Phone, web registration on its way

By Gretchen Verry
Staff Writer

Texas Tech students soon will have two new options for registering.

Two and one-half years after its inception, telephone and Internet registration should be available to students next fall, said Registrar Don Wickard in a presentation to the Student Senate on Thursday.

"Around 2 1/2 years ago, we began looking at our present system," Wickard said.

"At that time, it was 15 years old, and, as systems go, that's pretty old."

Wickard said the first benefit that students will see from the system is the availability of grades on the Internet at the end of this semester.

"It's important for students to know that web registration is not the only new thing that we're facing," said Linda Ricks, academic information systems manager.

"We have already updated thousands of school files to the new system."

Besides being able to register through the system, called TechSIS, students also can check their grades, update their information, obtain unofficial transcripts, look up holds on their records and add and drop classes via the Internet.

AIS Programmer-Analyst David Coons led the senate through a typical registration and showed them different options and links available to students through the website.

The telephone registration system is expected to be tested during the summer and ready for general student use in the fall, Coons said. Internet registration is expected to be available for the first summer session.

"Some of the times and deadlines haven't exactly been made," Wickard said. "But we've been amazed at how quickly this is all falling into place."

In order to log on to the system, students will receive a personal identification number sometime next month.

Students then are encouraged to go into the system and change their PIN to something they can remember, Wickard said.

"Around Dec. 23, students can get on the website and look at their grades, as well as their schedule for the spring," Wickard said.

The new system will allow students to avoid the Matador Room and traditional style of registration, but they must still attend advisement to be able to register, Wickard said.

"The decision has been left up to the departments, and as of right now, all of them are requiring advisement," Wickard said.

That might change, however, once the system has been tested."

Tech students compete in College Bowl

By Apu Naik
Staff Writer

About 80 Texas Tech students tested their academic skills Saturday at the national College Bowl competition.

This was Tech's first year to compete in the competition.

The College Bowl, or Smartfest, is a trivia-type contest between universities from across the nation, who compete every year through three rounds.

Contestants compete in groups of four, and are usually composed of representatives of different campus organizations.

The first round, which was conducted Saturday at the University Center's Matador Room, determines the group who wins among the individual schools and is then selected to represent their university in competition with the winners of other regional universities.

College Bowl is divided into 15 separate regions, and Saturday's winners, Chi Beta, the music honor society, will travel to Texas A&M in February to compete against the winners of other regional universities, which consist of schools in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Darin Bell, a biologist and psychology major from Lubbock, helped to begin the College Bowl here at Tech and coordinated the competition Saturday.

"I did a trivia contest similar to this in high school, and I knew of College Bowl and that we didn't have a team here on campus. And so I started asking around about what it would take to get a team started," Bell said.

"This is basically what it all boiled down to."

Last year, Bell helped to get a competition started, but complications prevented the contest from selecting a team.

This year, however, Bell began setting up the competition in October and the result was a competition composed of 18 teams with 4 members on each team.

Smartfest's competition format actually consists of a game that is a mixture of the game show-like qualities of Jeopardy mixed with the board game-like categories of Trivial Pursuit.

"The questions in Smartfest cover any sort of subject you can imagine, from sports and recreational-type subjects to science, history and literature," Bell said.

"It covers a really wide variety of subjects in no particular order or structure, you just get asked the question and then you buzz in the answer."

The teams, which are each composed of four students, are asked the questions, and then one individual answers depending on who buzzes in with the question first.

If the individual answers the question correctly, the entire team is asked a bonus question, which is usually for a larger amount of points, and the team is allowed to discuss the answer among the entire group.

But if the student answers the question incorrectly, no one else on their team is allowed to answer, and the opposing team automatically gets the opportunity to answer the question.

One student who competed in Saturday's competition, John Horwood, a junior English major from Amarillo, said the experience was a fun way to test his knowledge while also meeting interesting people.

"Other than having to wake up early on a Saturday, we had a really good time with this competition," Horwood said.

Although his team did not advance, Horwood said the questions asked Saturday were made up of a large spectrum of categories, and challenged the diversity of the average contestant.

"Some of the competition is academic and some of it isn't," Horwood said. "For example, one of the answers to our questions was 'Saturday Night Fever,' so it's not necessarily just academia that you have to know, it's kind of like trivia pursuit for the masses."

Tech professor's legacy at school continues

By Melody Ragland

Dean

Bill Dean has red and black running through his blood. He not only is the executive vice president of the Ex-Student Association and an associate professor in the School of Mass Communications, but recently has become the associate director for student programs in the school.

Dean's newest role in the school gives him new responsibilities, as well as those he is familiar with.

Dean said he will be responsible for the mass communications advising program and will try to involve faculty and try to get the word out about advisement. "I advise most freshmen, but I've done that the past 18 years," Dean said.

He also helps the school's adviser Janet Wright if students have problems with teachers or getting into a class.

As the new placement director, he is opening a new placement center in the spring at the school.

The placement center will be available for mass communications students. Students will be able to get help with resumes, finding a job and internships.

"It's been a nice fit," Dean said of his new position.

Just because he has picked up a new role he is not giving up on his other duties.

As the Ex-Students Association executive vice president, Dean is responsible for keeping alumni up-to-date. He is responsible for raising money to keep the association running and publishes the alumni magazine, Texas Technican.

