10,000 flee flames in Southern California

By BRIAN BLAND

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Six fires pushed by winds up to 90 mph roared out of control over 30,500 acres of timberland today after burning nearly 240 homes and forcing about 10,000 people to flee, authorities said.

One blaze was headed "over the hill" north of San Bernardino 75 miles east of Los Angeles into the mountains toward several towns. Part of southern Crestline was being evacuated early today, said Jimmy Jews, spokesman for the San Bernardino Fire Department.

Jews said at one point Monday night more than 100 homes in a 10-square-block residential area of northern San Bernardino were in flames, and one entire city block of homes in the $80,000 to $100,000 range was destroyed.

The two major roads into the mountains, Highways 18 and 330, were closed as the fire jumped Highway 18 and threatened the tiny exclusive community of Arrowhead Heights.

Another swiftly moving brushfire that broke out early today in the Malibu Canyon area of Los Angeles County was whipping south toward the Pacific Coast Highway after burning more than 2,000 acres within two hours.

Some residents in Malibu Canyon, about 30 miles west of Los Angeles, were being evacuated, and two major area roads were immediately closed, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Still another fire threatened the entire village of Mount Baldy in the Angeles National Forest west of San Bernardino, and three blazes were out of control in Riverside County to the south.

The latest fires came just 10 days after firefighters controlled a 6,600-acre Bradbury fire, which developed 20 miles southwest of Mount Baldy and destroyed 55 homes and damaged 27 others for a loss of $25 million. One man died of a heart attack as he fled the flames.

More than 1,200 firefighters were battling the six fires, and six firefighters were injured, including two who suffered broken legs in falls down steep terrain.

No other injuries were reported.

One of the Riverside County fires had charred 4,000 acres, and threatened homes in Lakeland Village, southwest of Lake Elsinore. An undetermined number of residents were evacuated as the fire advanced toward the mountain community of Rancho Capistrano and populous Orange County.

Seven miles north of Lake Elsinore, another blaze burned 5,000 acres of scrub brush and threatened 50 homes at one point.

Another fire was burning out of control in the Prado Flood Control Basin in Riverside County after consuming 100 acres. A dairy was destroyed, and other structures were threatened, officials reported.

Many San Bernardino residents went to a central evacuation shelter on the grounds of the National Orange Show, which has a number of large exhibition buildings and halls.

Thirty hand crews from Western states were expected to be flown in to help exhausted firefighters battle the seemingly uncontrollable blazes.

Many residents stayed at their homes until the last minute, hosing down houses in attempts to save them from the blaze.

The largest fire, the Panorama blaze that officials said was set by arsonists, began Monday morning in a canyon north of San Bernardino, 60 miles east of Los Angeles.

It was fanned by hot, gusty winds as it burned some 10,400 acres in San Bernardino and the nearby Sycamore Canyon.

"Rocks the size of golf balls were blown through the air at the height of the windstorm," said LoVae Mar-tines, a spokeswoman for the California Department of Forestry.

"It was blacker than hell outside," said Stanley Hunter of San Bernardino, who escaped to an evacuation center with his wife, Lucille, and their 9-year-old daughter.

"My wife was putting belongings in boxes, but suddenly the fire was everywhere. It was like a rainstorm of fire. We jumped into two cars and left," he said.

Hunter later returned to find every house on his block burned and his $75,000 home destroyed.

Fire officials were unable to predict when the fire would be contained. "It's going to be trouble throughout the day," said San Bernardino County Fire Chief Don Banghart.

Another fire was threatening an entire mountain village near the summit of Mount Baldy in Angeles National Forest, 15 miles northeast of Los Angeles. It had destroyed more than 9,000 acres and damaged four buildings by this morning.

Firefighters were able to establish a fire line south of Mount Baldy Village. Shifting winds were "blowing the fire into Bear Canyon, which runs northwest up from the village, where there are hundreds of recreational cabins," said Gene Knight of the U.S. Forest Service.

"I woke up at 3 a.m. I smelled smoke, I just grabbed my three kids and ran," said one resident of San Antonio canyon near the village.

Candidate Hobby says Clements' program doomed

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby says the 1981 Legislature will spend $280 million for two new prisons but will resist major elements of Gov. Bill Clements' program.

Hobby made the predictions at a Monday news conference where he made it official that he will seek re-election in 1982.

Hobby, 48, has been lieutenant governor since 1973. If he is re-elected and serves his full term, he will have held the office 14 years — longer than any of his predecessors.

He said he was announcing 15 months before the filing deadline because "I like to get it done early to discourage a few who might try otherwise."

Among those mentioned as possible contenders for the job are Sens. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, and Bill Meier, D-Eules, who led the Democrats and Independents for Reagan organization this year.

Hobby, who presides over the Senate, said he would be able to wield legislative power more effectively as a candidate for another term than as a lame duck.

The Legislature convenes Jan. 13 for a 140-day regular session.

Fire code violations found

Search for bodies in charred hotel continues

BY LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Evidence of serious fire code violations, including holes cut in fire walls, was discovered in the charred MGM Grand hotel as crews searched for more victims of the blaze that claimed 84 lives, officials said.

No additional bodies were found Monday after firefighters broke into sealed elevators and pumped six feet of water out of the rubble-strewn basement, said Deputy Fire Chief John Pappageorge.

"I would say we are pretty positive now that we've got everybody. Nobody is reporting anybody missing, and we feel confident we got them all," Pappageorge added.

But the search uncovered such fire code violations as holes cut into fire walls on the casino's catwalk, or "Eye in the Sky," an area from which observers can peer down at the casino floor below, said Fire Chief Roy Parrish.

MGM officials were not immediately available for comment.

"I don't know what the people's intent was," he said. "They would probably cut the holes for easy access to air-handling rooms (where air conditioning is controlled) and electrical parts and so on.

"These kinds of violations are always serious," said Parrish. "People should not cut holes in fire walls for any purpose whatsoever."

A fire wall is a fireproof wall to prevent the spread of fire from one room or compartment to the next.

The holes, near a lobby next to elevators, might have contributed to the rapid spread of smoke in the quick-moving fire, officials said.

"I'm sure the smoke got in through the areas that were cut into the drywalls," he said.

Among other factors that helped make the smoky fire a killer were open elevator doors in the lobby. The open doors caused elevator shafts to act as chimneys funneling smoke up through the hotel's 26 stories, Parrish said.

The fire began early Friday in electrical circuitry above a delicatessen on the hotel's main floor. It smoldered for hours before it erupted and sent smoke billowing upward.

The final toll of injuries in Friday's devastating fire was 706, officials said. Some 308 people required hospitalization, but only 23 of those remained hospitalized Monday and none was believed to have life-threatening injuries, medical officials said.

Meanwhile, some 800 mourners turned out to pay tribute to the victims at a special Mass in a cathedral constructed for Las Vegas tourists.

Although the 84 dead "were wiped out by one horrifying blow," Bishop Norman F. McFarland said, "God was there in the heat and smoke."

Monday's search was hampered by winds, which gusted up to 48 mph and hurled glass and debris into the streets below. Some workers said winds whipping through broken windows forced them to retreat.

'Dallas' was most watched

NEW YORK (AP) — Last week's episode of "Dallas" in which viewers found out who shot J.R. Ewing won the highest rating of any program in television history, drawing viewers in 53.3 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed today.

That rating means that the prime-time soap opera, broadcast at 10 p.m. EST Friday, was watched in about 41.4 million households, Nielsen said. CBS researchers translate that figure into a projected average audience of about 83 million.

In addition, Nielsen said "Dallas" drew 76 percent of the audience that was watching television at that hour.

The highest-rated program previously had been the final episode of the ABC miniseries "Roots," which drew a 51.1 rating when it was broadcast Jan. 30, 1977. ABC said the final "Roots" episode had an average audience of about 87.7 million. Nielsen computes figures only for ratings shares and numbers of TV households. Estimates of the total number of individual viewers are left to the networks, each of which uses a different formula.

The program that held the old record for highest audience share was the final episode of the ABC series "The Fugitive," broadcast Aug. 29, 1967. That show, in which Dr. Richard Kimble, played by the late David Janssen, finally caught up with the one-armed man who had killed his wife, drew 72 percent of the audience in its time period.

On the record-breaking "Dallas," episode, it turned out to be Kristin Shepard, J.R.'s sister-in-law and jilt-ed mistress, who had pumped two slugs into the conniving oil baron at the end of last season. Kristin, played by Mary Crosby, daughter of Bing Crosby, also revealed that J.R., played by Larry Hagman, was the father of her unborn child.

The broadcasting of the key episode was preceded by a phenomenal publicity campaign by CBS and Lorimar Productions that stirred interest to a fever pitch in the United States and abroad. The show has an international following estimated at 250 million.

Snow, sleet, drizzle fall on Permian Basin

Snow, sleet and freezing drizzle were falling over a wide portion of the Permian Basin early today as yet another major winter cold front unleashed its icy fury on the area.

Light rain fell most of Monday evening in Midland, but it changed to snow early this morning. The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport issued a travelers' advisory for today and placed a winter storm watch in effect for tonight.

Accumulations of 2 to 4 inches of snow were being predicted as early this morning although the weather service officially had only measured .25 inch of precipitation by 8 a.m.

That wasn't the story throughout the Permian Basin, though. As of 8 a.m. today, Lamesa already had 3 inches of snow on the ground with more falling. Andrews reported snow and Big Spring and Odessa reported rain mixed with snow.

Stanton was receiving sleet and snow this morning, but at Rankin and Crane rain and drizzle were report-

Midland's area forecast, issued early today, called for snow continuing into tonight with accumulations of 2 to 4 inches possible. The snow should end late tonight. Cloudiness should decrease on Wednesday and it won't be quite as cold.

Probability of additional precipitation will decrease to 40 percent tonight.

Low temperature tonight should drop into the low 20s and the high on Wednesday should reach only the low 40s.

Winds tonight and Wednesday should be variable and blow at 5-10 mph.

Monday's high temperature reached only 42. That was considerably cooler than the record high for that date — 83 degrees, set in 1965. Low this morning was 32. Record low for today's date is 18 degrees set in 1938.

The precipitation recorded early this morning boosted the total so far this month to .68 inch. The yearly total now stands at 16.51 inches.

Witnesses place convicted hit man near Wood home

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A convicted hit man was seen near the home of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. shortly before the jurist was assassinated by a sniper who has eluded FBI agents for a year and a half, the San Antonio Express reported in today's editions.
Witnesses have told the FBI they saw Charles V. Harrelson, 42, walking inside the Chateau Dijon Townhomes complex shortly before the judge was shot and killed the morning of May 29, 1978, sources told the newspaper.
Harrelson was convicted as the trigger man in the 1968 slaying of a Hearne grain dealer and was paroled in 1978. He appeared last week in Houston at a lineup of suspects in the Wood assassination, sources said.
After his appearance before a San Antonio grand jury investigating the slaying last October, Harrelson said he had been in Dallas on the day of the shooting.
Wood, 63, known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences on drug offenses, was gunned down about 8:40 a.m. by a hidden sniper who fired a single .243-caliber rifle bullet into the judge's back.
One of the witnesses who saw Harrelson at the scene has undergone hypnosis to aid his recollection of that morning, the newspaper reported.
The newspaper quoted sources as saying Harrelson has been a suspect in Wood's death from the outset.
One source said it is believed the gunman was not alone at the Chateau Dijon complex, the newspaper reported.
Nine women reportedly viewed last Thursday's heavily guarded lineup, which included Harrelson and several other men. Harrelson is being held in Harris County Jail on state charges of possession of cocaine, altered gambling paraphernalia and a firearm by a convicted felon.
He has been held without bond since he was captured in the West Texas town of Van Horn in September after he failed to appear at a Harris County hearing on the state charges.
Attorney Bob Tarrant of Houston, who represents Harrelson on the state charges, said U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd told him two months ago that Harrelson had offered a sound alibi to the grand jury meeting last October.
"Boyd told me that he checked his alibi and found that it was true, that he had an excellent alibi," Tarrant told the Express Monday. "He told me that Mr. Harrelson had been a prime suspect from the beginning, but that after checking Harrelson's alibi, they shifted the investigation to other suspects.
"Now, all of a sudden, it has shifted back over here to Harrelson," Tarrant said. "I think they're doing something unfair and are trying to prejudice his rights."
Tarrant confirmed that Harrelson appeared in last Thursday's lineup in Houston, but the attorney declined to comment further.

He said he has not discussed the Wood case with Harrelson and is not representing Harrelson in connection with that investigation.
Dallas attorney Charles Tessmer, who represented Harrelson during his 1979 grand jury appearance here, could not be reached for comment.
Boyd declined comment on last Thursday's lineup or the latest developments in the investigation of Wood's slaying, except to say, "I'm encouraged."
He added, "We're working on the case night and day to do everything we can to see that it's brought to a successful conclusion."
John C. Lawn, special agent in charge of the San Antonio FBI office, which is heading the probe, declined comment.
Both have said in the past, however, that they did not want anyone charged in connection with Wood's killing until cases can be made against all those involved, the newspaper said.
No charges have been filed in either the Wood case or the attempted killing of Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr on Nov. 21, 1978. Both cases are now being investigated by a special San Antonio federal grand jury.
Harrelson was convicted in 1973 of the execution-style shooting death of Hearne grain dealer Sam Degelia Jr. on July 6, 1968, near McAllen. Degelia's partner, Pete Thomas Scamardo, was convicted of hiring Harrelson to kill Degelia for $2,000.
Harrelson received a 15-year sentence and was paroled in 1978. Scamardo received seven years probation.
Harrelson was acquitted in 1970 of a murder-for-hire charge in the slaying of Houston carpet firm executive Alan Berg near Angleton in 1968.
In 1969, he was convicted on a federal charge of possession of a sawed-off shotgun in Kansas City, Mo., and received a three-year sentence.

Quake death toll estimated at 3,000

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The Italian Military Rescue Command estimated the death toll in Sunday's earthquake at more than 3,000 today, making it Italy's worst quake in 65 years.

The director of relief operations, Giuseppe Zamberletti, said 1,750 people were known killed, 570 missing with little hope of finding them alive, and 1,879 injured. But the rescue command's office in Naples said it estimated at least 3,132 dead on the basis of reports from previously isolated villages in the mountains behind Naples and Salerno.

The Interior Ministry said there were 100,000 homeless, and seismologists reported that more than 40 aftershocks shook the region since the initial quake Sunday night. They said a new tremor in Avellino, east of Naples, knocked down buildings damaged in the first jolt.

The Italian military announced that 500 soldiers and 150 pieces of equipment left the northern city of Milan to reinforce the 10,000 soldiers and 1,500 firemen already in the zone digging for survivors.

Residents of Laviano, Santomenna and other towns dug through the ruins with their hands in search of husbands, wives, children or other loved ones.

