Former Chinese leader confesses to crimes

Second response to Iran's demands may be sent soon its No. 2 man DAY 39 may return to Algeria soon with the next U.S. reponse to Iran's demands for ending the 13month standoff.

Spokesman John H. Trattner held out the possibility of a return trip by Dep-

Christopher flew to Algeria earlier this month to deliver the first U.S. response to Iran's four conditions for releasing the Americans.

Meanwhile, one of the Islamic militants occupying the U.S.Embassy in Tehran denied today news reports that the 49 hostages held in the embassy had been delivered to the Iranian government.

We have not delivered the hostages to the government yet, and when we do we will issue a statement announcing it," said the militant, who was reached by telephone from Beirut, Lebanon.

Both CBS and NBC quoted foreign sources Thursday night as saying the Iranian government has taken custody of the hostages from the militants who seized them Nov. 4, 1979. Three of the hostages are being held in the Foreign Ministry.

CBS, quoting "usually reliable sources," said most of the hostages have been moved from the U.S. Embassy to Tehran's Evin Prison, which once held some of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's foes.

NBC said the militants at the embassy claim they no longer are involved in the hostage matter. Iranian government sources denied

Misery spreads in wake of quake

By CLARA HEMPHILL Associated Press Writer

NAPLES, Italy (AP) - "We don't need food or medicine...we need coffins. There isn't anybody left alive,' said a volunteer relief worker as heavy rainstorms and the threat of snow added to the misery of an estimated 300,000 homeless survivors of the earthquake in the Naples-Salerno

There were reports a "coffin racket" was thriving in the town of Lioni, east of Naples, and the head of rescue operations, Giuseppe Zamberletti, said people from other regions were trying to sell coffins for as much as $1,800 apiece.

Government tallies of the casualties in Europe's worst quake in 65 years ranged from 3,496 dead and missing to 4,468, with 7,751 injured reported. The state radio said 27 survivors were pulled from the rubble Thursday, four days after the quake Sunday. Among them were three doctors buried in the ruins of the hospital at San Angelo dei Lombardi.

Zamberletti asked the government to provide 3,500 railroad cars to house quake surivors sleeping in tents or in the open. The government asked owners of campers to lend them for use in the quake zone.

Column after column of relief supplies and personnel poured down the autostradas from northern Italy. But narrow roads, mud and debris from the quake slowed them down when they set out for the isolated villages in the mountainous quake zone. About 150 villagers demanding food, tents and other supplies sat on the railroad tracks at the station in Angri, south of Naples, and blocked all trains to and from Sicily. "We have a thousand people without roofs. We're sleeping in the open air. We haven't eaten in two days,' said the mayor of Friguento, in Avellino, the hardest hit province.

An elementary school in Salerno was crowded by surivors seeking shelter from the rain. Some families were camped in three unused trains on a siding in Naples. Others huddled in cars. U.S. paratroopers spent Thanksgiving teaching Italian soldiers how to put up 1,000 U.S. Army tents flown down from West Germany, Another shipment of 1,000 was on the way. Criticism of Premier Arnaldo For-lani's government increased. It fired its representative in Avellino, but Forlani refused to accept the resignation of Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni, who offered to quit Wednesday to appease the critics.

"Accepting your resignation would mean increasing the difficulties of those struggling to help suffering peo ple," Forlani wrote Rognoni. Journalists and volunteers have gotten to many of the shattered villages before the rescue squads, sometimes as much as 24 hours ahead. In many places, lack of bulldozers and cranes delayed removal of wreckage, under which bodies or survivors were believed to be.

Communist Party Secretary Enrico Berlinguer charged the government with "intolerable slowness" and said "once again the government is unprepared...despite its promises of a permanent alert system."

Auditor recalls fatal nightclub fire

By STEVE WILSON Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) - The threats and midnight phone calls have stopped. It's been years since anyone openly blamed him for the fire that killed nearly 500 merrymakers at the Cocoanut Grove nightclub 38 years ago

Still, Stanley F. Tomaszewski felt a chill when he heard about the MGM Grand hotel blaze in Las Vegas that claimed 84 lives last week.

'Why didn't they learn? Where were the sprinklers? Where were all the monitors?" said Tomaszewski.

Tomaszewski, a soft-spoken, 54year-old auditor, has reason to be horrified by deadly fire: He not only saw the tragedy of the Grove blaze, Nov. 28, 1942, but was accused of causing it.

Then a 16-year-old busboy, Tomaszewski had struck a match near an imitation palm tree so he could replace a light bulb in the basement cocktail lounge of what was one of Boston's most popular nightspots.

About that time, fire broke out. Within 12 minutes, the building was

Holiday traffic toll now at 138

By The Associated Press

The nation's Thanksgiving traffic death toll passed 138 today as some people returned to work and others extended their holiday into the weekend.

The National Safety Council estimated that between 500 and 600 persons could lose their lives in highway accidents between 6 p.m. Wednesday and midnight Sunday.

During a four-day, non-holiday period at this time of the year, council statisticians said, 685 highway deaths could be expected.

Last year, there were 466 Thanksgiving weekend traffic deaths. The worst four-day holiday was a Thanksgiving observance in 1968 when 764 persons were killed.

57-mile-long wall almost completed by Iraqi forces

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Iraq, indicating it expects a long war, has almost completed building a 57-mile long wall in Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province to protect Iraqi forces against winter floods and possible attempts by Iran to "drown" the invaders by letting loose irrigation dams, an Iraqi newspaper said

Both sides reported their troops, tanks and helicopter gunships engaged around the Iranian refining city of Abadan, at the southern end of the battlefront on the Shatt al-Arab estuary, and the highway town of Susangerd, 85 miles to the north.

Meanwhile, a Baghdad military communique claimed Iraqi troops beat back an Iranian counterattack in the highlands of Gilan Gharb in the northern sector of the 300-mile-long war zone, leaving 70 Iranian troops Pars, Iran's official news agency,

Thanksgiving celebrated across nation

By C.W. MIRANKER Associated Press Writer

Traditional turkey went creole for Haltian newcomers in Miami while time-honored celebrations marked Thanksgiving Day across the nation—family dinners, Macy's parade, football games and at nightfall, a blaze of Christmas lights to usher in another holiday season.

Turkey seasoned with onions, garlic, cloves and cayenne pepper was dished out for 57 Haitian youngsters Thursday at a refugee camp near Miami. They said grace in their native Creole, and then chorused, "Happy Thanksgiving!"

"Happy Thanksgiving!"
At the Fort Chaffee, Ark., relocation camp, 6,600 Cuban refugees feasted on a ton of turkey with hundreds of gallons of trimmings. Some also paraded with signs that read: "Thanks To The American People" and "Fort Chaffee, Arkansas, Free-

Nine-digit ZIP code to unveil next year

By JEFFREY MILLS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Your ninedigit Social Security number, 10-digit telephone number, 13-digit credit card numbers and 10-digit bank account numbers are about to get com-

Starting next year, you will have a nine-digit ZIP code.

The Postal Service says this newest compromise with the computerized age will hold down the cost of sorting mail and thus reduce the need for future postal rate increases.

"All of us would prefer not to have so many numbers in our lives," Postmaster General William F. Bolger said. But he said extending the current five-digit ZIP codes to nine numbers is essential for more modern and more efficient mail sorting.

Some 600 government employees using banks of computer terminals are almost finished dividing every ZIP code into many smaller areas. Next fall all Americans will be told their new numbers in a huge mass mailing.

Before then, in February, the major business mailers who send most of the 100 billion pieces of mail per year will be given the expanded codes, and Bolger has promised businesses incentives to use them - probably a half-cent to one-cent reduction in postage charges per letter.

Conversion to longer ZIP codes, the subject of elaborate planning since being announced more than two years ago, is the keystone of a Postal Service effort to save money by sorting more mail with fewer workers.

Postal officials do not promise any reduction in mail rates or faster service. But they say that current service levels will be maintained with fewer rate increases in the future than would be needed under current methods.

The five-digit code, in use since 1963, will remain, followed by a hyphen and the four new numbers. Thus, 20004 could become 20004-6789.

The 19.8 million different ZIP codes will allow separate ZIP codes for every residential block and often for each side of the street. Most business buildings will have a separate code and some floors in office buildings will have their own codes.

Objections to longer ZIP codes have been voiced in Congress, by the postal workers union and by some business mailers who will have to spend money to change their computerized mailing

One of the more vocal critics is Ray Geiger, editor of Farmers' Almanac. Geiger predicts the longer code "will drive people crazy. It's preposterous and ridiculous.

Joyce Greenberg, a businesswoman who testified at a congressional hearing called by Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., said use of the extra numbers is voluntary only "if you don't care when you get that piece of mail." Because her company's meat products could spoil if lost in the mail. Mrs. Greenberg said she plans to go ahead and update her addresses with the added digits at a cost of $6,000.

William F. Bolger U.S. Postmaster General

Bolger says these arguments are similar to those voiced when the fivedigit code was introduced. Despite some opposition then, the code now is used on 98 percent of first-class mail,

With the longer codes, he said, machines will read the numbers and automatically sort the mail into any carrier route in the nation.

Polish union ends strike at steel plant

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - The Solidarity union ended a strike at the Warsaw steel plant early today while maintaining a strike alert in the Warsaw region as it continued to press the government. But Lech Walesa, the leader of the independent labor movement, urged his forces to hold their fire "for the great battles to come."

Solidarity strikes at six other Warsaw plants and plans for walkouts in other factories were called off Thursday when the government released two men arrested in connection with a classified government document found by police in the union's Warsaw office.

The strike continued at the Huta Warszawa steel plant to back up the union's demands for an investigation of police actions during labor unrest in 1970 and 1976, limits on the budgets of the police and the state prosecutor and the release of four men charged with "anti-socialist"

Deputy Premier Mieczysław Jagielski told the president of Solidarity's Warsaw chapter, Zbigniew Bujak, he would meet union officials next week. The steel workers agreed to resume work after Walesa and other Solidarity officials told them they were satisfied the government would honor a commitment to negotiate.

Walesa, who flew to Warsaw from the Baltic port of Gdansk to take part in the strategy sessions, was clearly upset over the labor movement's frequent use of the strike weapon and its use in support of political demands

'We should step up organization activity, check channels of communication and prepare for the great battles to come," he told a rally of the 10,000 workers at the plant. "If we have some power, let's not risk it. This is a step toward confrontation.

.. The situation now is very tense and I feel awkward for giving promises to the government that we will fight only for the union. And some of the demands are political right now.

But Walesa added that he would support the strike if the steel workers decided to continue it.

Walesa leads a moderate faction that believes the independent labor movement should consolidate its gains and concentrate on setting up a working organization. More militant leaders want to keep pressing the government without any letup on both economic and political issues.

East Germany and Czechoslovkakia continue to criticize the Polish labor movement almost daily, and U.S. State Department spokesman John Trattner made reference Thursday to Soviet troops on the Polish border being in a "state of readiness."

11th Arab summit OKs regional development plan

By ALY MAHMOUD Associated Press Writer

AMMAN, Jordan - The 11th Arab League summit conference approved a $5 billion regional development plan and paid lip service to Iraq's claims against Iran. But the Syrian boycott blocked plans for a unified approach to the next U.S. administration.

Hussein had hoped to carry such a plan to President-elect Ronald Reagan. He told a news conference after the summit he was willing to go to Washington after Reagan takes office in January, but only in his capacity as Jordan's leader.

There had been speculation the summit would authorize Hussein to speak on behalf of all Arabs.

Playing the game

Realizing that first impressions are important, President-elect Ronald Reagan has waltzed through Washington with the air of a man who knows where he's been and how to get where he's

He has paid courtesies that should have been extended, said the right things to the right people, apparently, and played the role of the new head of state enjoying the full privileges and responsibilities of his new position. The only difference is this "role" is for real.

Reagan has met with leading Democrats in the Congress, in addition to those individuals in his own party, and has given them the respect they deserve. He met with House Speaker "Tip" O'Neill, showing the Massachusetts Democrat the respect that Jimmy Carter didn't when he came to Washington. And he met with the justices of the U.S. Supreme Court, an unusual but conspicuously respectful move for a president-elect.

The former California governor has made one thing perfectly clear, as if we didn't already realize it. Ronald Reagan is politically astute. He knows how to move in the world of politics and he takes advantage of that knowledge. Is that really important? Think back four years to when Jimmy Carter inherited the presidency and stumbled into Washington, offending fellow politicos and breaking the rules of political etiquette.

Carter's honeymoon with the Congress and Washington didn't last very long. Not long on the scene, he found he'd alienated himself from the rest of government. That's a difficult position for a sitting president to find himself in. It doesn't make for smooth working relations with the House or Senate, or the rest of the federal government.

It's obvious that Reagan does not want to repeat Carter's mistakes. Rather, he wants to show Da respect where it's due, firmness where it's needed, kindness and compassion where it's appropriate — and always leadership.

Politics is the name of the game in Washington. Reagan knows that. He's not sacrificing anything or compromising himself because that's the way the game's

Oh, they're doing okay as vocational training schools. They're still turning out some pretty fine lawyers, accountants, engineers, scientists and doctors. What they seem to be failing at is educating the whole person. They are cranking out educated but ignorant people.

What most of them are ignorant of are history, philosophy, religion, ethics and logic. For journalism graduates, add grammar and spelling. For teachers, add math. In other words, many people today emerge from hallowed halls equipped to make a buck but totally unfit for leadership.

Personally, I wouldn't call anybody educated who was not fluent in more than one language and that alone eliminates 98 percent of both graduates and faculty. Even requiring competence in English would eliminate a lot of them.

I am not anti-education. I am anticlaptrap that masquerades as education. It ought to require intelligence and hard work to earn a college degree and the experience should mark a person for life. As it is, it's difficult to tell from conversation and association whether a person is college educated. I once received an irate letter from a magna cum laude graduate who had to apologize for his poor spelling and punctuation before proceeding to tell me how ignorant I

I don't mean to paint an all-black picture. There are some excellent coleges and universities and I doubt if there is a campus anywhere on which you won't find men and women of brilliance and integrity. What is needed is awareness of the critically important role higher education plays in a nation and of the problems which are growing instead of receding.

In my home state not long ago one of those blue ribbon outfits was hired to study higher education. By the time all the parochial interests, politicians, faculty union members and other axgrinders finished with the report, the whole project ended up not much more than an expensive waste of

I have no easy answers. I'm sure of only one thing. We had better focus our attention on higher education, look at it objectively and improve it. The nation desperately needs all the quality leaders it can get in every imaginable field, public and private, and the only major source of this leadership is higher education.

