PostTech moves to UC

by Tomi Rodgers/UD

PostTech, Texas Tech's U.S. Postal Service contract station, opened its new location in the University Center Monday in an effort to be more accessible and to accommodate more students and faculty.

Moving the mail service from West Hall to its new location in room 103 of the UC was a UC's Copy Cabana closed last semester, leaving space for PostTech.

Jim Mogan, manager of Tech's Postal Mailing Services, said relocating PostTech was a logical choice.

"For a number of people, West Hall is out of the way," Mogan said. "We've put it in an area (the UC) where there's a great deal of student and faculty traffic."

Mogan said the effort to move to the UC received a lot of cooperation from MailTech, the campus service dealing with incoming and departmental mail.

"It's something that needs to be done," decision made by the administration after the Mogan said, adding that PostTech's move is the start of future changes.

"It's hopefully a first step to expand the quantity and quality of postal services on campus for personal customers," Mogan said.

Personal mail boxes, which are offered through PostTech, will be moving locations within the next few weeks.

The private and rented boxes, which currently are in West Hall, will be relocated to the new PostTech location and to an outer lobby

PostTech Supervisor Karen Preston said customers may have a problem with accessibility to parking for the service, but that overall, the new location will be good for the students and will bring in more customers.

Their View

Holiday creates major apathy toward classes

Brooks Boyett/columnist

It was really windy yesterday. Windy and extremely dusty. I wish I could have blown away. That way, I wouldn't have to go to school. I could just blow around West Texas, relaxing and enjoying myself. That would be quite nice.

Sadly, I had no such luck. I was forced to go to class. Darn.

There is no worse a feeling than getting up and going to classes the day after Spring Break ends. It's just way too hard. Ever since elementary school, I've been prone to totally losing all desire to go to school. I find my mind wandering, unable to focus on learning whatsoever. I get depressed because there's no more sleeping late, no more relaxing, no more worry-free days. I have to get back into the real world.

And this year is no exception.

The worst part about all of this is that all my beloved professors have assigned large projects and reports that all seem to be due in the next couple of weeks. And I just can't make myself do them. I just feel lazy and tired and totally unmotivated. I either have a severe case of spring fever or else I'm a narcoleptic. I'm pretty sure it's spring fever. I wish it were narcolepsy, because then I would have an excuse for being lazy. But with my luck, I'm probably perfectly healthy.

I wish all my professors would just realize that assigning me projects at this time of year is pointless. There is just no way they'll get my best effort. *• I'm sure you all have the same problem. I think I have the solution.

Professors should be required to assign any group projects, term papers, *, speeches, etc. the first day of class. They should be due within the next week. This would be great. I tend to have oodles of motivation the first week of school or so. I vow to work extremely hard and to not procrastinate whatso-

This feeling lasts for, oh, about a week and a half. And I don't have a chance to put it to use. My motivation is wasted because all I get to do is sit . through lectures about each course syllabus. If I'm lucky, my professor just ... might start actually lecturing over real stuff the first week. But nothing is ever directly or indirectly dealt with the due. No tests are ever given. And my motivation to be a great student begins to

So by the time projects are due, Spring Break has passed on by, taking my desire with it and possibly better grades.

I think its all part of a government plot. They just want students to lose their desire each spring so that they fail their classes. The school will then tion process, this temporary parking tent situation. generate more money because everyone will have to pay to retake those classes.

Between you and me, I bet this money is being used to help finance the new arena. Don't be surprised if its new name will be the United Spirit a Bunch of Students Failed Arena. The worst part about all this is that there is really nothing we can do about it. It's out of our hands. It's either study hard, drop the class, or fail.

I wish it was still Spring Break. Brooks Boyett is a junior advertising major from Amarillo.

Our Point

New grading system needs more scrutiny

An A may not be an A anymore.

Well, it won't be if the Tech Faculty Senate passes a bill that would allow professors to add a plus or minus to letter grades.

A bill presented at the last senate meeting proposed that professors would be allowed to give students a plus or minus along with their letter grade, and attach a numerical equivalent along with it.

