Third time's a charm

Red Raiders scrape by Texas A&M, 16-13, with field goal

BY HEATH ROBINSON
The University Daily

For the second time this season, a Texas Tech home game came down to a field goal in the final 30 seconds. This time it went in, giving Tech a 16-13 win over No. 20 Texas A&M Saturday at Jones Stadium.

Senior Tony Rogers, forced into action after Jaret Greaser broke his leg in the Oct. 18 game at Nebraska, made three field goals, but it was his last one people will remember.

His 47-yard field goal floated into the left goalpost and glanced through to give the Red Raiders (4-3 overall, 3-1 Big 12) their third consecutive win over the Aggies (5-2 overall, 2-2 Big 12).

"It was a real nice win for us," Tech coach Spike Dykes said. "It wasn't easy. The kids had to fight all day long. But in the end, we beat a real good team."

Coupled with Oklahoma State's 51-50 double-overtime loss to Missouri, Tech's win gives the team a share of first place in the Big 12 South with the No. 12 Cowboys (6-1 overall, 3-1 Big 12).

Both offenses struggled, and it looked like the Red Raiders would escape with a 13-6 win before Texas A&M put together its only substantial drive late in the fourth quarter.

Junior quarterback Branddon Stewart, who relieved Randy McCown in the second half, led the Aggies on a nine-play, 89-yard touchdown drive to tie the score at 13 with 5:51 remaining. Stewart tied the score on a 24-yard touchdown pass to Leroy Hodge.

Stewart completed 12-of-17 passes for 126 yards. In the first half, McCown was just 2-of-8 for seven yards.

Aggie coach R.C. Slocum said his choice to start McCown for the first time in his Texas A&M career was a good one.

"I thought the competition had been very close," Slocum said. "Randy McCown had some good practices this week, and we hadn't seen him in a starting role. I thought a different combination to start the game might get us off to a good start."

After the quarterback Zebbie Lethridge turned a likely overtime into a Tech victory. He led off the game-winning drive with a 15-yard pass to tight end Tim Winn.

After a dropped pass by Dee Jackson, two runs by running back Ricky Williams brought the ball to Tech's 48-yard line. Williams rushed for 79 yards on 23 carries.

On third down, with 8 yards needed, Lethridge connected with receiver Malcolm McKenzie for a first down. Two plays later, Williams took a screen pass 17 yards to the 24 to put Tech in field goal range.

Rogers said he was completely calm about the possibility of making the game-winning kick.

"I knew I could make it from that distance," he said. "I was really loose

Albright promises human rights talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chinese President Jiang Zemin will get a full picture of how Americans feel about China's human rights record, both from protest demonstrations outside and tough talk inside the White House. Madeleine Albright said Sunday.

The secretary of state also made clear that while human rights are just one aspect of increasingly important U.S.-China ties. "We will never have a completely normal relationship with them until they have a better human rights policy."

Jiang, who arrived Sunday in Honolulu to begin the first U.S. visit by a Chinese leader in a dozen years, is expected to face protest rallies at each of his stops in Williamsburg, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Los Angeles.

Christian groups were to kick off the demonstrations Sunday with a prayer vigil across from the White House to protest religious persecution in China and that country's abortion policies.

Speaking of the historic locales Jiang is visiting in the United States, Albright said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that he "will not have a totally fuzzy time at these places. I think that it is important for him, actually, to see where our liberty came from."

"Everywhere he goes in the United States, President Jiang Zemin is going to meet with protesters. He's going to see and hear American voices on this."

"I can't think of anything better than that," Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., said on CNN's "Late Edition."

Jiang, who rose to power in the Chinese Communist Party hierarchy in the wake of the 1989 Tiananmen crackdown, meets Clinton Wednesday for talks expected to cover trade, weapons proliferation, Taiwan, drug trafficking and the environment as well as human rights.

Tech offers commencement for summer graduates

BY CAREN CARNEFIX
The University Daily

Texas Tech will offer an August commencement ceremony for seniors scheduled to graduate in the summer.

The university's convocations committee proposed the idea of a summer graduation ceremony, and Tech President Donald Haragan and Provost John Burns approved the idea last week.

"May commencement has gotten to be too large," said Virginia Sowell, vice provost. "It is getting to be a situation where there are too many people to get into the coliseum."

Tech students had been able to participate in the May commencement ceremonies before completing their degree requirements during the summer.

May commencement drew about 2,000 students, requiring two separate ceremonies for the different colleges, Sowell said.

There will be one full graduation ceremony in August with about 1,000 graduating students, she said.

The university will offer an August graduation ceremony until 1999.

"We know that it will be August 1998 and 1999, but we're not sure if we will continue to have it after that because of the (United Spirit Arena)," Sowell said.

One graduating senior anticipated student opposition.

"I know a lot of my friends walk in May," said Rebecca Cain, an accounting major from Dallas who plans to graduate in December 1998. "I'd rather have it in May so people can walk with all their friends."

Another student thought having the summer commencement would alleviate problems caused by the large amount of people attending the May ceremonies.

"I think (having an August commencement) will be a lot better," said Sheri Boekhout, a senior therapeutic recreation major from McKinney. "It will cut down on time. No one wants to graduate in May because the ceremony is so long."

Tech graduate Christy Everett walked in the May 1997 commencement and graduated the following summer.

"I like the May graduation," said Everett, a first-year law student at the University of Houston. "I don't think that there would be as many people at the summer commencement."

Students, like Everett, who graduate in the first summer session may not want to return in August to participate in the ceremonies.

"I can't imagine it'd be very convenient to come back and graduate in August unless they plan on staying in Lubbock," Everett said. "People want to get on with their lives."

Attorney position not filled, students provide counsel

■ Tech office continues to search for replacement

BY JASON BERNSTEIN
The University Daily

Texas Tech has yet to hire a new director of student legal services, a position vacant since Aug. 1.

Deniece Jones, the former attorney for students at Tech, submitted her resignation effective Aug. 1.

"The bottom line was that I really wanted to get back into private practice," Jones said. "I enjoyed serving the students on campus, but I had the opportunity to go back into private practice."

It is important to make sure that the students are being served on campus

if legal advice is needed, Jones said.

"It seems to me that students have paid a fee for services not rendered," she said.

Tech accepted applications for the full-time position upon receipt of Jones' resignation letter.

"We had 20 local applicants for the position," said Dean of Students Michael Shonrock. "We conducted two on-campus interviews before extending an offer to a candidate that accepted the position before declining a week later."

