Hearne named wing commander

Gen. Thomas M. Ryan, commander of the Air Training Command, has announced that Col. Richard E. Hearne will assume command of the 64th Flying Training Wing from Col. Monte D. Montgomery here Monday.

Colonel Montgomery has been selected to serve as special assistant to the ATC deputy chief of staff for Logistics at Randolph AFB, San Antonio.

As wing commander, Colonel Hearne will be responsible for the activities of more than 3,000 military and civilian personnel who train and support the training of more than 450 new Air Force pilots annually.

A native of Texarkana, Ark., Colonel Hearne began his Air Force career following his graduation from Louisiana Tech University and commissioning through the Air Force ROTC program in 1958.

Colonel Hearne received his pilot wings at Greenville AFB, Miss. in April of 1959. Colonel Hearne's first flying assignment was as a fighter pilot in the F-86D in Okinawa.

His first introduction into the pilot training atmosphere was as an instructor pilot at Laredo AFB, Texas. During this time he received orders to fly the F-4 Phantom with the 480th Tactical Fighter Wing at DaNang, South Vietnam.

Upon completion of his tour in Vietnam in 1969, he returned to ATC, this time as an instrument pilot at the Instrument Pilot Instructor School at Randolph AFB. This assignment was soon followed by an assignment at ATC Headquarters.

In 1973 Colonel Hearne moved to Sheppard AFB near Wichita Falls, Texas, as commander of the 80th Student Squadron and the 89th Flying Training Squadron, respectively.

1975 saw Colonel Hearne return to the classroom while he attended the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington, D.C. Two assignments at the Pentagon followed graduation from the senior service school. He assumed his present position as 64th Air Base Group Commander in February 1980.

Colonel Hearne has flown many aircraft during his 24 year career, including the T-33, T-37, T-38, T-39, F-86D, F-102, and the F-4. His military decorations include the Legion of Merit, Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with seven oak leaf clusters, Meritorious Service Medal with two oak leaf clusters and Republic of South Vietnam Air Service Medal, Honor Class. He holds a master of arts degree from the University of Oklahoma.

He is married to the former Mary Jane Lestage of Lake Charles, La. They have two children; Steve, attending Baylor College of Medicine; and Stefani, who is attending Texas Tech University.

Colonel Hearne will assume command of the 64th Flying Training Wing during a formal change of command ceremony scheduled for Monday at 9 a.m. The ceremony will include pass-in-review by units assigned to Reese AFB and music will be provided by the Air Force Band of the West from Lackland AFB, San Antonio. The ceremony will be opened to the public.

Col. Montgomery reflects on base achievements

"I've never felt more part of a community in my entire life," said outgoing wing commander Col. Monte D. Montgomery on the eve of his departure for Randolph AFB, Texas.

In an interview Monday, Colonel Montgomery revealed that this assignment—at four years the longest in any one place he could remember—has been one of his best. "I've never felt more involved in a community that I have here," he reiterated, recalling the numerous positions of civic as well as military leadership he has filled at Reese as base commander, director of operations, and finally, wing commander.

During those four years, which began in July 1978, Colonel Montgomery has served on the board of directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, as co-chairman of the Reese-Lubbock base community council and chairman of the Combined Federal Campaign Division of the Lubbock United Way in 1980 and 1981, and has encouraged improved base-community relations through twice-monthly retreats, science fairs, Camp Blue Yonder, Easter Seals Day Camp, the Special Olympics and blood drives, among other activities.

And, while admitting that he hadn't realized all his goals for Reese, Colonel Montgomery said he was "well pleased and gratified" with the way things have gone here. "Our inspections have been absolutely remarkable," he said, adding that the completion of the transient living facility has been especially pleasing to him: "It's been in the works for four years."

When asked what he thought was a major factor in Reese's success, he laid it on the people doing the job.

"We're re-emphasizing the soldierly qualities" of military life, he commented, referring to the Air Force's ongoing efforts to increase the military awareness of its personnel. "People are really joining the Air Force because they want to be airmen," he continued. "They want to be in the Air Force, not some quasi-civilian organization. So, our people are happier because they know where they stand. We try to do it right, try to do it well and our people have responded beautifully. I think the people really want to be in a first-rate outfit."

Colonel Montgomery listed several high points of his tenure as wing commander: high ratings on inspector general and wing standardization-evaluation team inspections, safety awards from Air Training Command and the Air Force, and AFRAP base of the year for ATC.

