

Tech football relishes week off

BY HEATH ROBINSON
The University Daily

There are differing opinions on whether a football team favors a week off during a season or would rather play on 11 straight weekends. Most people would tell you that it depends on what happened the weekend before.

For Texas Tech, the week before is a bad memory, a 52-17 loss to No. 5 Tennessee. Tech quarterback Zebbie Lethridge believes that Tech showed they have enough things to work on to warrant a week off.

"I think a lot of people would like to get out there and wash that bad taste out of their mouths," Lethridge said. "But right now I think an off week has its advantages. We weren't sharp last week, and that loss definitely showed us what we need to improve on."

Among those things, Lethridge says, is timing between quarterback and receivers.

"We need to work on being more consistent in our execution offensively," Lethridge said. "We missed a lot of chances against Tennessee, and we also gave Tennessee some good chances. Right now, I think the best thing is for us to take off and get back into our rhythms as an offense."

Although Tech figured to clear up one offensive question at Tennessee, the NCAA may make it more cloudy than it already was.

True freshman Ricky Williams impressed coaches with his running and receiving against the Volunteers and figured to earn the starting job for next week's game against Southwestern Louisiana.

But earlier this week, the NCAA agreed to grant Tech running back Adrian Ervin an extra year of eligibility on one condition. As soon as Tech can provide the NCAA with proof that Ervin received a medical redshirt in 1992 after an ankle injury ended his freshman season, Ervin can rejoin the team. Ervin figured to have run out of eligibility last season, when he spent his senior season backing up All-American Byron Hanspard.

Ervin ran the ball 35 times for 280 yards, a team-high average of 8 yards per carry.

Offensive coordinator Rick Dykes said Tech is not counting on the addition of Ervin, who is currently practicing with the team, but the help would be nice.

"Right now, we are pleased with what Ricky Williams did against Tennessee, and he is the starter at running back," Dykes said. "Adrian's case is in the hands of the NCAA. It would be great if he's able to help us out this year, but it's out of our hands right now."

Defensively, the Red Raiders were somewhat exposed by Tennessee quarterback Peyton Manning and the Volunteers flock of receivers, which some rank as the nation's best.

Taurus Rucker, a sophomore defensive end from Denison, also is appreciative of a week off.

"Two weeks between games is always a good thing," Rucker said. "The loss was frustrating, but it showed us some areas we're lacking in. As a defense, I know we need to work a lot on our pass rush, and getting to the football quicker as a team. We were having a tough time getting pressure on Manning."

Rucker pointed out that getting senior linebacker Eric Butler and senior cornerback Tony Darden back from a one-game suspension also should help. But all in all, Rucker still believes the Tennessee game was a good experience for the team.

"There's no doubt that going there and playing in such a hostile place will help us out," Rucker said. "We won't see anything else like that all season, not at Texas or Nebraska. We'll just be that much more ready to go in and face other hostile places to play later on."

Wade Kennedy/The University Daily

Running man: Tech freshman running back Ricky Williams takes a handoff during practice. The true freshman from Duncannon started in the Red Raiders 52-17 loss to Tennessee Saturday Williams. The Red Raiders will have this weekend off and will next play Southwestern Louisiana at 6 p.m. Sept. 13 at Jones Stadium.

Cross country begins 1997 season with new outlook

BY HEATH ROBINSON
The University Daily

Greg Sholars and the Texas Tech cross country program begin a new era Saturday morning in the Red Raider Invitational at Mae Simmons Park in Lubbock. The women's 5K race begins at 9 a.m., while the men will start at 9:45 a.m.

Sholars coached the men's team last season in the meet, and this season he hopes to lead both the men and women to individual and team titles. Sholars took over for former women's coach Kirk Elias after last season.

"It's a new beginning for our program," Sholars said.

"The women's squad was left in pretty good shape by coach Elias, and I am hoping to bring the men's squad further along than we finished up last season."

The Tech men finished last season in the bottom rung of their region, but the addition of two newcomers should help the team.

"We have Samson Ngetich and Michael Kariuki as new guys that should really help out our program," Sholars said of the new recruits.

"We're excited about getting an opportunity to look at how our team stacks up this year."

Tech cross country coach Greg Sholars college season by finishing first in the Red Raider Open, the former name of the Red Raider Invitational, with a time of 20:02.

"The women's team is in good hands with Kristen and Leigh," Sholars said. "Last season they were very impressive, and I'm sure both are ready to improve on that."

Koppes verified Sholars' thoughts on the beginning of the 1997 season.

"There's no doubt that I want to improve on last year," Koppes said. "I feel like I'm coming in a better runner and more focused on what I want to do."

Five other teams will compete along with Tech in the meets. Eastern New Mexico, Dallas Baptist, West Texas A&M, South Plains College, and Wayland Baptist University all are competing in both the men's and women's races.

Sholars said the Red Raiders are looking forward to defending their team titles in the race.

"We're excited about getting an opportunity to look at how our team stacks up this year," Sholars said.

"It's exciting to have the men's and women's teams together. If there's one thing we've got, it's Red Raider spirit."

Tech volleyball looks for continued success

BY CHARLES RAPIER

The University Daily

This weekend the Texas Tech volleyball team will compete in the South Florida tournament in Tampa, Fla.

The Red Raiders, ranked 31st in the USA Today/USVA coaches poll, will play three matches this weekend.

Today, Tech will face Tennessee-Chattanooga at 3:30 p.m., and No. 26 South Florida at 8 p.m. Saturday, Tech will play Georgia Southern at 2 p.m.

After an impressive 4-0 start last weekend at the Sheraton Shootout, the Red Raiders will enter into a more competitive tournament and will take on their toughest opponent so far, South Florida.

"We have a much tougher schedule this weekend," Red Raider coach Jeff Nelson said. "We have Tennessee-Chattanooga who won 20 games last year, and we have South Florida who was 27-5 and made it to the final 16 last year."

The second tournament of the year means even tougher opponents, Nelson said.

"Things are going to pick up fast for us, and we're excited about that," Nelson said. "It will definitely be our first test of the season. The South Florida match is a really big match early on in terms of important matches for NCAAs."

Assistant coach Mike Lessenger has many expectations for the weekend.

"This will be a measuring stick for where we are at," Lessenger said. "We will see our best volleyball so far this season and will have to counter by playing our best volleyball."

South Florida sports a strong team this season, Lessenger said.

With two powerful outside hitters and a consistent left side attack, the Red Raiders will have to take blocking to a higher level, Lessenger said.

Wes Underwood/The University Daily

Higher and higher: Tech's Janelle Jones hits a ball over an opponent. The Red Raiders play in the South Florida Tournament in Tampa, Fla., beginning today.

The Bulls also rely on several foreign players for success, Nelson said. Tech worked all week on its blocking and passing game.

"We practiced our blocking and passing to help prepare for this weekend, but I think overall we need to be more aggressive and take everything one step at a time," sophomore outside hitter Courtney Putnam said.

Junior setter Lisa Hilgers said the Red Raiders are ready to win another tournament.

"This weekend is another part of our goal to win our first four tournaments and a sneak preview of what to expect in the Big 12," Hilgers said of the Red Raiders.

"If we work our defense and maintain ball control, everything should fall into place."

After receiving the MVP of last weekend's Sheraton Shootout, senior middle blocker Brandi Browne finds South Florida to be an opportunity.

"Winning this tournament will not only help us achieve our goal but let us know where we stand among the nation," Browne said.

Aikman hopes to dodge quarterback injury jinx

IRVING (AP) — Troy Aikman reads the injury reports and knows he is just one blindside blitz from joining the ranks.

That's why he appreciates games like last Sunday's, when he was knocked down just once and never sacked during 30 pass attempts in the Dallas Cowboys' 37-7 romp over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

It's called a "rocking chair" game. It's also a good way for Mark Tuinei, Nate Newton, Clay Shiver, Larry Allen and Erik Williams to get very expensive Christmas presents this December.

"I've said for a long time, and Emmitt Smith has joined me, that over the last five years we've had the best offensive line in football," Aikman said. "They set the tempo for us offensively. I appreciate them. It's why they always get something nice from me every Christmas."

Aikman appreciates the protection because of the way he was introduced to the NFL. In 1990, his second year in the league, Aikman was sacked 39 times for 288 yards in losses. In 1991 he went down 32 times for 224 yards. He had one game against Philadelphia where he was sacked 11 times.

These totals dropped off once the Cowboys found a cohesive offensive line. Still, in his career, Aikman has been sacked 185 times for 1,200 yards in losses.

Aikman also has had all kinds of knee and arm injuries plus six concussions in pro football, college and high school.

He's had two relatively injury-free years, but he knows what Steve Young of the San Francisco 49ers and other quarterbacks running for their lives are going through.

Red Raider soccer begins Big 12 play

BY KRISTIE RIEKEN
The University Daily

The Texas Tech soccer team will try to put their winless start behind them as they open Big 12 play against the Oklahoma Sooners in Norman at 4 p.m. today.

The Sooners' soccer team is only in its second year of existence but had an impressive showing last week against Texas A & M before losing, 2-1.

Although Oklahoma sported a team last season, they did not compete in conference play and used it as a year to practice and work on recruiting.

"This is their first year when it really counts," said Tech coach Felix Oskam. "She (coach Bettina Fletcher) had a year to recruit, and they have a scrappy team, and a team that will fight."

Last year the Sooners had a 1-13 record, but

Oskam said they are not a team to be taken lightly, and they have made many improvements.

"No Big 12 game will be a cakewalk," Oskam said about the Big 12 soccer schedule.

Oklahoma has six returning starters and 10 returning letter winners.

The Red Raiders will then continue their Big 12 season by facing Oklahoma State at 1 p.m. Sunday in Stillwater.

The Cowgirls had a 10-7-2 overall record last season but were a dismal 1-6-2 in conference play.

They do, however, return all 11 starters and 14 letterwinners from last season's team.

In Tech and Oklahoma State's first and only meeting to date, the Red Raiders claimed a 3-0 victory last season.

After losing two straight games, the members of the team are prepared to step up their play for these Big 12 games, according to junior forward Jennifer Benat.

"We would like to win the Big 12 championship," Benat said.

"If we play like we know we can, we will have a realistic shot at that."

Another leader of Tech's team said the experience of the two preseason games will help them start Big 12 play with a win.

Oskam said the team has been working on man-to-man defense and has practiced it in an intrasquad scrimmage.

Oskam said he hopes the defensive change will be the change they need to capture their first win and compete well in Big 12 play.

"This is what it is all about," Oskam said.

"Our focus is going to be winning the Big 12."

Packers do not miss Super Bowl MVP

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Apparently, it was as much the system as it was the star.

It's early, but the Green Bay Packers haven't missed Super Bowl MVP and kick returner extraordinaire Desmond Howard, the former Michigan standout who bolted last winter for Oakland Raiders owner Al Davis' $6 million.

Howard's replacement, Bill Schroeder, won the NFC special teams player of the week award after returning five punts and two kickoffs for 160 yards as the Packers beat the Chicago Bears 38-24 Monday night.

Schroeder was on the practice squad last year when Howard averaged a league-leading 15.1 yards per return en route to setting an NFL record with 875 yards on punt returns.

Schroeder had five punt returns for 107 yards against the Bears, an average of 21.4 yards.

"The comparison is inevitable — Desmond and Billy," coach Mike Holmgren said. "Desmond had established himself as a fine punt return man for a couple of years. He's a very quick decision-maker."

Finally, time to play

Notre Dame prepares to play Georgia Tech with new coach, stadium

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — The hype has been building for months. Reporters and cameras everywhere, asking about the new coach, the old coach and everything in between. Even the most minor of changes was detailed endlessly.

Enough already. Finally, it's time to play the game.

"It's nice to get past all the other stuff," said Chris Clevenger, Irish offensive tackle. "It's nice to talk about the other stuff, but finally we get to play Georgia Tech and get the first game behind us in the new stadium and with all the new stuff."

The 11th-ranked Irish play Georgia Tech on Saturday in Bob Davie's debut as head coach. It's also the opening of the newly expanded Notre Dame Stadium, which now seats an extra 21,000 people.

Put the two together and it makes for one big Notre Dame lovefest.

"There's been a lot of anticipation to get to this week, starting in November when coach Davie was named," said quarterback Ron Powlus, no stranger to hype himself. "It's finally here and we're thrilled to be in game week and preparing for a game."

The object of most of the attention, of course, is Davie. After three years as Lou Holtz's defensive coordinator, he's got college football's glamour job, a job once filled by Knute Rockne, Frank Leahy and Ara Parseghian.

Nothing in his life is secret anymore. He's talked about his family, his coaching career, his playing days, even his childhood. About the only thing he hasn't been asked is what's his favorite food — though the season is still young.

"It is amazing the hype. (The players) are probably a little bit tired of hearing about me," Davie said. "And the one thing I've noticed, it is amazing how it works. I grew up in Pittsburgh, my dad worked two jobs, which just about every buddy of mine's dad worked two jobs.

“There's been a lot of anticipation to get to this week. . .”

Ron Powlus, Notre Dame quarterback

"But by the time we play this game, I think the rumor will be out there that my dad worked four jobs while I was growing up."

Not that the players are begrudging Davie the attention. With a 23-11-1 record over the past three seasons, they're happy to let someone else take the spotlight. If nothing else, it gets them off the hook for the usual questions about national championships and Heisman trophies.

And Clevenger insists there's no extra pressure to make Davie and the new stadium look good.

"I don't think it being the new stadium or it being coach Davie's first game will make any difference," he said. "We're still playing Georgia Tech. We prepared for them the same as we would any other team."

It's just that this preparation took months, instead of the usual few days.

And it's been watched by everybody. "We keep practicing and practicing," linebacker Bobbie Howard said. "Finally, we get a chance to show what we've been practicing for."

Even the coaches are getting antsy. Though he'd been at Notre Dame for three years, Davie brought in almost an entirely new staff.

Defensive assistant coach Kirk Doll has seniority among all the assistants with a whopping four years, while receivers coach Urban Meyer is the senior offensive assistant in just his second year.

The players might know what to expect when they run onto the field Saturday, but most of the coaches don't.

"It's like Christmas. We've got this big package underneath that tree and I really don't know what's in there," said Greg Mattison, who left Michigan to be Davie's defensive coordinator. "Finally I get to open it and find out. Our players know what's in there, but I don't because I'm new here."

