New Well Seen As Help In Easing City's Water Shortage

The possibility of adding a new well to the municipal system this week brightened prospects for easing Haskell's scarce water supply. But keeping an adequate supply in the elevated tower and mains continued to be a day-to-day problem, Water Commissioner Jim Byrd said Wednesday.

The maximum amount produced by the city's 14 wells is being pumped on a round-the-clock basis, city officials said. Water use just about equals the combined yield of wells, they said. At peak periods during the day, use exceeds the supply to the extent that flow from the mains is reduced to a trickle in some parts of town.

WHAT TO DO WHEN BREATHING STOPS

These five figures illustrate, from top to bottom, the steps in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation now being taught in Red Cross First Aid courses.

- (1) Mother, using middle finger of one hand, clears child's mouth of any foreign matter. With same finger, she holds the tongue forward.
- (2) Mother places child in a face-down, head-down position, and puts him firmly on the back with the free hand, to help dislodge any foreign object in the air passage.
- (3) The child is placed on his back, and the mother, using middle fingers of both hands, lifts the lower jaw from beneath and behind so that it "juts out."
- (4) With one hand only, the jaw is held in this jutting-out position.
- (5) The mother, covering the child's mouth and nose with her mouth, breathes into the child with a smooth, steady action. The free hand applies continuous moderate pressure to the child's abdomen, between navel and ribs, to prevent the stomach from being filled with air.

Half of Nation's Adults Listed as Cigarette Smokers

AUSTIN—Half of the men and a fourth of the women in the United States smoke cigarettes daily, according to a recent survey by the U. S. Bureau of Census. That adds up to something like 38 million cigarette addicts—25 million men and 13 million women.

These figures, besides revealing the extent to which the smoking habit has become ingrained among Americans, accentuate the grim relationship between cigarette consumption and the general death rate, including dreaded lung cancer.

It took the American Cancer Society four years of concentrated study of the smoking habits of 188,000 men to reach these conclusions.

A 57 per cent greater death rate from diseases of the heart and circulatory system among smokers as compared to non-smokers; a 97 per cent greater cancer death rate; a 186 per cent greater death rate due to pulmonary diseases excluding cancer; and a 29 per cent greater rate of death from all other causes.

Among men over 50 with a history of regular cigarette smoking, the general death rate is 52 per cent above the death rate for men who have never smoked.

The same study revealed a slight relationship between pipe smoking and lung cancer, and practically no relationship between cigar smoking and lung cancer. Present studies indicate that the reason cigarettes are more important in the cause of lung cancer than either pipe or cigars is that the tar in cigarette smoke is drawn in at much higher temperatures.

In support of statistical evidence relating smoking to cancer death rates, it is possible to prove the connection by laboratory methods. By condensing the smoke of burning cigarettes and painting gummy tars on the shaved backs of mice or rabbits, laboratory technicians have produced cancerous growths on the animals.

The question as to whether men who smoked but quit have a lower death rate than those who have not quit has also been answered statistically. Men who quit ten years before the study was made showed a death rate almost as low as those who had never smoked.

Should you stop smoking? You must answer that question alone. Ask yourself if the fleeting pleasures get from cigarettes—described as "adult pacifiers" by the late Dr. William Mayo—outweigh the risks involved.

And keep in mind that the best scientific research talent in the world is convinced that steady cigarette smoking constitutes a health hazard of major proportions.

The American Cancer Society has turned its results over to the National Institute of Health for further checking.

Home Wiring for Safety Should Be Kept Up-to-Date

College Station—Almost everyone has experienced that helplessness which is felt when the electricity goes off. For more and more household chores, from dishwashing to clothes-drying, are being shouldered by electric servants. And through air conditioners and radio and TV sets, those ready kilowatts are providing a lot in the way of comfort and entertainment, too.

But many homemakers are discovering that their houses are inadequately wired to handle the extra load of appliances, says W. L. Ulrich, extension agricultural engineer. Blowing fuses, flickering lights, and shrinking TV pictures when additional electrical appliances are turned on are signs that circuits are overloaded.

For safety's sake, call in an electrical contractor when this occurs, advises Ulrich. Don't play handy-man with something that can be dangerous as electricity. Don't use heavier than 15 ampere fuses unless your circuits are built to handle them. And never use a coin to establish contact after a fuse has blown. Fuses and circuit breakers causes heat greater than insulations on wires can resist. The overheated wires can easily cause a fire.

If your house needs additional wiring, it will pay to take care of this need promptly. All appliances will work more efficiently and satisfactorily and may use less electric current to do the same work.