The position is open to all applicants until the Nov. 3 deadline, Shonrock said.

Currently, two law clerks are providing legal counseling on an interim basis.

"We do have a second- and a third-year law student providing counseling to students," Shonrock said. "But they are not giving any legal advice to students because they have yet to be certified by the State Bar Association."

The students provide counseling on a part-time basis — roughly 20 hours a week, he said.

Jones said Tech declined her offer to provide legal advice on a contractual basis while the search for a permanent replacement was conducted. "Obviously, I can't provide free advice, but I do want to make sure the students are getting what they paid for," Jones said. "It is a shame for the students not to receive the proper services."

Jones said she is more than willing to help the students if they want her professional advice.

"I am glad to have Tech students as clients," she said. "I always give discounts to students."

Shonrock said he hopes to fill the full-time position by Dec. 1.

"Our job is to inform the students of their options in order to better inform them of their rights and responsibilities," Shonrock said.

Trial run fosters student interest in certain areas

BY JONATHAN CARROLL
The University Daily

Texas Tech engineering students helped more than 200 junior high and high school students become interested in their field at the West Texas BEST (Boosting Engineering, Science and Technology) Trial Run Saturday.

The trial run was sponsored by Texas Instruments and the Tech engineering department.

Students from Lubbock, Amarillo, Midland, Odessa, Shallowater, El Paso and Slaton schools participated in the event at the South Plains Mall in Lubbock.

"The goal is to inspire junior high and high school students to look toward studying careers in engineering, science and technology," said Misty Whitwell, communications coordinator for Texas Instruments.

"There's a decline in students that are interested in those types of fields, and we're hoping that through this competition we can show them that it can be fun."

More than 50 Texas Instruments employees and Tech engineering students volunteered to be coaches.

The coaches traveled to the schools in order to help the students build robots.

"It's been fun watching the students learn how to figure things out for themselves," said C.H. Campbell, a senior electrical engineering major from Lubbock.

Saturday's contest helped prepare the children for competition day Nov. 8 at Tech's Livermore Lab.

"The trial run is for them to see if “There's a decline in students that are in those types of fields, and we're hoping that through this competition we can show them that it can be fun.”

Misty Whitwell, Texas Instruments' communications coordinator

their robots need any modifications," Whitwell said.

The top-three teams will compete in the statewide Texas BEST competition at Texas A&M University in College Station Nov. 15.

Sept. 27, each of the teams received a box of unrelated parts and three pages of acceptable materials to use such as coat hangers, small motors, door springs and golf balls.

The students were given parts such as wood, small motors and a computer printer.

The students then designed and built their own remote-controlled robot capable of competing in the game "Dynamite Dual."

The game pits two robots at a time in a competition to capture "dynamite" sticks on the game field.

The objective is to design and build a robot capable of picking up sticks of "dynamite" outside an old mine.

The robots then must travel up a steep ramp and place the sticks of "dynamite" in a bucket.

The buckets are weighed to determine the winner.

The team with the heaviest bucket wins the competition.

"I really learned to work together as a team and to be friends," said Jay Holmes, an eighth-grade student from Lubbock's Alderson Junior High.

Holmes said he likes being able to create something in a group and getting along with other students.

Lunch focuses on improving parenting skills

BY DANIEL KERR
The University Daily

Texas Tech students who feel like they need to hone their parenting skills have the opportunity at a practical parenting brown bag lunch program scheduled for 11:45 a.m. today.

Sponsored by the Women and Children's Center of St. Mary Hospital, the program will take place in the Arnett Room on the hospital's sixth floor.

Leslie Ince, coordinator of the Women and Children's Program at St. Mary Hospital, said the brown bag lunch is designed to provide fundamental parenting information in an understanding and interactive group setting.

"This program is called practical parenting, and it's actually an arm of Lubbock Independent School District," Ince said. "It is a positive program that provides parents fundamental parenting information in a supportive interactive group setting."

Carolyn Lackey, a parent educator with the Practical Parent Education Program of LISD, will present the session in an informal manner, Ince said.

"Carolyn Lackey has requested the table be placed in a U-shape where she's able to walk around inside," Ince said. "Instead of a lecture, it's more of an informal setting."

The goal of the event is to build stronger families.

"It's kind of a preventive program," Ince said. "It's based on the idea that an effective way to make families stronger is to educate the parents."

George Comiskey, a drug education specialist for LISD, said the practical parenting program has been in existence for five years.

"We have bought a curriculum from the Texas Association of School Boards about practical parenting education," Comiskey said.

"We have trained close to 30 people over the last five years to be parent facilitators."

Comiskey said LISD's parenting program is different from many others.

"What we like about this is it is free-standing," Comiskey said.

"You don't have to have any knowledge of practical parenting curriculum."

The program gives parents options on how to boost their child's self-esteem.

"They are designed to give parents the opportunity to look at the question 'Does my child have good self-esteem?'" Comiskey said. "During the lunch, (Lackey) will give them options on how to build self-esteem in all the different areas of their child's life."

Although there is no charge for the program, reservations are required, and participants may bring their own lunch or purchase a box lunch for $5.

Scientist says tornado had unusual aspects

AUSTIN (AP) — A scientist studying the tornado that devastated Jarrell last May says the twister had several unusual aspects that contributed to its deadliness.

The May 27 storm killed 27 people in the central Texas town, leaving nothing behind of several homes but their concrete foundations.

Baylor University meteorology professor Don Greene spent six days studying the tornado's path. It was his first opportunity to investigate an F5, the rarest and most powerful of tornadoes.

He plans to present his findings to the Texas Academy of Sciences at a meeting next spring.

Only one in 200 tornadoes is powerful enough to be classified as F5, with winds blowing at least 261 mph — strong enough to carry away sturdy frame houses and suck trees out of the ground.

Greene found other oddities:

— For such a powerful tornado, the Jarrell twister didn't travel far — about five miles.

"When an F5 does form, the (thunderstorm) is usually so large that the tornado will be long-lasting, covering 50 miles or better," Greene said.

— The tornado took 11 to 18 minutes to travel one mile through the Jarrell neighborhood, a remarkably slow speed.

"The average speed of a tornado is 30 mph, and sometimes they'll go 60 mph or better. But this one, you're only talking about going 4 mph," Greene said.

— The tornado traveled southwest — the opposite direction of the vast majority of U.S. tornadoes, which typically travel northeast.