"I said to Bob, 'Let's play ball, let's just go play.'"

Oiler rookie springs for family's air fare

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Going home again is costing Kenny Holmes a lot of money.

The Tennessee Oilers' rookie defensive end has had to dig into his pockets for more than 30 tickets so that his family and friends can watch him play Sunday in Miami against the Miami Dolphins, the team he rooted for while growing up in nearby Vero Beach.

"I'm really excited to get a chance to see my family and play against a team I grew up liking. It's going to be real memorable to be pretty much playing in front of my home crowd," said Holmes, who played four years with the Miami Hurricanes.

Paying for the tickets won't hurt Holmes, who signed a four-year contract worth $5.23 million the day training camp opened. That included a $780,000 reporting bonus.

While playing with the Hurricanes, Holmes started 33 games and had 29 sacks, two interceptions and defended against nine passes.

That's why the Oilers made the 6-foot-4, 270-pound Holmes the 18th pick in the first round last spring.

Holmes quickly moved into the line rotation for pass-rush situations, and he responded by dumping Oakland Raider Jeff George last week for his first career sack and also deflected a pass.

Now the former Dolphin fan would like to add a sack of Dan Marino to his short list.

"Dan Marino has broken every record — getting a sack against him would be even greater," Holmes said.

And if he does happen get to Marino, the biggest Dolphin of them all?

"I'm going to let him lay there. This is my job now. I'll put all those feelings I had growing up to the side," Holmes said.

First-year coaches learn more about team

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Two first-year coaches will try to learn a bit more about their new teams when Fresno State hosts Baylor Saturday.

Pat Hill came to the Bulldogs from the NFL's Baltimore Ravens where he was offensive line coach last year. Dave Roberts came to Baylor from Notre Dame where he was offensive coordinator.

Both coaches have been tough on discipline.

Roberts has suspended 10

B players since he took over, including starting quarterback Jeff Watson temporarily for a drinking violation. Hill suspended star running back Michael Pittman for last week's game after a run-in with a girlfriend that attracted police attention.

Hill won his first game as a head coach last Saturday, a 35-7 thumping of unheralded Portland State.

Roberts still is looking for his first win after losing 45-14 to 13th-ranked Miami.

"We got a pretty good indicator of where we are and what we need to do," Roberts said afterward.

Hill figures he'll learn more about his team's potential this week because Baylor figures to be a much-tougher opponent than Portland State.

"Baylor's a real physical team," Hill says. "That's what we need right now. We need to get into a physical game. We've got to find out a little more about this team this Saturday, and we will."

Last week's game was too physical for one of the Bulldogs' top defenders.

Linebacker A.J. Gass underwent surgery Thursday for a damaged vessel that made his right hand numb. Gass, the Western Athletic Conference's leading tackler last year with 150, could be out of action for several weeks.

Scientists fight to keep research land

Professors concerned about fate of rangeland

BY GINGER POPE
The University Daily

Opposition to Texas Tech's Campus Master Plan to build a golf course and reroute Indiana Avenue on Tech research land still lingers in spite of officials' efforts.

Kathleen Hennessey, director of Tech's International Center for Informatics Research, presented the Tech Board of Regents with an alternative proposal for the use and development of 320 acres of native rangeland at the regents' August meeting. The land is located on the west half of the area bounded by Erskine Street, Fourth Street, Indiana Avenue and Quaker Avenue.

The proposal came from several members of Sigma Xi The Research Society, a selected organization of scientists.

Ernest Fish, a professor in the College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources, said the main concern is the undisturbed ground used in research.

The native rangeland helps provide Tech with one of the top-three range sciences programs in the United States and one of the top wildlife science programs in the western United States.

The rangeland also provides a research facility for 24 master's and doctoral students' thesis work, one post-doctoral research associate, who has produced internationally recognized research, and a training facility for 20 to 25 students in EPA-funded Playa Lake research and mapping. The land also is being used for 18 different courses.

"We're incredibly concerned that we will lose valuable resources that will never be replaced," Fish said. "There would simply be no way to replace it, and if a golf course or if Indiana Avenue is there, it (rangeland) is destroyed."

The Campus Master Plan shows a golf course and Indiana Avenue rerouted through the native rangeland joining into Quaker Avenue.

Theresa Drewell, director of facilities, planning and construction, said there is a Colorado marketing firm assessing the value of the rangeland.

The marketing survey should determine whether the land would better serve Tech's future as a golf course or as research land, Drewell said.

Bombs explode in heart of Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — Bombs exploded — once again — in the heart of Jerusalem on Thursday, spraying rusty nails into a crowd of shoppers and late-summer tourists on the city's main pedestrian walkway.

The blasts, claimed by the Islamic militant group Hamas, killed seven people — including three suicide bombers — and struck a new blow to peacemaking just as hopes for improvement were rising. At least 192 people were wounded.

Israel stepped up pressure on Yasser Arafat to crack down on Islamic militants and sealed its borders with the West Bank and Gaza Strip. A previous closure had been eased only two days earlier, ahead of Secretary of State Madeleine enough to make eye contact, and blew themselves up within seconds of each other. Ambulances rushed to the chaotic scene, and rescue workers treated some of the victims on the sidewalk, where cafe chairs and umbrellas lay scattered amid piles of broken glass. Emergency workers rushed a toddler into the back of an ambulance. Paramedics splashed water in the face of a weeping man.

A charred smell hung over the mall while ultra-Orthodox burial squad volunteers searched for pieces of flesh in the debris — a familiar scene to Israelis.

Abie Mendelson, 18, a Jewish seminary student from Los Angeles, was having a drink with friends when the bombs went off. That closure was imposed after twin suicide bombings in a Jerusalem market killed 17 people on July 30.

In Washington, President Clinton denounced Thursday's bombings and said Albright would go ahead with her trip. Clinton urged Arafat's Palestinian Authority to "do all it can to create an environment that leaves no doubt that terror will not be tolerated."

The three nail-studded bombs exploded shortly after 3 p.m., as hundreds of shoppers, including many tourists, crowded the Ben Yehuda pedestrian mall, which is lined with cafes, gift shops and American fast-food restaurants such as Burger King and Sbarro.

Israel's Channel Two television said the bombers stood outside three stores on Ben Yehuda Street, close

"We had just clinked our glasses and heard the explosion," he said afterward from Jerusalem's Ein Kerem Hospital, where he was being treated for burns to his face and head.

"I heard my friend screaming. I looked down to make sure I could walk."

The two victims identified by late in the day were both Israelis.

Hamas, which has carried out 13 bombings in four years of Israeli-Palestinian peacemaking, claimed responsibility for the attack and threatened more bombings unless Hamas prisoners held by Israel were released by Sept. 14.

Arafat condemned the attack, and a senior Palestinian official pledged full cooperation with Israel on security matters.

Easing The Problem: UPD officer Craig Miller directs traffic in one of the many overcrowded commuter parking lots. Administrators say additional spaces will be available for commuters within the first month of school.

Stressful situation

Some students unhappy with lack of planning, spaces in parking lots

BY CAREN CARNEFIX

The University Daily

Texas Tech students may still stress over the parking situation despite various efforts on the university's part to solve the problems.

One student is not happy about the situation, even after the added shuttle service and parking assistants in commuter lots.

"I hate it; it's awful," said Christina Alvarez, a freshman human development major from Lubbock. "I heard the parking at Tech was bad, but I didn't think it was this bad. This is ridiculous."

Alvarez arrived to her first class on Tuesday 15 minutes late, and she blames the parking situation.

"I would've been on time if it wasn't for the parking," Alvarez said. "The cost of tuition is so high, and you can't even find a place to park."

First year law student James Perrin found Texas Tech's commuter parking lots a little frustrating compared to the previous, smaller university he attended in Oklahoma.

Perrin, from Corpus Christi, arrived on campus at 7:30 a.m. and had little difficulty finding a parking space. Had he arrived 15 minutes later, he would have had to search more diligently, Perrin said.

"I got there early and stayed there all day," Perrin said. "I didn't leave for lunch because I figured I'd come back and there wouldn't be any parking."

Another student, who transferred to Tech from the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, said she did not find the Tech parking situation all that bad.

"It's better than the university I went to," said Angie Steffansmeier, a junior architecture major from Omaha, Neb. "I had to walk a lot farther. To me, it's not that bad."

The 900 space, semi-temporary commuter lot has not reached its full capacity yet this semester, said Gail Wolfe, Tech traffic and parking manager.

The Godbold Cultural Center lot and the lot near the center can hold about 150 cars, but has held less than 50 since the first two days of class.

"I think people just don't know about it," Wolfe said. "Once they catch on, it'll pick up."

The off-campus shuttle has been running smoothly, she said.

Citibus reported 1,400 people riding the off-campus shuttle on the first day of class and 2,100 people on the second day of class.

Marc Matson, a sophomore psychology major from Arlington, likes the new off-campus shuttle.

"It's very convenient," the Intern resident said. "I think it will be nice in the winter to hop on a nice warm bus and not have to scrape the snow off my car in the mornings."

Arizona prepares for governor to replace ousted Symington

PHOENIX (AP) — Disgraced Gov. Fife Symington met Thursday with his successor to discuss key issues she will inherit when he's officially ousted for his conviction on federal fraud charges.

Symington, compelled to resign after a jury found him guilty Wednesday of bank fraud, will leave office at 5 p.m. Friday.

Jane Hull, secretary of state since 1994, will be acting governor until she is formally sworn in Monday.

Symington and a trio of aides met with Hull in Symington's office to talk about a range of subjects she will face as Arizona's 20th governor.

Topics ranged from pressing matters like the state takeover of a bankrupt mental health contractor, to the mundane — like ordering stationery.

"There was no, 'This is what I'm doing and what I want you to be,'" said Hull, who like Symington is a Republican.

Meanwhile, Symington kept a low profile Thursday, working in his office as staffers piled seven years' worth of mementoes into boxes that will be loaded into a moving van Friday morning.

"There is a big sense of relief that the trial is over," spokesman Doug Cole said.

"He's looking forward to the next chapter in his life. He leaves with his head up high."

Cleaning up: Lubbock Police monitor the situation outside a drug lab discovered Wednesday.

BY APRIL CASTRO

The University Daily

The drug lab discovered in the 3400 block of 31st Street Wednesday was safely cleaned and passed specification of the Environmental Protection Agency and the Occupation Safety and Health Administration Thursday afternoon.

Ronald Arnold, 40, was arrested at the house and charged with possession of chemicals with the intent to manufacture controlled substances. He may face up to 20 years in prison.

Three Texas Tech students were evacuated Wednesday after Lubbock's Drug Enforcement Agency uncovered a major drug lab with several "volatile chemicals," said Joe Solprietto, DEA agent. The chemicals, located in a house on the 3400 block of 31st Street, had the potential to create a huge explosion.

"One gallon of ether would have taken houses on both sides of the road out," he said. "And there was much more than that — it would have caused a major disaster here in town."

A DEA chemist from Dallas arrived in Lubbock late Wednesday and determined that a potentially dangerous situation existed after DEA agents executed a federal search of the clandestine methamphetamines lab. A Dallas-based company licensed for this type of clean-up arrived in town during the night and began work early Thursday morning.

Decision not blocked

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Supporters of a California law that would abolish special treatment for minorities and women in hiring and school admissions are hailing the Supreme Court's decision not to block the law while it is appealed.

"Today's decision allows the people of California to continue the task of eliminating discrimination that they began in November," said Michael Carvin, a lawyer for sponsors of the initiative approved by voters in November.

The court, without comment, rejected emergency requests Thursday filed by a coalition of civil rights groups and San Francisco city officials that sought to stop Proposition 209 from going into effect.

A formal challenge to the measure still is pending before the nation's highest court.

Thursday's action does not mean that the formal challenge will be rejected.

Doug Mann, vice president of Hellmuth, Obata and Kassabaum consulting firm of Dallas, said the consulting firm had met with individuals of the College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources and agreed to move the acceptance stage of the Campus Master Plan to November.

The Campus Master Plan is expected to go before Tech regents in November.

The plans were originally going to be presented to Tech's Board of Regents in the spring, but the firm wanted to get more input from Tech faculty, Mann said.

"We asked Interim Dean Albin to put together a committee and get back to us, but there has been some delay, and we're asking for a meeting now," he said.

"We'll be back in September to talk about issues and any recommendations to alter the plan."

Mann said when the consulting firm first came to Tech they met with former College of Agriculture Sciences and Natural Resources Dean Sam Curl and now Associate Agricultural Dean Robert Albin about the research land.

Curl, now at Oklahoma State University, said he remembers HOK consultants speaking to Tech administration, but he did not want to comment further.

"I did a lot of talking about that (research land) while I was there," Curl said. "But I don't really think it's appropriate for me to be talking about it."

Albin could not be reached for comment.

Fish said a committee was formed to research the situation but has not been active, and the Colorado marketing firm has not been in touch with College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources faculty about the native land.

"People do not understand the research done there because of a lack of information," he said. Faculty members within the agricultural department have complained about HOK consultants' earlier reports of the rangeland as wasteland.

Fish said there may be other areas with this type of native soil, but probably not in Lubbock County.

If the native soil is found in another area, it would raise issues of busing students to the location and the costs, time and risks involved.

Tech President Donald Haragan said he has made clear his stance on the importance of the research land, but it is the Board of Regents' decision to make.

"There are trade-offs with the plan," Haragan said. "If we can't use that land because of the golf course, then we need to do the best we can to find the same native soil elsewhere. It wouldn't be ideal, that's for sure, but it might have to be that we do both. We have to find solutions to all the problems. We need to look at all options — research is what we're all about."

Mark Vinson, head golf pro at the Lubbock Country Club, said golf courses are an up and coming industry.

Vinson said management groups lease the land and often agree to pay back the land owner a certain portion of the revenue taken in from customers.

Texas hiker missing, searching continues

HONOLULU (AP) — A search continued Thursday in the rugged mountains above Windward Oahu for a missing hiker from Texas.

Daniel M. Rasmussen, 20, of Corpus Christi, began a solo hike Sunday after being dropped off near a trail head.

That was the last time he was seen. Rasmussen was to hike along Koolau Summit Trail and arrive Monday morning at Malaekahana State Park.

He was to be picked up by another friend at the park, police said.