Exhausted rescue workers were short of bulldozers and other equipment to clear the rubble. It was difficult to get the large vehicles available up the narrow roads in the impoverished region.
"I couldn't even get a chain saw to save my wife who was trapped under a pile of logs," said Alfonso Mignone, a lawyer in Sant' Angelo dei Lombardi. "I had to work with my fingernails."
Fragmentary reports indicated hundreds more dead were still to be counted in Teora, San Mango, Lioni, Laviano and Calabritto.

In Lioni, 10 search dogs helped find survivors beneath the rubble.
Teora, a town of 3,000 was reported leveled, but there was no casualty report from it yet.

Bodies were collected in schools or on sidewalks. Blankets covered them until coffins could be brought in.
Pope John Paul II planned to tour the stricken region by helicopter today. Press reports said he would stop in Naples, Potenza and the village of Balvano, where 100 or more people were killed when the quake occurred during Mass Sunday night and the walls of the Church of Santa Maria Assunta collapsed on them.

President Sandro Pertini and Premier Francesco Cossiga visited victims of the quake Monday, which was declared a national day of mourning.

The quake, which measured 6.8 on the Richter scale, damaged 97 cities, towns and villages across 10,156 square miles of southern Italy, an area with a total population of 7 million. As aftershocks continued, countless thousands spent their second night out of doors Monday, sleeping in cars and tents.

In Naples, a city of 1.5 million, families spanning three and four generations camped in their cars in the piazzas, at the San Paolo soccer stadium and in open spaces along the shoreline of the famed Bay of Naples.

Officials estimated that up to 15 percent of the city's buildings suffered structural damage and 35 percent more had superficial damage. Rescue workers pulled 30 bodies from a 10-story apartment house that collapsed.

"I don't know why, but St. Januarius is punishing us," said 63-year-old Anna Pavese, as she sat in the back of a small blue car in the Piazza del Plebiscito.
Januarius, a 4th century martyr, is the city's patron saint. According to tradition, he protects it from disaster if his dried blood liquefies in ceremonies in May and September. Believers in the tradition were bewildered because the blood liquefied both times this year but still the quake occurred.

Commissioners approve revenue bond application

By DAVID CAMPBELL, Staff Writer

Midland County Commissioners approved Monday the revenue bond application of NDT Systems, Inc. of Odessa to move into the new Interstate 20 Terminal Industrial Park.
Grant Billingsley of the Midland Industrial Development Corporation presented the application to commissioners during Monday's regular meeting in the Midland County Courthouse.

NDT Systems Inc. is a manufacturer of non-destructible pipe testing equipment. The business currently employs 125 persons and has plans to expand its employment to 250-300 persons, Billingsley told commissioners.
The $5 million facility will consist of several buildings which will house the various stages of NDT's manufacturing process.

Billingsley explained that the corporation will not have any problems selling the bonds.
For most of Monday's session, commissioners reviewed and examined bids for sheriff's and county extension vehicles, a turbine for mosquito control and a word processing computer for the county judge and county court at law.

After an hour and a half of discussion, commissioners agreed to spend $24,622.90 for three vehicles for the Sheriff's Office, $8,725 for a pick-up truck for the County Extension Office, and $9,774.01 for a turbine.
Commissioners also approved County Court secretary June Ocker's recommendation to purchase a word processing computer for $14,249.

In another action, commissioners approved the preliminary selection of 12 persons to serve on the community development block grant committee.
According to County Judge William Ahlers, the committee would decide where federal money should be spent if approved by the federal government.

Commissioners approved several stop signs to be erected at three intersections along FM 1308.
Before going into executive session, routine items such as personnel appointments to various departments met commissioner approval.
Approval of state and county bonds for the tax assessor-collector was postponed until the first meeting in January.

Guns, coins, jewels stolen

An estimated $1,595 in firearms, coins and jewelry were reported as stolen from a house at 4701 Ric Drive between 7:35 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday, according to police reports.
Kindel Elliott reported the burglary, stating that a 30.06-caliber rifle with scope, a .270-caliber rifle with disappeared to the E-Z Way Laundry, 1113 E. Scharbauer Drive. On arrival they found lint in several machines burning. The fires were deliberately set, said a Fire Department spokesman. Damage was minimal.

An accident Monday night sent a Midland woman to Midland Memorial Hospital.

According to police, Rosalind Joyce Stenson, 1408 W. Tennessee Ave., was eastbound in the 2900 block of West Illinois Avenue. Her car collided with an unattended car parked in the 2900 block of West Illinois. The impact caused the parked car, owned by Carl Earl of 1203 E. Parker Ave., to travel 58 feet before it collided with a utility pole.
Rosalind Stenson was taken by ambulance to Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room where she was treated and released.

Tough guy, George Raft dies at 85

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — George Raft, the dapper veteran of 165 films whose underlying air of menace made him a natural for such roles as the coin-flipping gangster in "Scarface," has died at 85 after a lengthy bout with emphysema.

The aging actor, who also was linked with underworld figures in real life, was admitted to New Hospital one week ago and died Monday afternoon, said hospital spokeswoman Susan Lindquist. She said he had been in and out of a coma.

Raft recently had developed an "unusual blood condition" which might have been considered "pre-leukemia," said Dr. Rexford Kennamer, who had treated the actor for 20 years.

He said Raft had no living relatives, but hospital officials said a friend was nearby when the 50-year movie veteran died.

"I was sorry to hear the news. I've known this good man for 40 years and I loved every minute of our friendship," said Frank Sinatra.

Raft had been inactive professionally in recent years, although he made a cameo appearance as a gangster in the spoof "The Man With Bogart's Face" this year.

It was his performance as the cool killer in "Scarface" in 1933 that brought the dark-haired actor stardom and set off his career as a movie gangster. In his most famous scene, he flipped a half-dollar as he was gunned down by Paul Muni.

In the 1930s and 1940s he was one of Hollywood's highest-paid stars. He was in "Souls at Sea" with Gary Cooper, "Each Dawn I Die" and "Invisible Stripes."

Sometimes he played such straight parts as the truck driver in "They Drive By Night" with Humphrey Bogart and Ann Sheridan, or the entertainer in "Follow the Boys."

But most often he played men with shady pasts, as in "Background to Danger," "Mr. Ace," "Johnny Angel," "Intrigue," "Dangerous Profession," "Lucky Nick Cain," and many others.

When film styles changed, Raft began playing cameos in films like "Around the World in 80 Days," and "Some Like It Hot."

A product of New York's Hell's Kitchen, Raft was a boxer, electrician and baseball player before landing a job as a dancer in night clubs owned by New York underworld figures in the 1920s.

He became a vaudeville star and then moved on to films, first as a dance contest winner in "Taxi," a role friend James Cagney asked him to play. Raft was famed almost as much for his snappy appearance and entourage of beautiful women as for his acting.

In the mid-1950s, Raft left the silver screen for the gaming tables of Las Vegas and purchased a 2 percent interest in the lavish Flamingo Hotel. Recently he had appeared in a few TV commercials, often in prison garb, and spent his afternoons as a greeter in the Beverly Hills office of the Las Vegas Riviera.

Raft's money had vanished, partly because of his support of his estranged wife who refused to divorce him. He said he paid Grayce Mulrooney Raft more than $1 million by the time she died in 1970.

In 1967, he was barred from England as an "undesirable." He had been working for a London casino, his last full-time employment.

"I've never been locked up, I've never taken a drink, I never hurt anyone, and I gave all my money away. So how come I got this bum reputation?" he asked in 1974.

He made headlines in 1965 when he was convicted of income tax evasion and in 1966 when he appeared before a federal grand jury investigating Mafia financial transactions. When he sought to buy an interest in the Flamingo, the Nevada Gaming Commission said it was concerned about reports that he was an intimate of such reputed underworld figures as the late Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel.

In 1961, United Artists made "The George Raft Story," a picture Raft said concentrated on his roles as "an egotistical tough."

Rebels get City Championship Trophy

By DEBBIE FOSTER, JANET LANDENBERGER and MARTHA WENTWORTH

Well Rebs, we have another notch to add to our belt. This week our Lee Booster Club President, Don Thompson, and our own head football coach, Spike Dykes, readily received the City Championship Trophy. As we all know, the Rebels mighty express beat the Bulldogs 14-0, our fifth consecutive victory. The trophy was started in 1977 and Midland High has yet to win it! Way to go Rebels!

Things also went well for our Red-eyed Rebels as they started off their season with a big splash. They traveled to San Angelo to compete in the San Angelo Invitational Swimming and Diving Meet. The Rebs brought home a super second place trophy.

Our Rebel Roundballers started off the pre-season action when they took on Lubbock Monterey there. The Rebs fought hard only to fall behind and lose with a score of 65-48. Although the Rebs got off to a slow start, we all know that by the time district rolls around, Dixie's going to shine bright.

The stars were out Friday and Saturday night as all the Rebs joined together to make the Broadway musical "South Pacific" a success. If you missed it, you missed a show that won the hearts of the audience and received a standing ovation. Special thanks goes to Horace Griffin, Walter Wright, Mr. Storie and Mrs. Hall, for their time, efforts and skills in making the musical a hit.

Fire destroys assembly plant

CHILDRESS, Texas (AP) — Officials of Lancer Homes ordered double shifts and studied other ways to keep layoffs at a minimum today after a fire crippled a production facility at Childress County's largest employer.

Keith Finley, general manager of the mobile and modular home builder, said a fire roared through a large steel and metal siding building where mobile homes were built Monday.

The blaze destroyed production equipment and ten homes that were under construction, Finley said.

Finley said the plant's 420 employees would go to double shifts in the modular home building which was not affected by the fire. He said the company hoped to keep layoffs at a minimum.

Lancer Homes is a division of Lanchart Industries Inc. of Wichita Falls.

CHARLEY REESE

Horrors of 'the Holocaust' are beginning once again

Charley Reese

Anti-semitism, a real undying monster, is on the prowl again and American Jews have begun to think the unthinkable: that for the first time they must think about the question of survival in this country. This fear is real and so is anti-semitism.

In Europe and in the U.S. there has been an increase in anti-semitic acts. The worst so far have been in Belgium and France. Someone threw a grenade into a group of Jewish children in Antwerp, killing some and injuring more. In France a series of anti-semitic incidents was climaxed by the bombing of a Paris synagogue.

In our country, a synagogue in New Jersey was destroyed. Nazis and Klansmen are on the move again. One of each made unseemly good showings in recent political campaigns. Underlying the fear of American Jews is the memory of Holocaust, Hitler's final solution which murdered six million Jews, including two million Jewish children.

Anti-semitism is an old beast which feeds on economic hard times, scapegoatism and religious differences. Today it is being fed also by Arab hatred of Israel, by the Soviet Union — that reservoir of evil in the world, by the moral decline of the West and by the need and greed for oil. Unless it is confronted, it will accelerate and God knows what damage the beast would do if allowed to rampage unreined.

What does this mean to non-Jews? Is it a Jewish problem that we non-Jews can ignore? I don't think so. The Israelis live by a creed — "never again" — meaning never again will a Jew die unresisting or unavenged. We non-Jews must also live by a motto: Never again will we permit a whole people to be victimized. We have it in our power to stop anti-semitism in its tracks.

We have only to open our arms and embrace our Jewish friends and say never again will we allow you to stand alone, never again will we allow you to be isolated and dehumanized, never again will we remain silent when you are abused, or inactive when you are attacked. We are one people.

The new anti-semites are clever. They use "Zionist" and "Israeli" as code words but they are the same people who stripped naked mothers and daughters, fathers and sons, and shot, hanged and tortured them, starved them, beat them and gassed them. When I remember — and I shall never forget — I weep with rage.

Years ago in a London flat, I read the diary of a 13-year-old Dutch girl, Anne Frank. Her words, more than all the statistics and all the grisly photographs of bodies, engraved the horror of anti-semitism on my heart. That such a sensitive, innocent, intelligent and good human being could be destroyed by mindless prejudice is almost incomprehensible. I have carried the memory of her in my heart ever since.

I am often asked, usually by anti-semites, if I am a Jew. No, I am not but I would be proud to be a Jew. I am often asked why I like Jews. I don't like all Jews any more than I like all members of any group. I often disagree even with my Jewish friends; they are mostly liberal and I am mostly conservative.

But I feel a deep and abiding bond with the Jewish people that transcends political, religious and cultural differences. That relationship is as close as I have ever come to a mystical experience. I think it is because the Holocaust crystallized for me the whole of human existence. Here was man at his worst and at his best, here all human morality was laid bare.

I owe — we all owe — that child and all the others who perished... a life. She was murdered, but we can redeem her by seeing to it that her murderers and their spiritual heirs never triumph. We can redeem her by living up to our humanity.

She died because no one came to save her. She died as much from Western appeasement, from selfishness, from fashionable anti-semitism among the allies as from the cruelty of Nazi swine.

I have made a solemn promise to her. I will fight anti-semitism for as long as I live, with words and with fist and gun if it comes to that. I make no apologies.

If you hate Jews, then hate me. If you hate Israel, then hate me, for I am your implacable enemy forever.

Economy comes first

It is significant that President-elect Reagan and his chief advisers are concentrating their attention first on solving the country's economic problems, which they clearly consider to be more urgent just now than defense and foreign-policy challenges.

Tax and budget strategies for the new administration were mapped at the recent weekend economic summit conference in Los Angeles that brought Gov. Reagan together with some 15 top economists. The unofficial word is that broad tax cuts will head the list of initiatives the administration plans immediately after inauguration day on Jan. 20. In reaffirming his campaign pledges, Mr. Reagan has said he plans to "hit the ground running."

Thus, it appears the incoming administration has opted against wait-and-see gradualism in favor of a more audacious approach. This in turn suggests a tilt toward supply-side economics over the traditional, which is to say that the free enterprise system will be freed up from its burdens of federal taxes and regulations to produce more goods and even more tax revenues.

We share the belief of conservative economists that the Reagan administration should pursue a vigorous, audacious economic strategy.

Other nations, notably England and Canada, have suffered the consequences of too gradual an approach to economic recovery. The economic problems of this nation cry out for resolution.

Economic audacity may be President-elect Reagan's only hope of reining in runaway federal spending that bounded $157 billion beyond budget estimates in just 13 months — $36 billion since June. Only the strongest medicine can deal with such an affliction.

In departing the summit meeting in Los Angeles, Gov. Reagan, as though to put down the fabricated campaign report that his economic reforms will be at the expense of the poor, suggested his budget cuts would come mostly from government "extravagance."

That may be stretching it a bit. If there are to be income tax cuts totalling 30 percent during the next three years and more than $30 billion in reduced revenue, there may have to be some drastic cuts in federal programs, especially if national defense is to be strengthened. It's our hope that the cuts aren't too drastic, though.

There just isn't any way to end this deficit-inflationary spree without some sort of a national withdrawal syndrome that will be painful. The test of Reagan economics will be to make that pain as brief and bearable as possible.

