

AS DONE BY A WOMAN.

A DAY BEING THE SIGHTS OF THE FAIR.

From the Boardroom of the World's Fair...

[World's Fair Correspondence.]

HE VISITOR TO THE World's Fair can never tell how the day will develop...

One day, recently, such a mixture of entertainment entered into the program...

After admiring the beautiful room I went on to the assembly room...

In keeping with this spirit they were left out of the program on Indiana day...

of the commission had borne a good deal of disregard from the executive commission.

Presently the Deadwood stage coach came tearing in through the entrance...

One of the ushers stepped up and said: "Mr. Russell, will you ride in the coach?"

It was only a counterfeit presentation, but this is what it brought to mind...

From Buffalo Bill we went back to the grounds. I looked unsympathetically and with no feeling of patriotism...

Young wife—How nice it would be if he were a respectable young man...

Young husband—If I think I could get a long with just the cooling...

THE BURGLAR'S JIMMY. BUT IT HAD LEFT THE OLD GANG FOREVER.

As it had got the company, and meant to quit, it told its business to the district attorney's office...

I was in the district attorney's office after hours the other day when I noticed a crooked iron bar lying on a table...

The place was sultry and silent, except for the drowsy hum from the streets below...

"You want to know my history, hey? Well, it ain't much, but I'll tell it."

I looked about me, but, except for the "jimmy" on the table before me, I was alone.

"I was born of poor, but dishonest parents, and my career of crime began right off. My first master was Jerry Quinn. You remember him?"

"Well, he was a lily. I liked Jerry, for he wasn't scared of anything on earth, and he was a big-hearted burglar who never killed a man unless he could help himself."

"Good gracious, Mr. Cashinhand," she exclaimed, "you didn't think I'd marry a man without one redeeming trait, did you?"

THE BURGLAR'S JIMMY.

FALL FISH STORIES

GATHERED AT THE ROMANTIC RESORTS OF MAINE.

The Name of the Speckled Trout and the Gamey Landlocked Salmon—Some of the Most Beautiful Fish of the Sebago System Water.

Sebago, Me., Correspondence

THE FOUR main systems of Maine in which the fish are taken are the Penobscot, Kennebec, Androscoggin and Sebago.

The tiny village of Sebago, at the outlet, Crockett's farm, and the pond which makes the name of the stream, and some isolated farms and summer cottages veiled in forest trees, make little impression upon a scene of otherwise unbroken wilderness.

No fish more beautiful, brave and active exists than Sebago's favorite fish, the landlocked salmon, the fresh water variety of sea salmon with which, except in size and the fact that it does not in the autumn descend to the ocean, it is practically identical.

The landlocked salmon fishing has been better for the present season than for several years past. This is attributed to the enforcement of the fishing laws and to the introduction of the pickering destroying bass.

Ancient Wonders in the East. Nineveh was fourteen miles long and eight miles wide, the whole city surrounded by a wall 100 feet high.

Throughout all the Sebago chain in waters swift and still. The streams afford several varieties of the brook trout, and in the lake are found the large "square-tailed" trout.

Two varieties of the lake's fish have been transplanted from other waters. Pickering, the descendants of a half dozen of these piratical fish placed in the Sebago waters by a misguided enthusiast of the pine-clad coastline.

An antidote to the pickering has come in the form of the white sucker.

FASHION'S FANCIES.

LATEST GOWNS FOR LOVELY WOMAN'S WEAR.

The Happy Flight of Woman from Crinolines, Chignons and Congress Garters—Dainty Costumes for Fall and Winter Wear.

[New York Letter]

There are gloomy fashion bogies, just as there are pessimistic prophets of other evils, who threaten us with the revival of the chignon, congress garters and all the horrors of the dress inferno.

The winding up of textile fabrics or piece goods into rolls, as they come from the looms, is now proposed to be accomplished by a recently contrived device, designed to secure greater evenness and regularity.

A peculiar phase of London early life is the formation by working girls of clubs for purchasing various articles.

Our Neighbor, the Moon. Sir Robert Ball has stated in his lecture on the moon, that the geography of that satellite is better known even than that of earth.

Jack Baker was recently examined in an important case in the western circuit. Counsel found it extremely difficult to extract the whole truth from him.

Begotten to himself—I've got around that rich old great-uncle of mine at last. She's interested in benevolent schemes, and I'm helping her night and day to search out worthy objects.

Father—See here! Why don't you put things where you find 'em? The law is in your favor, and I can't find the hammer.

Second Little Girl—No, we went to the seashore. Son—Air Not Wanted. First Little Girl—Did you go to the seashore?

NEW TREASURE ISLAND.

A ROMANTIC STORY TOLD ABOUT TWO AMERICANS.

There is a gentleman in Detroit who, according to the Free Press, is known as a liberal speculator, one of that class who are always ready to look into everything and weigh every possibility.