In a real sense, the fate of the nation is being forged on college and university campuses across the land.

Is Justice Department protecting Carter?

WASHINGTON — Senate investigators and a federal judge in Denver suspect that the Justice Department's manipulation of witnesses who could give details of Robert Vesco's influence-buying schemes reflects a determination to protect President Carter, top White House aides and his brother Billy from embarrassment.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

In fact, the silencing of one key witness was described by U.S. District Judge Fred Winner as "the worst naked use of raw power I have Strange things have happened to witnesses who were about to tell their stories in various forums — to Senate investigators or grand juries or, in one instance, to me. The fact that these potential whistle blowers are shady operators already in trouble with the law gave the Justice Department a powerful club over them and the department has not been reluctant to use it.

Senate investigators told my associates Indy Badhwar and Bob Sherman that the handling of three key participants who have offered to spill the beans suggests a disturbing pattern of official coverup. Here are the facts:

FIRST WITNESS: The most important whistle-blower — and potentially the most damaging — is, of course, Vesco himself. In July 1979, the fugitive financier offered to leave his refuge in the Bahamas to tell a Washington grand jury what he knew about his attempt to buy White House favor through Georgia cronies of Carter aides Hamilton Jordan and Richard Harden. In return for this testimony on a criminal conspiracy, Vesco asked for temporary immunity from arrest. The Justice Department refused the request, thereby preventing his appearance before the grand

Instead, the FBI cooked up a plot, known as Operation Kingfish, to kidnap Vesco from the Bahamas where he had been living for a year to escape extradition — and take him into U.S. jurisdiction. This would have had the effect of stripping a dangerous witness of his bargaining power and, therefore, shutting him

A more recent offer from Vesco to testify before the Senate Judiciary Committee - if he were given temporary immunity - was also scotched by the department.

The Bahamian government recently ordered Vesco to leave the country by December 11. As I reported earlier, his banishment from the Bahamas was probably due to the transmittal of raw rumors by the FBI to the Bahamian government, in an apparent attempt to link Vesco to the Caribbean drug trade.

SECOND WITNESS: Another key insider who has been officially muzzled is R.L. Herring, a Georgia businessman who teamed up with Spencer Lee IV, a hometown buddy of Jordan and Harden, in a scheme to get $12 million in stolen securities from Vesco in exchange for an attempt to influence the White House to end Vesco's legal troubles in this coun-

Lee approached Harden in February 1977 and Harden later told the president of Vesco's hopes for assistance. Incredibly, the new president not only failed to refer the bribery attempt to the Justice Department for investigation, but wrote a note to his then-attorney general asking him to "please see" Lee when asked for an

In July 1978, Herring was on his way to see me with a briefcase full of incriminating documents when he was nabbed at the Moultrie, Ga., airport and jailed on a loan fraud charge. The Justice Department may have overheard the phone conversation in which I arranged a secret rendezvous with Herring. Although bail of only $50,000 was set for Herring's accomplice in the loan fraud, Herring's was put at $500,000, which he could not raise. At first, the government tried to prevent me from seeing Herring in jail, but relented under pressure.

Herring subsequently began cooperating with Senate investigators about Vesco's White House dealings and a grand jury was convened to look into the charges. The Justice Department tried to discredit Herring's testimony by telling the grand jury that he had refused a lie detector test. Actually, Herring agreed to take such a test, but rewrote the questions so they would reflect the direct involvement of White House officials. Justice refused to administer the revised test. Meanwhile, the pro-White House witness, Spencer Lee, failed two lie detector tests.

Finally, last month, a week before Herring was to appear before the Judiciary Committee, he was indicted for murder in a dubious three-yearold Virginia case. He was later transferred - in the middle of the night -from a jail cell in Miami to a federal facility in Memphis. According to an eyewitness, the guards took custody of the documents Herring was going to offer the Senate committee.

THIRD WITNESS: The third potential embarrassment to the Carter administration is James Feeney, a convicted con artist who had wormed his way into another Vesco bribery scheme. That one was a plan to spread $30 million of Libyan money among a coterie of con men who attempted to influence administration bigshots to lift an embargo on transport planes bought by the Libyan government.

Hoping to gain leniency on an unrelated fraud conviction, Feeney had worked undercover for the U.S. attorney's office in New York and had passed on detailed information about the Libyans' contacts with Democratic Party bigshots and the president's brother Billy. Senate investigators learned about Feeney's role and asked him to testify. One week before Feeney was to sing to the Judiciary Committee, the Justice Department indicted him on 56 new counts of fraud. Since anything he might say to the committee could be used against him in court, he could not testify.

It was this heavy-handed action that Judge Winner called the worst display of "raw power" he has ever

"There is no SALT negotiating strategy now and won't be for quite some time," one Reagan adviser told us. "Gov. Reagan is not about to move into that area in any haste."
The contradiction between Rea-an's first-things-first approach and the unseemly haste that galvanized Carter and his arms control lobby four years ago is both real and symbolic. Even before taking the oath of office, Carter was issuing orders to the Joint Chiefs of Staff for studies pointing to radical reductions of longrange nuclear missiles. SALT came first, and all else hung from it. With Reagan, overall defense strategy comes first.

But Carter had undergone significant change by Aug. 14, 1979, when he approved PD-50. That was two months after his SALT II treaty with the Russians ran into a hornet's nest of political opposition. The presidential directive was attacked and ridiculed privately by the arms control lobby still riding high in the Carter administration. But Carter stuck to

Written by a senior Soviet specialist on Zbigniew Brzezinski's National Security Council staff, the directive now turns out to be a remarkable fit for the arms control philosophy of President-elect Reagan (who reagards SALT II as a dangerous piece of paper he would never have signed.)

Carter's switch to caution was signalled in three basic questions spelled out in PD-50: Does arms control contribute to achieving U.S. defense and force posture goals? Will it restrain U.S. adversaries and help U.S. allies? Will it truly limit arms competition and truly reduce the "likelihood of

How Carter, the convinced armscontroller, became converted from all-out enthusiast to healthy skeptic (despite campaign rhetoric attacking Reagan's alleged war-mongerism) is hidden in the mists of contemporary U.S.-Soyiet relations. One factor was the gradually-emerging folly of Carter's State Department pushing for Indian Ocean neutralization at the very time the Soviets were building immense new power along the contiguous shorelines of Asia and Africa. Another was the folly of negotiating a U.S.-Soviet limit on conventional arms aid to friendly foreign countries when the Soviets were pushing over $1 billion of arms on Ethiopia.

Whatever it was that changed Carter, his promulgation of PD-50 now becomes strong reinforcement for the long, cold look that Reagan is giving the SALT process and other arms control fancies. After studying PD-50 recently, one senior Reagan adviser told us: "It's a good document. It helps explain why Reagan. would never let arms control drive his foreign policy."

Firefighters treated to turkey, other Thanksgiving trimmings

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — It was round and frozen. It didn't look as if it had ever had feathers.

But to the firefighters at Glen Helen base camp, it was as close as they would come to a Thanksgiving turkey dinner this year

"First time I ever had a round turkey in my life," said one firefighter as he passed the outdoor kitchen where boxes of turkey, dressing and pumpkin pies were being turned into the traditional meal.

Asked if he had tasted any of the pre-cooked turkey breast, firefighter Bob Konopka of Chico answered "No darn it. But it doesn't matter. I'm a 'Turkey?'' asked a youthful firefighter from San Bernardino as he burst out laughing at the lump of white meat.

The camp was home for some 3,400 men and women fighting the Panorama and Summit fires that have burned 24,000 acres in one of the worst outbreaks of fires in Southern California history. The camp is in a valley between two ranges where the fires can be seen clearly.

Many of the men and women who risk their lives to stamp out those flames expressed a surprising admiration for the enemy.

"I've been fighting fires for 11 years," said Klamath fireman Clark Willis, "and I've nearly been killed, and some of my friends have died in them, so I have a healthy respect for them. But I still think they're beautiful, especially at night.'

As the firefighters come off the line, grimy and bleary-eyed, they head first to a bulletin board to read newspaper accounts of the fire they were just fighting.

Noise and activity abound, but half the people are asleep; sociability is everywhere, but the men are too tired People bustle around the command

At midday Thursday, some firefighters were going to sleep while others were just waking up.

Down by Ash Cove, a crew was feeding a few ducks which had been scared out of a pond by helicopters landing to suck up water which would be dropped on the flames.

Across a parking lot, six men started a vain search for anyone with enough energy left to play baseball.

Fire investigators returning today to historic Cannery Row

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Investigators were returning to historic Cannery Row today to seek the source of a fire that gutted three buildings and caused $1.5 million damage.

"The scene is still secured, and it will remain secured until the investigators sift through to find the cause," Fire Capt. Ray Savage said Thurs-

More than 30 firefighters battled the blaze for two hours Wednesday evening. Flames from the wooden two-story buildings could be seen more than five miles away.

Savage said eight small retail businesses were destroyed, and officials suspected the fire was deliberately canned inside the buildings in the 1930s and 1940s, but the area fell into disrepair when the fish mysteriously vanished from the nearby section of the Pacific Ocean.

The buildings were converted to antique, leather and gift shops catering to tourists.

The fire narrowly missed Doc Ricketts' laboratory, a commercial marine biology lab preserved from the day of author John Steinbeck. Steinbeck often visited the lab, and Ricketts was one of a number of colorful figures portrayed in Steinbeck's 1945 novel, "Cannery Row."

Steinbeck worked at one of the canneries, and his novels are credited with helping make the row a tourist

Boston fire officials probing brownstone office fire's cause

BOSTON (AP) - Fire officials today were investigating the cause of a blaze that heavily damaged an elegant, Back Bay brownstone housing the Atlantic Monthly magazine and a major education consulting firm. The fire began in the cellar of the five-story building overlooking the Boston Public Garden and caused about $250,000 damage, said Fire Commissioner George Paul.

Eight firefighters were injured, none seriously, in the 8 a.m. Thursday Harbridge House, an international educational consulting firm, lost "ir-replacable" research papers, said Charles Baker, chairman of its board of directors. The fire also destroyed its recent renovations valued at $1

Only minor water damage was reported in the offices of the Atlantic Monthly and its book-publishing oper-

"It looks like it will take a couple of days to clean it up, but there should be no interruption at all in the magazine," said outgoing magazine editor Robert Manning.

The building also houses the offices of The World Paper and a dozen other small companies.

A security guard detected smoke from the fire, and cellar sprinklers touched off an alarm at fire headquarters, officials said.

"It went up the walls, blew out the second floor office, then went up to the roof and spread across both ways," Paul said. "The building has a mansard roof, and...there is so much wood in the roof for bracing that when fire gets into it, it's hard to get at. It can burn right around a fire wall."

Paul said the building was constructed soundly, and the burned cen-tral section could be rebuilt.

Devil winds' subside; Battle against brushfire 'optimistic'

By JOHN ANTCZAK Associated Press Writer

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — While capricious "devil winds" subsided, firefighters took to the air with water tankers and battled flames on doorsteps as they began to turn the tide in the fight against blazes that have scorched 80,000 acres.

'Overall, it is looking pretty optimistic," Joanna Guttman of the U.S. Forest Service said Thursday. Four people have been killed and 319 buildings damaged or destroyed since the rash of fires, one of the worst in Southern California history, began

Howling Santa Ana winds up to 100 mph had sent flames leaping over highways and surging through

But the winds declined as the week wore on, and the 30 mph gusts Thursday enabled firefighters to make their first widespread use of air tankers to drop water and fire retardant on the seven blazes still burning. Three have been extinguished.

Firefighters raced from house to house Thursday to save buildings in the small community of Devore northwest of San Bernardino as the Panorama fire, the most destructive of the blazes, swept out of the

from as far away as New York and Texas. Brown also toured the fire-ravaged Northpark sector of San Bernardino - where 253 homes were destroyed or damaged on Monday - and said the area looked "like some kind of a war zone."

He said he hoped President Carter would make low-interest loans available to people who lost their homes. The state has asked that the federal government declare an official disaster in all six counties where the fires have been burning. Residents of several endangered San Bernardino mountain communities were permitted to return to their homes on Thanksgiving Day as firefighters grew more hopeful they were gaining the upper hand

The 19,950-acre Panorama fire, which has damaged or destroyed 271 structures, was 30 percent contained, and officials could not predict when they would have it under control.

A fire is contained when a fire line has been formed around it to prevent it from spreading. It is controlled when it has essentially been extinguished. Two of the blazes, the Lakeland fire in Riverside County and the Sycamore fire in San Bernardino County, were 80 percent contained Thursday evening and full containment was expected today. The mountain communities of Twin Peaks and Rim Forest along the northern perimeter of the Panorama fire had been evacuated, but residents were allowed to return Thursday.

plane accidents in Idaho and Washington that killed a total of 12 people,

And the bodies of two people were discovered in the wreck of a small plane when the cries of a lone survivor attracted passing hunters near Jacksonville, Fla.

In Washington, a twin-engine Beechcraft Baron carrying members of a prominent Yakima family to a Thanksgiving observance in Seattle went down in a spiraling, flery crash near Mount Rainier National Park on Thursday, police said. All six people aboard were killed.

In Driggs, Idaho, a twin-engine Beechcraft Duke plunged to the ground several hundred feet short of a runway at Driggs airport. All six people aboard were killed.

Teton County Sheriff Ted Trout said visibility was about 100 yards at the time of the Idaho crash Thursday.

"I'm sure visibility was probably a contributing factor, but we don't know yet what caused the crash,' Trout said. Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration in Seattle were trying to determine the cause, Trout said.

The victims were identified as the pilot, James Clay of the San Francisco Bay area; his three children, Stacey, 17, Cameron, 13, and Mitch, 11; and his brother, Charles Teague Clay of Lake Tahoe, Nev. The sixth victim was identified as Perry Anderson of

Tension of civil rights returns to Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Twenty years ago, blacks made history when they sat down at a Greensboro lunch counter. Today, civil rights are again a source of tension in this Piedmont city of 150,000 people.

This time the focus is not on a demonstration at a segregated eating place, but on a jury's verdict.

Ironically, the verdict was rendered by an allwhite jury in a case involving six whites accused of murder in the deaths of four whites and a black. In a statement, the jury said it simply considered the facts and the evidence and applied the law.