The American economy has been sick, sluggish, or feverish one time or another in every administration since that of Dwight Eisenhower. And the nation's economy was, as much as anything, responsible for dragging down the Carter administration.

We believe the American people are tired of do-nothing politics and empty reassurances. We believe the average American will respond affirmatively to bold leadership that dares to share the unvarnished facts. And we believe Mr. Reagan is capable of rising to that challenge and will do so.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Pentagon watchdog office may be closed

WASHINGTON — There's no doubt that defense spending will have to be increased to offset the Kremlin's huge outlay for military hardware in the 1970s. But this does not mean that the generals and admirals should be given a blank check to pay for all the pet projects they've had to do without during the Carter austerity years.

Unfortunately, sources say the Pentagon brass hats have interpreted Ronald Reagan's election as a mandate for them to dust off plans for every toy they've been longing for, whether or not it serves the genuine national interest.

The military professionals' desire for more and better weapons is nothing new, nor is it necessarily reprehensible. They are, after all, seeking the wherewithal to defend their country. The advocates of dubious weapons usually fight for them in all sincerity.

But it's just as obvious that the military has an exaggerated opinion of what it needs to do its job. With this in mind, former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara set up an operation which evolved into the Office of Program Analysis and Evaluation. Its job is to ride herd on gadget-happy Pentagon poobahs.

The assignment of this civilian office was — and still is — to challenge the admirals' and generals' requests for new weapons, playing the devil's advocate to force a justification for the Pentagon's latest hardware dreams.

Not surprisingly, the office became the most detested in the Pentagon.

Jack Anderson

But the "whiz kids" with their computers and cost analyses could shrug off their unpopularity — until the Republican platform dropped on their heads.

Endorsed by President-elect Reagan, the platform condemned the "ill-informed and capricious intrusions" of the civilian watchdogs, which it said makes "orderly planning by the military services... impossible."

A Reagan adviser confirmed that the new administration plans to cut the analysts' budget "considerably," and downgrade the office by transferring control from an assistant secretary to the Defense Department comptroller. Disputes over which service gets what slice of the Pentagon pie, he said, can be handled by the new defense secretary, with maybe one special assistant. "He doesn't need an army of analysts," the Reagan aide said.

The trouble with this approach is that both the secretary and his special assistants will be political appointees — far more subject to corporate pressure than the non-political experts in the Office of Program Analysis and Evaluation.

A review of the office's record by my associate Peter Grant shows that its recommendations during the Carter administration often represented the still, small voices of reason in the shrill clamor for more and costlier weapons of dubious value.

The civilians are fighting the Air Force's move to install fuel-saving engines on its KC-135 tankers, pointing out that the fuel economy would not equal the cost of replacing the engines.

The civilians raised objections to the vertical takeoff fighter the Marines wanted, concluding that the plane's design limited its range and payload. The Marines took their case to Congress and got their planes.

The analysts are opposing an Air Force request for a new air-to-air missile that increases the number of targets a pilot can fire at simultaneously, suggesting that the program be delayed until tests show that pilots are capable of firing so many missiles at once.

Ultimately, of course, the tone of the Defense Department is set by the secretary, who can accept or disregard the advice of the civilian cost analysts. But the Republican platform's call for their extinction already has the admirals and generals licking their lips like kids in a candy store.

WATCH ON WASTE: In a well-intended effort to control the international traffic in heavy drugs — much of which winds up in the United States — the State Department has spent many millions of dollars in aid to foreign countries for narcotics control. Last year's expenditures totaled about $40 million.

One of the major recipients of this aid was the government of Thailand, part of the infamous "Golden Triangle" of world drug supplies. But neither the State Department nor the Thai government seems to be exercising strict control over the funds supposedly being used to combat the international drug traffic.

It was discovered recently that more than $5.3 million worth of aircraft provided to the Thais for narcotics control was being used for missions that had little to do with dope. Two new helicopters, for example, were being used to shuttle Thai and foreign bigshots around their country, instead of searching out drug traffickers.

ZEALOT REBUFFED: Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson, D-Wash., enjoyed the luxury of not having to run for re-election in this year of Moral Majority harassment. When confronted by an enthusiastic evangelical who demanded to know, "Are you a Christian?" the senator looked the fundamentalist in the eye and replied: "No, I'm a Presbyterian." End of confrontation.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 25, the 330th day of 1980. There are 36 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 25, 1783, the British evacuated New York, their last military position in the United States, during the Revolutionary War.

On this date: In 1758, during the French and Indian War, the British captured Fort Duquesne, currently known as Pittsburgh.

In 1863, Union troops captured Missionary Ridge, ending the Civil War battle of Lookout Mountain in Tennessee.

In 1920, station WTAW of College Station, Texas, broadcast the first play-by-play description of a football game. The game was between the University of Texas and Texas A&M.

In 1973, Greek President George Papadopoulos was ousted in a military coup.

Five years ago: The South American country of Surinam was granted independence from the Netherlands.

INSIDE REPORT:

Rep. Rhodes advised Reagan on how to handle Tip O'Neill

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan got solid advice on how to approach Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill on the delicate matter of committee ratios: Butter him up, ask about his wife, Millie, and tell him how much you will welcome him to the White House.

The advice-giver was canny Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, who is voluntarily stepping down as minority leader and probably knows O'Neill better than any other Republican. At issue was the refusal of O'Neill and the Democratic majority, which lost 33 seats in the election, to increase Republican ratios on committees — especially appropriations and rules, where the Democratic edge is about 2-to-1.

Rhodes advised Reagan to play heavily with O'Neill on the well-known fact that when President Carter arrived in Washington four years ago, he gave the O'Neills the back of his hand. Reagan accepted the advice, but it is too early to predict whether it will work or not.

A Footnote: Leading the battle for additional committee seats for the replenished Republicans is Rep. Bud Shuster of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican policy committee. He has enlisted aid from the soon-to-be Senate majority leader, Howard Baker. If O'Neill refuses to compromise, Baker will retaliate against Senate Democrats.

FALSE COLORS IN MOSCOW

National security members of the Reagan transition team were boiling that Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, a Kissinger-trained diplomat, did not vigorously enough knock down news reports depicting him as an agent of President-elect Ronald Reagan on a post-election trip to Moscow.

Those reports incorrectly made Scowcroft seem to be an "advance man" sent by Reagan to sound out the Russians on U.S. relations and new SALT negotiations. That caused a stir in the Reagan transition because of Scowcroft's background: Henry Kissinger's deputy and later his successor as national security adviser. Scowcroft is definitely not regarded by Reagan's national security aides as part of the incoming team. To them, he is Kissinger-tainted.

Scowcroft's visit to Moscow with a group of American foreign policy experts who have little politically and less philosophically in common with the president-elect was a surprise to most Reagan insiders — and to Reagan himself. They first learned about it by reading the newspapers.

BROCK AT STATE?

Republican National Chairman William Brock, who may not get the secretary of commerce post he covets, has been offered the possibility of a prestigious subcabinet post: deputy secretary of state.

The idea intrigues Brock, who previously had turned down the idea of going to Brussels as ambassador to NATO. Brock has no intention of going back to Tennessee to seek the Senate seat he lost in 1976. There still remains an outside possibility that Brock will serve another term as national chairman, particularly if no high-ranking post in the administration for him opens up. There are no notable prospects for chairman: Drew Lewis, the Pennsylvania political operative who played a key role in the national Reagan campaign, is not interested (though he has put in a bid to be secretary of transportation.)

CONSERVATIVE WATCHDOG

Board members of the American Conservative Union (ACU) elected Oklahoma's Rep. Mickey Edwards as national chairman only after expressing considerable doubt that a member of Congress can maintain enough independence from the Reagan administration to be an effective watchdog on the right.

Edwards replaced the disgraced and defeated Rep. Bob Bauman of Maryland as ACU chairman. His election came as conservatives were expressing fears that President-elect Reagan was being surrounded by Nixon-Ford veterans who would press moderate appointments and policy on him.

ACU board members expressed doubt that Edwards as a member of Congress could take a sufficiently detached view of the new administration to criticize a leftward drift. Edwards assured him that he could, but the election did not erase all such doubts.

Innocent man freed after five years

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. (AP) — After spending five years in prison for two rapes that prosecutors now say he did not commit, Douglas Forbes, former Baptist deacon and Sunday school teacher, has come home. "I'm all right. God bless you," Forbes said, hugging his 7-year-old son, as 60 people gathered in near-freezing temperatures Monday night to welcome him back. The friends and relatives gathered at the Bonanza steakhouse where Forbes' wife, Martha, worked as a cashier to hold the family together. "They think they're newly married again," his 67-year-old mother, Evelyn, commented as Forbes put his hand over his wife's to cut a giant cake signed, "Welcome to the green, green grass of home."

"It's good to be alive again. You're dead when you're locked up," Forbes said, carefully unwrapping packages from his mother containing a prayer book and a plaque saying "Today is the first day of the rest of your life." The catchphrase, perhaps stale under any other circumstance, was as fresh as the bright yellow ribbons on the shrubbery in front of the house Martha and their four children "moved down to cover the legal fees." "Little things mean a whole lot when you don't have anything," Forbes said. "Where I've been, it's worse than hell. Hell couldn't be that bad." Martha, his sweetheart at Elizabethton High and wife of 18 years, was steadfast in her loyalty from the day in 1973 when two women identified Forbes in a police lineup as the man who raped them. "She never did give up hope," daughter Yolanda, 16, who gave up high school track to start work three months ago at the same steakhouse. "She always said he wasn't guilty. Somewhere, somehow, something would prove it."

Forbes, 38, never doubted that the truth would come out. He turned down a plea bargain in which he could have been released on parole after 18 months. Instead, juries sentenced Forbes to consecutive terms of 50 and 10 years in prison. District Attorney General Lewis May said his only regret: at the time was that Tennessee didn't have a death penalty for rape, as it now does. "I completely and absolutely believed what those women said and they believed it, too," May said Monday. "I'll never be that personally sure about anything again. This has been a humbling experience." Six weeks ago, police arrested David J. Williams, 40, of Johnson City on an unrelated rape charge. Williams, in jail pending a grand jury hearing next month, confessed to the rapes Forbes was convicted of and described them in such detail as to leave no doubt he committed them, May said. Cowan admitted the resemblance between the two men is remarkable. "Put them together and you couldn't tell which was which," he said.

Computer date deadly

MIAMI (AP) — Police who think a 40-year-old photographer may have been killed by a man she met through a dating service are appealing for help to women who have encountered problems with computer dates. "We think there are other incidents in which women were victimized by the same man but not killed. We want to talk to anybody who ever had a problem with a computer date who tried to get money from them in any way," Homicide Sgt. Mike Gonzalez said. Detectives found lists in Anita Babbette Greenstein's home containing the names of more than 100 men referred to her by a half dozen dating services. They believe the killer's name is there, "but there are just too many to properly investigate each one," Gonzalez said. The case began when Ms. Greenstein's parents, concerned that it had been three days since they heard from her, entered her home Aug. 21 and found it had been ransacked. The next day, Ms. Greenstein's body was discovered 170 miles north of Miami, near Yeehaw Junction in Osceola County. The barefoot woman, clad in underwear and a striped bathrobe, had been strangled. Three $200 checks were cashed on Ms. Greenstein's bank account. Her car was found abandoned several miles from her home. Gonzalez said the investigation of the case had been hindered because most of the men listed on the referrals aren't cooperating with detectives. Many are "losers. They are introverts, quiet, conservative guys generally. They resist coming in to talk to us," he said. Detective Andrew Sundberg described most of the men as "average, middle-class" types who are "maybe a little shy" and seem embarrassed that anyone knew they used a dating service. Some said they had talked to Ms. Greenstein by telephone, and a few said they had dated her. He said some have criminal records, and a few are married.

"Our murderer is somewhere among them," Sundberg said. "I would stake a paycheck on it." After dozens of interviews, Sundberg feels he knows a lot about Ms. Greenstein, a freelance commercial photographer. "In her earlier life she traveled all over the world photographing everything. It was always her career. "Footloose and fancy-free, a girl-and-her-camera type of thing. Then she was 40 and thought, 'I've got my career, but I've got nothing,' he said. "I feel so sorry for her. She was looking for Mr. Right."

Suspicious fires probed at Atlantic City casino

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Fire officials today were investigating possible links between four small but suspicious blazes in the Brighton Hotel and Casino. Four members of Brighton's security force were taken to the Atlantic City Medical Center after three small fires were discovered Monday night. A hospital spokeswoman said no one was admitted and only one person required treatment for smoke inhalation. Smoke detectors worked properly and the three fires were quickly put out, said John Brenner, a spokesman for the Atlantic City Fire Department. But thick smoke drifted upward in the 20-story building, the highest of this resort's five legal casino hotels and the only all-new complex, officials said. Fire officials said a blaze had been reported seven or eight days ago in a linen closet at the hotel. They could not be more specific, and Brighton officials were not available for comment immediately. "That fire is still under investigation by the Atlantic City Arson Strike Force," said Fire Inspector Ray Osbeck. "The case is still open. We're trying to see if we can tie the two together." Osbeck said no matches or accelerants were found Monday. The first outbreak was reported at 7:26 p.m. in an ash tray on the seventh floor, said Battalion Chief William Staveline. It was extinguished by hotel employees. Fire officials were called back to the hotel within an hour when smoke detectors sounded alarms. "We found fires in two separate locations on the fifth floor," Staveline said.

Tremors jolt volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — While scientists predicted more ash eruptions, a "burst of tremors" coursed beneath Mount St. Helens as the volcano continued its signs of reawakening. Sharp tremors were recorded Monday night after steam seeped from St. Helens' dome and its crater rim expanded slightly. Scientists say the tremors indicate movement of magma under the volcano. The mountain has been sending out low-level seismic signals for about a week. Meanwhile, a U.S. Geological Survey analyst said ash eruptions like those of Aug. 7 and Oct. 16-18 were "extremely likely" this winter. Analyst Chris Newhall also said there was "at least a 1-in-2,000 chance of a major eruption more powerful than the May 18 eruption," a devastating blast that killed dozens of people and flattened thousands of acres of forest land. Bob Norris, spokesman for the University of Washington geophysics department, said Monday's tremors started at 8:55 p.m. and quickly faded. Earlier in the day, geologists mounted the volcano's slopes to measure the rate of deformation on the north rampart of the crater, said Joyce Routson, spokeswoman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Previous tests indicated the rampart has been expanding about one centimeter each day. The mountain bulged much faster before its May 18 eruption. A new steam vent on the lava dome capping the crater was spotted by an observer plane, Ms. Routson said. The pilot reported steam venting to the rim of the crater, like "mini-plumes," she said. Weather was clear throughout the day, and the U.S. Forest Service's restricted "red zone" was opened for logging and research. Newhall said Mount St. Helens was expected to continue volcanic activity for "five to 20 years." He said geological evidence indicates the mountain has had a major eruption like the May 18 blast every 2,000 years for the last 35,000 years. He said that eruption, in which 34 people died, was the most violently explosive of any eruption traced to the mountain. "But in an eruptive period like this, the chance could be more than one in 2,000," Newhall said. "It would be unwise to assume that because we have had one big eruption that it is the last." He said past eruptive periods have included as many as six major eruptions.