He used his cellular telephone to contact friends late Sunday, and to check in Monday morning with his unit, Patrol Squadron 47, at the Barbers Point Naval Air Station, police said.

Rasmussen has not been heard from since.

He was reported missing Tuesday night when he failed to return to duty.

The search Wednesday was centered along the summit trail, which overlooks the steep valleys of the Windward Coast, and into other areas, police said.

Rasmussen left a hiking plan, took water and food for two days, a tent, foul weather gear and a cell phone.

Rasmussen still made a mistake by hiking alone, police said.

"If he slipped and fell, nobody would know," said Officer Joe Self of the police Missing Persons Detail.

Former employee implicated in theft

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A supervisor for an armored car company identified his former employee Thursday as the man wanted in Florida for stealing up to $22 million in one of the biggest heists on record.

After a five-month manhunt, Philip Noel Johnson, 33, was arrested at an international bridge here Saturday on a commercial bus headed from Matamoros, Mexico, to Houston.

But his identity became an issue earlier this week when Johnson refused to concede that he was indeed the man wanted by authorities. He claimed his name was Roger Dale Lawter.

At a court hearing Thursday, Loomis, Fargo & Co. supervisor Rodney Wagaman identified

Johnson and said he supervised him for 10 years at the company's Jacksonville, Fla. office. Johnson worked there as a messenger and driver.

Wagaman said he last saw Johnson March 28, the day before authorities claim he held two co-workers at gunpoint while cleaning out one of the office vaults.

Johnson's attorney, Thomas Cushman, suggested Wagaman's identification was based not on personal knowledge but on seeing the defendant in custody.

"There's only one person in this courtroom in handcuffs. So it wasn't real hard for you to pick out who you were supposed to pick out," Cushman said.

Wagaman responded: "I know who the gentleman is."

Tech dorms get phone number change

BY JAMES WALKER

The University Daily

Students who live in the residence halls probably have noticed by now that their phone numbers have the prefix 724, not 742 like the rest of campus.

The change came in anticipation of a major overhaul of the communications systems on campus, which will eventually result in two phone lines and a fiberoptic Internet connection for each residence hall room, said Jacque Garcia, Tech's assistant vice chancellor for administration and finance.

Other campus numbers will keep the 742 extension, Garcia said. The change was made because there were not enough numbers available in the 742 prefix to accommodate two phone lines for each room.

"We just tried to keep them (residence hall numbers) all uniform," she said.

"We also wanted to maintain the ability to dial just five numbers on campus."

On-campus numbers could previously be dialed from on-campus phones by dialing 2 and the number's last four digits. Residence hall numbers with the new 724 extension can now be reached by dialing 4 and the last four digits.

Another change in the phone system, which is already operational, gives students access to voice mail for an additional charge, she said. Even with only one phone line, each student in a room can have a separate voice mailbox with their own passcode.

"The work is going on right now in just about every building we've got," said Jim Burkhalter, director of Tech's housing and dining services.

Each building's new phone lines and EtherNet connections will be activated as soon as the phone company and Tech's Advanced Computing Services can set up the connections, Burkhalter said.

"It looks like the first ones will be some of the older buildings on campus," he said. "Sneed/Bledsoe and Doak are probably the closest to being finished."

The first buildings' new Internet and phone connections should be hooked up in November, and everything should be complete sometime in the spring semester, Burkhalter said.

Officials expect additional class materials to be available online as students get more access to new technology.

"We're doing (EtherNet connections) about the same time as most schools are doing it, so we're neither ahead or behind," Burkhalter said.

"There are a very few schools that have already finished it and many more that have not even started."

Judge rejects claim to dismiss charges

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — A judge rejected Marv Albert's claim Thursday that sex charges against him should be dismissed because a member of the grand jury that indicted him managed the prosecutor's election campaign.

Arlington Circuit Judge Benjamin N.A. Kendrick also rejected a defense motion to throw out the case because prosecutors made public DNA evidence linking Albert to the Feb. 12 hotel room incident.

The NBC sportscaster is charged with forcible sodomy and assault and battery for allegedly biting a woman on the back and forcing her to perform oral sex.

He could get life in prison if convicted.

Albert sat silently and held hands with his fiancée, Heather Faulkner, during the three-hour hearing.

He left without making any comment.

His attorney, Roy Black, argued that the grand jury that indicted Albert in May was tainted because one juror, Amy Levine, had run Commonwealth Attorney Richard Trodden's campaigns in 1991 and 1995.

Levine testified in court that she has had almost no contact with Trodden in recent months, and no one has asked her to do anything improper.

Kendrick defended Virginia's grand jury system in his refusal to drop the charges.

In Virginia, judges select names which are put into a pool and drawn at random by court clerks to seat grand juries.

Prosecutors have no role in the selection.

Black also tried unsuccessfully to get the case dismissed based on the release last month of DNA evidence that compared Albert's DNA with saliva and semen found on the woman.

According to the tests, there is only one chance in 2.6 billion that DNA recovered from a bite mark on the woman and semen stains in her underwear could have come from anyone besides Albert.

Honors program helps Tech students learn

BY JONATHAN CARROLL

The University Daily

Texas Tech Honors Program Director Gary Bell wants Tech to be "the place everyone wants to come."

Bell hopes the establishment of an Honors College may enable that idea to become a reality.

Discussion of building an Honors College is currently in committee and could help make Tech the top undergraduate university in the state, he said.

Tech's Honors Program offers students special honor classes and privileges on campus.

The classes are faster paced, more writing-intensive and involve more class discussion, Bell said. Class size also is limited to 25 to 35 students.

"(The program) rewards the really good students and offers an incentive to others to do well," he said.

"Professors take a personal interest in their (the students') educational progress."

In addition, honors students are eligible for involvement in the HON program, the social organization for honors students.

HON offers special programs and social activities for honors student, Bell said.

New students must have a 1200 SAT score or ACT score of 28 to qualify for the Honors Program. Continuing students must have a cumulative GPA of 3.4.

Presently, the Honors Program consist of 550 students and 67 honors classes.

Students completing 24 hours of honors classes graduate with honors.

Many students involved in the Honors Program like the idea of a Honors College and believe the program is an asset to students.

"I would like people to know it's not just nerds," said Kelly Price, a sophomore accounting major from Cameron and member of the Honors Program.

Columnist deserves Tech's kudos

BROOKS BOYETT/
COLUMNIST

I'm feeling mighty proud right now because, finally, I've made a difference.

It's not often that we humans can say that. It seems as if we go through the humdrum of daily life doing lots of so many things but accomplishing nothing.

Our impact on those around us is extremely small, or virtually nonexistent. Sure, maybe we impact a friend or neighbor or family member. But rarely does society as a whole truly reap the rewards of our sweat and toil. Not so with me. Yes friends, finally I have made this world a better place. I have made a difference.

You see, about this time a year ago, I wrote a column. Because maybe only one or two of you out there choose to carefully cut out my column each week, laminate it and place it in a safe deposit box (thanks, mom), I will briefly sum up last year's column.

Last year, school started in August. It was too hot, too summer-like to begin a fall semester. I heard many students complain. I heard many students gripe.

I saw discouraged heads hanging down low. I saw perspiration drip slowly down a student's brow. I saw the sweaty armpit rings of all my male professors — I believe that somewhere in Tech's general handbook for professors it states, "Deodorant shall not be worn by ye professors, lest ye lose thou tenure."

I couldn't take it anymore, so I spoke up. Yes, like any good columnist, I decided to rise up and speak on behalf of my fellow students. Sure, some columnists at the good ol' UD, think it's fine to just ramble about pointless topics to gain attention, but not me. I love this school and its students, so I decided to make a difference.

So what did I do?

I simply stated that school should have begun after Labor Day.

A bold, controversial statement, I know. It's right up there with saying Greeks are stupid or Montford should be fired.

But I didn't care. I did what I had to do.

Now, as you know, it paid off. School didn't start until after Labor Day. The doors actually waited to open until the calendar reached September.

I'm sure all the campus bureaucrats will try to take the credit, saying it was their idea because they love the students and all. But I think we know the truth.

They read my column and got a little scared. They heard the voice of the people and gave in. Yes friends, had it not been for me, the fall semester probably would have begun in early July. But the administration knew not to mess with me.

So I applaud those that made the schedule. Thank you for listening to a little guy like me.

And to all of you out there, remember, you too can make a difference. Just speak out.

And don't forget to save all of my columns. They make good bird cage floor covers.

Brooks Boyett is a senior advertising major from Amarillo. We thank him.

Fourth-tier rank mirrors Tech's academic priorities

MATTHEW DILLINGHAM/
COLUMNIST

What do you mean Texas Tech is ranked in the fourth tier of national colleges by U.S. News and World Report? How could we be ranked so low compared to other universities in the nation?

I mean really, who can compete with Texas Tech when it comes to academics. We have some of the best archaic academic learning tools money can buy, a $51 million dollar hole where we should be parking, and if we're really, really lucky, a golf course where internationally recognized research land now sits.

Who needs academic priorities when you can have a large money-sucking hole and private golf course?

To tell you the truth, I would not be the slightest bit surprised if the hole and the golf course sent us right to the top next year.

Those two elements alone should put us right there with Harvard and University of Texas.

Obviously the administration is disappointed by this low ranking, as we all should be.

I agree with them that we have some of the best faculty in the nation and also some of the brightest students in the nation. What we don't have are the resources and the facilities to keep the best coming here and staying here.

The campus as a whole needs to let the administration know that we are interested in learning and growing into a better university. We did not come to Tech to play golf and walk past a large whole on the way to class.

As we have learned from the past, no action is taken unless they hear from the faculty and students.

The administration has its own agenda that may or may not coincide with the needs of the students and faculty. This is why everyone concerned needs to speak their mind.

If you see something you don't like, tell them about it. Or, if you want something that is not available, ask.

As you know they have told us over and over that they are willing to listen to any suggestions we may have to help out the university.

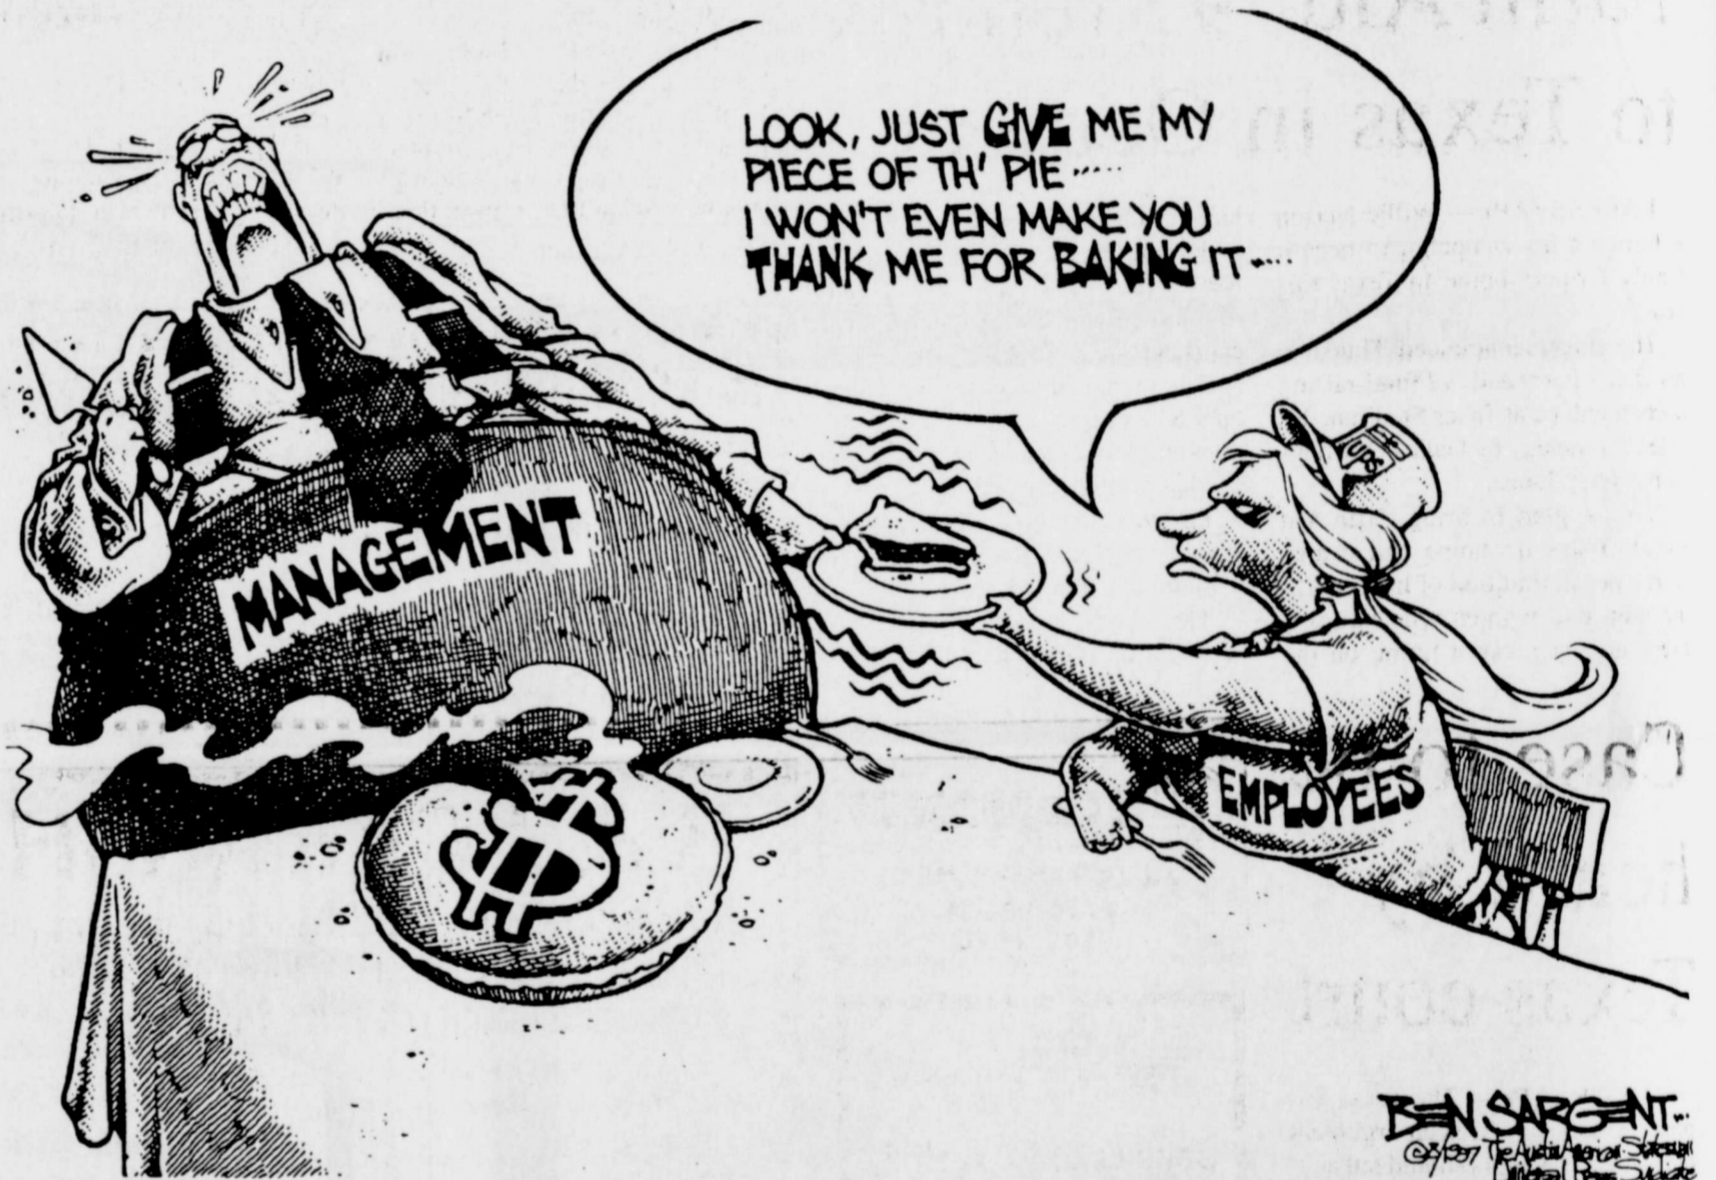

I think it's time we called them on it.