Farmers Should File for Federal Gas Tax Refund

College Station—Farmers are reminded by C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist, that they may now apply for a refund on the 3-cent Federal tax on gasoline used in farming. The amount claimed must be based on the quantity of fuel used for farming purposes on individual farms and ranches during the period from July 1, 1956 to June 30, 1957.

Bates says that all claims must be submitted to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, and claims for the past year must be in by Sept. 30, 1957. Only one refund claim per farm operator will be permitted and each tax claimant is cautioned to make certain that his refund request includes all eligible fuel used.

Each farm and ranch operator who applied for tax refunds in 1956 will be mailed Form 2240 for filing the 1957 claim. An instruction sheet for preparing the application will also be provided, says Bates. For new fuel users or those who failed to file last year, copies of the filing form may be obtained from the office of the local county agent.

Too, Bates suggests that a copy of Publication 308, Farmers Gas Tax Refund, prepared by the Internal Revenue Service, be obtained from the county agent's office or from the nearest District Internal Revenue Service office.

The specialist advises agricultural producers who used an appreciable amount of gasoline last year in their farming or ranching operations to check into their eligibility for a refund. The legislation which makes possible the refund was passed by Congress in the spring of 1956 and farmers unfamiliar with the procedure should contact their local county agent or Internal Revenue Service for details.

Paint Creek . . . Community News

MRS. GENE OVERTON

Dear Paint Creekers: Mrs. Claude (Skipper) Willis of Abilene and Mrs. E. B. Whorton of Rule and I are on our way to Scouts Jamboree in Valley Forge. We left Tuesday, July 9 in Mrs. Willis' new Plymouth and are having a wonderful trip. We came by Texarkana and saw rice fields with rice 8 or 10 inches high. Men wearing rubber boots were flooding the fields.

We saw big sweet potato patches and near McKinney farmers would have 40 or 50 acres of onions. We were in Camden, Ark., the first night.

Wednesday we drove from Camden to Nashville, Tennessee. It was cool and nice all day and we saw lumbering, with negroes cutting pine trees and hauling them to the saw mills. Ever so often we passed a place that looked like a tall red whirlwind and it was a sawmill with a pillar of dust rising from it.

There were miles and miles of cotton fields all day long. The cotton is about waist high and full of Negro cotton choppers. I couldn't see any weeds, but every other field would have 30 or 40 hoe hands in it. The Negro houses were for most part nicer than our colored people have at home. They have yards full of little Negroes at every cabin. Twice we saw flocks of geese eating the grass out of the crops instead of hoe hands chopping it out.

Just before we reached Memphis we crossed the beautiful old Muddy Mississippi and there were coal river barges hauling machinery and stuff up and down the Mississippi. We saw two old river boats like the show boats, but the were just sorta parked along the shore and we couldn't decide whether they would travel or not. But surely they were picturesque.

We took a riverside drive along the Mississippi west of Memphis and it was so pretty. I talked the others into driving down Beale Street where all the Negroes live, because "Beale Street Blues" and "Memphis Blues" were two of the few pieces I could play on the piano when I was a girl. We saw "Handy Park" named for the W. C. Handy who wrote all the "Blues" and the "St. Louis Blues" too.

Outside Nashville we visited "The Hermitage," home of President Andrew Jackson. It is the only national shrine completely furnished with the original pieces. I wished for my mother-in-law Laura. She loves beautiful old furniture and that was beautiful. Those old homes were big, but were furnished simply and there were scads of sweet old slaves to keep it, and shine all that silver and furniture. We stayed too long at "The Hermitage" but it was so much fun. I saw things like I remember in my Grandmother Jones' home at Rule, bolster pillows and dust ruffers and old silver.

From Nashville to Knoxville we passed tobacco fields and tobacco barns. The barns we saw were empty. I guess they auctioned all off to "sold to American." The new growing crop is about 3 or 4 feet tall. It grows on rocky hills and it and the corn looks like it might slide off down into the valley. It looks as if the farmers ought to have one leg shorter than the other to farm these hillsides. We have decided they must raise gladiolas commercially, too, because there are fields of them.

Friday morning, and we're in Daniel Boone country. We have seen hundreds of mountain tops he could have been "borned on" and surely this is the "greenest state in the land of the free." This drive from Knoxville, Tenn., Bristol, Ga., is gorgeous. They are making atomic bombs just a few miles away at Oak Ridge, and today they are to

Outlook Good for Better Quail Season

Austin, Texas—Right now conditions point to the best quail season Texans have known for years, according to the assistant executive secretary of the Texas Game and Fish Commission. He has just returned from a trip through East Texas, studying first hand the effect of the hatchery program now under way.