What made the issue racial was that the defendants were members of the Ku Klux Klan or the American Nazi Party, and the verdict — innocent on all counts — was interpreted racially. In Raleigh, the national commander of the American Nazi Party, Harold Covington, hailed the jury's ruling as "a great victory for white America." But black civil rights activist Dr. Hosea Williams termed it, "the greatest perpetation of injustice in our country since the death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr."

Greensboro has been struggling with simmering usions since 88 seconds of gunfire brought death to a "Death to the Klan" rally sponsored by the Communist Workers Party on Nov. 3, 1979. Five of the leftists were killed.

Security during the 23-week trial — longest in North Carolina history — was extremely tight. After the jury's decision, special riot-control squads and about 50 state Highway Patrolmen were placed on

But there were only minor incidents here — three small fires — and authorities are not certain they were linked to the verdict.

One acquitted Klansmen, Jerry Paul Smith, says someone in a pickup truck opened fire on him Wednesday night as he drove along a rural Lincoln County road. Smith was not injured and there has been no arrest in the only violent incident since the Law enforcement officials say they have not taken measures to protect either the defendants or the

"The situation is under control," Mayor Jim Melvin said Friday in urging continued calm. "We don't expect any real violence — at least we're hoping the community will keep calm in the face of all this."

Melvin says the confrontation was not overtly racial. He noted that both sides were made up largely of people from outside Greensboro and that only one of the victims was black.

But an uneasiness persists in Greensboro, the state's second-largest city and scene of the nation's first lunchcounter sit-ins in 1960. Residents, particularly blacks, were outraged by Monday's verdict, "How can killings by the Klan not be racial," some "There's great dissatisfaction in the black community, we know that," said George Simkins, head of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

and they bury their heads in the sand," he said. "It's very frustrating, very depressing. I don't know what's going to happen.

The verdict sparked protest marches last week in Greensboro and other North Carolina cities. Some 500 protesters marched silently here Thursday, while separate marches were held in Durham, home of several of the victims, and in Chapel Hill at the University of North Carolina.

Tuesday, 70 people protested quietly across the street from the Guilford County Courthouse where the verdict was handed down a day earlier. Young and old, black and white, they carried signs that said "Justice Greensboro Style?" and "A Vigil for Jus-

At predominantly black North Carolina A&T State University, students were also peaceful — but more

Pamela McCorkle, president of the Student Government Association, told a crowd of several hundred people, "Isn't it interesting that all the responsible white leaders can say to the black community is 'Stay calm.' How can we remain calm when we carry the scars of Birmingham, Selma, Chattanooga, Buffalo and Atlanta?" she said, referring to cities where

Meanwhile, the U.S. Justice Department announced it has launched an investigation into the deaths to determine whether the shootings had violated federal civil rights laws. Justice Department spokesman John Russell said the agency had begun studying testimony — the first step in a process that could bring federal charges against the freed defendants.

It was not yet decided whether the state would still prosecute five other Klansmen still charged with murder, or five other people charged with rioting.

The Nazis and Klansmen contended during the trial that they acted in self-defense, and members of the jury have defended their decision on that basis.

In the seven days of deliberation, the jury focused on the FBI's sound analysis of 39 shots captured on television videotapes.

According to FBI sound expert Bruce Koenig, the first two were fired by Klansmen and Nazis. He couldn't say who fired the next three, but testified that they came from an area where CWP demonstrators were standing. His study also showed that CWP members were armed with handguns and could have fired 14 to 17 times.

That analysis proved convincing, said one juror, who asked not to be identified, because the tapes clearly showed the Klansman-Nazis firing.

"Without that (the analysis), we would never have known there was anybody else doing anything except the Klan," the juror said.

LOS ANGELES — When the Western Airlines jetliner neared Denver, the second officer heard the co-pilot of a Continental 727 radio to the Denver

"Hey, that's my mom!" the second officer said excitedly to her pilot. "Tell her hello," the pilot said. So it was that the cheery greeting "Hi mom!" was carried over the airwaves from one Boeing 727 to another. "I knew it was my mother because she is Continental's only co-pilot, the only woman on a Continental flight on the radio," said Cathy Jones, a second officer for Western. Only pilots and co-pilots routinely use airliners' radios. Cathy and her mother, Claudia Jones, are the only mother and daughter airline-rated pilots in the Western world.

Claudia Jones has been flying for Continental for more than three years. She is one of four women in cockpits on Continental flights. She was the second female pilot to be hired by Continental, the 21st woman hired as an airline pilot in America. Her daughter is known to Western co-workers as "Stretch-8" because she was the eighth female pilot to be hired by Western Airlines and had to stretch to meet the height requirements.

"When I was interviewed for the pilot's job, I found out I was a quarter of an inch too short. The minimum requirement is 5-foot-5," noted Cathy on a stopover in Los Angeles.

"I went to a chiropractor to get stretched. I found out everybody's spine has a slight curve. I learned how to stand up straight as an arrow. Through adjustments by the chiropractor and proper exercise, when I took my physical I measured 5 feet, 5 1-4 inches."

Cathy soloed on her 16th birthday and at 17 had her private license — before she had her driver's license. At 18 she had a commercial license and became a

It was music that led Claudia Jones to a flying career. She was graduated from Florida State university as a music education major. "My lifelong dream then was to become a symphony orchestra director," she explained. Leaving college, she and a friend put together a successful night club act called "Carol and Claudia - The Living Dolls." Claudia Jones and Carol Urban played twin pianos and 29 other instruments. They sang and danced. Three backup men were part of the act. 'We played Vegas seven months of the year and traveled the country in a van playing clubs. I learned to fly to make travel easier. For three years I flew the group from engagement to engagement in a leased plane," Claudia Jones When the act broke up, she became a flight instructor in Las Vegas, and with her husband established a Piper dealership. Today when she is not flying Continental jets 80 hours a month, Claudia is busy as president of the Las Vegas-based Silver State Helicopters Inc. Her husband is secretary-treasurer and general manager. The company operates six helicopters for passenger and commercial work — to the tune of $2 million in gross sales last year.

When Cathy is not flying her 80 hours a month for Western, she helps her mother and father run the business.

Cathy and Claudia zip all over the Western states, Canada and Mexico in their 727s. Cathy also flies to Alaska. But their paths seldom cross while in They see a lot of each other at home in Las Vegas, where they spend hours flying helicopters. How do they get along with their male counterparts in the cockpit?

'Cathy and I have worked so many years in aviation, spending thousands of hours in the cockpits of light planes instructing men to fly. So, it isn't someting new for us," Claudia Jones said.

'We're accepted and treated just great by the fellows in the cockpit. Flying for an airline is a dream come true. It's just super," added Cathy.

Birth control shots test very promising

By DIANA SMITH Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Researchers at the University of Alabama here say the first clinical trials of injectable contraceptives have been completed and the results appear very promising.

Dr. Lee Beck, director of the program for immunology and reproductive research, said university re-searchers studied "birth control shots" in cooperation with the Southern Research Institute in Birmingham for three years before tests began on a small group of women in Mexico. "There were no complications," he said of the human trials. "The injection system performed as predict-

Beck said the university has applied for a license from the Food and Drug Administration to conduct human experiments in the United States and clinical trials may begin here in just a few months.

The kind of injectable contraceptive being tested uses the same steroid hormone commonly used in oral contraceptives, Beck said. Each tiny bit of steroid is encapsulated in biodegradable synthetic material, and the capsule is just barely discernible to the naked eye

The steroids, which look like fine powder, are suspended in a sterile saline solution, Beck said, and injected into the big muscle on the back of the thigh.

Beck said each of the thousands of capsules works by time release action, gradually dissolving the correct amount of hormones during the intervals between injections.

He says the shots have several advantages over the pill.

"If you take a birth control pill orally, you get a very high level of steroids in the blood immediately after absorption, and the level decreases every hour," Beck said. "The amount you really need is the amount obtained 15 or 20 hours after you take the one big dose. Most side effects of the pill are dose-dependent."

Beck said women are actually get about 50 times the dosage, they need every time they take an oral contra-

"With controlled release, we adjust the rate so that the level is constant and unchanging," he said.

"Assertive Discipline," sponsored by the Texas Elementary Principals and Supervisors Association, is a new approach to classroom and school management. Cold spells dangerous to old people due to sensitivity

The next time a cold wind slices through your clothes, you may wish you could not feel the cold at all. But as many as one in 10 older people are in real danger because they are not sensitive enough to cold.

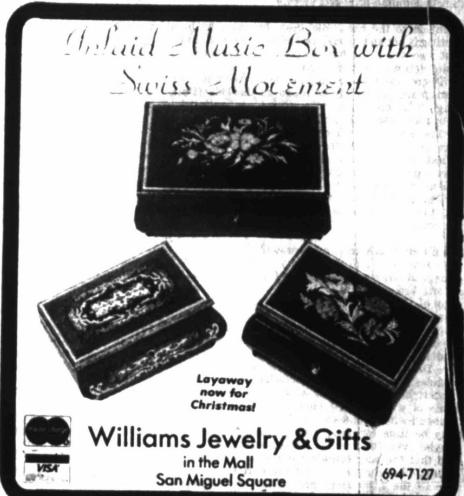

Sometimes people, especially those over age 65, have bodily malfunctions that keep them from noticing cold and regulating body temperature well. So when they stay in a consistently nippy atmostphere (sometimes no colder than 65 degrees fahrenheit) for a long time, body temperature can drop low enough to be fatal from a condition called "accidental hypoth-

Since hypothermia's symptoms may be similar to those of some other diseases, no one knows positively how many people die from it yearly. But the risk is very obvious because thermostats are going lower as heating bills go up.

Instead of the often ovbvious symptoms (such as hard, white, numb areas) that can indicate frostbite, hypothermia symptoms can mimic other diseases and be less obvious. Meanwhile, the victim's body can slow down until unconsciousness occurs and ultimately the heart

Once the core of the body has gotten cold enough to be hypothermic, several days can pass before unconsciousness occurs. In the meantime, symptoms may include bloated face, pale and waxy or occasionally oddly pink skin, trembling in one part of the body, slurred speech, dulled awareness and slow response. (The victim probably will feel cold only before acute hypothermia occurs and not afterward.) Most hypothermia symptoms are signs of other diseases so a physician should be contacted to make an accurate diagnosis.

Protection against hypthermia includes wearing warm, multi-layered clothing, especially protecting the head, hands and feet, drinking warm liquids (except alcohol because it causes heat loss), proper nutrition, keeping the thermostat reasonably high and checking a room thermometer regularly. These are good ideas for anyone but are especially important for those older people whose natural warmig methods are weakened

By PAUL DEAN (c) 1980, The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Eddie King doesn't want to talk about it. He has told his lawyer he just wants to forget that he shot and killed his wife in defense against her violence.

In this, says his attorney, Florida state public efender Pat McGuiness, King is a typical battered

"It's a thing the victim will not talk about," xplains McGuiness. "Being a battered husband is a much a stigma for a man as rape is for a

King, a 47-year-old roofer and trucker from Jackwile, Fla., shot his wife Betty during an argumt on the porch of a friend's house when she ed into her purse. He was charged with assault, then second-degree murder when his wife died July 4 two weeks after the shooting.

AN INVESTIGATION TO support McGuiness's roposed plea of self-defense for his client showed that in four years of marriage, Betty King had beaten, slashed, stabbed, thrown dry acid on and shot at her husband. Last month, Florida dropped its charges, freed King and the media pounced on the classic man-bites-dog story.

McGuiness remains a little surprised at national attention to the case. But then, he says, husband eating is not an unusual part of his case load. In the past two years, he has successfully defended five male victims who had retaliated.

There was a battered lover last year where the wom an was every bit as mean as this one (Betty King)," he continues. "He wound up beating her up but was found not guilty in about six minutes.

There was another case this year in some other art of Florida (Melbourne) where four women, ling the wife and mother-in-law, are alleged to have spent two hours beating an optometrist to deathh with a skillet.

"These cases are obviously extremes, but the uestion of violence on the part of women is not that

Millions of women apparently haven't Nationally, according to projections contained in "Behind Closed Doors — Violence in the American Family," a 1980 study authored by sociologists Murray Straus, Richard Gelles and Suzanne Steinmetz, more than 2 million husbands annually are assaulted by their wives — compared to 1.8 million wives beaten by their husbands.

ALTHOUGH THE DEGREE of casualty is tradi- of their marriage will be final next month. "If we'd critical counterbalance to first interpretations of the bal statistics), the wife-husband homicide rate is close to 50-50 and the breakdown of methods of assault is equally surprising.

The battered-husband phenomenon is a final arc in a full circle of domestic violence that, over the past two decades, has seen new attention to its portions— child abuse, wife beating, husband battering, sibling assaults and, most recently, attacks on aging parents which the British, with their gift for memorable labels, have dubbed "Granny bashing."

Some case histories are horrific. A doctor is severely beaten by his attorney wife and regularly uses cosmetics to cover his bruises and face bites. A

Nugent has counseled a trucker, a college administrator and a minister, attacked by their wives with fists, beer bottles, broom handles and a full arsenal of identifiable flying objects. California university and government workers concerned with domestic violence report boiling water nouved on a husband's genitals.

"Beth's anger was really vicious from the standpoint that there were no escalations in any argument with her," he said in a no-last-name interview. "She went from mild disagreement to go for the jugular, and about in 10 seconds. It (violence) got almost predictable, about once a week, I could see it ilding, I could recognize it from the tone in whatever she said, I could almost say, 'Well, it's Wednesday evening,' then it would erupt."

Chuck is no wimp. He tops 6 feet and 200 pounds and is an ex-Air Force pilot. He races dirt bikes, rides horses and collects guns. He is a commercial real-estate broker. And Chuck says he was continually frustrated by his physical differential with a 120-pound wife "because I just couldn't fight back.

"There was no time when she was physically abusing me when I couldn't have defended myself fully and successfully. But at what cost? All I'd really have to do, considering our difference in size, would be to hit her good and hard once and have her bounce her head in the wrong place and that would be that, so it was easier to grab her wrist and move her away.

"But you can bet I was contnually afraid of myself, and for myself. If she'd done something really tacky coming at me with a knife or something, I'd probably have wiped her out. but she never did anything like that, fortunately."

CHUCK MET BETH eight years ago. They married in 1974 and it was a second marriage for both. He adopted her son. Their courtship and initial years of marriage were calm.

But in 1977, says Chuck, his wife's acknowledged lack of confidence and self-esteem escalated to brooding depressions. Psychologists say that poor self-image is a constant among spouse abusers, men and women, with violence their vehicle for reclaiming authority and position.