"Because this one was going 180 degrees in the wrong direction, that could explain why it had such a slow velocity," Greene said.

Councilman says media going overboard in duties

BY APRIL CASTRO
The University Daily

No plans have been made to take disciplinary action against Lubbock City Councilman Victor Hernandez, almost a week after he allegedly called Mayor Windy Sitton a "bitch."

Hernandez could be heard uttering the expletive in a video tape, recorded for cable Channel 6, after the mayor interrupted him during Thursday's council meeting.

"To my knowledge, (disciplinary action) has not been taken, and I'm not aware of any plans," Sitton said.

Hernandez said he feels the media has gone overboard in reporting the incident and refused further comment.

"At this particular point, I'm taking the position that this is a media frenzy on something very insignificant," Hernandez said.

"I'm not going to continue to feed the frenzy. I will not discuss it any further."

Sitton, however, said the media is justified in its coverage.

"That kind of conduct is unacceptable, and the media is just reporting

“We are elected officials, and this is not the way we do business.”

Mayor Windy Sitton

what they heard and what they saw," she said. "(The media) are reflecting a disdain that is a (ground swell) of public sentiment."

She said the incident was a slur to the city of Lubbock, and she feels the citizens warrant better treatment.

"I am very disappointed," Sitton said.

"Conduct like that is not complimentary of Lubbock citizens and the students of Texas Tech. We are elected officials, and this is not the way we do business."

Although Hernandez has said the action was just a response to growing frustration at the mayor, Sitton said she is unaware of such friction.

"Seven of us are elected, and seven different districts are represented and at times, we all disagree about issues, ideas and policies, but we have to keep it on a professional level and not allow it to become personal."

The mayor said she has had several disagreements with council members but has never allowed them to become personal.

Dusti Sitton, the mayor's niece and a Tech student, said she is upset for the family.

"I think it's humiliating for Windy, the family and for Lubbock as a whole," said Dusti Sitton, a freshman undecided major from Lubbock. "Personally, I know how hard she works to make Lubbock better, and it wasn't deserved."

The mayor said she will not let the incident get in the way of the work left for the council.

"I intend to move forward and focus on the positive," Windy Sitton said.

"There is a lot of good going on, and we still have a lot of work to do. It's been an effective council, and I hope to continue that."

Pavilion construction under way on campus

The Texas Tech Ex-Student Association hosted a ground breaking ceremony Saturday for the Red Raider Pavilion.

The pavilion will be an all-weather facility that will serve as a site for pre-game receptions, student functions, meetings, family reunions, weddings and other special events. The 10,000-square foot, Spanish-style building will be located at the southwest corner of Jones Stadium, at Sixth Street and Red Raider Avenue.

Construction of the pavilion is estimated to be finished in time for the 1998 football season.

Lubbock designer H. Dean Pierce included a large center fireplace, entertainment stage and catering kitchen in the design plans of the building.

Those interested in becoming a founding sponsor of the pavilion can call Jim Douglass of the Ex-Students Association at 742-3641.

March instills passion, power in women

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The crowd that gathered at the Million Woman March continued to trickle home Sunday, many armed with a newfound sense of power and passion for what it means to be a black woman.

And, they added, the spirit of the march will continue to emerge in thousands of towns and in millions of individual actions.

"It had to start somewhere," said Yvonne Tillery, a 37-year-old secretary from Chester, Pa. "We had the Million Man March. We've had the Million Woman March. Now it's time to put some heads together and do positive things."

Hundreds of thousands of people packed the Benjamin Franklin Parkway for the march Saturday, standing shoulder to shoulder on the mile-long avenue.

Crowd estimates ranged widely. Organizers estimated 2.1 million filled the route from City Hall to the Museum of Art in the early afternoon, when rain gave way to a chilly, gray day.

Police gave no official crowd

“Now it's time to put some heads together and do positive things.”

Yvonne Tillery, secretary

count, but police sources told The Associated Press an estimate of between 300,000 and 1 million. The Philadelphia Inquirer said its police sources estimated the crowd as between 500,000 and 1.5 million for the seven-hour program, which included a keynote speech by Winnie Madikizela-Mandela.

"It was a great moment for all women across America. It was a chance to express themselves and to feel their power. I think it will make a great difference in the community — any community," said Gloriatine Muhammad, 48, of Macon, Ga.

Adriene Breckenridge, a 33-year-old academic adviser at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, said she heard a deep plea for healing.

"The march is instilling a lot of hope in a lot of women who were losing hope in society," she said.

Not all marchers came away with a glow, however.

Many complained about a poor sound system that made it difficult, if not impossible, to hear speakers from much of the parkway.

Barkley charged with aggravated battery, resisting arrest Sunday

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Charles Barkley was arrested early Sunday for hurling a bar patron through a plate-glass window after the man tossed a glass of ice at him.

Police said the Houston Rockets star told the victim as he lay bleeding on the ground: "You got what you deserve. You don't respect me. I hope you're hurt."

The 20-year-old patron, Jorge Lugo, was treated at a hospital for a minor laceration to his upper right arm.

Barkley was charged with aggravated battery and resisting arrest without violence, police said. He was jailed for five hours before being released on $6,000 bond.

Barkley, who has been involved in several incidents in bars and nightclubs over the past five years, said he had never met Lugo and that Lugo threw the glass of ice at him unprovoked.

"I'm going to defend myself ... at all times. I've made that clear in my years in the NBA," Barkley said Sunday afternoon. "If you bother me, I'm going to whup you."

The fight at Phineas Phogg's bar at Church Street Station, a popular entertainment district in downtown Orlando, began as the bar was clearing out.

Barkley told police that Lugo threw a glass of ice at him and three women who were sitting at his table. Barkley chased Lugo to the front of the bar, where an off-duty officer tried to intervene. But Barkley picked up Lugo and threw him through the window, according to a police report.

"He lifted that kid up and flung him like he was a toy and threw him into the window. He broke the whole glass," said Jerry Colon, a witness.

Barkley, however, said it was more like a push and Lugo fell back into the window.

According to the police report, an officer on the scene separated Barkley from Lugo but Barkley went back and said, "For all I care, you can lay there and die."

Friends of Barkley then tried to get him to leave, but he was stopped and arrested a half-block away.

Barkley was in town for an exhibition game against the Magic.

Can't we all just get along? Obviously not.

AMY OSMULSKI
EDITOR

Enough is enough. The amount of hypocrisy on this campus is amazing, and the hypocrites' interpretation of historical books to fit their own agenda is ridiculous.

