Council considers new fees for ticketed drivers

Brian Smith
THEUNIVERSITYDAILY

A plan presented to the Lubbock City Council Thursday morning may bring added fees to motorists who receive tickets.

Judge Jan Blacklock-Matthews presented a plan to the City Council to add a $3 fee to anyone who receives a traffic violation in Lubbock to help fund more security in the court room. The extra fee would not only help with security in the courtroom, but it also would help upgrade the security in the buildings that house the court.

"The money would stay in the city of Lubbock and go directly to the courts of Lubbock," Blacklock-Matthews said.

Officers could be serving warrants, but instead they have to stay in the courtroom as bailiffs, she said.

City Councilman Victor Hernandez, said he believes security is extremely important, and this is a good way to get people involved.

"This is an easy, logical way to get the folks who are part of the system involved," Hernandez said.

Chad Hyde, a junior recreational therapy and leisure major from Mililani, Hawaii, said he believes the added fee is a good idea.

"If the courts need extra officers in them, then let the people who are using the courts pay for them and not the taxpayers," Hyde said.

The courts need as much security as they can receive, he said.

"It is better to have too much security in the courtroom than not enough security," Hyde said.

Chris Crotty, a senior social work major from Dallas, said he thinks the money could go to more important things than extra security in the courtrooms.

"I would like to see our money go toward fixing the roads in Lubbock or getting some kind of drainage system for the city,"

Crotty said. Improving the roads or improving the drainage system would affect more people in Lubbock than more security in the courts would.

The agencies receive funding from several sources, including the State Employee Charitable Campaign, to which Tech employees contribute annually.

SECC honored Tech recently for efforts made to charitable agencies such as Big Brothers/Big Sisters, the YWCA and other United Way agencies.

Tech employees not only donate their money through the SECC, they also give their time to the agencies.

Jim Douglass, assistant director of the Ex-Students Association has been involved with United Way agencies for 20 years.

"Giving to the United Way and its agencies is an

Texas Tech recently received several awards for its commendable participation in the State Employees Charitable Campaign at the Governor's Mansion in Austin.

Tech President Donald Haragan accepted two plaques on the university's behalf from the United Way of Lubbock. The awards were for having the highest employee participation rate and for raising the most money per employee in the category of state agencies with 1,501 to 3,500 employees.

Tech and the Texas Tech University Health Sciences

Center shared their combined efforts to reach a goal of $277,500. They exceeded their goal by $28,799, said Jim Bob Jones, director of the TTUHSC relations and chairman of the local employee committee for the SECC.

The number of dollars raised per capita by Tech was $66.14. This is calculated by the total number of dollars divided by the total number of employees, Jones said.

The goal of the SECC is to give state employees the opportunity to contribute to health and human service organizations so the organizations can provide services

SPOTLIGHT on Pollution

FORT WORTH (AP) — Environmentalists say they are angry that emergency legislation would divert $140 million in pollution cleanup funds to pay an emissions testing company whose program was scuttled.

The compromise on a lawsuit settlement with Tejas Testing Technology in the Legislature's final days is awaiting Gov. George W. Bush's signature.

But lawmakers' raiding of the state Superfund, clean air and other pollution cleanup funds to pay Tejas Testing Technology has upset environmentalists and industries who paid pollution control fees.

"They were so gung-ho about going after this," said Neil Carman, who heads the Sierra Club's clean air division. "They should have taken a better look because that is money that is being taken from environmental protection in Texas."

Sen. Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, who sponsored the appropriations bill to pay Tejas, said the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission had assured him environmental programs could handle funding cuts.

IN BRIEF

WORLDNEWS

BEIJING (AP) — With just three weeks before the celebration marking Hong Kong's handover, China sent out its R.S.V.P. Wednesday, announcing President Jiang Zemin and other officials would attend.

A report on the state-run Xinhua news agency was the first official confirmation that Jiang would go to Hong Kong for ceremonies at midnight June 30 to commemorate the British colony's return to Chinese rule.

Britain had announced 18 months ago that it would be represented by Prince Charles.

NATIONALNEWS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armed with new evidence that surcharges for automated teller machines are increasing sharply, the chairman of the Senate Banking Committee threatened ATM networks Wednesday with subpoenas if they do not provide data on transaction costs.

Spokesmen for the two biggest networks, Plus and Cirrus, said they do not have such information.

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., also proposed legislation to ban double charges by banks on ATM transactions.

