Jurors find no negligence in hospital case

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The jury in the negligence suit brought against Midland Memorial Hospital deliberated four hours Wednesday afternoon before finding the hospital's nurses guilty of any negligence in causing injury to a former patient.

Nevertheless, the jury "awarded" the patient, 26-year-old Paula Ann Thomas of Midland, $100,000 in damages for her physical pain, mental anguish and injury.

But no penalty can be assessed against the hospital, since the 8-woman, four-man jury voted 10-2 in favor of the hospital and found no negligence.

"They (jurors) evidently thought they were awarding $100,000," said Warren Burnett, Mrs. Thomas's attorney, who said the case would be appealed. He was arguing for $450,000 in damages for his client, who suffered a foot drop while recovering from a knee operation in Midland Memorial Hospital in October 1978.

THE CASE AGAINST the hospital gained impetus on the afternoon of Oct. 12, 1978 — the day following the surgery by Dr. Thurston Dean. In making a routine check of his patient, Dean noticed the swelling on Mrs.

Thomas's left foot and leg, which was in a cast, detected numbness in her foot, and promptly cut away and removed the cast.

Subsequently, Mrs. Thomas, a secretary at Midland College, and her husband, mortician Bill Thomas, lodged the negligence suit against the hospital. They claimed that the nurses failed to notify Dean of symptoms of a possible medical problem, failed to heed Mrs. Thomas's complaints of pain and foot numbness, and failed to remove the cast to relieve pressure on the leg.

trol of the foot.

Though 10 of the 12 jurors found no negligence on part of the hospital and its nursing staff, they did rule, however, that Mrs. Thomas "did inform" the nurses of symptoms of numbness or pain in the left foot.

AFTER THE THOMAS suit was filed against the hospital, the hospital in turned sued Dean for malpractice. The hospital claimed that Mrs. Thomas's post-operative care was his responsibility and not the hospital's since he was not in the hospital's employ.

Dean in turn sued the hospital for libel and alleged the hospital challenged his professionalism.

But Wednesday morning, the hospital dismissed its suit against Dean, an orthopedic surgeon who has practiced in Midland since 1960 and who has performed well over 10,000 successful knee operations.

THE HOSPITAL'S defense attorney, David Davis, told The Reporter-Telegram that there was "no reason" for dismissal of the counter-suit against Dean.

Burnett said otherwise. "They didn't have a case against him," said the Odessa attorney. "He was rather inappropriately brought in" to the litigation.

But Davis, an Austin-based attorney, did say that he hoped Dean would reciprocate and drop his libel suit against the hospital. That suit is still pending.

Moments after the jury returned its verdict, Davis, who was leaving to catch a return flight to Austin, said he would "hate to be around" when Dean learned of the verdict, which pleased the defending attorney.

Burnett called the verdict "ridiculous."

In closing arguments of the three-day trial, Davis defended the nurses' judgment in not recognizing the al-

Computer millionaire H. Ross Perot is on a crusade to save young Texans from drugs as chairman of Texans' War Against Drugs. He spoke to Midlanders Against Drugs, the Midland Junior League and other Midlanders Wednesday in an all-day seminar at Theatre Midland. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

Anti-drug education goal of local seminar

He was sitting in the auditorium listening intently to the speaker condemn the use of drugs. Suddenly he began shaking uncontrollably. It started in his hands and soon consumed his entire body. He couldn't sit still. He squirmed in his seat and began making unintelligible noises. And then someone stopped the speaker and said the paramedics were on the way.

What some members of the large group of Midlanders attending the all-day drug abuse seminar at Theatre Midland Wednesday thought was a typical example of what drugs can do to a young person was really a demonstration of what the lack of them can do.

The young man from the Palmer Drug Abuse Program has been beating his drug problem. The lack of these drugs has changed his body's chemistry, and since he is a diabetic, what happened to him Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium was insulin shock. Once his blood sugar level was back to normal, he was fine.

Coming off drugs is not as easy as getting on them, which is what members of the Texans' War Against Drugs (TWAD) and the Midlanders Against Drugs (MAD) are trying to tell the public through seminars and workshops. Speakers for the groups said Wednesday they want to help parents keep children from experimenting with the dangers of drugs.

H. ROSS PEROT, chairman of TWAD, said the statewide plan to fight the number 1 social problem in the United States and the number 1 criminal problem in Texas was threefold. Perot said education of the public with emphasis on parents, enactment of tough drug legislation and maintenance of strict law enforcement throughout the state would soon bring the Texas drug problem under control.

Perot said illegal drug traffic is "a $50-60 billion industry." He said that made illegal drug sales comparable to Exxon, General Motors and American Telephone and Telegraph in size and scope. In addition, he said drug paraphernalia amounted to another $3 billion in sales in the U.S. "with no legal purpose except to promote the use of illegal drugs."

The Texas businessman and chairman of the board of Electronic Data Systems said the "marijuana industry" had an economic impact on the United States' inflation rate comparable to that of all OPEC oil countries — roughly $40-60 billion dollars in international trade — without taxation.

In addition, he said California's largest money crop was marijuana and Hawaii's revenues from marijuana was roughly twice as much as from sugar cane.

But what TWAD and MAD members are most concerned about is the extent of drug use among children and teen-agers.

PEROT REPORTED the findings of a survey of teen-agers. "The number 1 concern of children in the U.S. is drugs. The number 2 concern is their relationship with their parents," he said.

Perot said getting children away from drugs was not going to be easy and parents would have to be the main force. "Children are crying out to their parents to give them guidance and support," Perot told the audience.

Perot explained parents should meet not only their children's friends, but also contact and meet the friends' parents. Together, he said, the parents can set up strict guidelines of

Iranian official says hostages' fate hinges on U.S. response

By The Associated Press

The American hostages will be freed, stand trial, or have their fate decided by Iran's Parliament depending on the latest U.S. response to Iran's demands, and so far the Iranian government has not taken custody of the captives, a top Iranian official said today.

One of the militants occupying the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for nearly 13 months also said the Americans have not been transferred. "We have not delivered the hostages yet. We will announce it in a statement when we do," he said when contacted by telephone by The Associated Press in Beirut, Lebanon.

The Iranian official, Bzhad Nabavi, minister of state for executive affairs who is head of a state committee charged with carrying out the Iranian Parliament's conditions for the release of the hostages, told a news conference in Tehran he will meet with the Algerian envoys carrying the U.S. response as soon as they arrive late today.

"We are not going to negotiate with them. We are only waiting for the response. If the response is positive, the release will be done. If negative, we will give the hostages to the court for trial, and if the response is halfway, that is some conditions are accepted and some not, we will ask the Majlis (Parliament) to tell us what to do," Nabavi said.

He added: "At present the government is taking the hostages but the transfer of the hostages has not been completed yet because of some security considerations and other things."

"Transferring the hostages who are dispersed in different cities and places and preparing a suitable place for them — we cannot keep them in our prison — takes time. Thus we should find a safe place for keeping them."

Swedish Radio's correspondent in Tehran said that 49 of the hostages were moved from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran to a secret location in the Iranian capital last Friday and no longer are guarded by the Islamic militants who seized them 397 days ago. The other three hostages remain at the Iranian Foreign Ministry, the correspondent said. Iranian officials denied similar reports last week.

Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie told reporters in Washington Wednesday that the United States has informed Iran that President Carter can't implement to the letter the four demands for releasing the hostages, but he added the U.S. government will do all it can to observe the spirit of the four demands set down more than a month ago by the Iranian Parliament.

"A literal reading of the (parliament's) proposal is beyond the president's authority to implement," Muskie said. "But he can go a significant way and indeed a substantial way towards the objectives of that resolution."

"We have undertaken to indicate (to Iran) we are willing to do that, we cannot go beyond that, and the Iranians must understand it," he added.

As Muskie spoke, his deputy, Warren Christopher, was wrapping up two days of talks with Algerian intermediaries.

Christopher, who returned here early today, met in the Algerian capital with Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia and a three-man panel that has been acting as go-between for the United States and Iran.

Christopher is scheduled to brief President Carter and Muskie later today.

ED TODD

Ways to spend $2.25 million in solicited federal funds to upgrade underdeveloped and decaying sections within Midland were aired here Wednesday night in a public hearing.

But a problem cropped up: not enough money to go around for all those in need.

Discussion centered on sprucing up a so-called "window pane" section in far south central Midland. That area, which is excluded from the city limits, is without city water and sewer facilities but is filled with 77 sub-standard and dilapidated houses, including mobile homes.

"Most of them are unlivable," asserted Barbara Ellis, a Lubbock consultant who was hired by Midland County to survey impoverished areas within the city and to prepare the county's application for the federal funds. "But no amount of money would fix them up."

Ms. Ellis and County Judge Bill Ahlers were moderating the public hearing in Midland Freshman School.

The county is seeking $2.25 million in Community Development funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The window pane area, flanked by U.S. Highway 80 and Interstate 20 in far south Midland, is just north of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum and is bordered by Carver Avenue on the north and by Johnston Street on the east.

Ms. Ellis said that the proposal could include a $250,000 day-care center on Taylor Park in the northeast

Another housing bond program possible

'Big IF' raised at Housing Authority meeting

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

The "big IF" raised its head again during Wednesday afternoon's meeting of the Midland Housing Authority concerning another proposed single family mortgage revenue bond program.

Harry Clark, president of the MHA, reported that another housing bond revenue program may be offered to Midlanders in the early part of next year IF the bonds can get a rating and IF the bonds can be sold for under 10 percent.

Clark said it is probable the program would get the necessary AA rating in New York since the other two housing revenue programs for the city and county received AA ratings.

The difficult part would be in selling the bonds to buyers for under 10 percent by Dec. 31 as required by state and federal law. And it was that big IF which seems doubtful at the moment, noted Clark.

Bonds for the county's housing revenue bond program sold for about 9.992 percent, Clark noted.

If these two big IF obstacles can be hurdled, it is possible that $13 million would be available to the public on a 30-year mortgage plan, explained Clark.

During the first 12 years of the mortgage, recipients would pay an 11 percent interest rate. Then, for the last 18 years, the federal interest rate at that time would apply, he said.

It is possible, Clark added, that this may be the last time any housing revenue bond programs would be made available to the public since the federal government has begun to phase out such programs.

In another action, MHA members revised the admission income limits of the handicapped and the elderly for housing in Hillcrest Manor.

Single persons with annual income of $10,550 or less or couples showing an income of about $12,000 or less would qualify for residence in the complex under the new limits.

Another requirement is that total assets would have to be under $25,000.

In the past, single residents making less than $7,200 and couples making less than $8,200, with total assets of no more than $20,000, would qualify for occupancy at Hillcrest.

Since the economic climate in Midland is different from that of the rest of the nation, "raising the ceiling would be raising the floor," noted Clark.

However, this should not be interpreted as having more vacancies available, noted Fred Kester, secretary, since there are about 140 persons on a waiting list.

Other actions approved by commissioners include routine items such as bill payments, maintenance reports and the financial statement for November.

Schweiker reportedly cabinet choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retiring Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania, Ronald Reagan's vice presidential pick in 1976, is the president-elect's choice for secretary of health and human services in the new Cabinet, sources say.

One source involved in shaping the Reagan administration said Schweiker, 54, already has been asked to join the Reagan Cabinet, but the two-term Republican refused to comment on the report Wednesday.

"I'm not going to speculate on any Cabinet appointment," he told a reporter in the Senate.

Schweiker would be expected to accept the position if it were offered because he had asked Reagan for the job at a meeting in Washington two weeks ago, congressional sources said.

As ranking Republican on the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, which oversees the Labor and HHS departments, Schweiker reportedly had his choice to head either department in the Reagan administration.

Schweiker was known as a liberal Republican in the Senate until 1976, when the conservative Reagan, in a novel move, tapped him as a running mate shortly before the Republican National Convention. Reagan hoped a pre-convention announcement of his vice presidential choice would wrest the party's presidential nomination from Gerald R. Ford. The strategy failed.

Afterward, however, Schweiker established a far more conservative voting record in the Senate.

Reagan's reported choice of Schweiker indicated that Reagan was completing his Cabinet selections and might announce half or more of his choices by this week.

end, one source said. In Los Angeles, press spokesman Joe Holmes said Wednesday that Reagan has made decisions about his Cabinet but announcements are awaiting FBI background checks and answers from the candidates.

Holmes said Reagan probably would not announce any of his choices until Saturday at the earliest, and possibly not before next Wednesday, when he makes his second post-election trip to Washington.

Several Republican sources involved in the transition said Reagan also has decided on Caspar Weinberger, budget director and secretary of health, education and welfare in the Nixon administration, as defense secretary; former NATO Commander Alexander M. Haig Jr. as secretary of state; personal attorney William French Smith as attorney general; Reagan campaign manager William J. Casey as CIA director, and Citicorp Chairman Walter B. Wriston as treasury secretary.

Choices for most other Cabinet-level jobs were not as firm, and even the posts that Reagan has picked people for could wind up occupied by new faces at the last minute if the leading candidates turn down the offers or if the FBI checks turn up damaging information, the sources said.

Transition team warned by CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA is warning Ronald Reagan's transition team to beware of friendly Soviet agents seeking to make contacts with the incoming administration, aides to the president-elect said.

CIA agents told a meeting of transition officials that two such contacts already had occurred, said one source who attended the session.

Two CIA agents, who conducted a briefing for about 300 transition officials Tuesday night, disclosed the contacts and cautioned Reagan aides to be careful of any future overtures, the source said.

The CIA agents did not say what the Soviet agents were after or when the contacts occurred, the source said. The identities and positions of the two transition officials also were not disclosed.

CIA spokesman Herb Hetu said Wednesday night that he could neither confirm nor deny that any contacts were made.

The CIA officials "said we should be very circumspect, that we could be considered targets" of Soviet intelligence, the Reagan source said. "They said two people on the transition staff had been approached by Soviet agents (and) we should be very careful."

Another Reagan official who attended the meeting said he understood that only one such contact had occurred. The officials said the warning appeared primarily intended to inform newcomers to Washington about the realities of Soviet intelligence activity and the dangers of holding positions of power.

"It was sort of a lecture on how to behave," one source said.

An aide to transition director Edwin Meese III said the security briefing "wasn't in response to any attempts at infiltration," but rather was a routine precaution for newcomers.

"I'd be surprised if nothing like this had happened. We're right around the corner from the Russian Embassy," said the aide, who asked not to be identified. "People go to great lengths to get information in this town."

Reagan spokesman Larry Speakes confirmed that some "security officials," who he refused to identify, briefed a meeting of the Reagan transition team. Speakes said Vice President-elect George Bush and Meese attended the briefing, which was closed to the public.

Speakes said he knew of no security breach that had occurred.

One Reagan official said the CIA agents particularly warned members of the transition team dealing with national security matters to be careful about sensitive papers that are located at the transition offices.

Carter influence on State criticized

NEW YORK (AP) — A report by President-elect Ronald Reagan's State Department transition team calls for changes that would reduce the influence of human rights advocates on the department's Latin American desk. The New York Times reported today.

In a report from Washington, the Times said it had obtained a copy of a report on the Bureau of Inter-American Affairs, which deals mainly with Latin America and the Caribbean.

The report strongly criticizes both the influence of President Carter's National Security Council staff advisers on policy and the actions of some United States ambassadors. It urges Reagan to restore the State Department's authority to coordinate United States policy in the region.

Robert E. White, ambassador to El Salvador, is criticized for supporting land redistribution and the nationalization of the banking system under the military-civilian junta that is battling left-wing extremists in the Central American nation.

Ambassadors, argued the report, "are not supposed to function in the capacity of social reformers and advocates of new theories of social exchange with latitude to experiment within the country to which they are accredited."

No negligence determined

leged medical problem and for not calling Dean. "Needless to say," Davis said, "doctors are trained in medicine, and doctors are not trained in nursing, and they (nurses) are not trained in doctoring."

In his testimony Tuesday, Dean held that the nurses "goofed" and "missed the boat" in failing to recognize the impending medical problem and the likelihood of a damaged nerve and a subsequent foot drop due to the swelling and resultant tightness of the cast.

"I do not attack the credibility or competence of Dr. Dean," Davis said. "There's no doubt he has an extreme amount of competence in knee surgery."

But Davis faulted Dean. "He ran to his lawyers" upon discovering the damaged nerve and foot drop. "Does that sound like a doctor concerned with nursing care?" Davis asked. Dean had testified that he immediately recognized a potential negligence suit against the hospital when he recognized the damage to Mrs. Thomas's foot and so informed the superintendent of nursing and the hospital's administrator, who then was Wayne Ulrich.

Dean said he had asked Ulrich to find out why the nurses had not called him (Dean) during the night and day or why they did not split the cast themselves. Dean said he got "no response" from the administrator.

"THEY (NURSES) indicated they respected him (Dean) as a physician and trusted him as a surgeon," Davis said. He suggested that Dean in turn must have respected the nurses, for he entrusted Mrs. Thomas's post-operative care to them.

Dean had faulted the nurses for not keeping detailed records and for not heeding Mrs. Thomas's complaints of a tight cast, and numbness and tingling in the foot. Davis defended the nurses, including Ruth Dawson, head nurse of the hospital's orthopedic floor, and Eleanor Courtney.

"During the day, they (nurses) were more involved in nursing care than record-keeping," Davis said.

"Dr. Dean is not a nurse," Davis said. "Dr. Dean didn't bother to come around" to check on Mrs. Thomas throughout the night and day, he said.

BURNETT ATTACKED the bureaucracy in the hospital in his closing argument. "The bureaucracy that's running the hospital frequently gets entrenched where it cannot be too responsive to the citizenry," he said.

He questioned the nursing care in the Paula Thomas case. "Did the nurses fail to live up to nursing standards?" he asked.

"If there is a complaint, even tightness of the cast, we rely on the nurses to call you (the doctor)," he said. "Doctors have to rely on nurses."

Burnett said that since the 1978 incident, nursing care at Midland Memorial Hospital has "improved — (is) improving now."

He referred to Dean as the "leading (knee) surgeon in this part of the world" and said that Dean, were he the 13th juror in the case, "would vote the nurses negligent."

Burnett also noted that the defendant did not bring forth any physician or surgeon to testify that "these nurses weren't at fault; they did all right." Mrs. Thomas' "foot will drop on her the rest of her life," Burnett said.

The attorney said that the nurses indicated lack of concern over Mrs. Thomas by not "swarming" into her room after finding out about her foot drop and saying, "We're so sorry."

"What on earth is going on at the hospital?" Burnett asked.

Parents' ploy fails

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Three girls will have to go to the school assigned to them in the Rapides Parish desegregation plan, even though their parents gave up custody of the children in an attempt to keep them in schools near home, a federal judge says.

The case has bounced between federal and state courts.

"There are many more children who don't desire to go to the school they are going to. It is this court's belief that it has to be true to those children," U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott said from the bench Wednesday.

He ordered officials of Buckeye High School to strike the girls from enrollments lists.

The judge also ordered the parents to keep the case out of state court, where they sued to give up custody of their daughters to friends in the Buckeye attendance zone, and forbade them to follow any state court orders in the case.

If they want their children to attend a school other than Jones Street Junior High School in Alexandria, they can apply to the parish school board for permission, Scott said.

Asked if he would do so, Bill McNeal, one of the parents, answered, "For what good? It comes back to Scott. He's the judge and jury."

No repeats of Iran

While the rest of us spent our day electing Ronald Reagan president, 52 Americans spent Nov. 4 lamenting the fact that they had been held hostage a year in Iran.

That "anniversary" came and went, and a month has passed in the meantime, and still the American hostages seem no closer to freedom than they were a year ago. Hopes heightened near the anniversary date, but they were dashed to bits in the same manner as all their predecessors.

Perhaps American emotions have run this roller-coaster course because we are thinking of the hostage situation in clear black and white context, not allowing any Iranian logic — or illogic, as the case may be — to seep in.

The United States has not earned the respect of the Iranians throughout this crisis; on the contrary, it has earned only their ridicule and their hatred. We have shown our hand — or our hand under the guidance of Jimmy Carter — to the world in coping with terrorist situations.

The nations of the world have witnessed the humiliation of America by Iran. They have watched the developments and they continue to watch now.

There is little doubt that in the future other nations will be tempted to try their hand at international blackmail of the United States. Have we already set the pattern too firmly? What will our response be to a future hostage episode? What would we do differently next time around?

Those are questions this government had better be thinking about and attempting to resolve, even before the current situation is concluded. That's because our response to the Iranian situation, important though it was, is not nearly so important as the planned response to the next situation.

We already have set a pattern in dealing with terroristic attacks. Next time around we can change that pattern somewhat. We can show the world that the United States will not be pushed around and humiliated. We can show them that we still have the courage and the means to deal with terrorists swiftly and with conviction.

But we can't effect such a change without taking a risk, without shedding blood, in some instances, and without the courage to die for our convictions.

The shame the United States has endured because of its handling of the Iranian situation must never be repeated, regardless of the cost.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Dec. 4, the 339th day of 1980. There are 27 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1851, the "December 4th Massacre" occurred when Louis Napoleon suppressed a workers' rebellion in Paris.

On this date: In 1586, Queen Elizabeth I confirmed the death sentence against Mary Queen of Scots.
In 1942, U.S. bombers struck the Italian mainland for the first time in World War II.
In 1945, the U.S. Congress approved American participation in the United Nations.

Ten years ago: The Irish government reported it had foiled a secret conspiracy to take control of Ireland.

Five years ago: Chinese leaders and President Gerald Ford ended a meeting in Peking without achieving any significant change in American-Chinese relations.

One year ago: President Carter formally announced his bid for another term in the White House.

WASHINGTON-MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter officials wary of Vesco's words

WASHINGTON — In an age marked by corrupt law enforcement, the informer is our principal protection against the designs of public wrongdoers who have built massive walls to hide their activities.

Some intriguing informers have come out from behind the walls that the Carter administration has erected around the Robert Vesco scandal. You would think the Justice Department would welcome informers who are willing to testify about Vesco's attempts to bribe his way out of his legal troubles.

But instead, the prosecutors have cracked down on informers whose testimony might implicate people close to Jimmy Carter. This has had the effect of shutting up crucial witnesses or, at least, of discrediting any testimony they may give to investigating senators.

In contrast, the prosecutors have engaged in plea bargaining with another witness, a convicted con man named James Day, who has offered to make statements exonerating the Carter people. It's not uncommon for the Justice Department to make deals with informers to get testimony that might help convict higher-ups. But Jimmy Carter's Justice Department is interested only in testimony that might exonerate the higher-ups.

New information has come to light, meanwhile, on the Carter administration's desperate efforts to silence the chief conspirator — Robert Vesco himself. The fugitive financier has been the target of vigorous efforts by the U.S. government to get him expelled from the Bahamas.

The timing is significant. The pressure began within a few weeks after I first reported in September 1978 that Vesco had tried to pull strings inside the White House.

But even more significant, confidential State Department cables, reviewed by my associates Bob Sherman and Indy Badwar, reveal that the expulsion effort had "high-level support." This is a diplomatic phrase that usually refers to the White House.

In a November 1978 cable to our embassy in Nassau, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher put it this way: "Justice Department has requested that we examine more closely the alternative of seeking Vesco's return under Bahamian deportation law. On assumption that any initiative in this regard would have necessary high-level support from Washington, embassy is requested to ascertain prospect for deportation."

What's really fishy about the government's continuing insistence that Vesco be returned forcibly to the United States is that he has repeatedly offered to come home voluntarily, in return for limited immunity from prosecution. Vesco has agreed to testify before a Senate committee investigating his dealings with Carter administration figures. But the Justice Department has said nothing doing.

If he is brought back in Justice Department custody, he can be subjected to the same pressures that were brought on his fellow plotters, R.L. Herring and James Feeney, who had the book thrown at them when they offered to talk on the witness stand.

To put it simply, Vesco wants a chance to testify before the Senate panel freely, and the Justice Department seems determined to get him behind bars before he can talk.

As I reported last week, the State Department, by October 1978, had already taken quiet steps to insure that Vesco would find no haven elsewhere if he were forced to flee the Bahamas. Once these escape routes had been plugged, the government made its equally quiet move for de-

Carter people didn't do much for Reagan's folks

WASHINGTON — According to the reports I hear, the Carter appointees and the new Reagan people are working smoothly to make the transition. You don't find the bitterness which has been present during the changeovers of other administrations. In many cases, the Carter people even seem happy to turn over the reins of government to the Reaganites.

Art Buchwald

I dropped in on one of the departments where a Carter appointee was briefing a Reagan lieutenant on what to expect.

The Carter person said, "Now in this blue metal file cabinet are all the plans for improving mass transportation in the country."
"Good, I'll go through them this afternoon."

"They cover everything from buses to subways, to railroads, to movable sidewalks. If it transports people — we've made a study of it."
"Excellent. What are in those six green cabinets over there?"

"The reasons why we can't build them. Let me show you how the system works. Let's say you were planning to build a 165-mile-an-hour train for the Northeast corridor of the United States. You would look up 'Super Train' in the blue cabinet. We have photos of Japanese trains, French trains, German trains and Swiss trains, as well as plans for each of those systems."

"They all look beautiful," the Reagan man said.

The Reagan man said, "It looks like the train has crashed into a garbage dump somewhere in Philadelphia."

"It's actually Baltimore. Our engineers have figured out that, at 165 miles an hour, the Super Train would fly off the tracks in Philadelphia and land just about here in Maryland, unless it smashed into a freight train in Washington first."

"How would I find the answer to that problem?"

"You go to this green file cabinet here and look up 'Cost of laying new tracks for Super Train.'"

"Twelve billion dollars?" the Reagan man exclaimed.

"That doesn't include switching equipment and computers. When you have a train going that fast, you have to keep the tracks clear at all times, because it can't stop if it sees something ahead. In order to make sure that it is safe, you would have to build electric gates at all the railroad crossings, which we figure will cost another $8 billion."

"I guess we better forget about the Super Train. What other ideas are in the files?"

"We have an excellent plan for busing."

"Gov. Reagan is against busing." "This would not be used for busing schoolchildren; it would be used for busing people to work. Here is a prototype of a new air-conditioned vehicle that would seat 80 people and have room for 60 standees."

"That makes a lot of sense. What's wrong with it?"

"To make it pay for itself, it would cost $4 per person for a two-mile ride. The cities won't buy them unless we give them $1 billion in supplemental payments."

"That's ridiculous. What about monorails? Gov. Reagan was very impressed with the monorail he saw at Disneyland."

"I think the monorail folder is over here. Yes, here it is. A monorail, at present construction estimates, would cost $4 million a foot — without stairways for the stations."

"Do you people have any mass transportation ideas the new president could implement?"

The Carter man went through the files.

"Here's one our research and development people have been working on. It's a dog sled that can pull six people at one time and it only costs $900."

"Now you're talking. What's wrong with it?"

"You need artificial snow machines every block along the route or the dogs will refuse to pull the sleds."

"You Carter people aren't leaving us much to work with."

"That isn't true. We've ordered 14 new green file cabinets for the office, and here's the number of the General Services Administration in case you need any more."

HEMISPHERE REPORT

Reagan's election aroused some Latin American optimism

Latin Americans are coming to think that the people of the United States are poorly informed. Not only about what goes on in Latin America, but also in the United States.

The newspaper O Estado de S. Paulo, Brazil's biggest, most independent daily, seized on the election of Ronald Reagan to make the point again.

"Contradicting the predictions of some public opinion polls and the recommendations of the great press (The New York Times and The Washington Post)," and O Estado called them by name. "Ronald Reagan achieved an overwhelming victory over the candidate of the Democratic Party, James Earl Carter," the Brazilian daily noted in the first lines of its editorial.

As O Estado viewed the Reagan victory, "It means a change in the atmosphere that has permeated the United States since the retreat from Vietnam."

"It means that the North American people woken from a long lethargy and resolved to seek ... to renew and reconquer their grandeur, power, prosperity, status and prestige in international relations. ..."

The American people "demonstrated that they do not accept the defeatist attitude instilled by some of the principal newspapers of the country ..."

O Estado seemed to have its doubts about the "personality" of the president-elect but, nevertheless, said that "the prayers of all those who, in the four corners of the world, believe in democracy" are that Mr. Reagan may meet the challenge.

Much the same was the case in the rest of Latin America. Although most of the governments disapproved of President Jimmy Carter's Latin American policy, they have been so conditioned over the years to rely on the Eastern "establishment" press that they were not prepared for Mr. Reagan's victory.

But once they overcame their surprise, the comment from Latin America was generally positive.

Proof of that may be had scanning Diario Las Americas, of Miami, Fla., the most complete Spanish-language daily in the United States.

In reporting the initial response to Mr. Reagan's triumph, Diario had nine news items noting favorable reaction from Argentina, Uruguay, Peru, Colombia, Mexico, Chile, Venezuela, Bolivia and Guatemala. On the other hand, Diario also reported that the Argentine sculptor who recently won the Nobel Peace Prize was concerned about the possibility of a change in U.S. human rights policy under Mr. Reagan.

Argentine Socialists were quoted as saying that Mr. Reagan's election was "a disgrace for the peoples of Latin America." The Marxists who run Nicaragua objected, of course. That was to be expected if only because Mr. Reagan has voiced his doubts about the wisdom of the $75 million the Carter administration has given the Sandinista revolutionary regime.

Panamanian President Aristides Royo also bewailed the election of Mr. Reagan. That, too, was predictable as Mr. Reagan has questioned the treaties that Mr. Carter and Panamanian strong man, Gen. Omar Torrijos, signed, under which the Panama Canal will be turned over to the Isthmian republic at the end of the century.

And so it went throughout Latin America.

The anti-capitalists, the Marxists and others who are ideologically opposed to the United States found the Reagan election objectionable.

The others, and they are the majority, it should be noted, applauded Mr. Reagan's win.

Cancer victim's pot taken away

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A 12-year-old cancer victim whose mother gave him marijuana says the hospital took it away and he wants it back. And his mother seconds him. The boy, John Beames of nearby Georgetown, is in the University of California Medical Center following surgery for non-Hodgkin's lymphoma. He has recently been getting chemotherapy every eight hours, and it makes him nauseous. His mother, Alice Mork, said in an interview published today that she had read about marijuana reducing the nausea which often accompanies chemotherapy. A new California law permits cancer patients who aren't helped by anti-nausea drugs to participate in a 4-year trial of marijuana. But John doesn't fit the hospital's guidelines on frequency of treatment. Mrs. Mork said she taught him last month how to puff a joint. But Sunday, the hospital police confiscated his two half-joints.

John's physician, Dr. Charles Abildgaard, says he is given anti-nausea drugs which sometimes make him drowsy. But Mrs. Mork says they don't work. Said Mrs. Mork, "I taught him how to smoke marijuana. It worked quickly. He could eat a meal after that. It doesn't work for everyone, but it does for John. For him, it's medicine. It's what he needs when other medications don't work. He understands that, and knows how opposed I am to drug use by teen-agers. We're not talking about flaunting it, but being very discreet." Sunday, John's father, Edward Beames of suburban North Highlands, who is divorced from his mother, visited him and saw the two half-joints. He told the hospital staff. Mrs. Mork said she got a call Monday morning from John, who was crying and saying that he'd been told he'd be kicked out of the hospital if he had marijuana. "Right now I'm very bitter," Mrs. Mork said. She said his doctors have been sympathetic to the problem, but can't find a legal way of making marijuana available.

Pilot hangs by feet until plane lands

DOVER, N.J. (AP) — A civilian Army pilot was sucked out the door of a twin-engine airplane at 9,000 feet but dangled by his feet and one arm for 10 minutes in 200 mph winds until a co-pilot could make an emergency landing, officials say. James F. Tobin, 34, of Toms River suffered a broken arm as a result of the Tuesday afternoon incident, said Army spokesman John Donovan. Tobin was listed in fair condition today at Community Memorial Hospital in Toms River.

"Just his feet were barely inside the plane" when the Beech Aircraft U-21 touched down at Hunterdon-Solberg Airport, said an official of the Federal Aviation Administration. The small airfield is about 40 miles west of New York City and 20 miles southwest of Morristown Airport, where the flight began shortly after noon. The plane was en route to the Army's Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland with a cargo of small weapons, Donovan said. Officials said the plane had just reached cruising altitude of 9,000 feet when the red cockpit light blinked on, indicating problems with the retractable exit stairway. The four- or five-step stairway located about halfway back in the plane is the main means of access to the 10-passenger plane. Tobin tried to adjust the staircase, but the door opened and the steps abruptly swung out, pulling him with it into the airstream. Officials said the pilot was able to catch one or both feet in the stairway railing and also held on with one arm. Tobin was not wearing a parachute when he left the cockpit, Donovan said. "It's not procedure to be wearing one," he added.

Co-pilot Robert Pearce, 33, of Flanders, suddenly became aware that his colleague was dangling, apparently head downward, outside the plane. He notified air-traffic controllers at Islip, N.Y., and at Kennedy International Airport, who directed the Army plane to Solberg and diverted other traffic away from the area. It was not clear how much clearance was between Tobin's body and the airfield during the emergency landing. But Lorraine Solberg, an airport official, said the pilot was hanging precariously when the plane came in. An FAA spokesman in New York estimated that Tobin's ordeal outside the plane lasted about 10 minutes. When the stairway is extended, it is between 12 and 18 inches from the ground, a Beech spokesman said. The Army is appointing a board of officers to investigate the incident, Donovan said.

McGovern committee facing bribery charge

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Free meals offered on Election Day to Indians at a South Dakota reservation have resulted in a misdemeanor election bribery charge being filed against defeated Democratic Sen. George McGovern's campaign committee.

Republican Attorney General Mark Meierhenry, who filed the charges Tuesday said, "This is a legal issue, not political." He denied that he was going after McGovern for partisan reasons. But "those charges are just ridiculous," countered Jeff Smith, an assistant in McGovern's Washington, D.C., office. "When you consider the source, it's just straight politics."

McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, refused to comment on the filing of the bribery charge. The three-term liberal suffered an overwhelming defeat in his re-election bid at the hands of Republican Rep. James Abdnor.

The charge, filed Tuesday, stems from the free meals furnished by the McGovern Campaign Committee at community centers on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation on Nov. 4. McGovern campaign officials deny that the Election Day food giveaway was illegal.

"As long as partaking of the meal is not conditioned upon voting, or voting for any person, it is perfectly legal," said Marshall Matz, an attorney who was McGovern's deputy campaign manager. Matz said anyone could get free food with no questions asked.

The McGovern Campaign Committee could be fined up to $1,000 if found guilty of the misdemeanor election violation, Meierhenry said. Shirley Plume, head of the McGovern campaign on the Pine Ridge Reservation, said she planned the giveaway to increase the turnout "in areas which traditionally have a poor voter turnout."

Mrs. Plume, a member of the Oglala Sioux tribe and an administrative assistant to the tribal chairman, said she also wanted to give away a color television set — likewise paid for with campaign funds — to the reservation community center with the highest voter turnout.

"I don't think this is a bribe," she said. "I certainly wouldn't intentionally do anything illegal."

Mrs. Plume said she never cleared her plans with McGovern campaign officials in Sioux Falls. McGovern ordered the television set giveaway stopped four days before the election when Meierhenry and Republican Gov. Bill Janklow said they thought it was illegal.

Meierhenry said no other groups or individuals will be charged in connection with the food giveaway. "I don't wish to infringe on people in any way working for a candidate," the attorney general said. "Charging specific individuals would not benefit the state as a whole. ... What's important is finding out if it's illegal."

James C. Dugan of Bethalto, Ill., one of 11 persons indicted in what authorities say may be the nation's largest marijuana smuggling rings, is carried up the stairs of the Federal Courthouse in East St. Louis. (AP Laserphoto)

Vietnam veteran surrenders on drug smuggling charges

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — A veteran who lost his legs in the Vietnam war surrendered to federal authorities in connection with an investigation into what authorities say could be the largest marijuana smuggling ring ever uncovered in the United States.

