Texas prepares for Earl

Former aide subject of probe

HOUSTON (AP) — Coastal communities began preparing Tuesday just in case Tropical Storm Earl, headed for the Louisiana coast, decided to turn west and torture Texas.

A coastal flood watch was in effect from High Island, north of Galveston, south to Port O'Connor as Earl crept north in the Gulf of Mexico.

Tuesday afternoon, the storm was about 350 miles south-southwest of New Orleans moving north at 6 mph.

Forecasters predicted Earl would become a hurricane late Tuesday or Wednesday and make landfall Friday near New Iberia, La., 125 miles east of Sabine.

But with the storm still in its developmental stage and being steered by weak currents, the track could change quickly, forecasters warned.

"There's a great deal of uncertainty," said Charles Roeseler, a meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Houston and Galveston. "People need to be prepared as much as possible."

Texas coastal communities weren't taking any chances.

In Nueces County, trash cans and portable restrooms were removed from North Padre Island and parts of Mustang Island as tides climbed about a foot above normal, said Emergency Management Coordinator Chris Lawrence.

"Our actions so far have been to prepare the beaches for high tides," Lawrence said, adding that light flooding could occur. "It is possible that flooding will affect the causeway to and from Padre Island, but only for a very brief period."

Galveston County employees began backing up records and files in the event of power outages as transportation officials checked equipment to ensure it was in working condition.

"What we're doing now are just the standard precautions," said Eliot Jennings, an assistant emergency management coordinator for the county. "There's a large forecast error associated with tropical storms, so we're just keeping a real close eye on it right now."

If Earl stays on course for Louisiana, Texas would be on what forecasters call "the good side" of the storm. The western edge of a tropical system is generally drier than the tempestuous eastern side.

"We're not even expecting much rain if it goes in where expected," said Mary Ann Burbidge, assistant emergency management coordinator for Jefferson County, on the Texas-Louisiana border.

"But it can change," Burbidge admitted. "So we're getting all our resources ready and making sure everything's working."

The state is still recovering from its first brush with the tropical storm season.

Tropical Storm Charley roared through Port Aransas 11 days ago. While it caused minimal damage in coastal cities, the storm's remnants created heavy flooding inland and killed at least 19 people in the Hill Country, Del Rio and Ciudad Acuna, Mexico.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Janet Reno has begun an investigation to determine whether Harold Ickes, a former top White House aide, committed perjury before a Senate committee, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Reno notified a special federal panel of judges that she had begun a 90-day investigation of Ickes — an inquiry that could lead to the appointment of an independent counsel to investigate allegations of campaign finance abuses in 1996.

Republicans have been demanding such a sweeping probe. Reno's announcement came on the eve of a briefing she is scheduled to give leaders of the House and Senate Judiciary committees on Wednesday.

The Senate investigative report last year suggested that Ickes provided less than candid testimony on what the Clinton administration may have done to assist the International Brotherhood of Teamsters in the union's strike against Diamond Walnut Co.

Ickes, a former deputy White House chief of staff closely involved in managing President Clinton's re-election fund-raising efforts two years ago, said: "I've testified over 20 times to investigative bodies since joining the White House staff in January 1994. I've testified truthfully each time and I've testified truthfully this time. There is no reason whatsoever to open up a 90-day inquiry and there's certainly no reason to appoint an independent counsel."

Clinton said in a statement released during his trip to Russia that Ickes "has been a trusted adviser and a dedicated public servant. I am confident that investigators will find he acted lawfully and appropriately."

A 1995 memo from an Ickes aide suggested that assisting the union, which was in a bitter standoff with the company, might be a way to build better ties with Ron Carey, who was president of the union at the time.

Ickes met with Teamsters Government Affairs Director Bill Hamilton on the issue. According to a Hamilton memo obtained by the committee, Ickes said he asked U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor if he would urge the company to settle its dispute with the union.

Asked about the issue during a deposition taken by Senate committee staff, Ickes said he didn't believe he took any action regarding the Teamsters and Diamond Walnut. In a subsequent public appearance before the committee, Ickes said he never moved to "intervene" or, the union's behalf. In a section of the committee report titled "Misleading and Inaccurate Testimony," the panel's majority Republicans asserted that Ickes' sworn deposition understated actions he took on behalf of the Teamsters.

"Documents produced by the White House and other evidence suggest that Harold Ickes assisted the Teamsters Union with the Diamond Walnut strike and other matters in order to encourage Carey and the Teamsters Union to provide more financial assistance to Democratic candidates and the DNC (Democratic National Committee)," the report said.

Tech rakes in new donations

By Lacey Palmieri

Texas Tech Chancellor John Montford accepted donations totaling $1.5 million Tuesday to be added to the Horizon Campaign.

Benefactors Phil and Victoria Price donated $1 million to benefit the School of Mass Communications and the Vietnam Center.

Mary Joe Hamilton presented a donation of $500,000 from the estate of her late uncle Carl H. Gelin to benefit the graduate school.

"Seven months ago we launched the Horizon Campaign," Montford said. "Who would have believed we would have already exceeded $205 million."

The Horizon Campaign began to provide scholarships, fellowships and university improvements. Tech's goal for the Horizon Campaign is $300 million.

The Prices' donation will be divided two ways. One half will support the Vietnam Center and its research. The other half will benefit the School of Mass Communications.

"We needed good news in the School of Mass Communications," said Jerry Hudson, director of mass communications. "The donation is not a surprise, but the amount and the time of the donation are."

The School of Mass Communications lost its accreditation from the Accrediting Council for Education in Journalism and Mass Communications May 1.

The Gelin donation will provide scholarships for graduate students in the Tech graduate program.

"I think it is very fine that he (Gelin) left the money," she said. "They were very frugal, and not wealthy at all. I think it is wonderful that he left the money."

Hamilton said her uncle was an advocate of education and knew education was a necessary process.

"They were great supporters of education and saw education as necessary," she said.

Price saw the donation as a way of supporting the school as well as the students.

"I want it to help build the mass communications department," Price said.

Price graduated from Tech in 1967 with a bachelor's degree in advertising and marketing. His wife, Victoria, graduated in 1971 with a degree in home economics and applied arts.

Gelin was an engineering major at Tech from 1939 to 1941. He served as a consulting engineer after a career as a regional manager for Layne Pumps. Gelin died in 1996.

Education programs fall short of standards

AUSTIN (AP) — More than one-third of the 85 educator preparation programs in Texas didn't meet state standards based on prospective teachers' passing rate on certification exams, according to first-ever ratings released Tuesday.

The ratings, the first of their kind in the nation, are meant to boost achievement, said Jim Nelson, chairman of the State Board for Educator Certification.

"Over time, we're certain they will result in the increased effectiveness of beginning teachers," Nelson said.

Programs that fall short of standards will get help from teams of educators.

Called the Accountability System for Educator Preparation, the rating system was authorized by the 1995 Legislature.

It includes universities, education service centers and school districts that prepare teachers to work in Texas public schools. The system looks not only at overall student performance but at the passing rate by students in specific categories — male, female, black, Hispanic, white and other.

Of the programs, 50 met state standards and received an "accredited" rating. Thirty-five didn't meet the standards and are rated "accredited under review."

A low rating may be appealed if it is due to the passing rate of a demographic group containing fewer than 10 students. Nineteen programs are eligible to appeal.

"It is very important to look at why they are on the list," said Stephanie Korcheck, director of policy and planning for the certification board.

Programs rated "accredited under review" have three years to meet standards, or under the law they will lose the authority to recommend people for teaching certificates, she said.

"This really holds the program accountable for every student that they prepare," she said. "We expect to see the same type of response from this program that we've seen from the public schools," which have shown improved performance under their accountability system.

To receive an "accredited" rating, educator preparation programs must meet one of two minimum performance levels:

— A first-time pass rate of 70 percent on certification examinations. This includes not only the pass rate by all students, but the categories of male, female, black, Hispanic, white and other.