"People at all levels are doing their jobs very well, people who care about the success of the wing," Colonel Montgomery said.

"We've got young people in responsible jobs who might lack experience, but who make up for that with hard work and dedication. We've got some problems, but I think we're coming along well. I think we're just doing the job better than anybody else."

Men & Women of Reese:

6 AUG 82

To be a Wing Commander is the highlight of anyone's career. To command the 64th FTW in Lubbock, Texas is exceedingly more. In fact, there is nothing to equal it. My four years, and especially my last two, at Reese are the most enjoyable, rewarding, and gratifying period of my life. It has been my privilege to work with the dedicated, hard working and highly professional people of Reese and the community. You are doing exemplary work for your Air Force and your country. Jane and I are honored to have shared this time with you and look forward to your continued success.

Sincerely,
Monte D. Montgomery

51 slated to pin on aviators wings this morning

"They've worked the hardest they've ever had to in their life" to get through the pilot training mission here, said Maj. Elvy Pettit Jr., Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 82-07's Section II commander.

The members of UPT Class 82-07 will be accepting their aviators wings this morning at the Simler theater beginning at 10.

Presenting the special class awards with the new Deputy Commander for Operations, Col. James P. Ulm, will be graduation guest speaker Brig. Gen. William J. Breckner Jr., deputy chief of staff, Logistics, Headquarters Air Training Command, Randolph AFB, Texas.

The 51-member UPT class includes four Italians set to return to their homeland and fly the F-106. The other 47 UPT classmates have assignments from Maine to California, from California to Alaska and from Europe to Guam.

In a class of about 95 percent Air Force Academy graduates, the esprit-de-corps ran high. There was "a lot of group participation" throughout the nearly year-long UPT course, according to Section II Leader Capt. Jeff A. Manor.

Captain Manor also explained that pilot training here generally impressed him because in his view it has become "refined over the years" with little room for improvement.

Major Pettitt indicated that the almost year-long course the new pilots are completing has been no "breeze" for anyone, but did admit that there were those who had made the learning process

A TIP OF THE HAT goes out to everyone who worked on the recent "Behind the Lines" tour. We received a nice note from Jeannie Keel, one of the tour-goers and a new military wife, who had been "afraid to go on base" by herself because of her unfamiliarity with Air Force life. The tour "made me appreciate so much more being a military wife and gave me incredible pride in my husband's work," she said. Again, my thanks to all concerned.

The installation of radio switches to control air conditioning in base housing was directed by Air Training Command to reduce peak load usage, which accounts for 27 percent of the electric cost each month. These switches cycle the air conditioning compressors in the housing area for seven of each 30 minutes, which is slightly less than 25 percent of the time. To further conserve energy, the Base Energy Committee directed civil engineering to shut the compressors off when temperatures dropped below 75 degrees. Until the middle of July, this was being done. However, with temperatures remaining in the mid-70s until midnight or later, this practice has been discontinued for the summer.

In fact, customers requiring assistance in languages other than English will be accommodated, if possible. Nevertheless, we believe our BX customers would feel confused and themselves discriminated against if sales clerks spoke in foreign languages.

SOME CALLERS HAVE EXPRESSED CONCERN about the automatic cycling of air conditioner compressors in

THE EXCHANGE DRY CLEANER was the subject of another call, this from someone who lost clothes there. The lost clothing was valued by the customer at $100, less than their purchase price, but the exchange would only pay 80 percent of the price quoted, based on established policy. We think that, in the end, the matter was equitably settled, since the laundry manager chipped in another $10 to the $80 paid by the exchange.

Flammable liquid safety urged when preparing the family barbecues

Everyone should be aware of the dangers that are always present when barbecuing, but they should especially be aware of the proper use of flammable liquids.

The Reese fire department had these tips for barbecuing safely:

- To start a charcoal grill always use safe, approved liquid starters, not the highly flammable liquids like gasoline or kerosene;
- When the briquettes are burning, never pour more flammable liquids on them;
- When cooking with a grill, be sure to stay away from combustible products;
- When grilling hamburgers or anything, do it outside;
- Cookouts should be planned for calm, clear days. If the winds pick up, cancel the cookout or, if the cookout is in progress, try to extinguish it as soon as possible;

- Never leave barbecue fires unattended;
- Never leave children or pets playing around barbecues.