Every form of religion, whether it be Christianity, Judaism or Atheism, has an agenda. That agenda may follow a certain set of rules followers of that religion are supposed to live by — Christians have the Bible. And the Christians on this campus who are adamantly opposed to homosexuality or other forms of sin they find in their Bible are forgetting about taking a long look in the mirror.

I know I don't have to say this, because, of course, they already know it. But, if the Bible is the end-all, be-all in how everyone on this Earth should live, let's make sure we look at all, not just part of it.

Fine, maybe the Bible does say homosexuality is wrong. But it also says vanity and conceit are wrong — that would include wearing makeup, buying clothes that accent your figure, getting a stylish haircut and anything else one does to indulge themselves for the purpose of being vain.

What about gluttony? Are you going to tell me that no Christians go to Furr's or CiCi's pizza buffet? On Thanksgiving Day, all the Christians have a small piece of turkey, a little dressing, one potato and maybe, just maybe, a piece of pumpkin pie. Whatever.

Then there's lust. We're in college; lust is a part of life. It is physically and emotionally impossible not to find at least one attractive person on a college campus. And no Christians head out to Roadhouse Ruby's or Midnight Rodeo in their sexiest outfit for a night of pleasure, right?

And who could forget sloth. This is a lazy generation. I'm lazy, my friends are lazy — everyone is lazy sometimes. But, of course, not the Christians, because that would be wrong.

It doesn't feel nice to be persecuted for something you believe in, does it? There are people starving on the streets of Lubbock. There are babies being born to unwed teen-age mothers every day. War is a constant part of life in some third-world countries. AIDS is killing homosexuals and heterosexuals, Christians and non-Christians, at an alarming rate — and we haven't found a cure yet.

There are enough problems in this world to worry about without causing a rift in humanity.

Amy Osmulski is a senior journalism major from Big Spring.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

John Denver just an ordinary 'Joe'

To the Editor: The death of John Denver, popular folk/pop singer of the 1970s and '80s, affected me more than I expected. Of course, the traumatic circumstances of his light plane crash into Monterey Bay surprised all his fans, but I will miss his songs more because of the following story I know about him —

In 1974, a young woman was traveling to Spokane, Wash., to meet her fiancé's family for the first time. Sheltered and naive, she was more than a little apprehensive about meeting them — the culture of the Great Northwest being so very different from that of her Texas heritage and her future husband being several years older than she. Sitting in the bulkhead seat row with head lowered, she didn't even notice the passengers around her, only looked out the window at the clouds as if trying to foretell her future from their shapes.

A man with shoulder-length hair poked his head around the divider from first class and asked if she was OK.

"Yes," she replied. "Just a little scared."

"First time on a plane?" he asked. "No — I'm meeting my future in-laws in Spokane."

"That explains it," he laughed, taking the empty seat beside her. She at first feared he would hit on her in such close quarters, but instead he asked several questions about how she met her fiancé, what each did for a living and what she hoped for their life together. Relaxing, she told her love story, and time passed quickly. She closed her eyes at one point, and the young man sang to her in a high, slightly nasal voice. It sounded familiar, but by the time the preoccupied girl thought to ask any questions about him, it was time to deplane in Colorado.

"Nice to meet you," her new acquaintance said, reaching around the bulkhead and pulling down a guitar case. "Have a happy life." He exited from first class before the other passengers.

"Such a nice guy," the girl later told the flight attendant. "Too bad I didn't get his name and where he lives; I'd like to send him a wedding announcement."

The flight attendant looked at the young woman as if she had green hair.

"That was John Denver, the singer," the attendant told her. "Don't you recognize him?"

"No," she answered, wondering why she wouldn't recognize one of her favorite performers. "He was so kind, and, well, normal."

I think that "being normal" is the clue to why John Denver's songs don't make much of an impact in the 1990s — he sang of "normal" life, of concern for the environment, family and the world outside of oneself; of love and not hate or abuse. But I'll always remember him for his exceeding kindness to someone who couldn't even recognize a star for her personal absorptions and feel badly that she didn't express some appreciation to him. So thanks, John, 23 years later; I'm having a happy life, and thank God the "country boy" from Texas Tech shared his music with my world.

Hipp's column written well

To the Editor: I read Ms. Hipp's editorial Thursday with great pleasure and a modicum of validation. I have long advocated many of the beliefs put forth by Dr. White, the most touching being the point he made regarding the story of Sodom. He echoed my sentiment when he said, "It is those people who turn away the wretched, poor and hungry from their doorstep who are the true sodomites." I couldn't agree more.

Perhaps somewhere along the line we have missed the point of Christ's teachings. He never said, "suffer the little children to come unto me, but only heterosexuals." Nor does it appear to me that he gave much of a damn whom he chose to heal or love based on their sexual preference.

I was taught through my formative years that it is wrong to denigrate those who are different from others, and I believe that the resultant attitude has given me the privilege of knowing a fairly diverse group of people. I have worked with AIDS patients in the past and have found them to be normal human beings with merely some different perspectives from my own. It is these and other types of differences that make us human beings, something I believe we should celebrate rather than condemn.

I applaud your editorial and the author's candor. It seems to be a truly rare quality nowadays when someone is actually willing to stand up for what is right and honorable. I should add that I admire your restraint in the editorial; I am not sure I could have put it as well or nicely.

I am proud to come down on the side of the editorial and hope it will compel certain people to reflect on their actions and language.

Lords in Lubbock

Techno star found singing passion in church choir

BY SEBASTIAN KITCHEN

The University Daily

Nikkie Van Lierop received her first taste of being on stage when she was in a church choir at age 11.

Since then, she has become the lead singer and founder of Lords of Acid, a controversial techno band from Belgium.

"When I was around 11, I sang in the church choir," she said from her hotel room in Cincinnati. "And I guess that is when I found my passion."

The band's stop in Lubbock tonight will be its fourth stop on the tour, but Van Lierop is expecting a lot from the tour.

"I am going to come on those stages and kick some ass," Van Lierop said. "We are going to have fun. Me, as well as everybody else."

Van Lierop had been performing professionally for 10 years when Lords of Acid released its first track, "Sit on Acid."

Although Lords of Acid have toured in the United States two previous times, Van Lierop hired another singer to perform with the band because she was working on different projects.

The band last made it to the United States in 1995 for their Sextasy Ball tour. Van Lierop stayed in Belgium.