We need to test them to see if they are true to their word and will listen to the faculty and students of Texas Tech — to see if they will really give us the facilities we need to be a first-tier university.

The students and the faculty have the intelligence and drive to make Texas Tech the best; let's find out if the administration can keep up with us or if they are as empty as their promises.

Matthew Dillingham is a senior from Amarillo, who is trying to save the university one column at a time.

Council discusses graduate concerns

BY JASON BERNSTEIN
The University Daily

The Texas Tech Graduate Council favored quantity over quality Thursday in its first meeting of the year.

The council discussed the 99/130 hour rule, which emphasizes the length of time it takes to complete a degree rather than the courses required to obtain the degree. The rule is designed to eliminate career students.

Any graduate student who has accumulated 130 graduate hours or more can be charged out-of-state tuition starting in the summer or fall term of 1998 to compensate Tech's loss of state funds.

Tech currently receives state funds for each of its registered graduate students.

Accumulated hours include not only completed hours but attempted hours as well. Any class that was attempted after the 12th class day will be counted as attempted credit hours.

Farm Aid '97 returns to Texas in October

DALLAS (AP) — Willie Nelson is bringing his campaign to benefit family farmers home to Texas this year.

The singer announced Thursday his Oct. 4 Farm Aid '97 fund-raising concert will be at Texas Stadium, donated for the day by Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones.

"We're glad to bring Farm Aid back to Texas, my home, and an area with a proud tradition of hard-working men and women who struggle every day to make a living on the

The number of accumulated hours will be scaled down from 130 to 99 by fall 1999.

"We don't ever want to penalize the student, but we do what the Legislature tells us to do," said Monty Strauss, senior associate dean of the Graduate School.

Janet Perez, associate dean of the Graduate School, said students accumulating more than 99 graduate hours will cost the university.

Another topic discussed was the decline in the Graduate School's registration by 3.3 percent.

"We experienced a total drop of 115 students," said Troy Johnson, assistant dean of the Graduate School.

Tech now accepts graduate application fees electronically via credit card, Johnson said.

Johnson said there has been an increase in graduate applications since the electronic payment option was introduced.

Tech is only one of a handful of schools that offers electronic payment for application fees.

land," Nelson said.

Headliners are John Mellencamp, Neil Young, John Fogerty, Dave Matthews Band, The Allman Brothers Band and Nelson himself.

The organization has given more than $13 million to farm organizations and service agencies since 1985 and has staged nine events.

Last year, about 40,000 people attended Farm Aid at Williams-Brice Stadium in Columbia, S.C.

This year's concert will be televised live on The Nashville Network.

Good hygiene curbs illnesses

BY DANIEL KERR
The University Daily

Texas Tech students have many dangers and pitfalls to elude everyday.

Luckily, numerous diseases such as meningitis can be avoided by practicing good personal hygiene.

Meningitis is an illness caused by an infection of the tissue that lines the brain and the spinal cord, which can result in blindness, deafness, amputations, permanent brain damage or even death.

The last case of the disease reported at Tech occurred in 1993 when Richard Haun, a walk-on Tech football player from Keller, was admitted to Methodist Hospital's intensive care unit.

Members of the football team took medication to prevent contamination, and no meningitis symptoms were observed, as reported in The University Daily.

JoAnn Brown, a nurse at Student Health Services, said the last meningitis outbreak was in the 1980s.

"It's contagious, and whenever you have a community as close-knit as ours, it can be a problem," she said. Meningitis is spread through direct contact with an infected person.

Symptoms include fever, severe headache, stiffness of the neck, small, purplish red spots, nausea and possibly vomiting.

"Meningitis is everywhere — some are bacterial and some are viral," she said.

"The best thing you can do to avoid meningitis is to practice good personal hygiene."

Although meningitis is contagious, the common cold is spread more frequently, Brown said.

Brian Smith, a senior journalism major from Amarillo, lived on campus when Haun was infected.

He said he is fearful of the disease.

"I lived in Carpenter (Residence) Hall when that one person was infected in 1993, and it really freaked everyone out," he said.

"I heard it affects your brain lining. I'm glad it only happens once in a while.

Davidians' sentences reconsidered

WACO (AP) — A federal judge Thursday upheld the sentences of five Branch Davidian followers of David Koresh after reconsidering their punishment on orders from an appellate court.

At issue was whether the defendants carried or had access to machine guns during a 1993 firefight with federal agents who were attempting to arrest Koresh and search his religious compound near Waco.

"The fact is we knew it was a slim chance that the judge would change his mind," said Richard Ferguson, attorney for defendant Brad Branch.

"If he didn't want to give them 30 years, he wouldn't have given them 30 years two years ago."

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last year upheld the 10-year sentences given to Branch, Renos Avraam, Jaime Castillo and Kevin Whitecliff for voluntary manslaughter and the 10 years given to Graeme Craddock for one firearms violation.

But it ordered U.S. District Judge Walter Smith to take another look at the 30-year sentences imposed on Avraam, Branch, Castillo and

“The fact is we knew it was a slim chance...”

Richard Ferguson, lawyer

Whitecliff for using a firearm in a violent crime and another 10-year sentence imposed on Craddock for that crime.

When Smith sentenced the men in 1994, he found that machine guns were available to the defendants.

He did not determine whether any machine guns were used.

In 1995, the 5th Circuit ruled in an unrelated case that stricter standards were needed.

It said the sentencing guidelines require the court to find that a given sort of firearm actually was used or carried in the crime, not just that it could have been.

After a two-hour hearing, Smith imposed the same sentences.

"There was evidence that the conspirators actively employed machine guns and other weapons including hand grenades during these events," U.S. Attorney Bill Johnston said.

Four federal agents and six Branch Davidians were killed in the February 1993 gun battle.

A 51-day stalemate followed, ending when Koresh and about 80 of his followers died by fire or gunshots.

Case to be heard by Texas court

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court will hear an argument over whether doctors should tell anyone that a patient has been or may have been exposed to AIDS or the virus that causes the disease.

The state's highest court agreed Thursday to consider the case filed against a San Antonio clinic by a woman who's ex-husband suffered from hemophilia and died of an AIDS-related illness.

"It's very important both for families and for hospitals and physicians who are faced with this dilemma," said Jerry Gibson, an attorney for Santa Rosa Health Care Corp.

"Obviously, the families would be interested in knowing," he said.

"But the state law says the health care providers aren't suppose to tell anyone. There is a very strict state confidentiality law."

A trial court in San Antonio threw out the case, saying the clinic had no duty to warn Linda Balderas Garcia that her husband may have been exposed to HIV or AIDS.

A state appeals court reversed that decision, and the clinic appealed to the Supreme Court.

Gibson said neither Balderas nor the clinic was aware he had been exposed to the disease before the couple married in the late 1980s.

Garcia later divorced Balderas. He died in the early 1990s, according to her attorney, George Powell.

"This is a very important issue in public health," Powell said.

"If you are going to control diseases, there has to be communication."

He said this was a case of public, not private, health.

The court did not schedule oral arguments or a time frame for its consideration of the case.

The nine judges could review the case file and make a decision without hearing more from attorneys.

Center offers volunteer training

BY DANIEL KERR

The University Daily

The Rape Crisis Center will offer a training course for volunteers needed to handle alleged rape cases and answer its 24-hour hotline.

Male and female volunteers are encouraged to attend the 30-hour training session that will prepare them to meet the victim at the hospital and actually give them support during the post-rape exam, said Amy Bush, assistant director of the Rape Crisis Center.

The responsibilities of volunteers include filling out a 14-page intake form that includes the victim's name, what occurred and a description of the alleged assailant, including minute details such as the assailant's scent, she said.

"You're not only helping someone else, but you are doing something for yourself — in that you get to see justice," she said. "At times you are called to testify for them."

Volunteering for a program such as this one allows students to realize they can make a difference, she said.

"It's a positive experience because you have hands on with the victims — you get to see something actually done," she said.

Emily Davis, a senior family studies major from Lubbock, said she was nervous during the first case she worked but soon realized how important the opportunity she had to help someone really was.

"In the first case I did, she (the victim) opened up a lot, and that meant a lot to me," Davis said. "I was very nervous the first time I went to the hospital. It was very eye-opening."

Although Davis also knows the support she provides for these victims is invaluable, she also volunteers for herself.

"One thing I've noticed, after we go to the hospital, they seem to become more relaxed because they know they don't have to go through it alone," she said. "When you volunteer your time for a good cause, you gain a lot for yourself. I know I have."

Volunteer training at the Rape Crisis Center begins Sept. 16 and lasts three weeks. The training will be from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays and from 9 p.m. until midnight on two Saturdays.

Five Israeli soldiers reported killed in raid

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — An Israeli commando raid deep inside Lebanon went wrong early Friday, with five Israelis reported killed in fighting that also injured several Lebanese fighters, security officials said.

There was no immediate comment from Israel about the fatalities which, if they are confirmed, would be one of Israel's highest in a single confrontation in southern Lebanon in about two years.

Israeli jet fighters, helicopter gunships and a gunboat joined the nighttime battle against Shiite Muslim guerrillas and Lebanese army troops, who apparently spotted the raiding party and thwarted a commando operation.

It was not immediately clear what was the target for the helicopter-borne Israeli commandos.

The bloody foray was about 25 miles from an Israeli occupied border enclave in southern Lebanon and another 30 miles north of the Israeli border.

Israel has in the past struck at guerrilla bases and commanders deep inside Lebanon to avenge attacks on Israeli troops in the south.

Last month, helicopter-borne Israeli commandos landed behind the front-line and set off bombs, killing three guerrilla commanders.

More than 30 people, most of them Lebanese civilians, were killed in southern Lebanon in August in attacks and reprisals.

The nighttime Israeli operation began shortly after midnight Friday in hills off the coastal highway between the villages of Sarafand and Adloun, 15 miles south of Sidon, provincial capital of southern Lebanon.

Guerrillas of the Iranian-backed Shiite Hezbollah and the pro-Syrian Amal movement apparently detected the commando raid and opened fire on the soldiers, the officials said Thursday.

At least five Israelis were killed in the ensuing battle, which continued well over three hours.

Israeli warplanes and helicopter gunships flew overhead as commandos traded machine-gun and automatic rifle fire on the ground with the guerrillas and with nearby Lebanese army positions.

Jet fighters, apparently seeking to relieve the commandos on the ground, fired at least two air-to-surface missiles in the area about two hours into the outbreak of fighting, the officials said.

They spoke on condition of anonymity.

Helicopter gunships also joined the combat, blasting targets on the ground with missiles and machine guns.

Guerrillas responded with shoulder-fired anti-aircraft SAM-7 missiles, but no hits were reported. An Israeli gunboat off the coast blasted the combat area with at least two shells.

About five guerrillas were wounded, the officials said. A Lebanese army position was targeted and at least one soldier was wounded.

The latest fighting in Lebanon came as another cycle of violence struck a new blow to Middle East peace.

On Thursday, three suicide bombs exploded in the heart of Jerusalem, killing seven people, including the bombers, and injuring at least 192 people.

There had been hopes that next week's scheduled visit by U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright would revive the faltering peace process.

The chief American diplomat said her trip to the Mideast would go ahead despite the Jerusalem attack.

Miami voters keep city government

MIAMI (AP) — A proposal to abolish the city of Miami, tarnished in recent years by deficits, corruption and poverty, was soundly defeated Thursday in an election that turned into a test of Cuban-American solidarity.

But a proposal to carve the heavily Hispanic city into single-member districts and ensure black representation in at least one district appeared headed to victory.

The measure to shut down city government in Miami and merge it with Dade County government had been given practically no chance of passage by either side in this city of 375,000.

With 50 percent of precincts reporting, the bid to abolish the city had 16 percent of the vote, or 1,149, while those in favor of retaining the city had 84 percent of the vote, or 5,817. Voter turnout was 23 percent, about normal for a special election.

"This shows the people of Miami trust the government they have now," said Miami Mayor Joe Carollo, who noted the lopsided win for the city's existence should prevent the issue from resurfacing anytime soon.

But the main proponent of abolition said the issue would not go away.

"Eventually people are going to realize that their pocketbook and quality of life will be more important than ethnic politics," said attorney Gene Stearns. "Over the long term, the merger of these regional governments is inevitable."

