Fraternities punished for hazing

BY CAREN CARNEFIX
The University Daily

Texas Tech's Dean of Students approved the disciplinary committee's recommendations of sanctions for a hazing incident involving members of the Sigma Nu fraternity and a theft incident involving Phi Delta Theta members.

Both fraternities will maintain status as registered student organizations, Dean of Students Michael Shonrock said.

Sanctions were approved Nov. 25 for the Sigma Nu incident, which occurred in late September.

Though officials of the Dean of Students office would not reveal specific details of the incident, the disciplinary committee found members of Sigma Nu responsible for committing "actions against members of the university community," according to the Texas Hazing Statute Summary.

Some of the specific violations stated were disruptive behavior, "intentional ... conduct which endangers the health or safety of another person," harassment and hazing.

The dean of students approved sanctions against Phi Delta Theta members Dec. 3.

Phi Delt members were caught Oct. 9 stealing lumber from a McDougal Properties construction site.

Marc McDougal did not press charges, though he required the members of the fraternity to pay $500, make a public apology and participate in community service.

The disciplinary committee found Phi Delta Theta members responsible for theft and hazing, according to the Texas Statute of Summary.

Although a Student Press Law Center spokesman in Arlington, Va., said "any document maintained by a government institution should be made public," Dean of Students officials would not reveal the specific sanctions recommended. Shonrock indicated the actions of the fraternities were taken into serious consideration.

"Only those things of serious nature are those things that are taken before the (disciplinary) committee," Shonrock said. "We have taken disciplinary action with those groups."

The Code of Student Conduct lists disciplinary reprimands, disciplinary probation and disciplinary suspension/expulsion as possible sanctions for violations of the code.

Shonrock indicated the fraternity members would face sanctions on the level of probation or suspension/expulsion.

"(The actions of the fraternities) would have to be something that is serious if it could result in potential suspension or expulsion," he said. "It is certainly most regrettable that individual members' behaviors impacted not only the organization, but the university and the community. We want the community to know that we take these things seriously."

Associate Dean of Students Greg Elkins said he was confident about the approved recommendations.

"(The decision) will make an impact on some," Elkins said.

"We hold students accountable for their actions and behaviors in accordance with the code of conduct and the Student Affairs Handbook."

Store admits fault for problems

Company says it mismanaged book sales

BY GINGER POPE
The University Daily

Wallace's Bookstores Inc. representatives said any blame for poor management during the fall semester book sales period is to fall on them.

Doug Alexander, director of corporation communication for Wallace's Bookstore, said Wallace's accepts the blame as a corporation.

"There's no question we had a bad rush. It was our fault, and it serves no purpose to point a finger," Alexander said. "It is our responsibility to correct any problems."

Issues of the bookstore's mismanagement and credit hold problems with book publishers were originally brought to light by faculty senate members, who began looking into the situation after many textbooks ordered were unavailable.

Jay Zalewski, operations manager for Wallace's, and Elizabeth Beiler, regional manager of training, made no response to questions asked by The University Daily during phone conversations or via fax.

An anonymous bookstore worker has said during the recent book rush period, there were no adequately trained personnel to handle the textbook area.

The Tech Bookstore, while under the management of Wallace's, has had three different managers or store directors. William Boney was the first to arrive in 1995 when Wallace's arrived, followed by David LeRoy and now Wade Kennedy/

Hot meal and a Friendly face

Program helps feed local residents in need
BY JONATHAN BILES
The University Daily

Life sees no races, sees no gender and is prejudice to no one. But when life takes its toll on certain individuals, sometimes they are no longer able to care for themselves.

Meals on Wheels is a service whose goal is to help those who have experienced unfortunate circumstances.

For 26 years, people in the Lubbock and Idalou areas who cannot provide meals for themselves, or do not have anyone to cook for them, have been served by the many volunteers at Meals on Wheels. The organization is a privately-owned service whose members provide a hot meal once a day for individuals.

However, a hot meal is not all the volunteers provide. Sometimes a warm smile and a friend is the perfect gift.

"We are caring for (more than) 300 homebound and disabled people who look to us for nutritious meals and friendship through our volunteers," said Peggy Ferguson, executive director for Meals on Wheels.

Meals on Wheels currently serves an average of 300 recipients a day, but in a year, volunteers serve about 800 people and a total of 75,000 meals.

Recently, Meals on Wheels has undergone renovations that allows the kitchen to prepare up to 800 meals a day.

Leslie Woodard, a Texas Tech graduate and a development and public relations coordinator for Meals on Wheels, said new recipients always are welcome.

Woodard said the criteria for the program is that a person must be homebound, unable to prepare a well-balanced meal each day and not have the assistance of someone to prepare

Tech graduate donates $1 million to college

BY GINGER POPE
The University Daily

The Texas Tech College of Agriculture and Natural Resources received a $1 million donation Tuesday, but the college will have to wait a few years until it can collect the money.

Joe J. "Crow" and Anisse Baynes Reynolds of Lubbock donated the gift by way of a charitable remainder trust, meaning the money is collected after the couple's death. Reynolds, a chartered life underwriter and an agent for Massachusetts Mutual Insurance Co., set up the donation so an endowed chairman position could be created within the agricultural college in honor of his father and mother, Edgar F. and Naomi Reynolds. The position will be named the Reynolds-Morgan Family Endowed Chair.

Joe Reynolds said he would rather the donation be made by way of charitable remainder trust instead of leaving the $1 million for his children, because if he left money to his children, taxes would take away more than half of the sum.

"This way, instead of taxes cutting into my money, I can give it away," he said. "I look at it as my children giving $300,000 and the IRS giving $700,000."

Joe Reynolds graduated from Tech in 1955 with a degree in finance. Anisse Reynolds studied home economics at Tech.

Chancellor John Montford said the gift is a part of the Horizon Capital Campaign to raise $300 million for the Tech campus development and academics.

Bill Abernathy, dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said the gift will benefit the college because agriculture is a significant part of the West Texas.

Bush announces bid for re-election

BY JASON BERNSTEIN
The University Daily

Texas Gov. George W. Bush announced his bid for re-election while visiting Lubbock Tuesday.

"I will be making 26 different stops to tell the people of Texas that I am running for re-election, and I intend to win," Bush said. "I am really excited about the state and about the future of Texas."

Bush addressed a small group of supporters at Lov-Cot Industries. He discussed the importance of a growing economy, decreasing juvenile crime and education.

"I want a high school diploma to mean something," he said. "I propose we begin the new century by putting an end to social promotion in Texas schools."

Bush will be running for his second term in November, but it will not be without opposition.

"The governor's cookie-cutter approach to the issues raises some major questions," said Joe Cutbirth, a spokesman for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Garry Mauro. "Garry has proposed to build new classrooms from the permanent school fund in order to provide permanent schools for children."

Bush went on to discuss the importance of reading among Texas school children.

"Phonics work," Bush said. "We must reflect that knowledge in our curriculum, our textbooks and our teacher training."

Texas currently ranks 42nd in the nation in high school SAT scores.