PLAN YOUR RETIREMENT BEFORE YOU RETIRE.

The time to realize that Social Security is not going to be enough to live on is not when you are 65 and about ready to retire!

Now is the time to begin preparing for your retirement with an IRA or KEOGH. Either account is as easy to open as a simple savings account... and if you are not participating in a company-sponsored plan where you work, then IRA and KEOGH may be the best plan for you.

With the First Savings IRA, a typical 35 year old employee regularly saving the maximum $1500 each year may retire after 30 years as a quarter-millionaire!

Setting aside $7500 each year in a KEOGH plan for 30 years allows a 35 year old self-employed businessperson to retire as a self-made millionaire! With either program, our 35 year olds will save thousands of tax dollars throughout the years because of the tax shelter both programs enjoy.

Leaking tank explodes at party

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A leaking tank of liquefied gas exploded at an engagement party in a rural village near Ankara Monday night and at least 97 people were killed, provincial authorities reported.

They said many of the victims were children trampled in the panic to escape.

An initial investigation indicated that one of several small tanks of gas used for cooking exploded and the others then blew up in a series of blasts that demolished the complex of rooms used for the party, the officials said.

According to customs still followed in rural Turkey, the women and children were segregated from the men and the groups were just sitting down to eat when the explosions occurred, followed by a fire, according to investigators.

Rescue workers said many of the bodies were found in the kitchen and main dining room. Among the victims was the bride-to-be, Dondu Dagelew.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

May I brag on you?

And I am sending you still another brother, whom we know from experience to be an earnest Christian. He is especially interested, as he looks forward to this trip, because I have told him all about your eagerness to help.

If anyone asks who Titus is, say that he is my partner, my helper in helping you, and you can also say that the other two brothers represent the assemblies here and are splendid examples of those who belong to the Lord.

Please show your love for me to these men and do for them all that I have publicly boasted you would.

I REALIZE that I really don't even need to mention this to you, about helping God's people.

For I know how eager you are to do it, and I have boasted to the friends in Macedonia that you were ready to send an offering a year ago. In fact, it was this enthusiasm of yours that stirred up many of them to begin helping.

But I am sending these men just to be sure that you really are ready, as I told them you would be, with your money all collected; I don't want it to turn out that this time I was wrong in my boasting about you.

I would be very much ashamed—and so would you—if some of these Macedonian people come with me, only to find that you still aren't ready after all I have told them!

So I have asked these other brethren to arrive ahead of me to see that the gift you promised is on hand and waiting. I want it to be a real gift and not look as if it were being given under pressure.

Upper Volta president ousted

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — The president of Upper Volta, Sangoule Lamizana, was overthrown early today in a coup led by Col. Saye Zerbo, the armed forces commander in the capital of Ougadougou, diplomatic sources in Abidjan reported.

Zerbo also was described as the head of the research bureau of the joint chiefs of staff. The sources said he was heading a "military committee of recovery for national progress."

Upper Volta is one of the poorest countries in Africa with its 6 million people mainly engaged in subsistence farming and severely affected by the long Sahel area drought.

All normal communications with Upper Volta were cut and Ougadougou airport was reported closed.

Part Ten: The politician emerges

President-elect Ronald Reagan, left, talks with former President Gerald Ford at Wexford, Reagan's hideaway in Middleburg, Va. The politician in Reagan emerged during his years of speaking engagements for General Electric. (AP Laserphoto)

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the final part of a 10-part series excerpted from "Where Is The Rest Of Me?"

BY RONALD REAGAN WITH RICHARD G. HUBLER

The eight years of "General Electric Theatre" and visits to GE plants have a way of melting into a montage in my memory, but some overall impressions remain. For one thing, it is too bad that a lot of people can't see the miracle of American industry at work.

No barnstorming politician ever met the people on quite such a common footing. Sometimes I had an awesome, shivering feeling that America was making a personal appearance for me, and it made me the biggest fan in the world.

With all that I had heard of the timidity of sponsors, I was somewhat surprised that General Electric delivered me as often as possible on the mashed potato circuit, and never suggested what I should talk about.

Of course, I couldn't impose on an audience to the extent of just singing Hollywood's praises, without tying the whole subject into the listeners and how they might be involved, so I followed my factual data with illustrations of what had happened to Hollywood.

The most dramatic part of my pitch however, was the account of the attempted takeover of the industry by the Communists. It was dumbfounding to discover how completely uninformed the average audience was concerning internal Communism and how it operated.

As the years went on, my speeches underwent a kind of evolution, reflecting not only my changing philosophy but also the swiftly rising tide of collectivism that threatens to inundate what remains of our free economy.

My speeches were nonpartisan and I went out of my way to point out that the problems of centralizing power in Washington, with subsequent loss of freedom at the local level, were problems that crossed party lines.

During the first couple of years I wasn't unaware that GE sometimes had to sell a few groups on taking a Hollywood actor as a speaker. By the third year, however, the tours were being scheduled around the speaking engagements and the routine weekly luncheon clubs had given way to the more important annual events: state Chamber of Commerce banquets, national conventions, and groups recognized as important political sounding boards.

It would be nice to accept this as a tribute to my oratory, but I think the real reason had to do with a change that was taking place all over America. People wanted to talk about and hear about encroaching government control, and hopefully they wanted suggestions as to what they themselves could do to turn the tide.

Here I'm forced to recap, lest it seem that that was all of life for eight years.

Nancy and I had in 1956 built a home high on a hill overlooking the ocean and city. We moved there with Patti and a collie named Lucky (because that's the way I felt).

There was an extra room in the new house because Nancy had decided Patti should have a brother. Everything was on schedule this time. Nancy's mother, DeeDee, had come out and she and Ursula Taylor — Robert Taylor's beautiful wife — accompanied me to the hospital early in the morning. At 8:04 a.m., a nurse told me Ronald Prescott had arrived.

Reagan's son marries in New York

Ronald P. Reagan, son of the president-elect, stands with his new wife, the former Doria Palmieri, Monday after being married in a civil ceremony in New York. Reagan, 22, is a dancer with the Joffrey II Dancers. Mrs. Reagan, 29, is a researcher. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — The bride wore red cowboy boots and the bridegroom sported tennis shoes when the son of President-elect Ronald Reagan tied the knot with a young literary researcher in a civil ceremony.

The wedding of 22-year-old Ronald P. Reagan and 29-year-old Doria Palmieri was celebrated Monday in the chambers of Judge Lester Evans. The couple took out a license earlier in the day and Evans waived the requirement for a 24-hour waiting period.

Plans for the wedding apparently were kept from all but the couple's closest friends.

The president-elect, reached in Los Angeles, said he was happily surprised at the news.

"It was kind of an elopement," Reagan added.

His wife, Nancy Reagan, said in Pacific Palisades, Calif., that she was "very happy."

She said her son, a member of the Joffrey II Dancers, and his long-time companion wanted a simple wedding.

"His father and I had a small wedding," said Mrs. Reagan. "The main thing is that Ron is happy."

The only witnesses to the wedding were Calvin

Willford of Pinol, Calif., a long-time friend of the groom, and Lane McNitt, a Secret Service agent.

Miss Palmieri wore red boots, a black sweater and black slacks. Reagan wore a red sweater, blue jeans and sneakers.

After the ceremony, the bride accompanied her husband to a rehearsal. No honeymoon was planned and Reagan's mother said the couple would not be joining her and the president-elect for Thanksgiving in California.

The couple had been sharing a Greenwich Village apartment since January. They were said to have met at the Stanley Holden School in Los Angeles about two years ago.

The younger Reagan is a dancer with the training troupe of the Joffrey Ballet.

Medical examiner fired, rehired

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Dr. Ruben Santos started the day as Bexar County medical examiner, spent part of the day unemployed and finished the afternoon as acting examiner — complete with a pay raise and a chance to renegotiate his job.

The strange sequence of events began Monday when county commissioners offered Santos a $12,500 annual raise if he would give his out-of-county autopsy fees to Bexar County.

But Santos had other ideas. He asked for a 10 percent raise to his $35,000 salary and the right to keep the $20,000 he makes each year from private practice.

"This is a practice I have built for 18 years, and I don't think anyone can take it away from me," said Santos, who said it would be illegal for the county to collect the out-of-county fees.

But Commissioner Jeff Wentworth disagreed, pointing out that the state attorney general had approved the collection and suggesting that Santos accept the county's terms.

"Dallas County does it, and if Dr. Santos cannot accept the policy of this court, we can accept his resignation," Wentworth said.

Santos said he would not resign, but reminded commissioners they could fire him.

By a 3-2 vote, the commissioners court agreed to do just that.

According to terms of the agreement, Santos' interim salary will be $67,500 per year.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: CURIOUS asked, "Which is the hardest? being the youngest, middle or eldest child? You replied, "It all depends where you're coming from."

Well, I'm the youngest, and I think being the youngest is an advantage. Sure, I got plenty of hand-me-downs, but they were mostly good as new and I was always the best-dressed kid in my class.

Since I was the last one to leave home, I was treated like an only child and got plenty of attention and love. Because my folks were much better off financially after my brothers and sisters left home, they were able to do more for me than they did for the others.

Also, I had plenty of examples to follow. My parents were more relaxed and made fewer mistakes raising me than raising the older ones. I honestly can't think of any disadvantages in being the youngest. — LUCKY IN NEW CASTLE

DEAR ABBY: I think being the oldest child is definitely the hardest—especially when there are only two in the family and they're both boys.

I'm the oldest, and when a fight breaks out between me and my brother, I'm always blamed. They say,

"You're older and you should know better."

Being the oldest means that you start out being an only child, then all of a sudden you've got to share your parents and divide everything with another child. And the baby gets more attention just because he's little and cute and helpless. It's only normal to be jealous of him.

Being older means having more responsibility, like looking after my little brother. My parents give me the job, but they don't give me the authority to do any hitting.

If I could choose, I would be the youngest. — RICKY IN KANSAS CITY

DEAR ABBY: The middle child definitely gets the worst of it. If the oldest accomplishes something, it's a big deal because it's the first time. Same with the youngest, because "the baby is growing up."

When the middle does it—nothing. It's neither the first nor the last.

The middle child is second in everything. Never the first.

Do you know what it feels like to be introduced by your parents? It goes something like this: "This is our oldest. And this is our youngest. And the other one is Kathy." You feel like nothing.

I'm sure parents don't realize they do this. Maybe this will help. — A MIDDLE NOTHING

DEAR ABBY: I'm the youngest in a family of five children. When our mother died at 77, she left a houseful of lovely antique furniture, plus enough silver, linen and china to open a store. She also left some valuable heirloom jewelry. She didn't leave a will, but guess who got first crack at everything? Mother's first-born daughter, of course. — GYPPEE IN JOPLIN, MO.

DEAR ABBY: You ask, "Is it better to be the youngest, middle or eldest child?" Strange you should ask.

I have three sisters and two brothers—all older, married and living lives of their own. I've never been married and probably never will be.

I'm home caring for my mother who is 88 and has been an invalid for 19 years, and my father who is 90 and blind. You may sign me, "The youngest," or...53 AND TRAPPED

Birthdays have bad reputation

By ERMA BOMBECK
Birthdays are getting a terrible reputation in this country. Six of them have already been declared "milestones" and several others are under consideration.

I'm not really sure what this means except when you hit a "milestone" your mind shifts gears, your new age doesn't fit any part of your body, and your sense of humor goes underground.

What made me think of this was a letter from a girl named Charlotte who goes to college in Virginia. She wrote to ask why everyone thought her 18th birthday was such a big deal. Her friends treated it like a timetable. According to them, age 18 is jump-out-of-the-cake time. Time to buy beer, watch X-rated movies and swing whether she wanted to or not. As everyone pointed out, "You're only 18 once."

I think I've hit most of the milestones and I've always been intrigued with the myth surrounding them vs. the reality.

Take age 21. Everyone said, "It's the best year of your life." The reality: I hadn't finished college, didn't know where the tuition was coming from and according to my vocational guidance scores had a big future in license plates. My wisdom tooth was coming in weird, I was the only girl in North America who wasn't going steady, and my mother said you're not getting any younger.

At age 30 I was told, "These are the years you'll look back on and want to relive." The reality: My husband worked from daylight until dark and the baby wore orthopedic shoes that cost $34 a pair and were outgrown every three weeks. I got a water heater for my birthday. I wanted long fingernails and a dinner ring. I saved money for three months to have my hair frosted.

Age 40: Everyone said, "Next week you won't even remember hitting 40." The reality: These stupid remarks were made by well-meaning people who were only 31 at the time. I remembered them every time I saw my mother's hands coming out of my coat sleeves. Every time I used Erase for my wrinkles and my entire face disappeared. I remembered every time I ate lunch and had to rest while it digested. I remembered every time I spent $30 to cover God's frosting.

Age 50: Everyone said, "You got it made. Just sit back, relax, and enjoy it." The reality: We installed a revolving door in the house for the returning children. The dress I could afford now only came in size 10. And the idiot who said, "You're only 50 once," didn't know about women.

Use eggs with leftover turkey

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In the Nov. 23 edition of the Reporter-Telegram an ingredient was inadvertently omitted in the Post-Feast Frittata recipe. Following is the recipe as it should have read.)

POST-FEAST FRITTATA

- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 2 tbs. butter
- 1 cup cooked leftover stuffing
- 1 cup chopped cooked turkey or chicken or 1 can (5 oz.) boned chicken
- 8 eggs
- en, undrained
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 tsp. poultry seasoning, optional
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- parsley, optional

In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet with oven proof handle over medium heat cook onion and celery in butter until tender but not brown, about 5 minutes. Stir in stuffing, breaking it into small pieces. Stir in turkey.

Beat together remaining ingredients except parsley. Pour over turkey mixture. Cook over low to medium heat until eggs are almost set, 15-20 minutes. Cover pan, remove from heat and let stand about 5 minutes or broil about 6 inches from

Caring for corduroy

HELLO, AGAIN!

Aren't those new corduroy garments just beautiful? The colors are so rich and velvety looking. Want them to stay that way? Well listen to what the Guild of Professional Drycleaners has to say about the care of corduroy.

To maintain its good looks, corduroy takes some special care. The pile has a tendency to mat down in areas that are subjected to a lot of pressure or abrasion, such as in the seat, elbows, knees and shoulders.

If you're removing a stain or spot, be especially careful. Blot, don't rub, the stain. It's easy to disturb the pile and this will cause a difference in the way the light is reflected off the material at the point of the stain. If that happens, it will look as though the spot is still there.