Then Beth began drinking heavily. And, says the Los Angeles office of the National Council on Alcoholism, liquor is a 55 percent factor in domestic vio-

For Chuck, it first was a slapped face during a Sunday disagreement over why the lawn had not been mowed Saturday. Then, in subsequent months and with reduced intervals between assaults. Beth began using her fists, her feet, throwing drinks, tossing a full bowl of spaghetti and on occasions

That's when Chuck separated guns from ammunition in the home, took the weapons to a friend's house and started sleeping in a guest room with the door locked "because threats like that make a guy nervous and I wasn't about to tempt the fates.

STRIKING BACK CHUCM realized, only produced escalation. He tried ignoring the verbal abuse. "I may be time for society to establish services and maybe even shelters for abused husbands. "We're told that the poor female has no place to go," she claims, "but the poor man doesn't either."

— Of the 3,500 cases prosecuted or investigated annually by the Los Angeles cit attorney's Domestic Violence Unit, says supervisor-lawyer Susan Kaplan, an estimated 10 percent of spousal attacks put husbands on the receiving and. In the main, she says ds on the receiving end. In the main, she says, That was with the fists, pounding on my back and

Then their 9-year-old became aware of the scraps. "I think he witnessed one, I'm not sure, but he certainly heard it. He mentioned it to both of us a couple of times. He said, 'I wish you two would stop that.' One night, I remember him crying about it. Sure, it was having a profound effect on him, you're damned right it was.'

In August, Chuck moved out on Beth. Dissolution heavier for physically weaker wives (a stayed together the violence would have increased. At the best it was going to scar the boy. At the worst, someone was going to get really hurt. He has settled for regular visitation with his son

CHUCK IS MORE typical of the quiet majority of battered husbands who have taken it on the chin, would be very difficult for me to prove the violence and drinking because there is no police record of the assaults, no hospital records of her ever having been treated for a drinking problem."

> ALSO, SAYS CHUCK, Beth has never abused the boy. Anger and violence always was directed at her husband because "I have a strong personality and clearly was the authority in the home. However, I've made it quite clear to her that if there is anything like that (abuse of their son), I'll go for full custody.

Wives have been battered since the cave. Men have been bruised by their wives at least since post-Renaissance France, when they, the victims, were ridiculed by public exhibition. A charivari would form. The husband, condemned as an obvious threat to the patriarchal pecking order, would be ordered to wear women's clothes and parade through town riding backwards on a don-

Humility remains today's threat for the battered husband. As Steinmetz puts it: "Police are a symbol of manhood and it is simply too much for a man to approach a policeman and say: 'The little woman has just beaten me up.'

So men are remaining silent and staying with battering wives. Others, say psychologists and sociologists, believe violence on the part of a wife to be a phase that will pass. Still more interpret a wife's accusations of inconsideration and selfishness as truth and accept physical abuse as just punish-

Eddie King took his wounds as the price of being married to a woman he dearly loved.

Betty King was arrested for twice stabbing her husband inthe back during an argument in a bar. Eddie refused to press charges. He did not seek prosecution when she slashed his arm and face with a carpet knife, nor when she left him in a parking lot with a blade in his back.

'Most guys will put up with this because they love the woman and Eddie King was like that," says public defender McGuiness. "To him, it was the price of living with her. When she wasn't drinking, she apparently was a marvelous companion.

And after she died, Eddie sneaked into the funeral home and was talking to the casket, telling her he still loved her and would not have shot her if he didn't

Paraplegic enjoys karate

Fla. (AP) - Karate means a lot to Bill Cady - more than the discipline of the sport, the thrill of competition or the mastery of self-defense. "I'm treated as an equal," he explains.

Cady is a paraplegic. The 31-year-old Marine Corps veteran has been totally disabled for 11 years, since that horrifying day in Vietnam when he was blown apart by three enemy hand grenades. He is a double amputee, blind and on his right side. His left hand has only partial feeling and his face is scarred from shrapnel.

"I first went into karate for exercise," says Cady, a para-lawyer for the Disabled American Veterans. "But it really built up confidence. It was better than the therapy I got in the hospital. I feel better — physically and mentally."

He's only been a student a few months, but he works out daily at home in his garage and a

Notaro helps prepare Stallone for 'Rocky III'

By JEFFREY HANSEN The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — The first meeting betwen Sylvester Stallone and Ray Notaro was enough to end a friendship — and it just about did. friendship — and it just about did.

Notaro, coach and owner of The

In the intervening years, Stallone became a box office attraction and the object of some technical criticism from the boxing community. Now Stallone's boxing ability is as potent as his fascination with the sport.

During a sparring session a few weeks ago on a gym set up in a movie studio, Stallone threw a barrage of body punches at Notaro — and broke several of Notaro's ribs.

Notaro said the incident shows the development of Stallone as a boxer. Five years ago. Notaro said, Stallone couldn't have gone three serious rounds of sparring — let alone cause the coach any serious injury.

Stallone's progress as a boxer should please both men. Notaro, a former professional middleweight, said Stallone may have missed his calling — "he's now as good as any six-round professional fighter."

Though pleased by the evaluation, Stallone wants to be in better shape by the time shooting begins for "Rocky III" in spring.

"I feel very, very good," Stallone said. "When I came in here, I thought I was in shape, but I wasn't. To box and dance takes at least 10 times the amount of energy it does to plod and

Stars plan celebration

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some of Hollywood's best-known figures will be on hand to celebrate the inauguration of President-elect Ronald Reagan at a gaia the night before he takes office.

Johnny Carson, the longtimelhost of NBC's "Tonight" show, will be master of ceremonies for the Jan. 19 gala, producer-director Frank Sinatra announced Tuesday. Others appearing will be Dean Martin, James Stewart, Rich Little, the Osmonds and Ethel Merman, according to Sinatra spokeswoman Susan Reynolds.

"The film is a whole different ball-game," Stallone said. "This time, it's complete reversal in styles. It's finesse, speed and endurance. Rocky's style will have nothing to do with power, which is a big story

"The point of the story is one of adaptation: when does a man become obsolete? I guess he becomes obsolete when he can no longer metamorphose - if tht's the right word - his life. And Rocky is at the point where he has become rather an anachronism. And he feels it and knows it when he loses his crown

"When that happens, he loses all sense of self-worth. And to regain it, he realized he has to become someone else, develop another part of him he never knew existed."

Stallone said his training for the film parallels the story line.

"Ray (Notaro) is working with me, teaching me things I never knew about boxing," Stallone said. "And he's been very patient with me. Before, the Rocky style was get in there and maul. No one expected you to do anything corphys!" anything cerebral."

gan is being guided by "the old rules" or the GOP platform. Erlenborn, in an interview, suggested Mr. Reagan would be furthering GOP ideals by naming him but bowing to labor and the AFL-CIO in particular if he appointed Betty Southard Murphy, who has been pro-minently mentioned as a leading contender for the labor post.

Murphy, a labor attorney and former chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, would be more acceptable to the AFL-CIO than Erlenborn, who has been a pro-business stalwart in his post as second-ranking Republican on the House Education and Labor Committee

Erlenborn said his views coincide with those of Mr. Reagan and the GOP platform "a lot better than the AFL-CIO or Betty Murphy whom they support.'

The DuPage County congressman, who has represented one of the most heavily Republican districts in the nation for 16 years, said he is uncertain of his prospects for winning the appointment but added:

"It will be an indication of whether the usual rules of trying to get people who are comfortable with the constituency of a department or agency and following the old rule of letting the AFL-CIO have a veto - whether those rules are still going to apply to this administration, or if they are going to start off in a bold new direction, that is, implementing the party platform.

ERLENBORN SAID the labor secretary appointment could be a litmus test of whether Mr. Reagan is "ready to go ahead and start implementing the things we talked about for years now that we finally have got the reins of power.

A spokesman for the AFL-CIO, which supported President Carter, denied that the union is pushing Murphy for the post.

We are not so presumptuous to think that we should recommend or oppose a candidate for the cabinet in an administration we tried to defeat," said Allan Zack, an AFL-CIO spokes-

Zack, however, did say Murphy is "knowledgeable and has a good track record," while Erlenborn lacks "practical experience in labor management" and votes "right" from the AF'L-CIO's viewpoint on only 12 per-

Zack also acknowledged that a public endorsement by a labor group that tried to keep Mr. Reagan out of the White House could damage that candidate's prospects.

"It is the type of situation where you have to figure out would we be encouraging them to appoint somebody good by opposing that person or do you take a reverse tactic?" Zack asked rhetorically. "It is just a game we are not going to get into."

Zack also disputed Erlenborn's contention the labor secretary choice could be a test of whether Mr. Reagan is catering to labor or following GOP principles.

"Erlenborn's name was first promoted by the Chamber of Commerce," Zack said. "The chamber has sent a letter to Reagan saying Betty Murphy is better. So much for the litmus test."

Erlenborn acknowledges that the chamber has endorsed Murphy but says he is the only other candidate mentioned in the endorsement letter.

MURPHY ALSO has been endorsed by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a labor foe who will head the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee which has confirmation powers over the secretary of labor designate. But Erlenborn said he also would be acceptable to Hatch.

Orrin has also told me we certainly could work well together since we have in the past," said Erlenborn, who has been a member of the House Labor Committee for 15 of his 16 years

Erlenborn said he is supported by the Associated General Contractors and the Associated Builders and Contractors and is on a list recommended by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Although Erlenborn describes himself as "not anti-labor but pro-business," he usually is at odds with labor

Like Mr. Reagan, he supports the so-called "youth differential," a lower minimum wage for young persons which he says would help the young get jobs.

HE HAS BEEN a vociferous critic of the "black lung" compensation program, and feels many coal miners are receiving benefits for which they are not entitled.

He opposes repeal of the section of the Taft-Hartley law which allows states to adopt right-to-work laws, a section the unions have been trying to erase from the statutes for years.

Erlenborn also has been one of the leaders in the attempt to repeal the bid by outside firms.(more) The Glen Ellyn Republican said he had been encouraged before the election to seek the appointment if Mr. Reagan won but did not decide to go for the post until after the GOP won control of the Senate.

"It really did not appeal to me then (before the election) because I feit that due to tradition and a Democratic Senate, the AFL-CIO would be able to exercise a veto over anyone who was named," Erlenborn said.

"When I saw we no longer had a Democratic Senate as a result of the election, my interest was renewed."

ERLENBORN SAID he has discussed the appointment with Vice President-elect George Bush and former President Gerald Ford, both former congressmen, and a couple of mem-bers of the Reagan transition team whom he declined to name because they were non-commital.

Erlenborn said there may be a third serious contender for the ap-pointment but there are different rumors about who that may be. He said he has heard that a third contender could be Bethlehem Steel vice chairman Richard Shubert, who was undersecretary of labor in the Ford administration, black economist Tom Sowell and a California industrialist whose name Erlenborn could not re-

If he does not win the appointment, Erlenborn says he is content with his House career and is hopeful the Republicans win control of the House in two years. If that happens, he would be in line to become the Education and Labor Committee chairman because the senior Republican, Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio, plans to run for the Senate in 1982.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Paul was weakling with secret weapon

PLEAD with you-yes, I, Paul-and I plead gently, as Christ Himself would do. Yet some of you are saying, "Paul's letters are bold enough when he is far away, but when he gets here he will be afraid to raise his voice!"

I hope I won't need to show you when I come how harsh and rough I can be. I don't want to carry out my present plans gainst some of you who seem to think my deeds and words are merely those of an ordinary man.

It is true that I am an ordinary, weak human being, but I don't use human plans and methods to win my battles.

I use God's mighty weapons, not those made by men, to knock down the devil's strongholds.

These weapons can break down every proud argument against God and every wall that can be built to keep men from finding Him. With these weapons I can capture rebels and bring them back to God, and change them into men whose hearts' desire is obedience to Christ. I will use these weapons against every rebel who remains after I have first used them on you yourselves, and you surrender to Christ

The trouble with you is that you look at me and I seem weak and powerless, but you don't look beneath the surface. Yet if anyone can claim the power and authority of Christ, I certainly can.

I may seem to be boasting more than I should about my authority over you-authority to help you, not to hurt youbut I shall make good every claim.

I say this so that you will not think I am just blustering when I scold you in my letters.

"Don't bother about his letters," some say. "He sounds big, but it's all noise. When he gets here you will see that there is nothing great about him, and you have never heard a worse

This time my personal presence is going to be just as rough on you as my letters are!

Officials miffed over hurricane aid

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Four months after Hurricane Allen slammed into South Texas, officials of the stricken cities complain that they are hopelessly mired in a frustrating tangle of federal red tape.

Lower Rio Grande Valley mayors told a Texas Coastal and Marine Council heaving that they have been strongelled and plants and Marine Council hearing that they have been stonewalled and short-changed by the government agency set up to ease the flow of federal relief funds.

"We've spent $10,000 picking up brush alone," Mayor Jeff Burke of Rio Hondo said at the Tuesday hearing. "They've offered us about that much for all our damage, including only $3,800 for roads."

Burke and others were critical of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

"We had potholes before the storm and now the road bases are damaged.
I feel like FEMA is resonsible for our roads being totally destroyed," Burke said of his city of 2,000. FEMA representative Bill McAda attended the council meeting, but of-fered no explanation of its operations.

Port Isabel Mayor Quirino Martinez told of a similar problem with road repairs. He said officials at the bayfront resort community estimated highway damage at $325,000 but federal officials offered only $48,000.

"WE'LL JUST HAVE to let some roads go down the drain," Martinez said. "The federal people gave us six months to appeal and show that our roads deteriorated that much. FEMA has received more than 28,000 applications for aid such as Small Business Adminstration loans, family grants, income tax credits and temporary housing. Brownsville Mayor Emilio Hernandez complained that the FEMA "onestop" disaster office for the area should have been located closer to the coast, instead of in Harlingen, 25 inland. FEMA officials said they decided on Harlingen because of its central location to residents of McAllen, Edinburg and other Lower Rio Grande Valley

"Many people had no way to get to Harlingen," Hernandez said. Sens. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, and Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg, criticized FEMA disaster coordinator Dale Milford, for not sending someone to testify at the hearing. "You go back and tell Mr. Milford that he's a public servant and taxpayers pay his salary," Longoria told McAda. Truan said Milford had told him in a letter that he probably would be able to meet with the council in

OFFICIALS SAID there was little they could do to avoid evacuation traffic jams like the ones that developed as thousands fled the coast while Allen churned in the Gulf of Mexico.