Officials find suspect in residence hall fire

BY CAREN CARNEFIX
The University Daily

Authorities identified a suspect linked to Sunday's fire in Coleman Residence Hall, said Michael Sommermeyer, assistant director of Texas Tech's news and publications department.

"I know we have a suspect identified via the surveillance tape," Sommermeyer said.

"The impression I got was (the tape) gave a very clear view of the area of the fire."

Sgt. Dan Hale, public information officer for the University Police Department, did not know the details of the investigation.

"I do know that there was some progress made yesterday, but I don't know what it is," Hale said.

Tech's Fire Marshal Richard Copytkiewicz would not comment on the investigation.

Arson is a second degree felony, and anyone found guilty of arson can face two to 20 years in the penitentiary and/or a fine up to $10,000, said George Leal, the assistant district attorney of Lubbock County.

Arson can be treated as a first degree felony if bodily injury or death as a result of the fire can be proved in trial, Leal said.

A first degree felony is punishable by five to 99 years in a penitentiary and/or up to a $10,000 fine.

Bush

"Overcrowded classrooms are a chief concern," Cutbirth said. "Gov. Bush has failed to chart a course for this state, and we think Texas can do better."

Cutbirth also said Bush has made no offers in addressing Texas' low SAT scores.

Bush made an effort to address the ever increasing number of juvenile crimes occurring within the state.

"I support additional probation officers to team with police in high-crime neighborhoods to spotlight and arrest the 6 percent of youth who commit 50 percent of the crimes," he said.

Bush also said he hoped the day would come when all Texans could accept responsibility for their choices instead of blaming others for their problems.

"We must change our culture to one based on responsibility...." Bush said.

Conversely, however, Cutbirth noted that Bush has not been responsible in releasing felons under his early mandatory release program.

"(More than) 42,000 felons have been released into society based on a program that Bush said he was going to fight against upon being elected in 1994," Cutbirth said.

Ohio man executed in Huntsville

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Michael Lee Lockhart, an Ohio man who had said for years that he wanted to die, was put to death by the state of Texas Tuesday night for killing a Beaumont police officer almost 10 years ago.

Just before the lethal drugs were administered, Lockhart looked through a window to five family members of his murder victims and asked for their forgiveness.

"I am deeply sorry. It is my hope my death will give you some kind of comfort," he said. Then, he expressed love and thanks to his friends and family, and also thanked prison officials whom he said had treated him kindly.

"I am really at peace," he said, closed his eyes. As the drugs took effect, he gasped about three times before losing consciousness.

Seven minutes later, at 6:24 p.m., he was pronounced dead.

As witnesses emerged from the prison, a crowd of more than 50 Beaumont police officers standing down the street erupted in cheers and whistles.

Lockhart, 37, became the 37th man to die by lethal injection in the state's death chamber in 1997, adding to the state's record year for executions. He had been under death penalties in Texas, Indiana and Florida and has said for years he wanted to die.

The U.S. Supreme Court denied Lockhart's application Tuesday afternoon for a stay of execution. Lockhart had filed his application with Justice

I am deeply sorry.
It is my hope my death will give you some kind of comfort.”

Michael Lee Lockhart

Antonin Scalia, who referred it to the full court, which denied it with no dissent noted. The court also denied a separate appeal by Lockhart.

During a previous interview, Lockhart, who said he found God while on death row, said he would have been disappointed to get a reprieve.

"It's when they're finally going to put me out of my suffering," he said. "This is punishment, living here ... in a 5-by-9 cell is punishment beyond anything you can imagine."

The drifter from Toledo, Ohio, once claimed to have killed more than two dozen people around the country. He acknowledged three murders during a five-month spree that began in mid-October 1987 with the torture and mutilation of a 16-year-old girl, Windy Gallagher, at her home in Griffith, Ind.

Three months later, his next victim was Jennifer Colhouer, 14, of Land O' Lakes, Fla.

In both cases, the girls were raped and savagely stabbed, their mutilated bodies discovered in their homes by a family member.

Supporting himself with robberies and traveling the country in fancy stolen sports cars, Lockhart on March 22, 1988, gunned down Paul Hulsey Jr. The Beaumont police officer spotted Lockhart speeding through the Texas city in a stolen red Corvette, then tracked him to a motel where he was spending the night.

Bookstore

Ilena DeLorsio, who started her position Nov. 17. Other new employees include a new textbook and assistant textbook manager, as well as a customer service supervisor.

Boney left Wallace's in February at which time LeRoy arrived. LeRoy, however, was at the bookstore for only a few months. Alexander would not comment as to the reasons for his departure.

Wallace's has not provided much explanation as to what problems occurred with textbook orders, but a problem of credit holds with publishers is suspected by some Faculty Senate members.

Zalewski, during his November visit with Faculty Senate, said Wallace's has no credit problems, but when asked to clarify, he has made no response.

Alexander said he is not sure what Wallace's exact policy is when paying publishers; however, he is sure all publishers are paid.

It has been reported that Wallace's policy in paying publishers is to wait until the book return period is over and then send back unsold books and expect a bill only for the books sold. However, many bookstore companies pay for ordered books and then receive credit with publishers for any returned, unsold books.

Publishers put companies on credit hold if they have not paid for books. While Wallace's may pay for books in the end, during the time when books are not paid for, they are on credit hold, and it affects every store they manage.

"We deal with thousands of vendors, and it depends on the publishers policy in regards to credit holds," Alexander said.

During Zalewski's visit to Tech, he also mentioned that an individual is spreading rumors about Wallace's credit hold problems and legal action may be sought.

Alexander said it is obvious someone is spreading rumors, and as far as he knows, no legal action has been taken.

"If someone is spreading rumors, there is nothing we can do about that," he said.

"Our main focus is to correct any problems we have. We value our relationship with Tech and are accountable to the university."

More discussion of the bookstore is expected at today's Faculty Senate meeting with one item being the transfer of profits from the bookstore to the Tech Athletic Department. Faculty Senate members voted at their November meeting to have the money transferred for academic purposes.

Budget reports show the athletics department is receiving more than $300,000 this year. This money, however, is to be phased out by more than $80,000 a year in the coming years.

Even though the money transferred to the bookstore is now being phased out, another plan to do so was to be implemented in 1990 that would extinguish the transfer of profits. But Tech budget reports continued to show significant money being transferred to the athletics department.

Jim Brunjes, vice president for fiscal affairs, said Tech athletics, being an auxiliary of the university, has to pay for uses of the university's offices, such as payroll. The money transferred from the bookstore profits is part of the athletic department's overhead, which encompasses the money to be paid back to the university.

Brunjes said he wanted to make sure all university auxiliaries are treated in the same manner, thus leading to the new plan to phase out the transfer of funds.

Doctor says Garland paralyzed

BY APRIL CASTRO

The University Daily

Injured Red Raider Stoney Garland will have permanent paralysis from the chest down, according to a statement released Thursday from Mark D'Alise, neurosurgeon at University Medical Center.

The junior college transfer from Plains was severely injured in an automobile accident during the Thanksgiving holiday.

The paralysis stems from a complete spinal cord injury at the junction of the cervical and thoracic spine.

A seven-hour stabilization surgery was completed last week, and the second part of the process will be completed within the next 10 days.