Don't let your corduroy clothing get too soiled before cleaning. The pile picks up dirt easily and holds it very well.

Your local professional drycleaning establishment will keep your cords in the finest condition, but if you do launder them yourself, remember to turn the garment wrong side out before washing.

When pressing—again, wrong side out—use a steam iron and press lightly and quickly to prevent the nap from collecting too much steam. A good idea is to put a terry towel over your ironing board before pressing corduroy to help prevent flattening the nap.

If you follow these simple steps in caring for that corduroy, you should be looking your best all season. — Heloise

MAIL CALL

Dear Heloise: At Christmas time I buy several different kinds of Christmas cards, usually in boxes of assorted cards.

There always are some left over that could be used the next year if I could just remember which card I sent to whom.

I found what I think is the answer. On the back of each card is a number for every style card. I write down the name of the recipient and the number of the card, so the next year I can be sure I won't send the same card to the same person. — Marjorie Brown us ever has enough closet space to store blankets and quilts? Even during the winter, some of us don't like to use as many blankets as others do, plus there are always the extras you need for when company visits from time to time.

P.S. Everytime I come up with something new, my husband grins and says, "I'll bet you got that from Heloise." He is almost always right. — M.B.

Well, I bought a remnant of plush fake fur and stitched it into large envelopes or pillowcases, large enough to hold two or three quilts.

I put my extra blankets and quilts into these cases, close up the opened end and use them for TV cushions in the family room.

They stack neatly in the corner when not in use, and when I need an extra cover, I know right where to look.

But don't expect to see neat, orderly closets...they're still stuffed. — Sarah Margaret

Prices expected to keep rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflationary pressures brought on in part by the bulging money supply are driving consumer prices to new heights, say economists who predict even further jumps in the coming months.

The Federal Reserve Board reported on Monday a new surge in the amount of money available for spending. The growth came despite the board's earlier moves to contain the growth of the money supply.

And some analysts predict the board, stepping up its efforts to curb inflation, will take further measures this year to control the money supply.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department was releasing the Consumer Price Index for October today. Private economists predicted in advance that prices for autos, both new and used, would show big increases but that food prices would fall, due mainly to heavy slaughtering.

"The big cost increases in October are for new and used cars," said Donald Ratajczak, a Georgia State University economist who conducts his own monthly inflation survey.

The index rose 1 percent in September, for an annual inflation rate of 12.7 percent.

Ratajczak warned, however, that any slowdown, particularly in food prices, would be "very short-term and somewhat misleading."

Just last week the Agriculture Department said Americans can expect to pay 10 percent to 15 percent more for food in 1981, due largely to grain supply problems.

Ratajczak also noted that energy prices in October appear stable but will begin to rise as winter approaches and demand for home heating fuel increases.

The Federal Reserve reported Monday that the money supply category including cash in circulation and checking deposits at commercial banks grew $1.8 billion in the week ended Nov. 12, from a revised $388.4 billion to a seasonally adjusted $390.2 billion.

And the board said the money supply figure that also includes checking-type deposits at other financial institutions expanded $2.4 billion in the period, from a revised $413.1 billion to a seasonally adjusted $415.5 billion.

In addition, the board also increased sharply its money supply figures for the week ending Nov. 5.

"This strongly confirms the possibility that (1980) money supply targets will be exceeded," said David Jones, an analyst for Aubrey G. Lantson & Co. in New York.

"That is precisely why the Fed is tightening aggressively in recent weeks — out of fear the growing money supply will lead to a renewal of inflation," Jones added. "I think we'll see the Fed going all out to cool money growth rates for the rest of the year."

And, in an apparent reaction to the Federal Reserve's money-tightening moves, interest rates on short-term Treasury securities climbed Monday to their highest levels since early April.

For 26-week securities, the rate climbed to 14.03 percent, meaning banks and thrift institutions may, beginning Thursday, pay interest of 14.28 percent on six-month, $10,000 money-market certificates, up from the current 14.167 percent.

"All this is fairly likely to lead to no economic growth in the first quarter (of 1981)," predicted Eckstein.

Chrysler in black for month: Iacocca

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. recorded a profit last month for the first time in two years, but Chairman Lee A. Iacocca says the quarter will not be profitable unless sales pick up.

"It all hinges" on dealers taking the three weeks of production scheduled for December, Iacocca said in an interview published Monday in Automotive News.

He did not disclose the earnings figures for October. Normally, Chrysler does not report monthly results.

Earlier this year, the No. 3 automaker projected a profit for the final three months of 1980, but Wall Street and government analysts say the company will not make it.

The last profitable quarter was the final three months of 1978, when $45.8 million was recorded. Since then Chrysler has lost nearly $2.6 billion.

Estimates of a $300 million loss for the present quarter are too high, however, Iacocca said, adding that "the roof would really have to fall in" to lose that much.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Cancer doesn't show racial bias

Dear Dr. Solomon: I realize that there are a number of diseases, such as sickle cell anemia and Tay-Sachs, that are associated with specific racial or ethnic groups. But I don't understand why cancer occurs more frequently in blacks. Have any researchers tried to determine if there is a genetic basis for this? — Mr. K.B.

Dear Mr. B.: A number of scientists have studied the problem of cancer among black populations, and they seem to have arrived at the following consensus: Except for skin cancer, the color of a person's skin makes no difference where cancer is concerned; rather, it is the way people live that determines their susceptibility to the disease.

Studies of black populations worldwide reveal no consistent cancer patterns. In Africa, there may be dramatic differences in the rates of cancer even between two groups living in close proximity.

For example, Dr. Michael S.R. Hutt, of the Unit of Geographical Pathology at St. Thomas' Hospital Medical School, London, notes that cancer of the penis accounts for 31 percent of cancer in males among one tribe in Uganda, but for only three percent of cancer among males in a neighboring tribe. Dr. Hutt suggests the difference may be attributable to different mores and sexual habits, rather than to hereditary factors.

Similarly, Dr. Elizabeth F. Rose, of the South African Medical Research Council, notes that a high incidence of esophageal cancer among another group of blacks seems to be related to pipe-smoking practices from an early age by both males and females, as well as to poor soil conditions that result in diets low in vitamins. Here, too, heredity does not appear to be a factor.

