FLOYD COUNTY FALL EVENTS

PUMPKIN WATCH

Punkin' Day 2021 planning underway

LIZ ADAMS | FLOYD COUNTY HESPERIAN-BEACON

Every year, families from around the region look forward to the Punkin' Day tradition in Floydada celebrating the "Pumpkin Capital USA."

This year, on Saturday, October 9, there will be plenty of fun activities, food and entertainment. Pumpkins of every shape, color and size will showcase local growers. Car show proceeds benefit the Floydada Volunteer Fire Department.

"We're excited about all the new activities," said Chamber of Commerce manager Kortney DeBock. "It takes a lot of planning. We hope to have another successful year."

Here are few of the highlights coming up for this year's event. The Floydada Lions Club has planned a pancake breakfast. The festivities will include a cake walk, a chili cookoff and a barbecue cookoff with cash prizes, a live concert and dance, as well as a team roping event. There will be a car show and a competition for the best decorated homes and businesses. Visitors will have opportunities to decorate pumpkins, too.

The Floyd County Hesperian-Beacon will be recognizing its 125-year history with a special celebration.

Over a hundred vendors will display an assortment of handmade and popular items, and there will be games for all ages.

A cornhole tournament will take place, along with Bingo, a costume contest, and a pumpkin pie-eating contest. Jumbo Jenga and bouncy houses will be part of the fun, along with a petting zoo.

Floydada grower Assiter Punkin' Ranch is providing pumpkins for a pumpkin auction. Pumpkins are being donated for decorating by the Pyle family, who will also place pumpkins on the square and arrange them for photo booths by the courthouse.

Music for the dance will feature "Easy to Love" country artist Will Banister. His single "Ain't That the Truth" recently reached #38 on the Texas Country Music Chart.

Tickets for the dance at the Rodeo Arena Saturday night 7-11 p.m. are on sale for $15.00. Kids under twelve are free.

COMMUNITY FOR THE CURE THIS PINKTOBER

Fitness on the Square to host Walk for the Cure Oct. 2

Last February, Floydada business owner and fitness instructor Amanda Peralez was diagnosed with stage 2 cancer.

After going through chemotherapy in March and surgery in April, Peralez is now free of cancer. And after a short break to recover, she's ready to take her battle to the streets. Her Floydada gym, Fitness on the Square, is hosting a Walk for the Cure on Saturday, Oct. 2.

"I want to bring the community together for a good cause," Peralez said.

Registration for the breast cancer awareness event is scheduled for 9:00 a.m. Local businesses have donated water for stops along the 6.8-mile walk to the Unity Center in Muncy. Walkers will be escorted by the Floydada Police Department. Proceeds will go to Susan G. Komen Foundation.

"Throughout chemo I knew I couldn't give up, and we picked right back up. You don't know what you can do until you try," Peralez said.

This is the gym's second year in its current downtown location.

"I've been teaching fitness classes in Floydada for four years, but two at the gym at 100 East California Street," said Peralez, who explained that she became interested in being an instructor after taking her first Zumba class in Plainview.

"I was a stay-at-home mom and I was feeling discouraged. I didn't really have any hobbies and my self-esteem was really low. The Zumba class gave me the idea to get certified and open Rocket Gym," Peralez said.

Peralez took a training course in Midland to get licensed and since then, has become a GX instructor. She is certified to teach barre, a combination of yoga and Pilates, as well.

It started small, but the group grew to include Zumba Kids and a Tobata boot camp, which begins new each month. The classes help her and the participants with motivation and accountability. A 5:00 a.m. class has been added to meet the demand. The popularity of the class initially surprised Peralez, but she's glad to provide the support.

Peralez said she understands that "it can be intimidating to go into a gym, but everybody starts somewhere. Classes are designed so that no one feels overwhelmed."

Classes are available mornings and evenings on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday each week. Space is limited due to Covid, but new groups begin each month.

Area schools share high praise for 4-days

LIZ ADAMS | HESPERIAN-BEACON

School districts such as Patton Springs and Motley County checked out the option of shortening their school weeks, and decided on a schedule change before starting the 2020-21 school year with a four-day week.

Now both districts have chosen to continue with that class schedule into the new school year, and other districts in the area have followed suit. This week marks the end of the first 6-week grading period on the four-day schedule for Silverton ISD. Lockney ISD has also reached that goalpost in their first year, though the two have not approached the details in exactly the same way. All of the districts participating in this shortened school week have received positive feedback from staff, families, and students.

