Flag-waving crowd greets ex-hostages

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) Thirty-nine weary Americans freed after a harrowing hijack and more than two weeks' captivity in Beirut were welcomed to freedom today with embraces and cheers from relatives and countrymen and a hearty American breakfast.

"We are here, we are in good shape, they did a good job," said for-mer hostage Steve Willett, 36, of

A flag-waving crowd of about 100 people greeted the freed hostages with a shout of "Welcome back," as they got off buses that transported them to the U.S. Air Force Hospital at Wiesbaden, where they were offered free medical and psychiatric check-ups

Signs hung from the Wiesbaden hospital said, "Welcome Back to Freedom," and "We Missed You."

Many of the hostages — who had been traveling all night — looked tired. But spokesman Navy Capt. Jay Coupe said after they ate breakfast:

They are all in good spirits.' The Americans stayed in the facility's third floor, where the 52 Americans taken captive in Iran stayed

He and other former hostages were reluctant to discuss their ordeal and the way it was handled by the United States.

Minutes before they motored to the hospital, Vice President George Bush and more than 200 people greeted the former hostages with flags, yellow ribbons and a chorus of Bruce Springsteen's pop song "Born in the USA" after they disembarked from a U.S. Air Force C-141 transport plane at Rhein-Main Air Force Base, 24 miles to the east "You're back and America did not compromise her principles to get you back," Bush said. He and his wife, Barbara, warmly greeted the hostages.

Bush reminded the group of the killing of one hostage, U.S. Navy Petty Officer Robert Dean Stethem, 23, of Waldorf, Md., and of seven other Americans kidnapped in Lebanon since March 1984 who remain missing.

Texans take down ribbons after hostages' release

Champagne, tears and prayers greeted the news that 39 American hostages - three of them from Texas — had been set free from 17 days of captivity in Lebanon.

In Corpus Christi, about 20 home-owners began untying yellow ribbons about noon Sunday, when the release appeared certain. The rib-bons had fluttered for much of the

"We took them down as soon as we had heard the hostages crossed the border into Syria," resident ydia Alvarado said.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, sued a statement saying he was pleased with the hostage release. But he also added a sober note to the

"We must not forget, though, that one of the hostages did not make it home alive and that seven Americans kidnapped in Lebanon, are still being held," he said.

In Dallas, an interdenominational service was scheduled for noon today in Thanks-Giving Square. In addition to the bells in Thanks-Giving Square ringing for three minutes, a moment of silence was planned for Robert Stethem, the Navy frogman killed on the first day of the crisis, and for the seven Americans kidnapped in Lebanon

Among Texans, there were calls for military retaliation against the Lebanese group that held the hostages from a hijacked TWA flight, but also pleas for patience in U.S. dealings with the Middle East.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said, "It is imperative that those who are guilty of hijacking and murder be turned over to American or international authorities to stand trial and

Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas, of Hunt said the United States should insist that the seven remaining Americans be released.

"While their plight has not been as well publicized, the holding of these hostages is in total violation of international law," Loeffler said.

A truck driver, Henry Keiner of Ontario, Calif., in an interview at a Mesquite truck stop Sunday, said he couldn't understand why the United States held off from an assault at the airport where the hostages were being held captive.

We know the guy in charge, yet we don't get him. I don't understand. We put him on TV, but we don't put them in jail," Keiner said. The Rev. Jerold Shetler of Preston Hollow Presbyterian Church in Dallas said he cautioned his parishioners "against any impulsive or vengeful act" and "prayed for patience and a spirit of reconciliation and peace.' Max Zucker, rabbi at the Congregation Tiferet Israel in north Dallas, returned from Israel on Wednesday. He said Israel probably will release its Lebanese prisoners in the next few days. "My first reaction is, 'Let's retaliate.' But that's going to bring about counter-retaliation, so I'd have to rely on the wisdom of the men and women in Washington and in Israel," Zucker said.

Stanley Toland of Highland Park, who said he had flown a flag since the day the hostages were taken. said Israel should refuse the hijackers' demand to free several hundred Lebanese prisoners until the seven are freed

Ex-hostages' ordeal may continue

By DANIEL Q. HANEY

BOSTON (AP) - Even after they get home, their ordeal may not be over. Nightmares, depression, guilt and anger are apt to be signs of lingering emotional wounds for some of the released TWA hijack hostages, experts say.

You can be certain that a number of these people will have acute symptoms of post-traumatic stress disorder right away," said Dr. Louis J. West of the University of California, Los Angeles.

This condition has been extensively studied in prisoners of the Vietnam War and U.S. hostages who were held in Iran for 444 days, as well as among victims of violent crimes and natural disasters.

Certainly not all the hostages released by Lebanese Shiftes on Sunday after 17 days in captivity will have the disorder, nor will those who do have it suffer the same

In fact, says Dr. Harry Kozol, "Not single generalization can be made as to the futures of these hostages, since you're dealing with an aggregate of individuals with different ages, backgrounds, temperments and values.

For some of the hostages, the symptoms may not surface until weeks or months after they get home. But for most, the experts predict, the emotional injuries will eventually clear up without leaving any permanent damage.

They will have mixed feelings of exhilaration, freedom and anger. They will be disoriented," said Dr. Martin Symonds of the Karen Horney Clinic in New York.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan stuck pretty close to his script as he endured a 17-day test of his resolve and restraint in the face of a hostage crisis reminiscent of the one that doomed the presidency of his predecessor. But as he has done so often in the past, he gave up a little in the end to win a bigger

a little to gain

From the outset, Reagan stated and restated his policy that the administration would not negotiate with the hijackers.

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

"You cannot...give in to the terror-ists," he said, "without knowing that you are then sentencing someone else to go through the same agony and other people to also be victimized.

Nor, he said, would the United plane and intricate diplomatic States attempt to retaliate against maneuvering over the gunmen's the hijackers of TWA Flight 847 if it demand that Lebanese prisoners in would endanger the hostages or other innocent people.
"I'm as frustrated as anyone,"

Reagan told a news conference on the fifth day of the ordeal. "I've pounded a few walls myself...but as I say, you have to be able to pinpoint they just feel detached and nonre-sponsive as though the whole thing happened to somebody else." the enemy. You can't just start shooting without having someone in your gunsights."

To attempt a rescue mission, he may be unwilling to take part in said, "would probably be sentencing activities that they enjoyed before a number of Americans to death."

And on the subject of retaliation,

Reagan's spokesman, Larry - Anger. Some may be upset that Speakes, made clear early on that the negotiations for their release those holding the Americans hosdragged on and they weren't set tage might well attain their objectree sooner. "Their misperception is tive, the release of more than 700 Shiites held by Israel, if the Americans were freed. But he insisted the United States would not ask Israel to give up its prisoners

Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Sunday after the Americans had been freed that he expects Israel to release its prisoners, but he insisted, "There is no linkage there, and I think it is extremely important for us and for others who are combating terrorism to see to it that the linkage does not exist." There were no concessions; made no deals," Speakes said. But on Sunday, a deal was made. On the day before, the carefully arranged release of the Americans hit a snag, which at least one Shiite leader blamed on Reagan's remark in a speech the day before that "terrorists, and those who support them, must — and will — be held to account."

The radical Hezbollah faction, which was holding four of the hos-tages, and Shiite leader Nabih Berri, who had taken responsibility for the rest, were demanding a U.S. pledge of "non-belligerency," a guarantee the United States would not retaliate once the hostages were free.

The Syrians, who had intervened with the Lebanese captors to win the Americans' release, informed the administration it could overcome the hitch by making a statement that the Syrians could then portray as the desired pledge.

Late Saturday night, with no warning or explanation, a State Department spokesman telephoned major news organizations and read a one-sentence statement.

"The United States," he said, "reaffirms its long-standing support for the preservation of Lebanon, its government, its stability and its security and for the mitigation of the suffering of its people.

It was not a concession, perhaps; officials insisted it was no more than a restatement of longstanding policy. But it was part of the deal. Hours later, the Americans began their long journey home.

When Jimmy Carter was president, the administration issued a similar statement of policy as part of the complex agreement to end the Iran hostage crisis.

That statement said it was U.S. policy "to refrain from interfering, either directly or indirectly, politically or militarily, in the internal affairs of Iran." That, too, was interpreted as a pledge of non-retaliation.

Reagan's national security adviser, Robert C. McFarlane, said the preservation-of-Lebanon statement apparently "was a factor" in gaining the hostages' freedom. But he sought to minimize its significance.

"I wouldn't say it was central," McFarlane said. "Some fairly artificial requirements came into play in the eleventh hour.

The Texas Judicial Council reported recently that district courts — Texas' primary trial courts for civil litigation and felony crimes are becoming increasingly clogged by a backlog of unresolved cases, mostly civil lawsuits.

The sluggishness of the Texas courts has pushed the backlog of civil cases up from 580,000, on Aug. 31, 1983, up to 620,000 cases, on Aug. 31, 1984, according to the council's

average is only 54 percent.

As of last Aug. 31, Tom Green County had 794 civil cases and 222 criminal cases pending.

The credit, or blame, for the speedy concept of justice goes to 119th District Judge Curt F. Steib.

Steib teamed in the 1970s with former 51st District Court Judge Earl Smith, now an appeals court justice, to devise a system of tracking cases and of pressuring lawyers into speedy action.
That system, Steib said, remains in place today, with a few modifica-tions added by district judges Royal Hart and Marilyn Aboussie.

Brynner bows out as king of Siam

NEW YORK (AP) — After lording it over a total of 189 wives, 447 children and 12 Annas in 34 years, Yul Brynner took his final bow as the king of Siam as he closed out his 4,625th — and final — performance of "The King and I."

In a final bow Sunday, Brynner bent his knees, then shot upright in the gesture so often photo-graphed: arms shot high and wide, eyes glittering, a big grin on his face. During a five-minute curtain call, the audience stood and the orchestra played 'Auld Lang Syne.