STATENEWS

AUSTIN (AP) — Secretary of State Tony Garza Thursday urged local elections officials to clean their rolls of deceased voters.

Garza said he found more than 7,600 dead voters still listed in a review of registered voters in Bexar, Midland, Jefferson and Lubbock counties. Bexar County had the most dead voters, with 6,000.

"Current and accurate voter registration rolls are vital to maintaining public confidence in our elections system," Garza said, adding that he would review other counties' rolls later this year.

• The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus

The Greatest Show on Earth has made a stop in the Hub City for the weekend.

The Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus will feature clowns, elephants, a tiger, lions, trapeze acts, dogs, horses, juggling and a new treat for viewers.

Airiana, the Human Arrow, is the final event and the new attraction at the circus.

She is shot from the world's largest crossbow into the air at high speeds.

Circus-goers also will be treated to a special time with the entertainers before the show at the Three Ring Adventure.

One hour before each show, viewers will be able to experience the event first hand.

Participants will be able to try juggling, clowning and trapeze. They can also try on circus outfits.

One of the performers, Marguerite Michelle, performs an act in which she is suspended in the air by only her hair.

The performers are from all over the world, including China, Great Britain and Spain.

Graham Thomas Chipperfield, the circus's premier animal trainer, will work with the elephants, lions and the tiger. He can trace his family's circus lineage back more than 300 years.

Chipperfield joined the Greatest Show on Earth in 1993, bringing 11 of his own lions and three of his own elephants.

The 126th edition of the circus cost $7 million to produce and will perform four shows at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum through Sunday afternoon.

Tonight's performance is set for 7:30, and Saturday performances are scheduled for 11:30 a.m., 3:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The show Sunday is set for 1:30 p.m.

Tickets cost $11.25, $14.25 and $16.25. For additional ticket information, contact Select-A-Seat at 770-2000.

In the HOTSEAT • FOCUSING ON CURRENT EVENTS

PASS • A lukewarm thumbs up to the U.S. Congress for finally agreeing on a flood-relief bill. Earlier this week Republicans tacked partisan provisions onto the bill hoping Clinton would feel pressure to sign it. Clinton vetoed the bill, accusing the GOP of "playing politics" with the lives of people in need.

PASS • Thumbs up to the American Cancer Society for increasing pressure on the tobacco industry. The ACS announced Thursday that a settlement with cigarette-makers could save the lives of one million young Americans. A term of the settlement would require tobacco companies to pay $4 billion every year for public health campaigns.

PASS • Thumbs up to British lawmakers for passing into law the world's strictest gun control measures. The new law, which prohibits the use of handguns, allows citizens a grace period during which they are required to relinquish their guns. Citizens caught with handguns after the grace period could face fines and even jail time.

Students should not be bullish when it comes to bearing money

Jeff Blackwell
UDCOLUMNIST

I know, I know, we're all penniless college students, right? Times are tough — sometimes it's difficult to dig up enough money to buy a soda, much less to invest in the stock market.

But don't rule out investing just yet.

Right now this country is experiencing one of the strongest economies in its history. If you listen to speculators, you hear either that Wall Street is on the way down, or that the economy and the stock market will continue to go through the roof.

You may be asking yourself, "How does this affect me?" So many students today don't realize the value that a tucked-away dollar might have on their future.

Well, like it or not, it has become a necessity for our generation to think ahead and invest now for a secure future.

Many economists question whether the members of Generation X will ever see any of their social security. Another possible thorn in the side of students is that it is normal for the average worker to change employers many times in his or her career.

This means, unlike our parents, we won't be able to rack up the retirement nest egg like they could.

Another change in tradition is that to land many of the jobs our parents got with a high school education or bachelor's degree, we must get a master's degree or more. Higher education doesn't necessarily correspond with a big paycheck.

Because we can no longer rely on traditional methods of income, we must find other ways of saving. The problem has a clear solution — invest now, and be thankful you did later.

The problem has a clear solution — invest now, and be thankful you did later.

But until you get a job or receive a social security check, you can start planning for your financial future now. (Of course, the best investment you can make is in an education, so you're already one step ahead of the game.)

Remember, it doesn't take a big investment to see a big payoff. The one rule you must understand is that time is your best friend.

If your parents invested $1,000 in an interest-bearing account when you were born, you would've had about $1,000,000 sitting in the bank by the time you were 65 years old. While most college students don't have a spare $1,000 lying around, it is never too early to start saving a little.