Token charge system to be implemented at the Reese NCO Club

The Reese Enlisted Open Mess (the NCO Club) will go to a token charge system Sept. 1 for airman basics through senior airmen.

Survival stories may be mailed to: AFISC/SEDD, Attention "Make it Click," Norton AFB, Calif. 92409. The size of the T-shirt desired should be specified: small, medium or large. Satellite photos help base forecasters Twenty-four hours a day something called Meteorological Satellite Readout Equipment is receiving pictures of the weather, here and around the world.

While the procedure is not new, Reese's having the equipment available is. Since its arrival in early June the six Air Weather Service forecasters here have been getting two pictures an hour from thousands of miles above the earth.

Pictures of the weather that is. "The equipment is used for short-range forecasting and aircrew briefings," said Maj. David M. Meier, commander of Detachment II of the 24th Weather Squadron here.

He mentioned that the machine has the capability of taking up to four pictures an hour, but works at a rate of only two an hour. Because of the new forecasting aid, weather forecasts here should be more accurate than those given before the equipment's arrival.

Major Meier pointed out that there are two types of pictures received by the machine—one visual, taken with light, and the other infrared, taken with heat.

He explained that the visual photos helped forecasters see what was happening weatherwise in the area, but pointed out that infrared photos could be enhanced. By enhancing an infrared photo, he said, "We can get the temperatures of some clouds" allowing the forecasters to better identify cloud types.

The pictures the Reese forecasters get come primarily from the eastern satellite because of their quality and coverage of the continental U.S., the Caribbean and even parts of the Atlantic area.

Reese does get some photos from the western satellite, which covers the Pacific area, but usually only when they are needed to brief crews flying across country to Arizona.

The new equipment now used here is tied to a small circuit with Sheppard AFB, Texas, and Vance AFB, Okla. Vance, however, is the only one of the bases to be tied into the Kansas station receiving the photos. As such they can request the photos needed by all three Air Training Command bases.

Both of the satellites orbit in one position above the earth, over the equator.

This new piece of weather forecasting equipment is used only when the airfield is open, but Reese weather observers keep an eye on the weather 24-hours a day.

Housing referral speeds Reese apartment hunting

The Housing Referral Office here has a lot more to offer Reese families, old and new, than just listings of where to find an apartment or home.

One of the first steps a new base member makes, is at the housing office. Quick to aid new families settle in, the HRO staff offers current, up-to-date listings of hotels and motels in the area for new families to stay at during their search for an apartment in Lubbock.

The Reese HRO has shortened the apartment hunting process considerably said one recent arrival. The HRO researched and developed a listing of the apartment complexes in the area for those seeking off-base homes.

In the HRO compiled list, they have included current monthly rental charges, the types of leases available, if pets or children are allowed and in some cases even what appliances are already in the apartment.

The list of furnished and unfurnished apartments is only the tip of the iceberg according to one HRO customer. HRO has several pamphlets available to Reese families regarding everything from renting to buying homes.

For those families wanting an on-base home, get your name on the waiting list—now. HRO reports that from the time someone requests an on-base home and gets it, they will have waited an average of 3-6 months.

Because of the long wait to get on-base housing, most base families have to take an apartment at least for a few months after their arrival here.

Before entering into a rental agreement families must check with the base housing office. It is also advisable to have an attorney with the staff judge advocate's office look over the lease.

HRO does get involved with off-base housing problems occasionally mediating disputes between landlords and Reese families. At the same time, they get involved when an Air Force family does not meet rental agreements or leaves the rental unit in a mess.

Terri Boggess, Housing Referral specialist, did point out that Reese does have 10 one bedroom units available for airman basics on up. She added that because they were considered to be substandard, HRO only halts a members variable housing allowance and 75 percent of the basic allowance for quarters.

Boggess stressed that families can stop by HRO at anytime to speak with one of the staff members about the "ins and outs of renting."

For those living off-base when families change addresses they should stop by HRO and give them the change too. If a member is thinking about applying for a home on-base, you'll need two copies of the orders assigning you to Reese when you apply.

TERRI BOGGESS, Housing Referral specialist, checks the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal housing rental ads, looking for new apartment complexes, management changes, vacancies and prices. Boggess reads the paper daily in order to stay current with what is and is not available to Reese families in the Lubbock area.

easier because of their ready adaptability to flying.