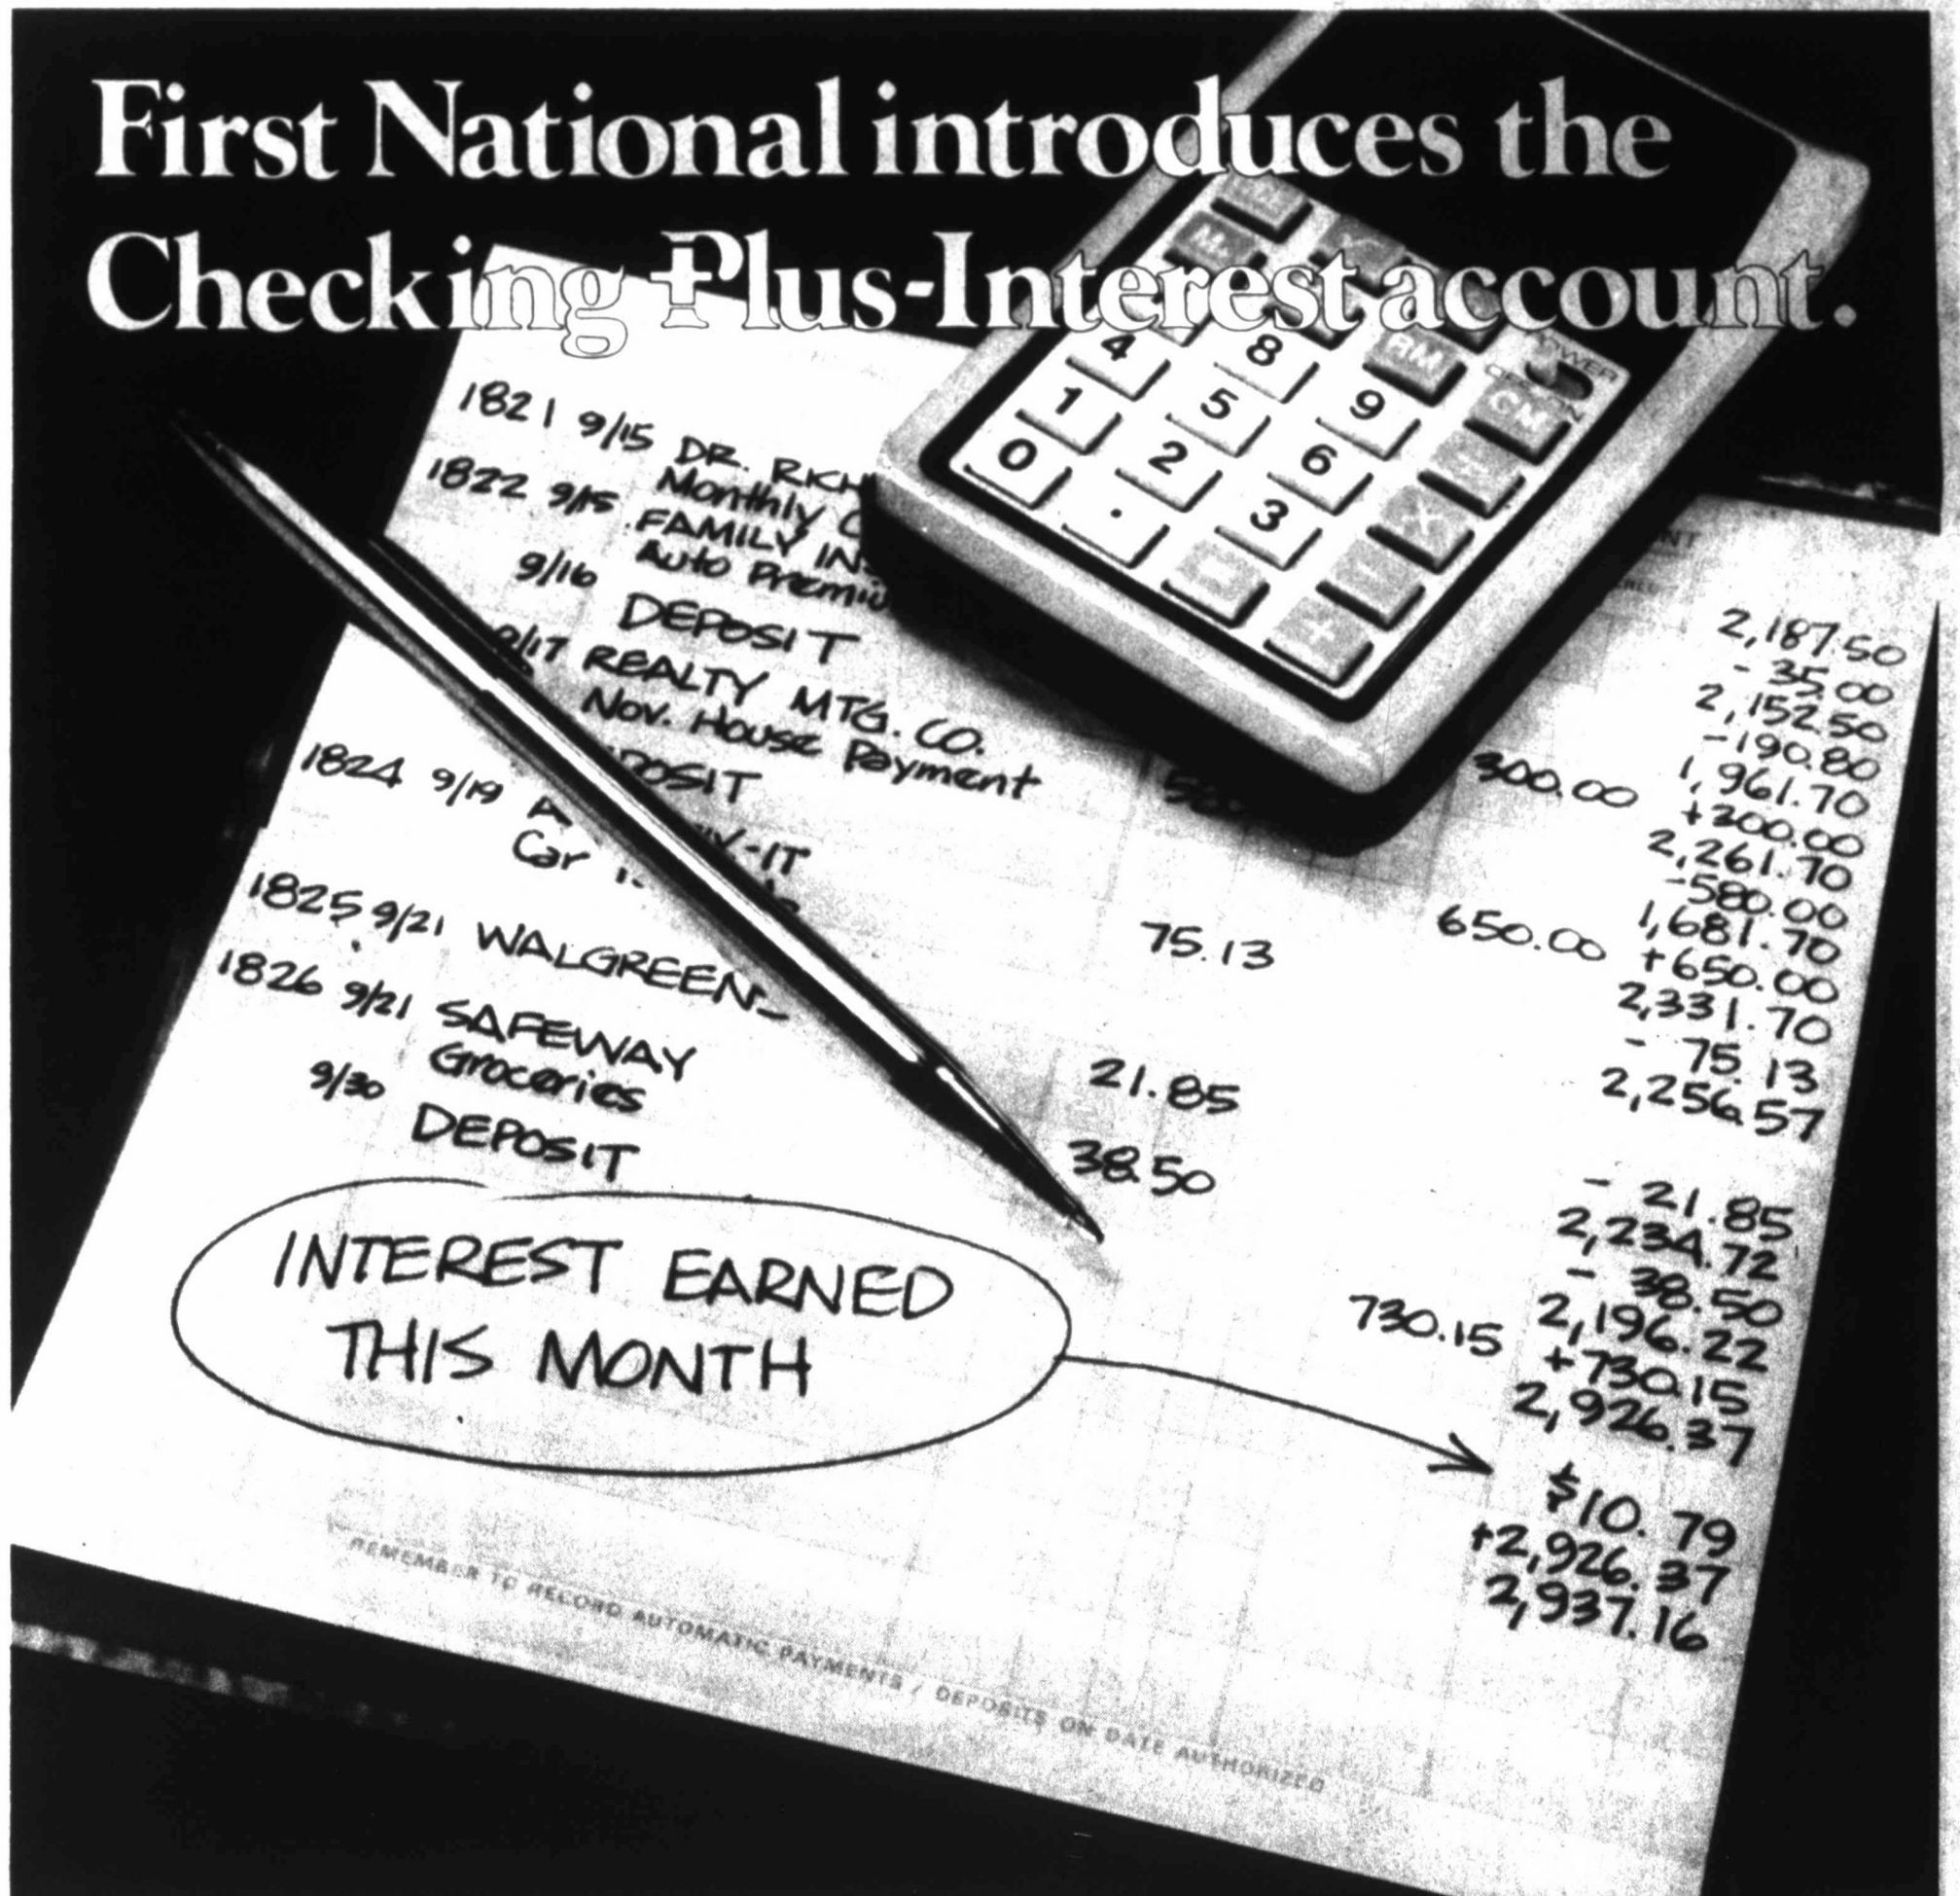

In the United States, Dr. Jack E. White, director of the Cancer Research Center at the Howard University College of Medicine, Washington, D.C., says that black Americans have poorer survival rates from cancer than do white Americans because their disease is first detected in its later stages. He believes that the overall survival differential between blacks and whites would be reduced by at least 50 percent if the cancer were detected at the same stage in both blacks and whites.

In general, then, except for skin cancer, we can conclude that the differences in the incidence of the disease between blacks and whites is determined primarily by cultural, environmental, and socioeconomic factors.

Dear Dr. Solomon: The state in which I live requires a vaccination for mumps before a child attends school. Yet I've heard that mumps vaccination can lead to diabetes. What's a mother to do? — Mrs. G.I.

Dear Mrs. I.: The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta says there is no proven association between mumps vaccination and diabetes; therefore, the risk of developing diabetes is not a contraindication to vaccination.

Wang Hongwen, a former vice chairman of the Chinese Communist party, stands inside a wood fence enclosure during his trial in Peking. Wang is one of two members of the "Gang of Four" who appeared before the special court to admit his part in helping to wreck China's economy, plotting to usurp power and persecuting tens of thousands of his countrymen. (AP Laserphoto)

Special tribunal hears Lin's plot to kill Mao

PEKING (AP) — The Gang of Four trial shifted today from a plot by Mao Tse-tung's widow Jiang Qing to block Deng Xiaoping's return to power to Defense Minister Lin Piao's plot to kill Mao.

The Foreign Ministry announced that the trial resumed at 3 p.m. and "continued to investigate facts of offenses of the conspiracy of the Lin Piao counter-revolutionary clique to murder Chairman Mao and engineer an armed coup d'etat."

The special tribunal was to examine three elderly ex-generals from among the 10 defendants: Jiang Tengjiao, former political commissar of the air force units in Nanjing; Huang Yongsheng, former army chief of the general staff, and Li Zuopeng, former navy political commissar.

The official media said the assassination plot was hatched after Mao's objections blocked the elevation of Lin Piao to succeed Liu Shaochi as head of state in 1971. Liu was purged during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution and died in prison in 1969.

The media gave this official account of the murder plan: The plotters formed secret organizations around the country, including a "dare-to-die" corps in Shanghai, and planned to kill Mao while he was making an inspection tour of south China in September 1971. The operation was given the code name "571," a pun in Chinese which can mean "armed uprising," and Mao was dubbed "B52" after the giant American bomber.

The plotters planned to attack Mao's train after it left Shanghai with flame throwers, bazookas and dive bombers. But Mao apparently was warned, changed his plans and left early for Peking, foiling the plot.

Lin and his generals then planned to fly to Canton, in south China, and set up their own party central committee and a separate government. Lin wrote: "Diplomatic relations will be established with the Soviet Union and other countries and a pincer attack will be launched from north and south in alliance with the Soviet Union should fighting be necessary." That plan was foiled when Premier Chou En-lai got wind of it. Then Lin and his confederates planned to fly north to Irkutsk, in the Soviet Union. That, too, was discovered, and Lin fled to the airport at the seaside resort of Beidaihe, pursued by troops loyal to Chou and Mao. Lin's plane took off at 2:30 a.m. on Sept. 13 and crashed in Mongolia, a Soviet satellite between north central China and Soviet Siberia.

The trials of the Gang of Four — Jiang Qing and three other radical leaders accused with her of responsibility for the excesses of the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution — and six of Lin Piao's alleged accomplices opened jointly last Thursday before a special tribunal of the Supreme People's Court. But the cases between the two groups are being presented separately in alternate court sessions.

The tribunal was told at Monday's session that Jiang Qing sent another defendant, Wang Hongwen, to tell Mao in 1974 that Chou had been conspiring against him with other ranking party members, including Deng Xiaoping, who has become the dominant member of the regime since Mao's death.

Wang, who had had a sudden rise to vice chairman of the Communist Party, told the tribunal that what he told Mao mainly was what Jiang Qing told him to say, and that the purpose was to prevent Chou from making Deng first vice premier.

Xinhua said the court also heard a deposition from a member of Mao's staff, Zhang Yufeng, who was present at the meeting. The deposition said the chairman told Wang to have more talks with Chou, to be watchful of Jiang Qing and not to "gang up" with her.

Wang said he failed to heed Mao's instructions, Xinhua said.

Only official Chinese reporters and 600 to 800 invited Chinese spectators are admitted to the trial sessions. Information on the proceedings is provided to foreign reporters by the Foreign Ministry, the official media and unofficial sources.

Striking Polish workers interrupt transit service

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish workers today interrupted commuter service in Warsaw and the Baltic port of Gdansk, shut down five factories around the capital and staged a slowdown at nine coal mines in the southern province of Katowice.

The Polish news agency PAP said the railway workers from Solidarity, the nation's biggest independent union, temporarily shut down service on commuter lines in Warsaw and Gdansk. The union staged a two-hour warning strike on the lines Monday and said the stoppage would be extended to four hours today.

The action came as union and government negotiators began their second day of wage negotiations in the locomotive roundhouse in Wroclaw, southwest Poland, PAP said. The Wroclaw local is negotiating the workers' demand the government accept their formula for distributing pay raises worth $6.3 million rather than one worked out with a rival, state-controlled union.

Solidarity's Warsaw local announced work stoppages today at five plants around the capital to demand the release of Jan Narozniak, a printer arrested in connection with the theft of a classified court document.

The shutdown of the five plants, including electronics and machine works, follows similar action at the Ursus factory, where workers shut down the assembly line Monday to demand Narozniak's release.

Dissident sources said Narozniak had been served with a 90-day detention order pending possible charges of revealing state secrets. If convicted, he could receive a prison term from six months to five years.

The solicitor general's office announced that one of its employees in the printing shop had been arrested and charged with leaking the document to Solidarity.

Workers at nine coal mines in Katowice delayed entry into the pits for two hours today to press demands for an extra dollar a day payment for underground workers, PAP reported. "It was a wildcat strike," a Solidarity spokesman said. "We heard about it last night. We feel deep anxiety about the strikes."

Solidarity has clashed with the communist regime on and off since it was created in September following six weeks of crippling nationwide strikes. The union recently won an appeal over the wording of its founding charter when the Supreme Court ruled the charter did not have to assert the party's supremacy.

Representatives of state-controlled trade unions appealed in a meeting Monday with Premier Jozef Pinskiwski for restoration "of order" in the union movement, PAP reported.

It quoted one speaker as saying the old unions could not accept the "situation of constant turmoil and chaos."

Pinskiwski told the group that the government did not expect "such an escalation of demands" when it signed the Aug. 31 Gdansk agreement establishing independent trade unions, PAP reported.

"We must oppose the extreme demands, as they accelerate the inflationary process," urging the state-backed unions to find a "common platform of action," PAP said.

Hussein opens Arab summit with call to save Jerusalem

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan opened the 11th Arab summit conference today with a call to unite and save Jerusalem from Israeli occupation. The Palestine Liberation Organization, Syria, Libya, South Yemen, Algeria and Lebanon boycotted the session.

"The holy shrines of the Arabs and Moslems in Jerusalem are beseeching you (to save them)...to rally under the banner of solidarity and brotherhood," the king told the 15 delegations attending the conference at the royal theater in Amman, 55 miles from Jerusalem.

He exhorted the summit "to honor the memory" of wars waged by the early Arabs to regain lost territory, to follow the Common Market's example, "whereby political differences have been dissolved by economic solidarity," and to work for an immediate end to the Iraq-Iran war.

Bowing to the Syrians who allow it to base most of its guerrillas in Syrian-occupied Lebanon, the PLO announced Monday that Yasser Arafat would join the leaders of Syria, Libya, and South Yemen in staying away from the Arab League's summit.

Algeria also decided to stay away, and Lebanon joined the boycott because of the 22,000 Syrian troops on its territory.

Syria organized the boycott by hardliners in an effort to demonstrate veto power over unified Arab plans, particularly concerning the Arab-Israeli conflict. And since the Arab League has designated the PLO the sole representative of the Palestinian people, the PLO boycott of the meeting was considered a serious impediment to plans for a united approach to the new U.S. administration.

President-elect Ronald Reagan said he would give priority after taking office in January to a meeting with Hussein to talk about peace in the Middle East. Hussein planned to urge the new president to withdraw U.S. support from the Israeli-Egyptian peace negotiations and work instead for a comprehensive peace agreement between Israel and all the Arab. The Amman meeting was expected to weigh the advisability of giving the king a mandate to speak on behalf of the Arabs in general and the Palestinians in particular.

The PLO decision to join the boycott may cost it the large subsidies it gets from Saudi Arabia and other oil nations on the Arabian peninsula. It may also suffer in Jordan, where Hussein has allowed it to operate two military bases and increase the strength of the Palestine Liberation Army.

A PLO official sympathetic to Jordan said he was "ashamed and dismayed" by the boycott decision.

"Day after day, year after year, the supreme weakness of the Arabs is gradually being exposed," he said. "We seem to rejoice in bickering and disunity. I am apt to believe that the real problem does not rest with the Israeli enemy. Rather, the problem rests with us Arabs — our inability to concur and our instinct for dissembling and mismatching."

Syrian President Hafez Assad also organized the boycott because he feared that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, his chief foe in the Arab world, would get the meeting to back Iraq in its war with Iran.

Students picket Prince Charles, saying he favors virginity tests

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Jeering Indian students picketed Prince Charles today as he visited Delhi University and accused him of sanctioning virginity tests for Indian women entering Britain, a charge the prince denied.

About two dozen demonstrators carried signs saying "Down with Prince Charles," "Down With British Apartheid" and "You are responsible for virginity tests."

The demonstration organized by the Delhi Students Union was protesting alleged racial discrimination in Britain and reports of harassment of Indian travellers at London airport. British airport authorities said in 1978 they conducted the tests to check the practice-of-convenience marriages arranged to get immigration visas for Asian women. The tests were discontinued after protests by India and other countries.

The only violence was a brief scuffle when police tried to stop a young man from handing a petition to the 32-year-old heir to the British throne. An aide indicated he was willing to accept the paper, however. Its contents were not immediately learned.

Later, Charles told a group of girl students he had nothing to do with virginity tests.

In a speech in at St. Stephens, one of the university's several colleges, Charles said the protest had made him feel at home in India. "I am the chancellor of the University of Wales and have faced such demonstrations during my visit there," he explained.

The prince also visited a museum and a mosque. It was the second day of his visit to India.

State Representative's stepdaughter kidnapped

DALLAS (AP) — The stepdaughter of State Rep. Fred Agnich of Dallas was kidnapped Monday by a man who boarded her car as she was stopped at a red light, police said.

Annette Willie Gilger, 24, told Hopkins Co. sheriff's deputies that a man got into her car in Dallas about 4 p.m. and forced her to drive to Sulphur Springs, where she was released unharmed about 7 p.m.

Sheriff John Tittle said Mrs. Gilger was "very, very upset" when a deputy discovered her parked by the side of Interstate 30 one mile west of Sulphur Springs. Her kidnapper had left the car.

Tittle said Mrs. Gilger told investigators the man showed no weapon, but kept his hand in his pocket during the drive, leading her to believe he had a gun.

A. Rams sack punchless Saints

By AUSTIN WILSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Wide receiver Preston Dennard scored two touchdowns and an inspired Los Angeles defense kept New Orleans at its own end of the field for almost the entire National Football League game as the Rams rolled over the hapless New Orleans Saints 27-7 Monday night.

Rams defenders sacked New Orleans quarterbacks eight times for a total of 63 yards and free safety Nolan Cromwell intercepted two Saints passes, both of which set up field goals by Frank Corral.

New Orleans got past midfield only twice in the game, both times in the second half.