James Charles Dugan of Bethalto, Ill., was one of 11 persons named in a federal grand jury indictment. The 24-page indictment, which resulted from a two-year investigation into a ring which termed itself "The Company," says more than $55 million in South American marijuana was smuggled into the United States over a five-year period.

Dugan was carried in a wheelchair up the steps of the U.S. Courthouse after surrendering to U.S. marshals on Tuesday. U.S. Magistrate Robert Schmieder ordered Dugan, 33, held on $1 million bond.

Schmieder said he could not explain the charges against Dugan because the indictment, handed down by an Alton, Ill., grand jury Nov. 13, has been suppressed by federal authorities.

However, a copy of the indictment released Nov. 26 in Miami charged Dugan with bribing a police officer in hopes of gaining the return of marijuana, a scale and a weapon previously seized and to obtain confidential law enforcement documents regarding the ring's activities.

Two other persons named in the indictment are in custody in Miami. Marvin J. Zylstra of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., is accused of murder. The indictment charges Zylstra with sabotaging an airplane that crashed at a Florida airport in 1978, killing two men, including a federal Drug Enforcement Administration informant.

Zylstra, being held on $5 million bond, allegedly obtained aircraft and pilots for the smuggling operation, the indictment charges.

Ligia Viana-Salzedo of Coral Gables, Fla., is being held on $1 million bond on charges she obtained marijuana for the ring.

Eight other persons named in the indictment are the subject of a nationwide search, authorities said.

The Company purchased marijuana for $70 a pound in Colombia and smuggled it to airstrips in at least eight cities in the United States, according to the indictment. Airstrips in Alabama, Georgia, Missouri and South Carolina were used, the indictment says.

The marijuana was sold to wholesale customers for about $300 a pound. The indictment cites 26 instances in which marijuana was smuggled into or out of Illinois or Missouri.

During the course of the investigation, about 60 persons involved in Company activities have pleaded guilty or been convicted in federal courts in Alton, Atlanta and Columbia, S.C.

Although noting that it's hard to uncover a drug empire's net worth, federal officials said The Company was bigger than the Black Tuna Gang, a Florida-based group believed to have been broken up by a string of indictments and convictions earlier this year.

'Days of rage' fugitives coming in from hiding

CHICAGO (AP) — They were big names in the late '60s, radicals with anti-war roots who rebelled, rioted and sometimes advocated anarchy. To some, they were heroes, willing to fight for a better America.

They took to the streets under the banner of the Weatherman, a faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

In the autumn of 1969, the Weatherman, led by Bernadine Dohrn and Mark Rudd, converged on Chicago and planned a series of demonstrations to dramatize their beliefs.

The riots, which came to be known as the "Days of Rage," caused thousands of dollars in damage in the downtown and Near North Side areas and resulted in injuries to several policemen.

Rudd and Ms. Dohrn were named in federal riot indictments with nine others — Cathy Wilkerson, William Ayers, Kathy Boudin, Jeff Jones, Michael Spiegel, Howard Machtlinger, Terry Robins, Lawrence Weiss, Linda Sue Evans and Judy Clark.

Some surrendered years ago. Two — Ms. Dohrn and Ayers, son of the former chairman of Commonwealth Edison Co. — surfaced Wednesday.

Charges against Ayers had been dropped in 1978 but Ms. Dohrn still faces charges of aggravated battery and jumping bail.

Many of their comrades had lived underground since the Days of Rage. But members of the Weather Underground, as the group came to be known, ceased claiming responsibility for violent activity about 1976.

More than 280 people were arrested during the Days of Rage. Most went to court within a matter of months while others stayed in hiding like Ms. Dohrn and Ayers.

Several surrendered in 1978. And, by late May 1979, the number still carried on the FBI's list of fugitives had dwindled to eight. Once it had numbered about 20.

The FBI said of Ms. Dohrn, valedictorian of her class at the University of Chicago law school, at the time that "the last we've heard of her was in Algeria." More recently, she was living with Ayers in Manhattan with their two children.

Rudd, alleged organizer of a riot at Columbia University in 1968, surrendered in New York City in September 1977 to face charges stemming from that episode. Now 33, he pleaded guilty to trespass and all other charges were dropped.

He was not sentenced. In 1978, Rudd pleaded guilty in Chicago to charges of aggravated assault stemming from the 1969 riot. Other charges were dropped and Rudd was sentenced to two years on probation and fined $2,000.

Cathlyn Platt Wilkerson, 36-year-old daughter of an advertising executive, disappeared after her family's Greenwich Village townhouse blew up March 6, 1970, killing three people. Police said the home was being used by the Weatherman as a bomb factory.

Miss Wilkerson, police said, fled with another young woman believed to be Kathy Boudin, daughter of a prominent New York lawyer.

Last summer, Miss Wilkerson surfaced and pleaded guilty July 18 to possession of dynamite and got a 1-to-3-year sentence Oct. 28. She, too, faces charges stemming from the Days of Rage.

Kathy Boudin, now in her late-30s, also faces charges stemming from the 1970 explosion. Investigators said in 1978 that "we hear she's in Russia."

Machtlinger, in his mid-30s, turned himself in to Chicago authorities in May 1978. Furst, Ms. Smith, Weiss and others not named in the federal Days of Rage indictments turned themselves in that same year.

The whereabouts of the others charged in connection with that riot is not known.

Mild Tennessee quake causes no damage

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — An earthquake woke up prisoners at the county jail at Caruthersville, Mo., and shook houses at Hornbeak, Tenn., but apparently caused no damage, the Tennessee Earthquake Information Center said.

James Zollweg, a seismologist at the center, said the quake early Tuesday registered between 3.8 and 4.0 on the Richter scale. He said seismography instruments at the center and at St. Louis University placed the center of the quake about 10 miles north of Dyersburg, Tenn.

But Arch Johnston, who directs the earthquake center at Memphis State University, said his preliminary estimates indicated the quake was of a magnitude of about 2.6.

Each number on the Richter scale means that the ground motion is 10 times greater. The scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph.

Johnston said the quake began at 2:59 a.m. and lasted less than a minute. Jail inmates at Caruthersville, Mo., and residents of the Hornbeak, Tenn., area across the Mississippi River, were awakened by the shaking.

Zollweg said the rural nature of the area where the quake occurred limited property damage. The area where the quake occurred is along the New Madrid fault, a geological formation that has been the site of numerous earthquakes.

House approves power for import restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House took just two hours to approve a resolution giving the president temporary power to negotiate restrictions on auto imports, which Detroit blames for much of its problems.

The measure now goes to the Senate. But prospects for action there, with only three days left in the lame-duck session, seem slim.

Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., said after the House acted Tuesday that he hopes supporters of the measure will be able to get it before the Senate.

A Senate version of the resolution has been languishing in the Finance Committee for several weeks.

The House vote of 317-57 came two hours after the Ways and Means Committee sent the proposal to the floor.

Rep. Donald J. Albosta, D-Mich., author of the resolution, said he hoped it would win full approval "so (President-Elect) Ronald Reagan has something to work with the day he takes office."

The resolution would give the president authority until July 1, 1983, to negotiate import restrictions.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, said quick action was needed because there is "a very real danger" that the auto industry faces further surges of Japanese imports.

Vanik said there was also a possibility that demand for autos "may completely collapse as interest rates go higher" and that rising gasoline prices pose another threat to the domestic industry.

And he charged that Japanese automaking capacity is on the increase, with "no clear evidence that the Japanese are moderating their shipments to this country."

Several congressmen, however, opposed the legislation, which has brought protests that it could result in potential buyers facing higher auto prices.

Vanik said if import restrictions are negotiated, "we expect price moderation" and added that Congress expects the industry to use any price relief "to modernize plants."

But Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said the resolution sets a precedent that "any loser can come to us" and get around the trade laws to secure special protection.

Thompson, Murphy guilty of Abscam bribe charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Two House committee chairmen beaten at the polls last month have become the third and fourth congressmen convicted of charges stemming from the government's Abscam operation.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., a 13-term Democrat from New Jersey, was convicted Wednesday night of bribery and conspiracy by a U.S. District Court jury that deliberated 21 hours over two days.

John M. Murphy, a nine-term Democrat from New York City, was found guilty of conspiracy, conflict of interest and receiving an unlawful gratuity in the FBI investigation, in which undercover agents posed as representatives of fictitious Arab sheiks seeking help with immigration problems. Murphy was acquitted of bribery.

Murphy, 54, his pregnant wife, Kathleen, at his side, would say only: "We will appeal this decision."

"Obviously I'm upset and disappointed," said Thompson, 62. "I maintain my innocence."

In another Abscam case, proceedings were beginning today in the trial of Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla., who contends he accepted $25,000 from undercover agents only because he was conducting his own probe of men he considered suspicious.

In Washington, the House ethics committee ruled 10-0 on Wednesday that Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., a lame duck convicted of bribery in another Abscam trial, had violated House ethics. It was doubtful the matter would come before the whole House in the closing days of the lame-duck session.

In the Brooklyn case, the jury acquitted Murphy of bribery but convicted Thompson even though Murphy was the only one of the two present when a $50,000 bribe was passed in a briefcase on Oct. 20, 1979.

Bribery is the most serious charge, carrying a possible 15-year sentence. Conspiracy carries a maximum five-year term. The other two charges carry maximum sentences of two years each.

Juror Alfred Moskowitz said the panel believed Murphy knew there was money in the briefcase, but acquitted him because it believed he did not make any specific promise in return for the cash. "He's too slick for that," Moskowitz said.

Moskowitz said Thompson was found guilty because he took specific action in return for the money, including bringing Murphy into the plot.

Murphy, head of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, received $15,000 of the payoff while Thompson, chairman of the House Administration Committee, received a $10,000 finders fee, according to testimony at the 3½-week trial.

Following announcement of the verdicts, U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt said he would hold hearings in early February on the remaining question of whether the due process rights of Murphy and Thompson were violated by government misconduct.

Last week, a federal judge in Philadelphia dismissed the Abscam convictions of two city councilmen there on grounds that they had been entrapped by FBI agents. The judge also said that the government overreached its bounds by setting up the crimes.

The Justice Department has said it will appeal.

Former Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., was convicted last Aug. 30 in Brooklyn on Abscam charges with Philadelphia attorney Howard Criden while Jenrette was convicted in Washington on Oct. 7.

Abscam charges are still pending against Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., and Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa.

Abscam scorecard

NEW YORK (AP) — Here is the status of the cases of the seven members of Congress indicted in connection with the FBI's Abscam probe:

—Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C.: convicted Oct. 7; appealing on entrapment grounds; defeated in re-election bid; House Ethics Committee found Wednesday that he violated congressional rules; hearings set for next week but current session likely to end by then.

—Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla.: lost in primary; trial in Washington, D.C., begins today; says he took the bribe money as part of his own probe of the corrupters, who were actually undercover FBI agents.

—Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa.: slated for Jan. 5 trial in Brooklyn; only House member indicted in Abscam probe to win re-election.

—Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., heads Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee; defeated in re-election bid; convicted Wednesday with Thompson on conspiracy charge but acquitted on more serious bribery count; also convicted of conflict of interest and accepting an unlawful gratuity; plans appeal.

—Former Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa.: convicted Aug. 30 on bribery-conspiracy charges; expelled from Congress; defeated in bid to regain seat; awaits due-process hearing on whether government entrapped him; appealing jury verdict.

—Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., chairman of Administration Committee; convicted Wednesday of conspiracy, bribery and aiding and abetting in the acceptance of a criminal gratuity; said he will appeal and awaits due process hearing in February; blamed Abscam for re-election defeat.

—Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J.: trial tentatively set for mid-February but more likely will open March or April; numerous pre-trial motions seeking indictment dismissed; says he is innocent; term ends in 1982.

Jenrette violated ethics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Jenrette, convicted of accepting a bribe from undercover FBI Abscam agents, also violated the House's code of ethics, a committee of his congressional peers says.

But there appears to be only the slimmest of chances that the South Carolina Democrat will be subjected to disciplinary action in the final two days of the lame-duck Congress.

And Jenrette, defeated for re-election, won't be around for any discipline after adjournment.

The House ethics committee ruled 10-0 Wednesday that Jenrette's conviction on the bribery charges was sufficient to conclude that he also violated House rules.

The panel said it would open hearings on recommended punishment next week — in the unlikely occurrence that the House was still in session.

The committee did offer to hold an earlier hearing on punishment possibilities if Jenrette requested one. But there was no indication that Jenrette would ask for such a proceeding. And even if he did, the committee probably wouldn't have time to bring a disciplinary recommendation to the floor before Friday's scheduled adjournment.

With the committee thus unable to act before adjournment, only one way remains for Jenrette to be disciplined by his colleagues. House rules allow members to introduce at any time a motion of expulsion and require that the House immediately take up the motion.

Jenrette's duties as a lawmaker will automatically end with adjournment even though he will remain a member — and on the federal payroll — until Jan. 3, when the new Congress convenes.

He was the second congressman to be convicted in the so-called Abscam undercover operation. The first, Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., was expelled by the House earlier this year shortly after his conviction. Myers was the fourth congressman in history — and the first since the Civil War — to suffer that punishment.

In New York on Wednesday, a federal jury found Reps. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., and John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., guilty of numerous charges in the Abscam case.

Both were found guilty of conspiring to defraud the U.S. government by agreeing to accept bribes in return for promising to help fictitious Arab sheiks in immigration matters.

Thompson also was convicted on a bribery charge but Murphy was acquitted on a similar count.

Jury selection begins in Kelly trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jury selection is beginning in the federal court Abscam trial of Rep. Richard Kelly, the Florida Republican who contends he accepted $25,000 from undercover FBI investigators only because he was conducting his own probe of men he considered suspicious.

Chief U.S. District

Judge William B. Bryant was presiding over the process of screening about 200 prospective jurors to select 12 and two alternates.

Much of the questioning by the judge and the prosecution and defense attorneys was to be conducted in private, with prospective jurors summoned one by one to the judge's chambers. The procedure is designed to avoid the risk that those waiting to be questioned might be influenced by hearing earlier questions and answers.

The trial is expected to extend well into the holiday season. The judge already has approved recesses for Hanukkah and Christmas.

Kelly, 55, was defeated for re-election in Florida's Republican primary voting last September. He is charged with bribery and conspiracy for allegedly accepting the $25,000 as a payoff to perform favors for the undercover investigators posing as representatives of a rich Arab sheik.

Prosecutors plan to offer as evidence 4½ hours of videotape recordings of Kelly's meetings with the undercover men.

Overruling defense objections, Bryant has decided that the tapes must be made available to the news media for broadcast as soon as they are entered into evidence. In New York on Wednesday, a federal jury found Reps. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., and John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., guilty of numerous charges in the Abscam case.

Both were found guilty of conspiring to defraud the U.S. government by agreeing to accept bribes in return for promising to help fictitious Arab sheiks in immigration matters.

Thompson also was convicted on a bribery charge but Murphy was acquitted on a similar count.

The bribery charge carries a possible 15-year prison term, while the maximum term on the conspiracy convictions is five years.

Louisiana official faces bribe charges

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Assistant State Commissioner of Agriculture Frances S. Pecora, accused of offering a $100,000 bribe to a Louisiana sheriff and a district attorney to clear her son in a narcotics case, was free today under bond.

Mrs. Pecora and Jimmy N. Burescia, accused in the same case, both were released on $35,000 personal bonds shortly after their arrests Wednesday.

"No, I will not resign," Mrs. Pecora said as she left the courtroom of U.S. Magistrate Ingard Johanneason. "You're innocent until proven guilty, right?" she added.

U.S. Attorney John Volz said Mrs. Pecora was arrested immediately after she handed over $25,000 — the third payment in $100,000 she allegedly had agreed to pay Sheriff Edward Layrisson and District Attorney Duncan Kemp of Tangipahoa Parish.

He said Mrs. Pecora, her son Nofio Pecora, and Burescia were charged with using an interstate facility in carrying out a scheme to bribe Layrisson and Kemp in the narcotics case involving Pecora, also known as Nofio Pecora Jr.

Pecora was scheduled to appear before Johanneason for a bond hearing today on the bribe charge, but FBI agents had not arrested him by Wednesday night, Volz said.

Mrs. Pecora's appointment to the agriculture post created a stir in the Legislature last July because state police had testified at an earlier committee meeting that her husband worked for reputed Louisiana Mafia don Carlos Marcello. She was approved 20-8 by the Senate.

She was acquitted earlier on charges of payroll fraud, brought when she was a top official for the State Insurance Rating Commission in New Orleans.

Burescia was employed 20 years by the then Department of Hospitals. He is now retired and lives at independence.

Volz said Burescia approached Layrisson and Kemp at the end of October and allegedly offered them a bribe in Mrs. Pecora's and her son's behalf.

Britain will grant Belize independence

LONDON (AP) — Britain says it will grant independence to Belize with or without the agreement of neighboring Guatemala.

The British Foreign Office said a constitutional conference will be held soon to arrange early independence for Belize, formerly British Honduras and the last remnant of Britain's colonial empire in the Western Hemisphere.

Guatemala has claimed Belize since the 19th century. Its right-wing military government fears that if it becomes independent, it will be a sanctuary for Guatemalan guerrillas.

No criminal charges filed against film producers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Allegations that the producers of "Charlie's Angels" tried to keep $1 million in profits that belonged to investors, including actors Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood, have not been substantiated, according to a prosecutor.

District Attorney John Van de Kamp said Tuesday that because of lack of evidence he would not file criminal charges against Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg.

Spelling and Goldberg said they never had anything to hide. But they said they were hurt by "sensationalized media coverage" of allegations they diverted up to $30,000 per episode from "Angels" to another of their series, "Starsky & Hutch."

"We have from the outset cooperated fully and openly with Mr. Van de Kamp's office," Spelling and Goldberg said in a statement.

Wagner and Miss Wood, who own 43.75 percent of "Angels," but none of "Starsky," said they were satisfied with the investigation.

"As friends of Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg we are delighted with this result and we look forward to a continuing relationship with them," said the married acting duo in a statement.

Van de Kamp said that reallocation of funds between the two shows had indeed taken place, but that all such transactions were on the books, although sometimes sketchy.

He said "shoddy business practices" such as incomplete bookkeeping and lack of audits needed to be cleaned up "to avoid misunderstandings and avoid the kind of trouble with which this investigation necessarily had to deal."

The fraud charges had been leveled by former ABC attorney Jennifer Martin in a series of memos to ABC officials in October 1979. She said extra fees being paid to the "Angels" producers were improper and the money should go to the profit participants.

MC offering driving course

Midland College is offering a three-evening short course in defensive driving beginning Dec. 9.

The course, which meets 7-10 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, is open to new students as well as to those wishing to renew their completion certificates for auto insurance discounts.

Classes are limited to 35 students accepted on a first-come basis. Course fee is $15.

Instructor Larry Freeman will issue course outline notebooks to each student and then instruct classes with the use of visual aids, movies and showboards.

Students study the basic rules for vehicle operation, receive information on ways to prevent accidents through advance planning and learn how to employ the two-second-interval rule.

Various accidents, recreated on film, will be discussed and analyzed, enabling students to learn causes and preventive measures.

This course, offered through the MC Department of Community Services, is also available to company groups and can be taught in one, two or three days.

Information on special group instruction may be obtained by calling James Bramlett at 684-785, extension 146.

Those wishing to pre-register for the upcoming evening defensive driving course may do so in room 156 of the MC Administration Building between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

The office will remain open during the lunch hour. For more information call 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

CHANGING JOBS? TAX PROOF YOUR PENSION.

If you were to leave your job now, whether to change jobs or retire, the money your employer had contributed to your pension could be distributed to you as a lump sum and could easily evaporate into thin air as taxable income. A portion could disappear in taxes UNLESS you act fast to shelter the lump sum with a "Roll-Over" IRA at First Savings of Midland.

You are allowed only 60 days to Roll-over any lump sum distribution of retirement or pension plan proceeds in order to tax shelter these funds.

IRA accounts at First Savings earn high interest, compounded daily. Rolling-over your pension distribution could insure that your retirement would remain secure... and build for your retirement.

If you are planning to change jobs and your company is going to give you a cash retirement, stop in at either First Savings and Loan location in Midland, downtown at 500 West Wall or in San Miguel Square. Our Savings Specialists will be happy to discuss the tax advantages of IRA accounts with you.

The family requests memorials be made to the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center in care of Midland Memorial Hospital or to Trinity Towers of Midland.

Gunman killed after break-in of embassy

ROME (AP) — A gunman waving a sawed-off shotgun broke into Belgium's Embassy in Rome today and took several hostages before police shot and captured him, authorities said. The man, apparently an Italian resident of Belgium, died on the way to the hospital, police said.

One embassy official, seriously wounded in the melee, shot at the intruder, missing his target but allowing the hostages to get away in the confusion, police said.

Neighbors said police armed with submachine guns and wearing bulletproof vests surrounded the building in Rome's fashionable Parioli section and reinforcements came in by helicopter.

Police then rushed into the embassy and shot the intruder, authorities said.

Police said the wounded embassy official, identified only as the second secretary of the ambassador, apparently was injured by a ricocheting bullet from his own gun and was reported in serious condition at a local hospital.

Embassy officials said the man, identified by a Belgian driver's license as Giuseppe Luciani, 46, had "personal" problems with the administration of Belgium and did not appear to be a political terrorist.

Soviets warned against invasion

By MARK S. SMITH Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While key officials say there is no evidence the Kremlin has decided to launch a military strike, President Carter and his top aides are calling the Soviet troop buildup along the Polish border unprecedented and encouraging Moscow to imagine the worst if it decides to invade.

In a written statement Wednesday, Carter said, "The United States is watching with growing concern the unprecedented buildup of Soviet forces along the Polish border and the closing of certain frontier regions along the border."

He added: "I want all countries to know that the attitude and future policies of the United States toward the Soviet Union would be directly and very adversely affected by any Soviet use of force in Poland."

Noting Soviet references to "anti-socialist forces" alleged to be operating within Poland's trade unions, which are openly challenging the Communist Party's domination of that nation, the president said: "We know from postwar history that such allegations have sometimes preceded military intervention."

In Moscow, the Soviet Foreign Ministry responded by saying that "as is known, many statements are being made in the West that are clearly aimed at exacerbating the situation in the Polish People's Republic. As for the statement made by the president of the United States, it fully and completely is on his own conscience." The Soviets did not directly deny Carter's claim relating to the buildup along the Polish border.

Meanwhile, the scope and purpose of the Soviet buildup were uncertain.

Some administration sources who have been monitoring the situation closely said that the president might be overstating the case somewhat by calling the Soviet buildup "unprecedented." These specialists said there has been no overall pattern of reinforcement of the 21 Soviet divisions in western Russia, from which strategists believe any attack on Poland would be most likely to come.

Intelligence sources, meanwhile, said that despite Carter's reference to border closings, traffic between East Germany and Poland has been moving freely. They said the Soviets have barred only Western military observers from a "temporary restricted zone" in preparation for an air defense exercise within the next few days.

Nevertheless, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said, "The fact is that military preparations have proceeded and are proceeding."

One Carter aide, who asked not to be identified, told reporters "there has been indication of growing Soviet readiness to engage" in military intervention.

And other key administration officials said privately that the potential for a Soviet military move against Poland has become more worrisome with reinforcement of some western Russian divisions.

"The machinery is oiled so that if the decision is made in Moscow, they could move within a week," one military analyst said.

Boy tells how father killed mother

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A 7-year-old boy says his father instructed him to strike his mother with a knife after the man attacked her with a hammer, "cut her up," and "cut her head off ... with a sharp, big knife."

The chilling revelation came in a statement Wednesday at a habeas corpus hearing for Floyd Baker, who is being held in connection with the dismemberment death of his 37-year-old wife, Linda Sue Baker.

State District Judge Naomi Harney denied the writ. Baker was trying to gain his release since he had not been charged with any crime.

The couple's son, Monty, told Potter County Deputy Sheriff Carl Haidle that on Nov. 16, his father "hit her on the head with a hammer" and "he kicked her in the ribs."

Mrs. Baker was reported missing in a snowstorm on Nov. 17.

Haidle testified that he questioned the boy after a judge had appointed an attorney for the youth.

"She got up and run ... to the wrecking yard," the boy told Haidle, referring to the nearby auto salvage yard where the woman's body was discovered Monday when an employee saw a dog carrying the woman's head down a driveway.

Haidle said the boy said his mother returned to the family's mobile home Nov. 18 and was again attacked by Baker.

Judge, jury investigate incident of assassination

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr, who escaped a 1978 attempt on his life, spent 40 minutes today with the federal grand jury investigating the incident and a subsequent assassination of a federal judge.

Also seen entering the grand jury witness room was Joan Starr Harrelson and her daughter, Theresa Jasper, both of Dallas.

They are the wife and step-daughter of convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson who appeared in a secret police line up in Houston Nov. 20 in connection with the investigation.

Attorney Dan Ervin of Houston said both Mrs. Harrelson and her daughter were subpoenaed by the grand jury.

Kerr, 46, who has been working at an undisclosed location in another state, appeared at the federal court house with the two deputy marshals who have guarded him continuously since the attack on his life.

The grand jury is meeting on the third floor of the John H. Wood Jr. federal courthouse, named in honor of the only U.S. judge ever assassinated.

Wood was killed by a .243-caliber bullet in the back outside his San Antonio apartment on May 29, 1979.

Kerr, who prosecuted many narcotics cases in Wood's court, escaped serious injury on Nov. 21, 1978 when 19 bullets were fired into his car hood and windshield as he drove toward the courthouse.

A federal source has said that several witnesses during the Houston line up last month identified Harrelson as the man they saw outside of Wood's apartment house the morning the judge was killed.

Mrs. Harrelson accompanied her husband when he appeared before the grand jury in October 1979. At that time, Harrelson said he was in Dallas the day Wood was slain.

Massive drug roundup is nearing end

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Police say that a massive round-up of suspects that began after 38 persons were charged with drug-related offenses in sealed grand jury indictments is nearing an end.

Officers from local, state and federal agencies fanned out Wednesday morning and began arresting the suspects, all charged with either the sale of methamphetamine or marijuana.

The sealed indictments were handed down Tuesday.

Tom Green County Sheriff Ernest Haynes said 25 persons had been arrested by late Wednesday and that 17 of them were free on bond. He said those arrested ranged in age from 17 to 38.

"We should have this wrapped up sometime tonight (Thursday)," said Detective Walt Pierce after law officers began making the arrests.

Four die, dozens hurt as fire races through Stouffer's Inn

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Fire raced through the Stouffer's Inn of Westchester today, and police said at least four people were killed and dozens injured. One witness said several people jumped from second-story windows.

"As soon as it went, it went like crazy," said Eric Ewoldt, general manager of the hotel in this suburb about 30 miles north of mid-Manhattan.

The fire was believed to have broken out in the area of banquet rooms, which are separated from the hotel's 366 rooms by a long corridor.

"A dozen persons jumped from a second-story window," said Ronda Enea, a waitress at one of the hotel's restaurants.

Lt. Brian Flick of the Harrison Police Department said four people were dead.

Poll says students favor draft registration

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Two-thirds of the nation's outstanding high school students favor mandatory draft registration, 53 percent are against passage of the Equal Rights Amendment and 57 percent are against legalized abortion, a poll says.

The annual survey conducted by "Who's Who Among American High School Students" — published by Educational Communications — involved 24,000 high achievers in academics, school and community activities and athletics.

Of the students polled, 76 percent said they have not had sexual intercourse, 94 percent have never used drugs, 88 percent have never smoked cigarettes and nearly half don't drink.

The survey, released Tuesday, said the students have a strict moral code, have little confidence in government or business, and think the U.S. should beef up its defense program. And 54 percent said they believe the government has the right to withhold information from the public.

Nearly three-quarters said the energy crisis is due to producers holding back supplies to increase prices, 61 percent favored the use of nuclear power as an energy source, 54 percent wanted a balanced national budget and 69 percent would spend their tax dollars for a strong national defense.

More than half favored wage and price controls, 97 percent said they will own their own home, 88 percent wanted the government's top priority in foreign affairs to be getting the hostages out of Iran, less than 20 percent said that companies charge fair prices for products, 8 out of 10 belong to an active church and 71 percent attend services regularly.

Lorraine Sands, left, hugs daughter Linda Smith for the first time in 30 years. The homecoming in Oklahoma City ended a search for Ms. Smith that began 30 years ago when Ms. Smith, then 2½, was kidnapped by a babysitter. (AP Laserphoto)

Woman finds mother three decades later

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Linda Smith stayed up most of the night with the mother she hadn't seen in three decades, "trying to fill in the missing pieces" since she was kidnapped by her babysitter when she was only 2½.

The reunion Tuesday night was the happy ending of a story that began when Linda, who now has two children of her own, was abducted from her mother's home in Rangely, Colo., in 1947.

"It's a new world for us," her mother, Lorraine Sands, said Wednesday from her home in Oklahoma City. "We stayed up most of the night talking — trying to fill in the missing pieces."

"It's just like we have never been parted," said Mrs. Smith, now 35.

Four years ago, when her adopted father died, Mrs. Smith was given a letter from her parents telling her she was adopted. She began a search which led to the adoption agency that placed her.

Mrs. Smith said she found a judge who was able to locate the names of her mother, father and grandmother.

At the time of the kidnapping, Linda's mother was divorced. Her mother later married Charlie Sands, who was in the Army.

Mrs. Smith's stepfather's career in the U.S. Army kept her parents moving to Washington, Missouri, Texas, California and West Germany. When Sands retired, he and his wife returned to Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Sands said evidently the babysitter eventually deposited the little girl with an adoption agency and left them information about her natural parents. The babysitter was never found.

Mrs. Smith, who can't remember the four years of her life between the time of the kidnapping and her fifth birthday, said she has been trying to fill in the missing pieces since she discovered she was adopted.

She does not remember the babysitter who stole her from her parents home or being taken to an adoption agency in Hillboro County, Ore., where she was shuffled from home to home until she was adopted by a family who had just lost a son.

A bit of luck and plenty of persistence finally led Mrs. Smith to her mother here.

After Mrs. Smith found out her parents were in Oklahoma, she called from county to county until she found someone in Chandler who knew one of her grandmother's distant relatives.

After a four-year search, she finally had the telephone number of her mother.

She called on Sept. 17.

"When she found out it was me, she said, 'Momma, this is Linda.' I just started crying and fell to the floor. She was crying too," said Mrs. Sands.

She said she has no doubts that Linda Ann Smith, is the Linda Kay Shaw she lost more than 32 years ago.

"We're just going to live day to day and enjoy her," said Mrs. Sands.

The Sands' spent years trying to find Mrs. Sands' missing daughter, but had just about given up hope of ever finding her. Police and private detectives also failed in their efforts.

"We spent summers looking around the country," Mrs. Sands said. "I had given up hope."

Mrs. Smith's husband is in the process of selling their home in Landoca Lakes, Fla., so the family can move to Oklahoma.

Five killed by grenade

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A man who was refused credit at a Manila bar threw a grenade into a crowd of dancers there early today, killing five people and injuring 25, police said.

The incident occurred at the Sulok Pub, which police said is frequented by Philippine marines. Police said most of the wounded were in serious condition.

Police said the customer was one of four "neighborhood toughs" who stormed out of the bar after being refused credit. They said one returned, threw a grenade into the crowd and escaped.

Police ruled out the possibility that the attack was the work of terrorists opposed to the martial-law regime of President Ferdinand E. Marcos. On Tuesday, a man threw a grenade into a crowded bus in the southern Philippines, killing three people and wounding 47.

Sheila Friedman, an employee of a New York card shop, looks over the display of holiday greeting cards made available free to be sent to American hostages in Iran. The one-day offer was sponsored by a card and paper products firm. Those taking cards expressed sadness, sometimes anger, but "most of all hope — always hope," Mrs. Friedman said. (AP Laserphoto)

Shoppers send hostages card

NEW YORK (AP) — The eyes of the Queens housewife brimmed with tears as she filled out a holiday greeting card at a Fifth Avenue store. "I get very emotional every time I think about them," said Helen Bonomo, one of many shoppers enlisted Tuesday by a greeting card company in a campaign to send holiday best wishes to the 52 American hostages in Iran. "They're going through such an ordeal over there," she said. "Meanwhile, we all sit back and enjoy a nice holiday. It's just not fair."

Rosie Cancel, a 16-year-old student from Norman Thomas High School in Manhattan, said the hostages' plight on their second Christmas abroad was "very sad." She said her holiday message to the 52 was "Don't lose faith. Just hang on and remember that someday you'll be free."

About 160 merchants in major cities around the nation participated in the National Unity Day Drive, according to the sponsoring Recycled Paper Products of Chicago.

Participants were able to choose from four different card styles. One pictured a Christmas tree tied with a yellow ribbon, a symbol of remembrance, with a message that read: "We've tied a yellow ribbon on the Christmas tree in the hopes that you'll soon be home in the land of liberty."

The most popular card showed Uncle Sam wearing a Santa Claus hat, pointing his finger. His message was: "I want you to know that America is thinking of you this holiday season and hoping you'll be home safe and soon."

Cards to the hostages must be mailed by Dec. 5 to U.S.A. Embassy, 260 Telleghani Avenue, Tehran, Islamic Republic of Iran. The cards must carry a 31-cent overseas stamp.

Red Army's potential to invade Poland worries U.S.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet military moves this week in western Russia are leaving key Carter administration officials more and more worried about the Red Army's potential for an invasion of Poland.

"The machinery is oiled so that if the decision is made in Moscow, they could move within a week," said one U.S. officer.

The mounting concern is based on reinforcement of some Soviet divisions facing eastern Poland and establishment of an extensive command-and-control communications network.

"We are significantly more concerned than four or five days ago," said one senior official who has been monitoring the tense situation. This official, who declined to be identified, discounted any predictions as to when the Soviets might decide on military intervention to re-establish firm communist control in Poland.

"We are assessing their capabilities," the official said. "We have very little on their intentions."

President Carter said in a statement Wednesday that the Soviet military buildup along the Polish border is "unprecedented."

But intelligence analysts and other officials, while reluctant to dispute the president, suggested in private that Carter may have overstated the buildup, although they agreed with him that it is potentially very serious.

"There does seem to be some kind of a buildup," said a top official, who then spoke of several under-strength divisions in western Russia being recently reinforced by reservists.

Officials are uncertain whether the Soviets intend to bring up to full strength many or all of about 21 divisions strung out in military districts facing eastern Poland. They say there is as yet no overall pattern.

Most strategists believe a Soviet invasion of Poland would come from western Russia. They say it is doubtful the Soviet Union would draw major invasion forces from its 20 tank and mechanized divisions in East Germany. These divisions, normally kept roughly at full combat strength, are the Soviets' main bulwark facing Western Europe.

One military analyst said the command-and-control communications network allows Moscow to be instant contact with all its units in and around Poland.

"The machinery is oiled so that if the decision is made in Moscow, they could move within a week," this officer said.

Other analysts believe that only about two or three days of final preparations, which could be visible to the Poles and western intelligence, would precede any invasion.

A number of Warsaw Pact military exercises in East Germany and Czechoslovakia are causing concern within the Carter administration.

Some officials suggested that such exercises could be cover for movements preceding an invasion.

One exercise involves several thousand Soviet and Czechoslovakian troops in Czechoslovakia along the Polish border. Another involves an East German reserve unit of a few thousand men along the Polish border.

U.S. military officers have taken note of an air defense exercise they have been expecting for some time in East Germany. That exercise, they say, is due to begin soon and is believed to be the reason American and other western military observers have been barred from what is described as "a temporary restricted zone" along the East German-Polish border.

Furthermore, some sources said there are indications the Soviets may be preparing to open a ground troop exercise in East Germany, but they say this appears to center in an area well away from the border.