The first-time pass rate is made up of the number of exams passed during an academic year on the first attempt divided by the number of first attempts in that year. A prospective teacher must pass at least two exams, one in a content area and one in professional development, Korcheck said.

— A cumulative pass rate of 80 percent on examinations.

This pass rate reflects performance on the last time a test was taken within two academic years — showing improvement by those taking tests for at least the second time. It also looks not only at the overall pass rate but at individual categories.

Education officials said the accountability system will spur entire universities to take responsibility for preparing prospective teachers, rather than leaving the task only to education departments.

"You can't prepare a good math teacher if the math department isn't involved," Korcheck said.

Added Hilda Medrano, dean of the college of education at UT-Pan American, "Ultimately, the students win — now they feel like they belong to the whole university rather than solely to the college of education."

HSC helps students into Tech's program

By Gretchen Verry
Staff Writer

A proposed deal between Texas Tech Health Sciences Center and the University of Texas at El Paso allowing UTEP students to apply for early admission to Tech's medical school has been expanded.

Through the program, students can apply for admission to the medical school during their sophomore year and are given the option to waive the MCAT requirement. Undergraduates at Tech currently have a similar deal. Through the honors program, students can apply for admission during their junior year.

"We are revising the program with Tech to bring it more in step with the UTEP deal," said Bernell Dalley, HSC associate professor.

Tech students apply for early admission during their junior year, while the UTEP agreement allows UTEP students to apply during their sophomore year.

Also, the agreement with Tech requires that applicants have and maintain a 3.5 GPA. The UTEP proposal requires that applicants have a 3.7 GPA.

Dalley said in order for students to be considered for early admission, core requirement classes must be taken in the first two years. The agreement includes a clause stating all prerequisite course work needs to be taken at the university through which the student is accepted.

In order to waive the MCAT requirements, students must have a minimum of 1300 on their SAT.

A similar deal is underway for undergraduates at both Tech and West Texas A&M. The agreement with West Texas A&M is not quite as far along as the UTEP deal, but both are expected to be in place by Fall 1999. The updated Tech agreement is pending regent approval.

"We are in preliminary talks with other schools in Texas, and this program is expected to expand," said Dr. Joel Kupperman, dean of the Tech medical school.

Second phone line to be removed

By Jonathan Biles
Staff Writer

Among all the other renovations Texas Tech has undergone this year, the residence halls have added another phone line.

This second phone line in every room allows each resident their own phone line.

However, in the single rooms, the second phone line is obsolete, and in the next few weeks, will be deactivated.

James Burkhalter, director of Housing and Dining Services, said the second phone line in a room with only one student is costing Tech unnecessary money.

To deal with this situation, housing and dining has elected to remove the line and leave single-room students with only one line.

"Only one phone line per person is included in a students room and board," Burkhalter said.

The idea of students losing a phone line that they already might be using did not settle well with Tech student Charlie Braden.

"It's a big hassle, and I think that since we paid the extra money for a single room, we should be able to use the other phone line," said Braden, a junior engineering major from Dallas.

Most students who use the second line use it for their computer or for Internet access. But, with the ethernet connection provided in every room this year, Burkhalter feels there is no need for the second line.

"I don't see why a student would need a second phone line," Burkhalter said.

He said the disconnection of the second line will not cost Tech any extra money and is within contract with the communication services and Southwestern Bell.

If a single-room student still is unsatisfied with not having a second phone line, Burkhalter said it is quite simple for a student to reactivate the line. A request must be made to the resident's hall office and the student would pay the phone bill.

Airline lays off 177 workers; 50,000 more could be next

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Northwest Airlines laid off 177 workers Tuesday and said many of its 50,000 employees could be next as a strike by pilots reached a fourth day.

Spokeswoman Marra Laughlin said 162 dispatchers and 15 meteorologists would be laid off by the end of the day.

Northwest put a decision on its other employees on hold until Wednesday, she said.

"As a company, the last resort we want to look to is layoffs," Laughlin said. Once workers are laid off it will take longer to restart the airline, she said.

The layoffs came before Transportation Secretary Rodney Slater met with Northwest chief executive John Dasburg and union leaders in Washington and urged them to resume negotiations.

After the meeting, which lasted about five hours, Slater indicated that no commitment to resume talks had been made.

He reiterated that the Clinton administration has no intention of intervening in the strike "at this time," and said he would recommend that the National Mediation Board try to restart the talks.

"An agreement would be in the best interests of the parties and the American people," Slater said.

Laughlin said the company "appreciated the opportunity to explain our position," but had no further comment on the meeting.

"The meeting was productive," said J. Randolph Babbitt, president of the Air Line Pilots Association.

Craig Merrilees, a Teamsters spokesman, said officials of the flight attendants' 11,000-member Local 2000 were told Tuesday that the company was placing on hold plans to make furlough calls on Wednesday.

"Laying off flight attendants is only going to make it more difficult for the company to get back on its feet quickly," Merrilees said.

Robert Lattery, a meteorologist at Northwest's Twin Cities hub, said he received his layoff notice after his overnight shift ended at 8 a.m.

He wasn't surprised, since his job is to tell pilots where bad weather is located so planes can avoid thunderstorms and other turbulence.

The employees were told they will not be paid for time lost and they are not to report for work until called back by the airline.

"We had been expecting this," Lattery said.

"I was there last night and there was little or nothing to do."

Lattery, who has worked for Northwest for 13 years, said he supported the pilots.

"Whatever they're able to get will filter down to the rest of the unions in the same form or something similar," he said.

Laughlin said earlier that workers most closely connected to operation of flights would receive notice first.

Lattery said employees were hoping the Washington meeting would result in a resumption of bargaining.

"Right now, it's a classic power struggle. They're each waiting for the other side to blink," he said.

Northwest, with about 1,700 flights daily, was announcing flight cancellations at 9 a.m. each day the strike continued, one day in advance for domestic flights and two days in advance for international flights, Laughlin said.

The two sides are separated on issues of compensation and job security.

Laughlin estimated strike costs for Northwest at $26 million a day. Pilots would begin getting an average $1,300 a month in strike benefits 35 days into a strike.

That amounts to almost $8 million per month for Northwest's 6,100 pilots.

The pilots' strike fund is $65 million; Northwest has about $3 billion.

Northwest is the nation's sixth-largest airline in terms of passengers carried annually and the fourth-largest in revenue.

It carries nearly 150,000 passengers a day and 2.9 million pounds of cargo on 1,700 flights in North America, Europe, Asia and India.

Mother finds dead son's body

REMINGTON, Va. (AP) — Police told Joyce Young that her 19-year-old son had walked away from a car wreck.

But when he had not come 11 hours later, she went to the crash site and there she found his body in the high grass.

Jay Young was killed when the car he was driving flipped Friday night in what investigators said may have been an alcohol-related accident.

Police had searched in the darkness but did not find him, and figured he and another young man who had been in the car had fled.

Young's mother went to the scene in the morning and quickly found the corpse in waist-high grass 50 feet away.

"She ran to the middle of the highway and just started screaming," said Young's niece, Karen Hitt. "Luckily there was a man coming down the road."

An autopsy found Young died almost instantly, sheriff's Capt. Fred Pfeiff said. "I know this isn't any consolation to anybody, but it wasn't a matter that he laid out there and suffered," Pfeiff said.

Firefighters and sheriff's deputies treated three young men who had been in the car, one of whom was hospitalized in critical condition.

Witnesses said two others in the car might have fled, Pfeiff said. Sheriff's deputies searched for Young and the other boy at popular teen nightspots to charge them with leaving the scene of an accident.

"All they had to do was turn around and cut on a flashlight to find him. That's it," Hitt said.

Rape suspect not allowed to attend school

CLINTON TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — The University of Michigan has refused to let a freshman accused of rape attend school, a move that was criticized by the teenager's lawyer.

"I believe they have forgotten the presumption of innocence," lawyer William Bufalino II said.

Daniel Granger, 18, class president of his 1998 graduating class in Grosse Pointe North, was ordered in July to stand trial on charges of statutory rape along with three of his classmates.