"So far, it's been great. It's gone very well. Everybody seems to enjoy it," said Silverton ISD superintendent Michelle Francis.

More time to assess the results of these changes will be needed for any of the districts in the region to know whether the overall academic success of the students has been improved, though Patton Springs ISD superintendent Bryan White expressed confidence in the plan.

"This is our second year. The transition was very smooth last year. Our staff loves it and parents love the long weekends," said White.

One of the most important positive factors is that Patton Springs student-athletes don't have to miss so much class on this schedule. When Motley County began considering it, the hope was to bring teachers to the district. The biggest concern for the Matadors was whether it would impact test scores. There has been no evidence to suggest the schedule has been problematic in that regard, despite the additional issues schools have faced during Covid.

"It has worked out really well for us," said Motley County superintendent William Cochran, who added, "I do think it had a part in attracting teachers to fill all of our open positions before the end of April. We usually don't have them filled until June or July and we had more applicants than usual."

Motley County and Patton Springs chose to hold classes Monday through Thursday, but Lockney ISD chose Monday for the student day, or "fifth day." According to Superintendent Jim Baum, it isn't intended to be thought of as a day off.

"It's a day to address any kind of need," said Baum.

Covenant Clinic in Floydada welcomes new healthcare provider

STAFF REPORTS

GARY SACKETT, FNP

Family Nurse Practitioner Gary Sackett will take on new responsibilities at the Covenant Health West Family Medicine Clinic in Floydada at the end of September.

The Floydada clinic confirmed that current healthcare provider Lori Johnson will be leaving her position at the end of the week. Johnson emphasized that she cares for the community of Floydada and has enjoyed her years at the clinic. She has made plans to focus on her family after adopting a three-year-old daughter. News of her departure was announced in an article in the Plainview Herald, in which Covenant Health Plainview expressed appreciation for Johnson's service.

Sackett earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Lubbock Christian University and participated in a graduate program as a Family Nurse Practitioner at Texas Tech. He has experience working with Veteran Administration and previously as an instructor at Covenant School of Nursing.

Sackett told the Herald he was looking forward to working at the clinic. He became familiar with it while lending a hand during Johnson's leave.

In addition to his new role at Covenant, Sackett is also preparing to tie the knot this weekend with fiancée Missy Morin. The couple is planning to live nearby in Ralls. The communities of Ralls and Floydada welcome and congratulate Sackett as he begins the next part of his journey.

A fresh twist on pasta salad; see you at Lubbock Book Festival Sept. 24-25

It's not too late for a backyard barbecue to celebrate the change of seasons. Good side dishes make it even better.

When I was young and moving around as a military spouse, from air force base to air force base, experiencing different cuisines, and recipes from other families was part of the fun.

I loved the camaraderie among families, and how we shared what we had—especially near payday. Maybe some of us had meat in the freezer that we found a good sale on at the commissary. And others would have all the ingredients for a beautiful dessert. And side dishes were always welcomed at a neighborhood block party in base housing.

Each household had their way of making certain dishes, maybe old family recipes, or the latest craze everyone was talking about.

I was crazy for the way my friend at Sheppard AFB made potato salad. And she was a Texas girl from San Antonio, so I'm surprised I didn't grow up with this method.

My friend would boil several eggs and remove the yolks once they were done. Then she mashed them and worked them into the mayonnaise and mustard mixture.

I've used this technique over the years, and my family loves it. I also like using this idea in macaroni or pasta salad. The cooked yolks give the dressing a rich taste and a velvety texture.

Try this on for yourself next time you whip up a good side dish for a barbecue meal, or to serve with a Sunday fried chicken dinner.