The first surgery was performed in order to enable Garland to become mobile, sit up and progress with his rehabilitation.

Garland's family has requested that he continue his rehab process at Baylor Medical Center in Dallas, after his second stabilization process.

Another injury to Garland during the accident was a crushed trachea, requiring a tracheostomy to allow him to breathe and talk during the previous surgery.

He is expected to be able to speak once the tubes are taken out.

Garland has been downgraded from critical to serious condition.

Funds have been set up in Garland's name to help his family offset medical expenses at Plains National Bank and the First Baptist Church in Plains.

The accident had a profound affect on some of Garland's teammates.

In fact, some teammates went into the community to help raise funds Saturday.

"Everybody liked him because he represented what West Texas is," said Dane Johnson, a senior safety from Southlake, in a previous interview with The University Daily.

"He is just a good, old country boy. I really feel sorry for him and his family."

Preservation important during holidays

BY JASON BERNSTEIN

The University Daily

Preserving one's photographs can be important, especially during the holiday season.

"The preservation and conservation department at (Texas) Tech conducts preventative maintenance that is conducive to library and archival material," said Scott Devine, head of conservation at Tech.

"The preservation of photographs are of valued importance to the department."

Tech's preservation and conservation department treats rare materials such as maps, manuscript collections and large collections, like the Southwest Collection and Vietnam Collections, Devine said.

As the holidays approach, it is important to keep photographs and negatives in a safe and secure place, he said.

"Photos need a stable environment for storage," said Millie Knee, a customer service representative for Library Binding Service. "An environment without changes in temperature is an ideal environment."

When storing photographs, it is important to keep them out of direct sunlight and extreme temperatures, Knee said.

"Most people have their film developed at one-hour photo labs," Knee said.

"When you pay for the photos, you are basically paying for the quality of the paper."

“... keep the pictures in a cool, dry place ...”

Scott Devine, head of conservation at Tech

The single largest factor in developing film is the quality of the paper that it is processed on, she said.

"We have (more than) 500,000 photographs that are directly related to Texas and the Southwest," Devine said. "The key is to keep the pictures in a cool, dry place where they can't be affected by light."

When storing photographs, Devine recommends placing photographs in a box.

"If pictures get wet, they can crack and flake," he said. "It is a good idea to invest in ultraviolet filtered glass when displaying photographs."

1997 — a year to remember, just like 96, 98, 99...

DWAYNE MAMO/
COLUMNIST

Today is the last day of classes, and for all intents and purposes, it also is the end of the year. This year, 1997, has been an interesting year (as most are), so I find it appropriate to take a look back at what we all have learned and what has happened:

- Rock stars still follow self-destructive patterns, look at Sublime and Mike Huchence from INXS.
- Old rock stars and groups decided to cash in on the nostalgia kick, such as AC/DC and The Doors putting out box sets before the holidays, and The Rolling Stones going on tour yet again (you think they'd know by now that people go only because they fear that one of them will eventually die and the Stones will be no more).
- Dance music finally is getting recognized with a little help of Prodigy and Chemical Brothers, but most people can't tell the difference between the good stuff and the crap that's being played at Roadhouse Ruby's and on pop radio.
- The popularity of the Spice Girls, Hanson and Metallica's new "sell-out" phase show exactly how many stupid people exist.
- Movies this year, although very hyped up, have been quite disappointing: "Alien 4," "Batman and Robin," "Flubber," "Anastasia," "The Jackal" and "Seven Years in Tibet" to name a few.
- The death of Princess Di shocked the world and showed that we have really skewed views, considering the death of Mother Theresa (a modern saint) was almost completely overshadowed.
- We learned that looks can be deceiving. Who knew Marv Albert was a cross-dressing sex biter?

“Retro is in, proving once again that people should read their history, or alas, they're doomed to repeat it.”

- The general public would rather believe pseudo-science a la "X-Files" as opposed to what really goes on.
- Men finally are being objectified like the pieces of meat we are, proving two things: 1) we need to be more concerned about our looks and health, and 2) that objectifying men isn't quite the same thing as that of women, sorry.
- Retro is in, proving once again that people should read their history, or alas, they're doomed to repeat it.
- Society is lazy. Why else would squeezable pudding be needed (apart from me mentioning it in every column)?

In light of all this, the following question arises — what will 1998 be like? I would argue that it will be virtually the same. The general public will remain uneducated, unfair, biased, glued to a couch taking the TV as the Bible all the while eating pudding from an easy-to-use squeezable tube with no mess, wearing the clothes their parents wore listening to their music, having kinky sex and feeling sorry for famous people who die, as if their lives are more equal than others. Oh yeah, and I forgot, they'll still be hypocritical, violent, judgmental, close-minded and stupid.

All in all, it'll be the same boring stuff, just different circumstances — I guess 1997 wasn't all that interesting. So, although this may sound dark and cynical, I propose the following challenge as a New Year's resolution: Do what you can to make next year interesting. Either help stop the aforementioned trends, or help do something so bizarre and messed up that no one from any other year has ever done or will do. Both will be equally tough.

Anyway, what do I know? I'm just a guy from a little island in the Mediterranean. Good luck on finals, have a happy holiday and a good New Year, and most of all be safe. The greatest tools we have in this world are the minds of those who go to school, and there aren't that many of us out here in this world, so we need to stay alive as long as possible.

Dwayne Mamo is a junior creative writing/philosophy major from Malta.

Today is the last day
The University Daily
will publish this year.
The paper will resume Jan. 12, 1998.
Have a great holiday break and be careful.

Fraternities should behave

HOLLYE HODGES/
COLUMNIST

OK, I've kept quiet until now, but I just can't take it anymore.

The raping and pillaging — not to mention the stealing has gone too far.

It seems like every time another Greek party weekend goes by, a saga of inappropriate behavior by fraternities soon follows.

And then the reactions of the current offenders mirror the reactions of the last fraternity that screwed up. The victim or victims are shocked by such a crude act of disregard for the law by the offending group of men.

The chapter adviser claims the boys' offense was hardly as terrible as everyone is making it out to be.

this is the first time anything of this seriousness has happened and immediately start damage control by insisting that there is no way for Tech to discipline a group of this size.

And all members of the offending fraternity have no comment, which is probably smart because most of their comments make them sound like idiots.

Case in point: When asked about recent damages to a Lubbock landmark house, former Phi Kappa Psi president said, "I got no comment all the way down."

Besides the obvious grammatical infractions in the statement, I have only one problem with this fraternity's actions. The party where they allegedly broke windows, smashed walls, urinated on the floor, clogged toilets and splattered paint was not a mixer with my sorority.

We sorority girls like to have good, clean, demolition fun, too, and we don't have the good fortune of being able to trash our lodges. For some stupid reason, we take pride in our lodge, and it's not even a Lubbock landmark.

Also, fraternities who steal just get a slap on the wrist, so why not include a sorority in this activity, too?

McDougal Properties had the opportunity to set a precedent for all Greek organizations by coming down hard on the Phi Deltas when they broke that little law that goes something like "thou shalt not steal."