Dean also conducts Tech activities such as Homecoming weekend.

The achievements Dean has made while working at Tech are just as impressive as when he was a student.

Dean graduated from Tech in 1961. He came to Tech on a baseball scholarship.

He also was the sports editor of the La Ventana yearbook and the Torador, now The University Daily.

"I was the president of my fraternity (Phi Delta Theta), president of Interfraternity Council and student body president," Dean said.

In 1967, Dean began working for Tech as the director of the student publications. He worked as director for 11 years before he took his current job.

"I think the university has really matured, the alumni matured," Dean said. "We've grown in prestige and stature. A degree means a lot more than when I came."

"I think this university has really matured ... We've grown in prestige and stature."

Dean said Tech has done more with their resources than other schools. He said it is because of the West Texas work ethic.

Dean may have three titles, but students know him as a good professor. Jamie Joines, a sophomore public relations major from Wharton, said she really likes him as a teacher.

"He's very knowledgeable. You can see he's excited about his work," Joines said. "That makes the students more interested."

'Threepenny Opera' acting good, has potential

By John Davis
Staff Writer

A loud voice barks "Threepenny Opera" as though an old-fashioned circus crier was trying to attract business with a megaphone.

The curtain is painted like the old gaslit streets in London during the early 1800s, but in such a cartoon-type way it adds to the "olde-time melerdramer" atmosphere.

Yes, it has all the markings of an "Old London" show with a Brechtian twist.

Unfortunately the emphasis of this show was put on the aesthetics of the stage and costumes and not on the performance.

Also, there was too much emphasis on doing an English dialect.

Since many of the actors had trouble sounding English, they should not have attempted it.

Either a speech specialist should have been employed for the actors, or the show should have been done in a standard American dialect.

But, that's not to say the stage is devoid of talent.

There are a few incredible actors and singers who pull their part off well.

It's a shame their work comes too far and few during the three-hour-long play.

The show stars Brandon Lane Bohannon as the infamous Macheath, or "Mack the Knife." I have to say he's definitely got lungs to sing a whole show full of songs like he did. His voice is excellent.

Yet, the words he sings lack any kind of internal meaning and are empty until the last few numbers of the show.

Also, his portrayal of a hardened criminal fell short of the mark.

When Bohannon's character pulls a knife on members of his gang who have angered him, he might as well be pulling a ham sandwich on them. There was no menace or criminal anything going on in his character. In the third act, however, Bohannon pulls his performance out of the doldrums.

With Macheath going to the gallows for his crimes, Bohannon's work gets exiting and becomes alive.

Also, Bethany Carter saves the day with her wealth of talent.

Playing Polly Peachum, the ditzy daughter of the kingpin of the beggar's syndicate, she found the rhythm and the style of melodrama and played it to the hilt.

Her work is exiting and vibrant, and her voice is excellent during her singing numbers.

I must also give credit to "the boys in chorus" who belonged to Macheath's band of crooks.

Every one of them was so focused on their small roles, that often, their work helped make a flat scene easier to watch.

Tech student crowned Miss Lubbock

By Laura Hensley
Staff Writer

Although 10 beautiful, talented and intelligent Texas Tech women competed for the chance to represent Lubbock in the Miss Texas Pageant this summer, only one winner was chosen.

The new 1999 Miss Lubbock crown belongs to Tech senior Robin Chamberlain. She will compete in the Miss Texas Pageant in Fort Worth, July 7 through 10. The winner of Miss Texas then will go on to the Miss America Pageant.

"I'm really excited about representing Lubbock," Chamberlain said. "I was born and raised here and that is the special part of it to me."

Chamberlain will make numerous appearances as Miss Lubbock during her reign. She also has chosen the platform of child mentoring. She will speak and volunteer to support her platform during the year.

"I've been involved with mentoring for a long time," she said. "I am a sponsor to a girl named Becky at the Buckner Children's Home. She was able to be there Saturday night and that was very special."

Chamberlain is the Fox TV channel 34 Kid's Club host. She competed last year in the Miss Texas Pageant representing the El Paso area.

As this year's winner, Chamberlain received a $10,000 scholarship and services provided by local business throughout the year.

"Pageanting has paid for my education," Chamberlain said. "I have also made so many life-long friends through pageants."

Saturday night, the contestants put forth months of training and practice to compete in the phases of competition. The areas included talent, swimsuit, personal interviewing and evening gown.

Julie Ann Stansell, a senior English and communications studies major from Plano, was chosen first-runner-up. Kyndra Johns, a sophomore vocal performance major from Andrews, won the talent competition and also was named third-runner-up.

Laura Johnson, a junior public relations major from Pampa, was named second-runner-up, and Donna Gibbs, a junior business major from Lubbock, was named fourth-runner-up.

Iranian film cut from festival after Salinger copyright claim

NEW YORK (AP) — A screening of an Iranian film adapted without permission from J.D. Salinger's novel "Franny and Zooey" was canceled after representatives of the reclusive author threatened legal action.

The film, "Pari," was to have been shown Friday as part of a three-week Iranian film festival by the Film Society of Lincoln Center.

Problems arose after Salinger learned that the film was based on his 1961 novel, The New York Times reported Saturday.

"They simply did not seek permission from the copyright owner of the novel," said R. Andrew Boose, a lawyer for Salinger.

