CULBERSON'S LAST MESSAGE.
The Governor Frods the Legislature With a Sharp Stick.
Gov. Culberson fired a special message at the legislature on Tuesday, in which he called their attention to the fact that they had now been in session about sixty days and that there was very little legislation of an important character to their credit. He pointed them to the fact that they had completed no legislation on any of the several important subjects on which it had been promised during the campaign and, expressed astonishment at the delay on several matters through which the state is suffering damage. It is said that such a message was wholly unlooked for and that it created no little surprise and much comment. It at least demonstrates the fact that Governor Culberson has the courage of his convictions and he does not propose that it shall be his fault if the campaign promises of reform are not complied with.
Following is a summary of the several matters to which he calls attention and urges prompt action by the legislature:
1. A validating act in grants involving railway turnouts, reserving to the state the right to recover land where the title is still in the companies, where the land has been transferred through foreclosure proceedings, where it has been transferred in evasion of the laws of alienation and where suits have already been instituted.
2. Reform the criminal laws by equalizing challenges, provide that questions of venue and the like be not raised for the first time in the appellate court, that judgments be affirmed if an impartial trial has been had and relieve the judges of the preparation of unnecessary opinions.
3. A comprehensive and effective anti-trust law.
4. A law against the consolidation of railway corporations.
5. A law providing for the assessment of railway property at its true value, having regard to the stock and bonds of the companies.

6. A law prohibiting the issuing of passes by railway companies except to bona fide officers and employees of the companies issuing them.
7. Laws providing for the collection of back taxes and to prevent future delinquencies by strengthening tax titles.
8. A law increasing the rate of taxation on railroad, insurance, telephone, telegraph and express companies.
9. A law increasing the rate of taxation for school purposes to 20 cents and for the collection of interest on land notes due the school fund by the attorney general.
10. A law reducing the cost of assessment to be paid by the state to one-half for poll tax and one-third for all other taxes.
11. Laws limiting the fees of district attorneys to $2500 and all county and precinct officers to $2000.
12. Laws reducing the number of attached witnesses and the fees of sheriffs in felony cases.
13. Reapportioning and reducing the judicial districts to forty.
14. Laws named reducing expenses in examining trials and quarantine.
15. Reduction of expenses in the general appropriation bill to the most economical basis possible consistent with efficiency, and increase of the ad valorem rate of taxation, so that cash payments may be resumed by the treasury, not exceeding 25 cents for 1895 and 20 cents for 1896.
Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
World's Fair Highest Award.
A severe rheumatic pain in the left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Loper, a well known druggist of Des Moines, Iowa, for over six months. At times the pain was so severe that he could not lift anything. With all he could do he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm. "I only made three applications of it," he says, "and have since been free from all pain." He now recommends it to persons similarly affected. It is for sale by A. P. McLemore.

MR. CHARLES HAYNES, a young man of Weatherford, Texas is making quite a reputation as a mind-reader. He has performed some of the most difficult feats in that line ever accomplished by Bishop, who had acquired a world-wide reputation previous to his death about a year ago in New York.
"Perhaps you would not think so but a very large proportion of diseases in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Cyrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that very few people, unless it is case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. There are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of everyday life. The most sensible advice is, when you have one, get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by A. P. McLemore.
THE late democratic congress thoroughly demonstrated its inability to remedy the finances of the country. This inability, we think, arose from sectional jealousy and conflicting factional interests rather than from incompetency. The republicans made no better showing and are in no position to criticize. It was demonstrated that there was no more unanimity among them on the subject than among the democrats.
WHAT will the pops do about their idol, congressman Late Pence of Colorado, since he has been elected vice-president of a railroad? Will they call him a heartless corporation tool and a soulless plutocrat. Or, is a pop politician unlike politicians of other parties; incapable of falling from grace.

ONE of the greatest causes of slow work and delay by our legislature in perfecting legislation lies in the unwillingness of so large a body. There are too many members; too many men to have a say and to attempt to engraff their peculiar ideas on every measure that comes up. We believe that economy and efficiency both would be achieved by cutting the number of districts down to about one half of the present number.
Chamberlain's Cough Remedy gives the best satisfaction of any cough medicine I handle, and as a seller leads all other preparations in this market. I recommend it because it is the best remedy I ever handled for coughs, colds and croup. A. W. BALDRIDGE, Millersville, Ill. For sale by A. P. McLemore.

SOME QUEER CASES OF DISAPPEARANCE.

