The Spirit of Floyd County Fills a Semi

By Kay Ellington The Hesperian-Beacon

It took a semi to hold Floyd County's generosity to Harvey victims.

Last week W.J. Mangold Memorial Hospital put out the word that it would be the clearinghouse for Floyd County's efforts to help Hurricane Harvey victims and networked with a series of local businesses and organizations in Lockney and Floydada to set up drop-off locations.

Within a day there was so much outpouring of generosity, the hospital decided to park a semi in front of the building and to allow the community to bring their donations to the truck on Friday and Saturday.

yssa McCarter updated Mangold's Facebook page throughout the week with changing needs for Harvey assistance and provided the same information to the Hesperian-Beacon for our Facebook page as well.

According to McCarter, Mac Sherman at Helena and Shane and Christina Dewberry with Big Red Freight partnered up with Mangold and offered to take any of the supplies collected down to the coast.

Drop off locations included: W.J. Mangold Memorial Hospital & Lockney Cogdell and Silverton Cogdell Clinics, Lockney ISD Secretary Offices and Superintendent's Office as well as Floydada ISD Secretary Offices and Superintendent's Office, The

W.J. Mangold Memorial Hospital in Lockney served as the central point for Floyd County's contributions to victims of Hurricane Harvey with dropboxes scattered at businesses and organizations across the county.

Floyd County Sheriff's Station, Lockney Co-Op, Davis Lumber in Lockney, D&J Gin in Lockney, Salvation Army of Lockney, Lowes in Lockney and Floydada, First National Bank in Floydada, Payne Pharmacy in Floydada, and Lighthouse Electric in Floydada.

Monetary donations are continuing to be accepted as well. For more information, call Alyssa McCarter at 806-652-3373, ext.205.

Floyd Co. Deputies Dispatched to Harvey Area

By Kay Ellington The Hesperian-Beacon

Floyd County Sheriff's deputies Matthew Arguello and Cade Morris have been deployed to Katy, a city just west of Houston, to help with search and rescue, according to Floyd County Sheriff Paul Raissez.

"We were glad to send any help we could," said Raissez. "Their officers have been on duty since this happened, and they have families and houses they need to deal with as well. You may have seen the Houston Police of Chief on TV today asking for help."The chief was asking for assistance from law enforcement and first responders so that his officers could have some rest. J.C. Chappell with Floydada EMS will also be traveling to the Katy area to assist in the Harvey efforts. Chappell will join Arguello and Morris in reporting to FEMA command center, but all may be assigned to a different area when they arrive there. "People need to remember this is a lot bigger than Houston," Raissez said. "It affects most of the Texas coast."

The sheriff encouraged local residents to help with the and personal situations that relief drive being held at W.J. Mangold in Lockney. The hospital parked a semi-truck in front of their building on Friday and Saturday and local residents could come by and contribute items needed by Harvey victims.

Old Settlers' Reunion Moving to 2nd Saturday in May

By Kay Ellington The Hesperian-Beacon

After 89 years, the Old Set tlers' Reunion is moving from the fourth Saturday in May to the second Saturday in May. The Floyd County Pioneer Association board approved making the change last week.

"This gives us the opportunity not to compete against Memorial Day and school dismissal," said Laura Turner, long-time board member.

Last year both Floydada and Lockney school systems had dismissed before Old Settlers' Day.

The longtime tradition was established to honor the Floyd County forefathers and the county's heritage. Each year in May, the Floyd County Pioneer Association honors the pioneers who made the trail and endured the hardships with the Old Settlers' Reunion. Through these pioneers' efforts they ensured that Floyd County, Texas continues as a vibrant community today.

The reunion takes place in downtown Floydada around the courthouse square.

Now area residents will be able to attend the Old Settlers' Reunion and go out of town for a long weekend during the Memorial Day holiday if they so wish.