The four are charged with having sex with 14-year-old girls who said they were given alcohol by the boys. Statutory rape does not require proof of force or coercion, only that the girls were under the age of consent at the time.

Granger said he was "greatly disappointed" about the decision.

"This is a sad day for me as well as my family," he said. "Personally, this one is a pretty tough pill to swallow."

The teen had already been accepted as a freshman when he was informed by letter in July that a hearing was to be held on whether his admission should be suspended.

The letter stated that the university's student code of conduct allows officials to suspend a student on an emergency basis if they determine the student's conduct poses an immediate threat.

In a letter to Granger made available to media Tuesday by Bufalino, the university's provost, Nancy Cantor, said school officials had decided to defer Granger's matriculation until winter term, 1999, pending a full review.

'Bridging' the gap

Freshman engineering students attend mandatory camp

By Melody Ragland
Staff Writer

This fall, the College of Engineering required entering freshman to attend Bridge-98. Bridge-98 was a five-day engineering camp that focused on a math review and engineering problem solving.

Bridge originally began as the Junction Experience in 1990.

The program was developed by Jorge Auhon, former College of Engineering dean. The Junction Experience was a camp for minority engineering students.

When the Hopwood decision was made, Tech had to think of another alternative. That's when Bridge was designed.

William Marcy, College of Engineering dean, said it is better that students now have access to the campus for the camp.

"It is important for the students to know where the departments and the computer labs are," Marcy said.

Bridge began its first year at Tech in 1996 with 104 participants. In 1997, 201 students voluntarily participated. This year it became mandatory for entering freshman to attend. Bridge-98 had 424 participants. The program focused on four objectives: reviewing math skills, learning how to learn, assigning peer mentors, and team building.

Students attended classes to review algebra, trigonometry, analytical geometry, and/or calculus I or II. They attended classes based on the results from a math placement test.

James Gregory, associate dean for undergraduate studies said 40 percent of the students moved up one course because of the math classes given.

"It helped you get familiar with campus and meet new people. We have student mentors and if we have any problems we can go to them," said Nick Fuel, a freshman engineering major from Waxahachie.

The students also used the computer program Grade Results Evaluation Game (GREG) designed by Gregory.

The students entered information and received a personal financial analysis, time management, stress management, course and instructor evaluations and study skill management.

"I think the program (Bridge-98) is enriched and more sophisticated," said Marcy.

The students were also put in groups of eight to 10 and assigned a peer mentor.

The mentor will meet with the students on three occasions during the course of the semester. "Our mentors are developing people and leadership skills," Gregory said.

Marcy said peer mentors are there for useful advice, leadership, and confidence.

The teams were presented an industrial problem by Southwestern Bell. The students had to solve the problem as a team and then give a 15 minute presentation.

There were 12 finalists that presented their solution before Southwestern Bell. Each member of the first place group received a $300 scholarship, the members of the second place group received a $200 scholarship, and the members of the third place group received a $100 scholarship. The students had to pay a $150 program fee.

Gregory said the money went towards paying math teachers, paying the peer mentors for the semester, meals, supplies, and prizes awarded to team winners. Financial aid was available for students that needed assistance.

"All of it (money) came back to the students in one form or another," Marcy said.

Texas drivers disregard speed limit

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas drivers seem to have a loose interpretation of speed limits.

According to a poll released Tuesday by the Texas Department of Transportation, only 10 percent say they are speeding when they drive 10 miles over the speed limit. That goes up to 20 percent when talking to men between 16 and 24 years old.

"This means that it's important for us to set speed limits that people will obey and will get in the habit of obeying," said Phyllis Chandler, a department spokeswoman.

The study, conducted by the Savitz Research Center, included a poll of 500 licensed Texas drivers. Of those drivers, only half felt they were speeding when they exceeded posted speed limits. And 55 percent admitted speeding "most or all" of the time.

Jerry Johns, president of the Southwestern Insurance Information Service, said the poll mirrors similar studies and the results are not surprising.

"What it says about Texans is that they have no regard for posted speed limits or the lives they could take in an accident," he said.

Johns said the poll may be an indication that the state should consider lowering speed limits.

"Given these statistics maybe local police should consider implementing a zero tolerance policy for people exceeding the speed limit," he said.

One of the most disturbing results, Chandler said, was that of the motorists polled who go out drinking, only 25 percent use a designed driver.

Still, Texans say they are greatly concerned about drunk drivers and speeders, the study found.

The transportation department released another study Tuesday about injury crashes along Texas highways.

The number of injury crashes increased up to 33 percent more than expected in some places, although there was no "significant increase" in fatalities, according to the study.

"Yes, we know that crashes have increased across the state of Texas," said Chandler.

Lindsay Griffin, author of the study, said using data dating back to 1991, he constructed a formula to predict the number of the crashes expected on Texas highways.

Grad students compete, win

A group of graduate students from the Texas Tech College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources competed at the American Agricultural Economics Association. The meeting was Aug. 2-5 in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Agricultural and applied economics graduate students Jane Bondurant, Wade Polk and Chris Schraeder placed third in a field of 16 in the graduate student section case study competition.

Dede Beatty, Kent Durham and Kevin Hoelscher lasted seven rounds in the student Quiz Bowl before losing in the semi-finals.

Summer break inspires tips for life

Dwayne Mamo columnist

School is back and so am I. To some, hopefully that is good. To others, I'm sure they'll enjoy overloading the system with their letters to the editor.

I trust all had a good summer except for those who took summer sessions.

The summer session is simply against my religion. What they should do is turn it into one semester.

For those who didn't take school, I hope you've had great vacations, good parties and good times in general.

Over the summer many things came to mind about life and school and other things; this may be helpful to all of you:

- Don't forget about your family, after all, they love you (for those who don't, I'm sorry).

This summer I went back home to Malta, which I haven't been to in eight years, it certainly was a nice homecoming, and it made me realize how important family is.

When you're away from them for so long (even if it's only a semester) you get so used to their absence that it becomes a part of you — that's bad.

- Don't float a keg every day of the week. Keep it down to a couple of times a month, at most once a week-end.

If you have that much time, it must mean you're not attending class; if you have that much money, it must mean you have no books — which makes sense since you're not in class.

- Make the most of your education. Everyone dogs on their school, but Tech becomes especially bad if you don't do anything but go to class.

Do something for experience, get involved in things you've always wondered about — audition for KTXT, theatre, write for us, join a team and represent your school, join a club — just not a frat.

If all you do is go to class, then don't complain about Tech because you're not doing anything for the school or for yourself.

Remember college is not only about education, it's about handling responsibilities and gaining experience, while juggling school and work.

- Have fun with life. Don't be too serious with school. It can only lead to undue stress. Give yourself break time, fun time. College life doesn't have to be as hard as you make it. If 18 hours is too much, drop a class or two, don't stick with it. Do what you feasibly can while enjoying life. Life is all a balance.

- Watch "Dead Man on Campus." A must-see for anyone in college.

It'll set the stage for what some of us have done, have seen, and for you freshmen, will definitely experience.

- Keep yourself well-stocked with enough squeezable pudding, at least enough for the semester. You never know when you'll get hungry, when you have to deface someone's car in revenge or a professor who just doesn't budge.

- Most importantly, don't get frustrated and don't give up.

Things have their own way of working out. Just live in the now and keep a semblance of forethought but not too much because the future has a knack of changing on you at any given moment.

Take this advice as you wish, all I'm doing is trying to help. If none of this is true, then I have no idea how I've become a semi-decent student. Everyone has an opinion, but some things cross those bounds.

I think some of the above things do.

These are not like ways to cure hangovers. Anyway, have a positive outlook, an open mind, a good time, determination, a free spirit, love and a spoon — if you're too poor and can't afford a convenient tube of squeezable pudding.

Tech Beanie Baby leads to lesson

The initial reactions of most people were shock and disbelief when they saw the Raider Red Beanie Baby.