Brynner walked slowly to his real-life wife, Kathy Lee Brynner, who played the lead royal dancer, and the two made their measured way to the center of the stage and up the steps of the set, Siam's 1860s palace. At the top, they waved a final, royal fare-well, then walked into the wings of the Broadway

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Actor Sean Penn is free on $1,000 bond after he was charged with assault and battery involving two journalists, who said the star of "The Falcon and the Snowman" attacked them with a rock.

Penn, 24, refused comment on the charges during a late-night bond hearing Sunday. His only comment during the hearing was "Yeah," when asked if he understood the charges against him.

The two British journalists, reporter Ian Markham-Smith, 33, and photographer Laurence Cot-

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Casino Control Commissioner Joel R. Jacobson, whose description of Frank Sinatra as an "obnoxious bully" led the singer to boycott the state, says "Doonesbury" was unfair to Sinatra.

a dealer.
"While I understand fully that satire can only flourish under the permissiveness of poetic license, in all fairness I must observe that according to sworn testimony of the four casino personnel involved, Mr. Trudeau's recent 'Doonesbury' cartoon strips have inaccurately portrayed the event surrounding Frank Sinatra's visit to the Golden Nugget casino in Atlantic City more than a year ago," Jacobson said.

Leave FOIA intact

Without the Freedom of Information Act Americans might never have learned about some of the U.S. government's greatest mistakes.

The 19-year-old law, which guarantees citizen access to most government documents, has helped reporters and scholars uncover scores of scandals from congressional abuse of travel funds to the My Lai massacre. For the fifth year in a row, the Reagan administration and Sen. Orrin Hatch are pressing for revisions that would make such discoveries more difficult. Congress would be wise to resist their plan.

The Reagan-Hatch proposals, soon to be considered by the Senate Judiciary Committee, would savage virtually every provision of the law. Among other changes it would impose high fees and long waits on citizens who ask for documents, declare more FBI and CIA records offlimits and allow businesses to squelch disclosure of previously public information about them. Although he offers no evidence, Hatch says the bill is necessary to protect national security, lawenforcement investigations and business trade secrets. He argues that the measure would relieve the burden on government agencies that now must spend time and money searching files in response to FOIA requests.

Compounding the errors, the bill's language is broader than Hatch's aims require. By granting blanket exemptions to many kinds of information, the measure could keep out of public reach useful information the disclosure of which in no way jeopardizes national security. By imposing delays and higher fees it could suppress important public data. And by removing many law-enforcement and corporate records from scrutiny, it could eliminate incentives from both government agencies and private businesses to serve the public interest. The bill might ultimately be used to conceal information that government officials find embarrassing.

The bill's flaws, of course, should not be the central issue when lawmakers take up Hatch's plan. Instead, they should ask a single question: What serious problem is the measure meant to correct? So far, the evidence shows that the plan would deprive Americans of important information without making the country safer. Unless Congress can uncover impressive reasons for revision, it should vote to keep the FOIA intact.

Commission Chairman Clarence Thomas said the commission believes that Congress, in passing civil rights legislation, didn't intend to "take on wholesale restructuring of wages that were set by non sex-based decisions" of employers, through collective bargaining or by the marketplace.

Comparable worth isn't the same thing as equal pay for men and women on the same job. It involves determining whether one job is comparable with another, based on factors that might include the qualifications for getting the job or the difficulty of the work.

Comparable worth is based on the idea that it constitutes sex discrimination if the pay is less for jobs typically held by women than for jobs typically held by men. The pay should be equal not only for the same job but for comparable jobs as well, advocates of comparable worth say - even if it means ignoring

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is reviewing the lower court ruling that required the state of Washington to adopt a comparable worth plan. The law does - and should continue to — prohibit wage discrimination between men and women doing the same job. But, in matters where sex discrimination isn't an issue, government edict should not be substituted for the forces of the market.

The U.S.-Soviet restrictions on weapons that can shoot down incoming missiles were designed to maintain "mutual assured destruction" as a deterrence against either side attempting a nuclear first strike. The Soviets' near-hysterical tion to President Reagan's so-called "Star Wars" program, which would enable the United States to shoot down incoming missiles in space, is based on their fear that successful development of such a system would allow us to launch a nuclear strike against them without fear of an overwhelming Soviet response.

Yet now the United States finds itself in the frightening position of facing a gigantic Soviet ABM defense in only a few years — long before "Star Wars" is even off the drawing board. Politically, this could be a devastating embarrassment for the Reagan administration,

7 ASHINGTON - A major as a high-level White House source

The ABM disclosure "has us very worried," the official said, adding with surprising candor: "Despite our own defense buildup, this means we may be far more vulnerable now than what we said the nation was under Jimmy Carter. And it's happened on our watch.' What exactly was the intelligence information that has administration leaders in such a tizzy? The identification of literally hundreds of pre-viously undisclosed sites where the Soviets are constructing — or have already completed — ABM facilities.

The disclosure comes in the recent, top-secret "National Intelligence Estimates" of Soviet strength a document running into hundreds of pages and representing the distilled wisdom of all U.S. military and civilian intelligence agencies.

For years, a source said, this particular series of NIEs was delayed because of "the interminable wrangling over the nature of Soviet stra-tegic forces." The CIA invariably argued that Soviet strategic weapons were strictly defensive, designed to launch a retaliatory blow at U.S. population centers after an American first strike.

But all that changed in 1980, the cies agreed that the Soviets were in fact building an offensive strategic force, which could take out most U.S. missile systems in a pre-emptive

A recent intelligence breakthrough confirms this appraisal of Soviet intentions. For obvious reasons, we won't go into details of the breakthrough, lest the Soviets be able to piece together what happened and take corrective action.

Suffice it to say that some unsung genius in the U.S. intelligence community discovered a "key" that unlocked the mysteries of the enormous amount of raw, hitherto inde-

Mitterrand likes to draw what he sees as a paradox between the U.S. campaign to sell SDI to its European allies while at the same time presuring them to deploy Pershing and cruise missiles to counter the cipherable information on the Soviets gathered from various sources. Analysts were then able to pinpoint hundreds more military sites than they could before — par-ticularly the peviously unknown ABM locations.

The National Intelligence Estimates don't hazard a guess as to exactly when the Soviets will have an effective ABM network in place. But they do disclose that one new Soviet system, ABM-3, has actually been tested — successfully.

Additionally, the Soviet SA-12 surface-to-air missile has been tested successfully as an ABM. The Soviets will soon be able to produce hundreds of these mobile SA-12s. SLOWPOKE OF THE WEEK: Has

RUSSELL BAKER Marriage is comedy, isn't it?

TEW YORK — When America was a serious place marriage was a rich source of comedy. We are not so serious now. Too many of us have been to college only to acquire papers of certification. We collect more bombs than we can ever use. We refer to poor, ignorant people as "disadvantaged." We take pride in the beauty of our selfadjustment or bore strangers silly by boasting about our neuroses, impotence, ill temper, alcoholism, anorexia.

In a serious country. not do these things.

In a serious country strangers do not telephone you with outlandish proposals and then, upon being asked if they are crazy, reply,

And now that the country is no longer serious, marriage is no longer a source of comedy.

Now marriage is a curiosity for sociological research. Marriage is a relationship, a legal contract, a negotiated treaty between two potentially hostile powers. Violate the dishwashing provision, the baby-sit-ting clause, and it's Katie bar the door, call the lawyers and head for the bomb shelter.

President Reagan's management of the latest airline hijacking problem reminds me of that more serious America in which marriage was medic. In the old comedy movies about marriage, a problem often arose that was like the political problem Reagan faces with the jacking. This began with the husband rarely the wife — making an angry speech, then walking out. The crisis was usually about something trivial: a quarrel about dishwashing or baby-sitting, for instance. In high rhetorical dudgeon, the husband packed his bag, exited by slamming the door and went to live at his

I grew up on these movies and got married at the tag end of the serious-American era, so I was always aware that marriage was comedy, not tragedy, and so too, before I had tainty that I was going to stay married whether I wanted to or not, and the reason I was going to stay married was that I did not belong to a club with sleeping accommodations.

Spencer Tracy, William Powell, Cary Grant and those other great guys could drop the bomb and walk out on marriages because they were rich enough to belong to swanky clubs.

I wasn't. If I finished delivering my terrifying farewell-to-marriage speech by slamming the door behind me and walking off with my suitcase, I would have had no place to go except the neighborhood drugstore, where a grown man with a full suitcase and a raging temper would look silly drinking an ice cream soda.

The movie walkouts set up complications that led to sophisticated comedy payoffs, but a real-life walkout - if you went through with it could only turn your rage into a coarse joke once you lugged the suitcase back to the house and told your wife that since you didn't colleagues not to block Reagan's Euro-missile strategy.

The French president, moreover, has proved to be one of Reagan's most dependable allies in underbelong to a club you'd decided to

Well, you went through marriage trying to enjoy its great opportunities for melodrama, but always aware that if you carried the theatrics to excess, you could quickly find yourself playing top banana in a burlesque.

Being comedy, marriage required subtle skills of husbands who didn't belong to residential clubs, as well as wives who would rather have gone into purdah than carried out a has noticeably waned since then. Emissaries he recently sent to Washington returned empty-handed from talks on what West Germany could threat to go home to mother.

You had to be able to tune the dialogue so that great confrontations do as a partner in SDI research.

That makes Kohl ripe for Mitter could be peacably defused before you and the packed suitcase went rand's bold but still murky scheme called Eureka: a long-range program for combining European science and technology with major implications out that door

It took skill, but it was worth learning, for what was marriage anyhow, if you were serious about "till death do us part"? When two strangers mesmerized by a momen-tary love swore to travel all the way to the grave together, then felt com-pelled to abide by their oath even after they knew the truth about each other, only comedy and catastrophe were possible, and comedy was preferable.

The trick was to satisfy your honor with a properly inflamed peech, but never slam the door ehind you. Reagan's behavior toward the hijack problem conforms to this standard of wisdom. Despite past oratory stating that such provocation would turn him into a fire-breathing Mr. Dreadful, he so far refuses to slam that door.