Second Lieutenant Michael K. Buck, student pilot, was "glad this year was over with." Soon to join the ranks of professional Air Force aviators, Lieutenant Buck explained that the UPT course "requires hard work all the time, because the minute you ease up, that's when the trouble begins."

The academy graduate claims Abilene, Texas as home since that is where his father retired from the Air Force after 29½ years of service.

Although his father used to fly for the Air Force when the lieutenant was at home, he indicated that his father's career had little to do with his. "I just wanted to fly," he said.

Their hard work has paid off according to Major Pettit. "They got a good assignment block," better than the classes before them and most likely those following them too.

Following graduation ceremonies this morning the new pilots, their guests and the instructor pilots will attend a luncheon in their honor at the officers' club.

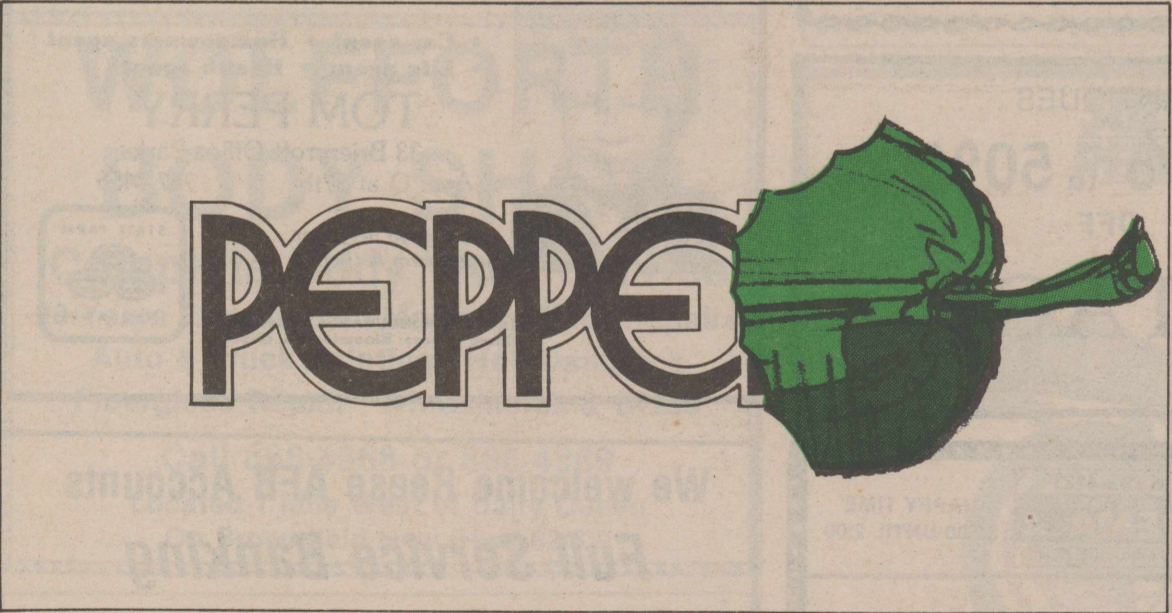

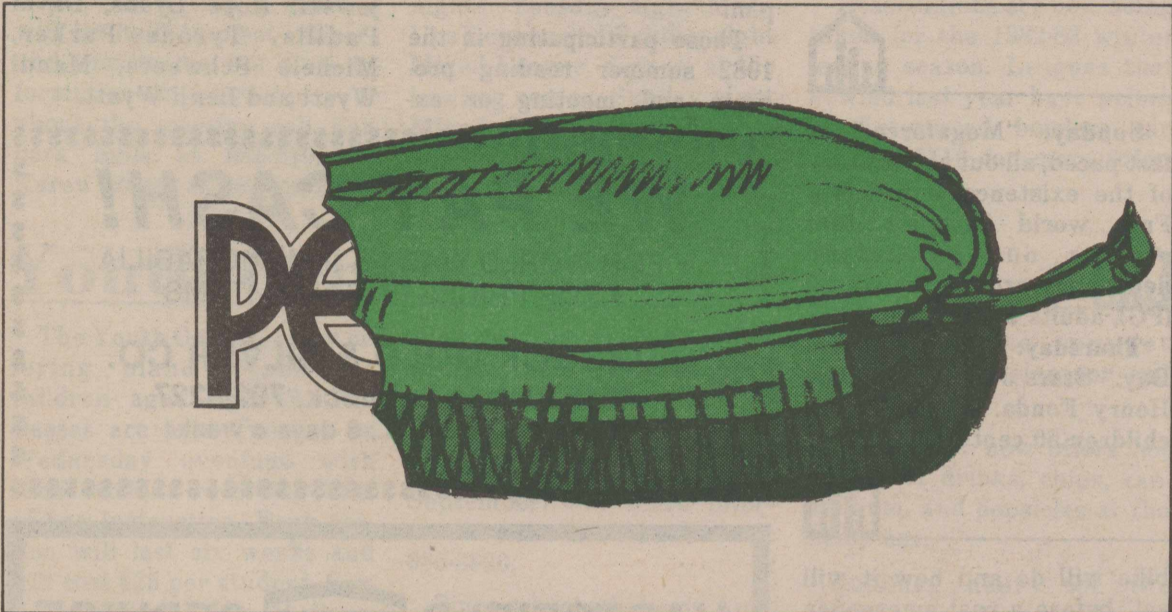