"This is something I have been looking forward to," she said. "But I'm just going to get out there and do it best; they are my songs."

The other projects Van Lierop

Lords of Acid

worked on included Pragmatic, Digital Orgasm and Channel X. Channel X had a song on the "Basic Instinct" soundtrack.

Lords of Acid songs have been on several soundtracks, including Sliver and Strange Days. Van Lierop enjoys working on soundtracks.

"You are pulled out of your little box and you start mingling with other people," she said.

Cincinnati was the first stop on the band's tour.

"We are doing two days of rehearsal and setting things up," Van

Lierop said Wednesday. "Tomorrow we are doing our first show."

The band worked on several new additions for this tour while practicing in Cincinnati.

They will play six songs off of their new album while experimenting with new clothes and liquid rubber.

"I am getting clothes made by Body Worship in New York," Van Lierop said. "Everything is going to be very, very wild and very, very great. It is going to have more of a futuristic feel. We want to make things as interactive as possible."

As of last week, Van Lierop had not seen the liquid rubber but was looking forward to trying it.

"We will get volunteering girls for that," she said. "It gets rubbed on you and in no time, you have on clothing. It sounds quite groovy but I haven't seen it yet."

The band's new album, Our Little Secret, debuted at 100 on the Billboard.

"It is still on many charts," Van Lierop said. "I can say I'm pleased. We were working on several projects.

We have been successful with each one but in an underground type of way."

The band had come under some fire for its lyrics and stage antics.

"It (the criticism) will come especially from Americans," she said. "In Europe, they are more accepting. It only comes from those people who put those stickers on the CD. That is a forbidden fruit for many kids. They will see that and go out and buy it."

Techno music, after 10 years of success in Europe, is finally beginning to catch on in the United States, Van Lierop said.

"It is going to be a wild show," said Lane Arnold, concert promoter.

"It is going to be a very good show. Sweet 75, with former Nirvana bass player Krist Novoselic, will open the show."

Lords of Acid has been catching on in the United States.

"If I have a good time, then usually the audience does, too," Van Lierop said.

"It doesn't matter where I am. If I do my job right, everybody can go home and say I watched a good band."

UC Programs presents Fear Fest movie series in time for Halloween

University Center Programs will present the Fear Fest movies series this week in the UC Matarador Room just in time for Halloween.

Movies will be shown every day and will be joined by costume contests, scream contests, a flesh-eating contest, Halloween makeup seminars and appearances by creepy guests.

Thursday and Friday, people can come 30 minutes early and be taken on a tour by zombies and see "Psycho" granny, Frankenstein, a vampire and the Wolfman.

Tickets to the movies are $2 for Texas Tech students and $4 for all others.

Show schedule is as follows:
• "The Addiction," 7 p.m. today
• "Cemetery Man," 7 p.m. Tuesday

For children, there will be "Casper," with a costume contest following the movie, 7 p.m. Wednesday

This is a special night just for children featuring Sinister Sam, the children's monster caricature artist and the Casadonte Chemistry Wizard Magic Show at 6:30 p.m. Doors open at 6 p.m.

• "Nosferatu," 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday

• "The Haunting," 5:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday

• "Horror of Dracula," 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday

• "Army of Darkness," 10 p.m. Thursday

• "From Dusk Till Dawn," 10 p.m. Friday

The week is filled with different horror movies. For more information, call the UC at 742-3610.

NCAA Football Campus Tour makes stop on Tech campus

Texas Tech students will have a chance to test their football skills today at the inaugural NCAA Football Campus Tour.

The tour will be in the courtyard between the University Center and the library.

This interactive tour allows students across the country to compete in a video game challenge and to be involved in other interactive games and events. The tour will visit 25 of the nation's colleges, and about 100,000 students are expected to participate from these schools.

The tour features the EA Sports NCAA Football '98 video game. At each stop the tour hosts a tournament that allows students to compete against each other throughout the day.

The top-eight video game winners of the tour will be invited to Miami for the NCAA Football Campus Tour national championship.

Other events featured on the tour include a long distance throw, field goal challenge, obstacle course and an accuracy throw.

'I Know What You Did' holds on to No. 1 spot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The teen-scream movie "I Know What You Did Last Summer" held on to the No. 1 spot at the box office during the weekend, while "Boogie Nights" stole the show in limited release, industry analysts said Sunday.

"Boogie Nights," the movie about the pornography industry came in at No. 12 with an estimated $1.9 million in receipts, but its $15,323 per-location average was nearly three times the $5,190 average for the weekend's top movie. Starring Mark Wahlberg and Burt Reynolds, the movie opens in wide release next weekend.

"Business continues to be upbeat," noted John Krier of Exhibitor Relations, which tracks movie grosses.

While ticket sales for most movies dropped off only slightly, the three new films in the top 10, released nationally but not extremely wide, garnered only fair business.

The new films were "Gattaca," the genetic thriller starring Ethan Hawke and Uma Thurman, which earned $4.4 million for fifth place; the period children's film "Fairy Tale: A True Story," which came in at No. 6 with $3.4 million, and "A Life Less Ordinary," a black comedy starring Cameron Diaz which pulled in $2.1 million for ninth place.

The weekend was good for Sony, which had three films in the top five, including the No. 1 movie — a thriller about four teen-agers who are stalked after trying to cover up a hit-and-run accident. "I Know What You Did Last Summer" earned an estimated $13.1 million in its second weekend.

Sony also had the No. 4 film, "Seven Years in Tibet," with $4.8 million and the No. 5 film "Gattaca."

"Devil's Advocate" was second with $10.3 million, followed by "Kiss the Girls," which earned $5.2 million.

The comedy "Bean," released in Canada only, continued to do solid business, earning $1.6 million overall and $6,500 per location.

Here are estimates for Friday through Sunday:

1. "I Know What You Did Last Summer," $13.1 million.
2. "Devil's Advocate," $10.3 million.
3. "Kiss the Girls," $5.2 million.
4. "Seven Years in Tibet," $4.8 million.
5. "Gattaca," $4.4 million.
6. "Fairy Tale: A True Story," $3.4 million.
7. "In & Out," $2.86 million.
8. "Soul Food," $2.2 million.
9. "A Life Less Ordinary," $2.1 million.
10. "L.A. Confidential," $2 million.

Student displays final art exhibit

BY JONATHAN BILES
The University Daily

Chris Rutz is another step closer to justifying the past seven years of his life.

