Firemen Rough Time During Sandstorm

Haskell firemen spent an uneasy and uncomfortable 45 minutes shortly before midnight Friday, when they were called to extinguish burning gin trash at Co-Op Gin No. 2 during the height of the season's worst dust and sandstorm.

Fifty to six mile an hour winds had fanned sparks in a pit-type burr burner and ignited lint and trash on the gin yard. Whipped by the high winds, firemen were called when it was feared fire might be spread to residences in that section of town.

Firemen worked in dust extinguishing the trash, in the meantime keeping part of the department apparatus alert in event the fire began spreading.

morton. An election was arranged to fix the county seat and Haskell was chosen. The election polled 51 votes. The 39th Judicial District of Texas was created in 1885, and Judge J. V. Cockrell was appointed its first judge. At that time much of the country was over-run with cow thieves, outlaws Thus along through the fall of 1884, Frank Wilfong, D. M. Winn and "Old Man" Hale got up a petition for that purpose. Old Man Hale was especially active, getting anyone passing through the county to sign, whether a resident or not. Some said that Hale had the man to sign for his saddle

During the 1880's the country was stocked with cattle and sheep. In 1883 and 1884 high prices, free grass and open range intensified the movement of stock into the country. But suddenly the price of cattle dropped and early in 1885 these prices were at the bottom of a great slump. A drouth set in, until they summer of 1886 water began falling in the water holes. Grass was short, and stock man ware was short, and stock men were protesting against bringing any more stock into this overstocked range. About 25,000 head of cattle were driven out of the county, furnishing some relief. A common sight were families dragging along the road with what possesions they had piled on a onehorse two-wheeled cart, women society recognizes scholarship first but we also recognize char-acter, leadership and service," he said. The student must excel in all four fields before he can and children walking, driving a cow or two. Mass meetings were held and appeals made for help. Car loads of meal, flour, meat, etc., were donated and shipped to the drouth sufferers.

In the spring of 1887 cattle died in great numbers, as no provision had been made for watering, wells, windmills or tanks. Finally, cattlemen began, slowly, to protect grass. By 1895 when cattle prices reached rock bottom, cattlemen were leasing and fencing the open range wherever land could be found in large enough bodies for a ranch. 1896 the country was nearly all

A terrible drouth came in 1896. Crops were a failure, grass was eaten up by the prairie dogs till the dogs themselves died in great numbers. Cattle died in bunches all over the western country for want of food and water.

Haskell was host to a Cowboy's Reunion, July 29-30, 1898. For days before the opening of the event the roads were lined with wagons, hacks and buggies all pouring into the little town. There was probably the biggest bunch of cowboys, ranchers, pioneers, traders, gamblers, slight of hand performers as was ever gathered together anywhere.

A packed court room was called to order by the president, Harry T. Daugherty of King Prehistoric Fossil County. Then there was an open. On Display at Midland band and an address of welcome by Judge E. J. Hamner. Miss Lillie Rike, now Mrs. R. C. Montgomery of H'askell, read the cowboy's poem, written especial-ly for the occasion. Farmers were moving into the country and buying land so fast by 1900 that it was plain the pastures would soon be cut up and sold out. In 1901 and 1902 crops were short and prices of cattle sagged till 1906.

After that year the general trend of prices for cattle was upward for fourteen years till 1919; when the prices of cattle

Farmer Solves Mystery of Pilfered Gas, But Ends Up Loser on Damaged Tractor

Farmer Roy Herrick, 21/2 miles to bed, planning to get in touch west of Weinert proved last week with the sheriff next day. it doesn't take an Ellery Queen to solve every crime.

The farmer had been missing gasoline from an overhead tank and decided to put a stop to it. So Saturday he drained all the gasoline from the tank and filled it with water. Then he went home to await results.

Three teen-age boys drove up after dark and helped themselves to some of the "gasoline." The only drove about 400 yeards when for some mysterious reason the car stalled. While they were de-bating this, the farmer identified them and presumably went back promised to repay the man.

However he wasn't taking into account the ingenuity of the younger generation. Nothing daunted, they proceeded to borrow the farmer's tractor to try push their car. What they didn't know was that the tractor didn't have any water in it's radiator. It is now in a sad shape

Haskell Sheriff Bill Pennington and Deputy Sheriff Garth Garrett investigated the incident, but, according to Pennington no charges were filed and the boys have
