Base Close Second In ATC Safety

Reese AFB is gaining on the leader, but still holds second place in the Air Training Command competition for the $25,000 Commander's Award for the best ground safety record for the fiscal year 1955. Col. C. P. West, Reese AFB commander, said this week.

Lt. Gen. Charles T. Myers, ATC commander, announced late last year that $25,000 will be given the base having the best safety record, the money to be used on any project considered morale building. Colonel West said that new statistics on the competition between the 43 bases showed Sampson AFB still in the lead with 1,972 points, based on accident index, while Reese AFB was second with 2,259 index points, a difference of 287 as compared with over 600 a month previous. The colonel said he was pleased with the gain, but hoped for more improvement prior to the June 30 deadline.

Latest figures, he pointed out, showed Reese AFB leader in private vehicle accident loss, with .045 cents per capita for accidents per million miles of operation, as compared with .060 for Webb AFB, in second place. The base also had third place in military on-duty costs, behind Lackland AFB and Keesler AFB. However, Reese AFB was not listed among the best five bases in civilian accident and government vehicle accident costs, the areas in which base officials have been attempting improvement for several months.

NCO Mess Features 684th AF Band

The 684th Air Force Band from James Connally AFB, Waco, Texas will be featured at a concert and dance held in the Non-Commissioned Officers Open Mess, Tuesday, April 16, Capt. Jack R. Laney, personnel morale officer said this week.

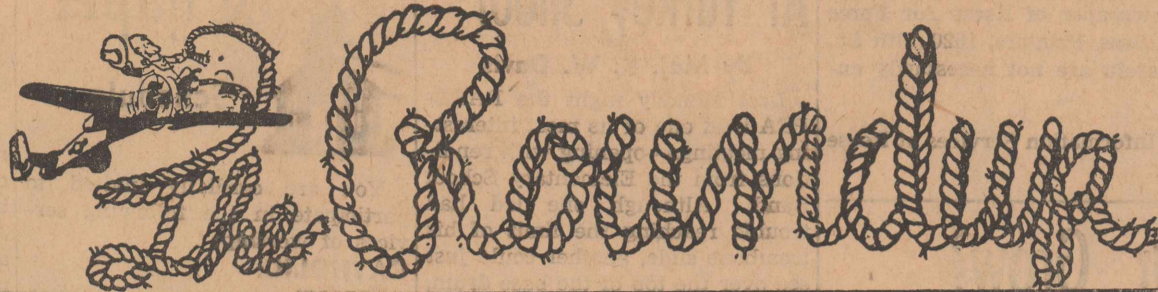

Making a tour of FTAF bases the 21 piece band will play a 45 minute variety concert scheduled to start at 8:15 p.m. and then furnish the music for an informal dance.

The band will present the second of the concerts of the tour at Webb AFB, April 27.

All airmen, their families and guests are invited to the concert and dance.

Two Reese AFB Airmen Vie In Talent Contest

Two RAFB airmen, A/1C Gail Sogard of Maintenance and Supply and A/2C Burt Needham of Air Base Group, left this week to compete in the 1955 West District AF talent contest held at Amarillo AFB, April 20-23. Sogard, a vocalist, and Needham, a pianist, are entered in one of the many preliminary contests held in the AF bases overseas and in the United States. Winners in each command area will come to Lowry AFB May 22, with the winners to represent the AF in the "Tops In Blue Show". Tops in Blue will be previewed by Ed Sullivan's TV show before it starts a tour of the Air Force bases throughout the world.

Weather Prophets Meet Here; Discuss Area Dust Problems

THE DUST WENT THAT WAY — Leaders in the dust forecasting conference this week at Reese AFB study a map in efforts to analyze dust movements and how they affect the Air Force. First Salk Polio Vaccinations Given At Frenship Schools

Candy suckers and a scarcity of quivering lips and tears marked Salk polio vaccination of 246 children in the Frenship elementary schools before noon this past Tuesday.

A corps of workers visited the Frenship school at Wolforth early in the morning to vaccinate 132 first and second grade pupils. Then the crew moved to Reese elementary school, Bradford school and Reese AFB kindergarten.

This was the first Air Force move to give vaccinations to all first and second grade children of AF Military and Civilian personnel stationed in the U.S. through arrangements made by the Department of Defense and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, to furnish the vaccine free of charge.

As each child approached the vaccination area—and the needle—he or she was given a candy sucker and all discussion was concentrated on the sweet. Thus, there was less chance of pain.