After the satisfaction of hearing bang, he must wonder, what id he do next that would not

PORT GIBSON, Miss. (AP) — The nation's largest nuclear power plant, which will provide electricity to people in four states, began commercial operation today as consumer groups vowed protests at the controversial facility

"There's no problems; everything is drawing straight lines here," Ron Jacobson, reactor operator for Mississippi Power & Light Co., said by telephone from the control room of the Grand Gulf plant shortly after the changeover.

Company officials said they were aware of a demonstration planned for noon today at the plant, but would not say what steps, if any, had been taken to deal with the protest.

Grand Gulf Unit 1 will supply energy for west Mississippi, as well as for consumers in Louisiana, Arkansas and Missouri. The Rev. James Demus of the Little Rock, Ark based People United to Fight Grand Gulf, said members of his group would attempt to force their way into the facility to shut down production or be arrested try-

NEA: Testing favored

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Education Association today unveiled a Gallup poll that Largest nuclear plant bolsters its arguments for fatter teacher paychecks, but undercuts its opposition to competency tests for classroom veterans.

The poll, commissioned by the teachers' union, was released here at the annual convention of the 1.7 million-member union.

Fifty-seven percent of those surveyed felt their local schools were having trouble attracting good teachers, and most blamed low pay.

Sixty-three percent felt higher salaries would improve teacher quality a great deal, while 60 percent felt competency testing would trigger big improvements.

The Gallup organization surveyed 1,501 adults by phone between April 29 and May 20. The standard margin of error was plus or minus three percentage points.

That puts competency testing "on a statistically equal par with higher salaries" as the prefered ways to improve teaching, the Gallup report

(AP) - Men dressed as cheerleaders, sultans and nuns hoisted a multicolored gay pride flag opposite San Francisco's city Hall, while in New York, a banner proclaiming "You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet" led the 16th annual Gay-Lesbian Pride Day Parade down Fifth Avenue.

About 100,000 people marched Sunday in San Francisco's 13th annual Gay and Lesbian Freedom Day celebration, and police estimated that an additional 150,000 turned out to offer support.

"From our freedom, we produce diversity, and from our diversity, we. gain strength to overcome our problems," said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who waved a gay pride flag from the speakers platform at the Civic Center plaza.

Fair conditions expected for Midland area

From Staff and Wire Reports

Temperatures are expected to cool slightly in the Midland area Tuesday as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport calls for fair and mild conditions with a low in the mid-60s tonight, becoming partly cloudy and warm with a high in the lower 90s Tuesday. Winds will be from the southeast at five to 10 mph tonight, continuing from the east Tuesday at less than 10 mph.

Sunday's high of 97 was eight degrees below the record set in 1946. This morning's low was five degrees above the 1967 record of 60.

STATE

Hot temperatures were on the Hot temperatures were on the menu for Texas today, with widely scattered thunderstorms in Northeast Texas and far West Texas, but clear skies elsewhere.

A weak low-pressure system in the Panhandle was blamed for thundershower activity late Sunday and early today. A high-pressure system offshore in the Gulf of Mexico was responsible for light southerly winds and clear skies over most of the state, the National Weather Service said.

Most Texans awakened to temperatures in the 60s and 70s. Overnight readings ranged from 66 at Houston, Cotulla, Hondo and Mid-land to 76 at Wichita Falls. Tempera-tures were expected to hit the 90s by afternoon for most places, although the mercury was likely to approach 105 in the Big Bend.

The weather service said rains in extreme Northeast Texas would develop as a low-pressure system moved southward out of Oklahoma. But the rest of North Texas was expected to remain dry and warm through Tuesday. NATION

Rain dampened broad sections of the South, West and Plains today. Showers and thunderstorms were scattered across Florida, southern Arkansas, through the lower Ohio Valley and from Montana across eastern Wyoming and Nebraska into western Kansas.

Showers ranged across eastern North Dakota and North Carolina. Today's forecast called for show ers and thunderstorms from the lower Great Lakes across Wisconsin, the Ohio and Tennessee valleys and southern Appalachians; from Pennsylvania across North Carolina; and across Florida. Midland, Ector, Crens, Upton, Glescock, Res-gan, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Berden, Martin, Howard, Sterling, Coke, Irion and Tom Green seun-ties: Tonight: Fair and mild with lows in mid-80s. Wind southeast 5 to 10 mph. Tuesday: Partly cloudy and warm with highs in lower 80s. Wind east 5 to 10 mph. July 4: Sunny and warm with a slight chance of atternoon thunderstorms.

Highs were expected to be in the 70s to low 80s in the Northeast; 80s in the northern two-thirds of the Plains; near 90 to the 90s in the Gulf of Mexico states and Texas; and 100 or higher in the desert Southwest.

EL PASO — The El Paso Dialbos helped some, but the Midland Angels finally straightened their halos here Sunday night with an 11-4 Texas League victory, ending the night-mare of a nine-game losing streak.

The Angels' last victory came on June 19 in Beaumont to open the second half of the Texas League West Division race. But since that one day in first place, the Angels hit the skids with nine straight losses, five to Beaumont and four more here in El Paso.

Now the streak is over and the Angels can start thinking about picking up some ground after spilling the Diablos out of first place on Sunday. Beaumont took over the

The Angels pulled out a 15-hit attack to produce its 11 runs, scoring seven unearned runs in the eighth inning to insure the victory.

El Paso's Glenn Braggs and Kiki Diaz both committed errors in the inning to set up the Angel onslaught, which was highlighted by a solo homer by Reggie Montgomery, a two-run double by Mark Madril and a two-run single by James Randle.

Midland catcher David Heath broke open a 1-1 tie in the fourth with a three-run homer to left. However, El Paso cut the margin to 4-3 in the seventh and it looked like the Angels might let another one slip through its fingers.

But the Angels got a little help with the errors in the eighth and ended the losing streak in style with the seven runs.

Bob Kipper went seven innings to pick up the victory for the Angels, yielding six hits, but only three runs to El Paso. Kipper was aided in the field by three double plays. Todd Fisher finished up the last two in-nings, giving up four hits and one

The Angels will return home Tuesday night to face San Antonio at 7:30 p.m. at Angels Stadium. The Angels are hoping that the scheduled fire-works on Wednesday and Thursday nights will ignite a spark in the team now that the losing skid is over.

El Paso and Midland end their series here tonight with the Angels hoping to escape with a 24 record and a 30 road trip.

weight title bout Sunday. Paul stopped Blake at 2:14 of the 14th round to retain his title.

Paul rocks Blake in 14

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Jimmy Paul not only wanted to beat "Rockin" Robin Blake in his first title defense, but wanted to do it so convincingly he would stand out among the lightweight division's three champions.

to the head of Robin Blake during the ninth round of their scheduled 15-round IBF Light-

Paul accomplished both goals Sunday with a masterful combination of defensive skills and punching power, knocking the challenger down in the ninth round before stopping him at 2:14 of the 14th to retain his International Boxing Federation crown.

"I wanted to show I had the heart and desire and I wanted to show I had the big punch," said Paul. "Robin Blake is a guy who has more heart than anyone I ever fought."

PAUL, WHO won the title April 6 with a 15-round decision over Harry Arroyo, recorded his 19th knockout in running his record to 23-1. More importantly, perhaps, he won the respect of his trainer, Emanuel Steward.

To beat Robin Blake is what really made him the champion," said Steward. "Beating Harry Arroyo gave him the championship, but Blake was the man he had to beat to really lay claim to it."

Paul dominated Blake from the first bell, piling up points in the early rounds by being patient and picking off Blake's jabs while scoring with occasional, but very effective, combinations to the head. A left hook late in the ninth round wobbled Blake and the combination that followed put the challenger down for the first time in his pro career. Blake managed to finish the final 20 seconds of the round but from then Paul hit Blake almost at will.

The end came in the 14th round when Blake, pummeled by a combination on the ropes, turned his back and began walking away. Referee Joey Curtis then moved in to stop the fight.

"I knew where I was all the way up to that point," said Blake, who admitted that "maybe it was for the best" the bout was stopped. "I tried, that's the bottom line," the challenger added. "I hurt inside but I have to accept it. I lost." For Blake, the loss was another setback in a oncepromising career that seemed to have no limits. He had been on a five-fight winning streak since suffering two consecutive losses that marred a 22-0 record.

BUT FOR Paul, the opportunities are there to fight in what has become a lucrative division. With two other champions. Livingstone Bramble of the World Boxing Association and Jose Luis Ramirez of the World Boxing Council, he has several opportunities to cash in for more than the $125,000 he received

"We're talking about two more fights, then moving onto a unification fight," said Paul. In another fight on the card, Olympic heavyweight gold medalist Henry Tillman made it five in a row in his pro career with a six-round unanimous decision win over veteran Leroy Caldwell.

Tillman, who plans to campaign as a cruiserweight, pitched a shutout against the outclassed Caldwell, winning every round on the cards of the ringside judges. It was the first time Tillman had gone past the fourth round in any of his pro fights. Two Olympic Box-Off finalists were also successful. Junior welterweight Joey Belinc stopped Otis Rogers at 2:59 of the first round while light heavyweight Rickey Womack took a unanimous six-round decision over Bob Smith.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Al Unser Jr. says he couldn't have won the second annual U.S. Grand Prix at the Meadowlands without the help of Mario Andretti and Dan-

The 23-year-old Unser scored his first victory of the season and the second Indy-car triumph of his career Sunday, driving hard and avoiding the mistakes that sidelined pre-race favorites Andretti and Sullivan and leading contender Bobby

Unser finished more than 36 seconds ahead of runner-up Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil, with third place going to Al Unser Sr., a three-time Indy 500 champion and father of the

IT WAS the best combined finish in a race for the Unsers of Albuquerque, N.M., but one that wouldn't have been possible without the bad racing luck that hit Andretti, Sullivan and Rahal.

"I don't think if Mario or Danny had finished the race I could have run with them as fast as they were running at the beginning," said Unser. "They just disappeared."