Even opening a savings account brings you one step closer to a financially secure future.

GOP's plan backfires, Congress passes new flood relief bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eager to abandon a bruising battle with the White House, the Republican-controlled Congress passed $8.6 billion disaster aid legislation Thursday after stripping out provisions that sparked an earlier veto by President Clinton.

The bill, which Clinton will sign, won Senate clearance on a vote of 78-21. Final passage in the House came by a similarly lopsided margin of 348-74.

The legislation will provide $5.6 billion in emergency relief for victims of disasters in 35 states, the flood-ravaged Dakotas and Minnesota among them.

Republicans retreated on provisions relating to government shutdowns and the 2000 Census to which Clinton had objected.

"I am especially pleased that the congressional majority heeded the call of common sense by ensuring that the people who need this assistance will get it and by ensuring that the controversial and extraneous provisions of the bill were dropped," Clinton said in a written statement.

"Mr. President, we give you a perfect bill. It's over," said Rep.

Bob Livingston, R-La., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. But he added sternly that the protracted standoff on the legislation never denied relief to disaster victims.

Livingston's remarks were akin to a surrender in a political war that many GOP lawmakers said was costing their party support.

"Many of us wondered if this day was going to come, and here it is," said Democratic Sen. Kent Conrad, whose state of North Dakota was hit particularly hard by a string of natural disasters.

In all, 197 Democrats, 150 Republicans and independent Bernie Sanders of Vermont voted for the bill; 73 Republicans and one Democrat voted against. In the Senate, 42 Democrats and 36 Republicans voted in favor; 19 Republicans and two Democrats against.

"I'm glad to have it over," declared House Majority Leader Dick Armey, after a few lawmakers griped about the leadership's handling of the episode.

But the longer the struggle went, the more it prompted GOP lawmakers to worry that they were being blamed for delaying disaster relief at great political cost.