Thus, an A+ is worth more than an A.

The catch is that not all professors are required to subscribe to the new plus/minus grading system if it is implemented. Therefore, a student taking a class, turning in the same quantity and quality of work as another, may make a better grade simply because they are in a different section of a course with a different professor.

That deserves an F for unfair.

Grading needs to be all or nothing, not a sometimes plus or minus grading system. It's great that faculty want to support students that do well in their classes, but they should support all students.

Creating discrepancies amongst students' GPAs and former students' GPAs does not seem like any kind of support.

Grading should be all or nothing.

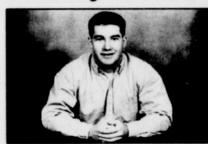

This system receives a an F for failure.

What has been publicized for weeks has finally happened — the Student Recreation Center lot is now under construction for the new arena, new temporary lots west of Indiana Avenue are available, parking is also available at the Naval Reserve Area (at Fourth Street and Brownfield Highway) and two new shuttle routes will run in five-minute arise. intervals from the west lots to the business administration building with no stops. These routes will go a long way toward alleviating the situation with more students parking further from campus. You should be able to get from the parking lots to your classroom in the same amount of time as if you were parking in the Rec Center lot. The red and green routes will run normally and they will not experience any changes. Parking for the Rec Center is available behind the greenhouse at Main Street and Hartford Avenue. Additionally, updates on available commuter parking will be aired on 88.1-KTXT.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Mexico as drug ally:

The Senate compromise on the certification of Mexico as an ally in the war against drugs — a compromise in which Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, played a major role — is a common-sense solution and one to which the House should agree.

Mexico is placated and any damage to its economy (Hutchison's maties between Texas and Mexico) minimized by continued certification. Yet the reality of weak efforts and poor results at the Mexican end of the drug funnel is recognized. The president must report back to Congress on the two countries' progress toward better control of the drug traffic and efforts to weed out corrupt officials in Mexico. It should be clear to Mexican and U.S. officials that Congress will not be in a mood to accept platitudes.

However, the real problem for Mexico is the money generated by American demand for illegal drugs. Congress needs to admit that and deal with it here rather than blaming a

The key words here are "good behavior," which some members of Congress have taken o mean far more than what many ohers have interpreted. Some lawmakers believe "good behavior" means rendering judgments with which they agree.

We disagree with that interpretation, preferring instead to rely on what other scholars say constitutional framers meant with the words "good behavior." Our own interpretation is that the framers meant that judges should not be lawbreakers. The Constitution already provides for impeachment of judges in the event of bribery, treason or "high crimes and misdemeanors."

U.S. Rep. Tom DeLay, R-Sugar Land, says Congress should have greater latitude in impeaching federal Why? Well, according to DeLay, some judges have become too "activist" in their decision-making.

He's angry at some judges' liberal court rulings, citing U.S. District Judge Thelton Henderson's ruling, for example, overturning a voter-approved initiative to end affirmative action pro-

DeLay's pique is understandable. We don't like some judges' rulings, either. But the U.S. Constitution gives federal judges lifetime tenure for a

Yet we've seen in the past year increasing political pressure on judges. That pressure has come not only from conservatives in Congress, but from the president of the United States himself. U.S. District Judge Fred Baer, for instance, ruled against the New York City police department's arrest of a known drug dealer, offering a specious argument that the alleged pusher ran from police because of the low regard that residents of that crime-ridden neighborhood have for the department.

The outrage against the judge was loud and well-founded.

Al Gore, U.S. vice presi-

the U.S.

BEIJING (AP) — Borrowing the words of an ancient Chinese poem, Vice President Al Gore said Monday it is time for the United States and China to "scale a greater height" that will allow cordial everyday relations despite persistent disputes over human rights, trade and other issues.

Gore's was the highest-level visit to China by an American official in eight years - since then-President Bush visited Beijing a few months before the bloody crackdown on prodemocracy demonstrators in Tiananmen Square.