If the Soviets were to follow the pattern they used against Czechoslovakia in 1968, they would invade Poland accompanied by at least token units from other Warsaw Pact nations.

Somewhat ironically, Poland provided troops for the invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968, as did the East Germans, the Hungarians and the Bulgarians.

The Soviets made use of airborne troops to seize airfields in Prague and other Czech cities, and U.S. strategists believe the Soviets would probably do the same against Poland.

The 175,000-man Czech Army put up no resistance in 1968 against the Warsaw Pact invaders, who totaled about 250,000 at the peak.

Most U.S. specialists on Eastern Europe believe much of the 200,000-man Polish Army would resist. Few American military analysts doubt the Soviets could crush Polish resistance if they were unwilling to pay the price in casualties.

Iraqi forces destroy Iranian naval bases

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraqi forces destroyed two Iranian naval bases and set four warships ablaze in the second major sea battle of the 74-day-old Persian Gulf war, the Baghdad command said today.

An Iraqi communique said the bases were destroyed at the entrance of the Khor-Mousa canal and the ships set ablaze in a two-day sea battle with air support.

Khor-Mousa controls the shipping lane at the northern rim of the Persian Gulf into Iran's commercial port of Bandar-Khomeini, named after Islamic revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The port, in Iran's embattled oil province of Khuzistan is the site of a Japanese-built petrochemical compound that has been frequently bombed by Iraqi warplanes.

Iran made no mention of the Khor-Mousa sea battle, which flared 40 miles east of Iraq's off-shore oil loading terminal of Mina al-Bakr, the site last weekend of the war's heaviest sea battle.

Iran said its counterattacking forces scored fresh victories in all major theaters of the 300-mile war front and its president, Abolhasan Bani-Sadr, said, "The second phase of the war to expel the enemy from Iran has begun."

The official Iranian news agency Pars said Iran's forces counterattacked near Susangerd Wednesday, destroying Iraqi equipment and forcing Iraqi forces to retreat from a nearby village.

Iranian communiques claimed 127 Iraqi troops killed in the Khuzistan fighting and at the strategic highlands 300 miles to the north in Western Iran, conceding five Iranian dead.

Iraq claimed 54 Iranian deaths in Khuzistan and the highlands. The highlands command the main highways from Iran's western border 100 miles west to Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

Kremlin says warning on Carter's conscience

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Foreign Ministry, responding to President Carter's warning of an "unprecedented buildup of Soviet forces along the Polish border," declared today that Carter's statement was "on his own conscience."

The ministry's statement, given to reporters who asked for the Soviet government's reaction to Carter's comments, did not directly deny the president's claim.

It said, however, that "as is known, many statements are being made in the West that are clearly aimed at exacerbating the situation in the Polish People's Republic."

"As for the statement made by the president of the United States, it is fully and completely on his own conscience."

A ministry spokesman said he could say nothing beyond the contents of the statement.

On Tuesday, the Foreign Ministry directly denied claims of a troop alert in the trans-Carpathian area of the Soviet Union. It said "troops in the trans-Carpathian area as well as in other areas are living a normal life. There is no urgent or non-urgent mobilization or draft of reservists."

On Wednesday, Carter said, "The United States is watching with growing concern the unprecedented buildup of Soviet forces along the Polish border and the closing of certain frontier regions along the border."

"I want all countries to know that the attitude and future policies of the United States toward the Soviet Union would be directly and very adversely affected by any Soviet use of force in Poland."

Zhang refuses to answer spy, torture ring charges

PEKING (AP) — Former Vice Premier Zhang Chunqiao, a member of China's Gang of Four, refused today to answer charges that he ran a spy and torture ring and ordered armed factional warfare, sources said.

Zhang appeared before the supreme court one day after the Gang's leader, Mao Tse-tung's widow Jiang Qing, confessed she ran a group which trumped up charges against President Liu Shaoqi and his wife, Wang Guangmei.

Zhang maintained the same mute posture he adopted at his last hearing Nov. 27 when he refused to respond to charges that he tried to ruin Deng Xiaoping, China's current strongman.

The 63-year-old Zhang is haggard and known to be ailing.

The Gang members, Mao's former political secretary, Chen Boda, and five ex-generals said to be followers of the late Defense Minister Lin Biao, face possible death sentences if they are convicted of a host of charges stemming from the tumultuous 1966-76 Cultural Revolution.

The charges include framing state leaders, persecuting thousands of people, trying to usurp political power and plotting armed rebellion in Shanghai.

The trial before 600 hand-picked spectators is closed to the foreign press on grounds party and state secrets will be divulged. Like millions of Chinese, foreign reporters follow the trial in the local newspapers and on radio and television, but also have access to official and unofficial sources.

The only witness to testify against Zhang was Xu Jingxian, former vice chairman of the Shanghai revolutionary committee. He now is in custody.

Polish airliner hijacked

BERLIN (AP) — A Polish airliner carrying 20 passengers and a crew of four on a domestic flight was hijacked by a Polish citizen today and forced to land at an American air base in West Berlin, the U.S. Air Force said.

"A Polish LOT airliner, flight 770, on a routine flight from Zielona Gora to Warsaw, landed at 0835 hours (3:35 a.m. EST) at Tempelhof Central airfield," a statement from the U.S. Military mission said. Zielona Gora is in western Poland, about 30 miles from the East German border.

The U.S. statement said the hijacker asked authorities for political asylum and was taken into custody by West Berlin police for further investigation.

"The crew, aircraft and passengers will be allowed to proceed when further questioning is completed," the statement said.

Unconfirmed reports said the hijacker used a hand grenade to force the pilot of the twin-engine Antonov 24 to take him to West Berlin. Another unconfirmed report said a single-engine plane pursued the airliner until it landed at Tempelhof.

The Antonov 24 normally has a capacity of 56 passengers.

It was the second Polish airliner hijacked to Tempelhof in 2½ years. In August 1978, an East German wailer hijacked a LOT Tupolev 134 jetliner with 62 passengers aboard.

Tensions in Poland, beset by government purges in the wake of widespread labor unrest and economic crisis, have risen dramatically this week in the wake of reports of a Soviet military buildup along its borders.

Expulsion orders have been upheld

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's Supreme Court today upheld expulsion orders against two Palestinian mayors but, in an unusual move, recommended Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government consider permitting them to return to the cities they ran in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan.

Sources in Israel's West Bank military government said Mayors Fahd Qawasmeh of Hebron and Mohammed Milhem of Halhoul would not be expelled before the government reacts to the court's suggestion. "We're not planning any surprises," one source said.

The judges said they found "no fault from a legal point of view in the expulsion decision." But they urged "a review at the political level of the matter of implementing the decision."

Israel expelled the two mayors to Lebanon last May, hours after Palestinian terrorists killed six Jewish settlers in Hebron. The two were permitted to return to Israel and have been jailed pending their appeal.

The West Bank military government has accused the mayors of making public statements that incited the population into a mood of violence that led to the May 2 ambush.

North Korea may be using captured Pueblo

By L. EDGAR PRINA
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — U.S. intelligence sources say there is evidence North Korea may now be using the captured U.S. Navy ship, Pueblo, as a flagship for its fleet.

Until recently, the 900-ton electronics intelligence-gathering ship had been serving as a floating "museum" as a way for Dictator Kim Il Sung to show the North Korean citizenry and visiting foreigners the fruits of a "victory" over the American "imperialists."

Intelligence sources here declined to say how they obtained evidence of the new role for the ill-starred Pueblo, but it very likely was through radio traffic intercepts — ironically, something the ship itself was engaged in doing at the time of its capture by North Korean gunboats in international waters off Wonsan, N.K., Jan. 23, 1968.

The North Korean imprisoned Cdr. Lloyd Bucher, the Pueblo's skipper, and 81 other surviving officers and crewmen

(one crewman died in the action at sea) for more than 11 months before releasing them late in 1969 after President Johnson "apologized" for the ship's incursion into North Korean territorial waters. After the Americans were freed, the U.S. government repudiated the "apology."

The 30,000-man North Korean navy has 10 diesel submarines, seven frigates, 20 submarine chasers, 18 missile boats, 100 motor gunboats and about 90 landing craft. North Korea, in 1968, claimed territorial waters out to 10 miles. It is now claiming a 50-mile limit.

Meanwhile, reports from Seoul, the South Korean capital, tell of new North Korean attempts to infiltrate terrorists below the border.

According to the Defense Ministry yesterday, South Korean security forces killed two armed North Koreans aboard "an infiltration vehicle" after they opened fire upon being challenged.

In a related action, South Korean naval craft were said to have sunk a Communist gunboat which presumably had delivered the would-be infiltrators to a point about 220 miles south of Seoul.

Kim Il Sung still clings to a 35-year-old ambition to unite the two Koreas, by political means if possible, by military, if necessary. He has been engaged for the last several years in an un-Marxist effort to establish a dynasty in North Korea through his son, Kim Chung Il.

If Kim Il Sung does not try the military route, some U.S. and South Korean officials believe his son may commit himself to the "unfinished revolutionary task" of reunification.

Lee Dong-bok, director of the office of South-North Dialogue for the Seoul government, a man who has had many talks with North Korean officials over the last year or so, is concerned over the succession matter.

He told reporters here recently that the issue of unification is likely to become "far more aggressive" and "possibly more adventurous" under Kim Chung Il.

Scientists, engineers push study of solar satellite series

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group representing scientists, engineers and space buffs believes the government should spend $150 million in the next five years to determine if it is feasible to develop a network of satellites to convert the sun's rays to usable power on Earth.

The satellites would transmit the power to Earth stations as concentrated microwave or laser beams.

The Ad Hoc Coordinating Committee on Space made the pitch Wednesday after releasing a report from the Energy Department that concludes such a system appears technically feasible. The report said the government must now decide whether to spend more research aid on the concept.

The committee's membership includes such organizations as the Aerospace Industries Association, the American Astronautical Society, the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, the L-5 Society and the National Space Institute.

The committee obtained advance copies of the report and released them at a news conference several days before the Energy Department planned to make it public.

"We're frankly not delighted that the committee released the report at this time," said Energy Department spokesman Jay Vivari. "It's awkward, because we don't have our copies yet."

The report, based on a three-year, $19.5 million study, states, "Although significant technological, environmental and economic questions remain to be answered, the preliminary investigations undertaken do provide a basis for a policy decision on further commitment."

Dr. Peter F. Glaser, vice president of Arthur D. Little, Inc., who originally conceived the idea of a solar power satellite, told the news-conference that on the basis of the report, the government should continue the research program. He suggested annual spending of $30 million for the next five years.

Studies envision a huge satellite that would be assembled by space shuttle astronauts 22,300 miles out in space. The structure would measure six miles by three miles and its half-mile-diameter antenna would beam the power to Earth.

Glaser estimated such a structure would cost about $12 billion and would generate a constant five million kilowatts of power, which he said would be economically competitive with other forms of Earth-based power. While the government would pay for much of the research, it would be up to private industry to pay for operational satellites, he said.

High interest rates blamed for continued slow auto sales

DETROIT (AP) — High interest rates are being blamed by industry executives for the failure of domestic automakers to produce a sales turnaround in November.

November sales figures, announced Wednesday by the five major U.S. companies, were 8 percent below last year. But the final 10 days of the month were even worse, down 17.3 percent.

November sales by the U.S. manufacturers totaled 529,288, compared with 599,247 a year ago. There were 24 sales days this year, one more than last year.

At American Motors Corp., Thomas Staudt, vice president for marketing, said escalating interest rates "continue to draw down industry sales performance from what would otherwise be its demand potential."

But Bennett Bidwell, car and truck group vice president at Ford, said it was "incorrect" for buyers to believe that interest rates on auto loans rise along with the prime rate, now at 18.5 percent.

"In actual practice, most auto-loan interest rates for individual buyers are controlled by state regulations and do not automatically rise with the prime," Bidwell said.

One company analyst, who requested anonymity, agreed. "To blame interest rates is wrong," he said. "The interest rates on autos are no higher than they were four months ago. It's the perception of higher interest rates that's hurting."

Imports continued a strong year-long showing, taking 24 percent of the domestic market in November with sales estimated at 170,000, up about 8 percent from last year.

Import manufacturers, whose share of the U.S. market has been as high as 29 percent this year, only report monthly sales.

Among the U.S. carmakers, GM sales fell 6.5 percent for the month, compared with the same period a year ago. But GM plunged 20.5 percent for the final 10 days. At Ford Motor Co., sales were off 14 percent for November and 19.3 percent for the month-end period. At Chrysler Corp., November sales were up 6.8 percent from depressed levels of a year ago and up 3 percent in the final third of the month.

AMC, which only reports monthly sales, was down 19.2 percent, but up an estimated 18.5 percent in the last 10 days. Volkswagen of America dropped 23 percent for the month, 17.3 percent in the final 10 days.

MBTA fund efforts continue

BOSTON (AP) — Legislators were resuming efforts today to keep Boston's bankrupt transit system running past Friday.

A House-Senate conference committee was to meet with hopes of resolving a critical split over reorganization of the transit system.

The Senate approved on Wednesday a restructuring of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, but the House rejected it.

The state Supreme Court ruled last week that Gov. Edward J. King's Nov. 18 takeover of the system was illegal. The court allowed the system to continue operating through midnight Friday to give the Legislature a chance to act.

King took over the system, which had just used up its 1980 budget, under emergency powers, which he contended allowed him to provide funding for the system.

Should the Legislature fail to reach a compromise, public transportation could halt Saturday for 250,000 commuters. A coalition of suburban legislators made it plain that their price for going along with a bail-out is nothing less than a sweeping reorganization of the deficit-ridden system. The legislators especially want to improve employee productivity. State subsidies to the MBTA this year could exceed $250 million.

Both reorganization plans sharply curtail the power of the 4,000-member Carmen's Union, but differ on many details — including who would pay the $31 million in losses that will be incurred by keeping the trains and buses running through the end of the year.

The House bill would split the cost between the state and the 79 MBTA communities. Boston's share was estimated at $5 million.

The Senate version imposed a 4 percent cap on future spending by the system, but had the state pick up the tab for the last six weeks of the year and future operations of commuter rail service.

Greyhound workers to stay on job

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Greyhound Lines officials say bus drivers and terminal workers have agreed to continue working through a Friday strike deadline that was automatically set up when a contract offer was rejected.

Company officials said employees had agreed to work indefinitely under their current contract, but union leaders could not be reached for comment.

The 15,000 Greyhound employees continued working today after rejecting the tentative contract, which was approved last month by their negotiators. The last-minute agreement had ended the threat of a nationwide strike until ballots could be counted, but the rejection automatically triggered a 12:01 a.m. Friday deadline.

Superintendent gets three-year sentence in plumbing case

MIAMI (AP) — Former Dade County schools superintendent Johnny L. Jones was described as unfit for public trust by a judge who sentenced him to three years in prison and fined him $5,000 for his conviction in the "Gold Plumbing Caper."

Jones, 46, was released on his own recognizance Wednesday pending appeals and said he had no comment on the sentencing by Circuit Judge Thomas Scott on a conviction for second-degree grand theft. Scott barred Jones from holding office for at least seven years, saying Jones "violated the public trust, betrayed his friends and associates, and is not fit for public office."

Jones was tried on the theft charge in April. In a second trial in October, he was cleared of allegations he took kickbacks but he was convicted in that trial of tampering with a witness and solicitation to commit perjury. Scott sentenced Jones to one year in state prison on each of the misdemeanors in the October trial.

Prosecutors said during both trials that Jones attempted to use nearly $9,000 in school funds to buy luxury plumbing fixtures, some gold-plated, for use his Naples, Fla., vacation house.

'Snakebit' 'Snake' faces Pittsburgh

HOUSTON (AP) — Winning, Ken Stabler says, is everything. The Houston Oilers' quarterback knows what he's talking about. In the National Football League (and in almost any sport you'd care to mention), the name of the game is numbers — the numbers in the win column. And "Snake" speaks from experience. Two years ago, when he wore an Oakland uniform, he was intercepted 30 times while throwing just 16 touchdown passes in the regular season and the Raiders took a tumble. The blame was placed squarely on his shoulders. It didn't suit him, and he said so. The talk that he was washed up infuriated him. And in 1979 he was the American Conference's second-best passer with, among other things, 26 TD passes and 22 interceptions. Now, in his first year as Houston's quarterback, he's back throwing to the wrong people with 24 interceptions in 13 games, five of them against Pittsburgh in a season-opening 31-17 loss. The talk is starting up again — and it's starting to bug him again. "All people see is the No. 24. That's all they think, 24 interceptions. But I've probably had 7, 8, 9 balls that were tipped, that were catchable passes. But it doesn't count that way. It counts as 24 interceptions," Stabler said after the Oilers' brief workout for tonight's game with the Steelers. "Interceptions have hurt us. Turnovers have hurt us. But we still have a shot at it (the playoffs). If we get in the playoffs and do well in them, nobody'll bring up the fact that I had 24 interceptions. If we don't make the playoffs, well, then I'll be one of the scapegoats... It all hinges on winning and losing." The loser tonight is almost certain to watch the playoffs from the stands or on television. But Stabler, who has been through plenty of pressure situations before, says this game is no different from any other one. "It's a big game, no doubt about that, but I don't feel any pressure. To me it's just another game. All games are important. I look at every game we play as being important from game one to game 16. Look at the Kansas City game now. It's important 'cause we got beat. Seattle was important; we got beat. New York was important; we got beat. This is an important game because it's the next one we play."

Baseball free agent Don Sutton slips on a Houston Astro shirt Wednesday after signing a four-year contract with the club. Sutton's wife, Patricia, watches the transformation from Los Angeles Dodger to Astro. (AP Laserphoto)

Sutton hauls jeans to Houston Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Pitcher Don Sutton says he won't have any trouble fitting in with his new teammates on the Houston Astros — all he'll have to do is pull on his jeans. "You can wear blue jeans and drive a pickup truck here and still be considered normal," Sutton said Wednesday shortly after signing a four-year contract with the Astros. Sutton, the winningest pitcher in Los Angeles Dodger history during his 15-year career there, also said he and his new teammate Nolan Ryan had a common pitch. "His changeup is the same as my fastball," Sutton said. The announcement that Sutton had shunned an offer from the New York Yankees and signed with the Astros, was not a laughing matter, however, to Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who thought he had Sutton in the bag. "Steinbrenner was very courteous throughout our negotiations with the Yankees," said Larue Harcourt, Sutton's agent. "But when I called to inform him we had accepted the Astros' offer, he was not courteous and he hung up the phone on me." Steinbrenner, who has seldom lost a free agent he really wanted, later downplayed Sutton's decision. "We would have liked to have Sutton, but he's not indispensable," he said. "There's one free agent we'd like to have and that's (outfielder Dave) Winfield." Winfield has been drafted by the Astros but has not yet signed a contract.

the Astros. Terms of the contract were not announced, but Harcourt said the first three years were guaranteed. "I have to think Sutton is making a big mistake," said the Yankees new manager, Gene Michael. "It's a setback of sorts," conceded New York Vice President Cedric Tallis. "But it is not one that is critical at this point. We have other avenues to pursue, trades, even a surprise from our own farm system. The time to panic is when we're eliminated from the 1981 pennant."

IN ADDITION to feeling more comfortable with Houston, Sutton said several other reasons figured into his decision: the reputation the Astro-dome has for being a pitcher's ball park, the quality of the Astros' bullpen, the stability of Manager Bill Virdon and the economic factors. "Also, Al Rosen reminded me frequently of the advantages of pitching in the National League where I already know the hitters," Sutton said. "I just have a greater comfort level here than I would in New York." Sutton was the Dodgers' winningest pitcher with 230 victories and also held the club record of 52 shutouts. Sutton also is the most successful active right-hander against the Astros with a 21-15 record. Leaving will be difficult, but Sutton says he'll adjust. "You can't spend 15 years anywhere except prison and not develop an emotional attachment," Sutton said. "But I feel very comfortable with the Astros and when I go into Dodger Stadium it will be as a visiting pitcher and I'll be just as ticked off if I lose, probably more so than any other team we play." Sutton was the first of six free agents drafted by the Astros to sign a contract with the team. Others are Winfield, catchers Dave Roberts and Darrell Porter, pitcher Bill Travers and outfielder-first baseman Rusty Staub.

Bowie leads Kentucky over Ohio State

By The Associated Press

Two of the nation's best centers battled it out Wednesday night when Kentucky met Ohio State. Sam Bowie appeared to have won the battle... and because of it, Kentucky won the war. "It was the most physical game I've ever been in," said Bowie after leading his second-ranked Wildcats to a 70-64 victory over the ninth-rated Buckeyes. Bowie, only a sophomore, outscored Ohio State senior Herb Williams 11-5, while scoring 19 points to Williams' 21. "Sam seemed to loosen up in the second half and played with more confidence," said Hall, pointing to Bowie's 17 second-half points. "He didn't post up well in the first half, but posted up really strong in the second." BOWIE'S REBOUNDING superiority over his opposite number helped the Wildcats hold an 11-rebound margin over the Big Ten team. "Bowie really hurt us in the second half, when we were trying to front him," said Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller. "We just didn't do the job on him." Along with the Kentucky-Ohio State game, three other ranked teams were featured in Wednesday night's college basketball action. Seventh-ranked Virginia beat Randolph-Macon 83-52; 11th-ranked Arkansas ripped Southwest Missouri State 98-65 and

No. 16 St. John's stopped Manhattan 78-58. Along with Bowie, Derrick Hord was another big gun for Kentucky. He scored 14 points for the Wildcats and sealed their victory with two free throws and a dunk shot at the end. "A lot of little things added up," said Miller. "We were outscored by 11 and that won't take you very far. Our turnovers (21) doubled our number of assists and that should be just the opposite. Plus, they had a lot more shots than we did (71 to 49)." Ralph Sampson scored 26 points, 20 in the first half, as Virginia's Cavaliers gave Coach Terry Holland his 200th career victory. The 7-foot-4 Sampson began the game with two dunks and scored 18 points in the first 10 minutes as the Cavaliers roared to a 26-8 lead enroute to their third straight victory. That included a 15-2 spree, with Sampson contributing nine of the points. SCOTT HASTINGS scored 24 points as Arkansas rolled past Southwest Missouri State. Hastings hit 8 of 10 shots from the floor in the first half to trigger the Razorbacks into a game-breaking 43-26 lead at intermission. "Last year we couldn't play against a zone," Hastings said. "It took a little while tonight for the inside game to start working. We handled the zone well once we got used to it."

Kevin Williams scored 16 points as St. John's placed five scorers in double figures and breezed past Manhattan. Frank Gilroy added 14 points for the winners while Wayne McKoy had 12, David Russell 11 and Curtis Redding 10. Elsewhere, Darrell Lockhart scored 19 points to pace Auburn past Tennessee 75-65; Mike McGee scored a game-high 28 points to frigger Michigan over Kansas 64-52; Jeff Malone's 18 led Mississippi State past Virginia Tech 68-61; Clemson romped over Samford 102-52 as Larry Nance scored 20, and Michael Hunt scored the first two baskets in overtime to send Furman ahead and the Paladins held on for an 87-82 decision over VMI. Also, David Maxwell's 21 points led Fordham past Seton Hall 72-57; LaSalle defeated Vermont 81-61 behind Kevin Lynam's 20 points; Kevin Greaney scored 16 to pace Holy Cross past Navy 82-71; Frank Brickowski scored 18 to lead Penn State past Indiana State 61-54; a 21-point, 13-rebound performance by Kenny Stancell powered Virginia Commonwealth to a 77-58 victory over William & Mary; Eddie Phillips and Phillip Lockett scored 15 points apiece as Alabama trimmed Florida Southern 73-59; three field goals late in the game enabled Washington State to beat Eastern Montana 78-70 and Mike Howse had a career-high 23 points to lead Niagara over Buffalo 82-62.

Auburn is still looking for head football coach

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — With the signing of high school recruits coming up next week, Auburn is again looking for a football coach and Billy Atkins of the St. Louis Cardinals says he wants the job. After Vince Dooley announced Wednesday that he did not want to leave the University of Georgia to return to his alma mater, Auburn officials began a frantic search to find a head coach before Dec. 13, when football players sign Southeastern Conference letters of intent. "We will begin a thorough search process immediately to obtain the best available coach for Auburn," university President Hanly Funderburk said. "We want a man with a proven track record, someone who will unify our people and channel Auburn's great resources toward a championship football program within the proper framework of the university. Atkins, a defensive backfield coach for the Cardinals, said he can fill the requirements and was applying for the job. Dan Reeves, an offensive coach for the Dallas Cowboys, also is reported to be interested in the assignment. Members of the Auburn board of trustees reportedly have expressed interest in Wyoming's Pat Dye, John Mackovic of Wake Forest and Erk Russell, a Georgia assistant. Atkins, 45, was the leading scorer and most valuable player on Auburn's 1957 national championship team. He won a small college national championship coaching at Troy State University in 1968. The coach said he was disappointed he didn't get the Auburn job when the late Coach Ralph Jordan retired five years ago, but he hopes things will be different this time.

NCAA probation rocks New Mexico

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association put the University of New Mexico's basketball program on probation for three years and slapped a $36,000 fine on the school, but has not said whether New Mexico can still host two important tournaments. The New Mexico campus, in the basketball-crazed city of Albuquerque, was chosen as the site for the West Regionals of the 1982 NCAA basketball tournament and the finals of the 1983 tournament. The probation announcement, issued from the association's headquarters in Shawnee Mission, Kan., on Wednesday, did not address the tournament questions. BUT IT did say the basketball team will be barred from post-season competition and television appearances during the 1980-81 and 1981-82 academic years. New Mexico Athletic Director John Bridgers declined to comment on the decision Wednesday, because university officials were holding a news conference today. "The university council advised us not to comment until then," Bridgers said. University President William E. "Bud" Davis and UNM attorney Peter Johnstone could not be reached for comment Wednesday. Charles Alan Wright, chairman of the NCAA Infractions Committee, said, "The violations of NCAA legislation in this case were numerous and significant, involving cash benefits as well as tampering with academic records." "The committee would have imposed an even more severe penalty were it not for the constructive attitude the university has displayed in cooperating with the NCAA throughout this investigation, and the vigorous actions the university has taken to prevent the recurrence of similar violations in the future," Wright said in a prepared news release. THE NCAA said the probe uncovered violations of NCAA rules regarding complimentary tickets, extra benefits, institutional control, academic standards, ethical conduct, financial aid, various recruiting regulations and certification of compliance with NCAA legislation. During an NCAA investigation of the New Mexico athletic program, law enforcement authorities uncovered information concerning falsification of transcripts for student-athletes. The scandal became one of the most highly publicized and widespread in collegiate athletic history. Early in the investigation, in November 1979, seven New Mexico basketball players were declared ineligible, assistant coach Manny Goldstein resigned and head coach Norm Ellenberger was fired. Also, for using ineligible players in the first-round game of the 1978 NCAA Basketball Tournament, New Mexico must return to the NCAA approximately $36,000, or 90 percent of its net receipts from the event. Contrary to speculation, the program wasn't stripped of any basketball scholarships. Although the probation announcement did not answer the questions of two important upcoming tournaments, an NCAA spokesman said a recommendation could be made by the Division I Basketball Committee, which meets next week in Chicago. A final decision would be up to the NCAA's Executive Committee.

The NCAA Infractions Committee heard from five University of New Mexico officials Nov. 1 in Colorado Springs about the 92 allegations facing the school's athletic program. BRIDGERS SAID after the 4½-hour hearing, "The charges are serious and you've got to weigh those against the actions we've taken." Bridgers was hired as athletic director last December in the midst of the recruiting and transcript-doctoring scandal. Four of the federal counts against Ellenberger were in connection with alleged efforts to make former Lobo basketball player Andre Logan eligible in 1978. The other three centered on alleged activities to get former recruit Craig Gilbert eligible prior to last season. Gilbert, a former California junior college stand-out, never played for New Mexico because he was ruled ineligible at the outbreak of the scandal. Goldstein had testified in Ellenberger's U.S. District Court trial that on Nov. 4, 1978, he had discussed with Ellenberger and another assistant coach, John Wisenandt, problems involving Logan's eligibility. Goldstein testified he ultimately made arrangements to have a seal from Mercer County Community College in Trenton, N.J., made and had a fake transcript for Logan prepared. Ellenberger denied he met with Goldstein at that time. ELLENBERGER testified he knew transcripts were being changed but that he did not have a hand in it.

Chap Classic begins tonight

With eight victories, including a WJCC victory over Clarendon Monday, Midland College hosts the third annual Chaparral Classic tonight through Saturday. Six teams invade the Chaparral Center for hostilities which open tonight with St. Philip's of San Antonio against Howard College at 5:30 p.m.; Midland vs. Laredo at 7:30 p.m. and Odessa College against Eastern Arizona JC at 9:30 p.m. Friday it will be Odessa-St. Philip's at 5:30 p.m.; Eastern Arizona-Midland at 7:30 p.m. and Howard-Laredo at 9:30 p.m. The tournament ends Saturday with OC-Laredo at 5:30; Howard-Eastern Arizona at 7:30 and MC-St. Philip's at 9:30 p.m. During halftime of the MC-Laredo game tonight, a number of spectators will be given "Super Chap Fan" t-shirts. The Chaps won over Clarendon, 68-61, Monday, but the fatigue of grueling tournaments at Hutchinson, Kan., and Amarillo showed. At Amarillo, four days earlier, MC had whipped Clarendon 96-68. After this weekend's play, MC hosts New Mexico Junior College at 8 p.m. Monday and then concludes pre-holiday play with WJCC road games against NMJI in Roswell Wednesday and South Plains in Levelland on Saturday.

Red Devils hope Snyder is lucky charm against Valley

By MIKE CRUVER Sports Writer

— SNYDER — Rankin's Red Devils and the Valley Patriots will tangle in a Class A state semifinal football playoff at 7:30 p.m. here Friday with the winner in position to become a state champion. The Red Devils will take a perfect 12-0 season mark into the game. They reached the semifinal round with a 34-0 win over Meridian in Brownwood Friday night. Valley, also 12-0, advanced with a 6-0 victory over Klondike Friday in Lubbock. Rankin's shutout over the Yellow Jackets Friday was the fifth of the season for the Red Devils. This is the first time in Red Devil history for them to reach the semifinal round in the state grid playoffs. Rankin head coach Dwayne Turner noted, "The best we had done before was in 1973 when we reached the quarterfinals and lost to Vega. The week before we beat No. 1 Holiday at Snyder and I hope we do as well there this time." Turner added, "I fear the running game of Valley. (Ray) Williams, a 205-pound senior fullback and (James) McNary, a tailback, will be hard to stop." Turner has reason to fear the running tandem. Through 12 games, Williams has rushed for 2,204 yards on 295 carries and tallied 28 touchdowns. McNary is just a few steps behind with 1,725 yards on 191 totes and 26 TDs. If the Patriots are slowed on the ground, they are capable through the air. So far this season, Valley has gained 1,017 yards through the air lanes and tacked on eight scores. Rankin will counter with a strong running game of its own. During the regular season, Dennis Black pounded out 1,012 yards in 136 tries. In the playoffs, Black has been over the 100-yard barrier in both contests (Fort Davis and Meridian). To keep defenses honest, the Red Devil also have Terry Turner, 547 yards on 45 scampers and Naldo Esparza has barged out 393 yards in 39 attempts. During the regular season, the Red Devils didn't throw the ball too much. However, in the playoffs, RHS has shown a tendency to throw the halfback pass, with either Esparza or Black throwing, usually to Turner. When you talk about defense, both clubs know how to play. Valley has given up just 73 points in its 13 outings. Heading the Pat defensive unit is linebackers Ray Williams and Brum Pinkerton, who Valley head-man Ted Giddens calls "solid." Giddens also said defensive ends Kirby Chandler and Mike Dowd are "good defensive players." Dee Dowd with seven interceptions and Kevin Hendrix with eight discourage passing into their area. Rankin has been getting excellent secondary play all year from Turner, Black and Kevin Smith. Jerry Stacy has been coming off the bench and doing a fine job. The Devils have allowed just 54 points in their 12 outings. Leading the defensive charge for RHS are defensive ends Michael Paterson and Steve Midkiff and guards Denny Lathan and Bobby Sanders. Linebacking, a Rankin strength, is manned by Bo Rose, Todd Ratliff and James Barrett. "Giddens said, 'The winner will be the team that wants to play in the state finals most. They (Rankin) inside trap block real well and we must also stop the fullback sweep.' Giddens added, 'It will be a real tough ball game. I don't think they are better than we are and I don't think we are better than Rankin.'" Turner said, "It will be a toss up." That is the opinion shared by most football "experts" as Valley, ranked No. 2, and Rankin, ranked No. 3, go into the game, which is billed as a tossup. The winner will go for the Class A state championship next week against the winner of the Valley Valley-Falls City matchup, which is also slated for 7:30 p.m. Friday in Belton.

'Rich kids' meet Plano in key football playoff matchup

By The Associated Press

Take Plano, a wildly successful schoolboy football team in four different classifications, and mix it with Highland Park, a team often labeled by outsiders as "rich kids," and you have a Class 5A quarterfinal clash that brings back memories of a similar battle three years ago.

The teams meet Saturday at Texas Stadium in a renewal of a young, but intense rivalry dating back to a 1977 quarterfinal game still talked about by schoolboy enthusiasts.

In that duel, Highland Park led 28-0 in the third quarter, but Plano put together a startling comeback to win 29-28 and march on to the state championship.

Plano and Highland Park knocked heads together in District 13-4A for the next two years, with each winning once. This season, Highland Park returned to 10-5A, setting up another high-interest playoff contest.

The Wildcats knocked off defending state champion Temple last weekend, 16-10, at Texas Stadium, while Highland Park posted a 21-14 regional win over Dallas South Oak Cliff.

Bert Rose, Texas Stadium vice president, expects Saturday's crowd to exceed the 35,700 that watched the 1977 shootout.

"We're anticipating a crowd in the vicinity of 40,000," Rose said. "We're basing that on the rivalry between the two schools and the fact that the 1977 game was the famous 29-28 game everybody has been talking about for the past three years."

The rivalry partially stems from the fact that Plano is a mostly middle-class suburb to the far north of Dallas, while Highland Park is an island community dotted by mansions and surrounded by Dallas.

Plano has won state championships in every classification from A to the largest, while Highland Park features the sons of millionaires Cullen Davis and Herbert Hunt and former Southern Methodist gridiron star Doak Walker on the same squad.

A list of Highland Park's ex-lettersmen also includes such notables as Walker, Texas Governor Bill Clements, former Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Bobby Layne and soccer star Kyle Rote Jr.

In other 5A quarterfinal games this weekend, Odessa Permian takes on Amarillo Saturday in Lubbock's Jones Stadium, while Houston Stratford and Port Arthur Jefferson have a Saturday evening date at Houston's Astrodome.

Alice takes on San Antonio Holmes Friday night at Memorial Stadium in Austin.

Lubbock Estacado tackles Paris Saturday in Wichita Falls, while Huntsville and Bay City meet Friday at Rice Stadium in Houston.

Class 3A quarterfinal matchups include Littlefield-Stamford, Decatur-Pittsburg, West-Waller and Van Vleck-Port Isabel.

In 2A quarterfinals, Panhandle meets Rotan, Moody takes on Pilot Point, Forney tackles Garrison and Tidehaven plays Woodsboro.

Four Class A teams will be fighting for berths in the championship game next week.

Rankin plays Valley Friday night at Snyder, while Valley View takes on Falls City the same evening in Belton.

Razorbacks coast to easy cage win

By The Associated Press

The 11th ranked Arkansas Razorbacks quickly solved the zone defense of the Southwest Missouri State Bears and coasted to an easy 99-65 basketball victory Wednesday night.

The Arkansas victory gave Southwest Conference basketball teams a 1-1 split for the evening against non-conference foes as the Southern Methodist University Mustangs lost a close one, 69-66, to North Texas State University in Denton's "Super Pit."