Turner noted that in 2018 Old Settler's Day will be May 12, the day before Mother's Day. Many former Floyd County residents may want to return home for

PLAINVIEW - Tammy Aten still is in awe. The shock at learning that someone who loved her parents provided an anonymous $25,000 gift to establish an endowed scholarship at Wayland Baptist University has barely worn Aten and other family members joined friends of the family on Friday, Aug. 25, to dedicate the Rev. Hollis and Jo Payne Endowed Scholarship, the culmination of a special gift in memory of two longtime teachers and bivocational ministers.

Held at Wayland's Mabee Learning Resources Center atrium area, the dedication included the reading of the plaque by Dr. Bobby Hall, Wayland president, and words of appreciation for the Paynes and their love for people from several friends and their son-in-law, Sherman Aten, Granddaughter Brooke Aten sang a worship song with her guitar in honor of her grandparents, who loved music.

Rev. and Mrs. Payne lived for many years in Floydada, on the endowed scholar-Texas. Hollis served in World War II as an Army contact Amber McCloud, Staff Sergeant and began director of development, at his teaching career in Floy- (806) 291-3430.

Jo earned her bachelor's degree at Wayland in 1959 and joined her husband as a teacher in Floydada. She would later earn an award for Outstanding Teacher. Hollis Payne died May 18, 2002. Jo Payne died December 5, 2016.

Wayland has been significant in the Payne family, as Jo's parents attended the college; daughter Tammy earned a music degree in 1985 and granddaughter Breanna Payne also attended recently. Son Joey Payne lives in Plainview, while the Atens live in Granbury. The Paynes also have grandchildren Joshua and Brooke Aten and Kristen Payne.

The family directed the scholarship to benefit four areas of the academic arena that were special to the Paynes, in a rotation to include education, languages and literature, music, religion/ministry. Students will receive scholarships based on interest off the endowment in perpetuity.

The Paperboy Big business yield big power

oes it worry anyone else that the world's largest companies (by valuation) are all high tech com-

As of Tuesday morning these are the largest companies in the world:

1. Apple - $847.4 billion 2. Google (Alphabet Inc.) - $653.9 bil-

3. Microsoft - $569.5

4. Facebook - $499.6 billion 5. Amazon - $469.9 billion

That is simply incredible. In fact, it would not CHRIS surprise me to see most BLACKBURN of these companies past the trillion dollar mark within the next decade.

To put these numbers into perspective, it would take every single man, woman and child in the United States paying $2,567 each to buy Apple at today's market cap. That is astronomical in size.

For 150 years, the United States has been a global leader in terms of people creating enormous companies which have made their founders and early investors the richest people who have ever lived.

From Standard Oil to AT&T to Walmart to Apple - we have dominated the globe in terms of ingenuity and wealth.

Like you, I'm a customer, either personally or in business, of the entire top five on the list. Of course, their dominance is one reason they are so valuable.

The reason I say it worries me is because of the amount of power these companies yield. While I'm for anyone making a buck and love to celebrate the success of others, these companies and their CEOs may be too powerful.

Three of these companies (Apple, Google and Facebook) are located in the San Francisco Bay area and the other two are based near Seattle Washington.

All five companies are extremely liberal and push the narrative of the left across their platforms.

When it comes to politics, I would imagine these companies have several politicians in their back pockets and the strongest lobby there is.

What does this mean? It means they can put tremendous pressure on our elected officials. They also have the most powerful platforms in the world to push whatever narrative they want.

Just this past week, two conservative entertainers, Joy Villa and Kaya Jones (who happen to be in Houston helping with Hurricane Harvey cleanup) were targeted and censored by YouTube, which is owned by Google.

The two launched a pretty significant protest throughout the weekend and YouTube eventually gave up their censoring efforts.

How were they censored? Their music videos - patriotic in nature - were taken down. Why? One was pro-Trump and the other was pro-military/veteran. Weeks ago, Google fired a conservative employee over his stated opinion. While that may be their right, it shows a definite lack of tolerance.