The doll, meant to help boost Raider excitement, appeared to be deformed, most notably, with a "Gig 'em" Aggies thumb instead of a Texas Tech "Guns Up" sign.

This horrible sight only serves as an example of the reminder that just because everyone else is doing it, (such as making Beanie Babies) does not mean it has to be done.

People just thought they fought this idea in high school, but while in college, the influence of the crowd can be even stronger. The impact can be felt from professors, peers and employers.

Professors and instructors at Tech can have a great impact on students. I do not mean great as in wonderful, but as in huge. Many professors, who have been teaching for several years often will enforce their ideals upon students rather than let the students make up their mind about what they believe or keep their current values.

Although this is not the case with everyone, professors often will intimidate students into accepting their theory or belief system as the only truth that exists.

Of course, the popular idea for a student is to go to college to expand the mind and receive an education. But an education does not mean one should be forced to believe or practice the teachings of their instructor. An education is having more knowledge about one thing or another, and just because a person knows about something does not mean they believe in it.

Administrators and faculty can forget that students are customers of a product, and they have the right to consume it if they choose to. They should not be forced to buy one idea over another.

"You may have to live in a crowd, but you do not have to live like it, nor subsist on its food," said Henry Van Dyke, author.

Students need to beware of when they are asked to compromise their beliefs or values in order to be accepted or approved of by their professors or peers. The majority of the Tech student make-up consists of Texans, mostly West Texans, with a few out-of-state and international students mixed in.

With this student body make-up, ideals and perspectives from new students often can be limited to the basic beliefs their parents taught them. Once these students enter college, their eyes are opened wide, sometimes blinding them from seeing where they need to go to search out the truth for their lives.

A person often will do most of their maturing into an adult throughout their college career. If a student is not careful, they can latch onto a popular way of thinking that has no lasting support and that eventually will leave them empty.

Take it from a failed Beanie Baby experiment. Just because it is popular and seems satisfying at the time, it may just be a phase that later will create a horrible flaw in life.

READERS ASK

by Jo Henderson, Student Health Services health education coordinator

Question: I go off my parents insurance next month but am a poor college student. Do I really need insurance?

Answer: You don't need insurance to visit us here at Student Health Services, however, if you ride a bike, ski, participate in intramurals or even drive a car, you need insurance. We treat minor illnesses and injuries but if you are in a car wreck, you had better have insurance in order to get the treatment you need. Let's face it — insurance could be compared to a "get out of jail free" card in Monopoly. You might not need it, but it can hold great value to you if you do. If you have questions about where to shop for insurance that is affordable for students, Thompson Hall and/or the Student Government Association both have insurance information.

Question: The other day I went to a doctor's office, and when I went to take my shoes off to weigh, they said I couldn't due to health reasons. What was that about?

Answer: Boy, am I dead meat the next time I have to weigh in my shoes. I know they each weigh at least 10 pounds. No, seriously, I guess this is a pretty safe rule because there are lots of nasty little bugs crawling around on some people's feet and they can leave those on the scale as a gift for you. You don't want to come up with warts and wonder where in the world you got them. It is also a safe bet to not loan your shoes to friends or roommates. They may also have a foot problem that gets passed on to you. Plan next time you go to weigh wear the lightest shoes you own.

Question: When I came to school here from Arizona, I thought Lubbock was a pretty dry place but the humidity is a lot higher than I thought. I plan to take up running and wonder if the humidity is ever dangerous?

Answer: You will need to pay attention to the heat and humidity. Usually, the radio or TV stations announce what the humidity is during each weathercast. There is a heat stress index you can compute. Combine the temperature and humidity. If they add up to 160 or less, it is safe to exercise. However, if the two add up to 161 to 175 you should be cautious; if they add up to 176 to 190, it is dangerous; and anything over 191 or more is extremely dangerous and I would find an indoor place to exercise or a better time of day.

Question: I played football the other day and got a painful burn on my skin from the chalk. Why did it do that and what can I do the next time I play?

Answer: The white chalk lines used to mark the field often contain a chemical called soda lime. When you mix it with sweat or water it can cause painful burns on the skin. Next time you play, carry a cup or plastic bag with a wet rag in it. As soon as you get some chalk on you wash it off because the longer it stays on the worse the burns.

Question: A friend said the fruit at the bottom of yogurt was fattening.

Is that true?

Answer: Yes, that good stuff at the bottom is mostly sugary jam and can have as many calories as a can of soda. You are better off adding your own fruit to non-fat plain yogurt. You know what you are getting and it has more fiber.

Question: Can taking antibiotics as well as other types of drugs make my birth control pills less effective?

Answer: Certain drugs may interact with birth control pills to make them less effective in preventing pregnancy or cause an increase in breakthrough bleeding. Such drugs include: rifampin, barbiturates (for example, phenobarbital), Dilantin, phenylbutazone (Butazolidin is one brand) and most importantly, certain antibiotics. You may need to use additional contraception when you take drugs which can make oral contraceptives less effective. Before doing this be sure to talk to your health care professional for sound medical advice.

Question: How can I tell the difference between a panic attack and an asthma attack? They both seem so much alike.

Answer: Sometimes it is difficult to determine which you are suffering from and if you are not careful you may do the wrong thing to alleviate the problem. Usually, an asthma attack includes wheezing, coughing and mucus congestion, while during a panic attack you feel fearful and faint with shallow breathing. It may help you look back on the attacks you have had and if panic has hit you before, determine what panicked you. Then talk to your health care professional about how to avoid that happening again.

Question: Is it possible to have more than one sexually transmitted disease at a time?

Answer: Yes. A person can have both a viral and a bacterial STD at the same time. Remember, viral STDs are not curable (at least not at this point in time) and include such things as HIV, herpes, human papilloma virus (genital warts) and hepatitis B. Some common bacterial STDs include chlamydia, gonorrhea and syphilis. If a woman has an untreated STD for some time she may end up with pelvic inflammatory disease, which can cause infertility. She could even have more than one STD that was not showing symptoms. For men, if you have more than one STD, you will usually have some type of symptoms like a discharge, painful urination, etc., however, if you should have an untreated STD for some time it could result in prostate problems.

Classes resume at Thurston High; Scars from shooting still remain

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP) — Students who returned to Thurston High on Tuesday still bear physical and emotional scars from the cafeteria shooting spree in May that left two people dead and 22 wounded.

"I went into the cafeteria, but I couldn't take it. I got the chills and had to leave," said Dawna Neimeyer, 16, a junior.

But Beverly Stone, a 14-year-old freshman, said most of the 1,400 students at Thurston didn't dwell on the shooting.

"Nobody really talked about it," she said. "We've got to go to school, no matter what. I think we just have to get over it."

About 30 students held a prayer vigil on the lawn, and teachers mentioned the shooting briefly in first-period classes.

After that, it was back to business.

"We've had a great start. The kids are here. They were excited to see their friends. I didn't see anybody in tears," Principal Larry Bentz said. "It's important for us not to let the events of May 21 steal high school from these kids."

Teresa Miltonberger, 16, the most severely wounded, was excited and happy to return to school, said her father, Bill, who drove her to class.

Teresa is taking a morning literature class, but otherwise will receive home-schooling along with physical rehabilitation.

"I want to put the tragedy behind me and go on with my life," she wrote last week.

The chain link fence around the school, once covered with flowers and tributes to slain students, displayed only a few blue ribbons, the hallmark of the city's "Let it end here" campaign that followed the shootings.

"This is not a memorial; this is a fence in front of our school," said Bentz. "We are in no way denying it occurred, but it is not going to dominate our agenda here."

Education is going to dominate our agenda."

Kip Kinkel, 16, is charged with the shootings, as well as the deaths of his parents a day earlier.

"A couple of nights ago I had a dream that Kip came into the cafeteria and stabbed everybody," said Nichole Buckholtz, 17, a senior who was shot in the leg. "He's that monster who's still in my mind."

The cafeteria, which had been in school colors of red and black, has been repainted a light gray and had about 150 students in it Tuesday morning.