Rutz, a fine arts graduate student from San Antonio, completed his final presentation Friday at the FOVA Galleries in an exhibition that put his artwork on display.

Director of FOVA Galleries Ken Bloom said all fine arts majors are required to present their artwork in a final exhibition in order to receive a degree, and FOVA Galleries serves the artists to display their work.

Rutz sees the galleries as more than a haven for his and his fellow students' artwork.

"The galleries serves to expose students to different forms of artwork," Rutz said.

"Since there are no major museums here, the galleries give students a chance to experience quality art."

Rutz, however, is not all that familiar with being in the limelight.

After finishing his undergraduate degree at Baylor University, he ventured

Chris Perez/The University Daily

to Texas Tech where he spent three years working on his master's degree.

Rutz said throughout the past few years he has not been in many shows quite like this one where his work was the main attraction.

"I am not used to being the main subject of a show. I have been in other shows, but this is a whole new ball game," Rutz said.

His art has a style that not many attempt to create.

Rutz said his main goal is to take the classical traditional manner of painting and use it in a modern way.

Rutz said he believes the past has a great significance in the lives of people today.

"I paint in the classical traditional form because I think that we can find answers in our tradition and our past," Rutz said.

In the next few years, Rutz plans to return to his hometown of San Antonio and begin a portrait studio where he can pursue his lifelong dream.

"Painting is something I really enjoy doing, and it has always been a challenge. Each day is a new game," Rutz said.

"My main goal was to find something that, as a whole, people enjoy as well as myself."

WEEKLY HOROSCOPE

Weekly Tip: What you see is what you get with the moon in Aries. Allow plenty of time to reach your destination, because traffic will be slow.

If you're having a birthday this week: A gentle playmate could be tougher than you thought. Don't push a moral issue. Stiff competition will make you better at your work this year.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll be tempted to call in sick. You want to stay home in bed. If you can, do. A partner has a good idea. Listen carefully.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Try not to let a personal soap opera interfere with your work. The boss would not be amused. Launch into your exercise program again.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). If you're a musician or a photographer, these are perfect days to practice. Postpone everything else.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You might get the money you need, if you ask nicely. Do your research. Your previous experience could lead you to the perfect answer.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). You're lucky in an exotic setting. Start learning a new language from a native speaker. You're in the mood to shop. Take care; that can get expensive real fast.

Aries (March 21-April 19). You come into your power and your experience is quite valuable. Everything works out fine. These are pretty good days to ask for a raise.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). An objective third party can help you understand your partner. Explain what's going on for visual insights.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Watch out for subtle innuendos. Most of the action is taking place behind the scenes. You and your friends rip and tear.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). A hot-tempered supervisor is in a terrible mood. He or she has no tolerance for excuses, so don't even try any.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Go ahead and splurge on something for the house, even if you have to go without a toy. You're in a rowdy mood.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You're in the spotlight. A partner can't seem to function without you. Isn't it wonderful to be indispensable?

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). An arrogant older person wants the answer he or she has in mind. Don't even try to win athletic competitions. You'll make more points as a spectator.

Volleyball takes on USA National Team

BY CHARLIE RAPIER
The University Daily

The Texas Tech volleyball team will face the USA National Team at 7 p.m. today in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Admission for the match is $5.

The match marks the third Red Raider match that will be televised. The other two matches are Nov. 8 at Texas, and Nov. 21 at home against Nebraska. Both matches will be televised by Fox Sports Network.

The USA National Team is making a collegiate tour to play top volleyball programs across the nation.

The national team has some of the best players in the world competing.

In the team's national collegiate tour, only No. 1 Penn State has defeated the Olympic team in a 3-0 decision earlier this month.

But after the Penn State defeat, the USA team responded by winning matches at Kansas State, Nebraska and Michigan State.

Red Raider coach Jeff Nelson said the exhibition will enable the Tech team to play some of the best volleyball players in the world.

"I think this opportunity will show that we have a respectable program and do make a presence around the nation," Nelson said.

"It will also offer the opportunity for our players to get a closer look at what it is like to play on the national team and how competitive the team really is."

Sophomore outside hitter Courtney Putnam said she is looking forward to taking on the national team.

"This will give us the ability to see what it is like to go on tour with the USA National Team, and (it) will provide a new level of experience," Putnam said.

Nelson said he is excited about playing such a superb team.

"Monday is going to be a great experience for our players," Nelson said.

"They will have the opportunity to play against some of the best players in the world."

Game

and comfortable on the sidelines. I just wanted the chance. The fact that it was to beat A&M just made it that much sweeter."

Tech again relied on its defense to keep them in the game. Tech tallied just 215 yards of offense, but Texas A&M could only muster 284, and turned the ball over three times.

"Our defense was superb," Dykes said.

"They are playing at a really high level right now. They gave us a lot of chances with the turnovers. It's just too bad we didn't turn them into more points."

The Red Raiders allowed just one long run, a 56-yard scamper in the first quarter by running back D'Andre Hardeman.

Senior Dane Johnson and junior Duane Price came up huge on the play, catching Hardeman from behind at the 11, and the Aggies settled for a 25-yard Kyle Bryant field goal.

Tech took a 10-3 lead when Lethridge ran in from the 8-yard line with 7:48 left in the second.

After another 25-yard field goal by Bryant, Tech had a chance to score late in the half after freshman defensive end Kris Kocurek pounced on a McCown fumble forced by defensive end Montae Reagor.

But Rogers' 34-yard field goal attempt late in the first half was blocked.

"I thought that would be a pretty big play," Rogers said of the blocked

Scramble: Red Raider quarterback Zebbie Lethridge scrambles out of the pocket in Saturday's game. Lethridge ran 18 times for 48 yards, including a touchdown to help lead Tech to its third straight victory over Texas A&M. The Red Raiders, who are now tied for first place in the Big 12 South Division with Oklahoma State, next host No. 14 Kansas State at 11:30 a.m. Saturday at Jones Stadium in Lubbock. The game is slated as Family Day at Tech.

field goal attempt.

"I was just happy I had another chance late in the game."

A major reason the Aggies struggled was due to the pressure by Reagor.

The junior from Waxahachie recorded 13 tackles and two sacks, forced two fumbles and recovered another.

He led both teams in tackles and now has 7.5 sacks on the year.

"I was just trying to use my natural ability and beat them off the ball," Reagor said of the game.

"Whenever we play A&M, it comes down to which team wants it the most. I just think in the past three years we've made the most plays."

Thanks to the win over Texas A&M, the Red Raiders now control their own destiny.

