Martial artist receives blackbelt

By Laura Hensley
Staff Writer

Crimsoned faced with sweat trickling down his brow, he took a focused blow to the head. His vision blurred and all he could feel was the floor. He was down.

The cut on his ear was now burning, but he could still hear. "Come on Darryl. Get up. You can do it. Get up."

The voices came from everywhere. He collects his thoughts and energy, crouches and then stands up, ready for more.

Darryl Robbins, University Center activities specialist, not only tested his karate skills last week but also his fighting spirit and heart in order to achieve the highest rank in karate — the black belt. In front of an audience of many friends, family and co-workers, Robbins performed his exercises and fought to achieve his goal.

"It's nice to know people are rooting for you to get back up as badly as you want to get back up it helps," Robbins said. "When you are down and you're dizzy and can't see straight. It's important to hear that cheering section. It helped me."

With tremendous concentration and determination, Robbins took hits from other black belts to demonstrate his endurance and fighting spirit at the end of the test.

"It does hurt and that will alter your focus, if you allow it," Robbins said. "But at that point in time, the test is not so much about technical skill, but it is about heart and getting back up once you've been knocked down and finished what you have started."

A panel of six black belts tested, judged and decided to award him the honor. After the grueling two-hour long test consisting of exercise repetition and sparring, he was all smiles.

"I'm glad it's over," he said. "It's worthwhile. It's been an uphill climb for five years. Now I can sit back and relax for a few days."

Robbin's first interest in the martial arts began long ago as a child. At the age of 5, he saw Bruce Lee for the first time in the movie, "The Green Hornet."

"I used to be the little kid who would run around in his underwear with the towel behind them playing Superman or Batman," he said.

As a young child, he always wanted to take karate courses, but his

Judge OKs Lewinsky interview

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge Saturday ordered Monica Lewinsky to submit to an interview sought by House prosecutors in President Clinton's impeachment trial or "forfeit her protections" under her immunity deal with Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr.

Democrats assailed Starr for intervening in the dispute. Lewinsky's attorney said she would comply with the judge's order but Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, asked Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist to block the interview.

Starr, acting on House prosecutors' behalf, won the emergency order from U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson, who said Lewinsky could do the interview with House managers directly or request that Starr's office be present.

Lewinsky flew to Washington on Saturday as the House prosecutors pressed to do the interview quickly. "We'll comply with it," her attorney, Jacob Stein, said of Johnson's order.

"We're, as I see it, duty bound to assist the House of Representatives and their managers in the process," Starr told TV crews staked out at his home.

His spokesman, Charles Bakaly, said later that "Under the same legal analysis that Judge Johnson ruled that we had to make Monica Lewinsky available for the House, we would be willing to make her available to the White House. If the White House were to ask us to do that, we would honor that request."

The White House did not immediately take up Starr's offer. "We are respecting the will of the Senate and abiding by its procedures, unlike the House managers," spokesman James Kennedy said late Saturday.

Meanwhile, congressional sources who spoke on condition of anonymity, said House prosecutors hoped to interview Lewinsky Sunday afternoon, but that final plans had not been made.

In another development, former Clinton political adviser Dick Morris said he had agreed to meet with the House impeachment managers Sunday afternoon at a House office building.

Clinton's lawyers and Senate Democrats were outraged that House prosecutors sought to interview Lewinsky before the Senate decides whether witnesses will be called in the impeachment trial, and that they would not be allowed to attend.

Harkin's letter to Rehnquist said, "such questioning would violate the Senate's sole authority under ... the Constitution to try impeachments" because Senate trial rules require witnesses to be interviewed with both sides present.

Harkin said he was asking Rehnquist to use his authority as the presiding officer in the Senate trial to prevent Lewinsky from being interviewed.

Tech, Army make deal to provide credit to recruits

By Matt Green
Staff Writer

Texas Tech has reached an agreement with the U.S. Army to participate in the Concurrent Admissions Program.

ConAP is a program which allows Army recruits to enroll in college prior to entering basic training. Once enrolled in a college, all of the credits a soldier receives throughout the course of his or her training are transferred to that school.

Capt. Thorston Littau, recruiting company commander, explained the program's benefits to new Army recruits.

"The benefit to the applicant is that if they have met the requirements of Texas Tech, then will be able to return after their service with their credits already in place," Littau said.

ConAP is sponsored in part by the Servicemembers Opportunity Colleges.

The SOC was established in 1972 to allow career soldiers to obtain college degrees while serving in locations that would not allow them to attend conventional colleges.

The SOC is available to all soldiers, while ConAP is exclusive to the Army. Littau explained the need for the different program.

"We are seeing a lot more soldiers who are only serving one, two to six year tour and then going to college,"

Littau said. "This program allows them to transfer credits with less paperwork."

Lt. Col. Gary Mugleston, battalion commander, was responsible for persuading Tech to participate in the program.

"We recognize Texas Tech as a major national university and are very pleased to add them to the program," Mugleston said.

Mugleston also explained the added convenience the program offers to soldiers.

"We try to make it so that an individual can pick a school and a field they are interested in, and participate in programs, which will benefit them in those areas," Mugleston said.

Active duty soldiers are allowed to enroll in college courses, which are taught at education centers, on Army posts or at nearby colleges. These credits can be applied to either a two or four year degree.