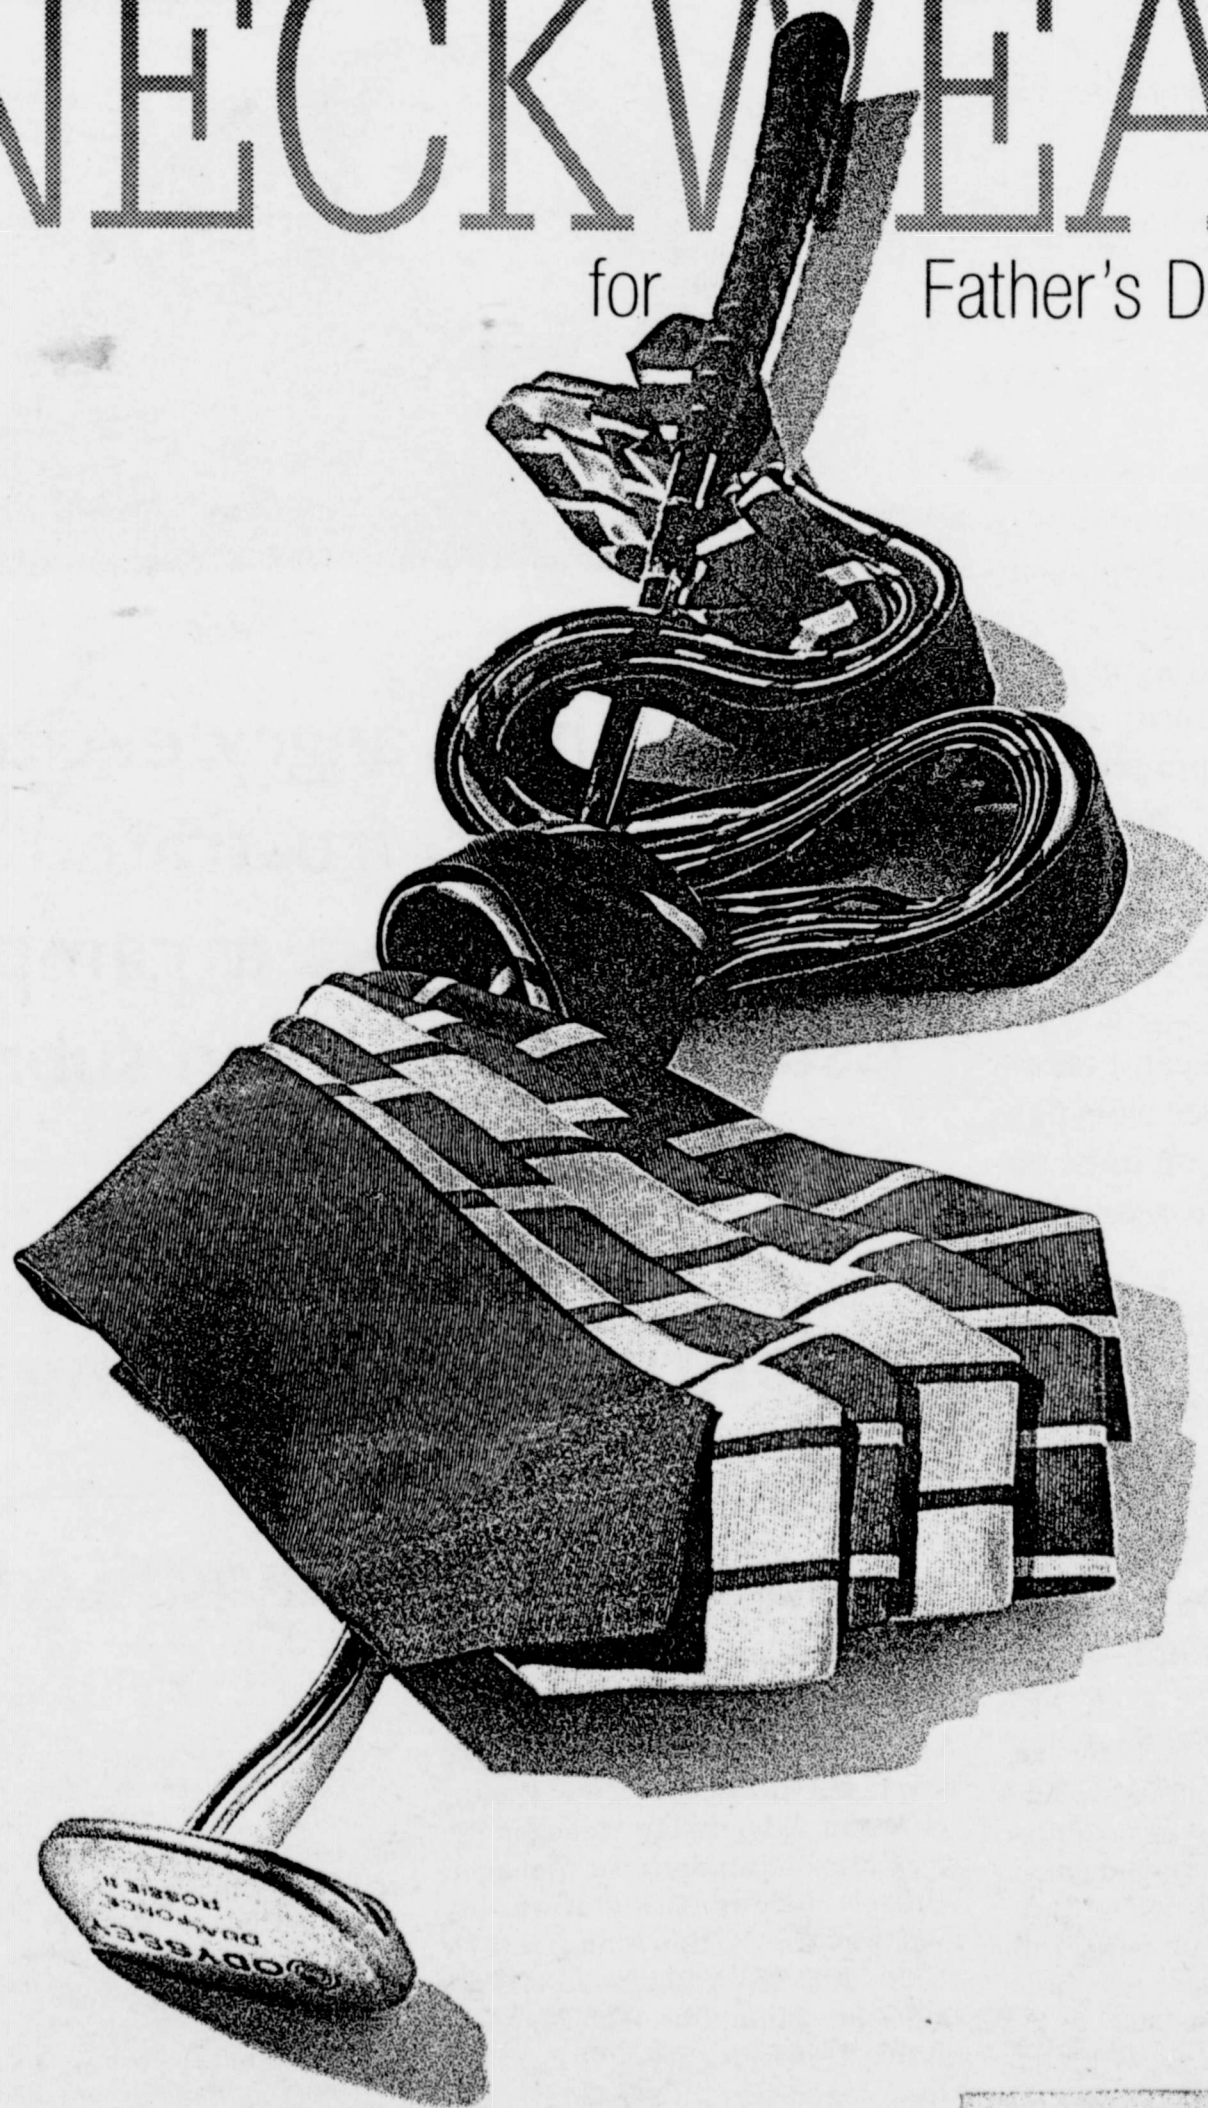

Twenty House Republicans wrote Speaker Newt Gingrich Wednesday, urging him to capitulate on the contested provisions.

For their part, Democrats have displayed a unified front on disaster aid. They refused to allow the Senate to conduct any other business this week and staged a series of media appearances to focus attention on the stalled legislation.

to those who need them, Jones said.

"I think Tech is very supportive of the community, and we are very lucky in that regard," said Dianna Stewart, office manager for United Way and local campaign manager for the SECC.

The campaign runs annually from Sept. 1 to Oct. 31.

"During this time employees are given forms to fill out enabling them to make charitable contributions to the agency of their choice," she said.

Contributors choose from about 300 statewide organizations, she said. There are a total of 41 agencies within the Lubbock community.

In order to receive any funds from the SECC, agencies must meet standard criteria mandated by the state of Texas and reviewed by the local employee committee for the SECC.

The agency must be a 501-C3 organization, submit a copy of its most recent audit, make sure that their administrative and fundraising costs do not exceed 25 percent of their yearly budget and meet other certifications.

"We set these criteria to maintain the integrity of the campaign and to see that the agencies are being run in a business-like manner and that they will be good custodians of the charitable dollar," Jones said.

Pledge cards filled out by the employees are sent to the United Way, the local campaign managers for the SECC, where the amounts are counted and disseminated to the different agencies, Stewart said.