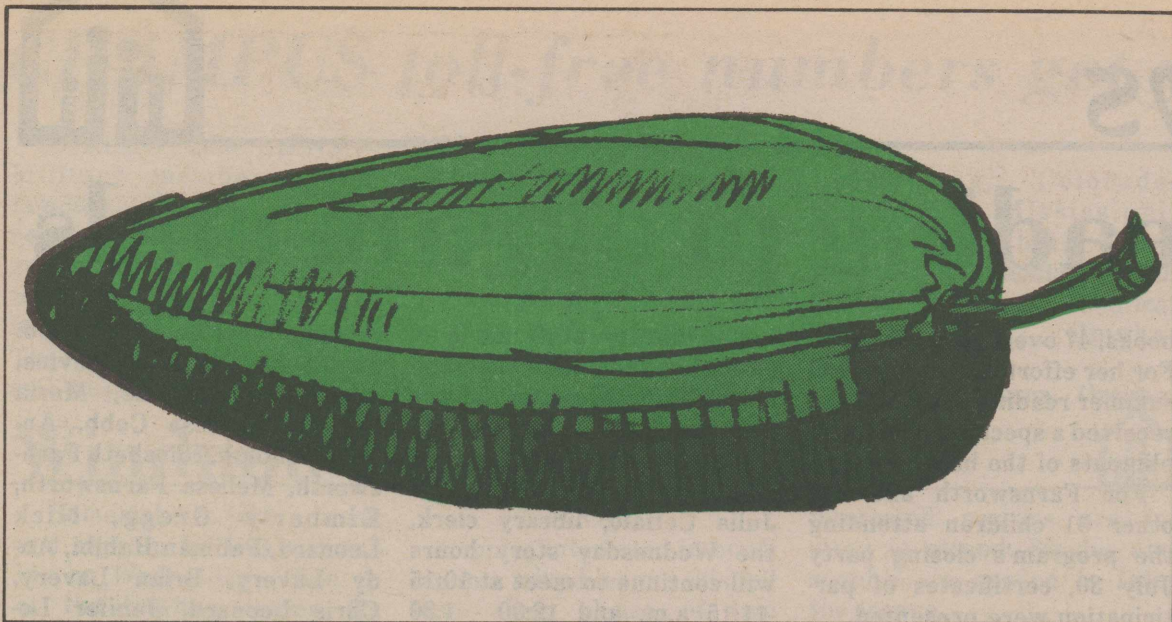

Later that day, there will be a Parents Red Carpet tour sponsored by the 64th Student Squadron and a dinner-dance this evening at the officers' club for the new pilots.

JOC sponsors second Geritol sports event

The second event of the "Geritol sports program" is just around the corner.

Sponsored by the Junior Officers' Committee, the slow-pitch softball game will feature the "Eagles", - the colonels - battling it out against the "Chiefs" for top softball honors. The big match will begin at 4 p.m. Aug. 13 at War Highway field two.

Preceding the Chiefs vs Eagles game, the JOC will challenge the NCO Academy Association Graduates for an action-packed softball game. The game will begin at 3 p.m.

Any company grade officers, male or female, who would like to play on the JOC team can contact Capt. Patricia Andrepont, Ext. 3800. According to the president of the JOC, 1st Lt. Darrell Smith, a lot of skill is not required, just a desire to play and have a good time.