At the same time wardens all over Texas are reporting to the Austin office of the Commission that the quail crop this year has been exceptionally good. Favorable weather conditions and improvement of habitat by land owners is given credit for the increased crop, according to the assistant executive secretary.

The Commission hatchery at Tyler has some 19,000 quail on hand to be released to clubs or individuals. More than 11,000 birds already have been released this year.

"There are still some birds available to land owners with proper feed and cover," the assistant executive secretary said. These birds are sold at 50 cents each to land owners who can qualify. Applications should be sent to the Austin office of the Commission. Wardens then will be

Weeds on Range Harmful to Good Grasses

College Station—Weeds on a native pasture are harmful to good grasses, but their damage can be greatly reduced if proper management practices are employed, says G. O. Hoffman, extension range specialist.

Weeds shade out grasses causing poor growth. They also use soil nutrients and moisture that should be used for the growth of grasses. Weeds use 6 to 8 times more water than do good native grasses. However, weedy growth was helpful this year in holding up rainwater, causing more of it to penetrate the bare soil and thus reducing soil erosion, says Hoffman. But this advantage by no means balances the disadvantages. Weed control may be classified into two methods—mechanical and chemical. Mowing is the most important of the mechanical controls. The specialist advises setting the sickle blade 6 to 8 inches above the ground to avoid cutting off too much of the grass. The cows can perform the grass mowing task quite well, so only mow the weeds.

For annual broomweeds set the blade just under the bushy top. Cutting the tops off the weeds usually kills them. Mowing may have to be done 2 or 3 times a year. The cost varies from $1 to $1.50 per acre.

Chemical controls react only on weeds that are young and vigorous, says Hoffman. Spray chemicals when the wind is less than 8 MPH. A low pressure of 15-30 pounds is usually the most desirable. Herbicides such as low volatile 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T esters are used most frequently. Chemical control costs about $1.50 per acre and one spraying will probably last one season.

Caution should be used when applying any herbicide near broadleaf plants that you do not want to kill. Check the Herbicide Law for your county before applying any herbicide, cautions the specialist.

Try to keep a good grass cover, advises Hoffman. This reduces weed growth considerably and may eliminate control programs.

Bigger Crops Seen
Texas' 1957 grain harvest is expected to be significantly increased over that of drought-pinched 1956.

But citrus production will be down, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and cotton is still a question mark.

USDA forecasts Texas wheat crop at 33,885,000 bushels, compared to 26,388,000 bushels last year. But it's still below the 1946-55 average of 47,339,000 bushels.

Corn production is estimated at 39,169,000 bushels compared to 27,465,000 for last year. Oats are expected to hit a whopping 37,145,000 bushels compared to only 19,170,000 bushels for 1956. Only rice is expected to be down—10,440,000 bags of 100 pounds each this year compared to 11 million last year.

Oranges also will be fewer—1,700,000 crates for '57, 2 million in '56. Grapefruit: 2,800,000 boxes for '57, 3 million for '56.

No official forecast has been made on cotton. Acreage planted is down, however, to 88 per cent of what it was last year.

14 Schools Fined

State Commission on School Accreditation says it will recommend that 15 Texas schools be dropped from accredited status.

Final decision will be made after the commission reports at the Sept. 2 meeting of the State Board of Education. Commission also suggested that 7 schools seeking accreditation not be approved and that 79 more schools be warned they must improve. Inadequacy of personnel, facilities and curriculum were cited.

Recommended for loss of accreditation were Asherton, Antonio, Bardwell, Barry, Ben Hur, Concord, Gordon, Kirkland, Kosse, Minden, Mount Calm, Norwood, Purdon, Sand Hill and Winfield.

Your Rights Defined

Military personnel who are discharged, wait a bit, then re-enlist are entitled to establish voting residence in the Texas county where they re-enlist.

So ruled the attorney general's department. But it doesn't apply, said the opinion, if the discharge and re-enlistment are continuous.

Texas constitution allows military personnel to vote in the county where they resided at the time of entering the service.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS From Your State Capitol

WEN SANFORD From Association

It's quiet around here now, especially in two months ago. Legislative issues came to a halt.

Assessing sightseers and the bustling, businesslike who are still on the Comptroller Robert S. have plenty to ponder. Money-worriers are announcing the state is to ante up $6,000,000 for the teacher retiring the coming two years.

due to the teacher which ups the amount both the state and the teachers must pay in.

Since the Legislature spent $80,000 of the state's expected revenue for the next biennium, this new drain means, according to Calvert, that "the poor old revenue fund will hit the deficit column sooner than expected."