These companies need to realize that with their immense power comes immense responsibility. They have the responsibility to be fair to all people and to attempt to cultivate kindness and openminded discussion. In other words, be fair and do the right thing.

around soap scum, Anyway, there I was when Harvey your house prob- struck, soaking plastic glasses one by one in a vinegar and water solution to erase the scum. In the background, the Weather Channel showed the momentous event from the time Harvey was still out in the Gulf, headed for the Texas coast, until the spinning icon made landfall. I watched the continuing footage -- muddy floodwaters and rescues and devastation. I kept dipping glasses in vinegar to make them sparkle. I felt a little ridiculous.

Watching the Harvey story unfold made me a little envious of the rescuers with their helicopters and flat-bottomed boats, carrying people to safety. Who wouldn't want to do that? But who wants to wait a few days for what comes next? Who wants to go with those same people back to their houses to clean things up? Not me. I'd rather figure out this soap scum thing.

Scum. It's one of those nice Anglo-Saxon words that says it all in one syllable and manages to evoke a certain degree of yukiness even as it rolls off your tongue, not that it rolls. (I just checked; it's from Middle English, making it almost Ang-10-Saxon.) If you haven't lived through the aftermath of a flood, you don't know scum. I haven't, and I don't.

If you have lived through a flood, you learn quickly the fullest definition of scum, not to mention mold, debris and plain old contaminated standing water, not necessarily in that order.

Meanwhile, it seems most often true that disasters start off with great energy and then stagnate, literally. It's grand drama in the beginning; then it's not. If Harvey could be a three-act play, you wouldn't want to stick around for the dismal second act - the one with the scum.

If I were a playwright, my Harvey drama would keep people in their seats through the dark second act. Only then would there be an intermission - a chance for the drama-gripped crowd to breathe some fresh lobby air and shake off the gloom. Then I'd end it all in non-existentialist style. In the third act the sun would shine. (That can happen with the right overhead lights. Right?) Volunteers would arrive with hammers and saws and building materials and knowhow. Homes and lives would get rebuilt. Lost animals would be found. Maybe even lost people. And so on.

Maybe I'd end it all with someone resettled in a refurbished home, looking at soap scum on a drinking glass.

Scam activity noted in New Mexico, possible in other locations

Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

Xcel Energy has learned of another round of scamming attempts against its customers, mostly in the Roswell, N.M., area. However, the company is warning that these waves of scams tend to move on to other locations, so customers in both New Mexico and Texas should be extra careful.

The scams are similar to past phone scams in which the caller poses as an Xcel Energy customer agent. Sometimes the scammers are able to spoof an Xcel Energy phone number to make it appear as if the call is coming directly from the company. The caller warns the customer that a serviceman is on the way to disconnect power because of a delinquent bill, and the only way to prevent disconnection is for the customer to provide payment over the phone. Oftentimes the scammer will provide only one option for payment, such as a prepaid debit card.

It also has been reported that scammers are attempting to make their pitch even more convincing by providing the last four digits of the vehicle number of the serviceman they claim is on his way to disconnect service.

Xcel Energy reminds customers that they will receive a disconnect notice in the mail before a serviceman is sent to disconnect the meter. The company also provides multiple ways to pay a bill. Customers receiving suspicious calls should hang up and contact the company at 1-800-895-4999 to check the status scheduled payments in the appropriate ways. Customers can also download the Xcel Energy mobile app from Apple Store or through Google Play. THE OLD ROCK HOUSE

Caprock stone walls of this historic building will be used in re-construction of the 75-yearold house destroyed by fire Saturday morning, according to first plans projected by A. L. Smith, the owner.

Only the stone walls of the historic Old Rock House at Mount Blanco stand this week following a fire which destroyed all the contents and woodwork of the building Saturday morning, while the A. L. Smith family, owners, were absent from home.