Tonight's SWC schedule finds Texas Christian at Notre Dame, southwest Texas at Rice, Western Kentucky at Texas Tech, Southwest at Baylor and New Mexico State at Texas.

Scott Hastings scored 24 points for the Razorbacks, now 3-1, and said later the victory showed that Arkansas has found how to combat the zone defense.

"Last year we couldn't play against a zone. It took a little while tonight for the inside game to start working," Hastings said. "We handled the ball well once we got used to it."

A four-point play near the end of the game helped North Texas State hand the SMU Mustangs their first loss of the season after two victories.

Billy Don Hardaway scored a basket for North Texas and was fouled. He missed his first free throw, but Delonte Taylor grabbed the rebound and scored. The four-point play gave North Texas the lead, 65-62.

Taylor led all scorers with 18 points. Gordon Welch had 17 for SMU.

Mustangs coach Dave Bliss summed up the loss, saying, "We can't run and jump with those boys. We had our opportunities, if we make the right plays."

Winfield, Padres are still fighting McMullen remains visible

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Padres and star outfielder Dave Winfield are tangled in a legal dispute stemming from the club canceling a program for underprivileged children sponsored by Winfield.

The National League club contends the All-Star slugger, on estranged terms with the team since declaring his free agency last month, owes $62,763 as part of a $100,000 bonus to purchase tickets for disadvantaged area youths.

But Winfield's agent insists the money is not owed because Padre President Ballard Smith recently signed a three-year extension.

Smith confirmed on Wednesday that he signed the extension, but added, "I got confused."

The dispute centers around a clause in Winfield's four-year contract that expired at the end of the season. When the contract was signed in 1977, the Padres agreed to pay Winfield an additional $100,000 above his regular $1.4-million contract. The clause stipulated that $100,000 would go toward purchasing seats for underprivileged children.

HOUSTON (AP) — John McMullen, the controversial former general partner of the Houston Astros, has been removed as the primary authority in direction of the National League franchise — or has he?

Limited partners in the Astros organization voted last month to dissolve the partnership arrangement and reorganize under a corporate form.

Under the new structure, McMullen was thought to have diminished powers with the Astros operating under a three-man board of directors — McMullen, T.H. Neyland and Jack Trotter.

But McMullen was the only visible member of the trio present Wednesday when the Astros announced the signing of free agent pitcher Don Sutton.

McMullen said he and Rose did all the negotiating in the signing of Sutton, who earlier had been expected to sign with the New York Yankees.

"I certainly spoke to them about what I intended to do and they agreed with me," McMullen said. "I never had carte blanche with the club. I never kept secrets from anybody. McMullen, who angered his limited partners by firing President and General Manager Tal Smith, said he was sorry he invited the limited partners into the Astros family and said he would not have Smith back under the new corporate arrangement of the Astros.

"Under the circumstances, I guess you'd have to say I made a mistake by bringing in some of the limited partners," said McMullen, still the largest stockholder with 34 per cent. "I guess my good intentions didn't turn out so good."

"I don't think I suffered a defeat. I think I have operated the team in an exemplary fashion."

McMullen stood by his decision to fire Smith and hire Rose to replace him. "I would not bring him back, but that is my opinion," McMullen said. "That would be a decision for all the directors."

It was the second time since purchasing the team that McMullen wrestled a player away from the Yankees, a team he once served as a limited partner. McMullen signed Nolan Ryan away from the Yankees for a $1 million per year salary last year.

Signing the two pitchers was not an effort to beat Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, McMullen said.

"It's not a matter of competition with the Yankees," McMullen said. "We talked from the beginning about Sutton being an advantage to this team."

Sugar Ray wants title fight with Hearns-Benitez winner

NEW CARROLLTON, Md. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard, newly recrowned World Boxing Council welterweight champion, doesn't plan to retire anytime soon.

In fact, Leonard has his sights on meeting the winner of the Tommy Hearns-Wilfred Benitez fight to be held in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 21.

The 24-year-old Leonard really would like to take on Hearns, holder of the World Boxing Association's version of the welterweight title, but graciously admits he would meet Benitez, from whom he originally won the WBC title in November of last year.

"It would be kind of interesting to fight Hearns," said Leonard at a news conference near his home Wednesday, "because I already beat Benitez. I'm surprised about some of the statements he's been making about me. When he and I have been alone, he has been very low key. Then, as soon as I turn my back, he goes out and finds a reporter and says how he's going to whip me."

"He doesn't come off right saying some of the things he's been saying. You know, it's like Mike Weaver or Larry Holmes saying the same things that Muhammad Ali does. It just doesn't come off the same way."

However, Leonard says he believes Hearns might have trouble with Benitez.

"He has a serious barrier in front of him," said Leonard. "Hearns will have to get him early. Benitez can't take a punch but he gets stronger as he goes on. If Hearns doesn't get him by the eighth round, he could be in trouble."

Even though Leonard would like to meet the winner of the Hearns-Benitez bout, his business manager says such a match unlikely could be staged before next fall, so Leonard probably would fight once or twice before then.

"Ray hasn't stayed out of the ring for nine months," said attorney Mike Trainer, adding that a bout probably will be arranged for March or April.

Midland Christian splits twinbill with Grady

Midland Christian's boys basketball team seeks its second win of the season at 6:30 p.m. Friday against Wink after cracking the win column for the first time Tuesday by beating Grady High, 43-23. Buddy Ritchie scored 12 points and Scot McInroe II for MCS while Ron Deaerage had eight for Grady.

The MCS girls team also was 1-1 after losing to Grady's girls 34-28 as Cara Akins posted 16 for the losers.

Both the boys and girls teams will host Grady at MCS Tuesday.

Midland Christian 8 10-11 8-42
Grady 8 8-1 6-23
MCS - Buddy Ritchie 12, Scot McInroe 11, Grady - Ron Deaerage 8, MCS Girls 8 3 8-25
Grady Girls 8 10 11 4-24
MCS - Cara Akins 16, Grady - Rivera 16.

Doug Barfield finds job, at least temporarily

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Auburn University Coach Doug Barfield has found another football job at least temporarily.

He is scheduled to make an encore appearance Dec. 25 in the Blue-Gray All-Star Football Classic and will bring the school's star runner, James Brooks, officials said Wednesday.

Barfield resigned under pressure Monday, but he is optimistic about being the Gray's defensive coordinator in the 43rd annual clash between seniors from the North and the South, said Charles "Fats" Jones, the game's executive director.

"Four or five times in the past, we've had coaches in transition, and certainly that makes no difference," Jones said.

John Mackovic, who turned around the football program at Wake Forest, will coach the Gray offense, and former Clemson Coach Frank Howard will serve as an assistant.

On the Blue side, Harvard's Joe Restic will return for a second year as offensive coordinator. Jimmy Johnson of Oklahoma State will handle the defensive chores, and former Missouri mastermind Don Faurot will make his 27th appearance as an assistant, Jones said.

The remaining players for the 43rd annual bowl are supposed to be announced next week. In recruiting players this year, game officials have used a different strategy.

"We've had good people in the past, but people had not heard of them. This year, we've got household names," publicity director Jim Fyffe said.

Jones said the disciplinary action that is keeping some PAC 10 schools out of bowl games is helping attract good players to the Blue-Gray game.

The pack is back.

Superstars Christmas show has distinct sports flavor

The Superstars Christmas show at the Chaparral Center Dec. 13 will be one with a distinct sports flavor.

In addition to soccer-playing Kyle Rote, Jr., the ABC-TV Superstars winner of a few years ago, Joe Reed, Ed Mooney and Jay Jeffrey will be on hand.

Reed is a former Detroit Lions quarterback who played his college ball at Mississippi State, although he hailed from Lubbock, just outside of Lubbock.

Mooney is a former Tech and Detroit linebacker, who currently directs of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Jeffrey, of course, led Baylor University to the Cotton Bowl with a 10-1 record this season. Jeffrey is from Overland Park, Kan.

The show is open to the public at no charge.

Bill Michael's 5-41 record survives UTEP chopping block

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Bill Michael, who has racked up 41 losses and only five wins in his four years at Texas-El Paso, will be retained another year as head coach at the Western Athletic Conference school.

His boss, however, has been demoted.

UTEP President Haskell Monroe, who had conferred with local civic leaders over what to do about the school's football program after this fall's 1-11 record — the 10th straight losing season — made the announcement at a Wednesday press conference.

Monroe said Athletic Director Jim Bowden would be replaced and demoted to associate director after the new chief is hired. He said Bowden's salary would not be reduced.

"I could not find any foolproof, sure course of action which guaranteed success," Monroe said. "It is my judgment that this is the best course of action for us at this time."

Monroe said one reason he decided to keep Michael was that there was a year left on a five-year contract.

Sighs of relief spread through Georgia

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — The sighs of relief spread from the University of Georgia campus to the governor's mansion Wednesday when Georgia football Coach Vince Dooley announced that he had rejected Auburn's offer to become head football coach and athletic director.

Dooley, after toying for several days with a reported $1.8 million, eight-year contract offer from his alma mater Auburn, announced at a news conference Wednesday that he would remain at Georgia.

While Georgia fans were greeting Dooley's decision with relief, Auburn officials announced that they immediately would begin a search to find a successor to Doug Barfield, who resigned under pressure this week as the Tigers' head football coach.

Georgia freshman sensation Herschel Walker, meanwhile, said he knew all along that Dooley wouldn't abandon the top-ranked Bulldogs.

Academic counselor Curt Fludd said he would have "dropped dead if he left. I didn't feel he was going to leave. We have such a close-knit family here. I just had a gut feeling."

Numbers don't worry Charboneau

CLEVELAND (AP) — The .289 would have looked better as a .300, the 87 runs batted in could have been 100, but Joe Charboneau isn't fretting too much about the numbers he compiled last summer.

The rookie's accomplishments for the Cleveland Indians have been good for five different rookie honors, including the prestigious American League Rookie of the Year award announced Wednesday.

"It was just a super year," said Charboneau, a 6-2, 200-pound slugging outfielder who hit 23 home runs, drove in 87 runs and batted .289 in 131 games. "I would have liked to get the average up a little higher. I'm looking forward to next year."

More important than the statistics Charboneau ran up, though, was the excitement he instilled in Indians fans, who haven't had a real hero in years. Not since Rocky Colavito has a player commanded as much attention in Cleveland.

"The newspapers and media were really good to me," Charboneau said, agreeing that stories about his strange past antics off the field probably helped bring attention to his performance on the field.

Those antics, including such oddities as pulling his own tooth with a pair of pliers, removing a tattoo using a razor blade and drinking beer through his nose, were fine for adding color to his personality, but Charboneau would like to see them fade away.

"They weren't untrue," he said. "It's just that they're from the past, a long time ago. Now, after the voting, I'd like to be known more for what I do on the field."

"This is just a beginning for him," said Indians President Gabe Paul. "There isn't any such thing as a sophomore jinx. You just have to work hard. There isn't any easy way, and Joe knows that."

Charboneau joked that he has his own method of avoiding the proverbial sophomore jinx.

"I'm going straight to my junior year," he said. The rookie honors certainly won't hurt Charboneau in his contract talks with the Indians, but he isn't sure precisely how the awards will translate into dollars.

"That hasn't been discussed yet," he said.

Navratilova holds on

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A tormented Martina Navratilova almost became another prized scalp for the giant-killing Yugoslav Mima Jausovec today in a gripping third-round match of the $125,000 New South Wales tennis tournament.

The 24-year-old Jausovec, had the top seed dangling at 2-4 in the deciding set and it took all Navratilova's grit and skill to force a tie-breaker, which she won for the match, 6-2, 3-6, 7-6.

Only last week Jausovec, rated 18th in the world with $73,000 in earnings this year, beat Australia's tennis darling Evonne Goolagong Cawley in the second round of the Australian Open.

Today she was only a couple of points away from repeating the dose at Navratilova's expense. Afterward, Navratilova revealed that her long-standing rivalry with Jausovec went back to when both were 10 in Czechoslovakia.

The pair's head-to-head record currently stands at 14-1 in Navratilova's favor. The sole defeat was back in the first round of Wimbledon in 1974 when Jausovec won a match stretched out by rain over three days.

Navratilova, now living in the United States, faces sixth-seed Pam Shriver, an American, in the opening match on center court on Friday.

Ray Scott is the man behind popular B.A.S.S. explosion

Did you by any chance see ABC's 20/20 News Magazine prime time television on Thursday, Nov. 27 (Thanksgiving Night)? You missed a great program. This program delivered 12-minutes to over 45 million viewers of coverage of the 1980 Bass Masters Classic held back in September on the Thousand Islands region of the St. Lawrence River in New York state. The program was respectable, briefed the audience on what bass fishing really means to the big name pros and of course featured Ray Scott, the founding father of professional bass fishing and the sponsoring Bass Anglers Sportsman Society.

What ABC forgot to mention is what B.A.S.S. really is, what it stands for and what are future plans. Oh yes, Ray Scott, has become filthy rich off this bass fishing game and society, but I guess he well deserves it. Many other organizations have tried a similar type organization, but all have failed. The B.A.S.S. group has not only succeeded in their long-range plan since their inception in 1968, but future plans are even brighter and the competitive world of bass fishing soon should reach epidemic proportions such as professional football and baseball. Making millions of greenbacks is not what we're talking about in this column. We're going to show you what B.A.S.S. stands for and how we as bass fishermen have benefited and will continue to benefit from this organization.

B.A.S.S., under the the power-driven guidance of Scott, is now 14 years strong and still casting. They said it couldn't be done, also, when Scott spoke of organizing America's bass fishermen into a society that would better bass fishing for all.

Starting with the names of four fishermen in a metal card file box, Scott single-handedly signed up 2,000 the first year. Later, the president and founder of the fledgling Bass Anglers Sportsman Society would hit the seminar trail with two fellow bassin' fanatics, Harold Sharp (B.A.S.S. Tournament Director) and Bob Cobb (editor of BassMaster Magazine).

Spreading the gospel according to B.A.S.S., and, at times selling enough memberships to finance their return home, the angling evangelists lured tens of thousands more fisherman to the B.A.S.S. patch. Today, the membership exceeds 360,000, making it the largest fishing organization in the world.

Scott, 47, has guided the organization's growth and influence until it extends well outside the tournament arena. His dreams for a full-service organization for bass fishermen, an action-oriented group tackling water polluters and anti-fishing forces, have been realized.

Early on, Scott became concerned over mercury pollution in some of Alabama's best bass fishing waters. As president of B.A.S.S., he filed the largest class action environmental suit, at that time, against 214 companies alleged to be dumping toxic materials into waterways, illegally and against the Alabama Water Improvement Commission and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

PUBLICITY OVER that landmark litigation led to involvement in lawsuits in Chattanooga, Tennessee, and against industries along the Houston Ship Channel. Scott's appearances on the "Today Show" and the "Dick Cavett Show" and the national publicity generated by the suits have been credited with providing the impetus for forming the Environmental Protection Agency.

Today, B.A.S.S., through its Federation/Conservation department, continues to battle against polluters and destroyers of natural resources and wildlife habitats.

Aware that success of his creation, B.A.S.S. and BassMaster, had led to increased pressure against the black bass fishery, Scott set out to enhance the bass fishing resource. He was aided in founding, in 1974, of

Nuggets seek Vandeweghe

DENVER (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks have given the Denver Nuggets permission to talk to the Mavericks' first-round draft choice, Kiki Vandeweghe, but no trade has been consummated between the National Basketball Association clubs, a Nuggets spokesman says.

The Nuggets reportedly had talked trade for a time with the Dallas management, but the Mavericks lost interest in Denver forward James Ray when they learned he had knee problems, Nuggets officials said Wednesday.

"When there was another player (Ray) involved, there was a sense of urgency," said Denver President-General Manager Carl Scheer. "But now they don't seem to be in any hurry. I think it's going to be a day-to-day story."

Reached at his parents' Los Angeles homes Wednesday, Vandeweghe, a 6-foot-8 forward out of UCLA, said he would like to play basketball in the NBA. But he said he thinks the Mavericks' bargaining position will get weaker as time goes on.

"I have to believe the longer they wait, the less they'll get," he said, "because very soon I won't sign with anyone and they'll get nothing. Whether they'll do anything about that is another story."

Karolyn Rose completes divorce action

CINCINNATI (AP) — Karolyn Rose says she is sad her 16-year marriage to Philadelphia Phillies first baseman Pete Rose has ended, and refuses to talk about terms of the settlement.

Neither the judge nor the lawyers announced details of the settlement Wednesday, but courthouse sources, who had seen the paperwork, indicated it was more than $1 million, according to The Cincinnati Enquirer.

"The property settlement is over," Mrs. Rose said in a telephone interview Wednesday evening. "I have no ties on Pete. It's a sad thing. I will always love him. He did give me two beautiful children. He's a super ball player. I wish him all the luck in the world." Neither party attended the session in Hamilton County Domestic Relations Court when Judge Paul George said lawyers for both sides had reached an agreement.

The judge said among the few details to be worked out were Rose's visiting rights to his children, Fawn, 15, and Petey, 10.

Dominic Mastruserio, Mrs. Rose's lawyer, said the attorneys agreed that no exact figure would be revealed. He said Mrs. Rose decided that if the dollar amount was revealed, she would be "besieged by suitors and business deals, and she doesn't need this."

the Bass Research Foundation, now working for the benefit of bass on a $200,000 annual budget out of its Starkville, Mississippi headquarters. Since its inception, BRF has raised more than $1 million to finance a spate of important programs on bass fisheries of America.

From the beginning, Scott has viewed fishermen as a "special interest group," in a country that is profoundly influenced by special interest.

"With 64 million fishermen in America today, we're the largest — and the least harnessed — special group there is," Scott says. "But it's time that fishermen make their desires and needs known through the political process," Scott said.

DURING THE summer of 1979, Ray Scott decided to set an example of political involvement he hopes other fishermen will follow.

He was chosen to be state chairman for Alabama of the George Bush for President Campaign effort, and he was named to the Republican presidential candidate's steering committee.

When Bush was recruited as Reagan's running mate, Scott turned his energies back to B.A.S.S. and bassin'. But not for long.

This past August, Reagan picked Scott to ramrod the Advisory Committee of Sportsmen and Conservationists for Reagan-Bush.

Not only does the B.A.S.S. organization promote professional bass fishing for "big bucks", take a strong stand on preserving America's wildlife habitat, but the organization now owns and operates three of the most successful magazines in the country: BassMaster, Southern Outdoors and the new Fishing Tackle Retailer magazine.

For this man, we need to all stand up and cheer and also add our voice for the B.A.S.S. organization. I once heard Ray Scott say, "I'll be bass fishing when the world is on fire." That statement came on a houseboat cruise on Lake Powell. And now that I've become acquainted with the man better, I believe the statement Scott made.

Our hats are off to the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society and Ray Scott.

The new Morris the Cat for "9-Lives" cat food is courted by a poor imitation. (AP Laserphoto)

Jenner to remarry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One month after his first marriage was dissolved by a divorce decree, athlete and actor Bruce Jenner has announced plans to marry actress Linda Thompson. Jenner's publicist, Paul Bloch, said Wednesday the wedding will be early in 1981, but released no details. The 31-year-old Jenner's decathlon-winning performance at the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal set a record that still stands. Lately he's been acting in television and films and has appeared in commercials. His fiancée is a 30-year-old regular on the syndicated television show, "Hee-Haw," who has never married. Jenner's divorce from his first wife, Chrystie, became final last month. He has two children from that marriage.

NEW YORK (AP) — Makers of "9-Lives" cat food have finally found a replacement for the late Morris the Cat. Once again it's a stray being elevated to stardom. The original Morris died two years ago after an 11-year career in show business that began when he was discovered as a Chicago stray. The comical cat was widely recognized for commercials in which he was pleased by only one brand of cat food. "We had always had stand-ins for Morris," explained Bod Dowd, a spokesman for "9-Lives," as Morris II was introduced Wednesday. "We had to find the 'ultimate Morris.' Someone with the personality and the finickiness — but someone who could do commercials." They found a suitable cat, 2 or 3 years old, in a New England humane society shelter and the straydom-to-stardom saga repeated itself. The new Morris, brown-eyed and orange like his predecessor, is hitting the literary circuit offering to paw copies of a new book on cat care — "The Morris Approach."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor Warner has joined actor Orson Welles on the board of trustees of the Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies here. Board president Samuel Belzberg said Wednesday that the actress, wife of Sen. John Warner, R-Va., has been active in raising funds for a multimedia show about the Holocaust which she co-narrated with Welles. The 77-minute film, videotape, slide and sound program on the extermination of Jews in World War II is being produced for nationwide exhibition.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Sexual self-control and temperance are needed by those who hope to attain Christ-like ethics, Pope John Paul II has said in a renewal of his controversial discussion about human sexuality. "Christ is not asking for us to return to the state of original innocence but to find an authentic way for a new man — a way that is related in continuity with the 'beginning,'" the pope said Wednesday during his weekly audience, attended by 7,000 people in St. Peter's Square. "This new ethos...is attained through self-control and temperance and is linked with an acceptance of the conjugal meaning of the body," the pope said. The pope earlier created a stir when he said that lust was wrong, even when it involved a man's inordinate desire for his wife. The pope also had good news for tradition-lovers. He'll be in Vatican City for Christmas to perform the usual services, a Vatican spokesman said Wednesday.

Hazardous gas cleanup begun in Texas town

MONT BELVIEU, Texas (AP) — One fourth of an area contaminated by hazardous gases has been purged in a cleanup operation, but officials in this small Chambers County town still are uncertain when 80 families may return to their homes. "We're encouraged by the work so far and we're working as quickly as possible to return the families to their homes," said Keith Owen, spokesman for Warren Petroleum Co. which is funding the operation. The families were evacuated two months ago after officials discovered gas fumes seeping from the ground and into the city's sewer line. Tests revealed the fumes were a mixture of propane and ethane gases. Mont Belvieu, a city of about 1,700 located 33 miles east of Houston, sits atop a salt dome that has the nation's largest petrochemical storage capacity. City manager Jay Jorden said the cleanup operation is not "moving as fast as we would like. We are just having to live with this until it is taken care of."

Cleanup crews have drilled 290 test wells and plan to drill 50 additional wells in an effort to pinpoint the exact location of the escaping gas, Owens said. The purging process injects nitrogen gas into the contaminated areas, displacing and diluting the flammable gases. The Texas Railroad Commission said the flammable gases were moving underground in the water sands about 200 feet deep and surfacing near porous ground. Owen said a reservoir where most of the propane and ethane is located has been depleted by drilling of relief wells. Warren Petroleum has admitted it has a leaky well which may have contributed to the gas leaks. But company officials said other gases, such as propylene and methane, not stored by the Houston-based company have been found. Evacuations and cleanup costs are being paid by Warren Petroleum and by Mutual Aid Mont Belvieu, a group of companies operating on the dome. Officials are uncertain how much the total cleanup cost will be.

Midland's All-City school choir chosen

Junior high and freshman high school choral students auditioned for the Midland All-City choir Monday.

Acting as judges for the event were Walter Wright, Sharon Wright, Ruth Ann Griffin, Becky Evans, Maridell Fryar, and Don McCartney.

AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Today is a red letter day. Circle it. Today is the day the 1981 edition of Chases' Calendar of Annual Events arrives.

Chases' Calendar, published the last 24 years by an assiduous date-keeper in Flint, Mich., Bill Chase, is a 144-page answer to anyone who finds life humdrum and humorless.

It allows you, for example, to wake up tomorrow morning and discover it is not just any old Friday, Dec. 5. It is Martin Van Buren's birthday! It is the day Columbus discovered Haiti! It is the 47th anniversary of the repeal of Prohibition!

Now, won't that make getting out of bed seem less pointless? Every day offers something to celebrate. In fact, checking the 1981 calendar, every day next year will offer at least four things to celebrate, some days a couple of dozen. Busy, busy.

The month of May has eight pages of celebrations, no less — the Kentucky Derby, of course, and 360 other events.

You can attend in May, for heaven's sake, the Hell Hole Swamp Festival in Jamestown, S.C., the Gille-kins of Oz Convention in Escanaba, Mich., Rooster Day in Broken Arrow, Okla. Or you may prefer to sit home and meditate upon the Sack of Rome, May 6, 1527.

"The 1981 edition is by far the largest we have ever compiled," Bill Chase said, "3,280 listings. The first edition, 24 years ago, listed only 364 events. You can see how far we've come."

Chase spent 30 years as librarian for his local newspaper, The Flint Journal, and compiled that first edition merely as a timesaver, a handy reference to answer questions about when such-and-such happened. When was Garfield assassinated, Bill? July 2, 1881.

Last year, at age 57, he left the newspaper because publishing the Calendar had become a full-time job.

It would have to be when you track down such events as Don't Say Ahhh, Ummm and You Know Day (Jan. 7), Be Kind to your Amoeba Day (March 13), the Anniversary of America's First Formal Cremation (Dec. 9), Duncie Day (Nov. 8), Fight the Filthy Fly Month (June), Hate Week (April 4-10), Bachelor's Day (Feb. 28), Old Maid's Day (June 4).

Today is the day you find out what day it is

The Los Angeles Times

POMONA, Calif. — When 72-year-old Elmer Norman goes out, he wears stereo headphones connecting him to a box covered with wood-grained contact paper. Friends speak into a silver-bullet microphone plugged into the contraption which is hooked to his belt with a clothespin.

Doctors once told him he must wear a commercial hearing aid, but Norman says all he could hear was squeal and distortion. So he bought a do-it-yourself-home-electronics guide and built a better one himself.

"I've always been interested in the consumer," he says. "Where is the law that protects us? What can one person do alone?"

Norman's answer — question authority — led to his winning a lawsuit last week against Colonial Penn Franklin Insurance Company. To encourage others to protest when wronged, Norman recently told how a complaint based on a $48 hearing test uncovered widespread fraud and won $4.5 million from the nation's largest insurer of the elderly.

NORMAN APPEARED FOR AN appointment with an ear nose and throat specialist in December 1973. His homemade hearing aid was no good to him that day; a staph infection had reduced his hearing to almost nothing.

The doctor ordered sinus x-rays, culture, and an audio evaluation to determine the extent of hearing loss. He wrote a prescription for three drugs and sent the patient home.

Six years before, in 1967, Norman had purchased three insurance policies from Colonial Penn, a Philadelphia company which insured 11 million members of the American Association of Retired Persons. Two policies were for hospitalization. The out-patient policy covered prescription drugs, office visits and diagnostic tests.

Two drugs were paid for. But Norman noticed that the $11.40 check from Colonial Penn did not cover a drug called Dynapen, nor did it reimburse him for the $48 hearing test.

"I didn't accuse them of cheating," Norman says. "I wrote and said: 'You've made a mistake.'"

He says he received a letter to the effect: "Upon careful review we have determined you are not entitled to reimbursement for Dynapen. The American Druggist Handbook for 1973 does not consider Dynapen a prescription drug."

THE LETTER WENT ON to say audiometry is not considered a diagnostic test, though by medical association guidelines, Norman found, it is.

Like most people confronted with the word of authority, Norman says he would have just accepted the letter, but it triggered a memory. Fifty years ago, Norman worked in his father's pharmacy in a small town in New York. The American Druggist Handbook was what they referred to when they wanted to find a particular brand of foot powder. It was not an official guide, but a trade publication.

His consumer's curiosity aroused, he went to a pharmacy and asked the druggist to produce the manufacturer's carton of Dynapen. "There it was, clear as crystal," Norman says. "WARNING: Federal law prohibits dispensing without prescription."

"I wanted to be thorough," he adds, "so I got ahold of a copy of the American Druggist Handbook." He found that even the reference Colonial Penn had claimed to use listed Dynapen as a prescription drug.

"You are making an arbitrary, self-serving, money-making decision which you don't have the right to make," he wrote the company. "I challenge and I disagree with you. Please remit."

"On Dynapen I had them absolutely cold," he says. "They caved in and paid me. But they continued to refuse to pay the audiogram. That's when I began to smell fraud. They're not going to bother cheating Elmer Norman out of $48. But if they can collect $48 here and $48 there.... If I hadn't realized how many people are affected, I could have taken it to petty claims and won in several weeks. But I realized I was up against something that affected not only me but millions of elderly people."

NORMAN CONSULTED A LOCAL attorney, Ronald Brownson, who said he'd be willing to take the case, but didn't have expertise in insurance fraud. Norman had heard of William Shernoff, an insurance lawyer in nearby Claremont, Calif., and approached him.

Norman did not have much money, he was living on Social Security and dwindling personal savings. Shernoff says he pondered for three months whether he should take on contingency a suit based on a $48 insurance claim. When he decided to take the case, Shernoff says he had no idea large-scale deception was involved, though for years various groups had been investigating Colonial Penn's relationship to AARP.

Five years passed before the case came to court. When Shernoff started checking into Norman's files, he came across a form letter asking the insured to destroy his old policy and accept a new one which contained "substantial improvements." The old policy allowed $25 for doctor's consultation, of which 80 percent was payable. The new policy upped the amount to $75 but paid only 25 percent. It didn't add up, Shernoff realized.

UPON SUBPOENAING Colonial Penn's records, Shernoff discovered an expressed intention to cut claims costs 40 percent (for a total of 4.5 million,) by reducing services to clients.

In court, Colonial Penn attorneys said their cutbacks were necessary; the company was losing money. Shernoff countered with evidence the company was making three times as much as any group health carrier in the country.

After three weeks of testimony, the jury reached a verdict in 15 minutes. Elmer Norman was awarded $4.5 million in punitive damages, and $70,000 in general damages for mental and emotional distress.

AARP and the smaller National Retired Teachers Association canceled their contract with Colonial Penn. Colonial Penn plans to appeal the case.

The "Super Chicken II," a balloon piloted by John Shoecraft and Ron Ripps, lifts off early Wednesday from the Mira Costa College athletic field in Oceanside, Calif., on its second attempt in four months to become the first balloon to float coast to coast across the United States. (AP Laserphoto)

'Super Chicken II' loses altitude in early morning

BULLETIN: The attempted transcontinental flight of "Super Chicken II," ended near Liberal in southwest Kansas this morning when a coat of ice forced the 10-story helium balloon down in Meade County, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

The balloon landed about 9:30 a.m. EST, the FAA said. The FAA said it did not know the exact location of the balloon or the condition of the pilots.

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — The 10-story "Super Chicken II" balloon, attempting a transcontinental flight, dropped to 2,000 feet above rugged ground this morning as the two men aboard fought to keep it in the air until daybreak when the sun's rays could expand the helium.

"It's touch and go for the next three hours," flight spokeswoman Lorie Edris said at 5 a.m. EST as flight aides advised the pilots to preserve as much ballast as possible for the rest of their second attempt at a non-stop flight across the country.

The trouble started just east of the Continental Divide, when an 80-mile long patch of turbulence lifted the 9,000-pound balloon 1,100 feet per minute to peak heights of 26,000 feet above sea level and dropped it 600 feet per minute to as low as 5,300 feet.

"This turbulence was expected over the Rockies, but it wasn't expected to be this severe," Ms. Edris said.

The 9,000-pound balloon leveled off briefly at 7,600 feet shortly before 4 a.m. EST, and was located 20 miles southeast of Lamar, heading due east at 20 to 30 knots.

Weather forecasters in Denver had been radioing advice to balloonists John Shoecraft, 36, and Ron Ripps, 37.

The balloonists lifted off early Wednesday from a football field about 30 miles north of San Diego to begin a journey that Shoecraft and Ripps hope will be the first crossing of the United States in a helium-filled balloon.

Maxie Anderson and his son, Kris, attempted a similar crossing last spring and made it across the continent, but landed in Canada.

The Shoecraft-Riggs effort also is the first winter attempt at a transcontinental crossing, organizers said.

The two Phoenix, Ariz., businessmen spent Wednesday drifting across northern Arizona and New Mexico into Colorado, sleeping only an hour and enjoying a "magnificent" view despite a brief heater failure and occasionally iced windows.

The pair hoped to touch down near the Virginia-North Carolina border early Friday after having ridden a jet stream 18,000 to 27,000 feet high at speeds up to 100 mph.

Temperatures fell to an estimated 5 degrees below zero outside the gondola Wednesday night and ranged from 12 to 16 above zero inside the craft, where the men were sipping hot tea and eating peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

The pilots told ground crew members their heater had failed during the initial hours of flight, but that they were able to get it working about 12 hours into the flight. They said their heavy thermal clothing kept them warm during the outage.

Solar-powered flight halted

By MICHAEL A. CHIHAK
Associated Press Writer

MARANA, Ariz. (AP) — A planned 63-mile test flight of a solar-powered airplane was halted after only five miles when a kink developed in the throttle, but the crew says the trip was still long enough for a record.

Designer Paul MacCreedy said the pilot and ground crew of the 29-foot-long Solar Challenger would try again today to complete the flight if the sky is clear.

"It would be good to take a few days off," MacCreedy said. "But we will make the plane ready to fly again right away. We depend on good weather, and if it's going to be good...then we're going to go."

Because the 175-pound plane gets its power from the sun, it cannot be flown in overcast conditions.

MacCreedy, an aeronautics specialist from Pasadena, Calif., has said a successful flight over the desert could lead to another flight in June from Paris to London.

Wednesday's flight ended after 22 minutes after the kink developed in a plastic push rod that serves as the plane's throttle. Pilot Janice L. Brown, 32, of Bakersfield, Calif., was forced to land in the desert. She was uninjured and the plane escaped damage in the landing.

The takeoff site in Marana is 30 miles northwest of Tucson with the intended landing strip at an air field near Chandler, 25 miles southeast of Phoenix.

Although Wednesday's effort was aborted, crew members said it was a record for a human-occupied flight powered by the sun.

"It was great until the last five minutes," said the 95-pound pilot who circled above Marana Air Park for 45 minutes before she gained sufficient altitude to start the cross-country portion of the flight.

The 15,000 solar cells on the plane's 47-foot wingspan and stabilizer generate the electricity that turns a 2.7-horsepower motor attached to a 10-foot propeller.

With the exception of the cells, the Solar Challenger is similar to three earlier MacCreedy planes: the Gossamer Condor, the Gossamer Albatross and the Gossamer Penguin.

In 1977, the Condor made the first flight on power produced by the pedaling of its pilot. Last year, the Albatross, a larger version of the Condor, made it across the English Channel on pedal power.

Four months ago, the Penguin, with MacCreedy's 13-year-old son at the controls, made the first sustained solar-powered flight.

MacCreedy says solar-powered flight is impractical. He undertook the project, however, to demonstrate the capabilities of solar power and to encourage its development for other uses, he said.

The sun-gathering cells on the Solar Challenger cost about $30,000.

Game inventor Steve Jackson, of Austin, talks about his "Raid On Iran" game which simulates an attempt to free the American hostages in Iran. (AP Laserphoto)

New game allows for 'Raid on Iran'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — America's armchair presidents and generals now can take a shot at freeing the hostages in Iran.

You control the helicopters and commandos. You try to deal with the unpredictable mobs around the embassy. You can even try the ultimate bit of skullduggery — kidnapping the Ayatollah.

All this for $3. "The person who represents the Americans has a pretty good choice of strategies," said Steve Jackson, creator of "Raid on Iran."

The idea of the paper board game is simple — find a way to free the hostages held since Nov. 4, 1979, at the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

"I started thinking about creating the game a little while after the (aborted April 24) raid," said Jackson, 26, in an interview at his home.

"Raid on Iran" is among four games just released by the former law student.

The game, folded like a road map, comes in a plastic envelope. The multi-colored board is a layout of the embassy grounds — complete with tennis court. Jackson said the game is as accurate as possible, including potential malfunctions on the helicopters.

Small cardboard markers represent the American commandos, the hostages, the weapons and the mobs. A single card bears the picture of Ayatollah Khomeini.

"It works out to be pretty well-balanced," Jackson said.