The film was shown at Lincoln Center in 1996, said Richard Pena, programming director for the film society, and at that time there was no question about the copyright.

This time, Pena said, the society was left with no option other than to cancel the screening of the 1995 movie, directed by Dariush Mehrjui.

The film is "loosely based" on Salinger's book, conceded Mehrjui. He said he wrote to Salinger seeking permission to adapt the book, and that when he received no reply he took that as tacit approval to proceed.

"This reaction is really quite bewildering," Mehrjui told the Times.

"I don't want to distribute the film commercially. ... I just want to let the film be seen for the critics and the people that follow my work."

"In our country we don't have copyrights," Mehrjui said. "We feel free to read and do whatever we want."

'Rugrats' cartoon movie debut hit with kids

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a youth-powered weekend at the movies, the big-screen adaptation of Nickelodeon's "Rugrats" cartoon amassed $28 million in its debut and "The Waterboy" crossed the $100 million mark after just three weeks, industry estimates showed Sunday.

The Disney thriller "Enemy of the State" scored by attracting the nearly forgotten older audience, opening in second with $20.3 million.

"You've always got to respect the Disney marketing machine and the quality of the product. That's the reason why we wanted to be first," said Rob Friedman, vice chairman of the Paramount Motion Picture Group.

"We'll share the business with them."

After eight weeks, "Antz" remained in the Top 10 at No. 9 with $2.3 million over the weekend.

Next month DreamWorks releases yet another animated feature, "The Prince of Egypt."

"The Rugrats Movie" takes off from the popular cable show with the Pickles family getting a new baby.

The 80-minute film overcame mostly lukewarm reviews that faulted it for failing to appeal beyond the under-11 crowd.

The Adam Sandler lowbrow comedy "The Waterboy" remained strong among young theatergoers, earning $15.8 million for third place. That brought the low-budget film's total to $100.3 million.

There was no such staying power for Brad Pitt's "Meet Joe Black" and the slasher sequel "I Still Know What You Did Last Summer," which saw their second-week takes drop 43 percent and 56 percent, respectively.

Woody Allen's latest directorial effort, "Celebrity," opened with a so-so $1.7 million for 10th.

Here are estimated grosses at North American theaters for Friday through Sunday as compiled by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc. Final figures were to be released Monday:

1. "The Rugrats Movie," $28 million.
2. "Enemy of the State," $20.3 million.
3. "The Waterboy," $15.8 million.
4. "Meet Joe Black," $8.6 million.
5. "I Still Know What You Did Last Summer," $7.2 million.
6. "The Siege," $3.5 million.
7. "I'll Be Home for Christmas," $2.5 million.
8. "Pleasantville," $2.4 million.
9. "Antz," $2.3 million.
10. "Celebrity," $1.7 million.

Red Raiders tally big win over Kansas State

Shannon Pipkins/The University Daily

Hands: Tech outside hitter Heather Hughes goes for a block in the Red Raider four-game victory over Kansas State Friday.

By Jeff Keller
Staff Writer

The Texas Tech volleyball team avenged an early season loss Friday, as the Red Raiders beat the No. 17 Kansas State Wildcats in four games, 10-15, 15-9, 15-11 and 15-12.

The win represented Tech's (21-10 overall, 10-8 Big 12) second win of the season against a ranked opponent having beaten Texas A&M earlier in the season, who was ranked No. 19 at the time.

The win was the second time Tech has played in the Civic Center under coach Jeff Nelson. Both were victories over Kansas State.

The stands at the Civic Center are closer to the court than they are at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum, which allows the fans closer to the action which worked to Tech's advantage, said sophomore outside hitter Heather Hughes.

"The crowd was awesome tonight," Hughes said. "I like them close because you can hear them more. They were loud and we could hear them a lot, and it helped in the win. I prefer playing here to the Coli-

Hughes had three aces to open the fourth game, which set the tone for the Red Raiders for the final game, Nelson said.

"The aces came against their leader Kim Zschau," Nelson said of Tech.

"I think when she got shook we were able to run some points. By the time they recovered, we had a big enough lead and were able to hold on at the end."

Tech outblocked Kansas State 21.5-9 in the match, which took 2 hours and 10 minutes to complete.

Senior setter Lisa Hilgers compiled 62 assists in the match, and said the win was one of Tech's best matches of the year.

"I think this was one of our best matches," Hilgers said.

"Everyone has always said we can't play against ranked teams, and I guess we came out tonight and proved that we could. Tonight was a great match for us and it was a great turnaround."

The win was the last home match for Hilgers and four other Red Raiders, and Hilgers said it was a great way to close out her home playing career at Tech.

"Just this game alone, they were ranked No. 17 and we won," Hilgers said.

"I think that the win also left a memorable impression on Tech fans, so hopefully they will come back out here next year again."

Tech matched the conference win total of last year gaining the Red Raiders 10th win of the season against the Wildcats.

The win will give the Red Raiders momentum and confidence, as they travel to Kansas and Oklahoma to close out their regular season schedule, Hughes said.

"The confidence we gained from this match will definitely carry us into the next two matches," Hughes said of the Red Raiders.

"This win sealed our spot in the NCAA tournament."

Owens leads Tech to 84-75 win over North Texas

DENTON (Special) — For the second time in as many games, Texas Tech men's basketball forward Cliff Owens led the Red Raiders to a win, this time an 84-75 triumph over North Texas Saturday at the Super Pit.