Andretti and Sullivan, racing from the front row, ran away from the rest of the 28-car field at the start of the 168-mile race through the parking lots and access roads of the northern New Jersey sports complex.

Andretti, the defending champion here and the overall leader in the current CART-PPG point standings, led the first 10 laps. Sullivan, the Indy 500 champion, held the lead for the next 15 before pitting.

Then racing luck began to take Sullivan spun on lap 30 and never challenged again, finally exiting on lap 80 with a blown turbocharger.

On lap 34, Rahal ran into the back of Andretti's car. Andretti retired at that point and Rahal called it quits two laps later.

The younger Unser pitted his March 85C on lap 34, then took the lead when Fittipaldi ducked into the pits four laps later. Fittipaldi regained the lead when Unser pitted on lap 68, but Unser was on top for good on lap 80 when the Brazilian pitted again.

"The objective going into the race was to go as fast as I could and not make any mistakes," said the freck-le-faced winner, who averaged 90.167 mph in breaking the mark of 80.742 mph set by Andretti in the rain-marred first running of this event last year.

Unser said he was concerned by an engine which ran warm during practice this week, but his crew convinced him nothing was wrong.

'My chief mechanic and the car designer said it was going to run hot and I asked them whether they wanted me to slow down when I saw a certain number," he said. "They said stand on it until it quits, and it never quit."

THE 46-year-old father of the winner said he didn't mind finishing third behind his son.

"It's a heck of a feeling to race with my own son," said the elder Unser. "He's shown a lot of upgrading, and he's gone from go-carts to sprint cars to CanAm to here. He has progressed so fast, but that's because he's been running race cars since he's been eight years old." Still, the elder Unser quipped, his son should show a little more respect for his father by not beating

Michael Andretti, son of Mario, finished fourth as the only other driver on the lead lap. Bruno Giacommelli of Italy, Fittipaldi's teammate and another Formula I driver, was fifth. Tom Sneva, whose Eagle was the only American-built car in the race, was sixth.

A crowd of 43,567 watched the race, about 9,000 more than last

The race was shown live, but NBC cut away before the end in order to telecast a speech by President Reagan concerning the release of 39 hijacked TWA hostages.

Dodgers search for missing Howe

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Los Angeles Dodgers' patience with Steve Howe, who was suspended for the 1984 season because of cocaine abuse, seems to be wearing thin af-ter the relief pitcher failed to show up for their game against the Atlanta Braves.

Not even Howe's wife, Cyndy, nor his attorney, Jim Hawkins, knew the relief pitcher pitcher's whereabouts Sunday, according to Dodger offi-cials. Howe definitely was not, how-ever, at Dodger Stadium for Los Angeles' 4-3 victory over the Braves.
"I'm very disappointed the guy

Howe's absence came a week after he had been fined $300 for showing up more than three hours late for a game against Houston at Dodger Stadium. The 27-year-old reliever phoned Lasorda that time, though, saying that he was stranded because his wife took his car keys when she

Then, on Saturday night, eve of the game against the Braves, Howe failed to appear at a Boy Scout din-ner that was attended by many of his teammates and team officials. Howe, who had told Lasorda after Saturday afternoon's game that he'd see him at the dinner that night, was a chairman of the Boy Scout event. Howe, 1-1 with three saves and a 4.91 earned run average this season, underwent elbow surgery in the offseason. During spring training, he said he thought he had overcome his drug problems and had a new attitude to combat further temptations.

After he didn't appear Sunday, the Dodgers placed Howe on the National League restricted list "pending further information as to his condition and whereabouts," according to a statement by the ballclub.

"All we know is we don't know where he is," said Executive Vice President Fred Claire. "We've made all the calls we can think to make to try to locate him. We're very

While on the restricted list, Howe will continue to draw his $325,000 annual salary. The Dodgers, if they choose to do so, may replace him on the roster with another player. A player placed on the restricted list can be reinstated immediately upon receipt by the baseball commission of written notification by the team requesting reinstatement.

If Howe has relapsed, despite his previous bouts with cocaine, he will be treated "as if it is his first offense under the new Joint Drug Agreement," Eugene Orza, general coun-sel for the Major League Players Association said by telephone from

Jays thump Tigers again with relief

Associated Press

The opposition's book on the Toronto Blue Jays prior to this season was stay close, wait until the bullpen door swings open and get ready for the post-game celebration.

But the Blue Jays, tired of lateinning losses that speiled the efforts of consistent starters, did something about that problem last winter. They added time-tested relievers Bill Caudill and Gary Lavelle, and apologies are no longer necessary.

Lavelle, who excelled for 10 years with the San Francisco Giants, choked off a fifth-inning threat Sunday by the Detroit Tigers, who lost to the Blue Jays 6-5 to fall 31/2 games back of first-place Toronto in the American League East.

"In the fifth inning, we had the game won," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said.

Not quite. The Tigers had a chance to break a 5-5 tie when they loaded the bases with one out on reliever Jim Acker. But Lavelle, 3-2, came on and struck out pinch-hitter Barbaro Garbey and Chet Lemon the latter after falling behind 3-and-

"You've got to win the game right there, Anderson continued in his synopsis of the crucial fifth inning. " You generally lose because you didn't take it . . . We didn't do it, so we did not deserve to win.'

But the Blue Jays did. In upsetting the script of the past, Toronto starter Jim Clancy was shelled in 3% innings. Then the relief parade began. First came Acker, then Lavelle, then Caudill and finally Dennis Lamp, who earned his first save.

They combined to blank the defending World Series champions the rest of the way.

"It's a real lift, yes sir, to beat Detroit like that," Toronto Manager Bobby Cox said. "It's really nice to win two of three here. We gained a game on them, that's what it amounted to. Today's game ended up being a two-gamer

Guerrero homered in his final at-bat of the month, and the shot against Bruce Sutter gave Guerrero 15 home runs in June. Those 15 homers are the most ever hit by a National League player in the month of June — breaking the re-cord set by Ralph Kiner in 1947 and matched by Mike Schmidt in 1977 and tied the major-league mark set by Ruth in 1930 and later tied by "Indian Bob" Johnson in 1934 and Roger Maris in 1961. The homer also tied the Dodger record for homers in a month set by Duke Snider in August of 1953 when the team played in Brooklyn. The major-league record for most homers in a month is held by Rudy York, who hit 18 for Detroit in August, 1937. Guerrero, tied with Oakland's Dave Kingman for the major league home run lead with 19, homered in every series the Dodgers played in June and never went more than four games without a home run. Astros 6-4, Giants 2-7 ing streak.

Veteran Vida Blue pitched 7 1-3 innings and rookie Chris Brown scored three runs as the host Giants took the nightcap. Blue, 4-2, had a 7-1 lead after five innings.

The first-game loss gave San Francisco its longest losing streak since the team began playing on the West Coast in 1958. The Giants lost 13 straight in 1944 while in New York.

The Astros' victory in the first game gave them their 12th straight triumph over San Francisco, dating back to last Aug. 7. Houston's Bill Doran hit a two-run

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) - Miller Barber quickly turned the closing round of the U.S. Senior Open Golf Championship into a one-man show, finished with a 1-under 71, and won his third title in the event by four strokes Sunday.

Barber, 54, began the day with a three-stroke lead. The stout Texan birdied three of the first four holes, birdied three of the first four holes, and his lead reached seven strokes when second-place Roberto DeVicenzo four-putted at the par-4 sixth for a double bogey.

Barber shot three rounds of 71 and matched par once for a 3-under, 265 total on the 7,055-yard Edgewood Tahoe course. DeVicenzo closed with a 72 for his 269 total, one over par. Gay Brewer, with a 71 and 291, inished third a second consecutive year.

Five Midlanders gain state bowling berths

BY RANDY ISENBERG

Five Midland youth took top honors in the Regional Youth qualifying bowling tournament at Dellwood Lanes Saturday with winners advancing with automatic seeds into the state finals in Garland on Aug. 34.

The tournament was conducted by the Texas Grand Prix Scholarship Committee.

Winners were Jon White, major boys (15-18); Jeff Jordan, junior division boys (12-14); Ty Murphy, prep division boys (9-11); Krissy Sprague, prep division, girls; and Zac Mitchell, bantam division boys (8-under).

Excitement was generated in the junior boys division when Kevin Davidson emerged as the qualifying round leader, earning the top seed in the stair-step finals by edging eventual winner Jeff Jordan, 549-548.

Jordan, bowling from the No. 2 seed position, defeated Curtis Alford, 201-178, advancing to the finals to face Davidson. Jordan then defeated Davidson, 185-178, to earn the birth in the Whitewater State Finals. Davidson had rolled a 300-game during practice rounds conducted over the past two weeks.

In the prep division, Murphy led the way during qualifying rounds with a 488, three-game set. He had his hands full in defeating David Minihan in the final match, 147-134.

White had a 214-game and 577 series in qualifying rounds and won the finals with a 185 game. Mitchell defeated Sean Parnell in the finals with a 113 game. Winners are automatically seeded into the finals of the Whitewater State Gran Prix tournament in Garland, which is hosting the tournament for the third straight year.

Midland's Paul Cox conducted the Dellwood tournament.

Jays thump Tigers again with relief

Associated Press

The opposition's book on the Toronto Blue Jays prior to this season was stay close, wait until the bullpen door swings open and get ready for the post-game celebration.

But the Blue Jays, tired of late-inning losses that spoiled the efforts of consistent starters, did something about that problem last winter. They added time-tested relievers Bill Caudill and Gary Lavelle, and apologies are no longer necessary.

Lavelle, who excelled for 10 years with the San Francisco Giants, choked off a fifth-inning threat Sunday by the Detroit Tigers, who lost to the Blue Jays 6-5 to fall 31/2 games back of first-place Toronto in the American League East.

"In the fifth inning, we had the game won," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said.