"There were students in there eating breakfast and talking, the way they always do," Bentz said.

Students also returned to classes Tuesday in Edinboro, Pa., in a district where a beloved teacher was shot to death at a spring graduation dance, allegedly by 14-year-old Andrew Jerome Wurst.

Two students and another teacher were wounded.

Authorities would not let reporters approach the children at James W. Parker Middle School in this northwestern Pennsylvania city of about 5,000 people.

"Believe it or not, school is normal. They're just looking at getting back into their routine," Superintendent Therese Walter said. "People grieve, and people get over these things. If anyone shows a need for it, we will help."

Judge orders FBI to turn over evidence

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge has ordered the FBI and the National Transportation Safety Board to turn over documents from the probe of the TWA Flight 800 explosion to Boeing Co. and other participants in civil litigation.

U.S. District Judge Jed Rakoff's order, made public Monday, requires the agencies to release witness statements, summaries and other documents.

The government will be permitted to withhold witness names and personal information.

Boeing spokesman Russ Young said the Seattle-based company was pleased to be able to view the files.

"We think it's important we have access to all available information, which we think is a view shared by everyone interested in what happened and why," he said.

Boeing is a defendant in a lawsuit brought by some of the families of the 230 victims of the July 17, 1996, explosion of the Paris-bound jet shortly after it left Kennedy International Airport in New York City.

The civil trial was not expected to start before next summer.

The cause of the explosion has not been clearly defined by the government despite an unprecedented civil and criminal investigation.

The FBI said a year ago that it had found no evidence to conclude terrorism or sabotage was behind the explosion of the Boeing 747 flight.

Holocaust survivors sue Volkswagen; recall horrors of slave labor

NEW YORK (AP) — Plucked from Nazi concentration camps, they were spared death only to endure another horror — working as slave laborers for the German war machine.

Monday, in the latest legal action on behalf of Holocaust survivors, former Nazi prisoners sued Volkswagen A.G. and Volkswagen of America and recounted their ordeals in World War II factories.

"Auschwitz was the hell," said Elly

Gross, who was 15 when she was separated from her family and sent to work painting metal parts for the German automaker. "The factory where I worked just was the skirt of the hell."

The federal suit, filed in Newark, N.J., was the second in as many days on behalf of Holocaust victims. Sunday, a suit filed in New York named Volkswagen and 11 other German and Austrian companies.

"In the factory, they stayed behind me with a stopwatch and if you didn't produce enough, you were sent to Bergen-Belsen to be killed," said Olga Berkovitz, a 74-year-old Holocaust survivor from Long Beach, N.Y.

The lawsuits follow a $1.25 billion agreement reached in mid-August by Swiss banks to settle claims by Holocaust survivors who weren't allowed to collect their assets after World War II.

Hub City nightspot plays host to number of concerts see p. 7

Tramps' concert to feature former Techsans

Proceeds benefit upkeep of Bangin' Bertha, Raider Red

By Laura Henley
Staff Writer

Texas Tech students will have a chance to be entertained this Friday night by three musicians who all have one thing in common — Texas Tech. The annual Saddle Tramp Kick Off Concert will feature three Texas music artists who all have ties with the university.

Headliner, Pat Green as well as middle act, Mark David Manders both are former students and Luke Olson, a sophomore communications major from San Antonio, will be opening the concert.

This is the first year the Saddle Tramps have featured all Tech musicians. But Dan Thering, a senior political science major from Lakeway and chairman of the Kick Off Weekend, said the lineup just fell together by chance.

"This was kind of a coincidence," Thering said.

"We had part of the show put together, and then we realized they were all from Tech, and we just ran with that."

"... the main purpose is to promote Tech spirit."

Dan Thering
Saddle Tramp concert chairman

Proceeds from the concert will go into the Saddle Tramp's general-use fund.

This money helps pay for any expenses such as travel costs, maintaining Big Bertha and Raider Red.

"This is one of our big fund-raisers we do every year," Thering said. "But, really the main purpose is to promote Tech spirit before the first home football game. This concert will give students another great reason to stay in town this weekend and support Tech."

The Kick Off Concert has brought many acts in past years such as Jack Ingram, Robert Earl Keen, Jerry Jeff Walker, Brooks and Dunn and Willie Nelson.

"This concert is always a big draw," said Lane Arnold of Fast Lane Productions. "Everybody comes out and has a lot of fun."

This year's headliner, Green, is releasing a new live CD Thursday, Pat Green Live. This album will be his third release. His first two albums, George's Bar and Dancehall Dreamer pumped his popularity among Texas music fans.

"The Kick Off Concert will be like a CD release party for him," Thering said. "It's great that he will be playing here after the release because he has a lot of support here."

Doors will open at the 19th Street Warehouse, 1824 Ave. G, at 8 p.m. and music will begin with Olson at 9 p.m., followed by Manders and Green.

Tickets cost $8 in advance and can be purchased at Ralph's Records, 909 University Ave. and 3322 82nd St., and the University Center Ticket Booth. Tickets cost $10 at the door.

For more information about the concert or upcoming Saddle Tramp events, call 742-1896.

September swings concert line-up Variety of bands to entertain Lubbock

By Sebastian Kitchen
Staff Writer

After a slow summer, music will start to hum back through the Hub City with a stacked concert schedule. The concerts will take place at the Depot's 19th Street Warehouse, 1824 Ave. G.

Very few acts made way through Lubbock in the last few months, but concert promoter Lane Arnold worked hard during the summer to secure a strong series of shows for the start of school.

"It seems like a lot of bands were on these large tours during the summer," Arnold said.

"It was hard to get bands into clubs because so many were on the large tours."

Artists jumped into tours including the Warped Tour, Lilith Fair, Ozzfest, HORDE Festival and the Smoking Grooves Tour.

The rockabilly trio Reverend Horton Heat, who will headline a concert Sept. 17, participated in the Warped Tour.

Other upcoming concerts include rap, country, rock and metal.

Students who bought books at Double T Bookstore can receive a voucher to see the Electric Gypsies and the Grand Street Cryers tomorrow for free.

Others can pay $5 to see the show. Pat Green, Luke Olson and Mark David Manders will play as part of the Saddle Tramps Kickoff Classic on Friday.

Even though he has not released any new music since 1993, Tone Loc still is able to tour packed clubs because of classic hits such as "Wild Thing" and "Funky Cole Medina."

Tone Loc will perform a midnight show Saturday at Liquid 2000, 1812 Ave. G.

Lubbock's own, Joe Ely, will return home Monday with Joe King Carasco and the Crowns and Luke Olson opening the show.

Ian Moore, a former member of Ely's band, will headline a concert Sept. 11.

Psychic Jive will open the show. Jack Ingram, Bruce Robison and Luke Olson all have made regular solo appearances in the Hub City, but will play together Sept. 15.

Ingram recently performed for the "Hope Floats" soundtrack. Olson is a Tech student who recently returned to Lubbock on a tour.

The Reverend Horton Heat, REO Speeddealer, A Pony Named Sara and Fade 22 will preach to Lubbock Sept. 17.

Upcoming metal band Fear Factory will perform with Spineshank, Dead Industry and Itch on Sept. 22.

Cinderella, a popular band from the 1980s, is back together and on the road.

The tour will bring the band through Lubbock Sept. 26 with Hair of the Dog and Chet Arthur.

After a sellout show in Lubbock during the summer, 7 Mary 3 will return Sept. 27 with Feeder and Falling Jupiter.

After the release of its most recent CD, 7 Mary 3 is one of the most played bands on radio airwaves with the single "Over your Shoulder." Past hits from 7 Mary 3 include "Water's Edge" and "Cumbersome."

Two shows have been confirmed for October.

One of those shows includes Tripping Daisy, Soak and Iris scheduled for Oct. 10.

The other date is Oct. 17 and includes Agnostic Front, the Dropkick Murphys, U.S. Bombs and more.

Arnold is working on more shows for October and beyond.