But when their offense was looked at as nothing more than a school-boy prank, it opened the flood gates for more fraternities to follow suit.

And the stakes seem to be getting higher and more dangerous. The most dangerous of these was, of course, the alleged rape of a Tech female student attending the Pike's Fireman's Ball.

Whether the finger from this incident should be pointed at an individual or a group is irrelevant. The parts of a group make up the whole, and my sorority has taught me that one black sheep can taint the whole group. That's what Rush is for.

And, as we have seen, one black sheep in one fraternity can taint the whole Greek system.

And now, with much of the campus and much of Lubbock looking for some other black sheep to emerge from Greek Circle, it's time to stop acting like a bunch of unruly kids and start promoting the values that our respective Greek organizations were founded on.

Otherwise, Greek Circle should be converted into a prison camp; the three main elements of good prisoners are already there — rapists, pillagers and thieves.

But that sounds like one mixer I don't want to be a part of.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

U.S. should ponder Iraqi intervention

To the Editor: Like most sensible people, I strongly disapprove of Saddam Hussein's human rights record. In fact, I constantly wish death upon him. I'm sure our editor would think this to be perfectly acceptable. But why must our good editor contribute to this horrible scare about Iraq and its weapons of mass destruction? Thank you, but the U.S. media has already done an excellent job scaring the living death out of us, "informing" us that Hussein can decimate the human population in an instant if he wanted to.

The editor, the media and the U.S. government speak about Hussein's deadly arsenal. They only claim he can fire this and that. Well, I want some concrete evidence, which I've yet to find, and they can't show. They say Hussein has a big problem with U.N. inspectors. A reminder — this guy has a serious problem with American inspectors only, and the U.S. government has stifled every Iraqi attempt at the United Nations to tell the world why. Those are the facts, and this little problem with the United States hardly justifies bombing Iraq or qualifies as evidence that Hussein is about to kill us all. You won't find evidence in the U.S. media, you will only find stories. Isn't it weird the rest of the world isn't really eager to bomb the hell out of Iraq?

I know that people aren't naive enough to believe that the United States is some kind of global policeman. The United States usually carries out "military intervention" to secure national (i.e. corporate) interests overseas. The media won't tell you this. They tell you that biological weapons are ugly. They tell you that Saddam has broken U.N. sanctions. They tell you he kicked out inspectors. Now, we all know weapons "such," and I know that Iraq's breaking sanctions is pure fiction — show me the evidence again. Whenever the United States spearheads these kinds of sanctions, they always work with great success.

These are things U.S. citizens ought to ponder before they send their sons and daughters overseas. An evil empire cannot be blamed now, so under the pretense of peace and goodwill, the U.S. government and its media use U.S. citizens' money to meddle in international affairs for unethical reasons.

Brady needs to live before judging

To the Editor: I'm tired of hearing of how the entire Greek system should be punished because of a few bad eggs. You can't hold the entire fraternity responsible for one person's actions. The main problem is that the local press focuses on only the few bad aspects. You seldom see The UD publish stories on how the Delta Tau Delta's helped fix a Lubbock resident's house. You never see that Sigma Chi, with the help of other Greeks, raised more than $31,000 for the Children's Miracle Network. My fraternity, besides raising more than $400 for the severely handicapped this semester, is having a clothing drop off for the needy from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday for the homeless. Every fraternity and sorority helps out the community in some form or another. Are these stories on the front page? Brady, before you start making accusations on Greeks in general, or anything in life, why don't you try and look at it from both sides? You just might be surprised.

It is because of the usual stretched rumors and stress of bad press that the Greeks get a bad name. How many people do you know in the system? Know what? I encourage you to go through open Rush next semester.

Sculpture part of campus beautification program

BY GINGER POPE

The University Daily

A bronze sculpture designed by Glenna Goodacre will make its way to the Texas Tech campus sometime in 1998.

Francis Scott, assistant dean of Human Sciences, said the idea for placing Goodacre's sculpture, which was designed to depict human life, on campus began as part of the campus beautification program.

"We knew her work would be vital here because it so represents humans," Scott said.

"The sculpture also represents what a university is about."

The life-size sculpture, titled "Park Place," is expected to be placed at the northwest corner of the human sciences building and will be visible to those entering the campus through Broadway or Akron Avenue. It is made of bronze and depicts a young couple embracing, a mother reading to her small daughter, a college-age student exercising, a middle-age man reading a newspaper and an older man with a dog.

With installation, the total cost of the sculpture should be about $200,000, Scott said.

Chancellor John Montford said money for the sculpture will come from private donations and is under the umbrella of Tech's Horizon Capital Campaign.

The Horizon Campaign is an effort to raise $300 million for academics as well as development of the campus.

Montford believes the acquirement of the sculpture displays the enthusiasm of the development of the campus, and he hopes to have the sculpture on campus within a year.

Even though the sculpture is part of campus development, Scott does not believe spending money on it shows precedence over academics.

"Academics are not overlooked or forgotten in any way," she said. "Arts are a vital part of education."

Scott is counting on the idea that the sculpture will attract people to the campus and bring international recognition.

"People will be coming on campus to see this, and it will serve as a reminder of Tech when they leave," Scott said.

Goodacre's agent, Daniel Anthony, said she has been sculpting clay originals for the bronze sculptures for more than a year and is nearly complete.

Goodacre, born in Texas, considers Lubbock as her hometown and is probably best known for her bronze Vietnam Women's Memorial dedicated in 1993 at the Vietnam Wall in Washington D.C.

Goodacre received her Honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters from her alma mater, Colorado College, in 1994 and an Honorary Doctorate from Tech in 1996.

She has won numerous awards from the National Sculpture Society, Allied Artists of America, Knickerbocker Artists and The National Academy of Design.

Ranching Heritage Center hosts holiday celebration for public

BY JONATHAN CARROLL

The University Daily

Travel back to a time when real cowboys existed — a time when the Texas High Plains was populated with more cattle than cowboys.

Travel back in time with the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech.

The Ranching Heritage Center of the Museum of Texas Tech University will present "Candle at the Ranch: A Holiday Celebration" for the 19th year.

"It's the museum and the university's holiday greeting card to the community," said Lilla Jones, special events coordinator for the Ranching Heritage Center. "In a nutshell, it's a cheap date."

The event will be from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. An additional hour is reserved from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. for visitors with special needs. Admission is free, and the event is open to the public.

"I think we should support it for one thing and get the Tech students involved," said Shirley Wilkins, a volunteer at Ranching Heritage Center.

About 7,000 to 9,000 people attend the two-day event every year, Jones said.

The Ranching Heritage Center is an outdoor museum of 35 restored building and structures that represent the development of ranching from the 1830s through the 1920s.

During the event, the center's pathways will be lined with hundreds of luminaries to guide visitors. Lanterns and candles light the interior of the center's historic buildings where about 150 local volunteers will depict holiday celebrations of the past.

The event will include "A Community Holiday," which will recreate the old fashioned community parties held by the children in the Bairfield Schoolhouse, and "Homespun Heritage," which features a tumbleweed tree and homemade ornaments in the Box and Strip House.