Those favoring abolition argued that because of Miami's limited tax base — Miami is America's fourth-poorest big city, based on per-capita income — it would make more sense to erase the city boundaries and let the Metro-Dade County government provide basic services like police and fire protection to all 2.1 million of the county's residents.

The debate quickly evolved into a test of ethnic solidarity in Miami, which is about two-thirds Hispanic, one-fourth black and the rest non-Hispanic white. Cuban Americans consider Miami their city.

"The Cuban-American community, since they have controlled city government in recent years, viewed the referendum as an attack on them," said political scientist Dario Moreno of Florida International University.

The referendum was forced by a citizen's petition in January.

At the time, Miami was facing a $68 million deficit and a bribery scandal that snared several city officials. Since then, Miami has worked out a five-year plan to solve its financial woes under the supervision of a state oversight board.

The referendum also offered voters the chance to change the city's type of representation.

Under the proposal, Miami's current system of a mayor and four commissioners elected at large would change to a mayor with more powers and five commissioners elected from districts. Under the current setup, blacks have been found it difficult to get elected to the commission.

“Eventually people are going to realize that their pocketbook and quality of life will be more important than ethnic policy.”

"Outperforming the entire fast food industry."

- The Wall Street Journal, 4/28/97

When you see how Papa John's has been doing lately, it's no surprise that our giant competitor has become, shall we say, agitated.

America has an appetite for better quality pizza - just what's put Papa John's on the map. And so, armed with a newly revamped product, the big guy is coming after the little company that's winning all the acclaim.

It's funny, though, because we never set out to create a big stir. All we set out to create was a really, really good pizza.

Back in the early '80s when John Schnatter (yes, there really is a Papa John) started making pizzas in the broom closet of his dad's tavern, his mission was to bring the public something he had never personally experienced. A delivery pizza that's consistently excellent. Better ingredients, better pizza. Simple idea. Well, in theory.

An admitted fanatic for quality, Papa John tracked down sauce made with fresh-packed tomatoes grown only in certain California valleys and picked only during the few weeks a year when they're perfect. And today we're still the only national chain that uses fresh-packed tomato sauce on every single pizza.

He searched out the Italian cheese making genius who had discovered the secret to keeping mozzarella fresher and moister.

Together he and John developed the special kind of 100% mozzarella that's piled on every Papa John's pizza. We're the only place, large or small, that has it.

Using spring wheat flour and filtered water for better dough. Hiring professional dough makers in our regional commissaries to assure a consistent product (versus giving the job to who-knows-who in the restaurant, as most of our competitors do). Obsessive? Yep, that's John.

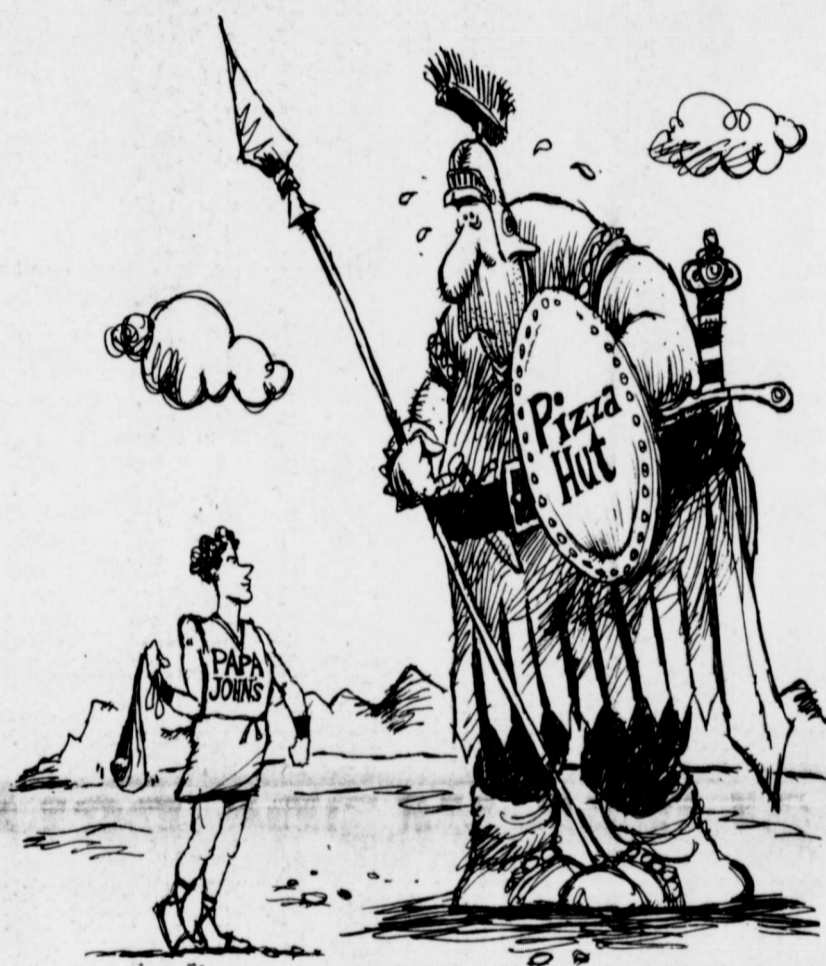

Call it what you may, his quest for the perfect pizza has made Papa John's the fastest growing pizza company in the country. Still, Papa John's is only the number four pizza chain. That is, if all you consider is our number of locations.

In its April 28 article, The Wall Street Journal reports that Papa John's is succeeding spectacularly at a time when "Goliath's" parent company is retreating from the fast-food business entirely. As the Journal story puts it, "Papa John's is on a tear."

Put another way, it would seem that we're number one in everything but size. Which, apparently, has caused a certain giant to get his nose just a little bit out of joint.

But that's okay. Our sling is loaded.

Track coach charged with four rapes

■ May be linked to nine others

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — On Aug. 20, coach Tony Ransom phoned one of his high school athletes and invited her to practice at a college track.

Her mother wouldn't let her go. "There's a rapist out there," Irma Swygert told her 17-year-old daughter.

That same day, investigators say, Ransom raped a woman.

Now Ransom, a 37-year-old ex-con and part-time track coach at the all-girl Holy Names High School, has been charged with four rapes and is suspected in as many as nine others since mid-July in the San Francisco Bay area.

Investigators said some victims identified Ransom, in part by his voice and mannerisms in phrases such as "I'm going to snap your neck" and "You can put your clothes on now."

The victims described their attacker as fit, in his early 30s, wearing a knit ski mask in some rapes, animal masks in others. Several of the women were beaten, raped and then robbed.

Looking back, Swygert can pinpoint twinges of doubt she had about Ransom. For one, he didn't always show up for the summer practices he scheduled each Monday, Wednesday and Friday with her daughter. For another, he didn't seem to like it when she accompanied her daughter.

"He said, 'Oh, Mom, you're here with her.' He almost seemed disappointed," Swygert said. "I felt he had a plan for her."

Her daughter, the track team's captain, is unwilling to talk about Ransom.

Most students have been instructed by school officials not to talk. But privately, they are finding it hard to believe a rapist could have been in their midst.

California law requires private schools to do a state background

“I was very surprised he got a job as a coach.”

Sylvester Johnson, Chabot College track coach who knew Ransom check on their employees, though there is often a long lag time in getting the results.

Holy Names President Laura Held said that no background check on Ransom had been done and that school officials were investigating why Ransom's contract was not renewed this year, though officials have not said why.

"I was very surprised he got a job as a coach," said Chabot College track coach Sylvester Johnson, who has known Ransom since he coached him at the school in the late 1980s.

"I knew about his background, and I thought someone would at least ask."

Ransom had at least seven convictions dating to 1981, ranging from a gun violation to burglary, and had been in and out of prison.

"three-strikes" law, meaning Ransom could get 35 years to life in prison if convicted of even one rape.

Johnson recalled Ransom's running ability as "not exceptional," but said Ransom used to work out at the track after others had gone home.

In the past few years, he said, Ransom had returned to work out on the track at Chabot, the same campus where he allegedly raped a woman in a soundproof music room. It was the same day that Swygert made her daughter miss the track practice at another nearby college.

After a school janitor who had been in prison for armed robbery and manslaughter was charged with raping and killing a Sacramento-area student last May, legislators introduced several bills to require more thorough, computerized background checks on prospective school employees. The Ransom rape case is likely to bolster those efforts.

"This is a real wake-up call," said Laurel Hulley, the mother of a student at an elementary school next door to Holy Names.

"There should be no criminals working with children. Period."

Brand drops McAllen mayor election contest

McALLEN (AP) — Former McAllen Mayor Othal Brand has dropped a lawsuit contesting his May 3 election loss, saying he needs to devote more time to saving his financially crippled produce company.

"My reason for dropping the election lawsuit is not that I don't think we can win, nor is it because of the expense of the lawsuit," Brand said at a news conference Thursday. "I have been working to salvage a business which I have neglected for far too many years. ... It is a full-time job."

Brand is founder and chairman of the board of Griffin & Brand of McAllen Inc.

Once one of the largest vegetable producers in the state, the company has suffered millions of dollars in losses in recent years because of bug infestations, adverse markets, labor and lawsuits.

"I feel that at this stage in my life, I should devote my best efforts for a while almost exclusively to the business ... my family and my associates," said the 78-year-old Brand.

McAllen's mayor for 20 years, Brand lost his seat last May to City Commissioner Leo Montalvo in a shocking 144-vote upset.

In June, Brand filed a lawsuit contesting the election, saying about 300 people voted illegally, including several noncitizens and 150 voters who were not registered in McAllen.

On Thursday, Brand maintained that "gross irregularities" occurred during the election and said he planned to remain in contact with city leaders until the problem is addressed.

Montalvo said that while he is committed to protecting the integrity of the electoral process, he does not believe voting irregularities occurred to the extent that Brand alleged.

Tobacco researcher suggested promoting nicotine as a drug

MIAMI (AP) — An R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. researcher suggested in 1972 that the company promote nicotine in cigarettes as a drug, according to a memo read to the jury in a $5 billion smoking case Thursday.

In the memo, first disclosed two years ago, Claude Teague proposed a "futuristic approach" to marketing focusing on cigarettes as "attractive dosage forms of nicotine."

"A tobacco product is in essence a vehicle for the delivery of nicotine," Teague wrote, calling nicotine "a potent drug with a variety of physiological effects."

The industry is now fighting regulation of nicotine as a drug.

The memo was read in a class-action lawsuit against five cigarette makers by 60,000 flight attendants who say smoke in airplane cabins endangered their health.

Andrew Schindler, Reynolds' president and chief executive, dismissed the memo as "bizarre" in a sworn statement read to the jury last month.

The jury Thursday also heard excerpts from a host of news releases issued by the industry-funded Council for Tobacco Research from 1954 to 1995, most of them disputing links between smoking and disease.

A 1954 statement said there was no convincing scientific evidence that smoking causes lung cancer — the industry's defense 43 years later.

Senior sensation

Seniors' Academy thrives in midst of college youth

BY LAURA HENSLEY
The University Daily

Margaret Hite is not embarrassed when asked her age. She proudly announces she is 67. Hite also is proud of the fact that she is receiving her college education, something she has wanted to do for years.

"You can't stop time," said Hite, a junior general studies major and member of the Texas Tech Senior's Academy Program. "I've always felt deprived because I didn't have a college education."

The program is designed for students age 55 or older who want to pursue a college education. The academy has about 50 students enrolled who are either earning a degree or taking a few classes for personal enrichment.

"I love working with them," said Linda Gregston, general studies adviser. "I have some students who are in their 70s. Most of them are excellent students. They are back in school because they want to be here."

The academy is organized through the Visitor Center where special attention can be given to the students enrolled in the senior's program. A special advising and registration time is set aside for seniors. No high school transcripts, SAT or ACT scores are required for admission into the university's program. And, students 65 and older receive six hours free and a tuition break.

"It's a wonderful program," Gregston said. "Usually the older students know what they want to do better than younger students. They have maturity, focus and a world of experience. Young students don't always see a clear-cut reason to be here."

Senior students enrolled in the university program are allowed to have any major and to take as many hours as they wish.

"I have all kinds of people that leave here that have all kinds of jobs," Gregston said. "It's a very fascinating job."

Lois Geer, a 1995 graduate and member of the Senior Academy, came back to school after 40 years.

"I do love school," Geer said. "I appreciate it more now. The more you learn, the more you want to learn. It's endless."

Senior students describe coming to Tech as a type of fountain of youth. They rarely feel awkward or out of place and believe the experience to be fulfilling.

"It's just been a very excellent experience," Hite said. "Being around young people keeps you very aware of what's going on in the world."

Hite is a mother of three and has two grandchildren, all of whom are very supportive of her. Now one of her daughters is going back to school to earn a nursing degree.

"I think I may graduate before her," Hite said. "I plan on graduating in the year 2000. I'll be 70 then. How else to start a new millennium?"

Hot foods create euphoria for those seeking thrills

WACO (AP) — On a recent episode of "The Simpsons," Homer Simpson dragged his family to Springfield's annual chili festival. Trying to prove his manliness, Homer ate several "Insanity Peppers," sending him into chili pepper-induced hallucinations.

Now most pepper aficionados aren't after that effect. But what drives them in their search for hotter and hotter foods?

"They're thrill seekers," said Pamm Anderson, maker of Baptism of Fire, winner of the XXX Hot Sauce category at this year's Fiery Food Challenge in Albuquerque, N.M. "They like to try dangerous things."

Anderson, of Hubbard, said when a person first eats hot foods, such as chile peppers, "you burn yourself, and your brain will give you endorphins, a natural pain killer."

If the hot food fan continues eating hotter foods, "the brain will build up a tolerance, and you won't get the endorphins. You have to increase the heat to get that euphoric feeling," Anderson said.

"Why do some people like to jump out of planes with a parachute or scale a cliff with no safety rope?" he asked. "There's some kind of spark."

Smith's company, ATA International in Belton, produces Hot Paradise salsa, which took top honors at the San Angelo Salsa Fiesta recently.

Hot Paradise, Smith said, is different from most salsas, as it is not tomato-based.

It consists of 40 percent habanero peppers, which are exponentially hotter than the more commonly known jalapeno.

The peppers, which also are used in Baptism of Fire, are strong enough that the workers who bottle the product wear "gloves almost up to their elbows, a mask and hazard glasses," Anderson said.

An added attraction of eating peppers might be the possible health benefits.

