between what they asually drink and the amount they drink on these special occaions," he said.

Several recent studies — including one in last Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine — have shown that moderate drinking seems for unknown reasons to be associated with a lower risk of heart disease.

These studies, however, have measured only the overall consumption of alcohol, not drinking habits, Gruchow said. To see whether drinking habits mattered, researchers examined the drinking history of 225 men who underwent a procedure called coronary angiography. Coronary angiography is used to measure the amount of blockage in the arteries that supply blood to the heart. A measure of the severity of heart disease, it is commonly used to tell whether heart patients need surgery.

Ninety-six of the men were classified as "binge" drinkers, meaning that every now and then — less often than once a week - they drank more than usual, and that this amount exceeded the equivalent of five ounces of pure alcohol. Five ounces is the amount of alcohol in about eight mixed drinks or six beers or a bottle and a half of wine. The researchers found that those who drank much more on a

"binge" night than on a normal night tended to have more heart For example, men on a "binge" who drank three times their normal amount had 50 percent more heart blockage than those whose "binges" involved drinking only about twice the normal A similar relationship prevailed for other drinking levels.

Rape trial begins in Texarkana court

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — A former Texarkana chool Board member on trial for rape testified in Miller County Circuit Court Tuesday that he did not orce the woman to have sex with him.

Allen Eugene Rogers, 42, is charged with raping a 39-year-old Wake Village, Texas, woman several times in February 1979. Rogers was to be cross-examined by the prosecution today.

John Young and the late Wade K. Smith, both of Texarkana, also were charged with rape in the incident. Smith was found shot to death in March, 1979, and Rogers and Young both were charged with 1979, and Rogers and Young both were charged with capital murder in connection with that case.

Rogers has entered a plea of innocent to the murder charge, but has not yet been brought to trial. Young pleaded guilty to the murder charge and is in Miller County Jail awaiting sentencing.

The woman had testified Monday that she was held captive and raped by Rogers and Young and later raped again by Young and Smith.

But the woman admitted Tuesday under cross-exmination by defense attorney Damon Young that he had made at least 25 inaccurate statements during her earlier testimony.

Rogers testified Tuesday that he had been invited to a party by Smith at a local motel where he discovered Smith, Young and a naked woman.

Rogers said that he suggested the other two men leave, then had sex with the woman. Rogers said the oman then asked to have sex with him again, but he uggested they go to an apartment.