The Ranching Heritage Center is located at Fourth Street and Indiana Avenue. For more information about the event or to request special arrangements, call the Ranching Heritage Center office at 742-0498.

Yahoo hackers demand comrade's release

NEW YORK (AP) — Hackers broke into Yahoo!, the Internet's most popular site, demanding the release of an imprisoned comrade and threatening to unleash a crippling computer virus if he is not freed.

Computer security experts were skeptical of the hackers' claim that they had implanted such a virus.

The hackers, calling themselves PANTS/HAGIS, got into Yahoo!'s World Wide Web site at about 10 p.m. Monday, leaving a digital ransom note.

"For the past month, anyone who has viewed Yahoo's page and used their search engine, now has a logic bomb/worm implanted deep within their computer," it read. "On Christmas Day, 1998, the logic bomb part of this 'virus' will become active, wreaking havoc upon the entire planet's networks.

"The virus can be stopped. But not by mortals."

The note said an "antidote" program will be made available if hacker Kevin Mitnick is released. Mitnick was indicted last year on charges involving a multimillion-dollar crime wave in cyberspace.

Diane Hunt, a spokeswoman for the company, said the message was up for only 10 to 15 minutes and a few thousand people saw it.

"We immediately took action to see the extent of the damage and moved to correct it," she said. "And about that virus? There is, in fact, no virus."

Yahoo! is a computer directory widely used for searching the Internet. The note appeared briefly in place of the Yahoo! home page, preventing people online from using the search engine, which got 17.2 million visits in October.

Jonathan Wheat, manager of the Anti-Virus Lab at the National Computer Security Association, said it is at least theoretically possible to exploit security flaws on the Internet and implant such a virus.

Pi Kappa Phi fraternity members will be sponsoring a clothing drive from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. today at their lodge, 15 Greek Circle.

Pi Kappa Phi is asking all Texas Tech students and organizations to get involved and donate clothing to benefit Lubbock's homeless.

Tech graduate serves up Christmas spirit

BY SEBASTIAN KITCHEN

The University Daily

Amy Faris is a lifelong fan of Christmas, and her new album, Hot Chocolate Songs, is a sign of her love for the holiday.

Faris graduated from Texas Tech in 1993 with a bachelor's degree in music composition, and she has continued to play the piano and keyboard for several music projects.

The Christmas album takes her masterful composing, piano playing and her voice and combines it with the talent and experience of many other area musicians.

The album combines some of Lubbock's finest musicians.

Faris's husband, Scott, plays the guitar on the album. He co-produced, engineered, mixed and designed the cover artwork and website, <http://users.aol.com/cocoasongs>, for his wife's album. Hot Chocolate Songs is the first release on his record label, Joyride.

Both of the Farises were members of the Lubbock-based rock band Rapunzel and have played together for many years. They are now a part of the jazz trio, Zoot Suit.

"It's a dramatic change from what we've done in the past," Scott Faris said.

For fans of Christmas music, the album came around just in time for the holidays.

"The response to the album has been phenomenal," he said.

Classic songs included on the album are "Away in a Manger," "Little Drummer Boy/Do You Hear What I Hear," "Angels We Have Heard on High" and "Silent Night."

Recorded in Tech's Hemmle Recital Hall, the instrumentals and the vocals on the classics are very well done by Amy Faris and company. Most of the album, recorded in September, only took six days to record, Scott Faris said.

"It was such an experience for us," he said. "It was so magical."

Amy Faris also does a superb job with her original compositions on the CD. She composed the songs "Hot Chocolate" and "Mama Says Now Go to Sleep." Several area stores carry the album including Hastings, Blockbuster Music, Baileys Bookstore, Goods News Bookstore, The Love Shop and The Soap Bar in Cactus Alley.

Amy Faris will be performing live, at Hastings, 5001 50th St., Saturday from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. She will perform with Zoot Suit at 7:30 p.m. in the store.

Vocalist Dallas Stevens, another member of Zoot Suit, adds his vocals to the Christmas album. As lead singer for the band Once Dust, Stevens is one of many musicians that contributes to the album. His vocals add a lot to the traditional, holiday classics and original compositions on Hot Chocolate Songs.

Hot Chocolate Songs combines strong vocals, piano playing, guitar and percussion — all by local musicians — into strong solos and some jazz pieces. Several of the tracks on the album contain slower music with the occasional bursts of energy.

The album consists of very enjoyable, laid back tracks to listen to during the holidays. For those who enjoy the holidays and holiday music, this is one they should not miss.

Hot Chocolate Songs is a compilation of very enjoyable songs by a group of very talented musicians from the Lubbock area. For an album done locally, it is of the utmost quality.

Amy Faris, at only 27 years of age, delivers an album that can get listeners into a spirit of the holidays while listening to quality music.

Peter Pan flies into Hub City

Olympic gymnast Cathy Rigby cast in production of beloved classic

BY LAURA HENSLEY
The University Daily

The classic children's story with pirates, fairies, lost boys, dogs, crocodiles, Indians and flying children all set in a place called Never-Never-Land has enchanted young and old audiences for nearly a century.

The Broadway production of the classic "Peter Pan" will fly into Lubbock Jan. 9-11 for five performances.

"Peter Pan" is an all-time family classic," said Deana McCormack of Celebrity Attractions. "It's a great show to take your kids to."

The show features Tony Award nominee and two-time Olympic gymnast Cathy Rigby as Peter Pan.

Rigby previously has starred in other Broadway numbers such as "The Wizard of Oz," "Annie Get Your Gun," "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Paint Your Wagon" and "They're Playing Our Song."

"(Rigby) is outstanding," McCormack said. "She really captures the audience."

"Peter Pan," which is based on several chapters that appeared in James M. Barrie's 1902 novel "The Little White Bird," recounts the adventures of the three Darling children as they fly away from their nursery into the magic and wonder of Never-Never-Land.

“ Peter Pan is an all-time family classic ... Rigby is outstanding. She really captures the audience. ”

The play features a musical score by Moose Charlap, Carolyn Leigh, Jule Styne, Betty Comden and Adolf Green. Classic songs such as "I've Got to Crow," "Neverland" and "I'm Flying" are favorites featured in the production.

Tickets are now on sale at Select-A-Seat by calling 770-2000. Ticket prices are $40, $34, $26 and $16. Evening performances will begin at 7:30 p.m. each day from Jan. 9-11, and matinee performances will begin at 2 p.m. Jan. 10-11.

"Tickets have sold very well," said Lisa Burns of Select-A-Seat. "A lot of people seem to be looking at them as Christmas presents."

"Peter Pan" is part of the 1997-98 "Give Your Regards to Broadway" season. Roger and Hammerstein's classic "Carousel" is the season's grand finale. The production will be in town April 7-9.

An additional production recently has been added to the list of performances.

"Stomp," an international percussion sensation, will make a stop in Lubbock Feb. 10-12.

The performance features an eight-member percussion group mixing choreography with music. This unique group has made many television performances, including The 68th Annual Academy Awards and the "Oprah Winfrey Show." The group recently completed a special production for HBO that was aired Dec. 6.

All tickets for "Give Your Regards to Broadway" productions are available through Select-A-Seat.