When the peppers come in contact with the tongue, they release a chemical called capsaicin, which research has shown helps prevent arterial sclerosis, said Joel C. Gregory, editor and publisher of Chile Pepper magazine.

"In Central America (where peppers are staples of the diet), there is far less coronary artery disease, and that has been attributed loosely and anecdotally to peppers," said Gregory, a graduate of Baylor University and former Baptist pastor.

"People are looking for alternative condiments," Gregory said.

Singer mourns Diana with new version of song

LONDON (AP) — Two decades ago, he eulogized another fallen icon, remembering Marilyn Monroe with a sentimental song called "Candle in the Wind." Now, Elton John has updated it to mourn Princess Diana.

The pop star will sing the new version of the song Saturday in Westminster Abbey at the funeral of the princess, a fan of his since childhood.

The revised lyrics, released Thursday, tell of a woman who was "the grace that placed itself where lives were torn apart," and who leaves behind "a country lost without your soul."

Where in the original song, released in 1973 and co-written by lyricist Bernie Taupin, John sang "Goodbye, Norma Jean" — a reference to Monroe's real name, Norma Jean Baker — now, he will sing "Goodbye, English Rose."

The new version about "the nation's golden child," also co-written with Taupin, eliminates some of the bite and bitterness of the original words about Monroe's overdose death in 1962. In the old version, John lamented:

"Even when you died,
"Oh the press still hounded you.
"All the papers had to say
"was that Marilyn was found in the nude."

There is no mention of the media in the new lyrics.
John and the princess both were

AIDS activists and friends of designer Gianni Versace, who was shot to death in July. Diana sat next to the singer and comforted him when he broke down at the designer's memorial service in Milan, an image captured by photographers and distributed widely.

"Candle in the Wind" was a major hit when it first was released on John's "Goodbye, Yellow Brick Road" album, and an intensely emotional live version of the song was nominated for a Grammy in 1988.

MTV video awards invade Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP) — Pierced tongues, poses and a fashion rainbow from black to brown — Manhattan was the Island of Hip Thursday for the MTV Video Awards, the celebration where winning a trophy is far less important than looking right.

Madonna lectured gossip-mongers, Sting croaked out a contribution to "I'll Be Missing You" and censors repeatedly leaned on the "bleep" button at the 14th annual show.

And they gave out awards, too — still those goofy-looking astronaut statuettes.

"I won one of these last year," rocker Beck said, picking up one of his five statuettes. "I'm still waiting for it."

MTV's cultural influence has faded over the past few years, not coincidentally as it de-emphasized music videos. Only the truly hip know much about Jamiroquai, the British band that led with 10 award nominations and won three.

But MTV still knows how to throw a party.

The Rolling Stones, noted band of the 1960s, and U2, noted band of the 1980s, showed up to try and create a 1990s buzz.

Depot District offers variety of entertainment for festival

Although people can catch a variety of entertainment during the Buddy Holly Music Festival, many people may want to catch the shows at the Depot Beergarden and Stubb's this weekend.

Friday and Saturday night, the Electric Gypsies will play at the Beergarden, 1824 Ave. G. The Gypsies are a cover band with a growing following in Lubbock. Both shows will begin at 10 p.m. and the cover for the shows is $5.

Mojo Hand and the Del Dragons will play a show at 10 p.m. today at Stubb's Bar-B-Q, 19th Street and Interstate 27. The cover for the show is $5.

Dah Veed will headline a show at Stubb's Saturday night with The Buddy Simmons Band opening the show. The cover for the show is $6 and starts at 10 p.m.

They have a separate cover charge than the shows involved with the festival.

"These two venues are not involved with the festival, but because of the festival, we have brought in quality entertainment," said Larry Simmons, owner of the Palladium "Live" and the Beergarden.

Tribute to a Legend

Buddy Holly Music Festival brings international attention to Hub City

BY SEBASTIAN KITCHEN
The University Daily

People from all over the world will converge on Lubbock for this weekend's second annual Buddy Holly Music Festival. This weekend would have marked Holly's 61st birthday.

"Folks from all over the world are arriving," said Chris Wallace, director of Broadway Festivals Inc. "We have an international tour group arriving and individuals from all over the United States."

The festival will take place in the Depot District in downtown Lubbock today through Sunday. The initial kick-off was Thursday with the Walk of Fame induction, a gala and this year's premier of "Buddy: The Buddy Holly Story" at the Cactus Theater.

Lubbock native Donnie Allison is playing the role of Holly in the play that sold out all shows last year.

The theatre will host 10 productions of "Buddy" during the festival.

Wednesday Allison released a tribute album to Holly.

Allison will be joined over the course of the weekend by many other performers.

"We have excellent talent lined up, and we are ready to start," Wallace said.

A "Stars of the 50's" Concert will be performed at 8:30 p.m. today featuring Carl Perkins and Johnny Tillotson.

Ian Moore will headline a show at 9:30 p.m. at Palladian "Live," 1812 Ave. G. The concert is oriented for the Texas Tech crowd.

Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Depot District popular West Texas stars will take the stage. Joe Ely will headline a concert that will also feature Terry Allen and the Maines Brothers.

Several members of the popular country band, the Mavericks, will perform Saturday with Ely and the other West Texas performers.

Music will take place at all of the district's venues during the weekend.

Those interested can also attend the Buddy Holly Fanfare from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. at Roadhouse Ruby's, 2216 Interstate 27.

Fans can exchange memorabilia, obtain autographs and experience the Buddy Holly Historical Tour.

The Lubbock Record Collector's Show and Artist's Fan Fair will be conducted at the Four Points Sheraton Hotel, 505 Ave. Q. For more information, fans can call 748-6263.

Classic cars will be displayed throughout the district during the festival by the Nifty 50's Car Club.

A collection of 25 Holly memorabilia pieces have been set up in the former Depot Restaurant, 1802 Ave. G., and can be viewed by the public free of charge during the festival.

Sunday at 5 p.m. there will be an encore performance of the "Rave On" concert by The Lubbock Symphony Orchestra and the Lubbock Texas Rhythm Machine.

The performance will also feature guest appearances from Holly's widow Maria Elena Holly, Mayor Windy Sitton, Joe Ely and the stars of the Cactus Theater.

The guests will pay tribute to the legendary singer on his 61st birthday and there will be a recognition of the 1997 Innovation Award Recipient.

Passes to the event can be purchased as a daily pass for $15 or a weekend pass for $40. The passes can be purchased at any Select-A-Seat location or by calling 770-2000.

Last year's festival had an estimated attendance of 6,000 to 8,000 people, according to Nicole Robbins, director of Marketing and Tourism. She said they are expecting at least 10,000 to 12,000 people this year. "It is hard to say how many people we will have because festivals like these grow exponentially in their first few years," Robbins said.

Eighty people arrived from London Wednesday and a group from Germany arrived Thursday, she said.

"People have come from England, Germany and South Africa," Wallace said.

"People have come from all around to come to see Lubbock, the home of Buddy Holly, and have come for the Buddy Holly Music Festival."

REGISTRATION

New students register in the UC Ballroom during one of the many summer orientations.

ADD/DROP

Along with coordinating preregistration, the Admissions and Records office also coordinates add/drop during the fall and spring semesters.

Jenny Mehlow, Student Publications

Students may request a transcript of their records at the Transcript office in West Hall. The student's full legal name, social security number and signature are required along with $2 per transcript.

"Everything that happens to a student at Texas Tech happens at Admissions and Records. We admit them, register them and give them a record after they leave. Students start with us when they are admitted and register with us every semester. In the meantime, we record their grades. When that's all over, we order their diploma."

Gene Medley
Director of Admissions and Records

Most Asked Questions

- What courses will transfer to Tech?
In general, all credit hours with a grade of "C" or better, earned at another accredited institution will be accepted for transfer to Texas Tech. The academic dean of the college offering the program in which the student is enrolled determines which transfer courses apply toward a particular degree program.
- How do I change my major?
After you have picked up your registration materials from your current adviser, and before you register for a particular semester, an academic transfer can be made in 100 West Hall.
- Where do I declare a class pass/fail?
Students should complete a Pass/Fail form in the academic dean's office of the college in which they are enrolled.
- What is the procedure for obtaining a transcript?
To obtain a transcript, go to the Transcript Office in West Hall. Your full legal name, social security number and signature are required, along with $2 (per copy, payable in advance) and the address where the transcript is to be mailed. This information may be directed to Box 4570, Lubbock, TX 79409.
- Do I have to take the TASP test? If so, when?
The testing requirements and ways to obtain exemption are explained on page 28 of the Undergraduate catalog. Generally, students must take the test before they complete nine semester credit hours at a public college or university.

Attorney for Students

Legal hassles can be confusing, scary and often expensive. The Attorney for Students Office helps minimize the negative effects of legal problems through early intervention and negotiation - all free of charge.

The Attorney for Students offers free legal counseling on personal legal matters to all enrolled students and registered student organizations.

Although the counseling does not include actual representation, a lawyer referral will be given on request. The attorney also can guest lecture to classes and organizations.

The idea of the office is when students walk through the door, they have in effect already paid for the service through some of their student fees.

One major problem the office faces is students who wait until the problem becomes unnecessarily complicated.

It is not unusual for students to adopt the attitude that if a problem is ignored, it will go away - but it rarely does.

Another common mistake people make in dealing with legal problems is to react quickly and angrily.

The purpose of the Attorney for Students is to provide as much legal service to the students as it can and to keep the fees down to little or nothing.

Many college students take a lot of abuse because people do not think they will pursue legal action. That is why the Attorney for Students office exists. Students simply can call the office, and personnel will do their best to direct students in the actions they should take. Although the attorney cannot represent students in court, advice can be given in how to approach legal problems.

Areas of service are: legal counseling, lawyer referral, preventative legal education and notary services. The office also can help students with much of the paper work involved such as leases and wills.

"The purpose of the Attorney for Students Office is to provide students with confidential legal advice about personal legal matters. The office is dedicated to the concept of preventative law and strives to combine counseling and education to aid students in acquiring the skills to cope with common legal matters."

Deniece Jones
Attorney for Students

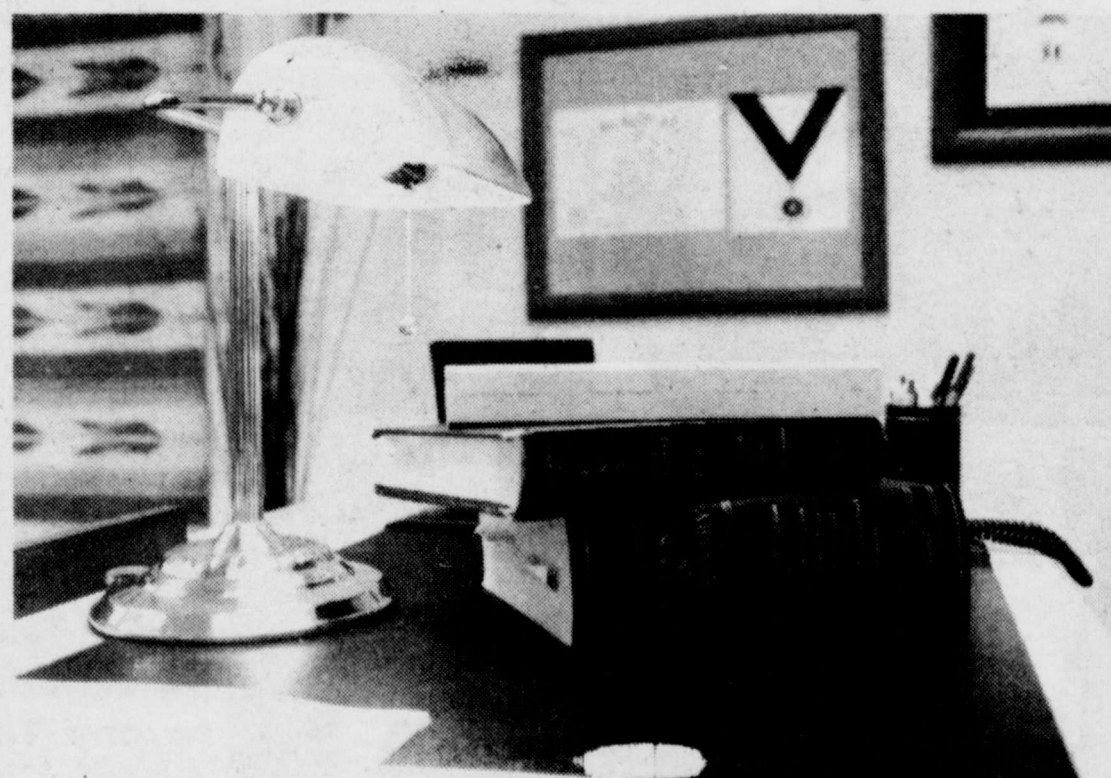

Most Asked Questions

- Can the Attorney for Students Office represent students in court?
No. The Attorney for Students can provide only legal advice. However, this advice may make going to court unnecessary or may consist of preparing students to represent themselves.
- If a student has a possible insurance claim against Texas Tech, who does he/she contact?
Contact the Office of Contracting and Risk Management, after reporting to the department involved.
- Is there a charge for using the Attorney for Students Office?
No. There is no charge for the services provided by the Attorney for Students. Students already have paid for this service through tuition and fees.
- How does a student locate an attorney to represent them in court?
The Attorney for Students Office has a lawyer referral plan and can provide the student with a selection of attorneys in the appropriate legal area. The State Bar of Texas also has a lawyer referral service. Call 1-800-252-9690.

Service is limited to advice and the drawing of simple legal documents. If courtroom representation is necessary, a referral service to members of the Lubbock County Bar Association is available. A notary service also is available in the office, free of charge.

Texas Tech Bookstore

Texas Tech University Bookstore received a half-million dollar facelift in 1996, with the new ownership of Wallace Bookstores. The Texas Tech Bookstore has been completed and awaits students with its 20,000-square foot shopping space.

The bookstore has been totally remodeled with a new layout, new fixtures and new merchandise selections; and is now comparable to the best major university bookstores in the nation. It has the look, feel, convenience and service to students and other customers.