The junior from Santa Fe, Texas, scored 18 points and 10 rebounds to lead the Red Raiders to their second win of the young season.

Owens, who was 8-of-12 from the floor, led the hot shooting Tech squad, who shot 55 percent from the floor, while holding North Texas (0-2 overall) to under 36 percent from the floor.

Red Raider guard Stan Bonewitz finished with 12 points, and Tech point guard Rayford Young had nine in the contest.

The Red Raiders had a 45-39 half-time lead after having leads as big as 14 points in the first stanza.

Even so, the Eagles stormed back and took a 69-67 lead with 8:25 left in the game when North Texas guard Chris Davis scored.

North Texas was led by guard Dominic Hardie, who finished with a career-high 19 points.

Davis finished with 13 points, while forward Brandon Gilbert had 10.

But after the Eagles took the small lead, the Red Raiders took control of the game, hitting six-of-seven free-throw attempts in the waning moments to pull out the victory.

"We played well down the stretch," Red Raider coach James Dickey said.

"We wanted to get the ball inside the second half. I'm glad we got out of here with a win."

Tech is next in action at 7 p.m. Wednesday with a game against New Mexico State at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Fees burn students once again

It's a war that has continued since time began. Traffic and parking vs. students. But the winner of each battle is always the same.

In the latest fight (at the Nov. 13 Board of Regents meeting), traffic and parking won again. Regents approved a 15 percent fee increase for the department.

Laura Hipp
Editor

Did they ask for student input? Did anyone care as the gavel hit the desk? No. And from my experience at regent meetings, there is barely a pause before fees skyrocket with the word "approved."

This new money will go to a department that put students, faculty and staff on a waiting list for a parking sticker that is as long as the number of donors to the Horizon Campaign. Some staff members who receive on-campus parking stickers arrive on campus for work, get harassed by the gatekeeper, then drive around and find a space just in time to make them late for work.

There were two reasons given for the price hike — salary increase and arena debt.

The employees of traffic and parking may receive a 5 percent raise, and this deeper dig into our pockets will cover that. But the word to remember is "may." Their salary increase has not been approved, so in theory it may not happen. But it probably will.

Not to say everyone in the department doesn't deserve a raise, but some of them do not.

The remainder of the increase will cover a $1 million debt from the United Spirit Arena.

Rumors of poor structural quality are flying around the biggest addition to the Texas Tech campus. The latest one is that the walls can't stand the 90 mph winds West Texas has from time to time.

Any delays or debt from the $52-million Tech dream is being passed on to students' shoulders. The arena fund already has our money. It also has money from businesses and alumni.

So when it goes over budget, who do the powers that be turn to? The students. Why? Because it's too embarrassing to go to the rich graduates and tell them about the mistakes and hit them up for more money.

Students wouldn't mind increases in fees if it was for a good cause. The library and the University Center could be updated with the right funds.

But asking for money for a department where the "customer service" mantra isn't heralded never will coax a positive reaction from the students.

