By Kay Ellington The Hesperian-Beacon

Trevino said that with the planned bond, students would start classes in the new school in the fall of 2019. As for what will be the sequence of the construction of new facilities. Trevino said, "We'll have to look at everything. We're not sure at this point. Maybe the baseball field will be ready first because it doesn't depend upon another facility being demolished. Regarding the overall outcome Trevino said, "We are very pleased with the outcome of the bond election. We are fortunate to have an outstanding educational system in our community with outstanding educators, students, parents, and citizens. Commissioners to Recognize Lucy Dean Record

By Kay Ellington The Hesperian-Beacon

The Floyd County Commissioners will be recognizing Lucy Dean Record at their next monthly meeting Tuesday, June 12 at 8 a.m. at the Floyd County Courthouse.

Record who will turn 93 June 1 is a nationally recognized professional musician and has been teaching piano lessons in Lockney since 1946. Among her many honors include: Induction into the Western Swing Society of the Southwest Hall of Fame and Instrumentalist of the Year at the Will Rodgers Awards, by the Academy of Western Artists.

Bob Phillips and the Texas Country Reporter recently filmed an interview with Record that should be airing sometime this month.

The commission would like to encourage Record's fellow musicians, friends, and family to be on hand for the special occasion.

The Floyd County Commissioners will be recognizing nationally recognized professional musician Lucy Dean Record of Lockney at their next monthly meeting Tuesday, June 12 at 8 a.m. at the Floyd County Courthouse.

In other court action, commissioners voted to install video security surveillance equipment. Dispatchers who work around the clock at the sheriff's department have returned to the vehicles to find them vandalized. These surveillance cameras will record activities around the square and in certain areas of the courthouse.

Four wind energy companies have completed and returned their 312 agreements with the county. The county is following up with Apex.

As for fame, why aim so high? There's more room in the middle. That's not to say I don't sometimes fantasize that one of my T-shirts will achieve PBS-status on "Antiques Roadshow." Somebody will have found one tucked away in an attic trunk, neatly folded: The show's Tshirt expert (called in just for my shirt) will ask the shirt owner if they've noticed the name and copyright in small print in the bottom righthand corner. Then he'll tell them "HANABA" was a T-shirt artist who worked at the turn of the century in West Texas. I like to think he'll say something like this:

"She wasn't famous during her lifetime, but now her shirts are considered somewhat

> He'll wrap things up by telling them to insure the shirt for a few thousand

GILBERT BEAN AND JOHN SHELBY CALAHAN

Written by Margaret Bean Calahan November 14, 1977

Roger Gilbert Bean finished Jr. college in Greenville, Texas and volunteered for army service. When the war ended in 1919, he joined his parents Leeroy and Mattie Hubbard Bean on the farm south of Lockeny, wheere they had moved in 1917 from Greenville, Texas.

While working at Hollaus Grain Co., Gilbert met Mullin, Texas who was apprentice telegraph operator at the Santa Fe depot. Bill roomed with the Tab Meriweathers, and Gilbert courted her there. On Saturday nights "Beany" would arrive carrying two Zane Grey Books and a box of candy. Bill read one book, Beany read the other, and Tab ate the candy.

Bill and Gilbert were married Oct. 1, 1921 in in 1956. Floydada. Their children, Margaret and Billy were born in 1922 and 1926. Gilbert began working for Thornton Grain in South Plains in 1928. For fourteen years this family enjoyed all the activities of the busy small community, attended the school, and joined the Baptist Church.

Gilbert joined Patterson Grain in 1943. He and Bill lived in Lockney until their

Margaret Elizabeth Bean 1941. Except for nine months in Hillsboro and eleven months that Shelby Marines, they have lived in the South Plains area. Their four children were born in Lockney; John Shelby Jr. in 1945, Gwendolyn Beth in 1947, Jerry Glenn in 1949, and Randall Wayne

All four children were converted and joined the Baptist Church. They finished grade school at South Plains, and high school at Floydada. This last caused no small problem when deciding on which side of the stands to sit at the annual Floydada, Lockney football game, since both Shelby and Margaret had finished high school at Lockney.

Margaret spent one anxious afternoon searching a castor bean field for Randy. Willie (Bill) Taylor from and John Shelby, son of He had run away from his Horace and Lala Calahan second grade class to hide from Mr. Williams, who, he thought was going to give him a spanking.

Although Shelby and served in the Merchant Margaret were happy farming, they encouraged their kids to try other professions. John got his B.S. From Texas Tech, his PHD from A & M and is now plant physiologist in the biology department at TSU.

Beth transferred from Tech to WT to complete her BA and is teaching a first grade in Canyon's school system. Jerry proved the adage "you can't take the country out of the boy". He spent two years at WT, three years army service in Germany, and now drives from Canyon to work with his dad on the farm. Jerry's wife Carol works at the bank in Canyon. Randy is attending WT. He manages to get home to help farm on some weekends. He also enjoys making all the Whirlwind home football games.

W.L. (Billy) Bean finished school at Floydada and after serving in the navy, he earned his BS degree from Texas Tech. Billy married Margaret Whitfield Johnson in Wingate. They lived in Floyd Co. about two years and then moved with their children, Ann, Jackie, and Gilbert Lee to Winters

Wit and Wisdom

The Hesperian-Becon

(Note: All quotes from Hugh Macleod)

Good ideas alter the power balance in relationships, that is why good ideas are always initially resisted. Good ideas come with a heavy burden. Which is why so few people have them. So few people can handle it.