The game takes about

90 minutes to play, and a variety of scenarios can develop. It hinges on which secret options each player chooses.

The American can opt for extra explosives or Farsi-speaking infiltrators. Another choice gives the Americans a leftover CIA spy among the Iranians.

The Iranian side can select from such options as "extreme fanaticism."

"The militants are especially crazy," said Jackson. "They are very difficult to negotiate with."

The Iranians can also choose to booby-trap the building.

Jackson said he considered sending copies of the game to the hostages.

"But they certainly would not let them play with it. I'll send it to them when they get home," he said.

The game shows the aborted raid was justified, according to Jackson. "It was risky, but it could have worked. They would have had a very good chance of succeeding," he said.

Systematic investigation of state officials urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Justice Department's criminal division says the Reagan administration should begin systematically investigating state and local officials who preside over licensing operations that "practically cry out and scream for a payoff."

Assistant Attorney General Philip B. Heymann said, "We have never as a federal government focused on such questions as: Is state liquor licensing or insurance contracts or cable television licensing a problem that's systematic and going across the country and that we could just pick up and nip off completely? The next administration ought to do it, and I hope they will."

In a Monday night chat with reporters, Heymann said that traditionally Musician enters plea of innocent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Musician Donald Henley, a member of the Eagles rock group, has pleaded innocent to three-drug related charges and one count of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Henley, 33, was arraigned Tuesday in Los Angeles Municipal Court. He was charged with felony counts of possessing 22 grams of cocaine and 16 methaqualone (Quaalude) pills and misdemeanor counts of possessing marijuana and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Deputy District Attorney Timothy England said the rock singer was allowed to remain free on $5,000 bail after he pleaded innocent during a hearing Tuesday. A preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 14.

Henley was arrested Nov. 21 when detectives from the Los Angeles Police Department's sexually exploited child unit raided the musician's Mulholland Drive home in nearby Sherman Oaks.

Henley called Los Angeles Fire Department paramedics earlier that evening to report that one of his guests had suffered a seizure, said Detective Lt. Nick Salicos.

When the paramedics arrived, they found a nude 16-year-old girl allegedly suffering the after-effect of cocaine and methaqualone, a sedative-type drug, Salicos said.

Berets very hard to find

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Maroon berets for the 14,000 paratroopers at Fort Bragg are as hard to find as fishnet parachutes.

Local pawn shop and military supply dealers say supplies ran out soon after the Army's announcement Friday that paratroopers will be allowed once again to don the distinctive headgear.

The about-face came 23 months after the Army banned the berets because they were "not standard issue uniform."

Dealers say the last of the berets sold early Saturday morning, but hundreds of soldiers lined up for berets on Monday.

"Soldiers were lined up clear down the block, and I had to close the doors and let just a few in at a time on Friday," said Dixie Pawn Shop owner Max Nance, who claims he sold more than 1,500 berets Friday afternoon.

"Never in my life have I seen anything like it, and I've been in business here for 31 years," he said.

Prices for the berets ranged from criminal law enforcement has relied on complaining witnesses and just handled the cases that came through the door. He said the Carter administration has gotten away from that by use of creative undercover work in political corruption and organized crime cases.

"The next forward step in public corruption prosecutions would be to identify systematic forms of corruption — something that is deeply rooted in half a dozen or six dozen U.S. cities," Heymann said. "I believe those things exist. A cable television license for a good-sized city is worth millions and millions of dollars and they are simply allocated to one competitor or another. That's a situation you have to worry about."

Heymann said he is certain that if a payoff is required to obtain a liquor license in a city, "many, many people know that and will tell it to an FBI agent on an off-the-record basis and then all you have to do is go undercover."

During Heymann's 30-month tenure, the criminal division did not get around to this work because it concentrated on crimes without complaining witnesses, he said. "We don't have complainants in some cases of fraud and public integrity because everybody's happy with what happened," he said. "We don't have witnesses or complainants in organized crime and narcotics cases, because they get bumped off."

In those cases, the government must rely on "informants, undercover operations and electronic surveillance, and we've become very sophisticated at that," Heymann said.

He would not comment directly on a ruling by a U.S. District Court judge overturning a guilty verdict by a jury in one of the Abscam cases on grounds that the government undercover operation had entrapped two Philadelphia city councilmen.

But he did say the most important protection against abuse of undercover operations in political corruption cases is that "it has to be very clear when we are all through that the public figure knew he was engaging in a corrupt transaction. I don't think that was questioned in Philadelphia or elsewhere" in Abscam.

He said the middlemen with shady backgrounds who brought politicians into the FBI's Abscam operation for payoffs were instructed to tell the politicians they were going to engage in a corrupt action and "in general" they did that.

$8.99 to $10.95, and dealers vehemently denied there was any price-gouging on the item.

Dennis Hill, business manager for the three Military Surplus Outlet stores in Cumberland County, said the business sold out 150 berets in about four hours Friday.

"I just wish that we'd had a little more advance notice about the authorization," he said. "If we'd know two or three days beforehand, we could have been stocked up."

Even owners of stores which have never had the beret for sale reported floods of calls from soldiers apparently running down the telephone book listings of pawn shops.

"I must have received 10,000 phone calls since Friday, and I've never had the beret for sale," said Chuck Dellinger, owner of Uncle Sam's Pawn Shop.

"The phone rings every five minutes," he said. "I don't see why the soldiers don't buy green berets and have them dyed red by a dry cleaner. It works and it would keep us from answering the phone all day."

Four American women disappear in El Salvador

By ISAAC A. LEVI
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Three Catholic nuns and a Catholic woman volunteer, all Americans, have disappeared and their van has been found burned on the road between San Salvador's airport and the capital, officials said.

There was no immediate word on their fate, but right-wing terrorists have killed Catholic priests and missionaries in El Salvador because of their work among the peasants and advocacy of social and political reforms.

The four women disappeared Tuesday night and their van was found Wednesday, Roman Catholic Church officials said. The four were identified as Sister Dorothy Kagel of Cleveland, Ohio, a member of the Ursuline Order; Ita Ford and Maura Clarke, Maryknoll Sisters from New York City; and Jean Donovan, a lay volunteer from Cleveland.

Sister Kagel, in her mid-30s, and Miss Donovan, in her mid-20s, worked at a mission in La Libertad, on the coast 30 miles west of here, that is sponsored by Cleveland's Roman Catholic diocese.

The Rev. Paul Schindler, who heads the mission, said Sister Kagel and Miss Donovan drove a 1978 gray Toyota van to the airport Tuesday afternoon to meet the Maryknoll sisters coming to La Libertad for a meeting.

Schindler said he notified the U.S. Embassy and Salvadoran officials when the women missed the meeting and later identified the van.

More than 8,500 people have been killed in El Salvador this year in the civil war between leftists and rightists.

Nine priests or church officials have been killed in the past two years, including Archbishop Oscar A. Romero, a human rights advocate shot to death March 24 while celebrating Mass. The latest priest to be killed died Monday.

Police reported finding 19 bodies across the country Tuesday and a leftist guerrilla was killed hours before a Mass began Wednesday at the Metropolitan Cathedral for six assassinated leftist leaders.

About 2,000 mourners raised clenched fists and shouted "the smell of blood is never forgotten" at the Mass, but there was no violence.

Two priests celebrated the Mass at a portable altar on the cathedral steps. Leftists said the services were held outdoors because not all mourners were Roman Catholics.

The leftist leaders were kidnapped and assassinated last Thursday, virtually wiping out the leadership of El Salvador's Democratic Revolutionary Front.

The right-wing, paramilitary Maximiliano Hernandez Brigade, which takes its name from an army general who quelled a 1932 peasant uprising, claimed responsibility for the killings.

The left here has vowed to bring down the military-civilian junta that has ruled since a military coup ousted Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero on Oct. 15, 1979.

Arab official to go to Damascus

Kleibi's arrival a hopeful sign of crisis end

By LOUIS FARES
Associated Press Writer

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Arab League's secretary general, Chaddi Kleibi, is expected in Damascus Saturday to follow up on mediation efforts begun by Saudi Arabia, official sources said today. They said Kleibi's scheduled arrival was a hopeful sign the crisis between Syria and Jordan was being defused.

However, there was no immediate, official reaction to a statement by the Saudi mediator that Syria has agreed to gradually withdraw its forces from Jordan's border.

The statement was made Wednesday night by Prince Abdullah bin Abdul-Aziz, Saudi Arabia's deputy premier and national guard commander, who flew home to Riyadh for more consultations with King Khaled after meeting with President Hafez Assad in Damascus and King Hussein in Amman, Jordan.

Abdullah said he found "complete understanding and response" for his mission from Assad, who he said promised Syrian forces would be "gradually withdrawn" from the border. "My visit to Jordan also was successful. King Hussein also expressed his appreciation of the Saudi initiative and understanding of its dimensions," the prince said.

Abdullah made no mention of the pullback pledge in Damascus. He said in a cable that he sent to Assad from his departing jet in Damascus Wednesday evening: "I return home full of optimism and happiness over your excellency's brotherly response to the message I carried to you from your brother King Khaled."

Foreign diplomats and political observers believed a settlement of the crisis hinged on finding words that would satisfy Assad and at the same time not imply that his charges against Hussein were true. "It's a question of semantics," said one diplomat.

Syria accused Jordan of training and supplying terrorists of the anti-Assad Moslem Brotherhood and demanded that it hand over dozens of the terrorists it said escaped a crackdown last fall and fled to Jordan.

Assad also demanded a pledge from Hussein, backed by Saudi Arabia, that he would not try to bypass the Palestine Liberation Organization in a Mideast peace initiative with the Reagan administration.

Jordanian officials in Amman reported Tuesday that agreement had been reached on a statement by Hussein, but Jordanian Information Minister Adnan Abu Auden denied this. "Acceptance of...Syrian conditions would signify that we accept the Syrian assumption that we are guilty of the false charges leveled against us," he said.

Jordan denies it is supporting the Moslem Brotherhood, which Assad holds responsible for 200 killings in 18 months in Syria. The Amman government also says Hussein has not deviated from the 1976 Arab summit decision that the PLO is the sole representative of the Palestinian people.

The Saudi envoy's meetings with the two rival leaders Wednesday were his second with them this week. After his four-hour session with Assad, a Syrian official said there was a "possibility for improving the present Arab situation," the Syrian news agency reported.

Hussein, wearing the black beret of the armored corps and a khaki uniform with field marshal's insignia, was shown on Jordanian television touring the front lines, exchanging bear hugs and kisses with his cheering troops.

He rushed 30,000 of his men and hundreds of tanks to the frontier last week in response to Assad's deployment of 50,000 troops and 1,200 tanks. The U.S. government was reported ready to ship Hussein more spare military parts and ammunition, but no shots have been fired so far.

Independent fire investigator to make inspection at hotel

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Attorneys for the MGM Grand Hotel and two couples suing the resort agreed Wednesday that an independent fire investigator would be allowed to make a limited inspection of the fire-ravaged Strip hotel.

The agreement came after a hearing before U.S. District Judge Roger Foley on the plaintiffs' request for a temporary restraining order prohibiting hotel employees from cleaning up the mess left by the Nov. 21 fire in which 84 people died and 700 were injured.

Attorney Wendell Gauthier of Kenner, La., who represents the two couples, told Foley it was essential that fire investigator George Martinsen be allowed to inspect the hotel. He said Martinsen would need about 10 days for his inspection.

Foley had ordered the opposing attorneys to attempt to reach an agreement and scheduled another hearing to hear the results of the negotiations. That hearing was canceled, however, when the two sides reached agreement and explained it to the judge.

Under the agreement, said MGM attorney John Phillips, Martinsen will be allowed until 4:30 p.m. Sunday to go through the hotel, providing he followed hotel security rules.

"We will give them reasonable limited access," Phillips said.

During the hearing, another MGM attorney, Steve Morris, argued that some 20 local, state and federal agencies already have inspected the fire damage and said hotel employees needed as much time as possible to clean up the "monumental mess."

"We could literally be out there for years" if requests for independent inspections were allowed, he said.

Foley had expressed concern about the time Martinsen would need for the inspection and said other people who have sued the hotel also might want to conduct independent investigations.

Witness says defendant present before slayings

DUNCAN, Okla. (AP) — Slaying defendant Olan Randle Robison allegedly was present when people remarked that a British woman in the area had a gold bracelet possibly worth $4,000, a witness testified at a preliminary hearing here Wednesday.

The British woman was one of three people later found slain at a house near Velma after an apparent robbery at tempt, investigators said.

Three held in shipping violation

MONTREAL (AP) — Three men have been charged with shipping U.S.-made electronic equipment to Pakistan in violation of Canadian export laws. The equipment reportedly can be used to enrich uranium as part of the process for making nuclear bombs.

Salam Elmenyawi, 31, formerly of Pakistan, Mohammad Ahmad, 44, formerly of Egypt and Abdul Aziz Khan, 40, formerly of India, were charged Wednesday with exporting U.S. goods from Canada without a permit. All three men are naturalized Canadian citizens. They are to enter pleas Dec. 15.

Investigators said the men made at least 11 shipments since April, and "many more took place before this, since the beginning of the year."

Child deaths not the work of lone killer

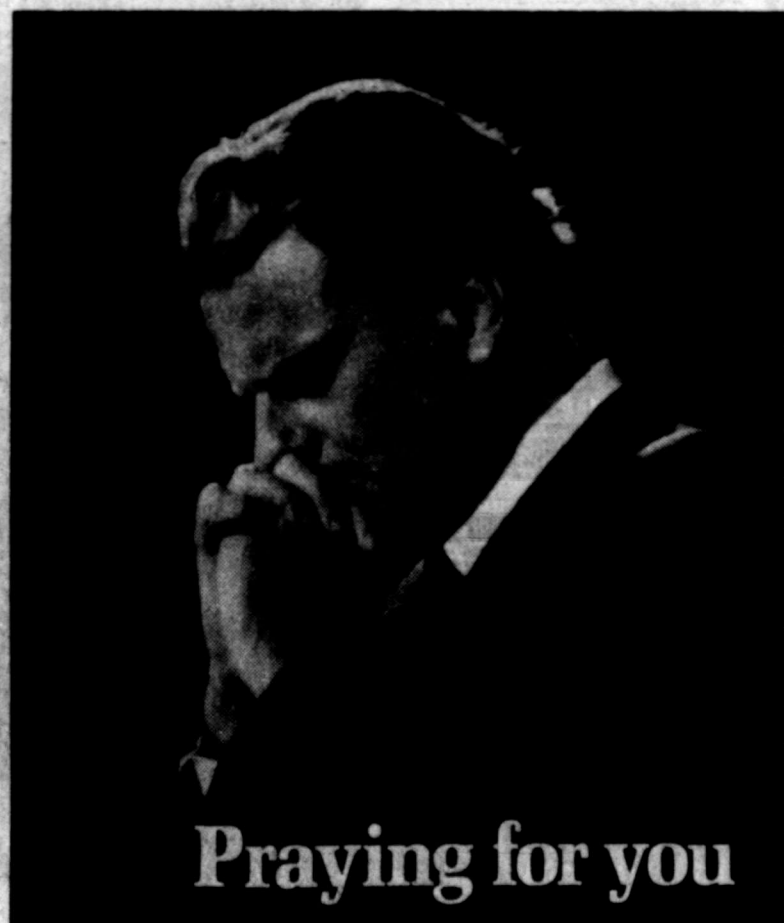

ATLANTA (AP) — Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown says police have concluded that the deaths of 11 children and disappearances of four others are not the work of a single killer.

"We fairly well know we do not have one person stalking our city," Brown said Wednesday at a news conference. "We do not believe, nor have we ever believed, that one person is responsible for what is occurring."

All the victims were black and between the ages of 7 and 15. But Brown said an examination of the details of the cases, which began 17 months ago, highlight some differences.

"As you look at the cases and the method of operation, how the crime is committed, looking at our experience, looking at what the consultants have all concluded, we know we do not have one person in our city that is responsible for all these cases."

Baffled by the child deaths and under public pressure to solve them, police have called in outside detectives, FBI agents, several psychics and others.

Uncooked fruitcake rolls is prize-winning entry

By WANDA MOUTON Lifestyle Editor

Janet Watson's "Uncooked Fruitcake Rolls" took Grand Champion honors at Tuesday's Midland County Pecan Food Show at Midland Center.

The show was held in conjunction with the Midland County Pecan Harvest Festival this week.

Entrants went imaginative in the use of pecans, with dishes ranging from a "Chef Pecan Pie" which took first place in the pie division, to a candy called "Pecan Kisses" (which was also a winner), and from chewy pralines to a uniquely-titled, recipe named "Sweet Capirotada" which also looked quite tasty.

Thelma Archer won Reserve Champion award with a date loaf.

In the youth division, Tamil Lynn Locklar was Grand Champion winner. Her entry was Martha Washington candy. Will Watson won Reserve Champion.

Marcella Mitchell won first place in the adult quick bread division. Yeast bread adult division winners were Edwin B. Selman, first, and Laura Davis, second.

Janet Watson won another blue ribbon in the cake division. Other winners were Mildred Robinson, second; Irene Bishop, third; Billie Beauchamp, fourth; and Henrietta Henderson, fifth.

Marcella Mitchell was top entry winner in pies. Others were Thelma Archer, second; Mrs. Howard Bernard, third; and Laura Davis, fourth.

Cookie division winners were Billie Beauchamp, first; Barbara W. Larsen, second; Mrs. Howard Bernard, third; Ann Sims, fourth; and Edna Clingman, fifth.

ma Archer, first; Marvin Beauchamp, second; Johnnye Glaspie, third; Marvin Beauchamp, fourth; and Edna Bond, fifth.

Youth winners were Elsa Bustillos, second place in sweet appetizers; Will Watson, first, and Kim Watson, second in quick breads; Stacie Stehle, second in pies; and in candies, they were: Tamil Lynn Locklar, first; Stacy Shaw, second; Cathy Cothrun, third; and Pamela Locklar, fourth.

Craft entrants were no less imaginative than the cooks in using pecans. Winners were Audrey M. Rice, blue ribbon champ with a pecan wreath; Barbara W. Larsen, reserve champion with a pecan lariat necktie; Kim Watson, third place with a pecan wall hanging entry; and Will Watson, fourth. He made little mice out of two pecans, using felt for the ears and glue-on plastic eyes.

Some cookbooks to give gourmets

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

Some new cookbooks are worthwhile putting under the Christmas tree as gifts for friends who are gourmets. Here are half a dozen to consider.

Devotees of fine cooking may find "The Art of Food Processor Cooking" by Jane Salzfass Freiman (Contemporary paperback, $6.95) rewarding. Her book is as interesting as the food processor itself which, Mrs. Freiman writes, has become an "international phenomenon...that challenges cooks to create, adjust and improve the food we are preparing more quickly than ever before in history." In double-testing her recipes, she used 20 different food processors. This interest in research is evident throughout her book, from her "controlled timing" technique to her "conversion chart for commonly processed foods" to aid cooks in using scale rather than cup measurements. Mrs. Freiman has an epicure's delight in good food and is skillful in conveying her experience.

"Classic Indian Cooking" by Julie Sahni (Morrow, $15.95) comes at the right time. In recent years many cooks have become interested in trying their hand at India's cuisine because it offers recipes for marvelous breads and dishes with fascinating seasonings plus interesting techniques. The author's research and directions are splendid and she writes with a surety and zest that provide pure pleasure.

"All Good Things Around Us" by Pamela Michael (Holt, Rinehart & Winston, $19.95) is a spectacular offering from England, adapted for American use. A cookbook and guide to wild plants and herbs, it has striking full-color paintings showing wild plants and herbs at the best time for picking with the edible parts illustrated. During World War II the author worked on a farm in Cornwall, "where she was converted to country life." The illustrator, Christabel King, is a botanical artist who works at the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew. The book is "intended as a guide for using herbs and wild plants in much the same way as our ancestors did, before we lost the old knowledge and came to rely entirely on shops for our food and drink and beauty preparations." The introductions to each plant and herb are informative and charming; the recipes would be fun to try. Pamela Michael and Christabel King have indeed made a book that's a mighty good thing.

Ever since Bert Greene collaborated in writing "The Store Cookbook," I've watched for his contributions to magazines and have thoroughly enjoyed them. The recipes in his first book were delicious — and so was the chit-chat interwoven with them. In his new solo book, "Bert Greene's Kitchen Bouquets" (Contemporary, $17.95), Greene writes bewitchingly about the aromas and flavors he favors — from almond and chocolate to basil and vanilla. His recipes are as attractive as the chapter introductions, anecdotes and notes with which he peppers his book.

"Cooking Fish and Shellfish" by Ruth A. Spear (Doubleday, $16.95) is comprehensive, practical and delightful. Mrs. Spear is both an excellent researcher and a fine cook who writes with clarity and wit.

Search on for a special woman

An area search has begun to find that special woman who will be honored as "Young Career Woman" by the Uptown Chapter of Business & Professional Women's Club.

The "Young Career Woman" program (YCW) is an annual event and is open to all women between the ages of 21-30 years. The candidate must be a veteran of her career field for at least one year prior to selection. Various YCW candidates at local, state and national levels have listed such career fields as sales, public relations, banking, education, geology, engineering, medical, legal, administrative and many others.

The Midland YCW recipient will go on to compete on district level. District winners will vie for the state title in June, and a national winner will be selected from state candidates.

Sandra Waisley, 1979-1980 YCW winner, is a geologist with Exxon Corporation. Last year, she went on to win the District Eight YCW title and won first runner-up at state competition. She gained both company and public recognition throughout the year as Midland's "Young Career Woman."

Winner of the 1981 YCW honor will be named during a dinner set for 7 p.m. Jan. 22 at Ranchland Hills Country Club. Also, during the dinner candidates will each deliver a three-minute prepared speech on a topic of her choice. A round-table discussion among the candidates will be an added highlight. Judging will also be based on resume and transcripts must accompany all applications.

Information and applications can be obtained by calling Karen Clark-Nickel, president, at 683-7718.

AT WIT'S END

Just one of those days

By ERMA BOMBECK

It was one of those days when I wanted my own apartment... unlisted. My son was telling me in complete detail about a movie he had just seen, punctuated by 3,000 "You know's?" My teeth were falling asleep. There were three phone calls—strike that—three monologues that could have been answered by a recording. I fought the urge to say, "It's been nice listening to you."

question himself.

There were 30 whole beautiful minutes before my plane took off... time for me to be alone with my own thoughts, to open a book and let my mind wander. A voice next to me belonging to an elderly woman said, "I'll bet it's cold in Chicago." Stone-faced I answered, "It's likely."

ever detested myself more than I did at that moment. Another human being was screaming to be heard and in desperation had turned to a cold stranger who was more interested in a novel than the real-life drama at her elbow. All she needed was a listener... no advice, wisdom, experience, money, assistance, expertise or even compassion... but just a minute or two to listen.

ciety of super-sophisticated communication, we often suffer from a shortage of listeners. She talked numbly and steadily until we boarded the plane, then found her seat in another section. As I hung up my coat, I heard her plaintive voice say to her seat companion, "I'll bet it's cold in Chicago." I prayed, "Please God, let her listen."

Why am I telling you this? To make me feel better. It won't help, though.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Mom's a quick-change artist

DEAR HELOISE: When I changed my baby's diaper, he cried when I used a too-cool washcloth or pre-moistened towelette.

My husband bought me one of those pump-type vacuum bottles, which I sat near the changing table, along with a plastic dish to catch the drips.

I fill the vacuum bottle each morning with warm water. At changing time, a couple of pumps of water on a washcloth, a quick wring-out into the dish, and Mom becomes a "quick-change artist."

No worry about safety because no electricity is involved, I don't have to leave the baby unattended while I hurry into the bathroom for a damp cloth, and my baby no longer cries from getting cleaned up with a cold cloth. — Marilyn

Now that's what I call getting it all together and keeping it there. — Heloise good for arms, hands and when going out in the sun. Another plus is its economy. — Rosalie Probasco

BASKET SHADE

Dear Heloise: After going to numerous stores hunting just the right lamp shade to use in my newly decorated bedroom, I was ready to give up. They all seemed too frilly or the wrong size.

Passing the woven baskets that are meant to hold pot plants, I told my daughter those baskets were the exact size I needed.

With her encouragement, I bought two. With the help of my husband, who drilled the hole in the bottom center of each, I now have two pretty lamps.

The open weave lets the light shine through giving a very lovely effect. — Irma

LETTER OF WARNING

Dear Heloise: Before we start on those holiday birds, a word of warning about the bulb and tube-type basters.

When the tube has hot drippings in it, be sure it's pointing down, or it is just like a squirt gun.

I should know! Using mine for the first time, I filled the tube and lifted the point to baste the turkey. Instead, the hot juices shot across the kitchen and down my husband's pants leg.

While he dried his pants and danced up and down, I went on with the basting and, sure enough, I got him on the other leg.

About then I began to realize what was going on and kept the tip down. No more trouble.

Thank goodness the grandchildren hadn't arrived yet to help Grandma in the kitchen. — N.B.

Kitchen safety's all ways a must. Thanks for the pointer! — Heloise

CAR CUE

Dear Heloise: If you find getting out of the back seat of a two-door car rather precarious, next time get up and, with your back to the door, step out backwards.

It's easier on the knees and you don't get that feeling that you're going to fall on your face. — Edith R. Baker

Have you found an easy way to do a difficult thing? Tell Heloise about it by writing to her care of this newspaper. She can't answer your letter personally but will share the good news of your work-saving shortcut with her readers.

Sea shell print material

By BETTY W. KINSER Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Kinser: While a visitor in the Sarasota-Osprey-Venice, Fla., area I read your column with interest. I have been trying to find material by the yard that has an overall seashell print. I have seen such prints made up into napkins and place mats, but no one seems to sell it by the yard. I would use it to make toss pillows, perhaps. — Ruth E. Wilson, Denver, Colo.

From Denver to Florida! What a way to travel, Ruth. I am tossing your request out to our readers in hopes one of them will keep such a print. We have seen you posted.

Dear Betty: Is there a spray I can put on fabrics to make them flame resistant? I would like to make pajamas for a 3-year-old. Thank you. — Omaha

I do not know if there is such a spray available to the consumer, but I do know that drapery firms treat their fabrics. Perhaps such a company could advise you. Also, you might check with a local drycleaner. He can be a wealth of information on such things.

Dear Betty: As a footnote to your questionnaire — I buy so many things in quantity. For instance, I would like to see thread on huge spools, more, more, more pins to the package and larger tables on sewing machine cabinets. Is it possible to have interfacing by the ounce or pound? I use it in everything I sew and a yard is a very small yard. There are many improvements in the sewing world and we can thank people like you who continue to be aware of our requests and follow through on them. Thank you. — Maureen Van C., Ypsilanti, Mich.

If nothing else, Maureen, we do a lot of yelling. Sometimes it pays off.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: A woman I knew only slightly showed up at a country club dance wearing a dress exactly like the one I was wearing. (May I add, it was a very expensive dress.)

When we saw each other, I laughed, and said, "Well, it just proves that we both have good taste." My look-alike didn't laugh. Instead she appeared to be angry, embarrassed and ill at ease. Shortly after, she disappeared. Later in the evening I saw her wearing a different dress! Would you believe this foolish woman had actually rushed home and changed?

Would you have felt insulted or relieved had you been in my place?—XEROXED DEAR XEROXED: Neither. I'd have felt a little sorry for a woman who placed so much importance on what she was wearing.

DEAR ABBY: After years of accepting congratulations and gifts on my birthday just for having been born, it suddenly occurred to me who really deserved the gifts.

After that, on my birthday, I sent my mother one rose for every year of my life. I enclosed a note, "With loving thanks." She knew who had sent them.

Now that she is no longer living, I send a contribution on my birthday to my mother's favorite charity in her name. The card still says, "With loving thanks."—DIANA

Cooking with peanuts adds protein

By CLARE BARRETT
Copley News Service

If you think of peanuts only as munchable morsels to supplement television and trips to the zoo, you're missing a chance to add protein and zest to your meals for, literally, peanuts.

Peanuts are actually legumes — beans — and not nuts at all. They grow on vines which sprout yellow flowers on stalks that bend so that the seed pods can ripen underground. The edible, nut-like, oily seed of the peanut plant is used for food and as a source of oil.

Peanuts have good food value. They are an especially good source of protein when combined with milk or sunflower seeds. As you'll see from the recipes that follow, they can be used in a wide variety of good tasting, healthful and economical dishes.

Peanuts are sold raw and roasted. When the recipe calls for raw peanuts, you may use Spanish or Virginia. In cases where just peanuts are required, choose any raw or roasted variety according to your own taste.

Peanut butter, the staple of childhood, is a vast topic in itself, but I want to make the point here that the best peanut butter is made simply of ground peanuts, with or without a little salt added for flavor. Most commercial varieties also contain several different sugars, mono- and di-glycerides, and hardened vegetable oil, all of which are best done without.

Look for pure natural peanut butter amidst the others on the supermarket shelf, buy it freshly ground at a natural foods store, or make it at home by grinding peanuts in your blender or food processor to the consistency you prefer.

PEANUT SOUP WITH TOFU

3 cups dark bean stock or vegetable stock
1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
1 large leek, trimmed and coarsely chopped
2 medium carrots, sliced into one-half-inch rounds

One-quarter cup uncooked long grain brown rice

One 1-inch piece dried hot red chili
One-half tsp. sea salt
Cold-pressed soy oil for deep-frying

One and one-half lbs. regular tofu, cut into french-fry-sized strips
One-half cup smooth natural peanut butter (unhydrogenated)

Three-quarters cup milk

In a heavy 3-quart kettle, combine the stock, onion, leek and carrots, bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat and simmer, partially covered, for 30 minutes. Place the soup in a blender and puree until smooth, return to the pot and bring to a boil. Add the rice, chili and salt, reduce heat, cover, and simmer for 20 minutes.

In a wok or heavy skillet, heat 3 inches of soy oil to 350 degrees F. on a deep-fry or candy thermometer. Fry the tofu pieces, 3 at a time, until golden brown. Remove with a slotted spoon and drain on paper toweling.

Battery Powered

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Two men here recently converted an American-manufactured pick-up truck from gasoline power to battery power. The conversion cost $8,500 and took eight days to complete.

Tests performed by the automotive crew at R.J. Reynolds Tobacco, where the developers work, have shown the cost of operating the electric truck is less than two cents a mile. That compares with 13 cents a mile to operate the same truck when gasoline-powered.

When the rice is tender, remove one-half cup of the soup and mix with the peanut butter in a small bowl until smooth. Stir the peanut butter mixture into the soup, add the milk, cover and simmer for 5 minutes. Remove and discard the chili, adjust seasoning to taste. Place 2 or 3 of the tofu strips in each bowl, pour soup on top and serve immediately.

CRUSTED CAULIFLOWER CASSEROLE

3 cups steamed cauliflower
One-half cup stock
One-half cup grated cheese
One-half cup chopped peanuts, raw or roasted

FOOD

3 tbsp. brewer's yeast
One-quarter cup soy flour

One-half cup wheat germ

One-quarter tsp. ground nutmeg

One-half cup raw brown rice (OR whole wheat OR whole oats), cooked

Grated cheese
Nutmeg

Buzz the cauliflower and one-half cup stock in the blender until it's very smooth. You should have about 2 cups of puree.

Stir the grated cheese, peanuts, brewer's yeast, soy flour, wheat germ, and nutmeg into the puree, turn the mixture into an oiled 2-quart casserole. Fluff the cooked grain with a fork, carefully sprinkle it over the puree, top with more grated cheese and another dash of nutmeg.

Bake the casserole at 350 degrees F. for 20 to 25 minutes.

PEANUT CUTLETS

4 oz. chopped peanuts
2 tbsp. margarine or vegetable oil
2 eggs
1 onion
1 cup breadcrumbs
1 tsp. lemon juice
One-half cup water
Few sprigs parsley

Beat the eggs with one tablespoon water, and set aside half of liquid for dipping the cutlets. Cook the onion in the oil for five minutes, then add the water and the rest of the ingredients. Shape the paste into cutlets, dip into breadcrumbs, then into the egg reserved for the purpose, and again into the breadcrumbs. Fry in oil to a golden brown. Serve with tomato or any other sauce, and garnish with parsley.

PEANUT AND POTATO LOAF

2 cups mashed potatoes
2 eggs
1 cup whole wheat bread crumbs
1 tsp. chopped onions
1 tsp. chopped parsley

One and one-half cups chopped peanuts
Dash of Worcestershire sauce
Salt and pepper to taste

Beat the mashed potatoes with a little milk until they are light. Put the peanuts in a blender, then mix with the potatoes. Add the bread crumbs and if too stiff, add a little more milk. Whip the eggs and fold in. Season, and put into a greased baking pan. Bake for a half hour in a moderate oven.

Share Traditions

Once again we are approaching the Christmas holidays. And we'd like our readers to share their favorite holiday traditions with us.

We're interested in your favorite recipes, customs, family games, home decorating crafts and ideas for publication throughout the Christmas holiday season.

It means a lot to us each year to see what things mean a lot to you and your family at Hanukkah, Christmas and New Year's. We want to begin a tradition.

So please take time in between your planning for the holidays and send some of the recipes or customs that make the holidays special at your house. For example, if you and your family observe a custom each Christmas Eve night. Or if you have served a favorite dish for your family on Christmas Day, let us know. Send your traditions on a single piece of paper if possible, typewritten preferably. Include your name and a phone number where you can be reached during the day. Please don't send anything you want back. We cannot return pictures, models or family heirlooms.

Norma Anderson

Reading, sewing and writing are some of the things Norma Anderson enjoys doing when she's not busy with the various organizations of which she is a member.

She is presently active in helping the Lee High School Chorale Booster Club raise money to send the chorale to Austria. She serves as secretary of the Booster Club and is also on the finance committee. Other groups she belongs to include the American Association of University Women, Newcomers, Permian Basin Geological and Geophysical Auxilliary and the Writer's Club.

Norma and her husband, Gerry, moved to Midland from Shreveport, La. three years ago. Gerry is a geologist with Marathon Oil Co. They have three children. Their daughter, Janet Bertucci is employed by Southwestern Light and Electric in Shreveport. Keith works for Marathon Oil in Iraan, and another daughter, Nancy, is a junior at Lee High School.

Cooking is another of her hobbies. The recipe below for Boston Cream Candy is a favorite. Norma said she made some of the candy for sale at a bazaar in Shreveport several years ago. The candy sold out very fast, and she started getting calls from people wanting to buy more of it. She said she stayed busy throughout November and December of that year filling the orders.

BOSTON CREAM CANDY

- 1/2 pint whipping cream
- 3/4 cup white corn syrup
- 2 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 teasp. vanilla
- 1 1/2 cups chopped nuts

Cook cream, sugar and syrup over low heat to 238 degrees F. Let cool until candy thermometer registers between 110-120 F.

Beat until thick. Add vanilla and nuts. Continue beating until candy loses its gloss and becomes dull looking. Pour into buttered pan.

This recipe is foolproof if measurements are accurate and a thermometer is used.

Avocados can be eaten alone or used in dips

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

While they are delicious right eaten out of hand there is much more that can be done with avocados. So today, some ideas for using this fruit (I have a cooking friend who says he thinks of them as "green butter").

First, you can freeze avocados. Rather, you can freeze avocado puree. Mash up avocados with a little lemon juice, pack the puree into containers (no bigger than a pint), and cover them with heavy-duty plastic wrap, pressing the plastic right into the surface.

Seal them airtight and freeze. Use the puree in dips and soup, and try to use it within a month.

Avocado halves can be refrigerated a day or so. Leave the seed in, sprinkle on a little lemon juice and press plastic wrap right into the surface.

Avocados are picked mature, but not ripe. They are never edible when they come off the tree, and take four to five days to ripen.

Chilling at 48 to 50 degrees will add five to seven days to their storage life.