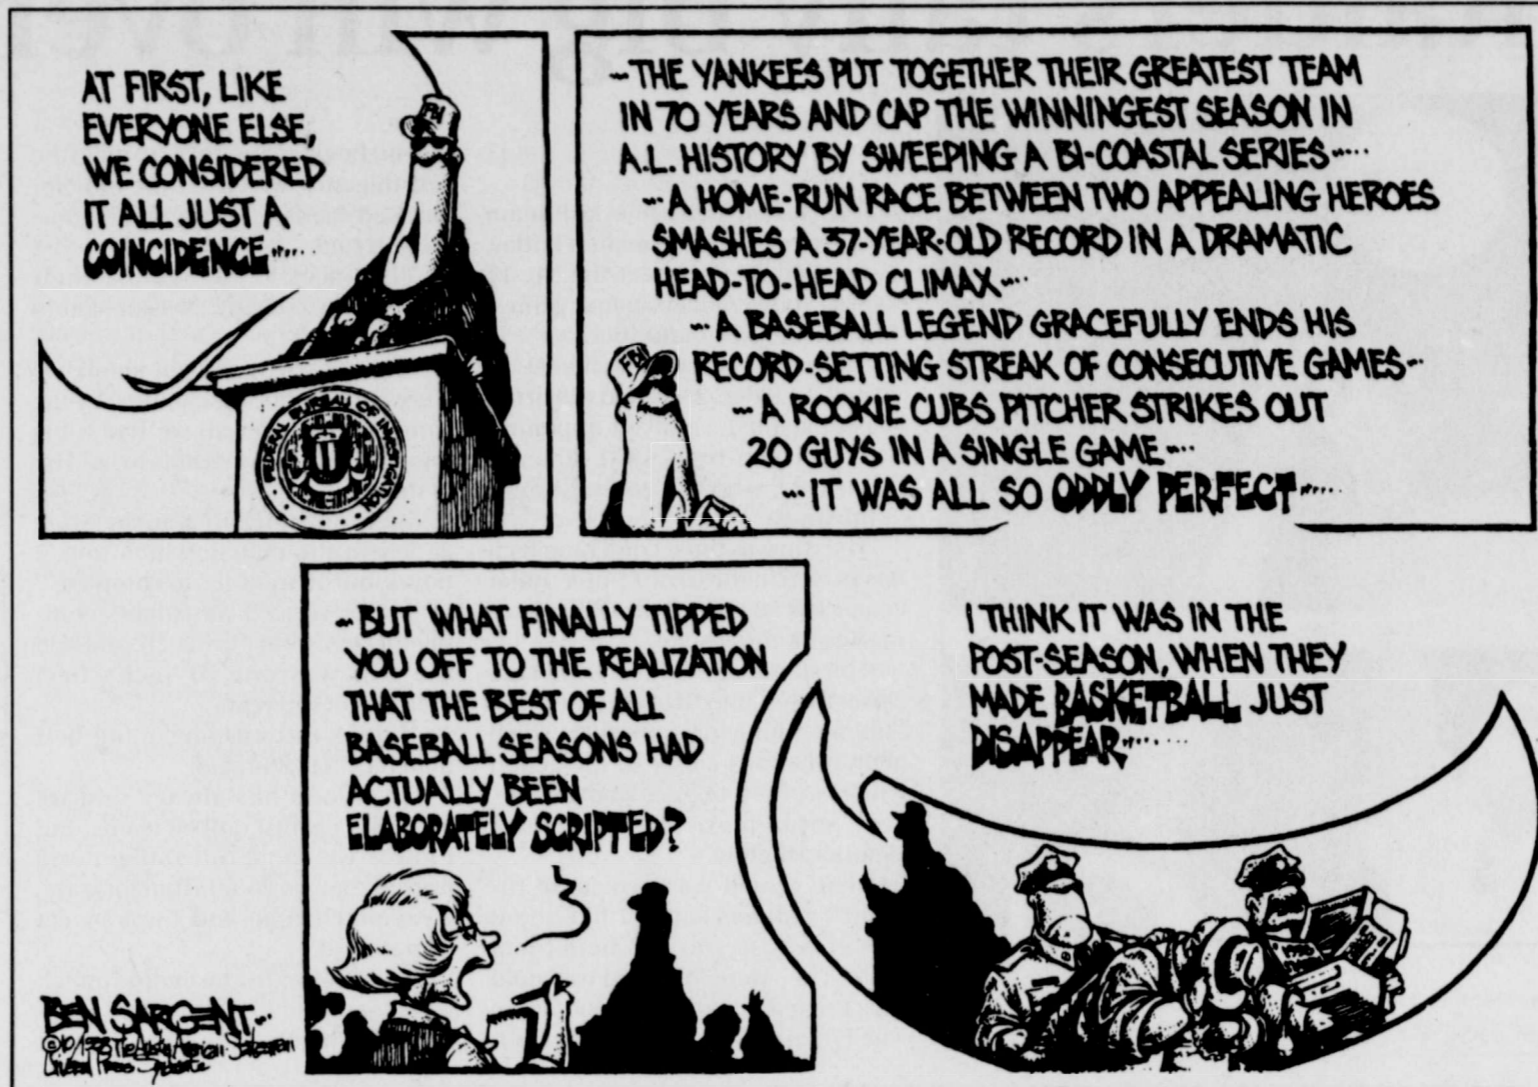

Comments from the customers is what traffic and parking needs to hear. Those officials should speak to the Student, Faculty and Staff senates hear the complaints.

They'll never learn about their public while locked in those little booths.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

More parking problems trouble Tech student

To the editor: A couple of weeks ago I received what I thought was an unfair parking ticket. I just complained to my friends around me and grudgingly paid the $15 fine. After reading Matt Younkin's letter, I realized I was not alone, and the problem was farther-reaching than I had thought.

I got my ticket around 6:45 p.m. while I was attending a one-hour study session in the petroleum engineering building. I thought I was parked in a lot that was only reserved until 5:30 p.m. After I discovered my ticket the next day, I returned to the place I had parked to see what I did wrong and saw that it was one of about 10 spaces in the whole lot that was reserved until 11 p.m. I did not notice the signs that night because it was dark, and I was running late.

So, I guess a traffic and parking vulture was hanging around to nab me during the short hour I was parked there.

Why do they think it is necessary to rob the students who fork over hundreds of dollars to them for parking stickers?

We are treated unfairly. We have to pay enough to this school already without having to contribute to this little fund raiser, too. I was not parked in a handicapped space that night, or even taking up space that anyone else needed.

I got that ticket purely because traffic and parking thought I owed them more money.

Well I don't owe them any more, and I want my $15 back.

Team has good players, poor coaching staff

To the Editor: In my years as a student at Texas Tech, I have had an opportunity to watch and cheer for a few different Red Raider football squads. From Robert Hall, Bam and Lloyd Hill to Montae Reager, Donnie Hart and Ricky Williams one thing has remained constant.

The consistencies are the outstanding quality of the players and the shortcomings of the Spike Dykes' coaching staff.

The Red Raiders have had teams that should have been nationally recognized and playing in major bowl games. Instead, they have had to settle for the "the name changes every year" bowl games and probation.

This is not the fault of the players, who are some of the most athletically talented in the nation.

As seen against Oklahoma this weekend, the Tech coaching staff will never lead Tech to national prominence.

Instead of spending money on athletic facilities, it seems Tech should use the money to improve the coaching.