With wins in their final four games, they will advance to the Big 12 championship game Dec. 6 in San Antonio.

But Dykes said nobody is thinking that far ahead.

"Right now, we are sort of taking this one game at a time," Dykes said.

"The kids should enjoy this one for a while, but we need to start looking ahead to Kansas State."

D.C. United cruises to second straight MLS Cup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again, D.C. United reigned in the rain.

In a steady, day-long shower reminiscent of last year's inaugural Major League Soccer title game, United repeated as champions Sunday with a 2-1 victory over the Colorado Rapids in MLS Cup '97.

Before a noisy crowd of 57,431 at RFK Stadium, Jaime Moreno scored in the 37th minute and Tony Sanneh in the 68th as United (26-11), clearly the best team in the league all season, dominated the Rapids (18-19), who had the worst record of any play-off team and reached the MLS Cup by pulling off four straight upsets.

At times, United, with eight national team players on its roster, seemed almost spoiled for scoring chances.

By contrast, the Rapids had no corner kicks and only one shot inside the box before halftime as the United back four of Eddie Pope, David Vaudreuil, Carlos Llamasa and Jeff Agoos refused to let the Rapids finish a set play.

Despite controlling play for most of the match, United found the Colorado net only twice, and the first time they made it tougher than they had to.

When Vaudreuil chipped ahead to Sanneh to create a 3-on-2 break, Sanneh crossed from the right side into the box.

However, both Moreno and Raul Diaz Arce thought the other was going to play the ball.

When Diaz Arce let it go past, Moreno had to retreat and set himself for a 10-yard strike past sliding goalkeeper Marcus Hahnemann.

Florida Marlins win first World Series

MIAMI (AP) — Edgar Renteria ended one of the most thrilling Game 7s ever, singling home the winning run with two outs in the bottom of the 11th inning to give the Florida Marlins their first World Series championship with a 3-2 win over the Cleveland Indians Sunday night.

The 5-year-old Marlins became the youngest expansion team to win a championship, while adding more heartbreak to the nearly half-century disappointment for the Indians.

The Marlins, masters of the late-inning comeback, tied it at 2-2 in the ninth on Craig Counsell's sacrifice fly and then took advantage of second baseman Tony Fernandez's error to score the winning run. This marked just the third time in history that a Game 7 had gone to extra innings.

A see-saw Series finished with the teams alternating wins for all seven games. Devoid of drama for the first six games, Game 7 packed an entire season's worth of thrills into one night that kept getting better as the clock passed midnight.

Jay Powell pitched one inning for the victory. Charles Nagy, passed over in favor of rookie Jaret Wright for the Game 7 start, lost in relief.

Florida pitcher Livan Hernandez became just the second rookie to win the Series MVP award, joining Larry Sherry of Los Angeles in 1959. The trophy was even more special for the 22-year-old Hernandez, who Games 1 and 5, because his mother was allowed by Cuban officials to visit the United States for the final game.

Marlins manager Jim Leyland celebrated his first trip to the Series, watching the wild-card Marlins win after spending nearly $100 million during the winter to bolster a team that had never had a winning record.

"I guess every little boy imagines this might happen at one time. It's a total fantasy for me," Leyland said.

"I was a little concerned. We haven't given up all year — tonight wasn't the time to give up. When we walked into the clubhouse tonight, we knew we were going to be world champions."

Indians manager Mike Hargrove found no joy on his 48th birthday. Born a year after the Indians' last title in 1948, his club added another heartbreak to a city that has only known losing for too long.

It was their second World Series loss in three years.

"I don't really know what to tell the team, other than they played hard all year long," Hargrove said.

"We overcame long odds to get where we're at. We played hard, we

Red Raider spikers upset No. 20 Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (Special) — The Texas Tech volleyball team upset No. 20 Colorado Friday in the Coors Events/Conference Center in four games, 7-15, 15-6, 15-10, 15-13.

This was the first win against a ranked team since the Red Raiders defeated Kansas State in October 1996. The Red Raiders improved to 18-5 overall and 5-4 in Big 12 play with the victory.

Tech coach Jeff Nelson won his first game against the Buffaloes in his three years at Tech.

The Red Raiders were led by Courtney Putnam who pulled off another excellent performance with 27 kills and .511 hitting percentage and was aided by Sonia Moric, who registered a career high in blocks with nine.

Game one of the match started with Colorado jumping out to 7-1 lead. Tech scored three straight points with kills by Putnam, Janelle Jones and Lisa Hilgers to pull within three at 7-4. Colorado then rallied to an 11-6 lead and finished the game with a 15-7 victory.

Game two featured the Red Raiders taking a 7-4 lead. Tech then jumped to a 10-5 lead with three straight points and dominated Colorado with an impressive 15-6 win.

Game three was all Tech with a 5-0 lead, but the Buffaloes came back to a close 10-9 pursuit. The Red Raiders finished business with a 15-10 victory.

The last game of the match found the Red Raiders taking another early lead at 5-0. The Red Raiders won the match on a net violation, 15-13.

The Red Raiders were scheduled to play Nebraska in Lincoln Saturday night but were snowed in at the Denver International Airport Saturday.

The match was rescheduled for Sunday afternoon, and results were unavailable late Sunday.

Musical Magic

The Madrigal Dinner's traditional feast and music herald the holiday season

Beginning Dec. 4, the University Center Ballroom will once again be transformed into the great hall of a 16th-century castle for Tech's 20th presentation of Madrigal Dinner. Madrigal Dinner did not occur last year because of conflicts with the academic calendar, but now the popular program is back to usher in the Yuletide season with Renaissance flair.

Madrigal Dinner will be offered at 7 P.M. Dec. 4 and Dec. 6-9 in the newly renovated University Center Ballroom. Due to overwhelming demand, initial ticket sales are by mail only, and all orders may be post-marked no earlier than Nov. 6. Beginning Nov. 13, if tickets are still available, they may be reserved by telephone or in person at the UC ticket booth. Those interested in attending should purchase tickets early, however, as the event sells out each year soon after tickets become available.

Madrigal Dinner includes a full meal as well as performances by Tech's Madrigal Singers and entertainment throughout the evening. The menu for dinner includes center-cut pork chop with raspberry sauce, apple-walnut dressing, fresh green beans, holiday hominy, fruit salad with whipped cream and nuts, bread made with fine flour, plum pudding, and the traditional holiday beverage, wassail.

