Superintendent Of Motive Power

A 48-year-old native Chicagoan, W. P. Kascal, whose practical knowledge of Diesel locomotives stems from the beginning of Diesel power on American railroads with the Burlington Lines, is becoming mechanical superintendent of the Texas & Pacific Railway August 1.

In making the announcement from T&P headquarters in Dallas, L. C. Porter, operating vice-president, said Kascal is coming to the T&P from his present job in Denver as superintendent of motive power on the Colorado Southern, a Burlington affiliate.

Kascal succeeds L. E. Dix, who announced his retirement a few weeks ago.

Beginning as a machinist's apprentice on the Chicago & North Western in 1916, Kascal joined the Burlington at Brookfield, Mo., four years later. He has been with the Burlington of one of its subsidiary lines ever since. And his entire career has been in the mechanical phase of railroading. That has meant assignments as roundhouse foreman and general foreman at Red Cloud, Hastings, Alliance, Omaha and Lincoln, Nebraska, and at Casper, Wyoming, between 1927 and 1943. It was in Omaha and Lincoln that Kascal supervised maintenance of motive power pulling the Pioneer Zephyr, first Diesel-powered passenger train to go into service regularly on a U. S. railroad. Those were the days when Diesels had to be serviced and repaired without track pits, and mechanics had to squirm in and out on their backs under the engines to do the work.

Since 1943, Kascal has been with the C&S in Denver, first as master mechanic and since June 1, 1947, superintendent of motive power.

Kascal's Diesel knowledge will be put to work handling T&P's increasing Diesel fleet, newest units of which will arrive in December when the line's first 4,500-horsepower road freight locomotives and more of the 6,000-horsepower giants are scheduled for delivery. One immediate job facing the new T&P mechanical officer this year and next is supervising the change-over of a large portion of the railroad's big steam locomotive shops in Fort Worth to handle maintenance, servicing and major repairs for the Diesels.

Married and the father of two daughters, Kascal is a member of the Railway Mechanical Officers Association, Western Railway Club, and Car Foreman's Association. He will headquarter in Dallas.

Farm-To-Market Roads Dangerous

Austin — Hundreds of Texans are likely to be killed or injured because of the farm-to-market road program in Texas.

This will happen, the Texas Safety Association and the Texas Highway Patrol said today in a joint statement, unless rural people learn quickly to use these roads properly and to police themselves.

Last year 221 persons were killed in county road accidents in Texas. For the first half of this year, only 77 were killed, for a 37 per cent reduction in the death rate.

"This is National Farm Safety Week," said Charles A. Miller of Houston, President of the Safety Association, "and its observance centers attention on rural traffic as one of the most important of farm safety problems."

"As rural roads are improved, rural people must remember that a good farm road is a substandard highway, likely to be narrower and to have sharper turns and grades," Miller said. "Another dangerous factor is the tendency people have to think that they have the road all to themselves. This is revealed especially in failure to observe proper precautions at intersections, coming to a full stop and proceeding cautiously when entering a highway."

W. J. Elliott, chief of the Highway Patrol, said his force has more than it can do to patrol 31,000 miles of principal highways and can not possibly patrol additional miles of farm roads.

"We're praying that rural people won't start making racehorses out of plowhorses on these roads," Elliott said. "Our only hope is that the people will be their own safety patrol, for the sake of self-preservation. Unless they do, enough blood will be spilled on these roads to paint a red stripe down the center of them from one end to the other."

On July 24th Nordyke had a birthday party on his lawn in Amarillo to which were invited all other persons whose birthdays came between December 25 and January 1. There were 173 persons to come and celebrate their birthdays. Families and friends of the celebrants swelled the crowd to 500.