"We do not know how many people were responding to the mayor's recommendation to evacuate," said Jack Goolsby, Brownsville civil defense director. "No one has any capability to determine where they (residents) are going to go and when.'

South Padre Island Mayor Glen McGehee said his town recently passed an ordinance requiring an engineer's seal on seawalls built in the resort community. Hurricane Allen's 12-foot surges eroded sand under and behind several seawalls, causing foundation damage to a few beachfront buildings.

McGehee repeated his complaints voiced earlier this fall about insurance adjustors being lax at settling flood and wind policy claims.

"They seemed to settle a lot of small claims first, to get a good image, and then waited on the bigger ones to fight the big battles.

Caterpillar deal may rekindle Moscow energy controversy

By ERNEST CONINE The Los Angeles Times

West German Chancellor Melmut Schmidt's visit to Washington last week appened to coincide with another item in the news: the decision by the U.S. epartment of Commerce to allow Caterpillar Tractor Co. to sell pipeline-layequipment to the Soviet Union.

The prospective deal is bound to rekindle the controversy over whether the nited States should be in the business of helping Moscow head off a oming energy crisis.

In this case, that help would initially take the form of 200 big pipelaying ulldozers to be used in the construction of a big natural gas pipeline from estern Siberia to Western Europe. All in all, the Russians expect to uy about $1 billion in pipelaying and earthmoving equipment over five

The question of whether Caterpillar should be allowed to make the $80 nillion sale is an appropriate subject of debate in the United States. However, e people who really ought to be asking themselves some questions are the ermans, who will be the major Western customer for the gas moving through

Once the project is in full operation, West Germany will be getting more than percent of its natural gas from the Soviet Union - a degree of depenence that will obviously translate into political leverage anytime the Kremlin ees fit to use it.

For the present, Moscow's reasons for building the big gas pipeline are most certainly more economic than political.

There is no longer any question that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency as right in the fundamentals of its 1977 prediction that the Soviet Union faces energy crunch in the 1980s - a crunch that could stunt the growth of its

Scaled-back cleanup bill passed by Senate

By JOHN " AVERILL The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Senate has passed a vastly scaled-back "superfund" bill to finance the cleanup of abandoned chemical dumps and toxic chemical spills

Passage was by voice vote after the Senate, by a roll call vote of 78-9, adopted compromise language that marked a dramatic resurrection for legislation that its sponsors had regarded as dead as recently as last Thursday. But the final product was a far cry from what the sponsors origi-

Faced with a possible filibuster in the waning d$ys of the lame-duck session of Congress, backers of the bill agreed to drop those provisions most strongly opposed by the chemical and oil industries.

As passed by the Senate, the bill would create a $1.6-billion special fund — financed mainly thro ugn new taxes on various chemicals — to pay for the cleanup of toxic wastes that imperil public health and the environment. Sponsors had originally proposed a $4.2-billion fund.

To overcome the filibuster threat, the sponsors also dropped provisions that would have provided for the cleanup of oil spills and for payment of medical expenses to victims of toxic contamination.

The Senate bill now goes to a Senate-House conference committe for attempts at reconciliation with two separate "superfund" bills passed by the House in September. The House measures would create funds totaling $1.95 billion to clean up both abandoned chemical dumps and oil and chemical spills and to provide compensation to victims.

Although the 96th Congress scheduled to end a week from Friday, sponsors of the Senate bill expressed confidence that a compromise could be reached with the House in time to send the final product to President Carter for his signature. Although the administration backed a more sweeping bill, it endorsed the Senate compromise in the interests of getting something passed. While hailing the bill as "landmark legislation," Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., chairman of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee and chief sponsor of the bill, said that more needed to be done. He said that an attempt to strengthen the legislation would be made next year. In the meantime, Randolph urged passage of the compromise bill, declaring "we cannot afford another Love Canal." He referred to the dumping of toxic chemical wastes in an abandoned canal near Niagra Falls, N.Y., an incident that gave impetus to the superfund legislation. The filibuster threat had been led

Significant gas strike hit

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A division of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana has made "the most significant discovery to date" in three natural-gas wells in Louisiana's rich Deep Tuscaloosa Trend formation, an official said Tuesday.

W.L. Adams, a vice president of Indiana Standard's Amoco Production Co. division, said the new wells produce a daily total of 25.5 million cubic feet of natural gas and 3,759 barrels of condensate, an oil-like byproduct.

The wells are located 12 miles north of Baton Rouge in the Port Hudson field, "the largest field" ever discovered in the region, Adams said. Six other wells in the field produce a total of 55 million cubic feet of natural gas and 7,000 barrels of condensate daily, Adams said. Gas from the field is being processed at a nearby facility that ex-tracts sulfur compounds and makes natural gas ready for market.

The case has been assigned to U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch.

Meanwhile, production appears to be peaking.

If oil output drops off in the next few years - as the CIA and many, though not all, outside experts expect — the Russians will be forced to curtail petroleum exports, the proceeds from which now finance their purchases of Western equipment and technology. It is even conceivable that they will become net oil importers.

It is always possible that a serious energy crunch just might force the Kremlin to reduce military spending in ordr to make more resources available for energy development. If it happened, that would be good news for our side. But there's another side to the story.

To the degree that the exportable Soviet oil surplus evaporates in the next few years, members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will have an even greater stranglehold on world oil supplies. The cartel's capacity for price-gouging on sales to the United States and other importing countries will increse accordingly.

Even more serious, there is the danger that the Soviets, instead of facing up to the need for changes in their national priorities, might be tempted to make a grab for the tantalizingly close oiffields in Iran or the Arabian peninsula. Some American Sovietologists make the argument that the Russians may be tempted to grab the Persian Gulf oilfields anyway in order to gain lifeand-death control over the Western economies. Others argue that the Russians are not likely to make such a move for any reason, because of the obvious danger that it would trigger World War III. The Carter administration has come down basically on the side of those who believe that the American interest is more likely to be served by helping the Russians avoid a worse energy crunch than by trying to make it worse.

Approval of the Caterpillar sale makes sense in this context, because development of natural-gas reserves will help the oviets offset the anticipated shortfall in oil.

As Secretary of Commerce Philip M. Klutznick tol newsmen last week, the Russians could readily obtain the pipelaying equipment elsewhere, anyway So why shouldn't a U.S. firm get the business?

But the mammoth project is not being built merely to transport gas from

Land protection

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal Bureau of Land Management has announced final regulations for protecting land from certain mining activities covered by the 1872 Mining Law.

law announced

That law covers the mining of gold, silver, lead, zinc and uranium, but does not affect oil, gas, coal, phosphate, sand and gravel, which are governed by other laws.

The regulations set three levels of requirements for land protection, depending on the extent of mining operations. The lowest level is for casual users, such as weekend prospectors, while the strictest level is for activity that will disturb more than five acres of land annually

Reasonable land reclamation is required for all operations, the bureau

The new regulations were adopted after four years of preparation and public comment. At the lowest level is "casual use" of public land, designed to apply to part-time miners and weekend prospectors who create negligible land disturbance, it said. This may include taking small quantities of samples, panning or sluicing for gold or digging trenches, all of which is one without the use of mechanical earth-moving equipment or explosives," the BLM said. The rules require no advance notification of such use. The BLM must be notified, however, when an operator wants to conduct exploration or mining that will disturb five acres or less per year. The written notification, given 15 days' in advance, must describe the proposed operations and their location and pledge to reclaim the land to the BLM standards. Operations at this level do not require operator bonding or BLM approval, but the 15 days' notice gives the agency time to tell the operator about other resources in the mining area that may need protecting. Operators in this category also must notify the bureau when land reclamation is complete.

For proposed mining activity that will disturb more than five acres of land a year, an operator must file in advance a plan of operations with the BLM, describing the entire operation and land reclamation measures.

These plans are subject to BLM approval or disapproval which should usually take less than 30 days but must be completed in no more than 90

Bonding also may be required for these operations. These prior approval rules also apply to mining operations in the California Desert Conservation Area, Wild and Scenic River Areas, Areas of Critical Environmental Concern, areas "closed" or "limited" to off-road vehicles, and areas withdrawn from mining where valid existing rights are being exercised.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The incoming chairman of the Senate Energy Committee said Tuesday the nation can expect encouragement of domestic energy development and closer scrutiny of government land policies during his tenure as chairman.

"There will not be a radical change, but there will be change in emphasis," said Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, who will head the committee when Republicans take control of the Senate in January.

But the policies he outlined at a news conference could send tremors through the ranks of energy developers and conservationists, who have quarreled for years over use and proection of the nation's resources.

Among his views:

- He strongly supports development of breeder reactor technology and nuclear fuel reprocessing, both of which the Carter administration has opposed as making proliferation of nuclear weapons more likely. However er, McClure said he is withholding judgment on continuing the Clinch River breeder reactor project in Tennessee until a new study on the proposal is completed next March.

- He wants an accelerated process for opening both onshore and offshore government lands to energy companies for development of oil and coal

- He wants a close review of public land management policies "and how we use our resources to meet the needs of the country." McClure said he is particularly concerned about the inability of public land managers to make decisions on resource develop-

"The process is so cumbersome that we just never get a decision," said McClure. "Sometimes, just fore-stalling a decision is in itself a deci-He says the nation must move now to avert an approaching "min-erals crisis" — an increasing dependence on unstable foreign nations for minerals vital to national security which McClure said is "just as predictable as the energy crisis was in the early 1970s."

- Although he opposed the Carter administration's so-called windfall profits tax on oil revenues, McClure said he sees little chance of it being repealed soon. He said he may seek some relief from the tax for small, independent producers, "but it's not something I would expect to be a first priority of the new Congress."

- He said the newly formed Synthetics Fuel Corp. should move forward, but not make any irrevocable commitments until the Reagan administration takes office. McClure said he is withholding judgment on the nomination of John Sawhill to head the corporation, because "that call has to be that of the new administration.

- McClure also said it is too early to talk of dismantling the Department of Energy, a frequent target of conservatives, saying it is needed for now to handle programs already authorized by Congress.

McClure, 55, has served in the Senate and on the Energy Committee, since 1972. He is now the second-ranking Republican on the panel, but became heir-apparent to the chairman's post when Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., the ranking Republican, chose instead to become chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

McClure is a fiscal conservative, a strong supporter of nuclear power and a critic of many government efforts to put federal lands off-limits to energy development.

But, he said: "Don't expect from me a wholesale assault on environmental legislation."

McClure said that although he feels "the pendulum has swung too far" toward environmental protection, he doesn't want the pendulum to swing to the opposite extreme. Instead, he said, he wants a balance between resource development and environmental protection.

Siberia to European Russian. It will also carry gas for sale to West Germany and several other European countries.

A consortium of West German banks will provide Moscow with a $5.4-billion loan on preferential terms to finance the purchase of German equipment for the pipeline. Repayment will be in natural gas — a lot of it.

It is argued that the Soviet gas will make West Germany and other European recipients less vulnerable to an interruption of oil supplies from the Middle East. And maybe it will - but at the price of a dangerous dependency on Soviet

West Germans are the chief prophets of the idea that the economic interdependence created by a growing web of trading relationships acts as a restraining influence on the Soviets, thus contributing to detente.

But, when the Soviets decided to invade Afghanistan, they were not deterred by the danger of losing access to German and other Western trade and technology, wheareas reluctance to risk profitable trade with the Russians did deter Bonn from a more meaingful response.

The question of who has gained leverage over whom became ever sharper when East Germany took steps to reduce the flow of visitors from the West and Schmidt's government decided against retaliation.

It is not hard to conjure up a scenario in which the Soviet Union, as part of its drive for influence in the Middle East, nourishes upheavals in the area that pose a real or potential threat to the oil supplies on which the European economies depend; then Moscow plays games with the gas pipeline in order to inhibit the Europeans from joining in countermoves.

Those who say the Soviets would never do such a thing should note that a few weeks ago they invoked "force majeure" clauses when it pleased them to reduce exports of home heating oil to West Europe.

The dangers posed by excessive dependency on Soviet natural gas are of legitimate U.S. concern. But, if the West Germans don't worry about making their economy hostage to the whims and calculations of the men in Moscow, there isn't much that anybody else can or should do about it.

Amoco official predicts big Tuscaloosa recovery

NEW YORK — Six to 10 trillion cubic feet of natural gas ultimately may be discovered in Louisiana's Deep Tuscaloosa Trend, an Amoco Production Co. excutive told industry analysts in New York recently.

Speakeing before the New York Oil Analysts, A. L. Benson, Amoco Production's New Orleans regional exploration manager, said there is no doubt that "the Louisiana Tuscaloosa play is one of the most prominent onshore explortion plays of the last several years."

Louisiana's Deep Tuscaloosa Trend is a geological trend which is approximately 20 miles wide and extends approximately 200 miles through central Louisiana. Major reserves of natural gas and condensate have been discovered there at depths ranging from 16,000 to 22,000 feet.

w Benson, although the Deep Tuscaloosa play was discovered in 1975, drilling activity did not intensify until 1977 when Amoco discovered its Port Hudson field near Baton

"The rich condensate and large pay thickness make Port Hudson the most significant discovery to date in the Deep Tuscaloosa play. Six wells in the field currently are producing 53 million cubic feet of natural gas and 7,000 barrels of condensate daily," he

years of the Port Hudson discovery, Amoco completed three other signifi-cant field discoveries in the trend. In addition, he said, two other apparent discoveries drilled by Amoco blew out and replacement wells are planned to evaluate potentially significant reserves in those areas.

According to Benson, of the seven largest fields discovered thus far in the Trend, Amoco has discovered four which contain one half of the potential recoverable reserves found to date. He Amoco is committed to exploring and developing its properties inthe Tuscaloosa and plans to spend more than $200 million there in 1981 as compared to the $161 million it will spend this year.

The significance of the Deep Tusca-loosa Trend may eventually be enhanced further by resources discovered in other formations as a result of concepts and techniques developed while exploring there, Benson said. "Additional new zones are likely to be a significant aspect resulting from the Deep Tuscaloosa play. Sand sec-tions older than the Tuscaloosa have yet to be drilled.

"Lake Pontchartrain is another area Amoco believes holds some future promise. We recently won blocks totaling about 20,000 acres on a very large structure there and are making plans to drill this in the near future,

UT men warn future oil sources to be expensive oil shale, tar sands and coal offer promise as future sources of petroleum products, but none will supplant diminishing world supplies of light crude, and none will be cheap, according to a panel of faculty members at The University of Texas at Austin.

"They are much more difficult to extranct than refinery capacity" as conventional oil and are considerably more expensive to refine and produce," says Dr. Myron H. Dorfman, professor and chairman of the Petroleum Engineering Department.