HEARTS OF PALM SALAD

- Shredded lettuce
- 1 can (14 oz.) hearts of palm (see note)
- Avocado Dressing (see recipe below)
- pimiento strips, lime wedges

Place the lettuce on chilled individual salad plates. Top it with the hearts of palm.

Spoon on the Avocado Dressing and garnish the salads with pimiento and lime.

Note: White asparagus may be used in place of the hearts of palm.

AVOCADO DRESSING

- 1 medium avocado, peeled and mashed
 - 1 tbsp. olive oil
 - 2 tps. chopped scallion (green part only)
 - 2 tbsps. fresh lime juice
 - 2 tps. snipped parsley
 - Dash of cayenne pepper
 - 1/2 tsp. salt
- Mix all the ingredients, blending them well. Taste the dressing and adjust pepper and salt to taste. Makes about 1 cup.

SLIM AVOCADO DIP

- 2 ripe avocados, mashed
 - 3/4 tsp. seasoned salt
 - 1 tsp. lemon juice
 - 1/4 tsp. worcestershire sauce
 - dash Tabasco
- Combine all the ingredients, blending them well. Serve the dip with fresh vegetable dippers such as cauliflower sections, radish roses, celery, carrots, scallions or cherry tomatoes.
- Makes about 2 cups, with about 19 calories per tablespoon. In comparison, mayonnaise has 110 calories per tablespoon, cream cheese 55 and sour cream 31.

AVOCADO HERB BUTTER

- 1 ripe avocado
 - 1 lb. butter, softened
 - 2 tbsps. chopped parsley
 - 1/2 tsp. each, oregano and savory
 - 1/4 tsp. tarragon leaves
 - 2 tbsps. lemon juice
- Halve the avocado lengthwise, twisting it gently to separate the halves. Whack a sharp knife directly into the seed and twist it to lift it out. Peel the avocado and mash it with a fork.

Whip the butter with the herbs and lemon juice and gradually beat in the avocado until the mixture is fluffy. Serve it with hot, cooked artichokes or Brussels sprouts, or other steamed vegetables. Makes about 1 pound.

- ### EASY GAZPACHO
- 3 medium avocados
 - 1 cup each, chopped cucumber and green pepper
 - 2 tomatoes, chopped
 - 1/2 cup finely chopped scallion

- 2 tbsps. chopped parsley
- 1 clove garlic, mashed
- 1/2 tsp. Tabasco
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 2 tbsps. lime juice
- 1 qt. tomato juice

Peel and cube the avocados and combine them with the remaining ingredients in a large bowl. Stir to blend and chill the soup. Correct the seasonings to taste. Makes about 2 quarts.

Meters may cut energy costs

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Americans may soon be using a meter to cut down on their home energy costs.

The U.S. Department of Energy and the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs in Canada, in conjunction with Honeywell, are testing 100 homes in six cities where each family involved can actually see energy costs change minute-by-minute. The key to the experiment is a prototype home energy cost indicator.

The instrument records how much gas and electricity is being used in the house in up-to-the-minute dollars and cents. The indicator has a digital clock and can display on command the total energy bill — since midnight that day, for the previous day, for the next hour, if fuel use remains constant, and for the current month.

Cooking with peanuts adds protein

By CLARE BARRETT
Copley News Service
If you think of peanuts only as munchable morsels to supplement television and trips to the zoo, you're missing a chance to add protein and zest to your meals for, literally, peanuts.

Peanuts are actually legumes — beans — and not nuts at all. They grow on vines which sprout yellow flowers on stalks that bend so that the seed pods can ripen underground. The edible, nut-like, oily seed of the peanut plant is used for food and as a source of oil.

Peanuts have good food value. They are an especially good source of protein when combined with milk or sunflower seeds. As you'll see from the recipes that follow, they can be used in a wide variety of good tasting, healthful and economical dishes.

Peanuts are sold raw and roasted. When the recipe calls for raw peanuts, you may use Spanish or Virginia. In cases where just peanuts are required, choose any raw or roasted variety according to your own taste.

Peanut butter, the staple of childhood, is a vast topic in itself, but I want to make the point here that the best peanut butter is made simply of ground peanuts, with or without a little salt added for flavor. Most commercial varieties also contain several different sugars, mono- and di-glycerides, and hardened vegetable oil, all of which are best done without.

Look for pure natural peanut butter amidst the others on the supermarket shelf, buy it freshly ground at a natural foods store, or make it at home by grinding peanuts in your blender or food processor to the consistency you prefer.

PEANUT SOUP WITH TOFU

3 cups dark bean stock or vegetable stock
1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
1 large leek, trimmed and coarsely chopped
2 medium carrots, sliced into one-half-inch rounds

One-quarter cup uncooked long grain brown rice
One 1-inch piece dried hot red chili
One-half tsp. sea salt
Cold-pressed soy oil for deep-frying

One and one-half lbs. regular tofu, cut into french-fry-sized strips
One-half cup smooth natural peanut butter (unhydrogenated)
Three-quarters cup milk

In a heavy 3-quart kettle, combine the stock, onion, leek and carrots, bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat and simmer, partially covered, for 30 minutes. Place the soup in a blender and puree until smooth, return to the pot and bring to a boil. Add the rice, chili and salt, reduce heat, cover, and simmer for 20 minutes.

In a wok or heavy skillet, heat 3 inches of soy oil to 350 degrees F. on a deep-fry or candy thermometer. Fry the tofu pieces, 3 at a time, until golden brown. Remove with a slotted spoon and drain on paper toweling.

Battery Powered

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Two men here recently converted an American-manufactured pick-up truck from gasoline power to battery power. The conversion cost $8,500 and took eight days to complete.

Tests performed by the automotive crew at R.J. Reynolds Tobacco, where the developers work, have shown the cost of operating the electric truck is less than two cents a mile. That compares with 13 cents a mile to operate the same truck when gasoline-powered.

When the rice is tender, remove one-half cup of the soup and mix with the peanut butter in a small bowl until smooth. Stir the peanut butter mixture into the soup, add the milk, cover and simmer for 5 minutes. Remove and discard the chili, adjust seasoning to taste. Place 2 or 3 of the tofu strips in each bowl, pour soup on top and serve immediately.

CRUSTED CAULIFLOWER CASSEROLE

3 cups steamed cauliflower
One-half cup stock
One-half cup grated cheese
One-half cup chopped peanuts, raw or roasted

FOOD

3 tbsp. brewer's yeast
One-quarter cup soy flour
One-half cup wheat germ
One-quarter tsp. ground nutmeg
One-half cup raw brown rice (OR whole wheat OR whole oats), cooked

Grated cheese
Nutmeg
Buzz the cauliflower and one-half cup stock in the blender until it's very smooth. You should have about 2 cups of puree. Stir the grated cheese, peanuts, brewer's yeast, soy flour, wheat germ, and nutmeg into the puree, turn the mixture into an oiled 2-quart casserole. Fluff the cooked grain with a fork, carefully sprinkle it over the puree, top with more grated cheese and another dash of nutmeg.

Bake the casserole at 350 degrees F. for 20 to 25 minutes.

PEANUT CUTLETS
4 oz. chopped peanuts
2 tbsp. margarine or vegetable oil
2 eggs
1 onion
1 cup breadcrumbs
1 tsp. lemon juice
One-half cup water
Few sprigs parsley
Beat the eggs with one tablespoon water, and set aside half of liquid for dipping the cutlets. Cook the onion in the oil for five minutes, then add the water and the rest of the ingredients. Shape the paste into cutlets, dip into breadcrumbs, then into the egg reserved for the purpose, and again into the breadcrumbs. Fry in oil to a golden brown. Serve with tomato or any other sauce, and garnish with parsley.

2 cups mashed potatoes
2 eggs
1 cup whole wheat bread crumbs
1 tsp. chopped onions
1 tsp. chopped parsley
One and one-half cups chopped peanuts
Dash of Worcestershire sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
Beat the mashed potatoes with a little milk until they are light. Put the peanuts in a blender, then mix with the potatoes. Add the bread crumbs and if too stiff, add a little more milk. Whip the eggs and fold in. Season, and put into a greased baking pan. Bake for a half hour in a moderate oven.

Share Traditions

Once again we are approaching the Christmas holidays. And we'd like our readers to share their favorite holiday traditions with us. We're interested in your favorite recipes, customs, family games, home decorating crafts and ideas for publication throughout the Christmas holiday season.

It means a lot to us each year to see what things mean a lot to you and your family at Hanukkah, Christmas and New Year's. We want to begin a tradition.

So please take time in between your planning for the holidays and send some of the recipes or customs that make the holidays special at your house. For example, if you and your family observe a custom each Christmas Eve night. Or if you have served a favorite dish for your family on Christmas Day, let us know. Send your traditions on a single piece of paper if possible, typewritten preferably. Include your name and a phone number where you can be reached during the day. Please don't send anything you want back. We cannot return pictures, models or family heirlooms.

Norma Anderson

Reading, sewing and writing are some of the things Norma Anderson enjoys doing when she's not busy with the various organizations of which she is a member.

She is presently active in helping the Lee High School Chorale Booster Club raise money to send the chorale to Austria. She serves as secretary of the Booster Club and is also on the finance committee. Other groups she belongs to include the American Association of University Women, Newcomers, Permian Basin Geological and Geophysical Auxiliary and the Writer's Club.

Norma and her husband, Gerry, moved to Midland from Shreveport, La. three years ago. Gerry is a geologist with Marathon Oil Co. They have three children. Their daughter, Janet Bertucci is employed by Southwestern Light and Electric in Shreveport. Keith works for Marathon Oil in Iraan, and another daughter, Nancy, is a junior at Lee High School.

Cooking is another of her hobbies. The recipe below for Boston Cream Candy is a favorite. Norma said she made some of the candy for sale at a bazaar in Shreveport several years ago. The candy sold out very fast, and she started getting calls from people wanting to buy more of it. She said she stayed busy throughout November and December of that year filling the orders.

BOSTON CREAM CANDY

- 1/2 pint whipping cream
- 2/3 cup white corn syrup
- 2 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 teasp. vanilla
- 1 1/2 cups chopped nuts

Cook cream, sugar and syrup over low heat to 238 degrees F. Let cool until candy thermometer registers between 110-120 F. Beat until thick. Add vanilla and nuts. Continue beating until candy loses its gloss and becomes dull looking. Pour into buttered pan. This recipe is foolproof if measurements are accurate and a thermometer is used.

Avocados can be eaten alone or used in dips

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

While they are delicious right eaten out of hand there is much more that can be done with avocados. So today, some ideas for using this fruit (I have a cooking friend who says he thinks of them as "green butter").

First, you can freeze avocados. Rather, you can freeze avocado puree. Mash up avocados with a little lemon juice, pack the puree into containers (no bigger than a pint), and cover them with heavy-duty plastic wrap, pressing the plastic right into the surface.

Seal them airtight and freeze. Use the puree in dips and soup, and try to use it within a month.

Avocado halves can be refrigerated a day or so. Leave the seed in, sprinkle on a little lemon juice and press plastic wrap right into the surface.

Avocados are picked mature, but not ripe. They are never edible when they come off the tree, and take four to five days to ripen.

Chilling at 48 to 50 degrees will add five to seven days to their storage life.

HEARTS OF PALM SALAD

Shredded lettuce
1 can (14 oz.) hearts of palm (see note)
Avocado Dressing (see recipe below)
pimiento strips, lime wedges

Place the lettuce on chilled individual salad plates. Top it with the hearts of palm.

Spoon on the Avocado Dressing and garnish the salads with pimiento and lime.

Note: White asparagus may be used in place of the hearts of palm.

AVOCADO DRESSING

1 medium avocado, peeled and mashed
1 tbsp. olive oil
2 tsps. chopped scallion (green part only)
2 tsps. fresh lime juice
2 tsps. snipped parsley
Dash of cayenne pepper
1/2 tsp. salt

Mix all the ingredients, blending them well. Taste the dressing and adjust pepper and salt to taste. Makes about 1 cup.

SLIM AVOCADO DIP

2 ripe avocados, mashed
1/4 tsp. seasoned salt
1 tsp. lemon juice
1/4 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
dash Tabasco
Combine all the ingredients, blending them well. Serve the dip with fresh vegetable dippers such as cauliflower sections, radish roses, celery, carrots, scallions or cherry tomatoes.

Makes about 2 cups, with about 19 calories per tablespoon. In comparison, mayonnaise has 110 calories per tablespoon, cream cheese 55 and sour cream 31.

AVOCADO HERB BUTTER

1 ripe avocado
1 lb. butter, softened
2 tsps. chopped parsley
1/2 tsp. each, oregano and savory
1/4 tsp. tarragon leaves
2 tsps. lemon juice
Halve the avocado lengthwise, twisting it gently to separate the halves. Whack a sharp knife directly into the seed and twist it to lift it out. Peel the avocado and mash it with a fork.

Whip the butter with the herbs and lemon juice and gradually beat in the avocado until the mixture is fluffy. Serve it with hot, cooked artichokes or Brussels sprouts, or other steamed vegetables. Makes about 1 pound.

EASY GAZPACHO
3 medium avocados
1 cup each, chopped cucumber and green pepper
2 tomatoes, chopped
1/2 cup finely chopped scallion

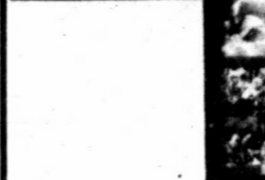

2 tsps. chopped parsley
1 clove garlic, mashed
1/2 tsp. Tabasco
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
2 tsps. lime juice
1 qt. tomato juice

Peel and cube the avocados and combine them with the remaining ingredients in a large bowl. Stir to blend and chill the soup. Correct the seasonings to taste. Makes about 2 quarts.

The best things are close to home.

Meters may cut energy costs

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Americans may soon be using a meter to cut down on their home energy costs.

The U.S. Department of Energy and the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs in Canada, in conjunction with Honeywell, are testing 100 homes in six cities where each family involved can actually see energy costs change minute-by-minute. The key to the experiment is a prototype home energy cost indicator.

New collision warning device tested by FAA

POMONA, N.J. (AP) — Eleven thousand feet over Delaware Bay, two airplanes were on a deadly collision course — barely three miles apart and closing in at more than 500 mph.

But 30 seconds from collision, an experimental "back-seat driver" went into action, setting off a whooping alarm in the cockpit of the Boeing 727 that warned the pilot to take evasive action. He sent the jet down gently.

A twin-engine Convair 580, invisible in the distance only seconds earlier, zoomed past, 600 feet overhead.

Both planes were participating in a test of a new electronic system, the Active Beacon Collision Avoidance System, which is designed to prevent collisions like one that took place over San Diego in 1978. In that crash, 144 people were killed when a descending Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 was hit by a climbing light plane.

Officials at the Federal Aviation Administration Technical Center say the new electronic system could be installed in the nation's 2,300 airliners by 1983 and could be used in all but the busiest of air-traffic areas.

FAA officials say about 20 mid-air collisions — most involving small planes — kill an average of about 60 persons each year.

The FAA says the new equipment, expected to cost about $25,000 per airliner, could have prevented the last 15 major mid-air collisions involving passenger jets. Eventually, they say, a similar device will become available for small planes, at a cost of about $5,000.

Pilots now depend on their own eyes and air traffic controllers to warn them of impending danger from approaching aircraft.

"We're working to build a back-seat driver into the system," said FAA official Dr. Clyde Miller during an airborne demonstration over New Jersey and Delaware on Wednesday.

The system sends out radio signals for 20 miles in each direction, searching for electronic answers from transponders now standard aboard most aircraft.

An on-board computer constantly analyzes the electronic responses and warns the pilot — with a loud alarm and cockpit lights — to either climb or dive if the aircraft is within 30 seconds from a collision.

After the pilot reacts, secondary warning lights advise him to continue his maneuver until the other aircraft has passed safely.

Even at jet speeds, FAA officials say the 30-second warning is enough time to avoid disaster.

FAA officials, who have worked on the $35 million program for more than a decade, say their anti-collision system is extremely reliable in 98 percent of American airspace.

But Miller conceded it offers little aid to pilots when too many airborne electronic "targets" confuse the system within 25 miles of busy airports in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Still, Miller said the system would work well at "medium-density" air traffic areas like San Diego, Philadelphia and Atlanta.

Miller said FAA pilots have flown their test airliner to 28 major American airports with only a handful of harmless false collision alarms.

Questionnaire separates jobseekers

WASHINGTON (AP) — True or false: "Federal funds should be made available for abortions for poor people."

The Republican Study Committee, a conservative group of 115 House GOP members, is asking congressional job-seekers for answers to that and 43 other politically volatile questions.

Richard B. Dingman, the committee's executive director, said

Wednesday there is no one set of correct answers, but the survey was designed to separate liberals from moderates and conservatives.

Dingman said the study committee collects resumes and uses the questionnaire "to see if (job-seekers) are in the general philosophical ballpark of our people."

"We don't try to tell them who to hire," he emphasized.

Dingman said the survey is conducted as part of a "personnel clearinghouse" the committee operates for old and new members of Congress.

The job survey gauges political sentiments on a host of issues, including abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment, gun control, aid to education, defense spending, affirmative action and freedom.

Created seven years ago to conduct research and analyze legislation, the committee says its aim is "to promote conservative principles of government."

Neither its counterpart, the Democratic Study Committee, nor the non-partisan Congressional Placement Office uses any similar screening device. "We don't even ask age, weight or sex," said a placement office aide.

Dingman wrote the questionnaire himself and began using it a month ago as resumes began piling up around Capitol Hill. He said "a couple of hundred" persons have filled it out.

Other true-false questions include: "School books reflecting liberalized moral judgments and street language are as beneficial as those reflecting more traditional conduct codes and formal English."

The Republican Study Committee has no ties to the Reagan transition team, which has thousands of federal jobs to fill.

"Affirmative action" programs actually limit the avenues of opportunity for all citizens and substitute bureaucratic decisions for those of merit in selecting personnel."

"Members of Congress should encourage state legislators to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment."

Dingman said many new House members would tap the study committee for advice on job-seekers.

The survey begins with a caveat: "This is not a pass-fail quiz. It simply gives us some guidance regarding your feelings on certain issues so we can match applicants with potential employers who generally share the same feelings."

The Republican Study Committee has no ties to the Reagan transition team, which has thousands of federal jobs to fill.

Cities worried about revenue

ATLANTA (AP) — City officials see revenue sharing as lifeblood and glue, and they're worried that it might be dripping away in Congress, says the new president of the National League of Cities.

"As I understand it, revenue sharing is being held hostage while the debate is going on in the Senate over fair housing," Mayor William H. Hudnut III of Indianapolis said Wednesday, as he took the helm of the NLC.

Hudnut called revenue sharing "the lifeblood of many municipal budgets," the "glue that holds many budgets together," and the NLC's top priority. "Everything else is secondary to that," he said.

Mayors attending the league's annual conference flooded congressional offices Wednesday with telephone calls and telegrams calling for an end to the Senate filibuster by conservative opponents of fair housing legislation.

Hudnut said delegates to the conference signed more than 1,400 forms asking senators to close debate on any filibuster that might stand in the way of action on revenue sharing funds. The forms were to be flown to Washington for delivery.

An effort to close debate on the fair housing bill, which would strengthen government enforcement of a 1968 law banning housing discrimination, failed Wednesday in the Senate by nine votes. Senate leaders scheduled new cloture votes today and Friday.

Hudnut said the Indianapolis budget includes $12 million in general revenue sharing.

Mayor Maynard Jackson of Atlanta, which is host to this year's NLC conference, said his city expects about $7.5 million in revenue sharing funds, all earmarked for firefighters' salaries. Atlanta's budget totals $153 million.

Jackson said he expected that the $6.9 billion general revenue sharing bill would pass before Congress adjourns Friday.

Hudnut was elected president of the National League of Cities during the closing business session Wednesday. Other officers chosen were Mayor James F. Conway of St. Louis as first vice president and Mayor Ferd Harrison of Scotland Neck, N.C., second vice president.

Survivor couldn't help wife

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Daniel Lykins says he passed out each time he tried to reach his dying wife as the couple lay trapped in the wreckage of a small airplane on their fourth wedding anniversary. The 27-year-old attorney spent 10 hours in the wreckage of the twin-engine plane that crashed about 9:30 p.m. on Nov. 26 on a flight from Dayton, Ohio, to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The pilot was killed on impact. Lykins said he was unable to signal searchers and he was unable to help his 55-year-old wife, Allison. "I knew she was trapped, cut and hurt," he said Monday from a hospital bed. "She told me she was bleeding on her legs. I tried to get to her and make a tourniquet, but every time I moved to free myself, I would pass out. "I kept trying to get to her. When I finally found her hand, which was wrapped behind a seat, she was dead. "I think my wife lived long enough that she made it past midnight.

Tax shelter crackdown

BOSTON (AP) — During three frantic months in 1976, a thousand well-heeled investors ranging from Elvis Presley to the attorney general of Maryland eagerly laid down $20 million to get in on a coal mining deal.

But prosecutors say they were buying income tax deductions, not mining rights, in a scheme intended solely to cheat the federal Treasury.

Now, 15 people are under indictment, including seven lawyers, two investors and two producers of the Broadway show, "Annie."

Some two dozen other investors will probably face criminal prosecution, and authorities say they are looking into similar investment deals people used to avoid paying federal income taxes.

Presley was the biggest investor in the coal deal. Like other prominent entertainers, doctors and businessmen involved in the deal, Presley claimed huge losses. The late rock 'n' roll singer paid $505,000 and deducted $2.6 million from his taxable income in 1976.

According to court records, other buyers included singer Alice Cooper, actors David McCallum and Margaux Hemingway, professional basketball players Earl Monroe and Spencer Haywood, "Candid Camera" host Allen Funt, former Maryland Attorney General Francis Burch and Frank G. Wells, president of Warner Bros.

None of these celebrities has been indicted and no charges are anticipated against them. But the Internal Revenue Service is expected to insist that they pay their taxes, for the government claims the deal was marred by a critical flaw: In their haste to avoid taxes, they bought mining rights that did not exist.

The deal began to crumble two years ago when the Securities and Exchange Commission charged in a civil suit that the organizers owned grazing rights, not strip mining rights, to most of the 22,000 acres of ranch land they claimed to control in Wyoming.

Criminal indictments were returned by a federal grand jury in Boston last month, identifying the key men in the scheme as George Osserman and Paul Garfinkle, partners in a suburban Newton law firm, and Irwin Meyer and Stephen Friedman, Broadway theatrical promoters and producers of "Annie."

In a memorandum filed in U.S. District Court, the SEC described the venture as "a device to generate vast amounts of cash for Osserman, Garfinkle, Meyer and Friedman and their associates in return for the distribution of fraudulent tax deductions in connection with a sham mining venture."

According to the government, the scheme worked this way:

The promoters bought the land rights from ranchers for $300,000 through one company, then transferred them to Prodamat, a corporation controlled by Osserman and Garfinkle.

Next, they set up a limited partnership, called S-J Mineral Associates, and sold interests in the partnership for $30,000 each.

Osserman and Garfinkle organized other tax shelters and set up a nationwide network of salesmen, lawyers, accountants and investment advisors, says the SEC. Meyer and Friedman used contacts in show business to sell interests to actors, singers and backers of Broadway shows.

Money flowed in. "As demand for more and more participation in the coal tax shelter deal mounted, the defendants created one sham limited partnership after another to accommodate people seeking to avoid personal tax liability," according to the indictment.

In the last three months of 1976, the backers created three more partnerships and took in $20 million in cash, investigators say.

"It was getting near Christmas, and people were trying to find tax deductions," said one government lawyer. "People were jumping to get in on this."

Prosecutors say the salesman and accountants received commissions of 15 to 20 percent that totaled $4 million. Most of the other money was funneled to Garfinkle, Osserman, Meyer and Friedman. They bought cars and a jet airplane and stashed money in foreign bank accounts, the government claims.

The offering memorandum for the tax shelter said investors could write off $5 for each dollar they invested and that when mining began, they would receive an annual 43 percent return on their investments.

It worked this way: With each $30,000 cash investment, the buyers signed a $128,000 note with the understanding that the note would never have to be repaid. The $156,000 total was shown on the books as payment to Prodamat as an advance royalty for future coal production.

Under tax regulations at the time, advance royalties for coal mining could be claimed as a tax loss. But since there was no way the concern could mine coal, the government claims the tax shelter was a sham.

Defense lawyers deny this. In a memorandum filed in the SEC case, Garfinkle's attorney, Paul Holian, maintains that Garfinkle and Osserman were gripped by an "optimism amounting to coal fever" and were simply duped by the ranchers who sold the rights to the land.

Thirteen alleged organizers of the tax shelter, including Osserman, Garfinkle, Meyer and Friedman, were indicted Nov. 14 on mail fraud and conspiracy charges. Two investors, a Rhode Island businessman and Dr. Gaspar Anastase, chief of plastic surgery at Boston University Medical Center, were charged with tax evasion.

Federal Trial Attorney David Geneson said two dozen other people who bought interests in the coal deal in 1977 but claimed them on their 1976 returns will also be indicted.

"Obviously, most people bought because they saw a tax benefit," said one lawyer representing several investors. "But it was also represented as a wonderful way to make money eventually. Nobody thought it was a blue chip. But their material gave you the feeling that you could make some money after a while."

Judge will rule on motion

NEW YORK (AP) — The federal judge hearing Abscam cases in Brooklyn will rule within a week on a motion by Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., who contends his bribery-conspiracy indictment is invalid because the U.S. Constitution protects speech and debate related to the business of a congressman.

U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt reserved decision on the motion Tuesday.

Pratt also adjourned until Dec. 12 arguments on a motion by Angelo Errichetti, mayor of Camden, N.J., who seeks dismissal of charges pending against him on the grounds of double jeopardy. Errichetti was convicted Aug. 30 on Abscam charges in Brooklyn along with then Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa.

George Koelzer Jr., the attorney for Williams, argued that the grand jury had no right to question members of his client's congressional staff about official business. He noted that under the Constitution's speech and debate clause, actions of a congressman during official duties are exempt from prosecution.

According to the indictment, Williams was to accept a free interest in a titanium mine in return for agreeing to assist a supposed sheik on immigration matters.

Renoir auctioned for $1 million

LONDON (AP) — The Fujii Gallery of Tokyo bought Renoir's "Baigneuse," the famous painting of a young girl drying herself by the side of a pool, for $1,198,500 today at an auction at Sotheby's.

It was put up for sale by the descendants of Olga Reinhart of Winterthur, Switzerland. The painting had been in the Reinhart family since 1911.

"Baigneuse" measures 25 1/2 by 21 1/4 inches and is signed and dated 1888 by the artist. It was part of an Impressionist and modern sale.

The highest auction price for a work by Pierre-Auguste Renoir was $1.6 million, paid in New York last Oct. 22 for "La Bohemienne."

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE Nothing happening in the White House

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It is B-O-R-I-N-G," said the middle-level White House official. "I didn't bother to come in until after 10, and then I was probably an hour too early. There is nothing, and I repeat nothing, going on."

That was on Monday, typical of the dwindling days of the Carter White House.

By Tuesday, in an anachronistic moment, life around the White House looked like it was just another day in, say, 1979, when there was no president-elect just weeks away from moving into the Oval Office.

From outward appearances Tuesday, there was no sign Jimmy Carter would be president of the United States for only 49 more days.

From the national security briefing at 7:15 a.m. with Zbigniew Brzezinski and the breakfast with congressional leaders 45 minutes later to the speech late that evening to a State of Israel Bond Organization dinner, Carter had a full day of being president. At least in public.

Shortly after 9:30 a.m., he gave an impassioned speech on conservation and signed the Alaskan Lands Bill before a crowded White House East Room. He met with senior staff members in the morning and then spent a half-hour with Hosni Mubarak, the vice president of Egypt who made a farewell call at the White House.

But the public schedule tells only half the story. Under more normal circumstances, during his non-public hours, Carter would hold private, unannounced meetings with advisers, or he might prepare for approaching meetings or speeches. Of course, there was time set aside for jogging and tennis, too.

On Tuesday, said one aide, although the schedule was that of an earlier era in the Carter presidency, "there is not as hectic a pace."

Although the White House is not generating much news, and most attention is focused on the president-to-be, Carter has met with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany, has given several speeches and is refusing to be a hermit inside the White House.

He saw a play, "Amadeus," and attended a celebration honoring composer Aaron Copeland. On Sunday, he will host a black-tie reception at the White House in connection with a Kennedy Center fete.

One event that was kept off Carter's recent public schedule was one of his rare trips to a Washington restaurant.

On occasion during the last four years, Carter would dine with friends at a restaurant near the White House.

Last week, he and first lady Rosalynn Carter went to the posh Jockey Club restaurant as guests of several staff members who treated them to a long lunch break.

Surrogate mother tells of holding baby before giving him up

NEW YORK (AP) — After Elizabeth Kane delivered an 8-pound, 10-ounce boy in a Louisville hospital last month, she asked her mother's permission before she took him in her arms.

"I also asked his mother's permission to unwrap the blanket and look at his body. That's how strongly I felt that he was their baby," Mrs. Kane said Wednesday.

Mrs. Kane is a surrogate mother. As previously agreed, she signed away her parental rights to the baby conceived by artificial insemination and born on Nov. 9.

Mrs. Kane was paid a fee to bear the baby by a Louisville couple who could not have children of their own. The baby's biological father and adoptive mother were present when he was born.

The fee paid the 38-year-old Illinois housewife and mother of three, whose real name has not been revealed, was "substantially different, less" than the $10,000 often reported, said Richard Levin, the doctor who heads Louisville's Surrogate Parenting Association.

Levin, here with Mr. and Mrs. Kane for an appearance on ABC-TV's "Good Mornin' America," said he is now overseeing "almost 100" other surrogate pregnancies.

"I decided to go public because I thought I could help prospective parents realize that there is an alternative to adoption and help other women realize that there is something they can do to help childless couples," Mrs. Kane said.

But she talked of the price her family paid. Only one neighbor in the small central Illinois town of Pekin, where they live, will speak to her. When the news came out last spring, she said, her 4-year-old son had no one to play with and her daughters, aged 13 and 11, faced talk in school about how their mother "was selling babies."

"But I have absolutely no regrets," she said. "If I were 27 or 28, I'd do it again in a few years but, because of my age, I won't."

When she announced her decision to be a surrogate mother, Mrs. Kane's husband, an insurance executive, at first objected. He later relented, she said.

Mrs. Kane said she "felt so many emotions during the pregnancy that I wrote a book." She has an agent, she said, and is seeking a publisher.

She said she felt regret only once — during labor, on the delivery table: "I thought of myself, 'Elizabeth, you're out of your mind. Why are you putting yourself through this?' But it was only for a moment."

Though the Louisville couple was present at delivery, she said, "We didn't really talk. Everybody was too interested in the baby. The looks on their faces when they saw him will last me a lifetime."

Three days later, Mrs. Kane said, her own "tears started flowing. I decided I'd go to the nursery and say a final, private farewell to him. I didn't want to hold him. I thought I'd better not."

Her three children, she said, are "sad because they never got to see their brother — and he is their brother. In 18 years, if they all want to get together someday, that's fine."

She added, "His parents that he has now said if he wants to see me in 18 years, that's fine."

New suit is filed to block Nativity

DENVER (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has filed a new suit to block a Nativity scene from the annual Christmas display in front of the Denver City and County Building.

And Mayor William McNichols has reversed his earlier ban against religious Christmas carols, after saying earlier that religious music might hurt the city's chances in another Nativity scene suit.

Claiming the display violates constitutional guarantees of separation of church and state, the ACLU filed a lawsuit a year ago on behalf of the Citizens Concerned for Separation of Church and State. That suit has been delayed in a series of appeals over legal technicalities, so the ACLU decided to file a new suit rather than wait until the appeals are resolved.

The second suit filed Monday seeks a preliminary injunction blocking the city from erecting the Nativity scene within the next few weeks.

U.S. District Judge Richard P. Matsch ruled a year ago that the scene was unconstitutional but the order was stayed pending review by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

In September the appeals court ruled that Matsch had no jurisdiction in the case. Matsch ordered that a new hearing be held to resolve the jurisdictional problem but the city attorney's office appealed once again.

Acting on advice from the city attorney, McNichols asked carillonist Robert Gift to play only non-religious music on the bells in the building's tower. He said he did not want to take the risk that religious music would hurt the city's chances in its Nativity scene lawsuit.

But in a second letter sent to Gift this week, McNichols said he may play any and all music "generally played" at Christmas.

House passes toxic waste bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first money from a $1.6 billion fund to clean up toxic waste dumps and chemical spills could become available as soon as President Jimmy Carter signs legislation now on its way to his desk.

The House gave final approval to the bill Wednesday, despite grumbling that members were being forced to swallow whole a Senate version they wanted changed.

Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., the principal House sponsor of the bill, said up to $50 million would be available over the first year, some of it immediately after the president signs the measure. The fund is authorized to borrow from the Treasury against its expected appropriations and need not wait for further congressional action.

The so-called "superfund" will be accumulated over the next five years, with 87.5 percent of the $1.6 billion coming from new fees on the chemical industry and 12.5 percent from general tax revenues.

The money can be used to clean up active or inactive chemical dump sites and chemical spills onto land or water. The government can then sue the companies responsible, if they are known, to recover the cost.

The bill has been in the works for more than a year. It is intended as Congress' response to environmental disasters such as Love Canal, the neighborhood in upstate New York that discovered it was built atop an abandoned chemical dump which was slowly poisoning the residents.

Similar disasters have since been found, and the surgeon general has warned that toxic substances seeping into the nation's land and water will pose a major public health concern in the next decade.

Florio said Carter joined in the lobbying campaign Wednesday to pass the bill, telephone key congressmen to persuade them to support the measure despite their reservations. Final approval came on a vote of 274-94.

Disgruntled representatives had urged their colleagues to reject the Senate's bill and an approach they considered high-handed. But supporters of the measure pleaded that "petty procedural concerns and turf fights" not kill the measure.

"How many of these Love Canal-ticking-time-bombs need to go off before we act?" asked Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn.

The House originally had wanted three funds totaling $1.95 billion and covering inactive dumps and chemical and oil spills.

More ambitious Senate committees came up with $4.2 billion fund covering not only the cleanup of dump sites, but including broad provisions for reimbursing individuals hurt by toxic wastes.

Faced with intense opposition to those provisions and the approaching adjournment, however, the Senate supporters of the measure whittled away on the coverage and the size of the fund. When it passed the Senate last week, it was down to $1.6 billion. The reimbursement for citizens had been dropped and there was no coverage for oil spills.

The Senate also served the House notice that its compromise was too fragile to survive further changes.

Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., the incoming chairman of the Senate Environment Committee, made an unusual visit to the House floor Wednesday to convince any doubters who thought the Senate was bluffing.

But the Senate approach won no friends in the House.

"We have been presented with a 'take-it-or-leave-it' approach — and I rise to recommend to the House that we leave it," added Rep. Edward Madigan, R-Ill.

But a string of supporters of the legislation pleaded with their colleagues to ignore the snub.

Rep. Matthew Rinaldo, R-N.J., noted that none of the opponents had the problem he had in his district — the recent explosion and fire at the Chemical Control Corp. in Elizabeth, N.J. If they had, he said, they would not consider delaying action.

"We can't wait any longer," Rinaldo said. "We have to pass this bill today."

Hospital workers agree to limit strike

BALTIMORE (AP) — Health-care workers have voted to honor a last-minute plea from a federal mediator and delay extending a strike to four more hospitals.

The workers are already striking at two hospitals and had planned to extend the walkout to three other institutions today. Another hospital was to have been struck Friday.

"We don't take strikes at hospitals lightly," union spokesman Dan North said Wednesday. "We honored the request of the mediator."

The workers also decided to issue new 10-day strike notices to each of the four hospitals. North did not know when those notices would be sent.