Not quite. The Tigers had a chance to break a 5-5 tie when they loaded the bases with one out on reliever Jim Acker. But Lavelle, 3-2, came on and struck out pinch-hitter Barbaro Garbey and Chet Lemon the latter after falling behind 3-and-

"You've got to win the game right there, Anderson continued in his synopsis of the crucial fifth inning." You generally lose because you didn't take it . . . We didn't do it, so we did not deserve to win."

But the Blue Jays did. In upsetting the script of the past, Toronto starter Jim Clancy was shelled in 3% innings. Then the relief parade began. First came Acker, then Lavelle, then Caudill and finally Dennis Lamp, who earned his first save.

They combined to blank the defending World Series champions the rest of the way.

"It's a real lift, yes sir, to beat Detroit like that," Toronto Manager Bobby Cox said. "It's really nice to win two of three here. We gained a game on them, that's what it amounted to. Today's game ended up being a two-gamer.

It began on a high note for Toronto with Damaso Garcia hitting the first pitch from Jack Morris over the left-field fence for his second homer of the season to start a four-run outburst. Ernie Whitt capped the rally with a three-run homer, his ninth.

Garcia also doubled to drive in the winning run in the eighth inning after Aurelio Lopez, 1-5, made a wild pickoff throw moving Tony Fernandez to second. He scored on Garcia's third hit of the day.

Willie Upshaw hit his eighth homer to make it 5-3 in the third. Detroit scored three times in the first on Tom Brookens' third homer, a two-run shot, and a sacrifice fly by Darrell Evans. Lance Parrish's 11th homer, a two-run blow in the third inning, tied the game at 5-5.

Brewers 7, Yankees 5 "We don't have a guy who's going to be a big thumper, who can knock the ball out of the park, but we'll single you to death," said Milwaukee's Paul Householder.

He wasn't kidding. The Brewers stroked 14 singles, failing to get an extra base hit for the first time in 38 games. Charlie Moore drove in three runs, two with a tie-breaking tworun single in the fifth inning.

Both Householder and Paul Molitor had four hits for the Brewers. It was the first time in Householder's career he had four hits in a game. Mike Pagliarulo hit his fifth homer for New York.

you've won half the battle, according to Baltimore's Mike Boddicker, 8-7, who scattered eight hits.

"It makes things a lot easier if you get that first hitter in an inning." said Boddicker, who did it seven of nine times in winning for only the second time since May 21.

Cal Ripken and Gary Roenicke drove in runs with first-inning singles, and Boddicker, the AL's only 20-game winner last season, struck out six and walked one for his first shutout of the season.

"If somebody told me we'd get shut out three times in a week in this ball park (Fenway Park), I'd . . .,' Boston Manager John McNamara said. Detroit shut Boston out by a 3-0 score last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Royals 3, Angels 1 'My arm felt great and I felt that I could go out there and shut them out," Kansas City's Mark Gubicza

Gubicza, 6-4, did just that, blanking the Angels on three hits over eight innings before leaving the game with a slight muscle strain in his left thigh. Dan Quisenberry pitched the ninth, yielding a leadoff home run to Ruppert Jones — his 11th — before nailing down his 14th

Lonnie Smith and George Brett had run-scoring hits in support of Gubicza, who struck out seven and walked only one.

John Butcher, 5-7, snapped a personal five-game losing streak as Minnesota won its fourth straight with Ron Davis collecting his ninth save. Chicago, which got one run on Fisk's 18th homer, has lost five in a row and nine of 10.

Guerrero ends June blast spree

Associated Press

Moments after completing a home run spree that put him next to Babe Ruth in the record books, Pedro Guerrero did one final piece of dam-age. He made a shoestring catch and started a game-ending double play that finished off the Atlanta Braves.

"From now on, I'm going to pre-tend every month is June," Guerre-ro said Sunday after his two-run homer in the eighth inning led the Los Angeles Dodgers over the Braves 4-3.

Guerrero homered in his final atbat of the month, and the shot against Bruce Sutter gave. Those 15 home runs in June. Those 15 homers are the most ever hit by a National League player in the month of June - breaking the record set by Ralph Kiner in 1947 and matched by Mike Schmidt in 1977 and tied the major-league mark set by Ruth in 1930 and later tied by "Indian Bob" Johnson in 1934 and Roger Maris in 1961. The homer also tied the Dodger record for homers in a month set by Duke Snider in August of 1953 when the team played in Brooklyn. The majorleague record for most homers in a month is held by Rudy York, who hit 18 for Detroit in August, 1937.

Guerrero, tied with Oakland's Dave Kingman for the major league home run lead with 19, homered in every series the Dodgers played in June and never went more than four games without a home run. Astros 6-4, Giants 2-7

After losing the opener of a dou-bleheader, San Francisco won the second game to break a 10-game losing streak.

Veteran Vida Blue pitched 7 1-3 innings and rookie Chris Brown scored three runs as the host Giants took the nightcap. Blue, 4-2, had a 7-1 lead after five innings.

The first-game loss gave San Francisco its longest losing streak since the team began playing on the West Coast in 1958. The Giants lost 13 straight in 1944 while in New York.

The Astros' victory in the first game gave them their 12th straight triumph over San Francisco, dating back to last Aug. 7. Houston's Bill Doran hit a two-run homer to break a fifth-inning tie in the opener. Dan Gladden and Jeff Leonard hit homers in the first inning for the Giants.

Sutton ends drought with Memphis crown

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Hal Sutton figured it was about time he won a golf tournament.
"I hadn't won since the 1983 PGA,"

Sutton said Sunday. "I got into position to win several times and didn't." His position didn't appear promising on Sunday's first playoff hole of the $500,000 St. Jude Memphis Classic, when his third shot on the par-4 hole stuck on the fringe of the green. But he sank an improbable 30-foot putt to defeat David Ogrin for the $90,000 winner's check. "I needed a win more than anyone on the tour," said Sutton, a 27-yearold Shreveport, La., resident who used a final-round 65 to finish 72 holes at 9-under-par 279 and gain a berth in the playoff. Sutton, tied for the lead with Bill Sander after shooting a 65 on Thursday, sagged completely off the leader board with a 76 on Friday and a 73 Saturday. Whether it had been a 65 or a 75, I needed a win worse than anybody out here," Sutton said. "It's always real pleasing when you come from behind like that and shoot a low score on the last day. I feel real lucky to have beaten him, to tell you the truth.' Ogrin, who shot a final 71 over the course, drove into the middle of the fairway on the playoff hole, and put his second shot in safe ground about 60 yards from the green. He looked about ready to win the tournament when his approach shot landed eight feet from the cup, while Sutton's landed in the fringe.

But after Sutton sank his putt, Ogrin's birdie putt slid by the hole. Still, the $54,000 paycheck was the biggest ever for Ogrin, whose best previous finish in a tournament had been a tie for 13th.

Sutton, who was six strokes off the pace when play began, had a round featuring eight birdies, a bogey and nine pars. He missed a six-foot birdie putt on 18 that would have given him the title outright. Meanwhile, Ogrin could no better than a 71, although he also had a chance to win the tournament on the 18th. But his birdie putt from eight feet slid by.

George Burns, the leader by two strokes after 54 holes, suffered a rash of birdies during a round of 76 and finish at 282, three strokes back. Gil Morgan, a former Memphis Classic winner who had a 67, and Russ Cochran, who closed with a 71, finished in a tie for third at 280 to collect $29,000 apiece. Bob Tway and Tony Sills finished at 281 and each took home $19,000.

Barber dominates oldsters

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Miller Barber quickly turned the closing round of the U.S. Senior Open Golf Championship into a one-man show, finished with a 1-under 71, and won his third title in the event by four strokes Sunday.

Barber, 54, began the day with a three-stroke lead. The stout Texan birdied three of the first four holes.

birdied three of the first four holes, and his lead reached seven strokes when second-place Roberto DeVicenzo four-putted at the par-4 sixth for a double bogey.

Five Midlanders gain state bowling berths

BY RANDY ISENBERG

Five Midland youth took top honors in the Regional Youth qualifying bowling tournament at Dellwood Lanes Saturday with winners advancing with automatic seeds into the state finals in Garland on Aug. 34.

The tournament was conducted by the Texas Grand Prix Scholarship Committee.

Winners were Jon White, major boys (15-18); Jeff Jordan, junior division boys (12-14); Ty Murphy, prep division boys (9-11); Krissy Sprague, prep division girls; and Zac Mitchell, bantam division boys (8-under).

Excitement was generated in the junior boys division when Kevin Davidson emerged as the qualifying round leader, earning the top seed in the stair-step finals by edging eventual winner Jeff Jordan, 549-548.

Jordan, bowling from the No. 2 seed position, defeated Curtis Alford, 201-178, advancing to the finals to face Davidson. Jordan then defeated Davidson, 185-178, to earn the birth in the Whitewater State Finals. David-son had rolled a 300-game during practice rounds conducted over the past two weeks.

In the prep division, Murphy led the way during qualifying rounds with a 488, three-game set. He had his hands full in defeating David Minihan in the final match,

White had a 214-game and 577 series in qualifying rounds and won the finals with a 185 game. Mitchell defeated Sean Parnell in the finals with a 113 game. Winners are automatically seeded into the finals of the Whitewater State Gran Prix tournament in Garland, which is hosting the tournament for the third straight year.

Midland's Paul Cox conducted the Dellwood tournament.

Signs of the times

Obviously, a roller skate has to advertise the fact that roller skating is what goes on in the 4400 block of West University at Skateland.

If you travel U.S. Highway 80 between Odessa and Midland you've probably seen the metal dinosaur that stands in front of the American Building Co. There's also a metal duck that's a little harder to see. They have no connection with the business, but have become landmarks of sorts in the 10 years they've been sitting there.

Is it an elk, a moose, or a Texas Longhorn? Whatever it is, you'll find one in front of most every House of Muffler shop.