The program allows for up to 90 credit hours earned during military service to be transferred to a soldier's home university, with the requirement that at least 30 hours be completed at the university itself.

Tech has accepted the ConAP, but several specifics of the program, including how many hours they will accept for transfer, are still being worked out with Admissions and Records. The program is expected to be fully in place within the next several weeks.

Tech student dead

By Wayne Hodgin
Managing Editor

Texas Tech student Robert Nethon Johnson of Huntsville is dead after a one-car roll over at the 500 block of Alcove Avenue. The accident occurred at about 3:20 a.m. Sunday.

Bill Morgan, Lubbock Police Department public information officer, said Johnson's vehicle seemed to be traveling at a significant rate of speed and alcohol was probably a major factor in the accident.

"There was a large number of alcoholic containers in and around the truck and in close proximity of the victim," Morgan said.

Johnson was traveling alone, and no other cars were involved.

"He was clearly dead when officers arrived on the scene and was verified by Lubbock EMS," Morgan said.

Morgan said the vehicle was traveling south on and unpaved section of Alcove Avenue near Reese Air Force Base heading toward Fourth Street.

Before the vehicle hit pavement, Morgan said, evidence showed Johnson hit his brakes on his red Jeep Cherokee and his brakes locked.

Morgan said the truck barreled and rolled side over side about 5 1/2 times, about the length of 1/2 block. Johnson was probably ejected during the first or second roll, Morgan said.

The investigation is not complete, Morgan said, and although alcohol and speed are reasonably inferred, an autopsy is pending.

Morgan said it did not appear that Johnson was restrained in a seat belt. He was a freshman in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Roe vs. Wade decision spurs Congressional action

Seven abortion bills to go before Congress

By Christy Biddy
Staff Writer

Seven bills, which were not passed during the last session of the Texas Congress, will go before Congress again this session.

The focus of the bills include abortion, women and children's health, parental involvement and informed consent.

Senate Bills 27 and 30 and House Bills 342 and 343 will restore parents the right to be involved in the abortion decisions of their minor daughters.

The Texas Right to Life committee states studies have indicated when parental involvement legislation is passed not only does the abortion rate drop but the pregnancy rate drops as well.

Studies also have indicated younger women are at a greater risk of injury from an abortion since their bodies are not fully developed.

Anne Noser, a sophomore nursing major from Houston, believes the bills will enlighten minor women to alternatives to abortion.

"A lot of times if you get in a situation like that you might be afraid to talk to your parents," Noser said. "With the law getting the parents involved it might help them see another way besides abortion."

The other three bills, Senate Bill 65 and House Bills 36 and 181, will require abortion providers to inform women about the risks of and alternatives to abortion.

Unlike other invasive surgical procedures, abortion providers are currently not required by law to inform women about the physical, emotional, and psychological risks of abortions.

The Texas Right to Life committee states one out of every 10 women who obtain an abortion suffer from major complications.

The committee lobbied for these

Friday at the Lubbock County Courthouse Gazebo, members of Lubbock Right to Life gathered to remember the babies lost to abortion.

Jan. 22 marked the 26th anniversary of the controversial abortion legislation Roe vs. Wade.

The Lubbock Right to Life chapter began the service with a prayer and followed with motivational Christian music by Junior Vasquez, Lubbock musician.

The program began at 5:30 p.m. and lasted one hour. Friends and family huddled together to stay warm and give spiritual help to those in attendance.

"In 26 years, over 38 million unborn children have lost their lives to abortion," said Kimberly Rieken, press secretary of the Lubbock Right to Life program.

Rebecca Martinez was at the program with her son, Alvin, worshipping at the courthouse to rejoice the life and gift given for Alvin.

Martinez, a student at South Plains College, called Alvin her "recycle baby." Martinez adopted Alvin after someone else decided not to abort him.

"If it wouldn't have been the choice of someone else to save a life,

I would not have my little miracle," Martinez said.

Martinez's advice to those, young and old, who are confused and need help about abortion is to find an agency to help yourself and your baby.

"There's an answer, find a childcare center where they can help you get your life back or even finish your education," Martinez said.

Steve Beasley, college director of First Church of Nazarene, commented on his reason for believing that pro-life is a positive answer.

Students offered free relationship counseling

By Misty Dawn Reed

Arguing with a significant other is often a common part of being in a relationship. However, when the arguing increases and egos are crushed, what can couples do to prevent the relationship from crumbling?

Texas Tech students have the privilege of utilizing an on-campus Relationship Enhancement Center. This service is free to Tech students, and they can also bring a family member with them for free.

Outside help in the community costs about $100 an hour, said Dr. Eileen Nathan, associate director of the center.

Founded in the early 1980s, the counseling center was originally called the Marriage and Family Development Center. Three years ago it changed its name to The Relationship Enhancement Center.

This title is more inclusive than just marriage, suggesting different types of couples in different stages of relationships.

The counseling center reaches a variety of couples, whether they are married, engaged or just dating. It also counsels same and opposite sex couples.

Aside from changing its name to be more inclusive, the new title bears an emphasis on enhancement in relationships.

"There is an accent on growth, not just fixing," said Dr. Hal Stevens, one of the doctors working at the center.

It is available for couples who are looking to improve their relationship, as well as learning to communicate better, Stevens said.

The center is also available to couples who are finding difficulties in their relationship.