Strikes continued today at Johns Hopkins and Sinai hospitals, where more than 2,000 cafeteria workers, janitors, nurses aides and technicians are off the job. Non-union supervisors, clerks and volunteers are stepping in to take their places.

The strike began Monday at Hopkins and then spread to Sinai on Tuesday. The picket lines have been marred by outbreaks of violence, and at least 22 people have been arrested. Ten were arrested at Sinai Wednesday for allegedly violating police restrictions. A court order limiting the picketing was in effect at Hopkins.

Strike had been set for an estimated 1,600 workers this morning at Maryland General, Lutheran and the Greater Baltimore Medical Center and Friday morning at Provident Hospital.

The vote not to strike came at the request of mediator James Williams. He made his plea after calling a private meeting of representatives from the union and Johns Hopkins on Wednesday afternoon to see if there was any room for negotiating. There apparently wasn't, and the meeting broke up quickly.

"Certainly it's nice not to have to face a strike situation," said Clark Jeunette, a spokesman for Maryland General. "But it is difficult to gear your people up for a strike. ... This is the second time now (the strike has been postponed.)"

"But this, I would assume, would open the way for more scheduled talks," he added. "A strike doesn't help anyone. We lose good workers. And they lose pay."

Other hospital officials expressed optimism that the vote of Local 1199-E of the National Union of Health Care and Hospital Employees would prompt negotiations to resume. Union officials said, however, no new talks with any of the hospitals had been scheduled.

The central issue, all agreed, was the workers' health plan. Currently, hospitals around the country contribute to the national union's health benefits plan, a program union officials say is the heart of their strength.

The Baltimore hospitals contend they have been overpaying the fund. Hopkins contends it has overpaid some $1 million in the last four years.

As a result, the hospitals want to reduce the size of their contributions, and some want to pull out all together — providing workers with the same health plan they extend non-union employees.

The workers oppose that proposal, saying it is an effort to break their union.

Cleveland needs money

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mayor George V. Volnovich, concerned about declining city services, plans to seek a special election in February for passage of a proposed income tax hike.

"During the 1970s, our taxes stayed low, our services declined and the city lost 24 percent of its population," Volnovich said Wednesday during a news conference. "At this rate, the city of Cleveland will become extinct sometime in the 21st century."

Volnovich publicly announced plans for extensive layoffs in virtually all city departments, including safety forces. The layoffs were expected since Cleveland voters rejected a proposed income tax hike from 1.5 percent to 2 percent in November.

The 214 layoffs will enable the city to balance its budget according to terms stipulated by the state-created Financial Planning and Supervision Commission. According to Volnovich, the average salary of a laid-off Cleveland worker is $18,000.

"During the recent income tax campaign, I frequently said it would be necessary to lay off workers if the tax issue failed," Volnovich said. "Today we have made cutbacks in all departments which share in the general fund, starting with the mayor's office."

The layoffs include eight emergency medical technicians, 24 traffic controllers and 53 uniformed police officers. Some 80 Service Department workers, paid through Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds, also will lose their jobs if the CETA office in Chicago grants the city a waiver.

In addition, overtime pay for police and firefighters will be slashed by more than $3.7 million, according to annual budget tabulations.

Representatives of the Fraternal Order of Police and the Cleveland Police Patrolmen's Association went to court Wednesday to fight various aspects of the order. A hearing is set for Friday.

"We did not take the traditional way out," Volnovich said. "We laid off many white-collar workers and tried to maintain as many service-related jobs as possible."

The first-term mayor, elected a year ago, campaigned vigorously for a tax increase before the Nov. 4 election. Former Mayor Dennis Kucinich opposed passage of that measure.

Volnovich said he plans to go to City Council soon to seek a special election involving the tax increase proposal.

"We've made progress in a year's time," he said. "But what will investors in the bond market think about investing in a city which cannot provide decent safety and services?"

Cleveland recently emerged from its default to six banks.

Ex-NRC member observing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Far back among the spectators sat a white-haired former member of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, appraising the performance of his four ex-colleagues.

Richard T. Kennedy, who was not reappointed by President Carter last June, is back — assigned to tell President-elect Ronald Reagan what the NRC is up to and what it ought to be up to.

"I'm an observer, an interested citizen," Kennedy whispered to a reporter Wednesday as the commission dined through another of those tangled technical discussions that irritated Kennedy so often when he was a participant.

But Kennedy, always impatient to advance nuclear power, is now a uniquely influential observer whose opinions may affect the future of the NRC and the nuclear industry.

He is also rumored as a possible candidate for chairman of the commission, although Kennedy said he didn't know anything about that.

Would he take it?

"That's a speculative question," he shrugged.

"This is just a fact-finding enterprise," Kennedy murmured. "I'm here to get a snapshot of what's in place, the issues that will have to be faced in the next six months, the budgetary situation, the personnel situation, the legislative situation."

He said Reagan's transition leaders do not necessarily expect reorganization proposals.

"That would depend on what I find," he said, "but I'm not here to do that."

His findings, like those of other transition analysts, are due by Dec. 22, he said.

Six months ago, as one of the five commissioners regulating nuclear power plant construction and operation, Kennedy had become increasingly irritated with the commission's slow pace.

In a public session shortly before his term expired last June 30, Kennedy snapped that the commission was not a decision-maker but a debating club.

Now Kennedy sat at the back of the room figuring out what Ronald Reagan could do about it.

Reorganization was proposed while Kennedy was on the commission, but President Carter limited himself to strengthening the administrative powers of the NRC chairman.

Although Kennedy made no mention of them, rejected options could be revived for Reagan's review: cutting the commission from five members to three, presumably making it easier to reach decisions; or, more drastically, replacing it with a single administrator.

The NRC will, at least, get a new chairman.

President Carter, using the vacancy left by Kennedy, has nominated Harvard professor Albert Carnegale to be NRC chairman, but the Senate has not confirmed the appointment, leaving it up to Reagan to select his own nominee.

Mafia slowly dying says ex-crime chief

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Mafia is slowly dying and probably will be replaced over the next 15 years by black and Hispanic organizations, says the former director of the Cornell University Institute on Organized Crime.

Tougher federal racketeering and electronics surveillance laws, looser "family" organizations, the deaths of old Mafia figures and the conviction of others all are taking their toll on the Cosa Nostra, Ronald Goldstock said Wednesday.

"Fifteen years from now, you will see a mass change in the makeup of organized crime," he said. "New syndicates are developing. ... The Italians will be on their way out and the Hispanics will be taking over. ... Different ethnic groups will be taking over."

Goldstock, now acting inspector-general of the U.S. Department of Labor, was in New Orleans to participate in a course on organized crime for federal and state prosecutors. He emphasized that he was speaking as former director of the Cornell center, not as a Labor Department official.

Goldstock said the Carlos Marcello family in the New Orleans area remains one of the best organized and most respected of the alleged Mafia "families."

Federal investigators would like to break up his influence along the Gulf Coast by getting him convicted in the Briab investigation, Goldstock said.

Marcello, former state Commissioner of Agriculture Charles E.

Roemer II and other business and political figures have been indicted on charges of trying to bribe undercover FBI agents posing as insurance salesmen.

Both have pleaded innocent.

Marcello enjoys "an elevated status" in organized crime, Goldstock said.

"If we could get a conviction, that status would diminish considerably," he said.

Goldstock said minor jurisdictional conflicts are likely as current organized crime groups yield before the new ones, but said he would not expect street wars like the territory fights in Chicago during the Al Capone era.

Existing Mafia groups are more likely to finance some of the newer groups before easing out of the picture, he said.

Hispanic and black drug operations already are deeply entrenched in some areas, he said. As examples, Goldstock said, there are Cuban groups in Florida, Mexican groups in California and Texas, and Colombian groups in New York.

There is evidence these groups are using ports such as Miami, Houston and New Orleans as key entrances into the United States for drug-running operations.

Organized crime is likely to grow in urban centers, he said.

"Wherever you have a ghetto situation where you have a distrust of police," there is a breeding-ground for a Mafia-like group, he said.

Vegetable oil may be diesel substitute

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — It may be a long time before truckers are computing their miles per bushel, but an Australian scientist says experiments in his country show vegetable oil from farm crops produces as much power in engines as diesel fuel.

The cost is slightly higher and there is one other major problem — the vegetable oil can go rancid. But Graeme Quick, a research scientist from Victoria, Australia, said Wednesday that experiments in his country show there's a future for vegetable oil as replacement for diesel fuel. Vegetable oil, he says, can also be blended with diesel.

He told the American Society of Agricultural Engineers that experiments show rapeseed and linseed oils can produce 109 percent as much energy as an equivalent amount of diesel fuel. Soybean was rated at 104 percent and sunflower, peanut and coconut oils were rated even with diesel.

"By producing oil from rapeseed and sunflower at co-operatives, the cost per gallon is $1.15 in Australia," said Quick. "Figured into this price, however, are proceeds of the by-product, a high protein meal." The production cost also does not include dealer markup, transportation costs, taxes and other factors involved in the pump price of diesel fuel.

"The major obstacle to adoption is still cost," he said. "But it's encouraging that the oils are not tied to crude oil prices. They appear to be agriculture's most promising alternative fuel for diesels. Petroleum products have been so much cheaper, but will they always be available?"

He said scientists are looking for answers to the problems, including a way to keep oil from becoming rancid when it is stored too long.

Tests in which vegetable oil was used to fuel regular engines showed problems with carbon build-up and lubrication, Quick said. Fuel consumption also was higher in most cases than it would be with regular diesel fuel.

Vegetable oils can be blended with diesel oil and that could help solve the carbonization problem, Quick said.

"A test has just been completed in Australia in which a diesel engine ran for 2,000 hours on vegetable oil," said Quick. "Every 150 hours, the sump (crankcase) oil was changed and so were the injectors. The engine was clean and undamaged at the end of the test."

"With modern cropping practices, farmers could provide the equivalent of all their diesel fuel needs from a set-aside of one-tenth of their cropping area to oilseeds," Quick said.

Merle Miller of the John Deere Product Engineering Center in Waterloo, Iowa, said that vegetable oil, because of the cost, probably could only be used as an emergency backup on American farms. He said one problem in using vegetable oil is the necessity of heating it in cold weather so it can flow properly.

Professor suspended

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — East Texas State University chemistry professor Richard L. Clevenger has been suspended pending a university inquiry into allegations that he gave two Fort Worth police officers credit for courses they never took.

Jack Gray, assistant to the university president, said in a prepared statement released Wednesday that Clevenger was "served with notice of termination of employment" pending the outcome of the investigation.

He said Clevenger "will be placed on leave of absence" Dec. 19 and that the termination would become effective a year later.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Insulin long lasting if handled properly

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am a diabetic. Recently I was promoted to a new position which requires occasional travel. Do you have any recommendations about the best way for me to handle my insulin on these trips? — Paul

Dear Paul: People who have used insulin for any extended period know that it will last a long time if handled properly. In general, the supply of insulin currently in use should be kept at room temperature; in any convenient place, such as a bathroom medicine chest. If you have an extra supply of insulin on hand, it should be kept in a refrigerator. Insulin should not be kept near a source of heat or placed in the freezer compartment of a refrigerator since either extreme of temperature will tend to damage it.

Dr. Arthur Krosnick, clinical associate professor of medicine at Rutgers Medical School in New Jersey, advises diabetics who travel by plane or train to carry their insulin with them in a small kit. If the insulin is packed with the regular luggage, it will be placed in the storage area of the plane where temperatures get very low. Also, as many travelers know from sad experience, any luggage that is checked aboard a plane may not arrive at the same time you do.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm thinking of changing doctors. At my regular visit two weeks ago, my doctor prescribed a tranquilizer; yet, when I returned to see him last week, he refused to renew the prescription. Would the local medical society refer me to a doctor who would be more understanding? —

Dear Mr. T.: If you wrote to me in search of sympathy, I'm sorry, but you'll have to look elsewhere. It seems to me you want the kind of understanding that prompts a parent to feed children junk foods because this is what they like. Such parents do not stop to consider the long-term consequences of this kind of diet on their children.

If you have any question about what your doctor prescribes or refuses to prescribe for you, this is a legitimate subject that you should feel free to raise with him, and that he has an obligation to discuss with you. But a tranquilizer is a powerful drug, and I suggest that you avoid doctors who are ready to prescribe on demand.

Tranquilizers are not meant for everyday use. Anyone alive today must contend with certain anxieties and tensions during the normal course of events. But such normal concerns do not call for treatment with drugs. Individuals who use tranquilizers indiscriminately can become physically and psychologically dependent on them.

The American Medical Association recommends that anti-anxiety drugs can be used when anxiety causes the patient genuine suffering and interferes with general functioning, job performance, or ability to relate to people. From what you've written in your letter, you seem to have a conscientious physician. If you leave him, it will be your loss. (If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Inmates' privileges curtailed

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Two state penitentiary maximum security inmates, believed responsible for at least 80 obscene phone calls last month, have been placed in segregation where their telephone privileges have been sharply curtailed.

Since the two men, whom prison officials refuse to identify, were isolated 10 days ago, there have been no complaints about obscene calls coming from the prison, said Associate Superintendent of Custody Larry Kinchele. The inmates reportedly identified themselves to the Walla Walla residents they called.

Walla Walla County Prosecuting Attorney Arthur Eggers said Wednesday there will be no charges filed. In addition, thousands of illegal aliens are crossing U.S. borders. Es-

Immigration whirling out of control

By AMY SABRIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The kindest critics of U.S. immigration policy say it is unfair, the toughest that it is literally murderous. But with an estimated 1.2 million legal and illegal newcomers expected to cross American borders this year, the most commonly heard concern is that immigration is "out of control."

"When Fidel Castro can do what he did to the United States, immigration is definitely out of control," said Lawrence Fuchs, executive director of Congress' Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy.

Federal immigration laws are unwieldy and unfair, Fuchs said, and are in themselves a major reason why the United States has been unable to slow the flow of newcomers.

Some 776,000 immigrants and refugees will enter the United States legally this year, their ranks unexpectedly swollen by boatloads of Cubans and Haitians, granted special refugee status.

In addition, thousands of illegal aliens are crossing U.S. borders. Estimates place their numbers anywhere between 300,000 and 500,000, bringing the annual immigration total to its highest level since the first decade of this century.

With the current record low U.S. birth rate, immigration will account for almost half the nation's population growth this year, said Michael Teitelbaum, a population expert at the Ford Foundation.

To deal with this flood, "We have a system which looks good on paper but, in reality, doesn't work very well," Immigration and Naturalization Service Commissioner David Crosland said.

On paper, the laws provide a ceiling of 20,000 immigrants a year from each country. In reality, that means spouses of American citizens in a country like Mexico, where there is a long list of people hoping to immigrate, have to wait as long as nine years to be legally reunited with their relatives, while a pastry chef from Norway with no relatives here can be admitted in a matter of months.

The select commission — made up of four cabinet secretaries, four members of the House and Senate and four presidential appointees — was established in 1978 to propose new immigration laws. With final recommendations to Congress and the president due on March 1, the commission staff is meeting beginning Wednesday, joined by the commissioners on the weekend, to review two years of findings.

In previous sessions the commission heard from a number of critics, including activist immigration attorney Rick Swartz who says that U.S. government policy led to the death of scores of Haitian refugees who were sent back to Haiti because they were not qualified to enter under U.S. refugee laws.

"During the Carter administration, several thousand Haitians have been returned to Haiti, totally outside the law, without access to attorneys. Scores and scores of those persons, if not hundreds, are dead today," he said, backing his claim with court testimony about starvation and imprisonment in Haiti.

On the other side of the debate is the Federation of Americans for Immigration Reform, whose executive director, Roger Connor, argues for severe reductions in the number of immigrants.

"In every other industrialized nation on Earth, it is illegal to hire a foreigner who does not have the legal right to work in that country," said Connor.

U.S. law does prohibit undocumented aliens from taking jobs in this country but does not penalize employers who hire them.

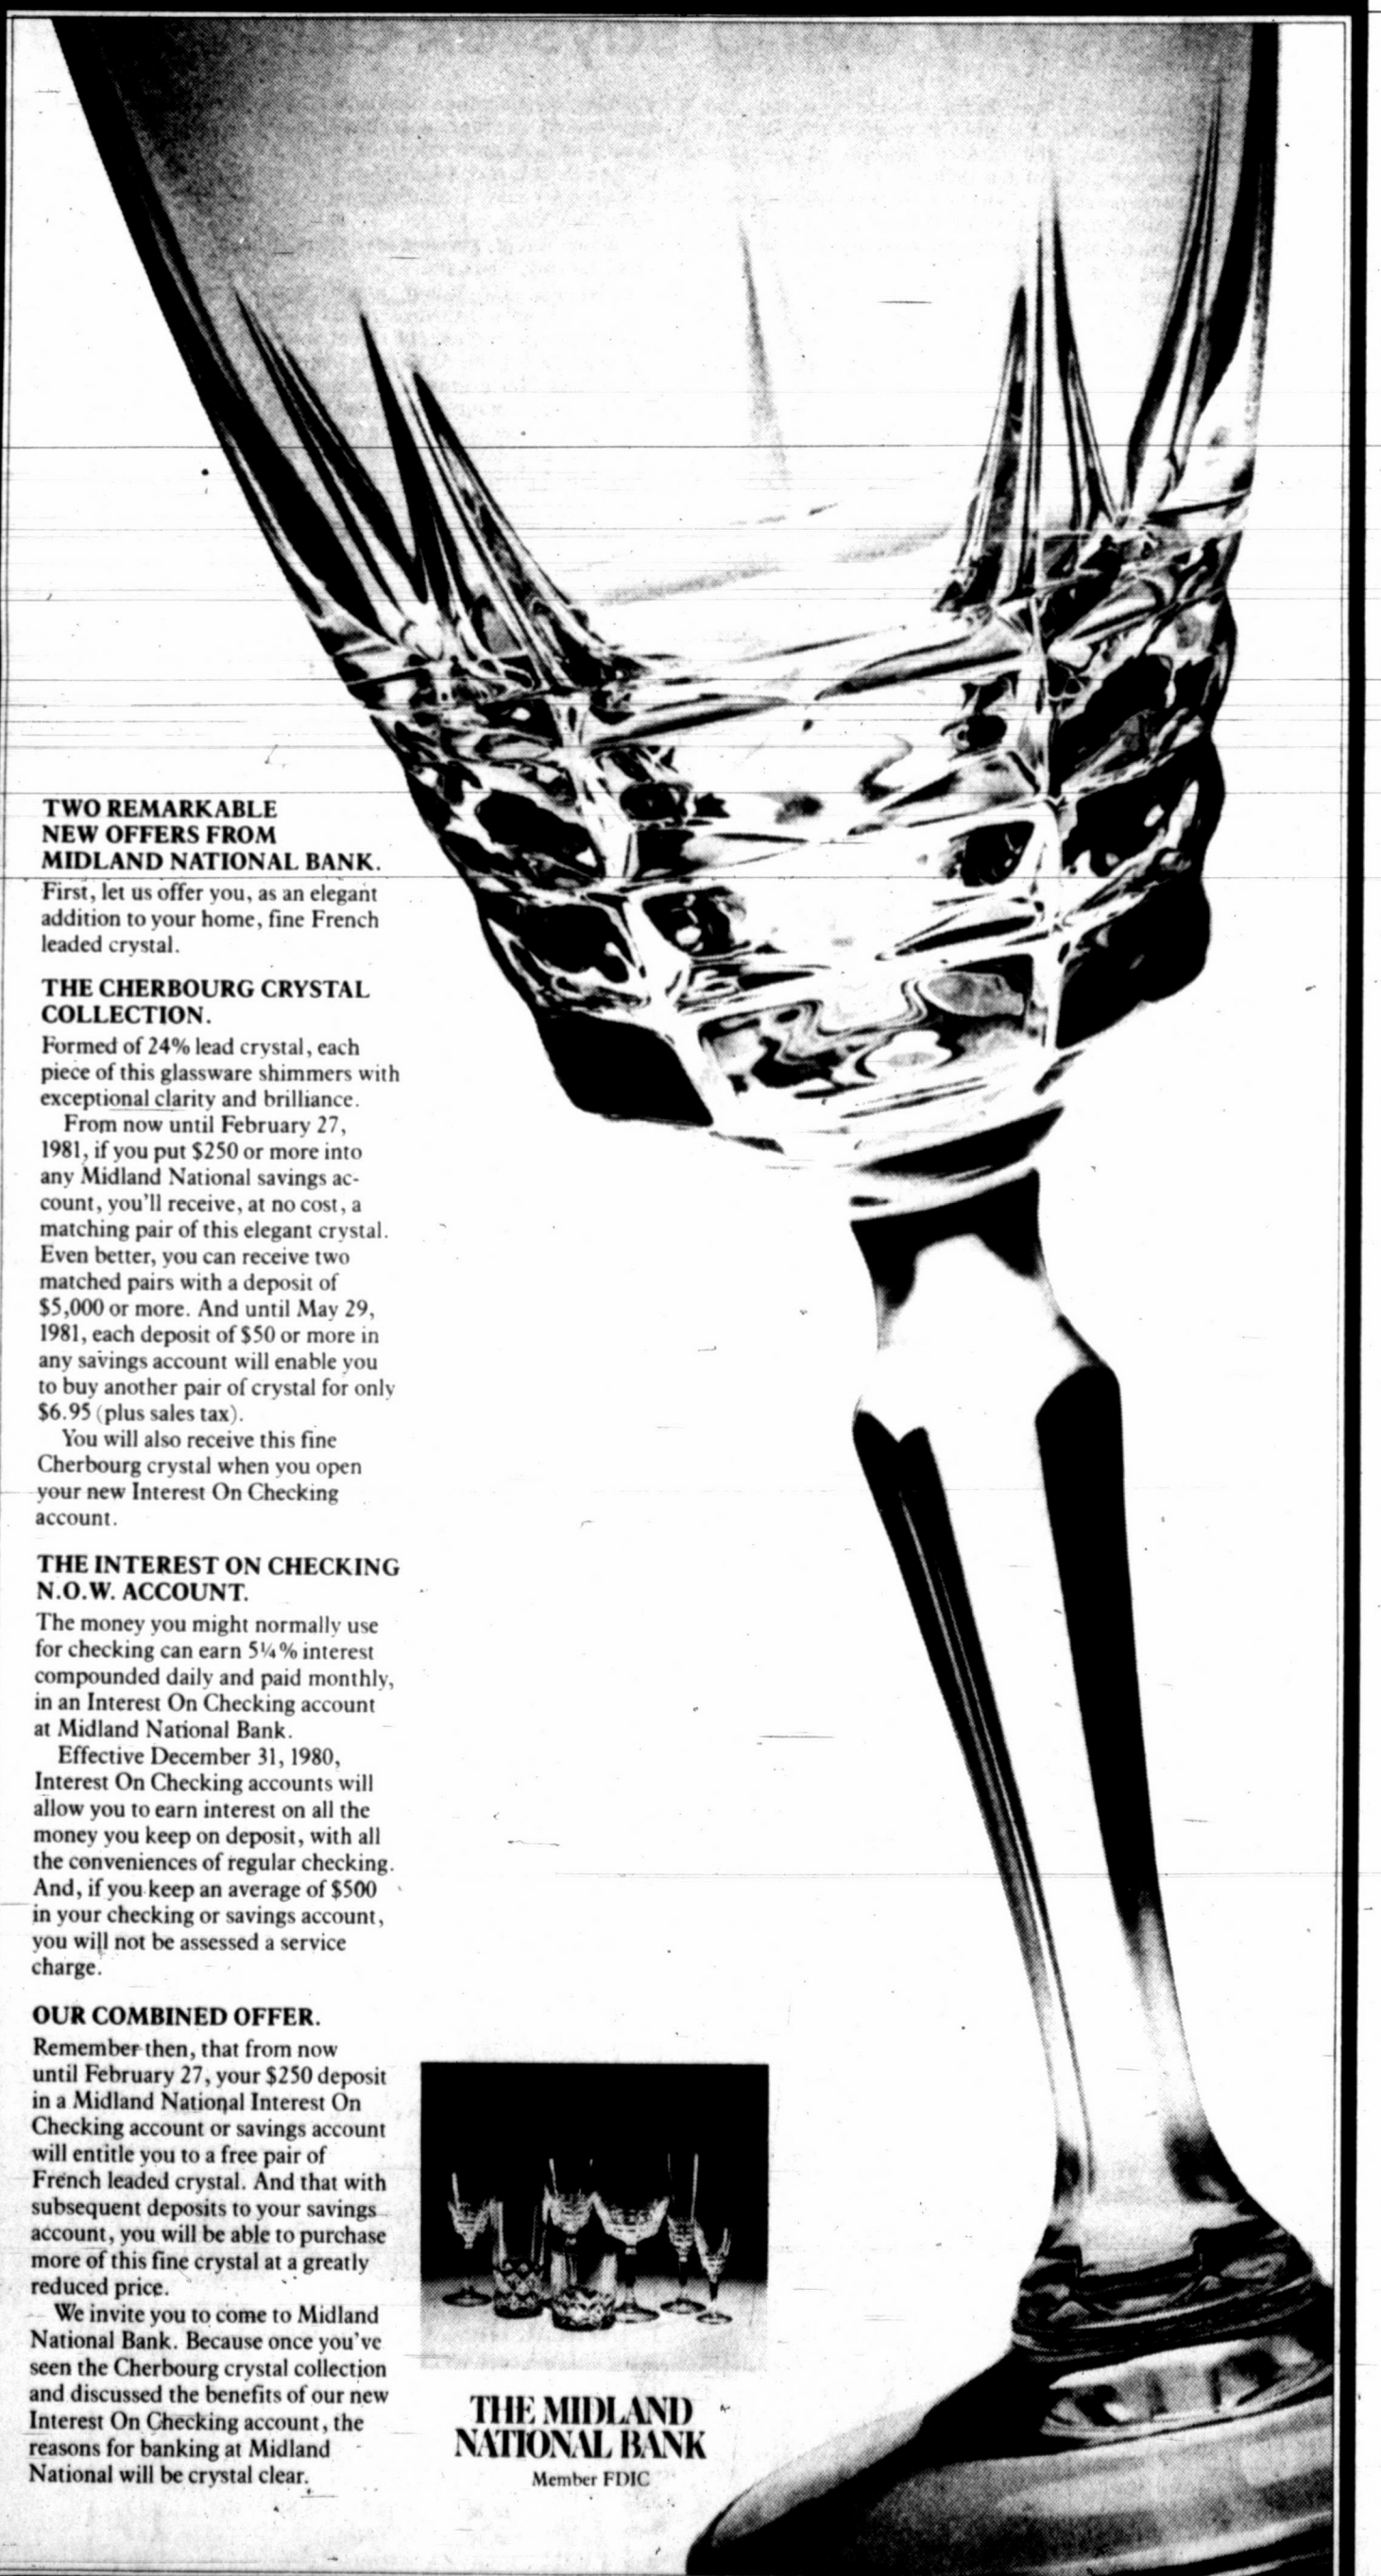

The commission seems likely to recommend employer sanctions. The difficulty with such sanctions is that they place the burden of identifying undocumented workers on the employer. And Hispanic groups object to sanctions, claiming that employers worried about complying with the law will discriminate against all persons of Hispanic descent, including U.S. citizens.

The commission is also considering several identification systems, including identification cards for every legal worker, citizen and non-citizen alike, perhaps in the form of a Social Security card that would be difficult to forge.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, December 5, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Two top film producers, Otto Preminger and the late Walt Disney, were born on this date. Romantic, impulsive, and almost totally fearless, you are apt to become impatient with everyday routine. Yet it is very important that you learn to concentrate on just one project at a time. The sooner you buckle down to work, the sooner you will be free to pursue those outside interests that command the lion's share of your attention! Your love relationships are happy ones, and your friends are eager to see you succeed. A close associate may help you to improve your finances after the new year begins.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Personal relationships are on a more solid footing today. Long-range financial security depends on your ability to further a career interest.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): "Impossible conflicts" in romance, work have been exaggerated. Former customer or patron could appear at crucial moment. Show your appreciation!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Someone else's good luck rubs off on you again. Share your feelings of exhilaration with loved one. Where children are involved, patience now will pay off in the future.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Partners seem well-disposed to your suggestions, ideas. A chance encounter could both enliven and complicate romance. Be careful not to say too much too soon.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The emphasis is on dependability, reliability. Now is the time to collect on loans, pay your bills, and repair small but useful items. Special project can be advanced now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Telephone message could confirm ideas. Dig deeper, however, and leave nothing to chance. Discuss holiday, travel plans with romantic partner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Differences of opinion could develop at work. Keep any critical observations to yourself. A reunion with a former associate may be part of day's plan.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Preferment awaits you in employment matters. Plan to spend more time with higher-ups. Mate, offspring need further information regarding finances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be feeling increasingly serious about a new romantic interest. Be careful not to go to one extreme or the other where money is involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Finances show slow but steady improvement. Rely on expert advice regarding investments, pensions. Something that suited you yesterday may now appear in a less favorable light.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Avoid acting smug about a recent success at work or it might boomerang. Conversation with member of the opposite sex has calming effect.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You need an open mind to be at your best with associates now. Love is very much in your thoughts. Don't let social activities infringe upon your responsibilities.

to hold the trick. Fearful that a ruff and sluff would present declarer with the contract, West exited with a low heart. Declarer played low from dummy, and East made a good play when he inserted the eight and not the king. Unfortunately, it did not help.

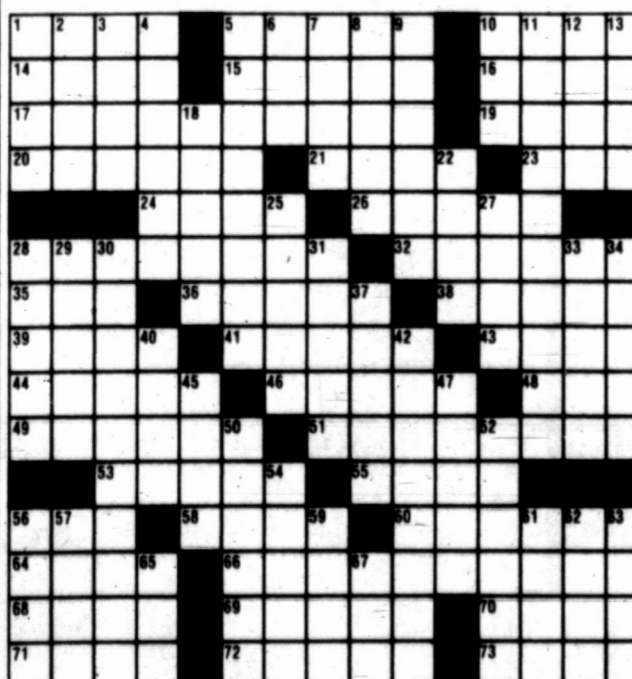

Declarer won the nine of hearts, crossed to dummy by overtaking the queen of spades and led a heart to the queen for this contract. Note that declarer's life would have been even easier had West shifted to the ten of hearts instead of a low heart.

Instead of breaking the heart suit, West could have defeated the contract by returning a club, giving declarer a ruff and sluff. (Try it if you don't believe us.) West argued that defense would have been fatal if declarer's hearts had been headed by the ace-king. We agree, but would like to point out that East knew that wasn't the case. Therefore, East should have overtaken partner's club queen and given declarer a ruff and sluff. Now the defenders would have been entitled to a heart trick for down one.

Fate of Italy's orphans feared

By ROBERT McCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — What will happen to the orphans of the earthquake, an estimated 1,000 children left without parents or close relatives by the disaster 11 days ago in the Naples-Sorrento area? Juvenile court officials fear that well-meaning people are carrying them off without contacting the proper authorities, leaving no record of their whereabouts, or that racketeers will sell them to couples who want to short-cut the five-year waiting list for legal adoptions.

Many of the orphans have no identification, and in the post-quake chaos it is difficult to trace their relatives. Several are babies who survived in incubators when the quake brought down a wing of the hospital at Sant' Angelo dei Lombardi, killing about 50 people.

There have been unconfirmed reports of well-dressed people in large cars taking children away from the towns and villages in which 4,534 people are listed as dead or missing in the quake Nov. 23.

"My office has received reports that young children are being removed physically from the zones without going through our courts," said Giovanni Lucantonio, president of the Naples Juvenile Court, in an interview.

"In the chaos of the earthquake, private individuals or charitable organizations or religious organizations may be taking in children without contacting the proper officials. We don't want to lose track of these children."

Lucantonio also warned that the presence of so many youngsters without relatives to look after them is likely to encourage racketeers to abduct them and pass them on to would-be parents for a fee.

The judge said he had no evidence that this was happening, but it is "very possible." He said he sent two magistrates Wednesday to Avellino, in the heart of the quake area, to make sure that correct adoption procedures are followed.

Mancusi Barone, a magistrate of the Naples Court of Appeals who deals with adoptions, said some of the orphans may have lost all their relatives in Italy, but "we want to make sure that they don't have relatives abroad who would care for them if they knew that they were still alive."

Nearly a dozen aftershocks hit the quake area Wednesday, but no new casualties were reported. Workmen dug up more than 25 bodies, and the Naples Military Command's latest casualty summary listed 2,960 dead, 1,574 missing and presumed dead and 265,000 homeless.

A court in Avellino handed down the first conviction for looting in the area, sentencing a 45-year-old man to 20 months in prison for stealing military tents. Police reinforcements were sent to towns where looting and disturbances were reported.

Senate approves quake aid package

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, in what one supporter called "an expression of love from one country to another," has approved and sent to President Carter legislation sending $50 million to aid earthquake victims in southern Italy.

Carter, who had urged Congress to approve the money, is expected to sign the bill quickly.

The legislation would provide aid to an estimated 300,000 Italians made homeless by the earthquakes that struck remote, mountainous sections of the country on Nov. 23. About 3,000 persons have died and another 2,000 are missing and presumed dead in what Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said was "without question the worst disaster to hit Europe in modern times."

"This is an expression of love from one country to another," Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said of the aid.

The money, approved unanimously by the Senate, is primarily for medicine, constructing hospitals and rebuilding houses destroyed by the earthquakes.

The United States already has sent $3.5 million to help earthquake victims, and the State Department reports that U.S. military forces, including helicopters and medical assistance units, are on the scene.

Another dozen countries are making similar efforts to aid the Italian government,

Crackdown on price gouging begun in quake-stricken area

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — More than 1,000 para-military police have begun a massive crackdown on price gouging in the quake-stricken Naples area, authorities reported.

First police reports said at least 20 shopowners were arrested for charging inflated prices for daily necessities such as spaghetti, coffee, milk and bread.

Police arrested two youths for looting in Torre del Greco, south of Naples, and two others in Potenza as they tried to steal blankets and underwear from a warehouse stocked with relief material, authorities said.

Milan's Corriere della Sera newspaper reported that the Camorra, Naples' Mafia-style underworld racket, has been stealing "chunks" of relief material bound for earthquake victims.

Police officials said they could not exclude the possibility of the Camorra's involvement, but they had no firm evidence.

The Camorra has stepped up its terror campaign against the city's merchants this year, police said, adding that the Camorra gangs made at least 500 known extortion demands against shops, businesses and street vendors this year.

On Wednesday, Giuseppe Zamberletti, the government's special commissioner for the disaster zone, ordered judges and prosecutors to set up courts in tents and trailers in refugee camps to deal with looters.

A court in Avellino handed down the first conviction for looting in the quake area, sentencing a 45-year-old man to prison for 20 months for stealing military tents.

Police reinforcements have gone to dozens of southern towns where looting and disturbances had been reported the past few days.

Three NM discoveries potential

Operators have announced potential tests on three New Mexico discoveries, one each in Chaves, Eddy and Lea counties.

CHAVES DISCOVERY

Selco, Inc., of Artesia, No. 1-33 Moonlight West has been completed as a San Andres oil discovery three miles southwest of Elkins in Chaves County.