The first penetration stalled at the Los Angeles 30-yard line in the third period and a field goal attempt was short. The second foray into Rams territory came on an 88-yard kickoff return by Jimmy Rogers in the fourth quarter that put the ball at the LA 15. Backup quarterback Bobby Scott then hit tight end Henry Childs with a 15-yard touchdown pass for the only New Orleans score.

Both of Dennard's touchdowns came in the second quarter, the first on a 31-yard pass from rookie running back Mike Guman and the second on a 16-yard strike from quarterback Vince Ferragamo.

A 1-yard dive by Elvis Peacock accounted for the other LA score in the nationally televised game.

Los Angeles raised its record to 7-4 and moved back within one game of Atlanta in the NFC West. New Orleans fell to 0-12.

Ferragamo finished with 14 completions in 23 pass attempts for 163 yards.

Seven of the Rams sacks came at the expense of Saints starting quarterback Archie Manning, while Scott was dropped once.

Manning, suffering through a frustrating night, accounted for only 92 passing yards. He completed 11 of 26 attempts and threw both of Cromwell's interceptions.

Jim Youngblood and Mike Fanning got two sacks apiece for the rampaging Rams' defense, while Fred Dryer, Larry Brooks, Jack Youngblood and Joe Harris each got one.

Cromwell's first interception came on the second play of the third quarter and put Los Angeles on the New Orleans 43. The Rams took 11 plays to set up a 22-yard field goal by Corral. The second interception came at the Rams' 36 in the fourth quarter and Cromwell returned it to the Saints' 30. Corral kicked a 19-yard field goal six plays later.

That field goal, capping the LA scoring, came just six minutes after Peacock's touchdown. That score was set up when Lucious Smith recovered a fumbled punt at the New Orleans 1. Peacock took it in on the second crack at the line.

"The whole idea in football is to control the line of scrimmage," Dryer said. "If you can do that, you are going to win the football game."

The Rams racked up eight quarterback sacks and limited New Orleans to a total offense of just 96 yards.

New Orleans Coach Dick Nolan agreed with Dryer's assessment. "They beat us on the line of scrimmage. We just couldn't knock them off the line," Nolan said.

Nolan talked to team owner John Mecom Jr. after the game, but the coach refused to say what the conversation was about.

Rams Coach Ray Malavasi said he believed his defense let the Saints score more than they should have.

"We relaxed and Jimmy (Rogers) made a heckuva run," he said, referring to an 88-yard kickoff return that set up the fourth-quarter New Orleans touchdown.

Saint fans wear bags over their heads to point out the teams 0-12 record this season following loss to Rams Monday. (AP Laser-photo).

Faust named headman of Notre Dame Irish

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Gerry Faust of Moeller High School in Cincinnati Monday was named head football coach at Notre Dame, replacing Dan Devine, who announced he was resigning before the beginning of the present season.

Faust, 45, has been head coach at Moeller since 1963 during which time his teams have posted a 173-17-2 record and only Sunday Moeller crushed Massillon 30-7 to win the Ohio Division I championship for the fifth time in the last six years.

Moeller finished with a 13-0 record and has won 33 straight including 70 of the last 71 games.

The selection of Faust, who becomes Notre Dame's 24th coach, was announced by Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame.

Rev. Edmund Joyce, executive vice president of Notre Dame and chairman of the athletic board, said "We feel quite strongly that Gerry Faust is the perfect individual to carry on the great tradition associated with athletics at the University of Notre Dame. I don't know of anyone acquainted with Gerry who doesn't have the greatest respect and admiration for him and his accomplishments."

Faust led Moeller to 12 greater Cincinnati football championships and three mythical national titles. Approximately 250 of his players have won college scholarships including 25 from last year's team.

Faust sent 15 of his players to Notre Dame including six members of the present team which is undefeated and ranked second in the Associated Press poll.

Notre Dame was tied by Georgia Tech earlier this season and has only a Dec. 6 regular season game remaining on the schedule at Southern Cal before meeting Georgia in the Sugar Bowl for what could be the national title.

If the Irish succeed in winning the national championship, it will be the second under the guidance of Devine. Devine succeeded Ara Parseghian in 1975 and won the national title in 1977 when Notre Dame upset top-ranked Texas 38-10 in the Cotton Bowl.

Devine, to date, has a 53-14-1 record at Notre Dame and his overall record of 173 collegiate victories is second only to that of Bear Bryant at Alabama.

Devine's overall collegiate record is 173-54-9 dating back to 1955 when he started his head coaching career at Arizona State. He concluded his stay at Arizona State in 1957 with a perfect 10-0 season and then coached 13 years at Missouri.

Alvin Dunson and Darius Berry combined for 48 points Monday night to trigger Coach Paul Stueckler's Midland Lee Rebels to a 74-66 victory over the Class AAAA Lubbock Dunbar Panthers in the Chaparral Center on the Midland College campus.

Dunson, a 6-foot junior guard, pumped in 26 points while Berry, a 5-11 senior forward, added 22 more as the Rebels were evening their basketball record to 2-2 on the season with the victory. The win was a tuneup for Lee's opening round game in the Tall City Invitational Tournament which starts Friday in the Chap Center. The Rebels' first round opponent is the Ysleta Bel Air Highlanders at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Also in the double figures for Lee was Andre Van Buren, who scored 10 points before fouling out in the fourth quarter.

The Lee-Dunbar tilt was nip-and-tuck through the first half with the Rebs taking a 32-30 lead on a pair of free throws by Derek Lane after the Panthers had scored seven unanswered points in the final 32 seconds to tie the game at 30-30.

STUECKLER'S CREW came out in the third period to outscore Dunbar, 25-20 to take a 57-50 lead going into the final eight minutes of action.

Dunbar, on the inside shooting of Lee Bryant and Ty Young, kept things close until late in the game when Lee began pulling away. Bryant, a 6-5 junior flipped in 18 points and Bryant, a 6-4 junior, netted 16 more to the Dunbar attack.

The loss gives Dunbar a 0-3 record on the season.

Lee hit 30 field goals during the contest and only 14 free throws while the Panthers cashed in on 24 of 36 charity tosses. Ted Pillow, who also was in the double figures for the visitors, fouled out of the game in the fourth period while Lee lost 6-5 Kenneth Brown with his fifth foul with 7:45 left in the third period and he went to the bench with no points.

COACH RANDALL Smith's Rebel junior varsity got things off to good start in the preliminary game by downing the Dunbar JVs, 59-51. Van Gravitt, fresh off the football field, led the Rebs with 15 points. He was the only Lee player in the double figures as Lee was bringing its season record to 3-2. Billy Thompson led Dunbar with 16 points.

The Lee sophomores and junior varsity rest until Dec. 2 when they play Snyder in the Chap Center at 4 p.m. and 6:15 p.m.

McMullen resigns; committee formed

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — John McMullen, under fire in recent weeks from Houston Astros limited partners, stepped aside Monday as general partner but will continue to help operate the franchise as part of a three-member executive committee.

Under the new organization, McMullen, Jack Trotter, one of the limited partners who sought McMullen's removal, and T.H. Neyland, an Astros executive from 1974 to 1977 will share equal authority.

Votes by two of the three men, Jamail said, will determine future decisions by the franchise, including player acquisitions or trades.

Jamail, representing the limited partners, announced the new ownership agreement just minutes before he was to have gone into federal court to seek a temporary injunction to keep McMullen from conducting Astros business.

Jamail also had filed suit against McMullen alleging mismanagement and demanding a financial accounting of the team since he took over in July 1979.

Jamail said the suit now had been dropped.

"The people involved believed this situation should be resolved quickly," Jamail said. "It is a critical time when player contracts need to be signed and completed before Dec. 1."

Both sides met over the weekend, Jamail said, and hammered out the agreement.

"Certain conditions were met that make the suit no longer necessary so it has been dropped," Jamail said.

McMullen, who purchased the Astros last year from Ford Motor Credit Co., will retain his 34 per cent interest in the team and will have one vote within the new three-man control group.

Trotter, a Houston investor, holds a 2 percent interest as a limited partner.

Neyland was an Astros executive under former owner Judge Roy Hofheinz and during the acquisition of Hofheinz' interest by his creditors. He was not involved in the limited partnership ownership under McMullen.

McMullen, who has declined comment throughout the ownership squabble, had no immediate comment on the latest development in the reorganization.

Limited partners voted last week to dissolve the general partnership agreement and asked McMullen to resign. When he refused, Jamail filed suit and was scheduled to seek a temporary injunction Monday before U.S. Dist. Judge Carl O. Bue.

The limited partners were angered Oct. 27 when McMullen fired Astros president and general manager Tal Smith and replaced him with Al Rosen. The limited partners reportedly already had been planning to oust McMullen, however, before Smith's

Sugar Bowl foes top football poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Georgia and Notre Dame, Sugar Bowl opponents on Jan. 1, held onto the top two spots today in The Associated Press college football poll, while Florida State remained in third place.

Behind the top three, however, there was plenty of shuffling. Nebraska and Ohio State dropped from fourth and fifth last week to 10th and 11th, respectively, while Pitt and Penn State, who tangle on Friday, moved up to challenge the leaders.

Also posting dramatic jumps this week were Oklahoma, Michigan and Baylor.

Georgia, the nation's only unbeaten and untied team, was idle last weekend. The Bulldogs, who will be seeking to nail down their first perfect regular season since 1946 when they met Georgia Tech on Saturday, received 59 of 66 first-place votes and 1,311 of a possible 1,320 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Notre Dame received three first-place votes and 1,222 points after defeating Air Force 24-10. The Irish have a 9-0-1 record and are the only other undefeated team besides Georgia. They were tied 3-3 by Georgia Tech earlier this month.

Florida State, which hasn't played since Nov. 8, winds up its regular season against No. 18 Florida on Dec. 6. The 9-1 Seminoles received the other four first-place ballots and 1,206 points.

Pitt and Penn State, both 9-1, also had last weekend off. Pitt climbed from sixth to fourth with 1,079 points while Penn State shot from seventh to fifth with 990 points.

Oklahoma's 21-17 triumph over Nebraska vaulted the Sooners from No. 25 to No. 10. (See SUGAR BOWL, Page 2D)

Cole-Lilly tied

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) — Larry "Bubba" Cole tied in the Dallas Cowboys record books with Bob Lilly? Only in America.

Years ago, Cole was the moving force behind the Zero Club which had "Thou shalt not seek publicity" as its motto. Cole formed the club, along with two other little-publicized Dallas linemen, after he had scored three touchdowns in two years from his defensive tackle post against the Washington Redskins on an interception and two fumble returns.

For years after that, nothing spectacular happened to Cole, perhaps the steadiest of the Dallas defenders.

But Sunday the former Zero Club president lost his membership. He victimized the Redskins again for the fourth time in his career.

The 13-year veteran who plays now mostly on pass rush downs, took a deflected pass off his face mask and plodded 43 yards for what proved to be the game-winning touchdown in a 14-10 Dallas victory over Washington.

The score tied Cole, a former 16th-round draft pick from Hawaii, with former All-pro and No. 1 draft choice Lilly, now a member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame, in the Dallas archives for most touchdowns produced by a lineman.

"I just had to catch Lilly," said Cole. "Can you imagine how he is going to feel when he found out I caught him? He might want to make a comeback."

ninth to sixth with 940 points. They close out the regular season on Saturday against Oklahoma State.

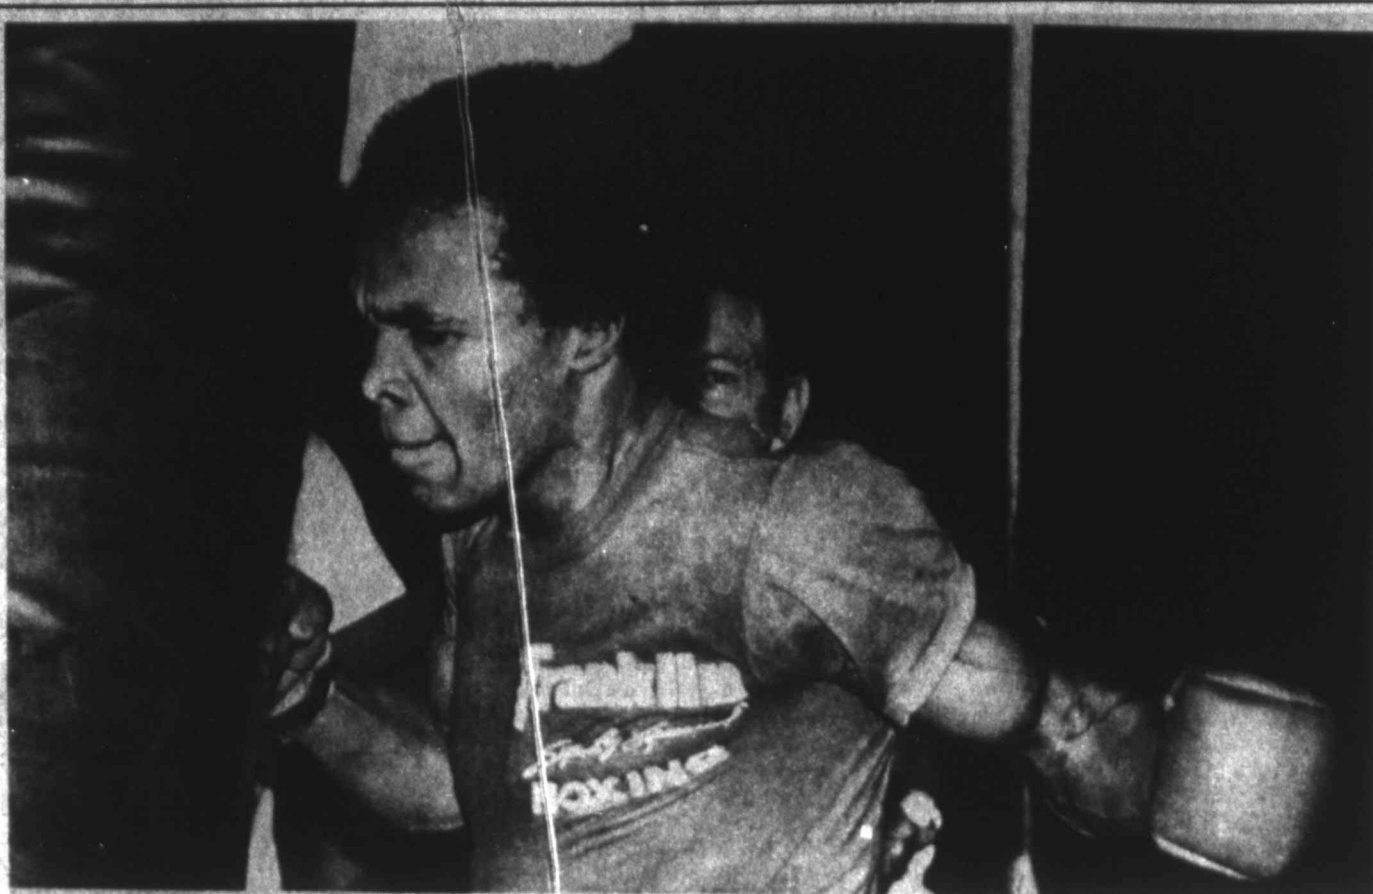

Michigan was another big winner, rising from 10th to seventh by virtue of a 9-3 decision over arch-rival Ohio State. The Rose Bowl-bound Wolverines received 902 points.