"When one person is discontent, it is a relationship problem," Nathan said.

The center helps couples with communication issues and teaches them how to speak and argue more effectively to help prevent and resolve conflicts, Nathan said.

Stevens and Nathan explained many conflicts among couples originate from differences in family origins. People grow up in different environments and have different values, traditions and ways of relating.

Stevens said counseling can help their communication styles become more complementary.

Couples counseling helps to provide insight, explanations and evoke empathy, Nathan said.

The counselors help people gain "a better understanding of patterns in communication and recognize when they get off track so the issue can be resolved," Nathan said.

Stevens said problems between couples may also arise from one or both partners having a history of trauma or abuse, causing lower self-esteem and leading to problems in intimacy.

The counseling center also works beyond the couples involved. They work with remarried families and help stepchildren learn to cope with changes.

Pre-marital counseling is also available.

Nathan said the center has helped at least a hundred couples per year over the past 10 years.

When couples come in for counseling, some of the common goals set are to argue less, communicate more effectively, have more fun, increase intimacy and make it through school together.

Students learn to deal with everyday stresses and not take out frustrations and anxiety on their partner.

When the couple decides to seek counseling, they are encouraged to come together. Individually attending means they don't get the social context, Stevens said.

The sessions are usually short-term. Three to eight sessions are typical.

A graduate student in advanced doctoral studies is supervised by Nathan or Stevens during the session.

To make an appointment, students should call the center at 742-3674 or stop by 214 West Hall. They should tell the receptionist the nature of their visit so they will be set up with a counselor prepared to deal with their issue.

The center is open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and also 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday to accommodate the variety of schedules between students.

The University Counseling Center also helps students dealing with a wide range of issues, including career choices, sexual assaults, death, depression, eating disorders, self-growth and many other issues facing college students.

Christians vote for unity despite differences

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nine Christian denominations voted Sunday to move toward a broad affiliation of churches — a rare victory in a four-decade campaign to unite 20 million Protestants, despite their differences.

"We can do it. We must do it, and we did it," said a euphoric Vivian Robinson, president of the Consultation on Church Union.

But it may be too soon to celebrate. Presiding Episcopal Bishop Frank Griswold noted that the Episcopalians' approval of the document depends on the group's success in hashing out leadership differences.

"If we can't resolve this question we might have to go our separate ways," he says.

It was almost 40 years ago that group's Presbyterian and Episcopalian founders, citing Jesus' call for "one faith, one baptism, one God," called for a Protestant superchurch. When the plan was derailed by denominational loyalties and disagreements, the group opted for a proposal for church affiliation without merger.

The new document asks participating churches to declare publicly in the year 2002 that they are Churches Uniting in Christ. These churches would agree to share one baptism and to recognize one another as "authentic expressions of the one church of Jesus Christ."

They would also fully accept one another's ministers as "instruments of God's grace" by the year 2007.

The churches would regularly celebrate Eucharist together and join forces to fight racism.

But while the delegates walked into meetings humming "Kum Ba Ya" and "We Shall Overcome," tensions persisted.

The most troubling issue, said the Rev. David Taylor, former general secretary of the union and a Presbyterian minister, is one of power and control. "(It) is the respective place of bishops in the life of the church and the whole community of the baptized."

The Episcopalians believe in a succession of bishops dating back to the early church as a mark of continuity and unity. In the past, the union has asked the Presbyterians, who do not have bishops, to add a similar office of oversight.

The Presbyterians, who favor decentralization and less structure, rejected the idea. They have proposed instead recognizing a corporate oversight body made up of clergy and lay elders.

The second draft of the document deleted references to bishops, a move that upset Griswold.

So the delegates approved an amendment calling for meetings of church representatives to clarify what it means to recognize one another's ministries.

The union also includes the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), the International Council of Community Churches, the United Church of Christ, the United Methodist Church, the African Methodist Episcopal Church, the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, and the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church.

The last three are black denominations. While some black religious leaders have no interest in merging with white churches, the Rev. Cyrus Keller, Sr., an African American Episcopal minister, believes black churches can have a dramatic impact on the union's theology and ministry.

"Once we become recognized as a player on the field there will be a difference in the whole approach to being Christian and witnessing," he said.

bills to be passed during the last session of Congress. Certain factors against the committee, however, kept the bills from being passed.

Monica Hatcher, director of media relations for the Texas Right to Life committee, said there was full-time lobbying in the 75th Congress.

"But we were unable to get them passed because of a technical point," said Hatcher.

Hatcher did not state what technical point kept the bills from being passed.

In addition, she said leader support was not there for the bills.

Hatcher was more optimistic about the new leaders in the Texas Congress.

"I think that they will be more open."

Hatcher believes leaders in both the Texas House of Representatives and the Texas Senate will support the bills.

all followers of Christ, then if life is important to Christ then it is important to me," Beasley said.

Anti-abortion is an unpopular position, but it is not about public opinion polls, it is about truth and life, Beasley said.

During the service of Right to Life,

St. Elizabeth's University Parish gave a Mass for all members and religions to worship together with a candle light, prayer and songs of praise.

Bill Weaks, president of Right to Life, would like to portray a more positive image for the Right to Life program and not be known as the anti-abortion.

For information, call the Lubbock Right to Life Committee at 793-9627.