With all these improvements, the bookstore offers new services such as UPS and Federal Express shipping. Simply bring in your packages and the staff will handle all the paperwork. The store now accepts the American Express card in addition to Visa/Mastercard, Discover and Tech Express. All the services students have come to expect and use will continue to be available, as well as the merchandise.

is committed to meeting most of the students' ordinary needs. With the exception of groceries and hot food, the bookstore has everything any Tech student needs to survive college life from XXL Tech shorts to tape. The store also carries candy and other carry-out snack items.

Textbooks are what make the Texas Tech Bookstore what it is. The bookstore is the source for students for all official textbooks, required materials and most books for every class. The bookstore places an emphasis on used textbooks and had the largest selection of used books available at Tech. Used books at the campus bookstore represent a savings of at least 25 percent of the cost of new books.

The bookstore carries study guides and reference material in addition to one of the largest selections of popular fiction, mysteries and self-help books - all New York Times Best-sellers.

The bookstore will pay half of the original price for all books that will be needed at Tech the following semester. Books not to be used will be purchased at the going wholesale price. Any book not in stock can be special ordered, with a few exceptions.

Director of the Texas Tech Bookstore

Most Asked Questions

• How much money can students get for selling back textbooks?

Books needed on campus the next semester will be bought for 50 percent of the purchase price. Books not needed on campus may be purchased by the bookstore, wholesale, with price determined by market value. Other books may be donated to a worthwhile cause.

• Does the campus bookstore carry any books other than textbooks?

Yes. There are thousands of titles on the shelves - fiction and nonfiction - including a wide variety of reference books and New York Times best-sellers. The store also carries a wide variety of popular magazines.

• Does the bookstore carry computer accessories?

Yes. The Texas Tech University Bookstore carries IBM and Macintosh computer hardware, various software packages and a wide range of computer supplies.

Career Planning & Placement Center

"There are as many ways to select a career and begin a job search as there are students at Texas Tech. I hope students see our role as that of being a partner with them and that there are many resources and contacts that can help a student achieve their goals."

David Kraus
Director of the CPPC

Most Asked Questions

• How can a student register with Career Planning and Placement?

Registration is done by a computer registration disk, which may be purchased at the Tech Bookstore. Students also need ten copies of an unofficial transcript, a list of references and a signed authorization and release statement allowing our staff to present your qualifications to prospective employers.

• Can The Career Planning and Placement Center help students in choosing a career field?

Most definitely. There are a number of resources students might find helpful in making these important decisions. SIGI-PLUS consists of nine parts and normally takes students about one and a half hours to two hours to complete. It will ask the student a series of questions about his/her likes, interests, aptitudes and values. The program will then give the student a list of possible career fields that seem to match the student's profile. If a student has a particular career field in mind, he/she can also find out more information about that field of choice.

• When should students begin utilizing the services offered by The Career Planning and Placement Center?

The center strongly suggests freshman and sophomore students become familiar with the services at Career Planning and Placement. Career advising is available, and many students find the computerized career guidance system (SIGI-PLUS) to be very helpful. Students are strongly encouraged to participate in the University's Cooperative Education Program in addition to the annual Career Information Day hosted by the center in September and the Summer Camp Job Fair Day in February.

Director David Kraus
Telephone 742-2210
Location 335 West Hall
Hours 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Whether you are a graduating senior or an incoming freshman, the Career Planning and Placement Center provides services designed to assist students searching for a job, internship or even a career field.

In addition to providing assistance in writing resumes and cover letters, the Career Planning and Placement Center provides a variety of resources to students in the form of catalogs, magazines, videos and on-line services with information about companies, internships and cooperative education programs.

Students can register with the office via computer diskette and are asked to provide information about themselves including job experience, academic performance and personal interests.

Information provided for the Career Planning and Placement Center is then passed on to employers searching for prospective employees or interns. The center's staff members are on hand to assist students with the registration process.

The center also coordinates a cooperative education program in which the student works to gain valuable experience, a salary and contacts that will be useful in the future.

Seniors are strongly encouraged to register with the center and begin their job searching early.

Freshmen, sophomores and juniors also are encouraged to contact the Career Planning and Placement Center early to obtain information about employers and job-search strategies as well as information about available internships.

Career Planning and Placement Director David Kraus said students who would most benefit from the services offered at the center are the least likely to take advantage of them. Kraus said because job searches take time and perseverance, students, especially those whose majors are not in specific career fields, should begin their job searching early.

Kraus said students sometimes see the office as a resource only for students in engineering, business and other clearly defined career fields; however, the center offers assistance to students from all backgrounds.

Career Planning and Placement coordinates at least three on-campus career days during the year: Fall Career Day in September, a summer camp job fair and a teacher job fair in the spring.

The peak times for campus interviewing are October through mid-November and late January through early March. However, Kraus said, interviewing occurs throughout the year.

Jenny Mehlow, Student Publications

Career Planning and Placement staff members will assist students with a number of services, including resume writing, preparing for interviews and job search strategies. The center also offers on-line services, including computer registration with the office.

The Counseling Center

The Counseling Center offers a variety of services and programs for a wide range of student needs and interests. The Counseling Center serves a population ranging from entering freshmen to returning adult learners.

Many of the people the center deals with come seeking help in selecting a major or career. With the center's computerized career guidance system, the staff is able to give information on a large base of career opportunities.

The Counseling Center also shows students how to choose a major area of study on top of providing personal and social counseling for people with a broad range of issues and concerns. Adjustment problems are common for students to experience at one point or another personal trauma or stressful situation. Another program the Counseling Center offers is the Peers for Retention, Interaction and Diversity in Education program — the P.R.I.D.E. program. The P.R.I.D.E. program is a mentoring program for minority students to help them adapt more to a university setting.

The center also offers a speed reading program and group and relationship counseling.

Most Asked Questions

• What kind of services are provided at the Counseling Center?

The Counseling Center provides a service for students with career, academic or personal concerns. The center also has a variety of group activities.

• Do students really have to be mixed up to see a counselor?

The vast majority of the students who come to the Counseling Center are average people with problems typical of their age and environment. If an issue is a concern to a student, then the staff at the Counseling Center is willing to help them sort out their problems. The center also provides services to students who may be dealing with more severe issues and concerns.

• Can a student be sure their conference with a counselor will be held confidential?

Yes. The services at the Counseling Center are held in the strictest of confidence.

• Where can students take career tests and what kinds of testing are there?

The Counseling Center provides a variety of testing such as interests, aptitudes and personality inventories. For more information on career testing, call 742-3672 to set up an appointment or come by room 214 in West Hall.

• Are Counseling Center services free?

Counseling services are free. They have been paid for through student fees.

• How can I arrange to see a counselor?

Call or come by the Counseling Center. Students will complete a brief intake form and schedule an appointment to see a counselor.

Most Asked Questions

Are there any special services for disabled, minority and older returning students?

Yes. Opportunities available for disabled students include campus accessibility and service information, assistance in arranging courses, classroom and testing accommodations, handicap parking and more. Services available for minority students include personal advisement, financial counseling, assistance with culturally-oriented programs and activities and conducting workshops and seminars in the areas of leadership development and improving organizational effectiveness.

Services for nontraditional students (Adult Learners) include individualized counseling for educational and personal adjustments to the university environment.

How does a student start a student organization?

A student can pick up a student organization registration sheet with instructions at the Student Organization Services (SOS) office in the University Center. The forms must be completed, along with the proper signatures and returned to the SOS office.

What should a student do if they are thinking about dropping all their classes for the semester?

After discussing the matter with your academic adviser, go to the Dean of Students office. The student will be given information regarding refunds of tuition and fees (if any), registration and other refunds for which the student might be eligible. The student may also be required to go to the Student Financial Aid office and/or Housing and Dining.

The Dean of Students office at Texas Tech, one of the most diverse in its programs and services on campus, provides students with a wide array of opportunities for a better educational experience.

Coupled with the recognition of Tech's diverse student population and an appreciation of the different backgrounds and interests that population employs, the Dean of Students office partners with Academic Affairs, all administrative departments, student service organizations and the Lubbock community to help create an environment conducive to creative learning.

The Dean of Students office serves as a resource and referral agent for students and departments. Disabled Student Services provides certification for reasonable accommodations for disabled students. Greek Life programs is made up of 40 registered student organizations with more than 3,000 students who provide opportunities for leadership, social and community service.

Numerous programs and services are provided through the Dean's office including Adult Learners program, Freshman Year Experience, New Student Orientation (Double T Days), Multicultural Services Center and the Student Life Assessment program.

The Dean of Students office also provides leadership to students through the Code of Student Conduct, a service that focuses on the behavioral concerns of the student and not just the misconduct and punishment of the student. The service allows the Dean of Students office to take a pro-active and not a reactive stance to help students make good choices in their educational process.

The Dean of Students staff assumes a major role in encouraging and establishing open and humane methods of campus decision-making and the rational resolution of problems. The method of decision-making and the programs and services offered provide Tech students with the best possibilities to continue their total university experience.

For more information about the Dean of Students office and how students can get involved with their programs, call 742-2192.

Student Health Services

Student Health Services is a primary health care clinic staffed with licensed health care professionals who provide care for minor illnesses and injuries with a focus on prevention. This means Student Health Services can treat many of the same ailments as your family doctor but at a much lower cost.

Student Health Services has its own laboratory tests and x-ray departments which work with the physicians. Most necessary laboratory tests and x-rays can be provided at no additional cost and only when requested by a Student Health physician.

The pharmacy at Student Health carries most common prescription medications as well as an excellent selection of over-the-counter products. Prescriptions from any personal physician for a Tech student may be filled at the Student Health Pharmacy. Prices at the pharmacy are set at discounted prices with the typical student budget in mind.

The Health Education Center in Student Health offers many wellness-related services to students and also offers brochures on a variety of health topics and information files students can utilize when writing papers or presentations. Student Health also offers health education classes on a variety of topics such as tobacco cessation and a pre-exam counseling class for women who are planning their first visit to the Women's Health Clinic. Other classes are offered periodically and are advertised in The University Daily or throughout academic buildings.

Along with health education, the clinic also sponsors Impact Tech, a peer education group. This group of volunteer students learns about health issues such as substance use and abuse. The group of students then go into the campus community to educate other students about these issues. Impact Tech is available to conduct programs for campus groups and academic classes. Students who are interested in volunteering for Impact Tech should contact Michelle Pettus at 743-2860 for more information.

Appointments in Student Health are usually available on the same or following day you call. Appointments can be made by calling 743-2848. If you have an appointment and are not able to keep it, please call and cancel your appointment so other students may be seen during that time slot. Students needing care after clinic hours are encouraged to locate another clinic or hospital in the community. Any services obtained outside of Student Health are NOT covered by a student's medical services fee and are at the his or her own expense. Students may obtain care at University Medical Center at discounted rates.

Student Publications

Jenny Mehlow, Student Publications

La Ventana Editor Matthew Dillingham, Student Publications Director Jan Childress and Secretary Mary Lindsey discuss yearbook sales at freshman orientation. The staff and students of Texas Tech Student Publications are dedicated to keeping students informed by publishing award-winning records of the daily events and happenings of campus life.

Jenny Mehlow, Student Publications

The Student Publications staff and students work year round to publish award-winning publications.

Student Publications is more than just the newspaper. Student Publications at Texas Tech means The University Daily, La Ventana and Amigos! New Student and Freshman Directory.

Produced each weekday by a student staff, The University Daily focuses on stories that specifically concern Tech students, faculty and staff. It also provides an overview of state, national and world news via the Associated Press wire service.

The UD operates under the independent editor concept, which means that Amy Osmulski, the student editor, is responsible for the non-advertising content of the paper. This includes both the news articles and the opinion columns.

As a student journal, The UD offers several opportunities for feedback from its audience. Readers are invited to submit letters to the editor and guest columns for possible publication on the opinion page.

The UD, which enters its 72nd year of publication this fall, rates as one of the best student newspapers in the nation, having entered the Associated Collegiate Hall of Fame. The UD earned this honor by accumulating 10 consecutive years of All-American ratings. Only a limited number of schools have received this honor. Look for The UD at 73 locations throughout the campus.

When students purchase an edition of La Ventana, they are acquiring a compact, well-illustrated history of any given year at Texas Tech.

La Ventana is a 1995 recipient of the national Pacemaker award and a 1996 recipient of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association's prestigious Gold Crown Award. These awards are the highest honors bestowed upon a college yearbook and its staff.

All aspects of life at Tech are covered by La Ventana. Besides the usual class photos and club activities, La Ventana strives to record in both copy and photos the essence of life on and off campus. The value of this book increases as a reference source and a treasure chest of memories.

The 1998 La Ventana editor is Matthew Dillingham.

An invaluable companion during that first year at Tech is Amigos! New Student and Freshman Directory.

Published each fall, the directory contains photos, hometowns, local addresses and phone numbers of all incoming students, plus valuable tips on getting around the Tech and Lubbock communities.

Student Publications employs 11 professionals to advise the student staffs and to handle non-editorial functions of the publications.

More than 80 students work in various paid positions on the two primary publications - The University Daily and La Ventana. Many of the students are non-mass communications majors.

There are no prerequisites for applying for staff positions on the publications. Editors of The University Daily and La Ventana are chosen by the Student Publications Committee each spring.

Most Asked Questions

- How can students buy a La Ventana?

A La Ventana yearbook may be purchased at spring and fall registrations by indicating the purchase on your tuition fee statement. Yearbooks also may be purchased throughout the year in room 103 of the Journalism building. Students can pay by cash, check or credit card.

- How can students get their picture in the La Ventana?

The yearbook photographer is on campus in the U.C. during both fall and spring semesters. The fall schedule is usually in October, and the spring schedule is in mid-January.

- If a student writes a letter to the editor of The University Daily, how do they get it published?

Letters must be no longer than two typed, double-spaced pages. All letters must be signed and submitted in person with a copy of a picture ID and a phone number to room 211 of the Journalism building.

"Student Publications has two primary goals: to provide a forum of communication for the campus community and to provide actual work experience for students at Texas Tech. The University Daily and La Ventana receive national recognition and awards on an annual basis and our students get jobs upon graduation. We believe we are successfully meeting our goals."

Housing and Dining

Residence hall living is an integral part of a college education. The residence halls system at Texas Tech University provides group living and learning centers consisting of 16 halls with accommodations for more than 5,000 students. Housing and Dining Services' goal is to provide the best possible service and accommodations at a reasonable cost.