Cooperation of Reese AFB personnel was in line with activities aimed at getting the Salk vaccinations for all young dependents of military personnel. The Air Force plans to vaccinate all children from six months to 16 years as rapidly as possible, speed depending on availability of vaccines.

Air Force Requests Funds For New Construction On Base

Definite information that plans are in the making for erection of a new service club, a new dining hall, and two new airmen's dormitories at Reese AFB came this week when Congress was asked to appropriate one million, 28 thousand dollars for such work and for land acquisition.

Tentative plans for the new construction have been "in the mill" for several months, but no information on the program could be made public until funds were asked, Maj. Albert Stokes, base engineer, said.

The Air Force yesterday asked the Congress to set aside needed money for use in Fiscal Year 1956, starting July 1 for four permanent type, masonry construction buildings. An airman's dining hall for care for 700 men is the largest building on the program.

Two multi-story airmen's dormitories are planned, each to care for 200 men in the latest type plan of housing, with two, three or four men assigned each room. The service club also is programmed for multi-story.

Major Stokes said that the Corps of Engineers will handle specifications for the buildings, working with Reese AFB personnel, and no definite construction had been agreed on. He said it had not been definitely determined just where the four buildings will be constructed if funds are made available and no decision of what troops would occupy the dormitories is expected prior to completion of the buildings.

Congress this week also was asked to make funds available to buy 52.4 acres of land for clearance at the end of the east-west runway

How to better integrate blowing dust into United States Air Force training and other activities was the chief concern this week of weathermen of eight southwestern bases convening at Reese Air Force Base.

Weather detachments at all bases are responsible for forecasting conditions and blowing dust is a major problem in many areas, it was pointed out. Allowances are made for dust in training programs, such as carried out at Reese and during windy periods additional days are granted to complete prescribed work.

8 Bases Represented

Forecasts for training bases so far have been quite accurate and accidents because of weather have been scarce, conferees at Reese cited. But greater knowledge of recurring dust is sought.

Forecasters from Amarillo, McConnell, Sheppard, Perrin, Vance, Goodfellow, Webb, and Reese Air Force bases are meeting this week at Reese in efforts to analyze recurring dust periods and to lay groundwork for more accurate methods of forecasting. Meeting with the base leaders is Capt. John Keaty of Andrews AFB, Washington, D. C., who is gathering data for use in the nation's capital.

PAY TABLE CORRECTION

NEW YORK (AFPS)—In the pay table distributed by AFPS recently, the pay listed for an officer in the pay grade O-6, with over 16 years service, was incorrectly given as $665.20. The pay for an O-6, with over 16 years should have been listed as $655.20.

Assumes New Duties As First Sergeant

T/Sgt. Whitney W. Frost, who is assuming new duties as first sergeant of Headquarters Squadron section, 3500th Maintenance and Supply group at Reese AFB, has been selected as the outstanding airman of the base, Col. C. P. West, Reese AFB commander, said this week.

Sgt. Frost, who is a supply specialist, served from January, 1941, to June, 1945, returned for a second tour of active duty from June, 1946, to December, 1952, and enlisted again in November, 1953. He has been at Reese all of his present enlistment.

The sergeant has been stationed in England, North Africa, Italy, and Panama on foreign tours, winning several decorations, including the Legion of Merit, Italian Military Cross, and European Theater medal.

Interested In Education

Sergeant Frost was named "Outstanding Airman" partially because of his major interest in and contributions to the United States Air Force and for his major effort to secure further formal education, Col. West said. It was pointed out that he performed assigned duties in a highly effective manner.

He was unable to finish high school, but through in-service study, passed examinations which brought him a diploma from Norman High School in Oklahoma. Since coming to Reese AFB he has completed 19 hours of night work at Texas Tech, getting high grades, and is completing six more hours. In addition, the sergeant has completed six Air Force schools, one of them as an honor student.

Sgt. Frost has been nominated to Flying Training Air Force for consideration as "Airman of the Year" in FTAF, which will select two and nominate them for consideration to Air Training Command, a higher headquarters. Winners will be given major publicity and attention.

The sergeant was selected at Reese AFB by a board of master sergeants which also considered S/Sgt. Louis Nucci, Installations group; M/Sgt. Russell Gros, 3501st Periodic Maintenance Squadron; M/Sgt. William R. Grambley, Headquarters Squadron section, Pilot Training wing; and M/Sgt. Garnet Lee, Headquarters, Air Base, group.

Will It Go Or Grow?