Extended time for add/drop

The add/drop period for spring 1999 has been extended to the close of business on Wednesday. Students need to go to 100 West Hall to complete add/drop procedures. Registrar Don Wickard said the add/drop period was extended because of the long lines in financial aid.

Black Panthers ride again, this time in a campaign bus

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Thirty years ago, David Hilliard walked the streets of West Oakland with a black leather jacket on his back and an M-1 carbine in his hands.

These days, the former Black Panther chief of staff makes the trip as a candidate for City Council — no gun in his grip, less hair on his head, but the same rallying cry:

Power to the people.
"This is the beginning of trying to really restructure and to rebuild another movement," he says.

Hilliard is part of a political flashback of sorts.

His campaign is being managed by Black Panther co-founder Bobby Seale and was inspired by the comeback of another '70s icon, governor-turned-mayor Jerry Brown.

But Hilliard says the old Black Panther goals of better housing and schools are still relevant.

"I want to resurrect our dreams," he says.

For Hilliard, the dream began as a young man growing up in downtown-the-heels neighborhoods in West Oakland.

"This is where we started," he says while leading a bus tour through streets lined with shabby Victorian houses.

Stop No. 12 on the Black Panther Legacy Tour is the street corner where Bobby Hutton was fatally shot by police in April 1968 after a protracted gun battle.

Stop No. 11 is the church where the Black Panthers began serving free breakfasts to poor children.

Raising his voice above the engine's rumble, Hilliard says both sites are key to understanding "probably the most misunderstood organization in the history of the civil rights movement."

"You know about our imagery and about the guns ... but you don't know about the (community) programs."

The Black Panther Party was founded in 1966 by Seale and Huey Newton, who met as students at Oakland's Merritt Junior College and were working at a city anti-poverty center.

Seale, joining Hilliard at the microphone for the bus tour, remembers hatching the party's founding manifesto, the Ten Point Program, late one night.

18th annual FMX bash crowded but worthwhile

Sebastian Kitchen/The University Daily
Jammin': Monster Magnet lead singer Dave Wyndorf sings Friday at the KFMX Birthday Bash.

By Sebastian Kitchen
Staff Writer

Ten bands helped KFMX-94.5 celebrate its 18th birthday Friday in loud fashion. Continuous music occupied two stages for more than six hours as a sold out crowd wandered between two stages.

Everyone seemed to enjoy what they witnessed, but most of the people in attendance missed out on a lot of music.

The music was great but the setup made it impossible to see near everything.

The people at FMX know how to throw a birthday party. They just do not know how to make sure people can see all of the festivities. I wanted to see a lot more than I was able. The lineup was the strongest in the history of the rock station, but it would have been nice to see and hear more of the music.

Jackyl, Monster Magnet, The Nixons, Dee Snider and Kid Rock headlined the list of talent.

Although most of the sold-out crowd has already crammed into the two venues, Kid Rock was the first to raise the level of energy at the event.

Not to say the musicians were not good and people did not enjoy them, but anticipation of the Kid seemed to be high.

Kid Rock's energy, intensity and attitude set the tone for the rest of the evening.

A hard act to follow, the remaining bands had to work to maintain the level of what Kid Rock achieved.

Dee Snider's music was older than some of the people and some of the bands in attendance, but the crowd loved the oldest musician on the bill.

Still in leather and dyed hair, the former lead singer of Twisted Sister and his band had a definite presence. Snider still had a surprisingly high level of energy for his age. His experience and years as a stage performer were very noticeable. He knew how to work the crowd.

The Nixons have been playing in Lubbock for years but on Friday night, people were able to hear material they had never heard before. Everyone seemed to enjoy the new music and how the band combined the songs with older favorites like "Sister."

Many times, new material does not go over well with crowds who want to hear old favorites. The Nixons gift to FMX was a great combination of the two.

Monster Magnet's recent rise to a higher level of popularity was boosted by hit songs like "Space Lord" and "Powertrip."

Monster Magnet lead singer Dave Wyndorf led the band's charge.

People may have been tired from pushing through the crowd to get from one stage to the other, but they managed to keep up the energy during the Monster Magnet set — most of them.

One girl was pulled from the crowd by security after passing out. Security somehow managed to keep the packed, sweaty crowd safe and off the stage.

Safe, well, sort of. Wyndorf held a flaming guitar over his head before dropping it on the stage. A member of the band's crew put the fire out.

After leaving the stage, the band returned at fans' requests.

Some people had already left to see Jackyl.

Anyone who watched the entire Monster Magnet set could not humanly see but a couple of Jackyl songs. Some crowd-members watched people leaving as they headed toward the second stage to see the band.

A great line-up. Everyone enjoyed what they saw. Too bad people could not see more and could not see it without pushing through hundreds of other sweaty people.

Columnist gives tips for semester

Welcome back to Texas Tech and a whole new semester full of headaches and ulcers.

I am not going to complain about the parking problem or the low level of student involvement in current issues. I think the past 400 or so reporters and columnist of The UD during the last 20 years have done a pretty thorough job in that area, to no avail.

However, lucky for us, there are plenty of other things on this campus to cause the average student pain and suffering.

For most students it's the end of the semester that causes the greatest amount of anxiety.