But as the price of lighter oil moves upward, production of unconventional oils becomes more attractive, the panelists agree. They are Dr. Dorman,

The drag drags in 'Bosom Buddies'

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) Guys in drag can be funny, to a certain point. Past that point, the drag drags, unless the fellow wearing the dress is Steve Allen or Rodney Dangerfield.

Absent those gentle-men, "Bosom Buddies," an ABC sitcom that premiered last night, should endure about as long as it takes to read this col-

Can you imagine how utterly tiresome that gimmick would be after two or three shows?

Every TV comedy has a gimmick - that's the "sit" in "sitcom." The best sitcoms blend the gimmick into background, against which writing and execution are projected. "Barney Miller," for example, or "M-A-S-H."

What ABC's "Break- * ing Away" sorely misses is Dennis Christopher, who played the starryeyed Dave in the movie. As one of four local teenagers struggling for identity in a university town, Christopher presented a sort of inspired quasi-lunacy, a joyous craziness that made you

Coast Guard to be more careful in training personnel

By STEPHEN C. SMITH Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The sinkings of the cutters Blackthorn and Cuyahoga have taught the Coast Guard to be more careful about the qualifications of the people it puts to sea, according to the head of the

"We need to do a better job of training our people," Adm. John B. Hayes said in a recent interview.

The sinking of the Blackthorn last January was the Coast Guard's worst peacetime accident. The buoy tender went down minutes after colliding with the 605-foot oil tanker Capricorn in the Tampa Bay shipping channel. Twenty-three Coast Guardsmen died, while 27 others, including the skipper

The Cuyahoga went down in Chesapeake Bay Oct. 20, 1978, shortly after it collided with the Argentine ship Santa Cruz II. Eleven of the 29 Coast Guardsmen aboard died.

Following the Blackthorn tragedy, a Marine Board of Inquiry conducted extensive hearings and concluded in preliminary "findings of fact" that the officer at the helm of the cutter, Lt. j.g. John Ryan, 29, didn't know proper whistle signals and course changes. Hayes said Coast Guard officials in the New Orleans were close to deciding whether Ryan and Blackthorn skipper Lt. Cmdr. George J. Sepel should face a court-martial.

In the Cuyahoga case, the cutter's skipper, Chief Warrant Officer Donald K. Robinson, was charged with negligently hazarding the vessel. Convicted of the lesser charge of dereliction of duty, he received the minimum sentence — a written reprimand and the loss of 200 seniority

"I think from both these casualties has come a recognition, at least in respect to rules of the road, that we need to be a little stricter about the qualifications of our people who are going to sea," Hayes said.

However, Hayes said he disagreed with findings by the National Transportation Safety Board that the Blackthorn accident was caused by a

"I think it will be clear, if it hasn't been clear already, that the basic errors that occurred were errors in judgment. And you don't train judgment. You train the knowledge to exercise judgment," he said. Hayes said he was reviewing a Coast Guard report on the accident and it would be released soon.

Reagan resumes Cabinet search

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan is preparing to resume his search for a Cabinet amid a published report that his asury secretary turned down the job.

The New York Daily News said in today's editions that former Treasury Secretary William E. Simon asked Reagan is a telephone conversation Wednesday to withdraw his name from consideration for personal reasons. Reagan had called Simon and told him he was the president-elect's first choice for the Treasury job, the paper reported.

Reagan was returning to his Pacific Palisades home in Los Angeles today after a three-day Thanksgiving vacation at his secluded ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

He is scheduled to fly to Palm Springs on Saturday to attend a benefit for the Eisenhower Hospital, overnight in that southern California city and return to Los Angeles on Sunday for meetings with his top advisers on Cabinet appointments.

When he left Washington last week, Reagan said he hoped to choose his Cabinet by the end of November or early December, but none has been announced yet.

Simon is among the "kitchen cabinet" advisers who drafted a list of Cabinet candidates for Reagan to consider.

The Daily News quoted Simon as saying Reagan told him he was the first choice of both the transition committee and the president-elect to return to the Treasury position. Simon said Reagan accepted the decision with regret, the paper

Simon, 53, who was Treasury secretary under former President Gerald R. Ford, could not be reached for comment.

Others who have been mentioned as possible contenders for Treasury secretary include Alan Greenspan, who was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under Ford; Charls E. Walker, who was deputy secretary of the Treasury under former President Richard M. Nixon; former Treasury secretary George P. Shultz, now vice chairman of the Bechtel Corp.; former Treasury secretary John B. Connally; and Walter Wriston chairman of Citicorp.

Mount St. Helens shaken again by largest tremors

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens shook with the largest harmonic tremor in 10 days of off-and-on seismic activity, seismologists reported.

The subterranean rumbling Thanksgiving evening was "the biggest we've had since Nov. 18," said A.B. Adams, spokesman for the University of Washington geophysics program that monitors seismographs of the volcano's activity.

"We weren't happy to see it," he said early today. "Still, it shouldn't be blown out of proportion."

Harmonic tremors indicate the movement of molten rock or steam within the volcano and in the past have preceded eruptions. But scientist have said the mountain is unlikely to erupt again unless earthquakes also are recorded.

Thursday's tremor began at 8:34 p.m. PST and lasted about an hour, Adams said. Two tremors Wednesday lasted 15 and 30

The harmonic tremors have no Richter scale measurement like quakes. But during Thursday's tremor, the seismograph needle drew a wave with a peak-to-peak width of 17 millimeters, compared to the "normal" low-level activity with a width of 1 millimeter, Adams said.

Before eruptions in the summer, harmonic tremors made seismograph waves 40 millimeters wide, Adams said.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. - While North Florida bathers complained of a stinging, burning mist which state officials blamed on 'red tide" organisms, two specialists said the mysterious mist lidn't sound like any red tide outbreak they'd ever heard of.

"The reason you don't see a lot of fish dying is because the organism is right along the shoreline," said Dr. Karen Steidinger of the state Department of Natural Resources' Marine Fisheries Laboratory. "The birds are probably dying because they are feeding on shellfish along the surf line. Because the shellfish strain the water through gills, they pick up huge doses of the organism and it kills the birds."

After the pounding they took Thanksgiving Day from the Dallas Cowboys, nobody would have blamed the Seahawks if they had used illness as an excuse like welterweight Roberto Duran did when he quit in his title fight with Sugar Ray Leonard.

The final was 51-7 and it was just as bad as the score indicated.

THE COWBOYS, virtually assuring themselves of their 15th trip to the National Football League playoffs in 16 years, delivered a quick knockout to the sagging Seahawks, who selfdestructed with four fumbles and three interceptions.

"You've got to be pleased," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "It's hard to score that many points in a dummy scrimmage. I felt for Seattle. They've had injuries, the extra travel, short week and their (six game) losing streak. That wasn't the normal Seattle team we played.'

Besides the fumbles and interceptions, the Seahawk quarterbacks were sacked five times.

EVEN TRICKplays turned into embarrassment. Quarterback Jim Zorn frolicked to victory. 'It was my impression that the Cowboys were always getting the ball on our 10-yard line," Patera said.

"I can't give any reason ... a tipped ball ... a fumble. There's really nothing you can do about a score when it starts building like that. I was impressed with the Cowboys. I just like the way they play football," he

DALLAS QUARTERBACK Danny

White threw touchdown passes of 18 yards to Tony Hill and 14 yards to tight end Billy Joe DuPree, who also caught a 12-yard scoring pass from backup Glenn Carano. It was Carano's first NFL completion.

Tony Dorsett scored on two touchdown runs of a yard each and gained 107 yards on 24 carries. It was Dorsett's 18th 100-yard day, which surpassed Calvin Hill's club record. It was the fifth worst defeat administered by the Cowboys in their 21 year history. The Seahawks avoided a shutout when Zorn flipped a 2-yard pass to Teaff's Bears were generally picked for a second division finish but they swept all eight league foes without a blemish to take the host spot in the Cotton Bowl against Alabama New Year's Day.

In the latest AP Poll, the Bears were No. 8 in the land.

Linebacker Mike Hegman, who intercepted two passes, said he knew in the first quarter that the game was going to be a blowout.

"They looked kind of flat and we were up for the game. I knew we were just going to blow them out. In the second half, they looked like they just wanted to get the game over with. They didn't do the things they did against other teams."

95-yard kickoff return by Williams stuns Detroit

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Vince Evans has plenty of reasons for giving thanks, but the Chicago quarterback must be especially thankful for the Detroit Lions.

Evans received his first National Football League start of the season six weeks ago against Detroit, led his team to an easy victory, and has become the Bears' offensive leader.

On Thursday he did in the Lions to set up an overtime period which lasted exactly 21 seconds.

Chicago won the coin toss and return specialist Dave Williams raced 95 yards with the kickoff to give the Bears a heart-stopping 23-17 triumph

"I felt, and I could see everyone else on our team felt, we could still win the ball game," Evans said, "We needed this win in a big way. The fourth quarter was less than three minutes old when Evans concluded an 86-yard, nine-play drive by once again, rallying the Bears from a hitting tight end Bob Fisher with a 14-point deficit in the fourth quarter 20-yard touchdown pass to narrow the score to 17-10.

Rice on tube for first time in years

By The Associated Press For the first time in more than eight years, the Rice Owls will be on television at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

"Excited? I can tell you we're excited." Rice Coach Ray Alborn said. "It's just another sign of the progress our program is making." The Owls tangle in the Astrodome with crosstown rival Houston before ABC-TV's regional television cameras. Rice has upset Louisiana State, Texas A&M and Arkansas this year and was the underdog when it defeated Texas Christian. Houston, which will play in the Garden State Bowl against Navy, is an 18-point favorite. The Cougars have two losses and can clinch second place in the Southwest Conference standings behind unbeaten champion Baylor. Houston has already clinched at least a tie for second place.

"I'm happy with the way we worked in the third period," Ar-bour said. "We started rolling and we were making our breaks instead of waiting for them to happen. "We never gave up, which makes me very happy."

After Kallur put New York in front with his 11th goal of the season, Potvin was penalized for holding by referee Bob Myers and the Canadiens had several superb chances at the tying goal. Keith Acton hit the goalpost early in the power play and Glenn Resch made fine saves on shots by Ron Langway and Yvon Lambert.

"In your own building, ties are no good," said Boston Coach Gerry Cheevers. "We stand and watch, instead of skate. We're not hitting. We've only lost one of our last 11 games, but we've only won four - we're losing valuable points in these games at home.

Lakers race past Golden State on Kareem's 40

OAKLAND (AP) - The Los Angeles Lakers rediscovered a winning formula from the days before the arrival of Magic Johnson, now missing from action.

It involves 7-foot-2 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar - as much as possible.

"We have to mix things well on offense. Of course, that means one play for Kareem, then one play for the rest of the team," Coach Paul Westhead joked after Abdul-Jabbar scored 40 points in Thursday night's 128-119 victory over the Golden State War-

In the night's only other National Basketball Association game, the Washington Bullets beat the Indiana Pacers 123-108.

The Lakers have had some rough nights since the loss of Johnson, the brilliant guard who had knee surgery recently.

"The team can do something about that. I can't," said Abdul-Jabbar, whose teammates got the ball to him more than enough Thursday night.

"He just has to play his normal game," said Westhead. "Tonight, he was very assertive on both ends of the court.

Forward Jamaal Wilkes contributed 24 points for the NBA champions and said, "We've still got a lot of talent. We're not going to fall apart.

Abdul-Jabbar went 10 points over his previous single-game high this season and he did it against a team that had the NBA's best homecourt record, 10-0. He made 15 of 22 shots from the floor, 10 of 14 free throws, and grabbed 11 rebounds in 38 minutes

"My hook shot was good, but what helped most was the fouls. I've got to go to the line to have big scoring

7-foot rookie center, had his best scoring game as a pro with 32 points, with 14 coming in the final period. In the third quarter, when Abdul-Jabbar had 14 points, Carroll and backup center Clifford Ray both got into foul trouble and went to the bench.

Carroll, in his first regular season meeting with Jabbar, was outscored 29-14 on Oct. 19 in Los Angeles.

"I thought J.B. was tremendous this time. He fought him tooth and nail," Golden State Coach Al Attles said after the rematch. "It seemed like everything he put up went in."

Bullets 123, Pacers 108 Washington scored the final 10 points of the fourth quarter to take an 85-80 lead and then pulled away in the final period.

The Bullets' winning surge was paced by rookies Wes Matthews and Carlos Terry. Matthews scored 12 points and handed out four assists in the third quarter, while Terry scored 11 points after entering the game for the first time late in the third peri-

Judge Frank Battisti to oversee integration of the 85,000 pupil district.

About two-thirds of Cleveland's students are black, and many now are being bused in a district-wide integration program that began in September.

Waldrip recently issued a directive to city schools explaining that sports teams are covered by the court's desegregation orders.

His memo said at least 20 percent of each basketball team should be white, and principals and basketball coaches must recruit whites "as soon as possible." He added that "I do not feel that this could be fully implemented in all cases until next basketball season."

ball season."

The ruling is likely to have the greatest impact on the district's Senate League, which fields teams that often are composed entirely of black players.

Waldrip said two white players on each 12-player basketball squad would be sufficient, although that would be slightly under 20 percent.

He said school baseball teams should be at least 50 percent black and also set racial guidelines for sixla' sports teams.

The directive got a mixed reaction from coaches.

"I have no problem with the directive," said Don Hilt, basketball coach at Max Hayes High School.

"It's a valid order. I now have three whites on the varsity, and I had two before the directive. It will help kids understand each other."

But Jim Chambers, athletic director at John F. Kennedy High School, said it was "ridiculous when you don't choose players on a team by abili-

"I don't have 20 percent white players on the basketball team," Chambers said. "If they tell me I can't field a team without 20 percent white players, I will have to dress the team manager and stats man. They are both white. I can have them do their duties on the bench."

Chambers, who has questioned white youngsters as they get off buses, said, "You cannot force their to play if they don't want to."

General orders Duran to Panama

By MARK HEISLER

The Los Angeles Times NEW ORLEANS — Roberto Duran thought he would stop off in New York on his way home to Panama from Tuesday night's fight, but he also thought he would still be the WBC's welterweight champion. Wednesday there was a change in the itinerary: Duran had been ordered to come home by Gen. Omar Torrijos.

The request came the day after Duran had raised one glove to signal his intention of withdrawing from competition in Tuesday night's eighth round and then quit, making Sugar Ray Leonard the winner by a TKO and once more champion.