"If I had to make a new estimate of the expected revenue right now," he said, "I'd have to say we'd end up almost $60,000,000 in the hole." But he added that he hoped the outlook would improve before he's called for another official forecast.

Jury Takes Break

Travis County's grand jury room is quiet too. Jurors are taking a two weeks "breather," but will resume investigation of the ICT collapse and Legislative bribery charges July 23.

Spokesmen gave no hint when the jury might give its report and end the general suspense.

Another grand jury in Dallas is still at work. It subpoenaed former Insurance Commissioners J. Byron Saunders and Garland Smith and Smith's son-in-law, Max Wayne Rychlik.

Insurance Forms Approved

Texas Insurance Commission has granted "temporary approval" to all life, health and accident policy forms filed before August 22. It's a stop-gap measure to conform with a new law and yet allow Texas insurance companies to continue business.

A law passed last session requires that all life insurance policy forms receive Commission approval before being offered to the public. Previously, only filing of forms with the Commission was needed.

But thousands and thousands of forms are involved, more than the Commission could possibly get through before the effective date of the bill. Hence: temporary approval for all during the checking period.

Advisors Named

A committee of four has been named to help small Texas cities that want to participate in the state's new urban redevelopment law.

They are Dr. D. R. Reilly of the Nolan-Scurry County Health Dept., Joe Driskell of Ft. Worth, Marvin R. Springer of Dallas and Jack Shelly of Garland. State Health Commissioner Henry A. Holle announced the group, to be known as the State Urban Renewal Advisory Committee.

Its functions will be to help cities under 25,000 population de-

Governor Proclaims July 21 to 27 As Farm Safety Week

The death toll from farm-work accidents last year in the nation was higher than in any other major industry. "Farm accidents," said Gov. Price Daniel on June 13 when he issued his Farm Safety Week Proclamation, "have become a serious problem which not only causes untold suffering among our rural population, but which affects the economy of the entire nation."

In proclaiming the week of July 21-27 as Farm Safety Week, Governor Daniel pointed out that the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service would be cooperating with the National Safety Council and the U. S. Department of Agriculture in carrying out a farm accident-prevention educational effort. This campaign is in keeping with a proclamation issued earlier by President Eisenhower on a national basis.

Governor Daniel said, "The effect of accident-prevention programs has indicated that our rural residents, through attention to safety education, can greatly reduce accidents and the resulting loss and suffering. Therefore, as Governor, I urge all farm families to join in a continuing campaign against needless accidents."

The Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council strongly believes that farm accident prevention efforts should be made a part of every family's plan for improving their farm and home. Until farm families become conscious of the multitude of accident hazards, says the Council, "We would like to see the farmer and every member of his family become as safety conscious as are the people who work in industries where the accident rates have been reduced almost to the zero point. We think it can be done, if as Governor Daniel says, everyone will participate in a continuing educational campaign to wipe out farm accidents."

"Appoint yourself a committee of one to start the ball rolling on your farm," urges the Council.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Jones of Weintert, accompanied by Mrs. H. T. Wilkinson and Sue of Haskell, were in Greenville part of last week visiting Mr. Jones' sister, Mrs. E. L. Creech and Mr. Creech. They also visited other friends and relatives in Campbell and Lone Oak.

For all the flowers, food, kind deeds and expressions of sympathy, we say thank you. May God bless you all.—The S. E. Strickland family. 29p

Areas Suitable for Wildlife Exist on Most Farms

Without a doubt all of us like dove and quail. They can serve an excellent source of recreation for the family and friends, plus quite a taste dish to please the palate, or just their beauty as they flush. With very few exceptions every farm in the area have areas that are not being used and if properly managed will provide excellent cover and food for birds, according to specialists of the Soil Conservation Service.

Cover needs are of three main types. Roosting cover, loafing or resting cover and nesting cover. Roosting cover needs to be brushy with plenty of overhead protection. Shrubs or brush furnish excellent sources. Even brush piles or mesquite and shinnery, if the limbs are cut until they just hang down, give overhead protection with open area under them. Resting or loafing cover need the same overhead protection. These need to be near food sources and close enough together that the birds may move from one cover to another with minimum exposure. Nesting cover preferred by the birds is dead grass preferably tall grasses that have fallen over. These are usually plentiful in areas that haven't been mowed, burned or overgrazed.

Food is another essential for birds. Food is usually plentiful through the spring and fall. Sometimes during mid-summer and late winter it becomes short. Insects, fruit, berries, and green vegetation are used when available. Midwinter, cold or summer heat eliminates this type of foods and the birds must find another source or die. Most birds switch to a diet of seed during these adverse times. Although most domestic grains, such as wheat and grain sorghum are eaten by wild life, they deteriorate rapidly after falling on the ground and germinate or rot as soon as rain falls on them. So birds must depend upon plants with hard seeds that resist rotting. Annual weeds and grasses furnish these types of seed. Sunflowers, partridge peas, panicums, rag weeds and many others are sources of hard seeds for food and usually plentiful in and around fence rows and odd areas, if they are not destroyed by mowing, grazing or burning.