Continue Water Talks At Meeting

Plans to invite the governor, the state board of water engineers, and other eminent men in the national program to conserve and control water, were postponed at a meeting at Coleman Tuesday. Representatives from six towns attended the meeting, which was a similar meeting to those recently held at Baird, Throckmorton and Albany, to study water problems of this area and a lay plans for a big meeting at which time the story could be told to the proper officials with suggestions as to how the problems might be met. The death of Governor Jester was one main reason for postponing the meeting. It is believed that Governor Shivers will carry on in the same way that Governor Jester did in regards to the water problems in this area. R. G. Hollingsworth, of Coleman, is chairman of the committee and he, with consent of three or more of the committee, will announce the time and place for the next meeting.

The group of visitors were guests of the Coleman Kiwanis Club for luncheon. Mr. Hollingsworth was in charge of the program and called on the visitors to speak. In the afternoon the Coleman men escorted the visitors on a trip to Hord Creek Dam, west of Coleman, which will be supplying the city with water in about two months. The $2 million dam is a federal project which will impound 24,000 acre feet of water. It now contains about a year's supply for the city of Coleman.

Present for the meeting were Bruce Campbell, president of the Citizens State Bank at Knox City; Roy Matthews, city water superintendent of Albany; Sam Cooper, manager of the Central Colorado River Authority, Coleman; Ralph Duncan, manager of the Haskell Chamber of Commerce; L. A. Wilke, West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Abilene; Nathan Clett, manager of Coleman Board of Community Development; R. G. Hollingsworth, chairman of board of directors, Coleman County State Bank; J. Marvin Hunter, Jr., publisher of The Baird Star. Mayor B. H. Freeland, member of the water committee, could not attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Casto Peek and Miss Hazel Reynolds spent the past weekend in Amarillo.

County Agent's Column

Oliver F. Werst

Cotton Insecticide Shortage
Texas cotton farmers may have trouble finding a good supply of the newer insecticides, says Dr. H. G. Johnston, extension entomologist of Texas A & M College. Applications have been very heavy and a shortage has already developed in some states.

Grasshopper, cutworm and army worm infestations were heavier than usual in many areas and now the boll weevil is more numerous and widespread throughout the cotton belt than any year since 1941, except in Texas. Johnston credits the early and thorough cotton stalk plow-up program in Texas with holding down to some extent the boll weevil damage.

The best material for general cotton insect control is 20 per cent toxaphene plus 40 per cent sulphur, or a mixture of 3 per cent gamma BHC, 5 per cent DDT, 40 per cent sulphur 3-5-40 mixture. If these materials are not available, some substitutes can be made if they can be found, and the results should be good.

Where the boll weevil is the major pest, 7 to 10 pounds of calcium arsenate per acre at 5 day intervals will give good control. Alternate applications of 3-5-40 and calcium arsenate will prevent increased aphid populations which may result from using calcium arsenate alone. A special lime-free calcium arsenate plus 1 per cent gamma BHC will also give good boll weevil control and prevent possible aphid increase.

TER WANGER'S "TULSA" DAY AND MONDAY

spectacle! Bright, wondrous! The great romance of the days of a great industry! All these are the ingredients of Walter Wanger's out-Technical epic "Tulsa" which is due to make its local next Sunday and Monday at the Plaza.
The Eagle Lion release stars the titian-haired Susan Hayward, handsome, dynamic Robert Preston and new dramatic from south of the border, Armando. These three robust lives of violence and set against the exciting of the oil rush in Oklahoma. In the film, the ruthless possession of oil rich property turns Susan Hayward into one of the most vicious of the early wildcatters. In a world of arrogant, remorseless, tough men she finds that she has to be tougher and more arrogant than the worst of them.

Advance reports have it that there are the same scenes of scope and spectacle that one has been let to expect of a Walter Wanger production. One sequence shows a gusher blowing in, with the oil geyser being preceded by bursts of shattering casing, sand, gravel, salt water and gas. In another spectacular scene a river polluted with oil catches fire, sending sheets of flame from bank to bank. This fire scene is said to rank with the great fire scene in "Gone With The Wind."
Stuart Heisler, who directed Miss Hayward's hit of last season "Smash-Up," handled the directorial baton for "Tulsa."