Currently, all public areas in the residence halls are smoke free. Now, as an additional living option, more than 40 areas have been designated as Non-Smoking Floors, where residents have the option of living in a smoke-free environment. All residence halls provide non-smoking floors except Gaston Hall/Apartments.

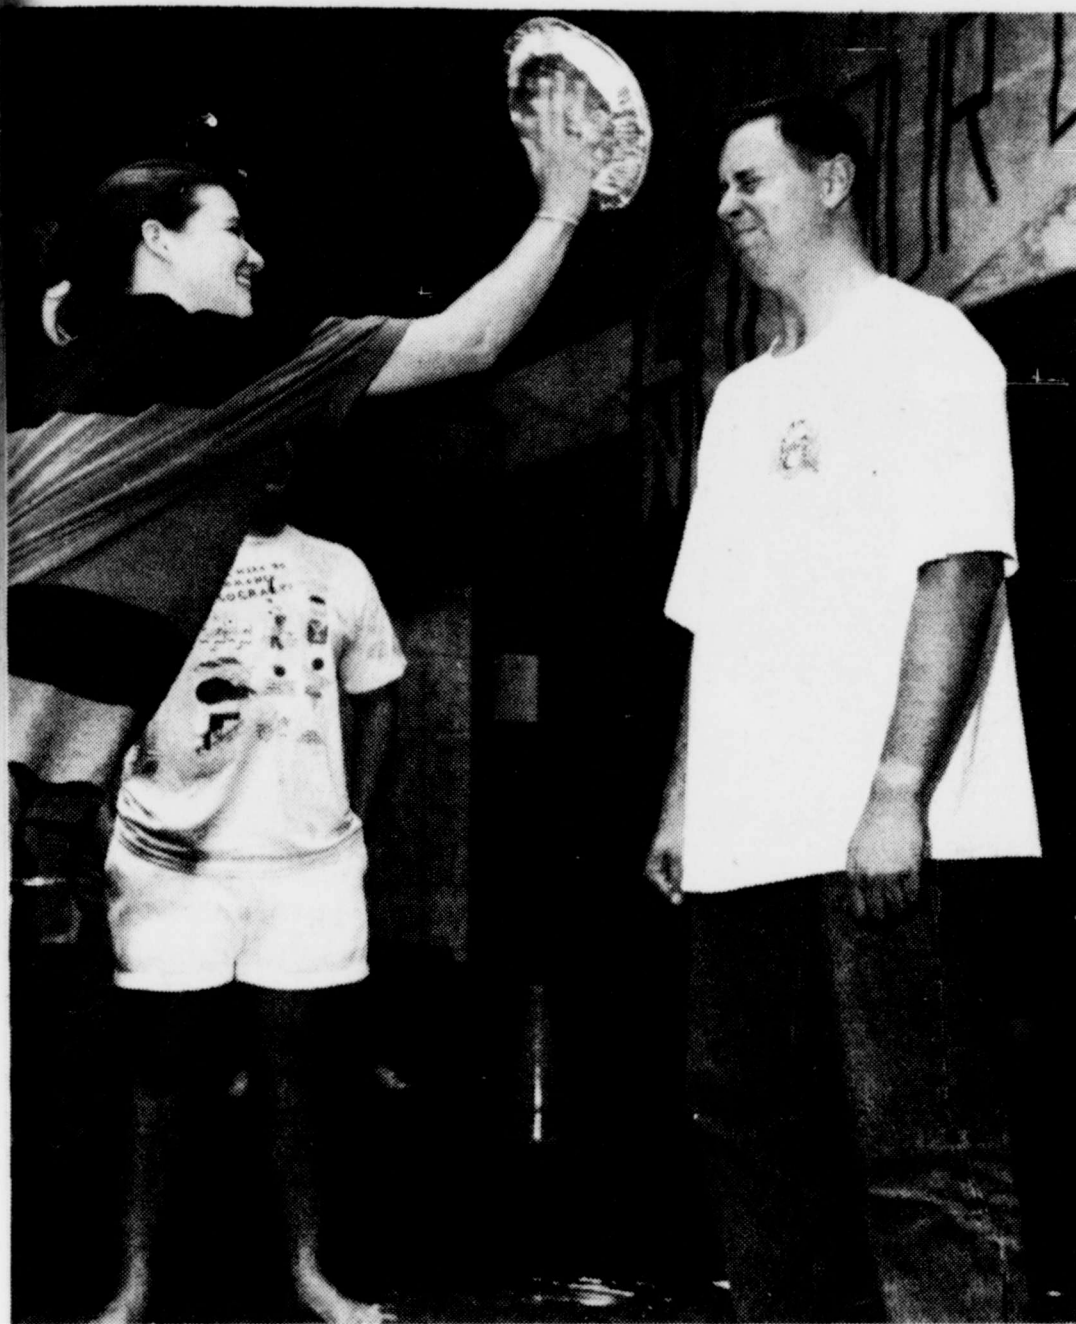

Students with a 1200 SAT, 28 ACT or in the top 10 percent of their high school graduating class are eligible for the TTU Honors Program, as well as the Honors Floor in the Wall/Gates complex. Continuing TTU students with a 3.25 GPA or above are eligible, too. The Honors Floor provides support to students achieving academic excellence.

The Intensive Study Floor living option is open to students of all classifications who desire a more studious environment. Hulen, Clement, Coleman, Bledsoe, Horn, Knapp, Stangel, Murdough, Chitwood and Weymouth have designated floors for this living option.

DINING HALLS

Students are encouraged to dine in any of the six campus dining halls. Brand name foods are purchased to satisfy the quality-conscious resident. Award-winning international/specialty theme lines including Italian, Mexican, Oriental and Southwest/barbecue, deli and breakfast foods. Healthy choice meals and vegetarian meals are offered in addition to the standard menu.

GUARANTEED RATES

Recognizing the increasing financial burden of a college education, Texas Tech University now guarantees, for the maximum of four academic years, the room and board rates in effect at the time a student begins living in a residence hall. The student must maintain continuous occupancy in the residence halls for consecutive academic years.

UPPERCLASS/GRADUATE HALLS

Upperclass/graduate halls provide returning, transfer and graduate students, who are at least of junior classification or 21 years of age, coed facilities and a community environment conducive to meeting the needs of this particular age group.

RESIDENCE HALL ASSOCIATION

The Residence Hall Association, known as RHA, is a campus-wide student government association representing students living on campus. Representatives from each of the halls plan programs and consider issues for improving on-campus living for residents.

"Residence hall living is an integral part of a college education. It offers students an atmosphere conducive to growth and study, a place where they will gain valuable knowledge and friendships that will last a lifetime. We hope each student will take advantage of the opportunities in the residence halls."

James Burkhalter
Director of Housing and Dining

Most Asked Questions

- How can students defer their room and board payments?
Room and board fees may be paid in four monthly payments each semester if necessary. Statements are mailed to the student's permanent home address.
- How do students change their meal plan?
Residents may change their meal plan during the first 12 days of the semester. A Meal Plan Selection Form should be completed at the Housing Office to ensure proper credit.
- What's for dinner?
Call "Dial-A-Menu" for today's menu. If on campus, dial A-MENU or 2-6368. If off-campus, dial 742-6368. Students must use a touch-tone phone to access "Dial-A-Menu"
- Are the residence halls open during the holidays?
The residence halls remain open during Thanksgiving and Spring Break holidays. However, all halls except Gaston Hall/Apartments and Doak Hall close during the Christmas holiday. Gaston Hall/Apartments are open during the break between spring and summer school. Meal service is not available in the residence halls during any of the holidays or breaks.

The Financial Aid office will answer students' questions about federal and private aid and help them to receive aid as well as plan budgets. The Office of Student Financial Aid also will give seminars to make sure students understand the ins and outs of financial aid.

Most Asked Questions

How do I apply for financial aid?

For grants, loans, college work-study and the scholarships administered by the Student Financial Aid office and/or Financial Aid Committee, you must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). The Federal Stafford Loan has its own application and supplement. For scholarships administered by the various departments, you must apply directly to the appropriate administrator on forms available in individual departments.

Upon what factors is student financial aid based? Aid may be based on:

- 1) academic achievement only, for some scholarships
- 2) need, provided satisfactory progress is maintained
- 3) a combination of need and academic achievement

Note: Aid will not be awarded to a student who is not maintaining satisfactory progress, is in default of a Stafford Guaranteed Student Loan or owes a refund on a previous grant.

What are the application deadlines?

The scholarship deadline is March 1. There is no deadline for other types of aid, but adequate time must be allowed for the application to be processed in time for the aid to be available the semester for which it is to be used.

Note: your completed application should be on file before April 15 for the fall semester, Oct. 15 for the spring semester or March 14 for the summer sessions for you to be considered for all programs for which you may be eligible.

"If in doubt, apply and do not assume you're ineligible for any aid based on what others may have told you. Call the Financial Aid office and ask. Go ahead and apply."

Upward Bound Programs

The Texas Tech University Upward Bound program is a student-centered department that seeks to help high school graduates pursue post-secondary education. The program is committed to increasing the retention of students whose socioeconomic background may hinder their educational goals.

It is the philosophy of the department that, if given the opportunity, students from disadvantaged backgrounds can succeed in their educational endeavors. Project Upward Bound and Career Exploration programs provide such opportunities.

The Texas Tech Upward Bound is designed to develop creative thinking, effective expression and positive attitudes toward learning. Teachers, counselors and other professionals provide comprehensive counseling services, academic enrichment and cultural activities that enhance students' potential for educational success.

Upward Bound, funded by the Office of Education, enables high school students from families meeting program criteria, established by the U.S. Department of Education, to develop the skills and motivation necessary to achieve success in college. Sponsored by Texas Tech University, the program is offered at no cost to qualified students.

Upward Bound students receive information regarding financial aid, college enrollment procedures and career planning. The staff works with college admissions officers, financial aid personnel and others to provide individualized services to the Upward Bound student.

Basic skills instruction and college-level courses are provided for eligible students. Additionally, Upward Bound provides students with information regarding financial aid, college enrollment procedures and academic and career advisement.

The Career Exploration component provides classroom instruction and observatory experiences that help prepare students for academic career choices and employment opportunities.

Upward Bound students are admitted during their sophomore or junior year. Students are recommended by high school teachers and counselors, and are selected on the basis of having academic potential and a desire to pursue higher education.

The program seeks to help youth who have academic potential, but have not had the preparation, motivation or opportunity to realize and demonstrate their abilities. Prospective students are selected from schools within a 50 mile radius of the Lubbock area.

The Texas Tech Upward Bound program consists of two major components: The academic year program and the summer residential program.

During both components, students receive academic tutoring and counseling services, and may participate in a variety of social and cultural activities.

The academic year program consists of 24 to 27 academic sessions held weekly on the Texas Tech campus. Instruction is provided in Mathematics, English, Science, Foreign Language, Literature and College Readiness.

The summer program provides an opportunity for enrolled students to live in the university's residence halls for one summer session. The program provides the bridge students, or graduating seniors, with an opportunity to implement what they have learned during the program.

Bridge students are enrolled at Texas Tech as freshmen and may earn up to six hours of college credit during the summer program.

Non-bridge students, sophomores and juniors, attend academic classes taught by Upward Bound instructors and live in the residence halls during the six-week summer session

Students from the Upward Bound academic year program take a field trip to The University of Texas at El Paso in the spring. The students received a tour of the college and information about higher educational institutions.

The Learning Center

Texas Tech's Programs for Academic Support Services provides Tech students with a variety of opportunities for academic advancement. The PASS Center consists of the Learning Center and XL: Strategies for Learning, two major programs the department offers. Each of these programs helps students develop habits and skills that make academic pursuits successful. Areas of concentration include learning styles, goal setting, listening and note-taking skills, test-taking strategies and reading comprehension. In the Learning Center, students may choose from a number of ways to increase studying efficiency. The self-help Learning Lab contains video, computer and printed materials for the TASP, GRE, GMAT and other standardized tests. Additionally, the Learning Center offers peer tutoring in a limited number of subjects. All services of the Learning Center, including tutoring, are free of charge to Tech students. The XL 0201: Strategies for Learning course assists students in learning skills necessary to achieve personal and academic success. The course is open to all interested students; it is required of students returning from an academic suspension. Students are assessed a course fee when they register for XL 0201. XL must be taken concurrently with other classes. Acquiring a college education can be demanding as well as rewarding. PASS can help students become involved in the learning process and make every minute count in reaching their academic goals. For more information on XL or other services call 742-3664.

Besides individual help, students are provided with the chance to work in study groups. At the Learning Center, where students tutor students, students are taught effective and efficient study skills. Students also can get involved in the XL:Strategies for Learning program or the P.A.S.S. program.

Red Raider Robot

Red Raider Robot is a good way to alleviate the hassles sometimes associated with registration. The system is a computerized phone service that will inform students of the status of administrative flags on their records.

By dialing 74-CHECK or 742-4325 on any touch-tone phone, whether on or off campus, students can learn the good or bad news about flags on their records due to unpaid fees, traffic or parking tickets, or incomplete admission or test scores.

Red Raider Robot is a service provided to students through the Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs and is used to streamline the registration procedure. If Red Raider Robot detects one or more flags on a student's record, the student will be asked to enter his or her birthdate. After birthdate confirmation, Red Raider Robot will report the number of flags and the departments that have placed the flags. Students must contact each department that has placed a flag for instructions on how to remove the flag. These records are updated twice daily at 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Students also can learn their unique test number by calling Red Raider Robot. According to the Family Educational and Privacy Act of 1974, it is illegal to post grades by a student's name or matriculation number. Using the unique test number provides professors a means to post grades anonymously. Each student's unique test number is changed every Sept. 1, so the student must call each year, as required, to learn their new testing number.

Red Raider Robot is available all day every day.

A Special Message...

It is not unusual to hear a student say, "I wish I had known your office existed when I needed help with..." The purpose of this supplement is to help solve this information problem.

We want to tell you more about the offices, the programs and the people who are here to assist you. As a result, we hope you will be more likely to seek assistance for specific problems and participate in the out-of-class educational opportunities available to you. This supplement will be a waste of time if you do not read it and keep it for future reference.

All of us in the Student Affairs division believe it is our responsibility to assist you in getting the most out of your university education here at Texas Tech. We also want to help you personalize your all-around university experience. We care about what happens to you and want to assist you in any way possible. For this reason, we solicit your ideas and suggestions concerning the services, programs and activities offered for you use.
