Graduates Advised To Be World's Best

Members of Class 55-B, graduated from Reese Air Force Base Wednesday, were urged to do their utmost to make and keep the United States Air Force the best in the world.

"As an Air Force officer and as a skilled aviation specialist you will represent security to our nation," Maj. George J. Bokun, wing plans and training officer at Reese, told the 95 graduates. "Today in the Air Force, as well as in the other services, we are faced with an increasingly critical problem. It is the problem of utilizing our human resources to the fullest extent. As you all know we are no match in numbers for those who are threatening our way of life. Instead, we have to make quality training overcome our weakness in numbers. Regardless of the number we must train or the complexity of the training we must provide, our goal first and always is quality."

Major Bokun Speaks

Maj. Bokun told the new pilots their duty was to do their best, under all circumstances in order that the nation may "resolve a deeply complex and serious world situation by honorable means."

"There is an urgency in our world picture that makes sound leadership a paramount need," he added. "You are expected to provide a share of that leadership. It will be officers graduating today and in the future who will take over the reins of leadership and maintain the control over the best Air Force in the world. Although we may not have the biggest Air Force in the world, we are determined to have the best."

Four students received special honors at the graduation.

Two Distinguished Cadets

Aviation Cadets John W. Guiling and James W. Thompson were presented citations for being Distinguished Cadets, outstanding in flying, academic, and military training and eligible for special consideration for regular Air Force commissions. Cadet Elmer Slaten, Jr., and 2nd Lt. Jere W. Lottner received plaques as outstanding athletes of the class.

Cadet Guiling, from Morrilton, Ark., is a former student of Arkansas Polytechnic institute, where he was a member of the band, glee club, and honor society. Cadet Thompson, from Hillsboro, Wis., enlisted in 1950. He lettered in football and basketball in high school.

New Wing Inspector Transferred To Base

Reese Air Force Base received new wing inspector this week as Lt. Col. Robert A. Clendenin reported from his last assignment as director of operations at Eielson AFB, Alaska. Colonel Clendenin succeeds Maj. Frank C. Thomas. Colonel Clendenin has been in the service since December, 1941, receiving his commission in August, 1942. He served in the China-Burma - India theater during World War II, flying 80 combat missions in the P-51 fighter and winning the Distinguished Flying cross and Air medal. A native of Bloomington, Ill., the colonel attended Illinois state normal university and Illinois Wesleyan university, where he was a letterman in swimming. He has attended many service schools, including the Air Command and Staff school. Colonel Clendenin is accompanied to Lubbock by his wife, the former Jane Hamilton of Bloomington, and their sons, Robert A. Jr., 11, and John H., 7. They will live at 115 Harmon drive in Reese Village.

The 1954 Community Chest started Monday, October 11, and will run until November 10. This drive offers financial assistance to almost all local and national welfare agencies.

The major purpose of the Red Feather campaign is to enable the public to contribute to all the welfare organizations at one time rather than to many separate appeals. This drive is an assurance that all necessary recipients will receive a share of the funds coltion, Boy Scouts, Milam Home and Salvation Army are among the many local agencies receiving assistance. Some of the national organizations aided by the Community Chest are cancer, polio, cerebral palsy, heart disease and the Red Cross.

The LSO is one of the local organizations that affect military personnel directly. An agency set up to offer recreation to servicemen, the LSO has taken part in many of the activities of the Reese Service club, as well as holding regular weekly affairs at chologist on the west coast analyzed a group of unpopular men and women. He made a list of traits that they possessed. This list included everything from mendacity (a habit of forgetting how to tell the truth) to nose twitching. Then he narrowed these traits down to 45 which most unpopular people have in common. He studied the effects of these 45 traits. If a person had one or more of these, his chances of being disliked were 740 to 1. Then out of the 45 he chose nine and determined that if a person had one or more of these his chances of being disliked were 1,000,000 to 1. The obvious warning that this analysis gives you then is to be sure that none of these nine are present in your own personality if you want others to follow you. Few f any people will swing in beund a person whom they dislike.

FUTURE FIRE-FIGHTERS.—Youngsters of Reese Village are being given a demonstration in fire fighting by a member of the Reese Fire department. The demonstration was accompanied by a talk on the prevention of fires and elimination of fire hazards. This was one of the many demonstrations on fire prevention held by Reese AFB in observance of National Fire Prevention week, October 3-9. Other demonstrations and activities accomplished were the collections of combustible materials, which were later piled in the parking area by the Post Exchange and burned at the end of the week, a base wide inspection for defective wiring and furnaces, posters and lectures.

Disaster has struck! Slippery Rock has fallen. That is to say that their football team lost last week. It seems that Oklahoma has little to worry about with their number one ranking in collegiate football ranks. Not only has Slippery Rock fallen by the wayside, but the Big Red of Oklahoma plowed under the University of Texas last Saturday. That Sooner line was particularly impressive, completely bottling up a Texas attack that was supposed to be strong up the middle. Most of the other top-rated teams came through as expected, with the notable exception of Southern California, which fell before TCU. Ronald Clinkscale did himself proud in that one.

This week Oklahoma turns on Kansas and Wisconsin, which eked out a win over Rice last Saturday, plays Purdue. That Wisconsin-Purdue game bears watching. On the west coast UCLA takes on a deflated Stanford team and may be pressed to maintain its 3rd place standing. Ohio State (number four) plays Iowa, a team with dangerous potential. Duke, the number six team, is scheduled to go against Army Mississippi plays Tulane in the south and Notre Dame takes the field against Michigan State. Penn State and Navy, tied for ninth, spend the weekend with West Virginia and Pittsburgh, respectfully (as the Ole Podner would say).

In a Southwest Conference feature the Texas Longhorns, preseason pick to sweep everything in sight, play the surprising University of Arkansas which already has two conference wins tucked away. The Red Raiders of Texas Tech, tenaciously holding onto ranking in the top twenty, journey to bayou country to play LSU. The Tigers have lost a lot of games this year, but they've been playing top-flight competition. This may be a chance for Tech to regain some lost luster if they can deliver.

Here on the base M&S and ABG are battling for the top rung in the intramural league, both sporting 5-1 records. Maintenance still holds the scoring leadership.

Incidentally, there were 30 candidates out for the base basketball team at the first tryout. More are expected to show up later. Prospects are for a top-flight traveling club.