Look around your farm for such odd areas, such as fence rows and corners. When properly managed, the odd areas can provide recreation as well as food for the family.

For further information and help in selecting and caring for these areas contact your local Soil Conservation Service Technicians.

The Army announced recently that men between the ages of 17 1/2-28 who are now classified 1-D and subject to draft in the military services can be deferred from draft by enlisting in the Ready Reserve for 6 to 8 years. Of this time, six months will be active duty within 120 days from enlistment, when they will be trained in a military specialty, and 5 1/2 or 7 1/2 years of active participation in a Ready Reserve unit. This will be composed of attendance of one night each week and two weeks of unit training each summer at some Army camp.

For the past four years, the Haskell unit has gone to Fort Chaffee, Ark., for their annual unit training. This year they will leave for annual camp about July 20.

As the result of securing an Armory, the unit is now receiving their organizational equipment from the Fort Worth USAR Advisors Office, Major Clyde L. Holland, Senior Advisor, announced. The unit will be self-supporting for training, supply, maintenance and administration.

The 375th Replacement Battalion is a unit with priority over enlistees in the Fort Worth USAR area. It is the only Ready Reserve unit between Fort Worth and Lubbock, and between Wichita Falls and Abilene. The current TO&E strength of the unit is such that only 15 vacancies remain and will soon be occupied. Therefore, it is advisable that unassigned personnel be contacted for complete information. They are: Major R. C. Couch, Jr., Major Bill Lawson, Capt. Terry Diggs, Sgt. LeRoy O'Neal, all in Haskell. In Stamford, Capt. Cliff Cobb at the P. C. A. office and Sgt. Leonard Hood at Cook Machine Shop, Munday. Sgt. Joe Lane at the Texas Highway Department. Also, any other member of the unit can be contacted for information.

At a later date and upon completion of the Armory, an open house will be held at which time the public will be invited to inspect the facilities.

Lake Stamford Boat Regatta Set for July 28

Lake Stamford Boat Regatta has been set for July 28, providing people in this immediate area the opportunity of seeing boat races sanctioned and authorized by the National Outboard Association.

The site of the Regatta will be the area designated for the new State Park. Only a small area will be patrolled for the races, allowing those not interested to boat, ski, fish without obstruction to the racers.

The racing boats are very fast and in ideal conditions will often travel as fast as 70 miles per hour. They are very small and barely skim the water. The driver is usually on his knees in order to balance and control the boat. A small object on the course, or even the break of a backwash from a boat with over 5 h. p. could result in a bad spill or even a tragic accident. Consequently, persons in other boats are urged to keep clear of the race area.

Tickets will be offered for sale in all neighboring towns or may be purchased at the gate. Since the site is available only by car, tickets are offered on the car basis. This can afford an afternoon of fun and pleasure for the entire family.

Races will start at 2 p. m. and will be over before 6 p. m. Everyone is invited to attend and signs will be posted on all roads directing traffic to the race area. This is an area project and an organization in each town will be asked to sponsor the event.

Grain Stubble Is Valuable Aid In Soil Building

Grain stubble is an important crop just as the grain itself, specialists of the Soil Conservation Service point out. All too often it is considered a hindrance to farming and is destroyed but when properly managed it is just the opposite.

The stubble is a source of organic matter which is a vital part of the soil. As it decays it makes available to growing plants needed minerals. It also acts as a sponge soaking up water and holding it for plant use. Stubble also helps keep the soil in better tith so that rain can soak in and plowing will be easier. When stubble is left on the surface of the soil it serves many purposes: It protects the soil against the beating and packing effect of heavy rains. Rain soaks in through small pores and holes into the soil. As long as these are open the rain soaks in rapidly, but once they clog up runoff begins. When soil is left bare the drops of rain strike the soil with hammering blows breaking loose small bits of soil. As the water starts to flow downward the small particles stop up the openings and prevent the soil from taking water. This results in the soil searing over and the water runs off. Stubble left on the surface of the soil serves as a shade cutting down on evaporating moisture and also shading out small weeds. It also serves as a barrier against the wind preventing wind erosion.

In preparing stubble the best tool is a chisel with sweeps. The sweeps run under the stubble and straw cutting any weeds and still leaving the cover on top. When a grain crop is to follow seeding