A Wisconsin Abduction That Nivals the Missing of Charlie Ross—How a Daughter of France Came to Settle in the Badger State.

The laws of inheritance in European countries have led to the disappearance of many children and even adults, while in this country, where such property motives out a smaller figure, there nevertheless has existed a tendency to steal children and hold them for ransom, to kidnap young women for various purposes, and to remove adults in order that insurance or other benefits might be obtained.

Willie Dickinson, son of Captain W. F. Dickinson, of Commonwealth, Wis., vanished one afternoon on his way from school, and was followed for years through many states. At the time of the affair Commonwealth was a small mining and lumbering village, and had been founded but two years.

The town was controlled by a large mining corporation for which Mr. Dickinson acted in the capacity of superintendent, and the family resided in a house furnished by the corporation. Willie was at this time a bright and healthy 5-year-old boy, and was attending the district school. On the day he was stolen—November 1, 1881—while on his way from school, he stopped at his aunt's residence, where he had previously left his overcoat, taking it and putting it on, telling her that he was going directly home to see his baby, as he called a 3-week-old brother. He started away, and when some distance from and between the latter house and his own, he met a teamster with whom he was acquainted, and upon being asked if he wished a ride gave the teamster the same answer he had given his aunt. This was the last seen of him by persons knowing him, it being then about 3:45 o'clock. Shortly before 6 o'clock the mother became anxious for her child. At 6 o'clock Captain Dickinson arrived home, and finding that his boy had not returned from school, set out to search for him.

The whole village was notified that Willie had been lost or stolen, and it did not take long to muster 600 will-be honest men, who commenced a thorough search through the woods and town. After the searchers had been at work all night they were re-called by 2:00 more men, and the hunt progressed vigorously. Says the Chicago Herald: "For three days these kind hearted miners scoured the woods far and near without success, and then returned down-hearted, sad and weary. Thirty Indians were hired and sent into the woods, returning a week later with the same report. A full description of the lost boy was sent everywhere, but nothing was heard of his whereabouts for a long time. The Pinkertons were put on the case, and the sad affair was published in all of the newspapers, with a full description and the amount of the reward. This led to a vast number of letters to the parents from people who thought they could furnish clues. Some of the most important searches were thus instituted.

When the people of France, stung to desperation by long and cruel wrongs under the monarchy which for 800 years had enslaved and humiliated them, in 1793 deposed and put to death their sovereign, Louis XVI., and his queen, the beautiful Austrian, Marie Antoinette, they left alive the Dauphin Charles Louis, a boy 8 years old. Him the reigning republicans consigned to the cruel care of one Simon, the cobbler. Him the royalists proclaimed king as Louis XVII.

Simon's care made the boy an imbecile almost an idiot. He was grievously afflicted with scrofulous sores in his legs, especially about the knees. This boy was an elephant on the hands of the chosen democratic leaders of the French people, and was equally worthless to the royalists, so it was agreed in 1794 that a committee should find means of sending the son of Louis out of the republic. But he was sick. It can readily be supposed there was an agreement made between the two hostile factions, to both of whom he was an eyesore, to relieve themselves of his presence.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON XI—MARCH 17—ZACCHEUS THE PUBLICAN.

Golden Text: The Son of Man is Come to Seek and to Save that Which Was Lost.—Luke XIX: 1-10.

Introductory. Jesus was on his last visit to Jerusalem. It was the season of the Passover, and thousands of pilgrims from every quarter were thronging to the sacred city for the purpose of being present at that great festival. This fact will explain "the press" which made it impossible for Zaccheus to see the Lord. Jericho was on the borders between the Roman province of Judea and the tetrarchy of Herod Antipas. All commerce between the two territories was subject to a tax, which was collected by the publicans, of whom there were a great many resident there. They were specially hateful to the Jews as agents of the Romans.

The taxes imposed by the Romans on subject nations were farmed out to men of great wealth, who, for a specified sum paid at once into the Roman treasury, obtained the right to collect the taxes of a province or city. These contractors entrusted the actual collection to sub-contractors and there was wide scope for plunder.

L. The Lord Calls Zaccheus, vers. 1-5. 1. "Entered and passed through." Entered, and was in the act of passing through. He had been on the other side of the Jordan.

2. "A man named Zaccheus." The name means "rememberer." "Chief among the publicans." The principal agent of the Roman revenue collector. "He was rich." Had probably amassed his fortune by means of his office.