Text by Frank Trombley

dvertising is a multifaceted medium and different folks in different businesses usually choose one or more ways of drawing attention to the products or services they have to

Through the years, before the advent of mass media campaigns and advertising agencies to fit every need, business people often devised their own methods of advertising. A blacksmith might hang up an old anvil, a tailor might use an oversized needle and thread and, of course, some barber cleverly devised the familiar red and white barber pole. In very early days, the red and white purportedly symbolized the fact that barbers also specialized in "bleeding," a then-favored treatment for a variety of ills.

Businesses are still developing their own special ways of proclaiming their wares, often in addition to (sometimes even instead of) newspapers, magazines, radio and/or tellevision.

Some of the symbols selected are unique, some are "home grown" renditions, while others are more or less what you might expect to see gracing the business where you go for some particular merchandise or service. And there are some you've probably passed many times but never really saw or, if you did see them, you wondered what connection the symbol has with the business.

Such may be the case with the metal dinosaur and over-sized metal duck that sit in front of the American Building Co. on the south service road of U.S. Highway 80 west, across the highway from Cactus Drilling Co.

According to American Building employee Orville Crump, company owner H.C. McCullough bought the duck and dinosaur at an auction about 10 years ago and they've been sitting in front of the company office and yard ever since. They have no connection with the fact that American Building sells portable metal buildings.

"They've become a landmark," Crump says, noting that people passing often stop and let their kids climb on them while the parents take photographs.

Few would have to question the winged roller skate that sits atop the Skateland Roller Rink building in the 4400-block of West University.

Farther west on University, near the intersection with West County Road, T-Bar-B Steak House appropriately mounted its signs on the sides of a huge Fiberglas bull. It's now solidly anchored to the asphalt parking lot, since strong West Texas winds used to blow it over occasionally.

Please see SIGNS, Page 2C

What better symbol to advertise a restaurant that specializes in steaks than a big heavy bull?

There are barber poles and there are barber poles. Someone made good use of this old hot water heater at West 15th Street and Grant.

Kenedy County stumped by alcohol traffic death study

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weldmann II, SARITA, Texas (AP) — Kenedy County has one town, one highway, one liquor store, no bars and about Mr. and Mrs. Kent Kelley, 4708 600 residents — many of whom are Bedford, Midland, twin boys.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gregory laughing at reports from a national alcohoism institute. Beaty, 2212 Culver, Midland, girl. Yolanda Ramos, 2439 Whitmire

The institute recently said the county, best known as the home of the famous King Ranch, has one of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hernandez, the highest death rates from alcohol-related traffic accidents in the country. Della Reese Spraglin, 1802 English

"Everyone down here is just laughing," said Sheriff James Chan-dler Jr. "I don't know where they come up with that. It makes every one in the county look like a bunch of drunks," he said.

Kenedy County is one of the state's least populous counties.

"We probably have two people in the county with a serious alcohol problem, and neither of them drive," said Louis "Bud" Turcotte III, justice of the peace and owner of the Buckhorn, the only place around to buy a six-pack.

He also owns the adjacent liquor

"I think my receipts last week in the liquor store were $157." Turcotte

But what the statistics don't show is that Kenedy County has Texas Highway 77 — the only highway in Kenedy and the only connection between Corpus Christi and vacation points to the south.

James Colliver, a Washington research psychologist in charge of the study for the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, said the rate of alcohol-related deaths can be "falsely inflated by deaths of non-residents.

When Colliver's study comes out this fall, it will state that between 1975 and 1980, the annual rate of deaths from alcohol-related motor vehicle accidents in Kenedy County was 288 per 100,000 population.

The same rate for Dallas County is a mere 3.9 deaths per 100,000 and for Texas as a whole, 9.2 deaths per 100,000. The U.S. average is 11.3.

Texas Highway Patrol Capt. Charles Gunn, who heads up the patrol of Highway 77 through Ken-edy County, notes that the straight-as-an-arrow highway is "miles and miles of nothing."

LOS ANGELES — There's no need to feel sorry for the former "poor little rich girl," a pawn in a celebrated custody battle, a child who grew up with a lot of money and very little sense of security and love.

That's all in the past, neatly put into perspective. And now at 61, stylish, tall and ultra-thin, Gloria Vanderbilt has come into her own. She's taken her famous name into commerce and the arts, scored nicely in both areas and helped make that old and aristocratic family more famous

These days it gives the fragilelooking "Little Gloria" a great deal of pleasure to know that on her own she has earned much more money than she ever inherited from the shipping and railroad fortune made by her great-great-grandfather, the doughty Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt.

"I am a writer," she said, her low and well-modulated voice showing a trace of steel. "and when you're a writer, you write." That's exactly what she did for four months last year, writing in longhand with a pencil on large, bound books, for sometimes eight or nine hours at a time. The result is the first volume of her autobiography, "Once Upon a Time," a best-seller.

Vanderbilt also has her signature on the back of designer jeans and on bottles of fragrance and bath products, on wallpaper and home furnishings, fabrics and ceramics. The commercial enterprises, she said, now "take care of themselves." The only business she's actively involved with is the Gloria Vanderbilt Glace, a tofu ice cream.

She is also an artist with a great flair for color whose works have been shown in one-woman exhibitions, the author of a book of love poetry and two how-to books (one on collages and one on beauty). But this autobiography, the first in what will be a five-book series, is the one she considers "my first She's winding up a promotional book tour. After that it's back to New York and her writing.

The first book, written as a rather breathless first-person narrative, takes her from her father's death in Newport, R.I., in 1925 when she was still a baby, through the custody trial won by her aunt, through the traumas of an unhappy childhood to the visit at age 17 with her mother and her mother's twin, Lady Thelma Furness, at their house in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Book two, she said, "picks up exactly where the first leaves off. It starts at the party that's about to happen at the end of the first book." The cut-off age for the second volume is 21 when she receives her inheritance, $4 million. And it will cover her first marriage to Howard Hughes aide and actor's agent Pasquale "Pat" di Cicco.

She believes that she always knew she would write her autobiography. "There was not a day I didn't live it, relive it. I didn't know what form it was going to

But then a cousin sent her a snapshot of a round-faced baby with dark, almond-shaped eyes on a sled with a friend in New York's Central Park. The photo of baby Gloria trimmed to show only her face appears in the fron-tispiece of the book. "I knew that child, I had never lost touch with her, and that's when I knew that I would do the book from the point of view of the child I was. It just clicked into place, and I couldn't wait for Christmas to be over so I could get started." Looking back she reflects, "I must have been ready. I could only write this now. Even five years ago I couldn't have.

Writing that first volume, she said, was easy. "It was like automatic writing or striking a vein and letting the blood flow." The second one is "more difficult. I want it to have the same immediacy, but as one gets older one thinks on different levels. There are things about my mother I want to get right, things that were not resolved until later (there was the period between the ages of 20 and 38 when Little Gloria had no contact with Big Gloria). I understand her now as I didn't then. There's a delicate balance in presenting it.

"It's an extraordinary feeling," she said, "to know that I'm a writer and that I put it down as I saw it. It's an extraordinary feeling that I'm putting things in order. One of the things that was so difficult when I was a child is that I had no one I could communicate with.'

She is endlessly fascinated by the similarities between her mother and her mother's twin. Thelma, who are both buried here at Holy Cross Cemetery.
"My aunt lived for six years after my mother died, which is astonishing because they really were one person. As a child I could not tell them apart, but as they grew older they were more easily recognized.

"It must be incredible," she said, "to sit in a room and to see someone exactly like you there. It must give you incredible support and comforting security.

The major characters in her first book — her strong-willed grandmother, her mother, her aunt - are all dead. But in subsequent books she'll deal with some who are still living. It's a ticklish problem because "people who are living have a copyright on their lives." She uses Sidney Lumet, the director and her third husband, as an example: "He and I are close friends and I respect and admire and love him. I truly

The story of Gloria

By NOEL OSMENT Copley News Service

Maybe if she had been a little girl in a later age and maybe if her family weren't practically American royalty, and her mother one of the beauties of her time, and her grandmother somewhat deranged, Gloria Vanderbilt wouldn't have this drive to achieve.

There probably would be no Gloria Vanderbilt sheets and china and luggage and perfume - not even any jeans. There wouldn't be a new tofu ice cream, Gloria Vanderbilt Glace. And there wouldn't be the recently published "Once Upon A Time," the story of her childhood years.

But "Once Upon A Time" is not just another Gloria Vanderbilt business venture.

"It's very personal - some thing I wrote because I always knew I would and because I'm a writer," Vanderbilt said in an Gloria Vanderbilt had an uncommon childhood.

In 1934, at age 10, she was the subject of banner headlines, and was usually described in the press as the "poor little rich girl." She was the object of a bitter custody trial waged between her mother, the beautiful, peripatetic Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, the 29-year-old widow of millionaire sportsman Reginald Vanderbilt, and his sister, the formidable Gertrude (Mrs. Harry Payne) Whitney.

"Auntie Ger" won, hands down, in large part due to the testimony of the child expressing deep fear, almost terror, of her mother.

Her book reveals that her fear came from an overheard conversation that provided the greatest threat of all — loss of the person who mattered most in her life, her nursemaid, "Dodo."

Through her early years spent in Europe, after her father's death, until she was about 8 years old - the child's world was composed of Dodo and Naney Morgan, her maternal grandmother. The world of these three she refers to as the "Caravan," for to her it was a cozy, loving, safe, self-contained world, moving from apartments to villas to chateaux in Europe and later to the United States. But always intact, safe and pro-

Her mother was an elusive. gossamer creature of silks and satins and perfumes flitting in and out of their lives, the person Little Gloria longed for and feared at the same time.

When this fragile family returned to the United States, plans to have the child end up with Aunt Gertrude were already afoot.

As the time for the custody hearings neared, Little Gloria was coached by Morgan to feign a stomachache so the doctor could tell the judge that her fear of being taken from "Aunt Ger' and sent to Germany was making her ill.