"If Lane didn't do shows, there would be no live music here," said Larry Simmons, owner of Liquid 2000. "Lane's been working real hard on some shows. I am looking forward to what he has in the Warehouse. He's got a great summer coming up."

“It was hard to get bands into clubs because so many were on the large tours.”

'Footloose' star on radio show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kevin Bacon said he's not the best part of his new radio show.

The actor, director and musician has been hired to host "The Guitar Show with Kevin Bacon," a weekly AMFM Radio Networks show in which rock guitarists will discuss their influences and share anecdotes.

The first show, featuring Eddie Van Halen, Queen's Brian May and Aerosmith's Joe Perry, will be broadcast this weekend.

"These are some of my heroes, and to be in the same room listening to them play or to what they have to say is fun for me," Bacon told Daily Variety in an interview last week.

The most difficult aspect of the hosting duties was being himself, Bacon said.

"The good news is, it's not a show about me; I'm not the interesting part," he said.

Seagal becomes leader of the pack

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tough-guy actor Steven Seagal is among those urging Taiwan's lawmakers to pass an anti-cruelty bill aimed at helping thousands of homeless dogs.

Seagal, who recently visited the country with animal-rights' activists, wants other actions to help, too.

An ad bearing his name is scheduled to run in the Hollywood Reporter on Tuesday.

People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, which sponsored the ad, claims countless dogs live in deplorable conditions.

Then there's the practice around Taipei of rounding up and killing stray dogs by drowning, electrocution and poisoning.

Brad Pitt, Kim Basinger and David Duchovny are among the other actors who have joined Seagal's effort.

Lubbock station gives 'Howard Stern Radio Show' ax

LUBBOCK (AP) — "NYPD Blue's" naked backsides raised some eyebrows at local FOX affiliate KJTV. The incestuous cousins and fighting lesbian lovers on "The Jerry Springer Show" brought in a few complaints. But in the end, only Howard Stern's particular brand of raunchiness and "morally offensive" sleaze made station executives feel they had to pull the plug on a show.

KJTV said it had received about 20 letters complaining about "The Howard Stern Radio Show."

The shock jock's half-hour program debuted Aug. 22 as competition to NBC's long-running "Saturday Night Live."

Stern will be replaced in Lubbock with "The Untouchables."

Sue Schwartz, the vice president of programming at independent Phoenix station KTVK, said the station decided to pull the Stern show.

KTVK opted to replace the show because the two episodes it aired contained cruel segments.

"What played on the radio, and perhaps might even be funny on the radio, once you added video, it took on the feeling of being cruel," she said. In its two weeks, Stern's show has featured a lap dance performed by a naked woman with her genitals blurred out of the picture, a female bodybuilder groped by Stern, a teenager attempting to set a record for farting and an interview where O.J. Simpson was asked his tips for removing blood stains.

"Simply put, he crossed the line," said Larry Landaker, KJTV vice president and general manager.

"At some point you have to ask yourself, 'Does this have any value at all?' We're not trying to be moral gatekeepers of the community but this show is morally offensive and impossible to defend."

Landaker thought he knew what he was getting after listening to Stern's radio program and his television show on the E! Entertainment cable network, but said Stern seemed to be even more offensive than usual.

"It was like he was daring people to not want to see it," he said.

"He pushed it even further than his cable show and it was just unacceptable."

CBS spokeswoman Rosemary Keenan said neither Eyemark, which syndicates Stern's new show, nor Stern had any comment.

A Toronto television station, Citytv, had bought Stern's TV show but decided last month not to air it.

Chom Limited, which owns Citytv, also canceled Stern's radio program on the Montreal station it owns.

Stern's radio show is still on the air in Toronto.

The syndicated TV show's ratings slipped nationally in its second week. It finished first in its time slot on three CBS-owned television stations, down from seven the week before. Lubbock's decision was praised by the American Family Association, a conservative lobbying group that has protested the show.

"This is the beginning of a national trend. This is great news," said Buddy Smith, assistant president of the AFA.

Landaker said station executives thought they knew what they were getting into after having listened to the shock jock's radio show, watching his cable show on E! entertainment network and seeing his

"... I enjoy his style, his kind of attitude against the system type of attitude."

Brandon Couch
Texas Tech student

recent movie, "Private Parts."

But Stern seemed to feel the need to be even more offensive than usual on the new television show, Landaker said.

Even some fans of Howard Stern were reluctant to defend the show.

"I enjoyed his movie and I enjoy his style, his kind of attitude," said Brandon Couch, a radio student at Texas Tech.

"But it just seems like the same thing over and over, for people who can't get the visual idea from listening to the radio show."

NEW BEGINNING

Red Raider volleyball team begins the season.

Mustangs gallop past Raiders, 3-1

By Brent Dirks
Sports Editor

Southern Methodist used two late first-half goals to defeat the Texas Tech women's soccer team 3-1 Tuesday at R.P. Fuller Track Stadium in both teams' season-opener.

"I just told the kids looking at it we really won 1-0," Red Raider coach Felix Oskam said after the game. "Because we gave three goals away."

The Red Raiders (0-1 overall) looked to go into the locker room at halftime tied 0-0 with the Mustangs (1-0 overall), but two back-to-back goals late in the half were the difference in the game.

SMU midfielder Jamie Campanaro scored the Mustangs' first goal of the game at the 42:15 mark with a shot two yards out past Red Raider sophomore goalkeeper Lisa Foreman.

Foreman made her first collegiate goalkeeper start in the game subbing for starting goalkeeper Kellie McAllister, who was injured after her arm was hit in a collision during Tech's last practice before the game with the Mustangs.

Oskam said McAllister may have chipped a bone in her arm and her status is still unknown.

Foreman said it was a tough situation to get called up against a nationally ranked club like SMU.

"It was very tough because I didn't play last spring, and I also didn't play in the fall, so this is the first college game I played in," Foreman said.

"It was a shock for me here that Kellie got hurt and for me to be coming in."

The Mustangs, ranked No. 20 in the country, did not wait long to strike again as forward Sarah Harvey scored at the 44-minute mark with a shot from nine yards out.

"At halftime I told them we can't afford to give goals away and especially by timing," Oskam said.

"About 2 1/2 minutes before the end of the first half, we get two goals behind us, and it's very tough to come back against a team like SMU."

Tech fell behind by another goal in the 58th minute when Morgan Rittenhouse scored to make it 3-0 for the Mustangs.

"The balls up in the air, we have got to get those," Oskam said. "Defensively clearing, we did not do a very good job clearing the ball. And good teams like SMU take advantage of that. We just cannot get in that habit, because it's a bad habit to get into."

But the Red Raiders did not give up in the contest.

At 67:05 in the contest, Tech defender Ashlyn Peterson scored on a penalty kick off an assist from forward Kristy Frantz to make the score 3-1.

"Usually I help out with the corner kicks, but I just felt like I could really help out," Peterson said. "It was kind of the same area of the field. I just went up there, got the hit, and it went for me. (Frantz) always gives good balls like that."

Oskam said he was proud of the team for still fighting after being down 3-0.

"Looking at the second half, even falling being 3-0, we still kept fighting and fighting," he said. "I told them at halftime, no matter what the score, a loss is a loss. You keep pounding and pounding and pounding until you get one, and they did. It was just too little, too late."

Peterson said even with the loss, the Red Raiders can take good things from the game.

"They're a Top 20 team, and really we felt like we won 1-0," Peterson said.

"We gave them three goals. They weren't really crafty goals. Even though we lost, it was a confidence booster because we can hang with a team as big as SMU."

Push and Shove: Red Raider forward Kristy Frantz battles with SMU defender Lana Darnell in Tech's 3-1 loss to the Mustangs Tuesday. Frantz had an assist on Tech's only goal in the game.

Tyson's future clouded after traffic wreck

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Mike Tyson picked the wrong time to get into a fight.

Tyson's boxing future became even more clouded Tuesday after police in a Washington, D.C., suburb said he punched one man in the chest and kicked another in the groin after a minor traffic accident a day earlier.