The fire discovered by mail carrier Owen Crump, of Route 2, Crosbyton, was battled by the carrier and neighbors of the Smith family, but ineffectively. There was practically no salvage of household effects, only the clothes worn by the family group being saved.

While the neighbors are making plans for a shower for the family Friday night to put them back in housekeeping once more, A. L. Smith, the owner, is viewing the scene and Hope everyone has an totting up the damage, with a view to re-building. This week it appeared he would be able to use the old walls, built of caprock stone, a durable magnesia limestone, with which the structure was put together 75 years ago by his grandfather. The mortar in the walls is also of lime made from the caprock limestone.

Loss Being Estimated

J. H. Reagan, local insurance agent, reported that W. A. Gound and Smith are making figures and estimates of the damage to the building and the family is invoicing their household losses. Total insurance carried was $9,000, Reagan said. The old house had been completely modernized, with lights, gas and water, and was a quite comfortable home. Smith is a son of R. B. Smith, and a grandson of H. C. Smith, the Confederate scout, Indian trader and freight contractor. With the Old Rock House the present occupant owns about a section of land of the original ranch.

House Started in 1876

The Old Rock House is 19 miles southeast of Floydada in Blanco canyon and about 13 miles northwest of Crosbyton. Its construction was begun in 1876 by H. C. Smith for a man bearing the assumed name of Charles Tasker and for an Irish lord of the name of Jamison

Their plan was to start a ranch, running their cattle in the Blanco with the canyon rims as natural barriers or fences. According to Claude V. Hall's EARLY HISTORY OF FLOYD COUNTY, Jamison withdrew from the enterprise when his hand was accidentally shot off while enroute to Mt. Blanco from Fort Griffin. Tasker continued with the project, but an uncle, a rich manufacturer, refused to back him further. In his extremity, as creditors closed in, Tasker left the country. Smith had advanced the adventurer about $11,000, and obtained the unfinished house as part compensation for his advances. Thus Hank Smith became a "nestor" to save total loss of the money he had put into the enterprise. He finished the two-story stone residence in 1877 and he and his family moved into it, coming from Fort Griffin.

In 1879 the post office department created Mount Blanco post office and Mrs. H. C. Smith served as postmaster there for 39 years. H. C. died in 1912. The property later came into the ownership of R. B. Smith, father of A. L. Smith, and it was R. B. Smith who named and dedicated the Hank Smith Memorial park on grounds adjacent to the Old Rock House in honor of

Proper Tree Planting and Care is Critical to Survival

By Melinda Myers Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

Whether planting a tree to add seasonal beauty, grow backyard uce energy costs, it's a big upfront Wednesday, and Friday, investment. Make the most of your money spent by giving your tree its best chance at survival with

Now is a great time to plant trees. Cooler air temperatures make it less stressful on newly planted trees and the gardeners planting them.

Select a tree suited to the growing conditions. Make sure it tolerates the sunlight, soil and temperature extremes. Check the tag for the mature height and spread. You'll have a better-looking plant that always fits the space with minimal pruning.

Plant it correctly to insure your tree thrives for many years to come. Dig a saucer shaped hole three to five times wider than the root ball. It should only be as deep as the distance from the root flare to the bottom of the root ball. The root flare, where the roots bend away from the trunk, should always be at or slightly above the soil surface.

Set the tree in the hole, then peel back and cut away any burlap and wire cages. These can eventually constrict root growth. Roughen the sides of the hole and backfill fruit, provide a bit of shade, or re- with the existing soil. Water thoroughly to moisten the roots and surrounding soil.

> Continue to water thoroughly whenever the top few inches of soil are crumbly and moist. Proper watering, especially during the first two years, is critical for establishing trees. Watering thoroughly as needed encourages deep roots and a more drought tolerant and pest resistant tree.

> Make the job easier with a watering aid like GreenWell water saver (greenwellwatersavers.com). This contains and concentrates the water where it is needed, acting as an insurance policy for your tree during the critical root establishment phase. It also holds the mulch in place and prevents weed whips and mowers from damaging vour tree.