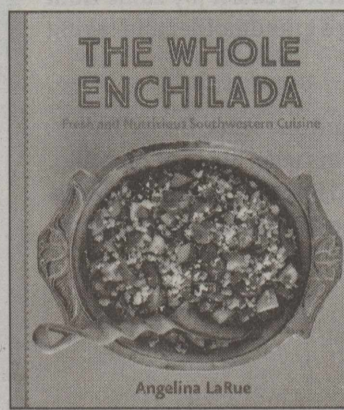

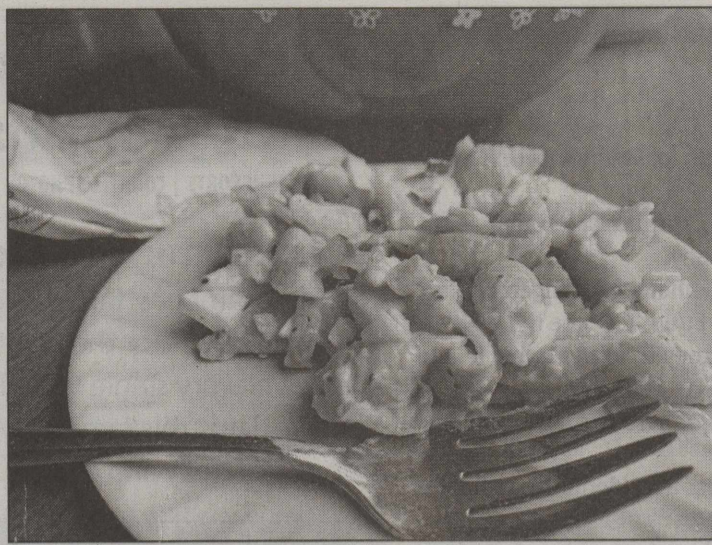

On another note, if you run to Lubbock this weekend, please stop by and visit the Lubbock Book Festival on September 25 and 26 at the Mahon Public Library.

This free, two-day event connects authors and readers in support of Literacy Lubbock. With over 40-plus award-winning and best-selling authors in attendance, and so many genres represented, there will be something for everyone. From the tiniest of tots to the experienced reader, from YA fiction to crime thriller and everything in between, this festival will highlight the thriving author culture deeply rooted in Lubbock!

There will have author panels and book signings, book sales, family-fun crafts and activities, a massive used book sale courtesy of Friends of the Library, writing workshops, outdoor entertainment, food trucks, and more! Can't wait to see you there! I'll have a question-and-answer session at 1:15 on the 25th, and will offer tips and ideas from my book, "The Whole Enchilada."

Pasta Salad with a Twist

8 ounces dry macaroni, or other pasta
3 eggs, boiled and peeled

COOKBOOK AUTHOR Angelina LaRue will appear at this weekend's Lubbock Book Festival with "The Whole Enchilada"—and maybe some morsels of potato salad! | ANGELINA LARUE PHOTOS

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons prepared yellow mustard
- 1/4 cup diced purple onion
- 3 tablespoons diced dill pickles
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon celery seeds

Prepare pasta per package instructions. Drain and set aside. Cut boiled eggs in half and remove yolks. Dice the egg whites and set aside.

In a medium mixing bowl, smash the egg yolks with the tines of a fork until smooth and creamy. Add mayonnaise and mustard and whisk well to combine and smooth any remaining lumps of egg. Tip: Add a spoonful of pickle juice to the mixture if needed to help thin out the yolks.

Stir in diced egg whites, onions, pickles, salt, pepper, and celery seeds.

Fold cooked pasta into the mayonnaise mixture and stir to fully coat. Serve at room temperature, or chilled. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Blindfolded Turkish keyboarding

If you learned to type long ago on a non-electric Remington with blank green keys, you're ready for whatever. Go ahead. Buy a used laptop from overseas. Just don't look at the keyboard. That's why you took typing. To learn not to look.

My laptop has a Turkish keyboard. I'm ignoring it. My allegiance is to the English alphabet. Gotta stay true to myself and my native tongue and fingers. Can't let myself be influenced by any funny letters. Eyes straight ahead. If my computer thinks it's an English-language keyboard, I can too.

Meanwhile, who owned this laptop previously? A Turk? Did he wear a fez?

I'm transported to the movie "Casablanca" wherein the fez-wearing Sydney Greenstreet imparts the peace of Allah with a well-practiced flourish straight from his fez. I'm easily transported.

Yes, Morocco is far from Turkey, but a fez is a fez. I'm envisioning Shriners in their little cars lending their fezzed pizzazz to the yearly Bob Wills Parade (Covid years excepted) in Turkey, Texas.

We digress. This Turkish keyboard has turned into my magic carpet. It's taking me all directions. I doff my fez to anyone who can stay strictly on course in search of anything. Not me.

My current journey started exactly when I ascertained the mother tongue of my keyboard. Next I discovered it was a Turkish-Q as opposed to a Turkish-F keyboard.

Any Turk who learns to type (old-fashioned word, I know) probably decides early in the scheme of things whether to be an F person or a Q person. I'm guessing political connotations are involved, and I'm guessing F typists are more likely to wear fezzes. After all, it's the F arrangement that's based on the Turkish language. It enables F-proficient Turks to win global typing contests.