Mrs. Lonnie Ray left Saturday for Houston to visit her daughter, Mrs. James E. Eatherly and family. She was accompanied by Kay and Ray Eatherly, who had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ray here.

HEALTH FACTS

There is no more emphatic proof of the power of ignorance and carelessness to spread disease than is shown by the continued ravages of tuberculosis, which is responsible for more deaths between the ages of fifteen and forty-five than any other disease.
Despite the knowledge of its cause, spread, and curative procedures, tuberculosis continues to be a grave health problem, and today it holds fifth place among the killing diseases in this State. This fact exists even though the majority of tuberculosis patients could have their condition arrested, if it were recognized early and proper treatment applied.

These facts are disclosed by Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer, who says, "Treatment of the early recognized case is essential to recovery. It is of equal importance, from a public health viewpoint, that the spread of this devastating infection be prevented. A more widespread appreciation of this fact would result in the saving of thousands of lives."

The State Health Officer added: "When a diagnosis of active tuberculosis has been made, examination of other members of the family should follow as a matter of course. Tuberculosis runs in families, not because of any special susceptibility, but because it is communicable and easily transmitted from one member of the family to others."
To reduce the number of deaths caused by tuberculosis, Dr. Cox urges periodic examinations of all adults, including chest X-rays; frequent check-ups by physicians where active cases and their contacts are known; isolation or hospitalization of active tuberculosis cases, and a more intelligent application of hygienic living principles.

RENEW DRIVERS LICENSES

Colonel Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, announced today a temporary relaxation in the policy of renewing expired drivers license. Pointing out that the action is being taken because of inadequate field and office personnel to handle the procedure in the normal immediately, will preclude excuses on the part of motorists for not having obtained a renewal of their licenses.

This should come as good news to a half million Texas motorists since the records indicate that there are 3 1/2 million drivers in the State and only 2 1/2 million current licenses are on file. Estimates show that of the one million drivers who do not hold presently valid drivers licenses about half have had one at some time but have failed to renew them. The other half million have either moved from the State, ceased driving or died since the records were compiled or have never possessed a license to drive.

Under the new program, Colonel Garrison outlines the following steps for obtaining a renewal of expired Texas drivers licenses. First: if you have a license that was issued since January 1, 1944, you may secure a renewal of same by mail from the Department of Public Safety, without examination. Second: if you have a license that was issued prior to January 1, 1944, you may renew same by presenting the old license to a Drivers License Examiner in your locality and executing an original application. License in the latter case will also be issued without examination.

Formerly, those applicants who had allowed their licenses to expire were required to stand a re-examination. Now, under the temporary set-up, you may re-instate your permit to drive without taking the test, regardless of how long it has expired, provided it is not now suspended or revoked.

On your vacation trip... stop for an afternoon at Baytown

If your vacation leads you down our way, you'll find a visit to Humble's Baytown refinery a highlight of your trip. It is one of the great oil refineries in the world, processing about 200,000 barrels of crude oil daily into such diverse products as gasoline and asphalt, motor oils and insecticides.

Tours of the refinery start at 2:00 p.m. every day. First, you find out what you're going to see; then you're taken on a comfortable bus tour of the plant with a guide to tell you what goes on. The children are welcome.

A visit to Baytown will give you a glimpse of the results of scientific research by the oil industry; for unless you see a modern refinery, you'd never suspect that it can break up crude oil molecules and reconstruct them into other molecules of wider service to you in your daily life. A visit to Baytown will show you how the petroleum industry supplies many of the necessities of modern living, and how energetically the industry works to supply them.

For throughout the United States, oil refineries like Baytown work night and day to supply you with petroleum products of continuously improved quality and continuously increased diversity.