Duran said he had a cramp, a statement that would be greeted with skepticism. Great champions, which is what Duran had been for all of his 13-year, 73-fight, 72-victory, 55-knockout career, are supposed to keep fighting with cramps.

'One thing is bothering me," said Angelo Dundee, Leonard's trainer, at a Wednesday morning press conference. "The word, 'quit.' You shouldn't use that word. Duran is a great fighter. He has credibility."

SOMEONE ASKED if Dundee had a better word. "Retire," Dundee said. Duran spent the night in Baptist Hospital, but he was back at his hotel

Wednesday for a large breakfast (corn flakes, steak and eggs). He said he did not want to talk, so a group of reporters settled for watching him eat from a distance of about 10 yards and interviewing members of his retinue.

Duran's interpreter, Luis Henriquez, attacked the New Orleans water supply and the hotel's room-service menu. "Everybody knows the water is really bad." Henriquez said, in a clever takeoff on the Carlos Palomino Lite Beer ad. "Also Roberto never ejoyed the food here. The menu never changed." You would be tempted to say Henriquez is a great kidder, but he was not kidding.

Late in the afternoon, Duran's manager, Carlos Eleta, a Panamanian millionaire, held a press conference. There was detailed mention of Duran's pre-fight diet (steaks at 1 p.m. Tuesday, four glasses of orange juice, two of tomato juice, another small steak at 4:30) with the suggestion it had contributed to Duran's malaise. Eleta said Duran complained of being in a cold sweat and almost fainting during the fight. But Eleta admitted to his own bewilderment. He had made the decision that Duran retire, he said, because "I don't think in the last fight he had the desire he's always had. When you lose that desire, you better quit.'

HE WAS asked if Duran's collapse could have been more psychological than physical. "Could be," Eleta

"I am so baffled I can't figure it out. On the way from the Superdome, I heard people say Duran did that for the third fight. They are very much wrong. Duran will never fight again.... "I am happy he is finished but I'm not happy he finished that way." Dundee suggested that Duran had had trouble making the weightand, indeed, trainer Ray Arcel confirmed that Duran had weighed 170, 23 pounds over the welterweight limit seven weeks ago. But on Saturday, a writer saw Duran weigh in at 148, a pound over the limit, almost 72 hours before the fight. Duran is also a veteran of taking weight off, having commonly ballooned to 170 even when fighting as a lightweight, for which there is a 137-pound limit.

The most likely explanation for what happened, at present, is a combination of explanations: Duran had a cramp; he also had his money in the bank, Leonard was at once running from him and controlling the fight; worse, in the seventh round, Leonard started clowning and showing him

SO WHAT would Duran have needed with all that? He was still Duran. after all. Later he would tell writers he was still better than Leonard, "a thousand times better." A couple of writers thought they saw tears in Duran's eyes, as he was being interviewed and as he was$being driven from the Superdome.

"He was trying not to show it," Eleta said, "but he was very much ashamed. He was crying when I took him to the hospital.

The last time Duran flew home after a fight, after taking Leonard's title last June in Montreal, Panama threw a party that made the celebration over the return of the canal look like a tea party on the governor's "Panama Is In Mourning," ren the banner headline Wednesday morning in the Panama City paper Critica. La Estrella ran a headline that called it "A Surprising End, Beyond What Can be Imagined.

AND CLOSER to the street, the following pieces of graffiti were noted:

-"A day of national mourning;" -"Duran, we were with you and we're still with you." Oh yes, the winner. Early Wednesday morning, Leonard went on AM America, was asked if Duran had not in effect taken a dive, and answered yes. A few hours later, at the Superdome press conference, Leonard said he had not said that.

He said a few other things too: "Everyone said Duran was too strong for me. They felt he was a living legend. All of a sudden, I beat a so-called living legend and everyone's trying to find excuses.

'Duran walks around like snow is supposed to melt under him. He's a living legend and I made him look like an amateur '

The only other thing anyone really wanted to know was if Leonard intended to fight the other welterweight champion, the imposing Tommy Hearns of the WBA. Hearns warmed up for a possible mathch by throwing a rubber chicken at Leonard in the post-fight press conference and almost hit him with it.

BUT ITLL take more than a little theater right now. Leonard said Hearns did not have enough stature yet. What Hearns does have is 29 fights, 29 wins and 27 knockouts, but Leonard's lawyer, Mike Trainer, said Hearns had not had enough TV exposure. Trainer will presumably now go out and try to find Sugar another opponent like Davey Boy Green.

Leonard made $7 million from this, but the promotion was a disaster. The but the promotion was a disaster. The final attendance figure was 25,038 and

reconsiders Carlen

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — University of South Carolina trustees may reconsider last year's decision that would make Jim Carlen football coach only, rather than coach and athletic director, a published report said today.

The State newspaper in Columbia said the board, which meets Dec. 5, is expected to look at extending Carlen's contract as athletic director beyond its 1982 expiration. His football coaching contract runs until 1984.

Carlen, who came to South Carolina in 1975, has held both positions for four years. But his sometimes stormy relationship with some board members culminated in the fall of 1979 with a decision widely interpreted as stripping him of the overall leadership of Gamecock athletics.

An issue in the decision was the status of basketball Coach Frank McGuire, who held an associate athletic directorship for his sport. The trustees agreed to buy out the four years remaining on McGuire's contract after the 1979-80 season.

Board Chairman Markley Dennis told The State, "The intent was that there would be separate contracts (for athletic director and football

Louisville will rank among the South's top outfits again this season, but could have trouble repeating as the champion of the Metro Conference, and likely will be rated below another team from the Bluegrass State — the Kentucky Wildcats, a solid choice to win the Southeastern Conference title and ranked No.1 na-tionally in The Associated Press preseason poll.
The traditional hotbed of basketball in Dixie, the Atlantic Coast Confer-ence, also figures to provide a few nationally ranked teams again this year with Maryland carrying the fa-vorite's tag, followed closely by the Ralph Sampson-led Virginia Cavaliers and North Carolina.

"In the last four years, there hasn't been a single repeater in the final four," said Crum. "It's not a realistic goal, but because we did it with a young team, we have as good a chance as anybody. It all depends on how good you're playing at the end."

The returning starters from the 33-3 championship team are Derek Smith, Jerry Eaves, Wiley Brown and Rodney McCray. Crum also has back Rodney's brother, Scooter McCray, who missed most of last year with injuries.

preseason poll and Maryland is No.4, Virginia No.8 and North Carolina

If Louisville fails to repeat in the Metro, Florida State appears in line to rise to the top. The Seminoles are led by Mickey Dillard, who averaged 20 points a game last year. Virginia Tech also could be in the title hunt, relying on two-time All-Metro star Dale Solomon, who averaged 16 points and 7 rebounds per game. Coach Joe B. Hall will be seeking his second national crown since replacing the legendary Adolph Rupp at Kentucky, and many forecasters are labeling his team the one to beat.

The Wildcats lost All-American guard Kyle Macy, but return such stars as Sam Bowie, Dirk Minniefield and Freddie Cowan to go with such outstanding recruits as center Melvin Turpin and guards Jim Master and Dicky Beal.

Kentucky's biggest challenge in the SEC will be from the same challenger of recent years - Dale Brown's Louisiana State Tigers, No.12 in the preseason poll. The Bengals lost Dewayne Scales to the NBA draft, and some say this will help the team because of his moody outbursts.

LSU's top players are forward Durand Macklin and guard Ethan

The SEC darkhorse is Georgia, featuring sophomore standouts Dominique Wilkins and Terry Fair. The Bulldogs also will start two freshmen again this year, forward James Banks and guard Vern Fleming.

Vanderbilt also ranks among the SEC darkhorses with the return of outstanding forward Charlie Davis, sidelined with injuries a year ago. There is no clear-cut favorite in the Southern Conference race, but the league will garner some national attention since it has NCAA permission to experiment with the three-point

Five of the nation's Top Twenty teams are part of the glamorous field in Anchorage - 11th-ranked Missouri, No. 12 Louisiana State, No. 13 North Carolina, No. 16 Georgetown and 20th-ranked Arkansas.

'One of these days,' says Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton, "if the field continues as it has in the past, I think you'll have the preview of the national championship game right there in Alaska.''

Kentucky, ranked No. 1 in the country, won the tourney last year. The season before, when the tourney was called "The Sea Wolf Classic," Louisville — last year's NCAA champion was a finalist.

Virginia plays Bucknell and Virginia Tech meets Lafayette in openinground games of the Virginia Tipoff, while in the Lapchick tourney, it's St. John's vs. James Madison and Penn against Weber State.

Iona, Vanderbilt, South Carolina and Western Kentucky play in the Wendy's Classic while Clemson, Cornell, Rice and Fairfield will participate in the IPTAY.

Fists of Stone, Heart of Fudge

Los Angeles Times

One of the legacies of 50 years of Hollywood films is the myth that the outcomes of prizefights are predetermined by guys wearing gray fedoras, pinstripe suits with spats, smoking big black cigars with fingers pudgy from lasagna, and glowing with diamond rings. It was a great part for Sheldon Leonard or Rod Steiger or even Bogart. "Yer boy goes out in the fourt' round if you ever wanna see yer little goil again, Lefty. The boss says no slip-ups.'

The trouble is, people believe it. Oh, there have been fixed fights. Jake LaMotta's movie proved that. But I doubt there have been too many lately in Big Fights. Fixed fights usually take two forms: you fix a fight for an up-and-coming challenger, usually with a guy he figures to beat anyway, but why take chances? There's no big money involved here because there's no betting. The new hope is a prohibitive favorite, and the guy he's fighting is going nowhere any way so there's no action

Also, it used to be possible in the '20s and early '30s to make a killing on bagged fights. For two reasons: First of all, the fighters did not make all that much money off the fight itself and were vulnerable to a big underthe-table payoff. You could buy Rhode Island for 100 grand in those days. Plus, there was a lot of betting action on the fights.

TODAY., THESE factors don't apply. The books won't touch a fight with a funny or last-minute shift in the odds. Nobody comes walking into a horse palor with a satchel full of money, empties it out on the counter and says, "I'll take the white boy." There may be a lot of man-to-man betting, but you can't fix fights off the income or the vigorish from that, because there ain't

Next, there's too much money involved today. You could fix World Series in 1919 because Hall of Fame ballplayers were making $3,000-ayear from skinflint owners. Like to try to fix a World Series today? There isn't enough gold in South Africa.

Anyway, what do you offer a guy making $8 million already to throw a fight? How do you get that nut

No, the only person who had any-

insel

thing to gain by quitting in the ring last Tuesday night was Roberto Duran. He may have lost face, but he saved the components thereof, like teeth and lips and eyes. My notion is that Fists of Stone turned out to have a heart of fudge.

IT IS the nature of bullies to pack it in early when hit back, anyway. It doesn't happen only in Frank Merriwell. Remember what Winston Churchill said of the German armies? 'They're either at your throat - or at your feet.'

I remember the cry of "Fake!" that went up when Sonny Liston quit in his corner in 1964. I didn't believe the doubters then, nor do I now. What I remember of that fight is the sight of Sonny Liston, who was working on a winning streak of about 40 fighters, 20 cops, and Lord knows how many guys behind in their payments to the Mob, trying to fight with gashes in both of his cheeks and the blood running down into his mouth where he swallowed it. Sonny wanted no more part of eight more rounds of that than he wanted to jump out of a building, and he quit on his stool in

The first test to apply to a "fixed" fight, anyway, is how long it went. Fixed fights go one round. A guy who knows he's going to go out does not stand around for eightto-10 rounds taking a beating. He hits the floor as soon as the anthem dies down. I mean, why not? Would a man in handcuffs stand there and let you beat him to a

MY NOTION is, Roberto Duran, Tuesday night, like Sonny Liston in 1964 and again in 196., was not in shape to fight a Duran fight. Oh, the body looked all right, and the weight was right, but, inside, wa a shell of the street creature he used to be. I think Roberto knew he was in for seven more rounds of catching blows to the eyes, nose, brainpan, and that he might be better off being pushed from a speeding truck. He had tried to psyche Leonard and lost. It was his only chance. And he thought, "Why am I doing this? I have $8 million, all the Rolls-Royces I will ever need. Do I want to go home with my head in a box?" In other words, instead of fists of stone, did he want ears of stone?

I think Leonard knew Roberto was through. I think Roberto did, too. I think he knew his presence in the ring was superfluous. A punching bag would do just as well the last seven rounds. And Roberto didn't

'Rebuilt' Lobos face Colorado

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) - The University of New Mexico basketball team makes its official debut in the new season tonight when it meets Big Eight Conference member Colorado at Albuquerque.

New Mexico, under first-year Coach Gary Colson, will also tangle with traditional rival New Mexico State Saturday night in the first of two meetings between the two in-state schools. A return match will be played Dec. 20 at Las Cruces.

New Mexico overwhelmed a hapless Australian amateur team, 112-84, in an exhibition game a week ago. The same team also lost to New Mexico State 98-76. The exhibition win will not count on either the Lobos' or Aggies' final record

The Lobos, whose season last year was wrecked by the recruiting and transcript scandal which hit the program as the 1979-80 campaign was getting started, is still thin on players, but has considerable more talent.

Junior guard Kenny Page, the fourth leading scorer in the nation a year ago with a 28 point per game average, is expected to get some ofcenter Jerome Henderson, forwards Larry Tarrance and Michael Johnson and promising junior college forward Tony Persley.

The team quarterbacks are a pair of lightning quick point guards, freshmen Phil Smith and Wallace Wil-

New Mexico State Coach Weldon Drew also has a virtual new lineup, having lost all five starters from last year's team that was 17-10.

Drew has said he will shuffle his lineup considerably in the early part of the year to try and find the best combination Forwards Paul Atkins and Phil Elders paced the win over the Australians and they likely will be joined in the starting lineup this week by guards Ernest Patterson and Jerome Akins and center Derek Sail-

New Mexico State won both games from the Lobos last season, taking a 68-58 win at Las Cruces and 103-84 in Albuquerque.

Against Colorado, New Mexico will be going against a veteran club that has four starters back from last year's 17-10 team. The 17 victories more than a decade. The Buffaloes are led by high scor-ing 6-foot-3 guard Jo Jo Hunter, who transferred to Colorado two years ago from Maryland. The other starters include 6-foot-7 forward Jacques Tuz, 6-foot-8 forward Brian Johnson, foot-8 center Craig Austin and 6-foot-2 guard Joe Washington.