What happens if an F Turk marries a Q Turk? Back in typewriter days, the man of the house probably decided which kind of typewriter to buy. And that was that. Now that women are coming into their own in Turkey (yes, I've been learning all sorts of stuff about Turkey on this carpet ride), it's convenient that computers easily accommodate both kinds of keyboarders. Turkish wives are probably still careful to leave the family computer set on the husband's keyboard choice if it's an F-Q marriage. Again, just guessing.

Enough about Turkey. (Maybe too much.)

Have you heard our QWERTY key arrangement was dictated by a need to slow typists down so keys wouldn't stick? Urban legend. Researchers in Kyoto, of all places, believe the layout evolved based on input from telegraph operators, who somehow benefited from the QWERTY layout when it came to transcribing Morse code.

They explained how, but I didn't quite get it.

News:

A new layout is KALQ. It's for tablets and big phones. KALQ facilitates thumbs-only keyboarding.

Prediction:

Attorneys will eventually launch lawsuits against KALQ on behalf of thumbs-only keyboarders with worn-out thumb joints.

QWERTY, on the other hand, should be sued for slowing us all down. Too late.

childcare as a possible issue that might make the new schedule difficult for parents and families. Lockney has offered a fifth day camp on Mondays. Free lunch is also available all five days of the week. Conference time and tutoring can take place on Mondays. It's also a time to focus on athletics. The teachers have seen a benefit in planning and assessment time, which has led to covering more of the material, rather than less with fewer instructional days.

"We've seen major improvements," Baum said.

Silverton's first year with the schedule has been an adjustment, but teachers are not reporting difficulty covering the lessons. Teachers in Silverton are also using the opportunity for extra tutoring. The students are not on campus on Fridays, but that has helped reduce the absences from class when student athletes are traveling to games.

Perhaps the most surprising feedback has been from the students. Although they report looking forward to the break each Friday, they have been unsure about jumping on board with the schedule. At this point in the process, districts experiencing the first semester and districts in their second year have received overall encouraging feedback from all stakeholders.

Longhorns stampede over Cowboys, 34-0

FRED CERVANTES | SPECIAL TO THE HESPERIAN-BEACON

The Lockney Longhorns stampeded into the Cowboys Stadium—Plains, that is—and never looked back.

In their Sept. 17 matchup, the Horns' first offensive drive yielded a quick score to start things off on the evening. Rushing leader for the night, Nathan Cenicerros provided the first score. He gained 200 yards on 13 carries.

Cenicerros was asked about his thoughts on the game and the outlook for the approaching district schedule. "We all connect on that football field and played as one, which I feel helped us out a lot. We went into today's game with a great mindset, which was to go out and give it our all. The fact that they had my back through it all was amazing. This game meant a lot to me because I wasn't able to play them last year due to my grandpa's death and I feel like that gave me an extra boost to do my part on that team and help with the win. As far as district, I think we need to keep our heads together and work as a team and work hard the rest of the season. I feel like we will be on the top if we have the mindset we had against Plains. I don't think anyone can step in your way from that district championship."

The Horns had 291 yards rushing for the night between all of their running backs. The offensive line is coming together and providing the blocking necessary for the ground campaign. The line is comprised of Jaime Garcia, Adrian Hernandez, Quinten Johnson, Elizar Alvarez and Jisiah Lara.

Defensively the Longhorns kept the Cowboys out of the end zone the entire night.

Xavier Jimenez wore a varsity jersey for the matchup in Plains. Jimenez stepped up and was second on the team for the night in tackles behind Cenicerros.

The defensive campaign for the night yielded the Longhorns with three interceptions, one credited to Jimenez, another to Pablo Morales, and the last interception late in the game to Jesus Gonzales, saving what may have been a scoring drive for the Cowboys. The final from Plains was Lockney 34, Plains 0.

The Longhorns go to 3 and 1 for the season as they make the long bus ride to Compass Academy to play at Greenwood's King Memorial Stadium on Saturday, Sept. 25. Kickoff time is set for 11 a.m.

White-tailed deer population looks strong ahead of archery-only season opener

TEXAS PARKS & WILDLIFE

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) biologists say that 2021-22 is expected to be a white-tailed deer season for the books. Last year, the overall white-tailed deer population was estimated to be 5.4 million deer. While that estimate is down from the previous two years, TPWD biologists say that if fawn recruitment predictions hold true this season, coupled with good carryover of deer from last hunting season, hunters and landowners can expect to see an increase in the overall statewide white-tailed deer population.