Be sure to mulch the soil surface with a two- to three-inch layer of woodchips or shredded bark to conserve water, suppress weeds and improve the soil as it decomposes. Pull the mulch back from the trunk of the tree to avoid disease

Remove any tags that can eventually girdle the tree and prune out any broken or rubbing branches. Wait a year to fertilize and two years, once the tree is established, for additional pruning.

Continue providing tender loving care for at least the first two years. Make regular checkups, prune to create a strong structure, and keep grass, weeds and lawn care equipment away from the trunk throughout the lifetime of your tree. Your efforts will be rewarded with years of beauty, shade, and for some bushels of fresh fruit. Gardening expert Melinda Myers has more than 30 years of horticulture experience and has written over 20 gardening books, including Small Space Gardening. ### Pet talk:

Protect your pet from Canine Influenza

At the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences (CVM) veterinarians are working to educate pet parents about the recent outbreak of canine influenza in Georgia and Florida that could affect dogs in Texas.

Just like humans, pets can be affected by strains of influenza and experience flulike symptoms. The strains of influenza that affect dogs are highly contagious and spread through particles in the air. However, the disease is typically not life-threatening when treated and is not transmissible to humans.

"The most common symptoms of canine flu include coughing and lethargy, as well as decreased appetite and fever," said Dr. Stacy Eckman, clinical assistant professor at the CVM. "In some cases, the infection can progress to pneumonia, especially when the flu is complicated by other boarded; visit grooming salons respiratory bacteria or virus-

The canine flu should be treated as soon as possible. If you are worried your pet is experiencing symptoms of the canine flu, contact your veterinarian before going in to their office. This allows the veterinarian to prepare for the visit and potentially decrease exposure to other pets.

If you live in an area where the canine flu has been reported, consider keeping your dog away from other dogs by staying clear of the dog park or kenneling your dog.

Canine influenza is a relatively new virus in dogs, but there are vaccines available to help protect your pet. The vaccine does not prevent your pet from getting infected or spreading the virus, but it may reduce your pet's symptoms.

"The vaccine is recommended for pets that go to dog shows, including hunting and agility; are kenneled or or doggie day cares regularly; or are around a high number of dogs that visit these areas," Eckman said.

If your pet becomes infected with the canine flu, a veterinarian can provide supportive care and medications to make the pet feel better. In the meantime, consider your options for preventing your pet from facing this illness again in the future, such as with a vaccine.

As a pet parent, it is important to provide your dog with excellent healthcare. Talk with your veterinarian about reducing the chances of your dog being impacted by canine influenza.

A bunch of us went to the races up in the city the other day. Windy won a little, but the rest of us just kinda broke even, and we got to yell and cheer, so I guess that can cost two bucks without hamstringing the entire regiment. It was fun.

And we ran into Brock Bullingham there, too, who had a horse entered in a maiden race. Brock's place is about 20 miles north of the city, and he runs horses and cattle on a huge acreage. He told us proudly what the horse was called so we could cheer for him, and off they went. Brock's horse went to the lead and stayed there. He gathered up even more of a lead on the backstretch and finished about 15 lengths ahead of the second-place horse.

He went down to the winner's circle and we went along for the fun. The track stewards, for it at LPDpress.com.

"Brock, you say that horse is eight years old?"

"Shore is."

"Well, if you have a horse that can run like that, why is he just now in a maiden race?" Brock grinned, "Couldn't catch him 'til he was seven." Brought to you by new book The Fly Fisherman's Bucket List. Look

Texas A&M ranks first in Texas for highest-earned graduates

Texas A&M University

COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 7, 2017 – Texas A&M again ranks first in the state and among the top 25 public institutions nationally for highest-earning graduates, according to a recent survey reported by Forbes magazine.