There's no correlation between creativity and equipment ownership. None. Zilch. Nada. Actually, as the artist gets more into his thing, and as he gets more successful, his number of tools tends to go down. He knows what works for him. Expending mental energy on stuff wastes time.

We wish to thank each person that helped on April 7th when Arthur fell and broke his hip.

Neighbors who saw him fall and ran to help, local first responders who came to give support, even though they couldn't bring the Lockney Ambulance due to government regulations.

Lockney is so fortunate to have wonderful caring volunteers to help in a time of need. Our first responders put their life on the line each time they answer a call never knowing what they will face. Our gratitude and support should always be evident to them.

They stayed and helped until Floydada Ambulance arrived to transport him to the Mangold Memorial Emergency Room.

What a blessing for our community that we have a Hospital as well as an emergency room so close with physicians and staff that care about us. We should all be very grateful and work very hard to support our hospital.

We are eternally grateful to everyone who helped that night.

God Bless you,

Nell and Arthur Schur and Jan Glasscock

Staying O

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path. -Psalm 119:105 (KJV)

One summer I spent three months at a wilderness lake with my best friend. We left our Volkswagen van parked at the end of a bumpy dirt and carried an old, heavy wooden canoe along a winding path through giant evergreens the final two miles to the lake.

One evening I went back to the van to read by the glow of its interior lamps. It was already dark when I landed the canoe on the far shore to begin my two-mile trek. Soon I could not see the path. The matches I carried proved useless, casting too little light and hindering my eyes' ability to adapt

So, I tried a different tactic. I removed my shoes and socks, and I stepped forward cautiously. The feel of packed earth under my soles confirmed that I was on the trail. I proceeded this way slowly, step by step. At times, my feet sensed dry leaves and moss, and I corrected my path to the solid earth of the trail. Hours later, I reached my destination without incident. My patience and my trust had been rewarded.

Reflecting on this experience, I saw the parallel with God's guidance in our lives. Just as the connection of my bare feet on that path led me to my destination, when we feel lost or cannot see the path ahead, we can find the way if we remain connected

—Stephen Brown (British Columbia, Canada)

Though for the Day: God will guide my feet on the right path.

High-quality cotton attracts export demand, higher prices

By Blair Fannin Texas A&M AgriLife Communications

COLLEGE STATION - The 2016 U.S. cotton crop produced high yields and high-quality fiber, triggering a spike in export demand and higher market prices, according to a Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service economist.

"No question, we had high-quality cotton produced in 2016 that was widespread across the board," said Dr. John Robinson, AgriLife Extension cotton marketing economist in College Station. "We had high yields, which resulted in more quality cotton to market. That put us in the cat bird's seat."

Since August, Robinson said the demand relationship has shifted "outward," meaning more cotton has been flowing out to the export markets due to political unrest and India losing some of its market share. Cotton prices have reached the upper 70s in recent weeks.

"Some of our export competitors had problems whether it be political policy or India losing export market share and we picked up the slack," he said. "We were shipping more as a result of the India policy issue. That's all great and - can make a big difference. does mostly explain the strengthening in old crop futures. I don't know if those will carry over into next year."

conditions appear to be favorable heading into the summer growing season.

"So far we are good in terms of moisture," Robinson said. "Most of Texas is showing adequate soil moisture. We are off to a good start. I saw a report that indicated a 50-50 chance for an El Nino event that could

Don't Use Climbing Spikes When Pruning Trees

Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

Is your tree care provider using spikes to climb while pruning your trees? Ouch!

Climbing spikes are sharpened steel spikes attached to the climber's leg by leather straps and padded supports. A tree worker should only use them to access trees being removed. When these spikes are used on living trees, it is traumatizing to the tree and creates unnecessary damage.

Each puncture from a climbing spike produces a certain amount of tree tissue death, though this varies from tree to tree. In most cases, isolated wounds will seal, but over time, groupings of spike holes can cause the entire area on the trunk to die back with no chance of recovery. This happens when a tree is repeatedly climbed for pruning while using spikes.

The likelihood of piercing the cambium (living tissue beneath the bark) is high, even with larger trees and thick bark. If soon after the work is performed with spikes there is sap oozing from the wounds, the tree is responding to spike damage. Repeated damage of this type is harmful to the tree.

So why would climbers use spikes if they are harmful to the tree? There are a few exceptional situations where using spikes is appropriate,

- when the tree is being re-
- moved.
- when branches are more than throwline distance apart and there is no other means of climbing the tree (for example: when there are no branches lower than 50 feet), with no access for an aerial lift device or
- if the tree is too close to power lines and cannot be accessed safely by other
- to reach an injured climber. Professional tree care companies are aware of the dangers of spikes and use proper tree equipment such as ropes

Homeowners searching for qualified tree care companies should look for the following: Good References: Ask for references, and check on the quality of their work. Don't be rushed by a bargain and don't pay in advance.

Proof of Insurance: Ask for current certificates of liability and workers' compensation insurance, if applicable. Be aware that if the tree care company you hire doesn't have insurance or is not a legal company, you could be held responsible as a contractor.

Solid Reputation: Verify professional affiliations the company might have, such as memberships in business and/or professional organizations such as the Tree Care Industry Association.

Up-to-Date Knowledge: Ask if they follow ANSI Standards. A professional arborist will be aware of the current safety, pruning, fertilizing and cabling standards.

Contract: Insist on a signed contract as to cost, dates when work is to be performed, and exactly what is to be done. Insist that climbing spikes are used only if the tree is to be cut down.