"White-tailed deer forecasts and expectations are, in large part, driven by habitat conditions that the deer are experiencing across their range in Texas in the eight to ten months prior to the season," said Alan Cain, TPWD White-Tailed Deer Program Leader. "Though the end of 2020 was dry, and early 2021 experienced freezing conditions that delayed green up of important browse plants, the late spring and summer rainfall acted like liquid fertilizer for forb, grass, and woody plant production and has provided a buffet of natural forages for deer."

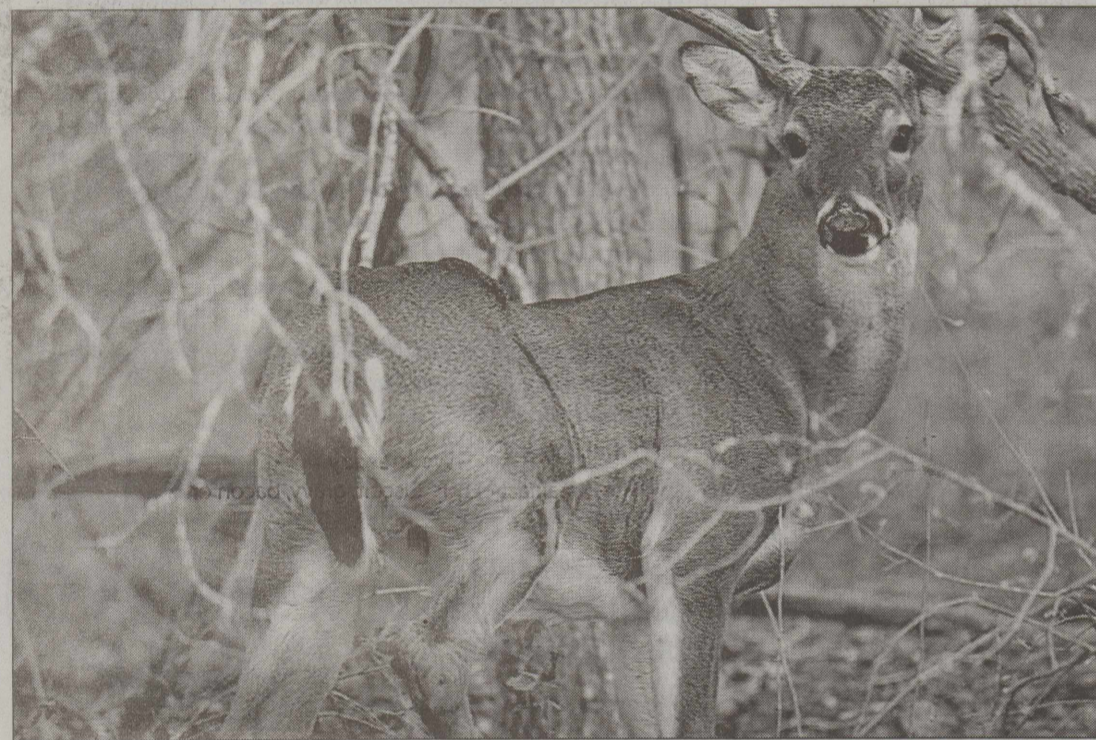

Cain says that the favorable habitat conditions should boost the body condition of deer populations and set up deer to enter the fall and winter with a substantial layer of fat. The favorable weather conditions were also vital in helping bucks maximize antlers as they finish out the growing season. Antler quality is predicted to be well above average for the 2021-22 season.

While the archery-only season kicks off the first weekend of October, the general season opener is still more than a month away on Nov. 6. The general season runs through Jan. 2, 2022 in the North Zone and Jan. 16, 2021 in the South Zone. A special youth-only gun deer season is set for Oct. 30-31 and Jan. 3-16, 2022. For additional late season deer hunting opportunities, county specific regulations and information on how to property tag and report a harvest, consult the 2021-22 Outdoor Annual, which was made possible in part by support from Chevy Silverado.

Archery hunters are required to purchase an Archery Endorsement in addition to their hunting license. Hunters taking advantage of Texas Public Hunting Lands must also have the Annual Public Hunting Permit. It's also important for public land hunters to consult the Public Hunting Lands Map Booklet to review regulations that may apply to specific areas. The My Texas Hunt Harvest app can be used to complete on-site registration electronically at a public hunting area.