Aggie graduates at midcareer earn an average of $99,700 annually, placing Texas A&M 18th. The only other Texas institution in the ranking is the University of Texas at Austin, placing last in the list of the top 25 public universities, with alumni salaries averaging $96,400 annually.

"This survey and many others affirm that a Texas A&M education is an investment that pays off financially as well as in so many other ways," said Texas A&M President Michael K. Young. "More of our students graduate on time compared to their peers, and they leave with less college-related debt and with the knowledge and skills that employers prize. We are proud of our reputation for producing leaders."

The 1,800-student SUNY Maritime College tops the list, with average graduate earnings of $144,000 annually. Military institutions and the United States Merchant Marine Academy round out the top five, and the rest of the list is dominated by engineering and tech powerhouses, including eight in California.

One thing I can say about the Dallas Cowboys: They have always had talent around them. They have been one of the most talented football teams in all of football.

I understand what's expected of me. I understand the lineage for the running back position of the Dallas Cowboys.

— Ezekiel Elliott

I paid more for the Dallas Cowboys than anyone prior than that had ever paid to get involved in sports. But I wanted to be a part of the future of the Dallas Cowboys.

I sacrificed for the Dallas Cowboys when most quit. I put in overtime to try to help young players.

It's funny, but when there are dominant teams, there are a number of people who rail about the fact that they're always seeing the Dallas Cowboys or the San Francisco 49ers or the Green Bay either in the playoffs or in the Super Bowl.

BEYOND UNDERSTANDING

This is the confidence we have in approaching God: that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us.

—1 John 5:14 (NIV)

For years my daughter Deanna has suffered from frequent, severe migraine headaches that only medication and a dark, quiet room can lessen. Seeing this, I feel helpless and wish I could suffer in her place; but I can't. So for three years now I have been praying for her healing—fervently, hopefully, confidently, and with as much faith as I can muster. And yet my daughter continues to experience this pain that I can't fix.

The Bible tells us that we will receive if we ask. But it also tells of two sets of disciples who prayed for two different men of God to be released from prison. I'm sure both groups prayed fervently, hopefully, confidently, and with as much faith as they could muster. Yet an angel freed Peter, and John the Baptist was executed. Did Peter's disciples pray harder than John's disciples? If not, why does God seem to answer some prayers and not others?

Surely God hears all our prayers and answers us. Sometimes the answer is immediate; sometimes God says, "Not now." And sometimes we may never know the answer. I will continue to pray for my daughter — knowing that God's love for her is even greater than mine. I trust that God hears us and responds in ways beyond our understanding.

—Tom Smith (Utah, USA)

Cost-share funding available AgriLife sets annual ram test for irrigation monitoring

LUBBOCK -- Irrigators within the High Plains Water District (HPWD) service area can now apply for partial reimbursement of the purchase price of ir rigation system monitoring equipment purchased after July 20.

Qualified applicants may be reimbursed up to 50 percent of the purchase price of telemetry-based equipment excluding data plans, installation and labor costs, and taxes under the district's new Assistance in Irrigation Management (AIM) program.

"This is a voluntary program to assist producers with the purchase price of irrigation monitoring systems typically used with a center pivot system or a subsurface drip irrigation system," said HPWD Board President Lynn Tate of Amarillo.

"These monitoring systems transmit data to a smartphone or tablet, and provide timely information to the operator. Producers can then use the devices to assist with management decisions, such as monitoring the amount of water applied to a crop or turning off their systems during rainfall events. This can help conserve groundwater," he said.

HPWD received $225,000 in grant funding from the Irrigators within the High PlainsWaterDistrict(HPWD) service area can now apply for partial reimbursement of the purchase price of irrigation system monitoring equipment purchased after Texas Water Development Board's Agricultural Water Conservation Grants Program for the project.

"Applications will be handled on a first-come, firstserved basis," said HPWD General Manager Jason Coleman.