Walt Disney Co. starting its own cartoon network

NEW YORK (AP) — The Walt Disney Co. said Monday it will launch Toon Disney, an all-animation companion network to the Disney Channel, April 18.

It will become an immediate competitor to the Cartoon Network, Time Warner's 5-year-old channel that in November was tied with TBS and TNT as the second-highest rated basic cable network. Nickelodeon was first.

"There's more than enough room for high-quality programming," said Anne Sweeney, executive vice president of the Disney/ABC Cable Networks.

Toon Disney has more than 2,200 episodes of animated features in its library. The network's schedule is still in flux, although some highlights will be "The Little Mermaid," "Gummi Bears," "New Adventures of Winnie the Pooh" and "Darkwing Duck."

The Disney Channel itself has recently turned its late-night programming over to archival footage, calling it "Vault Disney." The bulk of it, however, is not animated, Sweeney said.

Disney is positioning itself for the age of digital television, when there will be room for a lot more channels on cable systems, said Larry Gerbrandt, a cable analyst for Paul Kagan & Associates.

"Anything Disney does has a chance," he said.

The new network will be offered exclusively to cable operators that already carry the Disney Channel as a basic cable option.

Along with the Disney Channel, Disney/ABC Cable Networks also has an ownership stake in Lifetime Television, A&E Network, The History Channel and E! Entertainment Television.

their meals.

As far as cost for the meals goes, Lubbock Meals on Wheels receives the majority of its money from private donations and fund raisers, and since the organization is not a United Way agency, it does not receive any government funding.

Although money is always needed for Meals on Wheels, it is not in this area where workers need the most help. All people who deliver food are volunteers of Lubbock and the surrounding area. These volunteers use their own vehicles to deliver food five days a week for one hour a day and do it for free.

However, the true rewards come not in pay, but when the volunteers see how much they are doing for the recipients.

"Volunteers don't only deliver a hot meal every day, they also deliver peace of mind to recipients and the recipient's family," Woodard said. "In some cases, the volunteer is the only person the recipient will see all day."

In the future, Meals on Wheels hopes to take another step in serving those who cannot serve themselves.

Woodard said soon, Meals on Wheels hopes to be able to deliver a care package of necessities, such as toiletries, to those who need it.

Also, Meals on Wheels soon will be delivering poinsettias to its homebound clients involved in the program. The organization, in joint cooperation with a citywide charity coat drive, also will be delivering coats during wintertime for individuals of the Meals on Wheels program who are in need of coats.

Winter is a critical time for Meals on Wheels, and a time when the organization needs more volunteers.

Woodard said many times it is difficult and sometimes dangerous for the elderly volunteers to deliver the needed food. On occasions, some volunteers will not deliver food because of dangerous driving conditions.

"During the winter, it is critical that we have more volunteers. If someone owns a truck, then they are especially wanted during the winter to reach those in bad weather. In spite of difficulties we have each winter, we (did not) miss a delivery last winter," Woodard said.

For students who desire to put in community service for whatever reason, Meals on Wheels can be accounted for in such circumstances.

Becoming a volunteer even works when one needs to do community service for the dismissal of a traffic ticket.

But Woodard warns that once involved, one will see how priceless their services are.

"I spent most of my career in television and radio. I always liked the work, but it was work. Now, I do the same work for a non-profit organization, and I feel it much more fulfilling. I get more than just a paycheck."

Woodard said.

Lubbock Meals on Wheels has been servicing the disabled for 26 years and plans to continue for many more. However, such feats cannot and have not been accomplished without the volunteers and donations given to help support such a giving organization.

To become a volunteer, call Meals on Wheels, and get involved. One doesn't have to worry about not being a cook or a driver, Woodard said.

"There is a place for everyone, and our volunteers are the best in the world," Woodard said.

Bonewitz, Raiders slip by Southwest Missouri State

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (Special) — Junior guard Stan Bonewitz scored four three-pointers in the second half to lead the Texas Tech men's basketball team to its first road win in a 79-71 victory over Southwest Missouri State Tuesday at the Hammons Student Center.

Bonewitz, who finished the game with 20 points and five three-point goals, hit back-to-back threes early in the second half to help push the Red Raiders (3-3 overall) past the Bears (3-4 overall).

Tech started the game strong and gained an early 7-0 lead.

The Red Raiders' first basket came when Bonewitz grabbed the opening tip-off and found Cliff

Owens for the slam dunk.

The Bears then came alive and soon took the lead on the power of strong free-throw shooting by 6-foot-11-inch center Danny Moore.

Moore continued to lead the Bears throughout the first half and went into the break with 19 points that helped give his team a 39-34 halftime lead.

Tech entered the second half much like the team entered the first and quickly went on a 9-4 run to put them up 44-43.

Senior guard Cory Carr gave Tech the lead when he was fouled on a field goal. The shot counted, and Carr sunk the free throw for the three-point play.

The Bears then regained the lead for the last time of the night and were up by six before the Red Raiders began their comeback.

With just under seven minutes remaining in the game, the Red Raiders gained the lead when Carr hit a field goal.

After the field goal by Carr, sophomore guard Rayford Young hit two key free throws to lengthen the Tech lead to four.

Then within two minutes of each other Carr and Young each sunk a three-pointer to add to the lead.

Bonewitz added his last three-pointer with 2:30 remaining in the contest. Senior guard Archie Myers and Owens each hit free-throws in the final minute of play to help retain the lead.

Charitable efforts: Red Raider football players Jayson Hansen, a senior offensive guard, and Anthony Patrew, a junior offensive guard, collect donations for their injured teammate Stoney Garland at Wal-Mart on the South Loop this weekend. Raider Recruiters Darlene Villanueva, a sophomore from Arlington, and Tarabeth Holmes, a sophomore from Hereford, help with the collection. Garland was injured in a car accident during the Thanksgiving holiday, and doctors say he will be paralyzed from the chest down.

Students wishing to pick up their student season tickets to Texas Tech men's or women's basketball games at the Tech ticket office need to do so by 5 p.m. Dec. 19. After that time, the Tech ticket office will be closed until Jan. 2. Before the holiday, the ticket office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Manning, Moss, Woodson top AP All-America team

NEW YORK (AP) — Peyton Manning, the classy Tennessee quarterback who led the Volunteers to the Southeastern Conference title, and a pair of game-breakers — Michigan's Charles Woodson and Marshall's Randy Moss — were selected to The Associated Press'

All-America team Tuesday.

Manning, who opted to play his senior season rather than jump to the NFL, directed the third-ranked Vols to an 11-1 record and Orange Bowl matchup against No. 2 Nebraska, with a possible national title on the line.

The 6-foot-5, 222-pound son of former quarterback Archie Manning completed 287 of 477 passes for 3,819 yards and 36 touchdowns.

"It's a great honor to be named to the All-America team," Manning, the Vols' first AP All-America quarterback, said. "It's the team everyone talks about and I'm proud to be part of it."

Woodson, the Wolverines' cornerback/receiver/punt returner, may have been the nation's most exciting player this season. He had seven interceptions and four touchdowns — two on pass receptions, one on a 33-yard reverse and the other a 78-yard punt return against Ohio State.