In short, it is time for Spike Dykes to retire honorably, and for Tech to find a coach, other than another "good old West Texas boy," who has his sights set on taking Tech to the pinnacle of college football.

Fee increase for parking should stop, not worth it

To the editor: Yep, you're right, it's me. The most hated man at traffic and parking has returned, and now I've got some more bones to pick on my way to a revolution. I happened to be scanning through The UD Wednesday and a most surprising thing crossed my eyes.

Traffic and parking is going to raise their fees. And what's more amusing about this whole thing is they expect us to take it.

When are we, as Tech students, going to stop letting traffic and parking kick us as we beg for another?

What's even more sad, is the Student Government Association hasn't done anything and already has justified it.

Blythe Clayton was quoted as saying nobody likes to pay extra money, but sometimes we have to? Oh yeah, Blythe?

Matt Younkin
telecommunications

Well, maybe you can explain to me why we as students have to pay for the salary increase at traffic and parking? I mean there are plenty of buildings on campus falling apart that I'd be happy to have repaired and renovated, but that's not an option, is it? We can pay traffic and parking more to ticket us.

Oh yea. Here T&P here's $15 for the ticket I owe you, could you please spit in my face and charge me another $5?

They also say they're raising the price to help pay for the arena parking. Funny, I've seen commuters parking on dirt for two years now, and they should pay so the chancellor has somewhere nice to park his car and so the alumni don't have to walk far to root for Tech? This is some sort of university.

The students get hit up to build the arena, we get hit up to build the arena's parking and then we still have to pay for tickets to see a stinking basketball game.

And what's even more frightening is some of the sheepish students here feel that's a square deal. Will I ever get to play basketball at the arena?

Hell no. Will there ever be any of the "super concerts" that the SGA promised to get our stupid minds to vote for fee increases?

Hell no. We've been lied to by our own student government. We were screwed, and they didn't even buy us dinner or kiss us goodnight.

And let me say this, if traffic and parking thinks they are getting underpaid, then they can cry me a river. If they don't like their job at Tech, then they can quit.

I hear Burger King is hiring. People think I'm being mean in my letters here, well, you better listen up and open your eyes, you freshmen especially.

These organizations are taking you for a ride. If you're tired of feeling used, then speak up. Let your voice be heard, cause it's not going to stop until someone stops it.

I'm well aware one man can't save the world, but I'm sure as hell going to try. And all I want to know is who's coming with me?

Lady Raiders fall to Monarchs

NORFOLK, Va. (Special) — Payback fell short for the Texas Tech Lady Raiders, as No. 15 Old Dominion defeated No. 12 Tech 84-65 Saturday at the Old Dominion Field House.

Things started out the Lady Raiders' (1-1 overall) way early when guard Rene Hanebutt put Tech up 2-0 with the games' first bucket at the 19:34 mark.

But then the Lady Monarchs (2-0 overall), aided by sophomore forward Lucienne Berthieu, poured on the next eight points to take an 8-2 lead less than four minutes into the game.

One of Hanebutt's three three-pointers brought Tech to within 13-9, but Old Dominion and Berthieu, who finished with a game-high 16 points, went on a 10-0 run that made the score 23-9 at the 10:56 mark of the first half.

But the Lady Raiders did slowly creep back with help from Tech post Angie Braziel.

The senior from Odessa scored five points in a five-minute span to help cut the Lady Monarch lead to two points, 34-32 with a little more than three minutes to go left in the first half.

The teams mostly traded buckets for the rest of the half until a Hanebutt three-pointer at the buzzer to cut the lead to 41-40 going into the locker room.

Hanebutt was the Lady Raiders' high scorer with 13 points. No other Tech player was in double digits.

Tech got its second lead of the game when Braziel scored the first points of the second half to put the Lady Raiders up 42-41.

But just like the first lead, this one would also be short lived.

Aided by six more points from Berthieu, the Lady Monarchs began to take over the game with an 11-4 run with less than 16 minutes left in the contest.

The Lady Raiders pulled within four, 54-50, after the run, but the Lady Monarchs exploded with a 21-6 that put the game away for good.

Tech tried to come back, but without the help of two major senior post players inside — Braziel and Cara Gibbs.

Both fouled out with about 10 minutes left in the game that featured a combined 39 fouls.

Along with the large number of fouls, both coaches, Tech's Marsha Sharp and Old Dominion's Wendy Larry, were given technical fouls in less than a two-minute span midway through the second half.

The Lady Raiders will look to comeback from the loss with a game against SMU at 8 p.m. today in Dallas.

The game will be televised by Fox Sports Southwest.

Unlike against the Lady Monarchs, Tech has had an easy team with the Mustangs over the past years.

The Lady Raiders are a combined 32-2 against SMU during Sharp's tenure including a 78-55 win over the Mustangs last season.

Aikman, Cowboys down Seahawks 30-22

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys keep winning and wondering just how good they are. Minnesota should provide the answer on Thursday.

Chris Warren got his revenge and Troy Aikman got another win to bolster his claim the Cowboys are back among the NFL's elite by defeating Seattle 30-22 on Sunday.

A radar-accurate Aikman threw two touchdown passes and Warren scored against his old Seattle teammates as Dallas rolled to its fourth consecutive victory, most since the Super Bowl season of 1995.