Operator reported a daily pumping potential of 50 barrels of 40-gravity oil and 10 barrels of water, through perforations from 2,346 to 2,381 feet.

Gravity and gas-oil ratio were not reported.

Total depth is 2,600 feet and 5 1/2-inch casing is set at 2,595 feet.

The strike is three miles northwest of San Andres production in the Bulls Eye field and 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 33-7s-28e.

EDDY OPENER

Gulf Oil Corp., operating from Hobbs, N.M., completed No. 1 Lake McMillan-Federal as a gas discovery through perforations from 7,870 to 7,896 feet.

The operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 5,971,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

Total depth is 10,500 feet and plugged back depth is 9,722 feet.

Location is 1,450 feet from south and 150 feet from east lines of section 30-19s-27e and four miles southeast of Lakewood.

LEA DISCOVERY

Harvey E. Yates Co. of Roswell, N.M., No. 1 Young Deep Unit has been completed as a dual discovery in Lea County, six miles southeast of Maljamar.

From the Bone Spring perforations at 8,418-8,468 feet, the strike potential for a daily flow of 381 barrels of 38-gravity oil and 51 barrels of water, through a 3/4-inch choke. Gas-oil ratio was 600-1 and flowing tubing pressure 100 pounds.

From the Morrow, through perforations from 12,835 to 12,845 feet, the well completed for a calculated absolute open flow of 46,671,000 cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-oil ratio of 9,501,000-1.

Total depth is 14,095 feet and 5 1/2-inch casing is set at 13,944 feet.

Wellsite is three miles north of the Lusk, North (Morrow gas) field and 2 1/2 miles north of 8,716-foot Bone Spring production in the Young field.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 10-18s-32e.

CHAVES WILDCAT

Ralph Nix of Artesia, N.M., No. 1 Skip is to be drilled as a 7,000-foot wildcat one mile south of Elkins in Chaves County.

It is 2 1/2 miles southwest of Selco No. 1-33 Moonlight which recently was completed as a San Andres oil discovery.

No. 1 Skip is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 26-7s-28e. Ground elevation is 4,079 feet.

LEA EXPLORER

C. F. Qualia of Midland No. 1-23 State is a new 10,600-foot wildcat 30 miles southeast of Caprock in Lea County.

Operator spotted location 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 23-15s-34e. It is two miles southwest of the Morton (Wolfcamp oil) pool which produces at 10,300 feet.

Ground elevation is 4,067 feet.

EDDY FIELD TESTS

Jake L. Hamon of Midland No. 1-16 State Communized is to be drilled in the Logan Draw (Morrow) field of Eddy County.

Scheduled to 9,500 feet, it is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 16-17s-27e. Ground elevation is 3,423 feet.

Anadarko Production Co., operating from Loco Hills, N.M., staked a 9,500-foot Morrow project in the Boyd (Morrow) pool of Eddy County, 11 miles northwest of Lakewood.

It is No. 1 Glass, 1,830 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 12-19s-25e. Ground elevation is 3,398 feet.

LEA OPERATION

Apollo, Inc., of Hobbs, N.M., announced plans to deepen a 9,050-foot failure in Lea County.

Originally Hanagan Petroleum Corp. No. 1 Lee, it will be deepened by Apollo as No. 1 Lee to 9,250 feet.

Location is five miles southeast of Buckeye, in an undesignated Abo area and 1,980 feet from north and 2,310 feet from east lines of section 2-18s-35e.

EDDY COMPLETIONS

Yates Petroleum Corp., Artesia, No. 1 Oakson-Federal "NV" has been completed as a one-mile south extension to the Hoak Tank (Morrow gas) field of Eddy County, 12 miles west of Lakewood.

Scheduled as a wildcat, it finalized for a daily potential of 1,550,000 cubic feet of gas, through a 3/4-inch choke and perforations from 9,022 to 9,038 feet. The flowing tubing pressure was 100 pounds.

Wellsite is 660 feet from south and 2,310 feet from east lines of section 27-19s-24e.

Yates Petroleum Co. 3 Gushwa Draw is a new well in the Boyd (Morrow) field of Eddy County.

Operator reported a daily potential of 2,790,000 cubic feet of dry gas, through various size chokes and perforations from 9,012 to 9,020 feet.

Total depth is 9,160 feet in the Chester, 4 1/2-inch pipe is set at 9,130 feet and hole is plugged back to 9,080 feet.

Wellsite is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 35-18s-25e.

LEA WELLS

Diner Operating Co. of Midland No. 1 Eidson has been completed in the Townsend (Morrow) field of Lea County, eight miles northeast of Buckeye.

It completed for a daily potential of 276,000 cubic feet of gas, through various size choke and perforations from 11,936 to 12,909 feet.

The Morrow was topped at 12,540 feet on ground elevation of 4,011 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 20-16s-35e.

The Lovington, Northeast (Pennsylvanian) field of Lea County gained a new well with completion of Bass Enterprises Production Co. of Midland No. 1 Monteith.

The operator reported a 24-hour flowing potential of 200 barrels of oil, no water, through various size choke. The gas-oil ratio is 2,200-1.

Completion was through perforations from 11,181 to 11,264 feet, natural.

Wellsite is 810 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 13-16s-36e and three miles southeast of Lovington.

Coquina Oil Corp. of Midland No. 1 Shelly-Federal is a new well in the Lusk, North (Morrow) field of Lea County, 12 miles south of Maljamar.

It completed for a daily flow of 9,641,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through various size chokes and perforations from 12,954 to 12,962 feet.

Total depth is 13,060 feet, 5 1/2-inch pipe was landed at 13,055 feet, and hole is plugged back to 13,019 feet.

Operators announce Basin wildcats; field work reported

Production was on an 18/64-inch choke, and through perforations from 8,183 to 8,228 feet which had been treated with 4,800 gallons of fracture fluid.

Drilled to 9,200 feet, where 5.5-inch casing was set, it is plugged back to 8,238 feet.

Wellsite is 2,210 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 6, block O, G&MM&A survey, two miles southeast of Wickett.

The pay was topped at 8,183 feet, on ground elevation of 2,674 feet.

REAGAN RE-ENTRY

Cities Service Co. of Midland will re-enter a former 9,770-foot wildcat failure in Reagan County and clean out to 9,760 feet for tests.

No. 1-29 University is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 29, block 1, University Land survey, three miles southwest of Texon. It is 1 1/2 miles north of the two-well Gunnx (Strawn oil) field which produces from 9,452 feet, and 1 1/2 miles south of the Texon, West (Spraberry oil) field which produces from 6,923 feet.

Formerly Fort Worth Production Co., Fort Worth, No. 1-29 University, eas lines of section 20, block 4, K. Aycock survey.

IRON TESTER

John L. Cox of Midland No. 1 C&K- Noelke is to be drilled as an 8,800-foot project in the Taos (Canyon and Fusselman) area of Irian County, 24 miles north of Barnhart.

Location is 660 feet south of the southwest corner of section 13, thence 660 feet east to location in section 14, block H, TCRW survey.

NOLAN OPERATIONS

Maralo, Inc., of Midland, No. 1-67 Whiteside is to be drilled in the Group, South (Saddle Creek) field of Nolan County, four miles northwest of Blackwell.

Scheduled to 4,200 feet, it is 330 feet from south and 2,210 feet from east lines of section 67, block 1-A, H&TC survey.

Location is 3/4 mile southeast of production and 3/8 mile west of a 7,009-foot dry hole.

D. D. Feldman Oil & Gas of Abilene announced location for a southwest offset to one of the two wells in the Harp (Strawn) field of Nolan County, six miles northeast of Marnyeal.

Contracted to 7,100 feet, it is 938 feet from south and 870 feet from east lines of section 36, block X, T&P survey.

Parallel Petroleum Corp. of Midland No. 1 Henry Arledge is to be drilled as a 7,000-foot Odum lime project in the Yellow Wolf (Odum lime) pool of Nolan County, 26 miles south of Sweetwater.

It is 5/8 mile northeast of oil production and an east offset to a depleted Odum lime gas well.

The drillsite is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 15, block 1-A, H&TC survey.

STONEWALL AREA

Dewitt Ellison Jr. of Aspermont No. 1 L. D. Trammell Jr. is to be drilled 3/4 mile northeast of one of the three wells in the Peacock (Tannehill) field of Stonewall County, two miles north-east of Peacock.

Scheduled to 3,650 feet, it is 330 feet from south and west lines of section 243, block D, H&TC survey.

It was abandoned in November 1979 after testing through perforations from 3,628 to 3,634 feet. Four and one-half inch casing was set at 3,857 feet.

SCHLEICHER CONFIRMERS

MEG Petroleum Corp. of San Angelo has completed the fourth producer in the University 54 (Ellenburger) field of Schleicher County, as a 3/4-mile southwest extension to that pay.

No. 1-7-54 University flowed 153.6 barrels of 44-gravity oil and 4 barrels of water on an 8/64-inch choke, through perforations from 7,892 to 7,914 feet which had been washed with 500 gallons of mud acid.

The gas-oil ratio is 1,040-1. Originally scheduled as a wildcat and amended to the above field, it drilled to 7,947 feet where 4.5-inch casing was set.

Wellsite is 1,860 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 7, block 54, University Land survey, 20 miles northwest of Eldorado.

Joseph I. O'Neill Jr., operating from Midland, has completed the third producer in the J.K.T. (Canyon) field of Schleicher County, nine miles northwest of Eldorado.

No. 2 H. J. Case potential for a calculated absolute open flow of 1,450,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 6,510 to 6,530 feet. The pay was treated with 2,000 gallons of acid and 32,000 gallons of fracture fluid.

An east extension to the field, it is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 9, block TT, TCRW survey.

NOLAN PROJECT

Enrich Oil Co., operating from Abilene, will drill No. 3-82 Double M Ranch as a project in the two-well Double M Ranch (Cook) field of Nolan County, one-half mile east of current production.

Drillsite is 660 feet from south and 3,390 feet from west lines of section 182, block 1-A, H&TC survey, five miles southwest of Marnyeal.

Contract depth is 6,000 feet.

Basin operators schedule 99 more oil and gas projects

The Thanksgiving shortened work week saw only 99 new oil and gas operations slated in the Permian Basin of West Texas and New Mexico.

Twenty-three of the projects were scheduled in wildcat country.

District 7-C of the Railroad Commission of Texas led the other Permian Basin areas in number of locations, with 10 wildcats and 32 field operations.

But as the euphoria continued, I turned to Charles Brown (chair-man) of AT and T. I said, "Charlie, you were quoted in the morning Miami Herald ... about what a disaster the antitrust action against AT and T is. I said, 'What year was that antitrust action?' He said 1970.

"Republican administration."

"Yes."

Then Williams turned to Stuart Watson, chair-man of Heublein Inc. The big producer of alcoholic beverages had just pre-vailed in a divestiture action brought by the Federal Trade Commis-sion.

"What year was that brought?" Williams asked. It was 1972. "Under a Republican ad-ministration," he noted.

"I reminded people when the SEC went out on its sensitive (foreign) payments kick. Republi-can administration."

"All I'm saying," Williams concludes, "is it may be the millenium (for businessmen) has not yet come."

Williams, dean of the University of California, Los Angeles graduate school of management until he was tapped for his regulatory post in 1977 by President Carter, argues that trends in corporate accountability, consumerism and regulation "are not going to go away" under President-elect Reagan. On the contrary, he says, "over time, they will continue to revive and resurge."

To a large degree, how-ever, the tone that Williams has set at the SEC is not out of step with much of the Reagan phil-osophy. Though he has talked a hard line about corporations being more accountable to share-holders and the public, the major initiatives during his chairmanship have been toward deregulation.

To the dismay of some consumer groups and old hands at the SEC, which has had a reputation as a tough and ever-present overseer in the securities area, Williams began to question whether exist-ing and new rules were really needed. After con-cluding that many of them were not, Williams' commission began to dis-man-tle some of the intricate regulatory frame-work for securities.

In an interview, Wil-iams took obvious pleas-ure in furnishing an in-ventory of what he has done as the SEC chief and what he'd like to do if he stays. But, in a follow-up telephone conver-sation, he said: "I hope this piece doesn't sound like a petition (to the Reagan camp) that I want to stay on. That's not what I'm about."

Odds are that Williams will not be retained as SEC chairman. Although the Reagan transition team has expressed no particular dissatisfaction with Williams — in fact, transition chief and former SEC Chairman William J. Casey has

His favorite speech is on so-called "corporate accountability," much of which involves a major restructuring of boards of directors. Early in his term, he gave what he now calls his "bomb-shell" speech in San Diego, suggesting that a company's chief execu-tive be the only manage-ment representative on a board of directors. Others on the board should be outside directors, independent of management, Williams said.

Interest rates affect all borrowers

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates continue to spiral upward and that means problems for everyone who borrows money — from consumers to the federal government.

The latest twist in the spiral came this week, when most major banks raised their prime lending rates to 18.5 percent, the highest level since last May.

The jump was initiated by Chase Manhattan Bank and followed by other banks, which had been charging 17.75 percent and 18 percent on loans to their best business customers.

The last time rates rose this high was last spring, after credit controls were imposed by the government. Consumers and some other borrowers cut back on spending then, and the economy plunged into a recession.

There are new fears that similar cutbacks will follow the current round of increases.

"Rates are already sufficiently high to bring the economy to its knees," David Jones, a financial economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a New York investment firm, said Tuesday. "We're probably going to see some dramatic declines in economic activity...and a second phase of recession."

That is not a unanimous view among economists. Some think that while the recovery will slow, it will continue despite the high rates, which result in part from the Federal Reserve's efforts to fight inflation.

In Washington, D.C., Treasury Secretary G. William Miller told a Senate Finance subcommittee he feared the high cost of borrowing may choke off recovery from the recession at a time of high unemployment and idle plant capacity.

"Interest rates will remain quite high until there is a clarification of where the demands for credit are going to go," Miller said in what may have been his final official appearance before Congress.

Miller asked Congress to raise the limit on federal debt to $978.6 billion from $925 billion, citing rising costs for defense spending among other factors.

The secretary said if interest rates continue at current levels through next September, the additional borrowing costs for the federal government will be about $7 billion above what had anticipated. Those costs will raise the federal budget deficit.

The rapidly rising prime rate — it was 14.5 percent a month ago — is particularly significant to the nation's retailers. They borrow, often at rates above the prime rate, to finance inventories.

With the prospect of another slowdown in economic activity, many retailers fear consumers will once again grow cautious and limit their spending as Christmas approaches.

One place where consumers are cautious is in auto sales, where even small, fuel-efficient vehicles are sitting unsold. Chrysler Chairman Lee Jacocca blames rising interest rates for his company's apparent failure to make a profit in the final three months of this year.

What is bad news for borrowers, of course, can be good news for those with money. Starting Thursday, banks and thrift institutions will be allowed to pay 14.804 percent on six-month money-market certificates, sold in denominations of $10,000 and more. That rate, resulting from the weekly Treasury bill auction, is up from the current level of 14.28 percent.

I've been to heaven...

THIS boasting is all so foolish, but let me go on. Let me tell about the visions I've had, and revelations from the Lord. Fourteen years ago I was taken up to heaven for a visit. Don't ask me whether my body was there or just my spirit, for I don't know; only God can answer that. But anyway, there I was in paradise.

And heard things so astounding that they are beyond a man's power to describe or put in words (and anyway I am not allowed to tell them to others).

That experience is something worth bragging about, but I am not going to do it. I am going to boast only about how weak I am and how great God is to use such weakness for His glory.

I have plenty to boast about and would be no fool in doing it, but I don't want anyone to think more highly of me than he should from what he can actually see in my life and my message.

I will say this: because these experiences I had were so tremendous, God was afraid I might be puffed up by them; so I was given a sickness which has been a thorn in my flesh, a messenger from Satan to hurt and bother me, and prick my pride.

Three different times I begged God to make me well again.

Each time He said, "No. But I am with you; that is all you need. My power shows up best in weak people." Now I am glad to boast about how weak I am; I am glad to be a living demonstration of Christ's power, instead of showing off my own power and abilities.

Since I know it is all for Christ's good, I am quite happy about "the thorn," and about insults and hardships, persecutions and difficulties; for when I am weak, then I am strong—the less I have, the more I depend on Him.

Suit seeking desegregation of schools filed

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — A suit seeking the desegregation of two elementary schools in the Marshall Independent School District has been filed in federal court in Tyler.

The suit, filed by the Justice Department and naming Carver and Dogan Elementary Schools, alleges the schools have minority enrollments of more than 66 percent and asks for the desegregation of both.

Superintendent Truitt Ingram said he did not understand why the suits were filed because officials have adopted a plan to desegregate the schools.

"In 1978, the school board adopted a plan to eliminate this situation that will go into effect during the 1981-82 school year," Ingram said. "It looks kind of foolish for them to file this suit after our plan was adopted."

Ingram said the matter would be discussed at a Dec. 9 board meeting.

Students selling various magazines

By JULIE GUYTON, VICKI MADDEN and KATHY WOOD

Well, the Christmas season is finally here — the much-dreaded, much-looked-forward-to time of the year when department stores everywhere are crammed with multitudes of anxious shoppers.

The Midland High Student Council would like to help you a little. Why not give a gift that can be remembered year-round? Magazine sales have begun just in time for Christmas shoppers. If you would like to renew an old subscription or begin a new one, just ask a Midland High student for the list of magazines being sold or call the school.

These sales allow us to support a foreign exchange student each summer. So minimize the Christmas rush and avoid the crowds by contacting a Bulldog.

The victorious basketball team is looking forward to another great season this year. Herbert Johnson returns this year to head the team. Non-district games are being held at the Chaparral center, so come out and watch the spectacular games.

Junior Lion of the month is Brant Moffat. That's a high honor for such a deserving young person!

Rasco's news: Everybody get in the Christmas spirit Saturday, the 13th! There will be a big dance at the Youth Center and plenty of mistletoe will be strategically hung around the Center.

ENTERTAINMENT BRIEFS

Students to present 'Carols in the Mall'

Fifth and sixth grade students will present a 45-minute "Carols in the Mall" concert near the Midland Park Mall fountain area from 7 to 7:45 p.m. Friday.

The program will include 15 carols from traditional and sacred music.

Students involved in the program have been in the strings program for about three years.

The Midland Independent School District strings program begins with the fourth grade and offers instruction on alternating days during a student's regular music-art class time.

String faculty members in the school district are Karen Walker, William Hayes, Marian Stone, Marianne Backus, and Joyce Nix. Brian Groner, private strings instructor, will be assisting the instructors during Friday's performance.

Banquet set to boost holiday

Sing, feast and laugh your way into the holiday season with a gourmet banquet designed to begin the festivities.

Sixteenth century England will be musically re-created for you as costumed Madrigal singers and The Lone Star Brass Quintet, render traditional Christmas carols, madrigal, and other Renaissance music.

The Midland Odessa Symphony singers and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin singers will present this grand feast in Odessa Sunday at 5 p.m. at Bellini and Thompson's restaurant and in Midland Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Midland Hilton. The other performance at 8 p.m. Monday in Odessa at Bellini and Thompson's is already sold out.

The cost is $15 per person and tickets are available at the symphony office. For reservations call 563-0921. Tickets must be purchased by Friday.

Piano students featured in recital

Piano students of Mrs. E.F. Motter have recently been featured in a duet festival recital and two fall festival programs in her studio at 903 Princeton St.

Participating were Christy Humphrey, Jill Sager, Alexis Beck, Smyth Swanson, John Sikes Johnson, Colten Rogers, Shawn McCarter, Shannon Stone, Andrea Hamilton, Sharon Karcher, Ivan Meissner, Angela Floyd, Leslie Satterwhite, Kristie Adams, Janis Sager, Beverly English, Keith Beck, Johnny Brockman, Melissa Miller, Adair Rogers, Dedee Huff, Shana Buckner, Carey Cohn, Jeannie Fort, Brad Edgar, John Schweinfurth, Kaye Knox and Donnie Taylor.

Performing solos and accompanying the patriotic solos at both festivals were Christy Heller and Cynthia Miller.

Also, Mrs. Motter has announced the formation of the new Junior National Federated Music Club, "Klaviatur Verein" (keyboard club).

Deaf students to be in play

BIG SPRING — Three people from the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf at Howard College in Big Spring will be going to Las Cruces, N.M., during the semester break for special rehearsals and screening for Mark Medoff's play, "Children of a Lesser God."

Medoff was in Big Spring in October auditioning students and staff at SWCID for the play, which opens in Dallas in May. Those going to Las Cruces are instructor Steve Baldwin and students Margaret Arnold and Cliff Bodiford. Two other persons associated with SWCID were offered roles, but turned them down for personal and professional reasons.

Baldwin was offered the part of Orin, while Bodiford is vying with an actor from Fort Worth for the role of his understudy. Arnold will be trying out for the lead role or the lead's understudy role, depending upon whether she or an actress from Milwaukee, Wis., is chosen for the lead.

MC's Christmas Concert Dec. 11

Midland College's Chorale will present its annual Christmas Concert at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 11 in conjunction with the second annual Festival of Lights.

Planned for the recital hall in the Allison Fine Arts Building, the concert features the Midland College Chorale, conducted by Dr. Charles Lawson; the Memorial Christian Church Cherub Choir, directed by Bambi Lawson; and the First Christian Church Concert Handbell Choir, directed by Darryl Knapp.

The program will include, among others, "Alleluia," "O Come All Ye Faithful," "Pat-A-Pan," "Twas The Night Before Christmas" and a festival of Christmas hymns.

Following the concert, the audience is invited to gather in the McCormick Gallery for informal carol singing, hot chocolate and cookies.

The United Campus Ministry is providing the luminaries, which will frame the walkway leading from the parking lot to the entrance of the Allison Fine Arts Building, and the refreshments for this free concert.

The public is invited to attend.

Ballet to present 'The Nutcracker'

HOUSTON — The Houston Ballet will present its 9th annual production of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker" beginning Dec. 19 and running through Dec. 30 in Jones Hall.

The story tells of a Christmas party at which a little girl named Clara receives the gift of a nutcracker from her Uncle Drosselmeyer. The nutcracker is transformed into a handsome young prince who leads her through the land of Snowflakes to the home of the Sugar Plum Fairy, where everyone dances in her honor.

This production breaks with some traditional interpretations by setting the familiar story in a poor country family as opposed to a rich city family. All traditional elements have been retained in Ben Stevenson's choreography, including the familiar snow scene with its dancing snowflakes and the Snow Queen role.

Tickets range in price from $4 to $20 and are available by writing the Houston Ticket Center, 615 Louisiana St., Houston, 77002, or by calling 1-713-227-2787.

He's a 36-year-old teen-age idol

NEW YORK (AP) — Jan-Michael Vincent has a problem. He's 36 years old and still has the image of a teen-age idol.

That may change with the release of his latest film, "Hard Country," in which Vincent plays a mature, Texas fence-factory worker who wants to collect on the American Dream.

"I worked harder in this than I have on any other film," said Vincent, whose once-boyish good looks have hardened into a rugged handsomeness. "I didn't even have to swing a baseball bat or shift any gears," he added.

Swinging baseball bats and shifting gears was Vincent's way of referring to the roles for which he is best known — clean-cut boy in "The World's Greatest Athlete" and "The Baby-Blue Marine," and youthful stunt driver in "Hooper."

Tired of easy, unchallenging roles, the veteran of nearly 20 films and numerous television shows said he was looking for a part he could sink his emotional teeth into when "Hard Country" and the role of Kyle Richardson came along.

"He's a cowboy without a horse," said Vincent. "There are a lot of them around. He rides a pickup truck instead of a horse and he eats at fast-food joints instead of chuck wagons. But he still holds on to the cowboy tradition and cowboy ethic, which is real simple and real strict."

"Them that don't know him won't like him," the actor added, speaking in the Texas drawl of his character. "And them that do sometimes won't know how to take him. He ain't wrong. He's just different and his pride won't let him do things to make you think he's right."

Since Vincent's character works like a dog laying pipe all day and becomes a honky tonk hero at night, there are obvious comparisons between "Hard Country" and "Urban Cowboy," which starred another well-known idol, John Travolta.

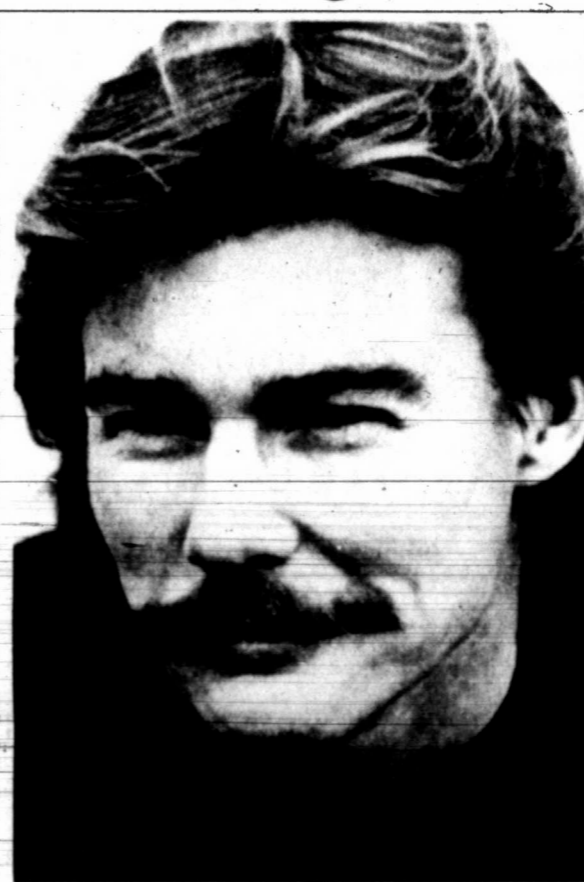

"Hard Country" isn't as glossy as "Urban Cowboy," said Vincent. "This one's got some grit in it. Besides, I never took any dancing lessons."

Anxious to start shooting another movie, Vincent will begin work on "Earth Rite" in the near future. "Earth Rite," to be filmed in California, will be about UFOs and will co-star Cybil Shepherd.

Eventually, Vincent said, he'd like to make his own films.

"The hardest thing for me to do as an actor," he said, "is to keep my dignity. So many producers treat actors like trained apes. Not all of them, but enough to make you start to wonder if you're not really like that."

"The best way to deal

Jan-Michael Vincent

with it is to produce your own films," Vincent adds. "I'm certainly qualified. I've heard enough inefficient production managers make enough excuses and waste enough time. I know how to make it more efficient."

"The thing is you have to decide as an actor whether you want to be lazy and just be an actor or if you want to go to work. Besides, if I lay around and wait for things to come to me, I'll end up shifting gears and hitting baseballs again."

Unflattering publicity problem not easily solved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom and Rona, unhappy couple, seem no closer to solving the several difficulties that prompted their tragic "Tomorrow" breakup three weeks ago. NBC President Fred Silverman arrives in town today hoping to initiate a reconciliation. Silverman's mission is an effort to salvage his own handiwork, the ill-considered marriage of two sovereign egos that lasted scarcely a month. In putting Tom Snyder and Rona Barrett on the same "Tomorrow" show, Silverman must have hoped the inevitable explosion would charge the show with electric vitality. The explosion came, but its fallout was unflattering publicity of the sort to be expected from shows biz tiffs. The problem will not be easily solved. Snyder, who hosted the show gloriously alone for seven years before the Rona invasion, wants it understood that "Tomorrow" is his domain and that Miss Rona is a sort of permanent guest. Miss Rona, on the other hand, insists that she was brought to "Tomorrow" as a co-host of the show, the West Coast anchor. She reportedly wants guaranteed time, preferably at the beginning of the show, not a fluid segment decided by Tom Snyder. Momentum, as Frank Gifford would say, is on being cut back to its original 60-minute length, from 1 a.m. to 2, with Snyder as sole host. The half-hour between Johnny Carson and "Tomorrow" would go to Miss Rona. It seems a reasonable option, but not one likely to be embraced by Snyder. Anyway, Snyder seems happy enough with the status quo. Since that Tuesday night when he refused to cut to Hollywood, where Miss Rona sat waiting with her guests, Snyder has had "Tomorrow" all to himself (even though Miss Rona is still billed). The world's prayers are with Mr. Silverman in his sacred mission. While in California, Silverman will be fine-tuning NBC's mid-year schedule. Absent from it, happily, is a tedious bit of inconsequence called "The Day the Women Got Even."

'Light Up the Sky' well done play

Theatre Midland's current comedy production of "Light Up the Sky" was greeted Saturday night with the happy sound of spontaneous laughter from the sellout crowd in Theatre 1. In fact, there were some there who probably woke up the following morning with a case of sore ribs. At times, the laughter was so loud that some of the lines got lost on stage. However, that's not the only way lines were lost. Some were walked on by the performers themselves, which was a shame because the play contains more than, pardon the cliché, a laugh a minute. And, although all of the performers turned out reasonable performances, as usual, some were better than others. None of this is meant to be taken as a negative response to a play that was, when viewed as a whole, well done. However, fair is fair, and in all fairness, the delivery and timing on the part of part of the cast could be improved. Outstanding among the cast was Mary Lou Cassidy's performance as Stella Livingston. Her delivery and timing were excellent, leaving the viewer

Just like others in the cast, his performance improved as the play progressed. Perhaps it is sufficient to say that the above mentioned, with the exception of Mary Lou Cassidy who turned in a stellar performance, would have been more convincing to this reviewer if they had, instead of pushing so hard, merely relaxed a little in their portrayals. Otherwise, their performances were believable. Jessie Grimes, as the affected director Carleton Fitzgerald, was quite good in his role, getting in over his head on only a few occasions. On the whole, he carried his part well, generally convincing the audience he was the emotional, "I think I'm going to cry," overly dramatic director. Another admirable performance was turned in by David J. Radcliffe as the experienced playwright and old friend Owen Turner. He was generally believable in his portrayal. Cheryl Colson, as Irene's secretary Miss Lowell, played her part quite well, to the point that she was the stereotype of the unobtrusive and efficient secretary to the star who always expects to be center stage. Smaller roles were played fairly well by Jerry Green, Irene's husband, and Leif Colson, as the would-be backer William H. Gallegher. The play's cast also included two walk on parts played by James Michael Party and Monty Connaly. Both were convincing as the stereotype Shriner's conventioners as depicted in the Ray Stevens song. Roger Haag Thomas is the director of this Moss Hart play. None of the comments in this review are intended to discourage playgoers from enjoying a most delightful evening's entertainment because the play, as stated before, when viewed as a whole, is definitely worth seeing. Performances are slated for tonight, Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Wednesday and Dec. 11-13. Reservations may be made by calling 682-4111. So for an evening which will light you up with laughter, light up your night with "Light Up The Sky."

A Review

with the impression that she was Stella Livingston. Kitty Moore, as her daughter Irene, was effective in her role with her performance improving as the play progressed. Her voice was strained at times perhaps because she was concerned about carrying her accent. She would have been more effective if she had worried less about accent and more about delivery. Mark Phillips, as Sidney Black, was another whose performance improved as the play progressed. He walked on many of his lines during the first act, but came through in the final act to deliver a believable performance. Trudie Thomason, as Sidney's wife Frances, delivered a performance which was well received by the audience. She played the part of a raised-poor, turned-rich girl from Brooklyn. For this reviewer, at times, her voice seemed overly harsh and too loud and she overplayed the overplayed Brooklyn stereotype. However, the audience loved her. For Keith Kaminsky, the role of the bewildered playwright Peter Sloan is his acting debut. Considering this was his first performance, he was not bad.

Artist, gallery settle

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Artist Georgia O'Keeffe has reached an out-of-court settlement with a Princeton gallery owner that resolves the disputed ownership of three small paintings that she said were stolen.

The terms of the settlement were confidential, according to attorneys for the 82-year-old artist and dealer Barry Snyder. But the lawyers issued a statement saying one of the paintings would be sold for the benefit of both parties.

The sale will be conducted within the next year by the New York auction house of Sotheby Parke Bernet, according to Roger Lowenstein, Miss O'Keeffe's lawyer.

"As a result of the settlement, one of the paintings, the painting entitled 'Cliffs,' will be sold at a public auction," the statement read in part.

In the comments, included in a court affidavit, Miss O'Keeffe described the painting as "one of the best pictures" in a 1946 show at an American Place, a gallery operated by her husband, Alfred Steiglitz.

The statement did not say what would happen to the other two paintings, "Seaweed" and "Fragment of the Rancho de Taos Church."

In presenting her case, Miss O'Keeffe said she lost track of the paintings after the show in 1946 until 1976, when Snyder bought them from Ulrich Frank, a private collector.

She said she had never notified police that the paintings had disappeared but had spread word about the theft in the art world of New York.

House fires break out in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Fires broke out at an apartment house in Brooklyn and a single-story home on Staten Island early today, killing 10 people and injuring two others seriously, authorities said.

A third fire heavily damaged the interior of the well-known O'Henry's Steak House in Greenwich Village early today. There were no reports of injuries in that blaze, which was still out of control three hours after it began in the restaurant at the corner of Fourth Street and the Avenue of the Americas.

A blaze in a three-story apartment house in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn killed eight occupants and left two seriously injured, according to Fire Department spokesman John Mulligan. He said the fire, whose cause was not immediately determined, started at 6:30 a.m. and had gone to two alarm within minutes.

In Staten Island, 6-year-old Joseph Hrycyna Jr. and his 5-year-old sister Christine were killed when fire swept their single-story frame house in the St. George section, authorities reported.

Explosion injures two

JERUSALEM (AP) — A bomb exploded in downtown Jerusalem today, slightly injuring two people and sending four people to a hospital with hearing problems from the shock of the blast, police said.

Israel Radio said police were investigating the possibility that criminal gang warfare was behind the bombing, but investigators did not rule out Arab terrorism.

The bomb went off in a fast food stand on King George street, one of Jerusalem's busiest thoroughfares, a police spokesman said.

Police units blocked off the street as demolition experts searched the area for more bombs. The injured were not immediately identified.

$2000 PER MONTH PLUS

Manager Trainees need to fill $70,500 per year position. It normally takes only 2 to 3 years to become a manager. $24,000 is your guaranteed annual salary while you learn, however for those who survive the first year average compensation is $29,250 due to additional sales commissions: 90 to 95 percent of your time will be in sales during the 2 to 3 year training period.

QUALIFICATIONS ARE TOUGH:
Please don't apply unless you meet each and every qualification:

1. Impeccable integrity and references.
2. 4 year degree from accredited college or high school diploma coupled with 2 years of heavy retail management experience.
3. Willing to work over 60 hours per week (No Sunday or our of town work.)
4. Willing to take Polygraph test.
5. Willing and capable of taking instructions.
6. Not have any prior heavy sales experience such as real estate, automobile, mobile homes, vacuum cleaners, etc.

We have an extra ordinary benefit plan including a retirement profit sharing plan. We don't list with employment agencies and request they don't refer candidates to us.

When you buy a used car, what else do you get besides the car?

In a good restaurant, when you buy a dinner, you get more than just food. You get service, a pleasant atmosphere, and a feeling that the owners would like you to come back. It's the very same way that we like to sell used cars. Since our reputation is more "on the line" when we sell a used car, you can be sure we'll do everything we can to make our used car customer a satisfied customer.

COZY UP!
Have you ever driven through Ramon's exclusive "Wiltshire Park" at night? If you haven't, do so soon! And be sure to see your windows down! The aroma of the woodburning fireplaces is heavenly, even from your car! And inside our homes, it's even better. Those long winter nights are almost too short when you're snuggled up in front of the fireplace. And they are standard equipment in these beautiful 3 bedroom, 2 bath homes priced from the mid-30's. When you get home from your drive give me a call and I'll help you "Cozy Up!" Ph. 683-4838. Eves. Terry Davis 687-6838.