This is understandable considering the pressures of final exam time and the hope of graduation slowly fading into the distance. For me and many other students however, it's the beginning of the semester that creates the biggest headaches and ulcers. The first couple of weeks in the semester usually have me running around campus and standing in hour-long lines just to hear something I don't want to hear.

After seven semesters on the campus I have discovered there are just some things you have to get used to. Such as:

- All lines are too long.
  - The first person you talk to will have no clue what you are talking about, much less know how to solve your problem.
  - Neither will the second.
  - There will be a longer line to see the person who can.
  - Your financial aid will be wrong.
  - Hope you don't need that money to buy books because you won't see that money for a long time.
  - If you threaten them, they do learn who you are and so does UPD. (Or so I have heard, because I would never do something like that.)
  - Administration has no sense of humor.
  - The bookstore won't have all of your books.
  - Yes, they did raise tuition again.
  - If you dropped a class because you didn't like the instructor, you will have the same instructor when you retake it.
  - Some things never change.

Pictures preserve memories of Tech

Would you like to win a trip to Acapulco for spring break? Do you want to be remembered in Texas Tech history forever? Would you like to own a copy of one of the best collegiate yearbooks in the nation?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, you need to purchase a copy of the 1999 La Ventana yearbook and have your picture taken.

Pictures for the yearbook will be taken one last time this week only — Jan. 25-29. Simply go to 209 in the University Center between the hours of 8:30 a.m. - noon and 1 p.m. - 4:30 p.m.

Since your picture will be printed for all to see, you should dress up and look your best.

The way you look in your picture will be how your friends and classmates will remember you 20 years down the road.

A copy of the award-winning La Ventana can be purchased for only $40 — that's less expensive than most high school yearbooks.

For students who are not returning in the fall, you can request to have your book mailed to you for an additional $6.

The La Ventana is giving away a free trip for two to Acapulco. The trip includes free airfare, hotel accommodations and food.

To be eligible for the drawing, all you have to do is get your picture made and purchase a yearbook. If you've already done so, then you are already eligible.

The winner will be announced in The UD during the second week of February.

Because we are a self-sufficient publication, and we do not use our own photographers for individual portraits, we charge a $5 sitting fee plus an additional $1 for every other group page you wish to be listed on.

Thornton Studios of New York will be taking the portraits. They will send you proofs of your picture in the mail, and you have the opportunity to purchase your pictures.

If you decide not to order any, simply write "yearbook" on the back of the photo you want in the La Ventana, mail it back to Thornton and that is the picture that will be used.

Remember: Buy a copy of the 1999 La Ventana. Get your picture taken in the UC. Be remembered in Tech history. Qualify for a free trip to Acapulco.

Tyson Seibly is a junior design communication and journalism major from McKinney and the 1999 La Ventana editor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lines in Financial Aid just too long

To the editor: Maybe there should be a sign that says "Three hours from this point" or maybe one that says "No handguns allowed," at the beginning of the financial aid line.

My financial aid check should have been here at least two weeks ago, yet I still have not received it.

Last Friday, they told me my check had been posted and would be ready to pick up some time next week. After standing in line on two separate occasions for a grand total of five hours, they gave me more excuses as to why my check was not ready and told me to come again another day.

I have missed classes from standing in the lines and missed turning in homework because I don't have the books. There are the rumors that you hear while standing in line, such as, the guy taking notes in class on napkins because he didn't have the money for a notebook.

Then, there is the girl who has celebrated her 21 and 22 birthdays while standing in line.

I, for one, am glad that they give away free pizza at the bookstores; otherwise, I might starve.

Students depend on this money to be on time and handed out in a somewhat organized manner. Something must be done. Hire more employees, hire competent employees or most easily, why not just mail the checks?

It's not that hard guys, figure something out. Oh yeah, Montford, can I borrow a couple of bucks?

Office will answer parking questions

Contrary to popular belief, the mission of Traffic and Parking isn't to make your life miserable. Our long-range goals do not include how many tickets we can give each year or how many cars we can tow. Our vision does include not having to ever give a ticket or ever tow a vehicle. Believe it or not, we are here to help manage the huge traffic problem we and every other university campus must deal with.

Let's face it, we have somewhere between 20,000 and 25,000 students and about 4,000 faculty and staff members trying to park as close to their class or work areas as they can.

And, they are trying to do it at the same time of the day, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., every Monday through Friday. Talk about trying to put 10 pounds in a 5-pound bag.

Many of you probably don't believe it, but Texas Tech is very fortunate to have the parking we do have. Just talk to some of your friends at the University of Texas at Austin or even Texas A&M.

Actually, Traffic and Parking Services is here to serve the parking needs of the campus community, and we want to do the best job of it we can.

We really strive to provide quality customer service.

Traffic and Parking Services and The University Daily have joined together in an effort to promote customer service to the campus community by keeping you up-to-date on parking matters.

You, the user, are our most valuable resource.

We urge you to share your concerns, questions, suggestions and other input with us. Information gained through this input may be used to correct inefficiencies and promote positive customer relations. Initial ideas are:

1. If you have a question, just submit it, and we'll do what we can to get you an answer.

2. As time allows, we'll use this as a tool to notify students of upcoming changes, closures, etc.

3. To educate readers on facts to enable the campus community to form opinions rather than base them on rumor and conjecture.