There was some good economic mutual trust, news to open the visit. Gore and Premier Li Peng were attending a ceremony Tuesday to announce China was signing a multimillion-dollar deal to buy passenger jets from the Seattlebased Boeing Corp.

After his meeting Tuesday morning with Li, who played a leading role in the military action against the Tiananmen protesters, Gore is to sit down with President Jiang Zemin Wednesday.

"The landscape of U.S-China relations is filled with many rivers, some flowing together, others flowing apart," Gore said in a statement portance of relations between our nations, and to continue to build a lasting peace between China and the U.S.

To make the case that it was time for the relationship to advance to a higher level of Gore cited a Chinese poem from the Tang Dynasty, which ended 1,090 years ago: "The sun beyond the mountain

"The Yellow River seaward flows "But if you desire a grander sight, "Then you must scale a greater

The agenda for his meetings was dominated by prickly issues that have in the past strained relations: human rights, the growing U.S. trade deficit with China and concerns about Chi-as he arrived Monday night. "I have nese sales of missile technology and traveled here to reaffirm the vital im- chemical weapons ingredients to other nations.

> Gore also was seeking assurances that China will not roll back personal freedoms when it assumes control of Hong Kong from Britain July 1.

News

In addition, he was seeking China's help on two fronts: in convincing North and South Korea to meet in formal peace talks and in working to lower emissions of so-called greenhouse gases even with China relying more and more on coal as its energy needs match its rapid economic growth.

Gore said his mission would not be derailed by allegations China tried to funnel money illegally into last year's congressional and presidential elections. China has forcefully denied the allegations, and blamed them on anti-China forces in Taiwan and the United States.

While seeking progress on several specific fronts, Gore said his overriding goal was to help build a greater foundation of trust between Washington and Beijing so that, as has been the case in U.S.-Russian relations of late, a pointed disagreement on one or two issues does not foreclose progress on others.

To get there, the Clinton administration's strategy is based on keeping specific public criticism to a minimum, in the belief that the Chinese government, which bristles at public pressure, responds, albeit slowly, to private entreaties. This approach, however, leaves the administration open to criticism it is not forceful enough and has put economic interests ahead of human rights.

Citing China's human rights record, for example, House Democratic Leader Dick Gephardt has announced he will oppose renewing China's preferable trade status when the question comes up this summer. Gephardt also is pushing legislation that would require congressional assent before China can join the World Trade Organization.

Texas man claims state is independent

DAVIS MOUNTAINS (AP) - Richard Lance McLaren, who calls his trailer home the Republic of Texas embassy, says more than half of New Mexico and parts of four other states are an independent nation.

McLaren said he has sent an official republic document to New Mexico's Gov. Gary Johnson, ordering him to hand over everything east of the Rio Grande.

And he seeks $93 trillion from the United States in reparations from the Civil War.

He says the U.S. violated terms of the federal Constitution in 1845 and signed an illegal resolution accepting Texas as a state.

Texas — which sided with the Confederacy in the Civil War was considered a captive nation by the U.S. after that war. Congress has never acted, said McLaren, to officially make Texas a state and end its independent status as a sovereign nation.

McLaren also sent letters with similar demands to Wyoming, Colorado, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Spokesmen for Johnson said the governor would have no immediate response to McLaren's claims.

McLaren has also contacted the German government, ordering that nation to remove it's Air Force pilot training center at Holloman Air Force Base near Alamogordo, N.M.

"Germany has military forces on our soil without permission, and they have refused to recognize the Republic of Texas," he said.

"We've asked them repeatedly. If they fail to recognize us, we're going to file liens on all assets of German-held companies in Texas."

McLaren, 43, is supported by about 200 active followers across Texas, according to law enforcement agents.

He is the subject on an investigation at the Texas Attorney General's office for allegedly filing illegal liens against state leaders including Gov. George Bush and Attorney General Dan Mo-

He's also made a number of purchases on checks drawn on the "Republic of Texas Trust," based on assets that the Texas Attorney General's office says don't exist.