3. "Sought to see Jesus." Having doubtless heard much of him, he was anxious to get a glimpse of his face. "The press." The crowd. "Little of stature." And therefore at a disadvantage.

4. "Ran before." He was not to be behind. "A sycamore tree." An Egyptian fig tree. It throws out horizontal branches at a short distance from the ground, and is therefore easy to climb.

5. "Jesus... looked up and saw him." What called his attention to Zaccheus, we are not told. "Zaccheus, make haste, and come down." He was seeking to see Jesus, and Jesus found him. It must have surprised him no little to have heard his own name called. "For to-day I must abide at thy house." Must not do it for my sake, but for yours.

6. "Zaccheus Responds to the Call, vers. 6-10. 7. "They all murmured." The whole crowd was indignant, and spoke out against the action of Jesus. "To be guest with a man that is a sinner." One before the charge had been brought against him, and since he was the friend of publicans, and he had not denied it.

8. "Zaccheus stood." Stood up before the whole company. "The half of my goods I give to the poor." That is, I now set apart the half of my goods for the poor. A great donation. "If I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, if I have used my office to exact more than lawful taxes, if I restore him fourfold." The law of Moses required the restitution of only one-fifth in addition to the principal.

LITTLE DANGER ON THE SEA.

It Is Just About as Safe as Staying on the Land.

Nearly 700,000,000 people carried on American steamers during the last fiscal year, and only 225 lives lost, of whom only ninety-six were passengers, is the prominent feature of the annual report of Supervising Inspector General Dumont of steam vessel inspection service, says the Marine Journal. This is a smaller mortality among the same number of people, we have no doubt, than if they had all stayed at home.

It is further stated in the report that of the nearly 11,000 boilers inspected, accidents causing the loss of life have occurred to but fifteen of them, defects in upward of 700 being detected and remedied. Also, that of 100,274 new life-preservers examined, only sixty-four were found deficient. This statement shows that as great care is taken in the inspection of equipments to prevent disaster as in the machinery employed to run them and the men to man them. In regard to the latter, no less than thirty-eight applicants for master's and pilot's licenses were rejected during the year on account of color blindness.

Although 1,544 passed the tests, all of which goes to show that the traveling public and the steam vessel fraternity as well have every reason to repose full confidence in the inspection system as at present managed.

Society in Billville. "Will you go to the hangin' with me to-morrow, Miss Sue?" "Can't; I'm going to a buryin'." "Well, will you give me the next hangin'?" "Can't; I'm done promised."

The Maiden and the Fast Tennis. He, at 11 p. m.—I must be going. She, in pain—Would it were over. He, rapturously—And are you so sorry to see me go? She—NO. No. Would that you were gone.

Faint Heart Never Won Fair Lady. She, severely—How many more times are you going to ask me to marry you? He, calmly—How many more times are you going to refuse me?—Truth.

Concise Statements. Dresden taxes cats. A Paris store has 4,000 employees. Diamonds have been discovered in Tasmania.

In Eastport, Me., there is a lady eighty-two years of age, who is a confirmed quackster, hopelessly addicted to the habit. She has completed nine in the past eighteen months, and is at work on the tenth. This is in addition to doing her household, visiting the sick and being a good neighbor.

In Panaria, one of the smaller islands of the Lipari or Aeolian group of islands in the Mediterranean, all the officers of the community inhabiting the island are united in one person. Padre Michelangelo, who is priest, mayor, harbor master, postmaster, master of the marine telegraph and official general. He fills the whole of them to the entire satisfaction of the community.

—Mr. Percy Lindsey has returned from Kaufman county. He went back there a month or so ago thinking he was tired of the western country. But he says it took him only a few weeks to decide that he preferred the west to that section of the state. He thinks the masses of the people are much better off here than they are there, and especially is this true of the poorer people; then, the superior health enjoyed here is worth every advantage of any sort that eastern Texas may possess over this section.

Mr. F. G. Alexander returned several days ago from Chicago much elated over his success in purchasing a large and superior stock of goods at very close prices. He spent nearly three weeks in connection with others studying the market and making his selections to the best advantage. His effort was to purchase such a stock of goods in the various lines handled by his firm as would exactly meet the tastes and requirements of this section and aided by his four years experience in selling goods here, he feels confident that his goods will fill the bill to a nicety in quality styles and prices to suit all. Their goods are beginning to arrive and by the middle of next week they will have a good display opened up and ready to show to their customers. He says his purchases were larger than ever before and that it will crowd their store to hold their stock when all are opened up.