Hunters are reminded to review information about Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD) for information about testing requirements and carcass movement restrictions in the CWD zones for the 2021-22 season. Discovery of new cases of CWD in Hunt, Lubbock, and Uvalde counties has prompted TPWD to establish new containment and surveillance zones in those areas to mitigate the potential spread of CWD.

Those interested in learning more about archery and bowhunting, or anyone who is looking to brush-up on their skills ahead of the season, are encouraged to explore Bowhunter by Fall, a newsletter series presented by TPWD's Community Archery Program.

DEERLY BELOVED While archery-only deer season kicks off the first weekend of October, the general season opener is still more than a month away on Nov. 6. The general season runs through Jan. 2, 2022 in the North Zone and Jan. 16, 2021 in the South Zone. | COURTESY PHOTO

Lubbock Chamber of Commerce Harvest Luncheon set for Oct. 7

STAFF REPORTS

The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce is pleased to announce that Dan Glickman, the former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, will speak at the Harvest Luncheon presented by FiberMax on Thurs., Oct. 7 at 11:30 a.m. at the FiberMax Center for Discovery, 1121 Canyon Lake Drive. The Harvest Luncheon is a decades-long tradition that celebrates the agriculture industry in West Texas.

Agriculture is vital to the West Texas economy, contributing billions in economic impact to the High Plains every year. This annual event is an opportunity for the industry to gather, collaborate, and celebrate the region's agriculture leaders.

"Beyond the economic benefit of the Lubbock area being home to cotton, sorghum, grapes, and other commodities, the agriculture industry enhances our national security by contributing to food and energy independence," said Chase Head of FiberMax and Chairman of the Lubbock Chamber's Agriculture Committee. "We are honored that Dan Glickman will be our featured speaker."

Glickman is the Senior Advisor to the U.S. Global Leadership Coalition, a broad-based coalition of more than 500 businesses and NGOs, that advocates for strong U.S. global leadership through development and diplomacy. He served as the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture from March 1995 until January 2001. Under his leadership, the Department administered farm and conservation programs, modernized food safety regulations, forged international trade agreements to expand U.S. markets, and improved its commitment to fairness and equality in civil rights. Prior to his appointment as Secretary of Agriculture, Glickman served for 18 years in the U.S. House of Representatives. During that time, he was a member of the House Agriculture Committee, including six years as chairman of the subcommittee with jurisdiction over federal farm policy issues.

Tickets to the luncheon are $40. Members of the Lubbock Chamber can purchase tickets online by visiting <https://bit.ly/3hHgNXe> for $30. Table sponsorships are available for businesses. Contact the Lubbock Chamber at 806-761-7000 for more information.

Young to be guest speaker at Lockney FUMC Fall Revival

STAFF REPORTS

Lockney First United Methodist Church will be hosting a Fall Revival Sunday, September 26th through Tuesday, September 28th beginning at 6:30 each night. The Rev. Rance Young will be the guest speaker centering his messages on "Who We Are in Christ". Music will be brought to us by our own Rev. Auggie Aguilera and friends.

REV. RANCE YOUNG

REV. AUGGIE AGUILERA

Young is the pastor of the Silverton United Methodist Church and still active as a farmer and rancher in Floyd and Briscoe counties. He began serving the church in Silverton in November of 2002 after the Lord called him to surrender to the ministry in June of that year at the conclusion of a Wesley Putnam Revival Service.

He grew up in Floyd County, 6 miles north of the community of South Plains. After attending school at South Plains through the seventh grade, he then went to school in Floydada and graduated there in 1974. Four years later he graduated from Texas Tech in 1978 with a degree in Agriculture Economics.

Then in 1979, Rance married a young girl he had known since the first grade named Nancy Puckett. They have three children, Tyler and his wife, Emily, Jenny and her husband, CP, and Tanner and his wife, Jennifer. They are also proud grandparents of four amazing kids, Isla, Hudson, Emery, and Rance Thomas.

Rance and Nancy now live in Briscoe County, south of Silverton near the Floyd and Briscoe County line. Rance still operates much of the same land his grandfather, Rufus Young began acquiring back in the late 1930's. Rance is very thankful for the blessing of growing up in the country and having a great family to guide him through the years.

Rance's parents, Deral and La-Faun Young, were a tremendous source of support and encouragement for Rance and their legacy continues to provide strength for living out the Christian faith.