The incident came less than three weeks before Nevada boxing authorities meet to decide whether Tyson has learned to behave himself enough to be licensed again to resume his career as a heavyweight fighter in the state.

"This complicates matters," a source close to the Nevada commission said.

There were no serious injuries in Monday's altercation — though Tyson later complained of chest pains and was treated at a hospital emergency room — and no arrests were made. Police classified it as a "misdemeanor assault" and said it would be up to the other drivers if they wanted to seek charges.

Members of the Nevada Athletic Commission said they will want an explanation when Tyson appears before them Sept. 19 seeking a license to replace the one revoked when he bit Evander Holyfield's ears during their June 28, 1997, heavyweight title fight.

"I would suspect it will be discussed," commission member Dr. James Nave said of the incident.

"It's certainly an area where the commission will want to look at."

Red Raider volleyball hits the road

Spikers look to notch key road wins against top opponents

By Jeff Keller
Staff Writer

The Texas Tech volleyball team will take on William and Mary at 6 p.m. today in Williamsburg, Va., to open the 1998 volleyball campaign.

The trip will keep the Red Raiders on the road through the weekend at the George Mason Tournament in Fairfax, Va.

"We are so used to traveling with the Big 12," said senior co-captain Kristen Holmes.

"You are going to have long trips, you just have to take each game one at a time."

With two and three-a-day practices over, the new season is a welcome sight for the Red Raider squad.

"We are pretty excited to get started and see how we work as a team," said senior middle blocker Sonia Moric.

Tech will not be chartering unfamiliar territory in facing William and Mary, as the two squads met last year in a tournament in Colorado Springs with the Red Raiders prevailing in three straight games.

"They are traditionally a pretty good program who struggled a little bit last year," said coach Jeff Nelson of the William and Mary squad.

"For a first match, I think it is a good one.

"We will see a lot of rallies and get a lot of touches which is something you like to see in the first couple weeks of the season."

In facing William and Mary, the Red Raiders will need to play a very detailed game, focusing on specific areas, Nelson said.

"We are really focusing on improving our blocks and serving tough," Nelson said.

"Through our preseason practices we served very tough and I would like to see that transfer when the actual matches start."

Leading up to the first match, the Red Raiders have been practicing extensively.

A few players really excelled during preseason practices, Nelson said.

"Kristen Holmes has been one of the hardest workers on the floor," he said.

"Pam Osterfeld had a great last week after returning from an ankle injury."

Wes Underwood/The University Daily

Tip Ball: Red Raider volleyball player Brande Brown puts the ball over the net last season against Texas A&M.

Some new Red Raiders will be seeing their first playing time against William and Mary.

"Skydra Orzen will get some playing time this weekend both in the setting position and in the back court position," Nelson said.

"Emily Brengman is a freshman who is going to start this week."

With a tournament directly following the William and Mary contest, the Red Raiders will need a deep bench to give some players a rest.

"The bench is the strongest and deepest it has ever been," Nelson said. "We will have 10 or 11 people playing in every match, and when you are playing in tournaments, that really helps."

Tech will return home to host the Four-Points Sheraton Red Raider Classic Sept. 11 with weekend action concluding Sept. 12. Big 12 action kicks off Sept. 25 against Texas A&M.

Sosa at home in run at Maris' record 61

CHICAGO (AP) — Everywhere he goes, Sammy Sosa finds a crowd. By the batting cage, where his every swing is photographed. By his locker, where his every word is recorded.

In right field, where adoring fans scrutinize his every move.

He is neither short tempered nor stressed out in the midst of a historic home run race as he nears one of baseball's most magical records.

Rather he is dealing with it in much the same manner he has handled pitching this season. With ease.

Even his teammates can't believe what he's doing.

"I have no words for Sammy. He's taken them all away," first baseman Mark Grace said of his teammate.

"It's just a blast," rookie pitcher Kerry Wood said. "Being in a pennant race is No. 1 and you got a guy like Sammy Sosa on your team and he puts on a show every day."

Sosa hit his 55th homer Monday night, tying Mark McGwire for the major league lead and leaving him one shy of Hack Wilson's club and National League records and six away from Roger Maris' elusive 61.

All this, yet Sosa insists his biggest project is getting the Cubs to the playoffs.

"Maybe after the year is over and we go to the playoffs I can say to myself, 'Wow it's unbelievable.' But right now I don't have that," Sosa said. "I'm not satisfied. We have another month to go and I want to be there every day and I want to finish strong," he said of his possible record-tying season

"I know I have the ability to do it and I'm not going to stop right now."

Sosa had the lead for a few innings last month at 48-47 before McGwire drove two balls out of Wrigley Field in a head-to-head meeting to go back in front.

It seems every time Sosa draws into a tie with McGwire — "Mark's the man," Sosa has said countless times — the Cardinals' slugger responds. Sosa realizes his presence is pushing his friend and rival.

"I think one of the reasons Mark is going to go out there and do what he's supposed to be doing is because I'm right there with him," Sosa said. "And like he says, he's a very competitive guy."

Sosa's sense of humor has never been better.

When Wood didn't want to take a curtain call after hitting a homer Monday night, Sosa, enjoying the stage, took it for him.

Told that a national newspaper poll showed 79 percent of those interviewed wanted McGwire to break the record to just 16 percent for him, Sosa replied:

"There's nothing wrong with that. That's why I love America. It's a beautiful country," he said with another laugh.

And just how often does he think about the home run race?

"In my mind, about 16 percent of the time," he said doubling over at his locker with a smile.

"It's 79 percent for Mark."

Jason Bernstein Assistant Sports Editor

Ah, the virtues of sports. And here is the latest from the world of sports as seen through the eyes of a "true" fan.

Mark McGwire. A big man with a big heart. He sure can point a mean finger at rookie umpire Sam Holbrook. Who cares if his forearms are larger than California Redwoods?

Sammy Sosa. Fifty-five longballs and still counting. He's on pace to hit 64, but his aura alone is worth 10 or 15 homers a season. Fans usually leave the park after his last at-bat. I guess the game isn't that important, eh?

How about the number 6? That's the number of victories it takes to qualify for a bowl game. Just a number to remember. If you put Roger Clemens' last three outings together, perhaps the Rangers pitching staff could take notes in hopes of lowering their staff ERA to a sub-.50 level.

As for the Rangers defense, they could take their juggling act to "Barnum & Bailey" as their 167 team errors have shown.

Unstoppable is a phrase often used in sports. But Hale Irwin and Gordon have redefined the word in their respective sports as Irwin has earned a Senior Tour leading $2.25 million and Gordon has won six of his last eight NASCAR starts. Now that's unstoppable.

The ageless wonder, (a.k.a. Ricky Henderson), leads the league in stolen bases with 56. Maybe Ricky got his groove back.

Froy Edwards ran circles around the Nebraska defense Saturday as he finished with an NCAA record of 405 yards receiving in his team's 56-27 loss. Texas, Colorado and Kansas State better take note if they have any hopes of knocking off the 'Huskies this year.

Kudos to U.S. Amateur Golf Champion Hank Kuehne who, despite surrendering a sizeable lead to eventual champion Tiger Woods four years ago, came back with a vengeance to capture the championship on the 35th hole, 2 and 1. That's determination.

I would feel sorry for Texas A&M after their 23-14 loss to No. 2 Florida State if it weren't for the fact that the Aggies deserved to lose on national television. They were beaten in every statistical category Monday night. But you've got to give them credit for taking on such a challenge in game No. 1. I mean, after all, Florida State is no Texas El-Paso.

Next is T.V.'s today's matchup pitting Houston at Atlanta on the "Superstation" (TBS). Randy Johnson (5-1) takes the mound against Greg Maddux (17-6) in what could be a playoff preview. I just love to watch the 6-foot-7-inch Manute Bol-esque pitcher pretend like he knows what to do with the big wooden stick.

As for UTEP, who can forget their 1988 Independence Bowl loss to Southern Miss? After all, that was their last winning season.