4. To allow readers to submit ideas and concepts—the user is our best resource.

We look forward to your input. Please contact us: Traffic and Parking Services, Texas Tech University, P.O. Box 43161, Lubbock, Texas, 79409 or through campus mail at mailstop 3161.

IOC concludes investigation

(AP) — A six-man IOC investigative panel concluded its report Sunday morning into the cash payments, scholarships and other favors tied to Salt Lake's winning bid for the 2002 Winter Games.

The panel, which met for 15 hours Saturday and reconvened early Sunday, reported its findings to the IOC executive board.

IOC officials said the executive board began its own meeting to consider the evidence and make final recommendations.

The members were cited for accepting inducements — reportedly totaling close to $800,000 in cash and benefits — from various Salt Lake boosters.

There also were reports of lavish gifts, free medical care and other improper exchanges between the members and the Salt Lake bidders.

The IOC said six members appeared before the inquiry commission in person Saturday to defend themselves. They were not identified. Members who didn't appear were judged on written replies submitted earlier to the IOC.

Ganga of the Republic of Congo, who has been accused of accepting at least $70,000 of cash inducements, has defiantly proclaimed his innocence and vowed he'll never resign.

Sergio Santander, the IOC member from Chile who was among the six delegates questioned Saturday, said he did nothing wrong and indicated he had no plans to quit.

"I am certain that I didn't act incorrectly at any moment," Santander said in Lausanne on Sunday, hours before the report was released. "Whatever happens today, I will stay in a calm and secure position in the belief that truth will prevail."

Santander was implicated after Tom Welch, the former Salt Lake bid and organizing committee chief, said he donated $10,000 to Santander's campaign for mayor of a suburb of Santiago, Chile.

IOC leaders were also seeking to control the damage from the latest revelations in the unfolding crisis — that Australian officials used financial inducements to help Sydney win the right to stage the 2000 Summer Games.

Australian IOC executive board member Kevan Gosper said Saturday he saw nothing "sinister" in the $70,000 inducements offered by Australia's Olympics chief to two African IOC members the night before Sydney won the vote for the 2000 games.

some mistakes at times, but I think we really stayed with some discipline inside-out offense."

But the Lady Raiders had one last gasp left in them, roaring back to 40-38 with 7:12 left. After Braziel forced a steal from Reves, forward Keitha Dickerson missed a possible game-tying layup.

On the next possession, guard Selena Scott then made a bucket for the Jayhawks that started a 7-0 run that put their first victory over a top-10 team since 1994 away.

The win also preserved the Kansas' 18-game home win streak while breaking Tech's 16-game winning streak dating back to last November.

"If we would have made that one, it might have been a little different," Sharp said of Dickerson's shot. "But, give Kansas a lot of credit. They were scrambling a little bit today. They really needed a win, and we knew that they were going to come out and play with intensity."

Maryland edges Clemson

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Terence Morris tied the score with a short follow, then hit a baseline jumper with 14.4 seconds left in overtime, giving No. 4 Maryland an 81-79 victory over Clemson Sunday.

Morris, a sophomore, tied his career high with 26 points, but the most important points came in the final minutes. He converted Terrell Stokes' 3-point miss to tie it at 79, then hit the winning winning jump shot for Maryland (18-2, 6-1 Atlantic Coast Conference).

Dinner to raise local awareness

On Feb. 7, Texas Tech students, faculty and staff can experience a dramatization of how the world eats. Texas Tech Sociology Club, South Plains Food Bank, University Center Programs and Community Service Learning are sponsoring a Hunger Banquet.

The Hunger Banquet, a combination fundraiser and consciousness-raiser is a powerful tool that brings to life the inequalities in our world and challenges us, as the more economically fortunate, to realize how our decisions affect others in the world. Few leave a Hunger Banquet with full stomachs, but all leave filled with a greater understanding of the problems of global hunger and poverty and a motivation to do something about it.

More than 840 million people - one in five - do not get enough to eat, even more shocking, a high percentage of the world's population is either chronically malnourished or unable to meet their daily calorie needs. This includes 34 million Americans. Although hundreds of Hunger Banquets are staged each year, this is the second time a Hunger Banquet has been in Lubbock. This Hunger Banquet also will be one of the few intended specifically to raise money for the South Plains Food Bank.

If you attend you will eat dinner, but what you will eat will be determined randomly. You may be served a gourmet meal, soup or beans and rice.

Beyond the dinner there will be entertainment, speakers and thoughtful discussion about the experience.

Tickets are $5 for Tech students and $10 for all others. Tickets are available now until Feb. 5 UC Ticket Booth and all Select-a-Seat locations.

Events get Tech involved

Retreat trains student leaders

Student Organizations Services and Leadership Tech are offering a dynamic workshop for freshman and sophomore students who are interested in involving themselves at Texas Tech. The Emerging Leaders Retreat is a newly developed leadership initiative designed and marketed for new students at Tech who are not involved in student organizations or are beginning their involvement at Tech and/or in the Lubbock community. The retreat is for students who want to increase their involvement and develop leadership skills they can use in their organizations and in their careers.

The retreat will be held at Bishop Quarterman's Conference Center in Amarillo. While on the retreat, students can work with a variety of facilitators from the Tech community. Facilitators will conduct workshops on leadership and community involvement to educate and strengthen the resources of the students.