(EDITORIAL)

An opportunity has just been handed to most of you to prepare for that rainy day without revising your present budget at all. Here's a chance to go on living as you have been on the same old pay—only now you can spend it all and save some money at the same time. How? It's this simple: Instead of taking home the new pay raise make out an allotment for U. S. Savings Bonds. You won't miss it. So before you start spending all your raise, stop a moment to realize that the lasting good you get from more pay depends entirely on what you do with it.

By putting aside a little money each pay day in Savings Bonds it automatically accumulates into big money to buy worthwhile things, such as a new car, new home, college education for your children or a nice bundle waiting for you when you retire or leave the service.

It is your decision whether your pay raise goes or grows. Make out that allotment now. If you wait and the pay raise works its way into your weekly spending you'll be right back in the same old rut. After all, you've been getting along without it up until now, haven't you? (AFPS)

Air Force Is Tops

You aren't the only one who thinks that the Air Force is mighty important. More than 7 out of every 10 persons in the United States believe that the Air Force would play the most important role in any future world war.

That is the finding of a recent survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion, Princeton, N. J., the Gallup Poll. According to the Institute, 71 per cent of the people questioned think that the Air Force would be most important; 5 per cent say the Navy and 4 per cent think the Army would be most important.

About one person in five, or 19 per cent, believes that all three Services would be equally important.

Director of the Institute, George Gallup, credits the one-sided vote to the "drama and color" of the Air Force which, he says, "has fired the popular imagination."

The Air Force's great popular appeal is reflected in every walk of life. The vote ran from 69% to 75% for the Air Force among persons in various educational or age groupings. Persons who had attended college or those who had attended only high school or grade school voted about the same. So did those in the 21 to 29 age group, the 30 to 49 group and the 50-yearold and older group.

Whether this widely held belief that the Air Force will have the top role in any future world war should be credited only to its "drama and color" is debatable. It seems likely that Americans are generally aware of the Air Force's ability to quickly concentrate enormous striking power at decisive times and places against any enemy. It seems logical for Americans to appreciate how important highly mobile, hard-hitting airpower would be in any future war.

While we can be justly proud of the recognition the Air Force has received in its short history, we must be soberly aware of the great responsibility that goes with our key role. As long as Communist striking forces remain a grim threat to our Nation none of us can rest on our laurels.

PTA Clears $425 At Turkey Shoot

By Maj. R. W. Davis

Last Monday night the RAFB-PTA held one of its most interesting meetings—opening with renditions from the Elementary School Band. Although one lad had trouble reaching the limit of his trombone slide, another could just see over the top of the base drum, and there was an abundance of reed instruments, it was not hard to detect a note of pride in the manner these young musicians performed.

Mrs. Murray W. Crowder Jr. made a report on the 14th Texas PTA Congress as to topics and projects covered and stated she was proud to exploit the fine record of attendance of our own RAFB-PTA; also the larger turn-out of male members.

Capt. Richard Roswurm made a financial report of the Trap Shoot held, indicating over $1,000.00 was taken in with a clear profit to the PTA of $425.00. M/Sgt. Peter O'Keefe thanked individual members concerned for their help in making a success of the Trap Shoot. The sergeant said there were 451 shooters on hand and that 65 shoots were held, with about 750 pounds of luscious ham and bacon given away. He also said that over 3,000 targets and 3,000 rounds of ammunition were used to bring income larger than expected. Major assistance in the shoot came from the Lubbock and Shallowater gun clubs, Wolfforth Lions club and other organizations.

O'Keefe requested a committee be appointed to carry out the planned landscaping of the school and members voted the following persons to the committee: Mr. J. Weldon Bennett, chairman; Capt. Jack Bates, and Maj. Homer L. Parsons.

General Curtis Le May Assigned New Title

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Gen. Curtis E. LeMay now has a new title — "Commander-in-Chief, Strategic Air Command."

An AF announcement said the new title does not mean any change in Gen. LeMay's authority, but is in line with a policy of the Joint Chiefs of Staff under which all heads of unified commands or military units under their direction are designated as "commander-in-chief."

Gen. LeMay's former designation was simply "commander."

$125 Is Given For Civilian Suggestions

Cash awards totaling $125 were presented this week to five RAFB civilian employees for suggestions submitted to the base incentive awards committee, Tom Ireland, civilian personnel officer, said.

The largest cash award went to Joseph F. Bollinger of 3505th Field Maintenance Sq., who received $40 for his suggestion of an aircraft heater tester and $25 for his idea of a blower assembly for testing B-25 heaters.