Colorado Coach Bill Blair says the Buffaloes are plenty deep in talent and "if we stay healthy, we can com-pete with anybody in the country."

Steve Bartkowski is playing the best football of his career for Atlanta. Most Redskins are not. Atlanta favored by 91/2. Steelers 20, Dolphins 10

Is there a rule that you must have 45 men on the roster? Pittsburgh may have that many on injured reserve. Pittsburgh favored by 61/2 Vikings 23, Saints 7

New Orleans has to win one eventually, right? Not necessarily. Minnesota favored by 61/2. Packers 13, Bucs 10 These teams tied the last time they played, but Green Bay has improved since then and Tampa Bay has not. Green Bay favored by 41/2.

Appeal sought of Abscam ruling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - While some defendants celebrated, Philadelphia prosecutors were seeking an appeal today of a federal judge's ruling that acquitted on the grounds of entrapment two Philadel phia politicians convicted of Abscarn charges.

U.S. District Judge John P. Fullam, who presided over the ex tortion-conspiracy trial of former City Council President George X. Schwartz and Councilman Harry P. Jan notti, threw out their Sept. 15 convictions on Wednesday, ruling the courts had an obligation to protect citizens from "governmental overreaching."

"The turkey will go down a lot smoother today," Michael J. "Ozzie" Myers, a Pennsylvania congressman expelled from the House after his August conviction on bribery-conspiracy charges, said Thursday.

Entrapment and government misconduct arguments have been raised by several defendants in the FBI's would be reached in his a ppeal before the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York. Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., who based his defense on entrapment and is appealing his conviction on Abscam charges, said, "I think our case is stronger than the one in Philadelphia.

Meanwhile, U.S. Attorney Peter F. Vaira said he would initiate an appeal of Fullam's ruling today.

"I'm going to ask that the solicitor general, who is the only one with the authority to do so, direct the appeal to the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals," take "a few weeks."

Seven members of Congress and several municipal officials were indicted as a result of the FBI undercover operation, which involved agents posing as representatives of an Arab businessman willing to pay bribes for favors.

Part of the operation involved videotaping politicians accepting envelopes purportedly containing cash. Fullam's 64-page decision was the first favorable finding for any of the Abscam defendants. Schwartz, in Miami Besich for the holidays, refused comment on the ruling. But his daughter, Marjorie, said she was delighted with the ruling.

"I believe in my father, and it's the happiest day of my life. I sat through that trial, and to see them destroy a man's reputation, it was horrible,' she said. Schwartz resigned his council seat after the guilty verdict.

"I'm flying. I am really happy about it although I still want to see what the decision said," said Jannotti, who took a leave of absence from the council after the trial.

Financial centers have two questions

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - In the nation's financial centers these days the two biggest questions are how long the Reagan stock market will continue, and how long the "recovery" will last if interest rates don't fall.

The two concerns are really one, and that much seems clear to anyone who managed a grade C in Economics 1. But it apparently isn't clear to those who have been vigrously buying stocks in the past few weeks.

The prime interest rate has ascended to 17 percent, and you don't have to look long in the literature of financial forecasting to find those who believe it will continue rising, maybe to 20 percent or more.

Meanwhile, inflation continues just as if it hadn't heard of the new president-elect and wasn't concerned about his promises to stand firm against its advance. Inflation is confident; it is used to winning. What drives the stock market ahead, in spite of what used to be very serious obstacles, seems to be a widespread conviction that eventually Reagan will triumph over high prices, interest rates, and taxes.

That brings up the question of how much can the market discount and how far ahead can it look. Almost all analysts agree that no matter how successful Reagan is eventually, he faces serious problems immediately.

Value Line Investment Survey, the largest advisory service, observes that high unemployment, inflation and interest rates "will almost certainly be a deterrent to renewed economic growth." It ads: 'Rising interest rates directly affect almost all sectors of the economy. The recent upturn in these rates threatens to choke off the recovery which only recently appeared."

The depth of the problem has been stated several times in the past few weeks by Henry Kaufman, a partner in the investment banking firm of Salomon Brothers and a profound commentator about credit markets. "It would be dangerous for us as citizens and for our new political leadership to bask in the hope created by the election," Kaufman told the New York State Bankers Association on November 21. Inflation prospects are almost everywhere, said Kaufman. In wage demands, in deregulated oil prices, in food products. And the credit system, he said in effect, is now unlike anything in our lifetimes. He noted that debt continues to grow rapidly — at an annual rate of 11.5 percent in the 1970s compared with 7.5 percent in the 1960s.

"If this acceleration continues in the 1980s, then there will be no way out except through the destruction of values and damage to our economic and political system," he warned. That's just the beginning.

If the credit system, and the high interest rates and prices, remain uncorrected, he said, "the worth of financial savings will continue to dminish rapidly' the flight away from financial assets will become prominent; and confidence in political, economic and financial contractual arrangements will dissipate.'

Fiscal policy, said Kaufman, must gain credibility, and quickly, if a successful economic recovery is to be launched.

Therein lies a challenge to the new administration, to the stock market and to that vague measure of wellbeing that is commonly called consumer confidence. All are riding high

But so are interest rates.

By JOANNE OMANG and PETER BEHR The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Republican chairman-to-be of the Senate Energy Committee isn't all that sure he wants to go along with one of the main things Ronald Reagan promised in his presidential campaign — abolish the While James A. McClure is prepared to pare off some parts of the department he said "it is premature to judge" whether it ought to be completely dismantled, as Reagan has urged.

As chairman, the Idahoan will seek 'as soon as possible" to abolish DOE's Economic Regulatory Administration, a major and controversial branch that regulates oil and gasoline pricing and allocation, he said in an interview. Beyond that, he intends to move carefully. McClure, 55, seems to relish the prospect of bringing his conservative views to bear on the energy and public lands policies he has doggedly attacked during his eight-year Senate career.

Environmental laws will have to be revised in light of the overriding need to develop the nation's energy resources, he said

'There won't be any wholesale demolishing of laws that deal with the protection of the environment," he said. "It's a matter of changes in balance." Environmentalists "have had their way pretty much in the last few years. They're not going to have it as totally as they have had. The pendulum is swinging. He recommended former Wyoming senator Clifford P. Hansen to be Reagan's new secretary of the interior, an endorsement Reagan received 'very politely," he said. Like McClure, the 67-year-old Hansen represents a mineral-rich state where developers have been chafing under what they see as unreasonable environmental and land use restrictions on energy growth. Others rumored to be in line for the Interior post include Rep. Manuel Lujan Jr., R-N.M.; House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz.; and Richard Richards, a Utah attorney and state GOP chairman who coordinated the western states in Reagan's cam-McClure wasn't talking about his preference to head DOE, where the leading candidates are reported to include C. John Miller, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, who has expressed interest in the post, and Rep. Dave Stockman, R-Mich., who says he does not want the assignment. Reagan's main concern, McClure said, was to guarantee that both chiefs would be "policy-makers, not just administrators of policies decided by the domestic council or the White House staff." Instead, McClure talked of a new balance for the energy-environment

"There's something wrong with a process that won't permit us to go ahead with energy development," he

The new balance, he said, will involve formal definition of "environment" to include jobs, education, street safety and housing as well as natural factors. ("The environment for a ghetto black is pretty bad and a large part of it is that he doesn't have a job; he has no education, no skills, no hope, McClure said. "People being able to walk in the p$rk safely is every bit as important as the pigeons and the In that connection, he favors transfer of many Environmental Protection Agency enforcement powers to the state and local level, leaving EPA the right to rule in regional disputes. A community should be able to decide its own (power plant) stack emissions," he said. "If it wants dirty air as a tradeoff for jobs, it should be able to go ahead."

But if those emissions are proved to contribute to acid rain downwind, he said, then it would become a regional issue where EPA could step

The Clean Air Act and the Surface Mining and Reclamation Act, McClure said, will have to be reviewed in light of the incoming government's view that national energy self-sufficiency will have "the highest priority we can give it, right next to national defense." He said it is clear the Clean Air Act has restrained coal development and has been applied with "excessive" zeal, while the Office of Surface Mining is "a cumbersome monster" that cannot seem to make decis8ons.

Environmental laws have been used to stall development and not solely to guarantee consideration of environmental needs, McClure went

The near-term energy future will be coal and conventional nuclear power, he said, "and that's not fully accepted by the public." The nation needs to start building more nuclear plants soon, and that will require a review of licensing and regulatory procedure at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, he said.

McClure, a longtime booster of the breeder reactor program at Clinch River, Tenn., said again that a breeder program is needed but added he is not yet at the point of deciding whether newer technology might work better. He endorsed continuing research into solar and other alternative energy sources with some scrutiny of the programs that fund research projects in various states.

Better late

LONDON (AP) - It is not unusual in some countries for a 10 a.m. meeting to begin several hours late.

"Business people shouldn't feel snubbed if they have to wait," says E.L. Kistler of Phillips Petroleum. "For example, ancient traditions mandate that Arabs deal first with family, then with countrymen and then with everyone else.

"But if the person you're supposed to meet doesn't show up at all, that means no deal."

Star wars resume

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) - Fifty-five years after the famous Scopes ey trial down in Tennessee, the evolutionists and the creationists are still having a go at each other.

If anything, the battle has grown more heated in recent years, and it is the scientists who have suddenly gone on the defensive.

To the amusement of the churchmen, the men in the white coats are openly bickering among themselves, thundering forth conflicting theories.

The classic conflict between text and test tube gives signs of becoming themselves.

a brawl. Once again the schools may become the battlefield, as creationists seek equal time with the evolutionists on grounds that both theories are unprovable.

In case anyone out there has missed all the countless reruns of the film "Inherit the Wind" on late night TV, the drama first took center stage in American philosophical history at the famous monkey trial at Dayton, Tenn., in 1925. Then and there Clarence Darrow, the great defense attorney made a monkey cutt of Rible toting William Jennings Rryan attorney, made a monkey out of Bible-toting William Jennings Bryan in defending the right of high school teacher John T. Scopes to teach Darwin's theory of man's evolutionary descent.

If there should be a remake of the movie anytime soon, there might very well be a role reversal with Bryan cast as the hero, although the part did not lack for meat (ham, specifically) in the original.

The voyage of H.M.S. Beagle, the flagship of Charles Darwin's beliefs, took its most recent serious buffeting, after the original storm over his publication in 1859 of "The Origin of Species," with the promulgation a year or so ago of the so-called "Big Bang" theory.

In layman's terms (which means "now watch me louse this up"), the Big Bang theory contends that this old world of ours did not come together in a haphazard evolutionary manner over a leisurely unfolding of eons and ons, give or take a few million light years down the vault of prehistoric succession. Nope. It happened all at once, our beginnings as a cosmos, Bang, in a great galactic explosion of atoms and enzymes and what not way out there in the wild blue nothing. The Big Bang strikes some as supiciously akin to creation.

All but the most literate-minded biblical scholars can live with it. The Big Bang theory makes Genesis more than a collection of myths without disturbing either its poetry or piety.

James Weldon Johnson, the great black poet who wrote those marvellous plantation sermons in verse, would have relished the Big Bang theory. It fits right in with his Negro preacher's view of creation:

"Then God reached out and took the light in His hands,
And God rolled the light around in His hands,
Until He made the sun;
And He set that sun a-blazing in the heavens.
And the light that was left from making the sun
God gathered up in a shining ball
And flung against the darkness,
Spanning the night with the moon and stars

pangling the night with the moon and stars. hen down between

The darkness and the light He hurled the world; And God said, "That's Good!"

In October of this year 150 scientists specializing in evolution met in Chicago, and the great controversy over our origin deepened. Serious scientists assured ach other that no serious scientist can seriously doubt evolutionary theory le serious scientists in their midst entertained serious doubts.

while serious scientists in their midst entertained serious doubts.

For one thing, Darwin's missing links are still missing after 120 years. Fossil hunters have not found the fossils needed to explain the glaring differences between major species. In the whole cycle of environmental selection, with all the genes and embryos playing splitsville according to the evolutionary plan, no six legged veterbrate has yet walked forth upon the earth.

Science has provided very few examples — some evolutionsts say none — of the major species shading gradually into another. So some respected paleonologists are now backing the hypothesis that new species come about not as result of gradual changes but in sudden bursts of evolution. The big bang in biology, which again smacks suspiciously of creation and gives comfort to the needinglans.

Darwin's theory, it seems, is under attack for failing to evolve into a comfortable law of nature, like Newton's law of unversal gravitation, which I understand is not nearly so universal as it used to be either.

Then just a week or so ago, serious scientists conferring about comets at the University of Maryland were seriously advancing the new theory that man really fell to earth.

Do I detect an I-told-you-so smile on the face of blind John Milton in that amous oil painting where he dictates "Paradise Lost" to his daughters, specially that last haunting book when Adam and Eve drop from the cliff of aradise to the weesome world below?

As Howard Coswell would put it, "the ball is now in God's court."

Anyhow, in the words of a down-home TV evangelist storming the battlements of science (as related to me by AP theater critic Jay Sharbutt): "Stay tuned for the Big Show. Life is but the station break."

We shall see. In the meantime, hold your fire with those angry letters until you see the whites of those lab coats or clerical collars. New Star wars are upon us at thate date in the history of man.

Controversial scout troop loses Council credentials

HOUSTON (AP) — The local Boy Scout Council, citing "disturbing reports," has jerked its credentials from an Explorer post where leaders allegedly trained youths in lethal hand-to-hand combat techniques.

The Council, which governs more than 70,000 youths and adults who carticipate in scouting in the Houston area, rejected the charter application of cost 2125 on Tuesday night.

"Disturbing reports have been brought to light concerning the temporary adership and activities of the post. ... The local Council held up the oplication after receiving adverse information last week," said Council controversy erupted after the Houston Chronicle reported in a copyright Sunday that several Explorers and Civil Air Patrol cadets had been how to strangle people, decapitate enemies with a machete and fire internatic weapons.

The youths, ages 13 to 20, reportedly received training at a "survival camp" in Southeast Texas from a Ku Klux Klan member and a man convicted in tennessee on a weapons charge earlier this year.

The council ordered an investigation Monday.

"Charters for Explorer posts are based upon three factors — sponsorship, eadership and membership. Sufficient questions existed to dictate that the council reject the charter," Baker said.

In a copyright story Tuesday, the Chronicle reported that the mother of two splorer Scouts said troop leaders once talked of a mission to the U.S.-Mexico order to spot filegal aliens entering the country.

The mother asked not to be identified because she feared retaliation, the expenser said.