The students will form small groups who will design and implement their own community service project to carry out when they return to Lubbock. Students also will have the opportunity to make connections with new students and staff who may become friends and resources in the future. Any currently enrolled student with less than 60 hours and an overall 2.25 GPA are eligible to apply for the Emerging Leaders Retreat. Candidates will be selected on the basis of their desire to attend the retreat, improve their leadership skills and increase their involvement and future contributions with Tech and the community. Space is only available for 32 students to attend. Faculty, staff and students may submit nominations of students who meet the academic criteria and have the potential and desire for future involvement and contribution to Tech and Lubbock.

Participation in the Emerging Leaders Retreat is at no expense to students. All education sessions, resources, transportation, food and lodging are provided for the students who attend. Students will need to leave at 3:30 p.m. on Feb. 12 and return 2:30 p.m. on Feb. 14. There will be a closing dinner from 5-7 p.m. on March 3 after the community service projects have been completed.

The Emerging Leaders Retreat is a great opportunity for new students. Those interested in developing their leadership skills and becoming more involved with the Tech and Lubbock community should apply.

Applications and nominations for the retreat are due to Student Organizations Services, 210 University Center, by Feb. 1.

Organizations gather for fair

Interested in getting involved? Leadership Tech and Student Organization Services is sponsoring a Student Organization Fair to help students get involved in clubs and organizations on campus.

The fair will be from 10:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the University Center Courtyard.

There will be about 60 student organizations on hand to share information about their group and involve students in activities.

There is an organization for everyone at Tech.

Students can get involved in sports and service clubs, as well as special interest groups and groups that apply to their major or career field.

There are 10 categories of organizations, including: Honorary, Academic/Professional, International, Multicultural, Recreational, Religious, Service, Social Fraternities/Sororities, Residence Halls and Special interest.

Student organizations can likewise take advantage of this opportunity to recruit new members for their organizations.

Organization members can meet with potential new members and discuss the organization, its purpose and its members.

The Organization Fair is free and complementary refreshments will be available.

Entertainment also will be provided in the Courtyard.

Students can browse from table to table and learn how to become a member of any organization.

Students who would like to become involved in a student organization at Texas Tech should take ad-

Game Room changes look

The University Center Game Room has just completed a major face lift. Located in the West basement of the University Center, this area offers billiards, snooker, pool, ping pong and an assortment of video games.

The renovation included new carpet, new paint, new lighting, new furniture and a new layout to better serve you our patrons. There are ping pong tables that are used in professional tournaments. We also have installed two large television monitors that receive cable TV.

The Game Room is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. - 9 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. - 9 p.m. Sunday. The Game Room also is available for private parties and tournaments, please contact the games attendant for details.

Speaker tells personal story

In 1993, Billings, Mont., found itself the target of a series of vicious hate crimes. Rather than accept the growing climate of fear and intimidation, those in the community who were not targeted stood firm beside those who were.

This is a story of courageous Americans who chose to say, unequivocally, "Not In Our Town."

After becoming a target of these crimes, Tammie Schnitzer, took her story to the local newspaper and spearheaded the community's campaign against hate.

Tammie Schnitzer will share her story in a presentation titled "Not in Our Town" at 8 p.m. Thursday in the UC Allen Theatre.

For more information call UC Programs at 742-3621.

Charity needs volunteers

The Second Helpings Program at First United Methodist Church, serves a hot meal to between 100 and 300 hungry people every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The food that is served is from the South Plains Food Bank and donations made directly to the program at the church.

Volunteers are needed to help serve and prepare food on Saturday from 9 a.m. - 1:15 p.m.

Contact the Community Service Learning Office for more information and to sign up at 742-3621.

Tips offered for advisers

To continue the series of brown bag lunch discussions for student organization advisers, Student Organizations Services and Leadership Tech are sponsoring "Liability Issues and Resources for Student Organization Advisers" from 12:30 - 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the University Center Senate Room.

Jim Aldridge, Attorney and Director of Student Legal Services, will discuss issues of liability and methods of minimizing risks for student organizations and advisers.

He also will share the resources in his office that students and student organizations may utilize.

Advisers of student organizations play numerous roles while working with student organizations and their officers.

To assist advisers in better understanding, being more comfortable and confident and being more successful in their role, all advisers — new and experienced — are encouraged to take advantage of this opportunity for their own benefit as well as the organization that they advise.

Additional information about the Adviser Brown Bag Lunch Series may be obtained from Student Organizations Services, 210 University Center, 742-3621.

Magic show entertains

Men's hoopsters fall to Iowa St.

Ames, Iowa (Special)—The Texas Tech men's basketball team lost for the ninth time this season, dropping a 70-62 decision to the Iowa State Cyclones Saturday at the Hilton Coliseum in Ames, Iowa.

The Red Raiders never gained the lead in the game, as they fell to 10-9 on the season and 2-4 in Big 12 action.

Tech was without two starters, senior guard Stan Bonewitz, who underwent a hernia operation Saturday, and junior forward Cliff Owens, who suffered a second degree ankle sprain in practice Thursday.

Bonewitz has averaged 12 points per game, and Owens has averaged 13 points per game this season for the Red Raiders.

Iowa State pulled down 40 rebounds to Tech's 26. The Cyclones moved to 12-7 overall and 3-3 in Big 12 action.

The Red Raiders did not visit the free-throw line in the first half and did not take a shot from the charity stripe until the 9:00 mark in the second half.