Edgar M. Smith of the base supply section received $20 for suggesting a simplified method of book arrangements in his section.

A socket for removing and installing elbows, idea earned a $20 award for Thomas H. Slate of 3505th Field Maintenance.

L. R. Alewine received $10 for a tire inflation safety gauge and the use of modified pliers to aid in sewing parachute fabrics earned Paul G. Randolph a $10 award. Both of these men are members of the 3505th Field Maintenance Squadron.

It was pointed out that the suggestions made by these men will afford an annual savings of over $2,600 plus a reduction of several safety hazards on the base.

A letter of appreciation was presented each of the men in behalf of the base commander.

Sears, Roebuck To Salute Base With Special Night

Sears Roebuck and Company have set aside the night of Wednesday, April 27, as Reese Air Force Base Night, a letter received this week by a base official disclosed. The event will be a prelude of the company's annual Employee Sale as well as a salute to the military and civilian personnel of the base.

Featured in the event, scheduled for the hours of 7 to 9 p.m., will be a "wishing well", with a $100 merchandise prize going to some lucky person of the base. Winner of the cash prize will be required to show an ID card or gate pass in order to claim it. Free movies will be shown for children in the store basement, and there will be free refreshments for all visitors.

Base personnel will have first opportunity to purchase items reduced for the sale, J. F. Garliepp, assistant manager of the store, stated. A special feature for Reese AFB personnel will be a free wrapping and mailing of Mother's Day gifts.

A new feature of the event will be a provision for personnel to "lay-away" items desired with no down payment and pay for them on payday, Garliepp said. Free entertainment for the children will also be provided in the Farm Store.

The store is located at 1625 13th Street, in Lubbock. (See advertisement, page 5.)

Toastmaster Club Completes Format

Organization of the Reese Officers Toastmasters Club is now complete, Capt. Carl A. Cannop, President of the group, announced this week.

Training and organizational materials were received, the educational chairman, Maj. Sam L. Osver, said, which makes it possible for the group to embark on the formal course of training designed by Toastmasters International, headquarters for Toastmasters Clubs throughout the nation, to improve speaking ability in its members.

The local club has a full complement of thirty regular members, Captain Cannop stated, all of whom are charter members. The members voted at the initial meeting of the club to restrict membership to thirty, with provisions for prospective applicants to attend meetings of the group as associate members until vacancies appear on the regular membership rolls. Associate members will be permitted to act as critics and to deliver impromptu and extemporaneous speeches, Major Osver said, but will not be permitted to make formal speeches.

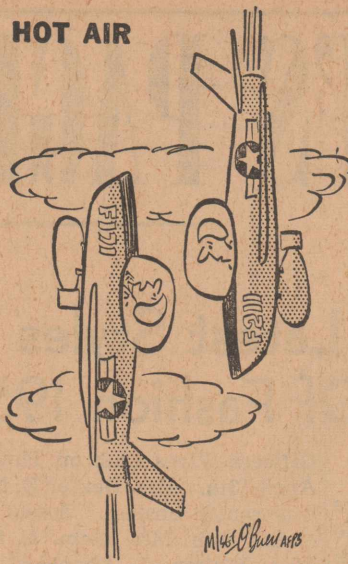

Members of the club are presently making a series of "icebreaker" speeches, formal talks designed to acquaint the members with the background and interests of one another, the major said. At the regular meeting of the club in the (Continued on page 8)

The cafeteria will now be open from 7-10:30 a.m.; 11-12:30; and 1:30-4 p.m. daily. Saturdays, the cafeteria will be open from 7 a.m. to 12 noon. Barber shop hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and from 8 a.m. till noon on Saturdays.

The base service station will open at 7:30 and close at 4:40 daily and will be open from 7:30 to 2:30 on Saturdays. Leaving the service station open till 2 p.m. on Saturdays is just an experiment and will be continued permanently if found favorable, Capt. Charles E. Stokes, exchange officer said. Just gasoline and accessories will be sold after noon on Saturdays, he also pointed out.

A/2C Carl W. Oxendine of 3500th USAF Hospital has been assigned for further duties in England. He will report to Camp Kilmer, N. J., May 24, for overseas shipment.

13 Air Policemen Are Re-Assigned; Leave For Europe

Increased Family Housing Proposed

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Defense Department is readying a $1,350,000,000 family housing program that it will present to Congress in the near future.

The Defense Department hopes that Congress will authorize that sum for the next five years to build about 27,500 housing units each year for families of members of the Armed Forces.

The appropriation for the present fiscal year totaled $75,000,000.