Moss, the flashy wide receiver for the Thundering Herd, set an NCAA record with 25 touchdown catches this season, including three in last week's 41-14 win over Toledo in the Mid-American Conference title game.

The 6-5, 210-pound sophomore caught 90 passes for 1,647 yards — an average of 18.3 yards per catch.

Also making the team were a trio of North Carolina defenders — end Greg Ellis, linebacker Brian Simmons and cornerback Dre' Bly. The threesome helped the Tar Heels finish with the nation's second ranked defense, behind Michigan.

Ellis had 17 tackles for losses and nine sacks, while Simmons chipped in with 119 tackles and three sacks and Bly added five interceptions.

Nebraska also placed three players on the team — guard Aaron Taylor and defensive linemen Grant Wistrom and Jason Peter. Wistrom had 17 tackles for losses, 8 1/2 sacks and forced three fumbles, while Peter had six sacks and two fumble recoveries.

Leaf tries to overcome his small-town base

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Ryan Leaf is one of the few quarterbacks for whom third-and-20 is no big deal.

A more daunting task is convincing Heisman Trophy voters that someone from low-profile Washington State is worthy of being selected as the best player in college football.

No one from the school has ever won the Heisman, but no one has led Washington State (10-1) to the Rose Bowl since 1931. Leaf also led the school to its highest ranking ever, No. 8, while tearing up opposing defenses and the Pac-10 record book.

"Ryan Leaf is the best quarterback in America," said coach Mike Price, who lured Leaf to the school by promising him a trip to the Rose Bowl.

The most gifted football player to come out from Great Falls, Mont., Leaf is an emotional leader with a shotgun arm and the strength to shed tacklers. He loves the spotlight and thrives under pressure.

In the final regular season game at Washington, with a Rose Bowl birth on the line, Leaf converted 13 of his first 17 third-down opportunities, several on long passes that broke the Huskies' spirit. He converted on third-and-27, third-and-17 and third-and-13.

After the game, Leaf rushed across the field to the Cougars section and spiked the football. He was then carried off the field on fans' shoulders, which was no small feat.

Leaf is listed at 6-foot-5, 238 pounds; opponents swear he's bigger.

"Other coaches say he's 250," said Lloyd Carr, coach of top-ranked Michigan, which faces the Cougars in the Rose Bowl Jan. 1. "If you rush him, he takes one hand and knocks you down and steps up and throws the ball."

The third-rated quarterback in the nation, Leaf completed 210 of 375 passes for 3,637 yards, with 33 touchdowns and 10 interceptions. His TD passes and yardage are Pac-10 season records.

Leaf's season has NFL scouts drooling, and the junior has been projected as a No. 1 draft pick, ahead of Tennessee's Peyton Manning.

Other candidates besides Manning deserve Heisman

HEATH ROBINSON/
SPORTS REPORTER

Saturday, Peyton Manning's celebrated four-year career as the quarterback of the Tennessee Volunteers will peak when he is crowned the winner of the 1997 Heisman Trophy. While Manning is certainly a great player and one of the nation's best-ever at his position, he is not deserving of this honor. In fact, he is not even deserving of second place.

Voters are giving Manning the trophy for all of the wrong reasons.

They say after all Manning has done for college football and its popularity around the nation, the least they can do is give him the Heisman. Wrong.

For one thing, isn't the Heisman Trophy a yearly award, or did it change into a lifetime achievement prize so Manning could win it?

Manning is definitely the best quarterback in the country over the last four years, but this season is a different story.

Washington State's Ryan Leaf has comparable numbers to Manning's, even better in some areas. The junior quarterback also did something Manning has not, overcome relative obscurity to become a candidate.

Leaf is the lone star on a Cougar team that has posted the same record as Tennessee and has wins over better opponents. The Cougars own a win over No. 5 UCLA, while Tennessee's lone game against a Top 10 opponent resulted in a 31-20 loss to Florida, a team Manning is too scared to beat.

The reason Manning will outduel Leaf for the Heisman is he received all the preseason hype, while Leaf was a household name only to the biggest of college football fans.

Leaf took his team from unranked to No. 7 in the country and a spot in the Rose Bowl. And he is his team's only star. Manning is surrounded by the nation's best receivers and a defense led by two-time All-American Leonard Little.

So what did Manning do?

He took his team from No. 1 in the country to No. 3 and failed to win his only big game against Florida for the fourth consecutive season.

Now for the two players that deserve to win the most: Charles Woodson and Randy Moss. Moss scored 25 times this season, an unbelievable amount for a receiver. "The Freak," as he is known to his Marshall teammates, was purely unstoppable.

He led the Thundering Herd to a 10-2 record in their first season as a Division I team and proved, even against quality opponents like West Virginia, that he could not be stopped.

It is debatable whether Manning even had his best season as a collegian, so how could he deserve the Heisman for the best player in the country when he didn't even have his own best year?

Moss, like Leaf, brought his team from nowhere to a bowl game, and for Moss, he may have single-handedly brought a program back to its feet.

Now, for the point that no one would like to mention.

Moss has no chance because of his past. The sophomore clearly stated he would leave for the NFL after his sophomore year, a clear variance from Tennessee's golden boy.

Moss also lost two scholarships at Florida State and Notre Dame due to off-field problems. But folks, the Heisman is not an off-field award. If the trophy is going to go to the most upstanding citizen for all he has done for college football, then let's change the award. If it goes to the best player, it is not Manning.

Woodson not only is the best defensive back in the country, he is also one of the best punt returners and a surprisingly gifted receiver.

He owns seven interceptions despite hardly ever getting thrown at and has saved his best games for the best moments like another Wolverine to win the Heisman, Desmond Howard.

Woodson scored against then-No. 1 Penn State and returned a punt for a touchdown and picked off a pass against No. 4 Ohio State, all while leading the Wolverines to a perfect season and the No. 1 ranking.

Manning hardly can be described as a big-game quarterback. He is 0-4 in his career against Florida. But since it is a yearly award, we can forgive him.

So this year, he is 0-1 against Florida, and his interceptions against Auburn nearly cost the Volunteers the Southeastern Conference Championship.

Voters, sorry you believed the hype. Manning is good, but his statistics are inflated. Moss, Woodson and Leaf all meant more to their teams.

Unfortunately, that means nothing to the voters.

Sprewell apologizes for attack on coach

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — In his first public comments since attacking Golden State coach P.J. Carlesimo, Latrell Sprewell apologized Tuesday and said he had to do a better job controlling his temper.

"I know this conduct is not acceptable in society and professional sports. I accept responsibility for what I've done," he said during a news conference with many of his Warriors teammates standing behind him and lawyer Johnnie Cochran Jr. and agent Am Tellem at his side.

Sprewell had called Carlesimo Sunday to apologize for choking and threatening to kill him during practice Dec. 1. He said he didn't want to apologize publicly before talking to Carlesimo privately.

"I am a good person and I've never had any situation like this come up before," the 27-year-old Sprewell said. "I feel 10 years of hard work shouldn't be taken away for one mistake. My career didn't happen overnight and I don't feel it should be taken away overnight."