He has accumulated quite a fortune by his admirable business methods, and the chances are that he will add materially to it before he dies.

"I asked the mate if he knew what was in the boxes in the hold."

"What were your instructions?"

"To lie in the harbor and await orders. If the fort had been taken some of the officers would have come aboard and slipped off and hid the treasure."

"Then the storm drove you off?"

"Yes, providence intervened."

"When are you going back cap'n?"

"See here, mate, what is the use of going back?"

"The government is going to smash it."

ABOUT CORNBODS.

A Chapter on the Many Uses to Which They Can Be Put.

Cornbods are useful to make pipes for the pipe as stoppers to bottles that may have mislaid their corks, to crowd into the bung-hole of the elder barrel, to throw at the hens when they scratch the young onions, to curl hair on, to hold up windows, to ferrule the children with, to grease the griddle in place of the time-honored half of a turnip.

"I don't wonder," says the Minneapolis Housekeeper. As for the fortune, a man who once lived not ten miles from Springfield laid the foundations for a fortune so large that, though he died twelve years ago, the lawyers have not yet done fighting over his will, simply by carrying loads of cornbods hither and yon and selling them for fabulous prices.

Whether in trying to get out the collision mats or in the last desperate plunge shoreward, in which the half-sinking ship, with her forepart all under the water, steamed toward the land—everything seems to have been done with the regularity and steadiness and cool courage that are the distinguishing features of the British navy.

The country dandelion preparing for social fray has been known to blacken her eyebrows with a burnt cob. When children object too strenuously to having their teeth secured with soot from the teakettle, an indulgent parent may make a compromise on the black powder from a burnt cob.

A woman with a soul for ingenuity once hung out a large wash with cloths manufactured from clofs cornbods.

On the coast of Portugal it is to be found the submerged city of Cotobriga or Troia, as the Portuguese to-day call it.

IN THE JAWS OF DEATH.

Lessons Taught by the Deceitful of the Victoria's Dead Sailors.

The name of the Victoria will ever be associated with a story that the nation will cherish as one of those precious records by which empires live. It was all over in fifteen minutes, but those fifteen minutes will live in history as lives the Balaklava charge, which did not last much longer.

The testing times of life seldom last longer, says the Review of Reviews. The first dip of the litmus paper in the solution proves the existence of acid, and the first moment of a supreme crisis suffices for a test.

Death is the sovereign alchemist who assays the value of the coin struck in the mint of life.

But how will it be when each individual, nay, when the whole ship's company, with all its component weaknesses and shortcomings, is suddenly slung over an abyss yawning eighty fathoms deep below, with not one chance in three that any will escape alive?

Not even when the great ship reeled and quivered like a wounded thing beneath the crushing blow of 10,000 tons of metal hurled against it at the rate of eighteen miles an hour, did any of the crew or officers lose their self-possession.

Every one of the officers was given. "Each for himself," which dissolved the organic whole of the disciplined ship's company into a mass of individuals each free to seek his own safety in his own way.

The papers, indeed, are full of stories of the self-forgetting devotion of these blue-jackets to each other.

All seem to have been alike, from the admiral who sank with his ship to the chaplain who perished in saving others.

Everywhere in California the Chinese are now working the gold mines on their own account.

BRILLIANTS.

When you give advice don't try to put it all in italics.

No woman is educated who is not equal to the management of a family. It is our kindest and tenderest emotion which we screen from the world.

Fame comes only when deserved, and then it is as inevitable as destiny. He shall be immortal who liveth still he be stoned by one without a fault.

Physical exercise and intellectual rest in due season should never be neglected.

Unbefriended indeed is he who has no friend bold enough to point out his faults.

Wrong ever builds on quicksands, but the Right to the firm center lays its moveable base.

Sense can support herself handsomely in most countries on some eighteen pence a day; but for phantasy, planets and solar systems will not suffice.

Of a certain class of disputants it has been wittily observed that their conclusions are always right and their reasons for them invariably wrong.

There are lots of people who mix their religion with their business, but forget to stir up well, as a result the business invariably rises to the top.

A leveller has long ago been set down as a ridiculous and chimerical being, who, if he could finish his work to-day would have to begin it again to-morrow.

REMEMBER TALLEYRAND'S ADVICE.

If you are in doubt whether to write a letter or not, don't! The advice applies to many other doubts in life beside that of letter-writing.

The idea of duty—that recognition of something to be lived for beyond the mere satisfaction of self—is to the moral life what the addition of a great central ganglion is to animal life.

I consider a human soul without education like marble in the quarry, which shows none of its inherent beauties until the skill of the polisher fetches out the colors and makes the surface shine.

No Cavalry. The Egyptian inscriptions show great numbers of war chariots, each containing two men; one to drive, the other an archer, but no cavalry was employed in the field.