The money raised does not go to the national headquarters of the agencies but is given to local Lubbock agencies, such as the Caprock Girl Scout Council, the Red Cross, Catholic Family Services, YWCA and others, Stewart said.

Charity

Joe MacLean, director of Tech's recreational sports, has been a Big Brother for five and a half years.

He also is a board member for the Parkway and Guadalupe centers which serve neighborhoods with educational and recreational opportunities and some pre-school learning and childcare.

"I had three children grown, leaving me with an empty nest, so I found something to help myself as well as help a youngster from a single-parent family," MacLean said.

Two YWCA programs funded from the SECC are scholarships for parents to help them send their children to an after-school day care program with the Lubbock Independent School District called YW-Care, and a full day camp.

The United Way distributes the money raised by the SECC.

If the SECC state agencies meet their goals, the charitable agencies will receive what they've hoped for, otherwise, they must find another way to make up for lost money, said Janice Sutton, public relations director and outdoor program director for the Caprock Girl Scout Council.

Tyler bishop receives prison term

TYLER (AP) — A Tyler bishop has been sentenced to eight years in prison for sexually assaulting a 16-year-old former parishioner.

State District Judge Louis Gohmert rejected defense pleas for Reginald Brown to receive a probated sentence and mandatory participation in a counseling program.

Brown could have received up to 20 years in prison.

"It sounds like a good program but in order for that program to work you have to have expressed remorse first," Gohmert said.

Brown, the former pastor of the defunct Grace Tabernacle Church in Tyler, maintains his innocence. He is free on $100,000 bond pending his appeal.