"This was a big win for us and now we get Minnesota and a real challenge to gauge ourselves and see where we are at," Aikman said. "I think we are starting to be considered one of the elite teams in the NFL, which is where this organization deserves to be."

Minnesota has a 10-1 record, best in the NFC.

"The Vikings will be a good benchmark for us to see how far we have progressed," said fullback Daryl Johnston of the Cowboys, who have bounced back from a 6-10 season that got coach Barry Switzer fired.

Aikman, disappointed the Cowboys (8-3) haven't gained much national notice in their first season under coach Chan Gailey, hit 28 of 42 passes for 296 yards. He also scrambled three times despite suffering a broken collarbone earlier in the

"Aikman is playing as good as any quarterback in the NFL right now," said Seattle coach Dennis Erickson. "And the Cowboys offense is the best we've seen all year."

Aikman's 18-yard touchdown pass to Billy Davis and Warren's 1-yard run in the fourth quarter were too much for the Seahawks to overcome, although Warren Moon threw his second touchdown pass, a 5-yarder to James McKnight.

It was Moon's 290th touchdown pass, third on the career list.

"The Dallas defense surprised me," Moon said. "They had a good pass rush."

"We're in trouble with our season. I never imagined we would be 5-6 with the personnel we have."

Warren, Seattle's career leading rusher, ran seven times for 52 yards on a 61-yard play drive and scored to give Dallas a 30-14 lead with 7:04 to go. Warren was let go by the Seahawks (5-6) so they could sign Ricky Watters.

Warren rushed 11 times for 65 yards and Watters had 16 carries for 66 yards.

Warren was pumped about his day.

"I'd be lying if I said it didn't matter," Warren said. "I wanted to show them I can still play."

The victory wasn't secure until cornerback Kevin Smith batted away a fourth-down pass at the Dallas 45 with less than three minutes to play. The Dallas defense played the second half without cornerback Deion Sanders, who aggravated a toe injury.

Red Raiders turnover 20-17 win to Sooners

By Jason Bernstein
Assistant Sports Editor

NORMAN, Okla. — Inopportune turnovers and an inconsistent offense once again plagued the Texas Tech Red Raider football squad.

Despite posting 42 points against the Texas Longhorns a week ago, Tech could only manage 17 points in its regular season finale, ending in a 20-17 loss at the hands of the Oklahoma Sooners Saturday.

Tech coach Spike Dykes was expected to pass former Red Raider coach Pete Cawthon on the all-time win list but failed to do so with the loss.

"This game is a story about missed opportunities," Dykes said. "It's a bad deal when you're just a few plays away and they made the plays when they had to. It's a tough loss and I guess ultimately it goes back to the battle of turnovers."

Tech (7-4 overall, 4-4 Big 12) which turned the ball over three times via the fumble route, could not overcome its own mistakes, a common theme in the squad's four losses this season.

The Red Raiders' four losses have come by a combined total of 14 points.

Saturday's contest started out promisingly for Tech, however, as the Red Raiders jumped out to a 10-0 lead behind a 27-yard Chris Birkholz field goal and a 16-yard pass from quarterback Rob Peters to flanker Derek Dorris for the game's first touchdown.

Tech drove the ball for 90 yards on 17 plays during its first two possessions, taking over six minutes off the clock.

But the Sooner defense, ranked ninth in the nation heading into the game, stiffened, and the Red Raiders were unable to add to their lead.

"I don't think they (Oklahoma) did anything different," Peters said. "We just didn't make the plays that we should have made. I didn't do as well as I'd like to, and we just didn't move the ball."

But the Sooners' first score did not come on offense as linebacker Ontei Jones blocked a 50-yard field goal attempt by Birkholz.

Defensive end Darryl Bright picked up the ball and rumbled 48 yards for the first Oklahoma points of the afternoon.

"I think that was a big turning point," Peters said of the blocked field goal. "You make a play like that in the kicking game and score a touchdown off of it, it's a big motivation for you. That (play) got the crowd going and got their defense going. I think that had a big effect on the game."

Despite only a three-point lead at the half, the Red Raiders dominated every offensive category, accounting for 181 total yards compared to Oklahoma's 57 yards in the first two quarters of play.

Tech failed to put the Sooners away, leaving the door wide open for a second half comeback by Oklahoma.

"They've got good athletes and players," Peters said of the Sooner squad.

"When you give a team like that a chance or a glimmer of hope, they take full advantage of it."

The Sooners (5-6 overall, 3-5 Big 12) did take full advantage of Red Raider miscues as Peters fumbled the ball early in the third quarter, leading to an Oklahoma touchdown and a 14-10 Sooner lead.

As the third quarter came to an end, Tech's offense had sputtered for 31 yards while the Sooner running attack had hit its groove with second-string running back Jermaine Fazande.

Sooner starter De'Mond Parker was injured in the first quarter, leaving the rushing chores to Fazande, who finished with 111 yards on 22 carries and a touchdown.

But the Red Raiders, after falling behind 20-10 with 4:50 to play, showed signs of life as senior quarterback Matt Tittle replaced Peters in Tittle's final regular-season game as a Red Raider.

Tittle directed the offense to a six-play, 64-yard touchdown drive, culminating with a 10-yard Ricky Williams run.

After a three-and-out showing from Tech's SWARM defense, Tittle and the Red Raiders took the field with 2:22 left in the contest.