Baylor, a 16-0 victor over Texas, jumped from 11th to eighth with 863 points after posting the best regular season record in its history, 10-1. The Bears dropped idle Alabama, their Cotton Bowl opponent, from eighth place to ninth with 784 points. Nebraska rounded out the Top Ten with 728 points.

The Second Ten consists of Ohio State, Brigham Young, North Carolina, UCLA, Washington, Mississippi State, Southern California, Florida, South Carolina and Southern Methodist.

Last week's Second Ten was Baylor, Southern Cal, Brigham Young, South Carolina, North Carolina, Washington, Mississippi State, UCLA, Florida and Texas.

However, Texas lost to Baylor and fell out of the ratings while Southern Methodist, a 31-7 winner over Arkansas, moved back in after a one-week absence.

"Team of the 70s" not assured of having .500 season

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers, the "Team of the 70s," aren't even assured of a .500 finish in 1980.

They are 7-5 with four games remaining, they are beset with their worst injuries ever under Coach Chuck Noll, and they're chasing two teams in the standings.

"We're in a lousy situation, any way you shake it," Coach Chuck Noll said Monday as a cold, misty rain shrouded this city.

But it's not a hopeless situation. Despite Sunday's 28-13 loss in Buffalo, Crane was led by Gonzales' 27 points while high scorer for Andrews was Brown with 26. Crane also won the JV game, 51-38.

Monahans was led by Amos and Nanson with 17 and 16 points while OHS' girls were led by Jernigan's 12 markers.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Outfielder Garry Maddox and third baseman Mike Schmidt of the world champion Philadelphia Phillies head major league Rawlings Gold Glove teams announced Monday by the Sporting News, a weekly publication.

Maddox is the senior member of the teams, earning the designation for fielding excellence a sixth time. Schmidt's selection was his fifth. In the American League, catcher Jim Sundberg of the Texas Rangers was selected a fifth straight time.

American League repeaters are first baseman Cecil Cooper, Milwaukee; second baseman Frank White, Kansas City; third baseman Buddy Bell, Texas, and outfielder Fred Lynn, Boston. National League repeaters are first baseman Keith Hernandez, St. Louis; outfielder Dave Winfield, San Diego, and pitcher Phil Niekro, Atlanta.

NL newcomers are second baseman Doug Flynn, New York; shortstop Ozzie Smith, San Diego, and catcher Gary Carter and outfielder Andre Dawson, Montreal.

Starting guard Sam Davis was lost for the season in training camp. The other guard, Steve Courson, is still on the disabled list. So rookie guards Craig Wolfley and Tyrone McGriff may both start Sunday.

Quarterback Terry Bradshaw sustained a bruised knee in Buffalo. He's been hampered by thumb, elbow, shoulder and rib injuries.

At linebacker, Robin Cole twisted his ankle early in the Buffalo game. His replacement, Loren Toews, was sidelined with leg cramps.

Now, the Steelers must face Miami, then travel to Houston to meet the Oilers four days later in a Thursday night game.

"We may have to suit up the coaches," said Noll.

Duran, Sugar Ray in rematch tonight

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Let's listen to Roberto Duran and Sugar Ray Leonard on their way to their World Boxing Council welterweight championship rematch tonight.

—Following his close but unanimous decision over Leonard in Montreal, Duran says, "I knew I won the fight. I was more of a man. I knew I could do it."

—In an interview in a New York restaurant two days after the fight, Duran says, "Leonard was better than I thought he was going to be. In a rematch, I must fight better and more intelligently. Then next time I fight Leonard, I will knock him out. I will be better prepared."

—Four days after the fight, Leonard says on a national television show, "I feel I have fulfilled what they said I couldn't do. So I guess it's time for me to say, 'Let's cool out and try something else.'"

—Later that day, Leonard says, "Yeah, I said that. But you must understand, 'cool out' is a slang expression. I just want to rest up and get myself together. I have not made any decision whatsoever as far as retiring."

—At a news conference in New York Oct. 15 to formally announce a rematch, Leonard, who exchanged "I'll kill you" threats with Duran before the first fight says, "All the hype isn't necessary this time. I'm not going to say 'I'll knock him out' in the first round, the second round, the third round. All I'll say is that it will again be one of the greatest fights you'll ever see..."

—At that Oct. 13 news conference, Duran stares at Leonard and says, "I'm going to knock you out. I don't like you." And to the crowd Duran says, "You're going to see blood shed in this fight. Last time he said he will kill me. Well now is the time for him to do it because I'm the champion. I'm smarter than him. I know him; he doesn't know him. He also said Leonard tries to imitate Muhammad Ali. But an imitator is a loser."

—Leonard, on the dais with Duran at a press luncheon in New Orleans Nov. 18, says, "I've trained diligently for this fight because I know what I'm up against." About his handlers' unhappiness with the refereeing and judging in Montreal, Leonard says, "I'm not concerned about the referee and the judges. My main concern is Sugar Ray Leonard. I've got to make the results happen. I'm here to fight and to defend the championship, and this time Mr. Leonard is going to kiss the floor of the ring. I want a referee who knows how to count from 1 to 10."

—Told that Duran predicts a knockout, Leonard says, "When a guy cooperates, there's always a chance of a knockout, but Duran is so stubborn I'll settle for a decision."

—Asked what's behind his ill feeling toward Leonard, Duran says, "Nothing, I just don't like him."

—Leonard, who became an instant television celebrity and a quick millionaire after winning an Olympic gold medal in 1976, responds: "I never understood why he dislikes me. But after thinking about it, I believe it is because of the way I came up."

Says Duran: "Everything I've fought for, I've earned and I deserve it."

Says Leonard: "I don't like him for the way he is, the way he wants to be a bully. If he was my neighbor, I'd move. The only nice thing about Duran is he's the champion."

It sounds from this vantage point as though Duran will remain champion ... on an eighth-round knockout.

Sly Williams paces young New York Knicks

NEW YORK (AP) — Sly Williams is only in his second year in the National Basketball Association, but he's filling a leadership role for the young New York Knicks.

Monday night, in the only NBA game scheduled, the 6-foot-7 forward from Rhode Island scored a career-high 26 points to lead the Knicks to a 113-110 overtime victory over the Houston Rockets.

Williams scored the last five New York points in regulation to help force a 100-100 tie, then got seven of his team's 13 points in overtime.

Williams' three-point play with 42 seconds remaining in regulation tied the score after Moses Malone, who also scored 26 points, had put the Rockets on top 100-97 with a similar play — a driving basket followed by a free throw. Then both teams played giveaway until the buzzer went off.

Houston guard Calvin Murphy stepping out of bounds with 10 seconds left and Williams losing the ball out of bounds on a drive with six seconds remaining.

However, the Knicks put in the first six points of the overtime and were never headed.

Williams attributes his much-improved play this season to "confidence and an attitude change. It's knowing that I'll be a major part and playing more."

"This was a big victory for us because we lost three straight and had been in a slump," he added. "If you have to slump, however, it's better to have it now rather than later in the season."

Teammate Ray Williams was the game's leading scorer with 32 points.

This hand is from their qualifying match against Poland. North-South were using transfer bids—North's two diamond response show, a hand containing five or more hearts. Since responder could be weak, South could do no more than accept the transfer by bidding two hearts. North made the value raise to four hearts and the result of all this was that the strong hand was concealed.

Paul Chemla of Paris was the declarer. He received the lead of the ace of clubs, and West continued with a club to the king. If the defenders attacked diamonds early, it seemed that Chemla would have to lose two spades and a diamond as well as the club already lost, but the position was by no means clear to the defense.

East might have made life easier for his partner had he dropped the ten of spades rather than the six. Wasting such a valuable card could have been costly, so we do not fault him.

Canadian reassessment underway

TULSA, Okla. — A massive reassessment of corporate strategies is under way in the Canadian petroleum industry, Oil and Gas Journal says.

Companies management and accountants are working overtime to review each company's position and future spending policies in light of the new fiscal regime, the weekly business magazine says.

Causes of the furor in the Canadian oil patch are the national energy policy aimed at spurring "Canadianization" of the industry, now 70 percent foreign-owned, and new taxes which will feed an additional $24 billion in petroleum revenues into federal coffers during the next four years.

The federal tax and energy policies are designed to boost the federal share of revenues from 10 percent to a minimum 24 percent, slash industry's share from 45 to 32 percent, and cut petroleum-producing provinces' share from 45 to 43 percent.

But Shell Canada Ltd. Chairman William Daniel maintains the changes will give the federal government 45 percent of petroleum revenues by 1983 and reduce industry's share to 24 percent instead of the 32 percent forecast in the budget. His assessment includes the petroleum compensation charge and the tax on natural gas sales, the Journal says.

Spokesmen for various segments of the petroleum industry and the investment community predict the economic fallout from new federal policies will include:

— Substantial cuts in exploration and development activity as reduced cash flow limits companies' abilities to spend and borrow.

— Acceleration of a trend already under way for Canadian companies, particularly smaller independents, to switch substantial amounts of their exploration budgets to U.S. plays.

— A decline of up to 40 percent in Canadian drilling activity in 1981 with a parallel decline in the seismic and oil-field-service industries.

— Takeover of several multinational Canadian subsidiaries by state-owned Petro-Canada, which will have special land privileges and access to a fund designed to finance purchases of foreign companies.

Meanwhile, Alberta, which produces 85 percent of Canada's oil and gas, is fighting the new federal moves. It will cut its crude production by 180,000 barrels per day for nine months beginning with a 60,000 barrel per day reduction March 1.

The province also has frozen approval for two major tar-sands projects in northern Alberta with a combined capital cost of $16 billion. The projects would add more than 250,000 barrels per day to Canada's production in the mid-1980's.

Alberta's production cut is designed to force the federal government to import oil at international prices. And the suspended tar-sands plants are considered vital to Ottawa's political objective of achieving oil self-sufficiency by the end of this decade.

The Alberta moves are seen as an attempt to get the federal government back to the bargaining table on oil pricing and revenue-sharing before the first production cut is imposed in March, the Journal says.

Energy sufficiency appears to be dim

HOUSTON — The prospect of the United States becoming energy self-sufficient by the year 2000 is bleak and the burden of solving America's energy problems will be borne by today's younger generation.

That was the picture painted for student journalists attending a recent press reception in Houston hosted by National Supply Co.

Speakers at the reception — National Supply's Fourth Annual Student Press Conference — included Peter J. Trepanier, vice president — Administration.

"It's pretty obvious that the older generation has done a poor job in handling meeting America's energy needs and strong action must be taken by your generation if America is to change what is currently a bleak picture," Trepanier said. "Your generation will be called upon to do better if America is to have any hope of being energy self-sufficient by the year 2000."

Almost 200 students from 15 Houston area high schools attended the press conference at National Supply's Houston Machinery Center.

During the panel discussion, the student journalists were told that imported oil accounted for 46 percent of this year's total consumption and would account for 33 percent of the total needs at the turn of the century.

If left unchecked, that addition to foreign oil will affect today's younger generation directly in terms of inflation, lower living standards and a decline in U.S. productivity.

"We tried to show the students how this addition to imported oil is hurting their lives and affecting their future," Trepanier said. "We outlined steps that the United States must take to become energy self-sufficient." Those steps, he said, include increased production of oil and gas, a switch to widespread use of coal and oil substitutes, stepped-up conservation efforts and wise use of nuclear power.

"We also showed them how they can participate in developing a commitment to energy self-sufficiency by becoming better informed, voting and lobbying for their ideas. We also pointed out to them that they can play a direct role in meeting America's energy challenge by pursuing a career in energy."

Most of tanker spill area cleaned

PILOTTOWN, La. (AP) — Most of the 1.3 million gallons of crude oil spilled from a tanker near the mouth of the Mississippi River has been cleaned up, and state officials say it appears that a nearby wildlife refuge should not suffer serious damage.

Joe Colson, a spokesman for the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission, said Monday preliminary reports indicated the Delta Migratory Water Fowl Refuge "will not be damaged to any great degree."

Also nearby is the Pass A Loutre Game and Fish Preserve at the mouth of the river.

The oil poured into the river Saturday when the Norwegian tanker

Georgia ran over its own anchor chain and ripped a hole in its hull, below the water line, the Coast Guard said.

Lt. Cmdr. Tom Pearson of the Coast Guard said owners of the Georgia "accepted full responsibility" and were paying for the cleanup. He said the Coast Guard's only role was to monitor the cleanup.

Cleanup crews who were unloading the oil so damage could be examined roped off a wide area near Southwest Pass at the mouth of the river.

"It's going to take a couple of days to settle it down," said Jim Latiolais, vice president of Peterson Maritime Services, one of two companies handling the cleanup.

Changes due in semi-arid Colorado

By Mike Richmond
Copley News Service

RIO BLANCO COUNTY, Colo. — The first thing that usually makes an impression on visitors to this semi-arid, sagebrush-dotted, juniper-studded part of Colorado is the immensity of the land.

There are still plenty of areas where, as far as one can see, there are no buildings or roads and there are more mule deer than people.

But changes are coming as the energy industry steps up its efforts to exploit the rich deposits of oil shale which lie under the region's soil.

The vastness of the shale oil resource "is mind-boggling," says Peter Rutledge, the federal government's area oil shale supervisor in Grand Junction, Colo.

The U.S. Department of the Interior has estimated that there are about 1.8 trillion barrels of shale oil underlying 16,000 square miles of Colorado, Utah and Wyoming and about 600 billion barrels is considered to be recoverable by known technology.

At the current U.S. consumption rate it would be enough to meet the nation's oil needs for the next 100 years. Since the federal government launched a prototype oil shale leasing program in 1973, efforts to exploit the resource have mushroomed.

Today there are more than a dozen energy companies involved in various phases of oil shale development in Colorado alone, where 60 percent of the reserves are located.

The high cost of producing oil from shale has in the past stalled development.

But the steadily increasing price of conventional crude oil has made the economics of shale oil more favorable.

"If we had a commercial plant we could compete with foreign oil now, we think," said Ted Neptune, a spokesman for the Rio Blanco Oil Shale Co., which is a joint project of Gulf Oil Corp. and Standard Oil Co. of Indiana to test the economic and environmental feasibility of extracting oil from shale.

Located in Rio Blanco County on a 5,100-acre federal lease tract awarded by the government seven years ago, the project is moving toward what is hoped will be a commercial production plant by the mid-1980's.