If you can't visit Baytown in person, ask for a copy of this book; address your request to

"MISSISSIPPI RHYTHM" A JIMMIE DAVIS HIT

There's a tremendous amount of first-rate entertainment in "Mississippi Rhythm" which is scheduled for Friday and Saturday at the Plaza Theatre. Jimmie Davis, ex-governor of Louisiana, is starred in Monogram's song-filled, action-packed outdoor drama, and the former legislator registers solidly with his easy, natural charm and pleasant singing voice. Davis, one of the country's outstanding song-writers, warbles several of his own tunes in his second picture.

In "Mississippi Rhythm" Davis is a young lawyer going to Creek City to claim his inheritance, a half-interest in a land development company. He meets a group of gamblers on board, and discovers when his boat reaches its destination that they are in league with his uncle's ex-partner in criminal activities.

Davis' fight to bring clean government to the town, aided by a traveling salesman, Lee "Lasses" White, and the owner of the dance hall, Veda Ann Borg, brings the film to a stirring climax.

Highlighting the picture are the musical numbers, particularly the minstrel show in which Davis and White perform. The latter is outstanding as the minstrel man turned salesman, and Miss Borg turns in a creditable job as the saloon-keeper who falls for Davis.

James Flavin is excellent as the leader of the crooked gang, and his henchmen are ably played by Joel Marsden, Paul Maxey, Duke York and Paul Bryar. They are also fine characterizations by Sue England and Guy Beach.

Baby Jane Hill, of Houston, is spending ten days with her grandmother, Mrs. V. E. Hill, while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Hill are in Tulsa on business.

Mrs. Barton Carl and daughter, Jane, of Goree, spent three days the first of the week visiting Mrs. V. E. Hill and Mrs. Martha Gilliland.

Penicillin Treatment for Mastitis Now a Matter of Seconds

Easy-to-use tube saves time, is hygienic and painless.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—Introduction of a new penicillin ointment, which comes in a specially-designed "easy-to-apply" tube, now enables dairymen to treat Mastitis with penicillin easily, effectively, and at relatively low cost.

Mastitis has been one of the dairymen's worst destroyers of profit, for it is an insidious udder infection which makes milk unsalable and progressively reduces milk production, causing losses each year of millions of dollars to the dairy industry.

It was as long as five years ago, in 1944, when it was first discovered that penicillin was effective against Streptococcus agalactiae, an organism which was responsible for 80 to 90 per cent of all cases of bovine Mastitis.

In the early days, however, the use of penicillin was restricted by the high cost of the drug and by the complicated procedure of application then obtaining. With the increase in production of penicillin, the price was reduced, but it remained for the veterinary profession and the pharmaceutical industry to perfect a penicillin treatment which would be easy to apply, as well as stable, non-toxic, non-irritating and long-lasting in its curative action.

Working with members of the veterinary profession, scientists at E. R. Squibb Laboratories here were successful in perfecting a penicillin ointment meeting these rigid requirements. It remained, however, to provide a proper dispensing agent, so that the penicillin would get into the infected quarter of the cow easily, quickly and without pain.

Clinical tests of the ointment in tubes showed that no tube then on the market was of the proper dimensions. Veterinarians envisioned a tube with a long, tapered, smooth nozzle which would be snug-fitting when inserted in the teat opening. Moreover, it must be small enough in diameter to go into the teat opening easily and without injury to the quarter.

Such a tube was finally designed by the Veterinary Division of E. R. Squibb and Sons. Tube manufacturers first thought it impossible to make, but this specially-designed tube is now in mass production and is being used by several manufacturers of penicillin.

The thoroughness with which penicillin ointment acts is largely due to the dispersing agent—petrolatum. After injection into an infected quarter, the ointment floats on the milk and is dispersed throughout the udder. The penicillin is released slowly from the ointment, prolonging effective action for as long as 72 hours after treatment.

"Instant-use" tubes of penicillin are available in most stores where drugs are sold. Injection is simple: the dairymen has only to insert the nozzle in the cow's teat opening and squeeze the tube. Treatment is only a matter of seconds. This revolutionary method of treating Mastitis is saving millions of gallons of milk otherwise lost, and saving thousands of valuable cows from slaughter.