What's more, is that the 1988 campaign was their last season with more than four victories — period.

The Bowl Championship Series may finally put an end to college football's biggest controversy. Unless, of course, an undefeated No. 1 loses to an 11-1 No. 2 team. But the head-to-head record makes the difference, right?

I've always wondered the true point of the July 31 trading deadline in Major League Baseball. Especially if key players (i.e. Gregg Jefferies and Mike Morgan) can be obtained in late

August. (And don't give me that "waiver" garbage.)

And what about my man, Latrell Sprewell? This guy claims that the NBA shredded evidence pertaining to his "alleged strangulation" case. The only thing they should have shredded was his psyche.

I guarantee that Mark McGwire will break Roger Maris' 37-year-old single-season home run record. In Big Mac's last 13 months of baseball, he has hit at least eight home runs in a month where he's had at least 25 games.

Record four away from tying the record. And by the way, he has 25 games to play this month.

Cowboys look to improve on the field by making 'waves' off the field

DALLAS (AP) — No Dallas Cowboys kickoff luncheon day is complete without a surprise or two.

The biggest shocker on Tuesday was that wide receiver Stepfret Williams, the Cowboys go-to guy on third down in 1997, was released.

"He dropped more balls than I thought he would," said coach Chan Gailey of Williams, who caught 15 third-down passes that gave the Cowboys a first down in a 6-10 season. Williams was a third-round pick out of Northeast Louisiana in 1996.

Williams also had been the Cowboys kickoff return specialist during the pre-season, averaging 25 yards per return.

Rookie Jeff Ogden of Eastern Washington moved into the fourth receiver slot behind Michael Irvin, Billy Davis, and Ernie Mills.

Eric Bjornson will swing from tight end to wide out.

Kevin Mathis, who had been returning punts, will assume the kickoff return duties that were handled last year by Herschel Walker, whose chances of being on the team have faded.

The Cowboys made several other moves, aided by the fact that quarterback Troy Aikman restructured his contract so owner Jerry Jones would have room under the salary cap.

"It's an example of how he (Aikman) is willing to work to have the best team on the field," Jones said.

Offensive lineman Steve Scifres, a former third-round draft pick from Wyoming, was put on waivers.

James Ritchey, a third-year veteran from Stephen F. Austin who was with the Tennessee Oilers, was picked up by the Cowboys as their third quarterback.

However, he failed his physical and the Cowboys were expected to re-sign Daniel Gonzalez, a rookie from Eastern Washington who had been cut last week.

Dallas also officially signed running back Sherman Williams, who was out there on Sunday.

Chris Warren suffered a groin injury in a preseason scrimmage and will miss the next four weeks.

Gailey said Sherman Williams would see action on Sunday against Arizona if Emmitt Smith needed a breather.

"We'll just have to see how the game develops," Gailey said of the runningback situation.

Jones said, "We had to move Stepfret off the roster because we needed to have an active running back out there on Sunday."

Gailey, who replaced Barry

Switzer as coach, received a warm welcome from the luncheon crowd.

Gailey said Jones had tried to tell him about the Cowboys' fan interest and how tough the media could be on him.

"All I know is I don't want to be where they don't care," Gailey said.

"I want to be somewhere it matters."

The remark drew rousing applause.

That the Cowboys are picked for a poor season, Gailey said, "is going to make victory a little bit sweeter."

Fall intramurals roll into season

Flag Football and Fall Softball Sign-ups

Flag football and fall softball seasons are quickly approaching. The intramural office will be accepting team entries in room 203 of the Rec Center Sept. 8-10 for flag football and the following week Sept. 15-17 for fall softball. Bring names, addresses and phone numbers of all team members to sign up a team and acquire a time to play in leagues. In addition, a $30 refundable forfeit fee is necessary at the time of registration. We are expecting in excess of 300 teams again this fall season for flag football, which will begin Sept. 20. More than 170 teams are expected for fall softball, which begins Sept. 23. If you have any questions regarding flag football or fall softball team entries, you can call 742-3351.

Flag Football and Fall Softball Free Agent Meetings

Any individual who would like to play football of fall softball and has yet to find a team is invited to free agent meetings. Meetings are conducted by an intramural staff member who helps those attending form teams for league play. Don't be left out just because you don't have a team yet. Join us at the flag football free agent meeting Sept. 9 at 5:30 p.m. and the fall softball free agent meeting Sept. 16 at 5:30 p.m. in room 205 of the Rec Center. Any questions regarding these meetings, please call 742-3351.

Flag Football Sign-ups are Sept. 8-10.

The Flag Football Free Agent Meeting is Sept. 9.

Fall Softball Sign-ups are Sept. 15-17.

The Fall Softball Free Agent Meeting is Sept. 16.

Tennis Singles Entries

Men, Women and Greek Tennis entries will be accepted on Sept. 8-10 in room 202 of the Student Rec Center. You may sign-up from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. There will be a mandatory meeting for all participants on Sept. 10 at 6 p.m. in room 205 of the Student Rec Center. Weekend tournaments begin Sept. 11. For more information, come by the Student Rec Center or call 742-3351. Visit our Recreational Sports website at www.ttu.edu/RecSports.

Officials Needed!

It is that time of year again, Flag Football time! In conjunction with the beginning of another great season, Recreational Sports is searching for individuals who believe they possess the desire to become an intramural flag football official. Officials are paid $10 per game. There are also paid clinics scheduled to assist prospective employees. The first clinic will be tomorrow at 4 p.m. in room 201 of the Student Rec Center. If you have any questions regarding employment, feel free to call 742-3351 and talk to Jared.

Nov. 15 1 p.m. - 4 p.m.

Water Polo

Drop in and play! Novice? It doesn't matter! Come by every Thursday from 6 p.m. - 8 p.m.

The Wet Set

Each semester, participants add excitement and motivation to their workout by taking the semester long swim challenge. This fall, imagine that you have been wrongly imprisoned and plan on doing something about it! In order to plead your case, you must escape and face the frigid waters, harrowing currents and ruthless sharks in San Francisco Bay. You must swim 25 pool miles to finish the challenge (each pool mile= 35 laps.)

keep track of your mileage on our progress board.

Long Course Swim

For a change of pace, we set up the pool for you to swim the Olympic distance (50) meter. Long Course swimming will be offered on the following dates:

Sept. 12 10 a.m. - 11:45 a.m.

Outdoor program offers adventures

Want to learn a new activity? Ever want to learn to rock climb or kayak? Would like to go camping but don't have the equipment? Well, if you fit into any of these categories, then the Recreational Sports Outdoor Program, located in room 206 of the Student Rec Center, may be for you.

With new leadership this year, there is a variety of workshops on rappelling, orienteering, kayaking and rock climbing that students can participate in at no charge. Also, there are four off campus trips planned: Oct. 9-11 to the Austin area for rock climbing, Oct. 23-25 to the Wichita Mountains in Oklahoma for a women's only rock climbing trip, Oct. 16-18 is a backpacking adventure trip to New Mexico is planned and a Thanksgiving backpacking trip to Grand Canyon in Arizona. Beginners are welcome on all trips and further information can be obtained by calling the Outdoor Shop at 742-2949 or coming by the office in room 206.

A wide variety of equipment for all types of outdoor adventures and camping trips are available in the Outdoor Shop. The hours are Monday through Friday from 12 p.m. - 6 p.m. and Tuesday through Thursday from 1 p.m. - 5 p.m.

In addition, the climbing wall, located on the upper level of the Rec Center, is available for instruction and drop-in use Monday from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 5 p.m. - 9 p.m. and Wednesday from 5 p.m. - 8 p.m.

For more information, come by room 206 of the SRC and talk with Jordan Messerer or call the office at 742-2949.

File Photo/Recreational Sports

Go Long! Sign ups for the fall season of intramural flag football take place Sept. 8-10 in room 203 of the Rec Center. Leagues are available for men, women and co-rec play and will run from Sept. 20 until Nov. 1.