The Republic's checks have bounced, and creditors have been told to ask for their money from the state treasury.

Some students and professors say the treaty is a good idea if the money saved from building nuclear weapons is put back in the U.S defense fund.

"More money could be put into Star Wars (an intercontinental satellite network designed to destroy missiles aimed at the U.S)," Olmedo said. "We have to protect ourselves."

Saideman said reducing our num-

"We will still have defense capabilities," he said. "What is the difference between 2,000 and 3,000 missiles?"

"This is a unique part of history not everyone knows about, and this will help educate people and bring it to life for them," said Elizabeth Locke, education program manager at the Tech museum.

'English Patient' overtakes Oscars

Independent film garners nine awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The romantic war epic "The English Patient" won nine Academy Awards Monday, including best picture and a surprise supporting-actress Oscar for Juliette Binoche.

The developing sweep about a burn victim's tortured recollections of his misdeeds in time of war put the film among Hollywood's elite. The all-time winner was 1959's "Ben-Hur" with 11 Oscars.

"I'm so surprised," said Binoche, who, like many, thought the statuette would go to Lauren Bacall. "I didn't prepare anything. I thought Lauren was going to get it. And I think she deserves it."

Binoche portrayed the compassionate Canadian nurse in "The English Patient." Bacall, a star since 1944 but never before nominated, was named for her role as a domineering mother in "The Mirror Has Two Faces.'

"The English Patient," which had the most nominations with 12, also won six other prizes: cinematography, dramatic score, film editing, sound, costume and art direction.

Besides its competitive Oscars, "The English Patient" producer Saul Zaentz, received the Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award for his career. He also produced previous Oscar-winners "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Amadeus."

Before the show, the contenders for top honors were largely unknown to most Americans.

Except for Cruise, Diane Keaton, Bacall and a couple of others, most of the 20 acting nominees hadn't gotten much play in Peoria.

In fact, three were nominated for their very first movies: Emily Watson, "Breaking the Waves"; Edward Norton, "Primal Fear"; and Marianne Jean-Baptiste, "Secrets and Lies." Fourteen others were never before

And in the best picture category, four of the five nominees were independent films with relatively small audiences: "The English Patient," "Fargo," "Shine" and "Secrets & Lies." Only "Jerry Maguire" was released by a major Hollywood stu-

Big 12 roundballers stumble in NCAAs

Brent Dirks/sports reporter

So much for Big 12 Conference basketball superiority.

After watching Big 12 teams dropping like flies in the NCAA tournament last week, next year's conference motto should be "Big 12 - Basketball Superbust."

Not to be bitter or anything, but if this continues in years to come, the Big 12 is going to be the first conference in history known for choking in the clutch.

First and foremost for scorn, it's those "mighty" Kansas Jayhawks. Almost everybody in America had Kansas going to at least the Final Four in Indianapolis, but no, they have to lose to historically tournament-horrible Arizona in the Sweet 16.

And of all the teams to lose to, Arizona had to be the worst. Even though they have been a perennial basketball powerhouse, the Wildcats have a bad reputation for choking.

Who knows what kind of reputation Kansas is going to have now? In the weakest division in the tournament, the Jayhawks had every good reason to win every game in the regional by spectacular scores. Now there are only what-might-have-beens.

Now that the spotlight has been turned off Kansas, Jayhawk coach Roy Williams finally may have to answer for the team's mistakes on the court this year and in years past.

Williams, one of the top three college basketball coaches in this country, never will be placed in the category of North Carolina's Dean Smith and Kentucky's Rick Pittino until he wins a national championship.

That's a bad commentary on the state of college basketball, but you have to look at what Williams has done. Since coming in after Kansas won the national championship in 1988, he's been giving so much talent, but failed to produce. Until he does, that 1988 banner will cast a large shadow over him and the Jayhawks program.