Sprewell, a three-time All-Star guard, was fired by the Warriors last Wednesday, costing him the $25 million he was to be paid over the final three years of his four-year contract. The next day, the NBA suspended him for one year, the longest nondrug suspension in league history.

The players' union has filed grievances against the NBA and the Warriors, arguing the penalties were excessive. The case will be heard no sooner than Jan. 4 by arbitrator John Feerick, dean of Fordham Law School.

The attack not only rippled across the NBA and all of sports but sparked a national debate over sportsmanship, role models, race and authority figures.

Witnesses said Sprewell grabbed Carlesimo by the throat and threatened to kill him.

About 15 minutes later, Sprewell returned to practice and confronted the coach again.

Some reports have said Sprewell threw a punch at Carlesimo during that second encounter, and NBA commissioner David Stern labeled that confrontation a "clearly premeditated assault" while announcing the suspension.

But a source said Tuesday that Sprewell disputes some reports of the second confrontation and that he never intended to assault Carlesimo a second time.

"He came out to demand that P.J. trade him," said the source, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

Sprewell, who gave no details of the attack, admitted last week he was wrong and apologized to fans. But he did not apologize to Carlesimo at that time, saying the coach provoked the attack with verbal abuse.

Even in apologizing Tuesday, he said he felt he had been treated unfairly.

"I've been looked on as a negative person," said Sprewell, who was advised not to answer reporters' questions because of the pending arbitration.

"I've been vilified. Every time I look at a clip it's always a picture of me looking mad and being aggressive. It was always negative. I felt that was unfair."

"I know going through all this makes me a better person and a better man," he said. "Hopefully, nothing like this will happen again. There are lessons to be learned. Hopefully, we can all learn."

Billy Hunter, executive director of the National Basketball Players Association, also was at the news conference at the Oakland Convention Center, the building the Warriors use for practice.

It began less than an hour after the team finished a workout.

Sprewell's teammates at the news conference included Joe Smith, Muggsy Bogues, Bimbo Coles, Felton Spencer and David Vaughn. Robert Horry, Sprewell's teammate at

Lady Raiders pound Texas-El Paso 82-48

EL PASO (Special) — The Texas Tech Lady Raiders cruised to their second straight easy victory as they defeated Texas-El Paso 82-48 Tuesday night at the Don Haskins Center.

Tech (5-1 overall) did much of the work of finishing the Lady Miners in the first half of the contest.

A full-court press by Tech against the Lady Miners caused Texas-El Paso to turn the ball over 17 times in the first half.

The Lady Raiders also had nine steals off their hard-nosed defense during the first period.

With the extra added momentum from the tough defense, Tech excelled on the offensive end in the half, shooting 17-of-32 from the floor.

Tech was led on the night by post Angie Braziel. The junior transfer had 12 points in the first half and finished the game with a career-high 20 points and 10 rebounds.

The large halftime lead did help the Lady Raiders' cause during the second half.

After their strong shooting during the first half, the shooting performance began to slip late into the second half.

The Lady Raiders have an 11-day break before they hit their court again to play New Mexico at 8 p.m. Dec. 20 at The Pit in Albuquerque, N.M.

Soccer kicks over before finals start

Before the academic finals came to Tech, the intramural fall soccer finals took place.

Last week the women's, men's and co-rec champions were crowned.

On Wednesday, the women took the field, with Blitz defending their fall 1996 title against the girls from Wanna Win.

In a very lopsided affair, Blitz dominated the contest from the start.

With 2 goals coming from Jamie Turner, and additional goals scored by Reagan Moore and Julie Sprutz, Blitz controlled the offensive part of the game.

That, along with the steady play in goal from their keeper Jennifer Shank, helped Blitz defeat Wanna Win 4-0.

The next day, Thursday, brought to the table the co-rec and men's finals.

In the co-rec match-up it was Blitz taking on the Squirrels. Again, the Blitz squad proved to be the better team.

Four goals were scored by the team: Mike Riordan, Don Koontz, Kito Bonner, and Jason Gotcher all had one score apiece.

The Squirrels' only highlight came on a goal by Doug Schuler assisted by Kevin Christian in the first half. With that, the Blitz won by the count of 4-1.

The men's final scheduled the Pikes against the Dogs for the Championship.

Both teams proved to have very strong defense as there was only one goal scored in the entire contest.

That goal came on a penalty kick after a foul was committed in the Dog's goal box by one of their defenders.

Pike's Aaron Turner took advantage of the opportunity hitting the back of the net with the penalty kick.

That proved to be the difference in the game as the Pikes won 1-0 over the Dogs.

All three winning teams won intramural champion t-shirts for their accomplishments.

They may pick them up in room 202 at the Student Rec Center during regular office hours.

The intramural sports department would like to thank all participants in this fall's season.

All teams are encouraged to register their teams for the upcoming indoor soccer season this spring semester.

Stop by the Rec Sports office in the SRC for more details on any of the available sports.

Nebraska defensive end Wistrom cited for disturbing the peace

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska coach Tom Osborne said Tuesday he won't discipline defensive end Grant Wistrom after Wistrom was ticketed for disturbing the peace in a crowded pizza restaurant.

Wistrom, the two-time Big 12 defensive player of the year, was cited after a confrontation with another man at a Lincoln restaurant early Sunday. Wistrom has said he will contest the ticket.

Osborne said he had discussed the matter with Wistrom, who was traveling to receive an award and unavailable for comment. He said three witnesses offered their accounts, and he was satisfied that Wistrom was not at fault.

"All four stories I've heard have all lined up pretty much precisely," Osborne said. "I'm not going to discipline him right now at all. I think there's a pretty good chance that he showed remarkable restraint under the circumstances."

The incident occurred shortly after the Cornhuskers had returned late Saturday from San Antonio, where Nebraska beat Texas A&M 54-15 in the Big 12 championship game.

In a statement released by the university, Wistrom said he was punched but did not retaliate during the argument at Lazzari's Pizza. The man, Conrad Hymer, also was ticketed for disturbing the peace.

There was no listing in the Lincoln telephone directory or the Nebraska student directory for Hymer.

Police said Hymer hit a woman with a pool cue during a game of billiards and that Wistrom shoved him. Hymer responded by hitting Wistrom, police Capt. Steve Imes said.

Wistrom gave a different version, saying he asked "What's the problem?" when he heard an argument that began when Hymer bumped the woman with his cue stick in the crowded restaurant. Wistrom said Hymer responded with a punch.

"I never threw a punch. I only said something because I thought he was harassing one of my friends," Wistrom said.

Wistrom, who said he would find a lawyer to challenge the citation, was in New York Tuesday to accept an $18,000 postgraduate scholarship at the National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame banquet.

Also Tuesday, Wistrom was named to the GTE Academic All-America first team.

A senior from Webb City, Mo., Wistrom has a 3.43 grade-point average in pre-pharmacy.

Osborne said he didn't solicit information from authorities about the Wistrom matter.

He said he was concerned that doing so might have made it seem he wanted to influence the situation.

"If I do make a decision or call people up and get them to my office to talk to me, then I guess that's dirty pool," Osborne said.