In a retrial of a 1995 trial, Brown was convicted last month of sexually assaulting the teen-ager in her bedroom in 1993.

The original conviction was thrown out when an error occurred in the punishment phase.

The victim, now 20 and living in Dallas, testified that she and the defendant also had intercourse on three other occasions.

It is illegal in Texas to have sexual intercourse with a minor regardless of consent.

Other women testified that Brown also assaulted them.

"It's hard for me to trust preachers now," one testified.

"I feel like I've been betrayed. It's like a wound opening back up."

Hammer dispute leads to death

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A bloodied man burst into a graduation celebration for his child's kindergarten class and screamed he had just killed a man who attacked him with a machete.

Police found the victim dead a half-mile from the school, shot in the face.

The victim's name was not released.

Stunned parents at the W.G. Pearson Classical Academy tried to shield their children from the outburst by Linwood "Meatball" Thornton.

Thornton told police a co-worker attacked him with a machete, and he shot him in self-defense.

Thornton was slashed in the arm and leg, authorities said.

Thornton said the machete attack and shooting arose after the men, who were working together renovating a house, argued about a hammer.

Police released Thornton after four hours of questioning without charging him but said they were still investigating.

"It was an accident, and I've got to go off and pray by myself for forgiveness for this mess," Thornton said.

The Nixons, Soak leave fans awaiting return

Sebastian Kitchen
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Two exciting bands. Two new albums. Two potential greats. They played one night together in Lubbock and they will be back.

The Nixons and Soak played Tuesday at Palladian "Live."

Both have performed in the Hub City before and both brought powerful performances with them Tuesday night.

The two bands will play with the "R.O.A.R. Tour" (Revelation of Alternative Rhythms) and also will play at Rockfest '97 at the Texas Motor Speedway in Fort Worth.

"Our goal is to hook up with big tours and gain exposure," said Jason Demetri, lead singer for Soak.

That they have done.

The R.O.A.R. Tour will put them in many major cities through June and July. They will be joined by several other bands on two stages including Iggy Pop, Sponge, Reverend Horton Heat and several more.

Rockfest, June 21, will be opened by Soak, and The Nixons will end the all-day show, following some of the hottest bands playing radio airwaves today.

They will join the likes of Bush, No Doubt, Jewel, The Wallflowers, Collective Soul, Counting Crows, Matchbox 20 and Paula Cole at the event.

Soak released their Rainmaker/Interscope debut album Voice Coil June 3 and have a video of their hit single, "Me Compassionate," on MTV2 and The Box.

"The number of people at our shows is definitely increasing," said bass guitarist John Moyer.

The Nixons opened their new tour in Lubbock, and their new self-titled album will be in stores June 24. It will be their sophomore album on MCA Records.

"We are a live band," said lead singer Zac Maloy. "We tour non-stop. Live is what we have done for so long."

Their first album, Foma, sold several hundred thousand copies and included the hit single "Sister." The song brought the album to gold status.

Their first hit off of the new album, "Baton Rouge," has received major radio play, and a video is on the way.

Both The Nixons and Soak will make their return to the Hub City July 9 with the "R.O.A.R. Tour" at the Fair Park Coliseum.

Montgomerie leads US Open, Woods struggles

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Relentless accuracy gave Colin Montgomerie the lead in the U.S. Open while recklessly wild shots — and perhaps a loss of composure — put Tiger Woods nine strokes behind, a deficit overcome once in 96 Opens. Fourteen times Montgomerie reached into his bag and plucked out the 3-wood to hit his tee shot. All but once he feathered the ball safely onto a fairway at Congressional Country Club, avoiding the 5-inch deep rough. That kind of accuracy made Montgomerie one of the favorites coming into this tournament.

And that kind of accuracy produced a 5-under-par 65 Thursday for the first-round lead by one stroke over Hal Sutton and Steve Stricker and two ahead of Mark McNulty and Tom Lehman.

It was a near-perfect round on the longest course ever in a U.S. Open made even longer by a heavily penalizing rough that turned even the most marginally errant shot into a bogey — or worse.

No one knew that better than Woods.

The Masters champion found disaster in the high grass three times on the back nine and ended his round with a ball in the water on the final hole — one of seven greens he missed — to shoot a 74, closing with a fat 40.

It was a startling but not surprising contrast to the way Woods dominated at the Masters, where he won by a record 12 strokes.