Next on the choke list is Iowa State. Yes, it was a nice surprise to see the Cyclones get into the Sweet 16 with a win over Cincinnati, but their 74-73 overtime loss to UCLA was a horrible sight to behold. There is no good reason for Iowa State, which had double digit leads against the Bruins, to let UCLA creep back into the game and force overtime.

More than that, the last-second shot by Cameron Dollar to win the game was a laugh, defensively. Iowa State would have been one of the biggest surprises of the tournament if it could have pulled out the victory and played Minnesota for a chance to get to Indy, but no dice.

Lower down on the idiot list is the other Big 12 teams in the tournament — Texas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Texas was a fluke, plain and simple.

To have a two and three seed upset in your bracket was just lucky. If New Mexico and/or South Carolina had survived, the Runnin' Horns would have been walking back to Austin much quicker than they did.

With revelations coming to light that Texas coach Tom Penders may be the next Rutgers coach, the Big 12 may be better without him.

Colorado looked good in the first round by beating Indiana, but couldn't stay with mighty North Carolina, which was no big surprise. Even if the two teams were evenly matched, Smith would have gotten his record win.

Oklahoma looked good against Stanford, but was just outmanned. So, let's hope the Big 12 teams can suck it up next season and show the world the real talent level of the conference.

The Texas Tech men's golf team ended its Spring Break early in order to compete in the Border Olympics Saturday and Sunday in Laredo at the par-72, 7,125-yard Laredo Country

Following suit with its prior performances this season, Tech struggled mightily, finishing in 15th place.

"I think we might have been struggling from coming back early from Spring Break," Tech coach Tommy Wilson said.

"I don't know if we were completely into the tournament."

The six-man team for the Red Raiders finished 57 shots behind the A&M Aggies in the 54-hole tournament. The 15 competing played 36 holes Saturday and fin-

The Aggies ended Arkansas' fiveyear championship run in the tournament, which is the second oldest in the nation. The Razorbacks never led, and finished in fourth place, 14 strokes behind Texas A&M.

Other finishers from the Big 12 Conference included Kansas and first-place Texas Baylor, tied for eighth, 24 shots behind the Aggies.

Senior Patrick Barley was the high finisher for Tech in a tie for 36th, nine shots over par. Barley ended the tournament with a final round 70 after posting a 78 and a 77 in the tournament's first two rounds.

Texas A&M's Jeff Brown won the tournament, finishing seven shots under par. Other finishers for Tech included junior Philip Tate in a 55th place tie, 12 shots over par, and sophomore Sean Mulherin in a 66th place tie, 14 over par.

Juniors Tom Baldwin and Mark Garcia finished 72nd and 88th, respectively. Baldwin finished 15 shots over par, while Garcia was 22 over. Senior Chris Hill had his worst finish in a tournament this season, finishing 24 shots over par, in 89th place.

"I just really believe that the kids had Spring Break on the minds, and not golf," Wilson said. "We are just really struggling right now."

Tech doesn't get much time to rest, either. The Red Raiders play Saturday and Sunday in the Dr Pepper Intercollegiate in Pottsboro, a tournament hosted by Southern Methodist.

"We're pretty much rushed," Wilson said. "I barely have time to pack my underwear before we head out."

Cowboys make good on second priority signing

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, who aren't certain Charles Haley will return, re-signed pass rush specialist Broderick Thomas Monday.

"We had to have this guy," said coach Barry Switzer. "He was a priority for our staff. He can run people down from behind. He has natural pass rushing instincts."

Thomas moved from linebacker to defensive end in the last six games of the 1996 season and finished second on the team with 4.5 sacks. He also had 20 quarterback pressures.

Owner Jerry Jones, who said terms wouldn't be announced, said the Cowboys needed Thomas no matwhether Haley returns.

"We have to be respectful that Haley's decision is not made but we have to realize his limitations," Jones

Thomas won't play linebacker this year and he said he is looking forward to being at defensive end fulltime.

"I'm happy with this franchise," Thomas said. "I had a chance to sign with other teams and it was close. But I decided to try to come back here and take another chance at a Super Bowl. I played with my hand on the ground at Nebraska and I'm ready do it here. I enjoyed playing at end the last part of the season.'