The JOC game will be a variation of slow-pitch softball called two-pitch. Two-pitch is similar to one-pitch, played at Officers Training School. Anyone who is unsure of this way of game play need not worry: the JOC will teach you the rules.

Project Warrior seminar

Approximately 30 officers, student pilots through senior pilots, attended the July 30 Project Warrior seminar held at the officers' club.

The theme of the seminar was rescue and recovery operations in Vietnam.

Following a brief film regarding the rescue and recovery operations, Maj. Larry Klingbeil and Capt. Jim Wilson added accounts of their personal experiences to those depicted in the film.

Both of the senior pilots had things to say about their operations and those of similar units in Vietnam. Major Klingbeil went one step further, telling the student pilots to remember what they learned at Reese about basic flying: it could save their lives.

When the two veteran pilots had completed their talks about the things they'd learned and the experiences they'd lived the seminar was opened for questions.

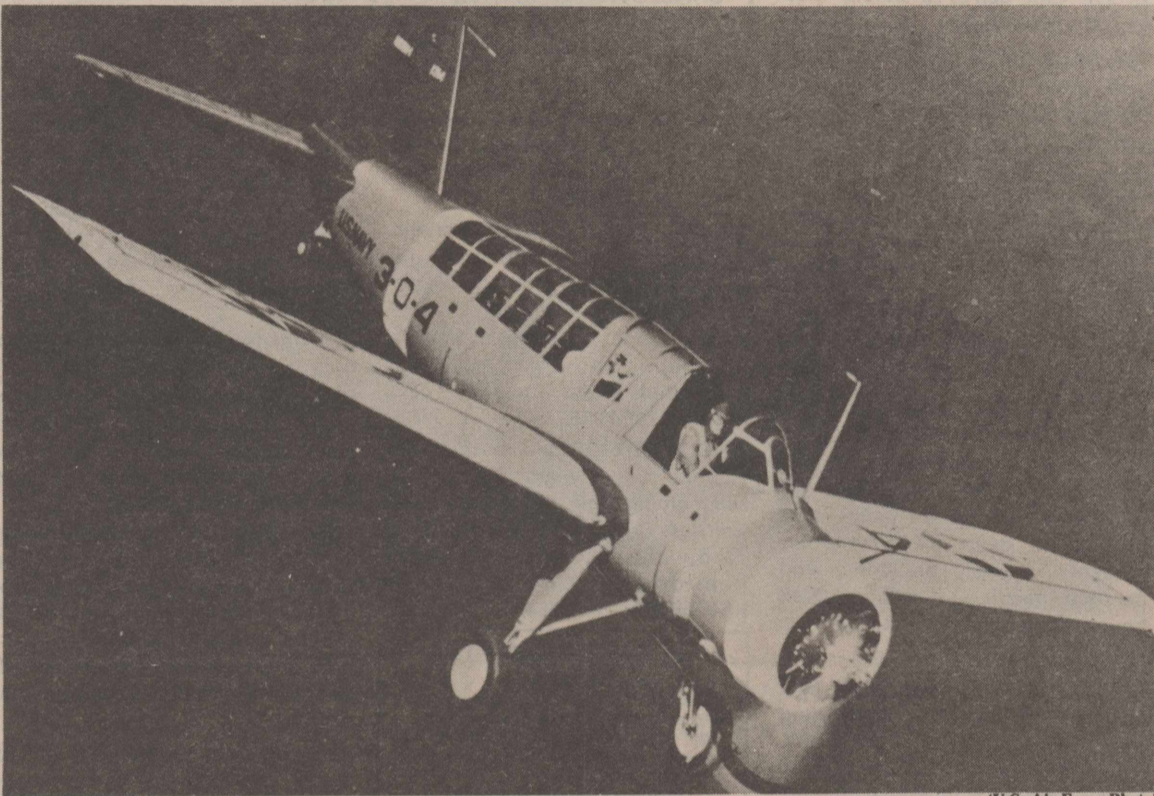

Project Warrior Project Officer Capt. Mark Wells pointed out that the seminars were for all Reese people, not just pilots.

To get involved in the project, people can stop by the library where a Project Warrior book section has been set-off.

There is also the weekly airplane photo published in the Roundup. If you can identify the plane, be one of the first seven to call in and your name will be published. For those wishing to participate, but are having difficulty getting in among the first seven callers Roundups are distributed Thursday afternoons to the credit union, the recreation center, the base exchange, the commissary and the dining hall.