Candles light tables covered with pine boughs, and banners representing the great families of Europe are hung around the perimeter of the hall. Entertainment before and during dinner is provided by trombones, a recorder consort, magicians and jugglers.

Under Tech's director of choral activities, Dr. Kenneth Davis, the Madrigal Singers are chosen by competitive audition; 1997 Madrigal Singers include Rebecca Babb, Jenna Chastang, Mark Garner, Traci Hale, Haley Johnston, Shannon Koonce, Casey Moore, Jeb Mueller, Matt Nall, Brad Perkins, Doralicia Sandoval, Kristen Smith, Hal Snyder, Chris Starcher, Stephen Vano, Raul Vara, Laura Vlasak, and Austin Wimberly. This year's King and Queen are Brandon Bohannon and Kelly Broome. Michael Madrid will play the part of Lord Chamberlain.

The program is divided into two segments, presented before and after the meal. The first segment includes traditional Christmas carols and the second is composed of authentic 16th-century madrigals. During the course of the program the audience will also participate in the singing of carols.

Reserved seat tickets for Madrigal Dinner are priced at $20 for Tech students, $30 for the general public and $65 for Scholarship Benefit tables. The scholarship seat price includes a $35 contribution to the vocal scholarship fund at Texas Tech's School of Music. Call soon for ticket order flyers or more information, 742-3621.

Ten Texas Tech students (five men and five women) are invited to spend five nights in the middle ages during the holidays. Volunteers are needed to serve as hosts and hostesses for the 20th Madrigal Dinner. This is a great assignment. Not only is your dinner provided for these five nights, but you get to wear a costume, be a part of a beautiful ceremony, and have a great time as a part of the King's court.

Those in attendance are feasting in the hall of the King with the King and Queen and the lords and ladies of the court. Every course of the meal is brought in with a trumpet fanfare and a song. The performance tells a story and there are jugglers, magicians and other performers of the King's court who entertain during the feast.

What is expected of the Madrigal Hosts and Hostesses? A commitment to a little more than hour of actual work time for six days (1 day is a rehearsal), the ability to greet people in a pleasant manner and the ability to help people to find their seats. Of these 10 volunteers, we will need one to serve as the page who greets the guests of the King and bids them enter the hall before turning to host duties. So, if you enjoy returning to the middle ages, this is the volunteer experience for you.

Anyone who is interested in more information on being a part of this celebration can contact Mary Donahue in the UC Activities Office at 742-3621 no later than Nov. 3. There are only 10 positions, so don't wait too long to let us know that you are interested, or you might miss out.

Kayaga mixes African dance, music, stories

KAYAGA! OF AFRICA

Namu Lwanga has seen Uganda inside and out. After seeing four Ugandan wars, and learning countless Ugandan songs, dances and instruments, native Ugandan Lwanga is truly an expert on her homeland. In 1992, Lwanga founded Kayaga of Africa. Through instrument playing, song, colorful costumes, dance and storytelling, Kayaga takes its audience on a tour of the different regions of Eastern and Central Africa. From the royal courts in central Uganda to the Baluhya of Kenya, the modern popular waist dances of Zaire to the leg rattle dances of the Banyoro, Kayaga will take you there.

Kayaga will then jump to Mt. Elgon for initiation ceremonies, north to experience the war dances of the Acholi, and a look at the dancing of Africa today. The Ugandan troupe has performed at The Kennedy Center, Brooklyn Academy of Music, Woolly Mammoth Theater in Washington DC, Cornell University, Cooperstown Concert Sieres, National Black Arts Festival, as well as many other festivals, schools and theaters nationwide.

They will perform Nov. 4 at 8 p.m. in the UC Allen Theatre. Tickets cost $8 for public and $4 for Tech students. For information call 742-3621.

Fear Fest frightens, excites campus

A week of films from the past and present waiting to scare the pants off of you, the Fear Fest is being presented by the Films Committee of University Center Programs as a week-long film festival of horror movies.

Presented in the Haunted Theatre (a devilishly decorated UC Matador Room), each night's event will start with a series of contests, a special appearance by really creepy guests and then end with a classic film.

Nightly contests with great prizes from Well Body Restaurant, Southwest Tan, Domino's Pizza, Day Break Coffee Roasters, Pizza Hut, Putt-Putt Golf, Blockbuster Video and Ceci's Pizza will be given out to winning contestants. Tickets for each evening cost $2 for Tech students and $4 for all others.

Today, doors to the Haunted Theatre will open at 6 p.m. At 6:30 the scream contest, howling contest, and evil laugh contest will set the mood, followed by The Addiction, starring Lili Taylor and directed by Abel Ferrara. The Addiction is an outrageous mix of rap music, vampirism, and drug iconography with philosophical and religious overtones that make it a uniquely intellectual addition to vampire mythology.

Tuesday, the Haunted Theatre will again open at 6 p.m. with contests occurring until 7 p.m. when Cemetery Man begins. An eerie, darkly comic and somewhat horrific movie, Cemetery Man has been described as "Twin Peaks" on nitrous oxide.

Wednesday is an evening devoted to children. Tickets cost $4 for all children, but parents accompanying their kids are free. Doors open at 6 p.m. with Sinister Sam, children's monster caricature artist drawing kids as their favorite Halloween character. The students of the Tech Theatre Department will be applying spooky face makeup. At 6:30, the Casadonte Chemistry Wizard Show takes the stage, and at 7 p.m., the movie Casper will begin, followed by a costume contest immediately after.

Thursday and Friday, the Gallery of Fear will open 30 minutes before each movie starts. Patrons will enter the Haunted Theatre through the Gallery of Fear and will be subjected to a variety of scary scenes and interactions with a large cast of creepy inhabitants.

Doors to the Gallery of Fear open at 3 p.m., and contests, makeup workshops and other ghoulish delights await! At 4 p.m. the classic silent film Nosferatu begins followed by The Haunting, the original haunted house movie that started them all. At 8 p.m. Horror of Dracula begins. Horror of Dracula stars Christopher Lee as the infamous Count.

The headlining film for October 30 is Army of Darkness at 10 p.m. This hilarious sword-and-sorcery fantasy about an innocent 20th century man hurlted by demonic forces back to the dark ages stars Bruce Campbell (Adventures of Brisco County).

Headlining on Halloween night at 10 p.m. is Quentin Tarantino and George Clooney as two renegade bank robbers who inadvertently hole up in a Mexican saloon that's a haven for vampires in From Dusk Till Dawn.