The child complied because she had heard her mother and aunt talk about replacing Dodo with a German nurse. Testifying against her mother and asking to stay with Auntie Ger was her insurance, she thought, of keeping her world intact. As Vanderbilt writes and tells about those times, the most remarkable and salient fact is these wealthy, educated, urbane adults — including not only her family, but lawyers, doctors and a judge — were abysmally ignorant about what today would seem to be elementary child psy-

"The thing that was most frightening to me was that no one really talked to me about what was going on."

The irony of it all was that when the case was decided, the judge decided that Dodo was to be sent away.

None of them knew what it meant to me to have my nurse sent away. I would think anyone who was aware of anything would have known. The fact that a judge did that was extraordinary.

In her book, she says, "nothing was ever the same again."

Vanderbilt wrote her book from her own — the child's and then the teenager's — point of view, and plans to write the next four or five volumes of her life from her maturing, older point

It was not some miracle of psychology that pulled her out of her feelings of worthlessness after the custody trial but a very common reason: she lost her baby fat.

It is difficult to imagine that the elegant woman looking slim and chic and far younger than her 61 years could ever have been miserable with "her fatness," and pictures indicate she could hardly even have been called chubby. But in a society in which thin was important, Gloria Vanderbilt, too, suffered from preteen chubbiness.

Then, in her teen years, she began shedding pounds and accruing boyfriends. She plunged into parties and pre-deb doings and enjoyed immensely being photographed for Harper's Bazaar.

But the darker side of her life was still there.

The fear of her mother, mixed with a longing to be loved, turned into anger and estrangement from the time she was 20 until she was able to reconcile with her mother at the age of

Her family life at Aunty Ger's was virtually non-existent. So at 17 she embarked on the first of her four marriages, to Hollywood agent Pat di Cieco, "to get away from home.

She doesn't talk in much detail about the next years not from reticence, but because she's not about to give away the plot of her next books. But those are the years of her subsequent marriages - to conductor Leopold Stokowski, Director Sidney Lumet and last, and most happily, to writer Wyatt Cooper, who died eight years ago.

DEAR ABBY: A million thanks for pointing out the irritating speech habit that so many of our young people exhibit today. I refer to the use of "you know" three and four times in one sentence. It is simply maddening to hear

"you know, you know, you know" from so many of our celebrities (especially athletes) while they're being interviewed on television and radio. I started to fall into that habit when I was in college. One of my professors helped me overcome it when every time I said "you know," he interrupted me with, "No, I DON'T know until you tell me." Please print this, Abby. If everyone who is guilty of the "you know" habit would ask a friend to interrupt him with, "No, I DON'T know," what a blessing it would be. - NO MORE

DEAR ABBY: I dearly love the English language, but it appears that either our English teachers aren't teaching or their students aren't learning. I am appalled at the number of teen-agers who use the verb "goes" instead of "says." Example in LONDON (AP) - The dollar was lower against most other currencies today in further fallout from last week's disappointing figures on the American economy. Gold prices also declined.

Dealers said the dollar was still suffering the after-effects of last Friday's news of a yawning $12.7 billion trade deficit in May and an 0.7 percent rise in the government's Index of Leading Econmic Indicators — lower than what traders had expected.

The news triggered a sharp dollar selloff late Friday. Dealers said there was further selling when markets opened today, though volume was light.

Robots create concern among firm employees

By DIANE LINDQUIST Copley News Service

On occasion, when James D. Byrne has visited factories to sell his robotic machinery, the firm's offi-cials have asked him to hide the Mobot company logo on his brief-case because it might upset the

"That's only because the company wants to have time to talk to its employees to say robots are coming and don't worry about it. They're afraid they'll rebel, strike or whatever before they are told what the real effect is," he said.

Byrne believes his company which started in a garage in 1974 and now does $2.5 million in business a year, is at the forefront of changes that will have as much impact on manufacturing as the invention of the steam engine.

That invention was quickly fol-lowed by the Industrial Revolution — with the work week shrinking from 60 to 40 hours and the age of the worker increasing from 12 to 20

Robotics could bring about another Industrial Revolution. "The same thing's happening with robots and automation in general," said Byrne, Mobot's vice president and general manager. "There are far less people needed to operate those things so it sort of implies that a lot of people will be out of work." Robots or automated machines already are at work in many of the nation's factories.

They are of two types. One involves robots or robotics and is a machine that can be reprogrammed from one job to another. The other involves fixed automation in which the machine is built specifically to perform only one job.

Studies have concluded that these automated workers will replace thousands of humans. According to one study conducted for Employment Research in Kalamazoo, Mich., 100,000 to 200,000 human employees will lose their jobs to robots by 1990.

Another survey for the University of Chicago and Society of Manufacturing Engineers established that 20,000 people have been put out of work by robots over the last 10 years. In the same time period, the study found that 160,000 humans have been employed making robots.

Despite such reports, considerable debate continues over whether robots are the friends of assemblyline workers, freeing them from dangerous or mundane jobs, or whether these seemingly perfect automated workers are threats to their employment.

Mobot has been growing by about 30 percent a year over the past four years, Byrne said. A recent merger with Advanced Manufacturing Systems Inc. will give it a company with 31/2 times more assets, a much larger sales force and major contacts with Detroit auto manufacturers.

Currently, IBM is the firm's biggest customer. Every personnel computer that IBM makes goes through about six Mobots in its process, Byrne said.

The firm makes big machines, most of which look like shipyard gantries. The machines travel about 160 feet and carry loads of up to "Bear in mind that robots are pretty dumb, stupid machines," he said. "The only things they do are the dull, lousy, rotten jobs that nobody wants to do anyway."

Byrne argues that the unemployment problems linked to robots are not due to robots in this country, but not due to robots in this country, but to the robots in Japan that are turning out reliable — and cheap — products that are shipped here.

"The obvious thing to do is to get more robots in Detroit so we can make better, cheaper cars. More people will buy those cars. There will be more people working, more people with money to buy things,"

Labor rule won't effect Texas

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A recent Supreme Court ruling forbidding labor unions to punish workers who leave their labor groups and return to work during a strike will have little effect in Texas, union leaders say. "This is a definite move against the unions and just reflects the nature of the Supreme Court towards unions," said John Rogers, spokesman for the Texas AFL-CIO.

But Rogers said the impact would be minimal because the number of people who cross picket lines is insignificant compared to the number of people who strike. Texas is already a right-to-work state, so employees cannot be forced to join a union. Before the Supreme Court's ruling last week, union locals had the right to impose fines on members who quit during a strike and crossed picket lines to go back to work. Members had to pay the fines to be allowed back in the union. "The ruling will have a zero effect in Texas and other right-to-work states. A member who is fined and didn't want to pay it would just quit the union," Rogers said.

Jerry Archuleta, spokesman for the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (OCAW), said, "The Supreme Court has handed down another weapon for the industries' arsenal to use against working people."

"We disagree with the Supreme Court's ruling, but I don't think that our locals are going to suffer any great number of defections," Archu-Still, Archuleta said the court's decision will have an effect on the entire collective bargaining process and will allow a company to put additional pressures on employees to cross the picket line and return to

Zimbabweans going to polls

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) - Black Zimbab-

In an election eve rally that drew 200,000 supporters Sunday, Mugabe said he expected his ruling Zimbabwe African National Union-Patriotic Front to win 65 to 70 of the 80 black seats in the National Assembly.

Solidarity calls for general strike to protest price hikes

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - The Solidarity underground has called for a one-hour general strike today to protest meat price increases imposed by the Communist government.

Lech Walesa, chief of the illegal union, said Sunday that he could not publicly support the strike because a government prosecutor told him to refrain from anti-government statements. Walesa is under investigation for planning a similar week stoppeds.

"As far as tomorrow (Monday) is concerned, people have the right to protest," Walesa told thousands outside St. Brygida's, a church in Gdansk. "They should determine in each factory how this can be accomplished.'

He told cheering churchgoers that price increases without compensating pay hikes placed an unfair burden on workers.

The 41-year-old electrician, winner of the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize for his union work, was reading from a statement he issued Wednesday protesting price hikes without raises for workers.

Walesa delayed his vacation, due to start today, to be at the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk with fellow workers. It was unclear whether he would join any strike.

It also was not known how workers would respond to the strike call by the underground arm of Solidarity. Appeals for general strikes have met with mixed success over the past 31/2

Leaders of the Solidarity underground have called for a general pay increase equaling $12.57 a month to offset the price hikes.

The price increases on meat and meat products average 10 percent to 15 percent. The hike is the final of three increases in the costs of many foods levied during the past four months. The price of a pound of chicken climbed from 51 to 59 cents and a pound of boneless beef from 85 to 97 cents.

The increase in the cost of meat, which already is rationed and in short supply, is expected to cut into family budgets in a country where the average monthly salary is the equivalent of about

The Solidarity free trade union federation was outlawed after martial law was declared in Poland in December 1981. Some of its leaders, like Walesa, have attempted to walk the line between accepted protest and outright defiance of the government, while others have gone

With the conviction of three other Solidarity leaders for union activities this month, the government appears to be intensifying efforts to muzzle the rebellious union, the only independent union ever to exist in the Soviet bloc. Explaining his failure to support the strike, Walesa said: "People should understand that I am not afraid to go to jail. But these are tactics."

"We are 10 million and they can't lock up 10 million people," Gwiazda said to applause.

Once-strong Gorbachev rival dropped from ruling Politburo

MOSCOW (AP) — Grigori V. Romanov, once considered a strong rival of Communist Party leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, was dropped from the ruling Politburo today. The Soviet news agency Tass said Romanov, 62, was retired on "health grounds" at a meeting of the party's Central Committee presided over by Gorbachev.

The official news agency also announced that Eduard A. Shevardnadze, the Communist Party leader of Georgia, was elevated to become a full member of the Politburo and that two new party secretaries were named.

The changes in Kremlin leadership were seen as a consolidation of power by Gorbachev, who took over as Communist Party leader in March.

Romanov was one of the younger members of the ruling Politburo, but had not been seen in public for nearly two months. There had been rumors that he was in ill health or that he was in political disfavor because he opposed Gorbachev's selection as party leader.