The family housing proposal will go to Congress as part of the DOD public works program, which originally was estimated at $1,910,000,000.

This figure, however, recently was increased by an extra $100,000,000, which was added for more family housing.

Hearings on the DOD proposal will be held by the Armed Services and Appropriations Committees of both the House and the Senate.

No figures are available now on how the requested units would be apportioned among the services.

In testimony before the Senate Appropriations Committee, Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott declared that "housing is the most critical problem in the AF today."

He said he favored "any action that will permit us to get a considerable quantity of housing—say 50,000 units—in a hurry."

Airmen's Wives Club To Hold Sunday Tea

Miss Sue Phillips, director of Reese AFB Service Club, wishes to extend a personal invitation to all Airmen's Wives to attend a tea at the Service Club, Sunday, April 24, from 3-5 p.m. Purpose of the tea is to organize an Airmen's Wives Club on the base.

It was the desire of Miss Phillips to send every wife a personal invitation, but this proved impossible due to unknown addresses. She wishes to explain, too, that any wife unable to attend the tea Sunday, but is interested in becoming a member of the wives club, should either contact her by calling extension 722 at Reese AFB or visit the Service Club.

Since the discovery of elastic, it is estimated that women take up one-third less space.

Tech Home Ec Division Presents 'Open House'

Semi-final play is nearing completion in the base-wide double elimination ping pong tournament with only two left in the singles winners bracket. Capt. Mario Ventura and M/Sgt. Robert Stock were battling it out for the top man in the bracket last night when the Roundup went to press.

Winner of this game will then meet the top man in the losers bracket to determine the singles champion.

Doubles play were started late and are still in the semi-finals, with winners to play it off for the title this coming week. See all the action of the finals both singles and doubles, at the Service Club.

A handball tournament will be held the latter part of this month with the exact date unknown at this time. Interested persons may sign up for the tourney in their squadrons or can get in touch with Sergeant Meyers at the Base Gym, to enter.

It seems that last years winner of the World Series is out on top of the National League without a loss so far in the season. The "Bums" are followed by Milwaukee.

The American league is a closer race with the Boston Red Sox in front and the Yankees a close second. All of the baseball fans will see topnotch ball played every Saturday afternoon on the TV game of the week. So fans—stay close to that dayroom on Saturday.

Shipwreck Island Setting Is Theme For Cadet Dance

By A/C Mike C. Grinnell

By the soft magical glow of light, in the sultry evening atmosphere of a south sea isle, surrounded with coconuts, palm trees, and mint juleps, the weary aviators and their shipwrecked maidens will dance to the sweet island music of Don Gray and his orchestra, Saturday, April 30, at "The Shipwreck Dance" presented at the Cadet Club.

This elaborate function has been undertaken under the able direction of two outstanding southern gentlemen, Air Cadets Roy Ayers and Sam Alexander. Like all activities, the success of this extra special dance will depend up the enthusiasm of the participants. The dress will be anything appropriate to south seas atmosphere, and a surprise door prize will be awarded to the most original costume.

Much thought and hard work has gone into the planning of this affair, and it is hoped that all the cadets will come and enjoy themselves. It's up to you to make this the best evening of entertainment to reach the base since Texas joined the union.

PTW Officers Sponsor 'Spring Fever' Dance

By Maj. R. W. Davis

The officer personnel of Hqs PTW this week sent invitations to all base officers cordially inviting them to attend the dance to be held tomorrow, April 23, 9 p.m., at the Officers' Open Mess. The theme of the dance is built around "Spring fever".

This will be an opportunity for the ladies to break out their cool cotton creations and make a colorful splash, Major Homer Parsons, chairman of the dance committee, stated. Major Billy Hockaday, head of the decorating committee, has suggested that he may move the whole of Hemphill-Wells in to create the proper

Wingless Flying Platform In 1st Public Exhibition

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Navy has developed a real version of the legendary flying carpet. It's a circular, wingless platform that the pilot, standing upright, steers by leaning in the direction he wants to go.

The "aircraft," which so far has flown only short distances close to the ground, is said to be so simple that a person can fly it with only a few minutes instruction.

This strange flying machine uses a new principle of lift and propulsion called the "ducted fan," in which two propellers rotating in opposite directions are set horizontally below the platform.

Air is sucked through holes in the platform resulting in a downward thrust that supplies the vertical lift. The propellers are powered by separate engines that together develop less than 100 horsepower.