Thomas has played for Tampa Bay, Minnesota and Detroit. He has been in 131 straight NFL games.

He has a career total of 44 sacks in eight NFL seasons and has made a total of 698 tackles.

Assistant coach Jim Bates said "Broderick is everything you look for as an edge rusher. I see even a better season for him this year with him being a pass rusher all the time and not being bothered by playing linebacker."

Thomas was the second "priority" signing by the Cowboys, who also brought fullback Daryl Johnston into the fold last week.

Dallas has lost punter John Jett, placekicker Chris Boniol, and safety George Teague to free agency.

Jones said the Cowboys still have room to maneuver under the salary

"There is the school of thought that says the Cowboys are in decline,"

"We don't go to that school."

Kentucky's return to Final Four an improbable one

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — It's come full circle for Kentucky. The Wildcats opened the season in Indianapolis, and now they're back there and in position for a second straight

But everything changed last week when Arizona upset Kansas in the Southeast Regional semifinal.

Now it's Kentucky, Minnesota, North Carolina and Arizona making the trip to Indianapolis this week. And the Wildcats can join Duke (1991-92) as the only team to repeat as champion since UCLA in 1973.

Of the four teams left, only Arizona is not ranked higher than Kentucky. Minnesota finished the regular season at No. 3, followed by North Carolina and Kentucky.

Before Saturday's game, Utah players talked about how Kentucky isn't as good as last year - a claim that even the Wildcats won't dispute.

Tech baseball overcomes errors, 24-7

by Charles Melton/UD

Coming off a big series against Big 12 Conference foe Baylor, the No. 9 Texas Tech Red Raiders struggled before outslugging Howard Payne 24-7 at Dan Law Field Monday night.

"I was really disappointed with how we played," said Tech coach Larry Hays. "Tonight was not us."

Even though Tech (22-3 overall, 7-2 Big 12) won by 17 runs, Tech's defense committed four errors, and Howard Payne (12-10) was in the game until the seventh inning.

Tech junior right-hander David Therneau (2-0) struck out the first three batters he faced and finished with 10 strikeouts in five innings of work

After tacking on a run in the fourth inning and two in the fifth, Tech appeared to be in control.

In the sixth inning, junior reliever Jimmy Hooper surrendered two runs on three consecutive doubles to begin the inning. He allowed a third run on a single sandwiched between a fly out and ground out before striking out Jason Rinewalt to end the inning with the score 8-6 in Tech's favor.

Hooper gave up a run in the seventh inning before sophomore reliever Brandon Ralston and Tech's offense took control.

With Ralston shutting down Howard Payne's offense, Tech exploded for 16 runs in the seventh and eighth innings.

In the seventh inning, Tech junior left fielder Jason Landreth hit a tworun home run and junior first baseman Carter Ayers hit a two-run double to cap Tech's six-run explosion to make the score 14-7.

Tech took advantage of Howard Payne's poor pitching in the eighth inning, scoring 10 more runs off two different pitchers.

Tech suffered a little letdown after the Baylor series and was looking forward to its series with No. 10 Oklahoma State this weekend, Ralston

"We just need to come out and play baseball and not worry about who we are playing," he said.

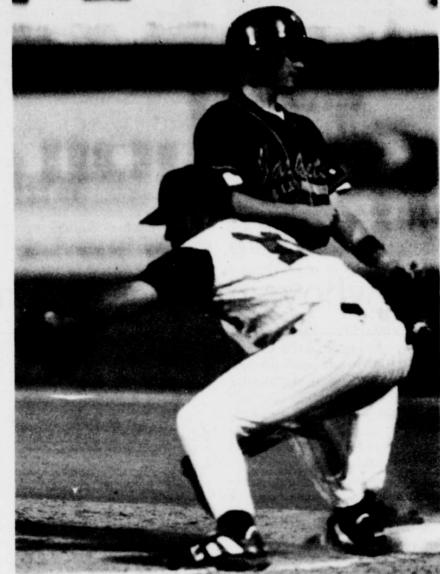

Ralston said it felt good to come out and get some work to get ready for Tech's game against College of the Southwest today and the Oklahoma State series this weekend at Dan Law

Hays agreed and said Tech needs to come out and take care of business today against College of the Southwest or the Red Raiders could be in

"We need to come back and play a good solid game," he said.