"Once the application is approved, HPWD staff will follow up with a field check to make sure the monitoring system is installed. Once the installation is verified and a receipt is received for purchase of the monitoring system, HPWD will begin start with the Sept. 11 delivthe process of reimbursing the producer for up to 50 percent of the purchase price of the equipment," he said. Coleman added that on U.S. Highway 87. participation in the program requires documentation or estimation of the conservation ben'efits as a result of using the equipment.

During the five-year program, there is joint ownership of the cost-share equipment between HPWD, the producer, and the TWDB. Full ownership of the system monitoring equipment will revert to the producer when the program is comis provided to HPWD.

Additional information be found on the district's web site: http://www.hpwd. org/aim. All applications must be submitted by Jan. 31, 2018, to Victoria Messer Whitehead either in person at the HPWD office or via email at victoria.messer@

Cattle Raisers Establish Fund to Help Ranchers in the Aftermath of Hurricane Harvey

Special to the Hesperian-Beacon

FORT WORTH, Texas — Hurricane Harvey has devastated an extensive area within Texas, including many rural pleted and all requested data stretches that are home to thousands of cattlemen and women. Many of the affected and application forms can ranchers are already hard at work, ensuring the safety of their animals and beginning to rebuild. However, as the flood waters recede in the coming days, even more damage is likely to be revealed. Fences, pens and buildings will need to be repaired or rebuilt, cattle will need veterinary treatment and adequate feed supplies. Cattle raisers across the region will need assistance to complete these vital tasks and restore their operations.

To assist those cattle raisers in need, the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association (TSCRA) has established the Cattle Raisers Relief Fund. The fund. administered by the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Foundation, a 501(c)3, will begin accepting monetary donations today. 100 percent of donations will go to support relief efforts for ranch families affected by the disaster. "It is truly heartwarming to see the outpouring of support that has come from across the entire country," said Richard Thorpe, president of TSCRA. "The dedication and generosity I have witnessed in recent days has given me great confidence that we will weather this storm and continue our proud tradition of ranching in these hard-hit areas."

Cattle Raisers Issue Warning Amid Uptick in Scams Targeting Ranchers

Special to the Hesperian-Beacon

FORT WORTH, Texas — Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association (TSCRA) Special Rangers have noticed a troubling increase in a scam that targets ranchers and agriculture producers. TSCRA's Special Rangers are credentialed peace officers who primarily investigate livestock and agriculture related crimes, including theft by fraud.

Over recent weeks Special Rangers across the state have received reports from ranchers who have been targeted by the scams. The details vary, but most incidents follow a similar theme. A buyer, often from out of state, will call to inquire about cattle, hay or equipment that is for sale. The two parties will agree on a price and the buyer will send a check or cashier's check, which is where the trouble begins. The check sent by the buyer will be over the agreed to price, and the buyer will ask that the check be cashed and the extra money wired or given to someone else to pay for transportation and delivery. In some cases, the scammer has no intention of making the purchase. The check is cou terfeit, designed to look legitimate for just long enough that it can be cashed and the money wired. In other cases, the scammer will attempt to obtain the items before the check has finally cleared and is found to be counterfeit. In either case, the victim will be left liable for the funds while the crook enjoys the ill-gotten proceeds, and potentially the stolen livestock or equipment.

"Knowledge is power in these sorts of situations," said Larry Gray, the director of law enforcement at TSCRA. "If you are aware of the red flags and act cautiously you can avoid falling victim to such scams."

Gray offered a few tips to stay

1. Try to do business with people you know. When working with an unknown buyer, try to verify their information through a third party.

2. Be cautious about accepting checks-even a cashier's checkfrom people you do not know. It can be difficult to pursue a remedy if the transaction goes bad.

3. Never accept a check for more than the selling price if you are expected to give the excess to Lockney will travel to Levelland to take on Lubbock Trinity at 6:00 PM, Saturday, Sept. 9.

It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.