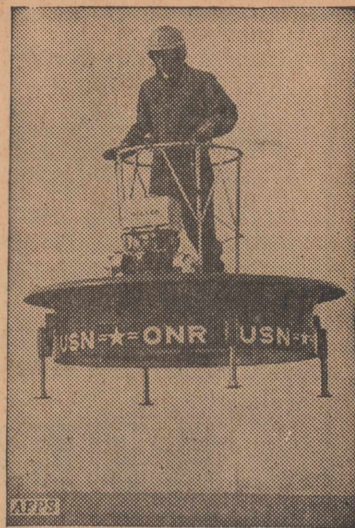

The device is about six feet in diameter and 30 inches high. It is so light that two men can carry it.

The pilot stands in the center of the platform inside a railing. His feet are strapped in place and he can direct the platform forward, backward or sideways simply by shifting his weight.

The Navy said the machine is stabilized and controlled by the same instinctive reactions the pilot uses to stand upright.

Further research and development will be necessary before the principles of the flying platform can be applied in the production of military aircraft, a Navy spokesman pointed out.

Hiller Helicopters of Palo Alto, Calif., designed and built the machine as a research tool under the auspices of the Office of Naval Research.

FLYING CARPET — The Navy's new wingless flying platform, given its first public demonstration recently, uses a new principle in lift and propulsion by using what is called a "ducted fan."

Goes To North Africa

A/1C William E. Parnell of 3500th Air Base Group has been re-assigned for further duties in North Africa as a volunteer. He will report to Camp Kilmer, N. J., for overseas shipment May 18.

A/3C Ronald D. Knapp of 3500th Food Service Squadron has been assigned to Main Station in Alaska. He will report to Naval Processing Center, Seattle, Wash., May 16, for overseas shipment.

Trojans Commended For Performances In Tops In Blue

News of additional honors for "Tops in Blue," the all-star Air Force show which toured the world last year has been received at Reese AFB, Col. C. P. West, base commander, said today. The show was a feature of the annual salesman's barbecue at the fair grounds last November.

Col. West said he had been notified by Air Force headquarters in Washington that Airmen Keith B. Anderson, James J. Beifuss, and Peter Dopudja, Reese AFB, had been awarded an achievement award, along with all other members of "Tops In Blue" cast. The show traveled over 40,000 miles while making a 221-day worldwide tour of 144 military installations. The troupe entertained about 215,000 military personnel and their dependents in 227 separate performances.

"The high praise directed toward "Tops in Blue" of '54 and the contribution which the show made to the morale and esprit de corps of the many thousands of servicemen who viewed it, can be attributed, to a great extent, to the untiring efforts, initiative, and ability displayed by each member of the cast," the letter to Col. West said.

The Salesman's barbecue appearance in Lubbock was the only non-military appearance of the tour.

Heflick, with Capt. Byrne P. Whalen acting as Toastmaster for the evening. Maj. Homer L. Parsons acted as Topicmaster, assigning subjects for impromptu talks to several of the members present. Captains Youngblood and Heflick shared honors as best speakers of the evening.

New Management Officer Assigned

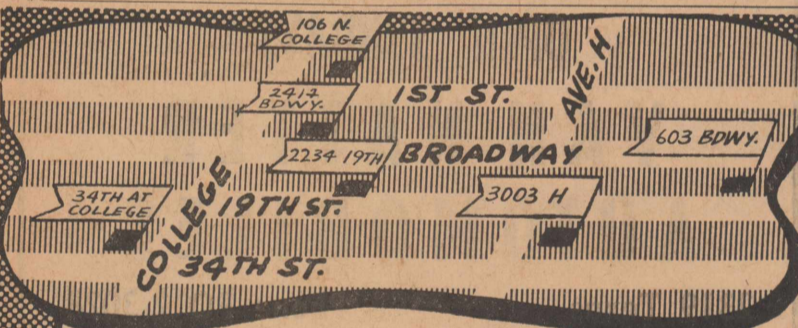

Maj. Jack L. Arvidson, decorated veteran of the Korean war, assumed new duties as management analysis officer at Reese Air Force Base today, Col. C. P. West, base commander, said.

The major, in service on his second active tour, was assigned to Reese AFB from Ellington AFB, Houston, where he was a flight commander. Management analysis in the Air Force is considered a primary function, since emphasis is on the most effective operation possible, Col. West pointed out. Maj. Arvidson, whose home is Camas, Wash., served from December, 1941, to March, 1946, two years in Okinawa. He was recalled to active duty in May, 1951, and went to Korea, where he flew 55 missions and won several decorations.