While the offensive explosion was nice, Hays said Tech needs to get its defense and pitching back to the way it has been all season.

Tech senior designated hitter Joe Dillon led the Red Raider attack going 3-for-5 with three RBIs, and sophomore third baseman Brandon Buckley went 5-for-6 with 5 RBIs.

Barkley's expected return delayed for undetermined time

HOUSTON (AP) — With Charles big three superstars to remain on the Barkley, the Houston Rockets feel they are a team of destiny. Without him, they have a losing record and it could get worse.

Barkley, the last of the Rockets' injury list, has been out since March 1 with a bruised left pelvis.

He hoped to play Tuesday night against Minnesota, but those plans were dashed Monday.

His pelvis tightened during a halfcourt drill, and trainer Keith Jones said there is no timetable for his re-

"I had a great weekend running and jumping, but I guess I kind of regressed," Barkley said of his lengthened absence.

"I scrimmaged a little today, and it was just not good. I don't know what to say or feel. I'm just very disappointed and depressed."

Sports briefly

Softball plays doubleheader with ACU

The Texas Tech softball team heads to Abilene today to take on the Abilene Christian Wildcats in a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m.

The Red Raiders (27-5) were triumphant in the teams' first meeting of the season, taking two from an ACU squad that is 27-9 in its first season of competition.

Tech is led by junior infielder Kim Martinez, who has fashioned a .513 batting average with nine home runs and 43 RBIs this season.

Late errors propel Twins over Texas, 6-5

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) - Minnesota took advantage of three errors in the eighth inning to score five unearned runs off World Series MVP John Wetteland, and the Twins beat the Texas Rangers 6-5 Mon-

Reserve third baseman Fernando Tatis threw a ground ball into right field, enabling Greg Myers to score the go-ahead run with two outs.

Wetteland gave up five hits in the inning. Chuck Knoblauch, who had four hits, led off with a single, shortstop Domingo Cedeno threw a potential double-play ball into right field and Mike Simms dropped a routine fly ball in right, loading the bases.

Marty Cordova hit an RBI single, Scott Stahoviak's sacrifice fly made it 5-3 and run-scoring singles by Myers and Matt Lawton tied the score. Texas starter John Burkett allowed one run and seven hits in six innings and struck out seven. Mike Devereaux hit a two-run homer for the Rangers and Cedeno had three hits.

Rich Becker hit a solo homer in the sixth for Twins. Minnesota starter LaTroy Hawkins started allowed three runs and nine hits in five inning, and struck out four.

Marlins escape with 7-6 win over Astros

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — Jeff Conine's RBI single off Ramon Garcia in the seventh inning Monday lifted the Florida Marlins to a 7-6 exhibition victory over the Houston Astros.

Bobby Bonilla and Jim Eisenreich did most of the offensive damage for Florida. Bonilla had a two-run homer in the first inning off Astros starter Darryl Kile, and Eisenreich was 3-for-5 with two runs.

Derek Bell put the Astros ahead 3-2 in the first with a three-run blast of Alex Fernandez.

Kile surrendered three more runs in the third, when Luis Castillo singled, stole second and scored on Eisenrich's single. Bonilla drove home Gary Sheffield, and Eisenreich scored on Joe Orsulak's single to Houston closed to within 5-4 in the third on Sean Berry's RBI single to left. Florida made it 5-5 in the fifth, when Eisenreich scored on Greg Zaun's grounder to the mound.

Fernandez (2-1) allowed seven hits and two earned runs to pick up the victory for the Marlins. Garcia (2-1) suffered the loss for Houston.