Iowa State forward Martin Rancick scored 19 points as the Cyclones continued their dominance over the Red Raiders, winning five of the six all-time match-ups between the two teams.

Tech was led offensively by junior guard Rayford Young who scored 13 points.

Also scoring in double-digits for the Red Raiders were junior guard James Ware with 12 points and freshman Andy Ellis who tallied 10 points off the bench for the Red Raider offensive effort.

Tech will next face Texas A&M, who is coming off its first Big 12 win of the season with a 57-56 win over Baylor.

The Red Raiders battle the Aggies at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Reed Arena in College Station.

Tech defeated A&M 82-68 in the squad's first meeting Jan. 13 in Lubbock.

Duke weathers Red Storm offense

NEW YORK (AP) — The Duke Blue Devils (19-1) beat No. 8 St. John's 92-88 in overtime Sunday despite a career-high 40 points and 12 rebounds by Bootsie Thornton, who scored 23 of the Red Storm's final 36 points.

The win was Duke's 14th straight and it was the closest of the streak with only two of those games less than 20-point victories.

St. John's (16-4) was playing without its leading rebounder, Tyrone Grant, who is sidelined indefinitely with a broken right wrist, and nearly the entire team was in foul trouble in the second half. Still, the Red Storm stayed close, never letting Duke pull away and even taking a 76-75 lead with 1:37 left in regulation on a three-point play by Ron Artest.

Two free throws by Nate James with 9.3 seconds left gave Duke an 81-78 lead, but Artest, who had missed most of the second half with four fouls, hit a 3 with 1.1 seconds left to force the overtime.

Chris Carrawell had 17 points to lead six Blue Devils in double figures. Elton Brand had 16 points, 12 rebounds and seven blocked shots for Duke, while Trajan Langdon had 15 points.

Pride gets best of Lady Raiders

By Brent Dirks
Staff Writer

LAWRENCE, Kan. — What a difference a game makes.

After playing an almost flawless defense against Iowa State Wednesday, the No. 6 Texas Tech Lady Raiders looked merely mortal on both sides of the ball as Kansas muscled its way to a 55-45 upset win Saturday at Allen Fieldhouse.

"I thought it was an extremely physical game, and we didn't handle that very well from the outset," Lady Raider coach Marsha Sharp said. "I thought we got a little bit intimidated early, and it made us fight through some things. They were extremely physical and a lot bigger than we were."

The taller, bigger and more physical Jayhawks (14-6 overall, 4-3 Big 12) were able to throw Tech (17-2 overall, 6-1 Big 12) off track from the start of the contest.

"Early, we missed some shots that we should have made," said Tech guard Julie Lake. "I think that kind of got us down and threw things off. That affected the whole game. Personally, I don't think I made the shots I should have."

Even so, the Lady Raiders were able to scrape out small leads over the first part of the first half, even without one of their major offensive threats — guard Rene Hanebutt.

Hanebutt could only muster three points off 1-of-7 shooting from the floor. Combined, the Lady Raiders were 20-of-60 from the floor and 4-of-19 from three-point range.

The senior from Bowie sat out for the majority of the first half after picking up two quick fouls against the taller Kansas offense and couldn't find her mark in the second stanza. Most of that was due to the defensive efforts of 6-foot-2 Jayhawk guard Lynn Pride.

"Pride did a good job of taking Hanebutt out of the game completely on one side," Sharp said. "It almost made us play on a fourth of the court. Normally, we've been getting enough balance from Lake and (Keitha) Dickerson and some help from (Melinda) Schmucker that we could've offset that."

"But we couldn't do that, and we couldn't handle their pressure on the defensive end."

Pride, who saw Hanebutt burn Kansas for 21 points in last year's Big 12 Championship game, said slowing Tech's second leading scorer down was a major objective.

"It was a personal challenge for me," Pride said. "I knew she was a great scorer for the team. I took it in my own hands and made it a personal challenge to stop her."

Along with slowing down the Tech scorers, Kansas was able to dominate the boards in the first half with 27 rebounds compared to 13 for the Lady Raiders. The Jayhawks finished with a 43-28 lead on the boards.

"We really got out-rebounded in the first half," Sharp said. "We kind of evened that up in the second half, but in the first half, they really went to the boards harder than we did."

While Tech's outside game was being iced down by the Jayhawks, the Lady Raiders were still able to find openings on the inside. Tech was only down by three points, 26-23, at halftime.

"They double- and triple-teamed me pretty hard, but we had some pretty good looks from the outside," said Lady Raider post Angie Braziel, who finished with a team high 15 points, off 7-of-19 shooting. "It was pretty physical tonight, and I guess we were intimidated. We didn't play our game. We didn't play the way we should have."

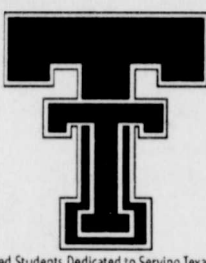

After the Lady Raiders cut the lead down 26-25 to start the second half, Kansas began to convert from its defensive efforts.

Sparked by Pride, who had a game-high 19 points, along with forwards Nakia Sanford and Brooke Reves, Kansas took a 38-31 lead with 9:12 left in the game.

"Offensively, we've been working to find different ways to get in the position to get the ball in the right people's hands," Kansas coach Marian Washington said. "We made