Tech stormed down the field to the Oklahoma 44-yard line where Williams lost a fumble at the Sooner 37, sealing the win for the boys from Norman.

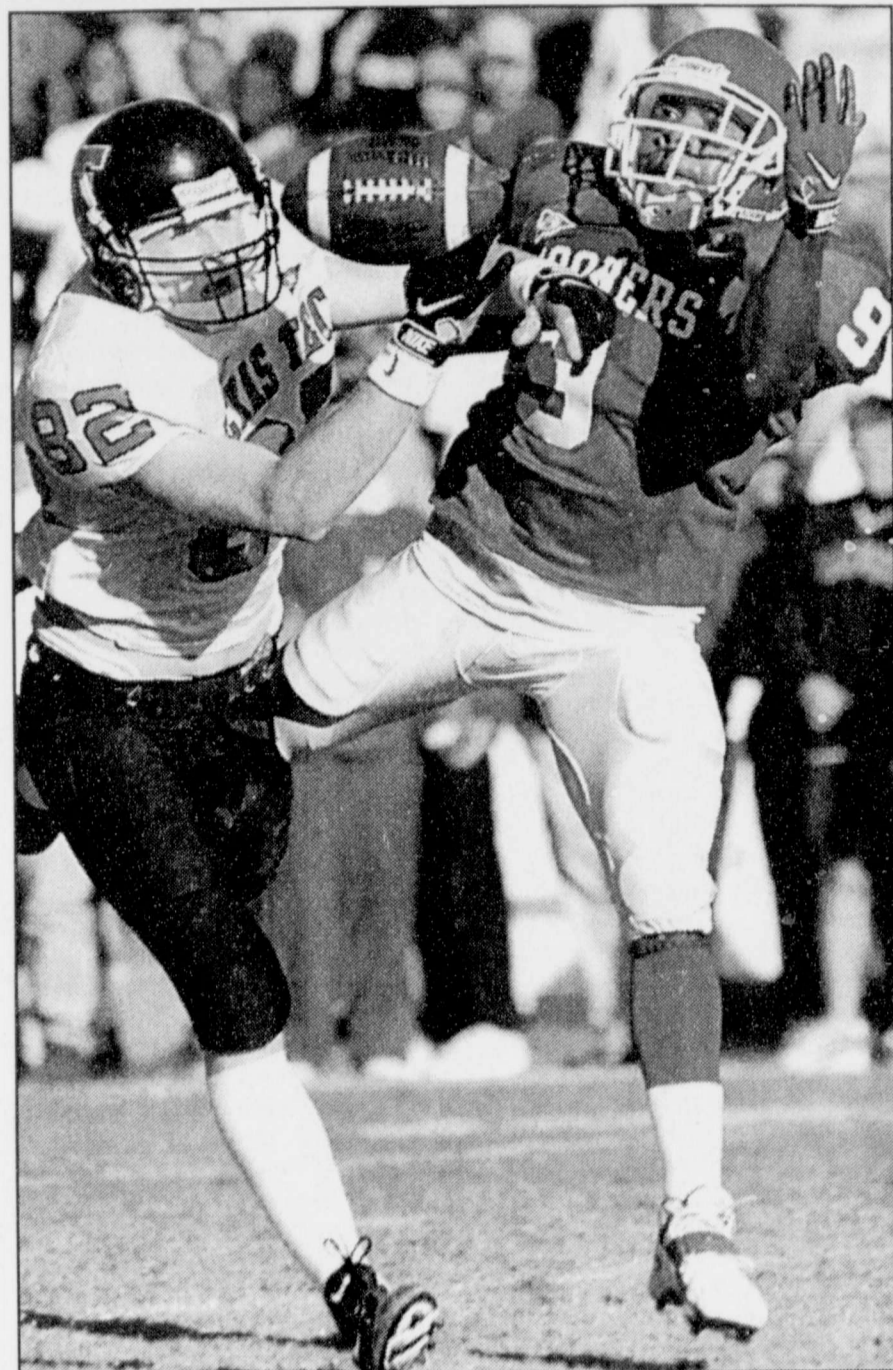

In all, Williams finished his sophomore campaign with a 119-yard effort on 25 carries and a touchdown against the Sooners.

The Peters-Tittle duo combined for 207 yards on 16-of-35 passing with one touchdown.

But for the third time in Tech's four losses, the offense outgained its opponent but failed to put points on the board.

Wide receiver Donnie Hart finished the day with one catch for 21 yards but failed to have an impact for the Tech offense.

"When it comes down to it, you've got to overcome the mistakes to win,"

Wade Kennedy/The University Daily
Bobble: Red Raider wide receiver Donnie Hart bobbles the ball during the Red Raiders' 20-17 loss to Oklahoma Saturday in Norman, Okla. The loss was Tech's second-straight to the Sooners. The Red Raiders finished the season having lost four of their last five games.

Dykes said. "They blocked a routine field goal, which takes a big effort. We had an opportunity to block their last field goal and we couldn't do it. They made the play when they had to." Aside from the loss to the Sooners, Tech's season has been somewhat tarnished with a fourth loss in five games, defensive end Montae Reagor said. "It's very disappointing," Reagor said. "We should have been 8-3 without a doubt. We knew coming into this ballgame we would have a chance to win, and we just didn't get the job done. It's very frustrating."