Romanov's ouster and the elevation of Shevardnadze, who had been an alternate member of the Politburo, kept the body at 13 members. The Tass announcement said: "G.V. Romanov's the Politburo and secretary of the Communist Party Central Committee in connection with retirement on health grounds was satisfied. "The plenum made alternate member E.A. Shevardnadze a full member of the Politburo of the Central Committee and elected B.N. Yeltsin and L.N. Zaikov secretaries of the Central Committee. The plenum of the Communist Party Soviet Union Central Committee ended its work. Tass also reported that Gorbachev addressed the Central Committee. There was no indication that Romanov was present at the meeting.

Romanov had been a full member of the Politburo since 1976. In 1982, under the late Yuri Andropov, he was brought to Moscow to become a member of the Central Committee Secretariat. He was believed to be responsible for defense-

Romanov had been party leader in Leningrad for 13 years and was considered a strong contender for party general secretary in recent ears, when the Soviet Union went through three leadership changes.

There were unconfirmed rumors that Romanov had worked hard to block the promotion of Gorbachev to party leader after the death in March of Konstantin U. Chernenko.

Rumors that Romanov might be removed from the Politburo had circulated in Moscow in recent weeks. He was last seen in public for Victory Day celebrations in Red Square on May 9, but since request to relieve him of the duties of member of then has been absent from main party functions

Airdrops provide 'manna from heaven'

By JAMES R. PEIPERT

AJIBAR, Ethiopia (AP) — Three times in 13 minutes, the British Royal Air Force Hercules part of a famine-relief effort in which military men from East and West work with each other swooped dangerously low over the plateau.

Dust swirled up in its propeller wash and out of its back doors came a lifesaving cargo of American wheat for Ethiopian famine victims. The pallets of sacked grain tumbled end over end from the cavernous belly as the four-engine aircraft lifted its nose to the sky at the end of each pass.

Many of the sacks broke open on impact, carpeting the drop zone with kernels of grain. But nothing would go to waste.

In the precipitous highlands of Ethiopia's Wollo region, with mesas and gorges every bit as spec-tacular as those in the Grand Canyon, dropping food from the sky is the only reliable way to get it to people who need it. The airdrops are part of an international airlift that began in the first week of November 1984. In addition to planes of the RAF, aircraft of the West German air force, the United States, Libya, the Soviet Union, East Germany, Italy and Belgium have taken part.

On this day, RAF Hercules transports, also known as C-130s, and smaller C-160 Transals of the West German Luftwaffe made a total of 10 passes over the 9,330-foot-high plateau at Abijar, about 140 miles north of the capital, Addis Ababa. RAF ground crewmen first were brought to the area in Polish helicopters to guide the planes to the drop zone from a field radio station set up that morning. The British crewmen reckoned that 80 to 85 percent of the wheat pushed out of the plane's big back doors from a height of about 30 feet landed intact.

On the ground, teams of local men collected the unbroken bags and cleared the drop zone of shattered pallets and tattered sacks, some of them bearing the inscription "Furnished by the people of the United States of America." But the teams didn't try to sweep up the loose grain scattered for hundreds of yards over the mesa.

By the end of the day, nothing will remain here," remarked Col. Tsegaye Wolde of Ethiopia's Relief and Rehabilitation Commission, as he walked across the littered drop zone. Tsegaye coordinates the airdrops and airlifts of food to Ethiopia's famine victims, estimated at around 8 ended this morning, Prime Minister Shimon Peres' government invoked emergency powers and approved a wide-ranging austerity program aimed at curbing Israel's soaring inflation.

Israel government OKs drastic austerity plan

The plan takes effect immediately under emergency decrees signed by Peres which allow the government to bypass parliamentary legislation and suspend all labor agreements.

Officials said it was the first time in the country's 37-year history that such measures were imposed for economic reasons.

The program includes an 18.8 percent devalua-tion of the Israeli shekel, price increases ranging from 17 percent to 75 percent, and a three-month freeze on wages and prices.

The 76-page plan, approved by a 15-to-7 vote, cuts $750 million from the $23 billion state bud-

Peres' government said it would view a vote by the Knesset, or Parliament on the plan today as a confidence motion, meaning that if the legislators reject the program the coalition government would fall.

The 1.5-million-member Histadrut trade union federation called a 24-hour general strike for Tuesday to protest the plan. The warning strike is expected to shut down airports, newspapers and

By GEORGE L. KAOUGH

After 17 anxious days of emotional "highs and lows," relatives of 39 American hostages joyously began celebrating the word that their loved ones had arrived in West Germany today. For some, however, the news was too good to be true. "I'll believe it when I touch him," said Dorothy Suggs, mother of Clinton Suggs.

Tve never been through anything like this in my life," said Mrs. Suggs, of Elkhart, Ind. "This has been terrible because it just keeps you hanging."

The former hostages flew from Damascus, Syria, to Frank-furt on Sunday, a day after a premature announcement of their freedom in Lebanon raised the hopes of their loved ones, then dashed them.

'It's starting to sink in," Orville Dahl, 64, father of Stuart Dahl, said at his home in Thief River Falls, Minn. "It's starting

The emotions most prevalent were relief and joy

I just can't wait to hug him and hold him and I know I'll be babbling like a baby," said Cheryl Carlson of Rockford, Ill., who flew to Germany to see her husband, Kurt. "I'm not sure I'm going to let him out of my sight."

Four of the hostages were members of St. Margaret Mary Roman Catholic Church in Algonquin, Ill., which had had a group of 34 pilgrims aboard the TWA jet. The church's steeple and almost every utility pole in town had been draped in yellow ribbons as residents waited for word on their neighbors.

'You can sense the mood change" already at the church, the Rev. Robert Garrity of St. Margaret Mary said Sunday morning before the hostages reached Syria.

"We feel good," he added. "There have been so many ups and downs, though, we are just waiting for the resolution."

"I can't even express it. I'm elated," Phyllis Testrake, wife of Capt. John Testrake, pilot of hijacked TWA Flight 847, said in St. Louis as she and other relatives of hostages boarded a plane for Frankfurt.

There were a lot of peaks and valleys — mostly valleys. But today is wonderful," Mrs. Testrake said.

'We're so excited and relieved, you probably can't imagine," said Lou Peel, mother of Robert Peel Jr. and herself a hostage after the plane was hijacked June 14 as it flew from Athens, Greece, to Rome

She said that when her brother arrives in Langlade, an extended family of "at least 300" will be there, some from as far as California, to celebrate his release. The community will also be celebrating.

The parents of U.S. Navy Petty Officer Robert D. Stethem of

Peres praises Reagan's response to hijacking

JERUSALEM (AP) - Prime Minister Shimon Peres today praised President Reagan's response to the holding of Americans by Leba-nese gunmen and said he was happy the 39 hostages were delivered safely from the "uncertain land of Lebanon."

Israeli newspapers, meanwhile, quoted unidentified officials as saying Israel was expected to soon free about 300 Lebanese prisoners. Release of 735 prisoners, mostly Shiite Moslems, captured as security risks in Lebanon was the stated price of the hostages' release, but Israel has denied making any promises to free the Education Minister Yitzhak Navon and Energy Minister Moshe Shahal said the Cabinet did not discuss the prisoners' release during a nearly 24-hour meeting that began Sunday. They said the Cabinet might meet later today to Cabinet Secretary Yossi Beilin had said earlier that the 25-member body was given a report on the American hostages' situation but focused its attention on economic issues.

Emerging from the Cabinet meeting, Peres told reporters, "I was very glad to learn that the hostages left the uncertain land of Leba-non. I think all of us will continue to con-

non. I think all of us will continue to confront the danger of terrorism and terrorists in a determined way."

Bad feelings developed between Israel and the United States during the 17-day hostage crisis. Israeli officials complained of behind-thescenes pressure from Washington to release the Lebanese prisoners and expressed concern about U.S. public opinion polis that showed an erosion in support for Israel.

Today, Peres lauded the U.S. administration.

Questions remain in wake of U.S. hostages' release the man in the beige hood said.

Gunmen claim they 'staged' hijack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two hooded gunmen who said in Beirut airport's transit lounge almost exactly as an Interna-

WASHINGTON (AP) — Why was Robert Stethem shot in the head and killed? Why were some of the TWA passengers separated out by their hijackers? Because of their "Jewishsounding names" or because they carried military ID cards, or for some other reason?

Did the United States put secret pressure on Israel to release its Shiite prisoners? How is Trans World Airlines going to get back its Boeing 727?

There are plenty of them, the questions that remain in the aftermath of the odyssey of TWA Flight

Answers may come tumbling out as the 39 freed passengers tell their stories in the next few days, but some questions probably will be left as historical puzzles.

Who were the hijackers? They haven't been identified with certainty yet, though President Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz say they must be made to pay for their crime.

What finally persuaded Nabih Berri, the Shitte leader, to send the passengers to Syria and freedom on Sunday?

West as the administration and Was it, as the administration su gests, that he came to realize he had nothing more to gain in keeping the Americans? How much influence did he exercise on the hijackers? Was Berri an intermediary, or the hijackers' representative? The White House praised Syria for its help, but not Berri.
"He has portrayed himself in various roles," Shultz told reporters.

"He's portrayed himself as a mediator; he's portrayed himself as a party and a member of the group. So I think we have to do some sorting out about Mr. Berri." What kind of reception will Berri get the next time he visits relatives in Dearborn, Mich.?

Another political question: Why, on Friday afternoon, in a speech in Chicago Heights, Ill., in a moment of the greatest of delicacy, when his administration had maintained utmost silence for two days, did President Reagan choose to talk tough?

He called the hijackers "thugs and murderers and barbarians." Was it part of some overall strategy to sig-nal American impatience? Or was it Reagan being Reagan, a president whose rhetoric is sometimes harsher than his actions?

And what about Reagan's statement in the same speech that "terrorists, and those who support them, must — and will — be held to account"? What motivated the president's words? One Shitte leader said they jinxed the arrangement that would have led to the hostages' release 24 hours before it occurred.
